PREFACE

The aim in the selection of the plays in this volume has been twofold: first, to present typical examples of the work of the most important of Shakespeare's contemporaries, so that, read with Shakespeare's own writings, they might afford a view of the development of the English drama through its most brilliant period; secondly, to present, as far as it was possible in one volume, the most distinguished plays of that period, regarded merely from the point of view of their intrinsic value. It is clear that these two purposes could not always be perfectly combined; but it is hoped that each has been in good measure achieved without undue sacrifice of the other, and that the interests of the academic student and the general reader have been fairly harmonized.

In the treatment of the text, the same principles have been followed as in the editor's edition of Shakespeare's works in the Cambridge Poets Series. Each play has been printed from the most authentic text accessible, and emendations have been adopted sparingly. Modern stage directions, and divisions into scenes and acts which do not appear in the original editions, have been distinguished by square brackets; modern notes of place at the beginning of scenes have been relegated to the footnotes; and indications given by the early copies of the authors' intentions with regard to the reading of the metre have been carefully preserved, especially in the matter of elided vowels. It is probable that, in the case of most of the present plays, the final -ed of verbs was intended to be pronounced as a separate syllable whenever it is spelled in full. The spelling and punctuation have been modernized throughout, except when the older spelling implied a different pronunciation.

The footnotes give the most important variant readings, and explanations of obsolete expressions; and the Additional Notes at the end of the volume supply information with regard to the circumstances of publication, date, and sources of each play. In accordance with the plan of the Chief Poets Series, to which the volume belongs, there have been added concise biographical sketches and a selected bibliography of the dramatic work of each author. In view of the full bibliographies printed recently in Professor Schelling's Elizabethan Drama and in The Cambridge History of English Literature, vols. v and vi, it has not seemed advisable to attempt to give exhaustive bibliographies at the expense of reducing the number of dramas. All collected editions of the dramatists concerned are, however, mentioned; all separate editions of the plays here printed; a complete list of each author's dramas, with the dates of the original editions; and a selection of the more important critical and biographical articles and books. Attention may also be called to the complete index of all the dramatis personae who have speaking parts, and to the index of songs.

In the selection of the thirty plays to be included I have received valuable advice from many friends and colleagues on the faculties of many colleges and universities; so many that a complete acknowledgment would be impracticable, a partial one invidious. For all such help I am deeply grateful. I have also received courtesies from the authorities of the Boston Public Library, the Boston Athenaeum, and the Harvard College Library, which have enabled me to add to the authority of my texts by a first-hand collation of a number of the original quartos.

Printing from so great a variety of sources and from so many different authors, I have found it difficult to preserve perfect uniformity of treatment, and have doubtless at times failed of accuracy. Any corrections which may occur to students of the Elizabethan drama who use the volume will be warmly welcomed.

THE PROLOGUE

Most high and happy Princess, we must tell you a tale of the Man in the Moon, which, if it seem ridiculous for the method, or superfluous for the matter, or for the means incredible, for three faults we can make but one excuse: it is a tale of the Man in the Moon.

It was forbidden in old time to dispute of Chimeras because it was a fiction: we hope in our times none will apply pastimes, because they are fancies; for there liveth none under the sun that knows what to make of the Man in the Moon. We present neither comedy, nor tragedy, nor story, nor anything but that whoseover heareth may say this: Why, here is a tale of the Man in the Moon.

ACT I

SCENE I.²

[Enter] ENDYMION and EUMENIDES.

Endymion. I find, Eumenides, in all things both variety to content, and satiety to glut, saving only in my affections, which are so staid, and withal so stately, that I can neither satisfy my heart with love, nor mine eyes with wonder. My thoughts, Eumenides, are stitched to the stars, which being as high as I can see, thou mayest imagine how much higher they are than I can reach.

Eum. If you be enamoured of anything above the moon, your thoughts are ridiculous, for that things immortal are not subject to affections: if allured or enchanted with these transitory things under the moon, you show yourself senseless to attribute such lofty titles to such [low]² trivials.

End. My love is placed neither under the moon nor above.

² In the Gardens of Cynthia's Palace.
² So Bond. Old edd. love.

Eum. I hope you be not sotted³ upon the Man in the Moon.

End. No; but settled either to die or possess the moon herself.

Eum. Is Endymion mad, or do I mistake? Do you love the moon, Endymion?

End. Eumenides, the moon.

Eum. There was never any so peevish⁴ to imagine the moon either capable of affection or shape of a mistress; for as impossible it is to make love fit to her humour, which no man knoweth, as a coat to her form, which continueth not in one bigness whilst she is measuring. Cease off, Endymion, to feed so much upon fancies. That melancholy blood must be purged which draweth you to a dotage no less miserable than monstrous.

End. My thoughts have no veins, and yet unless they be let blood, I shall perish.

Eum. But they have vanities, which being reformed, you may be restored.

End. O, fair Cynthia, why do others term thee unconstant whom I have ever found unmoveable? Injurious time, corrupt manners, unkind men, who, finding a constancy not to be matched in my sweet mistress, have christened

³ Infatuated with.
⁴ Foolish.
Enter Tellus and Floscula.

Tellus. Treacherous and most perjur'd Endymion, is Cynthia the sweetness of thy life and the bitterness of my death? What revenge may be devised so full of shame as my thoughts are replenished with malice? Tell me, Floscula, if falseness in love can possibly be punished with extremity of hate? As long as sword, fire, or poison may be hired, no traitor to my love shall live unrevenged. Were thy oaths without number, thy kisses without measure, thy sighs without end, forged to deceive a poor credulous virgin, whose simplicity had been worth thy favour and better fortune? If the gods sit unequal beholders of injuries, or laughers at lovers' deceits, then let mischief be as well for given in women as perjury winked at in men.

Flos. Madam, if you would compare the state of Cynthia with your own, and the height of Endymion his thoughts with the meanness of your fortune, you would rather yield than contend, being between you and her no comparison; and rather than rage at the greatness of his mind, being affected with a thing more than mortal.

Tellus. No comparison, Floscula! And why so? Is not my beauty divine, whose body is decked with fair flowers, and veins are vines, yielding sweet liquor to the dullest spirits; whose ears are corn, to bring strength; and whose hairs are grass, to bring abundance? Doth not frankincense and myrrh breathe out their fragrance? Doth not the sacrifice of the gods breed in my bowels? Infinities are my creatures, without which neither thou, nor Endymion, nor any, could love or live.

Flos. But know you not, fair lady, that Cynthia governeth all things? Your grapes would be but dry husks, your corn but chaff, and all your virtues vain, were it not Cynthia that preserves the one in the bud and nourisheth the other in the blade, and by her influence both comforteth all things, and by her authority commandeth all creatures. Suffer, then, Endymion to follow his affections, though to obtain her is impossible, and let him flatter himself in his own imaginations, because they are immortal.

Tellus. Loath I am, Endymion, thou shouldst die, because I love thee well; and that thou shouldst live, it grieveth me, because thou lovest Cynthia too well. In these extremities, what shall I do? Floscula, no more words; I am resolved. He shall neither live nor die.

Flos. A strange practice, if it be possible.

Tellus. Yes, I will entangle him in such a sweet net that he shall neither find the means to come out, nor desire it. All allurements of pleasure will I cast before his eyes, insomuch that he shall slake that love which he now voweth to Cynthia, and burn in mine, of which he seemeth careless. In this languishing, between my amorous desires and his own lost desires, there shall such dissolute thoughts take 1 Swaddling-clothes.

3 Plot.
Enter Sir Tophas [and Epiton].

Top. Epi!

Epi. Here, sir.

Top. I brook not this idle humour of love; it tickleth not my liver, from whence the love—[16] mongers in former ages seemed to infer they should proceed.

Epi. Love, sir, may lie in your lungs, — and I think it doth, and that is the cause you blow and are so pury.

Top. Tush, boy, I think it but some device of the poet to get money.

Epi. A poet? What's that?

Top. Dest thou not know what a poet is?

Epi. No.

Top. Why, fool, a poet is as much as one should say—a poet. [Noticing Dares and Samias.] But soft, yonder be two wenches; shall I shoot at them?

Epi. They are two lads.

Top. Larks or wenches, I will kill them.

Epi. Larks! Are you blind? They are two little boys.

Top. Birds or boys, they are both but a pitance for my breakfast; therefore have at them, for their brains must as it were embroiler my bolts.

Sam. Stay your courage, valiant knight, for your wisdom is so weary that it stayeth itself.

Dar. Why, Sir Tophas, have you for—gotten your old friends?

Sam. And why not friends?

Top. Because amicitia (as in old annals we find) is inter pares. Now, my pretty com-panions, you shall see how unequal you be to me; but I will not cut you quite off, you shall be my half-friends for reaching to my middle; so far as from the ground to the waist I will be your friend.

Dar. Learnedly. But what shall become of the rest of your body, from the waist to the crown?

Top. My children, quod supra vos nihil ad vos, you must think the rest immortal, be—cause you cannot reach it.

Epi. Nay, I tell ye my master is more than a man.

Dar. And thou less than a mouse.

Top. But what be you two?

Sam. I am Samias, page to [Eumenides].

Dar. And I Dares, page to [Endymion].

Top. Of what occupation are your masters?

Dar. Occupation, you clown! Why, they are honourable and warriors.

Top. Then are they my prentices.

Dar. Thine! And why so?

Top. I was the first that ever devised war, and therefore by Mars himself given me for my arms a whole armory; and thus I go, as you [35] see, clothed with artillery. It is not silks, milk-sops, nor tissues, nor the fine wool of Seres [36] Blunt arrows.

but iron, steel, swords, flame, shot, terror, clamour, blood, and rain, that rooks asleep my thoughts, which never had any other cradle but cruelty. Let me see, do you not bleed?
Dar. Why so?
Top. Commonly my words wound.
Sam. What then do your blows?
Top. Not only [wound], but also confound.
Sam. How darest thou come so near thy master. Epi? Sir Tophas, spare us.
Top. You shall live:—you, Samias, because you are little; you, Dares, because you are no bigger; and both of you, because you are but two; for commonly I kill by the dozen, and have for every particular adversary a peculiar weapon.
Sam. May we know the use, for our better skill in war?
Top. You shall. Here is a bird-bolt for the ugly beast the blackbird.
Dar. A cruel sight.
Top. Here is the musket for the untamed or, as they vulgarly term it, the wild mallard.
O. O desperate attempt!
Edi. Nay, my master will match them.
Dar. Ay, if he catch them.
Top. Here is a spear and shield, and both necessary, the one to conquer, the other to subdue or overcome the terrible trout, which al though he be under the water, yet tying a string to the top of my spear and an engine of iron to the end of my line, I overthrow him, and then herein you.
Sam. O wonderful war! [Aside.] Dares, didst thou ever hear such a dolt?
Dar. [Aside.] All the better; we shall have good sport hereafter, if we can get leisure.
Sam. [Aside.] Leisure! I will rather lose my master's service than his company! Look how he struts. [To Sir Tophas.] But what is this? Call you it your sword?
Top. No, it is my simiter; which I, by construction often studying to be compendious, call my weapon.
Dar. What, are you also learned, sir?
Top. Learned? I am all Mars and Ars.
Sam. Nay, you are all mass and ass.
Top. Mock you me? You shall both suffer, yet with such weapons as you shall make choice of the weapon wherewith you shall perish. Am I all a mass or lump; is there no proportion in me? Am I all ass; is there no wit in me? Epi, prepare them to the slaughter.
Sam. I pray, sir, hear us speak! We call you mass, which your learning doth well understand is all man, for mas, mars is a man. Then as (as you know) is a weight, and we for your virtues account you a weight.
Top. The Latin hath saved your lives, the which a world of silver could not have rendered. I understand you, and pardon you.
Dar. Well, Sir Tophas, we bid you farewell, and at our next meeting we will be ready to do you service.
Top. Samias, I thank you: Dares, I thank you: but especially I thank you both.

Sam. [Aside.] Wisely, Come, next time we'll have some pretty gentlewomen with us to walk, for without doubt with them he will be very dainty.
Dar. Come, let us see what our masters do; it is high time.
Exeunt [Samias and Dares.]
Top. Now will I march into the field, where, if I cannot encounter with my foul enemies, I will withdraw myself to the river, and there forstify for fish, for there resteth no minute free from fight.
Exeunt [Sir Tophas and Epioton.]

Scene IV.
[Enter at one side] Floscula and Tellus, [at the other] Dipasas.

Tellus. Behold, Floscula, we have met with the woman by chance that we sought for by travel. I will break my mind to her without ceremony or circumstance, lest we lose that time in advice that should be spent in execution.
Flos. Use your discretion; I will in this case neither give counsel nor consent, for there cannot be a thing more monstrous than to force affection by sorcery, neither do I imagine anything more impossible.
Tellus. Tellus, Floscula, in obtaining of love, what impossibilities will I not try? And for the winning of Endymion, what impieties will I not practise? Dipasas, whom as many honour for age as wonder at for cunning, listen in few words to my tale, and answer in one word to the purpose, for that neither my burning desire can afford long speech, nor the short time I have to stay many delays. Is it possible by herbs, stones, spells, incantation, enchantment, exorcisms, fire, metals, planets, or any practice, to plant affection where it is not, and to supplant it where it is?
Dipasas. Fair lady, you may imagine that these hoary hairs are not void of experience, nor the general name that goeth of my cunning to be without cause. I can darken the sun by my skill and remove the moon out of her course; I can restore youth to the aged and make hills without bottoms; there is nothing that I cannot do but that only which you would have me do; and therein I differ from the gods, that I am not able to rule hearts; for were it in my power to place affection by appointment, I would make such evil appetites, such inordinate lusts, such cursed desires, as all the world should be filled both with superstitions heats and extreme love.
Tellus. Unhappy Tellus, whose desires are so desperate that they are neither to be conceived of any creature, nor to be cured by any art!
Dipasas. This I can: breed slackness in love, though never root it out. What is he whom you love, and what she that he honoureth?
Tellus. Endymion, sweet Endymion is he that hath my heart; and Cynthia, too, too fair.

1 Old ed., confound.
2 Drake.
3 The same.
4 Plot.
Cynthia, the miracle of nature, of time, of fortune, is the lady that he delights in, and so dotes on every day, and dies for ten thousand times a day.

Dipsas. Would you have his love either by absence or sickness asked? Would you that Cynthia should mistrust him, or be jealous of him without colour? Tellus. It is the only thing I crave, that, seeing my love to Endymion, unspotted, cannot be accepted, his truth to Cynthia, though it be unspeakable, may be suspected. Dipsas. I will undertake it, and overtake him, that all his love shall be doubled of, and therefore become desperate: but this will wear out with time that treadeth all things down but truth.

Tellus. Let us go.

Dipsas. I follow.

Exeunt.

ACT II

SCENE I. *

[Enter] ENDYMION.

Endymion. O fair Cynthia! O unfortunate Endymion! Why was not thy birth as high as thy thoughts, or her beauty less than heavenly; or why are not thine honours as rare as her beauty, or thy fortunes as great as thy desires? Sweet Cynthia, how wouldst thou be pleased, how possessed? Will Labours, patient of all extremities, obtain thy love? There is no mountain so steep that I will not climb, no monster so cruel that I will not tame, no action so desperate that I will not attempt. Desirist thou the passions of love, the sad and melancholy moods of perplexed minds, the not-to-be-expressed torments of racked thoughts? Behold my sad tears, my deep sighs, my hollow (is eyes, my broken sleepes, my heavy countenance. Wouldst thou have me vow'd only to thy beauty and consume every minute of time in thy service? Remember my solitary life almost these seven years. Whom have I entertained but my own thoughts and thy virtues? Whose company have I used but contemplation? Whom have I wond'red at but thee? Nay, whom have I not commended for thee? Have I not crept to those on whom I might have trodden, only because thou didst shine upon them? Have not injuries been sweet to me, if thou would'st safest I should bear them? Have I not spent my golden years in hopes, waxing old with wishing, yet wishing nothing but thy love? With Tellus, fair Tellus, have I dissembled, using her but as a cloak for mine affections, that others, seeing my mangled and disordered mind, might think it were for one that loveth me, not for Cynthia, whose perfection alloweth no companion nor comparison. In the midst of these distemp'red thoughts of mine thou art not only jealous of my truth, but careless, suspicious, and secure; which strange humour maketh my mind as desperate as thy conceits, are so doubtful. I am none of those wolves that bark most when thou shinest brightest, but that fish (thy fish, Cynthia, in the flood Araris) which at thy waxing as white as the driven snow, and at thy drying as black as deepest darkness. I am that Endymion, sweet Cynthia, that have carried my thoughts in equal balance with my actions, being always as free from imagining ill as enterprising; that Endymion whose eyes never esteemed anything fair but thy face, whose tongue termed nothing rare but thy virtues, and whose heart imagined nothing miraculous but thy government; yea, that Endymion, who, divorcing himself from the amiable-ness of all ladies, the bravery of all courts, the company of all men, hath chosen in a solitary cell to live, only by feeding on thy favour, accounting in the world—but thyself—nothing excellent, nothing immortal: thus mayest thou see every vein, sinew, muscle, and art of my love, in which there is no flattery, nor deceit, nor art. But soft, here cometh Tellus. I must turn my other face to her, like Janus, lest she be as suspicious as Juno.

Enter Tellus. [Floscula, and Dipsas].

Tellus. Yonder I espie Endymion. I will seem to suspect nothing, but soothe him, that seeing I cannot obtain the depth of his love, I may learn the height of his dissembling. Floscula and Dipsas, withdrew yourselves out of our sight, yet be within the hearing of our saluting. [Floscula and Dipsas withdraw.] How now, Endymion, always solitary? No company but your own thoughts, no friend but melancholy fancies?

End. You know, fair Tellus, that the sweet remembrance of your love is the only companion of my life, and thy presence, my paradise; so that I am not alone when nobody is with me, and in heaven itself when thou art with me.

Tellus. Then you love me, Endymion?

End. Or else I live not, Tellus.

Tellus. Is it not possible for you, Endymion, to dissemble?

End. Not, Tellus, unless I could make me a woman.

Tellus. Why, is dissembling joined to their sex inseparable, as heat to fire, heaviness to earth, moisture to water, thinness to air?

End. No, but found in their sex as common as spots upon doves, moles upon faces, caterpillars upon sweet apples, cobwebs upon fair windows.

Tellus. Do they all dissemble?

End. All but one.

Tellus. Who is that?

End. I dare not tell; for if I should say you, then would you imagine my flattery to be extreme; if another, then would you think my love to be but indifferent.

Tellus. You will be sure I shall take no vantage of your words. But, in sooth, Endymion, without more ceremonies, is it not Cynthia?
End. You know, Tellus, that of the gods we are forbidden to dispute, because their duties come not within the compass of our reason; and of Cynthia we are allowed not to talk but to wonder, because her virtues are not within the reach of our capacities.

Tellus. Why, she is but a woman.
End. No more was Venus. Tellus. She is but a virgin.
End. No more was Vesta. Tellus. She shall have an end.
End. So shall the world. Tellus. Is not her beauty subject to time?
End. No more than time is to standing still. Tellus. Wilt thou make her immortal?
End. No, but incomparable.

Tellus. Take heed, Endymion, lest like the wrestler in Olympia, that striving to lift an impossible weight catch d an incurable strain, thou, by fixing thy thoughts above thy reach, fall into a disease without all recourse. But I see thou art now in love with Cynthia.
End. No, Tellus, thou knowest that the stately cedar, whose top reacheth unto the clouds, never boweth his head to the shrubs that grow in the valley; nor ivy, that climbeth up by the elm, can ever get hold of the beams of the sun. Cynthia I honour in all humility, whom none ought or dare adventure to love, whose affections are immortal, and virtues infinite. Suffer me, therefore, to gaze on the moon, at whom, were it not for thyself, I would die with wondering.

Exeunt.

SCENE II.

[Enter] Dares, Samias, Scintilla, and Favilla.

Dar. Come, Samias, didst thou ever hear such a sighing, the one for Cynthia, the other for Semele, and both for moonshine in the water?
Sam. Let them sigh, and let us sing. How say you, gentlewomen, are not our masters too far in love?
Scint. Their tongues, haply, are dipp'd to the root in amorous words and sweet discourses, but I think their hearts are scarce tipp'd on the side with constant desires.
Dar. How say you, Favilla, is not love a lurcher, that taketh men's stomachs away that they cannot eat, their spleen that they cannot laugh, their hearts that they cannot fight, is their eyes that they cannot sleep, and leaveth nothing but livers to make nothing but lovers?
Favil. Away, peevish boy; a rod were better under thy girdle than love in thy mouth! It will be a forward cook that croweth in the shell.

Dar. Alas, good old gentlewoman, how it becometh you to be grave!
Scint. Favilla, though she be but a spark, yet is she fire.

1 The same.
2 A thief.

Favil. And you, Scintilla, be not much more than a spark, though you would be esteemed a flame.
Sam. [Aside to Dares.] It were good sport to see the light between two sparks.
Dar. [Aside to Samias.] Let them to it, and we will warm us by their words.
Scint. You are not angry, Favilla?
Favil. That is, Scintilla, as you list to take it.

Sam. That, that!
Scint. This it is to be matched with girls, who coming but yesterday from making of babies, 3 would before to-morrow be accounted matrons.
Favil. I cry your matronship mercy, Be 4 cause your pantables 4 be higher with cork, therefore your feet must needs be higher in the insteps. You will be mine elder because you stand upon a stool and I on the floor.
Sam. Good, good!
Dar. [To Samias.] Let them alone, and see with what countenance they will become friends.
Scint. Nay, you think to be the wiser, because you mean to have the last word.
Sam. [To Dares.] Step between them lest they scratch. — In faith, gentlewomen, seeing we came out to be merry, let not your jarring may our joyes be; be friends. How say you?
Scint. I am not angry, but it spitted me to see how short she was.
Favil. I meant nothing till she would needs cross me.
Dar. Then, so let it rest.
Scint. I am agreed.
Favil. And I. Yet I never took anything so unkindly in my life. [Weeps.]
Scint. ’Tis I have the cause, that never offered the occasion. [Weeps.]
Dar. Excellent, and right like a woman.
Sam. A strange sight to see water come out of fire.
Dar. It is their property to carry in their eyes fire and water, tears and torches, and in their mouths honey and gall.

Enter [at the opposite side] Sir Tophas and Epton.

Scint. You will be a good one if you live. But what is yonder formal fellow?
Dar. Sir Tophas, Sir Tophas, of whom we told you. If you be good wenches, make as though you love him, and wonder at him.
Favil. We will do our parts.
Dar. But first let us stand aside, and let him use his garb, 5 for all consisteth in his graceing. [The four retire.]

Top. Epi!
Epi. At hand, sir.
Top. How lifkest thou this martial life, where nothing but blood besprinkleth our bosoms? Let me see, be our enemies fat!
Epi. Passing fat: and I would not change this life to be a lord; and yourself passeth all 5 the trout which Epton is carrying.

comparison, for other captains kill and beat, and there is nothing you kill, but you also eat.

Top. I will draw out their guts out of their bellies, and tear the flesh with my teeth, so mortal is my hate, and so eager my un- 90 stanned stomach.

Epi. [Aside.] My master thinks himself the valiantest man in the world if he kill a wren; so warlike a thing he accounteth to take away life, though it be from a lark.

Top. Epi, I find my thoughts to swell and my spirit to take wings, insomuch that I cannot continue within the compass of so slender combats.

Favil. This passeth! 100

Sciint. Why, is he not mad? } [Aside.

Sam. No, but a little vainglorious.

Top. Epi!

Epi. Sir.

Top. I will encounter that black and cruel 105 enemy that bareth rough and unversed 1 locks upon his body, whose sire throweth down the strongest walls, whose legs are as many as both ours, on whose head are placed most horrible horns by nature as a defence from all harms. 110

Epi. What mean you, master, to be so desperate?

Top. Honour incitemeth me, and very hunger compelleth me.

Epi. What is that monster?

Top. The monster Ovis. I have said, — let thy wits work.

Epi. I cannot imagine it. Yet let me see, — a "black enemy" with "rough locks." It may be a sheep, and Ovis is a sheep. His sire so strong: a ram is a sheep's sire, that being also an engine of war. Horns he hath, and four legs, — so hath a sheep. Without doubt, this monster is a black sheep. Is it not a sheep that you mean?

Top. Thou hast hit it: that monster will I kill and sup with.

Sam. [Aside.] Come let us take him off. [SAMIAS, DARES, FAVILLA, and SCIINTILLA come forward.] Sir Tophas, all hail! 130

Top. Welcome, children; I seldom cast mine eyes so low as to the crowns of your heads, and therefore pardon me that I spake not all this while.

Dar. No harm done. Here be fair ladies 137 to come wonder at your person, your valor, your wit, the report whereof hath made them careless of their own honours, to glut their eyes and hearts upon yours.

Top. Report cannot but injure me, for that 147 not knowing fully what I am, I fear she hath been a niggarid in her praises.

Sciint. No, gentle knight, report hath been prodigal, for she hath left you no equal, nor herself credit, so much hath she told, yet no 148 more than we now see.

Dar. A good wench.

Favil. If there remain as much pity toward women as there is in you courage against your enemies, then shall we be happy, who, hear- 150 ing of your person, came to see it, and seeing it are now in love with it.

Top. Love me, ladies? I easily believe it, but my tough heart receiveth no impression with sweet words. Mars may pierce it, 152 Venus shall not paint on it.

Favil. A cruel saying.

Sam. [Aside.] There's a girl.

Dar. Will you cast these ladies away, and all for a little love? Do but speak kindly.

Top. There cometh no soft syllable within my lips; custom hath made my words bloody and my heart barbarous. That petling 2 word love, how waterish is it in my mouth; it carrieth no sound. Hate, horror, death, are [156] speeches that nourish my spirits. I like honey, but I care not for the bees; I delight in music, but I love not to play on the bagpipes; I can vouchsafe to hear the voice of women, but to touch their bodies, I disdain it as a 170 thing childish and fit for such men as can digest nothing but milk.

Sciint. A hard heart! Shall we die for your love and find no remedy?

Top. I have already taken a surfeit. 170

Epi. Good master, pity them.

Top. Pity them, Epi? No. I do not think that this breast shall be pest'ed with such a foolish passion. What is that the gentlewoman carrieth in a chain?

Epi. Why, it is a squirrel.

Top. A squirrel! O gods, what things are made for money!

Dar. Is not this gentleman over-wise?

Favil. I could stay all day with him, if [180] I feared not to be shent. 3

Sciint. Is it not possible to meet again?

Dar. Yes, at any time.

Favil. Then let us hasten home.

Sciint. Sir Tophas, the god of war deal [190] better with you than you do with the god of love.

Favil. Our love we may dissemble, digest we cannot; but I doubt not but time will hamper you and help us.

Top. I defy time, who hath no interest in my heart. Come, Epi, let me to the battle with that hideous beast. Love is paph, and hath no relish in my taste because it is not terrible.

[Exit Tophas and Epiton.]

Dar. Indeed a black sheep is a perilous 200 beast; but let us in till another time.

Favil. I shall long for that time.

[Enter] ENDYMION.

SCENE III. 4

End. No rest, Endymion! Still uncertain how to settle thy steps by day or thy thoughts by night! Thy truth is measured by thy fortune, and thou art judged unfaithful because thou art unhappy. I will see if I can beguile [5] myself with sleep, and if no slumber will take hold in my eyes, yet will I embrace the golden thoughts in my head, and wish to melt by musing; that as ebony, which no fire can scorch, is yet consumed with sweet savours, so my heart, which cannot be bent by the hardness of fortune, may be bruised by amorous desires. On yonder bank never grew anything but lunary, and hereafter I will never have any bed but that bank. O Endymion, Tellus was fair. But what availlieth beauty without wisdom? Nay, Endymion, she was wise. But what availlieth wisdom without honour? Tellus was honourable, Endymion; belie her not. Ay, but how to preserve her honour without fortune. Was she not for tunate whom so many followed? Yes, yes, but base is fortune without majesty: thy majesty, Cynthia, all the world knowest and wondereth at, but not one in the world that can imitate it or comprehend it. No more, Endymion. Sleep or die. Nay, die, for to sleep, it is impossible; — and yet I know not how it cometh to pass, I feel such a heaviness both in mine eyes and heart that I am suddenly benumbed, yea, in every joint. It may be weakness, for whom did I rest? It may be deep melancholy, for when did I not sigh? Cynthia! Ay, so; — I say, Cynthia!

[Enter Dipsas and Bagoa.]

Dipsas. Little dost thou know, Endymion, when thou shalt wake, for hadst thou placed thy heart as low in love as thy head liest now in sleep, thou mightest have commanded Tellus, whom now, instead of a mistress, thou shalt find a tomb. These eyes must I seal up by art, not nature, which are to be opened neither by art nor nature. Thou that layest down with golden locks shalt not awake until they be turned to silver hairs; and that chin on which scarcely appeareth soft down shall be filled with bristles as hard as broom. Thou shalt sleep out thy youth and flowering time, and become dry hay before thou kniesth thyself green grass; and ready by age to step into the grave when thou waketh, that was youthful in the court when thou laistest thee down to sleep. The mists of Tellus hath brought this to pass, which if she could not have intreated of me by fair means, she would have commanded by menacing, for from her gather we all our simples to maintain our sorceries. [To Bagoa.] Fan with this hemlock over his face, and sing the enchantment for sleep, whilst I go in and finish those ceremonies that are required in our art. Take heed ye touch not his face, for the fan is so seasoned that whose it toucheth with a leaf shall presently die, and over whom the wind of it breathed, he shall sleep forever.

Bagoa. Let me alone; I will be careful. [Exit Dipsas.]

What pass hast thou, Endymion, to come under the hands of Dipsas? O fair Endymion, how it grieveth me that that fair face must be turned to a withered skin and taste the pains of death before it feel the reward of love!

I fear Tellus will repent that which the heavens themselves seemed to me. But I hear Dipsas is coming! I dare not repine, lest she make me pine, and rock me into such a deep sleep that I shall not awake to my marriage.

Re-enter Dipsas.

Dipsas. How now, have you finished?

Bagoa. Yes.

Dipsas. Well then, let us in; and see that you do not so much as whisper that I did this, for if you do, I will turn thy hair to adders and all thy teeth in thy head to tongues. Come away, come away.

Exeunt [Dipsas and Bagoa].

A DUMB SHOW [representing the dream of Endymion].

Music sounds. Three ladies enter: one with a knife and a looking-glass, who, by the procurement of one of the other two, offers to stab Endymion as he sleeps; but the third wrings her hands, lamenteth, offering still to prevent it, but dare not. At last, the first lady looking in the glass, casts down the knife.

Exeunt.

Enters an ancient man with books with three leaves; offers the same twice. Endymion refusest. He rendeth two, and offers the third, where he stands awhile; and then Endymion offers to take it. [Exit the Old Man.]

ACT III

SCENE I.

[Enter] Cynthia, Tellus, Semele, Eumeneides, Corinthes, Pancelion, and Zontes.

Cynthia. Is the report true, that Endymion is stricken into such a deep sleep that nothing can either wake him or move him?

Eum. Too true, madam, and as much to be pitied as wondered at.

Tellus. As good sleep and do no harm as wake and do no good.

Cynth. What maketh you, Tellus, to be so short? The time was Endymion only was.

Eum. It is an old saying, madam, that a waking dog doth affar off bark at a sleeping lion.

Sem. It were good, Eumeneides, that you took a nap with your friend, for your speech beginneth to be heavy.

Eum. Contrary to your nature, Semele, which hath been always accounted light.

Cynth. What, have we here before my face these unseemly and malapert overwaits? I will tame your tongues and your thoughts, and make your speeches answerable to your duties, and your conceits fit for my dignity, else will I banish you both my person and the world.

Eum. Pardon, I humbly ask; but such is my unsnagged fault to Endymion that whatsoever seemeth a needle to prick his finger is a dagger to wound my heart.

Cynth. If you be so dear to him, how happeneth it you neither go to see him, nor search for remedy for him? [30]

Eum. I have seen him to my grief, and sought recourse with despair, for that I cannot imagine who should restore him that is the wonder to all men. Your Highness, on whose hands the compass of the earth is at command, though not in possession, may show yourself both worthy your sex, your nature, and your favour, if you redeem that honourable Endymion, whose ripe years foretell rare virtues, and whose unmellowed conceits promise ripe counsel. [40]

Cynth. I have had trial of Endymion, and conceive greater assurance of his age than I could hope of his youth.

Tel. But timely, madam, crooks that tree that will be a camomile, and young it pricks that will be a thorn; and therefore he that began without care to settle his life, it is a sign without amendment he will end it.

Cynth. Presumptuous girl, I will make thy tongue an example of unrecoverable dish pleasure. Corsites, carry her to the castle in the desert, there to remain and weave.

Tel. Shall she work stories or poetries?

Cynth. It skilleth not which. Go to, in both; for she shall find examples infinite in either what punishment long tongues have. Eumenides, if either the soothsayers in Egypt, or the enchanters in Thessaly, or the philosophers in Greece, or all the sages of the world can find remedy, I will procure it; therefore, dispatch with all speed: you, Eumenides, into Thessaly; you, Zantes, into Greece, because you are acquainted in Athens; you, Pannelion, to Egypt; saying that Cynthia sendeth, and he will, commandeth.

Eum. On bended knee I give thanks, and with wines on my lips, I fly for remedy.

Zan. We are ready at your highness' command, and hope to return to your full content.

Cynth. It shall never be said that Cynthia, whose mercy and goodness filleth the heavens with joys and the world with marvells, will suffer either Endymion or any to perish, if he may be protected.

Eum. Your Majesty's words have been al- ways deeds, and your deeds virtues. Exeunt.

CORSITES and TELLUS.

Tell. Here is the castle, fair Tellus, in which you must weave, till either time end your days, or Cynthia her displeasure. I am sorry so fair a face should be subject to so hard a fortune, and that the flower of beauty, which is honoured in courts, should here wither in prison.

Tellus. Corsites, Cynthia may restrain the liberty of my body, of my thoughts she cannot; and therefore do I esteem myself most free, though I am in greatest bondage.

Cors. Can you then feed on fancy, and subdue the malice of envy by the sweetness of imagination?

Tellus. Corsites, there is no sweeter music to the miserable than despair; and therefore the more bitterness I feel, the more sweetness I find; for so vain were liberty, and so unwelcome the following of higher fortune, that I choose rather to pine in this castle than to be a prince in any other court.

Cors. A humour contrary to your years and nothing agreeable to your sex; the one commonly allured with delights, the other always with sovereignty.

Tellus. I marvel, Corsites, that you being a captain, who should sound nothing but terror and suck nothing but blood, can find in your heart to talk such smooth words, for that it agreeth not with your calling to use words so soft as that of love.

Cors. Lady, it were unfit of wars to discourse with women, into whose minds nothing can sink but smoothness; besides, you must not think that soldiers be so rough-hewn, or of such knotty mettle, that beauty cannot allure, and you, being beyond perfection, enchant.

Tellus. Good Corsites, talk not of love, but let me to my labour. The little beauty I have shall be bestowed on my loom, which I now mean to make my lover.

Cors. Let us in, and what favor Corsites can show, Tellus shall command.

Tellus. The only favour I desire is now and then to walk. Exeunt.

SCENE III.4

[Enter] Sir TOPHAS and EPITON.

Toph. Epi!

Epi. Here, sir.

Toph. Unrig me. Heigho!

Epi. What's that?

Toph. An interjection, whereof some are of mourning: as elo, vah.5

Epi. I understand you not.

Toph. Thou seest me.

Epi. Ay.

Toph. Thou hearest me.

Epi. Ay.

Toph. Thou feelest me.

Epi. Ay.

Toph. And not understand'st me?

Epi. No.

Toph. Then am I but three-quarters of a noun substantive. But alas, Epi, to tell thee the truth, I am a noun adjective.

Epi. Why?

Toph. Because I cannot stand without another.

Epi. Who is that?

Toph. Dipasas.

Epi. Are you in love?

Toph. No; but love hath, as it were, [35 another.

milk'd my thoughts and drained from my heart
the very substance of my accongeneration it worketh in my head like new wine, so as I must hoop my scone with iron, lest my head break, and so I bewray 1 my brains. But, I [30] pray thee, first discover me in all parts, that I may be like a lover, and then will I sigh and die. Take my gun and give me a gown: Cedian

Epi. Here. 35
Tophas. Take my sword and shield and give me beard-brush and scissors: Bella gerant alii, u parli semper amans. 3

Epi. Will you be trimm'd, sir? 40
Tophas. Not yet; for I feel a contention 45 within me whether I shall frame the bodkin beard or the bush. But take my pike and give me pen: Dicere qua puduit, scribere jussit amor. 5

Epi. I will furnish you, sir. 55 Tophas. Now, for my bow and bolts give [as me ink and paper, for my smiter a pen-knife; for Scapillum, calami, atramentum, charta, libelli,

Epi. Sir, will you give over wars and play 50 with that bauble called love?
Tophas. Give over wars? No, Epi, Militat
omnis amans, et habet sua castra Cupido. 8

Epi. Love hate made you very eloquent, but your face is nothing fair. 55
Tophas. Non formosus erat, sed erat facundus
Utres. 9

Epi. Nay, I must seek a new master if you can speak nothing but verses.
Tophas. Quicquid conabat dicere, versus 50 erat. 8 Epi, I feel all Ovid De Arte Amans li as heavy at my heart as a load of logs. Oh, what a fine, thin hair hath Dipas! What a pretty low forehead! What a tall and stately nose! What little hollow eyes! What great, 65 and goodly lips! How harmless she is, being toothless,—her fingers fat and short, adorned with long nails like a bittern! In how sweet a proportion her cheeks hang down to her breasts like dugs and her paps to her waist like bags! 70
What a low stature she is, and yet what a great foot she carrieth! How thristy must she be in whom there is no waist! How virtuous is she like to be, over whom no man can be jealous!

Epi. Stay, master, you forget yourself. 75 Tophas. O Epi, even as a dish melteth by the fire, so doth my wit increase by love.

Epi. Pithily, and to the purpose! But what, begin you to nod? 80
Tophas. Good Epi, let me take a nap; for [80 as some man may better steal a horse than another look over the hedge, so divers shall be sleepy when they would fainest take rest.

He sleeps.

Epi. Who ever saw such a woodcock? 9 Love Dipas! Without doubt all the world will [85 now account him valiant, that ventureth on her whom none durst undertake. But here cometh two wags.

Enter DARES and SAMIAS.

Sam. Thy master hath slept his share.
Dar. I think he doth it because he would [90 not pay me my board-wages.

Sam. It is a thing most strange: and I think mine will never return, so that we must both seek new masters, for we shall never live by our manners. 95

Epi. If you want masters, join with me and serve Sir Tophas, who must needs keep more men, because he is toward marriage.

Sam. What, Epi, where's thy master?

Epi. Yonder, sleeping in love. 100
Dar. Is it possible?

Epi. He hath taken his thoughts a hole lower, and saith, seeing it is the fashion of the world,
he will vail 105 bonnet to beauty.

Sam. How is he attired?

Epi. Lovely.
Dar. Whom loveth this amorous knight?

Epi. Dipasas.

Sam. That ugly creature? Why, she is a fool, a scold, fat, without fashion, and quite [110 without favour.

Epi. Tush, you be simple; my master hath a good marriage.
Dar. Good! As how?

Epi. Why, in marrying Dipas he shall [115 have every day twelve dishes of meat to his dinner, though there be none but Dipas with him: four of flesh, four of fish, four of fruit.

Sam. As how, Epi?

Epi. For flesh these: woodcock, goose, [120 bittern, and rail.

Dar. Indeed, he shall not miss, if Dipas be there.

Epi. For fish these: carp, carp, lump, and pouting.

Sam. Excellent, for of my word she is both crabish, lumpish, and carping.

Epi. For fruit these: fritters, medlars, har-tichokes, and lady-longings. Thus you see he shall fare like a king, though he be but a [125 beggar.

Dar. Well, Epi, dine thou with him, for I had rather fast than see her face. But see, thy master is asleep; let us have a song to wake this amorous knight.

Epi. Agreed.
Sam. Content.

The First Song. 11

Epi. Here snores Tophas,
That amorous ass,
Who loves Dipasas,
With face so sweet,
Nose and chin meet.

All three. [ At sight of her each Fury skips
[ And flings into her lap their whips.

9 Simpleton.
10 Take off.
11 The Song appears first in Blount's edition.
Top. Sleep is a binding of the senses, love a loosing.

Epi. [Aside.] Let us hear him awhile.
Top. There appeared in my sleep a goodly owl, who, sitting upon my shoulder, cried "Twit, twit!" and before mine eyes presented herself the express image of Dipasae. I marvelled what the owl said, till at the last I perceived "Twit, twit," "To it, to it," only by contraction admonished by this vision to make account of my sweet Hecuba.

Sam. Sir Tophas, you have overslept yourself.

Top. No, youth, I have but slept over[170] my love.
Dar. Love? Why, it is impossible that into so noble and unconquered a courage love should creep, having first a head as hard to pierce as steel, then to pass to a heart[170] arm'd with a shirt of mail.

Epi. Ay, but my master yawning one day in the sun, Love crept into his mouth before he could close it, and there kept such a tumbling in his body that he was glad to untruss[172] the points of his heart and entertain Love as a stranger.

Top. If there remain any pity in you, plead for me to Dipasae.
Dar. Plead! Nay, we will press her to it. [Aside to SAMSAS.] Let us go with him to Dipasae, and there shall we have good sport.—But, Sir Tophas, when shall we go? For I find my tongue voluble, and my heart venturous, and all myself like myself.

Sam. [Aside to DARES.] Come, Dares, let us not lose him until we find our masters, for as long as he liveth, we shall lack neither mirth nor meat.

Epi. We will traverse. [3] Will you go, sir? [3]

Scene IV. [5]

[Enter] EUMENIDES and GERON.

Eum. Father, your sad music being tuned on the same key that my hard fortune is, hath so melted my mind that I wish to hang at your mouth's end till my life end.

Ger. These tunes, gentleman, have I been [s acustomed with these fifty winters, having no other house to shroud myself but the broad heavens; and so familiar with me hath use made misery that I esteeom sorrow my chiefest solace, and welcomest is that guest to me [9] that can rehearse the saddest tale or the bloodiest tragedy.

Eum. A strange humour. Might I inquire the cause?

Ger. You must pardon me if I deny to tell [is it, for knowing that the revealing of griefs is, as it were, a renewing of sorrow, I have vowed therefore to conceal them, that I might not only feel the depth of everlasting discontentment, but despair in remedy. But whence are you? [9] What fortune hath thrust you to this distress?

Eum. I am going to Thessaly, to seek remedy for Endymion, my dearest friend, who hath been cast into a dead sleep almost these twenty years, waxing old and ready for the grave, being almost but newly come forth of the cradle.

Ger. You need not for secure travel far, for whose can clearly see the bottom of this fountain shall have remedy for anything.

Eum. That methinks is impossible. Why, what virtuous man there be in water?

Ger. Yes,—whosoever can shed the tears of a faithful lover shall obtain anything he would. Read these words engraved about the brim.

Eum. Have you known this by experience, or is it placed here of purpose to delude men?

Ger. I only would have experience of it, and then should there be an end of my misery; and then would I tell the strangest discourse that ever yet was heard.

Eum. Ah, Eumenides!

Ger. What lack you, gentleman; are you not well?

Eum. Yes, father, but a qualm that often cometh over my heart doth now take hold of me. But did never any lovers come hither?

Ger. Lusters, but not lovers; for often have I seen them weep, but never could I hear they saw the bottom.

Eum. Came there women also?

Ger. Some.

Eum. What did they see?

Ger. They all wept, that the fountain overflowed with tears, but which became the water with their tears that I could scarce discern the brim, much less behold the bottom.

Eum. Be faithful lovers so scant?

Ger. It seemeth so, for yet heard I never of any.

Eum. Ah, Eumenides, how art thou per-plexed! Call to mind the beauty of thy sweet mistress and the depth of thy never-dying affections. How oft hast thou honoured her, not only without spot, but suspicion of falsehood! And how hardly hath she rewarded thee without cause or colour of desire. How secret hast thou been these seven years, that hast not, nor once dared not to name her, for discontenting her. How faithful, that hast offered to die for her, to please her! Unhappy Eumenides! [9] Why, gentleman, did you once love?

Eum. Once? Ay, father, and ever shall.

Ger. Was she unkind and you faithful?

Eum. She of all women the most froward, and I of all creatures the most fond. [9] Ger. You doted then, not loved, for affection is grounded on virtue, and virtue is never peevish; or on beauty, and beauty loveth to be praised.

Eum. Ay, but if all virtuous ladies should [190] yield to all that be loving, or all amiable gentlewomen entertain all that be amorous, their virtues would be accounted vices, and their beauties deformities; for that love can be but between two, and that not proceeding of him [192] that is most faithful but most fortunate.

Ger. I would you were so faithful that your tears might make you fortunate.

Eum. Yea, father, if that my tears clear not this fountain, then may you swear it is but a [193] mere mockery.

Ger. So saith every one yet that wept.

Eum. Ah, I faint, I die! Ah, sweet Semele, let me alone, and dissolve, by weeping, into water.

[He gazes into the fountain.] [194]

Ger. This affection seems strange; if he see nothing, without doubt this dissembling passeth, for nothing shall draw me from the belief.

Eum. Father, I plainly see the bottom, [195] and there in white marble engraven these words: Ask one for all, and but one thing at all.

Ger. O fortunate Eumenides, (for so have I heard thee call thyself,) let me see, I cannot discern any such thing. I think thou dreamest.

Eum. Ah, father, thou art not a faithful lover, and therefore cannot not behold it.

Ger. Then ask, that I may be satisfied by the event, and thyself blessed.

Eum. Ask? So I will. And what shall I [198] do but ask, and whom should I ask but Semele, the possessing of whose person is a pleasure that cannot come within the compass of comparison; whose golden locks seem most curious when they seem most careless; whose sweet looks [199] seem most alluring when they are most chaste; and whose words the more virtuous they are, the more amorous they be accounted? I pray thee, Fortune, when I shall first meet with fair Semele, dash my delight with some light dis- [201] grace, lest embracing sweetness beyond measure, I take a surfeit without cure. Let her practise her accustomed coyness that I may diet myself upon my desires; otherwise the fulness of my joys will diminish the sweetness, and [202] I shall perish by them before I possess them.

Why do I trouble the time in words? The least minute being spent in the getting of Semele is more worth than the whole world; therefore let me ask. What now, Eumenides! Whither [203] art thou drawn? Hast thou forgotten both friendship and duty, care of Endymion, and the commandment of Cynthia? Shall he die in a leaden sleep because thou sleepest in a golden dream? Ay, let him sleep ever, so I slumber [204] but one minute with Semele. Love knoweth neither friendship nor kindness. Shall I not hazard the loss of a friend for the obtaining of her for whom I would often lose myself? Foolish Eumenides, shall the enticings beauty of a [206] most disdainful lady be of more force than the rare fidelity of a tried friend? The love of men to women is a thing common and of course; the friendship of man to man infinite and immortal. Tush! Semele doth possess my love. Ay, [210] but Endymion hath deserved it. I will help Endymion. I found Endymion unspotted in his truth. Ay, but I shall find Semele constant in her love. I will have Semele. What shall I do? Father, thy gray hairs are ambassadors of [211] experience. Which shall I ask?

Ger. Eumenides, release Endymion, for all things, friendship excepted, are subject to fortune: love is but an eye-worm, which only tickleth the head with hopes and wishes; [212] friendship the image of eternity, in which there is nothing movable, nothing mischievous. As much difference as there is between beauty and virtue, bodies and shadows, colours and life, so great odds is there between love and friend. [213]

Love is a chameleon, which draweth nothing into the mouth but air, and nouriseth nothing in the body but lungs. Believe me, Eumenides, desire dies in the same moment that beauty [214] sickens, and beauty fadeth in the same instant that it flourisheth. When adversities flow, then love ebbs; but friendship standeth stilly in storms. Time draweth wrinkles in a fair face, but addeth fresh colours to a fast friend, [215] which neither heat, nor cold, nor misery, nor place, nor destiny, can alter or diminish. O friendship, of all things the most rare, and therefore most rare because most excellent, whose comforts in misery is always sweet, [216] and whose counsels in prosperity are ever fortunate! Vain love, that only coming near to friendship in name, would seem to be the same or better in nature!

Eum. Father, I allow your reasons, and [217] will therefore conquer mine own. Virtue shall subdue affections, wisdom lust, friendship, beauty. Mistresses are in every place, and as common as harces on Athos, bees in Hybla, fowls in the air; but friends to be found [218] are like the phoenix in Arabia, but one; or the philadelphia in Arays, never above two. I will have Endymion. Sacred fountain, in whose bowels are hidden divine secrets, I have increased your waters with the tears of un-[219] spotted thoughts, and therefore let me receive the reward you promise. Endymion, the truest friend to me, and faithfulest lover to Cynthia, is in such a dead sleep that nothing can wake or move him. [219]

Ger. Dost thou see anything?

Eum. I see in the same pillar these words: When she whose figure of all is the perfectest, and never to be measured; always one, yet never the same; still inconstant, yet never wavering; [220] shall come and kiss Endymion in his sleep, he shall then rise, else never. This is strange.

Ger. What do you see else?

Eum. There cometh over mine eyes either a dark mist, or upon the fountain a deep [220] thickness, for I can perceive nothing. But how am I deluded, or what difficult, nay impossible, thing is this?
Ger. Methinketh it easy.
Eum. Good father, and how? 210
Ger. Is not a circle of all figures the perfectest? 211
Eum. Yes. 212
Ger. And is not Cynthia of all circles the most absolute? 213
Eum. Yes. 214
Ger. Is it not impossible to measure her, who still worketh by her influence, never standing at one stay? 215
Eum. Yes. 216
Ger. Then who can it be but Cynthia, whose virtue being all divine must needs bring things to pass that be miraculous? Go, humble thyself to Cynthia; tell her the success, of which myself shall be a witness. And this assure thyself, that she that sent to find means for his safety will now work her cunning.
Eum. How fortunate am I, if Cynthia be she that do may it! 217
Ger. How fond art thou, if thou do not believe it!
Eum. I will hasten thither that I may entreat on my knees for succour, and embrace in mine arms my friend.
Ger. I will go with thee, for unto Cynthia must I discover all my sorrows, who also must work in me a contentment.
Eum. May I now know the cause? 218
Ger. That shall be as we walk, and I doubt not but the strangeness of my tale will take away the tediousness of our journey.
Eum. Let us go.
Ger. I follow.
Eum. 219

ACT IV

SCENE I. 2
[Enter] TELLUS.

Tellus. I marvel Corsites giveth me so much liberty,—all the world knowing his charge to be so high and his nature to be most strange,—who hath so ill entreated ladies of great honour that he hath not suffered them to look out of windows, much less to walk abroad. It may be he is in love with me, for (Endymion, hard-hearted Endymion, excepted) what is he that is not enamour'd of my beauty? But what respectest thou the love of all the world? En- dymin hates thee. Alas, poor Endymion, my malice hath exceeded my love, and thy faith to Cynthia quenched my affections. Quenched, Tellus? Nay, kindled them afresh; isso much that I find scorching flames for dead embers, and cruel encounters of war in my thoughts instead of sweet parleys. Ah, that I might once again see Endymion! Accursed girl, what hope hast thou to see Endymion, on whose head already are grown gray hairs, and whose life must yield to nature, before Cynthia end her displeasure. Wicked Dipsas, and most devilish Tellus, the one for cunning too exquisite, the other for hate too intolerable! Thou wast commanded to weave the stories and poisons, wherein were showed both examples and punishments of talking tongues, and thou hast only embroidered the sweet face of Endymion, devices of love, melancholy imaginations, and what not, out of thy work, that thou shouldst study to pick out of thy mind. But here cometh Corsites. I must seem yielding and stout; full of mildness, yet tempered with a Majesty; for if I be too flexible, I shall give him more hope than I mean; if too froward, enjoy less liberty than I would. Love him I cannot, and therefore will practise that which is most contrary to our sex, to disseminate.

Enter Corsites.

Cor. Fair Tellus, I perceive you rise with the lark, and to yourself sing with the nightingale.

Tellus. My lord, I have no playfellow but fancy; being barred of all company, I must question with myself, and make my thoughts my friends. 220
Cor. I would you, would account my thoughts also your friends, for they be such as are only busied in wondering at your beauty and wisdom; and some such as have esteemed your fortune too hard; and divers of that kind offer to set you free, if you will set them free.

Tellus. There are no colours so contrary as white and black, nor elements so disagreeing as fire and water, nor anything so opposite as men's thoughts and their words.
Cor. He that gave Cassandra the gift of prophesyng, with the curse that, spake she not so true, she should never be believed, hath I think poisoned the fortune of men, that uttering the extremities of their inward passions are always suspected of outward perjuries.

Tellus. Well, Corsites, I will flatter myself and believe you. What would you do to en- joy my love?
Cor. Set all the ladies of the castle free, and make you the pleasure of my life: more I cannot do, less I will not.
Tellus. These be great words, and fit your calling; for captains must promise things impossible. But will you do one thing for all?
Cor. Anything, sweet Tellus, that am ready for all.
Tellus. You know that on the lunar bank sleepeh Endymion.
Cor. I know it.
Tellus. If you will remove him from that place by force, and convey him into some obscure cave by policy, I give you here the faith of an unspotted virgin that you only shall possess me as a lover, and in spite of malice have me for a wife.

Cor. Remove him, Tellus! Yes, Tellus, he shall be removed, and that so soon as thou shalt as much commend my diligence as my force, I go.

Tellus. Stay, will yourself attempt it?

Cor. Ay, Tellus; as I would have none partaker of my sweet love, so shall none be partners of my labors. But I pray thee go at your best leisure, for Cynthia beginneth to rise; and if she discover our love, we both perish, for nothing pleaseth her but the fairness of virginity. All things must be not only without [es lust but without suspicion of lightness.

Tellus. I will depart, and go you to Endymion.

Cor. I fly, Tellus, being of all men the most fortunate. Exit. [100

Tellus. Simple Corsites, I have set thee about a task, being but a man, thou knowest the gods themselves cannot perform, for little dost thou know how heavy his head lies, how hard his fortune; but such shifts must women have to deceive [es men, and under colour of things easy, treat that which is impossible; otherwise we should be cumb'red with importunities, oaths, sighs, letters, and all implements of love, which to one resolved to the contrary are most loath-[es some. I will in, and laugh with the other ladies at Corsites' sweating.

Exit.

SCENE II. [Enter Samsias and Dares.

Sam. Will thy master never awake?

Dar. No; I think he sleeps for a wager. But how shall we spend the time? Sir Tophas is so far in love that he pineth in his bed and cometh not abroad.

Sam. But here cometh Epi in a pelting chafe. [Enter Epton.

Epi. A pox of all false proverbs, and were a proverb a page, I would have him by the ears!

Sam. Why art thou angry?

Epi. Why? You know it is said, "The tide tarrieth no man."

Sam. True.

Epi. A monstrous lie; for I was tied two hours, and tarried for one to unloose me.

Dar. Alas, poor Epi!

Epi. Poor! No, no, you base-conceited slaves, I am a most complete gentleman, although I be in disgrace with Sir Tophas.

Dar. Art thou out with him?

Epi. Ay, because I cannot get him a lodging. [ing with Endymion. He would fain take a nap.

for forty or fifty years.

Dar. A short sleep, considering our long life.

Sam. He still in love?

Epi. In love? Why he doth nothing but [es make sonnets.

1 That.
2 Irritable humour.

Sam. Canst thou remember any one of his poems?

Epi. Ay, this is one:—

The beggar, Love, that knows not where to lodge, [10
At last within my heart, when I slept,
He crept,
I wak'd, and so my fancies began to lodge. [4

Sam. That's a very long verse.

Epi. Why, the other was short. The first [es is called from the thumb to the little finger; the second from the little finger to the elbow; and some he hath made to reach to the crown of his head, and down again to the sole of his foot. It is set to the tune of the black [5
Saunee; ratio est, because Dipas is a black saint.

Dar. Very wisely. But pray thee, Epi, how art thou complete; and being from thy master, what occupation wilt thou take? [6

Epi. Know, my heart, I am an absolute Microcosmus, a petty world of myself: my library is my head, for I have no other books but my brains; my wardrobe on my back, for I have no more apparel than is on my body; [7 my armory at my fingers' ends, for I use no other artillery than my nails; my treasure in my purse. Sic omnia mea mecum porto. [7

Dar. Good!

Epi. Know, sirs, my palace is paved with [es grass, and tiled with stars, for Celio tegitur qui non habat urnam, — he that hath no house must lie in the yard.

Sam. A brave resolution! But how wilt thou spend thy time? [8

Epi. Not in any melancholy sort; for mine exercise I will walk horses.

Dar. Too bad!

Epi. Why, is it not said, "It is good walking when one hath his horse in his hand"? [5

Sam. Worse and worse! But how wilt thou live?

Epi. By angling. Oh, 'tis a stately occupation to stand four hours in a cold morning, and to have his nose bitten with frost before his [es bait beumbled with a fish.

Dar. A rare attempt! But wilt thou never travel?

Epi. Yes, in a western barge, when with a good wind and lusty pugs, [10 one may go ten [es miles in two days.

Sam. Thou art excellent at thy choice. But what pastime wilt thou use? None?

Epi. Yes, the quickest of all.

Sam. What, dice? [5

Epi. No, when I am in haste, one-and-twenty games at chess, to pass a few minutes.

Dar. A life for a little lord, and full of quickness.

4 Move.
5 Black Sandus, a hymn to Saint Satan.

9 Lucan, vii. 919.
10 Fellows.
Epi. Tush, let me alone! But I must needs see if I can find where Endymion lieth, and then go to a certain fountain hard by, where they say faithful lovers shall have all things they will ask. If I can find out any of these, Ego et magister meus erimus in tuto, and my master shall be friends. He is resolved to weep some three or four pailsfuls to avoid the rheum of love that wambleth in his stomach.

Enter [Master Constable and Two] Watchmen.

Sam. Shall we never see thy master, Dares?
Dar. Yes; let us go now, for to-morrow Cynthia will be there.
Epi. I will go with you;—but how shall we see for the Watch?
Sam. Tush, let me alone! I'll begin to them.
Masters, God speed you.

1 Watch. Sir boy, we are all sped already.
Epi. [Aside.] So methinks, for they smell all of drink, like a beggar's beard.
Dar. But I pray, sirs, may we see Endymion?

2 Watch. No, we are commanded in Cynthia's name, that no man shall see him.
Sam. No man! Why, we are but boys.
1 Watch. Mass, neighbours, he says true, for if I swear I will never drink my liquor by the quart, and yet call for two pints, I think with a safe conscience I may carouse both.
Dar. Pithily, and to the purpose.
2 Watch. Tush, tush, neighbours, take me with you.

Sam. [Aside.] This will grow hot.
Dar. [Aside.] Let them alone.
2 Watch. If I say to my wife, "Wife, I will have no raisins in my pudding," she puts in currants; small raisins are raisins, and boys are men: even as my wife should have put no raisins in my pudding, so shall there no boys see Endymion.

Dar. Learnedly.
Epi. Let Master Constable speak; I think he is the wisest among you.
Master Constable. You know, neighbours, 'tis an old said saw, "Children and fools speak true."

All. True.

Master. Const. Well, there you see the men be the fools, because it is provided from the children.
Dar. Good.
Master. Const. Then, say I, neighbours, that children must not see Endymion, because children and fools speak true.
Epi. O wicked application!
Sam. Scurvily brought about!
1 Watch. Nay, he says true, and therefore till Cynthia have been here, he shall not be uncovered. Therefore, away!
Dar. [Aside to Sam. and Epi.] A watch, quoth you! A man may watch seven years for a wise word, and yet go without it. Their wits are all as rusty as their bills. —But come on,

1 Rumbles.
2 Let me understand

Master Constable. shall we have a song before we go?

Mast. Const. With all my heart.

Watch. The Second Song.
Watch. Stand! Who goes there?
We charge you appear
Fore our constable here,
In the name of the Man in the Moon.
To us billsmen relate
Why you stagger so late,
And how you come drunk so soon.
Pages. What are ye, scolds?
Watch. This the Constable.
Pages. A patch.
Const. Knock 'em down unless they all stand:
If any run away,
'Tis the old watchman's play,
To reach him a bill of his hand.
Epi. Wine, nothing shall cost ye;
Sam. Nor huge fires to roast ye;
Dares. Then soberly let us be led.
Const. Come, my brown bills, we'll roar,
Bounce loud at tavern door,
Ommes. And I th' morning steal all to bed.

Scene III.

CORSITES SOLUS. [ENDYMIQN LIES ASLEEP ON THE LUNAR BANK.]

Corsites. I am come in sight of the lunar bank. Without doubt Telus doteh upon me, and cunningly, that I might not perceive her love, she hath set me to a task that is done before it is begun. Endymion, you must change your pillow, and if you be not weary of sleep, I will carry you whereat ease you shall sleep your fill. It were good that without more ceremonies I took him, lest being expired, I be entraped, and so incur the displeasure of Cynthia, who commonly setsthat watch that Endymion have no wrong. [He tries to lift Endymion.] What now, is your mastership so heavy, or are you nailing to the ground? Not stir one whit! Then use all thy force, though he feel it and wake. [He pulls,] What, stone-still? Turn' d, I think, to earth with lying so long on the earth. Didst not thou, Corsites, before Cynthia, pull up a tree that forty years was fasten'd with roots and wreath'd in knots to the ground? Didst not [with main force, pull open the iron gates which no ram or engine could move? Have my weak thoughts made brawn-fallen my strong arms, or is it the nature of love, or the quintessence of the mind, to breed numbness or litness? or doth the remembrance of Telus so refine my spirits into a matter so sublime and divine that the other fleshly parts cannot work whilst they muse? Rest thyself, rest thyself; nay, rend thyself in pieces, Cor-sites, and strive, in spite of love, fortune, and nature, to lift up this dullest body, heavier than dead and more senseless than death.

Enter Fairies.

But what are these so fair fiends that cause my hairs to stand upright and spirits to fall down? Hags,—out alas, nymphs, I crave pardon. Ay me, out! what do I hear!

[The Fairies dance, and with a song pinch him, and he falleth asleep. They kiss Endymion and depart.

THE THIRD SONG: BY FAIRIES

Omnis. Pinch him, pinch him, black and blue,
Saucy mortals must not view
What the Queen of Stars is doing,
Nor pry into our fairy wooning.
1 Fairy. Pinch him blue,
2 Fairy. And pinch him black;
3 Fairy. Let him not back.
Sharp nails to pinch him blue and red,
Till sleep has rock'd his addle head.
4 Fairy. For the trespass he hath done,
Spots o'er all his flesh shall run.
Rise Endymion, kiss his eyes,
Then to our midnight heideeyes. 2 Exeunt [Fairies].

[Enter, at the side of the stage opposite Corsites.]

Cynth. Awake him. [Zontes wakens Corsites.]

How now, Corsites, what make you here? [110] How came you deformed? Look on thy hands, and then thou seest the picture of thy face.

Cory. Miserable wretch, and accursed! How am I deluded! Madam, I ask pardon for my offence, and you see my fortune deserveth pity. [115] Cynth. Speak on; thy offence cannot deserve greater punishment: but see thou rehearse the truth, else shalt thou not find me as thou wishest me.

Cory. Madam, as it is no offence to be in love, being a man mortal, so I hope can it be no shame to tell with whom, my lady being heavenly, Your Majesty committed to my charge fair Tellus, whose beauty in the same moment took my heart captive that I undertook to carry her body prisoner. Since that time have I found such combats in my thoughts between love and duty, reverence and affection, that I could neither endure the contest, nor hope for the conquest.

Cynth. In love? A thing far unfitting the name of a captain, and (as I thought) the tough and unsmoothed nature of Corsites. But forth!

Cory. Feeling this continual war, I thought rather by parley to yield than by certain danger to perish. I unfolded to Tellus the depth of my affections, and framed my tongue to utter a sweet tale of love, that was wont to sound nothing but threats of war. She, too fair to be true and too false for one so fair, after a nice denial, practis'd a notable deceit, commanding me to remove Endymion from this cabin, and carry him to some dark cave; where I, seeking to accomplish, found impossible; and so by fairies or fiends have been thus handled.

Cynth. How say you, my lords, is not Tellus always practising of some deceits? In sooth, Corsites, thy face is now too foul for a lover, and thine heart too fond for a soldier. You, Semele, in whose speech and thoughts is only contempt and sourness?

Panel. I love not, madam, to give any judgment; yet, sith Your Highness commandeth, I think to commit her tongue close prisoner to her mouth.

Cynth. Agreed. Semele, if thou speak this twelvemonth, thou shalt forfeit thy tongue. Behold Endymion! 4 Alas, poor gentleman, hast thou spent thy youth in sleep, that once throwered all to my service! Hollow eyes, gray hairs, wrinkled cheeks, and decayed limbs! Is it destiny or deceit that hath brought this to pass? If the first, who could prevent thy wretched stars? If the latter, I would I might know thy cruel enemy, I favoured thee, Endymion, for thy honour, thy virtues, thy affections; but to bring thy thoughts within the compass of thy fortunes, I have seemed strange, that I might have thee said; and [125] now are thy days ended before my favour begin. But whom have we here? Is it not Corsites?

Zon. It is, but more like a leopard than a man.

How now, Corsites, what make you here? [110] How came you deformed? Look on thy hands, and then thou seest the picture of thy face.

Cory. Miserable wretch, and accursed! How am I deluded! Madam, I ask pardon for my offence, and you see my fortune deserveth pity. [115] Cynth. Speak on; thy offence cannot deserve greater punishment: but see thou rehearse the truth, else shalt thou not find me as thou wishest me.

Cory. see when warriors become wantons how their manners alter with their faces. Is it not a shame, Corses, that having lived so long in Mars' camp, thou shouldst now be rocked in Venus's cradle? Dost thou wear Cupid's [155] quiver at thy girdle and make lances of looks?
Well, Corses, rouse thyself and be as thou hast been; and let Tellus, who is made all of love, melt herself in her own looseness.

Cors. Madam, I doubt not but to recover [150] my former state, for Tellus's beauty never wrought such love in my mind as now her deceit hath despite; and yet to be revenged of a woman were a thing than love itself more womanish.

Tellus. These spots, gentleman, are to [165] worn out, if you rub them over with this livery; so that in place where you received this maim you shall find a medicine.

Cors. I thank you for that. The gods bless me from love and these pretty ladies that [170] haunt this green.

Flosc. Corses, I would Tellus saw your amiable face. [SEMELE LAUGHS.]

Zont. How spitefully Semele laugheth, that dare not speak.

Cynth. Could you not stir Endymion with that doubled strength of yours?

Cors. Not so much as his finger with all my force.

Cynth. Pythagoras and Gyptes, what [180] think you of Endymion? What reason is to be given, what remedy? 2

Pyth. Madam, it is impossible to yield reason for things that happen not in compass of nature.
It is most certain that some strange enchantment hath bound all his senses.

Cynth. What say you, Gyptes?

Gyptes. With Pythagoras, that it is enchantment, and that so strange that no art can undo it, for that heaviness argueth a malice unrev-movable in the enchantress, and that no power can end it, till she die that did it; or the heavens sheds some means more than miraculous.

Flosc. O Endymion, could spirit itself devise a mischief so monstrous as to make thee dead [190] with life, and living, being altogether dead?
Where numbers number their years, their hours, their minutes, and step to age by stairs, thou only hast thy years and times in a cluster, being old before thou remembrest thou wast young.

Cynth. No more, Floscule; pitty doth him no good: I would anything else might; and I vow by the unsnitch'd honour of a lady he should not miss it. But is this all, Gyptes, that is to be done?

Gyptes. All as yet. It may be that either the enchantress shall die or else be discovered; if either happen, I will then practise the utmost of my art. In the mean season, about this grove would I have a watch, and the first living [200] things that toucheth Endymion to be taken.

Cynth. Corses, what say you, will you undertake this?

Cors. Good madam, pardon me! I was overtaken 1 too late. I should rather break into [215] the midst of a main battle than again fall into the hands of those fair babies.

Cynth. Well, I will provide others. Pythagoras and Gyptes, you shall yet remain in my court, till I hear what may be done in this [220] matter.

Pyth. We attend.

Cynth. Let us go in.

Exeunt.

ACT V

SCENE I. 2

[Enter Samias and Dares.

Samias. Eumenides hath told such strange tales as I may well wonder at them, but never believe them.

Dares. The other old man, what a sad speech used he, that caused us almost all to weep. [3
Cynthia is so desirous to know the experiment of her own virtue, and so willing to ease Endymion's hard fortune, that she no sooner heard the discourse but she made herself in a readiness to try the event.

Sam. We will also see the event. But whisk!
here cometh Cynthia with all her train. Let us sneak in amongst them.

Enter Cynthia, Floscule, Semele, Eumenides, Pannelion, etc.

Cynth. Eumenides, it cannot sink into my head that I should be signified by that sacred fountain, for many things are there in the world to which those words may be applied.

Eum. Good madam, vouchsafe but to try; else shall I think myself most unhappy that I asked not my sweet mistress.

Cynth. Will you not yet tell me her name?

Eum. Pardon me, good madam, for if Endymion awake, he shall; myself have sworn never to reveal it.

Cynth. Well, let us to Endymion. I will [25 not be so stately, good Endymion, not to stoop to do thee good; and if thy liberty consist in a kiss from me, thou shalt have it; and although my mouth hath been heretofore as untouched as my thoughts, yet now to recover thy life, [30 though to restore thy youth it be impossible, I will do that to Endymion which yet never mortal man could boast of heretofore, nor shall ever hope for hereafter.

She kisseth him.

Eum. Madam, he beginneth to stir.

Cynth. Soft, Eumenides; stand still.

Eum. Ah, I see his eyes almost open.

Cynth. I command thee once again, stir not.
I will stand behind him.

Pan. What do I see? Endymion almost [35 awake?

Eum. Endymion, Endymion, art thou deaf or dumb, or hast this long sleep taken away thy memory? Ah, my sweet Endymion, seest thou not Eumenides, thy faithful friend, thy faithful Eumenides, who for thy safety hath been

1 Overcome.

2 In the Grove.
careless of his own content? Speak, Endymion! Endymion! Endymion!
End. Endymion? I call to mind such a name.

Eum. Hast thou forgotten thyself, Endymion? Then do I not marvel thou rememberest not thy friend. I tell thee thou art Endymion, and I Eumenides. Behold also Cynthia, by whose favour thou art awakened, and by whose virtue thou shalt continue thy natural course.

Cynth. Endymion, speak, sweet Endymion! Knowest thou not Cynthia?

End. O heavens, whom do I behold? Fair Cynthia, divine Cynthia?

Cynth. I am Cynthia, and thou Endymion.

End. "Endymion!" What do I hear? What, a gray beard, hollow eyes, withered body, decayed limbs, and all in one night?

Eum. One night! Thou hast here slept [as forty years, by what enchantress as yet it is not known, and behold, the twig to which thou laid'st thy head is now become a tree. Callest thou not Eumenides to remembrance?

End. Thy name I do remember by the sound, but thy favour I do not yet call to mind; only divine Cynthia, to whom time, fortune, destiny, and death are subject, I see and remember, and in all humility I regard and reverence.

Cynth. You have good cause to remember Eumenides, who hath for thy safety forsaken his own solace.

End. Am I that Endymion who was wont in court to lead my life, and in justs, tourneys, and arms, to exercise my youth? Am I that Endymion?

Eum. Thou art that Endymion, and I Eumenides: wilt thou not yet call me to remembrance?

End. Ah, sweet Eumenides, I now perceive that thou art here, and that myself have the name of Endymion; but that this should be my body I doubt, for how could my curled locks be turned to gray hairs and my strong body to a dying weakness, having waxed old, and not knowing it.

Cynth. Well, Endymion, arise. [Endymion, trying to rise, sinks back.] A while sit down, for that thy limbs are stiff and not able to stay thee, and tell what hast thou seen in thy sleep all this while, what dreams, visions, thoughts, and fortunes; for it is impossible but in so long time thou shouldst see things strange.

End. Fair Cynthia, I will rehearse what I have seen, humbly desiring that when I exceed in length, you give me warning, that I may end; for to utter all I have to speak would be troublesome, although haply the strangeness may somewhat abate the tediousness.

Cynth. Well, Endymion, begin.

End. Methought I saw a lady passing fair, but very mischievous, who in the one hand carried a knife with which she offered to cut my throat, and in the other a looking-glass, wherein seeing how ill angered became ladies, she refrained from intended violence. She was accompanied with other damsels, one of which, with a stern countenance, and as it were with a settled malice engraved in her eyes, provoked her to execute mischief; another, with visage sad, and constant only in sorrow, with her arms crossed, and watery eyes, seemed to lament my fortune, but durst not offer to prevent the force. I slept in my sleep, and feeling my very veins to swell and my sinews to stretch with fear, and such a cold sweat beewed all my body that death itself could not be so terrible as the vision.

Cynth. A strange sight! Gyptes, at our better leisure, shall expound it.

End. After long debating with herself, mercy overcame anger, and there appeared in her heavenly face such a divine majesty mingled with a sweet mildness that I was ravished with the sight above measure, and wished that I might have enjoyed the sight without end: and so she departed with the other ladies, of which the one retained still an unmovable cruelty, the other a constant pity.

Cynth. Poor Endymion, how hast thou affrighted! What else?

End. After her, immediately appeared an aged man with a beard as white as snow, carrying in his hand a book with three leaves, and speaking, as I remember, these words: "Endymion, receive this book with these leaves, in which are contained counsels, policies, and pictures," and with that he offered me the book, which I rejected; wherewith, moved with a disdainful pity, he rent the first leaf in a thousand shivers. The second time he offered it, which I refused also; at which, bending his brows, and pitching his eyes fast to the ground, as though they were fixed to the earth and not again to be removed, then suddenly casting them up to the heavens, he tore in a rage the second leaf, and offered the book only with one leaf. I know not whether fear to offend or desire to know some strange thing moved me: I took the book, and so the old man vanished.

Cynth. What didst thou imagine was in the last leaf?

End. There portrayed to life, with a cold quaking in every joint, I beheld many wolves barking at thee, Cynthia, who having ground their teeth to bite, did with strivevng bleed themselves to death. There might I see ingratitude with an hundred eyes gazing for benef, fits, and with a thousand teeth gnawing on the bowels wherein she was bred; Treachery stood all clothed in white, with a smiling countenance, but both her hands bathed in blood; Envy with a pale and meagre face (whose body was so lean that one might tell all her bones, and whose garment was so tatter'd that it was easy to number every thread stood shooting at stars, whose dart fell down again on her own face. There might I behold thenceforth I know not how to term them creeping under the wings of a princely eagle, who, being carried into her nest, sought there to suck that vein that would have killed the eagle. I mused that things so base should attempt a fact so barbarous, or durst imagine at once thing so bloody. And many other things, madam, the repetition whereof may at your better leisure seem more pleasing, for bees sul- feit sometimes with honey, and the gods are glutted with harmony, and your highness may be dulled with delight.

Cynth. I am content to be dieted; therefore, let us in. Eumenides, see that Endymion be well tended, lest either eating immediately or sleeping again too long, he fall into a deadly surfeit or into his former sleep. See this also be proclaimed: that whosoever will discover this practice shall have of Cynthia infinite thanks and no small rewards.

Exeunt [all except ENDYMION.

EUMENIDES, FLOSCULA, and SEMELA.

Flo. Ah, Endymion, none so joyful as Flos- cula of this restoring.

Eum. Yes, Flosc, let Eumenides be somewhat gladder, and do not that wrong to the settled friendship of a man as to compare it with the light affection of a woman. Ah, my dear friend Endymion, suffer me to die with gazing at thee.

End. Eumenides, thy friendship is immortal and not to be conceived; and thy good will, Floscule, better than I have deserved; but let us all wait on Cynthia. I marvel Semele speaketh not a word.

Eum. Because if she do, she loseth her tongue.

End. But how prospereth your love?

Flo. I never yet spake word since your sleep.

End. I doubt not but your affection is old and your appetite cold.

Eum. No, Endymion, thine hath made it stronger, and now are my sparks grown to flames and my fancies almost to furies; but let us follow, and within we will debate this matter at large. Exeunt.

Scene II.

[Enter] Sir TOPHAS and EPTON.

Top. Epi, love hath justed my liberty from the wall, and taken the upper hand of my reason.

Flo. Let me then trip up the heels of your affection and thrust your good will into the gutter.

Top. No, Epi, love is a lord of misrule and keepeth Christmas in my corps.

Flo. No doubt there is good cheer: what dishes of delight doth his lordship feast you withal?

Top. First, with a great platter of plum porridge of pleasure, wherein is stewed the mutton of distrust.

Epi. Excellent love-pap.

Top. Then cometh a pie of patience, a hen of honey, a goose of gall, a capon of care, and many other viands, some sweet and some sour, which proveth love to be, as it was said of in old years, Dulce venenum.

Epi. A brave banquet!

Top. But, Epi, I pray thee feel on my chin; something pricketh me. What dost thou feel or see?

Epi. There are three or four little hairs. Top. I pray thee call it my beard. How shall I be troubled when this young spring shall grow to a great wood?

Epi. Oh, sir, your chin is but a quiller; you will be most majestical when it is full fledged. But I marvel that you love Dyspsas, that old crone.

Top. Agnosco veterris vestigia flammâ; I love the smoke of an old fire.

Epi. Why she is so cold that no fire can thaw her thoughts.

Top. It is an old goose, Epi, that will eat no oats; old kine will kick, old rats gnaw cheese, and old sows will have much patching. I prefer an old coney before a rabbit-sucker, and an ancient hen before a young chicken-pepper.

Epi. [Aside.] Argumentum ab antiquitate; my master loveth antique work.

Top. Give me a pippin that is withered like an old wife!

Epi. Good, sir.

Top. Then, — a contrario sequitur argumentum, — give me a wife that looks like an old pippin.

Epi. [Aside.] Nothing hath made my master a fool but flat scholarship.

Top. Knowest thou not that old wine is best?

Epi. Yes.

Top. And thou knowest that like will to like?

Epi. Ay.

Top. And thou knowest that Venus loved the best wine?

Epi. So.

Top. Then I conclude that Venus was an old woman in an old cup of wine, for est Venus in vinis, ignis in igne fuit. O lepidum caput, O madcap master! You were worthy to win Dyspsas, were she as old again, for in your love you have worn the nap of your wit quite off and made it threadbare. But soft, who comes here?

[Enter SAMIAS and DARES.]

Top. My solicitors.

Sam. All hail, Sir Tophas; how feel you yourself?

Top. Stately in every joint, which the common people term stiffness. Doth Dyspsas stoop? Will she yield? Will she bend?

Dar. Oh, sir, as much as you would wish, for her chin almost toucheth her knees.

Epi. Master, she is bent, I warrant you.

1 In the Gardens of the Palace.
2 So Baker. Old edd. read love lappe.
Top. What conditions doth she ask?
Sam. She hath vowed she will never love any that hath not a tooth in his head less than [30] she.
Top. How many hath she?
Dar. One.
Epi. That goeth hard, master, for then you must have none.
Top. A small request, and agreeable to the gravity of your years. What should a wise man do with his mouth full of bones like a charnel-house? The turtle true hath neither a tooth.
Sam. [Aside.] Thy master is in a notable [50] vein, that will lose his teeth to be like a turtle.
Epi. [Aside.] Let him lose his tongue, too; I care not.
Dar. Nay, you must also have no nails, for she long since hath cast hers. [35]
Top. That I yield to. What a quiet life shall Dipsas and I lead when we can neither bite nor scratch! You may see, youths, how age provides for peace.
Sam. [Aside.] How shall we do to make [100]
him leave his love, for we never spake to her?
Dar. [Aside.] Let me alone. [To Sir Tophas.]
She is a notable witch, and hath turned her maid Bagoa to an aspen tree, for bewraying her secrets.
Top. I honour her for her cunning, for now when I am weary of walking on two legs, what a pleasure may she do me to turn me to some goodly ass, and help me to four.
Dar. Nay, thou must tell me the [105] truth. Her husband, Geron, is come home, who this fifty years hath had her to wife.
Top. What do I hear? Hath she an husband? Go to the sexton and tell him Desire is dead, and will him to dig his grave. O [115] heavens, an husband! What death is agreeable to my fortune?
Sam. Be not desperate, and we will help you to find a young lady.
Top. I love no prigles;[1] they are so Brittle they will crack like glass, or so dainty that if they be touched they are straight of the fashion of wax; animus majoribus instat, [2] I desire old matrons. What a sight would it be to embrace one whose hair were as orient as [118] the pearl, whose teeth shall be so pure a watchet[3] that they shall stain the truest turquise, whose nose shall throw more beams from it than the fiery carbuncle, whose eyes shall be environ'd about with redness exceeding the deepest coral, and whose lips might compare with silver for the paleness! Such a one if you can help me to, I will by piece meal curtail my affections towards Dipsas, and walk my swelling thoughts till they be cold. [120] Epi. Wisely provided. How say you, my friends, will you angle for my master's cause?
Sam. Most willingly.
Dar. If we speed him not shortly, I will burn my cap. We will serve him of the spades, [125] dig an old wife out of the grave that shall be answerable to his gravity.
time, hast thou bewitched by art, before thou wouldst suffer him to flourish by nature. Dipsas. Madam, things past may be re-* [50] pented, not recalled: there is nothing so wicked that I have not done, nor anything so wished for as death; yet among all the things that I committed, there is nothing so much tormenteth me as rental and ransack'd thoughts as that in [55] the prime of my husband's youth I divorced him by my devilish art; for which if to die might be amends, I would not live till to-morrow; if to live and still be more miserable would better content him, I would wish of all creatures to [50] be oldest and ugliest.

Geron. Dipsas, thou hast made this difference between me and Endymion, that being both young, thou hast caused me to wake in melancholy, losing the joys of my youth, and him [55] to sleep, not remembering youth.

Cynth. Stay, here cometh Tellus; we shall now know all.

[Re-enter PANELOUR and ZONTES, with CORSITES and TELLUS.]

Cors. I would to Cynthia thou couldst make as good an excuse in truth as to me thou hast [10] done by wit.

Tellus. Truth shall be mine answer, and therefore I will not study for an excuse.

Cynth. Is it possible, Tellus, that so few years should harbour so many mischiefs? Thy [15] swelling pride have I borne, because it is a thing that beauty maketh blameless, which the more it excedeth fairness in measure, the more it stretcheth itself in disdain. Thy devices against Corsites I smile at, for that wits, the sharper [20] they are, the shrewder they are; but this unacquainted and most unnatural practice with a vile enchantress against so noble a gentleman as Endymion I abhor as a thing most malicious, and will revenge as a deed most monstrous. [25] And as for you, Dipsas, I will send you into the desert amongst wild beasts, and try whether you can cast lions, tigers, bears, and bears into as dead a sleep as you did Endymion, or turn them to trees, as you have done Bagoa. But tell me, [30] Tellus, what was the cause of this cruel part, far unsetting thy sex, in which nothing should be but simplicity, and much disagreeing from thy face, in which nothing seemed to be but softness.

Tellus. Divine Cynthia, by whom I receive my life and am content to end it, I can neither excuse my fault without lying, nor confess it without shame; yet were it possible that in so heavenly thoughts as yours there could fall such earthly motions as mine, I would then hope, if not to be pardoned without extreme punishment, yet to be heard without great marvel.

Cynth. Say on, Tellus; I cannot imagine any thing that can colour such a cruelty.

Tellus. Endymion, that Endymion, in the prime of his youth, so ravish'd my heart with love, that to obtain my desires I could not find means, nor to resist them reason. What was she that favoured not Endymion, being [110] young, wise, honourable, and virtuous; besides, what metal was she made of (be she mortal) that is not affected with the spice, nay, infected with the poison of that not-to-be-expressed yet always-to-be-felt love, which breaketh the [115] brains and never bruises the brow, consumeth the heart and never toucheth the skin, and maketh a deep scar to be seen before any wound at all be felt. My heart, too tender to withstand such a divine fury, yielded to [120] love. Madam, I, not without blushing, confess [1] yielded to love.

Cynth. A strange effect of love, to work such an extreme hate. How say you, Endymion? All this was for love?

End. I say, madam, then the gods send me a woman's hate.

Cynth. That were as bad, for then by contrary you should never sleep. But on, Tellus; let us hear the end.

Tellus. Feeling a continual burning in all my bowels, and a bursting almost in every vein, I could not smoother the inward fire, but it must needs be perceived by the outward smoke; and by the flying abroad of divers sparks, divers judged of my scalding flames. Endymion, as full of art as wit, marking mine eyes, (in which he might see almost his own,) my sighs, (by which he might ever hear his name sounded,) aimed at my heart, in which he [135] was assured his person was imprinted, and by questions wrung out that which was ready to burst out. When he saw the depth of my affections, he swore that mine in respect of his were as fumes to Ætna, valleys to Alps, ants to eagles, and nothing could be compared to my beauty but his love and eternity. Thus drawing a smooth shoe upon a crooked foot, he made me believe that (which all of our sex willingly acknowledge) I was beautiful, and to wonder (which indeed is a thing miraculous) that any of his sex should be faithful.

Cynth. Endymion, how will you clear yourself?

End. Madam, by mine own accuser.

Cynth. Well, Tellus, proceed; but briefly, lest taking delight in uttering thy love, thou offend us with the length of it.

Tellus. I will, madam, quickly make an end of my love and my tale. Finding continual increase of my tormenting thoughts, and that the enjoying of my love made deeper wounds than the entering into it, I could find no means to ease my grief but to follow Endymion, and continually to have him in the object of my mine eyes who had me slave and subject to his love. But in the moment that I feared his falsehood and tried myself most in mine affections, I found — ah, grief, even then I lost myself! — I found him in most melancholy and desperate terms cursing his stars, his state, the earth, the heavens, the world, and all for the love of —

3 Bond transposes scar and wound; and seen and felt.
Tellus, Madam, I dare not utter, for fear to offend.

Cynth. Speak, I say; who dare take offence, if thou be commanded by Cynthia?

Tellus. For the love of Cynthia.

Cynth. For my love, Tellus? That were strange. Endymion, is it true?

End. In all things, madam, Tellus doth not speak false.

Cynth. What will this breed to in the end? Well, Endymion, we shall hear all.

Tellus. Thine and my hopes turned to mis- [315]haps, and a settled dissembling towards me, and an immovable desire to Cynthia, forgetting both myself and my sex, fell into this unnatural hate; for knowing your virtues, Cynthia, to be immoral, I could not have an imagination to with- [340]draw him; and finding mine own affections unquenchable, I could not carry the mind that any else should possess what I had pursued. For though in majesty, beauty, virtue, and dignity, I always humbled and yielded myself [390]to Cynthia, yet an affection I esteemed myself equal with the goddesses, and all other creatures, according to their states, with myself; for stars to their bigness have their lights, and the sun hath no more, and little pitchers, when [360]they can hold no more, are as full as great vessels that run over. Thus, madam, in all truth have I uttered the unhappiness of my love and the cause of my hate, yielding wholly to that divine judgment which never erred for want of wisdom or carried for too much partiality.

Cynth. How say you, my lords, to this matter? But what say you, Endymion; hath Tellus told truth?

End. Madam, in all things but in that [370]she said I loved her and swore to honor her.

Cynth. Was there such a time whenas for my love thou didst vow thyself to death, and in respect of it losteth thy life? Speak, Endymion; I will not revenge it with hate.

End. Then, madam, I did, and is, and ever shall be, that I honoured your bigness above all the world, but to stretch it so far as to call it love I never durst. There hath none pleased mine eye but Cynthia, none delighted [395]mine ears but Cynthia, none possessed my heart but Cynthia, I have forsaken all other fortunes to follow Cynthia, and here I stand ready to die, if it please Cynthia. Such a difference hath the gods set between our states that all must be [420]duty, loyalty, and reverence; nothing (without it vouchsafe your bigness) be termed love. My unspotted thoughts, my languishing body, my discontented life, let them obtain by princely favour that which to challenge they [445]must not presume, only wishing of impossibilities; with imagination of which I will spend my spirits, and to myself, that no creature may hear, softly call it love; and if any urge to utter what I whisper, then will I name it honour. [455]From this sweet contemplation if I be not driven, I shall live of all men the most content, taking more pleasure in mine aged thoughts than ever I did in my youthful actions.

Cynth. Endymion, this honourable respect [460]of thine shall be christened love in thee, and my reward for it, favour. Persevere, Endymion, in loving me, and I account more strength in a true heart than in a walled city. I have laboured to win all, and study to keep such as I [485]have won; but those that neither my favour can move to continue constant, nor my offered benefits get to be faithful, the gods shall either reduce to truth, or revenge their treacheries with justice. Endymion, continue as thou hast [495]been, and thou shalt find that Cynthia shineth not on thee in vain.

End. Your Highness hath blessed me, and your words have again restored my youth; me-thinks I feel my joints strong and these [500]mouldy hairs to moult, and all by your virtue, Cynthia, into whose hands the balance that weigheth time and fortune are committed.

Cynth. What, young again! Then it is pity to punish Tellus.

Tellus. Ah, Endymion, now I know thee and ask pardon of thee; suffer me still to wish thee well.

End. Tellus, Cynthia must command what she will.

Flosc. Endymion, I rejoice to see thee in thy former estate.

End. Good Floscule, to thee also am I in my former affections.

Eum. Endymion, the comfort of my life, [520]how am I ravished with a joy matchless, saving only the enjoying of my mistress.

Cynth. Endymion, you must now tell who Eumenides shineth for his saint.

Semele, madam.

Cynth. Semele, Eumenides? Is it Semele, the very wisp of all women, whose tongue stings thus as an adder's tooth?

Eum. It is Semele, Cynthia, the possessing of whose love must only prolong my life.

Cynth. Nay, sith Endymion is restored, we will have all parties pleased. Semele, are you content after so long trial of his faith, such rare secrecy, such unspotted love, to take Eumenides? Why speak you not? Not a word? [550]Silence, madam, consents; that is most true.

Cynth. It is true, Endymion. Eumenides, take Semele; take her, I say.

Eum. Humble thanks, madam; now only [560]do I begin to live.

Sem. A hard choice, madam, either to be married if I say nothing, or to lose my tongue if I speak a word. Yet do I rather choose to have my tongue out of me than my heart disstem- [570]pered; I will not have him.

Cynth. Speaks the parrot! She shall nod hereafter with signs. Cut off her tongue, may her head, that having a servant of honourable birth, honest manners, and true love, will not be [580]persuaded.

Sem. He is no faithful lover, madam, for then would he have asked his mistress.

Ger. Had he not been faithful, he had never seen into the fountain, and so lost his friend [590]and mistress.

Eum. Thine own thoughts, sweet Semele, witness against thy words, for what hast thou found in my life but love? And as yet what have I found in my love but bitterness? [330] Madam, pardon Semele, and let my tongue ransom hers.

Cynth. Thy tongue, Eumenides! What, shouldst thou live wanting a tongue to blaze the beauty of Semele! Well, Semele, I will not command love, for it cannot be enforced;
let me entreat thee.

Sem. I am content your highness shall command, for now only do I think Eumenides faithful, that is willing to lose his tongue for my sake; yet loath, that you should do me better service. Madam, I accept of Eumenides.

Cynth. I thank you, Semele.

Eum. Ah, happy Eumenides, that hast a friend so faithful and a mistress so fair! [332]
With what sudden mischief will the gods daunt this excess of joy? Sweet Semele, I live or die as thou wilt.

Cynth. What shall become of Tellus? Tellus, you know Endymion is vowed to a service [333] from which death cannot remove him. Corsites casteth still a lovely look towards you. How say you, will you have your Corsites, and so receive pardon for all that is past?

Tellus. Madam, most willingly.

Cynth. But I cannot tell whether Corsites be agreed.

Cors. Ay, madam, more happy to enjoy Tel-lus than the monarch of the world.

Eum. Why, she caused you to be pinch’d [340] with fairies.

Cors. Ay, but her fairness hath pinched my heart more deeply.

Cynth. Well, enjoy thy love. But what have you wrought in the castle, Tellus?

Tellus. Only the picture of Endymion.

Cynth. Then so much of Endymion as his picture cometh to, possess and play withal.

Cors. Ah, my sweet Tellus, my love shall be as thy beauty is, matchless.

Cynth. Now it resteth, Dipas, that if thou wilt forswear that vile art of enchanting, Geron hath promised again to receive thee; otherwise, if thou be wedded to that wickedness, I must
and will see it punished to the uttermost. [335]

Dipas. Madam, I renounce both substance and shadow of that most horrible and hateful trade, vowing to the gods continual penance, and to your highness obedience.

Cynth. How say you, Geron; will you admit her to your wife?

Ger. Ay, with more joy than I did the first day, for nothing could happen to make me happy but only her forsaking that lewd [3] and detestable course. Dipas, I embrace thee. [336]

Dipas. And I thee, Geron, to whom I will hereafter recite the cause of these my first follies.

Cynth. Well, Endymion, nothing resteth now but that we depart. Thou hast my favour; [373] Tellus her friend; Eumenides in Paradise with his Semele; Geron content with Dipas.

Sir Top. Nay, soft; I cannot handsomely go to bed without Bagoa.

Cynth. Well, Sir Tophas, it may be there [374] are more virtues in me than myself knoweth of,
for Endymion I awakened, and at my words he waxed young. I will try whether I can turn this tree again to thy true love.

Top. Turn her to a true love or false, so [380]
she be a wench I care not.

Cynth. Bagoa, Cynthia puttheth an end to thy hard fortunes; for, being turn’d to a tree for revealing a truth, I will recover thee again, if in my power be the effect of truth.

Bagoa recovers human shape.

Top. Bagoa, a bo's [3] upon thee!

Cynth. Come, my lords, let us in. You, Gyptes and Pythagoras, if you can content yourselves in our court, to fall from vain fortunes of philosophers to such virtues as are here practised, [350] you shall be entertained according to your deserts, for Cynthia is no stepmother to strangers.

Pythag. I had rather in Cynthia's courts spend ten years than in Greece one hour.

Gyptes. And I choose rather to live by [395] the sight of Cynthia than by the possessing of all Egypt.

Cynth. Then follow.

Eum. We all attend.

Exeunt.

THE EPILOGUE

A man walking abroad, the Wind and Sun strove for sovereignty, the one with his blast, the other with his beams. The Wind blew hard; the man wrapped his garment about him harder: it blustred more strongly; he then girt it fast to him. "I cannot prevail," said the Wind. The Sun, casting her crystal beams, began to warm the man; he unloosed his gown; yet it shined brighter;
he then put it off. "I yield," said the Wind, "if thou continue shining, he will also put off [5] his coat."

Dread Sovereign, the malicious that seek to overthrow us, with threats, do but stiffen our thoughts, and make them sturdier in storms; but if your highness vouchsafe with your favourable beams to glance upon us, we shall not only stoop, but with all humility lay both our hands and hearts at your majesty's feet.

1 Mean, base.
5 Worms. A comic execution.
Enter Antic, Frolic, and Fantastic.

Ant. How now, fellow Frolic! What, all amost? Doth this sadness become thy madness? What though we have lost our way in the woods, yet never hang the head as though thou hadst no hope to live till to-morrow; for Fantastic and I will warrant thy life to-night for twenty in the hundred.

Fro. Antic and Fantastic, as I am frolic franion, never in all my life was I so dead slain. What, to lose our way in the wood, without either fire or candle, so uncomfortable! O colum! O terra! O Maria! O Neptune!

Fan. Why makes thou it so strange, seeing Cupid hath led our young master to the fair lady, and she is the only saint that he hath sworn to serve?

Fro. What resteth, then, but we commit him to his wench, and each of us take his stand up in a tree, and sing out our ill fortune to the tune of "O man in desperation"?

Ant. Desperately spoken, fellow Frolic, in the dark; but seeing it falls out thus, let us rehearse the old proverb:

"Three merry men, and three merry men,
And three merry men be we;

I in the wood, and thou on the ground,
And Jack sleeps in the tree."

Fan. Hush! a dog in the wood, or a wooden dog! O comfortable hearing! I had even as lief the chamberlain of the White Horse had called me up to bed.

Fro. Either hath this trotting gone out of his circuit, or else are we near some village, which should not be far off, for I perceive the geditting of a glow-worm, a candle, or a cat’s eye, my life for a halfpenny! In the name of my own father, be thou ox or ass that appeareth, tell us what thou art.

Smith. What am I? Why, I am Clunch the smith. What are you? What make you in my territories at this time of the night?

Ant. What do we make, dost thou ask? Why, we make faces for fear; such as if thy mortal eyes could behold, would make thee water the long seams of thy side slops, 8 as smith.

Fro. And, in faith, sir, unless your hospitality do relieve us, we are like to wander, with a sorrowful heigh-ho, among the owlets and hob-goblins of the forest. Good Vulcan, for Cupid’s sake that hath cozened us all, befriend us as thou mayst; and command us howsoever, wheresoever, whentimes, in whatsoever, for ever and ever.

Smith. Well, masters, it seems to me you have lost your way in the wood; in consideration whereof, if you will go with Clunch to his cottage, you shall have house-room and a good fire to sit by, although we have no bedding to put you in.

All. O blessed smith, O bountiful Clunch! Smith. For your further entertainment, it shall be as it may be, so and so.

A dog barks within.

Hark! this is Ball my dog, that bids you all welcome in his own language. Come, take heed for stumbling on the threshold.—Open door, Madge; take in guests.

1 Q Frantick. 2 Dejected. 3 A gay fellow. 4 With a pun on wood, mad. 5 Long wide trousers. 6 The scene is now at the cottage.
Enter [MADGE, an] old woman.

MADGE. Welcome, Clunch, and good fellows all, that come with my good-man. For my good-man's sake, come on, sit down; here is a piece of cheese, and a pudding of my own making.

Ant. Thanks, gammer; a good example for the wives of our town.

Fro. Gammer, thou and thy good-man sit lovingly together; we come to chat, and not to eat.

Smith. Well, masters, if you will eat nothing, take away. Come, what do we to pass away the time? Lay a crab in the fire to roast for lamb's-wool. What, shall we have a game at trump or ruff to drive away the time? How say you?

Fan. This smith leads a life as merry as a king with Madge his wife. Sirrah Frolic, I am sure thou art not without some round or other; no doubt but Clunch can bear his part.

Fro. Else think you me ill brought up; so set to it when you will.

Song.

Whenas the rye reach to the chin,
And camp-herry, camp-herry ripe within,
Strawberries swimming in the cream;
And school-boys playing in the stream;
Then, O, then, then, O, my true-love said,
Till that time come again.
She could not live a maid.

Ant. This sport does well; but methinks, gammer, a merry winter's tale would drive away the time trimly. Come, I am sure you are not without a score.

Fan. I' faith, gammer, a tale of an hour long were as good as an hour's sleep.

Fro. Look you, gammer, of the giant and the king's daughter, and I know not what. I have seen the day, when I was a little one, you might have drawn me a mile after you with such a discourse.

MADGE. Well, since you be so importunate, my good-man shall fill the pot and get him to bed; they that ply their work must keep good hours. One of you go lie with him; he is a clean-shaven man. I tell you, without either spavin or wind-gall: so I am content to drive away the time with an old wives' winter's tale.

Fan. No better hay in Devonshire; o' my word, gammer, I'll be one of your audience.

Fro. And I another, that's flat.

Ant. Then must I to bed with the good-man.

Bona nox, gammer. — Good night, Frolic.

Smith. Come on, my lad, thou shalt take thy unnatural rest with me.

Exit Arctic and the smith.

Fro. Yet this vantage shall we have of them in the morning, to be ready at the sight thereof extempore.

1 Madge is called old woman in the speech-tags throughout in Q.
2 A drink made of ale and the pulp of roasted crab-apples.
3 A common card game.

MADGE. Now this bargain, my masters, must I make with you, that you will say hum and ha to my tale, so shall I know you are awake.

Both. Content, gammer, that will we do.

MADGE. Once upon a time, there was a king, or a lord, or a duke, that had a fair daughter, the fairest that ever was, as white as snow and as red as blood; and once upon a time his daughter was stolen away; and he sent all his men to seek out his daughter, and he sent so long, that he sent all his men out of his land.

Fro. Who drest his dinner, then?

MADGE. Nay, either hear my tale, or kiss my tail.

Fan. Well said! On with your tale, gammer.

MADGE. O Lord, I quite forgot! There was a conjurer, and this conjurer could do any thing, and he turned himself into a great dragon, and carried the king's daughter away in his mouth to a castle that he made of stone; and there he kept her I know not how long, till at last all the king's men went out so long that her two brothers went to seek her. O, I forget! she (be, I would say,) turned a proper young man to a bear in the night, and a man in the day, and keeps by a cross that parts three several ways; and he made his lady run mad, — Gods me bones, who comes here?

Enter the Two Brothers.

Fro. Soft, gammer, here some come to tell your tale for you.

Fan. Let them alone; let us hear what they will say.

1 Bro. Upon these chalky cliffs of Albion

We are arrived now with tedious toil;

And compassing the wide world round about,

To seek our sister, to seek fair Delia forth,

Yet cannot we so much as hear of her.

2 Bro. O fortune cruel, cruel and unkind!

Unkind in that we cannot find our sister,

Our sister, hapless in her cruel chance!

Soft! who have we here?

Enter Senex [ERESTRUS] at the cross, stooping to gather.

1 Bro. Now, father, God be your speed!

What do you gather there?

Erest. Hips and haws, and sticks and straw, and things that I gather on the ground, my son.

2 Bro. Hips and haws, and sticks and straw!

Why, is that all your food, father?

Erest. Yea, son.

2 Bro. Father, here is an alms-penny for me; and if I speed in that I go for, I will give thee as good a gown of grey as ever thou didst wear.

1 Bro. And, father, here is another alms-penny for me; and if I speed in my journey, I will give thee a palmer's staff of ivory, and a scallop-shell of beaten gold.

4 Handsome.

6 Erestus is called old man in the speech-tags throughout in Q.

Erest. Was she fair?

2 Bro. Ay, the fairest for white, and the purest for red, as the blood of the deer, or the driven snow.

Erest. Then hark well, and mark well, my old spell:

Be not afraid of every stranger;

Start not aside at every danger;

Things that seem are not the same;

Blow a blast at every flame;

For when one flame of fire goes out,

Then comes your wishes well about:

If any ask who told you this good,

Say, the white bear of England’s wood.

1 Bro. Brother, heard you not what the old man said?

"Be not afraid of every stranger;

Start not aside at every danger;

Things that seem are not the same;

Blow a blast at every flame;

[For when one flame of fire goes out,

Then comes your wishes well about:]

If any ask who told you this good,

Say, the white bear of England’s wood."

2 Bro. Well, if this do us any good,

Well fare the white bear of England’s wood!

Exeunt [the Two Brothers].

Erest. Now sit thee here, and tell a heavy tale,

Sad in thy mood, and sober in thy cheer;

Here sit thee now, and to thyself relate

The hard mishap of thy most wretched state.

In Thessaly I liv’d in sweet content,

Until that fortune wrought my overthrow;

For there I wedded was unto a dame,

That liv’d in honour, virtue, love, and fame.

But Saccapant, that cursed sorcerer,

Being besotted with my beauteous love,

My dearest love, my true betrothed wife,

Did seek the means to rid me of my life,

But worse than this, he with his chanting spells

Did turn me straight unto an ugly bear;

And when the sun doth settle in the west,

Then I begin to do my ugly hide.

And all the day I sit, as now you see,

And speak in riddles, all inspir’d with rage,

Seeming an old and miserable man,

And yet I am in April of my age.

Enter Venelia his lady, mad; and goes in again.

See where Venelia, my betrothed love,

Runs madding, all enrag’d, about the woods,

All by his cursed and enchanting spells.

Enter Lampriscus with a pot of honey.

But here comes Lampriscus, my discontented neighbour. How now, neighbour! You look toward the ground as well as I; you muse on something.

Lamp. Neighbour, on nothing but on the matter I so often moved to you. If you do anything for charity, help me; if for neighbourhood or brotherhood, help me: never was one so cumbered as is poor Lampriscus; and to begin, I pray receive this pot of honey, to mend your fare.

Erest. Thanks, neighbour, set it down; honey is always welcome to the bear. And now, neighbour, let me hear the cause of your coming.

Lamp. I am, as you know, neighbour, a man unmarried; and lived so unquietly with my two wives, that I keep every year holy the day wherein I buried them both: the first was on Saint Andrew’s day, the other on Saint Luke’s.

Erest. And now, neighbour, you of this country say, your custom is out. But on with your tale, neighbour.

Lamp. By my first wife, whose tongue wore me alive, and sounded in my ears like the clapper of a great bell, whose talk was a continual torment to all that dwelt by her, or lived nigh her, you have heard me say I had a handsome daughter.

Erest. True, neighbour.

Lamp. She it is that afflicts me with her continual clamours, and hangs on me like a bur. Poor she is, and proud she is; as poor as a sheep new-shorn, and as proud of her hopes as a peacock of her tail well-grown.

Erest. Well said, Lampriscus! You speak it like an Englishman.

Lamp. As curse as a wasp, and as forward as a child new-taken from the mother’s teat; she is to my age as smoke to the eyes or as vinegar to the teeth.

Erest. Holly praised, neighbour. As much for the next.

Lamp. By my other wife I had a daughter so hard-favoured, so foul and ill-favored, that I think a grove full of golden trees, and the leaves of rubies and diamonds, would not be a dowry answerable to her deformity.

Erest. Well, neighbour, now you have spoke, hear me speak. Send them to the well for the water of life; there shall they find their fortunes unlooked for. Neighbour, farewell.

Exit.

Lamp. Farewell, and a thousand! And now goeth poor Lampriscus to put in execution this excellent counsel.

Exit.

Fro. Why, this goes round without a fiddling-stick: but, do you hear, gammer, was this the man that was a bear in the night and a man in the day?

Madge. Ay, this is he; and this man that came to him was a beggar, and dwelt upon a green. But soft! who comes here? O, these are the harvest-men; ten to one they sing a song of mowing.

Enter the Harvest-men a-singing, with this song double repeated.

All ye that lovely loves be,

Pray you for me.

Lo, here we come a-sowing, a-sowing,

And sow sweet fruits of love;

In your sweet hearts well may it prove!

Exeunt.
I pray you tell where the wise man the conjurer dwells.

Huan. Where that earthly goddess keepeth her abode, the commander of my thoughts, and fair mistress of my heart. 264

Erest. Fair enough, and far enough from thy finger-gingernail. 237

Huan. I will follow my fortune after mine own fancy, and do according to mine own discretion. 237

Erest. Yet give something to an old man before you go. 237

Huan. Father, methinks a piece of this cake might serve your turn. 236

Erest. Yea, son. 237

Huan. Huanebango giveth no cakes for alms; ask of them that give gifts for poor beggars. — Fair lady, if thou wert once shined in this bosom, I would buckler thee harantata. 375

Exit.

Booby. Father, do you see this man? You [265] little think he’ll run a mile or two for such a cake, or pass for a pudding. I tell you, father, he has kept such a bagging of me for a piece of this cake! Whoop! he comes upon me with "a superfluous substance, and the poison of the earth," that I know not what he means. If he came to me thus, and said, "My friend Booby," or so, why, I could spare him a piece with all my heart; but when he tells me how God hath enriched me above other fellows [260] with a cake, why, he makes me blind and deaf at once. Yet, father, here is a piece of cake for you, as hard as the world goes.5 [Gives cake.]

Erest. Thanks, son, but list to me; he shall be deaf when thou shalt not see. 265

Farewell, my son: things may so hit, Thou mayst have wealth to mend thy wit. 265

Cor. Farewell, father, farewell; for I must make haste after my two-hand sword that is gone before. 265

Exeunt omnes. 260

Enter Sacraptan in his study.

Sac. The day is clear, the skelkin bright and grey,

The lark is merry and records her notes;
Each thing rejoiceth underneath the sky,
But only I, whom heaven hath in hate,
Wretched and miserable Sacraptan.

In Thessaly was I born and brought up;
My mother Meroe hight, a famous witch,
And by her cunning I of her did learn
To change and alter shapes of mortal men.
There did I turn myself into a dragon,
And stole away the daughter to the king,
Fair Delia, the mistress of my heart;
And brought her hither to revive the man
That seemeth young and pleasant to behold,
And yet is aged, crooked, weak, and numb. 412
Thus by enchanting spells I do deceive
Those that behold and look upon my face;
But well may I bid youthfull years adieu.
Enter Delia with a pot in her hand.

See where she comes from whence my sorrows grow!

How now, fair Delia! where have you been? [440]

Del. At the foot of the rock for running water, and gathering roots for your dinner, sir.

Sac. Ah, fairer art thou than the running water, yet harder far than steel or adamant!

Del. Will it please you to sit down, sir?

Sac. Ay, Delia, sit and ask me what thou wilt.

Thou shalt have it brought into thy lap.

Del. Then, I pray you, sir, let me have the best meat from the King of England’s table, and the best wine in all France, brought in by the veriest knave in all Spain.

Sac. Delia, I am glad to see you so pleasant.

Well, sit thee down.—Spread, table, spread, —

Meat, drink, and bread,

Ever may I have

What I ever crave,

When I am spread

For meat for my black cock,

And meat for my red.

Enter a Friar with a chine of beef and a pot of wine.

Here, Delia, will ye fall to?

Del. Is this the best meat in England?

Sac. Yea.

Del. What is it?

Sac. A chine of English beef, meat for a king and a king’s followers.

Del. Is this the best wine in France?

Sac. Yea.

Del. What wine is it?

Sac. A cup of neat wine of Orleans, that never came near the brewers in England.

Del. Is this the veriest knave in all Spain?

Sac. Yea.

Del. What, is he a friar?

Sac. Yea, a friar indefinite, and a knave infinite.

Del. Then, I pray ye, Sir Friar, tell me before you go, which is the most greediest Englishman?

Fri. The miserable and most covetous usurer.

Sac. Hold thee there, friar. (Exit Friar.)

But, soft!

Who have we here? Delia, away, be gone!

Enter the Two Brothers.

Delia, away! for beset are we.—

But heaven or hell shall rescue her for me. [445]

[Exeunt Delia and Sacrapant.]

1 Bro. Brother, was not that Delia did appear,

Or was it but her shadow that was here?

2 Bro. Sister, where art thou? Delia, come again!

He calls, that of thy absence doth complain.—

Call out, Calypha, that she may hear,

And cry aloud, for Delia is near.

Echo. Near.

1 Bro. Near! O, where? Hast thou any tidings?

Echo. Tidings.

2 Bro. Which way is Delia, then; or that, or this?

Echo. This.

1 Bro. And may we safely come where Delia is?

Echo. Yes.

2 Bro. Brother, remember you the white bear of England’s wood?

“Start not aside for every danger,

Be not afraid of every stranger;

Things that seem are not the same.”

1 Bro. Brother, why do we not, then, courageously enter? [445]

2 Bro. Then, brother, draw thy sword and follow me.

Re-enter [Sacrapant] the Conjurer: it lightens and thunders; the Second Brother falls down.

1 Bro. What, brother, dost thou fall?

Sac. Ay, and thou too, Calypha.

The First Brother falls down. Enter Two Furies.

Adeste, daemones! Away with them:

Go carry them straight to Sacrapanto’s cell, [440]

There in despair and torture for to dwell.

[Exeunt Furies with the Two Brothers.]

These are Theseus’ sons of Thessaly,

That come to seek Delia their sister forth;

But, with a potion I to her have given,

My arts have made her to forget herself. [446]

Removes a turf, and shows a light in a glass.

See here the thing which doth prolong my life,

With this enchantment I do any thing;

And till this fade, my skill shall still endure,

And never none shall break this little glass,

But she that’s neither wife, widow, nor maid.

Then cheer thyself; this is thy destiny,

Never to die but by a dead man’s hand. Exit.

Enter Eumenes, the wandering knight, and [Erestus] the old man at the cross.

Eum. Tell me, Time.

Tell me, just Time, when shall I Delia see?

When shall I see the loadstar of my life? [500]

When shall my wand’ring course end with her sight?

Or I but view my hope, my heart’s delight? [Seeing Erestus.]

Father, God speed! If you tell fortunes, I pray, good father, tell me mine.

Erest. Son, I do see in thy face

Thy blessed fortune work apace.

I do perceive that thou hast wit;

Bag of thy fate to govern it,

For wisdom govern’d by advice,

Makes many fortunate and wise.

Bestow thy alms, give more than all,

Till dead men’s bones come at thy call.

Farewell, my son! Dream of no rest,

Till thou repent that thou didst best. Exit.

Eum. This man hath left me in a labyrinth:

He biddest me give more than all,

Till dead men’s bones come at my call;

...
He biddeth me dream of no rest,
Till I repent that I do best.

[Lies down and sleeps.]

Enter WIGGEN, COREBUS⁴, Churchwarden, and Sexton.

Wig. You may be ashamed, you whoreson [⁵⁶⁶] scald Sexton and Churchwarden, if you had any shame in those shameless faces of yours, to let a poor man lie so long above ground unburied. A rot on you all, that have no more compassion of a good fellow when he is gone! ⁵⁶⁶

Church. What, would you have us to bury him, and to answer it ourselves to the parish?

Sex. Parish me no parishes; pay me my fees, and let the rest run on in the quarter's accounts, and put it down for one of your good deeds, o' God's name! for I am not one that curiously stands upon merits.

Cor. You whoreson, sodden-headed sheep's-face, shall a good fellow do less service and more honesty to the parish, and will you not, when he is dead, let him have Christmas burial?

Wig. Peace, COREBUS! As sure as Jack was Jack, the frolicest fracion amongst you, and I, Wigen, his sweet sworn brother, Jack shall have his funerals, or some of them shall lie on God's dear earth for it, that's once.

Church. Wigen, I hope thou wilt do no more than thou dar'st answer.

Wig. Sir, sir, dare or dare not, more or less, answer or not answer, do this, or have this.

Sex. Help, help, help!

Wigen sets upon the parish with a pike-staff. ⁴

Eumenides awakes and comes to them.

Eum. Hold thy hands, good fellow.

Cor. Can you blame him, sir, if he take Jack's part against this shake-roten parish that will not bury Jack?

Eum. Why, what was that Jack?

Cor. Who, Jack, sir? Who, our Jack, sir?

As good a fellow as ever trod upon neat's-leather.

Wig. Look you, sir; he gave fourscore and nineteen mourning gowns to the parish when he died, and because he would not make them up a full hundred, they would not bury him: was not this good dealing?

Church. O Lord, sir, how he lies! He was not worth a halfpenny, and drunk out every penny; and now his fellows, his drunken companions, would have us to bury him at the charge of the parish. An we make such matches, we may pull down the steeple, sell the bells, and thatch the chancel. He shall lie above ground till he dance a galliard about the church-yard, for Steven Loach.

Wig. Sic argumentaris, Domine Loach; — "an we make many such matches, we may pull down the steeple, sell the bells, and thatch the chancel!" — in good time, sir, and hang yourselves in the bell-ropes, when you have done. Domine, opponens prepono tibi hanc questionem, whether will you have the ground broken or your pates broken first? For one of them shall be done presently, and to begin mine, I'll seal it upon your coxcomb.

Eum. Hold thy hands, I pray thee, good fellow; be not too hasty.

Cor. You capon's face, we shall have you turned out of the parish one of these days, with never a tatter to your arse; then you are in worse taking than Jack.

Eum. Faith, and he is bad enough. This fellow does but a part of the friend, to seek to bury his friend. How much will bury him?

Wig. Faith, about some fifteen or sixteen shillings will bestow him honestly.

Sex. Ay, even thereabouts, sir.

Eum. Here, hold it, then: —[aside] and I have left me but one poor three half-pence. Now do I remember the words the old man spake at the cross, "Bestow all thou hast," and this is all, "Still dead men's bones come at thy call." — Here, hold it in [gives money]; and so farewell.

Wig. God, and all good, be with you, sir!

[Exit Eumenides.] Nay, you corrompents, I'll bestow one peal of John Jack at mine own [⁶⁶⁶] proper costs and charges.

Cor. You may thank God the long staff and the bilbo-blade crossed not your coxcomb. — Well, we 'll to the church-stile and have a pot, and so trill-lill. [Exit with Wigen.]

Church. Come, let's go.

Exeunt.

Fro. Soft! who have we here? Our amorous harvesters.

Fan. Ay, ay, let us sit still, and let them alone.

Here they begin to sing, the song doubled.

Lo, here we come a-reaping, a-reaping,
To reap our harvest-fruit!
And thus we pass the year so long,
And never be we mute.

Exeunt the Harvest-men.

Enter Huanbaingo and Corebus, the clown.

Fro. Soft! who have we here?

Madge. O, this Jack was a marvellous fellow! he was but a poor man, but very well beloved. You shall see anon what this Jack will come to.

Enter the Harvest-men singing, with women in their hands.

Fro. Soft! who have we here? Our amorous harvesters.

Fan. Ay, ay, let us sit still, and let them alone.

Here they begin to sing, the song doubled.

Lo, here we come a-reaping, a-reaping,
To reap our harvest-fruit!
And thus we pass the year so long,
And never be we mute.

Exeunt the Harvest-men.

Enter Huanbaingo and Corebus, the clown.

Fro. Soft! who have we here?

Madge. O, this is a choleric gentleman! All you that love your lives, keep out of the smell of his two-hand sword. Now goes he to the [⁶⁶⁶] conjeror.

Fan. Methinks the conjeror should put the fool into a juggling-box.

Huan. Fee, fa, fi, fam!
Here is the Englishman, —

⁵ Open the argument from my side. (Bullen).
⁶ On.
⁷ Where the ale-house often stood.
Conquer him that can,—
Come for his lady bright,
To prove himself a knight,
And win her love in fight.

Cor. Who-haw, Master Bango, are you here? Hear you, you had best sit down here, and beg an alms with me.

Huan. Hence, base cullion! Here is he that commandeth ingress and egress with his weapon, and will enter at his voluntary, whoever saith no.

A voice and flame of fire; Huanebango falleth down.

Voice. No.

Madge. So with that kissed, and spoiled the edge of as good a two-hand sword as ever God put life in. Now goes Corebus in, spite of the conjurer.

Enter [Sacrapant] the Conjuror and [Two Furies].

Sac. Away with him into the open fields,
To be a raving prey to crows and kites: [Huan. is carried out by the Two Furies.]
And for this villain, let him wander up and down,
In naught but darkness and eternal night. [Stikes COREBUS blind.

Cor. Here hast thou slain Huan, a slashing knight
And robbed poor Corebus of his sight. Exit.

Sac. Hence, villain, hence!—Now I have unto Delia
Given a potion of forgetfulness,
That, when she comes, she shall not know her brothers.
Lo. where they labour, like to country-slaves,
With spade and mattock, on this enchanted ground!
Now will I call her by another name;
For never shall she know herself again,
Until that Sacrapant hath breath'd his last. See where she comes.

Enter Delia.

Delia. Come hither, Delia, take this good; here hard At hand two slaves do work and dig for gold:
Gore them with this, and thou shalt have enough.

Sac. [aside.] She hath forgotten, to be Delia,
But not forgot the same she should forget;
But I will change her name.

Fair Berecynthia, so this country calls you,
Go ply these strangers, wench; they dig for gold.

Del. O heavens, how Am I beholding to this fair young man! But I must ply these strangers to their work;
See where they come.

Enter the Two Brothers in their shirts, with spades, digging.

1 Bro. O brother, see where Delia is! 2 Bro. O Delia, Happy are we to see thee here!

Del. What tell you me of Delia, prating swains?
I know no Delia, nor know I what you mean.

Ply your work, or else you're like to smart.

1 Bro. Why, Delia, know'st thou not thy brothers here?
We come from Theasly to seek thee forth;
And thou deceiv'st thyself, for thou art Delia.

Del. Yet more of Delia? Then take this, and smart. [Fricks them with the goad.]
What, feign you shifts for to defer your labour?

Work, villains, work; it is for gold you dig.

2 Bro. Peace, brother, peace: this vild enchanter Hath ravished Delia of her senses clean,
And she forgets that she is Delia.

1 Bro. Leave, cruel thou, to hurt the miserable.

Dig, brother, dig, for she is hard as steel.

Here they dig, and desere a light [in a glass] under a little hill.

2 Bro. Stay, brother; what hast thou descried?

Del. Away, and touch it not; 'tis something that My lord hath hidden there.

Covers the light again.

Re-enter Sacrapant.

Sac. Well said! thou playest these pioneers well. Go get you in, you labouring slaves.

Come, Berecynthia, let us in likewise,
And hear the nightingale record her notes.

Exeunt.

Enter Zantippa, the curt daughter, to the Well [of Life], with a pot in her hand.

Zan. Now for a husband, house, and home:
God send a good one or none, I pray God! My father hath sent me to the well for the water of life, and tells me, if I give fair words, I shall have a husband. But here comes Enter [Celanta], the foul wench, to the Well for water with a pot in her hand.

Celanta, my sweet sister. I'll stand by and hear what she says.

Cel. My father hath sent me to the well for water, and he tells me, if I speak fair, I shall have a husband, and none of the worst. Well, though I am black, I am sure all the world will not forsake me; and, as the old proverb is, though I am black, I am not the devil. Zan. Marry-gup with a murrain, I know wherefore thou speakest that: but go thy ways home as wise as thou comest, or I'll set thee home with a wanion. Here she strikes her pitcher against her sister's, and breaks them both, and then exit.

1 Yile. 2 Well done; 3 Diggers. 4 Ugly. 5 Plague take you! 6 With a vengeance. The origin of the phrase is uncertain.
Col. I think this be the curtest quean in the world. You see what she is, a little fair, but as proud as the devil, and the veriest vixen that lives upon God’s earth. Well, I’ll let her alone, and go home and get another pitcher, and, [765] for all this, get me to the well for water. Exit.

Enter two Fairies out of the Conjuror’s cell and say Huanebango by the Well of Life [and then exunct.] Re-enter Zantippa with a pitcher to the well.

Zan. Once again for a husband; and, in faith, Celanta, I have got the start of you; belike husbands grow by the well-side. Now my father says I must rule my tongue. Why, alas, [766] what am I, then? A woman without a tongue is as a soldier without his weapon. But I’ll have my water, and be gone.

Here she offers to dip her pitcher in, and a Head speaks in the well.

Head. Gently dip, but not too deep, For fear you make the golden beard to weep. 325 Fair maiden, white and red, Strokes me smooth, and comb my head, And thou shalt have some cockell-bread. 3 Zan. What is this?

“Fair maiden, white and red, Comb me smooth, and stroke my head, And thou shalt have some cockell-bread”?

“Cockell” callest thou it, boy? Faith, I’ll give you cockell-bread.

She breaks her pitcher upon the Head: then it thunders and lightens; and Huanebango, who is deaf and cannot hear, rises up.

Huan. Philiuda, phileridos, pamphilida, florides, floridas:

Dub dub-a-dub, bounce, quoth the guns, with a sulphurous huff-snuff!: 2 Wakt with a wench, pretty piet, pretty love, and my sweet pretty pigsie:

Just by thy side shall sit surnamed great Huanebango:

Safe in my arms will I keep thee, threat Mars or thunder Olympus.

Zan. [aside.] Foh, what greedy groom have we here? He looks as though he crept out of the backside of the well, and speaks like a drum perisht at the west end.

Huan. O, that I might, but I may not, woe to my destiny therefore! —

Kiss that I claspe! but I cannot. Tell me, my destiny, wherefore?

Zan. [aside.] Whoop! now I have my dream.

Did you never hear so great a wonder as this? Three blue beans in a blue bladder, rattle, bladder, rattle.

Huan. [aside.] I’ll now set my counte- nances, and to her in press, it may be, this mram-ruff is too rude an encounter. — Let me, fair lady, if you be at leisure, revel with your sweetness, and rail upon that cowardly conjuror, that hath cast me, or concealed me [767] rather, into an unknd sleep, and polluted my carcase.

Zan. [aside.] Laugh, laugh, Zantippa; thou hast thy fortune, a fool and a husband under one.

Huan. Truly, sweet-heart, as I seem, [768] about some twenty years, the very April of mine age.

Zan. [aside.] Why, what a prating ass is this!

Huan. Her coral lips, her crimson chin, Her silver teeth so white within,

Her golden locks, her rolling eye, Her pretty parts, let them go by,

Heigh-ho, hath wounded me, That I must die this day to see!

ka,6 wishaw!

Huan. True, my own, and my own because mine, and mine because mine, ha, ha! Above a thousand pounds in possibility, and things [767] fitting thy desire in possession.

Zan. [aside.] The set thinks I ask of his lands. Lob 7 be your comfort, and cuckold be your destiny! — Hear you, sir; an if you will have us, you had best say so betime.

Huan. True, sweet-heart, and will royalize thy progeny with my pedigree. Exeunt.

Enter Eumenides, the wandering knight.

Eum. Wretched Eumenides, still unfortunate,

Envied by fortune and forlorn by fate,

Here pine and die, wretched Eumenides,

Die in the spring, the April of my age!

Here sit thee down, repent what thou hast done: I would to God that it were ne’er begun!

Enter [the Ghost of] Jack.

[G. of] Jack. You are well overtaken, sir.

Eum. Who’s that?

[G. of] Jack. You are heartily well met, sir.

Eum. Forbear, I say; who is that which pitcheth me?

[G. of] Jack. Trusting in God, good Master Eumenides, that you are in so good health as 706 all your friends were at the making hereof, God give you good morrow, sir! Lack you not a bent, handsome, and cleanly young lad, about the age of fifteen or sixteen years, that can run by your horse, and, for a need, make 706 your mastership’s shoes as black as ink? How say you, sir?

Eum. Alas, pretty lad, I know not how to keep myself, and much less a servant, my pretty boy; my state is so bad.

[G. of] Jack. Content yourself, you shall not be so ill a master but I’ll be as had a servant. Tut, sir, I know you, though you know not me. Are not you the man, sir, deny it if you can, sir, that came from a strange place 706 in the land of Catita, where Jack-an-apes flies with his tal in his mouth, to seek out a lady as white as snow and as red as blood? Ha, ha! have I touched you now?

Eum. [aside.] I think this boy be a spirit. [Aside]

—How knowest thou all this?

[G. of] Jack. Tut, are not you the man, sir, deny it if you can, sir, that gave all the money you had to the burying of a poor man, and but one three-halfpence left in your purse? Content you, sir, I'll serve you, that is flat.

Eum. Well, my lad, since thou art so importunate, I am content to entertain thee, not as a servant, but a copartner in my journey. But whither shall we go? for I have not any money more than one bare three-halfpence.

[G. of] Jack. Well, master, content yourself for if my divination be not out, that shall be spent at the next inn or alehouse we come to; for, master, I know you are passing hungry; therefore I'll go before and provide dinner until that you come; no doubt but you'll come fair and softly after.

Eum. Ay, go before; I'll follow thee.

[G. of] Jack. But do you hear, master? Do you know my name?

Eum. No, I promise thee, not yet.

Eum. Jack! Why, be it so, then.

Enter the Hostess and Jack, setting meat on the table; and Fiddlers come to play. EUMENIDES walketh up and down, and will eat no meat.

Host. How say you, sir? Do you please to sit down?

Eum. Hostess, I thank you, I have no great stomach.

Host. Pray, sir, what is the reason your master is so strange? Doth not this meat please him?

[G. of] Jack. Yes, hostess, but it is my master's fashion to pay before he eats; therefore, a reckoning, good hostess.

Host. Marry, shall you, sir, presently.

Eum. Why, Jack, what dost thou mean? Thou knowest I have not any money; therefore, sweet Jack, tell me what shall I do?

Eum. Why, faith, it is a folly, for I have no money.

Eum. [looking into his purse.] Alas, Jack, my purse is full of money!

[G. of] Jack. "Alas," master! does that word belong to this accident? Why, methinks I should have seen you cast away your cloak, and in a bravado dance a galliard round about the chamber. Why, master, your man can teach you more wit than this.

[Re-enter Hostess.]

Come, hostess, cheer up my master.

Host. You are heartily welcome; and if it please you to eat of a fat capon, a fairer bird, a finer bird, a sweeter bird, a crispier bird, a neater bird, your worship never eat of.

Eum. Thanks, my fine, eloquent hostess. [G. of] Jack. But hear you, master, one word by the way. Are you content I shall be halves in all you get in your journey?

Eum. I am, Jack, here is my hand.

Eum. Come, hostess, receive your money; and I thank you for my good entertainment. [Gives money.]

Host. You are heartily welcome, sir.

Eum. Come, Jack, whither we go now?

Eum. Content, Jack.—Hostess, farewell.

Exeunt.

Enter COREBUS [blind], and CELANTA, the fool wench, to the Well for water.

Cor. Come, my duck, come: I have now got a wife. Thou art fair, art thou not?

Cel. My Corebus, the fairest alive; make no doubt of that.

Cor. Come, wench, are we almost at the well?

Cel. Ay, Corebus, we are almost at the well now. I'll go fetch some water; sit down while I dip my pitcher in.

Voice. Gently dip, but not too deep.

For fear you make the golden beard to weep.

A Head comes up with ears of corn, and she combs them into her lap.

Fair maiden, white and red,

Comb me smooth, and stroke my head,

And you shall have some coxcomb-bread.

A [Second] Head comes up full of gold; she combs it into her lap.1

[Sec. Head.] Gently dip, but not too deep, 2

For fear you make the golden beard to weep.

Fair maid, white and red,

Comb me smooth, and stroke my head,

And every hair a sheaf shall be,

And every sheaf a golden tree.

Cel. O, see, Corebus, I have comb'd a great deal of gold into my lap, and a great deal of corn!

Cor. Well said, wench! now we shall have just enough. God send us coiners to coin our gold. But come, shall we go home, sweet-heart?

Cel. Nay, come, Corebus, I will lead you.

Cor. So, Corebus, things have well hit; Thou hast gotten wealth to mend thy wit.

Exeunt.

Enter [the Ghost of] JACK and [EUMENIDES] the wandering knight.

Eum. Go along, Jack, I'll follow thee. Jack, they say it is good to go cross-legged, and say his prayers backward; how sayest thou?

[G. of] Jack. Tut, never fear, master; let me alone. Here sit you still; speak not a word; and because you shall not be enticed with his enchanting speeches, with this same wool I'll

2 Well done!
stop your ears: and, so, master, sit still, for I must to the conjurer. \textit{Exit.}

\textbf{Enter [SACRAPANT]} the Conjuror to the wandering knight.

\textit{Sac.} How now! What man art thou that sits so sad?

Why dost thou gaze upon these stately trees
Without the leave and will of Sacrapant?
What, not a word but mum? Then, Sacrapant,
Thou art betray'd.

\textbf{Re-enter the GHOST of JACk invisible, and takes off SACRAPANT'S wreath from his head, and his sword out of his hand.}

What hand invades the head of Sacrapant? \textsuperscript{[242]}
What hateful Fury doth envy my happy state?
Then, Sacrapant, these are thy latest days.
Alas, my veins are numb'd, my sinews shrink,

My blood is pierc'd, my breath fleeting away,
And now my timeless date is come to end! \textsuperscript{[245]}
He in whose life his actions hath \textsuperscript{1} been so foul,
Now in his death to hell descends his soul.
\textit{He dieth.}

\textbf{Eum.} How now, Jack! What news? \textsuperscript{[235]}

\textbf{Eum.} How now, Jack! Here, master, take this sword, and dig with it at the foot of this hill.

\textbf{Eumenides digs, and spies a light [in a glass].}

\textit{Eum.} How now, Jack! What is this?

\textbf{Eum.} Why, then, Jack, I will soon put out this light.

\textbf{Eum.} Why, with a stone I'll break the glass, and then blow it out.

\textbf{Eum.} No, master, you may as soon break the smith's anvil as this little vial; nor the biggest blast that ever Boreas blew cannot \textsuperscript{[270]} blow out this little light: but she that is neither maid, wife, nor widow. Master, wind this horn, and see what will happen.

\textbf{Eumenides winds the horn. Here enters Venelia, and breaks the glass, and blows out the light, and goeth in again.}

So, master, how like you this? This is she that ran madding in the woods, his betrothed love \textsuperscript{[275]} that keeps the cross; and now, this light being out, all are restored to their former liberty.
And now, master, to the lady that you have so long looked for.

\textit{Qy. Read life's for life his!}

\textbf{The GHOST of Jack draws a curtain, and there DELIA sitteth asleep.}

\textit{Eum.} God speed, fair maid, sitting alone, \textsuperscript{[300]}—there is once; God speed, fair maid,—there is twice; God speed, fair maid,—that is thrice.

\textit{Del.} Not so, good sir, for you are by.
\textbf{(G. of)} Jack. Enough, master, she hath \textsuperscript{[288]} spoken; now I will leave her with you. \textit{[Exit.]

\textit{Eum.} Thou fairest flower of these western parts, Whose beauty so reflecteth in my sight
As doth a crystal mirror in the sun;
For thy sweet sake I have crost the frozen Rhine; \textsuperscript{[293]}

Leaving fair Po, I sail'd up Danuby
As far as Saba, whose enhancing streams
Cut twixt the Tartars and the Russians;
These have I crost for thee, fair Delia:
Then grant me that which I have as'd for long.

\textbf{Del.} Thou gentle knight, whose fortune is so good
To find me out and set my brothers free,
My faith, my heart, my hand I give to thee.

\textbf{Eum.} Thanks, gentle madam; but here comes Jack; thank him, for he is the \textsuperscript{[1000]} best friend that we have.

\textbf{Re-enter the GHOST of Jack, with a head in his hand.}

\textbf{How now, Jack! What hast thou there?}

\textbf{Eum.} Why, Jack, that is impossible; he \textsuperscript{[1002]} was a young man.

\textbf{Eum.} Ah, master, so he deceived them that beheld him! But he was a miserable, old, and crooked man, though to each man's eye he seemed young and fresh; for, \textsuperscript{[1020]} master, this conjurer took the shape of the old man that kept the cross, and that old man was in the likeness of the conjurer. But now, master, wind your horn.

\textbf{Eumenides winds his horn. Enter Venelia, the Two Brothers, and [Erestus] he that was at the cross.}

\textbf{Eum.} Welcome, Erestus! welcome, fair Venelia! \textsuperscript{[1015]}

Welcome, Thelea and Calypha both!
Now have I her that I so long have sought;
So saith fair Delia, if we have your consent.

\textbf{1 Bro.} Valiant Eumenides, thou well deservest
To have our favours; so let us rejoice

That by thy means we are at liberty.
Here may we joy each in other's sight,
And this fair lady have her wandering knight.
\textbf{(G. of)} Jack. So, master, now ye think you have done; but I must have a saying to \textsuperscript{[1055]} you. Ye know you and I were partners, I to have half in all you got.

\textsuperscript{1} This and the next three lines are found, with slight variations, in Greene's Orlando Furioso. (Dyce.)
Eum. Why, so thou shalt, Jack.

[Eum. Why, then, master, draw your sword, part your lady, let me have half of her presently.

Eum. Why, I hope, Jack, thou dost but jest. I promised thee half I got, but not half my lady.

[G. of] Jack. But what else, master? Have you not gotten her? Therefore divide her straight, for I will have half; there is no remedy.

Eum. Well, ere I will falsify my word unto my friend, take her all. Here, Jack, I'll give her thee.

[G. of] Jack. Nay, neither more nor less, master, but even just half.

Eum. Before I will falsify my faith unto my friend, I will divide her. Jack, thou shalt have half.

1 Bro. Be not so cruel unto our sister, gentle knight.

2 Bro. O, spare fair Delia! She deserves no death.

Eum. Content yourselves; my word is passed to him. — Therefore prepare thyself, Delia, for thou must die.

Del. Then farewell, world! Adieu, Eumenides!

Eumenides offers to strike, and [the GHOST of] Jack stays him.

[G. of] Jack. Stay, master; it is sufficient I have tried your constancy. Do you now remember since you paid for the burying of a poor fellow?

Eum. Ay, very well, Jack.

[G. of] Jack. Then, master, thank that good deed for this good turn; and so God be with you all! Leaps down in the ground.

Eum. Jack, what, art thou gone? Then farewell, Jack!—

Come, brothers, and my beauteous Delia, Erestus, and thy dear Venelia.

We will to Thessaly with joyful hearts.

All. Agreed: we follow thee and Delia.

Exeunt all [except FROLIC, FANTASTIC, and MADGE].

Fan. What, gammer, asleep?

Madge. By the, mass, son, 'tis almost day; and my windows shut at the cock's-crow.

Fro. Do you hear, gammer? Methinks this Jack bore a great sway amongst them.

Madge. O, man, this was the ghost of the poor man that they kept such a coil to bury; and that makes him to help the wander- ing knight so much. But come, let us in: we will have a cup of ale and a toast this morning, and so depart.

Fan. Then you have made an end of your tale, gammer?

Madge. Yes, faith: when this was done, I took a piece of bread and cheese, and came my way; and so shall you have, too, before you go, to your breakfast. [Exeunt.]
THE HONOURABLE HISTORY OF FRIAR BACON AND FRIAR BUNGAY

BY ROBERT GREENE

[Dramatis Personae]

1 Two Scholars, their sons.
2 The Keeper of Fressingfield.
3 Thomas, farmer's sons.
4 Richard, Constable.
5 A Post.
6 Lords, Country Clowns, &c.

MINOR, daughter to the King of Castile.
MARGARET, the Keeper's daughter of Fressingfield.
JOAN, a country wench.
Hostess of the Bell at Henley.

A Devil.
Spirit in the shape of Hercules.
A dragon shooting fire.

[Scene I.] 1

Enter Prince Edward malcontented, with
LACY, WARREN, ERMESBY, and RALPH SIMNEL.

Lacy. Why looks my lord like to a troubled sky
When heaven's bright shine is shadow'd with a fog?
Alas, we ran the deer, and through the lawns
Stripp'd 3 with our nags the lofty frolic bucks
That sound'd 4 for the teasers; 5 like the wind,
Ne'er was the deer of merry Fressingfield
So lustily pull'd down by jolly mates,
Nor shou'd the farmers such fat venison,
So frankly dealt, this hundred years before;
Not have I seen my lord more frolic in the chase,
And now — chang'd to a melancholy dump.
War. After the prince got to the Keeper's lodge,
And had been jocund in the house awhile,
Tossing off ale and milk in country cans,
Whether it was the country's sweet content,
Or else the bonny damsel fill'd us drink,
That seem'd so stately in her stammer 6 red,
Or that a qualm did cross his stomach then,—
Jest straight he fell into his passions.

Erms. Sirrah Ralph, what say you to your master?

Shall he thus all am'rt live malcontent? 7

Framlingham.
2 Of late.
3 Outstripped.
4 Dogs that roused the game.
5 A woolen cloth.
6 Dejected.

Ralph. Hearest thou, Ned? — Nay, look if he will speak to me!

P. Edw. What say' st thou to me, fool?
Ralph. I prithee, tell me, Ned, art thou in love with the Keeper's daughter?

P. Edw. How if I be, what then?
Ralph. Why, then, sirrah, I'll teach thee how to deceive Love.

P. Edw. How, Ralph?
Ralph. Marry, Sirrah Ned, thou shalt put on my cap and my coat and my dagger, and I will put on thy clothes and thy sword; and so thou shalt be my fool.

P. Edw. And what of this?
Ralph. Why, so thou shalt beguile Love: for Love is such a proud scab, that he will never meddle with fools nor children. Is not Ralph's counsel good, Ned?

P. Edw. Tell me, Ned Lacy, didst thou mark the maid,

How lively in her country-weeds she look'd?
A bonnier wench all Suffolk cannot yield: —
All Suffolk! nay, all England holds none such.

Ralph. Sirrah Will Ermsby, Ned is deceived.

Erms. Why, Ralph?
Ralph. He says all England hath no such, and I say, and I'll stand to it, there is one better in Warwickshire.

War. How provest thou that, Ralph?
Ralph. Why, is not the abbot a learned man, 50 and hath read many books, and thinkest thou he hath not more learning than thou to choose a bonny wench? Yes, I warrant thee, by his whole grammar.
Erms. A good reason, Ralph.
P. Edw. I tell thee, Lacy, that her sparkling eyes
Do lighten forth sweet love's alluring fire;
And in her tresses she doth fold the looks
Of such as gaze upon her golden hair;
Her bashful white, mix'd with the morning's red,
Luna doth boast upon her lovely cheeks;
Her front be beauty's table, where she paints
The glories of her gorgeous excellence;
Her teeth are shelves of precious marguerites,¹
Richly enclos'd with ruddy coral cliffs.
And Lacy, she is Beauty's over-match,
If thou survey'st her curious imagery.²

Lacy. I grant, my lord, the damsel is as fair
As simple Suffolk's homely towns can yield;
But in the court be quainter dames than she,
Whose faces are enrich'd with honour's taint,³
Whose beauties stand upon the stage of Fame,
And vaunt their trophies in the Courts of Love.

P. Edw. Ah, Ned, but hast thou watch'd her as myself,
And seen the secret beauties of the maid;
Their courtly coynesses were but folly.

Erms. Why, how watch'd you her, my lord?
P. Edw. Whenshe swept like Venus through the house,
And in her shape fast folded up my thoughts,
Into the milk-house went I with the maid,
And there amongst the cream-bowls she did shine
As Pallas 'mongst her princely huswifery.
She turn'd her smock over her lily arms,
And divin'd there how to run her cheese;
But, whiter than the milk, her crystal skin
Checked with lines of azure, made her blush;
That art or nature durst bring for compare.
Ermsby, if thou hadst seen, as I did note it well,
How Beauty play'd the huswife, how this girl,
Like Lucrece, laid her fingers to the work,
Thou wouldst, with Tarquin, hazard Rome and all.

To win the lovely maid of Fressingfield.
Ralph. Sirrah Ned, wouldst thou win her?
P. Edw. Ay, Ralph.
Ralph. Why, Ned, I have laid the plot in my head; thou shalt have her already.
P. Edw. I'll give thee a new coat, an learn me that.

Ralph. Why, Sirrah Ned, we'll ride to Oxford to Friar Bacon, O, he is a brave scholar, sirrah; they say he is a brave necromancer, that he can make women of devils, and he can juggle cats into costermongers.
P. Edw. And how then, Ralph?
Ralph. Marry, sirrah, thou shalt go to him: and because thy father Harry shall not miss thee, he shall turn me into thee; and I'll to the court, and I'll prince it out; and he shall make thee either a silken purse full of gold, or else a fine wrought smock.
P. Edw. But how shall I have the maid?
Ralph. Marry, sirrah, if thou be'st a silken purse full of gold, then on Sundays she'll hang thee by her side, and you must not say a word.
Now, sir, when she comes into a great press of people, for fear of the cutpurse, on a sudden she'll swap thee into her plackerd;⁵ then, sirrah, being there, you may plead for yourself.

Erms. Excellent policy!
P. Edw. But how if I be a wrought smock?
Ralph. Then she'll put thee into her chest and lay thee into lavender, and upon some good day she'll put thee on; and at night when you go to bed, then being turned from a smock to a man, you may make up the match.

Lacy. Wonderfully wisely counsel'd, Ralph.
P. Edw. Ralph shall have a new coat.
Ralph. God thank you when I have it on my back, Ned.
P. Edw. Lacy, the fool hath laid a perfect plot;
For-why our country Margaret is so coy,
And stands so much upon her honest points,
That marriage or no market with the maid.
Ermsby, it must be necromantic spells
And charms of art that must enchain her love,
Or else shall Edward never win the girl.
Therefore, my wags, we'll horse us in the morn,
And post to Oxford to this jolly friar:
Bacon shall by his magic do this deed. [way
War. Content, my lord; and that's a speedy To wean these headstrong puppies from the tent.

P. Edw. I am unknown, not taken for the prince;
They only deem us frolic courtiers,
That revel thus among our liege's game;
Therefore I have devise'd a policy.
Lacy, thou know'st next Friday is Saint James,'⁷
And then the country flocks to Harleston fair;
Then will the Keeper's daughter frolic there,
And over-shine the troop of all the maids.
That come to see and to be seen that day.
Hunt the disguis'd among the country-swains,
Feign thou'rt a farmer's son, not far from thence,
Espy her loves, and who she liketh best;
Cote⁸ him, and court her, to control the clown.

Say that the courtier tired all in green,
That help'd her handsomely to run her cheese,
And fill'd her father's lodge with venison,
Commends him, and sends fairings to herself.
Buy something worthy of her parentage,
Not worth her beauty; for, Lacy, then the fair
Affords no jewel fitting for the maid.
And when thou talk'st of me, note if she blush;
O, then she loves: but if her cheeks wax pale,
Disdain it is. Lacy, send how she fares,
And spare no time nor cost to win her loves.

⁹ Overmaster.
Lacy. I will, my lord, so execute this charge
As if that Lacy were in love with her.
P. Edu. Send letters speedily to Oxford of the news.

Ralph. And, Sirrah Lacy, buy me a thousand thousand million of fine bells.
Lacy. What wilt thou do with them, Ralph?
Ralph. Marry, every time that Ned sighs for the Keeper's daughter, I'll tie a bell about him;
and so within three or four days I will send word to his father Harry that his son and my master Ned is become Love's morris-dance.
P. Edu. Well, Lacy, look with care unto thy charge,
And I will haste to Oxford to the friar,
That he by art and thou by secret gifts
Mayst make me lord of merry Fressingfield.
Lacy. God send your honour your heart's desire.

Exeunt.

[SCENE II.] 1

Enter Friar Bacon, with Miles his poor Scholar, with books under his arm; with them Burden, Mason, and Clement, three Doctors.

Bacon. Miles, where are you?
Miles. Hic sum, doctissime et reverendissime doctor.

Bacon. Attulisti nos libros meos de necromantia?
Miles. Ecce quam bonum et quam jucundum habitate libros in unum!
Bacon. Now, masters of our academic state,
That rule in Oxford, viceroye in your place,
Whose heads contain maps of the liberal arts,
Spending your time in depth of learned skill,
Why flock you thus to Bacon's secret cell,
A friar newly stall'd in Brazen-nose?
Say what's your mind, that I may make reply.

Burden. Bacon, we hear that long we have suspect,
That thou art read in magic's mystery;
In pyromancy, to divine by flames;
To tell, by hydromancy, ebbs and tides;
By aeromancy to discover doubts,
To plain out questions, as Apollo did.

Bacon. Well, Master Burden, what of all this?
Miles. Marry, sir, he doth but fulfill, by re-hearing of these names, the fable of the Fox and the Grapes; that which is above us pertains nothing to us.

Burden. I tell thee, Bacon, Oxford makes report,
Nay, England, and the court of Henry says,
Thou'rt making of a brazen head by art,
Which shall unfold strange doubts and aphorisms,
And read a lecture in philosophy;
And, by the help of devils and ghostly spirits, Thou mean'st, ere many years or days be past, To compass England with a wall of brass.
Bacon. And what of this?
Miles. What of this, master! Why, he doth speak mysteriously; for he knows, if your skill fail to make a brazen head, yet Mother Waters' strong ale will fit his turn to make him have a copper nose.

Clem. Bacon, we come not grieving at thy skill,
But joying that our acadamy yields
A man suppos'd the wonder of the world;
For if thy cunning work these miracles,
England and Europe shall admire thy fame,
And Oxford shall in characters of brass,
And statues, such as were built up in Rome,
Etarnize Friar Bacon for his art.

Mason. Then, gentle friar, tell us thy intent.
Bacon. Seeing you come as friends unto the friar,
Resolve you, doctors, Bacon can by books
Make storming Boreas thunder from his cave,
And dim fair Luna to a dark eclipse,
The great arch-ruler, potentate of hell,
Trembles when Bacon bids him or his fiends
Bow to the force of his pentagonon.

What art can work, the frolic friar knows;
And therefore will I turn my magic books,
And strain out necromancy to the deep,
I have contriv'd and fram'd a head of brass
(I made Belzephon hammer out the stuff),
And that by art shall read philosophy;
And I will strengthen England by my skill,
That if ten Cæsars liv'd and reign'd in Rome,
With all the legions Europe doth contain,
They should not touch a grass of English ground.
The work that Ninus rear'd at Babylon,
The brazen walls fram'd by Semiramis,
Carv'd out like to the portal of the sun,
Shall not be such as rings the English strand
From Dover to the market-place of Rye.
Burden. Is this possible?
Miles. I'll bring ye two or three witnesses.
Burden. What be those?
Miles. Marry, sir, three or four as honest devils and good companions as any be in hell.

Mason. No doubt but magic may do much in this;
For he that reads but mathematic rules
Shall find conclusions that avail to work Wonders that pass the common sense of men.
Burden. But Bacon roves a bow beyond his reach,
And tells of more than magic can perform,
Thinking to get a fame by fooleries.
Have I not pass'd as far in state of schools,
And read of many secrets? Yet to think
That heads of brass can utter any voice,
Or more, to tell of deep philosophy,—
This is a fable Aesop had forgot.
Bacon. Burden, thou wrong'st me in detracting thus:
Bacon loves not to stuff himself with lies.
But tell me 'fore these doctors, if thou dare,
Of certain questions I shall move to thee.

Burden. I will: ask what thou can.

1 Friar Bacon's cell at Brazenose.
Miles. Marry, sir, he'll straight be on your pick-pack,1 to know whether the feminine or the masculine gender be most worthy.

Bacon. Were you not yesterday, Master Burden, at Henley upon the Thames?

Burd. I was; what then?

Bacon. What book studied you thereon all night?

Burd. I! none at all; I read not there a line.

Bacon. Then, doctors, Friar Bacon's art knows naught.

Clem. What say you to this, Master Burden? Dost he not touch you?

Burd. I pass not of his frivolous speeches.

Miles. Nay, Master Burden, my master, ere he hath done with you, will turn you from a doctor to a dunce, and shake you so small, that he will leave no more learning in you than is in Balaam's ass.

Bacon. Masters, for that learned Burden's skill is deep, And sore he doubts of Bacon's cabalism, I'll show you why he haunts to Henley oft: Not, doctors, for to taste the fragrant air, But there to spend the night in alchemy, To multiply with secret spells of art; Thus private steals he learning from us all. To prove my sayings true, I'll show you straight The book he keeps at Henley for himself.

Miles. Nay, now my master goes to conjuration, take heed.

Bacon. Masters, stand still, fear not, I'll show you but his book. Per omnes deos infernales, Belcephon!

Enter a Woman with a shoulder of mutton on a spit, and a Devil.

Miles. O master, cease your conjuration, or you spoil all; for here's a she-devil come with a shoulder of mutton on a spit. You have marr'd the devil's supper; but no doubt he thinks our college fare is slender, and so hath sent you his cook with a shoulder of mutton, to make it exceed.

Hostess. O, where am I, or what's become of me?

Bacon. What art thou?

Hostess. Hostess at Henley, mistress of the Bell.

Bacon. How camest thou here?

Hostess. As I was in the kitchen 'mongst the maids, Spitting the meat 'gainst supper for my guests, A motion mov'd me to look forth of door: No sooner had I pried into the yard, But straight a whirlwind hoisted me from thence.

And mounted me aloft unto the clouds.

As in a trance, I thought nor feared naught, Nor know I where or whither I was ta'en, Nor where I am nor what these persons be.

Bacon. No? Know you not Master Burden?

Hostess. O, yes, good sir, he is my daily guest.—

What, Master Burden! 't was but yesternight That you and I at Henley play'd at cards.

Burd. I know not what we did. — A box of all conjuring friars!

Clem. Now know not what we did. — A box of all conjuring friars!

That Burden is so careful to look on?

Bacon. It is. — But, Burden, tell me now, Think'st thou that Bacon's necromantic skill Cannot perform his head and wall of brass, When he can fetch thine hostess in such post? Miles. I'll warrant you, master, if Master Burden could conjure as well as you, he would have his book every night from Henley to study on at Oxford. Mason. Burden, What are you mated by this frolic friar? — Look how he droops; his guilty conscience Drives him to bash, and makes his hostess blush. Bacon. Well, mistress, for I will not have you miss'd. You shall to Henley to cheer up your guests 'fore supper gin. — Burden, bid her adieu; Say farewell to your hostess 'fore she goes. Srrah, away, and set her safe at home. Hostess. Master Burden, when shall we see you at Henley?

Execunt Hostess and Devil.

Burd. The devil take thee and Henley too.

Miles. Master, shall I make a good motion?

Bacon. What's that?

Miles. Marry, sir, now that my hostess is gone to provide supper, conjure up another spirit, and send Doctor Burden flying after.

Bacon. Thus, rulers of our academic state, You have seen the friar frame his art by proof; And as the college called Brazen-nose Is under him, and he the master there, So surely shall this head of brass befram'd, And yield forth strange and uncouth aphorisms, And hell and Hecate shall fail the friar, But I will circle England round with brass.

Miles. So be it et nunc et semper, amen.

[Scene III.]

Enter Margaret, the fair maid of Pressingfield, and Joan; Thomas, [Richard,] and other Clowns; and Lacy disguised in country apparel.

Thom. By my troth, Margaret, here's a weather is able to make a man call his father 'whoreson'; if this weather hold, we shall have hay good cheap, and butter and cheese at Harleston will bear no price.

Mar. Thomas, maids when they come to see the fair Count not to make a cope for dearth of hay; When we have turn'd our butter to the salt, And set our cheese safely upon the racks.

1 Pick-a-back, on your shoulders.
2 Care not for.
3 Impulse.
Then let our fathers price it as they please. 20
We country sluts of merry Fressingfield
Come to buy needless naughts to make us fine,
And look that young men should be frank this day,
And court us with such fairings as they can.
Phoebus is blithe, and frolick looks from heaven,
As when he courted lovely Semele, 10
Swearing the pedlars shall have empty packs,
If that fair weather may make chapmen buy.
Lacy. But, lovely Peggy, Semele is dead;
And therefore Phoebus from his palace prays, 20
And, seeing such a sweet and seemly saint,
Shows all his glories to your court yourself.
Mar. This is a fairing, gentle sir, indeed.
To soothe me up with such smooth flattery;
But learn of me, your scoff's too broad before. — 1

Well, Joan, our beauties must abide their jests;
We serve the turn in jolly Fressingfield.
Joan. Margaret, a farmer's daughter for a farmer's son:
I warrant you, the meanest of us both
Shall have a mate to lead us from the church.
But, Thomas, what's the news? What, in a dump? 21
Give me your hand, we are near a pedlar's shop;
Out with your purse, we must have fairings
now.
Thom. Faith, Joan, and shall. I'll bestow a fairing on you, and then we will to the tavern, 38 and snap off a pint of wine or two.
All this while Lacy whispers
MARGARET in the ear.
Mar. Whence are you, sir? Of Suffolk? For your terms
Are finer than the common sort of men.
Lacy. Faith, lovely girl, I am of Becles by,
Your neighbour, not above six miles from
hence,
A farmer's son, that never was so quaint 2
But that he could do courtesy to such dames.
But trust me, Margaret, I am sent in charge
From him that reveil'd in your father's house,
And fill'd his lodge with cheer and venison, 40
Tired in green. He sent you this rich purse,
His token that he help'd you run your cheese,
And in the milkhouse chatted with yourself.
Mar. To me? Lacy. You forget yourself; 3
Women are often weak in memory.
Mar. O, pardon, sir, I call to mind the man.
'Twere little manners to refuse his gift,
And yet I hope he sends it not for love;
For we have little leisure to debate of that. 46
Joan. What, Margaret! blush not; maids must have their loves.
Thom. Nay, by the mass, she looks pale as if she were angry.
Rich. Sirrah, are you of Becles? I pray, how doth Goodman Cob? My father bought a 48 horse of him.—I'll tell you, Margaret, 'a were good to be a gentleman's jade, for all of things

1 In the face of it. 3 Qg. give these words to Mar.
7 Fastidious.

the foul hilding 4 could not abide a doongcart.

Mar. [aside.] How different is this farmer from the rest 65
That erst at yet have pleases'd my wand'ring sight!
His words are witty, quickened with a smile,
His courtesy gentle, smelling of the court;
Facile and debonair in all his deeds,
Proportion'd as was Paris, when, in grey, 70
He courted Gnon in the vale by Troy.
Great lords have come and pleaded for my love:
Who but the Keeper's lass of Fressingfield?
And yet methinks this farmer's jolly son
Passeth the proudest that hath pleas'd mine eye.
But, Peg, disclose not that thou art in love,
And shew as yet no sign of love to him,
Although thou well wouldst wish him for thy
love;
Keep that to thee till time doth serve thy turn,
To shew the grief wherein thy heart doth burn.— 80
Come, Joan and Thomas, shall we to the fair?
You, Becles man, will not forsake us now?
Lacy. Not whilst I may have such quaint girls as you.
Mar. Well, if you chance to come by Fressingfield,
Make but a step into the Keeper's lodge,
And such poor fare as woodmen can afford,
Butter and cheese, cream and fat venison,
You shall have store, and welcome therewith.
Lacy. Gramercies, Peggy; look for me ere long. 86

[Scene IV.] 6

Enter [KING] HENRY THE THIRD, the EMPEROR, the KING OF CASTILE, ELINOR, his daughter, and VANDERMIST, a German.
K. Hen. Great men of Europe, monarchs of the west,
Ring'd with the walls of old Oceanus,
Whose lofty surge is like the battlements
That compass'd high-built Babel in with towers,
Welcome, my lords, welcome, brave western kings.
To England's shore, whose prominent cliffs
Show Albion is another little world;
Welcome says English Henry to you all;
Chiefly unto the lovely Elinor,
Who dar'd for Edward's sake cut through the seas,
And venture as Agenor's damsel through the deep,
To get the love of Henry's wanton son.
K. of Cast. England's rich monarch, brave
Plantagenet,
The Pyrenes Mounts swelling above the clouds,
That ward the wealthy Castile in with walls, 10
Could not detain the beautiful Elinor;

1 A term of contempt. 6 Hampton Court.
6 I. e. shepherd's garb.
But, hearing of the fame of Edward's youth,
She dar'd to brook Neptunus' haughty pride,
And bide the brunt of froward Eolus. 18
Then may fair England welcome her the more.
Elin. After that English Henry by his lords
Hadh sent Prince Edward's lovely counterfeit,
A present to the Castle Elinor,
The comely portrait of so brave a man,
The virtuous fame discoursed of his deeds, 25
Edward's courageous resolution,
Done at the Holy Land 'fore Damas' walls,
Lied both mine eye and thoughts in equal links.
To like so of the English monarch's son,
That I attempted perils for his sake. 30
Emp. Where is the prince, my lord?
K. Hen. He posted down, not long since,
from the court,
To Suffolk side, to merry Framlingham,
To sport himself amongst my fallow deer;
From thence, by packets sent to Hampton-
house, 35
We hear the prince is ridden with his lords
To Oxford, in the academé there
To hear dispute amongst the learned men.
But we will send forth letters for my son,
To will him come from Oxford to the court. 40
Emp. Nay, rather, Henry, let us, as we be,
Ride for to visit Oxford with our train.
Pain would I see your universities,
And what learn'd men your academé yields.
From Hapsburg have I brought a learned clerk
To hold dispute with English orators. 45
This doctor, sumn'm'd Jaques Vandermast,
A German born, pass'd into Padua,
To Florence and to fair Bologna,
To Paris, Rheims, and stately Orleans, 50
And, talking there with men of art, put down
The chiefest of them all in aphorisms,1
In magic, and the mathematic rules:
Now let us, Henry, try him in your schools. 55
K. Hen. He shall, my lord; this motion likes me well.
We'll progress straight to Oxford with our trains,
And see what men our academé brings. —
And, wonder Vandermast, welcome to me.
In Oxford shalt thou find a jolly friar Call'd Friar Bacon, England's only flower: 60
Set him but nonplus in his magic spells,
And make him yield in mathematic rules,
And for thy glory I will bind thy brows,
Not with a poet's garnish made of bays,
But with a coronet of choicest gold. 65
Whilest,2 then, we set3 to Oxford with our troops,
Let's in and banquet in our English court. Exeunt.

[Scene V.]4

Ralph. Where be these vagabond knaves, that they attend no better on their master? 8

P. Edw. If it pleases your honour, we are all ready at an inch.6
Ralph. Sirrah Ned, I'll have no more post- [s horse to ride on: I'll have another fetch.6
Erms. I pray you, how is that, my lord?
Ralph. Marry, sir, I'll send to the Isle of Ely for four or five dozen of geese, and I'll have them tied six and six together with whip-cord.  [30
Now upon their backs will I have a fair field-bed with a canopy; and so, when it is my pleasure, I'll flee into what place I please. This will be easy.
War. Your honour hath said well; but [is shall we to Brazen-nose College before we pull off our boots?
Erms. Warren, well motion'd; we will to the friar
Before we revel it within the town. —
Ralph, see you keep your countenance like a prince. 20
Ralph. Wherefore have I such a company of caving? Knaves to wait upon me, but to keep and defend my countenance against all mine enemies? Have you not good swords and bucklers?

Enter [Friar] Bacon and Miles.

Erms. Stay, who comes here?
War. Some scholar; and we'll ask him where Frier Bacon is.
Bacon. Why, thou arrant duncé, shall I never make them good scholar? Dost not all the [to town cry out and say, Friar Bacon's subizer2 is the greatest blockhead in all Oxford? Why, thou canst not speak one word of true Latin.
Miles. No, sir? yes. What is this else? Ego sum tuus homo, "I am your man": I warrant you, sir, as good Tully's phrase as any is in Oxford.
Bacon. Come on, sirrah; what part of speech is Ego?
Miles. Ego, that is "I"; marry, nomen [60 substantive.

Bacon. How prove you that?
Miles. Why, sir, let him prove himself an 'a will; I can be heard, felt, and understood.
Bacon. O gross duncé! Beats him. 45
P. Edw. Come, let us break off this dispute between these two. — Sirrah, where is Brazennoise College?
Miles. Not far from Coppersmith's Hall.
P. Edw. What, dost thou mock me?
Miles. Not I, sir: but what would you at Brazen-nose?
Erms. Marry, we would speak with Friar Bacon.
Miles. Whose men be you?
Erms. Marry, scholar, here's our master.
Ralph. Sirrah, I am the master of these good fellows; mayst thou not know me to be a lord
by my reparrel? 50
Miles. Then here's good game for the hawk;
for here's the master-fool and a covey of coxcombs. One wise man, I think, would spring you all.

War. Why, Ned, I think the devil be in [my sheath; I cannot get out my dagger.

Erms. Nor I mine. 'Swounds, Ned, I think I am bewitched.

Miles. A company of scabs! The proudest of you all take your weapon, if he can.

[Aside.] See how boldly I speak, now my master is by.

P. Edw. I strive in vain; but if my sword be not shut
And conjur'd fast by magic in my sheath,
Villain, here's my fist.

Miles. O, I beseech you conjure his hands [too, that he may not lift his arms to his head, for he is light-fingered!

Ralph. Ned, strike him; I'll warrant thee by mine honour.

Bacon. What means the English prince to wrong my man?

P. Edw. To whom speak'st thou?

Bacon. To thee.

P. Edw. Who art thou?

Bacon. Could you not judge when all your swords grew fast,
That Friar Bacon was not far from hence? Edward, King Henry's son and Prince of Wales,
Thy fool disgeuis'd cannot conceal thyself.
I know both Ermsby and the Sussex Earl,
Else Friar Bacon had but little skill.
Thou com'st in post from merry Fressingfield,
Fast-fancied to the Keeper's bonny lass,
To crave some succour of the jolly friar;
And Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, hast thou left
To treat fair Margaret to allow thy loves;
But friends are men, and love can baffle lords;
The earl both woes and courts her for himself.
War. Ned, this is strange; the friar knoweth all.

Erms. Apollo could not utter more than this.

P. Edw. I stand amaz'd to hear this jolly friar.

Tell even the very secrets of my thoughts, —
But, learned Bacon, since thou know'st the cause
Why I did post so fast from Fressingfield, Help, friar, at a pinch, that I may have
The love of lovely Margaret to myself.
And, as I am true Prince of Wales, I'll give Living and lands to strengthen thy college state.

War. Good friar, help the prince in this.

Ralph. Why, servant Ned, will not the friar do it? Were not my sword glued to my scabbard by conjuration, I would cut off his head, and make him do it by force.

Miles. In faith, my lord, your manhood and your sword is all alike; they are so fast conjurered that we shall never see them.

Erms. What, doctor, in a dump? Tush, help the prince,
And thou shalt see how liberal he will prove.

Bacon. Crave not such actions greater dumps than these?
I will, my lord, strain out my magic spells;
For this day comes the earl to Fressingfield, and before that night shuts in the day with dark,
They'll be betrothed each to other fast.
But come with me; we'll to my study straight, And in a glass prospective I will show
What's done this day in merry Fressingfield.

P. Edw. Gramercies, Bacon; I will quite thy pain.

Bacon. But send your train, my lord, into the town:
My scholar shall go bring them to their inn.
Meanwhile we'll see the knavery of the earl.

P. Edw. Warren, leave me: — and, Ermsby, take the fool;
Let him be master, and go revel it.
Till I and Friar Bacon talk awhile.
War. We will, my lord.
Ralph. Faith, Ned, and I'll lord it out till thou comest. I'll be Prince of Wales over all the black-pots in Oxford.

Exeunt. [Scene VI.] 4

FRIAR BACON and [PRINCE] EDWARD go into the study.

Bacon. Now, frolic Edward, welcome to my cell;
Here tempers Friar Bacon many toys,
And holds this place his consistory-court,
Wherein the devils plead homage to his words.
Within this glass prospective thou shalt see
This day what's done in merry Fressingfield
'Twixt lovely Peggy and the Lincoln Earl.

P. Edw. Friar, thou glad'st me. Now shall Edward try
How Lacy meaneth to his sovereign lord.

Bacon. Stand there and look directly in the glass.

Enter MARGARET and FRIAR BUNGAY.

What sees my lord?

P. Edw. I see the Keeper's lovely lass appear,
As brightsome as the paramour of Mars,
Only attended by a jolly friar.

Bacon. Sit still, and keep the crystal in your eye.

Mar. But tell me, Friar Bungay, is it true
That this fair courteous country swain,
Who says his father is a farmer nigh,
Can be Lord Lacy, Earl of Lincolnshire?

Bun. Peggy, 'tis true, 'tis Lacy for my life,
Or else mine art and cunning both doth fail,
Left by Prince Edward to procure his loves;
For he in green, that help you run your cheese,
Is son to Henry and the Prince of Wales.

Mar. Be what he will, his lure is but for lust.

4 Qq. bright-sunne. Gayley suggests sunne-bright.
5 The Prince does not hear the following dialogue.
But did Lord Lacy like poor Margaret,
Or would he deign to wed a country lass,
Fry, I would his humble handmaid be,
And for great wealth quite him with courtesy.

Bun. Why, Margaret, dost thou love him?
Mar. His personage, like the pride of vaunting Troy,
Might well avouch to shadow Helen's scope:
His wit is quick and ready in conceit,
As Greece afforded in her chiepest prime:
Courteous, ah friar, full of pleasing smiles!
Trust me, I love too much to tell thee more;
Suffice to me he's England's paramour.

Bun. Hath not each eye that view'd thy pleasing face
Surnamed thee Fair Maid of Fressingfield?
Mar. Yes, Bungay; and would God the lovely earl
Had that in esse that so many sought.
Bun. Fear not, the friar will not be behind
To show his cunning to entangle love.
P. Edu. I think the friar courts the bonny wench;
Bacon, methinks he is a lusty churl.
Bacon. Now look, my lord.

Enter LACY [disguised as before].
P. Edu. Gog's wounds, Bacon, here comes Lacy!
Bacon. Sit still, my lord, and mark the comedy.
Bun. Here's Lacy, Margaret; step aside awhile.
They withdraw.
Lacy. Daphne, the damsel that caught Phæbus fast,
And lock'd him in the brightness of her looks,
Was not so beauteous in Apollo's eyes
As is fair Margaret to the Lincoln Earl.
Recent thee, Lacy, thou art put in trust:
Edward, thy sovereign's son, hath chosen thee,
A secret friend, to court her for himself,
And dar'st thou wrong thy prince with treachery?

Lacy. Love makes no exception of a friend,
Nor deems it of a prince but as a man,
Honour bids thee control him in his lust;
His wooing is not for to wed the girl,
But to entrap her and beguile the lass,
Lacy, thou lovest, then brook not such abuse,
But wed her, and abide thy prince's frown;
For better die than see her live disgrac'd.

Mar. Come, friar, I will shake him from his dumps.

How cheer you, sir? A penny for your thought!
You're early up, pray God it be the near.
What, come from Beccles in a morn so soon?
Lacy. Thus watchful are such men as live in love,
Whose eyes brook broken slumbers for their sleep,
I tell thee, Peggy, since last Harleston fair
My mind hath felt a heap of passions.

Excuse.
So Gayley. Qq. cape. Other edd. rape.
Check, overmaster.
Nearer (to your purpose).

Mar. A trusty man, that court it for your friend.
Woo you still for the courtier all in green?
I marvel that he sues not for himself.
Lacy. Peggy,
I pleaded first to get your grace for him;
But when mine eyes survey'd your beauteous looks,
Love, like a wag, straight div'd into my heart,
And there did shine the idea of yourself.
Pity me, though I be a farmer's son,
And measure not my riches, but my love.
Mar. You are very hasty; for to garden well,
Seeds must have time to sprout before they spring:
Love ought to creep as doth the dial's shade,
For timely ripe is rotten too-too soon.
Bun. [coming forward.] Deus hic; room for a merry friar!
What, youth of Beccles, with the Keeper's lass?
'Tis well; but tell me, hear you any news?
Mar. No, friar. What news?
Bun. Hear you not how the pursuivants do post
With proclamations through each country-town?
Lacy. For what, gentle friar? Tell the news.
Bun. Dwells't thou in Beccles, and hear'st not of these news?
Lacy, the Earl of Lincoln, is late fled
From Windsor court, disguised like a swain,
And lurks about the country here unknown.
Henry suspects him of some treachery,
And therefore doth proclaim in every way,
That who can take the Lincoln Earl shall have Paid in the Exchequer, twenty thousand crowns.
Lacy. The Earl of Lincoln! Friar, thou art mad.
It was some other; thou mistak'st the man.

The Earl of Lincoln! Why, it cannot be.
Mar. Yes, very well, my lord, for you are he:
The Keeper's daughter took you prisoner.
Lord Lacy, yield, I'll be your gaoler once.
P. Edu. How familiar they be, Bacon!
Bacon. Sit still, and mark the sequel of their loves.
Lacy. Then am I double prisoner to thyself.
Peggy, I yield. But are these news in jest?
Mar. In jest with you, but earnest unto me;
For, why these wrongs do wring me at the heart.
Ah, how these ears and noblemen of birth
Flatter and feign to forge poor women's ill!
Lacy. Believe me, lass, I am the Lincoln Earl;
I not deny but, tired thus in rags,
I liv'd disguis'd to win fair Peggy's love.
Mar. What love is there where wedding ends
Not love?
Lacy. I meant, fair girl, to make thee Lacy's wife.
Mar. I little think that ears will stoop so low.
Lacy. Say, shall I make thee countess ere I sleep?

6 Prematurely.

96 Because.
Mar. Handmaid unto the earl, so please himself; 135
A wife in name, but servant in obedience.

Lacy. The Lincoln Countess, for she shall be so: I'll plight the bands, and seal it with a kiss.

P. Edw. Gog's wounds, Bacon, they kiss! I'll stab them.

Bacon. O, hold your hands, my lord, it is the glass!

P. Edw. Choler to see the traitors gree so well.

Made me think the shadows substances.

Bacon. 'Twere a long poniard, my lord, to reach between Oxford and Fressingfield; but sit still and see more.

Bun. Well, Lord of Lincoln, if your loves be knit, And that your tongues and thoughts do both agree, To avoid ensuing jars, I'll hamper up the match.

I'll take my portace forth and wed you here:
Then go to bed and seal up your desires. 140

Lacy. Friar, content.—Peggy, how like you this?

Mar. What likes my lord is pleasing unto me.

Bun. Then hand-fast hand, and I will to my book.

Bacon. What sees my lord now?

P. Edw. Bacon, I see the lovers hand in hand,
The friar ready with his portace there
To wed them both: then am I quite undone. Bacon, help now, if e'er thy magic serv'd;
Help, Bacon! Stop the marriage now,
If devils or necromancy may suffice,
And I will give thee forty thousand crowns.

Bacon. Fear not, my lord, I'll stop the jolly friar
For mumbling up his orisons this day.

Bungay is mute, crying, "Hud, hud, hud."

Mar. How look'st thou, friar, as a man distraught? 150

Reft of thy senses, Bungay? Show by signs,
If thou be dumb, what passions holdeth thee.

Lacy. He's dumb indeed. Bacon hath with his devils
Enchanted him, or else some strange disease
Or apoplexy hath possess'd his lungs.

But, Peggy, what he cannot with his book,
We'll twixt us both unite it in heart.

Mar. Else let me die, my lord, a miscreant.

P. Edw. Why stands Friar Bungay so amazed?

Bacon. I have struck him dumb, my lord; and, if your honour please, I'll fetch this Bungay straightway from Fressingfield And he shall dine with us in Oxford here.

P. Edw. Bacon, do that, and thou contentest me.
Burd. A vengeance on the friar for his pains! But leaving that, let 's be to Bacon straight, 29 To see if he will take this task in hand.

Clem. Stay, what rumour is this? The town is up in a mutiny. What hurly-burly is this?

Enter a Constable, with Ralph Simnell, Warren, Ermsby, [all three disguised as before], and Miles.

Cons. Nay, masters, if you were ne'er so good, you shall before the doctors to answer 30 your mad misdeemour.

Burd. What's the matter, fellow?

Clem. Mervy, sir, here's a company of rufflers, that, drinking in the tavern, have made a great brawl, and almost killed the vintner.

Miles. Salve, Doctor Burden!

This lubbery lurdan, 1 Ill-shap'd and ill-faced, Dislain'd and disgraced, What he tells unto nobis 45 Mentitur de nobis.

Burd. Who is the master and chief of this crew?

Miles. Ecce asinum mundi

Fugura rotundio,

Neat, sheat, 2 and fine, As brisk as a cup of wine.

Burd. What are you?

Ralph. I am, father doctor, as a man would say, the bell-wether of this company; these 31 are my lords, and I the Prince of Wales.

Clem. Are you Edward, the king's son?

Ralph. Sirrah Miles, bring hither the tapaster That drew the wine, and, I warrant, when they see how soundly I have broke his head, [so they'll say 'tis done by no less man than a prince.

Mason. I cannot believe that this is the Prince of Wales.

War. And why so, sir?

Mason. For they say the prince is a brave and a wise gentleman.

War. Why, and think'st thou, doctor, that he is not so?

Dar'st thou, dear Master, and derogate from him, Being so lovely and so brave a youth? 70

Erms. Whose face, shining with many a sug'd red smile, Bewrays that he is bred of princely race.

Miles. And yet, master doctor, To speak like a proctor, And tell unto you What is verimant and true; To ceaze of this quarrel, Look but on his apparel; Then mark but my talls. He is great Prince of Wales, The chief of our gregile, And filius regis: Then 'ware what is done, For he is Henry's white son.

Ralph. Doctors, whose doting night-caps are not capable of my ingenious dignity, know that I am Edward Plantagenet, whom if you dis-

Please will make a ship that shall hold all your colleges, and so carry away the university with a fair wind to the Bankside in Southwark. 32—How sayest thou, Ned Warren, shall I not do it?

War. Yes, my good lord; and, if it please your lordship, I will gather up all your old pantoffles, and with the cork make you a pinnace of five-hundred ton, that shall serve the turn marvellous well, my lord.

Erms. And, I, my lord, will have pioners to undermine the town, that the very gardens and orchards be carried away for your summer walks.

Miles. And I, with scientia And great diligencia, Will conjure and charm, To keep you from harm; That utrum horum mavis, Your very great navis, Like Barclay's ship, From Oxford do skip With colleges and schools, Full-loaden with fools.

Quid dies ad hoc, Worshipful Domine Dawcoek?

Clem. Why, hare-brain'd courtiers, are you drunk or mad, To taunt us up with such securility?

Deem you us men of base and light esteem, To bring us such a pop for Henry's son? — Call out the beadle and convey them hence Straight to Bocardo: let the roisters lie Close clapt in bolts, until their wits be tame. 120 Erms. Why, shall we to prison, my lord?

Ralph. What sayest, Miles, shall I honour the prince with my presence?

Miles. No, no: out with your blades, And hammer these jades; Have a hurt and a crash, Now play revel-dash, And teach these a sacerdos That the Bocardos, Like peasants and elves, Are meet for themselves.

Mason. To the prison with them, constable. War. Well, doctors, seeing I have sported me With laughing at these mad and merry wags, Know that Prince Edward is at Brazen-nose, 135 And this, attired like the Prince of Wales, Is Ralph, King Henry's only loved soul; I, Earl of Sussex, and this Ermsby, One of the privy-chamber to the king; Who, while the prince with Friar Bacon stays, Have revell'd it in Oxford as you see. 141

Mason. My lord, pardon us, we knew not what you were: But courtiers may make greater scapes than these.

Wilt please your honour dine with mee to-day? War. I will, Master doctor, and satisfy 142

1 Worthless fellow. 2 Trim (?) (Cent. Dict.) 3 Darling.

the winter for his hurt; only I must desire you to imagine him all this forenoon the Prince of Wales.

Mason. I will, sir.

Ralph. And upon that I will lead the way; [109] only I will have Miles go before me, because I have heard Henry say that wisdom must go before majesty.

Exeunt.

[SCENE VIII.]

Enter Prince Edward with his poniard in his hand, Lacy, and Margaret.

P. Edu. Lacy, thou canst not shroud thy traitorous thoughts,
Nor cover, as did Cassius, all his wiles;
For Edward hath an eye that looks as fair
As Lyceus from the shores of Græcia.

Did not I sit in Oxford by the friar,
And see thee court the maid of Fressingfield,
Sealing thy flattering fancies with a kiss?

Did not proud Bungay draw his portcullis forth,
And, joining hand in hand, had married you,

If Friar Bacon had not struck him dumb,
And mounted him upon a spirit's back,

That we might chat at Oxford with the friar?

Lacy, what answer's? Is not all this true?

Lacy. Truth all, my lord; and thus I make reply:

At Harleston fair, there courting for your grace,
Whom as mine eye survey'd she curious shape,

And drew the beauteous glory of her looks
To dive into the centre of my heart.

Love taught me that your honour did but jest,
That princes were in fancy but as men:

How that the lovely maid of Fressingfield
Was fitter to be Lacy's wedded wife

Than concubine unto the Prince of Wales.

P. Edu. Injurious Lacy, did I love thee more Than Alexander his Hephæstion?

Did I unfold the passions of my love,
And lock them, in the closet of thy thoughts?

West thou to Edward second to himself,
Sole friend, and partner of his secret loves?

And could a glance of fading beauty break
Th' enchain'd fetters of such private friends?

Base coward, false, and too effeminate
To be renovate a prince in thoughts!

From Oxford have I posted since I din'd,
To quite a traitor 'fore that Edward sleep.

Mar. 'T was I, my lord, not Lacy step'd a wary;

For oft he sue'd and courted for yourself,
And still woo'd for the courtier all in green;

But I, whom fancy made but over-fond,
Pleased myself with looks as if I lov'd;

I fed mine eye with gazing on his face,
And still bewitch'd lov'd Lacy with my looks;

My heart with sighs, mine eyes pleaded with tears,

My face held pity and content at once,
And more I could not cipher-out by signs,

But that I lov'd Lord Lacy with my heart.

Then, worthy Edward, measure with thy mind
If women's favours will not force men fail,

If beauty, and if darts of piercing love,
Are not of force to bury thoughts of friends. 19

P. Edu. I tell thee, Peggy, I will have thy loves;

Edward or none shall conquer Margaret.

In frigates bottom'd with rich Sethin planks,

Topt with the lofty firs of Lebanon,

Stemm'd and innes'd with burnish'd ivory,

And over-laid with plates of Persian wealth,

Like Thetis shall thou wanton on the waves,

And draw the dolphins to thy lovely eyes,

To dance lavolts in the purple streams:

Sirens, with harps and silver palfretaries,

Shall wait with music at thy frigate's stem,

And entertain fair Margaret with their lays.

England and England's wealth shall wait on thee;

Britain shall bend unto her prince's love,

And do due homage to thine excellence.

If thou will be but Edward's Margaret.

Mar. Presbyterian, may fair Margaret's great royalty

Sent me such presents as to Danaé;

If Phebus, tired in Latona's webs,

Come courting from the beauty of his lodge;

The dulcet tunes of frolic Mercury,

Nor all the wealth heaven's treasury affords

Should make me leave Lord Lacy or his love.

P. Edu. I have learn'd at Oxford, then, this point of schools,

Ablata causa, tollitur effectus:

Lacy, the cause that Margaret cannot love
Nor fix her liking on the English prince,

Take him away, and then the effects will fail.

Villain, prepare thyself; for I will bathe

My poniard in the bosom of an earl.

Lacy. Rather than live, and miss fair Margaret's love,

Prince Edward, stop not at the fatal doom,

But stab it home: end both my loves and life.

Mar. Brave Prince of Wales, honoured for royal deeds,

'T were sin to stain fair Venus' courts with blood;

Love's consort ends, my lord, in courtesy.

Spare Lacy, gentle Edward; let me die,
For so both you and he do cease your loves.

P. Edu. Lacy shall die as traitor to his lord.

Lacy. I have deserv'd it, Edward; act it well.

Mar. What hopes the prince to gain by Lacy's death?

P. Edu. To end the loves 'twixt him and Margaret.

Mar. Why, thinks King Henry's son that Margaret's love

Hangs in th' uncertain balance of proud time?

That death shall make a discord of our thoughts?

No, stab the earl, and, 'fore the morning sun

Shall vaunt him thrice over the lofty east,

Margaret will meet her Lacy in the heavens.

Lacy. If aught besides to lovely Margaret

That wrongs or wrings her honour from content,

Europe's rich wealth nor England's monarchy

1 Fressingfield. 2 Love. 3 Sharer. 4 Shittim.
Then, Edward, short my life, and end her loves,

Mar. Rid 1 me, and keep a friend worth many loves.

Lacy. Nay, Edward, keep a love worth many friends.

Mar. An if thy mind be such as fame hath blaz’d,

Then, prince Edward, let us both abide
The fatal resolution of thy rage.
Banish thou fancy and embrace revenge,
And in one tomb knot both our carcasses,
Whose hearts were linked in one perfect love.

P. Edw. [aside.] Edward, art thou that famous Prince of Wales,

Who at Damascus beat the Saracens,
And brought’st home triumph on thy lance’s point?

And shall thy plumes be pull’d by Venus down?

Is’t princely to dissever lovers’ leagues,
To part such friends as glory in their loves?
Leave, Ned, and make a virtue of this fault,
And further Peg and Lacy in their loves:
So in subduing fancy’s passion,
Conquering thyself, thou get’st the richest spoil.

Lacy, rise up, Fair Peggy, here’s my hand.
The Prince of Wales hath conquered all his thoughts,
And all his loves he yields unto the earl.

Lacy, enjoy the maid of Fressingham;
Make her thy Lincoln Countess at the church,
And Ned, as he is true Plantagenet,
Will give her to thee frankly for thy wife.

Lacy. Humbly I take her of my sovereign,
As if that Edward gave me England’s right,
And rich’d me with the Albion diadem.

Mar. And doth the English prince mean true?
Will he vouchsafe to cease his former loves,
And yield the title of a country maid
Unto Lord Lacy?

P. Edw. I will, fair Peggy, as I am true lord.

Mar. Then, lordly sir, whose conquest is as great,

In conquering love, as Caesar’s victories,
Margaret, as mild and humble in her thoughts
As was Aspasia unto Cyrus’ self,
Yields thanks, and, next Lord Lacy, doth en-shrine
Edward the second secret in her heart.

P. Edw. Gramercy, Peggy. Now that vows are past,

And that your loves are not to be revol’t,
Once, Lacy, friends again. Come, we will post
To Oxford; for this day the king is there,
And brings for Edward Castile Elinor.

Peggy, I must go see and view my wife:
I pray God I like her as I loved thee.
Beside, Lord Lincoln, we shall hear dispute
Twixt Friar Bacon and learned Vanderbilt.

Peggy, we’ll leave you for a week or two.

Mar. As it please Lord Lacy; but love’s foolish looks

Think footsteps miles and minutes to be hours.

Lacy. I’ll hasten, Peggy, to make short re-turn.

But please, your honour go unto the lodge,
We shall have butter, cheese, and venison;
And yesterday I brought for Margaret
A lusty bottle of neat claret-wine:
Thus can we feast and entertain your grace.

P. Edw. ’Tis cheer, Lord Lacy, for an em-peror,
If he respect the person and the place.
Come, let us in; for I will this night
Ride post until I come to Bacon’s cell.

[Scene IX.] 8

Enter King Henry, the Emperor, the King of Castile, Elinor, Vanderbilt, and Bungay.

Emp. Trust me, Plantagenet, these Oxford schools
Are richly seated near the river-side:
The mountains full of fat and fallow deer,
The battling 4 pastures lade with kine and flocks,
The town gorgeous with high-built colleges,
And scholars seemly in their grave attire,
Learned in searching principles of art.
What is thy judgment, Jaques Vanderbilt?
Van. That lordly are the buildings of the town,
Spacious the rooms, and full of pleasant walks;
But for the doctors, how that they be learned,
It may be meanly, for aught I can hear.

Bun. I tell thee, German, Hapsburg holds none such,
None read so deep as Oxenford contains.
There are within our academic state
Men that may lecture it in Germany
To all the doctors of your Belcig schools.
K. Hen. Stand to him, Bungay, charm this Vanderbilt,
And I will use thee as a royal king.

Van. Wherein darest thou dispute with me?

Bun. In what a doctor and a friar can.

Van. Before rich Europe’s worthies put thou
Forty for the question unto Vanderbilt.

Bun. Let it be this,—Whether the spirits of pyromancy or geomancy be most predominate in magic?

Van. I say, of pyromancy.

Bun. And I, of geomancy.

Van. The cabalists that write of magic spells,

As Hermes, Melchie, and Pythagoras,
Affirm that, ‘mongst the quadruplicity
Of elemental essence, terra is but thought
To be a punctum squared 6 to the rest;
And that the compass of ascending elements
Exceed in bigness as they do in height;
Judging the concave circle of the sun
To hold the rest in his circumference.

If, then, as Hermes says, the fire be great’st,
Pull off the sprigs from off the Hesperian tree,
As once thou diest to win the golden fruit.

Hercules appears in his lion's skin.

Her. Quis me vult?
Van. Jove's bastard son, thou Libyan Hercules,

Pull off the sprigs from off the Hesperian tree,
As once thou diest to win the golden fruit.

Hercules appears in his lion's skin.

Her. Quis me vult?
Van. Jove's bastard son, thou Libyan Hercules,
Van. Never before was't known to Vander-mast
That men held devils in such obedient awe.
Bacon doth more than art, or else I fail. 150
Emp. Why, Vandyke, art then overcome?—
Bacon, dispute with him, and try his skill.
Bacon. I come not, monarchs, for to hold dispute
With such a novice as is Vandyke;
I come to have your royalties to dine 155
With Friar Bacon here in Brazen-nose;
And, for this German troubles but the place,
And holds this audience with a long suspense,
I'll send him to his academy hence. — 159
Thou Hercules, whom Vandyke did raise,
Transport the German unto Hapsburg straight;
That he may learn by travail, 'gainst the spring,
More secret dooms and aphorisms of art.
Vanish the tree, and thou away with him !

Exit the spirit [of Hercules] with VANDER-MAST and the tree.

Emp. Why, Bacon, whither dost thou send
him?
Bacon. To Hapsburg; there your highness at return
Shall find the German in his study safe.
K. Hen. Bacon, thou hast honour'd England with thy skill,
And made fair Oxford famous by thine art;
I will be English Henry to thyself. 170
But tell me, shall we dine with thee to-day?
Bacon. With me, my lord; and while I fit
my cheer,
See where Prince Edward comes to welcome
you,
Gracious as the morning-star of heaven.
Exit.

Enter [Prince] Edward, Lacy, Warren, Ermsby.

Emp. Is this Prince Edward, Henry's royal son?
How martial is the figure of his face !
Yet lovely and beset with amoret. 1
K. Hen. Ned, where hast thou been?
P. Edw. At Framlingham, my lord, to try your bucks
If they could scape the teasers 2 or the toil.
But hearing of these lordly potentates
Landed, and progress'd up to Oxford town,
I posted to give entertain to them:
Chief, to the Almain monarch; next to him,
And joint with him, Castle and Saxony 185
Are welcome as they may be to the English court.
Thus for the men: but see, Venus appears,
Or one that overmatcheth Venus in her shape!
Sweet Elinor, beauty's high-swelling pride,
Rich nature's glory and her wealth at once, 190
Fair of all fairs, welcome to Albion;
Welcome to me, and welcome to thine own,
If that thou deignst the welcome from myself.
Elin. Martial Plantagenet, Henry's high-minded son,

1 Love-kindling looks. 2 See note on I. 5.

The mark that Elinor did count her aim,
I lik'd thee 'fore I saw thee; now I love,
And so in so short a time I may;
Yet so as time shall never break that so,
And therefore so accept of Elinor.
K. of Cast. Fear not, my lord, this couple will agree,
If love may creep into their wanton eyes: —
And therefore, Edward, I accept thee here,
Without suspense, as my adopted son.
K. Hen. Let me that joy in these consorting geets,
And glory in these honours done to Ned. 205
Yield thanks for all these favours to my son,
And rest a true Plantagenet to all.

Enter Miles with a cloth and trenchers and salt.

Miles. Salvete, omnes reges,
That govern your greges
In Saxony and Spain,
In England and in Almain!
For all this frollic rabble
Must I cover the table
With trenchers, salt, and cloth;
And then look for your broth.
Emp. What pleasant fellow is this?
K. Hen. 'Tis, my lord, Doctor Bacon's poor scholar.

Miles [aside.] My master hath made me sewer 3 of these great lords; and, God knows, 200
I am as serviceable at a table as a sow is under an apple-tree. 'Tis no matter; their cheer shall not be great, and therefore what skilts where the salt stand, before or behind? [Exit.]
K. of Cast. These scholars know more skill in axioms,
How to use quips and sleights of sophistry,
Than for to cover courtly for a king.

Re-enter Miles with a mess of pottage and broth;
and, after him, BACON.

Miles. Spell, sir? why, do you think I never carried twopenny chop 4 before in my life? —
By your leave, noble decus, 240
For here comes Doctor Bacon's pecus,
Being in his full age
To carry a mess of pottage.
Bacon. Lordings, admire 5 not if your cheer be this,
For we must keep our academic fare;
No riot where philosophy doth reign:
And therefore, Henry, place these potentates,
And bid them fall unto their frugal cates.
Emp. Presumptuous friar! What, scofst thou at a king?
What, dost thou taunt us with thy peasants' fare,
And give us cates fit for country swains? —
Henry, proceeds this jest of thy consent,
To twit us with a pittance of such price?
Tell me, and Frederick will not grieve thee long.
K. Hen. By Henry's honour, and the royal faith

3 A servant who sets the table.
4 Chopped meat in broth (?) (N. E. D.)
5 Wonder.
6 Qn. with such.
The English monarch beareth to his friend,
I knew not of the friar’s feeble fare,
Nor am I pleas’d he entertains you thus.
Bacon. Content thee, Frederick, for I show’d the cates,
To let thee see how scholars use to feed;
How little meat refines our English wits.—
Miles. Take away, and let it be thy dinner.
Miles. Marry, sir, I will.
This day shall be a festival-day with me;
For I shall exceed in the highest degree. [Exit.]
Bacon. I tell thee, monarch, all the German peers
Could not afford thy entertainment such,
So royal and so full of majesty,
As Bacon will present to Frederick.
The basest waiter that attends thy cups
Shall be in honours greater than thyself;
And for thy cates, rich Alexandria drugs,
Fetch’d by caravels from Egypt’s richest straits,
Found in the wealthy strand of Africa,
Shall royalize the table of my king;
Wines richer than th’ Egyptian courteous
Quaff’d to Augustus’ kingly countermatch,
Shall be carous’d in English Henry’s feast;
Candy shall yield the richest of her canes;
Persia, down her Volga by canoes,
Send down the secrets of her spicerie;
The Afric dates, myrobalsam 2 of Spain,
Conserves and suckets 3 from Tiberias,
Cates from Judaea, choicer than the lamp 4
That fired Rome with sparks of glutony,
Shall beautify the board for Frederick:
And therefore grudge not at a friar’s feast.

[SCENE X,] 5

Enter two gentlemen, Lambert and Serlsby, with the Keeper.

Lam. Come, frolic Keeper of our liege’s game,
Whose table spread hath ever venison
And jack’s 6 of wine to welcome passengers,
Know I’m in love with jolly Margaret,
That environs our dames with the moon;
Dark’neth the brightest sparkles of the night.
In Laxfield here my land and living lies:
I shall make thy daughter jointer 7 of it all,
So thou consent to give her to my wife;
And I can spend five hundred marks a-year. 10
Ser. I am the lands-lord, Keeper, of thy holds,
By copy all thy living lies in me;
Laxfield did never see me raise my due;
I shall end off fair Margaret in all,
So she will take her to a lusty squire. 15

Keep. Now, courteous gentle, if the Keeper’s girl
Hath pleas’d the liking fancy of you both,
And with her beauty hath sub’d thy thoughts,
’Tis doubtful to decide the question.
It joyes me that such men of great esteem
Should lay their liking on this base estate,
And that her state should grow so fortunate
To be a wife to meaner men than you.
But sith such squires will stoop to keeper’s fee, 8
I will, to avoid displeasure of you both,
Call Margaret forth, and she shall make her choice.

Lam. Content, Keeper; send her unto us.
Why, Serlsby, is thy wife so lately dead,
Are all thy loves so lightly passed over,
As thou canst wed before the year be out? 10
Ser. I live not, Lambert, to content the dead,
Nor was I wedded but for life to her:
The grave ends and begins a married state.

[Enter Margaret.]

Lam. Peggy, the lovely flower of all towns,
Suffolk’s fair Helen, and rich England’s star,
Whose beauty, tempered with her huswifery,
Makes England talk of merry Fressingfield!

Ser. I cannot trick’t it up with poesies,
Nor paint her passions with comparisons,
Nor tell a tale of Phobus and his loves:
But this believe me, — Laxfield here is mine,
Of ancient rent seven hundred pounds a-year,
And if thou canst but love a country squire,
I will endoff thee, Margaret, in all.
I cannot flatter; try me, if thou please.

Mar. Brave neighbouring squires, the stay of Suffolk’s chime,
A keeper’s daughter is too base in gree 9
To match with men accounted of such worth:
But might I not displease, I would reply.

Lam. Say, Peggy; naught shall make us discontent.
Mar. Then, gentle, note that love hath little stay,
Nor can the flames that Venus sets on fire
Be kindled but by fancy’s motion:
Then pardon, gentle, if a maid’s reply.
Be doubtful, while 10 I have debated with myself,
Who, or of whom, love shall constrain me like.

Ser. Let it be me, and trust me, Margaret,
The means environed with the silver streams,
Whose battling pastures fatt’neth all my flocks,
Yielding forth fleeces stapled with such wool
As Leominster 11 cannot yield more finer stuff,
And forty kine with fair and burnish’d heads,
With strutting 12 dugs that paggle 13 to the ground,
Shall serve thy dairy, if thou wed me with.

Lam. Let pass the country wealth, as flocks and kine,
And lands that wave with Ceres’ golden sheaves:
Filling my barns with plenty of the fields;
But, Peggy, if thou wed thyself to me,
Thou shalt have garments of embroidred silk,
Lawns, and rich net-works for thy head-attire:
Costly shall be thy fair habiliments,
If thou wilt be but Lambert’s loving wife.

Mar. Content you, gentle, you have proffer’d fair,
And more than fits a country maid’s degree;

8 Estate (Gayley).
9 G. (Gayley).
10 Q. (Gayley).
11 Leominster (phonetic).
12 Strutting, swelling.
13 Hang loosely (N. E. D.).
But give me leave to counsel me a time,
For fancy blooms not at the first assault;
Give me but ten days' respite, and I will reply,
Which on which my affectionates.
Ser. Lambert, I tell thee, thou'rt importunate;
Such beauty fits not such a base esquire:
It is for Sersly to have Margaret.
Lam. Think'st thou with wealth to overreach me?
Sersly, I scorn to brook thy country braves.
I dare thee, cowardo, to maintain this wrong,
At dint of rapier, single in the field.
Ser. I'll answer, Lambert, what I have avouch'd.
Margaret, farewell; another time shall serve.
Exit.
Lam. I'll follow. — Peggy, farewell to thyself.
Listen how well I'll answer for thy love. Exit.
Mar. How Fortune tempers lucky haps with frowns,
And wrongs me with the sweets of my delight!
Love is my bliss, and love is now my bale.
Shall I be Helen in my froward 4 fates,
As I am Helen in my matchless hue,
And set rich Suffolk with my face afire?
If lovely Lacy were but with his Peggy,
The cloudy darkness of his bitter frown
Would check the pride of these aspiring squires.
Before the term of ten days be expired,
Whenas they look for answer of their loves.
My lord will come to merry Pressingfield,
And end their fancies and their follies both:
Till when, Peggy, be blithe and of good cheer.

Enter a Post with a letter and a bag of gold.

Post. Fair lovely damsel, which way leads this path?
How might I post me unto Pressingfield?
Which footpath leadeth to the Keeper's lodge?
Mar. Your way is ready, and this path is right;
Myself do dwell hereby in Pressingfield,
And if the Keeper be the man you seek,
I am his daughter; may I know the cause?
No marvel if his eye was lodg'd so low,
When brighter beauty is not in the heavens,—
The Lincoln Earl hath sent you letters here,
And, with them, just an hundred pounds in gold.
Sweet, bonny wench, read them, and make reply.
Mar. The scrolls that love sent Danaë,
Wraft in rich closures of fine burnish'd gold,
Were not more welcome than these lines to me.
Tell me, whilst that I do unrip the seals,
Lives Lacy well? How fares my lovely lord?
Post. Well, if that wealth may make men to live well.
Mar. (reads) The blooms of the almond-tree grow in a night, and wither in a morn, the flies homeware; fair Peggy, take life with the sun, and die with the dew; fancy that slipeth in with a gaze, goeth out with a wink; and too timely loves have over the shortest length. I write this as thy grief, and my folly, who at Pressingfield loved that which time hath taught me to be but mean dainties. Eyes are dissemblers, and fancy is but quesy; therefore know, Margaret, I have chosen a Spanish lady to be my wife, chief waiting-woman to the Princess Elinor; a lady fair, and no less fair than thyself, honourable and wealthy. In that I forsake thee, I leave thee to thine own liking; and for thy dowry I have sent thee an hundred pounds; and ever assure thee of my favour, which shall avail thee and thine much.

Farewell. Not thine, nor his own, [140

EDWARD LACY.

Fond Ate, doomer of bad-boding fates,
That were proud Fortune in thy snaky locks,
Didst thou enshant my birth-day with such stars As light'd mischief from their infancy?
If heavens had vow'd, if stars had made decree,
To show on me their froward influence,
If Lacy had but lov'd, heavens, hell, and all
Could not have wrought'd the patience of my mind.
Post. It grieveth me, damsel; but the earl is fore'd
To love the lady by the king's command.
Mar. The wealth combin'd within the English shelves.
Europe's commander, nor the English king,
Should not have mov'd the love of Peggy from her lord.
Post. What answer shall I return to my lord?
Mar. First, for thou cam'st from Lacy whom I lov'd,
Ah, give me leave to sigh at every thought! —
Take thou, my friend, the hundred pound he sent,
For Margaret's resolution craves no dower.
The world shall be to her as vanity;
Wealth, trash; love, hate; pleasure, despair:
For will straight to stately Framlingham,
And in the abbey there be shorn a nun,
And yield my loves and liberty to God.
Fellow, I give thee this, not for the news,
For those be hateful unto Margaret,
But for thou'rt Lacy's man, once Margaret's love.
Post. What I have heard, what passions I have seen,
I'll make report of them unto the earl.
Mar. Say that she joys his fancies be at rest,
And prays that his misfortune may be hers.

[SCENE XI.] 4

Enter FRIAR BACON drawing the curtains with a white stick, a book in his hand, and a lamp lighted by him; and the Brazen Head, and Miles with weapons by him.

Bacon. Miles, where are you?
Miles. Here, sir.
Bacon. How chance you tarry so long?
Miles. Think you that the watching of the Brazen Head craves no furniture? I warrant you, sir, I have so armed myself that if all your devils come, I will not fear them an inch.

Bacon. Miles, Thou know'st that I have dived into hell, and sought the darkest palaces of fiends; That with my magic spells great Belephoon Hath left his lodge and kneeled at my cell; The rafters of the earth rent from the poles, And three-form'd Luna bid her silver looks, Trembling upon her concave continent.

When Bacon read upon his magic book, With seven years' tossing necromantic charms, Poring upon dark Hecat's principles, I have fram'd out a monstrous head of brass, That, by the enchanting forces of the devil, Shall tell out strange and uncouth aphorisms, And girt fair England with a wall of brass.

Bungay and I have watch'd these three score days, And now our vital spirits crave some rest. If Argus liv'd, and had his hundred eyes, They could not over-watch Phobetor's night. Now, Miles, in thee rests Friar Bacon's weal: The honour and renown of all his life Hangs in the watching of this Brazen Head; Therefore I charge thee by the immortal God, That holds the souls of men within his fist, This night thou watch; for ere the morning-star Sends out his glorious glitter on the north, The head will speak: then, Miles, upon thy life, Wake me; for then by magic art I'll work To end my seven years' task with excellence. If that a wink but shut thy watchful eye, Then farewell Bacon's glory and his fame! Draw close the curtains, Miles: now, for thy life, Be watchful, and—Here hailed asleep.

Miles. So; I thought you would talk yourself asleep anon; and 'tis no marvel, for Bungay on the days, and he on the nights, have watch'd just these ten and fifty days: now this is the night, and 'tis my task, and no more. Now, Jesus bless me, what a kindly head it is! and a nose! you talk of nost arcn glorificare: but here's a nose that I warrant may be called nost arcn populaire for the people of the parish. Well, I am furnish'd with weapons: now, sir, I will set me down by a post, and make it as good as a watchman to wake me, if I chance to slumber. I thought, Goodman Head, I would call you out of your memento. . . Passion o' God, I have almost broke my pate! Up, Miles, to your task; take your brown-bill in your hand; here's some of your master's hogscliners abroad.

With this a great noise. The Head speaks. The Brazen Head. Time is!

Miles. Time is! Why, Master Brazen-head, have you such a capital nose, and answer you with syllables, "Time is"? Is this all my master's cunning, to spend seven years' study about "Time is"? Well, sir, it may be we shall have some better orations of it anon. Well, I'll watch you as narrowly as ever you were watched, and I'll play with you as the night-gale with the slow-worm; I'll set a pricket against my breast. Now rest there, Miles. Lord have mercy upon me, I have almost killed myself! [A great noise.] Up, Miles; list how they rumble.

The Brazen Head. Time was!

Miles. Well, Friar Bacon, you spent your seven-years' study well, that can make your head speak but two words at once, "Time was!" Yea, marry, time was when my master was a wise man, but that was before he began to make the Brazen Head. You shall lie while your arse ache, an your head speak no better. Well, I will watch, and walk up and down, and be a peripatetian and a philosopher of Aristotle's stamp. [A great noise.] What, a fresh noise? Take thy pistols in hand, Miles.

Here the Head speaks, and a lightning flashes forth, and a hand appears that breaks down the Head with a hammer.

The Brazen Head. Time is past!

Miles. Master, master, up! Hell's broken loose! Your head speaks; and there's such a thunder and lightning, that I warrant all Oxford is up in arms. Out of your bed, and take a brown-bill in your hand; the latter day is come.

Bacon. Miles, I come. O, passing warily watch'd!

Bacon will make thee next himself in love.

When spake the head?

Miles. When spake the head! Did not you say that he should tell strange principles of philosophy? Why, sir, it speaks but two words at a time.

Bacon. Why, villain, hath it spoken oft?

Miles. Oft! ay, marry, hath it, thrice; but in all those three times it hath uttered but seven words.

Bacon. As how?

Miles. Marry, sir, the first time he said "Time is," as if Fabius Cunctator should have pronounced a name; [the second time] he said, "Time was!"; and the third time, with thunder and lightning, as in great choler, he said, "Time is past."

Bacon. 'Tis past indeed. Ah, villain! time is past:

My life, my fame, my glory, all are past.—Bacon, the turrets of thy hope are ruindown, Thy seven years' study lieth in the dust:

Thy Brazen Head lies broken through a slave That watch'd, and would not when the head did will. What said the head first?

Miles. Even, sir, "Time is."

Bacon. Villain, if thou hadst call'd to Bacon then, If thou hadst watch'd, and wak'd the sleepy friar,

The Brazen Head had uttered aphorisms, And England had been circled round with brass:

But proud Asmenoth, ruler of the north,
And Demogorgon, master of the fates,
Grudge that a mortal man should work so much.
Hell trembled at my deep-commanding spells;
Fiends frown'd to see a man their over-match;
Bacon might boast more than a man might boast.
But now the braves of Bacon hath an end,
Europe's conceit of Bacon hath an end,
His seven years' practice sorteth to ill end:
And, villain, sith my glory hath an end,
I will appoint thee to some fatal end.
Villain, avoid! get thee from Bacon's sight!
Vagrant, go roam and range about the world,
And perish as a vagabond on earth!

Miles. Why, then, sir, you forbid me your service?
Bacon. My service, villain! with a fatal curse,
That direful plagues and mischief fall on thee.
Miles. 'Tis no matter, I am against you with the old proverb.—The more the fox is cursed, the better he fares: God be with you, sir. I'll take but a book in my hand, a wide-sleeved gown on my back, and a crowned cap on my head, and see if I can want promotion.
Bacon. Some fiend or ghost haunt on thy weary steps,
Until they do transport thee quick to hell;
For Bacon shall have never merry day,
To lose the fame and honour of his head.

[SCENE XII.]

Enter the Emperor, the King of Castile,
King Henry, Elinor, Prince Edward,
Lacy, and Ralph [Simnell].

Emp. Now, lovely prince, the prime of Albion's wealth,
How fare the Lady Elinor and you?
What, have you courted and found Castile fit
To answer England in equivalence?
Will I be a match 'twixt bonny Nell and thee?
P. Edw. Should Paris enter in the courts of Greece,
And not lie fettered in fair Helen's looks?
Or Phaethus scape those piercing amoret
That Daphne glanced at his deity?
Can Edward, then, sit by a flame and freeze,
Whose heat puts Helen and fair Daphne down?
Now, monarchs, ask the lady if we gree.

K. Hen. What, madam, hath my son found grace or no?
Elin. Seeing, my lord, his lovely counterfeit,
And bearing how his mind and shape agreed,
I come not, troop'd with all this warlike train,
Doubting of love, but so affectionate
As Edward hath in England what he won in Spain.

K. of Cast. A match, my lord; these wantons needs must love:
Men must have wives, and women will be wed.
Let's haste the day to honour up the rites.
Ralph. Sirrah Harry, shall Ned marry Nell?

K. Hen. Ay, Ralph: how then?
Ralph. Marry, Harry, follow my counsel: send for Friar Bacon to marry them, for he'll so conjure him and her with his necromancy, that they shall love together like pig and lamb whilst they live.
K. of Cast. But nearest thou, Ralph, art thou content to have Elinor to thy lady?
Ralph. Ay, so she will promise me two things.
K. of Cast. What's that, Ralph?
Ralph. That she will never scold with Ned,
Nor fight with me.—Sirrah Harry, I have put her down with a thing unpossible.
K. Hen. What's that, Ralph?
Ralph. Why, Harry, didst thou ever see that a woman could both hold her tongue and her hands? No: but when egg-pies grows on apple-trees, then will thy grey mare prove a bag.
Emp. What say the Lord of Castile and the Earl of Lincoln, that they are in such earnest and secret talk?

K. of Cast. I stand, my lord, amazed at his talk,
How he discourses of the constancy
Of one surnam'd, for beauty's excellence,
The Fair Maid of merry Fressingfield.

K. Hen. 'Tis true, my lord; 'tis wondrous for to hear;
Her beauty passing Mars's paramour,
Her virgin's right as rich as Vesta's was.
Lacy and Ned hath told me miracles.

K. of Cast. What says Lord Lacy? Shall she be his wife?
Lacy. Or else Lord Lacy is unfit to live. —
May it please your highness give me leave to post
To Fressingfield, I'll fetch the bonny girl,
And prove, in true appearance at the court,
What I have vouched often with my tongue.
K. Hen. Lacy, go to the quarry of my stable,
And take such courser as shall fit thy turn;
His thee to Fressingfield, and bring home the lass;
And, for her fame flies through the English coast,
If it may please the Lady Elinor,
One day shall match your excellence and her.
Elin. We Castile ladies are not very coy;
Your highness may command a greater boon:
And glad were I to grace the Lincoln Earl
With being partner of his marriage-day.
P. Edw. Gramercy, Nell, for I do love the lord,
As he that's second to myself in love.
Ralph. You love her?—Madam Nell, never believe him you, though he swears he loves you.
Elin. Why, Ralph?
Ralph. Why, his love is like unto a taster's glass that is broken with every touch; for he never loved the fair maid of Fressingfield once out of all his heart. —Nay, Ned, never wink upon me; I care not. I

K. Hen. Ralph tells all; you shall have a good secretary of him.
But, Lacy, haste thee post to Fressingham;
For ere thou hast fitted all things for her state,
The solemn marriage-day will be at hand.

Lacy. I go, my lord.

Emp. How shall we pass this day, my lord?

K. Hen. To horse, my lord; the day is passing fair,
We'll fly the partridge, or go rouse the deer.
Follow, my lords; you shall not want for sport.

Exeunt.

[SCENE XIII.]

Enter Friar Bacon with Friar Bungay to his cell.

Bun. What means the friar that frolick'd it of late,
To sit as melancholy in his cell
As if he had neither lost nor won to-day?

Bacon. Ah, Bungay, my Brazen Head is spoil'd,
My glory gone, my seven years' study lost!
The fame of Bacon, bruited through the world,
Shall end and perish with this deep disgrace.

Bun. Bacon hath built foundation of his fame
So surely on the wings of true report,
With acting strange and uncouth miracles,
As this cannot infringe what he deserves.

Bacon. Bungay, sit down, for by prospective skill
I find this day shall fall out ominous:
Some deadly act shall 'tide me ere I sleep;
But what and wherein little can I guess.

My mind is heavy, whatsoever shall hap.

Enter two Scholars, sons to Lambert and Serlsby.

Knock.

Bacon. Who's that knocks?
Bun. Two scholars that desire to speak with you.

Bacon. Bid them come in. —
Now, my youths, what would you have?

First Schol. Sir, we are Suffolk-men and neighbouring friends;
Our fathers in their countries lusty squires;
Their lands adjoin in Oratfield mine doth dwell,
And his in Laxfield. We are college-mates,
Sworn brothers, as our fathers live as friends.

Bacon. To what end is all this?

Second Schol. Hearing your worship kept within your cell
A glass prospective, wherein men might see Whatso their thoughts or hearts' desire could wish,
We come to know how that our fathers fare.

Bacon. My glass is free for every honest man.
Sit down, and you shall see ere long, how
Or in what state your friendly fathers live.
Meanwhile, tell me your names.

First Schol. Mine Lambert.
Second Schol. And mine Serlsby.

Bacon. Bungay, I smell there will be a tragedy.

Enter Lambert and Serlsby with rapier's and daggers.

Lam. Serlsby, thou hast kept thine hour like a man:
Thou'rt worthy of the title of a squire,
That durst, for proof of thy affection
And for thy mistress' favour, prize thy blood.
Thou know'st what words did pass at Fressingfield,
Such shameless braves as manhood cannot brook:
Ay, for I scorn to bear such piercing taunts,
Prepare thee, Serlsby; one of us will die.

Ser. Thou seest I single [meet] thee [in] the field,
And what I spake, I'll maintain with my sword.
Stand on thy guard, I cannot sell it out.
An if thou kill me, think I have a son,
That lives in Oxford in the Broadgates-hall,
Who will revenge his father's blood with blood.

Lam. And, Serlsby, I have there a lusty boy
That dares at weapon buckle with thy son,
And lives in Broadgates too, as well as thine.
But draw thy rapier, for we'll have a bout.

Bacon. Now, lusty youngkens, look within the glass,
And tell me if you can discern your sires.

First Schol. Serlsby, 'tis hard; thy father offers wrong;
To combat with my father in the field.
Second Schol. Lambert, thou liest, my father's is th' abuse.
And thou shalt find it, if my father harm.

Bun. How goes it, sirs?
First Schol. Our fathers are in combat hard by Fressingfield.

Bacon. Sit still, my friends, and see the event.

Lam. Why stand'st thou, Serlsby? Doubt'st thou of thy life?

A venereal man! fair Margaret craves so much.

Ser. Then this for her.

First Schol. Ah, well thrust!
Second Schol. But mark the ward.

[Lambert and Serlsby] fight and kill each other.

Lam. O, I am slain!

Ser. And I — Lord have mercy on me!
First Schol. My father slain! — Serlsby, ward that.

Second Schol. And so is mine! — Lambert,
I'll quite thee well.

The two Scholars stab each other [and die].
Bun. O strange stratagem!
Bacon. See, friar, where the fathers both lie dead! —

Bacon, thy magic doth effect this massacre:
This glass prospective worketh many woes;
And therefore seeing these brave lusty Britons,
These friendly youths, did perish by thine art,
End all thy magic and thine art at once.

The poniard that did end the fatal lives,
Shall break the cause efficient of their woes.

1 Friar Bacon's cell.
So fade the glass, and end with it the shows
That necromancy did infuse the crystal with.

Breaks the glass.

Bun. What means learnt' Bacon thus to break his glass?

Bacon. I tell thee, Bungay, it repents me sore
That ever Bacon meddled in this art.

The hours I have spent in pyromantic spells,
The fearful tossing in the latest night
Of papers full of necromantic charms.

Conjuring and adjuring devils and fiends,
With stole and alb and strange pentagonon;
The wresting of the holy name of God,
As Soter, Eioim, and Adonai,
Alpha, Manoth, and Tetragrammaton.

With praying to the five-fold powers of heaven,
Are instances that Bacon must be damn'd
For using devils to countervail his God.—
Yet, Bacon, cheer thee, drown not in despair:
Sins have their salves, repentance can do much:
Think Mercy sits where Justice holds her seat,
And from those wounds those bloody Jews did pierce,
Which by thy magic oft did bleed a-fresh,
From thence for thee the dew of mercy drops,
To wash the wrath of high Jehovah's ire,
And make thee as a new-born babe from sin.—
Bungay, I'll spend the remnant of my life
In pure devotion, praying to my God
That he would save what Bacon vainly lost.

Exeunt.

[SCENE XIV.] 1

Enter Margaret in nun's apparel, the Keeper, her father, and their Friend.

Keeper. Margaret, be not so headstrong in these vows:
O, bury not such beauty in a cell,
That England hath held famous for the hue!
Thy father's hair, like to the silver blooms
That beautify the shrubs of Africa,
Shall fall before the dated time of death,
Thus to forgo his lovely Margaret.

Mar. Ah, father, when the harmony of heaven
Soundeth the measures of a lively faith,
The vain illusions of this flattering world
Seem odious to the thoughts of Margaret.
I loved once,—Lord Lacy was my love;
And now I hate myself for that I lov'd,
And doted more on him than on my God;
For this I scourge myself with sharp repent's.
But now the touch of such aspiring sins
Tells me all love is but love of heavens;
That beauty us'd for love is vanity:
The world contains naught but alluring baits,
Pride, flattery, and inconstant thoughts.
To shun the pricks of death, I leave the world,
And vow to meditate on heavenly bliss,
To live in Framingham a holy nun,
Holy and pure in conscience and in deed;
And for to wish all maids to learn of me
To seek heaven's joy before earth's vanity.

Friend. And will you, then, Margaret, be shorn a nun, and so leave us all?

Mar. Now farewell world, the engine of all woe!
Farewell to friends and father! Welcome Christ!

Adieu to dainty robes! This base attire
Better befits an humble mind to God
Than all the show of rich habiliments.
Love—O love! and, with fond love, farewell
Sweet Lacy, whom I loved once so dear!
Ever be well, but never in my thoughts,
Lest I offend to think on Lacy's love:
But even to that, as to the rest, farewell!

Enter, Lacy, Warren, and Ermsby, booted and spurred.

Lacy. Come on my mags, we're near the Keeper's lodge.
Here have I oft walk'd in the watery meads,
And chatted with my lovely Margaret.

War. Sirrah Ned, art not this the Keeper?
Lacy. 'Tis the same.

Ermsby. The old lecher hath gotten holy muton 2 to him: a nun, my lord.

Lacy. Keeper, how far'st thou? Holla, man, what cheer?

How doth Peggy, thy daughter and my love?
Keeper. Ah, good my lord! O, woe is me for Peggy!
See where she stands clad in her nun's attire,
Ready for to be shorn in Framingham;
She leaves the world because she left your love.
O, good my lord, persuade her if you can!

Lacy. Why, how now, Margaret! What, a malcontent?
A nun? What holy father taught you this,
To task yourself to such a tedious life
As die a maid? 'Twere injury to me,
To smother up such beauty in a cell.

Mar. Lord Lacy, thinking of thy former miss,
How fond 2 of the prime of wanton years were spent
In love. (O dea upon that fond conceit, Whose grace and essence hangeth in the eye),
I leave both love and love's content at once,
Betaking me to Him that is true love.
And leaving all the world for love of Him.

Lacy. Whence, Peggy, comes this metamorphosis?

What, shorn a nun, and I have from the court
Posted with couriers to convey thee hence
To Windsor, where our marriage shall be kept!
Thy wedding-robes are in the tailor's hands.
Come, Peggy, leave these peremptory vows.

Mar. Did not my lord resign his interest,
And make divorce?twixt Margaret and him?

Lacy. 'Twas but to try sweet Peggy's constancy.

But will fair Margaret leave her love and lord?

Mar. Is not heaven's joy before earth's fading bliss,
And life above sweeter than life in love?

Lacy. Why, then, Margaret will be shorn a nun?

1 Fressingfield.
2 A lewd woman. 2 Foolishly.
Mar. Margaret hath made a vow which may not be revok'd.
War. We cannot stay, my lord; an if she be so strict,
Our leisure grants us not to woo a fresh. 80
Erm. Choose you, fair damsel, yet the choice is yours,—
Either a solemn nunery or the court,
God or Lord Lacy. Which contents you best,
To be a nun or else Lord Lacy's wife?
Lacy. A good motion. — Peggy, your answer must be short.
Mar. The flesh is frail: my lord doth know it
well,
That when he comes with his enchanting face,
Whatsoe'er betide, I cannot say him nay.
Off goes the habit of a maiden's heart,
And, seeing fortune will, fair Framlingham, 90
And all the show of holy nuns, farewell!
Lacy for me, if I will be your lord.
Lacy. Peggy, thy lord, thy love, thy husband.
Trust me, by truth of knighthood, that the king
Stays for to marry matchless Eleanor,
Until I bring thee richly to the court,
That one day may both marry her and thee.—
How say'st thou, Keeper? Art thou glad of this?
Keep. As if the English king had given
The park and deer of Fressingfield to me. 100
Erm. I pray thee, my Lord of Sussex, why art thou in a brown study?
War. To see the nature of women; that be they never so near God, yet they love to die in a man's arms. 105
Lacy. What have you fit for breakfast? We have hied
And posted all this night to Fressingfield.
Mar. Butter and cheese, and umbles of a deer,
Such as poor keepers have within their lodge.
Lacy. And not a bottle of wine? 110
Mar. We'll find one for my lord.
Lacy. Come, Sussex, let us in: we shall have
more,
For she speaks least, to hold her promise sure.
Exeunt.

[Scene XV.] 1

Enter a Devil to seek Miles.

Dev. How restless are the ghosts of hellish spirits,
When every charmer with his magic spells
Calls us from nine-fold-trenched Phlegethon,
To scud and over-scur the earth in post
Upon the speedy wings of swiftest winds!
Now Bacon hath rais'd me from the darkest
deep,
To search about the world for Miles his man,
For Miles, and to torment his lazy bones
For careless watching of his Brazen Head.
See where he comes. O, he is mine! 10

Enter Miles with a gown and a corner-cap.

Miles. A scholar, quoth you! marry, sir, I would I had been made a bottle-maker when I was made a scholar; for I can get neither to be a deacon, reader, nor schoolmaster, no, not the clerk of a parish. Some call me dunce; [15 another saith, my head is as full of Latin as an egg's full of oatmeal. Thus I am tormented, that the devil and Friar Bacon haunts me.
— Good Lord, here's one of my master's devils!
I'll go speak to him. — What, Master Plu-
tus, how cheer you?

Dev. Dost thou know me?
Miles. Know you, sir! Why, are not you one of my master's devils, that were wont to come to my master, Doctor Bacon, at Bra-zen-nose?

Dev. Yes, marry, am I.
Miles. Good Lord, Master Plutus, I have seen you a thousand times at my master's, and yet I had never the manners to make you [30 drink. But, sir, I am glad to see how conformable you are to the statute. — I warrant you, he's as yeomanly a man as you shall see: mark
you, masters, here's a plain honest man, without wile or guard. 2 But I pray you, sir, [35 do you come lately from hell?

Dev. Ay, marry: how then?
Miles. Faith, 'tis a place I have desired long to see. Have you not good tippling-houses there?
May not a man have a lusty fire there, a [40 pot of good ale, a pair of cards, a swinging piece of chalk, and a brown toast that will clap a white waistcoat 3 on a cup of good drink?

Dev. All this you may have there.
Miles. You are for me, friend, and I am for [45
you. But I pray you, may I not have an office
there?

Dev. Yes, a thousand. What wouldst thou be?
Miles. By my troth, sir, in a place where I may profit myself. I know hell is a hot place, [50 and men are marvellous dry, and much drink is spent there; I would be a tapster.

Dev. Thou shalt.

Miles. There's nothing lets me from going with you, but that it is a long journey, and [55
I have never a horse.

Dev. Thou shalt ride on my back.

Miles. Now surely here's a courteous devil, that for to pleasure his friend, will not stick to make a jade of himself. — But I pray you, [60 goodman friend, let me move a question to
you.

Dev. What's that?
Miles. I pray you, whether is your pace a trot or an amble?

Dev. An amble.

Miles. 'Tis well; but take heed it be not a [65 trot; but 'tis no matter, I'll prevent it.

Dev. What dost?

Miles. Marry, friend, I put on my spurs; [70 for if I find your pace either a trot or else uneasy, I'll put you to a false gallop; I'll make you feel the benefit of my spurs.

Dev. Get up upon my back.

[Miles mounts on the Devil's back.]

Miles. O Lord, here's even a goodly mar- [75 vel, when a man rides to hell on the devil's back! 4

Exeunt, roaring.

1 Friar Bacon's cell.
2 Trimmings or facing.
3 Pack.
4 Of froth.
Enter the Emperor with a pointless sword; next the King of Castile carrying a sword with a point; Lady carrying the globe; Prince Edward; Warren carrying a rod of gold with a dove on it; Ernshy with a crown and sceptre; the Queen; [Princess Eleanor] with the Fair Maid of Fressinyield on her left hand; King Henry; Bacon; with other lords attending.

P. Edw. Great potentates, earth's miracles for state,
Think that Prince Edward humbles at your feet,
And, for these favours, on his martial sword
He vows perpetual homage to yourselves,
Yielding these honours unto Eleanor. 6
K. Hen. Gramercies, lording; old Plantagenet,
That rules and sways the Albion diadem,
With tears discovers these conceived joys,
And vows requital, if his men-at-arms,
The wealth of England, or due honours done
To Eleanor, may quite his favours,
But all this while what say you to the dames
That shine like to the crystal lamps of heaven?
Emp. If but a third were added to these two,
They did surpass those gorgeous images. 15
That gloried Ida with rich beauty's wealth.
Mar. 'Tis I, my lords, who humbly on my knee
Must yield her orisons to mighty Jove
For lifting up his handmaid to this state,
Brought from her homely cottage to the court,
And grac'd with kings, princes, and emperors;
To whom (next to the noble Lincoln Earl)
I vow obedience, and such humble love
As may a handmaid to such mighty men.

P. Elin. Thou martial man that wears the Almain crown,
And you the western potentates of might,
The Albion princess, English Edward's wife,
Proud that the lovely star of Fressinyield,
Fair Margaret, Countess to the Lincoln Earl,
Attends on Eleanor, — gramercies, lord, for her,—
'Tis I give thanks for Margaret to you all,
And rest for her due bounden to yourselves.
K. Hen. Seeing the marriage is solemnized,
Let's march in triumph to the royal feast,—
But why stands Friar Bacon here so mute? 35

Bacon. Repentant for the follies of my youth,
That magic's secret mysteries mislead,
And joyful that this royal marriage
Portends such bliss unto this matchless realm.
What strange event shall happen to this land?
Or what shall grow from Edward and his queen?
Bacon. I find by deep prescience of mine art,
Which once I temp'red in my secret cell,
That here where Brute did build his Troyo-vant,
From forth the royal garden of a king
Shall flourish out so rich and fair a bud
Whose brightness shall deface proud Phæbus' flower,
And over-shadow Albion with her leaves.
Till then Mars shall be master of the field,
But then the stormy threats of wars shall cease:
The horse shall stamp as careless of the plume,
Drums shall be turn'd to timbrels of delight;
With wealthy favours plenty shall enrich
The strand that gladded wading Brute to see,
And peace from heaven shall harbour in these leaves
That gorgeous beautifies this matchless flower:
Apollo's heliotropion then shall stoop,
And Venus' hyacinth shall vail her top;
Juno shall shut her gillyflowers up,
And Pallas' bay shall 'bash her brightest green;
Ceres' carnation, in consort with those,
Shall stoop and wonder at Diana's rose.
K. Hen. This prophecy is mystical.
But, glorious commanders of Europa's love,
That make fair England like that wealthy isle
Circled with Gihon and [swift] 4 Euphrates,
In royalizing Henry's Albion
With presence of your princely mightiness,—
Let's march: the tables all are spread,
And viands, such as England's wealth afford,
Are ready set to furnish out the boards.
You shall have welcome, mighty potentates:
It rests to furnish up this royal feast,
Only your hearts be frolic; for the time
Craves that we taste of naught but jouissance.
Thus glories England over all the west.

Omne tulit punctum qui miscuit utile dulci.

THE PROLOGUE

From jigging veins of rhyming mother wits,
And such conceits as clownage keeps in pay,
We'll lead you to the stately tent of war,
Where you shall hear the Scythian Tamburlaine
Threat'ning the world with high astounding terms,
And scourging kingdoms with his conquering sword.
View but his picture in this tragic glass,
And then applaud his fortunes as you please.

ACT I

SCENE I.

[Enter] MYCETES, COSROE, MEANDER, THERIDAMAS, ORTYGIGUS, CENEUS, [MENAPHON,] with others.

MYC. Brother Cosroe, I find myself aggriev'd,
Yet insufficient to express the same,
For it requires a great and thund'ring speech:
Good brother, tell the cause unto my lords;
I know you have a better wit than I.

COS. Unhappy Persia, that in former age
Hast been the seat of mighty conquerors,
That, in their prowess and their policies,
Have triumph'd over Afric and the bounds
Of Europe, where the sun dares scarce appear to
For freezing meteors and congealed cold,
Now to be rule'd and governed by a man
At whose birthday Cynthia with Saturn join'd,
And Jove, the Sun, and Mercury denied
To shed [their] influence in his fickle brain!
Now Turks and Tartars shake their swords at thee,
Meaning to mangle all thy provinces.

MYC. Brother, I see your meaning well enough,
And through your planets I perceive you think
I am not wise enough to be a king;
But I refer me to my noblemen
That know my wit, and can be witnesses.
I might command you to be slain for this:
Meander, might I not?

MEAND. Not for so small a fault, my sovereign
lord.

MYC. I mean it not, but yet I know I might;
Yet live; yea, live, Mycetes wills it so.

MEAND. Thou, me, my faithful counsellor,
Declare what caused my conceived grief,
Which is, God knows, about that Tamburlaine,
That, like a fox in midst of harvest time,
Doth prey upon my flocks of passengers;
And, as I hear, doth mean to pull my plumes:
Therefore 'tis good and meet for to be wise.

MEAND. Oft have I heard your majesty complain
Of Tamburlaine, that sturdy Scythian thief,
That robs your merchants of Persepolis
Trading by land unto the Western Isles,
And in your confines with his lawless train
Daily commits incivill outrages,
Hoping (misled by dreaming prophecies)
To reign in Asia, and with barbarous arms

1 Uncivilized.
To make himself the monarch of the East;
But ere he march in Asia, or display
His vagrant ensign in the Persian fields,
Your grace hath taken order by Theridamas,
Charg’d with a thousand horse, to apprehend
And bring him captive to your highness’ throne.

Myc. Full true thou speak’st, and like thyself,
By my lord,
Whom I may term a Damon for thy love:
Therefore ’tis best, if so it like you all,
To send my thousand horse incontinent
To apprehend that paltry Scythian,
How like you this, my honourable lords?
Is it not a kingly resolution?

Cos. It cannot choose, because it comes from you.

Myc. Then hear thy charge, valiant Theridamas,
The chiefest captain of Mycestes’ host,
The hope of Persia, and the very legs
Whereon our state doth lean as on a staff,
That holds us up, and foils our neighbour foes.
Thou shalt be leader of this thousand horse,
Whose foaming gall with rage and high disdain
Have sworn the death of wicked Tamburlaine.
Go frowning forth; but come thou smiling home,
As did Sir Paris with the Grecian dame;
Return with speed—time passeth swift away;
Our life is frail, and we may die to-day.
Ther. Before the moon renew her borrowed light,
Doubt not, my lord and gracious sovereign;
But Tamburlaine and that Tartarian rout,
Shall either perish by our warlike hands,
Or plead for mercy at your highness’ feet.

Myc. Go, stout Theridamas, thy words are swords,
And with thy looks thou conquerest all thy foes;
I long to see thee back return from thence,
That I may view these milk-white steeds of mine
All loaded with the heads of killed men,
And from their knees even to their hoofs below
Besmeard’d with blood that makes a dainty show.

Ther. Then now, my lord, I humbly take my leave.

Myc. Theridamas, farewell! ten thousand times.

Theridamas.

Ah, Menaphon, why stay’st thou thus behind,
When other men press forward for renown?
Go, Menaphon, go into Scythia;
And foot by foot follow Theridamas.

Cos. Nay, pray you let him stay; a greater task
Fits Menaphon than warring with a thief.
Create him Prore克斯 of all Africa,
That he may win the Babylonians’ hearts
Which will revolt from Persian government,
Unless they have a wiser king than you.

Myc. “Unless they have a wiser king than you!”
These are his words; Meander, set them down.
Cos. And add this to them—that all Asia
Laments to see the folly of their king.

Myc. Well, here I swear by this my royal seat, —
Cos. You may do well to kiss it then.

Myc. Emboss’d with silk as best beseems
To be reveng’d for these contemptuous words.
Oh, where is duty and allegiance now?
Fled to the Caspian or the Ocean main?
What shall I call thee? Brother?—No, a foe;
Monster of nature! Shame unto thy stock!
That dar’st presume thy sovereign for to mock!
Meander, come: I am abus’d, Meander.

Exeunt all but Cosroe and Menaphon.

Men. How now, my lord? What, mated and amaz’d.
To hear the king thus threaten like himself!
Cos. Ah, Menaphon, I pass not for his threats;
The plot is laid by Persian noblemen
And captains of the Median garrisons
To crown me Emperor of Asia;
But this it is that doth excruciate
The very substance of my vexed soul —
To see our neighbours that were wont to quake
And tremble at the Persian monarch’s name,
Now sit and laugh our regiment
And that which might resolve me into tears,
Men from the farthest equinoctial line
Have swarm’d in troops into the Eastern India,
Lading their ships with gold and precious stones,
And made their spoils from all our provinces.

Men. This should entreat your highness to rejoice,
Since Fortune gives you opportunity
To gain the title of a conqueror
By curing of this maimed empery,
Africa and Europe bordering on your land,
And continent to your dominions,
How easily may you, with a mighty host,
Pass into Greece, as did Cyrus once,
And cause them to withdraw their forces home,
Lest you subdue the pride of Christendom.

[Trumpet within.]

Cos. But, Menaphon, what means this trumpet’s sound?
Men. Behold, my lord, Ortygius and the rest Bringing the crown to make you Emperor!

Enter Ortygius and Cenbus bearing a crown with others.

Orty. Magnificent and mighty Prince Cosroe,
We, in the name of other Persian states
And commons of this mighty monarchy,
Present thee with the imperial diadem.

Cen. The warlike soldiers and the gentlemen,
That heretofore have fill’d Persopolis
With Afric captains taken in the field,
Whose ransom made them march in coats of gold,
With costly jewels hanging at their ears,
And shining stones upon their lofty crests,
Now living idle in the walled towns,
Wanting both pay and martial discipline,
Begin in troops to threaten civil war,

1 Confounded.
2 Vicerey.
3 Care.
4 Dissolve.
5 Persons of state.
And openly exclaim against the king:
Therefore, to stay all sudden mutinies,
We will invest your highness Emperor, Whereat the soldiers will conceive more joy Than did the Macedonians at the spoil Of great Darius and his wealthy host.
Cos. Well, since I see the state of Persia droop.

And languish in my brother's government, I willingly receive th' imperial crown, And vow to wear it for my country's good, In spite of them shall make my estate.
Orty. And in assurance of desir'd success, We here do crown thee monarch of the East, Emperor of Asia and Persia; Great Lord of Media and Armenia; Duke of Africa and Albania, Mesopotamia and of Parthia, East India and the late-discovered isles; Chief Lord of all the wide, vast Euxine sea, And of the ever-raging Caspian lake.
Long live Cosroe, mighty Emperor! Cos. And Jove may never let me longer live Than I may seek to gratify your love.
And cause the soldiers that thus honour me To triumph over many provinces! By whose desires of discipline in arms I doubt not shortly but to reign sole king, And with the army of Theridamas, (Whither we presently will fly, my lords) To rest secure against my brother's force. Orty. We knew, my lord, before we brought the crown, Intending your investiture so near.
The residence of your desipied brother, The lords would not be too exasperate To injure or suppress your worthy title; Or, if they would, there are in readiness Ten thousand horse to carry you from hence, In spite of all suspected enemies.
Cos. I know it well, my lord, and thank you all.
Orty. Sound up the trumpets then, God save the King! [Trumpets sound.] Exeunt.

SCENE II.

[Enter] Tamburlaine leading Zencrate, Techelles, Usumarcan, [Agydas, Magnetis] and other Lords, and Soldiers, laden with treasure.

Tamb. Come, lady, let not this appal your thoughts;
The jewels and the treasure we have tak'en Shall be reserv'd, and you in better state, Than if you were arriv'd in Syria, Even in the circle of your father's arms,
The mighty Soldan of Egyptia.
Zeno. Ah, shepherd! pity my distressed plight,
(If, as thou seest, thou art so mean a man,) And say not to enrich thy followers By lawless rapine from a silly maid, Who travelling with these Median lords To Memphis, from my uncle's country, Media,

Where all my youth I have been governed, Have pass'd the army of the mighty Turk, Bearing his privy signet and his hand To safe conduct us thorough Africa.
Mag. And since we have arriv'd in Seythia, Besides rich presents from the puissant Cham, We have his highness' letters to command Aid and assistance, if we stand in need.

Tamb. But now you see these letters and commands. Are countermanded by a greater man; And through my provinces you must expect Letters of conduct from my mightiness, If you intend to keep your treasure safe. But, since I love to live at liberty, As easily may you get the Soldan's crown As any prizes out of my precinct; For they are friends that help to wean my state Till men and kingdoms help to strengthen it, And must maintain my life exempt from servitude.—

But, tell me, madam, is your grace betroth'd? Zeno. I am — my lord — for so you do import.

Tamb. I am a lord, for so my deeds shall prove: And yet a shepherd by my parentage.
But, lady, this fair face and heavenly hue Must grace his bed that conquers Asia, And means to be a terror to the world, Measuring the limits of his empire By east and west, as Phoebus doth his course. Lie here ye weeds that I disdain to wear! This complete armour and this curtle-axe Are adjuncts more beseeing Tamburlaine. And, madam, whatsoever you esteem Of this success and loss unvalued, Both may invest you Empress of the East; And these that seem but silly country swains May have the leading of so great an host, As with their weight shall make the mountains quake, Even as when windy exhalations Fighting for passage, tilt within the earth. Tech. As princely lions, when they rouse themselves, Stretching their paws, and threat'ning herds of beasts, So in his armour looketh Tamburlaine.

Methinks I see kings kneeling at his feet, And he with frowning brows and fiery looks, Spurning their crowns from off their captive heads.
Usum. And making thee and me, Techelles, kings, That even to death will follow Tamburlaine.

Tamb. Nobly resolv'd, sweet friends and followers! These lords, perhaps do scorn our estimates, And think we prattle with distempered spirits; But since they measure out deserts so mean, That in conceit bear empires on our spears, Affecting thoughts coequal with the clouds, 55

1 May Jove.
2 Investiture.
3 Early edd. read of Medea.
4 The curtle-axe (Fr. coutelasse) was not an axe, but a short curved sword, the modern cutlass.
5 Invaluable.
They shall be kept our forced followers,
Till with their eyes they view us emperors.
Zeno. The gods, defenders of the innocent,
Will never pass your intended drifts,
That thus oppress poor friendless passengers. 79
Therefore at least admit us liberty,
Even as thou hop'st to be eternised,
By living Asia's mighty Emperor.

Agd. I hope our lady's treasure and our own
May serve for ransom to our liberties. 78
Return our mules and empty camels back,
That we may travel into Syria,
Where her betrothed lord Alcidesams,
Expects th' arrival of her highness' person.

Mag. And wheresoe'er we repose ourselves, 80
We will report but well of Tamburlaine.

Tamb. Disdains Zenoerate to live with me?
Or you, my lords, to be my followers?
Think you I weigh this treasure more than you?
Not all the gold in India's wealthy arms 82
Shall buy the meanest soldier in my train.
Zenoerate, lovelier than the love of Jove,
Brighter than is the silver Rhodope.
Fairer than whitest snow on Scythian hills, —
Thy person is more worth to Tamburlaine, 90
Than the possession of the Persian crown,
Which gracious stars have promis'd at my birth.
A hundred Tartars shall attend on thee,
Mounted on steeds swifter than Pegasus;
Thy garments shall be made of Median silk, 92
Enchas'd with precious jewels of mine own,
More rich and valuable than Zenoerate's.
With milk-white harts upon an ivory sled,
Thou shalt be drawn amidst the frozen pools,
And scale the icy mountains' lofty tops,
Which with thy beauty will soon resolv'd.

My martial prizes with five hundred men,
Won on the fifty-headed Volga's waves,
Shall we all offer to Zenoerate, —
And then myself to fair Zenoerate. 100

Tech. What now! — in love?

Tamb. Techelles, women must be flattered;
But this is she with whom I am in love.

Enter a Soldier.

Sold. News! news!

Tamb. How now, what's the matter? 110

Sold. A thousand Persian horsemen are at hand.

Sent from the king to overcome us all.

Tamb. How now, my lords of Egypt, and Zenoerate!

How! — must your jewels be restor'd again,
And that triumph'd so be overcome? 112

How say you, lords, — is not this your hope?

Agd. We hope yourself will willingly restore

Tamb. Such hope, such fortune, have the thousand horse.

Soft ye, my lords, and sweet Zenoerate!

You must be forced from me ere you go. 120

A thousand horsemen! — We five hundred foot! —

An odds too great for us to stand against.

But are they rich? And is their armour good?

Sold. Their plumed helms are wrought with beaten gold,

Their swords enamell'd, and about their necks
Hangs massy chains of gold, down to the waist,
In every part exceeding brave and rich.

Tamb. Then shall we fight courageously with them?

Or look you I should play the orator?

Tech. No; cowards and faint-hearted runaways.

Look for orations when the foe is near.

Our swords shall play the orator for us.

Usum. Come! let us meet them at the mountain foot.

And with a sudden and an hot alarm,

Drive all their horses headlong down the hill. 130

Tech. Come, let us march!

Tamb. Stay, Techelles! ask a parley first.

The Soldiers enter.

Open the mails, 3 yet guard the treasure sure;
Lay out our golden wedges to the view,
That their reflections may amaze the Persians;

And look we friendly on them when they come;
But if they offer word or violence,
We'll fight five hundred men-at-arms to one,
Before we part with our possession.

And 'gainst the general we will lift our swords,
And either lance his greedy thirsting throat,
Or take him prisoner, and his chain shall serve

For manacles, till he be ransom'd home.

Tech. I hear them come; shall we encounter them?

Tamb. Keep all your standings and not stir a foot,

Myself will ride the danger of the brunt.

Enter Thebidamas with others.

Ther. Where is this Scythian Tamburlaine?

Tamb. Whom seek' st thou, Persian? — I am Tamburlaine.

Ther. Tamburlaine! —

A Scythian shepherd so embellish'd

With nature's pride and richest furniture!

His looks do menace Heaven and dare the gods:
His fiery eyes are fix'd upon the earth,
As if he now devis'd some stratagem,
Or meant to pierce Avernus' darksome vaults
To pull the triple-headed dog from hell.

Tamb. Noble and mild this Persian seems to be,

If outward habit judge the inward man.

Tech. His deep affections make him passionate.

Tamb. With what a majesty he rears his looks!

In thee, thou valiant man of Persia,
I see the folly of thy emperor.

Art thou but captain of a thousand horse,
That by characters grave'n in thy brows,
And by thy martial face and stout aspect,
Deserv' st to have the leading of an host!

Porsake thy king, and do but join with me,
And we will triumph over all the world.

I hold the Fates bound fast in iron chains,

1 Valuable.

2 Fine.

3 Trunks.
And with my hand turn Fortune's wheel about:
And sooner shall the sun fall from his sphere
Than Tamburlaine be slain or overcome.
Draw forth thy sword, thou mighty man-at-arms,
Intending but to raze my charmed skin,
And Jove himself will stretch his hand from Heaven
To ward the blow and shield me safe from harm.
See how he rains down heaps of gold in showers,
As if he meant to give my soldiers pay!
And as a sure and grounded argument,
That I shall be the monarch of the East,
He sends this Soldan's daughter rich and brave,
To be my Queen and portly Empress.
If thou wilt stay with me, renowned man,
And lead thy thousand horse with my conduct,
Besides thy share of this Egyptian prise,
Those thousand horse shall sweat with martial spoil
Of conquered kingdoms and of cities sack'd.
Both we will walk upon the lofty cliffs,
And Christian merchants that with Russian stems
Plough up huge furrows in the Caspian sea,
Shall vail* to us, as lords of all the lake.
Both we will reign as consuls of the earth,
And mighty kings shall be our senators.
Jove sometimes masked in a shepherd's weed,
And by those steps that he hath seal'd the Heavens
May we become immortal like the gods.
Join with me now in this my mean estate,
(I call it mean because, being yet obscure,
The nations far remov'd admirer me not,)
And when my name and honour shall be spread
As far as Boreas claps his brazen wings,
Or fair Boötes sends his cheerful light,
Then shalt thou be competitor* with me,
And sit with Tamburlaine in all his majesty.
Theridamas, prolocutor to the gods,
Could use persuasions more pathetical.
Tamb. Nor are Apollo's oracles more true,
Than thou shalt find my vaunts substantial.
Tech. We are his friends, and if the Persian king
Should offer present dukedoms to our state,
We think it loss to make exchange for that
We are asur'd of by our friend's success.
Usum. And kingdoms at the least we all expect,
Besides the honour in assured conquests,
Where kings shall crowne unto our conquering swords
And hosts of soldiers stand amaz'd at us;
When with their fearful tongues they shall confess
These are the men that all the world admires.
Ther. What strong enchantments bless my yielding soul!
Are these resolved nobles Scythians?
But shall I prove a traitor to my king?
Tamb. No, but the trusty friend of Tamburlaine.

1 Merchantmen. 2 Partner. 3 Lower their flags. 4 Early ed. noble.

Ther. Won with thy words, and conquered with thy looks,
I yield myself, my men, and horse to thee,
To be partaker of thy good or ill,
As long as life maintains Theridamas.
Tamb. Theridamas, my friend, take here my hand,
Which is as much as if I swore by Heaven
And call'd the gods to witness of my vow.
Thus shall my heart be still combin'd with thine,
Until our bodies turn to elements,
And both our souls aspire celestial thrones.
Techelles and Casane, welcome him!
Tech. Welcome, renowned Persian, to us all!
Usun. Long may Theridamas remain with us!
Tamb. These are my friends, in whom I more rejoice.
That doth the King of Persia in his crown,
And by the love of Pylades and Orestes,
Whose statues we adore in Scythia,
Thyself and them shall never part from me
Before I crown you kings in Asia.
Make much of them, gentle Theridamas,
And they will never leave thee till the death.
Ther. Nor thee nor them, thrice noble Tamburlaine,
Shall want my heart to be with gladness pierc'd
To do you honour and security.
Tamb. A thousand thanks, worthy Theridamas.
And now fair madam, and my noble lords,
If you will willingly remain with me
You shall have honours as your merits be;
Or else you shall be fore'd with slavery.
Agyl. We yield unto thee, happy Tamburlaine.
Tamb. For you then, madam, I am out of doubt.
Zeno. I must be pleas'd perfidious, Wretched Zenocrate!

ACT II

SCENE I.

[Enter] Cosroes, Menaphon, Ortygius, Cenus, with other Soldiers.

Cos. Thus far we are towards Theridamas,
And valiant Tamburlaine, the man of fame,
The man that in the forehead of his fortune
Bears figures of renown and miracle.
But tell me, that last seem him, Menaphon,
What stature yields he, and what personage?

Men. Of stature tall, and straightly fashioned,
Like his desire, lift upwards and divine;
So large of limbs, his joints so strongly knit,
Such breadth of shoulders as might mainly bear
Old Atlas' burden; 'twixt his manly pitch,
A pearl, more worth than all the world, is plac'd,

5 Originally the height to which a falcon soared; hence for height in general. Here it means the shou-
Wherein by curious sovereignty of art
Are fix'd his piercing instruments of sight,
Whose fiery circles bear encompassed
A heaven of heavenly bodies in their spheres,
That guides his steps and actions to the throne,
Where honour sits invested royally:
Pale of complexion, wrought in him with passion,
Thirsting with sovereignty and love of arms; 30
His lofty brows in folds do figure death,
And in their smoothness, amity and life;
About them hangs a knot of amber hair,
Wrapped in curls, as fierce Achilles' was,
On which the breath of Heaven delights to play,
Making it dance with wanton majesty.
His arms and fingers, long, and sinewy, 1
Betokening valour and excess of strength —
In every part proportioned like the man
Should make the world subdu'd to Tamburlaine.

Cos. Well hast thou pourtray'd in thy terms of life.
The face and personage of a wondrous man;
Nature doth survive with Fortune and his stars
To make him famous in accomplish'd worth;
And well his merits show him to be made 33
His fortune's master and the king of men,
That could persuade at such a sudden pinch,
With reasons of his valour and his life,
A thousand sworn and overmatching foes.
Then, when our powers in points of swords are join'd
And close'd in compass of the killing bullet,
Though strait the passage and the port be made
That leads to palace of my brother's life,
Proud is his fortune if we pierce it not.
And when the princely Persian diadem
Shall overweigh his weary wistless head,
And fall like mellowed fruit with shakes of death,
In fair Persia, noble Tamburlaine
Shall be my regent and remain as king.

Orty. In happy hour we have set the crown
Upon your kingly head, that seeks our honour
In joining with the man ordain'd by Heaven,
To further every action to the best.

Cen. He that with shepherds and a little spoil
Durst, in disdain of wrong and tyranny,
Defend his freedom against a monarchy,
What will he do supported by a king,
Leading a troop of gentlemen and lords,
And stuff'd with treasure for his highest thoughts!

Cos. And such shall wait upon worthy Tamburlaine.
Our army will be forty thousand strong,
When Tamburlaine and brave Theridamas
Have met us by the river Aras;
And all conjoin'd to meet the wittest king,
That now is marching near to Parthias;
And with unwilling soldiers faintly arm'd,
To seek revenge on me and Tamburlaine,
To whom, sweet Menaphon, direct me straight.

Men. I will, my lord.

Scene II.

[Enter] MYCETES, MEANDER, with other Lords and Soldiers.

Myc. Come, my Meander, let us to this gear.
I tell you true, my heart is swolen with wrath
On this same thievish villain, Tamburlaine,
And on that false Cosroe, my traitorous brother.
Would it not grieve a king to be so abus'd 5
And have a thousand horsemen t'ain away?
And, which is worst, to have his diadem
Sought for by such scandal knaves as love him not?
I think it would; well then, by Heavens I swear,
Aurora shall not peep out of her doors,
But I will have Cosroe by the head,
And kill proud Tamburlaine with point of sword.
Tell you the rest, Meander; I have said.

Meand. Then having past Armenian deserts

And pitch'd our tents under the Georgian hills,
Whose tops are covered with Tartarian thieves,
That lie in ambush, waiting for a prey,
What should we do but bid them battle straight,
And rid the world of those detested troops?
Lest, if we let them linger here awhile,
They gather strength by power of fresh supplies.

This country swarms with vile outrageous men
That live by rapine and by lawless spoil,
Fit soldiers for the wicked Tamburlaine;
And he that could with gifts and promises
Invigle him that led a thousand horse,
And make him false his faith unto his king,
Will quickly win such as are like himself.
Therefore cheer up your minds; prepare to fight;
He that can take or slaughter Tamburlaine
Shall rule the province of Albania:
Who brings that traitor's head, Theridamas,
Shall have a government in Media,
Beside the spoil of him and all his train:
But if Cosroe, (as our spairs say)
And as we know) remains with Tamburlaine,
His hightness' pleasure is that he should live,
And be reclaim'd with princely lenity.

[Enter a Spy.]

A Spy. A hundred horsemen of my company
Scouting abroad upon these champaign plains
Have view'd the army of the Scythians,
Which make reports it far exceede the king's.

Meand. Suppose they he in number infinite,
Yet being void of martial discipline
All running headlong after greedy spoils,
And more regarding gain than victory,
Like to the cruel brothers of the earth,
Sprung of the teeth of dragons venomous,
Their careless swords shall lance their fellows' throats,
And make us triumph in their overthrow.
Myc. Was there such brethren, sweet Meander, say,
That sprung of teeth of dragons venomous?
Meand. So poets say, my lord.
Myc. And 'tis a pretty toy to be a poet.
Well, well, Meander, thou art deeply read,
And having thee, I have a jewel sure.
Go on, my lord, and give your charge, I say;
Thy wit will make us conquerors to-day.
Meand. Then, noble soldiers, to entrap these thieves,
That live confounded in disordered troops,
If wealth or riches may prevail with them,
We have our camels laden all with gold,
Which you that be but common soldiers
Shall fling in every corner of the field;
And while the base-born Tartars take it up,
You, fighting more for honour than for gold,
Shall massacre those greedy-minded slaves;
And when their scattered army is subdued,
And you march on their slaughtered carcases,
Share equally the gold that bought their lives,
And live like gentlemen in Persia.
Strike up the drum and march courageously!
Fortune herself doth sit upon our crests.
Myc. He tells you true, my masters: so he does.
Drums, why sound ye not, when Meander speaks?

Scene III.
[Enter] Cosroe, Tamburlaine, Theridamas, Techelles, Usumcasane, and Ortygius, with others.
Cos. Now, worthy Tamburlaine, have I repos'd
In thy approved fortunes all my hope.
What think'st thou, man, shall come of our attempts?
For even as from assured oracle,
I take thy doom for satisfaction.
Tamb. And so mistake you not a whit, my lord;
For fates and oracles [of] Heaven have sworn
To royalise the deeds of Tamburlaine,
And make them blest that share in his attempts.
And doubt you not but, if you favour me,
And let my fortunes and my valor sway
To some direction in your martial deeds,
The world will strive with hosts of men-at-arms,
To swarm unto the ensign I support:
The host of Xerxes, which by fame is said
To drink the mighty Parthian Arar,
Was but a handful to that we will have.
Our quivering lances, shaking in the air,
And bullets, like Jove's dreadful thunderbolts,
Enroll'd in flames and fiery smouldering mists,
Shall threat the gods more than Cyclopian wars:
And with our sun-bright armour as we march,
We'll chase the stars from Heaven and dim their eyes
That stand and muse at our admired arms.
Ther. You see, my lord, what working words he hath;

But when you see his actions [top] 1 his speech,
Your speech will stay or so extol his worth
As I shall be commended and excul'd
For turning my poor charge to his direction.
And these his two renowned friends, my lord,
Would make one thirst and strive to be retain'd
In such a great degree of amity.
Tech. With duty and with amity we yield
Our utmost service to the fair Cosroe.
Cos. Which I esteem as portion of my crown.
Usumcasane and Techelles both,
When she 2 that rules in Rhammus' golden gates,
And makes a passage for all prosperous arms,
Shall make me solely Emperor of Asia,
Then shall your needs and valours be advance'd
To rooms of honour and nobility.
Tamb. Then haste, Cosroe, to be king alone,
That I with these, my friends, and all my men
May triumph in our long-expected fate.
The king, your brother, is now hard at hand;
Meet with the fool, and rid your royal shoulders
Of such a burden as outweighs the sands
And all the craggy rocks of Caspia.

[Enter a Messenger.]
Mes. My lord, we have discovered the enemy
Ready to charge you with a mighty army.
Cos. Come, Tamburlaine! now whet thy winged sword,
And lift thy lofty arm into the clouds,
That it may reach the King of Persia's crown,
And set it safe on my victorious head.
Tamb. See where it is, the keenest cuttle-axe
That e'er made passage thorough Persian arms.
These are the wings shall make it fly as swift
As doth the lightning or the breath of Heaven,
And kill as sure as it swiftly flies.
Cos. Thy words assure me of kind success;
Go, valiant soldier, go before and charge
The fainting army of that foolish king.
Tamb. Usumcasane and Techelles, come!
We are even to scarce the bloody ground
And more than needs to make an emperor.

[Exit] to the battle.

Scene IV.
Myoetes comes out alone with his crown in his hand, offering to hide it.
Myc. Accurs'd be he that first invented war!
They knew not, ah, they knew not, simple men,
How those were hit by pelting cannon shot,
Stand staggering like a quivering aspen leaf
Fearing the force of Boreas' boisterous blasts.
In what a lamentable case were I
If Nature had not given me wisdom's lore!
For kings are clouts 3 that every man shoots at,
Our crown the pin 4 that thousands seek to cleave;
1 Surpass. Early edd. read stop.
2 Nemesis, who had a temple in Adicia.
(Bullen.)
3 The white mark in the target at which the archers aimed.
4 The peg in the centre which fastened the clout.
Therefore in policy I think it good 10
To hide it close; a goodly stratagem,
And far from any man that is a fool:
So shall I not be known; or if I be,
They cannot take away my crown from me.
Here will I hide it in this simple hole. 15

Enter Tamburlaine.

Tamb. What, fearful coward, straggling from the camp?

When kings themselves are present in the field?
Myc. Thou liest.
Tamb. Base villain! darest thou give the lie?
Myc. Away; I am the king; go; touch me not.

Thou breakst at the law of arms, unless thou kneel
And cry me "mercy, noble king."
Tamb. Are you the witty King of Persia?
Myc. Ay, marry am I: have you any suit to
me?
Tamb. I would entreat you speak but three wise words.
Myc. So I can when I see my time.
Tamb. Is this your crown?
Myc. Ay, didst thou ever see a fairer?
Tamb. You will not sell it, will you?
Myc. Such another word and I will have 25 thee executed. Come, give it me!
Tamb. No; I took it prisoner.
Myc. You lie; I gave it you.
Tamb. Then 'tis mine.
Myc. No; I mean let me keep it.
Tamb. Well; I mean you shall have it again.
Here; take it for a while: I lend it thee,
'Till I may see thee hemm'd with armed men;
Then shalt thou see me pull it from thy head:
Thou art no match for mighty Tamburlaine. 35

Myc. O gods! Is this Tamburlaine the thief?
I marvel much he stole it not away.
Trumpets sound to the battle, and he runs in.

[Scene V.]

Enter Cosroe, Tamburlaine, Theridamas,
Menaphon, Meander, Ortygius, Techelles,
Usumcasane, with others

Tamb. Hold thee, Cosroe! wear two imperial crowns:
Think thee invested now as royally,
Even by the mighty hand of Tamburlaine,
As if as many kings as could encompass thee 4
With greatest pomp, had crown'd thee emperor.
Cos. So do I, thrice renowned man-at-arms,
And none shall keep the crown but Tamburlaine.

Thee do I make my regent of Persia,
And general lieutenant of my armies,
Meander, you, that were our brother's guide,
And chiefest counsellor in all his acts,
Since he is yielded to the stroke of war,
On your submission we with thanks excuse,
And give you equal place in our affairs.
Meand. Most happy Emperor, in humblest
terms, 5

I vow my service to your majesty,
With utmost virtue of my faith and duty.
Cos. Thanks, good Meander: then, Cosroe, reign,
And govern Persia in her former pomp!
Now send embassage to thy neighbour kings,
And let them know the Persian king is chang'd,
From one that knew not what a king should do,
To one that can command what 'longs thereto.
And now we will to fair Persepolis,
With twenty thousand expert soldiers.
The lords and captains of my brother's camp
With little slaughter take Meander's course,
And gladly yield them to my gracious rule.
Ortygius and Menaphon, my trusty friends,
Now will I gratify your former good,
And grace your calling with a greater sway.
Orty. And as we ever aim'd at your behoof,
And sought your state all honour it deserv'd,
So will we with our powers and our lives
Endeavour to preserve and prosper it. 35
Cos. I will not thank thee, sweet Ortygius;
Better replies shall prove my purposes.
And now, Lord Tamburlaine, my brother's champ
I leave to thee and to Theridamas,
To follow me to fair Persepolis.
Then will we march to all those Indian mines,
My witty brother to the Christians lost,
And ransom them with fame and usury.
And till thou overtake me, Tamburlaine,
(Staying to order all the scattered troops,)
Farewell, lord regent and his happy friends!
I long to sit upon my brother's throne.
Meand. Your majesty shall shortly have your wish,
And ride in triumph through Persepolis.
Exeunt all but Tamburlaine, Techelles,
Theridamas, and Usumcasane.

Tamb. "And ride in triumph through Persepolis!"

Is it not brave to be a king, Techelles?
Usumcasane and Theridamas;
Is it not passing brave to be a king,
"And ride in triumph through Persepolis"?
Tech. O, my lord, 'tis sweet and full of pomp.
Usum. To be a king is half to be a god. 45
Ther. A god is not so glorious as a king.
I think the pleasure they enjoy in Heaven,
Cannot compare with kingly joys in earth.
To wear a crown enchas'd with pearl and gold,
Whose virtues carry with it life and death; 51
To ask and have, command and be obey'd;
When looks breed love, with looks to gain the prize,—

Such power attractive shines in princes' eyes!
Tamb. Why say, Theridamas, wilt thou be a
king? 55
Ther. Nay, though I praise it, I can live without
it.
Tamb. What says my other friends? Will you be kings?
Tech. I, if I could, with all my heart, my lord.
Tamb. Why, that's well said, Techelles; so would I,
And so would you, my masters, would you not?
Usum. What then, my lord? 71
Tamb. Why then, Casane, shall we wish for aught
The world afford in greatest novelty,
And rest attemptless, faint, and destitute?
Methinks we should not: I am strongly mov'd,
That if I should desire the Persian crown,
I could attain it with a wondrous ease.
And would not all our soldiers soon consent,
If we should aim at such a dignity?
Ther. I know they would with our persuasions.
Tamb. Why then, Theridamas, I'll first assay
To get the Persian kingdom to myself;
Then thou for Parthia; they for Scythia and Media;
And, if I prosper, all shall be as sure
As if the Turk, the pope, Afric, and Greece, 56
Came creeping to us with their crowds above. 1
Tech. Then shall we send to this triumphing king,
And bid him battle for his novel crown?
Usum. Nay, quickly then, before his room be hot.
Tamb. 'T will prove a pretty jest, in faith, my friends. 90
Ther. A jest to charge on twenty thousand men!
I judge the purchase more important far.
Tamb. Judge by thyself, Theridamas, not me;
For presently Techelles here shall haste
To bid him battle ere he pass too far,
And lose more labour than the game will quire. 4
Then shalt thou see this Scythian Tamburlaine
Make but a jest to win the Persian crown.
Techelles, take a thousand horse with thee,
And bid him turn him back to war with us,
That only made him king to make us sport.
We will not steal upon him cowardly,
But give him warning and more warriors.
Haste thee, Techelles; we will follow thee.
What saith Theridamas? 105
Ther. Go on for me. Exeunt.

SCENE VI.

[Enter Cosroes, Meander, Ortygius, Mephon, with other Soldiers.

Cos. What means this devilish shepherd to aspire
With such a gigantic presumption
To cast up hils against the face of Heaven,
And dare the force of angry Jupiter?
But as he thrust them underneath the hills,
And press'd out fire from their burning jaws,
So will I send this monstrous slave to hell,
Where flames shall ever feed upon his soul.
Meand. Some powers divine, or else infernal, mix'd
Their angry seeds at his conception;
For he was never sprung of human race,
Since with the spirit of his fearful pride
He dare so doubtlessly resolve of rule,
And by profession be ambitious.
Orty. What god, or fiend, or spirit of the earth,
Or monster turned to a manly shape,
Or of what mould or mettle he be made,
What star or state soever govern him,
Let us put on our meet encountering minds
And in detesting such a devilish thief,
In love of honour and defence of right,
Be arm'd against the hate of such a foe,
Whether from earth, or hell, or Heaven, he grow.
Cos. Nobly resolv'd, my good Ortygius;
And since we all have suck'd one wholesome air,
And with the same proportion of elements
Resolve, I hope we are resembled,
Vowing our loves to equal death and life.
Let's cheer our soldiers to encounter him,
That grievous image of ingratitude,
That fiery thirster after sovereignty,
And burn him in the fury of that flame,
That none can quench but blood and empery.
Resolve, my lords and loving soldiers, now
To save your king and country from decay.
Then strike up, drum; and all the stars that make
The lostsome circle of my dated life,
Direct my weapon to his barbarous heart,
That thus oppress him against the gods,
And scour the powers that govern Persia!
[Exeunt.]

[Scene VII.]

Enter to the battle, and after the battle enter Cosroes, wounded, Tamburlaine, Theridamas, Techelles, Ustmacasane, with others.

Cos. Barbarous and bloody Tamburlaine,
Thus to deprive me of my crown and life!
Treachurous and false Theridamas,
Even at the morning of my happy state,
Searce being seated in my royal throne,
To work my downfall and untimely end!
An uncouth pain torment's my grieved soul,
And death arrests the organ of my voice.
Who, entering at the breach thy sword hath made,
Sacks every vein and artier of my heart.
Bloody and insatiate Tamburlaine!
Tamb. The thirst of reign and sweetness of a crown
That caus'd the eldest son of heavenly Ops,
To thrust his doting father from his chair,
And place himself in the empyreal Heaven,
Mov'd me to manage arms against thy state,
What better precedent than mighty Jove?
Nature that fram'd us of four elements,
Warring within our breasts for regiment,
Doth teach us all have aspiring minds.
Our souls, whose faculties can comprehend
The wondrous architecture of the world,
And measure every wand'ring planet's course,
Still climbing after knowledge infinite,
And always moving as the restless spheres,

1 Ed. of 1605, prncee. 2 Booty. 3 Requite.

4 Dyce emends to fate. 5 Artery. 6 Rule.
Wills us to wear ourselves, and never rest,
Until we reach the ripest fruit of all,
That perfect bliss and sole felicity,
The sweet fruition of an earthly crown.

Tamb. And that made me to join with Tamburlaine:
For he is gross and like the massy earth,
That moveth not upwards, nor by princely deeds
Doth mean to soar above the highest sort.

Tech. And that made us the friends of Tamburlaine,
To lift our swords against the Persian king.
Usur. For as, when Jove did thrust old Saturn down,
Neptune and Dis gain’d each of them a crown,
So do we hope to reign in Asia,
If Tamburlaine be plac’d in Persia.

Cos. The strangest men that ever nature made!
I know not how to take their tyrannies.
My bloodless body waxeth chill and cold,
And with my blood my life slides through my wound;
My soul begins to take her flight to hell,
And summons all my senses to depart.—
The heat and moisture, which did feed each other,
For want of nourishment to feed them both,
Is dry and cold; and now doth ghastly death,
With greedy talons griepe my bleeding heart,
And like a harpy tires1 on my life.

Theridamas and Tamburlaine, I die:
And fearful vengeance light upon you both!
[Cosroes dies. Tamburlaine] takes the crown and puts it on.

Tamb. Not all the curses which the Furies breathe,
Shall make me leave so rich a prize as this.
Theridamas, Techelles, and the rest,
Who think you now is King of Persia?
All. Tamburlaine! Tamburlaine!

Tamb. Though Mars himself, the angry god
Of arms,
And all the earthly potentates conspire
To disposess me of this diadem,
Yet will I wear it in despite of them,
As great commander of this eastern world,
If you but say that Tamburlaine shall reign.

All. Long live Tamburlaine and reign in Asia!

Tamb. So now it is more surer on my head,
Than if the gods had held a parliament,
And all pronoun’d me King of Persia.

[Exeunt.]

ACT III

SCENE I.

[Enter] Bajazeth, the Kings of Fez, Morocco, and Argier,2 with others in great pomp.

Baj. Great Kings of Barbary and my portly bassoes,3
We hear the Tartars and the eastern thieves,

Under the conduct of one Tamburlaine,
Presume a bickering with your emperor,
And thinks to rouse us from our dreadful siege
Of the famous Grecian Constantinople.
You know our army is invincible;
As many circumcised Turks we have,
And warlike bands of Christians renied,4
As hath the ocean or the Terrene sea5
Small drops of water when the morn begins
To join in one her semicircled horns.
Yet would we not be brav’d with foreign power,
Nor raise our siege before the Grecian yield,
Or breathless lie before the city walls.

K. of Fez. Renowned Emperor, and mighty general,
What, if you sent the bassoes of your guard
To charge him to remain in Asia,
Or else to threaten death and deadly arms
As from the mouth of mighty Bajazeth.
Baj. His thee, my basso, fast to Persia,
Tell him my Lord, the Turk’s Emperor,
Dread Lord of Alfirk, Emperor,
Great King and conqueror of Grascia,
The ocean, Terrene, and the Coal-black sea.6
The high and highest monarch of the world,
Wills and commands (for say not I entreat),
Not once to set his foot on Africa,
Or spread his colours [forth] in Grascia,
Lest he incur the fury of my wrath.
Tell him I am content to take a truce,
Because I hear he bears a valiant mind:
But if, presuming on his silly power,
He be so mad to manage arms with me,
Then stay thou with him; say, I bid thee so;
And if, before the sun have measured Heaven
With triple circuit, thou regret us not,
We mean to take his morning’s next arise
For messenger he will not be reclaim’d,
And mean to fetch thee in despite of him.

Bas. Most great and puissant monarch of the earth,
Your basso will accomplish your behest,
And show your pleasure to the Persian,
As fits the legate of the statured Turk.

K. of Arg. They say he is the King of Persia;
But, if he dare attempt to stir your siege,
’T were requisite he should be ten times more,
For all flesh quakes at your magnificence.

Baj. True, Argier; and tremble at my looks.
K. of Mor. The spring is bind’d by your smothering host.

For neither rain can fall upon the earth,
Nor sun reflex his virtuous beams thereon,
That ground is mantled with such multitudes.
Baj. All this is true as holy Mahomet;
And all the trees are blasted with our breaths.

K. of Fez. What thinks your greatness best to be achiev’d?

In pursuit of the city’s overthrow?
Baj. I will the captive pioners of Argier
Cut off the water that by leaden pipes
Runs to the city from the mountain Cannon.
Two thousand horse shall forage up and down,
That no relief or succour come by land:

1 Proys. 2 Algiers. 3 Pashas.
4 Christians who have abjured their faith.
5 The Mediterranean. 6 The Black Sea.
And all the sea my galleys countermarch,
Then shall our footmen lie within the trench,
With their cannon mouths’d like Orcus’
gulf,
Batter the walls, and we will enter in;
And thus the Grecians shall be conquered.

Scene II.

[Enter] ZENOCRATES, AGYDAS, ANIPPE, with others.

[Agyd.] Madam Zenocrate, may I presume
To know the cause of these unquiet fits,
That work such trouble to your wonted rest?
Tis more than pity such a heavenly face
Should by heart’s sorrow wax so wan and pale,
When your offensive rape by Tamburlaine (Which of your whole displeasures should be most)
Hath seem’d to be digested long ago.

Zeno. Although it be digested long ago,
As his exceeding favours have deserv’d,
And might content the Queen of Heaven, as well
As it hath chang’d my first conceiv’d disdain,
Yet since a farther passion feeds my thoughts
With ceaseless and disconsolate conceits,
Which dyes my looks so lifeless as they are,
And might, if my extremes had full events,
Make me the ghastly counterfeit of death.

Agyd. Eternal heaven sooner be dissolv’d,
And all that pierceth Phoebus’ silver eye,
Before such hap fall to Zenocrate!

Zeno. Ah, life and soul, still hover in his breast
And leave my body senseless as the earth.
Or else unite you to his life and soul,
That I may live and die with Tamburlaine!

Enter [behind] TAMBURLAINE, TECHHELLES, and others.

Agyd. With Tamburlaine! Ah, fair Zenocrate,
Let not a man so vile and barbarous,
That holds you from your father in despite,
And keeps you from the honours of a queen,
(Being suppos’d his worthless concubine),
Be honoured with your love but for necessity.
So, now the mighty Soldan hears of you,
Your highness needs not doubt but in short time
He will with Tamburlaine’s destruction
Redeem you from this deadly servitude.

Zeno. [Agydas,] leave to wound me with these words.
And speak of Tamburlaine as he deserves.
The entertainment we have had of him
Is far from villany ¹ or servitude,
And might in noble minds be counted princely.

Agyd. How can you fancy one that looks so fierce,
Only dispos’d to martial stratagems?
Who, when he shall embrace you in his arms,
Will tell how many thousand men he slew;
And when you look for amorous discourse,
Will rattle forth his facts ² of war and blood,
Too harsh a subject for your dainty ears.

Zeno. As looks the Sun through Nilus’ flowing stream,
Or when the Morning holds him in her arms,
So looks my lordly love, fair Tamburlaine;
His talk much sweeter than the Muse’s song
So they sung for honour ’gainst Piersides;
Or when Minerva did with Neptune strive:
And higher would I rear my estimate
Than Juno, sister to the highest god,
If I were match’d with mighty Tamburlaine.

Agyd. Yet be not so inconstant in your love;
But let the young Arabian live in hope
After your rescue to enjoy his choice.
You see though first the King of Persia,
Being a shepherd, seem’d to love you much,
Now in his majesty he leaves those looks,
Those words of favour, and those comfortings,
And gives no more than common courtesies.

Zeno. Thence rise the tears that so distain my cheeks,
Fearing his love through my unworthiness. —

TAMBURLAINE goes to her and takes her away lovingly by the hand, looking wraithly on AGYDAS, and says nothing. [Exeunt all but AGYDAS.]

Agyd. Betray’d by fortune and suspicious
love,
Threat’n’d with frowning wrath and jealousy,
Surpris’d with fear of hideous revenge,
I stand aghast; but most astonish’d
To see his choler shut in secret thoughts,
And wrapt in silence of his angry soul.
Upon his brows was portray’d ugly death;
And in his eyes the furies of his heart
That shone as comets, menacing revenge,
And casts a pale complexion on his cheeks.
As when the seaman sees the Hyades
Gather an army of Cimmerian clouds, (Anster and Aquillon with winged steeds,
All sweating, tilt about the watery Heavens,
With shivering spears enforcing thunder claps,
And from their shields strike flames of lighting.)
All fearfull folds his sails and sounds the main,
Lifting his prayers to the Heavens for aid
Against the terror of the winds and waves,
So fares Agydas for the late-felt frowns,
That sent a tempest to my damned thoughts,
And makes my soul divine her overthrow.

Re-enter TECHHELLES with a naked dagger.

Tech. See you, Agydas, how the king salutes
you?
He bids you prophesy what it imports. Exit.

Agyd. I prophesied before, and now I prove
The killing frowns of jealousy and love.
He needed not with words confirm my fear,
For words are vain where working tools present.
The naked action of my threat’ned end:
It says, Agydas, thou shalt surely die,
And of extremities elect the least;
More honore and less pain it may procure
To die by this resolved hand of thine,

1 Subjection. 2 Deeds.

1 Astonished.
Than stay the torments he and Heaven have 68
sworn.
Then haste, Agydas, and prevent the plagues
Which thy prolonged fates may draw on thee.
Go, wander, free from fear of tyrant’s rage,
Removed from the torments and the hell
Wherewith he may excurse thy soul,
And let Agydas by Agydas die,
And with this stab slumber eternally.

Stabs himself.

[Re-enter Techelles with Usumcasane.]

Tech. Usumcasane, see, how right the man
Hath hit the meaning of my lord, the king.
Usum. Faith, and Techelles, it was manly
And since he was so wise and honourable,
Let us afford him now the bearing hence,
And crave his triple-worlthy burial.

Tech. Agreed, Casane; we will honour him.

[Exeunt bearing out the body.]

Scene III.

[Enter] Tamburlaine, Techelles, Usumcasane, Theridamas, a Basso, Zencrate, [Aniffe,] with others.

Tamb. Basso, by this thy lord and master knows
I mean to meet him in Bithynia:
See how he comes! Tush, Turks are full of brage,
And menace more than they can well perform.
He meet me in the field, and fetch thee hence!
Alas! poor Turk! his fortune is too weak
To encounter with the strength of Tamburlaine.
View well my camp, and speak indifferently;
Do not my captains and my soldiers look
As if they meant to conquer Africa?

Bas. Your men are valiant, but their number few,
And cannot terrify his mighty host.
My lord, the great commander of the world,
Besides fifteen contributory kings,
Hath now in arms ten thousand Janissaries,
Mounted on lusty Mauritanian steeds,
Brought to the war by men of Tripoli;
Two hundred thousand footmen that have serv’d
In two set battles fought in Greece:
And for the expedition of this war,
If he think good, can from his garrisons
Withdraw as many more to follow him.

Tech. The more he brings the greater is the spoil,
For when they perish by our warlike hands,
We mean to seat our footmen on their steeds,
And rife all those stately Janissars.

Tamb. But will those kings accompany your lord?

Bas. Such as his highness please; but some must stay
To rule the provinces he late subdued.

Tamb. [To his Officers.] Then fight courageously: their crowns are yours;
This hand shall set them on your conquering heads,
That made me Emperor of Asia.

Usum. Let him bring millions infinite of men,
Unpeopling Western Africa and Greece,
Yet we assure us of the victory.

Tamb. Even he that in a trince vanquish’d two kings.
More than the Turkish emperor,
Shall rouse him out of Europe, and pursue
His scattered army till they yield or die.

Tamb. Well said, Theridamas; speak in that mood;

For will and shall best fit him Tamburlaine,
Whose smiling stars give him assured hope
Of martial triumph ere he meet his foes.
I that am term’d the scourge and wrath of God,
The only fear and terror of the world,
Will first subdue the Turk, and then enlarge Those Christian captives, which you keep as slaves,
Burdening their bodies with your heavy chains,
And feeding them with thin and slender fare;
That naked row about the Terrene sea,
And when they chance to breathe and rest a space,
Are punish’d with bastones 1 so grievously,
That they lie panting on the galley’s side,
And strive for life at every stroke they give.
These are the cruel pirates of Argier,
That damned train, the scum of Africa,
Inhabited with strangling runagates,
That make quick havoc of the Christian blood;
But, as I live, that town shall curse the time
That Tamburlaine set foot in Africa.

[Enter Bajazet with his Bassoes, and contributory Kings [of Pers, Morocco, and Argier; Zabina and Ebea].

Baj. Bassoes and Janissaries of my guard,
Attend upon the person of your lord,
The greatest potentate of Africa.

Tamb. Techelles and the rest, prepare your swords;
I mean to encounter with that Bajazeth.
Baj. Kings of Pers, Morocco, and Argier,
He calls me Bajazeth, whom you call Lord!
Note the presumption of this Scythian slave!
I tell thee, villain, those that lead my horse
Have to their names titles of dignity,
And dar’st thou bluntly call me Bajazeth?

Tamb. And know, thou Turk, that those which lead my horse,
Shall lead thee captive thorough Africa;
And dar’st thou bluntly call me Tamburlaine?
Baj. By Mahomet my kinsman’s sepulchre,
And by the holy Alcoran I swear,
He shall be made a chaste and lustless enmisch,
And in my sarel 2 tend my concubines;
And all his captains that thus stoutly stand,
Shall draw the chariot of my empress,
Whom I have brought to see their overthrow.

Tamb. By this my sword, that conquer’d
Fersia,
Thy fall shall make me famous through the world.
I will not tell thee how I’ll handle thee,
But every common soldier of my camp
Shall smile to see thy miserable state.

1 Sticks. Ital. bastone.

TAMBURLAINE THE GREAT

9 K. of Fez. What means the mighty Turkish emperor,
To talk with one so base as Tamburlaine?
K. of Mor. Ye Moors and valiant men of Barbary,
How can ye suffer these indignities?
K. of Arq. Leave words, and let them feel your lances’ points
Which glided through the bowels of the Greeks.
Baj. Well saith, my stout contributory kings:
Your threefold army and my hungry host
Shall swallow up these base-born Persians.

Tech. Puisant, renowned, and mighty Tamburlaine,
Why stay we thus prolonging all their lives?
Thy. I long to see those crowns won by our swords,
That we may reign as kings of Africa.

Usurp. What coward would not fight for such a prize?

Tamb. Fight all courageously, and be you kings,
I speak it, and my words are oracles.

Baj. Zabina, mother of three braver boys
Than Herocles, that in his infancy
Did push 2 the jaws of serpents venomous;
Whose hands are made to grippe a warlike lance,
Their shoulders broad for complete armour fit,
Their limbs more large, and of a bigger size,
Than all the brats ysprung from Typhon’s loins;
Who, when they come unto their father’s age,
Will batter turrets with their manly fists; —

Sit here upon this royal chair of state,
And on thy head wear my imperial crown,
Until I bring this sturdy Tamburlaine,
And all his captains bound in captive chains.

Zab. Such good success happen to Bajazeth!

Tamb. Zencorate, the loveliest maid alive,
Fairer than rocks of pearl and precious stone,
The only paragon of Tamburlaine,
Whose eyes are brighter than the lamps of Heaven
And speech more pleasant than sweet harmony!
That with thy looks canst clear the darkened sky,
And calm the rage of thund’ring Jupiter,
Sit down by her, adorned with my crown,
As if thou wert the Empress of the world.

Stir not, Zencorate, until thou see
Me march victoriously with all my men,
Triumphing over him and these his kings,
Which I will bring as vassals to thy feet;
Till then take thou my crown, vaunt of my worth,
And manage words with her, as we will arms.

Zeno. And may my love, the King of Persia,
Return with victory and free from wound!

Baj. Now shalt thou feel the force of Turkish arms,
Which lately made all Europe quake for fear.
I have of Turks, Arabians, Moors, and Jews,
Enough to cover all Bithynia.
Let thousands die; their slaughtered carcases
Shall serve for wall and bulwarks to the rest
And as the heads of Hydra, so my power,
Subdued, shall stand as mighty as before.

If they should yield their necks unto the sword,
Thy soldiers’ arms could not endure to strike
So many blows as I have heads for thee.
Thou know’st not, foolish, hardy Tamburlaine,
What ’tis to meet me in the open field,

That leave no ground for thee to march upon.

Tamb. Our conquering swords shall marshal us the way
We use to march upon the slaughtered foe,
Trampling their bowels with our horses’ hoofs;
Brave horses bred on the white Tartarian hills;
My camp is like to Julius Caesar’s host,
That never fought but had the victory;
Nor in Pharsalia was there such hot war
As these, my followers, willingly would have.
Legions of spirits fleeting 5 in the air
Direct our bullets and our weapons’ points,
And make your 4 strokes to wound the senseless lure.

And when she sees our bloody colours spread,
Then Victory begins to take her flight,
Resting herself upon my milk-white tent.
But come, my lords, to weapons let us fall;
The field is ours, the Turk, his wife, and all.

Exit with his followers.

Baj. Come, kings and bassoos, let us glut our swords,
That thirst to drink the feeble Persians’ blood.

Zab. Base concubine, must thou be plac’d by me,
That am the empress of the mighty Turk?

Zeno. Dishonoured Turkess and unreverend boss!

Call’st thou me concubine, that am betroth’d,
Unto the great and mighty Tamburlaine?

Zab. To Tamburlaine, the great Tartarian thief!

Zeno. Thou wilt repeat these lavish words of thine,
When thy great basso-master and thyself
Must plead for mercy at his kingly feet,
And sue to me to be your advocate.

Zab. And sue to thee! I tell thee, shameless girl,
Thou shalt be laundress to my waiting maid! —
How lik’st thou her, Ebea? Will she serve?

Ebea. Madam, she thinks, perhaps, she is too fine,
But I shall turn her into other weeds,

And make her dainty fingers fall to work.

Zeno. Hear’st thou, Anippe, how thy drudge doth talk?
And how my slave, her mistress, menaceth?
Both for their sauciness shall be employed
To dress the common soldiers’ meat and drink,
For we will scorn they should come near ourselves.

Anip. Yet sometimes let your highness send for them
To do the work my chambermaid disclaims.

They sound the battle within.

1 Huge.
2 Dash to pieces.
3 Floating.
4 Qq. our.
5 Perhaps in the sense of “decoy.” Ellis suggests “light” from Fr. lieuor. Dyce conj. air.
6 Contemptuously used of a woman.
7 Early edd. add and stay.
Zeno. Ye gods and powers that govern Persia,
And made my lordly love her worthy king.
Now strengthen him against the Turkish Bajazeth,
And let his foes, like flocks of fearful foes
Purs’d by hunters, fly his angry looks,
That I may see him issue conqueror!
Zab. Now, Mahomet, solicit God himself.
And make him rain down murdering shot from Heaven
To dash the Scythians’ brains, and strike them dead,
That dare to manage arms with him
That offered jewels to thy sacred shrine,
When first he warn’d against the Christians!

【They sound to the battle again.】
Zeno. By this the Turks lie walloring in their blood,
And Tamburlaine is Lord of Africa.
Zab. Thou art deceiv’d.—I heard the trumpets sound
As when my emperor overthrow the Greeks,
And led them captive into Africa.
Straight will I use thee as thy pride deserves:
Prepare thyself to live and die my slave.
Zeno. If Mahomet should come from Heaven and swear
My royal lord is slain or conquered,
Yet should he not persuade me otherwise
But that he lives and will be conqueror.

【Enter TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, and USUMCASON.】
Tech. We have their crowns, their bodies strow the field.
Tamb. Each man a crown! Why, kingly fought,
I faith. Deliver them into my treasury.
Zeno. Now let me offer to my gracious lord
His royal crown again so highly won.
Tamb. Nay, take the Turkish crown from her,
Zencrate.

【And crown me Emperor of Africa.】
Zab. No, Tamburlaine; though now thou gat the best,
Thou shalt not yet be lord of Africa.
Ther. Give her the crown, Turkess: thou were best.
He takes it from her, and gives it to Zencrate.
Zab. Injurious villains! thieves! runagates!
How dare you thus abuse my majesty?
Ther. Here, madam, you are Empress; she is none.
Tamb. Not now, Theridamas; her time is past.

【The pillars that have bolstered up those terms,
Are fallen in clusters at my conquering feet.】
Zab. Though he be prisoner, he may be ransomed.

【Enter the SOLDAN OF EGYPT, with three or four Lords, CAPOLIN, and a Messenger.】
Sold. Awake, ye men of Memphis! Hear the clang
Of Scythian trumpets! Hear the basilisks

【Plundering.】
Zante. (Bullen.)
Biscay.

【Pieces of ordnance, so called from their fancied resemblance to the fabulous serpent of that name.】
(Cunningham.)

ACT IV

SCENE I.

Of the king’s castle.

【Enter the SOLDAN OF EGYPT, with three or four Lords, CAPOLIN, and a Messenger.】
Sold. Awake, ye men of Memphis! Hear the clang
Of Scythian trumpets! Hear the basilisks

1 Defeat. Early edd. read soile.
That, roaring, shake Damascus' turrets down!
The rogue of Volga holds Zenocrate,
The Soldan's daughter, for his concubine, 5
And with a troop of thieves and vagabonds,
Hath spread his colours to our high disgrace,
While you, faint-hearted, base Egyptians,
Lie slumbering on the flowery banks of Nile,
As crocodiles that unafrighted rest, 10
While thundering cannon rattle on their skins.

Mess. Nay, mighty Soldan, did your greatness see
The frowning looks of fiery Tamburlaine,
That with his terror and imperious eyes
Commands the hearts of his associates, 15
It might amaze your royal majesty.

Sold. Villain, I tell thee, were that Tambur-

As monstrous 1 as Gorgon, 2 prince of hell,
The Soldan would not start a foot from him,
But speak, what power hath he?

Mess. Mighty lord, 30
Three hundred thousand men in armour clad,
Upon their prancing steeds disdainfully
With wanton pages trampling on the ground:
Five hundred thousand footmen threatening shot,
Shaking their swords, their spears, and iron bills,
Environing their standard round, that stood 26
As bristle-pointed as a thorny wood:
Their warlike engines and munition
Exceed the forces of their martial men.

Sold. Nay, could their numbers countervail the stars,
Or ever-drizzling drops of April showers,
Or withered leaves that Autumn shaketh down.
Yet would the Soldan by his conquering power,
So scatter and consume them in his rage,
That not a man should live to rue their fall.

Capo. So might your highness, had you time to sort
Your fighting men, and raise your royal host;
But Tamburlaine, by expedition,
Advantage takes of your unreadiness. 39

Sold. Let him take all th' advantages he can.
Were all the world conspir'd to fight for him,
Nay, were he devil, as he is no man,
Yet in revenge of fair Zenocrate,
Whom he detaineth in despite of us,
This arm should send him down to Erebus, 45
To shroud his shame in darkness of the night.

Mess. Pleadeth your mightiness to understand,
His resolution far exceedeth all.
The first day when he pitcheth down his tents,
White is his hue, and on his silver crest,
A snowy feather spangled white he bears,
To signify the mildness of his mind,
That, satiate with spoil, refuseth blood.
But when Aurora mounts the second time
As red as scarlet is his furniture;
Then must his kindled wrath be quenched with blood,
Not sparing any that can manage arms;
But if these threats move not submission,
Black are his colours, black pavilion;

His spear, his shield, his horse, his armour,
Plumes, and jetty feathers menace death and hell!
Without respect of sex, degree, or age,
He razeth all his foes with fire and sword.

Sold. Merciless villain! Peaceant, ignorant
Of lawful arms or martial discipline!

Pillage and murder are his usual trades;
The slave usurps the glorious name of war.
See, Capolin, the fair Arabian king, 65
That hath been disappointed by this slave
Of my fair daughter and his princely love,
May have fresh warning to go war with us,
And be reveng'd for her disparagement. 70

[Exeunt.]

Scene II.

[Enter] Tamburlaine, Techeelles, Theridamas, Usúmcasane, Zenocrate, Anípe, two Moors drawing Bajazeth in his cage, and his wife [Zadiná] following him.

Tamb. Bring out my footstool. 75

They take him out of the cage.

Baj. Ye holy priests of heavenly Mahomet,
That, sacrificing, slice and cut your flesh,
Staining his altars with your purple blood;
Make Heaven to frown and every fixed star
To suck up poison from the moorish fans,
And pour it in this glorious tyrant's throat!
Tamb. The chiefest God, first mover of that sphere,
Encha'sd with thousands ever-shining lamps,
Will sooner burn the glorious frame of Heaven,
Than it should so conspire my otherthrow.
But, villain! thou that wishest this to me,
Fall prostrate on the low disdainful earth,
And be the footstool of great Tamburlaine,
That I may rise into my royal throne.

Baj. First shalt thou rip my bowels with thy sword,
And sacrifice my heart to death and hell,
Before I yield to such a slavery.

Tamb. Base villain, vassal, slave to Tambur-laine!

Unworthy to embrace or touch the ground,
That bears the honour of my royal weight;
Stoop, villain, stoop! — Stoop! for so he bids
That may command thee piecemeal to be torn,
Or scattered like the lofty cedar trees
Struck with the voice of thundering Jupiter. 85
Baj. Then, as I look down to the damned fiends,
I fiendish look on me! and thou, dread god of hell,
With ebon sceptre strike this hateful earth,
And make it swallow both of us at once!

[Tamburlaine] gets up upon him to his chair.

Tamb. Now clear the triple region of the air.

And let the majesty of Heaven behold
Their scourge and terror tread on emperors.
Smile stars, that reign'd at my nativity,
And dim the brightness of their neighbour lamps!

1 Triasyllabic here. 2 Demogorgon. 3 Vain-glorious, boastful.
Disdain to borrow light of Cynthia
For I, the chiefest lamp of all the earth,
First rising in the East with mild aspect,
But fixed now in the meridian line,
Will send up fire to your turning spheres,
And cause the sun to borrow light of you.
My sword struck fire from his coat of steel,
Even in Bithynia, when I took this Turk;
As when a fiery exhalation,
Wraught in the bowls of a freezing cloud
Fighting for passage, make[s] the welkin crack,
And casts a flash of lightning to the earth:
But ere I march to wealthy Persia,
Or leave Damascus and th' Egyptian fields,
As was the fame of Clymene's brain-sick son,
That almost brest the axle-tree of Heaven,
So shall our swords, our lances, and our shot
Fill all the air with fiery meteors:
Then, when the sky shall wax as red as blood,
It shall be said I made it red myself,
To make me think of nought but blood and war.
Zab, unworthy king, that by thy cruelty
Unlawfully usurp' st the Persian seat.
Dar'st thou, that never saw an emperor
Before thou met my husband in the field,
Being thy captive, thus abuse his state,
Keeping his kingly body in a cage,
That roofs of gold and sun-bright palaces
Should have prepar'd to entertain his grace?
And treading him beneath thy leastsome feet,
Whose feet the kings of Africa have kiss'd.
Tech. You must devise some torment worse,
My lord.
To make these captives, rein their lavish tongues.
Tamb. Zenocrate, look better to your slave.
Zeno. She is my handmaid's slave, and she shall look
That these abuses flow not from her tongue.
Chide her, Anippe.
Anip. Let these be warnings for you then,
my slave,
How you abuse the person of the king;
Or else I swear to have you whipt, stark-nak'd.
Baj. Great Tamburlaine, great in my overthrow,
Ambitious pride shall make thee fall as low,
For treading on the back of Bajazeth,
That should be horded on four mighty kings.
Tamb. Thy names and titles and dignities
Are fled from Bajazeth and remain with me,
That will maintain 't against a world of kings.
Put him in again. [They put him back into the cage.]
Baj. Is this a place for mighty Bajazeth?
Confusion light on him that helps thee thus!
Tamb. There, whiles he lives, shall Bajazeth be kept.
And, where I go, be thus in triumph drawn;
And thou, his wife, shall feed him with the scrapes
My servitors shall bring thee from my board;
For he that gives him other food than this Shall sit by him and starve to death himself;
This is my mind and I will have it so.
Not all the kings and emperors of the earth,
If they would lay their crowns before my feet,
Shall ransom him or take him from his cage.
The ages that shall talk of Tamburlaine,
Even from this day to Plato's wondrous year,
Shall talk how I have handled Bajazeth;
These Moors, that drew him from Bithynia
To fair Damascus, where we now remain,
Shall lead him with us wheresoever we go.
Techelles, and loving followers,
How may we see Damascus' lofty towers,
Like to the shadows of Pyramids,
That with their beauties grace'd the Memphian fields.
The golden statue1 of their feathered bird
That spreads her wings upon the city walls
Shall not defend it from our battering shot.
The townsmen mask in silk and cloth of gold,
And every house is as a treasury:
The men, the treasure, and the town is ours.
Ther. Your tents of white now pitch'd before the gates,
And gentle flags of amity display'd,
I doubt not but the governor will yield,
Offering Damascus to your majesty.
Tamb. So shall he have his life and all the rest.
But if he stay until the bloody flag
Be once advanc'd on my vermillion tent,
He dies, and those that kept us out so long.
And when they see me march in black array,
With mournful streamers hanging down their head, my lord.
Were in that city all the world contain'd,
Not one should scape, but perish by our swords.
Zeno. Yet would you have some pity for my sake,
Because it is my country's, and my father's.
Tamb. Not for the world, Zenocrate, if I've sworn.
Come; bring in the Turk.

Scene III.

[Enter the] Soldan, [the King of] Arabia, Ca-
Polin, with streaming colours and Soldiers.
Sold. Methinks we march as Meleager did,
Environd with brave Argolic knights,
To chase the savage Calydonian boar,
Or Cephalus with lusty Theban youths
Against the wolf that angry Themis sent
To waste and spoil the sweet Aonian fields,
A monster of five hundred thousand heads,
Compact of rapine, piracy, and spoil.
The scum of men, the hate and scourge of God,
Raves in Egypt and annoyeth us.
My lord, it is the bloody Tamburlaine,
A sturdy felon and a base-bred thief,
By murder raised to the Persian crown,
That dares control us in our territories.
To tame the pride of this presumptions beast,
Join your Arabians with the Soldan's power,
Let us unite our royal bands in one,
And hasten to remove Damascus' siege.
It is a blemish to the majesty
And high estate of mighty emperors,

1 Early edd. read stature.
That such a base usurping vagabond
Should brave a king, or wear a princely crown.

K. of Arav. Renowned Soldan, have you lately heard
The overthrow of mighty Bajazeth?
About the confines of Bithynia?
The slavery wherewith he persecutes
The noble Turk and his great empress?
Sold. I have, and sorrow for his sad success; But, noble lord of great Arabia,
Be so persuaded that the Soldan is
No more dismay’d with tidings of his fall
Than in the haven when the pilot stands
And views a stranger’s ship rent in the winds,
And shivered against a craggy rock;
Yet in compassion of his wretched state,
A sacred vow to Heaven and him I make,
Confirming it with Ibis’ holy name,
That Tamburlaine shall rue the day, the hour,
Wherein he wrought such ignominious wrong
Unto the hallowed person of a prince,
Or kept the fair Zenocrate so long
As concubine, I fear, to feed his lust.
K. of Arav. Let grief and fury hasten on revenge;
Let Tamburlaine for his offences feel
Such plagues as Heaven and we can pour on him.
I long to break my spear upon his crest,
And prove the weight of his victorious arm;
For Fame, I fear, hath been too prodigal
In sounding through the world his partial praise,
Sold. Capolin, hast thou survey’d our powers?
Capol. Great Emperors of Egypt and Arabia,
The number of your hosts united is
A hundred and fifty thousand horse;
Two hundred thousand foot, brave men-at-arms,
Courageous, and full of hardiness,
As frolic as the hunters in the chase
Of savage beasts amid the desert woods.
K. of Arav. My mind presageth fortunate success;
And, Tamburlaine, my spirit doth foresee
The utter ruin of thy men and thee.
Sold. Then rear your standards; let your sounding drums
Direct our soldiers to Damascus’ walls.
Now, Tamburlaine, the mighty Soldan comes,
And leads with him the great Arabian king,
To dim thy baseness and obscurity,
Famous for nothing but for theft and spoil;
To rage and scatter thy inglorious crew
Of Scythians and slavish Persians. Exeunt.

SCENE IV.
The Banquet; and to it cometh Tamburlaine, all in scarlet. [Zenocrate, Theridamas, Techeles, Usucasane, the Turk [Bajazeth in his cage, Zarina] with others.

Tamb. Now hang our bloody colours by Damascus,
Reflexing hues of blood upon their heads,
While they walk quiver ing on their city walls,
Half dead for fear before they feel my wrath;

Then let us freely banquet and carouse
Full bowls of wine unto the god of war
That means to fill your helmets full of gold,
And make your Samarcand spoils as rich to you,
As was to Jason Colchus’ golden fleece.—
And now, Bajazeth, hast thou any stomach?
Baj. Ay, such a stomach, cruel Tamburlaine, as I could willingly feed upon thy blood-raw heart.

Tamb. Nay thine own is easier to come by;
pluck out that, and ’t will serve thee and thy wife. Well, Zenocrate, Techeles, and the rest, fall to your victuals.

Baj. Fall to, and never may your meat digest!
Ye barbarous, that can mask invisible,
Dive to the bottom of Avernus’ pool,
And in your hands bring hellish poison up
And squeeze it in the cup of Tamburlaine!
Or, winged snakes of Lerna, cast your stings,
And leave your venoms in this tyrant’s dish!
Zeb. And may this banquet prove as ominous
As Progne’s to th’ adulterous Thraesian king,
That fed upon the substance of his child.
Zenocrate. My lord, how can you [tamely] suffer these Outrageous curses by these slaves of yours?

Tamb. To let them see, divine Zenocrate,
I glory in the curses of my foes.
Having the power from the imperial Heaven
To turn them all upon their proper heads.

Tech. I pray you give them leave, madam; this speech is a goodly refreshing to them.

Ther. But if his highness would let them be fed, it would do them more good.

Tamb. Sirrah, why fall you not to? Are you so daintily brought up, you cannot eat your own flesh?

Baj. First, legions of devils shall tear thee in pieces.

Usum. Villain, know’st thou to whom thou speakest?

Tamb. O, let him alone. Here; eat, sir; [54] take it from my sword’s point, or I’ll thrust it to thy heart. Bajazeth takes it and stamps upon it.

Ther. He stamps it under his feet, my lord.

Tamb. Take it up, villain, and eat it; or I will make thee slice the brawns of thy arms [50] into carbonadoes and eat them.

Usum. Nay, ‘t were better he kill’d his wife, and then she shall be sure not to be starv’d, and he be provided for a month’s victual beforehand.

Tamb. Here is my dagger: despatch her while she is fat: for if she live but a while longer, she will fall into a consumption with fretting, and then she will not be worth the eating.

Ther. Dost thou think that Mahomet will [50] suffer this?

Tech. ’Tis like he will when he cannot let it.

Tamb. Go to; fall to your meat. — What, not a bit! Belike he hath not been watered to [55] day; give him some drink.

They give Bajazeth water to drink, and he flings it on the ground.

1 Dyce conj. 2 Slices for broiling. 3 Hinder.
Ther. Ay, my lord; but none save kings must feed with these.

Tech. *'Tis enough for us to see them, and for Tamburlaine only to enjoy them.

Tamb. Well; here is now to the Soldan of Egypt, the King of Arabia, and the Governor of Damascus. Now take these three crowns, and pledge me, my contributory kings. I crown you here, Theridamas, King of Argier; Techelles, King of Fez; and Usumcasane, King of Morocco. How say you to this, Turk? These are not your contributory kings.

Baj. Nor shall they long be thine, I warrant them.

Tamb. Kings of Argier, Morocco, and of Fez, you that have march'd with happy Tamburlaine As far as from the frozen [place] of Heaven Unto the watery morning's ruddy bower, and Thence by land unto the torrid zone, Deserve these titles I endow you with By [valour] and by magnanimity.

Your births shall be no blemish to your fame, For virtue is the fount whence honour springs, And they are worthy she investeth kings.

Ther. And since your highness hath so well vouchsaf'd, If we deserve them not with higher meeds Than erst our states and actions have retain'd. Take them away again and make us slaves.

Tamb. Well said, Theridamas; when holy fates Shall 'stablish me in strong Egyptia, We mean to travel to the antartic pole, Conquering the people underneath our feet, And be renowned as never emperors were. Zenocrate, I will not crown thee yet, Until with greater honours I be grac'd.

ACT V

SCENE I.

[Enter the Governor of Damascus, with three or four Citizens, and four Virgins, with branches of laurel in their hands.]

Gov. Still doth this man, or rather god of war, Batter our walls and beat our turrets down; And to resist with longer stubborness Or hope of rescue from the Soldan's power, Were but to bring our wilful overthrow, And make us desperate of our threaten'd lives. We see his tents have now been altered With terrors to the last and cruell'est hue. His coal-black colours everywhere advance'd Threaten our city with a general spoil; And if we should with common rites of arms Offer our safeties to his clemency, I fear the custom, proper to his sword, Which he observes as parcel of his fame, Intending so to terrify the world,

1 Until. 2 Holding out his sword. 3 Free. 4 Expecting. 5 Free.
By any innovation or remorse
Will never be dispens'd with till our deaths.
Therefore, for these our harmless virgins' sakes,
Whose hopes our arms and whose lives rely on him,
Let us have hope that their unspotted prayers,
Their blubbered cheeks, and, hearty, humble moans,
Will melt his fury into some remorse,
And use us like a loving conqueror.

1 Virg. If humble suits or imprecations,
(Uttered with tears of wretchedness and blood)
Shed from the heads and hearts of all our sex,
Some made your wives and some your children)
Might have entreated your obdurate breasts
To entertain some care of our securities.
While only danger beat upon our walls.
These more than dangerous warrants of our death
Had never been erected as they be,
Nor you depend on such weak helps as we.

Gov. Well, lovely virgins, think our country's care,
Our love of honour, loath to be in thrall'd
To foreign powers and rough imperious yokes,
Would not with too much cowardice or fear,
(Before all hope of rescue were denied)
Submit yourselves and us to servitude.
Therefore in that your safeties and our own,
Your honours, liberties, and lives were weigh'd
In equal care and balance with our own,
Endure as we the malice of your stars,
The wrath of Tamburlaine, and power of wars;
Or be the means the overwhelming heavens have kept to qualify these hot extremes,
And bring us pardon in your cheerful looks.

2 Virg. Then here before the majesty of Heaven
And holy patrons of Egypt,
With knees and hearts submissive we entreat
Grace to our words and pity to our looks
That this device may prove propitious,
And through the eyes and ears of Tamburlaine
Convey events of mercy to his heart;
Grant that these signs of victory we yield
May bind the temples of his conquering head,
To hide the folded furrows of his brows,
And shadow his displeased countenance
With happy looks of ruth and lenity.
Leave us, my lord, and loving countrymen;
What simple virgins may persuade, we will.
Gov. Farewell, sweet virgins, on whose safe return Depends our city, liberty, and lives.

EXEUNT.

SCENE II.

[Enter] TAMBURLAINE, all in black and very melancholy, TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, USUMCASA, with others.

Tamb. What are the turtles fray'd out of their nests?
Alas, poor fools! must you be first shall feel
The sworn destruction of Damascus?
They knew my custom; could they not as well
Have sent you out when first my milk-white flags,

Through which sweet Mercy threw her gentle beams,
Reflecting on your disdainful eyes,
As now, when fury and incensed hate
Plings slaughtering terror from my coal-black tents,
And tells for truth submission comes too late?

1 Virg. Most happy King and Emperor of the earth,
Image of honour and nobility,
For whom the powers divine have made the world.

And on whose throne the holy Graces sit;
In whose sweet person is compris'd the sum
Of Nature's skill and heavenly majesty;
Pity our plights! 0 pity poor Damascus!
Pity old age, within whose silver hairs
Honour and reverence evermore have reign'd!
Pity the marriage bed, where many a lord,
In prime and glory of his loving joy,
Embraceth now with tears of ruth and blood
The jealous body of his fearful wife,
Whose cheeks and hearts, so punish'd with conceit
To think thy puissant, never-stayed arm,
Will part their bodies, and prevent their souls
From heav'ns sweet mansions of rest.

That never nourish'd thought against thy rule,
Pity, O pity, sacred Emperor,
The prostrate service of this wretched town.

And take in sign thereof this gilded wreathe;
Whereeto each man of rule hath given his hand,
And wish'd, as worthy subjects, happy means
To be investers of thy royal brows
Even with the true Egyptian diadem!

Tamb. Virgins, in vain ye labour to prevent
That which mine honour swears shall be perform'd.

Behold my sword! what see you at the point?

1 Virg. Nothing but fear and fatal steel,
My lord.

Tamb. Your fearful minds are thick and misty then;
For there sits Death, there sits imperious Death
Keeping his circuit by the slicing edge.

But I am pleas'd you shall not see him there;
He now is seated on my horsemen's spears,
And on their points his fleshless body feeds.

Tecchelles, straight go charge a few of them
To charge these dames, and show my servant, Death,
Sitting in scarlet on their armed spears.

Virgins, O pity us!

Tamb. Away with them, I say, and show them Death.
They take them away.
I will not spare these proud Egyptians,

Nor change my martial observations
For all the wealth of Gihon’s golden waves,
Or for the love of Venus, would she leave

They have refused the offer of their lives,
And know my customs are as peremptory
As wrathful planets, death, or destiny.

Re-enter Techelles.

What, have your horsemen shown the virgin
Death?

Tech. They have, my lord, and on Damascus’ walls
Have hoisted up their slaughtered carcases.

Tamb. A sight as baneful to their souls, I think,

As are Thessalian drugs or mithridate; 1

But go, my lords, put the rest to the sword.

[Exeunt [all except TAMBRU LAINE].

Ah, fair Zenocrate! divine Zenocrate!
Fair is too foul an epithet for thee,
That in thy passion 2 for thy country’s love,
And fear to see thy kindly father’s harm,
With hair dishevel’d whipst thy watery cheeks;
And, like to Flora in her morning’s pride
Shaking her silver tresses in the air,
Rain’d on the earth resolved 3 pearl in showers,
And sprinklest sapphires on thy shining face,
Where Beauty, mother to the Muses, sits
And comments volumes with her ivory pen,
Taking instructions from thy flowing eyes;

Eyes when that Ebena steps to Heaven,
In silence of thy solemn evening’s walk,
Making the mantle of the richest night,

The moon, the planets, and the meteors, light;
There angels in their crystal armours fight
A doubtful battle with my tempted thoughts.
For Egypt’s freedom, and the Soldan’s life;
His life that so consumes Zenocrate,
Whose sorrows lay more siege unto my soul,

Than all my army to Damascus’ walls:
And neither Persia’s sovereign, nor the Turk
Troubled my senses with conceit of foil 4

So much by much as doth Zenocrate.

What is beauty, saith my sufferings, then?
If all the pens that ever poets held
Had fed the feeling of their masters’ thoughts,
And every sweetness that inspir’d their hearts,
Their minds, and muses on admired themes; 109
If all the heavenly quintessence they still 6
From their immortal flowers of poetry,
Wherein, as in a mirror, we perceive
The highest reaches of a human wit;
If these had made one poem’s period,
And all combin’d in beauty’s worthiness,
Yet should there hover in their restless heads
One thought, one grace, one wonder, at the least,
Which into words no virtue can digest. 110
But how unseemly it is for my sex,
My discipline of arms and chivalry,
My nature, and the terror of my name,
To harbour thoughts effeminate and faint!
Save only that in beauty’s just applause,

With whose instinct the soul of man is

And every warrior that is rapt with love
Of fame, of valour, and of victory.
Must needs have beauty beat on his conceits:
I thus conceiving and subduing both
That which hath stoop’d the [chiestest] 8 of the gods,

Even from the fiery-spangled veil of Heaven,
To feel the lowly warmth of shepherds’ flames,
And mask 9 in cottages of strowed reeds,

Shall give the world to note, for all my birth,
That virtue solely is the sum of glory,

And fashions men with true nobility.—

Who’s within there?

Enter two or three [Attendants].

Hath Bajazeth been fed to-day?

Att. Ay, my lord.

Tamb. Bring him forth; and let us know if
The town be ransack’d. [Exeunt Attendants.]

Enter Techelles, Theridamas, Ususca-sane, and others.

Tech. The town is ours, my lord, and fresh

Of conquest and of spoil is offered us.

Tamb. That’s well, Techelles; what’s the news?

Tech. The Soldan and the Arabian king together,

March on us with such easier violence,

As if there were no way but one with us.

Tamb. No more there is not, I warrant thee,

Techelles.

They bring in the Turk [and ZABINA].

Ther. We know the victory is ours, my lord;

But let us save the reverend Soldan’s life.

For fair Zenocrate that so laments his state.

Tamb. That will we chiefly see unto, Theri-damas,

For sweet Zenocrate, whose worthiness

Deserves a conquest over every heart.

And now, my footstool, if I lose the field,

You hope of liberty and restitution?

Here let him stay, my masters, from the tents,

Till we have made us ready for the field.

Pray for us, Bajazeth; we are going.

[Exeunt [all except BAJAZETH and ZABINA].

Bay. Go, never to return with victory!

Millions of men encompass thee about,

And gore thy body with as many wounds! Sharp, forked arrows light upon thy horse!

Furies from the black Cocytus lake

Break up the earth, and with their firebrands

Enforce thee run upon the baneful pikes!

Volley of shot pierce through thy charmed

And every bullet dipt in poisoned drugs!

Or roaring cannons sever all thy joints,

Making thee mount as high as eagles soar!

And madness send his damned soul to hell!

Baj. Ah, fair Zabina! we may curse his power,
The heavens may frown, the earth for anger quake,
But such a star hath influence in his sword, 176
As rules the skies and countermands the gods
More than Cimmerian Styx or Destiny;
And then shall we in this detested guise,
With shame, with hunger, and with horror
[stay,] 1
Gripping our bowels with retoriq 2 thoughts,
And have no hope to end our ecstasies.

Zab. Then is there left no Mahomet, no God,
No Fiend, no Fortune, nor no hope of end
To our infamous, monstrous Zabazis.
Gape, earth, and let the fiends infernal view
A hell as hopeless and as full of fear 180
As are the blasted banks of Eræbus,
Where shaking ghosts with ever-howlings groans
Hover about the ugly ferryman,
To get a passage to Elysium!
Why should we live? O, wretches, beggars, slaves! 206
Why live we, Bajazeth, and build up nests
So high within the region of the air
By living long in this oppression,
That all the world will see and laugh to scorn
The former triumphs of our mightiness
In this obscure infernal servitude? 219

Baj. O life, more loathsome to my vexed thoughts
Than noisome parbreek 3 of the Stygian snakes,
Which fills the nooks of hell with standing air,
Infesting all the ghosts with careless griefs! 215
O dreary images 4 of my loathed sight,
That see my crown, my honour, and my name
Thrust under yoke and thraldom of a thief,
Why feed ye still on day's accursed beams
And sink not quite into my tortur'd soul? 230
You see my wife, my queen, and empress,
Brought up and propped by the hand of fame,
Queen of fifteen contributory queens,
Now thrown to rooms of black abjection,
Smeared with blots of basest drudgery,
And villainies 5 to shame, disdain, and misery,
Accursed Bajazeth, whose words of ruth,
(That would with pity cheer Zabina's heart,
And make our souls resolve 6 in ceaseless tears;)
Sharp hunger bites upon, and grieveth the root 239
From whence the issues of my thoughts do break;
O poor Zabina! O my queen! my queen!
Fetch me some water for my burning breast,
To cool and comfort me with longer date,
That in the short'ned sequel of my life
I may pour forth my soul into thine arms
With words of love, whose moaning intercourse
Hath hitherto been stay'd with wrath and hate
Of our expressess bann'd infictions.

Zab. Sweet Bajazeth, I will prolong thy life,
As long as any blood or spark of breath
Can quench or cool the tortures of my grief.

Baj. Now, Bajazeth, abridge thy baneful days,
And beat thy brains out of thy conquer'd head,
Since other means are all forbidden me.
That may be ministers of my decay.
O, highest lamp of ever-living Jove,
Accursed day! infected with my griefs,
Hide now thy stained face in endless night,
And shut the windows of the lightsome heavens!

Let ugly Darkness with her rusty coach,
Engirt with tempests, wrap't in pitchy clouds,
Smother the earth with never-fading mists.
And let her horses from their nostrils breathe
Rebellious winds and dreadful thunder-claps, 235
That in this terror Tamburlaine may live,
And my pin'd soul, resolv'd in liquid air,
May still exorcise his tormented thoughts!
Then let the stony dart of senseless cold
Pierce through the centre of my withered heart,
And make a passage for my loathed life! 244

He brains himself against the cage.

[Enter] ZENOGRATE with ANIPPE.

Zeno. Wretched Zencrate! that liv'st to see
Damascus' walls dy'd with Egyptians' blood, 250
Thy father's subjects and thy countrymen;
Thy streets strow'd with dismember'd joints of men
And wounded bodies gasping yet for life:
But most accurst, to see the sun-bright troop
Of heavenly virgins and unsnapped maids,
(Whose looks might make the angry god of arms
To break his sword and mildly treat of love)
On horsemen's lances to be hoisted up
And guiltlessest endure a cruel death:

For every fell and stout Tartarian steed,
That stamp on others with their thund’ring
hoofs,
When all their riders charg’d their quivering
spears,
Began to check the ground and rein themselves,
Gazing upon the beauty of their looks.
Ah Tamburlaine! wert thou the cause of this
That termst Zenocrate thy dearest love?
Whose lives were dearer to Zenocrate
Than her own life, or sought save thine own love.
But see another bloody spectacle!
Ah, wretched eyes, the enemies of my heart,
How are ye glutted with these grievous objects,
And tell my soul more tales of bleeding ruth!
See, see, Anippe, if they breathe or no.
Anippe. No breath, nor sense, nor motion in them both;
Ah, madam! this their slavery hath enforce’d,
And ruthless cruelty of Tamburlaine.
Zeno. Earth, cast up fountains from thy entrails,
And wave thy cheeks for their untimely deaths!
Shake with their weight in sign of fear and grief!
Blush, Heaven, that gave them honour at their birth
And let them die a death so barbarous!
Those that are proud of fickle empery
And place their chiepest good in earthly pomp,
Behold the Turk and his great Empress!
Ah, Tamburlaine! my love! sweet Tambur-
laine!
That fightest for sceptres and for slippery
crowns,
Behold the Turk and his great Empress!
Thou, that in conduct of thy happy stars
Sleepest every night with conquests on thy brows,
And yet wouldst shun the waving turns of war,
In fear and feeling of the like distress
Behold the Turk and his great Empress!
Ah, mighty Jove and holy Mahomet,
Pardon my love!—O, pardon his contempt
Of earthy fortune and respect of pity,
And let not conquest, ruthlessly pursu’d,
Be equally against his life incensed
In this great Turk and hapless Empress!
And pardon me that was not mov’d with ruth
To see them live so long in misery!
Ah, what may chance to thee, Zenocrate?
Anippe. Madam, content yourself, and be re-solv’d
Your love hath Fortune so at his command,
That she shall stay and turn her wheel no more,
As long as life maintains his mighty arm
That fights for honour to adorn your head.

Enter [PHILEMUS], a Messenger.

Zeno. What other heavy news now brings Philumes?
Phil. Madam, your father, and the Arabian
king,
The first affacter of your excellence,
Comes now, as Turnus’ against Anippe did,
Armed with lance into the Egyptian fields,
Ready for battle against my lord, the king.

Zeno. Now shame and duty, love, and fear presents
A thousand sorrows to my martyr’d soul.
Whom should I wish the fatal victory
When my poor pleasures are divided thus
And rack’d by duty from my cursed heart?
My father and my first-betrothed love
Must fight against my life and present love;
Wherein the change I use condemns my faith,
And makes my deeds infamous through the
world:
But as the gods, to end the Trojans’ toil,
Prevented Turnus of Lavinia
And fatally enrich’d Eneas’ love,
So, for a final issue to my griefs,
To pacify my country and my love
Must Tamburlaine by their resistless powers
With virtue of a gentle victory
Conclude a league of honour to my hope;
Then, as the Powers divine have pre-ordain’d,
With happy safety of my father’s life
Send like a defence of fair Andemard.
The sound to the battle [within]; and TAMBURLAINE enjoys the victory. After,
[the KING of] ARABIA enters wounded.

K. of Arab. What cursed power guides the murdering hands
Of this infamous tyrant’s soldiers
That no escape may save their enemies,
Nor fortune keep themselves from victory?
Lie down, Arabia, wounded to the death,
And let Zenocrate’s fair eyes behold
That, as for her thou bearest these wretched arms,
Even so for her thou diest in these arms,
Leaving thy blood for witness of thy love.
Zeno. Too dear a witness for such love, my
lord,
Behold Zenocrate! the cursed object,
Whose fortunes never master’d her griefs;
Behold her wounded, in concite, for thee,
As much as thy fair body is for me.
K. of Arab. Then shall I die with full, contented heart.

Having beheld divine Zenocrate,
Whose sight with joy would take away my life
As now it bringeth sweetness to my wound,
If I had not been wounded as I am.
Ah! that the deadly pangs I suffer now,
Would lend an hour’s licence to my tongue,
To make discourse of some sweet accidents
Have chance’d thy merits in this worthless bondage;
And that I might be privy to the state
Of thy deserv’d contentment, and thy love;
But, making now a virtue of thy sight
To drive all sorrow from my fainting soul,
Since death denies me farther cause of joy,
Depriv’d of care, my heart with comfort dies,
Since thy desired hand shall close mine eyes.
[He dies.]

Re-enter TAMBURLAINE, leading the SOLDAN, TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, USUMCASANS,
with others.

Tamb. Come, happy father of Zenocrate,
A title higher than thy Soldan’s name;
Though my right hand have thus enthralled thee,
Thy princely daughter here shall set thee free;
She that hath calmed the fury of my sword,
Which had ere this been bath’d in streams of blood
As vast and deep as Euphrates or Nile. 360
Zeno. O sight thrice welcome to my joyful soul,
To see the king, my father, issue safe
From dangerous battle of my conquering love! 361
Sold. Well met, my only dear Zenocrate.
Though with the loss of Egypt and my crown.
Tamb. 'Twas I, my lord, that got the victory,
And therefore grieve not at your overthrow,
Since I shall render all into your hands,
And add more strength to your dominions
Than ever yet confirm'd the Egyptian crown.
The god of war resigns his room to me,
Meaning to make me general of the world.
Jove, viewing me in arms, looks pale and wan,
Fearing my power should pull him from his throne.

Where'er I come the Fatal Sisters sweat, 365
And grisly Death, by running to and fro,
To do their ceaseless homage to my sword;
And here in Afric, where it seldom rains,
Since I arriv'd with my triumphant host,
Have swelling clouds, drawn from wide-gasp
ing wounds. 370
Been oft resolv'd in bloody purple showers,
A meteor that might terrify the earth,
And make it quake at every drop it drinks.
Millions of souls sit on the banks of Styx,
Waiting the back return of Charon's boat; 375
Hell and Elysium swarm with ghosts of men,
That I have sent from sundry foughten fields,
To spread my fame through hell and up to Heaven.
And see, my lord, a sight of strange import, 380
Emperors and kings lie breathless at my feet.
The Turk and his great Empress, as it seems,
Left to themselves while we were at the fight,
Have desperately despatch'd their slavish lives;
With them Arabia, too, hath left his life; 385
All sights of power to grace my victory:
And such are objects fit for Tamburlaine;
Wherein, as in a mirror, may be seen
His honour, that consists in shedding blood,
When men presume to manage arms with him. 390
Sold. Mighty hath God and Mahomet made thy hand,
Renowned Tamburlaine! to whom all kings
Of force must yield their crowns and empires;
And I am pleas'd with this my overthrow,
If, as beseems a person of thy state, 395
Thou hast with honour us'd Zenocrate.

Tamb. Her state and person wants no pomp, you see;
And for all blot of foul in chastity
I record Heaven her heavenly self is clear.
Then let me find no further time to grace 400
Her princely temples with the Persian crown.
But here these kings that on my fortunes wait,
And have been crown'd for proved worthiness,
Even by this hand that shall establish them,
Shall now, adjoining all their hands with mine,
Invest her here my Queen of Persia. 405
What saith the noble Soldan and Zenocrate!
Sold. I yield with thanks and protestations
Of endless honour to thee for her love.
Tamb. Then doubt I not but fair Zenocrate
Will soon consent to satisfy us both. 410
Zeno. Else should I much forget myself, my lord.
Ther. Then let us set the crown upon her head,
That long hath ling'red for so high a seat. Tech.
My hand is ready to perform the deed;
For now her marriage-time shall work us rest.

Usur. And here's the crown, my lord; help set it on.

Tamb. Then sit thou down, divine Zenocrate;
And here we crown thee Queen of Persia,
And all the kingdoms and dominions
That late the power of Tamburlaine subdu'd.
As Juno, when the giants were suppress'd,
That darted mountains at her brother Jove,
So looks my love, shadowing in her brows Triumps and trophies for my victories;
Or as Latona's daughters, bent to arms,
Adding more courage to my conquering mind.
To gratify the sweet Zenocrate,
Egyptians, Moors, and men of Asia,
From Barbary unto the western India,
Shall pay a yearly tribute to thy sire; 450
And from the bounds of Afric to the banks
Of Ganges shall his mighty arm extend.
And now, my lords and loving followers,
That purchas'd kingdoms by your martial deeds,
Cast off your armour, put on scarlet robes,
Mount up your royal places of estate,
Environd with troops of noblemen,
And there make laws to rule your provinces.
Hang up your weapons on Alcides' post,
For Tamburlaine takes truce with all the world.
Thy first-betrothed love, Arabia,
Shall we with honour, as beseems, entomb,
With this great Turk and his fair Empress.
Then, after all these solemn exequies,
We will our rites of marriage solemnise. 455

The Tragical History of Dr. Faustus

Or, being dead, raise them to life again? Then this profession were to be esteem'd. Physic, farewell. — Where is Justinian?

Si una eademque res legatur duobus, alter rem, alter valorum remi, &c. A pretty case of paltry legacies! Exhbaritium filium non potest pater nisi, &c.

Such is the subject of the Institute And universal Body of the Law. His study fits a mercenary drudge, Who aims at nothing but external trash; Too servile and illiberal for me. When all is done, divinity is best; Jerome's Bible, Faustus, view it well.

Stipendium peccati mors est. Ha! Stipendium, &c. "The reward of sin is death." That's hard. Si pecasse negamus, fallimus, et nulla est in nobis veritas. "If we say that we have no sin we deceive ourselves, and there's no truth in us." Why then, belike we must sin and so consequently die. Ay, we must die an everlasting death. What doctrine call you this, Che sera sera, "What will be shall be?" Divinity, adieu! These metaphysics of magicians And necromantic books are heavenly; Lines, circles, scenes, letters, and characters, Ay, these are those that Faustus most desires. O what a world of profit and delight, Of power, of honour, of omnipotence Is promis'd to the studious artisan! All things that move between the quiet poles Shall be at my command. Emperors and kings Are but obeyed in their several provinces, Nor can they raise the wind or rend the clouds; But his dominion that exceeds in this Stretcheth as far as doth the mind of man. A sound magician is a mighty god: Here, Faustus, try thine brains to gain a deity. Wagner!

Enter Wagner.

Than all my labours, plod I ne'er so fast.

Enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

G. Ang. O Faustus! lay that damned book aside,
And gaze not upon it lest it tempt thy soul, And heap God's heavy wrath upon thy head. Read, read the Scriptures: that is blasphemy. E. Ang. Go forward, Faustus, in that famous art.

Wherein all Nature's treasure is contain'd: Be thou on earth as Jove is in the sky,
Lord and commander of these elements.

Exeunt [Angels.]

Faust. How am I glutted with conceit of this! Shall I make spirits fetch me what I please, Resolve me of all ambiguities, Perform what desperate enterprise I will? I'll have them fly to India for gold, Ransack the ocean for orient pearl, And search all corners of the new-found world For pleasant fruits and princely delights; I'll have them read me strange philosophy And tell the secrets of all foreign kings; I'll have them wall all Germany with brass, And make swift Rhine circle fair Wittenberg; I'll have them fill the public schools with [silk]; Wherewith the students shall be bravely clad; I'll levy soldiers with the coin they bring, And chase the Prince of Parma from our land, And reign sole king of all the provinces; Yea, stranger engines for the brunt of war Than was the fiery keel at Antwerp's bridge, I'll make my servile spirits to invent. Come, German Valdes and Cornelius, And make me blest with your sage conference.

Enter Valdes and Cornelius.

Then, gentle friends, aid me in this attempt; And I that have with concise syllogisms Gravell'd the pastors of the German church, And made the flow'ring pride of Wittenberg Swarm to my problems, as the infernal spirits On sweet Museus, when he came to hell, Will be as cunning as Agrippa was, Whose shadows made all Europe honour him. Corn. The miracles that magic will perform
Will make thee vow to study nothing else. \(^7\)
He that is grounded in astrology,
Earli’st with tongues, well seen \(^2\) in minerals,
Hath all the principles magic doth require.

Then doubt not, Faustus, but to be renown’d,
And perhaps frequented for this mystery
Than heretofore the Delphian Oracle.
The spirits tell me they can dry the sea,
And fetch the treasure of all foreign wracks,
Ay, all the wealth that our forefathers hid
Within the massy entrails of the earth; \(^6\)

Then tell me, Faustus, what shall we three want?

Faust. Nothing. Nothing, Cornelius! O this cheers my soul!
Come show me some demonstrations magical,
That I may conjure in some lusty grove,
And have these joys in full possession. \(^9\)

Vald. Then haste thee to some solitary grove,
And bear wise Bacon’s \(^3\) and Albano’s \(^4\) works,
The Hebrew Psalter and New Testament;
And whatsoever else is requisite
We will inform thee ere our conference cease.

Corn. Valdes, first let him know the words of art;
And then, all other ceremonies learn’d,
Faustus may try his cunning by himself.

Vald. First I’ll instruct thee in the rudiment
And then wilt thou be perfecter than I. \(^10\)

Faust. Then come and dine with me, and after meat,
We’ll canvass every quiddity \(^6\) thereof;
For ere I sleep I’ll try what I can do:
This night I’ll conjure though I die therefore.

[SCENE II.] \(^6\)

Enter two SCHOLARS.

1 Schol. I wonder what’s become of Faustus that was wont to make our schools ring with sic probo? \(^8\)
2 Schol. That shall we know, for see here comes his boy.

Enter WAGNER.

1 Schol. How now, sirrah! Where’s thy master?
Wag. God in heaven knows!
2 Schol. Why, dost thou know him?
Wag. Yes, I know. But that follows not. \(^10\)
1 Schol. Go to, sirrah! Leave your jesting, and tell us where he is.
Wag. That follows not necessary by force of argument, that you, being licentiate, should stand upon’t: therefore, acknowledge your \(^5\) error and be attentive.
2 Schol. Why, didst thou not say thou knew’st?
Wag. Have you any witness on’t? \(^11\)
1 Schol. Yes, sirrah, I heard you.
Wag. Ask my fellow if I be a thief.
2 Schol. Well, you will not tell us?
Wag. Yes, sir, I will tell you; yet if you were not dunces, you would never ask me such a question; for is not he corpus naturale? \(^8\) and is not that mobile? \(^8\) Then wherefore should you ask me such a question? But that I am by nature phlegmatic, slow to wrath, and prone to lechery (to love, I would say), it were not for you to come within forty foot of the place of execution, although I do not doubt to see you both hang’d the next sessions. Thus having triumph’d over you, I will set my countenance like a precise, \(^9\) and begin to speak thus: —

Truly, my dear brethren, my master is within at dinner, with Valdes and Cornelius, as this wine, if it could speak, would inform your worships; and so the Lord bless you, preserve you, and keep you, my dear brethren, my dear brethren.

Exit. \(^40\)

1 Schol. Nay, then, I fear he has fallen into that damned Art, for which they two are infamous through the world.
2 Schol. Were he a stranger, and not allied to me, yet should I grieve for him. But come, let us go and inform the Rektor, and see if he \(^9\) by his grave counsel can reclaim him.

1 Schol. O, I fear me nothing can reclaim him.
2 Schol. Yet let us try what we can do. \(^58\)

Exeunt.

[SCENE III.] \(^10\)

Enter FAUSTUS to conjure.

Faust. Now that the gloomy shadow of the earth
Longing to view Orion’s dazzling look,
Leaps from the antarctic world unto the sky,
And dims the welkin with her pitchy breath.
Faustus, begin thine incantations,
And try if devils will obey thy hest.
Seeing thou hast prays’d and sacrifice’d to them.
Within this circle is Jehovah’s name, \(^8\)

"Corpus naturale seu mobile is the current scholastic expression for the subject-matter of Physics." (Ward.

Puritan. \(^9\) A Grove.
Forward and backward anagrammatis'd, 10
The breviet names of holy saints,
Figures of every adjunct 1 to the Heavens, 10
And characters of signs and erring stars, 2 10
By which the spirits are enforc'd to rise: 15
Then fear not, Faustus, but be resolute, 10
And try the uttermost magic can perform. 15

Enter Mephistophilis a Devil.
I charge thee to return and change thy shape; Thou art too ugly to attend on me.
Go, and return an old Franciscan friar;
That holy shape becomes a devil best. Exit Devil.
I see there's virtue in my heavenly words; 50
Who would not be proficient in this art?
How plant is this Mephistophilis, 50
Full of obedience and humility!
Such is the force of magic and my spells.
Now Faustus, thou art conjuror laurate, 35
Thou canst command great Mephistophilis:
Quin regis Mephistophilis fratri imagine. 4

Re-enter Mephistophilis [like a Franciscan Friar].

Meph. Now, Faustus, what wouldst thou have me do?
Faust. I charge thee wait upon me whilst I live,
To do whatever Faustus shall command,
Be it to make the moon drop from her sphere,
Or the ocean to overwhelm the world.
Meph. I am a servant to great Lucifer,
And may not follow thee without his leave;
No more than he commands must we perform. 45
Faust. Did he not charge thee to appear to
me?
Meph. No, I came hither of mine own accord.
Faust. Did not my conjuring speeches raise thee? Speak:
Meph. That was the cause, but yet per accidens;
For when we hear one rack 5 the name of God,
Abjure the Scriptures and his Saviour Christ, 61

1 Every star belonging to.
2 Planetas.
3 "Be propitious to me, gods of Acheron! May the triple deity of Jehovah prevail! Spirits of fire, air, water, hail! Belzebub, Prince of the East, monarch of burning hell, and Demogorgon, we propitiate ye, that Mephistophilis may appear and rise. Why dost thou delay? By Jehovah, Gehenna, and the holy water which now I sprinkle, and the sign of the cross which now I make, and by our prayer, may Mephistophilis now summomed by us arise!"
4 "For indeed thou hast power in the image of thy brother Mephistophilis."
5 Twist in anagram.

We fly in hope to get his glorious soul;
Nor will we come, unless he use such means
Whereby he is in danger to be damm'd:
Therefore the shortest cut for conjuring
Is stolutely to abjure the Trinity,
And pray devoutly to the Prince of Hell.
Faust. So Faustus hath Already done; and holds this principle,
There is no chief but only Belzebub,
To whom Faustus doth dedicate himself.
This word 'damnation' terrifies not him,
For he confounds hell in Elysium: 5
His ghost be with the old philosophers!
But, leaving these vain trifles of men's souls, 55
Tell me what is that Lucifer thy lord?
Meph. Arch-regent and commander of all spirits.
Faust. Was not that Lucifer an angel once?
Meph. Yes, Faustus, and most dearly lov'd of God.
Faust. How comes it then that he is Prince of devils?
Meph. O, by aspiring pride and insolence;
For which God threw him from the face of Heaven.
Faust. And what are you that you live with Lucifer?
Meph. Unhappy spirits that fell with Lucifer,
Conspir'd against our God with Lucifer,
And are for ever damm'd with Lucifer.
Faust. Where are you damn'd?
Meph. In hell.
Faust. How comes it then that thou art out of hell?
Meph. Why this is hell, nor am I out of it.
Think'st thou that I who saw the face of God,
And tasted the eternal joys of Heaven,
Am not tormented with ten thousand hells,
In being depriv'd of everlasting bliss?
O Faustus! I leave these frivolous demands,
Which strike a terror to my fainting soul.
Faust. What, is great Mephistophilis so passionate?
For being depriv'd of the joys of Heaven?
Learn thou of Faustus manly fortitude,
And scorn those joys thou never shalt possess.
Go bear these tidings to great Lucifer: 91
Seeing Faustus hath incurred'd eternal death
By desperate thoughts against Jove's deity,
Say he surrenders up to him his soul,
So he will spare him four and twenty years, 95
Letting him live in all voluptuousness;
Having thee ever to attend on me;
To give me whatsoever I shall ask,
To tell me whatsoever I demand,
To slay mine enemies, and aid my friends, 100
And always be obedient to my will.
Go and return to mighty Lucifer,
And meet me in my study at midnight,
And then resolve me of thy master's mind.
Meph. I will, Faustus.

Faust. Had I as many souls as there be stars,
I'd give them all for Mephistophilis.
By him I'll be great Emperor of the world,

6 Heaven and hell are indifferent to him.
7 Borrowful.
8 Inform.
And make a bridge through the moving air,
To pass the ocean with a band of men;
I'll join the hills that bind the Afric shore,
And make that [country] continent to Spain,
And both contribuyor to my crown.
The Emperor shall not live but by my leave,
Nor any potentate of Germany.
Now that I have obtain'd what I desire,
I'll live in speculation 1 of this art
Till Mephistophilis return again.
Exit.

[Scene IV.] 2
Enter Wagner and the Clown.

Wag. Sirrah, boy, come hither.
Clown. How, boy! Swowns, boy! I hope you have seen many boys with such pickadavants 3
as I have. Boy, quotha!
Wag. Tell me, sirrah, hast thou any comings in?
Clown. Ay, and goings out too. You may see eelse.
Wag. Alas, poor slave! See how poverty jest-eth in his nakedness! The villain is bare and [50 out of service, and so hungry that I know he would give his soul to the devil for a shoulder of mutton, though it were blood-raw.
Clown. How? My soul to the Devil for a shoulder of mutton, though 'twere blood-raw! [55
Not so, good friend. By 'r Lady, I had need have it well roasted and good sauce to it, if I pay so dear.
Wag. Well, wilt thou serve me, and I'll make thee go like Qui mihi discipulus? 4
Clown. How, in verse?
Wag. No, sirrah; in beaten silk and staves-acre.
Clown. How, how, Knave's acre! 10 Ay, I thought that was all the land his father left. [55 him. Do you hear? I would be sorry to rob you of your living.
Wag. Sirrah, I say in stavesacre.
Clown. Oho! Oho! Stavesacre! Why, then, belike if I were your man I should be full of vermin.
Wag. So thou shalt, whether thou beest with me or no. But, sirrah, leave your jesting, and bind yourself presently unto me for seven years, or I'll turn all the lice about thee into familiars, and they shall tear thee in pieces.
Clown. Do you hear, sir? You may save that labour; they are too familiar with me already.
Swowns! they are as bold with my flesh as if they had paid for [their] meat and [50 drink.
Wag. Well, do you hear, sirrah? Hold, take these guilders. [Gives money.]
Clown. Gridirons! what be they?
Wag. Why, French crowns.
Clown. Mass, but for the name of French crowns, a man were as good have as many English counters. And what should I do with these?
Wag. Why, now, sirrah, thou art at an [so hour's warming, whenever and wheresoever the devil shall fetch thee.
Clown. No, no. Here, take your gridirons
again.
Wag. Truly I'll none of them.
Clown. Truly but you shall.
Wag. Bear witness I gave them him.
Clown. Bear witness I gave them you again.
Wag. Well, I will cause two devils presently to fetch thee away — Balian and Belcher.
Clown. Let your Balian and your Belcher come here, and I'll knock them, they were never so knockt since they were devils. Say I should kill one of them, what would folks say?
"Do you see yonder tall fellow in the round [50 slop?" — he has kill'd the devil." So I should  efcall'd Kill-devil all the parish over.

Enter two Devils: the Clown runs up and down crying.

Wag. Balian and Belcher! Spirits, away!

[Execute Devils.]

Clown. What, are they gone? A vengeance on them, they have vile long nails! There [50 was a he-devil, and a she-devil! I'll tell you how you shall know them: all he-devils has horns, and all she-devils has clifts and cloven feet.
Wag. Well, sirrah, follow me.
Clown. But, do you hear — if I should serve you, would you teach me to raise up Banios [55 and Belcheos?
Wag. I will teach thee to turn thyself to anything; to a dog, or a cat, or a mouse, or a rat, or anything.
Clown. How! a Christian fellow to a dog or a cat, a mouse or a rat! No, no, sir. If you turn me into anything, let it be in the likeness of a little pretty frisky flea, that I may be here and there and everywhere. Oh, I'll tickle [60 the pretty wenches' plackets; I'll be amongst them, i' faith.
Wag. Well, sirrah, come.
Clown. But, do you hear, Wagner?
Wag. How! — Balian and Belcher!

Clown. O Lord! I pray, sir, let Banio and Belcher go sleep.
Wag. Villain — call me Master Wagner, and let thy left eye be diametarily 8 fixt upon my right heel, with quasi vestigias nostros insisteres. 9

Clown. God forgive me, he speaks Dutch [65 fustian. Well, I'll follow him, I'll serve him, that's flat.

[Scene V.]

Enter Faustus in his study.

Faust. Now, Faustus, must

Thou needs be damn'd, and canst thou not be say'd:

What boots it then to think of God or Heaven?
Away with such vain fancies, and despair:

1 Study. 2 A street. 3 Beards cut to a sharp point (Fr. pic-à-devant). 4 Dyce points out that these are the first words of W. Lily's "Ad dispuclus carmen de moribus." 5 A kind of larkspur, used for destroying lice. 6 A mean street in London. 7 Short wide breeches. 8 For diametrically. 9 "As if to tread in my tracks."
Despair in God, and trust in Belzebub.

Now go not backward: no, Faustus, be resolute.

Why wavest thou? O, something soundeth in mine ears

"Abjure this magic, turn to God again!"

Ay, and Faustus will turn to God again.

To God? — He loves thee not —

The God thou serv'st is thine own appetite,

Wherein is fix'd the love of Belzebub;

To him I'll build an altar and a church,

And offer lukewarm blood of new-born babes.

Enter GOOD ANGEL and EVIL [ANGEL]

G. Ang. Sweet Faustus, leave that execrable art.

Faust. Contrition, prayer, repentance! What of them?

G. Ang. O, they are means to bring thee unto Heaven,

E. Ang. Rather illusions, fruits of lunacy,

That makes men foolish that do trust them most.

G. Ang. Sweet Faustus, think of Heaven, and heavenly things.

E. Ang. No, Faustus, think of honour and wealth.

Faust. Of wealth!

Why, the signiory of Emden shall be mine.

When Mephistophilis shall stand by me,

What God can hurt thee, Faustus? Thou art safe;

Cast no more doubts. Come, Mephistophilis,

And bring glad tidings from great Lucifer —

Is't not midnight? Come, Mephistophilis;

Ven, veni, Mephistophele!

Enter MEPHISTOPHILIS.

Now tell me, what says Lucifer thy lord?

Meph. That I shall wait on Faustus whilst he lives,

So he will buy my service with his soul.

Faust. Already Faustus hath hazarded that for thee.

Meph. But, Faustus, thou must bequeath it solemnly,

And write a deed of gift with thine own blood,

For that security craves great Lucifer.

If thou deny it, I will back to hell.

Faust. Stay, Mephistophilis! and tell me what good

Will my soul do thy lord.

Meph. Enlarge his kingdom.

Faust. Is that the reason why he tempts us thus?

Meph. Solamen miseris socios habuisse doloris.

Faust. Why, have you any pain that torture others?

Meph. As great as have the human souls of men.

But tell me, Faustus, shall I have thy soul?

And I will be thy slave, and wait on thee,

And give thee more than thou hast wit to ask.

1 Emden, near the mouth of the river Ems, was an important commercial town in Elizabethan times.

2 Misery loves company."

Faust. Ay, Mephistophilis, I give it thee.

Meph. Then, Faustus, stab thine arm courageously.

And bind thy soul that at some certain day

Great Lucifer may claim it as his own;

And then be thou as great as Lucifer.

Faust. [stabbing his arm.] Lo, Mephistophilis,

for love of thee,

I cut mine arm, and with my proper blood

Assure my soul to be great Lucifer's,

Chief lord and regent of perpetual night!

View here the blood that trickles from mine arm.

And let it be propitious for my wish.

Meph. But, Faustus, thou must Write it in manner of a deed of gift.

Faust. Ay, so I will. [Witnes.] But, Mephistophilis,

My blood congeals, and I can write no more.

Meph. I'll fetch thee fire to dissolve it straight.

Faust. What might the staying of my blood portend?

Is it unwilling I should write this bill?

Why streams it not that I may write afresh?

Faustus gives to thee his soul. Ah, there it stay'd.

Why should' st thou not? Is not thy soul thine own?

Then write again, Faustus gives to thee his soul.

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS with a chaser of coals.

Meph. Here's fire. Come, Faustus, set it on.

Faust. So now the blood begins to clear again;

Now will I make an end immediately. [Witnes.]

Meph. O what will not I do to obtain his soul.

[Aside.]

Faust. Consummatum est: this bill is ended,

And Faustus hath bequeath'd his soul to Lucifer —

But what is this inscription on mine arm?

Homo, fuge! 4 Whither should I fly?

If unto God, he'll throw me down to hell.

My senses are deceiv'd; here's nothing writ: —

I see it plain; here in this place is writ

Homo, fuge! Yet shall not Faustus fly.

Meph. I'll fetch him somewhat to delight his mind.

Exit.

Re-enter [MEPHISTOPHILIS] with Devils, giving crowns and rich apparel to FAUSTUS, and dance, and then depart.

Faust. Speak, Mephistophilis, what means this show?

Meph. Nothing, Faustus, but to delight thy mind withal,

And to show thee what magic can perform.

Faust. But may I raise up spirits when I please?

Meph. Ay, Faustus, and do greater things than these.

Faust. Then there's enough for a thousand souls.

Here, Mephistophilis, receive this scroll,

A deed of gift of body and of soul:

3 It is finished.

4 "Man, fly!"
But yet conditionally that thou perform 90
All articles prescrib'd between us both.

Meph. Faustus, I swear by hell and Lucifer
To effect all promises between us made.

Faust. Then hear me read them: On these conditions following. First, that Faustus may as be spirit, form, and substance. Secondly, that Mephistophilis shall be his servant, and at his command. Thirdly, that Mephistophilis shall do for him and bring him whatsoever [he desires].
Fourthly, that he shall be in his chamber or house invisible. Lastly, that he shall appear to the said John Faustus, at all times, in what form or shape soever he pleases. I, John Faustus, of Wittenberg, Doctor, by these presents do give both body and soul to Lucifer, Prince of the East, [100] and his minister, Mephistophilis: and furthermore grant unto them, that twenty-four years being expired, the articles above written inviolate, full power to fetch or carry the said John Faustus, body and soul, flesh, blood, or goods, into their [110] habitation wheresoever. By me, John Faustus.

Meph. Speak, Faustus, do you deliver this as your deed?*.

Faust. Ay, take it, and the Devil give thee good on't.

Meph. Now, Faustus, ask what thou wilt. 114
Faust. First will I question with thee about hell.
Tell me where is the place that men call hell?
Meph. Under the heavens.

Faust. Ay, but whereabouts?

Meph. Within the bowels of these elements,
Where we are tortured and remain for ever; 119
Hell hath no limits, nor is circumscrib'd.
In one self place; for where we are is hell,
And where hell is there must we ever be:
And, to conclude, when all the world dissolves,
And every creature shall be purified, 226
All places shall be hell that is not Heaven.

Faust. Come, I think hell's a fable.

Meph. Ay, think so still, till experience change thy mind.

Faust. Why, think'st thou then that Faustus shall be damned? 129

Meph. Ay, of necessity, for here's the scroll
Wherein thou hast given thy soul to Lucifer.

Faust. Ay, and body too; but what of that?
Think'st thou that Faustus is so fond 1 to imagine
That, after this life, there is any pain?
Tush! these are trifles, and more old wives' tales.

Meph. But, Faustus, I am an instance to prove the contrary,
For I am damned, and am now in hell.

Faust. How! now in hell!
Nay, an this be hell, I'll willingly be damn'd here;
What? walking, disputing, &c.? 160
But, leaving off this, let me have a wife,
The fairest maid in Germany;
For I am wanton and lascivious,
And cannot live without a wife.

Meph. How—a wife?

I prithee, Faustus, talk not of a wife.

Faust. Nay, sweet Mephistophilis, fetch me one, for I will have one.

Meph. Well—thou wilt have one. Sit there till I come:
I'll fetch thee a wife in the Devil's name.

[Exit.]

Re-enter Mephistophilis with a Devil dressed like a woman, with fireworks.

Meph. Tell me, Faustus, how dost thou like thy wife?

Faust. A plague on her for a hot whore!

Meph. Tut, Faustus,
Marriage is but a ceremonial toy;
And if thou lovest me, think no more of it.
I'll call thee out the fairest courtesans, 152
And bring them every morning to thy bed;
She whom thine eye shall like, thy heart shall have.

Be she as chaste as was Penelope,
As wise as Saba, 2 or as beautiful
As was bright Lucifer before his fall. 160

Here, take this book, peruse it thoroughly:

[Gives a book.]
The iterating 3 of these lines brings gold;
The framing of this circle on the ground Brings whirlwinds, tempests, thunder and lightning;
Pronounce this thrice devotely to thyself, 165
And men in armour shall appear to thee,
Ready to execute what thou desirest.

Faust. Thanks, Mephistophilis; yet fain would I have a book wherein I might behold all spells and incantations, that I might raise up spirits when I please.

Meph. Here they are, in this book.

[Turns to them.]

Faust. Now would I have a book where I might see all characters and planets of the heavens, that I might know their motions and dispositions.

Meph. Here they are too. 3

Faust. Nay, let me have one book more,— and then I have done,—wherein I might see all plants, herbs, and trees that grow upon the earth.

Meph. Here they be.

Faust. O, thou art deceived.

Meph. Tut, I warrant thee. 4

[Exeunt.]

[Scene VI.]

Enter Faustus and Mephistophilis.

Faust. When I behold the heavens, then I repent,
And curse thee, wicked Mephistophilis,
Because thou hast deprived me of those joys.

Meph. Why, Faustus,
Thinkest thou Heaven is such a glorious thing? 5
I tell thee 'tis not half so fair as thou,
Or any man that breathes on earth.

Faust. How provest thou that?

Meph. 'T was made for man, therefore is man more excellent.

* The Queen of Sheba.
* Repeating.
* Foolish.
* The same.

* Foolish.

* Foolish.
Faust. If it were made for man, 't was made for me; I will renounce this magic and repent.

Enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

G. Ang. Faustus, repent; yet God will pity thee.

E. Ang. Thou art a spirit; God cannot pity thee.

Faust. Who buzzeth in mine ears I am a spirit? Be I a devil, yet God may pity me; Ay, God will pity me if I repent.

E. Ang. Ay, but Faustus never shall repent.

Faust. My heart 's so hard 'ned I cannot repent.

Scarce can I name salvation, faith, or heaven, But fearful echoes thunder in mine ears "Faustus, thou art damn'd!" Then swords and knives, Poison, gun, halters, and envenom'd steel Are laid before me to despatch myself, And long ere this I should have slain myself, Had not sweet pleasure conquer'd deep despair. Have I not made blind Homer sing to me Of Alexander's love and Cynon's death? And hath not he that built the walls of Thebes With ravishing sound of his melodious harp, Made music with my Mephistophilis? Why should I die then, or basely despair? I am resolv'd: Faustus shall ne'er repent. Come, Mephistophilis, let us dispute again, And argue of divine astrology. Tell me, are there many heavens above the moon? Are all celestial bodies but one globe, As is the substance of this centric earth? Meph. As are the elements, such are the spheres Mutually folded in each other's orb, And, Faustus, All jointly move upon one axletree Whose termination is term'd the world's wide pole; Nor are the names of Saturn, Mars, or Jupiter Feign'd, but are erring stars. Faust. But tell me, have they all one motion, both situ et tempore? Meph. All jointly move from east to west in twenty-four hours upon the poles of the world; but differ in their motion upon the poles of the zodiac.

Faust. Tush! These slender trifles Wagner can decide; Hath Mephistophilis no greater skill? Who knows not the double motion of the planets? The first is finish'd in a natural day; The second thus: as Saturn in thirty years; Jupiter in twelve; Mars in four; the Sun, Venus, and Mercury in a year; the moon in twenty-eight days. Tush, these are freshmen's suppositions. But tell me, hath every sphere a dominion or intelligencia? Meph. Ay.

1 "In direction and in time!"

Faust. How many heavens, or spheres, are there?

Meph. Nine: the seven planets, the firmament, and the empyreal heaven.

Faust. Well, resolve me in this question: Why have we not conjunctions, oppositions, aspects, eclipses, all at one time, but in some years have we more, in some less?

Meph. Per inaquem motum respecta totius Faust. Well, I am answered. Tell me who made the world.

Meph. I will not.

Faust. Sweet Mephistophilis, tell me. Meph. Move me not, for I will not tell thee. Faust. Villain, have I not bound thee to tell me anything?

Meph. Ay, that is not against our kingdom; but this is,

Think thou on hell, Faustus, for thou art damn'd.

Faust. Think, Faustus, upon God that made the world.

Meph. Remember this.

Faust. Ay, go, accursed spirit, to ugly hell. 'Tis thou hast damn'd distressed Faustus' soul. Is 't not too late?

Re-enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

E. Ang. Too late.

G. Ang. Never too late, if Faustus can repent.

E. Ang. If thou repent, devils shall tear thee in pieces.

G. Ang. Repent, and they shall never raz th' skin.

Exeunt [Angels.]

Faust. Ah, Christ, my Saviour, Seek to save distressed Faustus' soul.

Enter Lucifer, Belzefub, and Mephistophilis. Luc. Christ cannot save thy soul, for he is just; There's none but I have interest in the same. Faust. O, who art thou that look'st so terrible? Luc. I am Lucifer, And this is my companion-prince in hell. Faust. O Faustus! they are come to fetch away thy soul! Luc. We come to tell thee thou dost injure us; Thou talk'st of Christ contrary to thy promise; Thou should'st not think of God: think of the Devil, And of his dam, too.

Faust. Nor will I henceforth: pardon me in this, And Faustus vows never to look to Heaven, Never to name God, or to pray to him, To burn his Scriptures, slay his ministers, And make my spirits pull his churches down. Luc. Do so, and we will highly gratify thee. Faustus, we are come from hell to show thee some pastime. Sit down, and thou shalt see all the Seven Deadly Sins appear in their proper shapes.

2 "On account of their unequal motion in relation to the whole."
Faust. That sight will be pleasing unto me,
As Paradise was to Adam the first day 111
Of his creation.

Luc. Talk not of Paradise nor creation, but mark this! it is now: talk of the Devil, and nothing else. — Come away!

Enter the Seven Deadly Sins.

Now, Faustus, examine them of their several names and dispositions.

Faust. What art thou — the first?

Pride. I am Pride. I disdain to have any parents. I am like to Ovid’s flea: I can 123 creep into every corner of a wench; sometimes, like a periwig, I sit upon her brow; or like a fan of feathers, I kiss her lips; indeed I do — what do I not? But, fie, what a scent is here!
I’ll not speak another word, except the [123] ground were perfum’d, and covered with cloth of arras.

Faust. What art thou — the second?

 Covet. I am Covetousness, begotten of an old churl in an old leathern bag; and might I [123] have my wish I would desire that this house and all the people in it were turn’d to gold, that I might look up in my good chest. O, my sweet gold!

Faust. What art thou — the third?

Wraith. I am Wraith. I had neither father or mother: I leapt out of a lion’s mouth when I was scarce half an hour old; and ever since I have run up and down the world with this case¹ of rapiers wounding myself when I [146] had nobody to fight withal, I was born in hell; and look to it, for some of you shall be my father.

Faust. What art thou — the fourth?

Envy. I am Envy, begotten of a chim¬[146] nay sweeper and an oyster-wife. I cannot read, and therefore wish all books were burnt. I am lean with seeing others eat. O that there would come a famine through all the world, that all might die, and I live alone! then thou [150] should’st see how fat I would be. But must thou sit and I stand! Come down with a vengeance!

Faust. Away, envious rascal! What art thou — the fifth?

parents are all dead, and the devil a penny they have left me, but a bare pension, and that is three meals a day and ten bevers ² — a small trifle to suffice nature. O, I come of a royal parentage! My grandfather was a Gammon [156] of Bacon, my grandmother a Hogshead of Claret-wine; my godfathers were, Peter Pickleherring, and Martin Martilemas-beef. ³ O, but my godmother, she was a jolly gentlewoman,
and well beloved in every good town and [159]
city; her name was Mistress Margery March beer. Now, Faustus, thou hast heard all my progeny, wilt thou bid me to supper?

Faust. No, I’ll see thee hanged: thou wilt eat up all my victuals.

¹ Fair.
² Refreshments between meals.
³ Martilemas or Martinemas was "the customary time for hanging up provisions to dry which had been salted for the winter." (Nares.)

Glut. Then the Devil choke thee!

Faust. Choke thyself, glutton! Who art thou — the sixth?

Sloth. I am Sloth. I was begotten on a sunny bank, where I have lain ever since; and [170] you have done me great injury to bring me from there: let me be carried thither again by Gluttony and Lechery. I’ll not speak another word for a king’s ransom.

Faust. What are you, Mistress Minx, the seventh and last?

Lech. Who, I, sir? I am one that loves an inch of raw mutton better than an ell of fried stockfish; and the first letter of my name begins with Lechery.

Luc. Away to hell, to hell! (Exit the Sins.)

— Now, Faustus, how dost thou like this? 175

Faust. O, this feeds my soul!

Luc. Tut, Faustus, in hell is all manner of delight.

Faust. O might I see hell, and return again.
How happy were I then!

Luc. Thou shalt; I will send thee at midnight.

In meantime take this book; peruse it throughly.
And thou shalt turn thyself into what shape and form thou wilt.

Faust. Great thanks, mighty Lucifer!
This will I keep as chary as my life.

Luc. Farewell, Faustus, and think on the Devil.

Faust. Farewell, great Lucifer! Come, Mephisto philus.

Exeunt omnes.

Enter Wagner. ⁴

Wagner. Learned Faustus,

Tell me the secrets of astronomy,

Graven in the book of Jove’s high firmament,

Did mount himself to scale Olympus’ top,

Being seated in a chariot burning bright,

Drawn by the strength of yoky dragons’ necks.

He now is gone to prove cosmography,

And, as I guess, will first arrive at Rome,

To see the Pope and manner of his court,

And take some part of holy Peter’s feast,

That to this day is highly solemnis’d. Exit.

[Scene VII.] ⁵

Enter Faustus and Mephistophiles.

Faust. Having now, my good Mephistophiles,

Past with delight the stately town of Trier, ⁶

Environ’d round with airy mountain-tops,

With walls of flint, and deep entrenched lakes,

Not to be won by any conquering prince;

From Paris next, coasting the realm of France,

We saw the river Maine fall into Rhine,

Whose banks are set with groves of fruitful vines;

Then up to Naples, rich Campania,

Whose buildings fair and gorgeous to the eye,

The streets straight forth, and pav’d with finest brick;

Quarter the town in four equivalents.

⁴ Later edd. give this speech to Chorus.
⁵ The Pope’s Privy-chamber.
⁶ Treves.
Theo said we learned Maro's golden tomb,
The way he cut, an English mile in length,
Thorough a rock of stone in one night's space;
From thence to Venice, Padua, and the rest,
In one of which a sumptuous temple stands,
That threatens the stars with her aspiring top,
Thus hitherto has Faustus spent his time:
But tell me, now, what resting-place is this?
Hast thou, as erst I did command,
Conducted me within the walls of Rome?
Meph. Faustus, I have;
And because we will not be unprovided, I have taken up his Holiness' privy-chamber for our use.
Faust. I hope his Holiness will bid us welcome.
Meph. Tut, 'tis no matter, man, we'll be bold with his good cheer.
And now, my Faustus, that thou may'st perceive

What Rome containeth to delight thee with,
Know that this city stands upon seven hills
That underprop the groundwork of the same.
[Just through the midst runs flowing Tiber's stream,

With winding banks that cut it in two parts:]
Over which the four stately bridges lean.
That make safe passage to each part of Rome:
Upon the bridge call'd Ponto Angelo
Erected is a castle passing strong,
Within whose walls such store of ordnance are,
And double camels, from'd of carved brass,
As match the days of one complete year;
Besides the gates and high pyramids,
Which Julius Caesar brought from Africa.
Faust. Now by the kingdoms of infernal rule,
Of Styx, of Acheron, and the fiery lake
Of ever-burning Phlegethon, I swear
That I do long to see the monuments
And situation of bright-splendid Rome:
Come therefore, let's away.
Meph. Nay, Faustus, stay; I know you'd fain see the Pope,
And take some part of holy Peter's feast,
Where thou shalt see a troop of bald-pate friars,
Whose sumum bonum is in belly-cheer.
Faust. Well, I'm content to compass then some sport,
And by their folly make us merriment.
Then charm me, Mephistophilis, that I may be invisible, to do what I please Unseen of any whilst I stay in Rome.

Mephistophilis charms him.

Meph. So, Faustus, now
Do what thou wilt, thou shalt not be discern'd.

Sound a sennet. Enter the Pope and the Cardinal of Lorraine to the banquet, with friars attending.

Pope. My Lord of Lorraine, wilt please you draw near?
Faust. Fall to, and the devil choke you and you spare!

They sing:
Cursed be he that stole away his Holiness' meat from the table! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that struck his Holiness a blow on the face! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that took Friar Sandelo a blow on the pate! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that disturbed our holy dirge! Maledicat Dominus!
Cursed be he that took away his Holiness' wine! Maledicat Dominus! Et omnes sancti!
Amen!

[Mephistophilis and Faustus] beat the friars, and firing fireworks among them: and so eunxut.

Enter Chorus.

Chorus. When Faustus had with pleasure ta'en the view
Of rarest things, and royal courts of kings,

1 Virgil, who was reputed a magician in the Middle Ages, was buried at Naples.
2 Engaged.
3 "A particular set of notes on the trumpet or cornet, different from a flourish." (Nares.)
4 If.
He stay'd his course, and so returned home; Where such as bear his absence but with grief, I mean his friends, and near'st companions, Did gratulate his safety with kind words, And in their conference of what befell, Touching his journey through the world and air, They put forth questions of Astrology, Which Faustus answer'd with such learned skill, As they admir'd and wond'red at his wit. Now is his fame spread forth in every land; Amongst the rest the Emperor is one, Carolus the Fifth, at whose palace now Faustus is feasted 'mongst his noblemen. What there he did in trial of his art, I leave untold,—your eyes shall see perform'd.

Exit.

[SCENE VIII.] Enter Robin the Osler with a book in his hand. Robin. O, this is admirable! here I ha' stolen one of Dr. Faustus' conjuring books, and I' faith, I mean to search some circles for my own use. Now will I make all the maidens in our parish dance at my pleasure, stark naked [before me; and so by that means I shall see more than e'er I felt or saw yet. Enter Ralph calling Robin. Ralph. Robin, prithee come away; there's a gentleman tarries to have his horse, and he would have his things rubb'd and made clean. [He keeps such a chafing with my mistress about it; and she has sent me to look thee out. Prithee come away. Robin. Keep out, keep out, or else you are blown up; you are dismemb'ed, Ralph: keep out, for I am about a roaring piece of work. Ralph. Come, what dost thou with that same book? Thou canst not read. Robin. Yes, my master and mistress shall find that I can read, he for his forehead, she for her private study: she's born to bear with me, or else my art fails. Ralph. Why, Robin, what book is that? Robin. What book? Why, the most intolerable book for conjuring that e'er was invented by any brimstone devil. Ralph. Canst thou conjure with it? Robin. I can do all these things easily with it: first, I can make thee drunk with ippocras [at first, any tavern in Europe for nothing; that's one of my conjuring works. Ralph. Our Master Parson says that's nothing. Robin. True, Ralph; and more, Ralph, if thou hast any mind to Nan Spit, our kitchenmaid, then turn her and wind her to thy own use [as often as thou wilt, and at midnight. Ralph. O brave Robin, shall I have Nan Spit, and to mine own use? On that condition I'll feed thy devil with horsebread as long as he lives, of free cost. Robin. No more, sweet Ralph: let's go and make clean our boots, which lie foul upon our hands, and then to our conjuring in the Devil's name.

1 An Inn-yard. 2 Wine mixed with sugar and spices. 8 An Inn. 4 Gain. 5 The abuse was left to the actor's inventiveness. 6 "In the name of the Lord." 7 "Sin of sin." 8 "Mercy on us."
THE TRAGICAL HISTORY OF DR. FAUSTUS

Robin. How from Constantinople? You have had a great journey. Will you take sixpence in your purse to pay for your supper, and gone?

Meph. Well, villains, for your presumption, [as I transform thee into an ape, and thee into a dog; and so begone. Exit.]

Robin. How, into an ape? That's brave! I'll have fine sport with the boys. I'll get nuts and apples snow.

Ralph. And I must be a dog.

Robin. I' faith thy head will never be out of the potage pot. Exeunt.

[SCENE X.]

Enter EMPEROR, FAUSTUS, and a KNIGHT with attendants.

Emp. Master Doctor Faustus, I have heard strange report of thy knowledge in the black art, how that none in my empire nor in the whole world can compare with thee for the rare effects of magic; they say thou hast a familiar spirit, by whom thou canst accomplish what thou list. This, therefore, is my request, that thou let me see some proof of thy skill, that mine eyes may be witnesses to confirm what mine ears have heard reported; and here I [swear to thee by the honour of mine imperial crown, that, whatever thou doest, thou shalt be no ways prejudiced or endangered.]

Knight. I' faith he looks much like a conjuror.

Faust. My gracious sovereign, though I must confess myself far inferior to the report men have published, and nothing answerable to the honour of your imperial majesty, yet for this love and duty binds me thereto, I am content to do whatsoever thy majesty shall command me.

Emp. Then, Doctor Faustus, mark what I shall say. As I was sometime solitary set Within my closet, sundry thoughts arose About the honour of mine ancestors, How they had won by prowess such exploits, Got such riches, subdued so many kingdoms, As we that do succeed, or they that shall Hereafter possess our throne, shall (I fear me) ne'er attain to that degree Of high renown and great authority; Amongst which kings is Alexander the Great, Chief spectator of the world's pre-eminence, The bright shining of whose glorious acts, Lightens the world with his reflecting beams, As, when I heard but motion made of him, It grieves my soul I never saw the man. If, therefore, thou by cunning of thine art Canst raise this man from hollow vaults below, Where lies entomb'd this famous conqueror, And bring with him his beauteous paramour, Both in their right shapes, gesture, and attire They us'd to wear during their time of life, Thou shalt both satisfy my just desire, And give me cause to praise thee whilst I live.

Faust. My gracious lord, I am ready to accomplish your request so far forth as by art, and power of my Spirit, I am able to perform.

Emp. That's just nothing at all. [Aside.]

Faust. But, if it like your Grace, it is not in my ability to present before your eyes the true substantial bodies of those two deceased princes, which long since are consumed to dust. [Aside.]

Knight. Ay, marry, Master Doctor, now there's a sign of grace in you, when you will confess the truth.

Faust. But such spirits as can lively resemble Alexander and his paramour shall appear before your Grace in that manner that they best live'd in, in their most flourishing estate; which I doubt not shall sufficiently content your imperial majesty.

Emp. Go to, Master Doctor, let me see them presently.

Faust. How then, sir?

Knight. I' faith that's as true as Diana turn'd me to a stag!

Faust. No, sir, but when Acteon died, he left the horns for you. Mephistophilis, begone.

Emp. Nay, an you go to conjuring, I'll be gone.

Faust. I'll meet with you anon for interrupting me so. Here they are, my gracious lord.

Re-enter Mephistophilis with [Spirits in the shape of] Alexander and his Paramour.

Emp. Master Doctor, I heard this lady while she liv'd had a wart or mole in her neck: how shall I know whether it be so or no?

Faust. Your Highness may boldly go and see.

Emp. Sure these are no spirits, but the true substantial bodies of those two deceased princes.

Faust. Will it please your Highness now to send for the knight that was so pleasant with me here of late?

Emp. One of you call him forth.

[Exit Attendant.]

Re-enter the Knight with a pair of horns on his head.

How now, sir knight! why I had thought thou hadst been a bachelor, but now I see thou hast a wife, that not only gives thee horns, but makes thee wear them. Feel on thy head.

Knight. Thou damned wretch and execrable dog, Bred in the concave of some monstrous rock, How dost thou thus abuse a gentleman? Villain, I say, undo what thou hast done!

Faust. O, not so fast, sir; there's no haste; but, good, are you remember'd how you crossed me in my conference with the Emperor? I think I have met with you for it.
Emp. Good Master Doctor, at my entreaty release him; he hath done penance sufficient. [Exeunt.]

Faust. My gracious lord, not so much for the injury he offered me here in your presence, as to delight you with some mirth, hath Faustus worthily required this injurious knight; which, being all I desire, I am content to release him of his horns; and, sir knight, hereafter speak well of scholars. Mephistophilis, transform him straight. [Mephistophilis removes the horns.] Now, my good lord, having done my duty I humbly take my leave.

Emp. Farewell, Master Doctor; yet, ere you go, expect from me a bounteous reward. Exeunt.

[Scene XI.]

[Enter Faustus and Mephistophilis.]

Faust. Now, Mephistophilis, the restless course That Time doth run with calm and silent foot, Short'ning my days and thread of vital life, Calls for the payment of my latest years; Therefore, sweet Mephistophilis, let us Make haste to Wittenberg.

Meph. What, will you go on horseback or on foot?

Faust. Nay, till I'm past this fair and pleasant green,

I'll walk on foot.

Enter a Horse-Courser.

Horse-C. I have been all this day seeking [to one Master Fustian: mass, see where he is] God save you, Master Doctor!

Faust. What, horse-courser! You are well met.

Horse-C. Do you hear, sir? I have brought [you forty dollars for your horse.

Faust. I cannot sell him so: if thou likest him for fifty, take him.

Horse-C. Alas, sir, I have no more. — I pray you speak for me.

Meph. I pray you let him have him: he is an honest fellow, and he has a great charge, neither wife nor child.

Faust. Well, come, give me your money.

[Horse-Courser gives Faustus the money.] My boy will deliver him to you. But I must tell you one thing before you have him; ride him not into the water at any hand.

Horse-C. Why, sir, will he not drink of all waters?

Faust. O yes, he will drink of all waters, but ride him not into the water: ride him over hedge or ditch, or where thou wilt, but not into the water.

Horse-C. Well, sir. — Now I am made man [forever. I'll not leave my horse for forty. If he had but the quality of hey-ding-ding, hey-ding-ding, I'd make a brave living on him: he has a buttock as slick as an eel. [Aside.] Well, God be with ye, sir, your boy will deliver him: but if he hark ye, sir; if my horse be sick or ill at ease, if I bring his water to you, you'll tell me what it is?

Exit Horse-Courser.

Faust. Away, you villain; what, dost think I am a horse-doctor?

What art thou, Faustus, but a man condemn'd to die?

Thy fatal time doth draw to final end:

Despair doth drive distrust unto my thoughts:

Confound these passions with a quiet sleep:

Tush, Christ did call the thief upon the cross;

Then rest thee, Faustus, quiet in conceit.

Sleeps in his chair.

Re-enter Horse-Courser, all wet, crying.

Horse-C. Alas, alas! Doctor Fustian, quotha! Mass, Doctor Lopus was never such a doctor. Has given me a purgation has purg'd me of forty dollars; I shall never see them more. But yet, like an ass as I was, I would not be ruled [by him, for he bade me I should ride him into no water. Now I, thinking my horse had some rare quality that he would not have me known of, I, like a venturous youth, rid him into the deep pond at the town's end. I was no sooner in the middle of the pond, but my horse vanish'd away, and I sat upon a bottle of hay, never so near drowning in my life. But I'll seek out my Doctor, and have my forty dollars again, or I'll make it the dearest horse! — [O, yonder is his sniffer-snapper. — Do you hear? You hey-pass, where's your master?] Meph. Why, sir, what would you? You cannot speak with him.

Horse-C. But I will speak with him.

Meph. Why, he's fast asleep. Come some other time.

Horse-C. I'll speak with him now, or I'll break his glass windows about his ears.

Meph. I tell thee he has not slept this [eight nights.

Horse-C. An he have not slept this eight weeks, I'll speak with him.

Meph. See where he is, fast asleep.

Horse-C. Ay, this is he. God save you, Master Doctor! Master Doctor, Master Doctor Fustian! — Forty dollars, forty dollars for a bottle of hay!

Meph. Why, thou seest he hears thee not.

Horse-C. So ho, ho! — so ho, ho! [Hollas in [his ear.] No, will you not wake? I'll make you wake, see I do. [Pulls Faustus by the leg, and pulls it away.] Alas, I am undone! What shall I do?

Faust. O my leg, my leg! Help, Mephisto! — philis! call the officers. My leg, my leg!

Meph. Come, villain, to the constable.

Horse-C. O lord, sir, let me go, and I'll give you forty dollars more.

Meph. Where be they?

Horse-C. I have none about me. Come to my oyster [and I'll give them you.

Meph. Begone quickly, again, or I'll make it.

Horse-Courser runs away.

Faust. What, is he gone? Farewell he! [Faustus has his leg again, and the horse-courser,

2 Dr. Lopez, physician to Queen Elizabeth, hanged in 1594 on the charge of conspiring to poison the Queen.

3 A juggler's term, like "presto, fly!" Hence applied to the juggler himself. (Bullen.)

4 Inm.
I take it, a bottle of hay for his labour. Well, this trick shall cost him forty dollars more.

Enter Wagner.

How now, Wagner, what's the news with thee?

Wag. Sir, the Duke of Vanholt doth earnestly entreat your company.

Faust. The Duke of Vanholt: an honourable gentleman, to whom I must be no stranger of my cunning. Come, Mephistophilis, let's away to him.

[SCENE XII.] 1

Enter the Duke [of VANHOLT], the Duchess, [FAUSTUS, and MEPHISTOPHILIS.]

Duke. Believe me, Master Doctor, this service hath much pleased me.

Faust. My gracious lord, I am glad it contents you so well. But it may be, madam, you take no delight in this. I have heard that great six bellsied women do long for some dainties or other. What is it, madam? Tell me, and you shall have it.

Duchess. Thanks, good Master Doctor; and for see your courteous intent to pleasure me, I will not hide from you the thing my heart desires; and were it now winter, as it is January and the dead time of the winter, I would desire no better meat than a dish of ripe grapes.

Faust. Alas, madam, that's nothing! Mephistophilis, begone. [Exit Mephistophilis.] Were it a greater thing than this, so it would content you, you should have it.

Re-enter Mephistophilis with the grapes.

Here they be, madam; wilt please you taste on them?

Duke. Believe me, Master Doctor, this makes me wonder above the rest, that being in the dead time of winter, and in the month of January, how you should come by these grapes.

Faust. If it like your Grace, the year is divided into two circles over the whole world, that, when it is here winter with us, in the contrary circle it is summer with them, as in India, Saba, and farther countries in the East; and by means of a swift spirit that I have, I had them brought hither, as ye see. — How do you like them, madam? be they good?

Duchess. Believe me, Master Doctor, they be the best grapes that I ever tasted in my life before.

Faust. I am glad they content you so, madam.

Duke. Come, madam, let us in, where you must well reward this learned man for the great kindness he hath show'd to you.

Duchess. And so I will, my lord; and whilst I live, rest beholding for this courtesy.

Faust. I humbly thank your Grace.

Duke. Come, Master Doctor, follow us and receive your reward. [Exeunt.

1 The Court of the Duke of Vanholt.

[SCENE XIII.]

Enter Wagner, solus.

Wag. I think my master means to die shortly, for he hath given to me all his goods; and yet, methinks, if that death were near, he would not banquet and carouse and swill amongst the students, as even now he doth. Who are at supper with such belly-cheer? As Wagner ne'er beheld in all his life. See where they come! Belike the feast is ended.

Enter Faustus, with two or three scholars [and Mephistophilis.]

1 Schol. Master Doctor Faustus, since our conference about fair ladies, which was the (20) beautifullest in all the world, we have determined with ourselves that Helen of Greece was the admirablest lady that ever lived: therefore, Master Doctor, if you will do us that favour, as to let us see that peerless dame of Greece, I know whom all the world admires for majesty, we should think ourselves much beholding unto you.

Faust. Gentlemen, for that I know your friendship is unfeigned, and Faustus' custom is not to deny the just requests of those that wish him well, you shall behold that peerless dame of Greece, no otherways for pomp and majesty, than when Sir Paris cross'd the seas with her, and brought the spoils to rich Dardania.

Be silent, then, for danger is in words.

Music sounds, and Helen passeth over the stage.

2 Schol. Too simple is my wit to tell her praise, whom all the world admires for majesty.

3 Schol. No marvel though the angry Greeks pursu'd with ten years' war the rape of such a queen, whose heavenly beauty passeth all compare.

1 Schol. Since we have seen the pride of Nature's works, and only paragon of excellence, Enter an Old Man.

Let us depart; and for this glorious deed happy and blest be Faustus evermore.

Faust. Gentlemen, farewell — the same I wish to you.

Exeunt scholars [and Wagner.]

Old Man. Ah, Doctor Faustus, that I might prevail to guide thy steps unto the way of life, by which sweet path thou may'st attain the goal that shall conduct thee to celestial rest! Break heart, drop blood, and mingle it with tears, tears falling from repentant heaviness of thy most vile and loathsome filthiness, the stench whereof corrupts the inward soul with such flagitious crimes of heinous sins as no commiseration may expel, but mercy, Faustus, of thy Saviour sweet, whose blood alone must wash away thy guilt.

Faust. Where art thou, Faustus? Wretch, what hast thou done? Damn'd art thou, Faustus, damn'd; despair and die!

2 A room in the house of Faustus.
Hell calls for right, and with a roaring voice
Says "Faustus! come! this hour is [almost] come!"

And Faustus [now] will come to do thee right.

Mephistophilis gives him a dagger.

Old Man. Ah stay, good Faustus, stay thy desperate steps!
I see an angel hovers o'er thy head,
And, with a vial full of precious grace,
Offers to pour the same into thy soul:
Then call for mercy, and avoid despair.

Faust. Ah, my sweet friend, I feel
Thy words do comfort my distressed soul.
Leave me a while to ponder on my sins.

Old Man. I go, sweet Faustus, but with heavy cheer,
Fearing the ruin of thy hopeless soul. [Exit]

Faust. Accursed Faustus, where is mercy now?
I do repent; and yet I do despair;
Hell strives with grace for conquest in my breast:
What shall I do to shun the snare of death?

Mep. Thou traitor, Faustus, I arrest thy soul
For disobedience to my sovereign lord;
Revolt, or I'll in piecemeal tear thy flesh.

Faust. Sweet Mephistophilis, entreat my lord
To pardon my unjust presumption,
And with my blood again I will confirm
My former vow I made to Lucifer.

Mep. Do it now then quickly, with unfeigned heart,
Lest danger do attend thy drift.

[Faustus stabs his arm and writes on a paper with his blood.]

Faust. Torment, sweet friend, that base and crooked age,
That durst dissuade me from my Lucifer,
With greatest torments that our hell affords.

Mep. His faith is great, I cannot touch his soul;
But what I may afflict his body with
I will attempt, which is but little worth.

Faust. One thing, good servant, let me crave of thee,
To pluck the longing of my heart's desire,—
That I might have unto my paramour
That heavenly Helen, which I saw of late,
Whose sweet embracings may extinguish clean
These thoughts that do dissuade me from my vow,

And keep mine oath I made to Lucifer.

Mep. Faustus, this or what else thou shalt desire
Shall be perform'd in twinkling of an eye.

Re-enter Helen.

Faust. Was this the face that launch'd a thousand ships,
And burnt the topless towers of Ilium?
Sweet Helen, make me immortal with a kiss.

[Kisses her.]

Her lips suck forth my soul; see where it flies!

Come, Helen, come, give me my soul again.

1 Old Man.
2 Unsurpassed in height.
3 Qui-s-s read sucketh.

Here will I dwell, for Heaven be in these lips,
And all is dross that is not Helen.

Enter Old Man.

I will be Paris, and for love of thee,
Instead of Troy, shall Wittenberg be sack'd;
And I will combat with weak Melanians,
And wear thy colours on my plumed crest;
Yea, I will wound Achilles in the heel,
And then return to Helen for a kiss.

Oh, thou art fairer than the evening air
Clad in the beauty of a thousand stars;
Brighter art thou than flaming Jupiter
When he appear'd to hapless Semele;
More lovely than the monarch of the sky
In wanton Arethusa's azur'd arms:

And none but thou shalt be my paramour.

Old Man. Accursed Faustus, miserable man,
That from thy soul exclav'd the grace of Heaven,
And fly'st the throne of his tribunal seat!

Enter Devils.

Satan begins to sift me with his pride:

As in this furnace God shall try my faith,
My faith, vile hell, shall triumph over thee.
Ambitious fiends! see how the heavens smiles
At thy repulse, and laughs thy state to scorn!
Hence, hell! for hence I fly unto my God.

Exeunt.

[Scene XIV.]

Enter Faustus with the Scholars.

Faust. Ah, gentlemen!
1 Schol. What ails Faustus?

Faust. Ah, my sweet chamber-fellow, had I lived with thee, then had I lived still; but now
I die eternally. Look, comes he not, comes he's not?

2 Schol. What means Faustus?

3 Schol. Belike he is grown into some sickness by being over solitary.

1 Schol. If it be so, we'll have physicians to cure him. 'Tis but a surfeit. Never fear, man.

Faust. A surfeit of deadly sin that hath damn'd both body and soul.

2 Schol. Yet, Faustus, look up to Heaven; remember God's mercies are infinite.

Faust. But Faustus' offences can never be pardoned: the serpent that tempted Eve may be sav'd, but not Faustus. Ah, gentlemen, hear me with patience, and tremble not at my speeches! Though my heart pants and quivers to remember that I have been a student here these thirty years, oh, would I had never seen Wittenberg, never read book! And what wonders I have done, all Germany can witness, yea, the world; for which Faustus hath lost both Germany and the world, yea Heaven itself, Heaven, the seat of God, the throne of the blessed, the kingdom of joy; and must remain in hell ever, hell, ah, hell, for ever! Sweet friends!
what shall become of Faustus being in hell for ever?

* The same.
Ah, rend not my heart for naming of my Christ!
Yet will I call on him: O spare me, Lucifer! —
Where is it now? 'Tis gone; and see where God Stretceth out his arm, and bends his ireful
brows!

Mountain and hills come, come and fall on me,
And hide me from the heavy wrath of God!
No! no!
Then will I headlong run into the earth;
Earth gape! O no, it will not harbour me!
You starr that reign'd at my nativity,
Whose influence hath allotted death and hell,
Now draw up Faustus like a foggy mist
Into the entrails of you labouring clouds,
That when they vomit forth into the air,
My limbs may issue from their smoky mouths,
So that my soul may but ascend to Heaven.

The watch strikes [the half hour].
Ah, half the hour is past! 'Twill all be past soon!
O God!
If thou wilt not have mercy on my soul,
Yet for Christ's sake whose blood hath ransom'd
me,
Impose some end to my incessant pain;
Let Faustus live in hell a thousand years —
A hundred thousand, and at last be sav'd!
O, no end is limited to damned souls!
Why wert thou not a creature wanting soul?
Or why is this immortal that thou hast?
Ah, Pythagoras' metempsychosis! were that true,
This soul should fly from me, and I be chang'd unto some brutish beast! All beasts are happy,
For, when they die,
Their souls are soon dissolv'd in elements;
But mine must live, still to be pl'g'd in hell.
Curst be the parents that engend'red me!
No, Faustus: curse thyself: curse Lucifer
That hath depriv'd thee of the joys of Heaven.

The clock striketh twelve.

O, it strikes, it strikes! Now, body, turn to air,
Or Lucifer will bear thee quick to hell.

Thunder and lightning.
O soul, be chang'd into little water-drops,
And fall into the ocean — ne'er be found.
My God! my God! I look not so fierce on me!

Enter Devils.
Adders and serpents, let me breathe awhile!
Ugly hell, gape not! come not, Lucifer!
I'll burn my books! — Ah Mephistophilis!

[Enter [Devils with Faustus.]

Enter Chorus.

[Cho.] Cut is the branch that might have grown full straight,
And burned is Apollo's laurel bough,
That sometimes grew within this learned man.
Faustus is gone; regard his hellish fall,
Whose fiendful fortune may exhort the wise
Only to wonder at unlawful things.
Whose deepness doth entice such forward wits
To practise more than heavenly power permits.

Terminat hora diem, terminat author opus.

[THE PROLOGUE.]

MACHIAVEL.

ALBEIT the world think Machiavel is dead, Yet was his soul but flown beyond the Alps, And, now the Guise 1 is dead, is come from France To view this land and frolic with his friends. To some perhaps my name is odious, But such as love me guard me from their tongues; And let them know that I am Machiavel, And weigh not men, and therefore not men’s words. Admird I am of those that hate me most. Though some speak openly against my books, Yet will they read me, and thereby attain To Peter’s chair; and when they cast me off, Are poison’d by my climbing followers. I count religion but a childish toy, And hold there is no sin but ignorance. “Birds of the air will tell of murders past!” I am ashamed to hear such fooleries. Many will talk of title to a crown: What right had Caesar to the empery? 2 Might first made kings, and laws were then most sure When, like the Draco’s, they were writ in blood. Hence comes it that a strong-built citadel Commands much more than letters can import; Which maxim had [but] Phalaris observ’d, He had never bellowed, in a brazen bull, Of great ones’ envy. O the poor petty wights Let me be envi’d and not pitied! But whither am I bound? I come not, I, To read a lecture here in Britain, But to present the tragedy of a Jew, Who smiles to see how full his bags are cram’d, Which money was not got without my means. I crave but this — grace him as he deserves, And let him not be entertain’d the worse Because he favours me.

[Exit.]

[ACT I]

SCENE I.

Enter Barabas in his counting-house, with heaps of gold before him.

Bar. So that of thus much that return was made:
And of the third part of the Persian ships,
There was the venture summ'd and satisfied.
As for those Sammites, and the men of Us,
That bought my Spanish oils and wines of Greece.
Here have I pur'd their paltry silverings,
Fla, what a trouble 'tis to count this trash!
Well fare the Arabians, who so richly pay
The things they traffic for with wedge of gold,
Whereof a man may easily in a day
Tell 2 that which may maintain him all his life.
The needy groom that never finger'd great,
Would make a miracle of thus much coin;
But he whose steel-barr'd coffers are cramm'd full,
And all his lifetime hath been tired,
Wearying his fingers' ends with telling it,
Would in his age be loth to labour so,
And for a pound to sweat himself to death.
Give me the merchants of the Indian mines,
That trade in metal of the purest mould;
The wealthy Moor, that in the eastern rocks
Without control can pick his riches up,
And in his house heap pearl like pebble-stones,
Receive them free, and sell them by the weight;
Bags of fiery opals, sapphires, amethysts,
Jacinths, hard topaz, grass-green emeralds,
Beauteous rubies, sparkling diamonds,
And sold so costly stones of so great price
As one of them indifferently rated,
And of a carat of this quantity,
May serve in peril of calamity
To ransom great kings from captivity.
This is the ware wherein consists my wealth;
And thus methinks should men of judgment frame
Their means of traffic from the vulgar trade,
And as their wealth increaseth, so in close
Infinite riches in a little room.
But now how stands the wind?
Into what corner peers my ha'lycony bill?
Ha! to the east? Yes. See, how stands the vans?
East and by south: why, then, I hope my ships
I sent for Egypt and the bordering isles
Are gotten up by Nilus' winding banks;
Mine argosy from Alexandria,
Loaden with spice and silks, now under sail,
Are smoothly gliding down by Candy shore
To Malta, through our Mediterranean sea.
But who comes here? How now?

Enter a Merchant.

Merch. Barabas, thy ships are safe,
Riding in Malta-road: and all the merchants
1 Q. Sammivet. Recent ed. Sabans.
1 Count.
4 A stuffed ha'lycon, or kingfisher, was used as a weather vane.

With other merchandise are safe arriv'd,
And have sent me to know whether yourself
Will come and custom 6 them.
Bar. The ships are safe thou say'st, and richly fraught?
Merch. They are.
Bar. Why then go bid them come ashore,
And bring with them their bills of entry.
I hope our credit in the custom-house
Will serve as well as I were present there.
Go send 'em threescore camels, thirty mules,
And twenty waggons to bring up the ware.
But art thou master in a ship of mine,
And is thy credit not enough for that?
Merch. The very custom barely comes to more Than many merchants of the town are worth,
And therefore far exceeds my credit, sir.
Bar. Go tell 'em the Jew of Malta sent thee, man:
Tush! who amongst 'em knows not Barabas?
Merch. I go.
Bar. So then, there's somewhat come.
Sirrah, which of my ships art thou master of?
Merch. Of the Speranza, sir.
Bar. And saw'st thou not Mine argosy at Alexandria?
Thou could'st not come from Egypt, or by Caire,
But at the entry there into the sea,
Where Nilus pays his tribute to the main,
Thou needs must sail by Alexandria.
Merch. I neither saw them, nor inquir'd of them:
But this we heard some of our seamen say,
They wond'red how you durst with so much wealth
Trust such a crazed vessel, and so far.
Bar. Tush, they are wise! I know her,
Bar. And her strength.
[But] go, go thou thy ways, discharge thy ship,
And bid my factor bring his loading in.

[Exit Merch.]
2 March. I go. Exit.
Bar. Thus trows our fortune in by land and sea,
And these are we on every side enrich'd.
These are blessings promis'd to the Jews,
And therein was old Abram's happiness.
What more may Heaven do for earthly man
Than thus to pour out plenty in their laps,
Ripping the bowels of the earth for them,
Making the sea their servant, and the winds
To drive their substance with successful blasts?
Who hathet me but for my happiness?
Or who is honour'd now but for his wealth?
Rather had I, a Jew, be hated thus,
Than pitted in a Christian poverty;
For I can see no fruits in all their faith,
But malice, falsehood, and excessive pride,
Which methinks fits not their profession.
Haply some hapless man hath conscience,
And for his conscience lives in beggary.
They say we are a scatter'd nation: I cannot tell, but we have scammed up
More wealth by far than those that brag of faith.
There's Kirriah Jairim, the great Jew of Greece,
Obed in Bairesth, Nones in Portugal,
Myself in Malta, some in Italy,
Many in France, and wealthy every one;
Ay, wealthier far than any Christian.
I must confess we come not to kings;
That's not our fault: alas, our number's few,
And crowns come either by succession,
Or urg'd by force; and nothing violent
Oft have I heard tell, can be permanent.
Give us a peaceful rule, make Christians kings,
That thirst so much for princelydom.
I have no charge, nor many children,
But one sole daughter, whom I hold as dear
As Agamemnon did his Iphigen;
And all I have is hers. But who comes here?

Enter three Jews.

1 Jew. Tush, tell not me; 'twas done of policy.
2 Jew. Come, therefore, let us go to Barabas,
For he can counsel best in these affairs;
And here he comes.
Bar. Why, how now, countrymen!
Why flock you thus to make multitudes?
What accident's betided to the Jews?
1 Jew. A fleet of warlike galleys, Barabas,
Are come from Turkey, and lie in our road;
And they this day sit in the council-house
To entertain them and their embassy.
Bar. Why, let 'em come, so they come not to war;
Or let 'em war, so we be conquerors:
Nay, let 'em combat, conquer, and kill all!
So they spare me, my daughter, and my wealth.

1 Jew. Were it for confirmation of a league,
They would not come in warlike manner thus.

1  Q. servants
2  Expenses.
3  Scrabled.
4  Some add. suppose the scene to be shifted here to a street.

2 Jew. I fear their coming will afflict us all.
Bar. Fond men! what dream you of their multitudes?
What need they treat of peace that are in league?
The Turks and those of Malta are in league.
Tut, tut, there is some other matter in it.
1 Jew. Why, Barabas, they come for peace or war.
Bar. Haply for neither, but to pass along.
Towards Venice by the Adriatic Sea;
With whom they have attempted many times,
But never could effect their stratagem.
3 Jew. And very wisely said. It may be so.
2 Jew. But there's a meeting in the senate-house,
And all the Jews in Malta must be there.
Bar. Hum; all the Jews in Malta must be there?
Ay, like enough. Why, then, let every man
Provide him, and be there for fashion's sake.
If anything shall there concern our state,
Assure yourselves I'll look unto myself.

1 Jew. I know you will. Well, brethren, let us go.
2 Jew. Let's take our leaves. Farewell, good Barabas.
Bar. Do so. Farewell, Zaareth; farewell, Temaiente.

[Exeunt Jews.]

And, Barabas, now search this secret out;
 Summon thy senses, call thy wits together:
These silly men mistake the matter clean.
Long to the Turk did Malta contribute;
Which tribute, all in policy, I fear,
The Turks have let increase to such a sum
As all the wealth of Malta cannot pay;
And now by that advantage thinks, belike,
To seize upon the town; ay, that he seeks.
How'er the world go, I'll make sure for one,
And seek in time to intercept the worst.
Warily guarding that which I ha' got.
Ego mitinet sum semper proximus.
Why, let 'em enter, let 'em take the town.

[Scene II.]

Enter [Fernze,] Governor of Malta, Knights, [and Officers;] met by Bassoes of the Turk; Calymath.

Fern. Now, Bassoes, what demand you at our hands?
1 Bas. Know, Knights of Malta, that we came from Rhodes,
From Cyprus, Candy, and those other Isles
That lie betwixt the Mediterranean seas.
Fern. What's Cyprus, Candy, and those other Isles
To us or Malta? What at our hands demand ye?
Cal. The ten years' tribute that remains unpaid.
Fern. Alas! my lord, the sum is over-great,
I hope your highness will consider us.

1  Relics. 2  Against.
3  Misquoted from Terence's Andria, iv. 1, 10. The words should be "Proximus sum semper muli." (Eliza.)
4  Inside the council-house. 5  Bassaws or Paschas.
Cal. I wish, grave governor, 't were in my power to favour you, but 'tis my father's cause,
Wherein I may not, say, I dare not dally.
Fern. Then, give us leave, great Selim Calymath.
    [Consults apart with the Knights.]
Cal. Stand all aside, and let the knights determine,
And send to keep our galleys under sail,
For happily we shall not tarry here.
Now, governor, how are you resolv'd?
Fern. Thus: since your hard conditions are such
That you will needs have ten years' tribute past,
We may have time to make collection.
Amongst the inhabitants of Malta for 't.
1 Bus. That 's more than is in our commission.
Cal. What, Callipine! a little courtesy.
Let's know their time, perhaps it is not long;
And 'tis more kingly to obtain by peace
Than to enforce conditions by constraint.
What respite ask you, governors?
Fern. But a month.
Cal. We grant a month, but see you keep your promise.
Now launch our galleys back again to sea,
Where 'tis we'll attend the respite you have ta'en,
For the money send our messenger.
Farewell, great governor and brave knights of Malta.
Fern. And all good fortune wait on Calymath! Exeunt [CALYMNATH and BASSOES.]
Go one and call those Jews of Malta hither:
Were they not summon'd to appear to-day?
Off. They were, my lord, and here they come.

Enter BARABAS and three Jews.

1 Knight. Have you determined what to say to them?
Fern. Yes, give me leave: - and, Hebrews, now come near.
From the Emperor of Turkey is arriv'd Great Selim Calymath, his highness's son,
To levy of us ten years' tribute past.
Now then, here know that it concerneth us.
Bar. Then, good my lord, to keep your quiet still,
Your lordship shall do well to let them have it.
Fern. Soft, Barabas, there's more longs to 't than so.
To what this ten years' tribute will amount,
That we have cast, but cannot compass it
By reason of the wars that robb'd our store;
And therefore are we to request your aid.
Bar. Alas, my lord, we are no soldiers.
And what 's our aid against so great a prince?
1 Knight. Tut, Jew, we know thou art no soldier;
Thou art a merchant and a moneyed man,
And 'tis thine money, Barabas, we seek.
Bar. How, my lord! my money?
Fern. Thine and the rest.
For, to be short, amongst you 't must be had.
1 Jew. Alas, my lord, the most of us are poor.
Fern. Then let the rich increase your portions.
Bar. Are strangers with your tribute to be tax'd?
2 Knight. Have strangers leave with us to get their wealth?
Then let them with us contribute.
Bar. How! Equally?
Fern. No, Jew, like infidels.
For through our sufferance of your hateful lives,
Who stand accused in the sight of Heaven,
These taxes and afflictions are befall'n,
And therefore thus we are determined.
Read there the articles of our decrees.
Reader. "First, the tribute-money of the Turks shall all be levied amongst the Jews, and each of them to pay one half of his estate,"
Bar. How, half his estate? I hope you mean not mine.
Fern. Read on.
Reader. "Secondly, he that denies to pay shall straight become a Christian."
Bar. How, a Christian? Hum, what 's here to do?
[Aside.]
Reader. "Lastly, he that denies this shall absolutely lose all he has."
All three Jews. O my lord, we will give half.
Bar. O earth-mett'd villains, and no Hebrews born!
And will you basely thus submit yourselves to leave your goods to their arbitration?
Fern. Why, Barabas, wilt thou be christened?
Bar. No, governor, I will be no convertite.
Fern. Then pay thy half.
Bar. Why, know you what you did by this device?
Half of my substance is a city's wealth.
Governor, it was not got so easily; nor will I part so slightly therewith.
Fern. Sir, half is the penalty of our decree; either pay that, or we will seize on all.
Bar. Corpo di Dio! stay! you shall have half;
Let me be us'd but as my brethren are.
Fern. No, Jew, thou hast denied the articles,
And now it cannot be recall'd.
[Exeunt Officers, on a sign from FERNZE.]}
Bar. Will you then steal my goods?
Is theft the ground of your religion?
Fern. No, Jew, we take particularly thine to save the ruin of a multitude;
And better one want for the common good
Than many perish for a private man.
Yet, Barabas, we will not banish thee,
But here in Malta, where thou gott'st thy wealth,
Live still; and, if thou canst, get more.
Bar. Christians, what or how can I multiply?
Of naught is nothing made.
1 Knight. From naught at first thou cam'st to little wealth,
From little unto more, from more to most,
If your first curse fall heavy on thy head;
And make thee poor and scorn'd of all the world,
'T is not our fault, but thy inherent sin.
Bar. What, bring you Scripture to confirm your wrongs?
Preach me not out of my possessions,
Some Jews are wicked, as all Christians are;
But say the tribe that I descended of.
Were all in general cast away for sin,
Shall I be tried by their transgression?
The man that dealeth righteously shall live;
And which of you can charge me otherwise?
Sham'st thou not thus to justify thyself,
As if we knew not thy profession?
If thou rely upon thy righteousness,
Be patient and thy riches will increase.
Excess of wealth is cause of covetousness:
And covetousness, O, 'tis a monstrous sin.
Bar. Ay, but theft is worse. Tush! take not from me then,
For that is theft; and if you rob me thus,
I must be forc'd to steal and compass more.
Fern. Ay, my lord, we have seiz'd upon the goods
And wares of Barabas, which being valued,
Amount to more than all the wealth in Malta.
And of the other we have seized half.
[Enter Officers.]
Bar. Well then, this shall be an order for the residue.
Fern. No, Barabas, to stain our hands with blood
Is far from us and our profession.
Bar. Why, I esteem the injury far less
To take the lives of miserable men
Than be the causes of their misery.
You have my wealth, the labour of my life,
The comfort of mine age, my children's hope,
And therefore ne'er distinguish of the wrong.
Fern. Content thee, Barabas, thou hast
Naught but right.
Bar. Your extreme right does me exceeding wrong;
But take it to you, 'tis the devil's name.
Fern. Come, let us in, and gather of these goods
The money for this tribute of the Turk.
1 Knight. 'Tis necessary that he look'd unto;
For if we break our day, we break the league,
And that will prove but simple policy.
[Enter [all except Barabas and the Jews.]
Bar. Ay, policy! that's their profession,
And not simplicity, as they suggest.
The plagues of Egypt, and the curse of Heaven,
Earth's barrenness, and all men's hatred
Indict upon them, thou great Primus Motor!
And here upon my knees, striking the earth,
I ban their souls to everlasting pains
And extreme tortures of the fiery deep,
That thus have dealt with me in my distress.
1 Jew. O yet be patient, gentle Barabas.
Bar. O silly brethren, born to see this day,
Why stand you thus unmov'd with my laments?
Why weep you not to think upon my wrongs?
Why pine not I, and die in this distress?
1 Jew. Why, Barabas, as hardly can we brook
The cruel handing of ourselves in this;
Thou seemst they have taken half our goods.
Bar. Why did you yield to their extortions?
You were a multitude, and I but one;
And of me only have they taken all.
1 Jew. Yet, Brother Barabas, remember Job.
Bar. What tell you me of Job? I wot his wealth
Was written thus: he had seven thousand sheep,
Three thousand camels, and two hundred yoke
Of labouring oxen, and five hundred
She-asses: but for every one of those,
Had they been valued at indifferent rate,
I had at home, and in mine argosy,
And other ships that came from Egypt last,
As much as I would have bought his beasts and him,
And yet have kept enough to live upon:
So not he, but I may curse the day,
Thy fatal birth-day, forlorn Barabas;
And henceforth wish for an eternal night.
That clouds of darkness may inclose my flesh,
And hide these extreme sorrows from mine eyes:
For only I have toil'd to inherit here
The months of vanity and loss of time,
And painful nights, have been appointed me.
2 Jew. Good Barabas, be patient.
Bar. Ay;
Pray, leave me in my patience. Yon that
Were ne'er possess'd of wealth, are pleas'd
With want;
But give him liberty at least to mourn,
That in a field amidst his enemies
Doth see his soldiers slain, himself disarm'd,
And knows no means of his recovery.
Ay, let me sorrow for this sudden chance;
'Tis in the trouble of my spirit I speak;
Great injuries are not so soon forgot.
1 Jew. Come, let us leave him; in his irreful mood
Our words will but increase his ecstasies.
2 Jew. On, then; but trust me 'tis a misery
To see a man in such affliction.—
Farewell, Barabas! [Exit [the three Jews.]
Bar. Ay, fare you well.
1 For I have tolled only to inherit the months, etc., which have been, etc.
2 Violent emotion.
I. ii.

THE JEW OF MALTA

See the simplicity of these base slaves, Who, for the villains have no wit themselves, Think me to be a senseless lump of clay That will with every water wash to dirt. No, Barabas is born to better chance, And fram'd of finer mould than common men, That measure naught but by the present time. A reaching thought will search his deepest wits, And cast [reaching for the time to come: For evils are apt to happen every day. —

Enter Abigail.²

But wither wends my beauteous Abigail? O! what has made my lovely daughter sad? What, woman! moan not for a little loss: Thy father has enough in store for thee. Abig. Not for myself, but aged Barabas;² Father, for thee lamenteth Abigail. But I will learn to leave these fruitless tears, And, urg'd thereto with my afflictions, With fierce exclamations run to the senate-house, And in the senate reprehend them all, And rend their hearts with tearing of my hair, Till they reduce² the wrongs done to my father. Bar. No, Abigail, things past recovery Are hardly cur'd with exclamations. Be silent, daughter, sufferance breeds ease, And time may yield us an occasion Which on the sudden cannot serve the turn. Besides, my girl, think me not so fond² As negligently to forego so much Without provision for thyself and me: Ten thousand portuges,² besides great pearls, Rich costly jewels, and stones infinite, Fearing the worst of this before it fell, I closely hid.

Abig. Where, father? Bar. In my house, my girl. Abig. Then shall they ne'er be seen of Barabas: For they have seiz'd upon thy house and wares. Bar. But they will give me leave once more, I trust, To go into my house. Abig. That may they not: For there I left the governor placing nuns, Displacing me; and of thy house they mean To make a nunnery, where none but their own sect Must enter in; men generally barr'd. Bar. My gold! my gold! and all my wealth is gone! You partial heavens, have I deserv'd this plague? What, will you thus oppose me, luckless stars, To make me desperate in my poverty? And knowing me impatient in distress, Think me so mad as I will hang myself, That I may vanish o'er the earth in air, And leave no memory that e'er I was? No, I will live; nor loathe I this my life: And, since you leave me in the ocean thus To sink or swim, and put me to my shifts, I'll rouse my senses and awake myself. Daughter, I have it! Thou perceiv'st the plight Wherein these Christians have oppressed me. Be rul'd by me, for in extremity We ought to make bar of no policy.

Abig. Father, what's er it to injure them That have so manifestly wronged us? What will not Abigail attempt? Bar. Why, so;

Then thus, thou told'st me they have turn'd my house Into a nunnery, and some nuns are there? Abig. I did.

Bar. Then, Abigail, there must my girl Entreat the abbess to be entertain'd. Abig. How, as a nun? Bar. Ay, daughter, for religion Hides many mischiefs from suspicion. Abig. Ay, but, father, they will suspect me there. Bar. Let 'em suspect; but be thou so precise As they may think it done of holiness. Entreat 'em fair, and give them friendly speech, And seem to them as if thy sins were great, Till thou has gotten to be entertain'd. Abig. Thus, father, shall I much dissemble. Bar. Tush! As good dissemble that thou never mean'st, As first mean truth and then dissemble it. A counterfeit profession is better Than unseen hypocrisy. Abig. Well, father, say [that] I be entertain'd, What then shall follow? Bar. This shall follow then: There have I hid, close underneath the plank That runs along the upper-chamber floor, The gold and jewels which I kept for thee. But here they come; be cunning, Abigail. Abig. Then, father, go with me. Bar. No, Abigail, in this It is not necessary I be seen. For I will seem offended with thee for't. Be close, my girl, for this must fetch my gold. [They retire.]

Enter Friars [Jacomo and Barnardine, Abbess,] and a Nun.

F. Jac. Sisters,

We now are almost at the new-made nunnery. Abb. The better; for we love not to be seen. Tis thirty winters long since some of us Did stray so far amongst the multitude. F. Jac. But, madam, this house And waters of this new-made nunnery Will much delight you. Abb. It may be so; but who comes here? [ABIGAIL comes forward.]

² The scene seems to change here from the Council house to the neighbourhood of Scene I.
³ Portuguese gold coins.
⁴ Foolish.
⁵ Sex.
The Jew of Malta, wretched Barabas; Sometimes the owner of a goodly house, Which they have now turn’d to a nunnery.

Abb. Well, daughter, say, what is thy suit with us?

Abig. Fearing the afflictions which my father feels Proceed from sin, or want of faith in us, I’d pass away my life in penitence, And be a novice in your nunnery. To make atonement for my labouring soul.

F. Jac. No doubt, brother, but this proce- deth of the spirit.

F. Barn. Ay, and a moving spirit too, brother; but come, Let us entreat she may be entertain’d.

Abb. Well, daughter, we admit you for a nun.

Abig. First let me as a novice learn to frame My solitary life to your strict laws, And let me lodge where I was wont to lie, I do not doubt, by your divine precepts And mine own industry, but to profit much.

Bar. As much, I hope, as all I bid is worth.

Abb. Come, daughter, follow us.

Bar. [coming forward.] Why, how now, Abigail, what makest thou Amongst these hateful Christians?

F. Jac. Hinder her not, thou man of little faith, For she has mortified herself.

Bar. How! mortified?

F. Jac. And is admitted to the sisterhood.

Bar. Child of perdition, and thy father’s shame! What wilt thou do among these hateful fiends? I charge thee on my blessing that thou leave These devils, and their damned heresy.

Abig. Father, give me— [She goes to him.]

Bar. [Whispers to her.] Nay, back, Abigail! And think upon the jewels and the gold; The board is marked thus that covers it. — Away, assur’d, from thy father’s sight.

F. Jac. Barabas, although thou art in misbelief, And wilt not see thine own afflictions, Yet let thy daughter be no longer blind.

Bar. Blind friar, I reck not thy persuasions,— (The board is marked thus + that covers it.)

[Aside to Abigail in a whisper.] For I had rather die than see her thus. Wilt thou forsake me too in my distress, Seduced daughter? (Go, forget not!)

Abig. Becomes it Jews to be so credulous? — (To-morrow early I’ll be at the door.)

Bar. No, come not at me; if thou wilt be damn’d, Forget me, see me not, and so be gone. — (Farewell, remember to-morrow morning.)—

[Aside.

Enter Mathias.

Math. Who’s this? Fair Abigail, the rich Jew’s daughter, Become a nun! Her father’s sudden fall Has humbled her and brought her down to this. Tut, she were fitter for a tale of love, Than to be tired out with orisons; And better would she far become a bed, Embraced in a friendly lover’s arms, Than rise at midnight to a solemn mass.

Enter Lodowick.

Lod. Why, how now, Don Mathias! in a dump?

Math. Believe me, noble Lodowick, I have seen The strangest sight, in my opinion, That ever I beheld.

Lod. What was’t I prithee?

Math. A fair young maid, scarce fourteen years of age, The sweetest flower in Cytherea’s field, Cropt from the pleasures of the fruitful earth, And strangely metamorphos’d to a nun.

Lod. But say, what was she?

Math. Why, the rich Jew’s daughter.

Lod. What, Barabas, whose goods were lately seiz’d?

Is she so fair?

Math. And matchless beautiful, As, had you seen her, ’twould have mov’d your heart, Though countermin’d with walls of brass, to love, Or at the least to pity.

Lod. And if she be so fair as you report, ’T were time well spent to go and visit her.

How say you, shall we?

Math. I must and will, sir; there’s no remedy.

Lod. And so will I too, or it shall go hard.

Farewell, Mathias.

Math. Farewell, Lodowick. [Exit with Mathias severally.]

ACT II

[Scene I.]

Enter Barabas with a light.

Bar. Thus, like the sad presaging raven, that tolls The sick man’s passport in her hollow beak, And in the shadow of the silent night Doth shake contagion from her sable wings, Vex’d and tormented runs poor Barabas With fatal curses towards these Christians. The uncertain pleasures of swift-footed Time Have ta’en their flight, and left me in despair; And of my former riches rests no more But bare remembrance, like a soldier’s scar, That has no further comfort for his maim.

1 The scene is before Barabas’s house, now a nunnery.
O thou, that with a fiery pillar led'st
The sons of Israel through the dismal shades,
Light Abraham's offspring, and direct the hand
Of Abigail this night; or let the day
Turn to eternal darkness after this!
No sleep can fasten on my watchful eyes,
Nor quiet enter my disordered thoughts,
Till I have answer of my Abigail.

Enter Abigail above.

Abig. Now have I happily espied a time
To search the plank my father did appoint;
And here behold, unseen, where I have found
The gold, the pearls, and jewels, which he hid.
Bar. Now I remember those old women's words,
Who in my wealth would tell me winter's tales,
And speak of spirits and ghosts that glide by night
About the place where treasure hath been hid:
And now methinks that I am one of those;
For whilst I live, here lives my soul's sole hope,
And, when I die, here shall my spirit walk.

Abig. Now that my father's fortune were so good
As but to be about this happy place!
'Tis not so happy; yet when we parted last,
He said he would attend me in the morn.
Then, gentle sleep, where'er his body rests,
Give charge to Morpheus that he may dream
A golden dream, and of the sudden walk,
Come and receive the treasure I have found.
Bar. Bueno para todos mis ganado en la era.
As good go on as sit so sadly thus.
But stay, what star shines yonder in the east?
The loadstar of my life, if Abigail.
Who's there?

Abig. Who's that?
Bar. Peace, Abigail, 'tis I.
Abig. Then, father, here receive thy happiness.
Bar. Hast thou't? She throws down bags.
Abig. Here, hast thou't? There's more, and more, and more.

Bar. O my girl,
My gold, my fortune, my felicity!
Strength to my soul, death to mine enemy!
Welcome the first beginner of my bliss!

O Abigail, Abigail, that I had thee here too!
Then my desires were fully satisfied:
But I will practise thy enlargement thence.
O girl! O gold! O beauty! O my bliss!

Hugs his bags.

Abig. Father, it draweth towards midnight now
And 'bout this time the masts begin to wake;
To shun suspicion, therefore, let us part.
Bar. Farewell, my joy, and by my fingers take
A kiss from him that sends it from his soul.

[Exit Abigail above.]

Now Phoebus ope the eyelids of the day,

And for the raven wake the morning lark,
That I may hover with her in the air;
Singing o'er these, as she does o'er her young,
Hermoso placer de los dímeros.

[Scene II.]

Enter Governor [Fernandez], Del Bosco, and Knights.

Fern. Now, captain, tell us whither thou art bound?
Whence is thy ship that anchors in our road?
And why thou cam'st ashore without our leave?

Bosco. Governor of Malta, hither am I bound;
My Ship, The Flying Dragon, is of Spain,
And so am I: del Bosco is my name;
Vice-admiral unto the Catholic King.
1 Knight. 'Tis true, my lord, therefore entreat him well.

Bosco. Our fraught is Grecians, Turks, and Afro Moors.
For late upon the coast of Corsica,
Because we vail'd not to the [Turkish] fleet,
Their creeping galleys had us in the chase:
But suddenly the wind began to rise,
And then we luff'd and tack'd, and fought at ease:
Some have we fir'd, and many have we sunk;
But one amongst the rest became our prize.
The Captain's slave, the rest remain our slaves,
Of whom we would make sale in Malta here.

Fern. Martinez del Bosco, I have heard of thee:
Welcome to Malta, and to all of us.
But to admit a sale of these thy Turks
We may not, nay, we dare not give consent
By reason of a tributary league.

1 Knight. Del Bosco, as thou lov'st and honour'st us,
Persuade our governor against the Turk;
This truce we have it but in hope of gold,
And with that sum he craves might we wage war.

Bosco. Will Knights of Malta be in league with Turks,
And buy it basely too for sums of gold?
My lord, remember that, to Europe's shame,
The Christian Isle of Rhodes, from whence you came,
Was lately lost, and you were stated here
To be at deadly enmity with Turks.

Fern. Captain, we know it, but our force is small.

Bosco. What is the sum that Calymath requires?

Fern. A hundred thousand crowns.

Bosco. My lord and king hath title to this isle,
And he means quickly to expel you hence;
Therefore be rul'd by me, and keep the gold.
I'll write unto his majesty for aid,
And not depart until I see you free.

Fern. On this condition shall thy Turks be sold.

1 Bulen emends to youth. 2 Dyce emends to wake.
3 Span. 'My herd was not good for all'; i.e., different people judged me differently.
4 Span. "Beautiful pleasure of money."
5 The Council-house.
6 Q. Spanish.
7 Freight.
8 Q. left and looke.
9 Lowered our flags. 10 Established.
Go, officers, and set them straight in show.

[Exeunt Officers.]

Bosco, thou shalt be Malta's general;
We and our warlike Knights will follow thee
Against these barbarous misbelieving Turks.

Bosco. So shall you imitate those you succeed:
For when their hideous force environ'd Rhodes,
Small though the number was that kept the town,
They fought it out, and not a man surviv'd
To bring the hapless news to Christendom.

Bosco, we will fight it out. Come, let's away!

Proud daring Calymath, instead of gold,
We'll send thee bullets wrap't in smoke and fire.
Claim tribute where thou wilt, we are resolv'd.
Honour is bought with blood and not with gold.

[Scene III.]

Enter Officers with [Ithamore and other] Slaves.

1 Off. This is the marketplace, here let 'em stand.

Fear not their sale, for they'll be quickly bought.

2 Off. Every one's price is written on his back,
And so much must they yield or not be sold.

1 Off. Here comes the Jew; had not his goods been seiz'd, He'd give us present money for them all.

Enter Barabas.

Bar. In spite of these swine-eating Christians,

Unchosen nation, never circumcis'd,
Such as (poor villains!) were never thought upon.

Till Titus and Vespasian conquer'd us, —

Am I become as wealthy as I was,
They hop'd my daughter would ha' been a nun;
But she's at home, and I have bought a house
As great and fair as is the governor's;
And there in spite of Malta will I dwell,

Having Fernze's hand, whose heart I'll have;
Ayy, and his son's too, or it shall go hard.

I am not of the tribe of Levi, I,
That can so soon forget an injury.

We Jews can fawn like spaniels when we please;
And when we grin we bite, yet are our looks
As innocent and harmless as a lamb's.

I learn'd in Florence how to kiss my hand,
Heave up my shoulders when they call me dog,

And duck as low as any barefoot friar;

Hoping to see them starve upon a stall,
Or else be gather'd for in our synagogue,
That, when the offering-basin comes to me,
Even for charity I may spit into 't.

Here comes Don Lodowick, the governor's son,
One that I love for his good father's sake.

Enter Lodowick.

Lod. I hear the wealthy Jew walked this way.

I'll seek him out, and so insinuate,
That I may have a sight of Abigail;

For Don Mathias tells me she is fair.

Bar. [Aside.] Now will I show myself
To have more of the serpent than the dove;
This is more knave than fool.

Lod. Yond' walks the Jew; now for fair Abigail.

Bar. [Aside.] Ay, ay, no doubt but she's at your command.

Lod. Barabas, thou know'st I am the governor's son.

Bar. I would you were his father, too, sir;
That's all the harm I wish you. [Aside.] The slave looks Like a hog's-cheek new singed.

Lod. Whither walk'st thou, Barabas?

Bar. No further: 'tis a custom held with us,
That when we speak with Gentiles like to you,
We turn into the air to purge ourselves:
For unto us the promise doth belong.

Lod. Well, Barabas, canst help me to a diamond?

Bar. O, sir, your father had my diamonds.

Yet I have one left that will serve your turn;

I mean my daughter: but ere he shall have her
I'll sacrifice her on a pile of wood.

I ha' the poison of the city for him,

And the white leprosy.

Lod. What spark doth it give without a foil?

Bar. The diamond that I talk of ne'er was foil'd: —

[Aside.] But when he touches it, it will be foil'd: —

Lord Lodowick, it sparkles bright and fair.

Lod. Is it square or pointed, pray let me know.

Bar. Pointed it is, good sir — but not for you.

Lod. I like it much the better.

Bar. So do I too.

Lod. How shows it by night?

Bar. Outshines Cynthia's rays:

— You'll like it better far o' nights than days.

Lod. And what's the price?

Bar. [Aside.] Your life an if you have it —

O my lord,
We will not jar about the price; come to my house
And I will give 't your honour — with a vengeance.

Lod. No, Barabas, I will deserve it first.

Bar. Good sir,
Your father has deserv'd it at my hands,
Who, of mere charity and Christian ruth,
To bring me to religious purity,
And as it were in catechising sort,
To make me mindful of my mortal sins,
Against my will, and whether I would or no,
Seiz'd all I had, and thrust me out o' doors,

2 Gold or silver leaf placed under a gem to increase its brilliances.

3 Defiled, purring on foil.
And made my house a place for nuns most chaste.

Lod. No doubt your soul shall reap the fruit of it.

Bar. Ay, but, my lord, the harvest is far off. And yet I know the prayers of those nuns and holy friars, having money for their pains, Are wondrous; — and indeed do no man good —

Aside. And seeing they are not idle, but still doing, 'Tis likely they in time may reap some fruit, I mean in fulness of perfection.

Lod. Good Barabas, glance 't not at our holy nuns.

Bar. No, but I do it through a burning zeal, —

Hoping ere long to set the house afire;

For though they do a while increase and multiply

I'll have a saying to that nunnerie. — Aside. As for the diamond, sir, I told you, Come home and there's no price shall make us part,

Even for your honourable father's sake. —

It shall go hard but I will see your death. —

Aside.

But now I must be gone to by a slave.

Lod. And, Barabas, I'll bear these company. Bar. Come then — here's the market-place.

What's the price of this slave? Two hundred crowns?

Do the Turks weigh so much?

1 Off. Sir, that's his price.

Bar. What, can he steal that you demand so much?

Belike he has some new trick for a purse; And if he has, he is worth three hundred plates,

So that, being bought, the town-seal might be got.

To keep him for his lifetime from the gallows. The sessions day is critical to thieves, And few or none 'scape but by being purg'd.

Lod. Rat'st thou this Moor but at two hundred plates?

1 Off. No more, my lord.

Bar. Why should this Turk be dearer than that Moor?

1 Off. Because he is young and has more qualities.

Bar. What, hast thou the philosopher's stone? An thou hast, break my head with it, I'll forgive thee.

Slave. No, sir; I can cut and shave.

Bar. Let me see, sirrah, are you not an old shaver?

Slave. Alas, sir! I am a very youth.

Bar. A youth? I'll buy you, and marry [110] you to Lady Vanity, if you do well.

Slave. I will serve you, sir.

Bar. Some wicked trick or other. It may be, under colour of shaving, thou 'lt cut my throat for my goods. Tell me, hast thou thy health well?

Slave. Ay, passing well.

Bar. So much the worse; I must have one that's sickly, an't be but for sparing viands: 'tis not a stone of beef a day will maintain [100] you in these chops; let me see one that's somewhat leaner.

1 Off. Here's a leaner, how like you him? Bar. Where wast thou born?

Hth. In Thrasea; brought up in Arabia.

Bar. So much the better, thou art for my turn.

An hundred crowns? I'll have him; there's the coin. [Gives money.]

1 Off. Then mark him, sir, and take him hence.

Bar. Ay, mark him, you were best, for this is he That by my help shall do much villainy. [Aside.]

My lord, farewell. Come, sirrah, you are mine. As for the diamond, it shall be yours;

I pray, sir, be no stranger at my house, All that I have shall be at your command.

Enter Mathias and his Mother [KATHERINE]

Math. What makes the Jew and Lodowick so private?

1 Off. I fear me 'tis about fair Abigail. [Aside.

Bar. Yonder comes Don Mathias, let us stay; 3 [Exit Lodowick.]

He loves my daughter, and she holds him dear: But I have sworn to frustrate both their hopes, And be revenge'd upon the governor.

Kath. This Moor is comeliest, is he not? Speak, son.

Math. No, this is the better, mother; view this well.

Bar. Seem not to know me here before your mother, Lest she mistrust the match that is in hand.

When you have brought her home, come to my house;

Think of me as thy father; son, farewell.

Math. But wherefore talk'd Don Lodowick with you?

Bar. Tush! man, we talk'd of diamonds, not of Abigail.

Kath. Tell me, Mathias, is not that the Jew?

Bar. As for the comment on the Maccabees, I have it, sir, and 'tis at your command. 161

Math. Yes, madam, and my talk with him was About the borrowing of a book or two.

Kath. Converse not with him, he's cast off from heaven.

Thou hast thy crowns, fellow; come, let's away.

Math. Sirrah, Jew, remember the book.

Bar. Marry will I, sir. [Exit Mathias and his Mother.]

Off. Come, I have made A reasonable market; let's away.

[Exit Officers with Slaves.]

Bar. Now let me know thy name, and there-withal Thy birth, condition, and profession. 170
Ithamore; my profession what you please.
Bar. Hast thou no trade? Then listen to my words,
And I will teach (thee) that shall stick by thee:
First be thou void of these affections,
Compassion, love, vain hope, and heartless fear;
Be mov'd at nothing, see thou pity none,
But to thyself smile when the Christians moan.

Itha. O brave! Master, I worship your nose 1 for this.
Bar. As for myself, I walk abroad o' nights
And kill sick people groaning under walls; 137
Sometimes I go about and poison wells;
And now and then, to cherish Christian thieves,
I am content to lose some of my crowns,
That I may, walking in my gallery, 138
See 'em go pinion'd along by my door.
Being young, I studied physic, and began
To practise first upon the Italian;
There I enrich'd the priest's with burials,
And always kept the sextons' arms in use. 139
With digging graves and ringing dead men's knells:
And after that was I an engineer,
And in the wars 'twixt France and Germany,
Under pretence of helping Charles the Fifth,
Slew friend and enemy with my stratagems. 135
Then after that was I an usherer,
And with extorting, cozening, forfeiting,
And tricks belonging unto brokery,
I fill'd the jails with bankrupts in a year,
And with young orphans planted hospitals. 200
And every moon made some or other mad,
And now and then one hang himself for grief,
Finning upon his breast a long great scroll
How I with interest tormented him,
But mark how I am blest for plaguing them;
I have as much coin as will buy the town. 206
But tell me now, how hast thou spent thy time?

Itha. 'Tis faith, master,
In setting Christian villages on fire,
Chaining of eunuchs, binding galley-slaves. 210
One time I was an ostler in an inn,
And in the night-time secretly I steal
To travellers' chambers, and there out their things.

Once at Jerusalem, where the pilgrims kneel'd,
I strov'd powder on the marble stones, 216
And therewithal their knees would rattle so,
That I have laugh'd a good 4 to see the cripples.
Go limping home to Christendom on stilts.
Bar. Why this is something. Make account of me
As of thy fellow, we are villains both; 220
Both circumsized, we hate Christians both.
Be true and secret, thou shalt want no gold.
But stand aside, here comes Don Lodowick.

Enter Lodowick.

Lod. O Barabas, well met;
Where is the diamond you told me of? 235
Bar. I have it for you, sir; please you walk in with me.

What ho, Abigail! open the door, I say.

Enter Abigail [with letters].

Abig. In good time, father; here are letters come From Ormus, and the post stays here within.
Bar. Give me the letters. — Daughter, do you hear,
Entertain Lodowick the governor's son
With all the courtesy you can afford;
Provided that you keep your maidenhead.
Use him as he were a Philistine,
Dissemble, swear, protest, vow love to him. 236
He is not of the seed of Abraham. — 4 And.
I am a little busy, sir, pray pardon me,
Abigail, bid him welcome for my sake.
Abig. For your sake and his own he's welcome liver.
Bar. Daughter, a word more; kiss him; speak him fair,
And like a cunning Jew so cast about,
That ye be both made sure 4 ere you come out.

[Aside.] Abig. O father! Don Mathias is my love.
Bar. I know it; yet I say, make love to him;
Do, it is requisite it should be so. — 4 And Nay, on my life, it is my factor's hand —
But go in you, I'll think upon the account.

[Exeunt Abigail and Lodowick into the house.] 246
The account is made, for Lodowick — dies.
My factor sends me word a merchant's fled
That owes me for a hundred tun of wine.
I weigh it thus much [snapping his fingers]; I have wealth enough.
For now by this has he kiss'd Abigail;
And she vows love to him, and he to her.
As sure as Heaven rain'd manna for the Jews,
So sure shall he and Don Mathias die:
His father was my chiefest enemy.

Enter Mathias.

Whither goes Don Mathias? Stay awhile.
Math. Whither, but to my fair love Abigail?
Bar. Thou know'st, and Heaven can witness it is true,
That I intend my daughter shall be thine. 250
Math. Ay, Barabas, or else thou wrong'st me much.
Bar. O, Heaven forbid I should have such a thought.
Pardon me though I weep: the governor's son
Will, whether I will or no, have Abigail:
He sends her letters, bracelets, jewels, rings.
Math. Does she receive them? 256
Bar. She? No, Mathias, no, but sends them back,
And when he comes, she locks herself up fast;
Yet through the keyhole will he talk to her,
While she runs to the window looking out,
When you should come and hale him from the door.
Math. O treacherous Lodowick!
Bar. Even now as I came home, he slipt me in.
And I am sure he is with Abigail.
Math. I'll rouse him thence.
Bar. Not for all Malta, therefore sheathe your sword.
If you love me, no quarrels in my house;
But steal you in, and seem to see him not;
I'll give him such a warning ere he goes
As he shall have small hopes of Abigail.
Away, for here they come.

Re-enter LODOWICK and ABIGAIL.
Math. What, hand in hand! I cannot suffer this.
Bar. Mathias, as thou lov'st me, not a word.
Math. Well, let it pass, another time shall serve.
Exit [into the house.]
Lod. Barabas, is not that the widow's son?
Bar. Ay, and take heed, for he hath sworn your death.
Lod. My death? What, is the base-born peasant mad?
Bar. No, no, but happily he stands in fear
Of that which you, I think, nor dream upon,
My daughter here, a paltry silly girl.
Lod. Why, loves she Don Mathias?
Bar. Dost not she with her smiling answer you?
Abig. [Aside.] He has my heart; I smile
Against my will.
Lod. Barabas, thou know'st I've lov'd thy daughter long.
Bar. And so has she done you, even from a child.
Lod. And now I can no longer hold my mind.
Bar. Nor I the affection that I bear to you.
Lod. This is thy diamond, tell me shall I have it?
Bar. Win it, and wear it; it is yet unfoiled.
O! but I know your lordship would disdain
To marry with the daughter of a Jew;
And yet I'll give her many a golden cross
With Christian posies round about the ring.
Lod. 'Tis not thy wealth, but her that I esteem.
Yet crave I thy consent.
Bar. And mine you have, yet let me talk to her. —
This offspring of Cain, this Jebusite,
That never tasted of the Passover,
Nor e'er shall see the land of Canaan,
Nor our Messias that is yet to come;
This gentle magnific, Lodowick, I mean,
Must be deluded. Let him have thy hand,
But keep thy heart till Don Mathias comes.

Aside.
Abig. What, shall I be betroth'd to Lodowick?
Bar. It's no sin to deceive a Christian;
For they themselves hold it a principle,

Faith is not to be held with heretics;
But all are heretics that are not Jews;
This follows well, and therefore, daughter,
fear not. — [Aside.]
I have entreated her, and she will grant.
Lod. Then, gentle Abigail, plight thy faith to me.
Abig. I cannot choose, seeing my father bids
Nothing but death shall part my love and me.
Lod. Now have I that for which my soul hath long'd.
Bar. So have not I, but yet I hope I shall.
Abig. [Aside.] O wretched Abigail, what hast thou done?
Lod. Why on the sudden is your colour changed?
Abig. I know not, but farewell, I must be gone.
Bar. Stay her, but let her not speak one word more.
Lod. Mute o' the sudden! Here's a sudden change.
Bar. O, muse not at it, 'tis the Hebrews' guise,
That maidens new betroth'd should weep awhile.
Trouble her not; sweet Lodowick, depart;
She is thy wife, and thou shalt be mine heir.
Lod. O, is't the custom? Then I am resolved;
But rather let the brightsome heavens be dim,
And nature's beauty choke with stifling clouds,
Than my fair Abigail should frown on me. —
There comes the villain, now I'll be reveng'd.

Re-enter MATHIAS.
Bar. Be quiet, Lodowick, it is enough
That I have made thee sure to Abigail.
Lod. Well, let him go.
Bar. Well, but for me, as you went in at doors
You had been stabb'd, but not a word on't
now;
Here must no speeches pass, nor swords be drawn.
Math. Suffer me, Barabas, but to follow him.
Bar. No; so shall I, if any hurt be done,
Be made an accessory of your deeds.
Revenge on him when you meet him next.
Math. For this I'll have his heart.
Bar. Do so; lo, here I give thee Abigail.
Math. What greater gift can poor Mathias have?
Shall Lodowick rob me of so fair a love?
My life is not so dear as Abigail.
Bar. My heart misgives me, that, to cross your love,
He's with your mother; therefore after him.
Math. What, is he gone unto my mother?
Bar. Nay, if you will, stay till she comes herself.
Math. I cannot stay; for if my mother come,
She'll die with grief.

Exit.
Abig. I cannot take my leave of him for tears.
Father, why have you thus incensed them both?
Bar. What's that to thee?
Abig. I'll make 'em friends again.
Bar. You'll make 'em friends! Are there not Jews now in Malta, but thou must dote upon a Christian?
Abig. I will have Don Mathias; he is my love.
Bar. Yes, you shall have him. — Go, put her in.
Itha. Ay, I'll put her in. [Puts Abigail in.]
Bar. Now tell me, Ithamore, how lik'st thou this?
Itha. O master, that I might have a hand in this.
Bar. Ay, so thou shalt, 'tis thou must do the deed.
Take this, and bear it to Mathias straight. [Gives a letter.]
And tell him that it comes from Lodowick.
Itha. 'Tis poison'd, is it not?
Bar. No, no, and yet it might be done that way.
It is a challenge feign'd from Lodowick.
Itha. Fear not; I will so set his heart afire,
That he shall verily think it comes from him.
Bar. I cannot choose but like thy readiness:
Yet be not rash, but do it cunningly.
Itha. As I behave myself in this, employ me hereafter.
Bar. Away then. Exit Ithamore.
So, now will I go in to Lodowick,
And, like a cunning spirit, feign some lie,
Till I have set 'em both at enmity. Exit.

ACT III

[Scene I.]

Enter [Bellamira], a Courtesan.

Bell. Since this town was besieged, my gain grows cold.
The time has been that, but for one bare night,
A hundred ducats have been freely given:
But now against my will I must be chaste;
And yet I know my beauty doth not fail.
From Venice merchants, and from Padua
Were wont to come rare-witted gentlemen,
Scholars I mean, learned and liberal;
And now, save Pilia-Borsa, comes there none,
And he is very seldom from my house;
And here he comes.

Enter Pilia-Borsa.

Pilia. Hold thee, wench, there's something for thee to spend. [Shows a bag of silver.]
Bell. 'Tis silver. I disdain it.

Pilia. Ay, but the Jew has gold,
And I will have it, or it shall go hard.
Cour. Tell me, how cam'st thou by this?
Pilia. Faith, walking the back-lanes, through the gardens, I chanc'd to cast mine eye up to the Jew's counting-house, where I saw some [20] bags of money, and in the night I clamber'd up with my hooks, and, as I was taking my choice, I heard a rumbling in the house; so I took only this, and run my way. But here's the Jew's man.

Enter Ithamore.

Bell. Hide the bag.
Pilia. Look not towards him, let's away.
Zoons, what a looking thou keep'st; thou'lt betray's anon.
[Exeunt Bellamira and Pilia-Borsa.]
Itha. O the sweetest face that ever I beheld!
I know she is a courtesan by her attire, Now would I give a hundred of the Jew's crowns that I had such a concubine.
Well, I have deliver'd the challenge in such sort,
As meet they will, and fighting die; brave sport!
Exit.

[Scene II.]

Enter Mathias.

Math. This is the place; now Abigail shall see Whether Mathias holds her dear or no.

Enter Lodowick.

Math. [reading], What dares the villain
Write in such base terms?
Lod. I did it; and revenge it if thou dar'st.
They fight.

Enter Barabas, above [on a balcony].

Bar. O! bravely fought; and yet they thrust not home.
Now, Lodovic! now, Mathias! So—— [Both fall.]

Now they have show'd themselves to be tall fellows.
[Oaths within. Part 'em, part 'em.
Bar. Ay, part 'em now they are dead. Farewell, farewell.
Exit.

Enter Ferneze, Katherine [and Attendants].

Fern. What sight is this! — my Lodowick slain!
These arms of mine shall be thy sepulchre.
Kath. Who is this? My son Mathias slain!
Fern. O Lodowick! had'st thou perish'd by the Turk,
Wretched Ferneze might have veng'd thy death.
Kath. Thy son slew mine, and I'll revenge his death.

Fern. Look, Katherine, look! — thy son gave mine these wounds.

1 Outside of Bellamira's house.

2 A street.
3 Q. places reading after Enter Lodowick.
4 Brave.
Kath. O leave to grieve me, I am grieved enough.
Fern. O! that my sighs could turn to lively breath;
And these my tears to blood, that he might live.
Kath. Who made them enemies?
Fern. I know not, and that grieves me most of all.
Kath. My son lov’d thine.
Fern. And so did Lodowick him.
Kath. Lend me that weapon that did kill my son,
And it shall murder me.
Fern. Nay, madam, stay; that weapon was my son’s.
And on that rather should Fernezé die.
Kath. Hold, let’s inquire the causes of their deaths,
That we may venge their blood upon their heads.
Fern. Then take them up, and let them be inter’d
Within one sacred monument of stone;
Upon which altar I will offer up
My daily sacrifice of sighs and tears,
And with my prayers pierce impartial heavens,
Till they [reveal] the causes of our smarts,
Which fore’d their hands divide united hearts.
Come, Katherine, our losses equal are;
Then of true grief let us take equal share.

[Exeunt with the bodies].

[Scene III.]

Enter Ithamore.

Itha. Why, was there ever seen such villany,
So neatly plotted, and so well perform’d?
Both held in hand, and flatly both beguil’d?

Enter Abigail.

Abig. Why, how now, Ithamore, why laugh’st thou so?
Itha. O mistress, ha! ha! ha!
Abig. Why, what all’st thou?
Itha. O my master!
Abig. Ha!
Itha. O mistress! I have the bravest, gravest, secret, subtle, bottle-nos’d knave to my master, that ever gentleman had.
Abig. Say, knave, why rack’st upon my father thus?
Itha. O, my master has the bravest policy.
Abig. Wherein?
Itha. Why, know you not?
Abig. Why, no.
Itha. Know you not of Mathias’ and Don Lodowick’s disaster?
Abig. No, what was it?
Itha. Why, the devil invented a challenge,[19]
my master writ it, and I carried it, first to Lodowick, and imprisht to Mathias.
And then they met, [and,] as the story says,
In doleful wise they ended both their days.
Abig. And was my father furtherer of their deaths?

Itha. Am I Ithamore?
Abig. Yes.
Itha. So sure did your father write, and I carry the challenge.
Abig. Well, Ithamore, let me request thee this:
Go to the new-made nunnery, and inquire
For any of the friars of Saint Jacques,
And say, I pray them come and speak with me.
Itha. I pray, mistress, will you answer me but one question?
Abig. Well, sirrah, what is’t?
Itha. A very feeling one; have not the nuns fine sport with the friars now and then?
Abig. Go to, sirrah sauce, is this your question?
Get ye gone.
Itha. I will, forsooth, mistress. Exit.
Abig. Hard-hearted father, unkind Barabas!
Was this the pursuit[2] of thy policy!
To make me show them favour severally,
That by my favour they should both be slain?
Admit thou lov’st not Lodowick for his sire,[3]
Yet Don Mathias ne’er offended thee:
But thou went set upon extreme revenge,
Because the [sire][4] disposses’d thee once,
And couldn’t not venge it; but upon his son,
Nor on his son, but by Mathias’ means;
Nor on Mathias, but by murdering me.
But I perceive there is no love on earth,
Pity in Jews, nor piety in Turks.
But here comes cursed Ithamore, with the friar.

Enter Ithamore and Friar [JACOMO].

F. Jac. Virgo, salve.
Itha. When I sucked you!
Abig. Welcome, grave friar; Ithamore, be gone.
Exit [Ithamore].

Know, holy sir, I am bold to sollicit thee.
F. Jac. Wherein?
Abig. To get me be admitted for a nun.
F. Jac. Why, Abigail, it is not yet long since
That I did labour thy admission,
And then thou did’st not like that holy life.
Abig. Then were my thoughts so frail and unconfirm’d,
And I was chain’d to follies of the world:
But now experience, purchased with grief,
Has made me see the difference of things.
My sinful soul, alas, hath pass’d too long
The fatal labyrinth of misbelief,
F. Jac. Who taught thee this?
Abig. The abbess of the house,
Whose zealous admonition I embrace:
O, therefore, Jacomo, let me be one,
Although unworthy, of that sisterhood.
F. Jac. Abigail, I will, but see thou change
no more,
For that will be most heavy to thy soul.
Abig. That was my father’s fault.
F. Jac. Thy father’s! how?
Abig. Nay, you shall pardon me. [Aside.] O Barabas,

1 A room in Barabas’s house.

2 Object.
3 Q. Prior. Sire, Tucker Brooke.
4 Q. sire.
5 Q. Sonne.
Though thou deservest hardly at my hands, but never shall these lips bewray thy life.
F. Jac. Come, shall we go?
Abig. My duty waits on you.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter Barabas, reading a letter.

Bar. What, Abigail becomes a nun again! False and unkind; what, hast thou lost thy father? And all unknown, and unconstrain'd of me, Art thou again got to the nunneries? Now here she writes, and wills me to repent. Repentance! Spurca! what pretendest thou? I fear she knows — 'tis so — of my device In Don Mathias' and Lodovico's death. If so, 'tis time that it be seen into; For she that varies from me in belief Gives great presumption that she loves me not; Or loving, doth dislike of something done. But who comes here?

[Enter Ithamore.]

O Ithamore, come near;
Come near, my love; come near, thy master's life.

My trusty servant, may, my second self;
For I have now no hope but even in thee, And on that hope my happiness is built. When saw'st thou Abigail?

Ith. To-day.
Bar. With whom?

Ith. A friar.
Bar. A friar! false villain, he hath done the deed.

Ith. How, sir?
Bar. Why, made mine Abigail a nun.
Ith. That's no lie, for she sent me for him.
Bar. O unhappy day! False, credulous, inconstant Abigail! But let 'em go: and, Ithamore, from hence Ne'er shall she grieve me more with her ingratitude; Ne'er shall she live to inherit aught of mine, Be blest of me, nor come within my gates, But perish underneath my bitter curse, Like Cain by Adam for his brother's death.

Ith. O master!
Bar. Ithamore, entreat not for her, I am mad, And she is hateful to my soul and me: And 'less thou yield to this that I entreat, I cannot think but that thou hast't my life. Ith. Who, I, master? Why, I'll run to some rock, And throw myself headlong into the sea; Why, I'll do anything for your sweet sake.
Bar. O trusty Ithamore, no servant, but my friend, I here adopt thee for mine only heir, All that I have is thine when I am dead, And whilst I live use half; spend as myself. Here take my keys, — I'll give 'em thee anon.

Go buy thee garments; but thou shalt not want:
Only know this, that thou art to do: But first go fetch me in the pot of rice That for our supper stands upon the fire.

Ith. [Aside.] I hold my head my master's hungry. — I go, sir.

Bar. Thus every villain ambles after wealth, Although he ne'er be richer than in hope. But, hush 't!

Re-enter Ithamore with the pot.

Ith. Here 'tis, master.
Bar. Well said, Ithamore. What, hast thou brought the ladle with thee too?
Ith. Yes, sir; the proverb says he that eats with the devil had need of a long spoon. I have brought you a ladle.

Bar. Very well, Ithamore, then now be secret;
And for thy sake, whom I so dearly love, Now shalt thou see the death of Abigail, That thou may'st freely live to be my heir.
Ith. Why, master, will you poison her with a mess of rice porridge? That will preserve life, make her round and plump, and batter more than you are aware.

Bar. Ay, but, Ithamore, seest thou this? It is a precious powder that I bought Of an Italian in Ancona once, Whose operation is to bind, infect, and poison deeply, yet not appear In forty hours after it is taken.

Ith. How, master?
Bar. Thus, Ithamore.

This even they use in Malta here, — 't is called Saint Jacques' even, — and then I say they use To send their alms unto the nunneries. Among the rest bear this, and set it there; There's a dark entry where they take it in, Where they must neither see the messenger, Nor make inquiry who hath sent it them.

Ith. How so?
Bar. Behold there is some ceremony in 't. There, Ithamore, must thou go place this pot! Stay, let me spice it first.

Ith. Fray do, and let me help you, master. Fray let me taste first.

Bar. Prythee do [Ithamore tastes]. What say'st thou now?
Ith. Troth, master, I'm loth such a pot of pottage should be spoilt.
Bar. Peace, Ithamore, 'tis better so than spar'd.

Assure thyself thou shalt have broth by the eye, My purse, my coffer, and myself is thine.

Ith. Well, master, I go.
Bar. Stay, first let me stir it, Ithamore. As fatal be it to her as the draught Of which great Alexander drunk and died: And with her let it work like Borgia's wine, Whereof his sire, the Pope, was poisoned.
In few, the blood of Hydra, Lerna's bane, The juice of hebon, and Coebytus' breath.

1 Reveal. 2 The same. 3 Unnatural. 4 Q. life. 5 Q. least.

7 Feed. 8 In abundance. 9 In short. 10 A poison not certainly identified.

THE JEW OF MALTA

And all the poisons of the Stygian pool
Break from the fiery kingdom; and in this Vomit your venom and invenom her
That like a fiend hath left her father thus.
Iha. [Aside.] What a blessing has he given 't!
Was ever pot of rice porridge so sauc'd! — What shall I do with it?
Bar. O, my sweet Ithamore, go set it down,
And come again so soon as thou hast done,
For I have other business for thee.
Iha. Here's a drench to poison a whole stable
Of Flanders mares. I'll carry 't to the nuns
[with a powder.
Bar. And the horse pestilence to boot; away!
Iha. I am gone.
Pay me my wages, for my work is done. Exit.
Bar. I'll pay thee with a vengeance, Ithamore.
Exit. 115

[Scene V.] 1

Enter Ferneze, Del Bosco, Knights, and Basso.

Fern. Welcome, great basset; how fares Calymath?
What wind drives you thus into Malta-road?
Bass. The wind that bloweth all the world besides,— Desire of gold.
Fern. Desire of gold, great sir?
That's to be gotten in the Western Ind: 5
In Malta are no golden minerals.
Bass. To you of Malta thus saith Calymath:
The time you took for respite is at hand,
For the performance of your promise pass'd,
And for the tribute-money I am sent.
fer. Basso, in brief, shall have no tribute
here,
Nor shall the heathens live upon our spoil.
First will we raze the city walls ourselves,
Lay waste the island, hew the temples down,
And, shipping off our goods to Sicily,
Open an entrance for the wasteful sea,
Whose billows beating the resistless banks,
Shall overflow it with their influence.
Bass. Well, Governor, since thou hast broke the league
By flat denial of the promis'd tribute,
Talk not of razing down your city walls.
You shall not need trouble yourselves so far,
For Selim Calymath shall come himself,
And with brasse bullets batter down your towers,
And turn proud Malta to a wilderness
For these intolerable wrongs of yours;
And so farewell.
Fern. Farewell.  [Exit Basso.]

And now, you men of Malta, look about,
And let's provide to welcome Calymath.
Close your portcullis, charge your basilisks, 2
And as you profitably take up arms,
So now come mercifully encounter them;
For by this answer, broken is the league,
And naught is to be look'd for now but wars, 55
And naught to us more welcome is than wars.
Exeunt.

[Scene VI.] 3

Enter Friar [JACOMO] and Friar [BARNARDINE].

F. [Jac.] O, brother, brother, all the nuns are sick,
And physic will not help them; they must die.
F. [Barn.] The abbess sent for me to be confess'd;
O, what a sad confession will there be!
F. Jac. And so did fair Maria send for me, 6
I'll to her lodging; hereabouts she lies. Exit.

Enter ABIGAIL.

F. Barn. What, all dead, save only Abigail? 7
Abig. And I shall die too, for I feel death coming.
Where is the friar that convers'd with me? 9
F. Barn. O, he is gone to see the other nuns.
Abig. I sent for him, but seeing you are come,
Be you my ghostly father: and first know,
That in this house I liv'd religiously,
Chaste, and devout, much sorrowing for my sins;
But ere I came — 15
F. Barn. What then?
Abig. I did offend high Heaven so grievously,
As I am almost desperate for my sins:
And one offence torments me more than all.
You knew Mathias and Lodowick? 20
F. Barn. Yes, what of them?
Abig. My father did contract me to 'em both:
First to Don Lodowick; him I never lov'd;
Mathias was the man that I held dear,
And for his sake did I become a nun. 25
F. Barn. So, say how was their end?
Abig. Both jealous of my love, envied 4 each other,
And by my father's practice, 5 which is there
Set down at large, the gallants were both slain.
[Give a written paper.]

F. Barn. O monstrous villainy! 30 Abig. To work my peace, this I confess to thee;
Reveal it not, for then my father dies.
F. Barn. Know that confession must not be reveal'd,
The canon law forbids it, and the priest
That makes it known, being degraded first, 35
Shall be condemn'd, and then sent to the fire.
Abig. So I have heard; pray, therefore keep it close. 6

Death seizeth on my heart: ah, gentle friar,
Convert my father that he may be sav'd,
And witness that I die a Christian.  [Dies.] 40
F. Barn. Ay, and a virgin too; that grieves me most.
But I must to the Jew and exclaim on him,
And make him stand in fear of me.

Re-enter Friar [JACOMO].

F. Jac. O brother, all the nuns are dead, let's bury them.
F. Barn. First help to bury this, then go with
me
And help me to exclaim against the Jew.

1 The council-house. 2 Cannon.

3 The interior of a convent. 4 Hat.
5 Secret.
ACT IV

[Scene I.]

Enter Barabas and Ithamore. Bells within.

Bar. There is no music to a Christian's knell:
How sweet the bells ring now the nuns are dead,
That sound at other times like tinker's pans!
I was afraid the poison had not wrought;
Or, though it wrought, it would have done no good,
For every year they swell, and yet they live;
Now all are dead, not one remains alive.

Itha. That's brave, master, but think you it will not be known?

Bar. How can it, if we two be secret?

Itha. For my part fear you not.

Bar. I'd cut thy throat if I did.

Itha. And reason too.

But here's a royal monastery hard by;

Good master, let me poison all the monks.

Bar. Thou shalt not need, for now the nuns are dead
They'll die with grief.

Itha. Do you not sorrow for your daughter's death?

Bar. No, but I grieve because she liv'd so long.

An honest born, and would become a Christian!

Cazzo, diabolo.

Enter Friar Jacomo and Friar Barnardine.

Itha. Look, look, master, here come two religious caterpillars.

Bar. I smell 'em ere they came.

Itha. God-mercy, nose! Come, let's be gone.

F. Barn. Stay, wicked Jew, repent, I say, and stay.

F. Jac. Thou hast offended, therefore must be damn'd.

Bar. I fear they know we sent the poison'd broth.

Itha. And so do I, master; therefore speak 'em fair.

F. Barn. Barabas, thou hast

F. Jac. Ay, that thou hast

F. Barn. Thou hast offended, therefore must be damn'd.

Bar. I know I have money, what though I have?

F. Barn. Thou art a —

F. Jac. Ay, that thou art, a

Bar. What needs all this? I know I am a Jew.

F. Barn. Thy daughter ——

1 A street. 2 Equal to. 3 A petty oath. (Italian.)
F. Jac. Good Barabas, come to me.
Bar. You see I answer him, and yet he stays; did him away with you home with me.
F. Jac. I'll be with you to-night.
Bar. Come to my house at one o'clock this night.
F. Jac. You hear your answer, and you may be gone.
F. Barn. Why, go, get you away.
F. Jac. I will not go for thee.
F. Barn. Not! then I'll make thee, [rogue].
F. Jac. How, dost me rogue me? They fight.
Itha. Part 'em, master, part 'em.
Bar. This is mere knavery, brethren; be content.

Friar Barnadine, go you with Ithamore.
You know my mind, let me alone with him.

[Aside to F. BARNARDINE.]
F. Jac. Why does he go to thy house? Let him be gone.
Bar. I'll give him something and so stop his mouth.

Exit [Ithamore with Friar BARNARDINE]
I never heard of any man but he Malign'd the order of the Jacobins:
But do you think that I believe his words?
Why, brother, you converted Abigail;
And I am bound in charity to requite it,
And so will I. O Jacomo, fail not, but come.
F. Jac. But, Barabas, who shall be your godfathers?
For presently you shall be shriv'd.
Bar. Marry, the Turk shall be one of my godfathers,
But not a word to any of your convent.
F. Jac. I warrant thee, Barabas.
Bar. So, now the fear is past, and I am safe,
For he that shriv'd is within my house;
What if I murder'd him ere Jacomo comes?
Now I have such a plot for both their lives
As never Jew nor Christian knew the like:
One turn'd my daughter, therefore he shall die;
The other knows enough to have my life,
Therefore 'tis not requisite he should live.
But are not both these wise men to suppose
That I will leave my house, my goods, and all,
To fast and be well whipp'd? I'll none of that.
Now, Friar Barnardine, I come to you,
I'll feast you, lodge you, give you fair words,
And after that, I and my trusty Turk
No more, but so: it must and shall be done.

[Exit.]

[SCENE II.]

Enter [BARABAS and ITHAMORE].
Bar. Ithamore, tell me, is the friar asleep?
Itha. Yes; and I know not what the reason is,
Do what I can he will not strip himself,
Nor go to bed, but sleeps in his own clothes.
I fear me he mistrusts what we intend,
Bar. No, 'tis an order which the friars use;
Yet, if he knew our meanings, could he escape?

Itha. No, none can hear him, cry he ne'er so loud.
Bar. Why, true, therefore did I place him there.
The other chambers open towards the street.
Itha. You loiter, master; wherefore stay we thus?
O how I long to see him shake his heels.
Bar. Come on, sirrah.
Off with your girdle, make a handsome noose.
[ITHAMORE takes off his girdle and ties a noose in it.]

Friar, awake!
[They put the noose round the Friar's neck.]
F. Barn. What, do you mean to strangle me?
Itha. Yes, 'cause you use to confess.
Bar. Blame not us but the proverb, "Confess and be hanged." Pull hard!
F. Barn. What, will you [have] my life?
Bar. Pull hard, I say. — You would have had my goods.
Itha. Ay, and our lives too, therefore pull amain.
[They strangle him.]
'Tis neatly done, sir, there's no print at all.
Bar. Then is it as it should be; take him up.
Itha. Nay, master, be 'rul'd by me a little.
[Stands the body upright against the wall and puts a staff in its hand.] So, let him lean upon his staff. Excellent! he stands as if he were beggaring of bacon.
Bar. Who would not think but that this friar liv'd?
What time o' night is 't now, sweet Ithamore?
Itha. Towards one.
Bar. Then will not Jacomo be long from hence.

[Exeunt.]

[SCENE III.]

Enter Friar JACOMO.
F. Jac. This is the hour wherein I shall proceed;
O happy hour wherein I shall convert
An indolent, and bring his gold into
Our treasury!
But soft, is not this Barnardine? It is;
And, understanding I should come this way,
Stands here a purpose, meaning me some wrong,
And intercept my going to the Jew. — Barnardine!
Wilt thou not speak? Thou think'st I see thee not;
Away, I'd wish thee, and let me go by.
No, wilt thou not? Nay, then, I'll force my way;
And see, a staff stands ready for the purpose:
As thou likest that, stop me another time.

[Takes the staff and strikes the body, which falls down.]

Enter BARABAS [and ITHAMORE].
Bar. Why, how now, Jacomo, what hast thou done?

1 So Twecker Brooke. Q. got.
2 Ithamore.
3 Convent.
4 A room in the house of Barabas.
Pilia. Upon mine own freehold, within forty feet of the gallows, coming his neck-verse,
I take it, looking of a friar’s execution, whom
I saluted with an old hempen proverb, Hodie Hodie, cras mihi, and so I left him to the mercy of the hangman: but the exercise being done,
see where he comes.

Enter Ithamore.

Ith. I never knew a man take his death so patiently as this friar. He was ready to leap off driven to the halter was about his neck; and when the hangman had put on his hempen tippet, he made such haste to his prayers, as if he had had another cure to serve. Well, go whither he will, I’ll be none of his followers in haste: and, now I think on’t, going to the execution, a fellow met me with a muschato like a raven’s wing, and a dagger with a hilt like a warming-pan, and he gave me a letter from one Madam Bellamira, saluting me in such sort as if he had meant to make clean my boots with his lips; the effect was, that I should come to her house. I wonder what the reason is; it may be she sees more in me than I can find in myself: for she writes further, that she loves me ever since she saw me, and who would not requite such love? Here’s her house, and here she comes, and now would I were gone; I am not worthy to look upon her.

Pilia. This is the gentleman you write to.

Ith. [Aside.] Gentleman! he flouts me; what gentry can be in a poor Turk of tenpence? I’ll be gone.

Bell. Is’t not a sweet-fac’d youth, Pilia?

Ith. [Aside.] Again, “sweet youth!” — Did not you, sir, bring the sweet youth a letter?

Pilia. I did, sir, and from this gentleman, who, as myself, and the rest of the family,
stand or fall at your service.

Bell. Though woman’s modesty should hold me back,

I can withstand no longer; welcome, sweet love.

Ith. [Aside.] Now am I clean, or rather foully, out of the way.

Bell. Whither so soon?

Ith. [Aside.] I’ll go steal some money from my master to make me handsome.— Pray pardon me, I must go and see a ship discharge.

Bell. Canst thou be so unkind to leave me
thus?

Pilia. An ye did but know how she loves you,
sir.

Ith. Nay, I care not how much she loves me —
Sweet Bellamira, would I had my master’s wealth for thy sake!

Pilia. And you can have it, sir, an if you please.

Ith. If’t were above ground, I could and would have it; but he hides and buries it up, as partridges do their eggs, under the earth.

Pilia. And is’t not possible to find it out?

Ith. By no means possible.

Bell. [Aside to Pilia-Borsa.] What shall we do with this base villain then?

1 Delayed.
2 A verandah of Bellamira’s house.
3 Brave.
Pilia. [Aside to her.] Let me alone; do but you speak him fair.

But, [sir.] you know some secrets of the Jew,

Which, if they were reveal’d, would do him harm.

Itha. Ay, and such as—Go to, no more! I'll make him send me half he has, and glad he escapes so too. Pen and ink! I'll write unto him; we'll have money straight.

Pilia. Send for a hundred crowns at least.

[ITHAMORE] writes.

Itha. Ten hundred thousand crowns. "Master Barabas."

Pilia. Write not so submissively, but threatening him.

Itha. [writing.] "Sirrah, Barabas, send me a hundred crowns."

Pilia. Put in two hundred at least.

Itha. [writing.] "I charge thee send me three hundred by this bearer, and this shall be your warrant: if you do not—no more, but so."

Pilia. Tell him you will confess.

Itha. [writing.] "Otherwise I'll confess all."

—Vanish, and return in a twinkling.

Pilia. Let me alone; I'll use him in his kind.

[Exit PILLA-BOSRA with the letter.]

Itha. Haung him, Jew!

Bell. Now, gentle Ithamore, lie in my lap.—Where are my maids? Provide a running banquet;

Send to the merchant, bid him bring me silks,

Shall Ithamore, my love, go in such rage?

Itha. And bid the jeweller come hither too.

Bell. I have no husband, sweet; I'll marry thee.

Itha. Content: but we will leave this paltry land,

And sail from hence to Greece, to lovely Greece.

I'll be thy Jason, thou my golden fleece;

Where painted carpets o'er the meads are hurl'd,

And Bacchus' vineyards overspread the world;

Where woods and forests go in goodly green,

I'll be Adonis, thou shalt be Love's Queen.

The meads, the orchards, and the primrose-"janes,

Instead of sedge and reed, bear sugar-canies;

Thou in those groves, by Dis above,

Shalt live with me and be my love.

Bell. Whither will I not go with gentle Ithamore?

Re-enter PILLA-BOSRA.

Itha. How now! hast thou the gold? [2]

Pilia. Yes.

Itha. But came it freely? Did the cow give down her milk freely?

Pilia. At reading of the letter, he star'd and stamp'd and turn'd aside. I took him by [to the beard, and look'd upon him thus; told him he was best to send it; then he hugg'd and embrac'd me.

Itha. Rather for fear than love.

Pilia. Then, like a Jew, he laugh'd and [155]

jeer'd, and told me he lov'd me for your sake, and said what a faithful servant you had been.

Itha. The more villain he to keep me thus.

Here's goodly 'parcel, is there not? [156]

Pilia. To conclude, he gave me ten crowns.

[Give the money to ITHAMORE.]

Itha. But ten? I'll not leave him worth a grey groat. Give me a ream 2 of paper; we'll have a kingdom of gold for 't.

Pilia. Write for five hundred crowns.

Itha. [writing.] "Sirrah, Jew, as you love your life send me five hundred crowns, and give the bearer one hundred." Tell him I must have 't.

Pilia. I warrant your worship shall have 't.

Itha. And if he ask why I demand so much, tell him I scorn to write a line under a hundred crowns.

Pilia. You'd make a rich poet, sir. I am gone.

[Exit.]

Itha. Take thou the money; spend it for my sake.

Bell. 'Tis not thy money, but thyself I weigh;

Thus Bellamira esteems of gold.

[Throws it aside.]

But thus of thee,

Kisses him.

Itha. That kiss again! she runs division 3 of my lips.

What an eye she casts on me! It twinkleth like a star.

Bell. Come, my dear love, let's in and sleep together.

Itha. 0, that ten thousand nights were put in one, that we might sleep seven years together afore we wake!

Bell. Come, amorous wag; first banquet, and then sleep.

[Exeunt.]

[SCENE V.] 4

Enter Barabas, reading a letter.

Bar. "Barabas, send me three hundred crowns.—"

Plain Barabas! 0, that wicked courtesan! He was not wont to call me Barabas.

"Or else I will confess:" ay, there it goes: But, if I get him, coupe de gorge for that.

He sent a shaggy totter'd 5 starving slave, That when he speaks draws out his grisly beard, And wind's it twice or thrice about his ear;

Whose face has been a grindstone for men's swords;

His hands are hack'd, some fingers cut quite off; Who, when he speaks, grunts like a hog, and looks Like one that is employ'd in catzerie 6 And crossbiting; 7—such a rogue As is the husband to a hundred whores: And I by him must send three hundred crowns! Well, my hope is, he will not stay there still; 8 And when he comes,—O, that he were but here!

1 The early form of realm had no 'l.' 2 A musical term. 3 The street. 4 Hasty. 5 Tattered. 6 Knavery. 7 Playing sham husband to a courtesan.
Enter Pilia-Borsa.

Pilia. Jew, I must ha' more gold.
Bar. Why, want'st thou any of thy tale? 1
Pilia. No; but three hundred will not serve his turn.
Bar. Not serve his turn, sir?
Pilia. No, sir; and, therefore, I must have five hundred more.
Bar. I'll rather —
Pilia. O good words, sir, and send it you were best! See, there's his letter. [Gives letter.]
Bar. Might he not as well come as send? Pray bid him come and fetch it; what he writes for you, ye shall have straight.
Pilia. Ay, and the rest too, or else —
Bar. [Aside.] I must make this villain away. — Please you dine with me, sir; and you shall be most heartily poison'd. [Aside.]
Pilia. No, God-mercy. Shall I have these crowns?
Bar. I cannot do it, I have lost my keys.
Pilia. O, if that be all, I can pick o' your locks.
Bar. Or climb up to my counting-house window: you know my meaning.
Pilia. I know enough, and therefore talk not to me of your counting-house. The gold! or [aside know, Jew, it is in my power to hang thee.
Bar. [Aside.] I am betray'd. —
'Tis not five hundred crowns that I esteem,
I am not mov'd at that: this angers me,
That he, who knows I love him as myself,
Should write in this impenetrable vein. Why, sir,
You know I have no child, and unto whom Should I leave all but unto Ithamore?
Pilia. Here's many words, but no crowns.
The crowns!
Bar. Commend me to him, sir, most humbly,
And unto your good mistress, as unknown.
Pilia. Speak, shall I have 'em, sir?
Bar. Sir, here they are. — [Pilia gives money.]
O, that I should part with so much gold! —
Here, take 'em, fellow, with as good a will — [Aside]; As I would see thee hang'd. — O, love stops my breath:
Never lovd man servant as I do Ithamore!
Pilia. I know it, sir.
Bar. Pray, when, sir, shall I see you at my house?
Pilia. Soon enough, to your cost, sir. Fare you well.
Bar. Nay, to thine own cost, villain, if thou com'st!
Was ever Jew torment'd as I am?
To have a shag-rag knave to come, —
Three hundred crowns, — and then five hundred crowns!
Well, I must seek a means to rid 'em all,
And presently; for in his villany
He will tell all he knows, and I shall die for't. I have it:
I will in some disguise go see the slave,
And how the villain revels with my gold. Exit.

[Scene VI.]

Enter Courtezan [Bellamira.], Ithamore, and Pilia-Borsa.

Bell. I'll pledge thee, love, and therefore drink it off.
Ithamore. Say'st thou me so? Have at it; and, do you hear?
[Whispers.]
Bell. Go to, it shall be so.
Ithamore. Of that condition I will drink it up.
Here's to thee!
Bell. Nay, I'll have all or none.
Ithamore. There, if thou lov'st me, do not leave a drop.
Bell. Love thee! fill me three glasses.
Ithamore. Three and fifty dozen, I'll pledge thee.
Pilia. Knaveyly spoke, and like a knight-at-arms, Ithamore. Here, Rivo Castiliano! a man's a man!
Bell. Now to the Jew.
Ithamore. I'll to the Jew, and send me money he were best.
Pilia. What would'st thou do if he should send thee none?
Ithamore. Do nothing; but I know what I know; he's a murderer.
Bell. I had not thought he had been so brave a man.
Ithamore. You knew Mathias and the governor's son; he and I, killed 'em both, and yet never touch'd 'em.
Pilia. O, bravely done.
Ithamore. I carried the broth that poison'd the nuns; and he and I, snickled hand too fast, 4 striangled a friar.
Bell. You two alone?
Ithamore. We two; and 'twas never known, nor never shall be for me.
Pilia. [Aside to Bellamira.] This shall with me unto the governor.
Bell. [Aside to Pilia-Borsa.] And fit it should: but first let's ha' more gold, —
Come, gentle Ithamore, lie in my lap.
Ithamore. Love me little, love me long. Let music rumble
Whilst I in thy inconstancy lap do tumble.

Enter Barabas, with a lute, disguis'd.

Bell. A French musician! Come, let's hear your skill.
Barabas. Must tune my course for sound, twang, twang, first.
Bell. Wilt drink, Frenchman? Here's to thee with a — Pox on this drunken hickup!
Barabas. Gramercy, monsieur.
Bell. Prythee, Pilia-Borsa, bid the fiddler give me the posy in his hat there.
Pilia. Sirrah, you must give my mistress your posy.
Barabas. A votre commandement, madame.
Bell. How sweet, my Ithamore, the flowers smell!

1 Sum, number.
2 A verandah of Bellamira's house.
3 A familiar Bacchanalian exclamation.
4 Probably corrupt. "Snickle" is a noose.
5 Dainty, sweet.
Enter Barabas and Ithae.

Bell. Prythee, sweet love, one letter more to the Jew. Then let’s in.

Ithae. No, I'll send by word of mouth now. — Bid him deliver thee a thousand crowns, by the same token, that the nuns lov’d rice, that Friar Barnardine slept in his own clothes; any of ’em will do it.

Pilia. Let me alone to urge it, now I know the meaning.

Ithae. The meaning has a meaning. Come let’s in. To undo a Jew is charity, and not sin. Exeunt.

1 Referring to the tradition that Judas Iscariot hanged himself on an elder-tree.

2 Q. masty.
And he my bondman. Let me have law,
For none of this can prejudice my life.
   Fern. Once more, away with him; you shall have law.
Bar. [Aside.] Devils, do your worst! I'll live in spite of you.—
As these have spoke, so be it to their souls!—
   [Aside.] I hope the poison'd flowers will work anon.
Exeunt [Officers with Barabas and Ithamore, Bellamira and Pillar-Borsa].

Enter [Katherine].

Kath. Was my Mathias murder'd by the Jew?
Fernze, 't was thy son that murder'd him.
Fern. Be patient, gentle madam, it was he;
He forg'd the daring challenge made them fight.
Kath. Where is the Jew? Where is that murderer?
Fern. In prison till the law has pass'd on him.

Re-enter [First] Officer.

1 Off. My lord, the courtesan and her man are dead:
So is the Turk and Barabas the Jew.
Fern. Dead!
1 Off. Dead, my lord, and here they bring his body.
Bosco. This sudden death of his is very strange.
Fern. Wonder not at it, sir, the Heavens are just;
Their deaths were like their lives, then think not of 'em.
Since they are dead, let them be buried;
For the Jew's body, throw that o'er the walls,
To be a prey for vultures and wild beasts.—
So now away, and fortify the town. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

[Barabas discovered rising.]
Bar. What, all alone? Well fare, sleepy drink.
I'll be reveng'd on this accursed town:
For by my means Calymath shall enter in,
I'll help to slay their children and their wives,
To fire the churches, pull their houses down;
Take my goods too, and seize upon my lands.
I hope to see the governor a slave,
And, rowing in a galley, whipt to death.

Enter Calymath, Bassoes, and Turks.

Caly. Whom have we there, a spy?
Bar. Yes, my good lord, one that can spy
a place.
Where you may enter, and surprise the town:
My name is Barabas: I am a Jew.
Caly. Art thou that Jew whose goods we heard were sold
For tribute-money?
Bar. The very same, my lord:
And since that time they hir'd a slave, my
man,
To accuse me of a thousand villainies:
I was imprison'd, but escap'd their hands.
Caly. Didst break prison then?
Bar. No, no;
I drank at poppy and cold mandrake juice;
And being asleep, belike they thought me dead,
And threw me o'er the walls: so, or how else,
The Jew is here, and rests at your command.
Caly. 'Twas bravely done: but tell me,
Barabas,
Canst thou, as thou report'st, make Malta ours?
Bar. Fear not, my lord, for here against the slaves
The rock is hollow, and of purpose digg'd
To make a passage for the running streams
And common channels of the city.
Now, whilst you give assault unto the walls,
I'll lead five hundred soldiers through the vault,
And rise with them i' th' middle of the town,
Open the gates for you to enter in;
And by this means the city is your own.
Caly. If this be true, I'll make thee governor,
Bar. And if it be not true, then let me die.
Caly. Thou'st doom'd thyself. Assault it presently.

Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Alarums. Enter [Calymath, Bassoes.] Turks, and Barabas, with Fernze and Knights prisoners.

Caly. Now vail 6 your pride, you captive
Christians,
And kneel for mercy to your conquering foe.
Now where's the hope you had of haughty
Spain?
Fernze, speak, had it not been much better
To keep thy promise than be thus surpris'd?
Fern. What should I say? We are captives and must yield.
Caly. Ay, villains, you must yield, and under Turkish yokes
Shall groaning bear the burden of our ire;
And, Barabas, as erst we promis'd thee,
For thy desert we make thee governor;
Use them at thy discretion.
Bar. Thanks, my lord.
Fern. O fatal day, to fall into the hands
Of such a traitor and unhallowed Jew!
What greater misery could Heaven inflict?
Caly. 'Tis our command: and, Barabas, we give
To guard thy person these our Janizaries:
Entreat them well, as we have used thee.
And now, brave bassoes, come, we'll walk about
The ruin'd town, and see the wrack we made:—
Farewell, brave Jew; farewell, great Barabas!
Exeunt [Calymath and Bassoes].
Bar. May all good fortune follow Calymath!
And now, as entrance to our safety,
To prison with the governor and these
Captains, his consorts and confederates.

1 Q. Moter.  2 Outside the city walls.

3 Conj. Collier. Q. true.  4 Lower.
5 At once.
6 Q. kept.
Fern. O villain! Heaven will be reveng'd on thee.

Bar. Away! no more; let him not trouble me.

Thus hast thou gotten, by thy policy,
No simple place, no small authority.
I now am governor of Malta; true,—
But Malta hates me, and, in hating me,
My life is in danger, and what boots it thee,
Poor Barabas, to be the governor,
Whenas thy life shall be at their command?
No, Barabas, this must be look'd into;
And since by wrong thou got'st authority,
Maintain it bravely by firm policy,
At least unprofitably lose it not:
For he that liveth in authority,
And neither gets him friends, nor fills his bags,
Lives like the ass, that Aesop speaketh of,
That labours with a load of bread and wine,
And leaves it off to snap on thistle-tops:
But Barabas will be more circumspect.
Begin betimes; occasion's bald behind;
Slip not thine opportunity, for fear too late
Thou seek'st for much, but canst not compass it,— Within here!

Enter Ferneze, with a Guard.

Fern. My lord?
Bar. Ay, 'lord;’ thus slaves will learn,
Now, governor,—stand by there, wait within.

This is the reason that I sent for thee:
Thou seest thy life and Malta's happiness
Are at my arbitrement; and Barabas
At his discretion may dispose of both;
Now tell me, governor, and plainly too,
What think'st thou shall become of it and thee?
Fern. This, Barabas; since things are in thy power,
I see no reason but of Malta's wreck,
Nor hope of thee but extreme cruelty;
Nor fear I death, nor will I flatter thee.
Bar. Governor, good words; be not so furious,
'Tis not thy life which can avail me aught;
Yet do you live, and live for me you shall;
And, as for Malta's ruin, think you not
I was slender policy for Barabas
To dispossess himself of such a place?
For sigh, as once you said, 'tis in this isle,
In Malta here, that I have got my goods,
And in this city still have had success,
And now at length am grown your governor,
Yourselves shall see it shall not be forgot:
For, as a friend not known but in distress,
I'll rear up Malta, now remediless.
Fern. Will Barabas recover Malta's loss?
Bar. What wilt thou give me, governor, to procure
A dissolution of the slavish bands
Wherein the Turk hath yok'd your land and you?
What will you give me if I render you
The life of Calymath, surprise his men,
And in an out-house of the city shut
His soldiers, till I have consum'd 'em all with fire?

What will you give him that procureth this?
Fern. Do but bring this to pass which thou pretendest,
Deal truly with us as thou intimatest,
And I will send amongst the citizens,
And by my letters privately procure
Great sums of money for thy recompense:
Nay more, do this, and live thou governor still.
Bar. Nay, do thou this, Ferneze, and be free;
Governor, I enlarge thee; live with me,
Go walk about the city, see thy friends:
Tush, send not letters to 'em, go thyself,
And let me see what money thou canst make.
Here is my hand that I'll set Malta free:
And thus we cast it; to a solemn feast
I will invite young Selim Calymath,
Where be thou present only to perform
One stratagem that I'll impart to thee,
Wherein no danger shall betide thy life,
And I will warrant Malta free for ever.
Fern. Here is my hand; believe me, Barabas,
I will be there, and do as thou desirest.
When is the time?
Bar. Governor, presently:
For Calymath, when he hath view'd the town,
Will take his leave and sail toward Ottoman.
Fern. Then will I, Barabas, about his coin,
And bring it with me to thee in the evening.
Bar. Do so, but fail not; now farewell, Ferneese!—

[Exit Ferneze.]

And thus far roundly goes the business:
Thus loving neither, will I live with both,
Making a profit of my policy,
And he from whom my most advantage comes
Shall be my friend.
This is the life we Jews are us'd to lead;
And reason too, for Christians do the like.
Well, now about effecting this device;
First to surprise great Selim's soldiers,
And then to make provision for the feast,
That at one instant all things may be done.
My policy defects prevention:
To what event my secret purpose drives,
I know; and they shall witness with their lives.

Exit.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Calymath and Bassoes.

Caly. Thus have we view'd the city, seen the sack
And caus'd the ruins to be new-repair'd,
Which with our bombards' shot and basilisk
We rent in sunder at our entry:
And now I see the situation,
And how secure this conquer'd island stands
Environ'd with the Mediterranean Sea,
Strong-countermin'd with other petty isles;
And, toward Calabria, back'd by Sicily,
Where Syracusian Dionysius reign'd,
Two lofty turrets that command the town.
I wonder how it could be conquer'd thus.
Enter a Messenger.

Mess. From Barabas, Malta’s governor, I bring
A message unto mighty Calymath; 16
Hearing his sovereign was bound for sea, 16
To sail to Turkey, to great Ottoman,
He humbly would entreat your majesty
To come and see his homely citadel,
And banquet with him ere thou leav’st the isle.

Caly. To banquet with him in his citadel? 30
I fear me, messenger, to feast my train
Within a town of war so lately pillag’d.
Yet would I gladly visit Barabas,
For well has Barabas deserv’d of us. 35

Mess. Selim, for that, thus saith the governor,
That he hath in his store a pearl so big,
So precious, and withal so orient,
As, be it valued but indifferently,
The price thereof will serve to entertain
Selim and all his soldiers for a month;
Therefore he humbly would entreat your highness
Not to depart till he had feasted you.

Caly. I cannot feast my men in Malta-walls,
Except he place his tables in the streets. 40

Mess. Know, Selim, that there is a monastery
Which standeth as an outhouse to the town:
There will he banquet them; but thee at home,
With all thy bassoes and brave followers.

Caly. Well, tell the governor we grant his suit.

We’ll in this summer evening feast with him. 45

Mess. I shall, my lord. Exit.

Caly. And now, bold bassoes, let us to our tents,
And meditate how we may grace us best
To solemnize our governor’s great feast. 50

[Exit.]

[SCENE V.] 1

Enter FERNEZE, Knights, and DEL BOSCO.

Fern. In this, my countrymen, be rul’d by me,
Have special care that no man sally forth
Till you shall hear a culverin discharge’d
By him that bears the linestone, kindled thus;
Then issue out and come to rescue me,
For happily I shall be in distress,
Or you released of this servitude.

1 Knight. Rather than thus to live as Turkish thralls,
What will we not adventure?

Fern. On then, begone.

Knights. Farewell, grave governor! 10

[Exit on one side Knights and DEL
BOSCO; on the other FERNEZE.]

[SCENE VI.] 2

Enter, above, [BARABAS], with a hammer, very busy; [and Carpenters].

Bar. How stands the cords? How hang these hinges? Fast?

Are all the cranes and pulleys sure?

1 A street in Malta.
2 A hall in the citadel, with a gallery at the end.
3 Concealed.
Enter Calymath and Bassoes.

Caly. Come, my companion bassoes; see, I pray,
How busy Barabas is there above
To entertain us in his gallery;
Let us salute him. Save thee, Barabas!
Bar. Welcome, great Calymath!
Fern. [Aside.] How the slave jeers at him.
Bar. Will 't please thee, mighty Selim Calymath,
To ascend our homely stairs?

Caly. Ay, Barabas;—
Come bassoes, attend.

Fern. [coming forward.] Stay, Calymath! For I will show thee greater courtesy Than Barabas would have afforded thee.
Knight [within.] Sound a charge there!
A charge [sounded within. Fern-Eze] cuts the cord: [the floor of the gallery gives way, and Barabas falls into] a caldron.

[Enter Del Bosco and Knights.]

Caly. How now! what means this?
Bar. Help, help me! Christians, help!
Fern. See, Calymath, this was devis'd for thee!
Caly. Treason! treason! bassoes, fly!
Fern. No, Selim, do not fly;
See his end first, and fly then if thou canst.
Bar. O help me, Selim! help me, Christians!
Governor, why stand you all so pitless?
Fern. Should I in pity of thy plaints or thee,
Accursed Barabas, base Jew, relent?
No, thus I'll see thy treachery repaid,
But wish thou hadst behav'd thee otherwise.

Bar. You will not help me, then?
Fern. No, villain, no.
Bar. And, villains, know you cannot help me
now.—
Then, Barabas, breathe forth thy latest [hate,] ²
And in the fury of thy torments strive
To end thy life with resolution.
Kno. Now, governor, 'twas I that slew thy son;
I fram'd the challenge that did make them meet.
Know, Calymath, I aim'd thy overthrow,
And had I but escap'd this stratagem,
I would have brought confusion on you all.
Darn'd Christians, dogs, and Turkish infidels!
But now begins the extremity of heat
To pinch me with intolerable pangs.

1. Dyce, ascend. ² Cunningham amend. Q. fate.

Die, life! fly, soul! tongue, curse thy fill, and die!

Caly. Tell me, you Christians, what doth this portend?

Fern. This train he laid to have entrapp'd thy life.
Now, Selim, note the unhallowed deeds of Jews:
Thus he determin'd to have handled thee,
But I have rather chose to save thy life.
Caly. Was this the banquet he prepar'd for us?

Let's hence, lest further mischief be pretended.
Fern. Nay, Selim, stay; for since we have thee here,
We will not let thee part so suddenly:
Besides, if we should let thee go, all's one,
For with thy galleys could'st thou not get hence,
Without fresh men to rig and furnish them.
Caly. Tush, governor, take thou no care for that,
My men are all aboard,
And do attend my coming here by this.
Fern. Why heard'st thou not the trumpet sound a charge?
Caly. Yes, what of that?
Fern. Why then the house was fir'd,
Blown up, and all thy soldiers massacred.
Caly. O monstrous treason!

A Jew's courtesy:
For he that did by treason work our fall,
By treason hath delivered thee to us.

Know, therefore, till thy father hath made good
The ruins done to Malta and to us,
Thou canst not part; for Malta shall be freed,
Or Selim ne'er return to Ottoman.
Caly. Nay, rather, Christians, let me go to Turkey,

In person there to mediate your peace;
To keep me here will naught advantage you.
Fern. Content thee, Calymath, here thou must stay,
And live in Malta prisoner; for come all the world
To rescue thee, so will we guard us now,
As sooner shall they drink the ocean dry
Than conquer Malta, or endanger us.
So march away, and let due praise be given
Neither to Fate nor Fortune, but to Heaven.

[Exeunt.]

[ACT I]

[SCENE I.] 1

Enter Gaveston, reading on a letter that was brought him from the King.

Gaveston. "My father is deceased! Come, Gaveston,
And share the kingdom with thy dearest friend."

Ah! words that make me surfet with delight!

What greater bliss can hap to Gaveston
Than live and be the favourite of a king!

Sweet prince, I come; these, these thy amorous lines
Might have enforc'd me to have swum from France,

And, like Leander, gasp'd upon the sand,
So thou would'st smile, and take me in thine arms.

The sight of London to my exil'd eyes
Is as Elysium to a new-come soul;
Not that I love the city, or the men,
But that it harbours him I hold so dear —
The king, upon whose bosom let me die;
And with the world be still at enmity.

What need the arctic people love starlight,
To whom the sun shines both by day and night?

1 A street in London.

2 Dyce emends to lie. Die may be used in the sense of "swoon."

Farewell base stooping to the lordly peers! My knee shall bow to none but to the king. As for the multitude, that are but sparks Rak'd up in embers of their poverty; — Tant! 3 I'll fawn first on the wind That glanceath at my lips, and flyeth away.

Enter three Poor Men.

But how now, what are these? Poor Men. Such as desire your worship's service.

Gav. Let me see: thou would'st do well To wait at my trencher and tell me lies at dinner time;

And as I like your discoursing, I'll have you. —

Gav. Why, there are hospitals for such as you.

I have no war, and therefore, sir, begone. 3 P. Man. Farewell, and perish by a soldier's hand, That would'st reward them with an hospital.

3 "So much for them."
Gau. Ay, ay, these words of his move me as much
As if a goose should play the porpentine, 49
And dart her plumes, thinking to pierce my breast.
But yet it is no pain to speak men fair;
I'll flatter these, and make them live in hope. —

[Aside.]
You know that I came lately out of France,
And yet I have not view'd my lord the king; 46
If I speed well, I'll entertain you all.
All. We thank your worship.

Gau. I have some business: leave me to myself.
All. We will wait here about the court.

Exeunt.

Gau. Do. — These are not men for me: 50
I must have wanton poets, pleasant wits,
Musicians, that with touching of a string
May draw the pliant king which way I please.
Music and poetry is his delight;
Therefore I'll have Italian masks by night, 52
Sweet speeches, comedies, and pleasing shows;
And in the day, when he shall walk abroad,
Like sylvan nymphs my pages shall be clad;
My men, like satyrs grazing on the lawns,
Shall with their goat-feet dance an antic hay,1

Sometimes a lovely boy in Dian's shape, 51
With hair that glides the water as it glides,
Crownets of pearl about his naked arms,
And in his sportful hands an olive tree,
To hide those parts which men delight to see, 55
Shall bathe him in a spring; and there hard by,
One like Actaeon peeping through the grove
Shall by the angry goddess be transform'd,
And running in the likeness of an hart
By yelping hounds pull'd down, and seem to die; —
Such things as these best please his majesty.
My lord,— Here comes the king, and the nobles
From the parliament. I'll stand aside.

[Retires.]

Enter King [Edward], Lancaster, the Elder Mortimer, Young Mortimer; Edmund, Earl of Kent; Guy, Earl of Warwick, and [Attendants].

K. Edw. Lancaster!

Lan. My lord.

Gau. That Earl of Lancaster do I abhor. 76

[Aside.]
K. Edw. Will you not grant me this? — In spite of them.
I'll have my will; and these two Mortimers,
That cross me thus, shall know I am displeas'd. 1

[Aside.]
E. Mor. If you love us, my lord, hate Gaveston.

Gau. That villain Mortimer! I'll be his death.

Y. Mor. Mine uncle here, this earl, and I myself
Were sworn to your father at his death,
That he should never return into the realm;

And know, my lord, ere I will break my oath,
This sword of mine, that should offend your foes,
Shall sleep within the scabbard at thy need,
And underneath thy banners march who will,
For Mortimer will hang his armour up.

[Aside.]
K. Edw. Well, Mortimer, I'll make thee rue these words.

Beseems it thee to contradict thy king?
Frown'st thou thereat, aspiring Lancaster?
The sword shall plane the furrows of thy brows,
And hew these knees that now are grown so stiff.

I will have Gaveston; and you shall know
What danger 'tis to stand against your king.

Gau. Well done, Ned! 1 [Aside.]
Lan. My lord, why do you thus incense your peers,
That naturally would love and honour you
But for that base and obscure Gaveston?
Four earldoms have I, besides Lancaster —
Derby, Salisbury, Lincoln, Leicester, —
These will I sell, to give my soldiers pay,
Ere Gaveston shall stay within the realm;

Therefore, if he be come, expel him straight.
Kent. Barons and earls, your pride hath made me mute;
But now I'll speak, and to the proof, I hope.
I do remember, in my father's days,
Lord Percy of the north, being highly mov'd,
Braved Moubery 2 in presence of the king; 111
For which, had not his highness lov'd him well,
He should have lost his head; but with his look
The unadorned spirit of Percy was appeas'd,
And Moubery and he were reconcil'd:
112
Yet dare you brave the king unto his face? —
Brother, revenge it, and let these their heads
Prench upon poles, for trespass of their tongues.
War. O, our heads!

K. Edw. Well, you sons; and therefore I would wish you grant —

War. Bridle thy anger, gentle Mortimer.
Y. Mor. I cannot, nor I will not; I must speak.

Cousin, our hands I hope shall fence our heads,
And strike off his that makes you threaten us.

Come, uncle, let us leave the brain-sick king,
And henceforth parle with our naked swords.
E. Mor. Wiltshire hath men enough to save our hands.

War. All Warwickshire will love him for my sake.

Lan. And northward Gaveston hath many friends.

Adien, my lord; and either change your mind,
Or look to see the throne, where you should sit,
To float in blood; and at thy wanton head,
The glozing 3 head of thy base minion thrown.

Exeunt [all except King Edward, Kent, Gaveston, and Attendants].

1 Mowbray, but the Q. spelling indicates the pronunciation.
2 This line and the next are ironical. 4 Flattering.
K. Edw. I cannot brook these haughty menaces.
Am I a king, and must be overrul'd? — 135
Brother, display my ensigns in the field;
I'll bandy 1 with the barons and the earls,
And either die or live with Gaveston.
Gav. I can no longer keep me from my lord. [Comes forward.]
K. Edw. What, Gaveston I welcome! — Kiss not my hand —
Embrace me, Gaveston, as I do thee.
Why should'st thou kneel? Know'st thou not who I am?
Thy friend, thyself, another Gaveston!
Not Hylas was more mourn'd of Hercules,
Than thou hast been of me since thy exile. 140
Gav. And since I went from hence, no soul in hell
Hath felt more torment than poor Gaveston.
K. Edw. I know it. — Brother, welcome home my friend.
Now let the treacherous Mortimers conspire,
And that high-minded Earl of Lancaster: 150
I have my wish, in that I joy thy sight;
And sooner shall the sea o'erwhelm my land,
Than bear the ship that shall transport thee hence.
I here create thee Lord High Chamberlain,
Chief Secretary to the state and me. 155
Earl of Cornwall, King and Lord of Man.
Gav. My lord, these titles far exceed my worth.
Kent. Brother, the least of these may well suffice
For one of greater birth than Gaveston.
K. Edw. Cease, brother, for I cannot brook these words. 160
Thy worth, sweet friend, is far above my gifts.
Therefore, to equal it, receive my heart.
If for these dignities thou be envi'd,
I'll give thee more; for, but to honour thee,
Is Edward pleas'd with kingly regiment. 165
Fear'st thou thy person? Thou shalt have a guard.
Wantest thou gold? Go to my treasury.
Wouldst thou be lov'd and fear'd? Receive my seal;
Save or condemn, and in our name command
Whatso thy mind effects, or fancy likes. 170
Gav. It shall suffice me to enjoy thy love,
Which whiles I have, I think myself as great
As Caesar riding in the Roman street,
With captive kings at his triumphant car.

Enter the Bishop of Coventry.

K. Edw. Whither goes my lord of Coventry so fast? 175
B. of Cov. To celebrate your father's exequies.
But is that wicked Gaveston return'd? 180
K. Edw. Ay, priest, and lives to be reveng'd on thee,
That wert the only cause of his exile.
Gav. 'Tis true; and but for reverence of these robes,
Thou should'st not plod one foot beyond this place.
B. of Cov. I did no more than I was bound to do;
And, Gaveston, unless thou be reclaim'd,
As then I did incense the parliament,
So will I now, and thou shalt back to France. 185
Gav. Saving your reverence, you must pardon me.
K. Edw. Throw off his golden mitre, rend his stole,
And in the channel 4 christen him anew.
Kent. Ah, brother, lay not violent hands on him!
For he'll complain unto the see of Rome. 190
Gav. Let him complain unto the see of hell; I'll be reveng'd on him for my exile.
K. Edw. No, spare his life, but seize upon his goods.
Be thou our bishop and receive his rents,
And make him serve thee as thy chaplain. 195
I give him thee — here, use him as thou wilt.
Gav. He shall to prison, and there die in bolts.
K. Edw. Ay, to the Tower, the Fleet, or where thou wilt.
B. of Cov. For this offence, be thou accurst of God!
K. Edw. Who's there? Convey this priest to the Tower.
B. of Cov. True, true. 5 K. Edw. But in the meantime, Gaveston, away,
And take possession of his house and goods.
Come, follow me, and thou shalt have my guard To see it done, and bring thee safe again. 200
Gav. What should a priest do with so fair a house?
A prison may best beseech his holiness.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.] 6 Enter [on one side] both the Mortimers; [on the other] Warwick and Lancaster.

War. 'Tis true, the bishop is in the Tower, And goods and body given to Gaveston.
Lan. What? will they tyrannise upon the church?
Ah, wicked king! accurst Gaveston! 5 This ground, which is corrupted with their steps,
Shall be their timeless sepulchre or mine.
Y. Mor. Well, let that peevish Frenchman guard him sure; 7
Unless his breast be sword-proof he shall die.
E. Mor. How now! why droops the Earl of Lancaster?
Y. Mor. Wherefore is Guy of Warwick discontent?
Lan. That villain Gaveston is made an earl. 10 E. Mor. An earl! War. Ay, and besides Lord Chamberlain of the realm, And Secretary too, and Lord of Man.

1 Contend. 2 Rule. 3 Fear'st for.
E. Mor. We may not, nor we will not suffer this.
Y. Mor. Why post we not from hence to levy man?
Lan. "My Lord of Cornwall" now at every word!
And happy is the man whom he vouchsafes,
For vailing of his bonnet, one good look.
Thus, arm in arm, the king and he doth march:
Nay more, the guard upon his lordship waits;
And all the court begins to flatter him.
War. Thus leaning on the shoulder of the king,
He nods and scorns and smiles at those that pass.
E. Mor. Doth no man take exceptions at the slave?
Lan. All stomach him, but none dare speak a word.
Y. Mor. Ah, that bewrays their baseness, Lancaster!
Were all the earls and barons of my mind,
We'll hale him from the bosom of the king,
And at the court-gate hang the peasant up.
Who, swoln with venom of ambitious pride,
Will be the ruin of the realm and us.

Enter the [ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY [and an Attendant.]
War. Here comes my lord of Canterbury's grace.
Lan. His countenance bewrays he is displeas'd.
A. of Cant. First were his sacred garments rent and torn,
Then laid they violent hands upon him; next
Himself imprisoned, and his goods asseiz'd:
This certify the Pope;—away, take horse.
[Lan. My lord, will you take arms against the king?
A. of Cant. What need I? God himself is up
in arms,
When violence is offered to the church.
Y. Mor. Then will you join with us, that be his peers,
To banish or behead that Gaveston?
A. of Cant. What else, my lords? for it concerns me near;
The bishopric of Coventry is his.

Enter QUEEN [ISABELLA].
Y. Mor. Madam, whither walks your majesty so fast?
Q. Isab. Unto the forest, gentle Mortimer,
To live in grief and baleful discontent;
For now my lord the king regards me not,
But dotes upon the love of Gaveston.
He claps his chucks, and hangs about his neck,
Smiles in his face, and whispers in his ear;
And when I come he frowns, as who should say,
"Go whither thou wilt, seeing I have Gaveston."
B. Mor. Is it not strange that he is thus bewitch'd?
1 Removing it as a mark of respect.
2 Shows.

Y. Mor. Madam, return unto the court again.
That sly inveigling Frenchman we'll exile,
Or lose our lives; and yet, ere that day come,
The king shall lose his crown; for we have
power,
And courage too, to be reveng'd at full.
Q. Isab. But yet lift not your swords against the king.
Lan. No; but we will lift Gaveston from
hence.
War. And war must be the means, or he shall stay still.
Q. Isab. Then let him stay; for rather than my lord
Shall be oppress'd by civil mutinies,
I will endure a melancholy life,
And let him frolic with his minion.
A. of Cant. My lords, to ease all this, but hear me speak:—
We and the rest, that are his counsellors,
Will meet, and with a general consent Confirm him banishment with our hands and seals.
Lan. What we confirm the king will frustrate.
Y. Mor. Then may we lawfully revolt from him.
War. But say, my lord, where shall this meeting be?
A. of Cant. At the New Temple.
Y. Mor. Content.
A. of Cant. And, in the meantime, I'll entreat
you all
To cross to Lambeth, and there stay with me.
Lan. Come then, let's away.
Y. Mor. Madam, farewell!
Q. Isab. Farewell, sweet Mortimer, and, for my sake,
Forbear to levy arms against the king.
Y. Mor. Ay, if words will serve; if not, I must. [Exeunt.]

[SCENE III.]

Enter GAVESTON and KENT.
Gav. Edmund, the mighty Prince of Lancaster,
That hath more earldoms than an ass can bear,
And both the Mortimers, two goodly men,
With Guy of Warwick, that redoubted knight,
Are gone toward Lambeth—there let them remain!
[Exeunt.]

[SCENE IV.]

Enter Nobles [LANCASTER, WARWICK, PEM-BROKE, the Elder MORTIMER, Young Morti-mer, the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY and Attendants].
Lan. Here is the form of Gaveston's exile:
May it please your lordship to subscribe your name.
A. of Cant. Give me the paper.
[He subscribes, as do the others after him.]

4 A street in London.  5 The New Temple.
Lan. Quick, quick, my lord; I long to write my name.
War. But I long more to see him banish'd
hence.
Y. Mor. The name of Mortimer shall fright
the king,
Unless he be declin'd from that base peasant.
Enter KING [EDWARD,] GAVESTON, [and KENT].
K. Edw. What, are you mov'd that Gaveston sits here?
It is our pleasure; we will have it so.
Lan. Your grace doth well to place him by your side,
For nowhere else the new earl is so safe.
E. Mor. What man of noble birth can brook this sight?
Quam male conveniunt! 1
See what a scornful look the peasant casts!
Pem. Can kingly lions fawn on creeping ants?
War. Ignoble vassal, that like Phaeton
Aspir'st unto the guidance of the sun
Y. Mor. Their downfall is at hand, their forces down;
We will not thus be fac'd and over-peer'd.
K. Edw. Lay hands on that traitor Mortimer!
E. Mor. Lay hands on that traitor Gavest-Mon!
Kent. Is this the duty that you owe your
king?
War. We know our duties—let him know his peers.
K. Edw. Whither will you bear him? Stay, or ye shall die.
E. Mor. We are no traitors; therefore threaten
not.
Gav. No, threaten not, my lord, but pay them home!
Were it a king—
Y. Mor. Thou villain, wherewith talk'st thou of a king,
That hardly art a gentleman by birth?
K. Edw. Were he a peasant, being my minion,
I'll make the proudest of you stoop to him.
Lan. My lord, you may not thus disparage us.
Away, I say, with hateful Gaveston!
E. Mor. And with the Earl of Kent that favours him.
[Attendants remove KENT and GAVESTON.]
K. Edw. Nay, then, lay violent hands upon your king.
Here, Mortimer, sit thou in Edward's throne;
Warwick and Lancaster, wear ye my crown.
Was ever king thus over-rul'd as I?
Lan. Learn then to rule us better, and the realm.
Y. Mor. What we have done, our heart-blood shall maintain.
War. Think you that we can brook this upstart pride?
K. Edw. Anger and wrathful fury stops my speech.
A. of Cant. Why are you mov'd? Be patient,
my lord,
And see what we your counsellors have done.
Y. Mor. My lords, now let us all be resolute,
And either have our wills, or lose our lives.
K. Edw. Meet you for this, proud overdaring peers?
Ere my sweet Gaveston shall part from me,
This isle shall fleet upon the ocean,
And wander to the unfrequented Inde.
A. of Cant. You know that I am legate to the Pope.
On your allegiance to the see of Rome,
Subscribe, as we have done, to his exile.
Y. Mor. Curse him, if he refuse; and then may we
Depose him and elect another king.
K. Edw. Ay, there it goes! but yet I will not yield.
Curse me, depose me, do the worst you can.
Lan. Then linger not, my lord, but do it straight.
A. of Cant. Remember how the bishop was abus'd!
Either banish him that was the cause thereof,
Or I will presently discharge these lords
Of duty and allegiance due to thee.
K. Edw. [Aside.] It boot's me not to threat; I must speak fair.—
The legates of the Pope will be obey'd.
My lord, you shall be Chancellor of the realm;
Thou, Lancaster, High Admiral of our fleet;
Young Mortimer and his uncle shall be earls;
And you, Lord Warwick, President of the North;
And thou of Wales. If this content you not,
Make several kingdoms of this monarchy,
And share it equally amongst you all,
So I may have some nook or corner left,
To frolic with my dearest Gaveston.
A. of Cant. Nothing shall alter us, we are resolv'd.
Lan. Come, come, subscribe.
Y. Mor. Why should you love him whom the world hates so?
K. Edw. Because he loves me more than all the world.
Ah, none but rude and savage-minded men
Would seek the ruin of my Gaveston;
You that be noble-born should pity him.
War. You that are princely-born should shame him off.
For shame subscribe, and let the lown 3 depart.
E. Mor. Urge him, my lord.
A. of Cant. Are you content to banish him the realm?
K. Edw. I see I must, and therefore am content.
Instead of ink, I'll write it with my tears.
[Subscribes.]
Y. Mor. The king is love-sick for his minion.
K. Edw. 'Tis is done; and now, accursed hand, fall off!
Lan. Give it me; I'll have it publish'd in the streets.
1 "How ill they agree!"
2 Float.
3 Fellow.
Y. Mor. I'll see him presently despatch'd away.
A. of Cant. Now is my heart at ease.
War. And so is mine.
Pem. This will be good news to the common sort.
E. Mor. Be it or no, be shall not linger here.
Exit all except King Edward.
K. Edu. How fast they run to banish him I love!
They would not stir, were it to do me good.
Why should a king be subject to a priest?
Proud Rome! that hatchest such imperial grooms,
For these thy superstitious taper-lights,
Wherewith thy antichristian churches blaze,
I'll fire thy crazed buildings, and enforce
The papal towers to kiss the lowly ground!
With slaughtered priests make Tiber's channel swell,
And banks rais'd higher with their sepulchres!
As for the peers, that back the clergy thus,
If I be king, not one of them shall live.

Re-enter Gaveston.

Gav. My lord, I hear it whispered everywhere,
That I am banish'd, and must fly the land.
K. Edu. 'Tis true, sweet Gaveston — O! were it false!
The legates of the Pope will have it so,
And thou must hence, or I shall be depos'd.
But I will reign to be reveng'd of them;
And therefore, sweet friend, take it patiently
Live where thou wilt, I'll send thee gold enough;
And long thou shalt not stay, or if thou dost,
I'll come to thee; my love shall ne'er decline.
Gav. Is all my hope turn'd to this hell of grief?
K. Edu. Rend not my heart with thy too piercing words:
Thou from this land, I from myself am banish'd.
Gav. To go from hence grieves not poor Gaveston;
But to forsake you, in whose gracious looks
The blessedness of Gaveston remains,
For nowhere else seeks he felicity.
K. Edu. And only this torments my wretched soul
That, whether I will or no, thou must depart.
Be governor of Ireland in my stead,
And there abide till fortune call thee home.
Here take my picture, and let me wear thine;
[They exchange pictures.]
O, might I keep thee here as I do this,
Happy were I! but now most miserable!
Gav. 'Tis something to be pitied of a king.
K. Edu. Thou shalt not hence — I'll hide thee,
Gaveston.
Gav. I shall be found, and then 'twill grieve me more.
K. Edu. Kind words and mutual talk makes our grief greater;
Therefore, with dumb, embracement, let us part.
Stay, Gaveston, I cannot leave thee thus.
Like frantic Juno will I fill the earth
With ghastly murmurs of my sighs and cries;
For never doted Jove on Gaumede
So much as he on cursed Gaveston.
But that will more exasperate his wrath;
I must entreat him, I must speak him fair,
And be a means to call home Gaveston.
And yet he'll ever dote on Gaveston;
And so am I for ever miserable.

Re-enter Nobles [LANCASTER, WARWICK, PEMBROKE, the Elder MORTIMER, and Young MORTIMER] to the Queen.

LAN. Look where the sister of the King of France
Sits wringing of her hands, and beats her breast!

WAR. The king, I fear, hath ill-treated her.

PEM. Hard is the heart that injures such a saint.

Y. MOR. I know 'tis long of Gaveston she weeps.

E. MOR. Why? He is gone.

Y. MOR. Madam, how fares your grace?

Q. Isab. Ah, Mortimer! now breaks the king's hate forth,
And he confesseth that he loves me not.

Y. MOR. Cry, quitance, madam, then; and love me not.

Q. Isab. No, rather will I die a thousand deaths!
And yet I love in vain; — he'll ne'er love me.

LAN. Fear ye not, madam; now his minion's gone,
His wanton humour will be quickly left.

Q. Isab. O never, Lancaster! I am enjoin'd to sue upon you all for his repeal;
This wills my lord, and this I must perform,
Or else be banish'd from his highness' presence.

LAN. For his repeal? Madam, he comes not back.

Unless the sea cast up his shipwrack'd body,

WAR. And to behold so sweet a sight as that,
There's none here but would run his horse to death.

Y. MOR. But, madam, would you have us call him home?

Q. Isab. Ay, Mortimer, for till he be restor'd,
The angry king hath banish'd me the court;
And, therefore, as thou lovest and tend'riest me,
Be thou my advocate unto these peers.

Y. MOR. What! would you have me plead for Gaveston?

E. MOR. Plead for him he that will, I am resolv'd.

LAN. And so am I, my lord. Dissuade the queen.

Q. Isab. O Lancaster! let him dissuade the king.

For 'tis against my will he should return.

WAR. Then speak not for him, let the peasantry go.

Q. Isab. This is for myself I speak, and not for him.

PEM. No speaking will prevail, and therefore cease.

Y. MOR. Fair queen, forbear to angle for the fish
Which, being caught, strikes him that takes it dead;
I mean that vile torpedo, Gaveston.
That now, I hope, floats on the Irish seas.

Q. Isab. Sweet Mortimer, sit down by me awhile,
And I will tell thee reasons of such weight
As thou wilt soon subscribe to his repeal.

Y. MOR. It is impossible; but speak your mind.

Q. Isab. Then thus, — but none shall hear it but ourselves.

[ Talks to Young MORTIMER apart. ]

LAN. My lords, albeit the queen win Mortimer,
Will you be resolute, and hold with me?

E. MOR. Not I, against my nephew.

PEM. Fear not, the queen's words cannot alter him.

WAR. No? Do but mark how earnestly she pleads!

LAN. And see how coldly his looks make denial!

WAR. She smiles; now for my life his mind is chang'd!

LAN. I'll rather lose his friendship, I, than grant

Y. MOR. Well, of necessity it must be so.
My lords, that I abhor base Gaveston,
I hope your honours make no question,
And therefore, though I plead for his repeal,
'Tis not for his sake, but for our avail;
Nay for the realm's behoof, and for the king's.

LAN. Fie, Mortimer, dishonour not thyself!
Can this be true, 't was good to banish him?
And is this true, — to call him home again?
Such reasons make white black, and dark night day.

Y. MOR. My lord of Lancaster, mark the respect.

LAN. In no respect can contraries be true.

Q. Isab. Yet, good my lord, hear what he can allege.

WAR. All that he speaks is nothing; we are resolv'd.

Y. MOR. Do you not wish that Gaveston were dead?

PEM. I would he were!

Y. MOR. Why, then, my lord, give me but leave to speak.

E. MOR. But, nephew, do not play the sophister.

Y. MOR. This which I urge is of a burning zeal
To mend the king, and do our country good.
Know you not Gaveston hath store of gold,
Which may in Ireland purchase him such friends
As he will front the mightiest of us all?

And whereas he shall live and be belov'd,
'Tis hard for us to work his overthrow.

WAR. Mark you but that, my lord of Lancaster.

1 Qy. for true read good (?)  2 Consideration.
Y. Mor. But were he here, detested as he is,
How easily might some base slave be suborn'd
To greet his lordship with a poniard,
And none so much as blame the murderer,
But rather praise him for that brave attempt,
And in the chronicle enrol his name
For purging of the realm of such a plague!
E. Mor. He saith true.
Lan. Ay, but how chance this was not done before?
Y. Mor. Because, my lords, it was not thought upon.
Nay, more, when he shall know it lies in us
To banish him, and then to call him home,
'Twill make him vail the top-flags of his pride,
And fear to offend the meanest nobleman.
E. Mor. But how if he do not, nephew?
Y. Mor. Then may we with some colour rise
in arms;
For howsoever we have borne it out,
'Tis treason to be up against the king,
So we shall have the people of our side,
Which for his father's sake lean to the king,
But cannot brook a night-grown mushroom,
Such a one as my lord of Cornwall is.
Should bear us down of the nobility,
And when the commons and the nobles join,
'Tis not the king can buckler Gaveston;
We'll pull him from the strongest hold he hath.
My lords, if to perform this I be slack,
Think me as base a groom as Gaveston.
Lan. On that condition, Lancaster will grant
War. And so will Pembroke and I.
E. Mor. And I.
Y. Mor. In this I count me highly gratified,
And Mortimer will rest at your command.
Q. Isab. And when this favour Isabel forgets,
Then let her live abandon'd and forlorn.—
But see, in happy time, my lord the king,
Having brought the Earl of Cornwall on his
Is new return'd. This news will glad him much,
Yet not so much as me. I love him more
Than he can Gaveston; would he lov'd me
But half so much, then were I treble-blast.

Re-enter King Edward, mourning.
K. Edw. He's gone, and for his absence thus I mourn.
Did never sorrow go so near my heart
As doth the want of my sweet Gaveston;
And could my crown's revenue bring him back,
I would freely give it to his enemies,
And think I gain'd, having bought so dear a friend.
Q. Isab. Hark! how he harps upon his mision.
K. Edw. My heart is as an anvil unto sorrow,
Which beats upon it like the Cyclops' hammers,
And with the noise turns up my giddy brain,
And makes me frantic for my Gaveston.
Ah! had some bloodless Fury rose from hell,
And with my kingly sceptre struck me dead,
When I was forc'd to leave my Gaveston!
Lan. Diablo! What passions call you these?
Q. Isab. My gracious lord, I come to bring you news.
K. Edw. That you have parley'd with your Mortimer?
Q. Isab. That Gaveston, my lord, shall be repeal'd.
K. Edw. Repel'd! The news is too sweet to be true?
Q. Isab. But will you love me, if you find it so?
K. Edw. If it be so, what will not Edward do?
Q. Isab. For Gaveston, but not for Isabel.
K. Edw. For thee, fair queen, if thou lov'st
Gaveston.
I'll hang a golden tongue about thy neck,
Seeing thou hast pleased with so good success.
Q. Isab. No other jewels hang about my neck
Than these, my lord; nor let me have more wealth
Than I may fetch from this rich treasury.
O how a kiss revives poor Isabel!
K. Edw. Once more receive my hand; and let this be
A second marriage 'twixt thyself and me.
Q. Isab. And may it prove more happy than the first!
My gentle lord, bespeak these nobles fair,
That wait attendance for a gracious look,
And on their knees salute your majesty.
K. Edw. Courageous Lancaster, embrace thy
king!
And, as gross vapours perish by the sun,
Even so let hatred with thy sovereign's smile.
Live thou with me as my companion.
Lan. This salutation overjoy's my heart.
K. Edw. Warwick shall be my chiefest counsellor:
These silver hairs will more adorn my court
Than gaudy silks, or rich embroidery.
Chide me, sweet Warwick, if I go astray.
War. Slay me, my lord, when I offend your grow.
K. Edw. In solemn triumphs, and in public
shows,
Pembroke shall bear the sword before the king.
Pem. And with this sword Pembroke will fight for you.
K. Edw. But wherefore walks young Morti-mer aside?
Be thou commander of our royal fleet;
Or, if that lofty office like thee not,
I make thee here Lord Marshal of the realm.
Y. Mor. My lord, I'll marshal so your eneemies,
As England shall be quiet, and you safe.
K. Edw. And as for you, Lord Mortimer of Chirke,
Who's great achievements in our foreign war
Deserves no common place nor mean reward,
Be you the general of the levied troops,
That now are ready to assail the Scots.
E. Mor. In this your grace hath highly honoured me,
For with my nature war doth best agree.
Q. Isab. Now is the King of England rich and strong,
Having the love of his renowned peers.
K. Edu. Ay, Isabel, ne'er was my heart so light.
Clerk of the crown, direct our warrant forth
For Gaveston to Ireland:

[Enter Beaumont with warrant.]

Beaumont, fly 370

As fast as Iris or Jove's Mercury.

Beau. It shall be done, my gracious lord.

K. Edu. Lord Mortimer, we leave you to your charge.
Now let us in, and feast it royally.
Against our friend the Earl of Cornwall comes,
We'll have a general tilt and tournament;
And then his marriage shall be solemn'd.

For wot you not that I have made him sure 1
Unto our cousin, the Earl of Gloucester's heir?
Lan. Such news we hear, my lord.

K. Edu. That day, if not for him, yet for my sake.

Who in the triumph will be challenger,
Spare for no cost; we will requit your love.

War. In this, or aught, your highness shall command us.

[Exeunt all except the Mortimers.]

E. Mor. Nephew, I must to Scotland; thou stayest here.

Leave now t' oppose thyself against the king.
Thou seest by nature he is mild and calm,
And seeing his mind so dotes on Gaveston,
Let him without controlment have his will.

The mightiest kings have had their minions:
Great Alexander loved Hephæstion;
The conquering Hercules 2 for Hylas wept;
And for Patroclus stern Achilles dropt:
And not kings only, but the wisest men:

The Roman Tully lov'd Octavius;
Grave Socrates, wild Alcibiades.

Then let his grace, whose youth is flexible,
And promiseth as much as we can wish,
Freely enjoy that vain, light-headed earl;
For riper years will wean him from such toys.

Y. Mor. Uncle, his wanton humour grieves not me;
But this I scorn, that one so basely born
Should by his sovereign's favour grow so pert,
And riot it with the treasure of the realm.

While soldiers mutiny for want of pay,
He wears a lord's revenue on his back,
And Midos-like, he jets 3 it in the court,
With base outlandish collions 4 at his heels.

Whose proud fantastic liveries make such show
As if that Proteus, god of shapes, appear'd.
I have not seen a dapper Jack so brisk;
He wears a short Italian hooded cloak
Larded with pearl, and, in his Tuscan cap,
A jewel of more value than the crown.

While others walk below, the king and he
From out a window laugh at such as we,
And flout our train, and jest at our attire.
Uncle, 'tis this that makes me impatient.

E. Mor. But, nephew, now you see the king
Is chang'd.

Y. Mor. Then so am I, and live to do him service:
But whiles I have a sword, a hand, a heart,
I will not yield to any such upstart.
You know my mind; come, uncle, let's away.

[Exeunt.]

[ACT II]

[SCENE I.]

Enter [Young] Spencer and Baldock.

Bald. Spencer, seeing that our lord th' Earl
Of Gloucester's dead,
Which of the nobles dost thou mean to serve?

Y. Spen. Not Mortimer, nor any of his side,
Because the king and he are enemies.

Baldock, learn this of me, a factious lord
Shall hardly do himself good, much less us;
But he that hath the favour of a king,
May with one word advance us while we live.

The liberal Earl of Cornwall is the man
On whose good fortune Spencer's hope depends.

Bald. What, mean you then to be his follower?

Y. Spen. No, his companion; for he loves me well,
And would have once preferr'd me to the king.

Bald. But he is banish'd; there's small hope of him.

Y. Spen. Ay, for a while; but, Baldock,
Mark the end.

A friend of mine told me in secrecy
That he's repeal'd, and sent for back again;
And even now a post came from the court
With letters to our lady from the king;
And as she read she smil'd, which makes me think
It is about her lover Gaveston.

Bald. 'Tis like enough; for since he was exil'd
She neither walks abroad, nor comes in sight.
But I had thought the match had been broke off,
And that his banishment had chang'd her mind.

Y. Spen. Our lady's first love is not wavering;
My life for thine, she will have Gaveston.

Bald. Then hope I by her means to be preferr'd,
Having read unto her since she was a child.

Y. Spen. Then, Baldock, you must cast the scholar off,
And learn to court it like a gentleman.
'Tis not a black coat and a little band,
A velvet-cap'd coat, fae'd before with serge,
And smelling to a nosegay all the day,
Or holding of a napkin in your hand,
Or saying a long grace at a table's end,
Or making low legs 7 to a nobleman,
Or looking downward with your eyelds close,
And saying, "Truly, an't may please your honour."

Can get you any favour with great men;

1 Affianced him. 2 Qn. Hecot. 3 Struts. 4 Scoundrels.
5 Gloucester's house. 6 Advanced me to the king's service. 7 Bows.
You must be proud, bold, pleasant, resolute,
And now and then stab, as occasion serves.
Bald. Spencer, thou know'st I hate such formal toys,
And use them but of mere hypocrisy.
Mine old lord whiles he liv'd was so precise, 45
That he would take exceptions at my buttons,
And being like pinch's heads, blame me for the bigness;
Which made me curate-like in mine attire,
Though inwardly licentious enough.
And apt for any kind of villainy. 60
I am none of these common pedants, I,
That cannot speak without propterca quod.1
Y. Spen. But one of those that said quandoguidem.2
And hath a special gift to form a verb.
Bald. Leave off this jesting, here my lady comes.

Enter the Lady [King Edward's Niece.] 70
Niece. The grief for his exile was not so much
As is the joy of his returning home.
This letter came from my sweet Gaveston: —
What needst thou, love, thus to excuse thyself? 80
I know thou couldst not come and visit me. [Reads.] "I will not long be from thee, though I die."
This argues the entire love of my lord;
[Reads.] "When I forsake thee, death seize on my heart:" 90
But stay thee here where Gaveston shall sleep.
[puts the letter into her bosom.]
Now to the letter of my lord the king.—
He wills me to repair unto the court,
And meet my Gaveston. Why do I stay,
Seeing that he talks thus of my marriage-day?
Who's there? Baldock!
See that my coach be ready, I must hence. 100
Bald. It shall be done, madam.
Niece. And meet me at the park-pale presently.
Exit BALDOCK.
Spencer, stay you and bear me company,
For I have joyful news to tell thee of.
My lord of Cornwall is a-coming over,
And will be at the court as soon as we.

Y. Spen. I knew the king would have him home again.
Niece. If all things sort out as I hope they will,
Thy service, Spencer, shall be thought upon.
Y. Spen. I humbly thank your ladyship. 110
Niece. Come, lead the way; I long till I am there. 120
[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.] 4

Enter King Edward, Queen Isabella, Kent, Lancaster, Young Mortimer, Warwick, Pembroke, and Attendants.

K. Edw. The wind is good, I wonder why he stays;
I fear me he is wreck'd upon the sea.
Q. Isab. Look, Lancaster, how passionate he is,
And still his mind runs on his minion!

Lan. My lord,—
Y. Mor. Nothing but Gaveston! — What means your grace?
You have matters of more weight to think upon;
The King of France sets foot in Normandy.
K. Edw. A trifle! we'll expel him when we please.
But tell me, Mortimer, what's thy device
Against the stately triumph we decreed?
Y. Mor. A homely one, my lord, not worth the telling.
K. Edw. Pray thee let me know it.
Y. Mor. But, seeing you are so desirous, thus it is:
A lofty cedar-tree, fair flourishing,
On whose top-branches kingly eagles perch,
And by the bark a canker worm creeps me up,
And gets into the highest bough of all:
The motto, Aequa tandem.7
K. Edw. And what is yours, my lord of Lancaster?
Lan. My lord, mine more obscure than Mortimer's.
Pliny reports there is a flying fish;
Which all the other fishes deadly hate,
And therefore, being pursued, it takes the air:
No sooner is it up, but there's a fowl
That seizeth it; this fish, my lord, I bear:
The motto this: Undique mors est.8
K. Edw. Proud Mortimer! ungentle Lancaster!
Is this the love you bear your sovereign?
Is this the fruit your reconcilement bears?
Can you in words make show of amity,
And in your shields display your rancorous minds?
What call you this but private libelling
Against the Earl of Cornwall and my brother?
Q. Isab. Sweet husband, be content, they all love you.
K. Edw. They love me not that hate my Gaveston.
I am that cedar, shake me not too much;
And you the eagles; soar ye ne'er so high,
I have the jesses9 that will pull you down;
And Aequa tandem shall that canker cry
Unto the proudest peer of Britain.
Though thou compar'st him to a flying fish,
And threatenest death whether he rise or fall,
'Tis not the hugest monster of the sea,
Nor foulest harpy that shall swallow him.
Y. Mor. If in his absence thus he favours him,
What will he do when he shall be present?
Lan. That shall we see; look where his lordship comes.

Enter GAVESTON.

K. Edw. My Gaveston! Welcome to Tynemouth! Welcome to thy friend!

6 Canker-worm. 7 Lat. "On all sides is death." 8 Lat. "Justly at length." 9 The strapes round a hawk's legs, to which the falconer's leash was fastened.
Thy absence made me droop and pine away;
For, as the lovers of fair Dame,
When she was lock’d up in a brazen tower,
Desir’d her more, and wax’d outrageous.
So did it fare 1 with me; and now thy sight
Is sweeter far than was thy parting hence
Bitter and irksome to my sobbing heart.
Gav. Sweet lord and king, your speech preventeth 2 mine,
Yet have I words left to express my joy:
The shepherd nipt with biting winter’s rage
Frolies not more to see the painted spring,
Than I do to behold your majesty.
K. Edw. Will none of you salute my Gaveston?
Y. Mor. Welcome is the good Earl of Cornwall!
War. Welcome, Lord Governor of the Isle of Man!
Pem. Welcome, Master Secretary!
Kent. Brother, do you hear them?
K. Edw. Still will these ears and barons use 5 me thus.
Gav. My lord, I cannot brook these injuries.
Q. Isab. [Aside.] Aye me, poor soul, when these begin to jar.
K. Edw. Return it to their throats, I’ll be thy warrant.
Gav. Base, leaden ears, that glory in your birth,
Go sit at home and eat your tenants’ beef; 6
And come not here to scoff at Gaveston,
Whose mounting thoughts did never creep so low
As to bestow a look on such as you.
Lan. Yet I disdain not to do this for you.
[Draws his sword and offers to stab GAVESTON.]
K. Edw. Treason! treason! where’s the traitor? 8
Pem. Here! here!
K. Edw. Convey hence Gaveston; they’ll murder him.
Gau. The life of thee shall save this foul disgrace.
Y. Mor. Villain! thy life, unless I miss mine aim.
[Injures GAVESTON.]
Q. Isab. Ah! furious Mortimer, what hast thou done?
Y. Mor. No more than I would answer, were he slain.
[Exit GAVESTON with Attendants.]
K. Edw. Yes, more than thou canst answer, though he live,
Dear shall you both aby 8 this riotous deed.
Out of my presence! Come not near the court.
Y. Mor. I’ll not be bard’d the court for Gaveston.
Lan. We’ll hale him by the ears unto the block.
K. Edw. Look to your own heads; his is sure enough.
War. Look to your own crown, if you back him thus.
Kent. Warwick, these words do ill beseech thy years.
K. Edw. Nay, all of them conspire to cross me thus;
But if I live, I’ll tread upon their heads
That think with high looks thus to tread me down.
Come, Edmund, let’s away and levy men,
’Tis war that must abate these barons’ pride.
[Exit KING [EDWARD, QUEEN ISABELLA AND KENT].
War. Let’s to our castles, for the king is mov’d.
Y. Mor. Mov’d may he be, and perish in his wrath!
Lan. Cousin, it is no dealing with him now,
He means to make us stoop by force of arms;
And therefore let us jointly here protest,
To persecute that Gaveston to the death.
Y. Mor. By heaven, the abject villain shall not live!
War. I’ll have his blood, or die in seeking it.
Pem. The like oath Pembroke takes.
Lan. And so doth Lancaster.
Now send our heralds to defy the king; 110
And make the people swear to put him down.
[Enter a Messenger.]
Y. Mor. Letters! From whence?
Mess. From Scotland, my lord.
[Giving letters to Mortimer.]
Lan. Why, how now, cousin, how fares all our friends?
Y. Mor. My uncle’s taken prisoner by the Scots.
Lan. We’ll have him ransom’d, man; be of good cheer.
Y. Mor. They rate his ransom at five thousand pound.
Who should defray the money but the king,
Seeing he is taken prisoner in his wars?
I’ll to the king.
Lan. Do, cousin, and I’ll bear thee company.
War. Meantime, my lord of Pembroke and myself
Will to Newcastle here, and gather head.
Y. Mor. About it then, and we will follow you.
Lan. Be resolute and full of secrecy;
War. I warrant you. [Exit with PEmBROKE.]
Y. Mor. Cousin, and if he will not ransom him,
I’ll thunder such a peal into his ears,
As never subject did unto his king.
Lan. Content, I’ll beat my part—Holla! who’s there?
[Enter Guard.]
Y. Mor. Ay, marry, such a guard as this doth well.
Lan. Lead on the way.
Guard. Whither will your lordships?
Y. Mor. Whither else but to the king.
1 Q. 1594-1612, sur.
2 Anticipateth.
3 Pay for.
4 Q. Poet.
5 An army.
Guard. His highness is disposed to be alone.
Lan. Why, so he may, but we will speak to him.
Guard. You may not in, my lord.
Y. Mor. May we not?

[Enter King Edward and Kent.]

K. Edw. How now!
What noise is this? Who have we there?
Is't you? [Going.]
Y. Mor. Nay, stay, my lord, I come to bring you news;
Mine uncle's taken prisoner by the Scots.
K. Edw. Then ransom him.
Lan. 'Twas in your wars; you should ransom him.
Y. Mor. And you shall ransom him, or else?
Kent. What! Mortimer, you will not threaten him?
K. Edw. Quiet yourself, you shall have the broad seal,
To gather for him throughout the realm.
Lan. Your minion Gaveston hath taught you this.
Y. Mor. My lord, the family of the Mortimers
Are not so poor, but, would they sell their land,
'T would levy men enough to anger you.
We never beg, but use such prayers as these.
K. Edw. Shall I still be hated thus?
Y. Mor. Nay, now you're here alone, I'll speak my mind.
Lan. And so will I, and then, my lord, farew ell.
Y. Mor. The idle triumphs, masques, lasciv ious shows,
And prodigal gifts bestowed on Gaveston,
Have drawn thy treasury dry, and made thee weak;
The murmuring commons, overstretched,

[Break.]

Lan. Look for rebellion, look to be depos'd.
Thy garrisons are beaten out of France,
And, lame and poor, lie groaning at the gates.
The wild O'Neill, with swarms of Irish kerns,
Lives uncontrol'd within the English pale.
Unto the walls of York the Scots made road,
And unresisted drove away rich spoils.
Y. Mor. The haughty Dane commands the narrow seas,
While in the harbour ride thy ships unrigg'd.
Lan. What foreign prince sends thee ambassadors?
Y. Mor. Who loves thee, but a sort of flatteringers?
Lan. Thy gentle queen, sole sister to Valois,
Complains that thou hast left her all forlorn.
Y. Mor. Thy court is naked, being bereft of those
That make a king seem glorious to the world;
I mean the peers, whom thou shouldst dearly love.
Libels are cast again thee in the street;
Ballads and rhymes made of thy overthrow.

Lan. The Northern borderers seeing their houses burnt,
Their wives and children slain, run up and down,
Cursing the name of thee and Gaveston.
Y. Mor. When wert thou in the field with banner spread,
But once? and then thy soldiers marched like players,
With garish robes, not armour; and thyself,
Bedad'd with gold, rode laughing at the rest,
Nodding and shaking of thy spangled crest,
Where women's favours hung like labels down.
Lan. And therefore came it, that the fleering 4 Scots,
To England's high disgrace, have made this jig;
"Maids of Eng land, sore may you mourn, — 100
For your damns 5 have lost at Bannock bourn, — 6
With the heave and a ho!
What wast thou the King of England,
So soon to have won Scotland? —
With a rumbelow!" 11
Y. Mor. Wigmore 7 shall fly, to set my uncle free.
Lan. And when 'tis gone, our swords shall purchase more.

If ye be mov'd, revenge it as you can;
Look next to see us with our ensigns spread.
Exit with young Mortimer.

K. Edw. My swelling heart for very anger breaks!
How oft have I been bated by these peers,
And dare not be reveng'd, for their power is great.
Yet, shall the crowing of these cockerels
Affright a lion? Edward, unfold thy paws,
And let their lives' blood scarce thy fury's hunger.

If I be cruel and grow tyrannous,
Now let them thank themselves, and rue too late.
Kent. My lord, I see your love to Gaveston
Will be the ruin of the realm and you,
For now the wrathful nobles threaten wars,

And therefore, brother, banish him for ever.
K. Edw. Art thou an enemy to my Gaveston?
Kent. Ay, and it grieves me that I favoured him.
K. Edw. Traitor, begone! whine thou with Mortimer.
Kent. So will I, rather than with Gaveston.
K. Edw. Out of my sight, and trouble me no more!
Kent. No marvel though thou scorn thy noble peers,
When I thy brother am rejected thus.

Exit Kent.
Poor Gaveston, that has no friend but me,
Do what they can, we'll live in Tynemouth here,
And, so I walk with him about the walls,
What care I though the ears begirt us round? —
Here comes she that is cause of all these jars:

1. So Dodsley, Qi. hath.
2. Foot soldiers.
4. Lovers.
5. Lovers.
6. Bannockburn was not yet fought. The rhyme is taken from the Chronicles.
7. Young Mortimer's estate.
Enter Queen Isabella with [King Edward's Niece, two] Ladies, [Gaveston,] Baldock and Young Spencer.

Q. Isab. My lord, 'tis thought the earls are up in arms. 220
K. Edw. Ay, and 'tis likewise thought you favour 'em.
Q. Isab. Thus do you still suspect me without cause?
Niece. Sweet uncle! speak more kindly to the queen.
Gav. My lord, dissemble with her, speak her fair.
K. Edw. Pardon me, sweet, I forgot myself.
Q. Isab. Your pardon is quickly got of Isabel.
K. Edw. The younger Mortimer is grown so brave,
That triage-fear he threatens civil wars.
Gav. Why do you not commit him to the Tower?
K. Edw. I dare not, for the people love him well.
Gav. Why, then we 'll have him privately made away.
K. Edw. Would Lancaster and he had both carous'd
A bowl of poison to each other's health!
But let them go, and tell me what are these?
Niece. Two of my father's servants whilst he liv'd.
Mayst please your grace to entertain them now.
K. Edw. Tell me, where wast thou born?
What is thine arms?
Bald. My name is Baldock, and my gent
I fetch't from Oxford, not from heraldry.
K. Edw. The fitter art thou, Baldock, for my turn.
Wait on me, and I'll see thou shalt not want.
Bald. I humbly thank your majesty.
K. Edw. Knowest thou him, Gaveston?
Gav. Ay, my lord; His name is Spencer, he is well allied;
For my sake, let him wait upon your grace; 250
Scarce shall you find a man of more descent.
K. Edw. Then, Spencer, wait upon me; for his sake
I 'll grace thee with a higher style ere long.
Y. Spen. No greater titles happen unto me,
Than to be favoured of your majesty! 254
K. Edw. Cousin, this day shall be your marriage-feast.
And, Gaveston, think that I love thee well
To wed thee to our niece, the only heir
Unto the Earl of Gloucester late deceas'd.
Gav. I know, my lord, my land will stomach me,
But I respect neither their love nor hate.
K. Edw. The headstrong barons shall not limit me;
He that I list to favour shall be great.
Come, let's away; and when the marriage ends,
Have at the rebels, and their 'complices!' 260

[Scene III.] 2

Enter Kent, Lancaster, Young Mortimer, Warwick, Pembroke, [and others].

Kent. My lords, of love to this our native land
I come to join with you and leave the king;
And in your quarrel and the realm's behalf
Will be the first that shall adventure life.
Lan. I fear me, you are sent of policy,
To undermine us with a show of love.
War. He is your brother, therefore have we cause
To cast the worst, and doubt of your revolt.
Kent. Mine honour shall be hostage of my truth;
If that will not suffice, farewell, my lords. 10
Y. Mor. Stay, Edmund; never was Plantagenet
False to his word, and therefore trust we thee.
Pem. But what's the reason you should leave him now?
Kent. I have inform'd the Earl of Lancaster.
Lan. And it sufficeth. Now, my lords, know this,
That Gaveston is secretly arriv'd,
And here in Tynemouth frolics with the king.
Let us with these our followers scale the walls,
And suddenly surprise them unawares. 12
Y. Mor. I 'll give the onset.
War. And I 'll follow thee.
Y. Mor. This tottered ensign of my ancestors,
Which swept the desert shore of that dead sea
Whereof we got the name of Mortimer,
Will I advance upon these castle-walls.
Drums, strike alarum, raise them from their sport,
And ring aloud the knell of Gaveston!
Lan. None be so hardy as to touch the king;
But neither spare you Gaveston nor his friends.

[Scene IV.] 5

Enter King Edward and Young Spencer.

K. Edw. O tell me, Spencer, where is Gaveston?
Spen. I fear he is slain, my gracious lord.
K. Edw. No, he comes; now let them spoil and kill.

[Enter Queen Isabella, King Edward's Niece, Gaveston, and Nobles.]

Fly, fly, my lords, the earls have got the hold;
Take shipping and away to Scarborough; 6
Spencer and I will post away by land.
Gav. O stay, my lord, they will not injure you.
K. Edw. I will not trust them; Gaveston, away!
Gav. Farewell, my lord.
K. Edw. Lady, farewell.
Niece. Farewell, sweet uncle, till we meet again.

1 Feel resentment at.
2 Near Tynemouth Castle.
3 Suspect.
4 Tattered.
5 Near Tynemouth Castle.
K. Edw. Farewell, sweet Gaveston; and farewell, niece.
Q. Isab. No farewell to poor Isabel thy queen?
K. Edw. Yes, yes, for Mortimer, your lover's sake
Q. Isab. Heavens can witness I love none but you!
From my embraces thus he breaks away.
O that mine arms could close this isle about,
That I might pull him to me where I would!
Or that these tears that drizzle from mine eyes
Had power to mollify his stony heart.
That when I had him we might never part.

Enter the Barons, [Lancaster, Warwick, Young Mortimer, and others].

Lan. I wonder how he scap'd!

Y. Mor. Who's this? The queen!

Q. Isab. Ay, Mortimer, the miserable queen,
Whose pining heart her inward sighs have blasted,
And body with continual mourning wasted.

These hands are tir'd with haling my lord
From Gaveston, from wicked Gaveston.

And in vain; for, when I speak him fair,
He turns away, and smiles upon his minion.

Y. Mor. Cease to lament, and tell us where 's the king?

Q. Isab. What would you with the king?

Is 't him you seek?

Lan. No, madam, but that cursed Gaveston.

Far be it from the thought of Lancaster
To offer violence to his sovereign.

We would but rid the realm of Gaveston:
Tell us where he remains, and he shall die.

Q. Isab. He's gone by water unto Scarbrough;
Pursue him quickly, and he cannot escape.
The king hath left him, and his train is small.

War. Foreslow, no time, sweet Lancaster;
Let's launch.

Y. Mor. How comes it that the king and he is parted?

Q. Isab. That thus your army, going several ways,
Might be of lesser force; and with the power
That he intendeth presently to raise,
Be easily oppress'd; therefore he gone.

Y. Mor. Here in the river rides a Flemish hoy;
Let's all aboard, and follow him amain.

Lan. The wind that bears him hence will fill our sails.

Come, come aboard, 'tis but an hour's sailing.

Y. Mor. Madam, stay you within this castle here.

Q. Isab. No, Mortimer, I'll to my lord the king.

Y. Mor. Nay, rather sail with us to Scarbrough.

Q. Isab. You know the king is so suspicious,
As if he hear I have but talk'd with you,
Mine honour will be call'd in question;
And therefore, gentle Mortimer, be gone.

Y. Mor. Madam, I cannot stay to answer you,
But think of Mortimer as he deserves.

Q. Isab. So well hast thou deserv'd sweet Mortimer.

As Isabel could live with thee for ever!
In vain I look for love at Edward's hand,
Whose eyes are fix'd on none but Gaveston;
Yet once more I'll importune him with prayers.
If he be strange and not regard my words,
My son and I will over into France,
And to the king my brother there complain,
How Gaveston hath robb'd me of his love:
But yet I hope my sorrows will have end,
And Gaveston this blessed day be slain. Exit.

[SCENE V.]

Enter GAVESTON, pursued.

Gav. Yet, lusty lords, I have escape'd your hands,
Your threats, your 'larums, and your hot pursuits;
And though divorced from King Edward's eyes,
Yet liveth Gaveston unsuspirc'd,
Breathing, in hope (malgrado6 all your beards,
That muster rebels thus against your king),
To see his royal sovereign once again.

Enter the Nobles, [Warwick, Lancaster, Pembroke, Young Mortimer, Soldiers, James, and other Attendants of Pembroke].

War. Upon him, soldiers, take away his weapons.

Y. Mor. Thou proud disturber of thy country's peace,
Corrupter of thy king, cause of these broils,
Base flatterer, yield! and were it not for shame,
Shame and dishonour to a soldier's name,
Upon thy weapon's point here shouldest thou fall,
And wander in thy gore.

Lan. Monster of men!

That, like the Greekish trumpeter, train'd7 to arms
And bloody wars so many valiant knights;
Look for no other fortune, wretch, than death!
King Edward is not here to buckler thee.

War. Lancaster, why talk'st thou to the slave?

Go, soldiers, take him hence, for, by my sword,
His head shall fall. Gaveston, short warning.
Shall serve thy turn; it is our country's cause
That here severely we will execute
Upon thy person. Hang him at a bough.

Gav. My lord! —

War. Soldiers, have him away; —
But for thou wert the favourite of a king,
Thou shalt have so much honour at our hands —
Gav. I thank you all, my lords: then I perceive,
That heading is one, and hanging is the other,
And death is all.

1 Delay. 2 A small vessel.

3 The open country. 4 Helen of Troy.
5 Uncaptured. 6 Drew.
6 Ital. "in spite of."
Enter Earl of Arundel.

Lan. How now, my lord of Arundel?

Arun. My lords, King Edward greets you all by me.

War. Arundel, say your message.

Arun. His majesty, hearing that you had taken Gaveston, entreateth you by me, yet but he may see him before he dies; for why, he says, and sends you word, he knows that die he shall; and if you gratify his grace so far, he will be mindful of the courtesy.

War. How now?

Gav. Renowned Edward, how thy name revives poor Gaveston! No, it needeth not; Arundel, we will gratify the king in other matters; he must pardon us in this.

Gav. Why, my lord of Warwick, will not these delays beget my hopes?

I know it, lords, it is this life you aim at, yet grant King Edward this.

Y. Mor. Shalt thou appoint what we shall grant? Soldiers, away with him!

Thus we'll gratify the king: We'll send his head by thee; let him bestow His tears on that, for that is all he gets Of Gaveston, or else his senseless trunk.

Lan. Not so, my lords, lest he bestow more cost in burying him than he hath ever eard.

Arun. My lords, it is his majesty's request, and in the honour of a king he swears, he will but talk with him, and send him back. War. When? can you tell? Arundel, no; we wot that the care of his realm remits, and drives his nobles to these exigents of Gaveston, will, if he sees him once, violate any promises to possess him.

Arun. Then if you will not trust his grace in keep, my lords, I will be pledge for his return.

Y. Mor. 'Tis honourable in thee to offer this; but for we know thou art a noble gentleman, we will not wrong thee so, to make away a true man for a thief.

Gav. How mean'st thou, Mortimer? That is over-base.

Y. Mor. Away, base groom, robber of king's renown!

Question with thy companions and thy mates.

Pem. My Lord Mortimer, and you, my lords, each one, to gratify the king's request therein, touching the sending of this Gaveston, because his majesty so earnestly desires to see the man before his death, I will upon mine honour undertake to carry him, and bring him back again; provided this, that you my lord of Arundel will join with me.

1 Extremities.
2 Cunningham's emendation for Q. seize.

War. Pembroke, what wilt thou do? Cause yet more bloodshed? Is it not enough that we have taken him, but must we now leave him on "had I wist," and let him go? Pem. My lords, I will not over-woo your honours; but if you dare trust Pembroke with the prisoner, upon mine oath, I will return him back.

Arun. My lord of Lancaster, what say you in this?

Lan. Why, I say, let him go on Pembroke's word.

Pem. And you, Lord Mortimer?

Y. Mor. How say you, my lord of Warwick? War. Nay, do your pleasures, I know how 'twill prove.

Pem. Then give him me.

Gav. Sweet sovereign, yet I come to see thee ere I die.

War. Yet not perhaps,
If Warwick's wit and policy prevail. [Aside.] Y. Mor. My lord of Pembroke, we deliver him you;

Return him on your honour. Sound, away!

Exeunt all except PEMBROKE, ARUNDEL, GAVESTON, JAMES, and other Attendants of PEMBROKE.

Pem. My lord [Arundel] you shall go with me.

My house is not far hence; out of the way a little, but our men shall go along.

We that have pretty wenches to our wives, Sir, must not come so near and baulk their lips.

Arun. 'Tis very kindly spoke, my lord of Pembroke; your honour hath an adamant of power to draw a prince.

Pem. So, my lord. Come hither, James: I do commit this Gaveston to thee.

Be thou this night his keeper; in the morning we will discharge thee of thy charge. Be gone.

Gav. Unhappy Gaveston, whither goest thou now?

Exit with [JAMES and the other] Attendants.

Horse-boy. My lord, we'll quickly be at Cobham.

Exeunt.

[ACT III]

[SCENE I.] 4

Enter GAVESTON mourning. [JAMES and other] Attendants of PEMBROKE.

Gav. O treacherous Warwick! thus to wrong thy friend.

James. I see it is your life these arms pursue.

Gav. Weaponless must I fall, and die in bands?

O! must this day be period of my life? Centre of all my bliss! An ye be men, speed to the king.

3 "Had I known — the exclamation of those who repent of what they have rashly done." (Dyce.)
4 The open country.
Enter Warwick and his company.

War. My lord of Pembroke's men, strive you no longer—I will have that Gaveston. James. Your lordship doth dishonour to your self, and wrong our lord, your honourable friend. War. No, James, it is my country's cause I follow. Go, take the villain; soldiers, come away. We'll make quick work. Commend me to your master, my friend, and tell him that I watch'd it well. Come, let thy shadow 1 parley with King Edward.

Gav. Treacherous earl, shall I not see the king? War. The king of Heaven, perhaps; no other king. Away! Exeunt Warwick and his men with GAVESTON.

James. Come, fellows, it booted not for us to strive, we will in haste go certify our lord. Exeunt.

[Scene II.] 2 Enter Edward and [Young] Spencer; [Baldock, and Nobles of the King's side, and Soldiers] with drums and fifes.

K. Edu. I long to hear an answer from the barons Touching my friend, my dearest Gaveston. Ah! Spencer, not the riches of my realm Can ransom him! Ah, he is mark'd to die! I know the malice of the younger Mortimer, 3 Warwick I know is rough, and Lancaster inexorable, and I shall never see My lovely Pierce, my Gaveston again! The barons overbear me with their pride.

Y. Spen. Were I King Edward, England's sovereign, Son to the lovely Eleanor of Spain, Great Edward Longshanks' issue, would I bear These braves, this rage, and suffer uncontrold 4 These barons thus to bear'd me in my land, In mine own realm? My lord, pardon my speech:
Did you retain your father's magnanimity, 5 Did you regard the honour of your name, You would not suffer thus your majesty Be counterbuff'd of 6 your nobility. Strike off their heads, and let them preach on poles! 7 No doubt, such lessons they will teach the rest, As by their preaches they will profit much, And learn obedience to their lawful king. K. Edu. Yea, gentle Spencer, we have been too mild, Too kind to them; but now have drawn our word, And if they send me not my Gaveston, We'll steel it 4 on their crest, and poll their tops.

Bald. This haught 8 resolve becomes your majesty, Not to be tied to their affection, As though your highness were a schoolboy still, And must be aw'd and govern'd like a child. 9

Enter the Elder Spencer, with his truncheon and Soldiers.

E. Spen. Long live my sovereign, the noble Edward, In peace triumphant, fortunate in wars! K. Edu. Welcome, old man, com'st thou in Edward's aid? Then tell thy prince of whence, and what thou art. E. Spen. Lo, with a band of bowmen and of pikes, Brown bills and targeteers, four hundred strong, Sworn to defend King Edward's royal right, I come in person to your majesty, Spencer, the father of Hugh Spencer there, 40 Bound to your highness everlastingly, For favour done, in him, unto us all. K. Edu. Thy father, Spencer? Y. Spen. True, an it like your grace, That so pours, in lieu of all your goodness shown, His life, my lord, before your princely feet. 41 K. Edu. Welcome ten thousand times, old man, again. Spencer, this love, this kindness to thy king, Argues thy noble mind and disposition. Spencer, I here create thee Earl of Wiltshire, And daily will enrich thee with our favour, That, as the sunshine, shall reflect o'er thee. Beside, the more to manifest our love, Because we hear Lord Bruce doth sell his land, And that the Mortimers are in hand 8 withal. Thou shalt have crowns of us t' outbid the barons:
And, Spencer, spare them not, but lay it on, Soldiers, a largess, and thrice welcome all! Y. Spen. My lord, here comes the queen.

Enter Queen [Isabella,] and her son [Prince Edward,] and Levune, a Frenchman.

K. Edu. Madam, what news? Q. Isab. News of dishonour, lord, and discontent. Our friend Levune, faithful and full of trust, Informed us, by letters and by words, That Lord Valois our brother, King of France, Because your highness hath been slack in homage, Hath seized Normandy into his hands. These be the letters, this the messenger. K. Edu. Welcome, Levune. Tush, Sib, if this be all Valois and I will soon be friends again. — But to my Gaveston; shall I never see, Never behold thee now? — Madam in this matter, We will employ you and your little son; You shall go parley with the king of France. — Boy, see you bear you bravely to the king; And do your message with a majesty.

1 Ghost.
2 Near Boroughbridge, in Yorkshire.
3 Checked by.
4 Use our steel.
6 High-spirited.
8 Negotiating.
P. Edw. Commit not to my youth things of more weight
Than fits a prince so young as I to bear,
And fear not, lord and father, Heaven's great beam
On Atlas' shoulder shall not lie more safe,
Than shall your charge committed to my trust.
Q. Isab. Ah, boy! this towardness makes thy mother fear
Thou art not mark'd to many days on earth.
K. Edw. Madam, we will that you with speed be ship'd,
And this our son; Levane shall follow you
With all the haste we can despatch him hence.
Choose of our lords to bear you company,
And go in peace; leave us in wars at home.
Q. Isab. Unnatural wars, where subjects brave their king;
God end them once! My lords, I take my leave,
To make my preparation for France.

Exit [with PRINCE EDWARD.]

Enter [ARUNDEL].

K. Edw. What, Lord [Arundel,] dost thou come alone?
Arun. Yea, my good lord, for Gaveston is dead.

K. Edw. Ah, traitors! have they put my friend to death?
Tell me, Arundel, did he ere thou cam'st,
Or didst thou see my friend to take his death?

Arun. Neither, my lord; for as he was surpris'd,
Begirt with weapons and with enemies round,
I did your highness' message to them all;
Demanding him of them, entreating rather,
And said, upon the honour of my name,
That I would undertake to carry him
Unto your highness, and to bring him back.

K. Edw. And tell me, would the rebels deny me that?

Y. Spen. Proud regrants!

K. Edw. Yea, Spencer, traitors all.
Arun. I found them at the first inexorable;
The Earl of Warwick would not bide the hearing,
Mortimer hardly; Pembroke and Lancaster
Spake least: and when they flatly had denied,
Refusing to receive me pledge for him,
The Earl of Pembroke mildly thus bespoke:
'My lords, because our sovereign sends for him
And promiseth he shall be safe return'd,
I will this undertake, to have him hence,
And see him re-delivered to your hands.'

K. Edw. Well, and how fortunes [it] that he came not?

Y. Spen. Some treason, or some villainy, was cause.

Arun. The Earl of Warwick seiz'd him on his way;
For being delivered unto Pembroke's men,
Their lord rode home thinking his prisoner safe;
But ere he came, Warwick in ambush lay,

And bare him to his death; and in a trench
Strake off his head, and march'd unto the camp.

Y. Spen. A bloody part, flatly 'gainst law of arms!

K. Edw. O shall I speak, or shall I sigh and die?

Y. Spen. My lord, refer your vengeance to the sword
Upon these barons; hearten up your men;
Let them not unreveng'd murder your friends!
Advance your standard, Edward, in the field,
And march to fire them from their starting holes.

K. Edw. (kneeling.) By earth, the common mother of us all,
By Heaven, and all the moving orbs thereof,
By this right hand, and by my father's sword,
And all the honors longing to my crown,
I will have heads and lives for him, as many
As I have manors, castles, towns, and towers! —

[Exit.]

Treacherous Warwick! traitorous Mortimer!
If I be England's king, in lakes of gore
Your headless trunk, your bodies will I trall,
That you may drink your fill, and quaff in blood,
And stain my royal standard with the same,
That so my bloody colours may suggest
Remembrance of revenge immortally.
On your accursed traitor's prophecies,
You villains, that have slain my Gaveston!
And in this place of honour and of trust,
Spencer, sweet Spencer, I adopt thee here:
And merely of our love we do create thee
Earl of Gloucester, and Lord Chamberlain,
Despite of times, despite of enemies.

Y. Spen. My lord, here's a messenger from the barons.
Desires access unto your majesty.

Enter the Herald from the Barons with his coat of arms.

Her. Long live King Edward, England's lawful lord!

K. Edw. So wish not they, I wis, that sent thee hither.

Thou com'st from Mortimer and his 'complices,
A ranker rout of rebels never was.

Well, say thy message.

Her. The barons up in arms, by me salute
Your highness with long life and happiness;
And bid me say, as plainer to your grace,
That if without effusion of blood
You will this grief have ease and remedy,
That from your princely person you remove
This Spencer, as a putrifying branch,
That dews the royal vine, whose golden leaves
Empale your princely head, your diadem,
Whose brightness such pernicious upstarts dim,
Say they, and lovingly advise your grace,
To cherish virtue and nobility,
And have old servitors in high esteem,
And shake off smooth dissembling flattering.
This granted, they, their honours, and their lives,
Are to your highness vow'd and consecrate.

Y. Spen. Ah, traitors! will they still display their pride?
K.  Edw.  Away, tarry no answer, but be gone!
Rebels, will they appoint their sovereign?
His sports, his pleasures, and his company?
Yet, ere thou go, see how I do divorce Embraces Spencer.
Spencer from me.—Now get thee to thy lords,
And tell them I will come to chastise them
For murdering Gaveston; hee thee, get thee gone!
Edward with fire and sword follows at thy heels.
[Exit Herald.]
My lords, perceive you how these rebels swell?
Soldiers, good hearts, defend your sovereign's right,
For now, even now, we march to make them stoop.
Away!  Exeunt. Alarums, excursions, a great fight, and a retreat [sounded, within].

[Scene III.] 1

Re-enter King Edward, the Elder Spencer, Young Spencer, and Noblemen of the King's side.

K.  Edw. Why do we sound retreat? Upon them, lords!
This day I shall pour vengeance with my sword
On those proud rebels that are up in arms
And do confront and countermand their king.
Y.  Spen. I doubt it not, my lord, right will prevail.
E.  Spen. 'Tis not amiss, my liege, for either part
To breathe awhile; our men, with sweat and dust
All shokt well near, begin to faint for heat;
And this retire refresheth horse and man.
Y.  Spen. Here come the rebels.
Enter the Barons, Young Mortimer, Lancaster, Warwick, Pembroke, and others.

Y.  Mor. Look, Lancaster, yonder is Edward
Among his flatteners.
Lan. And there let him be
Till he pay dearly for their company.
War. And shall, or Warwick's sword shall smite in vain.
K.  Edw. What, rebels, do you shrink and sound retreat?
Y.  Mor. No, Edward, no; thy flatteners faint and fly.
Lan. Thou'd best betimes forsaik them, and their trains,
For they'll betray thee, traitors as they are.
Y.  Spen. Traitor on thy face, rebellious Lancaster!
Pem. Away, base upstart, brav'est thou nobles thus?
E.  Spen. A noble attempt and honourable deed,
Is it not, trow ye, to assemble aid,
And levy arms against your lawful king!

[Scene IV.] 2

Enter King Edward [and his followers] with the Barons [and Kent], captives.

K.  Edw. Now, lusty lords, now, not by chance of war,
But justice of the quarrel and the cause,
Vail'd is your pride; methinks you hang the heads,
But we'll advance them, traitors. Now is the time
To be aveng'd on you for all your braves,
And for the murder of my dearest friend,
To whom right well you knew our soul was knit,
Good Pierce of Gaveston, my sweet favourite.
Ah, rebels! recons! you made him away.
Kent. Brother, in regard of thee, and of thy land,
Did they remove that flattener from thy throne.
K.  Edw. So, sir, you have spoke; away, avoid our presence!
[Exit Kent.]
Accursed wretches, was't in regard of us,
When we had sent our messenger to request
He might be spar'd to come to speak with us,
And Pembroke undertook for his return,
That thou, proud Warwick, watch'd the prisoner;
Poor Pierce, and headed him 'gainst law of arms?
For which thy head shall overlook the rest,
As much as thou in rage outwent'st the rest,
War. Tyrant, I scorn thy threats and menaces;
It is but temporal that thou canst inflict.
Lan. The worst is death, and better die to live
Than live in infamy under such a king.
K.  Edw. Away with them, my lord of Winchester!
These lusty leaders, Warwick and Lancaster,
I charge you roundly—off with both their heads!
Away!
War. Farewell, vain world!
Lan. Sweet Mortimer, farewell.
Y.  Mor. England, unkind to thy nobility,

1 Battle-field at Boroughbridge in Yorkshire.
2 Plots. T. Brooke emend. Qq. Th'ad...th'ed.
3 The same.
4 Lowered.
5 Raise.
Groan for this grief, behold how thou art maim’d!

K. Edw. Go take that haughty Mortimer to the Tower,
There see him safe bestow’d; and for the rest, Do speedy execution on them all.
Begone!

Y. Mor. What, Mortimer! can ragged stony walls
Immure thy virtue that aspires to Heaven?

No, Edward, England’s scourge, it may not be; Mortimer’s hope surmounts his fortune far.

[The captive Barons are led off.]

K. Edw. Sound drums and trumpets! March with me, my friends, Edward this day hath crown’d him king anew.

Exeunt all except Young Spence, Levune, and Baldock.

Y. Spen. Levune, the trust that we repose in thee,
Begets the quiet of King Edward’s land.

Therefore begone in haste, and with advice
Bestow that treasure on the lords of France,
That, therewith all enchanted, like the guard
That suffered Jove to pass in showers of gold
To Danaé, all aid may be denied.

To Isabel, the queen, that now in France
Makes friends, to cross the seas with her young son.

And step into his father’s regiment.

Levune. That’s it these barons and the subdue queen Long level’d at.

Bal. Yea, but, Levune, thou seest
These barons lay their heads on blocks together;
What they intend, the hangman frustrates clean.

Levune. Have you no doubt, my lords, I’ll clap so close.

Among the lords of France with England’s gold,
That Isabel shall make her plaints in vain,
And France shall be obduré with her tears.

Y. Spen. Then make for France amain.

Levune, away!

Proclaim King Edward’s wars and victories.

Exeunt.

[ACT IV]

[Scene I.]

Enter Kent.

Kent. Fair blows the wind for France; blow gentle gale,
Till Edmund be arriv’d for England’s good! Nature, yield to my country’s cause in this.
A brother? No, a butcher of thy friends!
Proud Edward, dost thou banish me thy presence?

But I’ll to France, and cheer the wronged queen,
And certify what Edward’s looseness is.

Unnatural king! to slaughter noblemen

And cherish flatterers! Mortimer, I stay

Thy sweet escape: stand gracious, gloomy night,
To his device.

Enter Young Mortimer, disguised.

Y. Mor. Holla! who walketh there?
Is’t you, my lord?

Kent. Mortimer, ’tis I;
But hath thy potion wrought so happily?

Y. Mor. It hath, my Lord; the warders all asleep,
I thank them, gave me leave to pass in peace.
But hath your grace got shipping unto France?

Kent. Fear it not.

[Scene II.] 8

Enter Queen [Isabella] and her son [Prince Edward].

Q. Isab. Ah, boy! our friends do fail us all in France.
The lords are cruel, and the king unkind;

What shall we do?

P. Edw. Madam, return to England,
And please my father well, and then a fig
For all my uncle’s friendship here in France.
I warrant you, I’ll win his highness quickly;
A loves me better than a thousand Spencers.

Q. Isab. Ah, boy, thou art deceiv’d, at least in this,
To think that we can yet be tun’d together;
No, no, we jar too far. Unkind Valois!

Unhappy Isabel! when France rejects,
Whither, oh! whither dost thou bend thy steps?

Enter Sir John of Hainault.

Sir J. Madam, what cheer?

Q. Isab. Ah! good Sir John of Hainault,
Never so cheerless, nor so far distressed.

Sir J. I hear, sweet lady, of the king’s unkindness;

But droop not, madam; noble minds contend
Despair. Will your grace with me to Hainault,
And there stay time’s advantage with your son?

How say you, my lord, will you go with your friends,

And share with all our fortunes equally?

P. Edw. So pleaseth the queen, my mother, me it likes.
The King of England, nor the court of France,
Shall have me from my gracious mother’s side,
Till I be strong enough to break a staff;
And then have at the proudest Spencer’s head.

Sir J. Well said, my lord.

Q. Isab. O, my sweet heart, how do I man y thy wrongs,
Yet triumph in the hope of thee, my joy!
Ah, sweet Sir John! even to the utmost verge
Of Europe, or the shore of Tanais,
Will we with thee to Hainault—so we will:—
The marquis is a noble gentleman;
His grace, I dare presume, will welcome me.
But who are these?

1 Rule. 2 Near the Tower of London.

4 Paris. 4 T. Brooke emend. Qq. shake off.
Enter Kent and Young Mortimer.

Kent. Madam, long may you live,
Much happier than your friends in England do!
Q. Isab. Lord Edmund and Lord Mortimer alive!

Welcome to France! The news was here, my lord,
That you were dead, or very near your death.
Y. Mor. Lady, the last was true of the twain;
But Mortimer, reserved for better hap,
Hath shaken off the thraldom of the Tower,
And lives t' advance your standard, good my lord.

P. Edw. How mean you? An 1 king, my lord, fathers, live?
No, my Lord Mortimer, not I, I trow.
Q. Isab. Not, son! why not? I would it were no worse.
But, gentle lords, friendless we are in France.
Y. Mor. Monsieur le Grand, a noble friend of yours,
Told us, at our arrival, all the news:
How hard the nobles, how unkind the king
Hath show'd himself; but, madam, right makes room
Where weapons want; and, though a many Friends Are made away, away, as Warwick, Lancaster,
And others of our party and faction;
Yet have we friends, assure your grace, in England
Would cast up caps, and clap their hands for joy,
To see us there, appointed 2 for our foes.
Kent. Would all were well, and Edward well reclaim'd,
For England's honour, peace, and quietness.
Y. Mor. But by the sword, my lord, 't must be despair'd: 3
The king will ne'er forsake his flatterers.
Sir J. My lord of England, sith th' ungentle
king
Of France refuseth to give aid of arms
To this distressed queen his sister here,
Go you with her to Hainault. Doubt ye not, 4
We will find comfort, money, men, and friends
Ere long, to bid the English king a base.
How say, young prince? What think you of the match?
P. Edw. I think King Edward will outrun us all.
Q. Isab. Nay, son, not so; and you must not discourage
Your friends, that are so forward in your aid.
Kent. Sir John of Hainault, pardon us, I pray;
These comforts that you give our woful queen
Bind us in kindness all at your command.
Q. Isab. Yea, gentle brother; and the God of heaven
Prosper your happy motion, good Sir John.
Y. Mor. This noble gentleman, forward in arms,

Was born, I see, to be our anchor-hold.
Sir John of Hainault, be it thy renown,
That England's queen and nobles in distress,
Have been by thee restored and comforted. 5
Sir J. Madam, along, and you my lords, with me,
That England's peers may Hainault's welcome see.

[Scene III.]

Enter King [Edward,] Arundel, the Elder and Younger Spencer, with others.
K. Edw. Thus after many threats of wrathful war,
Triumphed England's Edward with his friends;
And triumph, Edward, with his friends uncontral'd!
My lord of Gloucester, do you hear the news?
Y. Spen. What news, my lord?
K. Edw. Why, man, they say there is great execution
Done through the realm; my lord of Arundel,
You have the note, have you not?
Arun. From the Lieutenant of the Tower,
my lord.
K. Edw. I pray let us see it. [Takes the note.]
What have we there?

Read it, Spencer.
[Hands the note to Young Spencer, who reads the names.

Why, so; they bark'd apace a month ago:
Now, on my life, they'll neither bark nor bite.
Now, sirs, the news from France? Gloucester,
I trow
The lords of France love England's gold so well
As Isabella gets no aid from thence.
What now remains? Have you proclaim'd
my lord,
Reward for them can bring in Mortimer?
Y. Spen. My lord, we have; and if he be in England,
A will be had ere long, I doubt it not.
K. Edw. If, dost thou say? Spencer, as true as
death,
He is in England's ground; our portmasters
Are not so careless of their king's command.

Enter a Post.

How now, what news with thee? From whence come these?
Post. Letters, my lord, and tidings forth of France;
To you, my lord of Gloucester, from Levunc.
[Given letters to Young Spencer.]
K. Edw. Read.
Y. Spen. (reads).
"My duty to your honour premised, &c., I have, according to instructions in that behalf, dealt with the King of France his lords, and effected that the queen, all discontented and distressed, is gone: whither, if you ask, with Sir John of Hainault, brother to the marquis into Flanders. With them are gone Lord Edmund, and the Lord Mortimer, having in their company divers of your nation, and others; and,

6 The Royal Palace, London.
as constant report goeth, they intend to give King Edward battle in England, sooner than he can look for them. This is all the news of import.

Your honour's in all service, Levene. 17
K. Edu. Ah, villains! hath that Mortimer escap'd? 18
With him is Edmund gone associate?
And will Sir John of Hainault lead the round?
Welcome, a' God's name, madam, and your son;
England shall welcome you and all your rout. 19
Gallop apace, bright Phoebus, through the sky,
And dusky night, in rusty iron car,
Between you both shorten the time, I pray,
That I may see that most desired day.
20
When we may meet these traitors in the field,
Ah, nothing grieves me but my little boy
Is thus misled to countenance their ills.
Come, friends, to Bristow, 1 there to make us strong;
And, winds, as equal be to bring them in, 20
As you injurious were to bear them forth! 21

[Scene IV.] 2

Enter Queen [Isabella], her son, [Prince Edward], Kent, Young Mortimer, and Sir John of Hainault.

Q. Isab. Now, lords, our loving friends and countrymen,
Welcome to England all, with prosperous winds!
Our kindest friends in Belgia have we left,
To cope with friends at home; a heavy case
When force to force is knitt, and sword and glaive
In civil broils make kin and countrymen
Slaughter themselves in others, and their sides
With their own weapons gor'd! But what's the help?
Miszovered kings are cause of all this wrack;
And, Edward, thou art one among them, 19
Whose looseness hath betray'd thy land to spoil,
Who made the channels overflow with blood.
Of thine own people patron shouldst thou be,
But thou——

Y. Mor. Nay, madam, if you be a warrior,
You must not grow so passionate in speeches.
Lords,
Sith that we are by sufferance of Heaven
Arriv'd and armed in this prince's right,
Here for our country's cause swear we to him.
All homage, fealty, and forwardness;
And for the open wrongs and injuries
Edward hath done to us, his queen and land,
We come in arms to wreak it with the sword;
That England's queen in peace may repossess
Her dignities and honors; and withal
We may remove these flatterers from the king,
That havoc England's wealth and treasury.
Sir J. Sound trumpets, my lord, and forward let us march.
Edward will think we come to flatter him. 20
Kent. I would he never had been flattered more. [Exeunt.]

[Scene V.] 8

Enter King Edward, Baldock, and Young
Spencer, flying about the stage.

Y. Spen. Fly, fly, my lord! the queen is over-strong;
Her friends do multiply, and yours do fail.
Shape we our course to Ireland, there to breathe.
K. Edu. What! was I born to fly and run
away,
And leave the Mortimers conquerors behind?
Give me my horse, and let's reinforce our troops:
And in this bed of honour die with fame.
Bald. O no, my lord, this princely resolution
Fits not the time; away! we are pursu'd.

[Exeunt.]

Enter Kent, with sword and target.

Kent. This way he fled, but I am come too late.
Edward, alas! my heart relents for thee.

Proud traitor, Mortimer, why dost thou chase
Thy lawful king, thy sovereign, with thy sword?
Vile wretch! and why hast thou, of all unkind
Borne arms against thy brother and thy king?
Rain showers of vengeance on my cursed head,
Thou God, to whom in justice it belongs
To punish this unnatural revolt!
Edward, this Mortimer aims at thy life!
O fly him, then! But, Edmund, calm this rage,
Dissemble, or thou diest; for Mortimer
And Isabel do kiss, while they conspire;
And yet she bears a face of love forsooth.
Fie on that love that hatcheth death and hate!
Edmund, away! Bristow to Longshanks' blood
Is false, be not found single for suspect.
Proud Mortimer pries near unto thy walks.

Enter Queen [Isabella], Prince [Edward],
Young Mortimer, and Sir John of Hainault.

Q. Isab. Successful battle gives the God of kings
To them that fight in right and fear his wrath.
Since then successfully we have prevailed,
Thanked be Heaven's great architect, and you.
Ere farther we proceed, my noble lords,
We here create our well-beloved son,
Of love and care unto his royal person,
Lord Warden of the realm, and sith the fates
Have made his father so unfortunate,
Deal you, my lords, in this, my loving lords,
As to your wisdoms fittest seems in all.
Kent. Madam, without offence, if I may ask,
How will you deal with Edward in his fall?
P. Edu. Tell me, good uncle, what Edward do you mean?
Kent. Nephew, your father; I dare not call him king.

Y. Mor. My lord of Kent, what needs these questions?
'Tis not in her controlment, nor in ours,
But as the realm and parliament shall please,

1 Bristol. 2 Near Harwich. 3 Near Bristol. 4 Lest you are suspected.
EDWARD THE SECOND

So shall your brother be disposed of.—
I like not this relenting mood in Edmund.
Madam, 'tis good to look to him betimes.

Q. Isab. My lord, the Mayor of Bristow knows our mind.
Y. Mor. Yea, madam, and they scape not easily
That fled the field.
Q. Isab. Baldock is with the king,
A goodly chancellor, is he not, my lord?
Sir J. So are the Spencers, the father and the son.

Kent. This Edward is the ruin of the realm.

Enter RICE AP HOWELL and the Mayor of Bristol, with the Elder SPENCER [prisoner, and Attendants].

Rice. God save Queen Isabel, and her princely son!
Madam, the mayor and citizens of Bristow,
In sign of love and duty to this presence,
Present by me this traitor to the state,
Spencer, the father to that wanton Spencer,
That, like the lawless Catiline of Rome,
Revelled in England's wealth and treasury.

Q. Isab. We thank you all.
Y. Mor. Your loving care in this Deserveth princely favours and rewards.
But where's the king and the other Spencer fled?

Rice. Spencer the son, created Earl of Gloucester,
Is with that smooth-tongued scholar Baldock
And shipt but late for Ireland with the king.

Y. Mor. [Aside.] Some whirlwind fetch them back or sink them all!—
They shall be started thence, I doubt it not.
P. Edu. Shall I not see the king my father yet?

Sir J. Madam, what resteth, why stand you in a muse?
Q. Isab. I rue my lord's ill-fortune; but alas!
Care of my country calleth me to this war.
Y. Mor. Madam, have done with care and sad complaint;
Your king hath wrong'd your country and himself,
And we must seek to right it as we may.
Meanwhile, have hence this rebel to the block.
Your lordship cannot privilege your head.
E. Spen. Rebel is he that fights against his prince;
So fought not they that fought in Edward's right.

Y. Mor. Take him away, he prates.

[Exeunt Attendants with the Elder Spencer.]

You, Rice ap Howell,
Shall do good service to her majesty,
Being of countenance in your country here,
To follow these rebellious runagates.

We in meanwhile, madam, must take advice
How Baldock, Spencer, and their complices
May in their fall be followed to their end.

[Scene VI.] 1

Enter the Abbot, Monks, [King] Edward,
Young Spencer, and Baldock [the three latter disguised].

Abbot. Have you no doubt, my lord; have you no fear;
As silent and as careful we will be,
To keep your royal person safe with us,
Free from suspect and fell invasion
Of such as have your majesty in chase,
Yourself, and those your chosen company,
As danger of this stormy time requires.

K. Edu. Father, thy face should harbour no deceit.
O! hadst thou ever been a king, thy heart,
Pierced deeply with sense of my distress,
Could not but take compassion of my state.
Stately and proud, in riches and in train,
Whilom I was, powerful, and full of pomp:
But what is he whom rule and empery
Have not in life or death made miserable?
Come, Spencer; come, Baldock, come, sit down by me;

Make trial now of that philosophy,
That in our famous nurseries of arts
Thou suck'dst from Plato and from Aristotle.
Father, this life contemplative is Heaven.
O that I might this life in quiet lead!
But we, alas! are chas'd; and you, my friends,
Your lives and my dishonour they pursue.
Yet, gentle monks, for treasure, gold, nor fee,
Do you betray us and our company.

Monks. Your grace may sit secure, if none but we Do wot of your abode.

Y. Spen. Not one alive; but shrewdly I suspect
A gloomy fellow in a mead below.
'A gave a long look after us, my lord;
And all the land I know is up in arms,
Arms that pursue our lives with deadly hate.

Bald. We were embark'd for Ireland, wretched we!
With awkward winds and [with] sore tempests driven
To fall on shore, and here to pine in fear
Of Mortimer and his confederates.

K. Edu. Mortimer! who talks of Mortimer?
Who wounds me with the name of Mortimer,
That bloody man? Good father, on thy lap
Lay this head, laden with mickle care.
O might I never open these eyes again!
Never again lift up this drooping head!
O never more lift up this dying heart!
Y. Spen. Look up, my lord. — Baldock, this drowsiness Betides no good; here even we are betray'd.

Enter, with Welsh hooks, Rice ap Howell, a Mower, and Leicester.

Mow. Upon my life, these be the men ye seek.
Rice. Fellow, enough. — My lord, I pray be short,
A fair commission warrants what we do.

1 The abbey of Neath.
Leices. The queen's commission, urged by Mortimer:

What cannot gallant Mortimer with the queen?
Alas! see where he sits, and hopes unseen.
T' escape their hands that seek to save his life.
Too true it is, Quem dies vidit veniens superbum,
Hunc dies vidit fugiens juventem.

But, Leicester, leave to grow so passionate.
Spencer and Baldock, by no other names,
I do arrest you of high treason here.
Stand not on titles, but obey the arrest;
'Tis in the name of Isabel the queen.
My lord, why droop you thus?

K. Edw. O day, the last of all my bliss on earth!
Centre of all misfortune! O my stars,
Why do you lour unkindly on a king?

Comes Leicester, then, in Isabella's name
To take my life, my company from me?
Here was hop of the panting breast of mine,
And take my heart in rescue of my friends!
Rice. Away with them!

Y. Spen. It may become thee yet
To let us take our farewell of his grace.

Abbot. My heart with pity ears to see this sight,

[Aside.] A king to bear these words and proud commands.

K. Edw. Spencer, ah, sweet Spencer, thus then must we part?
Y. Spen. We must, my lord, so will the angry Heavens.

K. Edw. Nay, so will hell and cruel Mortimer;
The gentle Heavens have not to do in this.

Bald. My lord, it is in vain to grieve or storm.
Here humbly of your grace we take our leaves;
Our lots are cast; I fear me, so is thine.

K. Edw. In Heaven we may, in earth ne'er shall we meet:

And, Leicester, say, what shall become of us?
Leices. Your majesty must go to Killingworth
K. Edw. Must! it is somewhat hard, when kings must go.

Leices. Here is a litter ready for your grace,
That waits your pleasure, and the day grows old.

Rice. As good be gone, as stay and be baptized.
K. Edw. A litter hast thou? Lay me in a hearse,
And to the gates of hell convey me hence;
Let Pluto's bells ring out my fatal knell;
And have howl for my death at Charon's shore.
For friends hath Edward none but these and these,
And these must die under a tyrant's sword.

Rice. My lord, be going; care not for these,
For we shall see them shorter by the heads.

K. Edw. Well, that shall be, shall be: part must we!

Sweet Spencer, gentle Baldock, part must we!
Hence feigned weeds! unfeigned are my woes;
[Throws off his disguise.]

Father, farewell! Leicester, thou stay'st for me,
And go I must. Life, farewell, with my friends.

Rice. Is he gone? Is noble Edward gone?

Ereunt Edward and Leicester.

Y. Spen. O! is he gone? Is noble Edward gone?

Perted from hence, never to see us more?
Rent, sphere of Heaven! and, fire, forsake thy Earth, melt to air! gone is my sovereign,
Gone, gone, alas! never to make return.

Bald. Spencer, I see our souls are fleetest hence:
We are deprived the sunshine of our life:
Make for a new life, man; throw up thy eyes,
And heart, and hand to Heaven's immortal throne;

Pay nature's debt with cheerful countenance;
Reduce we all our lessons unto this:
To die, sweet Spencer, therefore live we all;
Spencer, all live to die, and rise to fall.

Rice. Come, come, keep these precepts till you come to the place appointed. You, and such as you are, have made wise work in England. Will your lordships away?

Mow. Your lordship, I trust, will remember me?

Rice. Remember thee, fellow! what else? Follow me to the town.

[Exeunt.]

[ACT V]

[SCENE I.]

Enter King [Edward.] Leicester, the Bishop of Winchester for the crown and Trolles.

Leices. Be patient, good my lord, cease to lament,
Imagine Killingworth Castle were your court,
And that you lay for pleasure here a space,
Not of compulsion or necessity.

K. Edw. Leicester, if gentle words might comfort me,
Thy speeches long ago had eas'd my sorrows;
For kind and loving hast thou always been.
The grieves of private men are soon allay'd,
But not of kings. The forest deer, being struck,
Runs to an herb that closeth up the wounds;
But, when the imperial lion's flesh is gor'd,
He rends and tears it with his wrathful paw,
[And] highly scorning that the lowly earth
Should drink his blood, mounts up into the air.
And so it fares with me, whose dauntless mind
The ambitious Mortimer would seek to curb,
And that unnatural queen, false Isabel,
That thus hath pent and mew'd me in a prison;
For such outrageous passions cloy my soul,
As with the wings of rancour and disdain.
Full often am I soaring up to Heaven,
To plain me to the gods against them both.
But when I call to mind I am a king,
Methinks I should revenge me of my wrongs,
That Mortimer and Isabel have done.
But what are kings, when regiment's gone,

4 A room in Kenilworth Castle.
5 Rule.
But perfect shadows in a sunshine day?
My nobles rule, I bear the name of king;
Wear the crown, but am control'd by them,
By Mortimer, and my unconstant queen;
Who spits my nuptial bed with infamy;
Whilst I am lodg'd within this cave of care,
Where sorrow at my elbow still attends,
To company my heart with sad laments,
That bleeds within me for this strange exchange.

But tell me, must I now resign my crown,
To make usurping Mortimer a king?

B. of Win. Your grace mistakes; it is for England's good,
And princely Edward's right we crave the crown.

K. Edw. No, 'tis for Mortimer, not Edward's head;
For he's a lamb, encompassed by wolves,
Which in a moment will abridge his life.
But if proud Mortimer do wear this crown,
Heavens turn it to a blaze of quenchless fire!
Or like the snaky wretch of Tisiphon,
Engirt the temples of his hateful head:
So shall not England's vine be perish'd,
But Edward's name survives, though Edward dies.

Leices. My lord, why waste you thus the time away?
Their hearts are bow'd, my lord; their breath is gone,
And their last sighs and last gasps ask pardon
Of their abdest souls; they wish but till death
That still may reign hereafter, and the crown
May easily descend on Mortimer.

K. Edw. Ah, Leicester, weigh how hardly I can brook
To lose my crown and kingdom without cause;
To give ambitious Mortimer my right,
That like a mountain overwhelms my bliss,
In which extreme my mind henceforward is:
But what the heavens appoint, I must obey!
Here, take my crown; the life of Edward too;
[Taking off the crown.]

Two kings in England cannot reign at once.
But stay awhile, let me be king till night,
That I may gaze upon this glittering crown;
So shall my eyes receive their last content,
My head, the latest honour due to it,
And jointly both yield up their wished right.
Continue ever thou celestial sun:
Let never silent night possess this clime:
Stand still you watches of the element;
All times and seasons, rest you at a stay,
That Edward may be still fair England's king!
But day's bright beam doth vanish fast away,
And needs I must resign my wished crown.
Inhuman creatures! nurs'd with tiger's milk!
Why gape you for your sovereign's overthrow?
My diadem I mean, and guiltless life.
See, monsters, see, I'll wear my crown again!
[He puts on the crown.]

What, fear you not the fury of your king?
But, hapless Edward, thou art fondly led;
They pass not for thy crowns as late they did,
But seek to make a new-elected king;
Which fills my mind with strange despairing thoughts,
Which thoughts are martyred with endless toil.
And in this torment comfort find I none,
But that I feel the crown upon my head;
And therefore let me wear it yet awhile.

Trus. My lord, the parliament must have present news,
And therefore say, will you resign or no?

K. Edw. I'll not resign, but whilst I live I'll keep king.

Traitors, be gone and join with Mortimer!
Elect, conspire, install, do what you will:—
Their blood and yours shall seal these treacheries!

B. of Win. This answer we'll return, and so farewell.
[Going with Trussel.]

Leices. Call them again, my lord, and speak them fair;
For if they go, the prince shall lose his right.

K. Edw. Call them back, I have no power to speak.

Leices. My lord, the king is willing to resign.
B. of Win. If he be not, let him choose.

K. Edw. O would I might, but heavens and earth conspire
To make me miserable! Here receive my crown:
Receive it? No, these innocent hands of mine
Shall not be guilty of so foul a crime.

He of you all that most desires my blood,
And will be call'd the murderer of a king,
Take it. What, are you mov'd? Pity you me?
Then send for unrelenting Mortimer.
And Isabel, whose eyes, being turn'd to steel,
Will sooner sparkle fire than shed a tear.
Yet stay, for rather than I'll look on them,
Here, here! [Gives the crown.]

Now, sweet God of Heaven,
Make me despise this transitory pomp,
And sit for eye enthronized in Heaven!
Come, death, and with thy fingers close my eyes,
Or if I live, let me forget myself.

B. of Win. My lord—

K. Edw. Call me not lord; away—out of my sight!

Ah, pardon me: grief makes me lunatic!
Let not that Mortimer protect my son;
More safety is there in a tiger's jaws,
Than his embracements. Bear this to the queen,
Wet with my tears, and dried again with sighs;
[Offers a handkerchief.]

If with the sight thereof she be not mov'd,
Return it back and dip it in my blood.

Commend me to my son, and bid him rule
Better than I. Yet how have I transgress'd,
Unless it be with too much clemency?

Trus. And thus most humbly do we take our leave.

K. Edw. Farewell! [Exeunt the Bishop of Winchester and Trussel.]

I know the next new that they bring
Will be my death; and welcome shall it be;
To wretched men, death is felicity.

1 Foolishly.
2 Care.
3 Qq. omit. Added by Dodsley.
Enter Berkeley,

Leices. Another post! what news brings he?
K. Edw. Such news as I expect—come, Berkeley, come,
And tell thy message to my naked breast.
Berk. My lord, think not a thought so villainous
Can harbour in a man of noble birth.
To do your highness service and devoir,
And save you from your foes, Berkeley would die.
Leices. My lord, the council of the queen commands
That I resign my charge.
K. Edw. And who must keep me now? Must you, my lord?
Berk. Ay, my most gracious lord; so 'tis decreed.
K. Edw. (taking the paper.) By Mortimer, whose name is written here!
Well may I rend his name that rends my heart!

This poor revenge has something eas'd my mind.
So may his limbs be torn, as is this paper!
Hear me, immortal Jove, and grant it too!
Berk. Your grace must hence with me to Berkeley straight.
K. Edw. Whither you will; all places are alike,
And every earth is fit for burial.
Leices. Favour him, my lord, as much as lieth
in you.
Berk. Even so betide my soul as I use him.
K. Edw. Mine enemy hath pitied my estate,
And that 's the cause that I am now remov'd.
Berk. And thinks your grace that Berkeley will be cruel?
K. Edw. I know not; but of this am I assured,
That death ends all. and I can die but once.
Leices, farewell! Leices. Not yet, my lord; I 'll bear you on your way.

[Scene II.]

Enter Queen Isabella and Young Mortimer.

Y. Mor. Fair Isabel, now have we our desire;
The proud corrupters of the light-brain'd king
Have done their homage to the lofty gallows,
And he himself lies in captivity.
Be ruled by me, and we will rule the realm.
In any case take heed of childlish fear;
For now we hold an old wolf by the ears,
That, if he slip, will seize upon us both,
And gripe the sorer, being gripped himself.
Think therefore, madam, that imports us much
To erect your son with all the speed we may,
And that I be protector over him;
For our behoof will bear the greater sway
Whenas a king's name shall be under writ.

Q. Isab. Sweet Mortimer, the life of Isabel,
Be thou persuaded that I love thee well,
And therefore, so the prince my son be safe,
Whom I esteem as dear as these mine eyes,
Conclude against his father what thou wilt,
And I myself will willingly subscribe.
Y. Mor. First would I hear news that he were depose'd,
And then let me alone to handle him.

[Enter Messenger.

Letters! from whence?
Mess. From Killingworth, my lord.
Q. Isab. How fares my lord the king?
Mess. In health, madam, but full of pensive-ness.
Q. Isab. Alas, poor soul, would I could ease his grief!

[Enter the Bishop of Winchester with the crown.

Thanks, gentle Winchester. [To the Messenger.]
Sirrah, be gone. [Exit Messenger.

B. of Win. The king hath willingly resign'd his crown.
Q. Isab. O happy news! send for the prince,
my son.
B. of Win. Further, or this letter was seal'd,
Lord Berkeley came,
So that he now is gone from Killingworth;
And we have heard that Edmund laid a plot
To set his brother free; no more but so.
The lord of Berkeley is so pitiful
As Leicester that had charge of him before.
Q. Isab. Then let some other be his guardian.
Y. Mor. Let me alone, here is the privy seal.
[Exit the Bishop of Winchester.

Who's there?—Call hither Gurney and Matrevis.
[To Attendants within.

To dash the heavy-headed Edmund's drift,
Berkeley shall be discharg'd, the king remov'd,
And none but we shall know where he lieth.
Q. Isab. But, Mortimer, as long as he survives,
What safety rests for us, or for my son?
Y. Mor. Speak, shall he presently be despatch'd and die?
Q. Isab. I would he were, so 'twere not by my means.

[Enter Matrevis and Gurney.

Y. Mor. Enough.—Matrevis, write a letter presently Unto the lord of Berkeley from ourself
That he resign the king to thee and Gurney; 49
And when it is done, we will subscribe our name.
Mat. It shall be done, my lord.
Y. Mor. Gurney.
Gur. My lord.
Y. Mor. As thou intend'st to rise by Mortimer,
Who now makes Fortune's wheel turn as he please,
Seek all the means thou canst to make him
drop,
And neither give him kind word nor good look.
Gur. I warrant you, my lord.
Y. Mor. And this above the rest: because we hear
That Edmund casts 1 to work his liberty,
Remove him still from place to place by night,
Till at the last he come to Killingworth, 69
And then from thence to Berkeley back again;
And by the way, to make him fret the more,
Speak curstly to him, and in any case
Let no man comfort him; if he chance to weep,
But amplify his grief with bitter words. 66
       Mat. Fear not, my lord, we'll do as you command.
Y. Mor. So now away; post thitherwards.
Q. Isab. Whither goes this letter? To my lord the king?
Command me humbly to his majesty,
And tell him that I labour all in vain
To ease his grief, and work his liberty;
And bear him this as witness of my love.

       [Gives a ring.]
Mat. I will, madam. Exit with Gurney.

Enter Prince [Edward,] and Kent talking with him.
Y. Mor. Finely dissembled. Do so still, sweet queen.
Here comes the young prince with the Earl of Kent.
Q. Isab. Something he whispers in his childish ears.
Y. Mor. If he have such access unto the prince,
Our plots and stratagems will soon be dash'd.
Q. Isab. Use Edmund friendly, as if all were well.
Y. Mor. How fares my honourable lord of Kent?
Kent. In health, sweet Mortimer. How fares your grace?
Q. Isab. Well, if my lord your brother were enlarg'd.
Kent. I hear of late he hath depos'd himself.
Q. Isab. The more my grief.
Y. Mor. And mine.
Kent. [Aside.] Ah, they do dissemble!
Q. Isab. Sweet son, come hither, I must talk with thee.
Y. Mor. You being his uncle, and the next of blood,
Do look to be protector o'er the prince.
Kent. Not I, my lord; who should protect the son.
But she that gave him life? I mean the queen.
P. Edw. Mother, persuade me not to wear the crown:
Let him be king — I am too young to reign.
Q. Isab. But be content, seeing 'tis his highness' pleasure.
P. Edw. Let me but see him first, and then I will.
       Kent. Ay, do, sweet nephew.
Q. Isab. Broth, is it possible you know it impossible.
P. Edw. Why, is he dead?
Q. Isab. No, God forbid!

1 Plots.

Kent. I would those words proceeded from your heart.
Y. Mor. Inconstant Edmund, dost thou favour him,
That was the cause of his imprisonment? 100
Kent. The more cause have I now to make amends.
Y. Mor. [Aside to Q. Isab.] I tell thee, 'tis not Should come about the person of a prince. —
My lord, he hath betray'd the king his brother,
And therefore trust him not. 105
P. Edw. But he repents, and sorrows for it now.
Q. Isab. Come, son, and go with this gentle lord and me.
P. Edw. With you I will, but not with Mortimer.
Y. Mor. Why, youngling, 'sain'st thou of Mortimer?
Then I will carry thee by force away. 110
P. Edw. Help, uncle Kent! Mortimer will wrong me.
Q. Isab. Brother Edmund, strive not; we are his friends;
Isabel is nearer than the Earl of Kent.
Kent. Sister, Edward is my charge, redeem him.
Q. Isab. Edward is my son, and I will keep him.
Kent. Mortimer shall know that he hath wrong'd me! —
[Aside.] Hence will I haste to Killingworth Castle,
And rescue aged Edward from his foes.
To be reveng'd on Mortimer and thee.

       Exit on one side QUEEN ISABELLA, PRINCE EDWARD, and YOUNG MORTIMER; on the other KENT.

[SCENE III.] 2

Enter MATREVIS and Gurney [and Soldiers,] with King [Edward].
Mat. My lord, be not pensive, we are your friends;
Men are ordain'd to live in misery,
Therefore come, — dalliance dangreth our lives.
K. Edw. Friends, whither must unhappy Edward go?
Will hateful Mortimer appoint no rest? 5
Must I be vexed like the nightly bird,
Whose sight is leathsome to all winged fowls?
When will the fury of his mind assuage?
When will his heart be satisfied with blood?
If mine will serve, unbowel straight this breast,
And give my heart to Isabel and him; 11
It is the chiefest mark they level 4 at.
Gur. Not so my liege, the queen hath given this charge
To keep your grace in safety;
Your passions make your deours to increase.
K. Edw. This usage makes my misery to increase.

1 Konlworth Castle. 2 Aim.

3
But can my air of life continue long
When all my senses are annoy'd with stench?
Within a dungeon England's king is kept,
Where I am starv'd for want of sustenance.
My daily diet is heart-breaking sob
That almost rents the closest of my heart.
Thus lives old Edward not reliev'd by any,
And so must die, though pitied by many.
O, water, gentle friends, to cool my thirst,
And clear my body from foul excrements!

Mat. Here's channel water, as our charge is given.
Sit down, for we'll be barbers to your grace.
K. Edw. Traitors, away! What, will you murder me,
Or choke your sovereign with puddle water?
Gur. No; but wash your face, and shave away your beard.
Lest you be known and so be rescued.
Mat. Why strive you thus? Your labour is in vain!
K. Edw. The wren may strive against the lion's strength,
But all in vain: so vainly do I strive
To seek for mercy at a tyrant's hand.
They wash him with puddle water,
And shave his beard away.

Immortal powers! that knows the painful cares
That wait upon my poor distressed soul,
O level all your looks upon these daring men,
That wrongs their liege and sovereign, England's king!
O Gaveston, 'tis for thee I am wrong'd,
For me, both thou and both the Spencers died!
And for your sakes a thousand wrongs I'll take.
The Spencers' ghosts, wherever they remain,
Wish well to mine; then tush, for them I'll die.
Mat. 'Twixt theirs and yours shall be no enmity.

Come, come away; now put the torches out,
We'll enter in by darkness to Kiltingworth.

Enter Kent.

Gur. How now, who comes there?
Mat. Guard the king sure: it is the Earl of Kent.
K. Edw. O gentle brother, help to rescue me!
Mat. Keep them asunder; thrust in the king.
Kent. Soldiers, let me but talk to him one word.
Gur. Lay hands upon the earl for this assault.
Kent. Lay down your weapons, traitors! Yield the king!
Mat. Edmund, yield thou thyself, or thou shalt die.
Kent. Base villains, wherefore do you gripe me thus?
Gur. Bind him and so convey him to the court.
Kent. Where is the court but here? Here is the king;
And I will visit him; why stay you me?
Mat. The court is where Lord Mortimer remains:
Thither shall your honour go; and so farewell.

Exeunt Matrevis and Gurney, with King Edward.

Kent. O miserable is that commonweal,
Where lords keep courts, and kings are lockt in prison!
Sol. Wherefore stay we? On, sirs, to the Kent. Ay, lead me whither you will, even to my death.
Seeing that my brother cannot be releas'd.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter Young Mortimer, alone.

Y. Mor. The king must die, or Mortimer goes down;
The commons now begin to pity him.
Yet he that is the cause of Edward's death, is sure to pay for it when his son's of age;
And therefore will I do it cunningly.
This letter, written by a friend of ours,
Contains his death, yet bids them save his life:

[Reads.]

"Edwardum occidere nolite, timere, bonum est:
Fear not to kill the king, 'tis good he die."
But read it thus, and that's another sense:
"Edwardum occidere nolite, timere bonum est:
Kill not the king, 'tis good to fear the worst."1

This unpointed as it is, thus shall it go,
That, being dead, if it chance to be found,
Matrevis and the rest may bear the blame,
And we be quit that caus'd it to be done.
Within this room is lock'd the messenger
That shall convey it, and perform the rest;
And by a secret token that he bears,
Shall he be murdered when the deed is done.

Lightborn, come forth!

[Enter Lightborn.]

Art thou as resolute as thou wast?
Light. What else, my lord? And far more resolute.
Y. Mor. And hast thou cast8 how to accomplish it?
Light. Ay, ay, and none shall know which way he died.
Y. Mor. But at his looks, Lightborn, thou wilt relent.
Light. Relent! ha, ha! I use much to relent.
Y. Mor. Well, do it bravely, and be secret.
Light. You shall not need to give instructions;
'Tis not the first time I have kill'd a man.
I learn'd in Naples how to poison flowers;
To strangle with a lawn's thrust through the throat;
To pierce the windpipe with a needle's point;
Or whilst one is asleep, to take a quill
And blow a little powder in his ears;
Or open his mouth and pour quicksilver down.
And yet I have a braver way than these.
Y. Mor. What's that?
Light. Nay, you shall pardon me; none shall know my tricks.
Y. Mor. I care not how it is, so it be not spied.
Deliver this to Gurney and Matrevis.

[Give letter.]

The Royal Palace, London.

* A piece of fine linen.
At every ten mile end thou hast a horse.
Take this; [Gives money] away! and never see me more.
Light. No?
Y. Mor. No;
Unless thou bring me news of Edward's death.
Light. That will I quickly do. Farewell, my lord.
[Exit.]
Y. Mor. The prince I rule, the queen do I command,
And with a lowly congé to the ground,
The proudest lords salute me as I pass;
I seal, I cancel, I do what I will.
Fear'd am I more than lov'd;—let me be fear'd,
And when I frown, make all the court look pale.

I view the prince with Aristarchus' eyes,
Whose looks were as a breeching to a boy.
They thrust upon me the protectorship,
And sue to me for that that I desire.
While at the council-table, grave enough,
And not unlike a bashful puritan,
First I complain of imbecility,
Saying it is onus quam gravissimum,¹
Till being interrupted by my friends,
Suscepti that provinciam ² as they term it;
And to conclude, I am Protector now.
Now is all sure: the queen and Mortimer
Shall rule the realm, the king; and none rule us.
Mine enemies will I plague, my friends advance;
And what I list command who dare control?
Major sum quam cui possit fortuna nocere.³
And that this be the coronation-day,
It pleaseth me, and Isabel the queen.

The trumpets sound, I must go take my place.

[Trumpets within.]

Enter the young King, Queen [Isabella], the Archbishops of Canterbury, Champion and Nobles.

A. of Cant. Long live King Edward, by the grace of God
King of England and Lord of Ireland!
Cham. If any Christian, Heathen, Turk, or Jew,
Dares but affirm that Edward's not true king,
And will avouch his saying with the sword,
I am the champion that will combat him.

Y. Mor. None comes, sound trumpets.

[Trumpets sound.]

Q. Isab. Lord Mortimer, now take him to your charge.

Enter Soldiers, with Kent prisoner.

Y. Mor. What traitor have we there with blades and bills?
Sol. Edmund, the Earl of Kent.
K. Edw. Third. What hath he done?
Sol. A would have taken the king away perforce,
As we were bringing him to Killingworth.

Y. Mor. Did you attempt this rescue, Edmund? Speak.

Kent. Mortimer, I did; he is our king,
And thou compell'st this prince to wear the crown.
Y. Mor. Strike off his head! he shall have martial law.
Kent. Strike off my head! Base traitor, I defy thee!
K. Edw. Third. My lord, he is my uncle, and shall live.
Y. Mor. My lord, he is your enemy, and shall die.
Kent. Stay, villains!
K. Edw. Third. Sweet mother, if I cannot Entreat my Lord Protector for his life.
Q. Isab. Son, be content; I dare not speak a word.
K. Edw. Third. Nor I, and yet methinks I should command;
But, seeing I cannot, I'll entreat for him—
My lord, if you will let my uncle live,
I will requite it when I come to age.
Y. Mor. 'Tis for your highness' good, and for the realm's.

How often shall I bid you bear him hence?
K. Edw. Third. What safety may I look for at his hands,
If that my uncle shall be murdered thus?
Q. Isab. Fear not, sweet boy, I'll guard thee from thy foes;
Had Edmund liv'd, he would have sought thy death.

Come, son, we'll ride a-hunting in the park.
K. Edw. Third. And shall my uncle Edmund ride with us?
Q. Isab. He is a traitor; think not on him; come.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene V.] ⁴

Enter Matrevis and Gurney.

Mat. Gurney, I wonder the king dies not,
Being in a vault up to the knees in water,
To which the channels of the castle run,
From whence a damp continually ariseth,
That were enough to poison any man.
Much more a king brought up so tenderly.
Gurn. And so do I, Matrevis: yesternight
I opened but the door to throw him meat,
And I was almost stifled with the savour.
Mat. He hath a body able to endure

'Berkeley Castle.
More than we can instinct: and therefore now
Let us assail his mind another while.

_Gur._ Send for him out thence, and I will anger him.

_Mat._ But stay, who's this?

Enter LIGHTBORN.

_Light._ My Lord Protector greets you.

_Gur._ What's here? I know not how to construe it.

"Edwardum occidere nolle timere;" ¹

That's his meaning.

_Light._ Know ye this token? I must have the king.

_Mat._ Ay, stay awhile, thou shalt have answer straight. — [Aside.] This villain's sent to make away the king.

_Gur._ [Aside.] I thought as much.

_Mat._ [Aside.] And when the murder's done, See how he must be handled for his labour.

_Pereat istic?²_² Let him have the king. —

What else? Here is the keys, this is the lake,³

_Do as you are commanded by my lord._

_Light._ I know what I must do. Get you away.

Yet be not far off, I shall need your help;

See that in the next room I have a fire,

And get me a spit, and let it be red-hot.

_Mat._ Very well.

_Gur._ That's all?

_Light._ Ay, ay; so, when I call you, bring it in.

_Mat._ Fear not thon that.

_Gur._ Here's a light, to go into the dungeon.

[Give a light; and then exit with MATREVIS.]

_Light._ So now

Must I about this gear; ne'er was there any

So finely handled as this king shall be.

For, here's a place indeed, with all my heart! ¹

_K._ Edw._ Who's there? What light is that?

Wherefore com'st thou?

_Light._ To comfort you, and bring you joyful news.

_K._ Edw._ Small comfort finds poor Edward in thy looks.

Villain, I know thou com'st to murder me. ⁴⁴

_Light._ To murder you, my most gracious lord! Far is it from my heart to do you harm.

The queen sent me to see how you were used,

For she relents at this your misery.

And what eyes can refrain from shedding tears,

To see a king in this most piteous state? ²⁹

_K._ Edw._ Weep'st thou already? List awhile to me

And then thy heart, were it as Gurney's is,

Or as Matrevis', hewn from the Caucasus,

Yet will it melt, ere I have done my tale.

This dungeon where they keep me is the sink

Wherein the filth of all the castle falls.

¹ Purposely.
² Lat. "Let this man die."
³ Perhaps for "lock."
⁴ "Let this man die.
⁵ Business.
⁶ Worn out with waking.
Light. To rid thee of thy life. — Matrevis, come!

(Enter Matrevis and Gurney.)

K. Edw. I am too weak and feeble to resist:

Assist me, sweet God, and receive my soul!

Light. Run for the table.

K. Edw. O spare me, or despatch me in a trice. [Matrevis brings in a table.] 10

Light. So, lay the table down, and stamp on it, But not too hard, lest that thou bruise his body.

[KING EDWARD IS MURDERED.]

Mat. I fear me that this cry will raise the town,

And therefore, let us take horse and away. 14

Light. Tell me, sir, was it not bravely done?

Gurn. Excellent well: take this for thy reward.

Gurney stabs Lightborn [who dies].

Come, let us cast the body in the moat,

And bear the king’s to Mortimer our lord:

Away! [Exeunt [with the bodies].

[SCENE VI.] 1

Enter Young Mortimer and Matrevis.

Y. Mor. Is’t done, Matrevis, and the murderer dead?

Mat. Ay, my good lord; I would it were undone!

Y. Mor. Matrevis, if thou now growest penitent

I’ll be thy ghostly father; therefore choose,
Whether thou wilt be secret in this,
Or else die by the hand of Mortimer.

Mat. Mortimer, my lord, is fled, and will, I fear, Betray us both, therefore let me fly.

Y. Mor. Fly to the savages!

Mat. I humbly thank your honour. [Exit.] 10

Y. Mor. As for myself, I stand as Jove’s huge tree,

And others are but shrubs compar’d to me.

All tremble at my name, and I fear none;
Let’s see who dare impeach me for his death!

Enter Queen Isabella.

Q. Isab. Ah, Mortimer, the king my son hath news

His father’s dead, and we have murdered him!

Y. Mor. What if he have? The king is yet a child.

Q. Isab. Ay, but he tears his hair, and wrings

And vows to be reveng’d upon us both.

Into the council-chamber he is gone,
To crave the aid and succour of his peers.

Ay me! see here he comes, and they with him.

Now, Mortimer, begins our tragedy.

Enter King [EDWARD THE THIRD], Lords [and Attendants].

1 Lord. Fear not, my lord, know that you are a king.

K. Edw. Third. Villain! —

1 The Royal Palace, London.

Y. Mor. How now, my lord!

K. Edw. Third. Think not that I am frightened

With thy words. My father’s murdered through thy treachery;
And thou shalt die, and on his mournful hearse
Thy hateful and accursed head shall lie,
To witness to the world, that by thy means
His kingly body was too soon inter’d.

Q. Isab. Weep not, sweet son!

K. Edw. Third. Forbid me not to weep, he was my father;
And, had you lovd him half so well as I,
You could not bear his death thus patiently.
But you, I fear, conspire’d with Mortimer.

1 Lord. Why speak you not unto my lord the king?

Y. Mor. Because I think scorn to be accus’d.

Who is the man dares say I murdered him?

K. Edw. Third. Traitor! in me my loving father speaks,

And plainly saith, ’t was thou that murder’d him.

Y. Mor. But has your grace no other proof than this?

K. Edw. Third. Yes, if this be the hand of Mortimer.

[Sheowing letter.]

Y. Mor. [Aside.] False Gurney hath betray’d me and himself.

Q. Isab. [Aside.] I fear’d as much; murder cannot be hid.

Y. Mor. It is my hand; what gather you by this?

K. Edw. Third. That thither thou didst send a murderer.

Y. Mor. What murderer? Bring forth the man I sent.

K. Edw. Third. Ah, Mortimer, thou knowest that he is slain;
And so shalt thou be too. — Why stays he here?
Bring him unto a hurdle, drag him forth;
Hang him, I say, and set his quarters up;
But bring his head back presently to me.

Q. Isab. For my sake, sweet son, pity Mortimer!

Y. Mor. Madam, entreat not, I will rather die,
Than see for life unto a paltry boy.

K. Edw. Third. Hence with the traitor! with the murderer!

Y. Mor. Base Fortune, now I see, that in thy wheel

There is a point, to which when men aspire,
They tumble headlong down: that point I touch’d,

And, seeing there was no place to mount up higher,
Why should I grieve at my declining fall? —
Farewell, fair queen; weep not for Mortimer,
That scourns the world, and, as a traveller,
Goes to discover countries yet unknown.

K. Edw. Third. What! suffer you the traitor to delay?

[YOUNG MORTIMER IS TAKEN AWAY]

Q. Isab. As thou receivest thy life from me,

Spill not the blood of gentle Mortimer!
Q. Isab. He hath forgotten me; stay, I am his mother.
2 Lord. That boots not; therefore, gentle madam, go.
Q. Isab. Then come, sweet death, and rid me of this grief.

[Re-enter 1 Lord, with the head of Young Mortimer.]

1 Lord. My lord, here is the head of Mortimer.
K. Edw. Third. Go fetch my father's hearse, where it shall lie;
And bring my funeral robes.

[Exeunt Attendants.]

Could I have rul'd thee then, as I do now,
Thou had'st not hatch'd this monstrous treachery!
Here comes the hearse; help me to mourn, my lords.

[Re-enter Attendants with the hearse and funeral robes.]

Sweet father, here unto thy murdered ghost
I offer up this wicked traitor's head;
And let these tears, distilling from mine eyes,
Be witness of my grief and innocence.

[Exeunt.]

ACT I

[SCENE I: INDUCTION.]

Enter the Ghost of Andrea, and with him Revenge.

GHOST. WHEN this eternal substance of my soul
Did live imprison'd in my wonton flesh,
Each in their function serving other's need,
I was a courtier in the Spanish court.
My name was Don Andrea; my descent,
Though not ignoble, yet inferior far
To gracious fortunes of my tender youth:
For there in prime and pride of all my years,
By duteous service and deserving love,
In secret I possess'd a worthy dame,
Which right sweet Bel-imperia by name.
But in the harvest of my summer joys
Death's winter nipp'd the blossoms of my bliss,
Forcing divorce betwixt my love and me.
For in the late conflict with Portingale
My valor drew me into danger's mouth
Till life to death made passage through my wounds.
When I was slain, my soul descended straight
To pass the flowing stream of Acheron;
But churlish Charon, only boatman there,
Said that, my rites of burial not perform'd,
I might not sit amongst his passengers.
Ere Sol had slept three nights in Thetis' lap,
And slak'd his smoking chariot in her flood,
By Don Horatio, our knight marshal's son,
Through dreadful shades of ever-glooming night,
I saw more sights than thousand tongues can tell,
Or pens can write, or mortal hearts can think.
Three ways there were: that on the right-hand side
Was ready way unto the 'foresaid fields,
Where livers live and bloody martialists;
But either sort contain'd within his bounds.
The left-hand path, declining fearfully,
Was ready downfall to the deepest hell,
Where bloody Furies shake their whips of steel,
And poor Ixion turns an endless wheel;
Where usurers are chok'd with melting gold,
And wantons are embrac'd with ugly snakes,
And murderers groan with never-killing wounds,
And perjur'd wights scalded in boiling lead,
And all foul sins with torrents overwhelm'd,
'Twixt these two ways I trod the middle path,
Which brought me to the fair Elysian green,
In midst whereof there stands a stately tower,
The walls of brass, the gates of adamant.
Here finding Pluto with his Proserpine,
I show'd my passport, humbled on my knee;
Whereat fair Proserpine began to smile,
And begg'd that only she might give my doom.
Pluto was pleas'd, and seal'd it with a kiss.
Forthwith, Revenge, she rounded 1 thee in th' ear,
And bade thee lead me through the gates of horn.
Where dreams have passage in the silent night.
No sooner had she spoke, but we were here —
I wot not how — in twinkling of an eye.

Revenge. Then know, Andria, that thou art arriv'd
Where thou shalt see the author of thy death,
Don Balthazar, the prince of Portingale,
Depriv'd of life by Bel-imperia.
Here sit we down to see the mystery,
And serve for Chorus in this tragedy.

[SCENE II.] 3

Enter Spanish King, General, Castile, and Hieronimo.

King. Now say, lord General, how fares our camp?

Gen. All well, my sovereign liege, except some few.

That are deceas'd by fortune of the war.

King. But what portends thy cheerful countenance,
And posting to our presence thus in haste?

Speak, man, hath fortune given us victory?

Gen. Victory, my liege, and that with little loss.

King. Our Portugal's will pay us tribute then?

Gen. Tribute and wanted homage there-withal.

1 Whispered. 2 See Aenid, vi. 933. 3 The Court of Spain.

King. Then bless'd be heaven and guardian of the heavens.
From whose fair influence such justice flows.
Cast. O multum dilecte Deo, tibi militat aether.
El conjuratae currato poplite gentes
Succumbunt: recti soror est victoria juris. 4
King. Thanks to my loving brother of Castile.

But, General, unfold in brief discourse
Your form of battle and your war's success,
That, adding all the pleasure of thy news
Unto the height of former happiness,
With deeper wage and greater dignity
We may reward thy blissful chivalry.

Gen. Where Spain and Portingale do jointly knit,
Their frontiers, leaning on each other's bound,
There met our armies in their proud array;
Both furnish'd well, both full of hope and fear,
Both menacing alike with daring shows,
Both vaunting sundry colours of device,
Both cheerily sounding trumpets, drums, and fifes,
Both raising dreadful clamours to the sky,
That valleys, hills, and rivers made rebound.

And heav'n itself was frighted with the sound.
Our battles both were pitch'd in squadron form,
Each corner strongly tenc'd with wings of shot;
But ere we join'd and came to push of pike,
I brought a squadron of our readiest shot
From out our rearward to begin the fight:
They brought another wing & encounter us.
Meanwhile, our ordnance play'd on either side,
And captains strove to have their valours tried.

Don Pedro, their chief horsemen's colonel,
Did with his cornet bravely make attempt
To break the order of our battle ranks:
But Don Rogero, worthy man of war,
March'd forth against him with our musketeers,
And stopp'd the malice of his fell approach.

While they maintain hot skirmish to and fro,
Both battles join, and fall to handy-blows,
Their violent shot resembling th' ocean's rage,
When, roaring loud, and with a swelling tide,
It beats upon the rampiers of huge rocks,
And gapes to swallow neighbour-bounding lands.

Now, while Bellona rages here and there,
Thick storms of bullets ran like winter's hail,
And shivered lances dark the troubled air.

Pede pes et cuspidae cupis; 5
Arma sonant armis, vir petiturgue viro. 6
On every side drop captains to the ground,
And soldiers, some ill-maim'd, some slain outright:

Here falls a body sund'red from his head,
There legs and arms lie bleeding on the grass,
Mingled with weapons and unbowell'd steeds,

4 Adapted from Claudian's De Terto Consulatu Honoriti, 96-98.
5 A troop of cavalry.
6 A combination of phrases from Statius, Virgil, and Curtius.
That scattering overspread the purple plain.
In all this turmoil, three long hours and more,
The victory to neither part inclin'd;
Till Don Andrea, with his brave lanciers,
In their main battle made so great a breach,
That, half dismay'd, the multitude retir'd:
But Balthazar, the Portingals' young prince,
Brought rescue, and encourag'd them to stay.
Here-hence the fight was eagerly renew'd,
And in that conflict was Andrea slain:
Brave man at arms, but weak to Balthazar.
Yet while the prince, insulting over him,
Breath'd out proud vaunts, sounding to our reproach;
Friendship and hardy valour join'd in one
Prick'd forth Horatio, our knight marshal's son,
To challenge forth that prince in single fight.
Not long between these twain the fight endur'd,
But straight the prince was beaten from his horse,
And forc'd to yield him prisoner to his foe.
When he was taken, all the rest they fled,
And our carbines pursu'd them to the death,
Till Phoebus waving 1 to the western deep,
Our trumpeters were charg'd to sound retreat.
King. Thanks, good lord General, for these good news;
And for some argument of more to come,
Take this and wear it for thy sovereign's sake.
Gives him a piece of gold.
But tell me now, hast thou confirm'd a peace?
Gen. No peace, my liege, but peace condition'd,
That if with homage tribute be well paid,
The fury of your forces will be stay'd:
And to this peace their viceroy hath subscrib'd,
The victor to neither part a share,
And made a solemn vow that, during life,
His tribute shall be truly paid to Spain.
King. These words, these deeds, become thy person well.
But now, knight marshal, frolic with thy king,
For 't is thy son that wins this battle's prize.
Hier. Long may he live to serve my sovereign liege,
And soon decay, unless he serve my liege.
King. Nor thou, nor he, shall die without reward.
A tucket 2 afar off.
What means this warning of this trumpet's sound?
Gen. This tells me that your grace's men of war,
Such as war's fortune hath reserv'd from death,
Come marching on towards your royal seat,
To show themselves before your majesty;
So I gave in charge at my depart
Whereby by demonstration shall appear
That all, except three hundred or few more,
Are safe return'd, and by their foes enrich'd.

The Army enters; BALTHAZAR, between LORENZO and HORATIO, captive.

King. A gladsome sight! I long to see them here. They enter and pass by.

Was that the warlike prince of Portingale, That by our nephew was in triumph led? Gen. It was, my liege, the prince of Portingale.

King. But what was he that on the other side Held him by th' arm, as partner of the prize?
Hier. That was my son, my gracious sovereign;
Of whom though from his tender infancy
My loving thoughts did never hope but well,
He never pleas'd his father's eyes till now,
Nor fill'd my heart with over-Gloying joys.
King. Go, let them march once more about these walls,
That, staying them, we may confer and talk
With our brave prisoner and his double guard.

[Exit a messenger.] Hieronimo, it greatly pleaseth us
That in our victory thou have a share,
By virtue of thy worthy son's exploit.

Enter again.

Bring hither the young prince of Portingale:
The rest march on; but ere they be dismiss'd,
We will bestow on every soldier
Two ducats, and on every leader ten,
That they may know our largess welcomes them.

Exeunt all but [the KING, BALTHAZAR, LORENZO and HORATIO.

Welcome, Don Balthazar! welcome, nephew! And thou, Horatio, thou art welcome too.
Young prince, although thy father's hard misdeeds,
In keeping back the tribute that he owes,
Deserve but evil measure at our hands,
Yet shalt thou know that Spain is honourable.
Bal. The trespass that my father made in peace
Is now control'd by fortune of the wars;
And cards once dealt, it boots not ask why so,
His men are slain, a weakening to his realm;
His colours seiz'd, a blot unto his name;
His son distress'd, a cor'sive to his heart:
These punishments may clear his late offence.
Keng. Ay, Balthazar, if he observe this truce,
Our peace will grow the stronger for these wars.
Meanwhile live thou, though not in liberty,
Yet free from bearing any servile yoke;
For in our hearing thy deserts were great,
And in our sight thyself art gracious.
Bal. And I shall study to deserve this grace.
King. But tell me — for their holding makes me doubt —
To which of these twain art thou prisoner?
Lor. To me, my liege.
Hor. To me, my sovereign.
Lor. This hand first took his courser by the reins.

Hor. But first my lance did put him from his horse.

1 Moving. 2 Flourish of trumpets. 3 Corrode. 4 Corrode.
Lor. I seiz'd his weapon, and enjoy'd it first.
Hor. But first I fore'd him lay his weapons down.
King. Let go his arm, upon our privilege.

Say, worthy prince, to whether did'st thou yield?
Bal. To him in courtesy, to this perficere.
He speake me fair, this other gave me strokes;
He promis'd life, this other threat'ned death;
He won my love, this other conquer'd me;
And, truth to say, I yield myself to both.

But that I know thy grace for just and wise,
And might seem partial in this difference,
Enforce'd by nature and by law of arms.
My tongue should plead for young Horatio's right.
He hunted well that was a lion's death,
Not he that in a garment wore his skin;
So hares may pull dead lions by the beard.

King. Content thee, marshal, thou shalt have no wrong;
And, for thy sake, thy son shall want no right.
Will both abide the censure of my doom? 136
Lor. I crave no better than your grace awards.
Hor. Nor I, although I sit beside my right.
King. Then by my judgment, thus your strife shall end:
You both deserve, and both shall have reward.
Nephew, thou took'st his weapon and his horse:
His weapons and his horse are thy reward.
Horatio, thou didst force him first to yield;
His ransom therefore is thy valour's fee;
Appoint the sum, as you shall both agree.

But, nephew, thou shalt have the prince in guard.

For thine estate best fitteth such a guest;
Horatio's house were small for all his train.
Yet, in regard thy substance passeth his,
And that just guerdon may befall desert,
To him we yield the armour of the prince.
How likes Don Balthazar of this device?
Bal. Right well, my liege, if this proviso were,
That Don Horatio bear us company,
Whom I admire and love for chivalry.

King. Horatio, leave him not that hath thee so.

Now let us hence to see our soldiers paid,
And feast our prisoner as our friendly guest.
Exeunt.

[Scene III.] 1

Enter Viceroy, Alexander, Villuppo.

Vic. Is our ambassador despatch'd for Spain?
Alex. Two days, my liege, are past since his depart.
Vic. And tribute-payment gone along with him?
Alex. Ay, my good lord.
Vic. Then rest we here awhile in our unrest,
And feed our sorrows with some inward sighs,
For deepest cares break never into tears.

But wherefore sit I in a regal throne?
This better fits a wretch's endless noon.

Falls to the ground.
Yet this is higher than my fortunes reach,
And therefore better than my state deserves.
Ay, by this earth, image of melancholy,
Seeks him whom fates adjudge to misery.
Here let me lie; now am I at the lowest.

 Qui jacet in terra, non habet unde cadat. 15

In me consumpsit vires, fortunae nocendo;
Nil superest ut jam possit obesse magis. 2

Yes, Fortune may bereave me of my crown:
Here, take it now; — let Fortune do her worst,
She will not rob me of this sable weed.
O no, she envies none but pleasant things.
Such is the folly of despicable chance!
Fortune is blind, and sees not my deserts;
So is she deaf, and hears not my laments;
And could she hear, yet is she wilful-mad,
And therefore will not pity my distress.
Suppose that she could pity me, what then?
What help can be expected at her hands
Whose foot [is] standing on a rolling stone,
And mind more mutable than fickle winds? 20
Why will I, then, where's hope of no redress?
O yes, complaining makes my grief seem less.
My late ambition hath distain'd my faith;
My breach of faith occasion'd bloody wars;
Those bloody wars have spent my treasure; 3 35
And with my treasure my people's blood;
And with their blood, my joy and best belov'd,
My best belov'd, my sweet and only son.
O, wherefore went I not to war myself?
The cause was mine; I might have died for both.

My years were mellow, his but young and green;
My death was natural, but his was for'd.
Alex. No doubt, my liege, but still the prince survives.

Vic. Survives! Ay, where?
Alex. In Spain, a prisoner by mischance of war.
Vic. Then they have slain him for his father's fault.
Alex. That were a breach to common law of arms.
Vic. They reck no laws that meditate revenge.
Alex. His ransom's worth will stay from foul revenge.
Vic. No; if he liv'd, the news would soon be here.
Alex. Nay, evil news fly faster still than good.
Vic. Tell me no more of news, for he is dead.
Vil. My sovereign, pardon the author of ill news,
And I'll bewray the fortune of thy son.
Vic. Speak on, I'll gunder thee, whate'er it be.
Mine ear is ready to receive ill news;
My heart grown hard 'gainst mischiefe's battery.
Stand up, I say, and tell thy tale at large.

1 The Court of Portugal.
2 The source of this passage has not been found.
8 So Manly. Qq. treasure.
4 Reveal.
Vil. Then hear that truth which these mine eyes have seen.

When both the armies were in battle join’d,
Don Balthazar, amidst the thickest troops,
To win renown did wondrous feats of arms.
Amongst the rest, I saw him, hand to hand,
In single fight with their lord-general;
Till Alexandro, that here counterfeits,
Under the colour of a dutiful friend,
Discharg’d his pistol at the prince’s back
As though he would have slain their general:
But therewithal Don Balthazar fell down;
And when he fell, then we began to fly:
But, had he liv’d, the day had sure been ours.

Alex. O wicked forger! O traitorous miscreant!

Vic. Hold thou thy peace! But now, Vil-luppo, say,
Where then became the carcase of my son?
Vil. I saw them drag it to the Spanish tents.

Vic. Nay, ay, my nightly dreams have told me this.

Thou false, unkind, unthankful, traitorou beast,
Wherein had Balthazar offended thee,
That thou shouldst thus betray him to our foes?
Was’t Spanish gold that bleared so thine eyes
That thou couldst see no part of our deserts?
Perchance, because thou art Terceira’s lord,
Thou hadst some hope to wear this diadem,
If first my son and then myself were slain;
But thy ambitious thought shall break thy neck.

Ay, this was it that made thee spill his blood;

Takes the crown and puts it on again.

But I’ll now wear it till thy blood be spilt.

Alex. Vouchsafe, dear sovereign, to hear me speak.

Vic. Away with him! His sight is second hell.
Keep him till we determine of his death:

[They take him out.] If Balthazar be dead, he shall not live.

Viluppo, follow us for thy reward.

Exit Viceroy.

Vil. Thus have I with an envious, forged tale
Deceiv’d the king, betray’d mine enemy,
And hope for gored of my villany. Exit.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Horatio and Bel-imperia.

Bel. Signior Horatio, this is the place and hour,
Wherein I must entreat thee to relate
The circumstance of Don Andrea’s death,
Who, living, was my Garland’s sweetest flower,
And in his death hath buried my delights.

Hor. For love of him and service to yourself, I will refuse this heavy doleful charge;
Yet tears and sighs, I fear, will hinder me.
When both our armies were enjoin’d in fight,
Your worthy chevalier amidst the thickest,

For glorious cause still aiming at the fairest,
Was at the last by young Don Balthazar Encount’red hand to hand. Their fight was long,
Their hearts were great, their clamours menacing,
Their strength alike, their strokes both dangerous.
But wathful Nemesis, that wicked power,
Envy ing at Andrea’s praise and worth,
Cut short his life, to end his praise and worth.
She, she herself, disguis’d in armour’s mask—
As Pallas was before proud Pergamus—
Brought in a fresh supply of halberdiers,
Which puanch’d his horse, and ding’d him to the ground.
Then young Don Balthazar with ruthless rage,
Taking advantage of his foe’s distress,
Did finish what his halberdiers begun,
And left not, till Andrea’s life was done.
Then, thought too late, inens’d with just remorse,
I with my band set forth against the prince,
And brought him prisoner from his halberdiers.

Bel. Would thou hadst slain him that so slew my love!
But then was Don Andrea’s carcase lost?

Hor. No, that it was for which I chiefly strove.
Nor stepp’d I back till I recover’d him.

I took him up, and wound him in mine arms;
And wounding him unto my private tent,
There laid him down, and dwell’d him with my tears,
And sigh’d and sorrow’d as became a friend.
But neither friendly sorrow, sighs, nor tears
Could win pale Death from his usurped right.
Yet this I did, and less I could not do:
I saw him honour’d with due funeral.
This scarf I pluck’d from off his lifeless arm,
And wear it in remembrance of my friend.

Bel. I know the scarf: would he had kept it still!
For had he liv’d, he would have kept it still,
And worn it for his Bel-imperia’s sake;
For ‘twas my favour at his last depart.
But now wear thou it both for him and me;
For after him thou hast deserv’d it best.
But for thy kindness in his life and death,
Be sure, while Bel-imperia’s life endures,
She will be Don Horatio’s thankful friend.

Hor. And, madam, Don Horatio will not slack
Humbly to serve fair Bel-imperia.
But now, if your good liking stand thereto,
I’ll crave your pardon to go seek the prince;
For so the duke, your father, gave me charge.

Bel. Ay, go, Horatio, leave me here alone;
For solitude best fits my cheerless mood.

Exit Horatio.

Yet what avail to wail Andrea’s death?
From whence Horatio proves my second love?
Had he not lov’d Andrea as he did,
He could not sit in Bel-imperia’s thoughts.

1 What became of.
2 An island in the Azores.
3 Add. Manly.
4 The Court of Spain.
5 Ne will, will not.
6 Stab in the belly, disembowel.
7 Vexation.
8 Carrying.
But how can love find harbour in my breast
Till I revenge the death of my belov’d?

Yes, second love shall further my revenge!
I’ll love Horatio, my Andrea’s friend,
The more to spite the prince that wrought his end;

And where Don Balthazar, that slew my love,
Himself now pleads for favour at my hands,
He shall, in rigour of my just disdain,
Reap long repentance for his murderous deed.
For what was’t else but murderous cowardice,
So many to oppress one valiant knight?
Without respect of honour in the fight?

And here he comes that murd’red my delight.

Enter LORNEZO and BALTHAZAR.

Lor. Sister, what means this melancholy walk?
Bel. That for a while I wish no company.
Lor. But here the prince is come to visit you.
Bel. That argues that he lives in liberty.
Bel. No, madam, but in pleasing servitude.
Bel. Your prison then, belike, is your conceit.
Bal. Ay, by conceit my freedom is enthrall’d.
Bel. Then with conceit enlarge yourself again.
Bal. What, if conceit have laid my heart to gage?
Bel. Pay that you borrowed, and recover it.
Bal. I die, if it return from whence it lies.
Bel. A heartless man, and live? A miracle!
Bal. Ay, lady, love can work such miracles.
Lor. Tush, tush, my lord! let go these ambages.

And in plain terms acquaint her with your love,
Bel. What boots complaint, when there’s no remedy?

Bal. Yes, to your gracious self must I complain,
In whose fair answer lies my remedy,
On whose perfection all my thoughts attend,
On whose aspect mine eyes find beauty’s bower,
In whose translucent breast my heart is lodg’d.

Bel. Alas, my lord, these are but words of course.

And but devis’d to drive me from this place.
She, in going in, lets fall her glove, which HORATIO, coming out, takes up.

Hor. Madam, your glove.

Bel. Thanks, good Horatio; take it for thy pains.
Bal. Signior Horatio stoop’d in happy time!
Hor. I reap’d more grace than I deserve’d or hop’d.

Lor. My lord, be not dismay’d for what is past;
You know that women oft are humorous.

These clouds will overbrow with little wind;
Let me alone, I’ll scatter them myself.
Meanwhile, let us devise to spend the time
In some delightful sports and revelling.

Hor. The king, my lords, is coming hither straight.

To feast the Portingal ambassador;
Things were in readiness before I came.

Bal. Then here it fits us to attend the king,
To welcome hither our ambassador,

And learn my father and my country’s health.

[SCENE V.]

Enter the Banquet, Trumpets, the KING, and Ambassador.

King. See, lord Ambassador, how Spain entreats;
Their prisoner Balthazar, thy viceroy’s son,
We pleasure more in kindness than in wars.
Amb. Sad is our king, and Portingale laments,
Supposing that Don Balthazar is slain.
Bal. So am I!—slain by beauty’s tyranny.
You see, my lord, how Balthazar is slain:
I frolic with the Duke of Castile’s son,
Rapp’d every hour in pleasures of the court,
And grac’d with favours of his majesty.

King. Put off your greetings, till our feast be done;
Now come and sit with us, and taste our cheer.

Sit to the banquet.

Sit down, young prince, you are our second guest;
Brother, sit down; and, nephew, take your place.

Signior Horatio, wait thou upon our cup;
For well thou hast deserved to be honoured.
Now, lordships, fall to; Spain is Portugal,
And Portugal is Spain: we both are friends;
Tribute is paid, and we enjoy our right.
But where is old Hieronimo, our marshal?
He promis’d us, in honour of our guest,
To grace our banquet with some pompous jest.

Enter HIERONIMO, with a drum, three knights,
each his scutcheon; then he fetches three kings;
they take their crowns and them captive.

Hieronimo, this masque contents mine eye,
Although I sound not well the mystery.

Hier. The first arm’d knight, that hung his scutcheon up.

He takes the scutcheon and gives it to the KING.

Was English Robert, Earl of Gloucester,
Who, when King Stephen bore sway in Albion,
Arriv’d with five and twenty thousand men
In Portingale, and by success of war
Enforce’d the king, then but a Saracen,
To hear the yoke of the English monarchy.
King. My lord of Portingale, by this you see
That which may comfort both your king and you.
And make your late discomfort seem the less.
But say, Hieronimo, what was the next?

Hier. The second knight, that hung his scutcheon up.
He doth as he did before.

Was Edmund, Earl of Kent in Albion,
When English Richard wore the diadem.
He came likewise, and razed Lisbon walls,
And took the King of Portingale in fight;
For which and other such-like service done
He after was created Duke of York.

King. This is another special argument,
That Portingale may desirous the load bear your yoke,
When it by little England hath been yok'd. 45
But now, Hieronimo, what were the last?
Hier. The third and last, not least, in our account,
Doing as before.

Was, as the rest, a valiant Englishman,
Brave John of Gaunt, the Duke of Lancaster,
As by his scuttlehen plainly may appear.
He with a puissant arm came to Spain,
And took our King of Castile prisoner.

Amb. This is an argument for our viceroy
That Spain may not insinuate for her success,
Since English warriors likewise conquered Spain,
And made them bow their knees to Albion.

King. Hieronimo, I drink to thee for this device,
Which hath pleas'd both the ambassador and me:

Pledge me, Hieronimo, if thou love the king,

Takes the cup of Horatio.

My lord, I fear we sit but over-long,
Unless our dainties were more delicate;
But welcome are you to the best we have.
Now let us in, that you may be despatch'd:
I think our council is already set.

Exeunt omnes.

[CHORUS.]

Andrea. Come we for this from depth of un nderground,
To see him feast that gave me my death's wound?

These pleasant sights are sorrow to my soul:
Nothing but league, and love, and banqueting?

Revenge. Be still, Andrea; ere we go from hence,
I'll turn their friendship into fell despite.

Their love to mortal hate, their day to night,
Their hope into despair, their peace to war,
Their joys to pain, their bliss to misery.

ACT II

[Scene I.] 1

Enter Lorenzo and Balthazar.

Lor. My lord, though Bel-imperia seem thus coy,
Let reason hold you in your wonted joy.
In time the savage bull the yoke,

2 Palace of Don Cyprian.
2 Lines 3-6, 9-10 are taken almost literally from Wat son's Hectompathia, Sonnet 47. Watson copied Ser naio.
2 Wayward.

In time the flint is pier'd with softest shower,
And she in time will fall from her disdain,
And rue the sufferance of your friendly pain.

Bal. No, she is wilder, and more hard withal,

3 Secret behavior.
4 In case.
Ped. Alas, my lord, since Don Andrea's death
I have no credit with her as before, 65
And therefore know not, if she love or no.
Lor. Nay, if thou daily, then I am thy foe,
Draws his sword.
And fear shall force what friendship cannot win.
Thy death shall bury what thy life conceals;
Thou diest for more esteeming her than me. 76
Ped. O, stay, my lord!
Lor. Yet speak the truth, and I will guerdon thee.
And shield thee from whatever can ensue,
And will conceal whate'er proceeds from thee.
But if thou dally once again, thou diest. 78
Ped. If madam Bel-imperia be in love —
Lor. What, villain! Ifs and ands?
Offers to kill him.
Ped. O, stay, my lord! She loves Horatio.
Balthazar starts back.
Lor. What, Don Horatio, our knight marshall's son? 86
Ped. Even him, my lord. 89
Lor. Now say but how know'st thou he is her
love,
And thou shalt find me kind and liberal.
Stand up, I say, and fearless tell the truth.
Ped. She sent him letters, which myself
perus'd,
Full-traught with lines and arguments of love,
Preferring him before Prince Balthazar. 88
Lor. Swear on this cross 1 that what thou say'st is true,
And that thou wilt conceal what thou hast told.
Ped. I swear to both, by him that made us all.
Lor. In hope thine oath is true, here's thy reward:
But if I prove thee perjur'd and unjust,
This very sword whereon thou took'st thine oath
Shall be the worker of thy tragedy.
Ped. What I have said is true, and shall —
for me —
Be still conceal'd from Bel-imperia. 95
Besides, your honour's liberality
Deserves my dutious service, even till death.
Lor. Let this be all that thou shalt do for me:
Be watchful when and where these lovers meet,
And give me notice in some secret sort. 100
Ped. I will, my lord.
Lor. Then shalt thou find that I am liberal.
Thou know'st that I can more advance thy state
Than she; be therefore wise, and fail me not.
Go and attend her, as thy custom is, 105
Lest absence make her think thou dost amiss.
Exit Pedringano.

Why so: tam armis quam ingenio:
Where words prevail not, violence prevails;
But gold doth more than either of them both.
How likes Prince Balthazar this stratagem? 110
Bal. Both well and ill; it makes me glad and sad:
Glad, that I know the hinderer of my love;
Sad, that I fear she hates me whom I love:
Glad, that I know on whom to be reveng'd;
Sad, that she'll fly me, if I take revenge. 115

Yet must I take revenge, or die myself,
For love resisted grows impatient.
I think Horatio be my destin'd plague:
First, in his hand he brandish'd a sword,
And with that sword he fiercely waged war, 119
And in that war he gave me dangerous wounds,
And by those wounds he forced me to yield,
And by my yielding I became his slave.
Now in his mouth he carries pleasing words,
Which pleasing words do harbour sweet con-ceits.
Which sweet conceits are lim'd with sly deceits,
Which sly deceits smooth Bel-imperia's ears,
And through her ears dive down into her heart,
And in her heart set him, where I should stand.
Thus hath he ta'en my body by his force, 126
And now by sleight would captivate my soul;
But in his fall I'll tempt the destinies,
And either lose my life, or win my love.
Lor. Let's go, my lord; your staying stays revenge.
Do you but follow me, and gain your love: 132
Her favour must be won by his remove. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter Horatio and Bel-imperia.

Hor. Now, madam, since by favour of your love
Our hidden smoke is turn'd to open flame,
And that with looks and words we feed our thoughts.
(Two chief contents, where more cannot be had);
Thus, in the midst of love's fair blandishments,
Why show you sign of inward languishments? 6
Pedringano shew'd all to the Prince and Lorenzo, placing them in secret.

Bel. My heart, sweet friend, is like a ship at sea:
She wisheth port, where, riding all at ease,
She may repair what stormy times have worn,
And leaning on the shore, may sing with joy 10
That pleasure follows pain, and bliss annoy.
Possession of thy love is th' only port,
Wherein my heart, with fears and hopes long lives,
Each hour doth wish and long to make resort,
There to repair the joys that it hath lost,
And, sitting safe, to sing in Cupid's choir.
That sweetest bliss is crown of love's desire.

Balthazar and Lorenzo above.

Bal. O sleep, mine eyes, see not my love pro-fan'd;
Be deaf, my ears, hear not my discontent;
Die, heart; another joys what thou deserv'st. 40
Lor. Watch, still, mine eyes, to see this love disjoin'd;
Hear still, mine ears, to hear them both lament;
Live, heart, to joy at fond Horatio's fall.
Bel. Why stands Horatio speechless all this while? 44
Hor. The less I speak, the more I meditate.
Bel. But whereon dost thou chiefly meditate?
Hor. On dangers past, and pleasures to ensue.

1 Sword-hilt.
2 The same.
Bal. On pleasures past, and dangers to ensue.
Bel. What dangers and what pleasures dost thou mean?
Horn. Dangers of war, and pleasures of our life.
Lor. Dangers of death, but pleasures none at all.
Bel. Let dangers go, thy war shall be with me:
But such a war as breaks no bond of peace.
Speak thou fair words, I'll cross them with fair words;
Send thou sweet looks, I'll meet them with sweet looks;
Write loving lines, I'll answer loving lines;
Give me a kiss, I'll countercheck thy kiss:
Be this our warring peace, or peaceful war.
Horn. But, gracious madam, then appoint the field,
Where trial of this war shall first be made.
Bel. Ambitious villain, how his boldness grows!
Bel. Then be thy father's pleasant bower the field,
Where first we vow'd a mutual amity:
The court were dangerous, that place is safe.
Our hour shall be, when Vesper 'sins to rise,
That summons home distressful travellers.
There none shall hear us but the harmless birds;
Haply the gentle nightingale
Shall carol us asleep, ere we be ware,
And, singing with the prickle at her breast,
Tell our delight and mirthful dalliance.
Till then each hour will seem a year and more.
Horn. But, honey-sweet and honourable love,
Return we now into your father's sight;
Dangerous suspicion waits on our delight.
Lor. Ay, danger mixed with jealous, despite Shall send thy soul into eternal night. Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Enter King of Spain, Portingale Ambassador, Don Cyprian, &c.

King. Brother of Castle, to the prince's love
What's he to your daughter Bel-imperia?
Cyp. Although she coy it, as becomes her kind,
And yet dissemble that she loves the prince,
Doubt not, but she will steer in time.
And were she forward, which she will not be,
Yet therein shall she follow my advice,
Which is to love him, or forge my love.
King. Then, lord ambassador of Portingale,
Advise thy king to make this marriage up,
For strengthening of our late-confirmed league;
I know no better means to make us friends.
Her dowry shall be large and liberal:
Besides that she is daughter and half-heir
Unto our brother here, Don Cyprian,
And shall enjoy the moiety of his land,
I'll grace her marriage with an uncle's gift,
And this it is, in case the match go forward:

1 Travellers and travellers were not distinguished in Elizabethan spelling.
2 Kittredge suggests poss'd with jealous. (Manly.)
3 The Court of Spain.
4 Pretend to be shy.

The tribute which you pay, shall be releas'd;
And if by Balthazar she have a son,
He shall enjoy the kingdom after us.
Amb. I'll make the motion to my sovereign liege.

And work it, if my counsel may prevail.
King. Do so, my lord, and if he give consent,
I hope his presence here will honour us,
In celebration of the nuptial day;
And let himself determine of the time.
Amb. Will 't please your grace command me ought beside?
King. Command me to the king, and so farewell.

But where's Prince Balthazar to take his leave?
Amb. That is perform'd already, my good lord.
King. Amongst the rest of what you have in charge,
The prince's ransom must not be forgot:
That's none of mine, but his that took him
prisoner;
And well his forwardness deserves reward.

It was Horatio, our knight marshal's son.
Amb. Between us there's a price already pitch'd,
And shall be sent with all convenient speed.
King. Then once again farewell, my lord.
Amb. Farewell, my lord of Castle, and the rest. Exeunt.

King. Now, brother, you must take some little pains
To win fair Bel-imperia from her will.
Young virgins must be ruled by their friends.
The prince is amiable, and loves her well;
If she neglect him and forgo his love,
She both will wrong her own estate and ours.
Therefore, whiles I do entertain the prince
With greatest pleasure that our court affords,
Endeavour you to win your daughter's thought:
If she give back, all this will come to naught.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Horatio, Bel-imperia, and Pedringano.

Hor. Now that the night begins with sable wings
To overcloud the brightness of the sun,
And that in darkness pleasures may be done:
Come, Bel-imperia, let us to thebower,
And there in safety pass a pleasant hour.
Bel. I follow thee, my love, and will not back,
Although my fainting heart controls
my soul.
Hor. Why, make you doubt of Pedringano's
faith?
Bel. No, he is as trusty as my second self.
Go, Pedringano, watch without the gate,
And let us know if any make approach.
Ped. [Aside.] Instead of watching, I'll deserve more gold.

By fetching Don Lorenzo to this match.

Exit PEDRINGANO.

Hor. What means thy love?

Bel. I know not what myself; And yet my heart foretells me some mischiefs.

Hor. Sweet, say not so; fair fortune is our friend.

And heavens have shut up day to pleasure us. The stars, thou see'st, hold back their twinkling shine, And Luna hides herself to please us.

Bel. Thou hast prevail'd; I'll conquer my misdoubt,

And in thy love and counsel drown my fear. I fear no more; love now is all my thoughts. Why sit we not? for pleasure asketh ease.

Hor. The more thou sitt'st within these leafy bowers, The more will Flora deck it with her flowers.

Bel. Ay, but if Flora spy Horatio here, Her jealous eye will think I sit too near.

Hor. Hark, madam, how the birds record by night,

For joy that Bel-imperia sits in sight.

Bel. No, Cupid counterfeits the nightingale,

To frame sweet music to Horatio's tale.

Hor. If Cupid sing, then Venus is not far:

Ay, thou art not, or some fairer star.

Bel. If I be Venus, thou must needs be Mars;

And where Mars reigneth, there must needs be wars.

Hor. Then thus begin our wars: put forth thy hand,

That it may combat with my ruder hand.

Bel. Set forth thy foot to try the push of mine.

Hor. The first my looks shall combat against thine.

Bel. Then ward thyself: I dart this kiss at thee.

Hor. Thus I retort the dart thou throw'st at me.

Bel. Nay, then to gain the glory of the field, My twining arms shall yoke and make thee yield.

Hor. Nay, then my arms are large and strong withal:

Thus elms by vines are compass'd, till they fall.

Bel. O, let me go; for in my troubled eyes
Now may'st thou read that life in passion dies.

Hor. O, stay a while, and I will die with thee;

So shalt thou yield, and yet have conquer'd me.

Bel. Who's there? Pedringano? We are betray'd!

Enter LORENZO, BALTHAZAR, SERBERINE, PEDRINGANO, disguised.

Lor. My lord, away with her, take her aside.

O, sir, forbear: your valour is already tried. Quickly despatch, my masters.

Hor. What, will you murder me?

Lor. Ay, thus, and thus: these are the fruits of love.

Bel. O, save his life, and let me die for him!

O, save him, brother; save him, Balthazar:

I lov'd Horatio; but he lov'd not me.

Bel. But Balthazar loves Bel-imperia.

Lor. Although his life were still ambitious, proud,

Yet is he at the highest now he is dead.

Bel. Murder! murder! Help, Hieronimo, help!

Lor. Come, stop her mouth; away with her.

Exit. Enter HIERONIMO in his shirt, etc.

Hier. What outwits pluck me from my naked bed, And chill my throbbing heart with trembling fear, Which never danger yet could daunt before?

Who calls Hieronimo? Speak, here I am.

I did not slumber; therefore 'twas no dream.

No, no, it was some woman cried for help, And here within this garden did she cry,

And in this garden must I rescue her.

But stay, what murder's spectacle is this?

A man hang'd up and all the murderers gone!

And in my bow'ry, to lay the guilt on me!

This place was made for pleasure, not for death.

He cuts him down.

Those garments that he wears I oft have seen—

Alas, it is Horatio, my sweet son!

O no, but he that whom was my son!

O, was it thou that call'dst me from my bed?

O speak, if any spark of life remain:

I am thy father; who hath slain my son?

What savage monster, not of human kind,

Hath here been glutted with thy harmless blood,

And left thy bloody corpse dishonoured here.

For me, amidst these dark and deathful shades,

To drown thee with an ocean of my tears?

O heavens, why made you night to cover sin?

By day this deed of darkness had not been.

O earth, why didst thou not in time devour

The vild² profaner of this sacred bower?

O poor Horatio, what must thou misdone,

To leese ³ thy life, and life was now begun?

O wicked butcher, what'so'er thou wert,

How could thou strangle virtue and desert?

Ay me most wretched, that have lost my joy,

In leesing my Horatio, my sweet boy!

Enter ISABELLA.

Isab. My husband's absence makes my heart to throb:—

Hieronimo!

Hier. Here, Isabella, help me to lament;

For sighs are stopp'd, and all my tears are spent.

Isab. What world of grief! my son Horatio!

O, where's the author of this endless woe?

Hier. To know the author were some ease of grief.

For in revenge my heart would find relief.

Isab. Then is he gone? and is my son gone too?

O, rush out, tears, fountains and floods of tears;²

² Vile.

³ Lose.
Blow, sighs, and raise an everlasting storm;
For outrage fits our cursed wretchedness.
[AY me, Hieronimo, sweet husband, speak!
Hier. He supp’d with us to-night, frolic and merry,
And said he would go visit Balthazar
At the duke’s palace; there the prince doth lodge.
He had no custom to stay out so late:
He may be in his chamber; some go see.
Roderigo, ho!

Enter Pedro and Jaques.
Isab. Ay me, he raves! — Sweet Hieronimo!
Hier. True, all Spain takes note of it.
Besides, he is so generally below’d;
His majesty the other day did grace him
With waiting on his cup: these be favours,
Which do assure me he cannot be short-liv’d.
Isab. Sweet Hieronimo!
Hier. I wonder how this fellow got his clothes! —
Sirrah, sirrah, I’ll know the truth of all.
Jaques, run to the Duke of Castile’s presently.
And bid my son Horatio to come home:
I and his mother have had strange dreams to-night.
Do ye hear me, sir?
Jaques. Ay, sir.
Hier. Pedro, come hither; know’st thou who this is?
Ped. Too well, sir.
Hier. Too well! Who, who is it? Peace, Isabella!
Nay, blush not, man.
Ped. It is my lord Horatio.
Hier. Ha, ha, St. James! but this doth make me laugh,
That there are more deluded than myself.
Ped. Deluded?
Hier. Ay:
I would have sworn myself, within this hour,
That this had been my son Horatio:
His garments are so like.
Ha! are they not great persuasions?
Isab. O, would to God it were not so!
Hier. Were not, Isabella? Dost thou dream it is?
Can thy soft bosom entertain a thought
That such a black deed of mischief should be done
On one so pure and spotless as our son?
Away, I am ashamed.
Isab.
Dear Hieronimo,
Cust a more serious eye upon thy grief;
Weak apprehension gives but weak belief.
Hier. It was a man, sure, that was hang’d up here;
A youth, as I remember: I cut him down.
If it should prove my son now after all —
Say you? say you? — Light! lend me a taper;
Let me look again. — O God!
Confusion, mischief, torment, death and hell,
Drop all your stings at once in my cold bosom,
That now is stiff with horror: kill me quickly!
Be gracious to me, thou infective 2 night,
And drop this deed of murder down on me;
Gird in my waste of grief with thy large darkness,
And let me not survive to see the light

May put me in the mind I had a son.
Isab. O sweet Horatio! O my dearest son!
Hier. How strangely had I lost my way to grief!
Sweet, lovely rose, ill-pluck’d before thy time,
Fair, worthy son, not conquer’d, but betray’d,
I’ll kiss thee now, for words with tears are stay’d.
Isab. And I’ll close up the glasses of his sight,
For once these eyes were only my delight.
Hier. See’st thou this handkercher besmear’d with blood?
It shall not from me, till I take revenge.
See’st thou those wounds that yet are bleeding fresh?
I’ll not entomb them, till I have reveng’d.
Then will I joy amidst my discontent;
Till then my sorrow never shall be spent.
Isab. The heavens are just; murder cannot be hid:
Time is the author both of truth and right,
And time will bring this treachery to light.
Hier. Meanwhile, good Isabella, cease thy plaints.
Or, at the least, dissemble them awhile:
So shall we sooner find the practice out,
And learn by whom all this was brought about.
Come, Isabel, now let us take him up.
They take him up.
And bear him in from out this cursed place.
I’ll say his dirge; singing fits not this case.
O aliquis mihi quas pulchrum serv edulcis herbas,
Hieronimo sets his breast unto his sword.
Misceat, et nostro detur medicina dolori;
Aut, si qui factiunt annorum obitria, succos
Pracebat; ipsa metam magnum quaeque ungur per orem
Gramina Sol pulbras effert in luminis oras;
Ipsi bibam quicquid meditatur saga venent,
Quicquid et herbarum vi caeca nenia necit:
Omnia perpetuar, lactum quoque, dum semel omnis
Noster in munito moratur pectora senes. —
Ergo tuos oculos nuquam, mea vita, videbo,
Et tua perpetua sepelit lumina somnia;
Emoriar lexum: sic, juvat ire sub umbros. —
At tamen absitam properato cedere letho,
Ne mortem vindicta tuam tam nulla sequatur.
Here he throws it from him and bears the body away.

[CHORUS.]

Andrea. Brought’st thou me hither to increase my pain?
I look’d that Balthazar should have been slain;
But ’tis my friend Horatio that is slain,
And they abuse fair Bel-imperia. —
On whom I doted more than all the world,
Because she lov’d me more than all the world.
Revenger. Thou talk’st of harvest, when the corn is green:
The end is crown of every work well done;
The sickle comes not, till the corn be ripe.
Be still; and ore I lead thee from this place,
I’ll show thee Balthazar in heavy case.

ACT III

[SCENE I.]

Enter Viceroy of Portingale, Nobles, Alex-Andro, Villuppo.

Vic. Infortunate condition of kings,
Seated amidst so many helpless doubts!
First we are plac’d upon extremest height,
And oft supplanted with exceeding hate;
But ever subject to the wheel of chance;
And at our highest never joy we so
As we both doubt and dread our overthrow.
So striveth not the waves with sundry winds
As fortune toileth in the affairs of kings,
That would be fear’d, yet fear to be belov’d,
Sith fear or love to kings is flattery.
For instance, lordings, look upon your king,
By hate deprived of his dearest son.
The only hope of our successive line.

Nob. I had not thought that Alexandre’s heart
Had been so venem’d with such extreme hate;
But now I see that words have several works,
And there’s no credit in the countenance.

Vil. No; for, my lord, had you beheld the train.
That feigned love had colour’d in his looks,
When he in camp consorted Balthazar,
Far more inconstant had you thought the sun,
That hourly coasts the centre of the earth,
Than Alexandre’s purpose to the prince.
Vic. No more, Villuppo, thou hast said enough,
And with thy words thou slayest our wounded thoughts.
Nor shall I longer daily with the world,
Procrastinating Alexandre’s death.
Go some of you, and fetch the traitor forth,
That, as he is condemned, he may die.

Enter ALEXANDRO with a Nobleman and halberds.

Nob. In such extremes will nought but patience serve.
Alex. But in extremes what patience shall I use?
Nor discontent it me to leave the world,
With whom there nothing can prevail but wrong.

Nob. Yet hope the best.

Alex. ’Tis heaven is my hope.
As for the earth, it is too much infect
To yield me hope of any of her mould.

Vic. Why linger ye? Bring forth that daring fiend,
And let him die for his accursed deed.

Alex. Not that I fear the extremity of death
(For nobles cannot stoop to servile fear)
Do I, O king, thus discontented live.
But this, O this, torments my labouring soul,
That thus I die suspected of a sin
Whereof, as heav’n’s have known my secret thoughts,
So am I free from this suggestion.

Vic. No more, I say! to the tortures!
When? Bind him, and burn his body in those flames.

Alex. My guiltless death will be aveng’d on thee.

Vic. Nay, Alexandre, if thou menac’st me,
I’ll lend a hand to send thee to the lake.

Vic. That shall prefigure those unquenched fires
Of Pilege’s prepared for his soul.

Alex. My guiltless death will be aveng’d on thee.

Vic. On thee, Villuppo, that hath malic’d thus,
Or for thy meed hast falsely me accus’d.

Vil. Nay, Alexandre, if thou menac’st me,
I’ll lend a hand to send thee to the lake.

Where those thy words shall perish with thy works,

Injurious traitor! monstrous homicide!

Enter AMBASSADOR.

Amb. Stay, hold a while;
And here — with pardon of his majesty —
Lay hands upon Villuppo.

Vic. Ambassador, what news hath urg’d this sudden entrance?

Amb. Know, sovereign lord, that Balthazar doth live;

Vic. What say’st thou? Liveth Balthazar our son?

Amb. Your highness’ son, Lord Balthazar, doth live;
And, well entreated in the court of Spain,
Humbly commends him to your majesty.

Vic. These eyes behold; and these my followers,
With these, the letters of the king’s commends,
Gives him letters.

Are happy witnesses of his highness’ health.

The King looks on the letters, and proceeds.

Vic. “Thy son doth live, your tribute is receiv’d;
Thy peace is made, and we are satisfied.
The rest resolve upon as things propos’d
For both our honours and thy benefit.”

Amb. These are his highness’ farther articles.
He gives him more letters.

Vic. Accursed wretch, to intimate these ills
Against the life and reputation
Of noble Alexandre! Come, my lord, unbind him.

Let him unbind thee, that is bound to death,
To make a quital! for thy discontent.

Alex. Dread lord, in kindness you could do no less
Upon report of such a damned fact;
But thus we see our innocence hath say’d
The hopeless life which thou, Villuppo, sought
By thy suggestions to have massacred.

Vic. Say, false Villuppo, wherefore didst thou thus?

Falsely betray Lord Alexandre’s life?

Alex. Say, treacherous Villuppo, tell the king:

5 An exclamation of impatience.
6 Requital.
7 Nature.
THE SPANISH TRAGEDY

Wherein hath Alexandro us'd thee ill?

And so much more, I see,

My guilty soul submire to thy doom;

But for reward and hope to be preferre'd, 96

Thou hast that shamelesslye hazarded his life.

Vic. Which, villain, shall be run'sd with thy death;

And not so mean a torment as we here

Devis'd for him, who thou said'st, slew our son,

But with the bitt'rest tortments and extremes 100

That may be yet invented for thine end.

ALEXANDRO seems to entreat,

Entreat me not; go, take the traitor hence:

Exit VILLUPPO.

And, Alexandro, let us honour thee

With public notice of thy loyalty. —

To end those things articulated here

By this great lord, the mighty King of Spain,

We with our council will deliberate.

Come, Alexandro, keep us company. Exeunt.

[SCENE II.] 3

Enter Hieronimo.

Hier. O eyes! no eyes, but fountains fraught

With tears;

O life! no life, but lively form of death;

O world! no world, but mass of public wrongs;

Confus'd and fill'd with murder and murdarees!

O sacred heav'n! if this unhallowed deed,

If this inhuman and barbarous attempt,

If this incomparable murder thus

Of mine, but now no more my son,

Shall unreveal'd and unrevenged pass,

How should we term your dealings to be just,

If you unjustly deal with those that in your justice trust?

The night, sad secretary to my moans,

With direful visions wake my vexed soul,

And with the wounds of my distressful son

Solicit me for notice of his death.

The ugly fiends do sally forth of hell,

And frame my steps to unfequented paths,

And fear my heart with fierce inflamed thoughts.

The cloudy day my discontents records,

Early begins to register my dreams,

And drive me forth to seek the murderer.

Eyes, life, world, heav'n, hell, night, and day,

See, search, shew, send some man, some mean, that may —

A letter falleth.

What's here? a letter? Tush! it is not so! —

A letter written to Hieronimo! Red ink. 30

"For want of ink, receive this bloody writ.

Me hath my hapless brother hid from thee;

 Revenge thyself on Barthazar and him:

For these were they that murdered thy son.

Hieronimo, revenge Horatio's death,

And better fare than Bel-imperia doth."

What mean this unexpected miracle?

My son slain by Lorenzo and the prince?

What cause had they Horatio to malign?

Or what might move thee, Bel-imperia,

To accuse thy brother, had he been the mean?

Hieronimo, beware! — thou art betray'd,

And to entrap thy life this train is laid.

Advise thee therefore, be not credulous:

This is devised to endanger thee,

That thou, by this, Lorenzo shouldst accuse;

And he, for thy dishonour done, should draw

Thy life in question and thy name in hate.

Dear was the life of my beloved son,

And of his death behoves me be reveng'd;

Then hazard not thine own, Hieronimo,

But live t' effect thy resolution.

I therefore will by circumstances 4 try,

What I can gather to confirm this writ;

And, heark'ning near the Duke of Castile's

house,

Close, if I can, with Bel-imperia,

To listen more, but nothing to bewray.

Enter PEDRINGANO.

Now, PEDRINGANO!

Ped. Now, Hieronimo!

Hier. Where's thy lady?

Ped. I know not; here's my lord.

Enter Lorenzo.

Lor. How now, who's this? Hieronimo?

Hier. My lord.

Ped. He asketh for my lady Bel-imperia. 50

Lor. What to do, Hieronimo? This the duke,

my father, hath

Upon some disgrace, awhile remov'd her hence;

But, if it he ought I may inform her of,

Tell me, Hieronimo, and I'll let her know it. 60

Hier. Nay, nay, my lord, I thank you; it shall not need.

I had a suit unto her, but too late,

And her disgrace makes me unfortunate.

Lor. Why so, Hieronimo? Use me.

Hier. O no, lord, I dare not; it must not be,

I humbly thank your lordship.

Lor. Who? You, my lord?

I reserve your favour for a greater honour;

This is a very try, my lord, a try.

Lor. All's one, Hieronimo, acquaint me with it.

Hier. I faith, my lord, it is an idle thing;

I must confess I ha' been too slack, too tardy,

To remiss unto your honour.

Lor. How now, Hieronimo?

Hier. In truth, my lord, it is a thing of nothing:

The murder of a son, or so —

A thing of nothing, my lord! 70

Lor. Why then, farewell. 75

Hier. My grief no heart, my thoughts no tongue can tell.

Exit.

Lor. Come hither, PEDRINGANO, see'st thou

th is this?

Ped. My lord, I see it, and suspect it too.

Lor. This is that damned villain Serberine.

That hath, I fear, reveal'd Horatio's death.

Ped. My lord, he could not, 'twas so lately

done;

And since he hath not left my company.

1 Indirect means.

2 Second passage of additions begins here, replacing

Hieronimo's speech in II. 65-66.
Lor. Admit he have not, his condition's such,
As fear or flattering words may make him false.
I know his humour, and therewith repent
That e'er I us'd him in this enterprise.
But, Pedringano, to prevent the worst,
And 'cause I know thee secret as my soul,
Here, for thy further satisfaction, take thou this,
Gives him more gold.
And hearken to me — thus it is devis'd:
This night thou must (and, prithee, so resolve),
Meet Serberine at Saint Luigi's Park —
Though know'st 'tis here hard by behind the house:
There take thy stand, and see thou strike him sure,
For die he must, if we do mean to live.
Ped. But how shall Serberine be there, my lord?
Lor. Let me alone; I'll send him to meet
The prince and me, where thou must do this deed.
Ped. It shall be done, my lord, it shall be done;
And I'll go arm myself to meet him there.
Lor. When things shall alter, as I hope they will,
Then shalt thou mount for this; thou know'st my mind.
Exit PEDRINGANO.

[Scene III.]

Enter PEDRINGANO, with a pistol.

Ped. Now, Pedringano, bid thy pistol hold, and hold on, Fortune! once more favour me; Give but success to mine attempting spirit, and let me shift for taking of mine aim. Here is the gold: this is the gold propos'd; it is no dream that I adventure for. But Pedringano is possess'd thereof. And he that would not strain his conscience For him that thus his liberal purse hath stretch'd, Unworthy such a favour, may he fail, and, wishing, want when such as I prevail. As for the fear of apprehension, I know, if need should be, my noble lord Will stand between me and ensuing harms; Besides, this place is free from all suspect: Here therefore will I stay and take my stand.

Enter the Watch.

1 Watch. I wonder much to what intent it is
That we are thus expressly charg'd to watch. 2 Watch. 'Tis by commandment in the king's own name. 3 Watch. But we were never wont to watch and ward So near the duke his brother's house before. 2 Watch. Content yourself, stand close, there's somewhat in't.

Enter SERBERINE.

Ser. Here, Serberine, attend and stay thy pace; For here did Don Lorenzo's page appoint That thou by his command shouldst meet with him. How fit a place — if one were so dispos'd — Methinks this corner is to close with one. Ped. Here comes the bird that I must seize upon.

Now, Pedringano, or never, play the man! Ser. I wonder that his lordship stays so long; Or wherefore should he send for me so late? Ped. For this, Serberine! — and thou shalt ha't. Shoots the dog.

So, there he lies; my promise is perform'd.

The Watch.

1 Watch. Hark, gentlemen, this is a pistol shot.
2 Watch. And here's one slain; — stay the murderer.
Ped. Now by the sorrows of the souls in hell, He strives with the Watch. Who first lays hand on me, I'll be his priest. 3 Watch. Sirrah, confess, and therein play the priest, Why hast thou thus unkindly kill'd the man? Ped. Why? Because he walk'd abroad so late.

1 Unintelligible. Probably a corruption of a call to the Page. 2 Fellows. 3 Saint Luigi's Park. 4 Pistol. 5 Murder him (be present at his death).
3 Watch. Come, sir, you had been better kept your bed, Than have committed this misdeed so late.
2 Watch. Come, to the marshal's with the murderer!
1 Watch. On to Hieronimo's! help me here To bring the mur'd red body with us too. 45
Ped. Hieronimo? Carry me before whom you will. Whate'er be he, I'll answer him and you; And do your worst, for I defy you all. Exit.

[Scene IV.] 1

Enter Lorenzo and Balthazar.

Bal. How now, my lord, what makes you rise so soon?
Lor. Fear of preventing our mishaps too late.
Bal. What mischiefs is it that we not mistrust? Lor. Our greatest ills we least mistrust, my lord, And unlook'd harms do hurt us most. 5
Bal. Why, tell me, Don Lorenzo, tell me, man, If ought concerns our honour and your own.
Lor. Nor you, nor me, my lord, but both in one; For I suspect — and the presumption's great — That by those base confederates in our fault 10 Touching the death of Don Horatio, We are betray'd to old Hieronimo.
Lor. A guilty conscience, urged with the thought Of former evils, easily cannot err. 15 I am persuad'd — and dissuade me not — That all's reveal'd to Hieronimo. And therefore know that I have cast it thus: —

Enter Page.

But here's the page. How now? what news with thee?
Page. My lord, Serberine is slain.
Bal. Who? Serberine, my man? 20
Page. Your highness' man, my lord.
Lor. Speak, page, who murdered him?
Page. He that is apprehending for the fact. 2
Lor. Who?
Page. Pedringano.
Bal. Is Serberine slain, that lov'd his lord so well?
Injurious villain, murderer of his friend! 25 Lor. Hath Pedringano murdered Serberine? My lord, let me entreat you to take the pains To exasperate and hasten his revenge With your complaints unto my lord the king. This their dissension breed a greater doubt. 30
Bal. Assure thee, Don Lorenzo, he shall die, Or else his highness hardly shall deny. 3 Meanwhile I'll haste the marshal-sessions, For die he shall for this his damned deed.

Exit BALTHAZAR.

Lor. Why so, this fits our former policy, And thus experience bids the wise to deal. I lay the plot; he prosecutes the point: I set the trap; he breaks the worthless twigs, And sees not that wherewith the bird was lim'd. 4 Thus hopeful men, that mean to hold their own, Must look like fowlers to their dearest friends. He runs to kill whom I have holl'd 6 to catch, And no man knows it was my reaching fetch. 6'Tis hard to trust unto a multitude, Or any one, in mine opinion, When men themselves their secrets will reveal.

Enter a Messenger with a letter.

Boy!
Page. My lord.
Lor. What's he?
Mess. I have a letter to your lordship.
Lor. From whence?
Mess. From Pedringano that's imprison'd. Lor. So he is in prison then?
Mess. Ay, my good lord.
Lor. What would he have with us? — He writes us here, To stand good lord, and help him in distress. — Tell him I have his letters, know his mind; And what we may, let him assure him of. Fellow, begone; my boy shall follow thee. 45 Exit Messenger.

This works like wax; yet once more try thy wits.

Boy, go, convey this pursuè to Pedringano; Thou know'st the prison, closely 7 give it him, And be advis'd that none be there about. Bid him be merry still, but secret, 60 And though the marshal-sessions be to-day, Bid him not doubt of his delivery. Tell him his pardon is already sign'd, And thereon bid him boldly be resolv'd: For, were he ready to be turned off — 65 As 'tis my will the uttermost be tried: Thou with his pardon shalt attend him still. Show him this box, tell him his pardon's in 't; But open 't not, an if thou lov'st thy life; But let him wisely keep his hopes unknown. 70 He shall not want while Don Lorenzo lives.

Away!
Page. I go, my lord, I run.
Lor. But, sirrah, see that this be cleanly 9 done. Exit Page.

Now stands our fortune on a tickle point, And now or never ends Lorenzo's doubts, One only thing is unaffected yet, And that's to see the executioner. But to what end? I list not trust the air With utterance of our pretense 10 therein, For fear the privy whisper of the wind Convey our words amongst unfriendly ears, That lie too open to advantages.

Exit.

4 Snared.
6 Help'd.
8 Deep-reaching device. Qs. have dialect form fetch.
7 Secretly.
9 Cleverly.
10 Intention.
[SCENE V.]

Enter Boy with the box.

Boy. My master hath forbidden me to look in this box; and, by my troth, 'tis likely, if he had not warned me, I should not have had so much idle time; for we men's-kind in our minority are like women in their uncertainty: 5 that they are most forbidden, they will soonest attempt: so I now.—By my bare honesty, here's nothing but the bare empty box! Were it not sin against secrecy, I would say it were a piece of gentlemanly knavery. I must go to Pedringano, and tell him his pardon is in this box; nay, I would have sworn it, had I not seen the contrary. I cannot choose but smile to think how the villain will flout the gallows, scorn the audience, and descant on the [5 hangman, and all presuming of his pardon from hence. Will 't not be an odd jest for me to stand and grace every jest he makes, pointing my finger at this box as who would say, "Mock on, here's thy warrant;" Is 't not a sourvy jest [so that a man should jest himself to death? Alas! poor Pedringano, I am in a sort sorry for thee; but if I should be hanged with thee, I cannot weep.

[SCENE VI.]

Enter Hieronimo and the Deputy.

Hier. Thus must we toil in other men's extremes, That know not how to remedy our own; And do them justice, when unjustly we, For all our wrongs, can compass no redress. But shall I never live to see the day, That I may come, by justice of the heavens, To know the cause that may my cares alloy? This toils my body, this consumeth age, That only I to all men just must be, And neither gods nor men be just to me. 10

Dep. Worthy Hieronimo, your office asks A care to perform such as do transcress. Hier. So is 't my duty to regard his death Who, when he liv'd, deserved my dearest blood. But come, for that we came for: let's begin, 15 For here lies that which bids me to be gone.

Enter Officers, Boy, and Pedringano, with a letter in his hand, bound.

Dep. Bring forth the prisoner, for the court is set.

Ped. Gramercy, boy, but it was time to come; For I had writ to my lord anew A nearer matter that concerneth him, For fear his lordship had forgotten me. But sith he hath remembered me so well — Come, come, come on, when shall we to this gear? 3

Hier. Stand forth, thou monster, murderer of men, And here, for satisfaction of the world, 15 Confess thy folly, and repent thy fault; For there's thy place of execution.

Ped. This is short work. Well, to your marshalship First I confess — nor fear I death therefore — I am the man, 'twas I slew Serberine. 30 But, sir, then you think this shall be the place, Where we shall satisfy you for this gear? 35

Dep. Ay, Pedringano.

Ped. Now I think not so.

Hier. Peace, impudent; for thou shalt find it so.

For blood with blood shall, while I sit as judge, Be satisfied, and the law discharg'd. And though myself cannot receive the like, Yet will I see that others have their right. Despatch: the fault's approved and confess'd, And by our law he is condemned to die. 40

Hangm. Come on, sir, are you ready? Ped. To do what, my fine, officious knave? Hangm. To go to this gear. Ped. O sir, you are too forward: thou wouldst fain furnish me with a halter, to [45 disfurnish me of my habit. So I should go out of this gear, my raiment, into that gear, the rope. But, hangman, now I spy thy knavery, I'll not change without butt, that's flat.

Hangm. Come, sir.

Ped. So, then, I must up?

Hangm. No remedy.

Ped. Yes, but there shall be for my coming down.

Ped. What, do you hang by the hour? If you do, I may chance to break your old custom.

Hangm. Faith, you have reason; for I am like to break your young neck.

Ped. Dost thou mock me, hangman? Pray God, I be not preserved to break your knave's pate for this.

Hangm. Alas, sir! you are a foot too low to reach it, and I hope you will never grow so high while I am in the office.

Ped. Sirrah, dost see yonder boy with 10 the box in his hand?

Hangm. What, that he points to it with his finger?

Ped. Ay, that companion.

Hangm. I know him not; but what of him?

Ped. Dost thou think to live till his old doubt will make thee a new trust? Hangm. Ay, and many a fair year after, to truss up many an honest man than either thou or he.

Ped. What hath he in his box, as thou think'st?

Hangm. Faith, I cannot tell, nor I care not greatly; methinks you should rather hearken to your soul's health.

Ped. Why, sirrah, hangman, I take it that that is good for the body is likewise good for 4 proved.

5 The hangman got the clothes of the criminals he executed. 6 Advantage.
the soul: and it may be, in that box is balm for both.

Hangm. Well, thou art even the merriest piece of man's flesh that e'er groan'd at my office door!

Ped. Is your roguary become an office with a knave's name?

Hangm. Ay, and that shall all they witness that see you seal it with a thief's name.

Ped. I prithee, request this good company to pray with me.

Hangm. Ay, marry, sir, this is a good motion. My masters, you see here 's a good fellow.

Ped. Nay, nay, now I remember me, let them alone till some other time; for now I have no great need.

Hier. I have not seen a wretch so impudent.
O monstrous times, where murder's set so light,
And where the soul, that should be shrin'd in heaven,
Sololy delights in interdicted things,
Still wand'ring in the thorny passages,
That intercepts itself of happiness.

Murder! O bloody monster! God forbid
A fault so foul should 'scape unpunishment.

Despatch, and see this execution done!—
This makes me to remember thee, my son.

Exit Hieronimo.

Ped. Nay, soft, no haste.

Dep. Why, wherefore stay you? Have you hope of life?

Ped. Why, ay!

Hangm. As how?

Ped. Why, rascal, by my pardon from the king.

Hangm. Stand you on that? Then you shall Off with this. He turns him off.

Dep. So, executioner; — convey him hence;
But let his body be unburied:

Let not the earth be choked or infect
With that which heav'n contends, and men neglect.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene VII.]

Enter Hieronimo.

Hier. Where shall I run to breathe abroad
My woes,
My woes, whose weight hath wearied the earth?
Or mine exclamations, that have surcharg'd the air
With ceaseless plaints for my deceased son?
The blust'ring winds, conspire with my words,
At my lament have mov'd the leafless trees,
Disrob'd the meadows of their flow'r red green,
Made mountains march with spring-tides of my tears,
And broken through the brazen gates of hell.
Yet still torment'd is my tortured soul
With broken sighs and restless passions,
That, winged, mount; and, hovering in the air,
Beat at the windows of the brightest heavens,
Soliciting for justice and revenge:
But they are plac'd in those impregnable heights.

Where, countermarr'd with walls of diamond,
I find the place impregnable; and they
Resist my woes, and give my words no way.

Enter Hangman with a letter.

Hangm. O lord, sir! God bless you, sir! the man, sir, Petergade, sir, he that was so full of merry conceits—

Hier. Well, what of him?

Hangm. O lord, sir, he went the wrong way; the fellow had a fair commision to the contrary.

Sir, here is his passport; I pray you, sir, we have done him wrong.

Hier. I warrant thee, give it me.

Hangm. You will stand between the gallows and me?

Hier. Ay, ay.

Hangm. I thank your lordship.

Hier. And yet, though somewhat nearer me concerns,
I will so ease the grief that I sustain,
Take trouble with sorrow while I read on this,

My lord, I write, as mine extremes requir'd,

That you would labour my delivery:

If you neglect, my life is desperate,
And in my death I shall reveal the truth.
You know, my lord, I slew him for your sake,
And was confederate with the prince and you;
Won by rewards and hopeful promises,
I holp to murder Don Horatio too. —

Holph he to murder mine Horatio?
And actors in this accursed tragedy
Wast thou, Lorenzo, Balthazar and thou,
Of whom my son, my son deserved so well?

What have I heard, what have mine eyes beheld?

O sacred heavens, may it come to pass
That such a monstrous and detected deed,
So closely smother'd, and so long conceal'd,
Shall thus by this be veng'd or reveal'd?

Now see I what I durst not then suspect,
That Bel-imperia's letter was not feign'd.
Nor feign'd she, though falsely they have wrong'd
Both her, herself, Horatio, and themselves.

Now may I make compare 'twixt her and this,
Of every accident I never could find
Till now, and now I feelingly perceive
They did what heav'n unpunish'd would not leave.

O false Lorenzo! are these thy flattering looks?
Is this the honnor that thou didst my son?
And Balthazar — base to thy soul and me! —
Was this the ransom he reserv'd thee for?

Woe to the cause of these constrained wars!
Woe to thy baseness and captivity!
Woe to thy birth, thy body, and thy soul,
Thy cursed father, and thy conquer'd self!

And bann'd with bitter executations be
The day and place where he did pity thee!
But wherefore waste I mine unfruitful words,
When nought but blood will satisfy my woes?
I will go plain me to my lord the king,
And cry aloud for justice through the court,

1 Hinder it from. 2 Hieronimo's house. 3 So Schick. Qq. imperal. 4 Doubly fenced. 5 Manly amends to writ.
Wearing the flints with these my withered feet;
And either purchase justice by entreats,
Or tire them all with my revenging threats.

[SCENE VIII.] 1

Enter ISABELLA and her Maid.

ISAB. So that you say this herb will purge the eye,
And this, the head? —
Ah! — but none of them will purge the heart!
No, there's no medicine left for my disease,
Nor any physic to recure the dead.  5

She runs lunatic.

Horatio! O, where's Horatio?

MAID. Good madam, affright not thus yourself
With outrage 2 for your son Horatio:
He sleeps in quiet in the Elysian fields.

ISAB. Why, did I not give you gowns and goodly things,
Bought you a whistle and a whiskbait too,
To be rebeged on their villainies?

MAID. Madam, these humours do torment my soul.

ISAB. My soul — poor soul, thou talk'st 3 of things
Thou know'st not what — my soul hath silver wings.

That mounts me up unto the highest heavens;
To heaven? Ay, there sits my Horatio,
Back'd with a troop of fiery Cherubins,
Dancing about his newly healed wounds,
Singing sweet hymns and chanting heavenly notes,
Rare harmony to greet his innocence,
That died, ay died, a mirror in our days.

But say, where shall I find the men, the murderers,

That slew Horatio? Whither shall I run
To find them out that murdered my son? 25

Exeunt.

[SCENE IX.] 4

BEL-IMPERIA at a window.

BEL. What means this outrage that is off'red me?
Why am I thus sequest'ed from the court?

No notice! Shall I not know the cause
Of these my secret and suspicious ills?
Accursed brother, unkind murderer,
Why bend'st thou thus thy mind to martyr me?
Hieronimo, why writ I of thy wrongs,
Or why art thou so slack in thy revenge?
Andrea, O Andrea! that thou sawst 10
Me for thy friend Horatio handled thus,
And him for me thus causeless murdered! —
Well, force perforce, I must constrain myself
To patience, and apply me 11 to the time,
Till heaven, as I have hop'd, shall set me free.

Exeunt.

Enter CHRISTOPHIL.

CHRIS. Come, madam BEL-imperia, this may not be.

[SCENE X.] 7

Enter LORENZO, BALTHAZAR, and the Page.

LOR. Boy, talk no further; thus far things go well.
Thou art assur'd that thou sawst him dead?
Page. Or else, my lord, I live not.

LOR. That's enough. As for his resolution in his end,
Leave that to him with whom he sojourns now. 5
Here, take my ring and give it Christophil,
And bid him let my sister be enlarg'd,
And bring her hither straight. — Exit Page.

This that I did was for a policy,
To smooth and keep the murder secret.
Which, as a nine-days' wonder, being o'erblown,
My gentle sister will I now enlarge.

BAL. And time, Lorenzo: for my lord the duke,
You heard, enquired for her yester-night.

LOR. Why, and my lord, I hope you heard me say Sufficient reason why she kept away;
But that's all one. My lord, you love her?

BAL. Then in your love beware; deal cunningly:
Salve all suspicions, only soothes 7 me up;
And if she hap to stand on terms 9 with us —
As for her sweetheart and concealment so —
Jest with her gently; under feigned jest
Are things conceald 3 that else would breed unrest.

But here she comes.

Enter BEL-imperia.

Bel. Sister? No! 10

Thou art no brother, but an enemy;
Else wouldst thou not have us'd thy sister so:
First, to affright me with thy weapons drawn,
And with extremes abuse my company; 12
And then to hurry me, like whirlwind's rage,
Amidst a crew of thy confederates,
And clap me up where none might come at me,
Nor I at any to reveal my wrongs.

What madding fury did possess thy wits?
Or wherein is't that I offended thee?

LOR. Advise you better, Bel-imperia,
For I have done you no disparagement;
Unless, by more discretion than deserv'd,
I sought to save your honour and mine own.

BEL. Mine honour? Why, Lorenzo, wherein is't
That I neglect my reputation so,
As you, or any, need to rescue it?

LOR. His highness and my father were resolv'd to come confer with old Hieronimo
Concerning certain matters of estate
That by the viceroys was determined.

BEL. And wherein was mine honour touch'd in that?

BAL. Have patience, Bel-imperia; hear the rest.

1 The same. 3 1623. Earlier edd. talkes.
2 Outcry. 4 Palace of Don Cyprian.
5 1623. Earlier edd. bends. 6 Adapt myself.
7 The same. 8 Haggle, hold out.
9 Back. 10 Companion.
Lor. Me, next in sight, as messenger they sent
To give him notice that they were so nigh:
Now when I came, consort with the prince, and,
And unexpected in an arbours there
Found Bel-imperia with Horatio—
Bel. How then?
Lor. Why, then, remembering that old disgrace,
Which you for Don Andrea had endured,
And now were likely longer to sustain,
By being found so meanly accompanied,
Thought rather—for I knew no reader mean—
To thrust Horatio forth my father's way.
Bal. And carry you obscurely somewhere else,
Lest that his highness should have found you there.
Bel. By'n so, my lord? And are you witness
That this is true which he entreateth of?
You, gentle brother, for'd this for my sake,
And you, my lord, were made his instrument?
A work of worth, worthy the noting too!
But what's the cause that you conceal'd me since?
Lor. Your melancholy, sister, since the news
Of your first favourite Don Andrea's death,
My father's old wrath hath exasperate.
Bal. And better was't for you, being in disgrace,
To absent yourself, and give his fury place.
Bel. But why had I no notice of his ire?
Lor. That were to add more fuel to your fire;
Who burn't like Aesop for Andrea's loss.
Bel. Hath not my father then enquir'd for me?
Lor. Sister, he hath, and thus excus'd I thee.
He whispereth in her ear.
Bel. But Bel-imperia, see the gentle prince;
Look on thy love, behold young Balthazar,
Whose passions by thy presence are increas'd;
And in whose melancholy thou may'st see
Thy hate, his love; thy flight, his following thee.
Bel. Brother, you are become an orator—
I know not, I, by what experience—
Too politic for me, past all compare,
Since I first saw you; but all yourself:
The prince is meditating better things.
Bal. 'Tis of thy beauty, then, that conquers kings;
Of those thy tresses, Ariadne's twines,
Wherewith my liberty thou hast surpris'd;
Of that thine ivory front, my sorrow's map,
Wherein I see no haven to rest my hope.
Bel. To love and fear, and both at once, my lord,
In my conceit, are things of more import
Than women's wits are to be busied with.
Bal. 'Tis I that love.
Bel. Whom?
Bal. Bel-imperia.
Bel. But I that fear.
Bal. Whom?
Bel. Bel-imperia.
Lor. Fear yourself?
Bel. Ay, brother.
Lor. How?
Bel. As those
That what they love are loth and fear to lose.
Bal. Then, fair, let Balthazar your keeper be.
Bel. No, Balthazar doth fear as well as we:
Est 1 tremulo metu, pandium junxere timorem—
Est 2 vanum solitiae, pridionis opus.
Lor. Nay, and you argue things so cunningly,
We'll go continue this discourse at court.
Bal. Led by the loadstar of her heavenly looks,
Wenda poor oppressed Balthazar,
As o'er the mountains walks the wanderer,
Incert to effect his pilgrimage.

[SCENE XI.]

Enter two Portingales, and Hieronimo meets them.

1 Port. By your leave, sir,
Hier. ["T is neither as you think, nor as you think,
Nor as you think; you're wide all.
These stitchers are not mine, they were my son Ho-ratio's.
My son? and what's a son? A thing begot
Within a pair of minutes—thereabout;
A lump bred up in darkness, and doth serve
To balance these light creatures we call women;
And, at nine months' end, creeps forth to light.
What is there yet in a son,
To make a father dote, rave, or run mad?
Being born, it pouts, cries, and breeds teeth.
What is there yet in a son? He must be fed,
Be taught to go, and speak. Ay, or yet
Why might not a man love a calf as well?
Or melt in passion o'er a fracking kid.
As for a son? Methinks, a young bacon,
Or a fine little smooth horse colt,
Should move a man as much as doth a son:
For one of these, in very little time,
Will grow to some good use; whereas a son,
The more he grows in stature and in years,
The more unsequal, unbehovell'd, he appears,
Reckons his parents among the rank of fools,
Stikes care upon their heads with his mad riots,
Makes them look old before they meet with age.
This is a son!—And what a loss were this,
Consider'd truly?—O, but my Horatio
Grew out of reach of these insatiate humours:
He lov'd his loving parents;
He was my comfort, and his mother's joy,
The very arm that did hold up our house:
Our hopes were stourd up in him,
None but a damned murderer could hate him.
He had not seen the back of nineteen year,
When his strong arm unsho'd
The proud Prince Balthazar, and his great mind,
Too full of honour, took him unto mercy,
That valiant, but ignoble Portingale!
Well, heaven is heaven still!
And there is Nemesis, and Furies,
And things call'd whips,
And they sometimes do meet with murderers:

1 So Hazlitt. Qq. Est.
2 A street.
3 So Schick. Qq. Est.
4 Third passage of additions begins here.
5 Ballast.
6 Unpolished.
7 Qq. us to.
They do not always scape, that is some comfort.
Away, away: and then time steals on,
And steals, and steals, till violence leaps forth.
Like thunder wraught in a ball of fire,
And so doth bring confusion to them all.
Good leave have you: nay, I pray you go,
For I'll leave you, if you can leave me so.
2 Port. Pray you, which is the next way to my lord the duke's?
Hier. The next way from me.
To his house, we mean.
Hier. O, hard by: 'tis you house that you see.
2 Port. You could not tell us if his son were there?
Hier. Who, my Lord Lorenzo?
Ay, sir,
He goeth in at one door and comes out at another.
Hier. O, forbear!
For other talk for us far fitter were.
But if you be importunate to know
The way to him, and where to find him out,
Then list to me, and I'll resolve your doubt.
There is a path upon your left-hand side
That leadeth from a guilty conscience
Unto a forest of distrust and fear—
A darksome place, and dangerous to pass:
There shall you meet with melancholy thoughts,
Whose baleful images if you but uphold,
It will conduct you to despair and death—
Whose rocky cliffs when you have once beheld,
Within a hangs' date of last night,
That, kindled with the world's iniquities,
Doth cast up filthy and detested flames:—
Not far from hence, where murderers have built
A habitation for their cursed souls,
There, in a brazen cauldron, fix'd by Jove,
In his fell wrath, upon a sulphur flame,
Yourselves shall find Lorenzo bathing him
In boiling lead and blood of innocents.
1 Port. Ha, ha, ha!
Hier. Ha, ha, ha! Why, ha, ha, ha! Farewell, good ha, ha, ha!
Exit.
2 Port. Doubtless this man is passing lunatic,
Or imperfection of his age doth make him dote.
Come, let's away to seek my lord the duke.
Exeunt.

[Scene XII.]

Enter Hieronimo, with a poniard in one hand
And a rope in the other.
Hier. Now, sir, perhaps I come and see the king;
The king sees me, and feign would hear my suit:
Why, is not this a strange and seld-seen thing,
That standers-by with toys should strike me mute?
Go to, I see their shifts, and say no more.
Hieronimo, 'tis time for thee to trudge,
Down by the dale that flows with purple gore
Standeth a fiery tower; there sits a judge
Upon a seat of steel and molten brass,
And 'twixt his teeth he holds a fire-brand,
That leads unto the lake where hell doth stand.

Away, Hieronimo! to him be gone;
He'll do thee justice for Horatio's death.
Turn down this path: thou shalt be with him straight;
Or this, and then thou need'st not take thy breath:
This way or that way?—Soft and fair, not so:
For if I hang or kill myself, let's know
Who will revenge Horatio's murder then?
No, no! no! no! pardon me, I'll none of that.
He finges away the dagger and halter.
This way I'll take, and this way comes the king:
He takes them up again.
And here I'll have a fling at him, that's flat;
And, Balthazar, I'll be with thee to bring:
And thee, Lorenzo! Here's the king—nay, stay;
And here, ay here—there goes the harel away.
Enter King, Ambassador, Castile, and Lorenzo.

King. Now show, ambassador, what our viceroy saith:
Hath he receiv'd the articles we sent?
Hier. Justice, O justice to Hieronimo.
Lor. Back! see'st thou not the king is busy?
Hier. O, is he so?
King. Who is he that interrupts our business?
Hier. Not I. [Aside.] Hieronimo, beware! go by,
by by!
Amb. Renowned King, he hath receiv'd and read
Thy kingly proffers, and thy promis'd league;
And, as a man extremely over-joy'd
To hear his son so princely entertain'd,
Whose death he had so solemnly bewail'd,
This for thy further satisfaction
And kingly love he kindly lets thee know:
First, for the marriage of his princely son
With Bel-imperia, thy beloved niece,
The news are more delightful to his soul,
Than myrrh or incense to the offended heavens.
In person, therefore, will he come himself,
To see the marriage rites solemnized.
And, in the presence of the court of Spain,
To knit a sure inexplicable band
Of kingly love and everlasting league.
Betwixt the crowns of Spain and Portugal.
There will he give his crown to Balthazar,
And make a queen of Bel-imperia.

King. Brother, how like you this our viceroy's love?
Cast. No doubt, my lord, it is an argument
Of honourable care to keep his friend,
And wondrous zeal to Balthazar his son;
Nor am I least indebted to his grace,
That bends his liking to my daughter thus.
Amb. No the last, dread lord, here hath his bigness sent
(Although he send not that his son return)
His ransom due to Don Horatio.

2 Give thee a lesson.
4 This phrase usually means, "There the matter ends." Perhaps here it might mean, "There begins the chase."
5 I. e. inextricable, which some modern edd. read.
Aldie, inexpressible.
Hier. Horatio! who calls Horatio?
King. And well rememb'red: thank his majesty.
Hier. Here, see it given to Horatio.
Hier. Justice, O, justice, gentle king!
King. Who is that? Hieronimo?
Hier. Justice, O, justice! O my son, my son!
My son, whom naught can ransom or redeem!
Lor. Hieronimo, you are not well-advise'd.
Hier. Away, Lorenzo, hinder me no more;
For thou hast made me bankrupt of my bliss.
Give me my son! you shall not ransom him!
Away! I'll rip the bowels of the earth,
And ferry over to th' Elysian plains.
And bring my son to show his deadly wounds.
Stand from about me!
I'll make a pickaxe of my poniard,
And here surrender up my marshalship;
For I'll go march up the fiends in hell,
To be avenged on you all for this.
King. What means this outrage?
Will none of you restrain his fury?
Hier. Nay, soft and fair! you shall not need to strive.
Needs must he go that the devils drive.
Exit.
Lor. My gracious lord, he is with extreme pride,
Conceiv'd of young Horatio his son
And covetous of having to himself
The ransom of the young prince Balthazar,
Distract, and in a manner lunatic.
King. Believe me, nephew, we are sorry for 't:
This is the love that fathers bear their sons.
But, gentle brother, go give to him this gold,
The prince's ransom; let him have his due.
For what he hath, Horatio shall not want;
Haply Hieronimo hath need thereof.
Lor. But if he be thus helplessly distract,
'Tis requisite his office be resign'd,
And giv'n to one of more discretion.
King. We shall increase his melancholy so.
'Tis best that we see further in it first,
Till when, ourself will execute the place.
And, brother, now bring in the ambassador,
That he may be a witness of the match
'Twixt Balthazar and Bel-imperia,
And that we may prefix a certain time,
Wherein the marriage shall be solemniz'd,
That we may have thy lord, the viceroy, here.
Amb. Therein your highness highly shall content
His majesty, that longs to hear from hence.
King. On, then, and hear you, lord ambassador—
Exeunt.

[Scene XII.]

[Enter Jaques and Pedro.
Jaq. I wonder, Pedro, why our master thus
At midnight sends us with our torches light
When men, and bird, and beast, are all at rest,
Save those that watch for rape and bloody murder.
Ped. O Jaques, know thou that our master's mind
Is much distraught, since his Horatio died,
And—now his aged years should sleep in rest,
His heart in quiet—like a desperate man,
Grows lunatic and childish for his son.
Sometimes, as he doth at his table sit,
He speaks as if Horatio stood by him;
Then starting in a rage, falls on the earth,
Cries out, 'Horatio, where is my Horatio?'
So that with extreme grief and cutting sorrow
There is not left in him one inch of man:
See: where he comes.

Enter Hieronimo.
Hier. I pray through every crevice of each wall,
Look on each tree, and search through every brake,
Beat at the bushes, stamp our grandam earth,
Dive in the water, and stare up to heaven,
Yet cannot I behold my son Horatio.——
How now, who's there? Spiritis, spiritis?
Ped. We are your servants that attend you, sir.
Hier. What make you with your torches in the dark?
Ped. You bid us light them, and attend you here.
Hier. No, no, you are deceiv'd! not I;——you are deceiv'd!
Was I so mad to bid you light your torches now?
Light me your torches at the mid of noon,
When as the sun-god rides in all his glory;
Light me your torches then.
Ped. Then we burn 4 daylight.
Hier. Let it be burnt; Night is a murderous stul,
That would not have her treasons to be seen;
And yonder pale-fac'd Hecate there, the moon,
Doth give consent to that is done in darkness;
And all those stars that gaze upon her face,
Are aglets on her sleeve, pins on her train;
And those that should be powerful and divine,
Do sleep in darkness, when they most should shine.
Ped. Provok'e them not, fair sir, with tempting words:
The heav'n are gracious, and your miseries
And sorrow makes you speak you know not what.
Hier. Villain, thou liest! and thou dost not know,
But tell me I am mad. Thou liest, I am not mad!
I know thee to be Pedro, and he Jaques.
I'll prove it to thee; and were I mad, how could I?
Where was she that same night when my Horatio Was murd'red? She should have shone: search thou the book.
Ped. Had the moon shone, in my boy's face there was a kind of grace,
That I know——nay, I do know——had the murderer seen him?
Hier. His weapon would have fall'n and cut the earth,
Had he been from'd of naught but blood and death.
Alack! when mischief doth it knows not what,
What shall we say to mischief?

Enter Isabella.
Isab. Dear Hieronimo, come in a-doors;
O, seek not means so to increase thy sorrow.

[Exeunt.]

1 So Collier. Q. exempt.
2 Fourth passage of additions.

6 Waste. 5 Metal ornaments, orig. points of laces.
Hier. Indeed, Isabella, we do nothing here;
I do not cry: ask Pedro, and ask Jaques;
Not I indeed; we are very merry, very merry.
Isab. How? be merry here, be merry here?
Is not this the place, and this the very tree,
Where my Horatio died, where he was murdered?
Hier. Was—do not say what: let her weep it out.
This was the tree; I set it of a kernel:
And when our hot Spain could not let it grow,
But that the infant and the human sap
Began to wither, duly twice a morning
Would I be sprinkling it with fountain-water.
At last it grew and grew, and bore and bore,
Till at the length.
It grew a gallows, and did bear our son;
It bore thy fruit and mine—O wicked, wicked plant!
One knocks within at the door.
See, who knocks there.
Ped. It is a painter, sir.
Hier. Bid him come in, and paint some comfort,
For surely there's none lives but painted comfort.
Let him come in!—One knows not what may chance:
God's will that I should set this tree!—but even so
Masters ungrateful servants rear from nought,
And then they hate them that did bring them up.

Enter the Painter.
Paint. God bless you, sir.
Hier. Wherefore? Why, thou scornful villain?
How, where, or by what means should I be blessed?
Isab. What wouldst thou have, good fellow?
Paint. Justice, madam.
Hier. O ambitious beggar!
Wouldst thou have that that lives not in the world?
Why, all the undeceived mines cannot buy
An ounce of justice!
'Tis a jewel so inestimable. I tell thee,
God hath engross'd all justice in his hands,
And there is none but what comes from him.
Paint. O, then I see
That God must right me for my mur'd red son.
Hier. Horatio, was thy son murdered?
Paint. Ay, sir; no man did hold a son so dear.
Hier. What, not as thine? That's a lie,
As massy as the earth. I had a son Whose least unvalued hair did weigh
A thousand of thy sons: and he was murdered.
Paint. Alas, sir, I had no more but he.
Hier. Nor I, nor I: but this same one of mine
Was worth a legion. But all is one.
Pedro, Jaques, go in a-doors; Isabella, go,
And this good fellow here and I
Will range this hideous orchard up and down,
Like to two lions rea'd of their young.
Go in a-doors, I say.

[Exeunt. The painter and he sits down.
Was thy son murdered?
Paint. Ay, sir.
Hier. So was mine.
How dost take it? Art thou not sometimes mad?
Is there no tricks1 that comes before thine eyes?

Paint. O Lord, yes, sir.
Hier. Art a painter? Canst paint me a tear, or a wound, a groan, or a sigh? Canst paint me such [110] a tree2 as this?
Paint. Sir, I am sure you have heard of my painting: my name's Basilia.
Hier. Basilia! Afore God, an excellent fellow.
Look you, sir, do you see? I'd have you paint me [116] for my gallery, in your oil-colours matted,3 and draw me five years younger than I am—do ye see, sir, let five years go; let them go like the marshal of Spain—my wife Isabella standing by me, with a speaking look to my son Horatio, which should [120] tend to this or some such-like purpose: 'God bless thee, my sweet son,' and my hand leaning upon his head, thus, sir; do you see? May it be done?
Paint. Very well, sir.
Hier. Nay, I pray, mark me, sir. Then, sir, if [125] would I have you paint me this tree, this very tree.
Canst paint a dolorful cry?
Paint. Seemingly, sir.
Hier. Nay, it should cry; but all is one. Well, sir, paint me a youth run through and through [130] with villains' swords, hanging upon this tree. Canst thou draw a murderer?
Paint. I'll warrant you, sir; I have the pattern of the most notorious villains that ever lived in all Spain.
Hier. O, let them be worse, worse: stretch thine art, and let their beaus be of Judas his own colour;
and let their eye-brows jolly over: in any case observe that. Then, sir, after some violent noise, bring me forth in my shirt, and my gown under the mine arm, with my torch in my hand, and my sword reared up, thus; and with those words:
'What noise is this? Who calls Hieronimo?'
May it be done?
Paint. Yea, sir.
Hier. Well, sir; then bring me forth, bring me through alley and alley, still with a distracted countenance going along, and let my hair heave up my night-cap. Let the clouds scowl, make the moon dark, the stars extinct, the winds howling, the bells [135] tolling, the owls shrieking, the loads croaking, the minutes jarring, and the clock striking twelve.
And there at last, sir, standing, behold a man hanging,
and tottering and tottering, as you know the wind will wave a man, and I with a truce to cut him [140] down. And looking upon him by the advantage of my torch, find it to be my son Horatio. There you may [show] a passion, there you may show a passion! Draw me like old Pram of Troy, crying,
'The house is a-fire, the house is a-fire, as [145]
the torch over my head!' Make me curse, make me rave, make me cry, make me mad, make me well again, make me curse hell, invoke heaven, and in the end leave me in a trance— and so forth.
Paint. And is this the end?
Hier. O no, there is no end; the end is death and madness! As I am never better than when I am mad; then methinks I am a brave fellow, then do wonders; but reason abursteth, and there's the tor-mence, there's the hell. At the last, sir, bring me to [150]

one of the murderers; were he as strong as Hector, thus would I tear and drag him up and down.

He beats the painter in, then comes out again, with a book in his hand.

[SCENE XIII.]

Enter Hieronimo, with a book in his hand.

[Hieronimo:] Vide mihi mihi? Ay, heaven will be reveng’d of every ill;
Nor will they suffer murder unrepaid.
Then stay, Hieronimo, attend their will:
For mortal men may not appoint their time! 6
"Per seculum semper tutum est sceleribus itur." 7
Strike, and strike home, where wrong is off red thee;
For evils unto ills conductors be,
And death’s the worst of resolution.
For he that thinks with patience to contend 10
To quiet life, his life shall easily end. —
"Fata si miseris juvant, habes salutem; 8
Fata si vitam negant, habes sepulchrum." 9
If destiny thy mistakes do ease,
Then hast thou health, and happy shalt thou be;
If destiny deny thee life, Hieronimo,
Yet shall thou be assured of a tomb;

[Aside.] Now must I bear a face of gravity;
For thus I us’d, before my marshalship,
To plead in causes as corregidor. —
Come on, sirs, what’s the matter?

2 Cit. Sir, an action.

Hieronimo. Of battery?

1 Cit. Mine of debt.

Hieronimo. Give place.

2 Cit. No, sir, mine is an action of the case. 8
3 Cit. Mine an ejection, 9 for a lease. 9

Hieronimo. Content you, sirs; are you determined
That I should plead your several actions?

1 Cit. Ay, sir, and here’s my declaration. 8
2 Cit. And here’s my bond.
3 Cit. And here’s my lease.

Hieronimo. But wherefore stands yon silly man so mute,
With mournful eyes and hands to heaven uprear’d?

Senex. O worthy sir, my curse, but slightly known.

May move the hearts of warlike Myrmidons,
And melt the Corsic rocks with ruthless tears.
Hieronimo. Say, father, tell me, what’s thy suit?

Senex. No, sir, could my woes
Give way unto my most distressful words,
Then should I not in paper, as you see,
With ink bewray what blood began in me.

Hieronimo. What’s here? "The humble supplication

Of Don Bazulto for his mur’d red son.”

Senex. Ay, sir.

Hieronimo. No, sir, it was my mur’d red son:
O my son, my son, O my son Horatio!
But mine, or thine, Bazulto, be content.

Senex. Here, take my handkercher and wipe thine eyes,
When wretched I in thy miscalculation see
The lively portrait of my dying self.

He draweth out a bloody napkin.

O no, not this; Horatio, this was thine;
And when I dy’d it in thy dearest blood,
This was a token twixt thy soul and me,
That of thy death revenged should I be.

Senex. But here, take this, and this — what, my purse?

Hieronimo. Ay, this, and that, and all of them are thine;
For all as one are our extremities.

1 Cit. O, see the kindness of Hieronimo!

7 Advocate. Properly, magistrate.

8 "A universal remedy given for all personal wrongs . . . so called because the plaintiff’s whole case is set forth at length in the original writ." (Blackstone.)

9 A writ to eject a tenant.
Senex. Alas, my lord, whence springs this troubled speech?
Hier. But let me look on my Horatio.
Sweet boy, how art thou chang'd in death's black shade!
Had Proserpine no pity on thy youth,
But suffered thy fair crimson-colour'd spring
With withered winter to be blasted thus?
Horatio, thou art older than thy father.
Ah, ruthless fate, that favour thus transforms!
Baz. Ah, my good lord, I am not your young son.
Hier. What, not my son? Thou then a Fury art,
Sent from the empty kingdom of black night
To summon me to make appearance
Before grim Minos and just Rhadamanth,
To prove Hieronimo that is remiss,
And seeks not vengeance for Horatio's death.
Baz. I am a grieved man, and not a ghost,
That came for justice for my murdered son.
Hier. Ay, now I know thee, now thou nam'st thy son.
Thou art the lively image of my grief;
Within thy face my sorrows I may see.
Thy eyes are gum'd with tears, thy cheeks are wan,
Thy forehead troubled, and thy musing lips
Murmur sad words abruptly broken off
By force of windy sighs thy spirit breathes;
And all this sorrow riseth for thy son:
And selfsame sorrow feel I for my son.
Come in, old man, thou shalt to Isabel.
Lean on my arm: I thee, thou shalt stay,
And thou, and I, and she shall sing a song,
Three parts in one, but all of discord fram'd:
Talk not of chords, but let us now be gone,
For with a cord Horatio was slain. Exeunt.

[SCENE XIV.] 6

Enter King of Spain, the Duke, Viceroy, and Lorenzo, Balthazar, Don Pedro, and Bel-imperia.

King. Go, brother, it is the Duke of Castile's cause;
Salute the Viceroy in our name.
Cast. I go.
Vic. Go forth, Don Pedro, for thy nephew's sake,
And greet the Duke of Castile.

Ped. It shall be so.

King. And now to meet these Portuguese: 5
For as we now are, so sometimes were these,
Kings and commanders of the western Indies.
Welcome, brave Viceroy, to the court of Spain,
And welcome all his honourable train!
'T is not unknown to us for why you come, 10
Or have so kindly cross'd the seas;
Sufficeth it, in this we note the truth
And more than common love you lend to us.
So is it that mine honourable niece
(For it becometh us now that it be known) 15
Already is betroth'd to Balthazar:

Senex. This gentleness shows him a gentleman.
Hier. See, see, O see thy shame, Hieronimo!
See here a loving father to his son!
Behold the sorrows and the sad lament.
That he delivereth for his son's decease!
If love's effects so strive 1 in lesser things,
If love enforce such moods in meaner wits,
If love express such power in poor estates, 10
Hieronimo, as when 2 a raging sea,
Toss'd with the wind and tide, o'erturneth
Then the upper billows, course of waves to keep,
Whilst lesser waters labour in the deep,
Then shah'st thou not, Hieronimo, to neglect
The sweet revenge of thy Horatio? 12
Though on this earth justice will not be found,
I'll down to hell, and in this passion
Knock at the dismal gates of Pluto's court,
Getting by force, as once Alcides did,
110 A troop of Furies and torturing hags
To torture Don Lorenzo and the rest.
Yet lest the triple-headed porter should Deny my passage to the slimy strand,
The Thracian post thou shalt counterfeitt. 115
Come on, old father, be my Orpheus,
And if thou canst 4 no notes upon the harp,
Then sound the burden of thy son's heart's grief,
Till we do gain that Proserpine may grant
Revenge on them that murdered my son.
Then will I rent and tear them, thus and thus,
Shivering their limbs in pieces with my teeth.
Tears the papers.

1 Cit. O sir, my declaration!
Exit Hieronimo, and they after.

2 Cit.
Save my bond!

Enter Hieronimo.

2 Cit. Save my bond!
9 Cit. Alas, my lease! it cost me ten pound,
And you, my lord, have torn the same.
Hier. That cannot be, I gave it never a wound.
Show me one drop of blood fall from the same!
How is it possible I should slay it then?
Tush, no; run after, catch me if you can.

Exeunt all but the Old Man. BAZULTO remains till HIERONIMO enters again, who, staring him in the face, speaks.

Hier. And art thou come, Horatio, from the depth,
To ask for justice in this upper earth,
To tell thy father thou art unaveng'd,
To wring more tears from Isabella's eyes;
Whose lights are dimm'd with over-long laments?

Go back, my son, complain to Aeneas,
For here's no justice; gentle boy, begone,
For justice is exiled from the earth:
Hieronimo will bear thee company.

Thy mother cries on righteous Rhadamant 150
For just revenge against the murderers.

6 The Court of Spain.
To hear Hieronimo exclaim on thee? 76
Tell me — and look thou tell me truly too — Whence grows the ground of this report in court?

Lor. My lord, it lies not in Lorenzo's power
To stop the vulgar, liberal of their tongues.
A small advantage makes a water-breach,
And no man lives that long contenteth all.
Cast. Myself have seen thee busy to keep back

Lorenzo, to his supplications from the king.
Lor. Yourself, my lord, hath seen his passions,
That ill beseeem the presence of a king:
And, for I pitted him in his distress,
I held him thence with kind and courteous
words
As free from malice to Hieronimo
As to my soul, my lord.
Cast. Hieronimo, my son, mistakes thee then.
Lor. My gracious father, believe me, so he doth.

But what's a silly man, distract in mind
To think upon the murder of his son?
Alas! how easy is it for him to err!
But for his satisfaction and the world's:
'Twere good, my lord, that Hieronimo and I
Were reconcil'd, if he misconste.

Cast. Lorenzo, thou hast said; it shall be so:
Go one of you, and call Hieronimo.

Enter Balthazar and Bel-imperia.

Balthazar, Bel-imperia, Balthazar's content,
My sorrow's ease and severity of my bliss,
Sith heaven hath ordain'd thee to be mine:
Disperse those clouds and melancholy looks,
And clear them up with those thy sun-bright eyes,
Wherein my hope and heaven's fair beauty lies.
Bel. My looks, my lord, are fitting for my
love,

Which, new-begun, can show no brighter yet.

Bel. New-kindled flames should burn as morning sun.
Bel. But not too fast, lest heat and all be done.

I see my lord my father.
Bel. Truce, my love;
Cast. I will go salute him.

Welcome, Balthazar, brave prince, the pledge of Castile's peace!
And welcome, Bel-imperia! — How now, girl?

Why com'st thou sad to salute us thus?
Content thyself, for I am satisfied:
It is not now as when Andrea liv'd:
We have forgotten and forgiven that,
And thou art grace'd with a happier love.

But, Balthazar, here comes Hieronimo;
I'll have a word with him.

Enter Hieronimo and a Servant.

Hier. And where's the duke?
Serv. Yonder.
Hier. Even so. —

What new device have they devised, trow?
[Chorus.]

Enter Ghost and Revenge.

Ghost. Awake, Erichtho! Cerberus, awake! Solicit Pluto, gentle Proserpine!

To combat, Acheron and Erebus!

For ne'er, by Styx and Phlegethon in hell,²
Nor ferried Charon to the fiery lakes
Such fearful sights, as poor Andrea sees.³

Revenge, awake!¹

Revenge. Awake? For why?

Ghost. Awake, Revenge; for thou art ill-advised.

To sleep away what thou art warn'd to watch! Revenge. Content thyself, and do not trouble me.

Ghost. Awake, Revenge, if love — as love hath had —

Have yet the power or prevalence in hell!
Hieronimo with Lorenzo is join'd in league,
And intercepts our passage to revenge.

Awake, Revenge, or we are woe-begone!

Revenge. Thus worldlings ground what they have dream'd upon.¹

Content thyself, Andrea: though I sleep,
Yet is my mood soliciting their souls. Suffoceth thee that poor Hieronimo Cannot forget his son Horatio.

And dies Revenge, although he sleep awhile;

For in unquiet, quietness is feign'd,
And slumb'ring is a common worldly wile.
Behold, Andrea, for an instance, how
Revenge hath slept, and then imagine thou,
What 'tis to be subject to destiny.²

Enter a Dumb-Show.

Ghost. Awake, Revenge; reveal this mystery.

Revenge. Lo! the two first the nuptial torches burn
As brightly burning as the mid-day's sun;
But after them doth Hymen his pace fast,
Clothed in sable and a saffron robe,
And blows them out, and quencheth them with blood,

As discontent that things continue so.

Ghost. Suffoceth me; thy meaning's understood,

And thanks to thee and those infernal powers
That will not tolerate a lover's woe.

Rest thee, for I will sit to see the rest.

Revenge. Then argue not, for thou hast thy request.

[Exeunt.]

ACT IV

[Scene I.]²

Enter Bel-imperia and Hieronimo.

Bel. Is this the love thou bear'st Horatio?
Is this the kindness that thou counterfeits?
Are these the fruits of thine incessant tears?

² Q. read in hell at end of l. 3. The passage is clearly corrupt.
³ Early Q. read see.

² Palace of Don Cyprian.

Pocas palabras!¹ mild as the lamb!

Is 't I will be reveng'd? No, I am not the man.

Cast. Welcome, Hieronimo.

Lor. Welcome, Hieronimo.

Bel. Welcome, Hieronimo.

Hier. My lords, I thank you for Horatio.

Cast. Hieronimo, the reason that I sent
To speak with you, is this.

Hier. What, so short?¹²

Then I'll be gone, I thank you for 't.

Lor. Hieronimo, my father craves a word with you.

Hier. With me, sir? Why, my lord, I thought you had done.

Lor. No; [Aside] would he had!

Cast. Hieronimo, I hear
You find yourself aggrieved at my son,¹³
Because you have not access unto the king;
And say 'tis he that intercepts your suits.

Hier. Why, is not this a monstrous thing, my lord?

Cast. Hieronimo, I hope you have no cause,
And would be loth that one of your deserts¹⁴
Should once have reason to suspect my son,
Considering how I think of you myself.

Hier. Your son Lorenzo! Whom, my noble lord?
The hope of Spain, mine honourable friend?¹⁵

Grant me the combat of them, if they dare:

Draws out his sword.

I'll meet him face to face, to tell me so!

These be the scandalous reports of such
As love not me, and hate my lord too much.

Should I suspect Lorenzo would prevent¹⁶
Or cross my retreat, that lov'd my son so well?

My lord, I am ashamed it should be said.

Lor. Hieronimo, I never gave you cause.

Hier. My good lord, I know you did not.

Cast. There then pause;

And for the satisfaction of the world,¹⁷
Hieronimo, frequent my homely house,
The Duke of Castile, Cyprian's ancient seat;
And when thou wilt, use me, my son, and it:

But here, before Prince Balthazar and me,
Embrace each other, and be perfect friends.¹⁸

Hier. Ay, marry, my lord, and shall.

Friends, quoth he? See, I'll be friends with you all:

Especially with you, my lovely lord;

For divers causes it is fit for us
That we be friends; the world's suspicious,¹⁹
And men may think what we imagine not.

Bal. Why, this is friendly done, Hieronimo.

Lor. And that I hope old grudges are forgot.

Hier. What else? It were a shame it should not be so.

Cast. Come on, Hieronimo, at my request;¹⁰

Let us entreat your company to-day. [Exeunt.

Hier. Your lordship's to command. — Pah! keep your way:

Chi mi fa più carezze che non suole,
Tradito mi ha, o tradir mi vuole. [Exit.

¹⁴ "You would not be loth one of your deserts"
¹⁵ "Hope of Spain, my honourable friend?"

¹⁷ "And for the satisfaction of the world,"
¹⁸ "Embrace each other, and be perfect friends."
¹⁹ "That we be friends; the world's suspicious,"
²⁰ "Let us entreat your company to-day."
²¹ "Chi mi fa più carezze che non suole," Hieronimo, are these thy passions, Thy protestations and thy deep laments, That thou wert wont to weary men withal? O unkind father! O deceitful world! With what excuses canst thou show thyself From this dishonour and the hate of men, Thus to neglect the loss and life of him Whom both my letters and thine own belief Assures thee to be causeless slaughtered? Hieronimo, for shame, Hieronimo, Be not a history to after-times Of such ingratitude unto thy son. Unhappy mothers of such children then! But monstrous fathers to forget so soon The death of those whom they with care and cost Have tend’re’d so, thus careless should be lost. Myself, a stranger in respect of thee, So lov’d his life, as still I wish their deaths. Nor shall his death be unreveng’d by me, Although I bear it out for fashion’s sake; For here I swear, in sight of heaven and earth, Shouldst thou neglect the love thou shouldest retain, And give it over and devised no more, Myself should send their hateful souls to hell That wrougt his downfall with extremest death.

Hier. But may it be that Bel-imperia Vows such revenge as she hath design’d to say? Why, then I see that heaven applies our drift, And all the saints do sit soliciting For vengeance on those cursed murderers. Madam, ’tis true, and now I find it so, I found a letter, written in your name, And in that letter, how Horatio died. Fardon, O pardon, Bel-imperia, My fear and care in not believing it; Nor think I thoughtless think upon a mean To let his death be unreveng’d at full. And here I vow — so you but give consent, And will conceal my resolution — I will ere long determine of their deaths That causeless thus have murdered my son. Bel. Hieronimo, I will consent, conceal, And ought that may effect for thine avail, Join with thee to revenge Horatio’s death. Hier. On, then; [and] whatever I devise, Let me entreat you, grace my practices, For why? the plot’s already in mine head. Here they are.

Enter Balthazar and Lorenzo.

Bel. How now, Hieronimo? What, courting Bel-imperia? Hier. Ay, my lord; Such courting as, I promise you, She hath my heart, but you, my lord, have hers. Lor. But now, Hieronimo, or never, We are to entreat your help. Hier. My help? Why, my good lords, assure yourselves of me; For you have giv’n me cause, — ay, by my faith have you!

1 Qq. insert after 1. 8, With what dishonour and the hate of men.
2 Supports our intention.

Bal. It pleas’d you, at the entertainment of the ambassador, To grace the king so much as with a show. Now, were your study so well furnished, As, for the passing of the first night’s sport, To entertain my father with the like, Or any such-like pleasing motion, Assure yourself, it would content them well. Hier. Is this all?

Bal. Ay, this is all. Hier. Why then, I’ll fit you; say no more. When I was young, I gave my mind And plied myself to fruitless poetry; Which though it profit the professor naught, Yet is it passing pleasing to the world. Lor. And how for that?

Hier. Marry, my good lord, thus: — And yet methinks, you are too quick with us — When in Toledo there I studied, It was my chance to write a tragedy, See here, my lords — He shows them a book. Which, long forgot, I found this other day. Now would your lordships favour me so much As but to grace me with your acting it — I mean each one of you to play a part — Assure you it will prove most passing strange, And wondrous plausible? to that assembly.

Bal. What, would you have us play a tragedy?

Hier. Why, Nero thought it no disparagement, And kings and emperors have ta’en delight To make experience of their wits in plays.

Lor. Nay, be not angry, good Hieronimo; The prince but ask’d a question.

Bal. In faith, Hieronimo, an you be in earnest, I’ll make one.

Lor. And I another.

Hier. Now, my good lord, could you entreat Your sister Bel-imperia to make one? For what’s a play without a woman in it? Bel. Little entreaty shall serve me, Hieronimo; For I must needs be employed in your play. Hier. Why, this is well. I tell you, lordings, It was determined to have been acted By gentlemen and scholars too, Such as could tell what to speak.

Bal. And now It shall be play’d by princes and courtiers, Such as can tell how to speak: If, as it is our country manner, You will but let us know the argument.

Hier. That shall I soon. The chronicles of Spain

Record this written of a knight of Rhodes: He was betroth’d, and wedded at the length, To one Perseda, an Italian dame, Whose beauty ravish’d all that her beheld, Especially the soul of Soliman, Who at the marriage was the chiefest guest. By sundry means sought Soliman to win Perseda’s love, and could not gain the same. Then ’gan he break his passions to a friend, One of his bashaws, whom he held full dear.

4 Pleaseing. 5 Usual Elizabethan form of pacha.
Her had this bashaw long solicited,
And saw she was not otherwise to be won,
But by her husband's death, this knight of Rhodes,
Whom presently by treachery he slew.
She, stirr'd with an9ed hate therefore,
As cause of this slye Soliman,
And, to escape the bashaw's tyranny,
Did stab herself: and this the tragedy.

Lor. O excellent!
Bel. But say, Hieronimo,
What then became of him that was the bashaw?
Hier. Marry, thus: mov'd with remorse of his misdeeds,
Ran to a mountain-top, and hung himself.

Bal. But which of us is to perform that part?
Hier. O, that will I, my lords; make no doubt of it.
I'll play the murderer, I warrant you;
For I already have concocted that.

Bal. And what shall I?
Hier. Great Soliman, the Turkish emperor.

Lor. And I?
Hier. Erastus, the knight of Rhodes.

Bel. And I?
Hier. Perseda, chaste and resolute.
And here, my lords, are several abstracts drawn
For each of you to note your parts,
And act it, as occasion 'off' red you.
You must provide a Turkish cap,
A black mustachio and a falchion:
Gives a paper to Balthazar.
You with a cross, like to a knight of Rhodes; —
Gives another to Lorenzo.

And, madam, you must attire yourself
He giveth Bel-imperia another.
Like Phoebe, Flora, or the huntress [Dian],
Which to your discretion shall seem best.
And as for me, my lords, I'll look to one,
And, with the ransom that the viceroy sent,
So furnish and perform this tragedy,
As all the world shall say, Hieronimo
Was liberal in grace of it so.

Bal. Hieronimo, methinks a comedy were better.
Hier. A comedy?
Fie! comedies are fit for common wits;
But to present a kingly troop withal,
Give me a stately-written tragedy;
Tragedia comurnata, fitting kings,
Containing matter, and not common things.
My lords, all this must be performed,
As fitting for the first night's revelling.
The Italian tragedians were so sharp of wit,
That in one hour's meditation
They would perform anything in action.

Lor. And well it may; for I have seen the like
In Paris 'mongst the French tragedians.

Hier. In Paris 'tis mass! and well remembered!
There's one thing more that rests for us to do.

Hier. Each one of us

Must act his part in unknown languages,
That it may breed the more variety:
As you, my lord, in Latin, I in Greek,
You in Italian; and for because I know
That Bel-imperia hath practised the French,
In courtly French shall all her phrases be.

Bal. You mean to try my cunning then, Hieronimo?

Hier. But this will be a mere confusion
And hardly shall we all be understood.
Hier. It must be so; for the conclusion
Shall prove the invention and all was good:
And I myself in an oration,
And with a strange and wondrous show besides.
That I will have there behind a curtain,
Assure yourself, shall make the matter known;
And all shall be concluded in one scene,
For there's no pleasure taken in tediousness.

Bal. How like you this?
Lor. Why, thus my lord:
We must resolve to soothe his humours up.

Bal. On then, Hieronimo; farewell till soon.
Hier. You 'll pity this gear?
Lor. I warrant you.

Exeunt all but Hieronimo.

Hier. Why so?
Now shall I see the fall of Babylon,
Wrought by the heavens in this confusion.
And if the world like not this tragedy,
Hard is the hap of old Hieronimo.

Exit.

[Scene II.] 3

Enter Isabella with a weapon.

Isab. Tell me no more! — O monstrous homicides!
Since neither pity or pity moves
The king to justice or compassion,
I will revenge myself upon this place,
Where thus they murdered my beloved son.

She cuts down the arbour.

Down with these branches and these leathsome boughs
Of this unfortunate and fatal pine!
Down with them, Isabella; rent them up,
And burn the roots from whence the rest is sprung!

I will not leave a root, a stalk, a tree,
A bough, a branch, a blossom, nor a leaf,
No, not an herb within this garden-plot,
Accursed complot of my misery!
Fruitless for ever may this garden be,
Barren the earth, and blissless whosoever
Imagines not to keep it unmanur'd!

An eastern wind, commix'd with noisome ains,
Shall blast the plants and the young sapplings;
The earth with serpents shall be pesterd,
And passengers, for fear to be infect'd,
Shall stand aloof, and, looking at it, tell:
"There, murd'red, died the son of Isabel!"

Ay, here he died, and here I him embrace:

1 Supplied by Kittredge (Manly).
See, where his ghost solicits with his wounds
Revenge on her that should revenge his death. 2
Hieronimo, make haste to see thy son;
For sorrow and despair hath cited me
To hear Horatio plead with Rhadamant.
Make haste, Hieronimo, to hold excuse’d 1
Thy negligence in pursuit of their deaths
Whose hateful wrath bereav’d him of his breath.
Ah, nay, thou dost delay their deaths,
Forgives the murderers of thy noble son,
And none but I bestir me—to no end!
And as I curse this tree from further fruit,
So shall my womb be cursed for his sake;
And with this weapon will I wound the breast,
The hapless breast, that gave Horatio suck.
She stabs herself.

[Scene III.] 2

Enter Hieronimo; he knocks up the curtain.
Enter the Duke of CASTILE.

Cast. How now, Hieronimo, where’s your fellows,
That you take all this pain?
Hier. O sir, it is for the author’s credit,
To look that all things may go well.
But, good my lord, let me entreat your grace,
To give the king the copy of the play:
This is the argument of what we show.

Cast. I will, Hieronimo.
Hier. One thing more, my good lord.
Cast. What’s that?
Hier. Let me entreat your grace
That, when the train are pass’d into the gallery,
You would vouchsafe to throw me down the key.

Cast. I will, Hieronimo. Exit CASTILE.
Hier. What, are you ready, Balthazar?
Bring a chair and a cushion for the king.

Enter BALTHAZAR, with a chair.

Well done, Balthazar! hang up the title:
Our scene is Rhodes. What, is your beard on?
Bal. Half on; the other is in my hand.
Hier. Despatch for shame; are you so long?

Bethink thyself, Hieronimo, 3
Recollect thy wits, recount thy former wrongs
Thou hast receiv’d by murder of thy son,
And lastly, not least! how Isabel,
Once his mother and thy dearest wife,
All woe-begone for him, hath alain herself. 4
Behoves thee then, Hieronimo, to be reveng’d!
The plot is laid of dire revenge:
On, then, Hieronimo, pursue revenge;
For nothing wants but acting of revenge!

[Scene IV.] 8

Enter Spanish King, Viceroy, the Duke of CASTILE, and their train [to the gallery]. 4

King. Now, Viceroy, shall we see the tragedy
Of Soliman, the Turkish emperor,
Perform’d of pleasure by your son the prince,
My nephew Don Lorenzo, and my niece. 4
Vic. Who? Bel-imperia?
King. Ay, and Hieronimo, our marshal,
At whose request they design to do’t themselves.
These be our pastimes in the court of Spain.
Here, brother, you shall be the bookkeeper:
This is the argument of that they show.

Gentlemen, this play of Hieronimo, in sundry 10 languages, was thought good to be set down in English, more largely, for the easier understanding to evry public reader.

Enter BALTHAZAR, BEL-IMPERIA, and HIERONIMO.

Bal. Bashaw, that Rhodes is ours, yield heavens
the honour,
And holy Mahomet, our sacred prophet!
And be thou graci’d with every excellence
That Soliman can give, or thou desire.
But thy desert in conquering Rhodes is less
Than in reserving this fair Christian nymph.
Perseda, blissful lamp of excellence,
Whose eyes compel, like powerful adamant,
The warlike heart of Soliman to yield.

King. See, Viceroy, that is Balthazar, your son,
That represents the emperor Soliman:
How well he acts his amorous passion!
Vic. Ay, Bel-imperia hath taught him that.
Cast. That’s because his mind runs all on Bel-imperia.
Hier. Whatever joy earth yields, betide your majesty.

Bal. Earth yields no joy without Perseda’s love.
Hier. Let then Perseda on your grace attend.
Bal. She shall not wait on me, but I on her:
Drawn by the influence of her lights, I yield.
But let my friend, the Rhodian knight, come forth,
Erasto, dearer than my life to me,
That he may see Perseda, my belov’d.

Enter ERSATSO.

King. Here comes Lorenzo: look upon the plot,
And tell me, brother, what part plays he?
Bel. Ah, my Erasto, welcome to Perseda.
Lor. Thrice happy is Erasto that thou livest;
Rhodes’ loss is nothing to Erasto’s joy;
Silk his Perseda lives, his life survives.
Bal. Ah, bashaw, here is love between Erasto
And fair Perseda, sovereign of my soul.
Hier. Remove Erasto, mighty Soliman,
And then Perseda will be quickly won.
Bal. Erasto is my friend; and while he lives,
Perseda never will remove her love.
Hier. Let not Erasto live to grieve great Soliman.
Bal. Dear is Erasto in our princely eye.
Hier. But if he be your rival, let him die.
Bal. Why, let him die! — so love commandeth me.
Yet I must that Erasto should so die.
Hier. Erasto, Soliman saluteth thee,
And lets thee will by me his rigour’s will,
Which is, thou shouldst be thus employ’d.

Stabs him.
Bel. Ay me!

Erasto! See, Soliman, Erasto's stain!

Bel. Yet laugh Soliman to comfort thee.

Fair queen of beauty, let not favour die,
But with a gracious eye behold his grief
That with Perseda's beauty is increas'd.

If by Perseda his grief be not releas'd.

Bel. Tyrant, desist soliciting vain suits;
Relentless are mine ears to thy laments,
As thy butcher is pitiless and base,
Which sees'd on my Erasto, harmless knight.

Yet by thy power thou thinkest to command,
And to thy power Perseda doth obey;
But, were she able, thus would she revenge
Thy treacheries on thee, ignoble prince:

And on herself she would be thus reveng'd.

Stabs him.

King, Well said!—Old marshal, this was bravely done!

Hier. But Bel-imperia plays Perseda well!

Vic. Were this in earnest, Bel-imperia,
You would be better to my son than so.

King. But now what follows for Hieronimo?

Hier. Marry, this follows for Hieronimo: Here break we off our sundry languages, And thus conclude I in our vulgar tongue. Haply you think— but boastless are your thoughts— That this is fabulously counterfeit,
And that we do as all tragedians do,— To die to-day, for fashioning our scene, The death of Ajax or some Roman peer, And in a minute starting up again, Revive to please to-morrow's audience.

No princes; know I am Hieronimo, The hopeless father of a hapless son, Whose tongue is tun'd to tell his latest tale, Not to excuse gross errors in the play. I see, your looks urge instance of these words; Behold the reason urging me to this! Shows his dead son.

See here my show, look on this spectacle! Here lay my hope, and here my hope hath end; Here lay my heart, and here my heart was slain; Here lay my treasure, here my treasure lost; Here lay my bliss, and here my bliss bereft: But hope, heart, treasure, joy, and bliss, All fled, fail'd, died, yea, all decay'd with this. From forth these wounds came breath that gave me life; They mur'd me that made these fatal marks.

The cause was love, whence grew this mortal hate;
The hate, Lorenzo and young Balthazar; The love, my son to Bel-imperia. But night, the coverer of accused crimes, With pithey silence hush'd these traitors' harms,

And lent them leave, for they had sorted leisure To take advantage in my garden-plot Upon my son, my dear Horatio. There merciless they butcher'd up my boy,

In black, dark night, to pale, dim, cruel death. He shrieks: I heard—and yet, methinks, I hear—

His dismal outcry echo in the air. With soonest speed I hasted to the noise, Whose hanging on a tree I found my son, Through-girt with wounds, and slaught'red as you see.

And grief'd I think, you at this spectacle? Speak, Portuguese, whose lost resembles mine: If thou canst weep upon thy Balthazar, 'T is like I wail'd for my Horatio. And you, my lord, whose reconciled son March'd in a net, and thought himself unseen, And rated me for brainsick lunacy, With "God amend that mad Hieronimo!" How can you brook our play's catastrophe?

And here behold this bloody handkercher. Which at Horatio's death I weeping dipp'd Within the river of his bleeding wounds: It as propitious, see, I have reserved, And never hath it left my bloody heart, Soliciting remembrance of my vow With these, O, these accursed murderers: Which now perform'd, my heart is satisfied. And to this end the bashaw I became That might revenge me on Lorenzo's life, Who therefore was appointed to the part, And was to represent the knight of Rhodes, That I might kill him more conveniently. So, Viceroy, was this Balthazar, thy son, That Soliman which Bel-imperia, In person of Perseda, murdered; Solely appointed to that tragic part That she might slay him that offended her. Poor Bel-imperia miss'd her part in this: For though the story saith she should have died— Yet I of kindness, and of care to her; Did otherwise determine of her end; But love of him whom they did hate too much Did urge her resolution to be such. And, princes, now behold Hieronimo, Author and actor in this tragedy, Bearing his latest fortune in his fist; And will as resolute conclude his part, As any of the actors gone before. And, gentle, thus I end my play; Urge no more words; I have no more to say.

King. O hearken, Viceroy! Hold, Hieronimo! Brother, my nephew and thy son are slain! Vic. We are betray'd; my Balthazar is slain! Break ope the doors; run, save Hieronimo. They break in and hold Hieronimo. Hieronimo, do but inform the king of these events; Upon mine honour, thou shalt have no harm. Hier. Viceroy, I will not trust thee with my life. Which this day have offered to my son. Accursed wretch! Why stay'st thou him that was resolv'd to die?

1 Chosen.
Upon whose souls may heavens be yet avenged 220
With greater far than these afflictions.
Methinks, since I grew inward with revenge,
I cannot look with scorn enough on death.

King. What, dost thou mock us, slave? — Bring tortures forth.

Hier. Do, do, do: and meantime I'll torture you.
You had a son, as I take it; and your son
Should ha' been married to your daughter:
Ha, was it not so? — You had a son too,
He was my Negoro's nephew; he was proud
And politic; had he liv'd, he might ha' come
To wear the crown of Spain, I think 'twas so: —
'Twas I that kill'd him; look you, this same hand,
'Twas it that stabb'd his heart — do ye see? this hand —

For one Horatio, if you ever knew him: a youth,
One that they hang'd up in his father's garden;
One that did force your valiant son to yield,
While your more valiant son did take him prisoner.
Vic. Be deaf, my senses; I can hear no more.
King. Fall, heaven, and cover us with thy sad ruins.

Cast. Roll all the world within thy pitiful cloud.

Hier. Now do I applaud what I have acted.

Nunc iners cadat 4 manus!

Now to express the rupture of my part,
First take my tongue, and afterward my heart.

King. O monstrous resolution of a wretch! 246
See, Viceroy, he hath bitten forth his tongue,
Rather than to reveal what we requir'd.

Cast. Yet can he write.

King. And if in this he satisfy us not,
We will devise th' extremest kind of death 220.
That ever was invented for a wretch:

Then he makes signs for a knife to mend his pen.

Cast. 0, he would have a knife to mend his pen.

Vic. Here, and advise thee that thou write the truth.—

Look to my brother! save Hieronimo!

He with a knife stabs the Duke and himself.

King. What age hath ever heard such monstrous deeds?

My brother, and the whole succeeding hope
That Spain expected after my decease!
Go, bear his body hence, that we may mourn
The loss of our beloved brother's death,
That he may be entomb'd whatever befall.
I am the next, the nearest, last of all.
Vic. And thou, Don Pedro, do the like for us:
Take up our hapless son, untimely slain;
Set me with him, and he with woeful me,
Upon the main-mast of a ship unmann'd,
And let the wind and tide haul me along
To Seyla's barking and untamed gulf,
Or to the loathsome pool of Asheron,
To weep my want for my sweet Balthazar:
Spain hath no refuge for a Portingale.

The trumpets sound a dead march; the King of Spain mourning after his brother's body, and the King of Por-ingale bearing the body of his son.

4 Schick emend. Early Q. mora caede or mors cade.

[CHORUS.]

Enter Ghost and Revenge.

Ghost. Ay, now my hopes have end in their effects,
When blood and sorrow finish my desires:
Horatio murdered in his father’s bower;
Vild Serberine by Pedringano slain;
False Pedringano hang’d by quaint device;
Fair Isabella by herself misdone;
Prince Balthazar by Bel-imperia stabb’d;
The Duke of Castile and his wicked son
Both done to death by old Hieronimo;
My Bel-imperia fall’n as Dido fell,
And good Hieronimo slain by himself:
Ay, these were spectacles to please my soul!
Now will I beg at lovely Proserpine
That, by the virtue of her princely doom,
I may consort my friends in pleasing sort,
And on my foes work just and sharp revenge.
I’ll lead my friend Horatio through those fields,
Where never-dying wars are still inured;
I’ll lead fair Isabella to that train,
Where pity weeps, but never feeleth pain;
I’ll lead my Bel-imperia to those joys,
That vestal virgins and fair queens possess;
I’ll lead sweet pleasure to eternal days.

1 Select, group. 2 Carried on.

But say, Revenge, for thou must help, or none,
Against the rest how shall my hate be shown?
Rev. This hand shall hale them down to deepest hell,
Where none but Furies, bugs, and tortures dwell.
Ghost. Then, sweet Revenge, do this at my request:
Let me be judge, and doom them to unrest.
Let loose poor Tityus from the vulture’s gripe,
And let Don Cyprian supply his room;
Place Don Lorenzo on Ixion’s wheel,
And let the lover’s endless pains suface
(Juno forgets old wrath, and grants him ease);
Hang Balthazar about Chimæra’s neck,
And let him there bewail his bloody love,
Reposing at our joys that are above;
Let Serberine roll the fatal stone,
And take from Sisyphus his endless moan;
False Pedringano, for his treachery,
Let him be dragg’d through boiling Acheron,
And there live, dying still in endless flames,
Blaspheming gods and all their holy names.
Rev. Then haste we down to meet thy friends and foes:
To place thy friends in ease, the rest in woes;
For here though death hath end their misery,
I’ll there begin their endless tragedy. Exeunt.

2 Terrors, bugbears.

PROLOGUE

Not out of confidence that none but we 1
Are able to present this tragedy,
Not out of envy at the grace of late
It did receive, nor yet to derogate
From their deserts who 2 give out boldly that 5
They move with equal feet on the same flat;
Neither for all nor any of such ends
We offer it, gracious and noble friends,
To your review; we, far from emulation
And (charitably judge) from imitation,
With this work entertain you, a piece known
And still believ'd in Court to be our own.
To quit our claim, doubting our right or merit,
Would argue in us poverty of spirit
Which we must not subscribe to. Field 3 is gone,
Whose action first did give it name, and one 4
Who came the nearest to him, is denied
By his gray beard to show the height and pride
Of D'Ambois' youth and bravery; yet to hold
Our title still a-foot, and not grow cold 20
By giving it o'er, a third man 5 with his best
Of care and pains defends our interest;
As Richard 6 he was lik'd, nor do we fear
In personating D'Ambois he'll appear
To faint, or go less, so 7 your free consent,
As heretofore, give him encouragement.

1 The company of actors — the "King's men."
2 A rival company which had given the play.
3 Nathaniel Field, b. 1587; one of the "King's men."
4 Not identified.
5 Supposed to be Ilyard Swanston.
6 Perhaps Ricardo, in Massinger's Picture. (Phelps).

ACT I

SCENE I. 8

Enter Bussy D'Ambois; poor.

Bu. Fortune, not Reason, rules the state of things,
Reward goes backwards, Honour on his head;
Who is not poor, is monstrous; only need
Gives form and worth to every human seed.
As cedars beaten with continual storms,
So great men flourish; and do imitate
Unskilful statuary, who suppose,
In forming a Colossus, if they make him
Straddle enough, strut, and look big, and gape,
Their work is goodly; so men merely great
In their affected gravity of voice,
Sourness of countenance, manners' cruelty,
Authority, wealth, and all the spawn of fortune,
Think they bear all the kingdom's worth before them;
Yet differ not from those colossal statues,
Which, with heroic forms without o'erspread,
Within are nought but mortar, flint, and lead.
Man is a torch borne in the wind; a dream
But of a shadow, sum'm'd with all his substance;
And as great seamen, using all their wealth
And skills in Neptune's deep invisible paths,
In tall ships richly built and ribb'd with brass,
To put a girdle round about the world,
When they have done it (coming near their haven)
Are glad to give a warning-piece, 9 and call
A poor, staid fisherman, that never past

8 A glade, near the Court.
9 Discharge a signal shot.
His country's sight, to waft and guide them in;
So when we wander furthest through the waves
Of glassy Glory, and the gulfs of State,
Topt with all titles, spreading all our reaches,
As if each private arm would sphere the earth,
We must to Virtue for her guide resort,
Or we shall shipwreck in our safest port.

Procumbit.

[Enter] Monsieur, with two Pages.

[Mo.] There is no second place in numerous state
That holds more than a cipher; in a king
All places are contain'd. His word and looks
Are like the flashes and the bolts of Jove;
His deeds inimitable, like the sea
That shuts still as it opens, and leaves no tracts.
Nor prints of precedent for mean men's facts:
'Tis good to get resolved spirits about me.
I follow'd D'Ambois to this green retreat;
A man of spirit beyond the reach of fear,
Who (discontent with his neglected worth)
Neglects the light, and loses obscure abodes;
But he is young and haughty, apt to take
Fire at advancement, to bear state and flourish,
In his rise therefore shall my bounties shine.
None loathes the world so much, nor loves to scoff it,
But gold and grace will make him surfeit of it.
What, D'Ambois?

Bu. He, sir.

Mo. Turn'd to earth, alive?

Bu. Up man; the sun shines on thee.

Mo. Let it shine: I am no mote to play in't, as great men are.

Mo. Call'st thou men great in state, motes in the sun?
They say so that would have thee freeze in shades,
They (like the gross Sicilian gourmandist)
Empty their noses in the cates
That none may eat but they. Do thou but bring Light to the banquet Fortune sets before thee,
And thou wilt loathe the lean darkness like thy death.
Who would believe thy mettle could let sloth
Rust and consume it? If Themistocles
Had liv'd obscure'd thus in the Athenian State,
Xerxes had made both him and it his slaves.
If brave Camillus had lurkt so in Rome,
He had not five times been Dictator there,
Nor four times triumph'd. If Epaminondas
(Who liv'd twice twenty years obscure'd in Thebes)
Had liv'd so still, he had been still unnam'd,
And paid his country nor himself their right;
But putting forth his strength, he rescue'd both
From imminent ruin; and, like burnish'd steel,
After long use he shin'd; for as the light
Not only serves to show, but render us

1 Running on (1) the series of numbers; (2) a populous kingdom. (Boas.)
2 Deeds. 3 Delicacies.

Mutually profitable; so our lives
In acts exemplary, not only win
Ourselves good names, but do to others give Matter for virtuous deeds, by which we live.

Bu. What would you wish me?

Mo. Leave the troubled streams,
And live, as thrivers do, at the well-head.

Bu. At the well-head? Alas, what should I do
With that enchanted glass? See devils there?
Or, like a strumpet, learn to set my looks
In an eternal brake, or practise juggling.
To keep my face still fast, my heart still loose;
Or bear (like dame's schoolmistresses their ridles)
Two tongues, and be good only for a shift;
Flatter great lords, to put them still in mind
Why they were made lords; or please humorous ladies
With a good carriage, tell them idle tales
To make their physic work; spend a man's life
In sights and visitations, that will make
His eyes as hollow as his mistress' heart:
To do none good, but those that have no need;
To gain being forward, though you break for haste
All the commandments ere you break your fast;
But believe backwards, make your period
And creed's last article, "I believe in God,"
And (hearing villanies preach) t'unfold their art.
Learn to commit them: 'tis a great man's part.
Shall I learn this there?

Mo. No, thou need'st not learn,
Thou hast the theory; now go there and practise.

Bu. Ay, in a threadbare suit; when men come there,
They must have high naps, and go from thence bare:
A man may drown the parts of ten rich men
In one poor suit; brave barks and outward gloss
Attract Court loves, be in parts ne'er so gross.

Mo. Thou shalt have gloss enough, and all things fit
T'enlance in all show thy long-smothered spirit:
Be rul'd by me then. The old Scythians
Painted blind Fortune's powerful hands with wings.
To show her gifts some swift and suddenly,
Which, if her favourite be not swift to take,
He loses them for ever. Then be wise:
Stay but awhile here, and I'll send to thee.

Exit Monsieur with Pages.

Bu. What will he send? Some crowns? It is to sow them
Upon my spirit, and make them spring a crown
Worth millions of the seed-crowns he will send.
Like to dispairing noble husbandmen,
He'll put his plow into me, plow me up.
But his unsweeting thrift is policy,

A frame for holding an object fixed.
2 Equivocation; trickery.
3 Abilities.
4 Whimsical.
5 Fine coverings.
6 Clothes with rich surface.
7 Changing parks into plow-land.
And learning-hating policy is ignorant
To fit his seed-land soil; a smooth plain ground
Will never nourish any politic seed.
I am for honest actions, not for great:
If I may bring up a new fashion,
And rise in Court for virtue, speed his plow! 135
The King hath known me long as well as he,
Yet could my fortune never fit the length
Of both their understandings till this hour.
There is a deep nick in Time's restless wheel
For each man's good, when which nick comes,
it strikes;
As rhetoric yet works not persuasion,
But only is a mean to make it work,
So man no maniseth by his real merit,
But when it cries 'clink' in his raiser's spirit.
Many will say, that cannot rise at all,
Man's first hour's rise is first step to his fall.
I'll venture that; men that fall low must die,
As well as men cast headlong from the sky.

Enter Maffe.

Ma. Humour of princes! Is this wretch endu'd
With any merit worth a thousand crowns? 145
Will my lord have me be so ill a steward
Of his revenue, to dispose a sum
So great with so small cause as shows in him?
I must examine this. Is your name D'Ambois?
Bu. Sir?
Ma. Is your name D'Ambois?
Bu. Who have we here? 150
Serve you the Monsieur?
Ma. How?
Bu. Serve you the Monsieur?
Ma. Sir, y'are very hot. I do serve the Monsieur;
But in such place as gives me the command
Of all his other servants. And because
His grace's pleasure is to give your good 155
His pass through my command, methinks you might
Use me with more respect.
Bu. Cry me mercy! 2
Now you have opened my dull eyes, I see you,
And would be glad to see the good you speak of.
What might I call your name?
Ma. Monsieur Maffe.
Bu. Monsieur Maffe? Then, good Monsieur
Maffe,
Pray let me know you better.
Pray do so,
That you may use me better. For yourself,
By your no better outside, I would judge you
To be some poet; have you given my lord
Some pamphlet?
Bu. Pamphlet?
Ma. Pamphlet, sir, I say.
Bu. Did your great master's goodness leave the good
That is to pass your charge to my poor use,
To your discretion?
Ma. Though he did not, sir,
I hope 'tis no rude office to ask reason 170

How that his grace gives me in charge, goes from me?
Bu. That's very perfect, sir.
Ma. Why, very good, sir;
I pray then give me leave; if for no pamphlet,
May I not know what other merit in you,
Makes his compunction willing to relieve you?
Bu. No merit in the world, sir.
Ma. That is strange.
Y'are a poor soldier, are you?
Bu. That I am, sir.
Ma. And have commanded?
Bu. Ay, and gone without, sir.
Ma. [Aside.] I see the man; a hundred crowns will make him
Swagger and drink healths to his grace's bounty,
And swear he could not be more bountiful;
So there's nine hundred crowns sav'd.—Here,
tall soldier,
His grace hath sent you a whole hundred crowns.
Bu. A hundred, sir? Nay, do his highness right;
I know his hand is larger, and perhaps
I may deserve more than my outside shows.
I am a scholar, as I am a soldier,
And I can poetic; and (being well encourag'd)
May sing his fame for giving; yours for delivering
(Like a most faithful steward) what he gives.
Ma. What shall your subject be?
Bu. I care not much
If to his bounteous grace I sing the praise
Of fair great noses, and to you of long ones.
What qualities have you, sir, beside your chain 3
And velvet jacket? 4 Can your worship dance?
Ma. A pleasant fellow, faith; it seems my
lord
Will have him for his jester; and by 'r lady,
Such men are now no fools; 'tis a knight's place.
If I (to save his grace some crowns) should urge
him
'Tabate his bounty, I should not be heard; 200
I would to heaven I were an errant ass,
For then I should be sure to have the ears
Of these great men, where now their jesters have them.
'Tis good to please him, yet I'll take no notice
Of his preferrment, but in polity
Will still be grave and serious, lest he think
I fear his wooden dagger. 4 Here, sir Ambo!
Bu. How, Ambo, sir?
Ma. Ay, is not your name Ambo?
Bu. You call'd me lately D'Ambois; has your worship
So short a head?
Ma. I cry thee mercy, D'Ambois.
A thousand crowns I bring you from my lord.
If you be thrifty, and play the good husband,
you may make
This a good standing living: 'tis a bounty.
His highness might perhaps have bestow'd better.
Bu. Go, y'are a rascal; hence, away, you rogue! 215

1. Its passage.
2. Beg pardon!
3. Badges of a steward's office.
4. The weapon of the Fool, as of the Vice in The Mor-alities.

Ma. What mean you, sir?
Bu. Hence! I prate no more!
Or, by thy villain's blood, thou pratest thy last!
A barbarous groom grudge at his master's bounty!
But since I know he would as much abhor 20
His hand should argue what he gives his friend,
Take that, sir, for your aptness to dispute.

[Strikes him.] Exit.

Ma. These crowns are set in blood; blood be their fruit.

[Scene II.] 1

He. Duchess of Guise, your grace is much enricht
In the attendance of that English virgin,
That will initiate her prime of youth
(Dispos'd to Court conditions) under the hand
Of your prefer'd instructions and command, 5
Rather than any in the English Court,
Whose ladies are not match'd in Christendom
For graceful and confirm'd behaviours;
More than the Court, where they are bred, is equal'd.

Gu. I like not their Court fashion; it is too crestfall'n
In all observance, making demigods
Of their great nobles; and of their old queen,
An ever-young and most immortal goddess.

Mo. No question she's the rarest queen in Europe.

Gu. But what's that to her immortality? 15

He. Assure you, cousin Guise, so great a courtier,
So full of majesty and royal parts,
No queen in Christendom may vaunt herself.
Her Court approves it, that's a Court indeed,
Not mixt with clowneries us'd in common houses,

But, as Courts should be, th' abstracts of their kingdoms,
In all the beauty, state, and worth they hold;
So is hers, amply, and by her inform'd.
The world is not contract'd in a man
With more proportion and expression,
Than in her Court, her kingdom. Our French Court
Is a mere mirror of confusion to it:
The king and subject, lord and every slave,
Dance a continual hay; 2 2 our rooms of state
Kept like our stables; no place more observ'd
Than a rude market-place: and though our custom
Keep this assur'd confusion from our eyes,
'T is ne'er the less essentially unwisely,
Which they would soon see, would they change their form 31
To this of ours, and then compare them both;
Which we must not affect, 3 because in kingdoms

Where the king's change doth breed the subject's terror,

Pure innovation is more gross than error.

Mo. No question we shall see them imitate
(Though afar off) the fashions of our Courts, 40
As they have ever ap'd us in attire.
Never were men so weary of their skins,
And apt to leap out of themselves as they:
Who, when they travel to bring forth rare men,
Come home, delivered of a fine French suit, 45
Their brains lie with their tailors, and get babies
For their most complete issue; he's sole heir.
To all the moral virtues that first greets
The light with a new fashion, which becomes them;
Like apes, disfigur'd with the attires of men. 50

He. No question they much wrong their real worth.

In affection of outlandish scarum;
But they have faults, and we more; they foolish-prond.
To jet 5 in others' plumes so haughtily;
We proud, that they are proud of foolery,

Holding our worths more complete for their vaunts.

Enter Monsieur, D'Ambois.

Mo. Come, mine own sweethear, I will enter the door
Sir, I have brought a gentleman to Court,
And pray you would vouchsafe to do him grace.

He. D'Ambois, I think?
Bu. That's still my name, my lord.

Mo. Though I be something altered in attire.

He. We like your alteration, and must tell you
We have expected th' offer of your service;
For we (in fear to make mild virtue proud)
Use not to seek her out in any man.

Bu. Nor doth she use to seek out any man:
He that will win must woo her; she's not shameless. 12

Mo. I urg'd her modesty in him, my lord,
And gave her those rites that he says she merits.

He. If you have woo'd and won, then, brother, wear him.

Mo. Th' art mine, sweetheart. See, here's the Guise's Duchess,
The Countess of Montsurreau, Beaupre.
Come, I'll ensem'm thee. Ladies, y' are too many
To be in council; I have here a friend
That I would gladly enter in your graces.

Bu. Save you, ladies.

Du. If you enter him in our graces, my lord,
Methinks by his blunt behaviour he should come out of himself.

Ta. Has he never been courtier, my lord? 30
Mo. Never, my lady.

Be. And why did the toy take him in th' head now?

Bu. 'Tis leap-year, lady, and therefore very good to enter a courtier.

He. Mark, Duchess of Guise, there is one is not bashful.

1 A room in the Court. From a misplaced stage-direction in Sc. I (Q. 1641), it appears that Henry and Guise are playing chess here.
2 A boisterous country dance.
3 Desire.
4 "Travel" and "travail" were not distinguished in Elizabethan spelling.
5 Strut.
6 From Qq. of 1697, 8.
7 Introduce.
Du. No, my lord, he is much guilty of the bald extremity.
Ta. The man's a courtier at first sight.
Bu. I can sing pricksong, lady, at first sight; and why not be a courtier as suddenly? 9
Ec. Here's a courtier rotten before he be ripe.
Bu. Think me not impudent, lady; I am yet no courtier; I desire to be one, and would gladly take entrance, madam, under your princely colours.

Enter BARRISOR, L'ANOU, PYRHRHOT.

Du. Soft, sir, you must rise by degrees, first being the servant of some common lady, or knights' wife; then a little higher to a lord's wife; next a little higher to a countess; yet a little higher to a duchess, and then turn the ladder.

Bu. Do you allow a man, then, four mistresses when the greatest mistress is allowed but three servants?

Du. Where find you that statute, sir? 106
Bu. Why, be judged by the groom-porters. 8
Du. The groom-porters?
Bu. Ay, madam; must not they judge of all gamings' 'tis 'th Court?

Du. You talk like a gamester. 118
Gu. Sir, know you me?
Bu. My lord?
Gu. I know not you, Whom do you serve?
Bu. Serve, my lord?
Gu. Go to, companion, your courtship's too sauzy.

Bu. [Aside.] Saucy! Companion! 'Tis the Guise, but yet those terms might have been spared of the guiser. 5 Companion! He's jealous, by this light. Are you blind of that side, duke? I'll to her again for that.—Forth, 131 princely mistress, for the honour of courtship.
Another riddle!

Gu. Cease your courtship, or by heaven I'll cut thy throats.

Bu. Cut my throat? Cut a whetstone, young Accius Naevius. 6 Do as much with your tongue, as he did with a razor. Cut my throat!

Ba. What new-come gallant have we here, that dares mate? 7 the Guise thus?

L'A. 'Sfoot, it is D'Ambois. The duke mistakes him, on my life, for some knight of the new edition. 8

Bu. Cut my throat! I would the king fear'd thy cutting of his throat no more than I fear thy cutting of mine.

Gu. I'll do 't by this hand.

Bu. Then, d'ares not do 't. Y'ave cut too many throats already, Guise; and robb'd the realm of many thousand souls, more precious than thine own.—Come madam, talk on. [141

1 Music written with points.
2 Lover.
3 Officials of the English court who furnished cards, dice, etc., and decided gaming disputes.
4 Fellow.
5 The point is obscure. Perhaps, gizzard = throat.
6 A Roman augur who cut a whetstone before Tarquin.
7 Checkmate, overcome.
8 Recent creation. An allusion to the lavish practice of James I.

'Sfoot, can you not talk? Talk on, I say; another riddle.

Py. Here's some strange distemper.
Ba. Here's a sudden transmigration with D'Ambois,—out of the knight's ward into the duchess' bed.

L'A. See what a metamorphosis a brave suit can work.

Py. 'Slight, step to the Guise and discover
him.

Ba. By no means; let the new suit work,
we'll see the issue.

Gu. Leave your courting.

Bu. I will not.—I say, mistress, and I will stand unto it, that if a woman may have three servants, a man may have three-score mistressesses.

Gu. Sirrah, I'll have you whipt out of the Court for this insolence.

Bu. Whipt? Such another syllable out of a th'-presence, if thou dar'st, for thy dukedom.

Gu. Remember, poltroon.

Mo. Pray thee, forbear.

Bu. Passion of death! Were not the king here, he should strow the chamber like a rush.

Mo. But leave courting his wife, then.

Bu. I will not. I'll court her in despite of him. Not court her! Come, madam, talk on,

Mo. Fear me nothing. [To Guise.] Well may'st thou drive thy master from the Court, but never in D'Ambois.

Mo. His great heart will not down; 'tis like the sea,
That partly by his own internal heat,
Partly the stars' daily and nightly motion,
Their heat and light, and partly of the place,
The divers frames, but chiefly by the moon,
Bristled with surges, never will be won (No, not when th' hearts of all those powers are burst)
To make retreat into his settled home,
Till he be crown'd with his own quiet foam.

He. You have the mate. 10 Another?

Gu. No more.

Exit Guise, after him the King,
Monsieur whispering.

Ba. Why, here's the lion, scar'd with the throat of a dunghill cock, a fellow that has [185 newly shak'd off his shackles; now does he crow for that victory.

L'A. 'Tis one of the best jigs that ever was acted.

Py. Whom does the Guise suppose him to be, trow? 194

L'A. Out of doubt, some new denizen'd lord, and thinks that suit newly drawn out a' th'
mercer's books.

Ba. I have heard of a fellow, that by a fixt imagination looking upon a bull-baiting, had a visible pair of horns grew out of his forehead; and I believe this gallant, overjoyed with the conceit of Monsieur's cast suit, imagines himself to be the Monsieur.

L'A. And why not; as well as the ass, stalking in the lion's case,¹ bare himself like a lion,

Braving all the huger beasts out of the forest?

Py. Peace, he looks this way.

Ba. Marry, let him look, sir. What will you say now if the Guise be gone to fetch a blanket² for him?

L'A. Faith, I believe it for his honour sake.

Py. But, if D'Ambois carry it clean?³

Exeunt Ladies.

Ba. True, when he curvets in the blanket.

Py. Ay, marry, sir.

L'A. 'Sfoot, see how he stares on 's.

Ba. Lord bless us, let 's away.

Bu. Now, sir, take your full view; how does the object please ye?

Ba. If you ask my opinion, sir, I think your suit sits as well as if 't had been made for you.

Bu. So, and was that the subject of your ridiculous jollity?

L'A. What 's that to you, sir?

Bu. Sir, I have observ'd all your fleering;⁴ and resolve yourselves ye shall give a strict account for 't.

Enter Brisac, Melynell.

Ba. Oh, miraculous jealousy!⁶ Do you think yourself such a singular subject for laughter that none can fall into the matter of our merriment but you?

L'A. This jealousy of yours, sir, confesses some close defect in yourself, that we never dream'd of.

Py. We held discourse of a perfum'd ass, that being disguis'd in a lion's case, imagin'd himself a lion. I hope that touch not you.

Bu. So, sir; your descants do marvellous well fit this ground. We shall meet where your bufoonily laughters will cost ye the best of your bodies.

Bu. For life's sake let 's be gone; he 'll kill 's outright else.

Bu. Go, at your pleasures, I 'll be your ghost to haunt you; an ye sleep an't, hang me.

L'A. Go, go, sir; court your mistress.

Py. And be advis'd; we shall have odds against you.

Bu. Such valour stands not in number; I 'll maintain it, that one man may beat three boys.

Br. Nay, you shall have no odds of him in number; he 's a gentleman as good as the proudest of you, and ye shall not wrong him.

Bu. Not, sir?

Me. Not, sir; though he be not so rich, he 's a better man than the best of you; and I will not endure it.

L'A. Not a better, sir?

Bu. No, sir, no I.

Bu. I should thank you for this kindness, if I thought these perfum'd musk-cats (being out of this privilege) durst but once mew at us.

¹ Skin.

² To toss him.

³ Superiour.

⁴ For a present.

⁵ Dencant and ground are used with a play on the ordinary meanings and the musical ones of accompaniment, variation.

⁶ The only word in this play printed in italics.

⁷ A room in the Court.

⁸ Finery.

Ba. Does your confident spirit doubt that, sir? Follow us and try.

L'A. Come, sir, we 'll lead you a dance.

Exeunt.

ACT II

SCENE I.⁷

[Enter] Henry, Guise, Montbury, and Attendants.

He. This desperate quarrel sprung out of their envies

To D'Ambois' sudden bravery,⁸ and great spirit.

Gu. Neither is worth their envy.

He. Less than either

Will make the gall of envy overflow.

She feeds on outcast entrails like a kite;⁹

In which foul heap, if any ill lies hid,

She sticks her beak into it, shakes it up,

And hurls it all abroad, that all may view it.

Corruption is her nutriment; but touch her

With any precious ointment, and you kill her.

Where she finds any filth in men, she feasts,¹¹

And with her black throat bruises it through the world.

(Being sound and healthful). But if she but taste

The slenderest pittance of commended virtue,

She surfeits on it, and is like a fly

⁴ That passes all the body's soundest parts,

⁵ And dwells upon the sores; or if her squint eye

⁶ Have power to find none there, she forges some.

⁷ She makes that crooked ever which is straight;

⁸ Calls valour giddiness, justice tyranny;

⁹ A wise man may shun her, she not herself;

¹⁰ Whithersoever she flies from her harms,

¹¹ She bears her foes still claspt in her own arms:

And therefore, Cousin Guise, let us avoid her.

Enter Nuntius.

Nu. What Atlas or Olympus lifts his head?

So far past covert, that with air enough

My words may be inform'd, and from their height

I may be seen, and heard through all the world?

A tale so worthy, and so fraught with wonder

Sticks in my jaws, and labours with event.

He. Comest thou from D'Ambois?

Nu. From him, and the rest,

His friends and enemies; whose stern fight I saw,

And heard their words before and in the fray.

He. Relate at large what thou hast seen and heard.

Nu. I saw fierce D'Ambois and his two brave friends

Enter the field, and at their heels their foes;

Which were the famous soldiers, Barrisor,

L'Anou, and Pynno, great in deeds of arms:

All which arrived at the evenest piece of earth.

The field afforded, the three challengers

Tobur'd head, drew all their rapiers, and stood rankt:

¹ A room in the Court.
When face to face the three defendants met,
Alike prepar'd, and resonate alike.
Like bonfires of contributory wood
Every man's look show'd, fed with either's spirit.
As one had been a mirror to another,
Like forms of life and death, each took from other;
And so were life and death mixt at their heights,
That you could see no fear of death, for life,
Nor love of life, for death; but in their brows Pyrrho's opinion in great letters shone:
That life and death in all respects are one.

He. Past there no sort of words at their encounter?

Nu. As Hector, 'twixt the hosts of Greece
And Troy,
(When Paris and the Spartan king should end
The nine years' war) held up his brazen lance
For signal that both hosts should cease from arms,
And hear him speak: so Barrisier advis'd,¹
Advanc'd his naked rapier 'twixt both sides,
Ript³ up the quarrel, and compar'd six lives.
Then laid in balance six idle words;
Offer'd remission and contrition too;
Or else that he and D'Ambois might conclude
The others' dangers. D'Ambois lik'd the last;
But Barrisier's friends (being equally engag'd)⁴
In the main quarrel never would expose
His life alone to that they all deserv'd.
And, for the other offer of remission,
D'Ambois (that like a laurel put in fire
Spark'd and spilt) did much more than scorn:
That his wrong should incense him so like chaff
To go so soon out; and like lighted paper
Approve his spirit at once both fire and ashes.
So drew they lots and in them fates appointed
That Barrisier should fight with fiery D'Ambois.

Pyrbot with Melynell; with Briscia L'Anou:
And then like flame and powder they commix'd,
So spritely, that I wish't they had been spirits,
That the ne'er-shutting wounding, they needs must open,
Might as they open'd shut, and never kill.
But D'Ambois' sword (that light'n'd as it flew)
Shot like a pointed comet at the face
Of manly Barrisier; and there it stuck.
Thrice pluckt he⁵ at it, and thrice drew on thrusters,
From him⁶ that of himself was free as fire;
Who⁷ thrust still as he⁸ pluckt, yet (past belief)
He with his subtle eye, hand, body, scapt.
At last, the deadly bitten point tug'd off,
On fell his yet undaunted foe so fiercely
That (only made more horrid with his wound)¹⁰
Great D'Ambois shrunk, and gave a little ground;
But soon return'd, redoubled in his danger,
And at the heart of Barrisier seal'd his anger.
Then, as in Arden I have seen an oak
Although, your weight he 'gan to nod
This way and that, as loth his curled brows
(Which he had oft wrapt in the sky with storms)
Should stoop: and yet, his radical fibres burst,
Storm-like he fell, and hid the fear-cold earth;
So fell stout Barrisier, that had stood the shocks
Of ten set battles in your highness' war,
'Gainst the sole soldier of the world, Navarre.

Gu. Oh, piteous and horrid murder!

[Mont.] Such a life
Methinks had metal in it to survive
An age of men.

He. Such often soonest end.
Thy felt report calls on, we long to know
On what events the other have arriv'd.

Nu. Sorrow and fury, like two opposite fumes
Met in the upper region of a cloud,
At the report made by this worthy's fall,
Brake from the earth, and with them rose Revenge,
Ent'ring with fresh powers his two noble friends;
And under that odds fell surcharg'd ² Briscia,³
The friend of D'Ambois, before fierce L'Anou;
Which D'Ambois seeing, as I once did see,
In my young travels through Armenia,
An angry unicorn in his full career
Charge with too swift a foot a jeweller,
That watcht him for the treasure of his brow,
And, ere he could get shelter of a tree,
Nail him with his rich antler to the earth;
So D'Ambois ran upon reveng'd L'Anou,
Who eying th' eager point borne in his face, ¹²
And giving back, fell back, and in his fall
His foe's uncurbed sword stopt in his heart;
By which time all the life-strings of the tw' other
Were cut, and both fell as their spirits flew Upwards; and still hunt honour at the view;
And now, of all the six, sole D'Ambois stood
Untouched, save only with the others' blood.

He. All slain outright?

Nu. All slain outright but he,
Who kneeling in the warm life of his friends,
(All freakled with the blood his rapier rain'd)²²
He kist their pale cheeks, and bade both farewell;
And see the bravest man the French earth bears!

[Exit Nuntius.]

Enter Monsieur D'Ambois bare.⁸

Bu. Now is the time; y'are princely vow'd my friend;
Perform it princely, and obtain my pardon.
Mo. Else heaven forgive not me! Come on, brave friend! —

If ever nature held herself her own,
When the great trial of a king and subject
Met in one blood, both from one belly springing;
Now prove her virtue and her greatness one,
Or make the t' one the greater with t' other, ¹¹²

¹ Overwhelmed. ² The horn. ³ Bare-headed.
(As true kings should) and for your brother's love,
(Which is a special species of true virtue)
Do that you could not do, not being a king.

He. Brother, I know your suit; these wilful murders
Are ever past our pardon.

Mo. Should never bear th' account of wilful murder;
It being a spice of justice, where with life
Offending past law, equal life is laid
In equal balance, to scourgé that offence
By law of reputation, which to men
Exceeds all positive law, and what that leaves
To true men's valours (not prefixing rights
Of satisfaction, suited to their wrongs)
A free man's eminence may supply and take.

He. This would make every man that thinks him wrong'd.

Or is offended, or in wrong or right,
Lay on this violence, and all vast themselves
Law-menders and suppliers, though mere butchers;
Should this fact (though of justice) be forgiven?

Mo. Oh, no, my lord; it would make cowards fear
To touch the reputations of true men
When only they are left to imp the law.
Justice will soon distinguish murderous minds
From just revengers. Had my friend been slain,
(When my enemy surviving) he should die,
Since he had added to a murder'd fame
(Which was in his intent) a murdered man,
And this had worthily been wilful murder;
But my friend only sav'd his fame's dear life,
Which is above life, taking th' under value,
Which in the wrong it did, was forfeit to him;
And in this fact only preserves a man
In his uprightness; worthy to survive
Millions of such as murder men alive.

He. Well, brother, rise, and raise your friend
With from death to life; and D'Ambois, let your life
(Refind, by passing through this merited death)
Be purg'd from such foul pollution;
Nor on your scape nor valour more presuming
To be again so daring.

Bu. My lord,
I loathe as much a deed of unjust death
As law itself doth; and to tyrannize,
Because I have a little spirit to dare
And power to do, as to be tyranniz'd.
This is a grace that (on my knees redoubled),
In. A fort, to double this, my short life's gift,
And shall your royal bounty centuple.
That I may so make good what Law and nature
Have given me for my good; since I am free,
Offending no just law, let no law make
By any wrong it does, my life her slave:
When I am wrong'd, and that law fails to right me,

Let me be king myself (as man was made),
And do a justice that exceeds the law;
If my wrong pass the power of single valour
To right and expiate, then be you my king,
And do a right, exceeding law and nature.
Who to himself is law, no law doth need,
Offends no law, and is a king indeed.

He. Enjoy what thou treat'st; we give but ours.

Bu. What you have given, my lord, is ever yours.

Ex. To this person, the Montsury's councellor.

Mo. Now vanish horrors into Court attractions,
For which let this balm make thee fresh and fair.
And now forth with thy service to the duchess,
As my long love will to Montsury's countess.

Ex. Bu. To whom my love hath long been vow'd in heart,
Although in hand for show I held the duchess.
And now through blood and vengeance, deeds of height
And hard to be achiev'd, 'tis fit I make Attempt of her perfection, I need fear
No cheek in his rivalry, since her virtues
Are so renown'd, and he of all dammes hated.

[Scene II.]

Montsury, Tamia, Beaure, Pero, Charlotte, Pyra.

Mont. He will have pardon, sure.

Ta. 'Twere pity, else:
For though his great spirit something over-flow,
All faults are still borne that from greatness grow;
But such a sudden courtier saw I never.
Be. He was too sudden, which indeed was true.

Ta. True, for it argued his no due conceit
Both of the place and greatness of the persons,
Nor of our sex: all which (we all being strangers
To his encounter) should have made more manners Deserve more welcome.

Mont. All this fault is found
Because he lov'd the duchess and left you.

Ta. Alas, love give her joy; I am so far
From envy of her honour, that I swear,
Had he encounter'd me with such proud sprite.
I would have put that project face of his
To a more test than did her duchesship.

Be. Why (by your leave, my lord) I'll speak it here.
Although she be my aunt, she scarce was modest,
When she perceiv'd the duke her husband take

9 Rivalry.
10 A room in Montsury's house.
11 Conception.
12 Forward.
Abides; an easy loss where no lack’s found.
Believe it, there’s as small lack in the loss
As there is pain in the losing; archers ever
Have two strings to a bow; and shall great Cupid
(Archer of archers both in men and women,) 65
Be worse provided than a common archer?
A husband and a friend all wise wives have.
Ta. Wise wives they are that on such strings depend,
With a firm husband joining a loose friend!
Mo. Still you stand on your husband, so do all
The common sex of you, when y’re encounter’d
With one ye cannot fancy. All men know
You live in Court, here, by your own election, Frequenting all our common sports and triumphs,
All the most youthful company of men:
And wherefore do you this? To please your husband?
'Tis gross and fulsome: if your husband’s pleasure
Be all your object, and you aim at honour
In living close to him, get you from Court;
You may have him at home; these common put-offs
For common women serve: "My honour! Husband!"
Dames maritorous 2 ne’er were meritorious.
Speak plain, and say, "I do not like you, sir, 65
Y’are an ill-favour’d fellow in my eye;"
And I am answer’d.
Ta. Then, I pray, be answer’d:
For in good faith, my lord, I do not like you
In that sort 2 you like,
Mo. Then have at you, here!
Take (with a politic hand) this rope of pearl.
And though you be not amorous, yet be wise:
Take me for wisdom; be that you can love
Is ne’er the further from you.
Ta. Now it comes
So ill prepar’d, that I may take a poison,
Under a medicine as good cheap as it;
I will not have it were it worth the world.
Mo. Horror of death; could I but please your eye,
You would give me the like, ere you would lose
me,
"Honour and husband!"
Ta. By this light, my lord,
Ye are a vile fellow, and I’ll tell the king
Your occupation of dishonouring ladies
And of his Court. A lady cannot live
As she was born, and with that sort of pleasure
That fits her state, but she must be defam’d
With an infamous lord’s detraction.
Who would endure the Court if these attempts
Of open and profest lust must be borne? 160 Who’s there? Come on, dame; you are at your book
When men are at your mistress; have I taught
you
Any such waiting-woman’s quality? 165

1 Satisfying my passion.
2 Excessively fond of their husbands.
3 Way.
Mo. Farewell, good "husband,"
Mont. Farewell, wicked lord.

Enter Montsury.

Mont. Was not the Monsieur here?
Ta. Yes, to good purpose; And your cause is as good to seek him too, And haunt his company.
Mont. Why, what's the matter?
Ta. Matter of death, were I some husband's wife. I cannot live at quiet in my chamber, For opportunities almost to rapes Offer'd me by him.

Mont. Pray thee bear with him.
Thou know'st he is a bachelor and a courtier, Ay, and a prince; and their prerogatives Are to their laws, as to their pardons are. Their reservations, after Parliaments — One quits another; form gives all their essence. That prince doth high in virtue's reckon'd stand That will entreat a vice, and not command.
So far bear with him; should another man Trust to his privilege, he should trust to death. Take comfort, then, my comfort, nay, triumph And crown thyself, thou part'st with victory; My presence is so only dear to thee. That other men's appear worse than they be. For this night yet, bear with my forced absence; Thou know'st my business; and with how much weight.

My vow hath charg'd it.
Ta. True, my lord, and never My fruitless love shall let 3 your serious honour; Yet, sweet lord, do not stay; you know my soul Is so long time without me, and I dead, As you are absent.

Mont. By this kiss, receive My soul for hostage, till I see my love.

Ta. The morn shall let me see you.

Mont. I'll visit thy more comfortable 4 beauties.
Ta. This is my comfort, that the sun hath left. The whole world's beauty ere my sun leaves me.

Mont. 'Tis late night now indeed; farewell, my light. Farewell, my light and life; — but not in him. In mine own dark love and light bent to another. Alas that in the wane 5 of our affections We should supply it with a full dissembling, In which each youngest maid is grown a mother; Frailty is fruitful, one sin gets another.

Our loves like sparkles are that brightest shine When they go out, most vice shows most divine.

Go, maid, to bed; lend me your book, I pray; 1 Imperfections. 2 That thou comest 3 That I should come 4 Comforting. 5 Emend. Dilke. Qq. were.

Not like yourself for form; I'll this night trouble None of your services. Make sure the doors, 159 And call your other fellows to their rest. Pe. I will,—[Aside] yet I will watch to know why you watch.

Ta. Now all ye peaceful regents of the night, Silently-gling exhalations, Languishing winds, and murmuring falls of waters, Sadness of heart and ominous secureness, Enchantments, dead sleeps, all the friends of rest, That ever wrought upon the life of man, Extend your utmost strengths; and this charm'd hour Fix like the centre; 4 make the violent wheels Of Time and Fortune stand; and great Existence (The Maker's treasury) now not seem to be, To all but my approaching friends and me. They come, alas, they come! Fear, fear and hope Of one thing, at one instant fight in me; I love what most I loathe, and cannot live Unless I compass that which holds my death; For life's mere death, loving one that loathes me, And he I love will loathe me, when he sees I fly my sex, my virtue, my renown, To run so madly on a man unknown.

The vault opens. See, see, a vault is opening that was never Known to my lord and husband, nor to any But him that brings the man I love, and me. How shall I look on him? How shall I live, And not consume in blushes? I will in, 141 And cast myself off, 7 as I 'neer had been. 8 Exit.

Ascendit Friar and D'Ambois.

Fr. Come, worthiest son, I am past measure glad That you (whose worth I have approv'd so long) Should be the object of her fearful love; Since both your wit and spirit can adapt Their full force to supply her utmost weakness. You know her worths and virtues, for report Of all that know is to a man a knowledge: You know besides, that our affections' storm, Rais'd in our blood, no reason can reform. Though she seek then their satisfaction (Which she must needs, or rest unsatisfied) Your judgment will esteem her peace thus wrought. Nothing less dear than if yourself had sought; And (with another colour, which my art Shall teach you to lay on) yourself must seem The only agent, and the first orb move 9 In this our set and cunning world of love.

Bu. Give me the colour, my most honour'd father, And trust my cunning then to lay it on.

6 Centre of the earth. 8 Supply watching here. 7 Undress. 9 Prime mobile, the prime moving sphere of the Ptolemaic system.
FR. 'Tis this, good son; Lord Barrisor (whom you slew)
Did love her dearly, and with all fit means Hath urg'd his acceptance, of all which
She keeps one letter written in his blood. 208
You must say thus, then, that you heard from me:
How much herself was toucht in conscience
With a report (which is in truth dispersed)
That your main quarrel grew about her love,
Lord Barrisor imagining your courtship
Of the great Guise's Duchess in the presence,
Was by you made to his elected mistress;
And so made me your mean now to resolve her,
Choosing (by my direction) this night's depth
For the more clear avoiding of all note
Of your presumed presence: and with this
(To clear her hands of such a lover's blood)
She will so kindly thank and entertain you,
Methinks I see how, ay, and ten to one,
Show you the confirmation in his blood,
Lest you should think report and she did feign,
That you shall so have circumstantial means
To come to the direct, which must be used:
For the direct is crooked; love comes flying;
The height of love is still won with denying. 226
Bu. Thanks, honour'd father.
FR. You must never know anything of any love
Sustain'd on her part: for, learn this of me,
In anything a woman does alone,
If she dissemble, she thinks 't is not done; 230
If not dissemble, 1 nor a little chide,
Give her her wish, she is not satisfi'd;
To have a man think that she never seeks,
Does her more good than to have all she likes:
This frailty sticks in them beyond their sex,
Which to reform, reason is too perplex;
Urge reason to them, it will do no good;
Humour (that is the chariot of our food
In everybody) must in them be fed,
To carry their affections by it bred. 246
Stand close.

Enter TAMYRA with a book.

TA. Alas, I fear my strangeness will retire
him.
If he go back, I die; I must prevent it,
And cheer his onset with my sight at least,
And 't is the most; though every step he takes Goes to my heart. I'll rather die than seem
Not to be strange to that I most esteem.
Bu. Madam. 254
FR. Ah!
FR. You will pardon me, I hope,
That so beyond your expectation,
And at a time for visitants so unfit,
I (with my noble friend here) visit you.
You know that my access at any time
Hath ever been admitted; and that friend
That my care will presume to bring with me
Shall have all circumstance of worth in him
To merit as free welcome as myself.
TA. Oh, father! but at this suspicious hour

1 If she has no chance to dissemble.
2 You know how apt best men are to suspect us,
In any cause that makes suspicious shadow
No greater than the shadow of a hair:
And 't are to blame. What though my lord and husband
Lies forth tonight, and, since I cannot sleep
When he is absent, I sit up to-night;
Though all the doors are sure, and all our servants
As sure bound with their sleeps; yet there is
One
That wakes above, whose eye no sleep can bind.
He sees through doors, and darkness, and our thoughts;
And therefore as we should avoid with fear
To think amiss ourselves before his search,
So should we be as curious to shun
All cause that other think not ill of us.
Bu. Madam, 't is far from that; I only heard
By this my honour'd father, that your conscience
Made some deep scruple with a false report
That Barrisor's blood should something touch
your honour,
Since he imagin'd I was courting you,
When I was bold to change words with the duchess,
And therefore made his quarrel; his long love
And service, as I hear, being deeply vowed
To your perfections, which my ready presence,
Presum'd on with my father at this season
For the more care of your so curious 2 honour,
Can well resolve 3 your conscience, is most false.
TA. And is it therefore that you come, good sir?
Then crave I now your pardon and my father's,
And swear your presence does me so much good,
That all I have it binds to your requital.
Indeed, sir, 't is most true that a report
Is spread, alleging that his love to me
Was reason of your quarrel, and because
You shall not think I feign it for my glory
That he importun'd me for his court service.
I'll show you his own hand, set down in blood
To that vain purpose. Good sir, then come in.
Father, I thank you now a thousand-fold.

Exit TAMYRA and D'AMBOIS.
FR. May it be worth it to you, honour'd daughter.
Descendit Priar.

ACT III

SCENE I.

Enter D'AMBOIS, TAMYRA, with a chain of pearl.

Bu. Sweet mistress, cease! Your conscience is too nice.
And bites too hotly of the Puritan spice.

1 Fastidiously guarded. 2 Scrupulous.
3 Service was the conventional term for courtly love.
4 A room in Moutainny's house.
Ta. Oh, my dear servant, in thy close embraces, I have set open all the doors of danger To my encompast honour, and my life. Before I was secure against death and hell, But now am subject to the heartless fear Of every shadow and of every breath, And would change firmness with an aspen leaf; So confident a spotless conscience is, So weak a guiltiness, Oh, the dangers and siege Sin lays about us, and the tyranny He exercises when he hath expugn'd! 1 2 Like to the horror of a winter's thunder, Mixt with a gushing storm, that suffer nothing To stir abroad on earth but their own rages, Is sin, when it hath gathered head above us: No roof, no shelter can secure us so, But he will drown our cheeks in fear or woe.

Bu. Sin is a coward, madam, and insul'ts 20 On our weakness, in his trust vol'ur; 21 And so our ignorance tames us, that we let His shadows fret us: and like empty clouds, In which our faulty apprehensions forge The forms of dragons, lions, elephants, 25 When they hold no proportion, the sly charms Of the witch, Policy, makes him like a monster Kept only to show men for servile money. That false bag often paints him in her cloth Ten times more monstrous than he is in truth. In three of us, the secret of our meeting Is only guarded, and three friends as one Have ever been esteem'd: as our three powers That in our one soul are as one united! Why should we fear then? For myself I swear 30 Sooner shall torture be the sire to pleasure, And health be grievous to one long time sick, Than the dear jewel of your fame in me Be made an outcast to your infamy; Nor shall my value (sacred to your virtu's) Only give free course to it, from myself: But make it fly out of the mouths of kings In golden vapours and with awful wings. Ta. It rests 3 as all kings' seals were set in thee. Now let us call my father, whom I swear I could extremely chide, but that I fear To make him so suspicious of my love Of which, sweet servant, do not let him know For all the world.

Bu. Alas! he will not think it. 40 Ta. Come, then — ho! Father, ope, and take your friend. Ascendit Friar. Fr. Now, honour'd daughter, is your doubt removed? Ta. Ay, father, but you went away too soon. Fr. Too soon? Ta. Indeed you did, you should have stayed; Had not your worthy friend been of your bringing, And that contains all laws to temper me, Not all the fearful danger that besieged us, Had aw'd my throat from exclamation. Fr. I know your serious disposition well. Come, son, the morn comes on.

Bu. Now, honour'd mistress, Till farther service call, all bliss supply you. Ta. And you this chain of pearl, and my love only. Descendit Friar and D'Ambros. It is not I, but urgent destiny, That (as great statesmen for their general end In politic justice, make poor men offend) Enforce my offence to make it just. What shall weak dames do, when th' whole work of nature Hath a strong finge'r in each one of us? Needs must that sweep away the silly cobweb Of our still-undone labours; that lays still Our powers to it: as to the line, the stone, Not to the stone, the line should be oppos'd; 6 We cannot keep our constant course in virtu: What is alike at all parts? Every day Differs from other: every hour and minute, Ay, every thought in our false clock of life Offtines inverts the whole circumference: We must be sometimes one, sometimes another. Our bodies are but thick clouds to our souls, Through which they cannot shine when they desire: When all the stars, and even the sun himself, Must stay the vapours' times that he exhales Before he can make good his beams to us; Oh, how can we, that are but motes to him, Wand'ring at random in his ordered rays, Disperse our passions' flames, with our weak vapours? That are more thick and black than all earth's vapours?

Enter Montsury.

Mont. Good day, my love; what, up and ready 8 too! Ta. Both, my dear lord; not all this night made I Myself unready, or could sleep a wink. Mont. Alas! what troubled my true love, my peace From being at peace within her better self? Or how could sleep forbear to seize thine eyes When he might challenge them as his just prize? Ta. I am in no power earthly, but in yours; To what end should I go to bed, my lord, That wholly mist the comfort of my bed? Or how should sleep possess my faculties, Wanting the proper closer of mine eyes? Mont. Then will I never more sleep night from thee. All mine own business, all the king's affairs, Shall take the day to serve them; every night I'll ever dedicate to thy delight. Ta. Nay, good my lord, esteem not my desires Such doters on their humours that my judgment Cannot subdue them to your worthier pleasure; A wife's pleas'd husband must her object be in all her acts, not her sooth'd fantasy.

C.
Mont. Then come, my love, now pay those rites to sleep.
Thy fair eyes owe him; shall we now to bed?
Ta. Oh, no, my lord; your holy friar says All couplings in the day that touch the bed Adulterous are, even in the married;
Whose grave and worthy doctrine, well I know,
Your faith in him will liberally allow. 1

Mont. He's a most learned and religious man;
Come to the presence then, and see great D'Ambois
(Fortune's proud mushroom shot up in a night)
Stand like an Atlas under our King's arm;
Which greatness 2 with him Monsieur now en-

As bitterly and deadly as the Guise.

Tu. What, that he was but yesterday his maker,
His raiser and preserver?

Mont. Even the same.
Each natural agent works but to this end,
To render that it works on like itself;
Which since the Monsieur in his act on D'Ambois
Cannot to his ambitious end effect,
But that, quite opposite, the King hath power
In his love borne to D'Ambois, to convert
The point of Monsieur's aim on his own breast,
He turns his outward love to inward hate. 150
A prince's love is like the lightning's flame,
Which no man can embrace, but must con-

[SCENE II.] 3
Enter HENRY, D'AMBOIS, Monsieur, GUISE,
Duchess, ANNABELLE, CHARLOTTE, Attendants.

He. Speak home, my Bussy; thy impartial words
Are like brave falcons that dare truss 4 a fowl
Much greater than themselves; flatterers are kites
That check at 6 sparrows; thou shalt be my eagle,
And bear my thunder underneath thy wings;
Truth's words like jewels hang in th'ears of kings.

Bu. Would I might live to see no Jews hang there
Instead of jewels; sycophants, I mean,
Who use truth like the devil, his true foe,
Cast by the angel to the pit of fears, 10
And bound in chains; truth seldom decks kings' ears.

Slave Flattery (like a ripper s 6 legs roll'd up
In boots of hay ropes) with kings' soothed guts
Swaddl'd and strapp'd, 7 now lives only free,
Oh, 'tis a subtle knave; how like the plague 15
Unfelt he strikes into the brain of man,
And rageth in his entrails, when he can,
Worse than the poison of a red-hair'd man 2

He. Fly at him and his brood; I cast thee off,
And once more give thee surname of mine eagle.

Bu. I'll make you sport enough, then; let me have My Incurs 9 too, or dogs inur'd to hunt
Beasts of most rapine, but to put them up; 10
And if I truss not, let me not be trusted.
Show me a great man (by the people's voice, 25
Which is the voice of God) that by his great-

Bombast's 11 his private roofs with public riches;
That affects royalty, rising from a clapish: 12
That rules so much more by 14 his suffering king,
That he makes kings of his subordinate slaves:
Himself and them graduate like woodmengers,
Filing a stack of bullets from the earth,
Raising each other into steeples' heights;
Let him convey this on the turning props
Of Protean law, and, his own counsel keeping,
Keep all upright; let me but hawk at him,
I'll play the vulture, and so thump his liver,
That, like a huge unlading Argosy,
He shall confess all, and you then may hang him.

Show me a clergyman, that is in voice
A lark of heaven, in heart a mole of earth;
That hath good living, and a wicked life;
A temperate look, and a luxurious gut;
Turning the rents of his superfluous cures
Into your pheasants and your partridges;
Venting their quintessence as men read He-

Let me but hawk at him, and, like the other,
He shall confess all, and you then may hang him.

Show me a lawyer that turns sacred law
The equal rend'rer of each man his own,
The scourge of rapine and extortion,
The sanctuary and inexpressible defence
Of retir'd learning and besieged virtue
Into a harpy, that eats all but's own,
Into the damned sins it punisht;
Into the synagogue of thieves and atheists,
Blood into gold, and justice into lust;
Let me but hawk at him, as at the rest,
He shall confess all, and you then may hang him.

Enter MONTAGU, TAMYRA, and FERO.

Gu. Where will you find such game as you would hawk at?

Bu. I'll hawk about your house for one of them.

Gu. Come, y'are a glorious 16 ruffian, and run proud
Of the King's headlong graces. Hold your breath,
Or, by that poison'd vapour, not the King
Shall back your murderous valour against me.

1 Approve. 6 Purse.
2 High favor. 7 Fisher.
To part and reconcile, and so conserve you,
As my combind' embracers and supporters. 110

Bu. 'T is our king's motion, and we shall not seem

To worst eyes womanish, though we change
thus soon

Never so great grudge for his greater pleasure.

Cu. I seal to that; and, so the manly freedom
That you so much profess, hereafter prove
not

A bold and glorious license to deprave, 6
To me his hand shall hold the Hermean virtue
His grace affects, in which submissive sign
On this his sacred right hand I lay mine.

Bu. 'T is well, my lord, and so your worthy greatness

Decline not to the greater insolence,
Nor make you think it a prerogative
To rack men's freedoms with the ruder wrongs;
My hand (stuck full of laurel, in true sign
'Tis wholly dedicated to righteous peace) 106
In all submission kisseth th' other side.

He. Thanks to ye both; and, kindly I invite ye

Both to a banquet, where we 'll sacrifice
Full cups to confirmation of your loves;
At which, fair ladies, I entreat your presence;
And hope you, madam, will take one carouse
For reconciliation of your lord and servant.

Bu. If I should fall, my lord, some other lady

Would be found there to do that for my servant.

Mo. Any of these here?

Nay, I know not that.

Bu. Think your thoughts like my mistress', honor'd lady?

Ta. I think not on you, sir; ye are one I know not.

Bu. Cry you mercy, madam.

Mont. Oh, sir, has she met you?

Exeunt HENRY, D'AMBOIS, Ladies.

Mo. What had my bounty drunk when it raised him?

Gu. Y'ave stuck us up a very worthy flag;

That takes more wind than we with all our sails.

Mo. Oh, so he spreads and flourishes.

Gu. He must down;

Upstarts should never perch too near a crown.

Mo. 'Tis true, my lord; and as this doting
hand,

Even out of earth, like Juno, struck this giant,
So Jove's great ordinance shall be here impl'd
To strike him under th' Etna of his pride;
To which work lend your hands, and let us cast?

Where we may set snares for his ranging greatness.

I think it best, amongst our greatest women;
For there is no such trap to catch an upstart
As a loose downfall; for you know their falls
Are th' ends of all men's rising. If great men
And wise make scapes 9 to please advantage 9

'Tis with a woman: women that worst may 128 still hold men's candles; 1 they direct and guide. 2
All things amiss in all men; and their women. 2
All things amiss in them; through whose charm'd mouths,
We may see all the close scenes of the Court.
When the royal chase, the hunt,
(Being old and cunning in his lairs and haunts)
Can never be discovered to the bow, 103
The piece, 4 or hound; yet where, behind some quitch, 6
He breaks his gall, and ruteth with his hind,
The place is marked, and by his vency 106
He still is taken. Shall we then attempt
The chiefest mean to that discovery here,
And court our greatest ladies' chiefest women
With shows of love and liberal promises? 109
'Tis but our breath. If something given in hand Sharpen their hopes of more, 'twill be well ventur'd.
Gu. No doubt of that; and 'tis the cunning'st point
Of your devil's investigation.
Mo. I have broken
The ice to it already with the woman
Of your chaste lady, and conceive good hope 176
I shall wade thorough to some wished shore
At our next meeting.
Mont. Nay, there's small hope there.
Gu. Take say of her, my lord, she comes most fitly.
Mo. Starting back?
Enter Charlotte, Annabelle, Pero.
Gu. Y' are engag'd, indeed. 150
An. Nay, pray, my lord, forbear.
Mont. What, skittish, servant? 212
An. No, my lord, I am not so fit for your service:
Ch. Pray pardon me now, my lord; my lady excepts me.
Gu. I'll satisfy her expectation, as far as an uncle may.
Mo. Well said; a spirit of courtship of all hands.
Now mine own Pero, hast thou re- 150 memb'red me for the discovery I entreated thee make of thy mistress? Speak boldly, and be sure of all things I have sworn to thee.
Pe. Building on that assurance, my lord, I may speak; and much the rather, because 182 my lady hath not trusted me with that I can tell you; for now I cannot be said to betray her.
Mo. That's all one, so we reach our objects.
Forth, I beseech thee.
Pe. To tell you truth, my lord, I have made a strange discovery.
Mo. Excellent, Pero, thou reviv'st me. May I sink quick to perdition if my tongue discover 7 it.
Pe. 'Tis thus, then: this last night, my lord lay forth, and I watching my lady's sitting 204 up, stole up at midnight from my pallet; and having before made a hole both through the wall and arras to her inmost chamber) I saw D'Ambois and herself reading a letter. 210

Mo. D'Ambois.
Pe. Even he, my lord.
Mo. Dost thou not dream, witch? 216
Pe. I swear he is the man.
Mo. The devil he is, and thy lady his 216 dam
Why, this was the happiest shot that ever flew!
The just plague of hypocrisy level'd it. Oh, the infinite regions betwixt a woman's tongue and her heart! Is this our goddess of 216 chastity? I thought I could not be so slighted if she had not her fraught besides, and therefore plotted this with her woman, never dreaming of D'Ambois. Dear Pero, I will advance thee for ever; but tell me now,—God's precious, it transforms me with admiration 8 — 228 sweet Pero, whom should she trust with this covency? Or, all the doors being made sure, how should his covency be made?
Pe. Nay, my lord, that amazes me; I cannot by any study so much as guess at it. 230 Mo. Well, let's favour our apprehensions with forbearing that a little; for if my heart were not hoopt with adamant, the conceit 232 of this would have burst it. But hark thee, Whispers.
[Ch. I swear to you grace, all that I can [234 conjecture touching my lady your niece, is a strong affection she bears to the English Mylor.
Gu. All, quod you? 'Tis enough, I assure you, but tell me. 11
Mont. I pray thee, resolve me: the duke [236 will never imagine that I am busy about's wife: hath D'Ambois any privy access to her?
An. No, my lord; D'Ambois neglects her, as she takes it, and is therefore suspicious that either your lady, or the Lady Beaupre 246 hath closely enter't him.
Mont. By 'r lady, a likely suspicion, and very near the life, [if she marks it,] 13 especially of my wife.
Mo. Come, we'll disguise all with seeming 250 only to have courted.—Away, dry palm: 14
'sh as a liver as dry as a biscuit; a man may go a whole voyage with her, and get nothing but tempests from her windpipe.
Gu. Here's one, I think, has swallowed a 262 porcupine, she casts pricks from her tongue so.
Mont. And here's a peacock seems to have devour'd one of the Alps, she has so swelled a spirit, and is so cold of her kindness. 252 Ch. We are no windfalls, my lord; ye must gather us with the ladder of matrimony, or we'll hang till we be rotten.
Mo. Indeed, that's the way to make ye right openarses. 14 But, alas! ye have no portions fit for such husbands as we wish you.
Pe. Portions, my lord? Yes, and such portions as your principality cannot purchase.
Mo. What, woman? what are those portions?
Pe. Riddle my riddle, my lord.
Mo. Ay, marry, witch, I think thy portion is a right riddle, a man shall never find it out

But let's hear it.
   Pe. You shall, my lord.
   Mo. What's that, that being most rare's most cheap?
      That when you sow, you never reap? 216
      That when it grows most, most you thin 1 it?
      And still you lose it when you win it;
      That when it is commonest, 'tis dearest,
      And when 'tis farthest off, 'tis nearest?

Mo. Is this your great portion? 230
   Pe. Even this, my lord.
   Mo. Believe me, I cannot riddle it.
   Pe. No, my lord: 'tis my chastity, which you shall neither riddle nor fiddle.
Mo. Your chastity? Let me begin with the [235] end of it; how is a woman's chastity nearest a man when 'tis furthest off?
   Pe. Why, my lord, when you cannot get it, it goes to th' heart on you: and that, I think,
      comes most near you: and I am sure it [240] shall be far enough off. And so we leave you to our mercies.
   Exeunt Women.
   Mo. Farewell, riddle.
   Gu. Farewell, medlar.
   Mont. Farewell, winter plum.
   Mo. Now, my lords, what fruit of our inquisition?
      Feel you nothing budding yet? Speak, good my Lord Montsurray.
   Mont. Nothing but this: D'Ambois is thought negligent in observing the duchess, and [245] therefore she is suspicious that your niece or my wife closely entertains him.
   Mo. Your wife, my lord? Think you that possible?
   Mont. Alas, I know she flies him like her last hour.
   Mo. Her last hour? Why, that comes upon her the more she flies it. Does D'Ambois so, think you?
   Mont. That's not worth the answering. 'Tis miraculous to think with what monsters [250] women's imaginations engross them when they are once enamour'd, and what wonders they will work for their satisfaction. They will make sheep valiant, a lion fearful.
   Mo. [Aside.] And an ass confident. — Well, my lord, more will come forth shortly; get you to the banquet.
   Gu. Come, my lord; I have the blind side of one of them. Exeunt Guise cum Montsurray. 255
   Mo. Oh, the unsounded sea of women's bloods,
      That when 'tis coldest, is most dangerous;
      Not any wrinkle creaming in their faces
      When in their hearts are Scylla and Charybdis,
      Which still are hid in dark and standing fogs, 260
      Where never day shines, nothing never grows
      But weeds and poisons, that no statesman knows,
      Nor Cerberus ever saw the damned noks
      Hid with the veils of women's virtuous looks.
      But what a cloud of sulphur have I drawn 265

1 Boss emend. Qg. in.
2 In place of the following fifteen lines, Qg. 1607, 8 read,
  I will conceal all yet, and give more time
  To D'Ambois' trial, now upon my hook.

Up to my bosom in this dangerous secret!
Which if my haste with any spark should light,
   Exeunt D'Ambois were engag'd in some sure plot,
I were blown up; he would be sure my death.
   Would I had never known it, for before 280
   I shall persuade th' importance to Montsurray,
And make him with some studied stratagem
   Train D'Ambois to his wreck, his maid may tell it,
Or I (out of my fiery thirst to play
With the fell tiger, up in darkness tied,
   And give it some light) make it quite break loose.
I fear it, afores heaven, and will not see
   D'Ambois again, till I have told Montsurray
   And set a snare with him to free my fears:
   Who's there?

   Enter Maffe.
   Mo. My lord?
   Ma. Go call the Count Montsurray,
   And make the doors fast; I will speak with none.
   Mo. Till he come to me.
   Ma. Well, my lord. Exitus.
   Mo. Or else Send you some other, and see all the doors
      Made safe yourself, I pray; haste, fly about it.
   Ma. You'll speak with none but with the Count Montsurray?
   Mo. With none but he, except it be the Guise.
   Ma. See even by this, there's one exception
      more!
   Your grace must be more firm in the command,
      Or else shall I as weakly execute.
   The Guise shall speak with you?
   Mo. He shall, I say.
   Ma. And Count Montsurry?
   Mo. Ay, and Count Montsurry.
   Ma. Your grace must pardon me, that I am bold
To urge the clear and full sense of your pleasure;
   Which whencesoever I have known, I hope 300
   Your grace will say, I hit it to a hair.
   Mo. You have.
   Ma. I hope so, or I would be glad —
   Mo. I pray thee get thee gone, thou art so tedious
   In the strict form of all thy services
   That I had better have one negligent.
   You hit my pleasure well, when D'Ambois bit
   you;
   Did you not, think you?
   Ma. D'Ambois? Why, my lord —
   Mo. I pray thee talk no more, but shut the doors:
   Do what I charge thee.
   Ma. I will, my lord, and yet
   I would be glad the wrong I had of D'Ambois—
   Mo. Precious! then it is a fate that plagues
   me.

He akes my throat, else, like Sybilla's care,
   It should breathe oracles. I fear him strangely,
   And may resemble his advanced value
   Unto a spirit rais'd without a circle,
   Endangering him that ignorantly rais'd him,
   And for whose fury he hath learn'd no limit.
In this man's folly: I may be murder'd
While he stands on protection of his folly.
Avant about thy charge.
Ma. I go, my lord.—
I had my head broke in his faithful service; 376
I had no suit the more, nor any thanks,
And yet my teeth must still be hit with D'Ambois:
D'Ambois, my lord, shall know—
Mo. The devil and D'Ambois!

How am I tortur'd with this trusty fool!
Never was any curious in his place
To do things justly, but he was an ass;
We cannot find one trusty that is witty,
And therefore bear their disproportion.
Grant thou, great star and angel of my life,
A sure lease of it but for some few days,
That I may clear my bosom of the snake
I cherish there, and I will then defy
All check to it but Nature's, and her altars
Shall crack with vessels crown'd with every liquor
Drawn from her highest and most bloody humours.
I fear him strangely, his advanced valour
Is like a spirit rais'd without a circle,
Endangering him that ignorantly rais'd him,
And for whose fury he hath learnt no limit.

Enter MAFFE hastily.

Mo. I cannot help it: what should I do
As I was gathering a fit guard to make
My passage to the doors, and the doors sure,
The man of blood is enter'd.
Mo. Rage of death!
If I had told the secret, and he knew it,
Thus had I been endanger'd.

Enter D'Ambois.

Mo. My sweet heart!

How now, what leap'st thou at?
Bu. O royal object!
Mo. Thou dream'st, awake; object in thy empty air?
Bu. Worthy the brows of Titan, worth his chair.
Mo. Fray thee, what mean'st thou?
Bu. See you not a crown
Impale the forehead of the great King Mon sieur?
Mo. Oh, fie upon thee!
Bu. Prince, that is the subject
Of all these your retird and sole discourses.
Mo. Wilt thou not leave that wrongful supposition?
Bu. Why wrongful, to suppose the doubtless right.
To the succession worth the thinking on?
Mo. Well, leave these jests. How I am overjoyed
With thy wish'd presence, and how fit thou com'st,
For of mine honour I was sending for thee.

1 Clever, sensible.

Bu. To what end?
Mo. Only for thy company,
Which I have still in thought; but that's no payment
On thy part made with personal appearance.
Thy absence so long suffered, oftentimes
Put me in some little doubt thou dost not love me.
Wilt thou do one thing therefore now sincerely?
Bu. Ay, anything, but killing of the King.
Mo. Still in that discord, and ill-taken note?
How most unseasonable thou play'st at the cuckoo
In this thy fall of friendship!
Bu. Then do not doubt,
That there is any act within my nerves
But killing of the King, that is not yours.
Mo. I will not; then; to prove which by my love
Shown to thy virtues, and by all fruits else
Already sprung from that still-flourishing tree,
With whatsoever may hereafter spring.
I charge thee utter (even with all the freedom
Both of thy noble nature and thy friendship) 341
The full and plain state of me in thy thoughts.
Bu. What, utter plainly what I think of you?
Mo. Plain as truth.
Bu. Why, this swims quite against the stream of greatness;
Great men would rather hear their flatteries,
And if they be not made fools, are not wise.
Mo. I am no such great fool, and therefore charge thee
Even from the root of thy free heart, display me.
Bu. Since you affect it in such serious terms,
If yourself first will tell me what you think
As freely and as heartily of me,
I'll be as open in my thoughts of you.
Mo. A bargain, of mine honour; and make this,
That prove we in our full dissection
Never so foul, live still the sounder friends.
Bu. What else, sir? Come, pay me home; I'll bid it bravely.
Mo. I will swear. I think thee then a man
That dares as much as a wild horse or tiger;
As headstrong and as bloody; and to feed
The ravenous wolf of thy most cannibal valour,
(Rather than not employ it) thou wouldst turn
Hackster 3 to any whore, slave to a Jew
Or English usurer, to force possessions
(And cut men's throats) of mortgaged estates;
Or thou wouldst 'tire thee like a tinker's
strumpet,
And murder market-folks, quarrel with sheep,
And run as mad as Ajax; serve a butcher,
Do anything but killing of the King:
That in thy valour th' art like other naturals 4
That have strange gifts in nature, but no soul
Diffus'd quite through, to make them of a piece,
But stop at humours that are more absurd,
Childish and villainous than that hackster,

2 Desire. 3 Professional gallant. 4 Idiots.
Slave, cut-throat, tinker's bitch, compar'd before; And in those humours wouldst envy, betray, Slander, blaspheme, change each hour a religion; Do anything but killing of the King: That in thy valour (which is still the dung-hill, To which hath reference all filth in thy house) Th' art more ridiculous and vain-glorious Than any mountebank, and impudent Than any painted bawd; which, not to soothe And glorify thee like a Jupiter Hammon, Thou eat'st thy heart in vinegar; and thy gall Turns all thy blood to poison, which is cause Of that toad-pool that stands in thy complex, And makes thee with a cold and earthy moisture, (Which is the dam of putrefaction) As plague to thy damn'd pride, rot as thou liv'st; To study calumnies and treacheries; To thy friends' slaughters like a sreech-owl sing, And do all mischiefs — but to kill the King.

Bu. So! have you said it? Mo. How think'st thou? Do I flatter? Speak I not like a trusty friend to thee? Bu. That ever any man was blest withal. So here's for me. I think you are (at worst) No devil, since y' are like to be no king: Of which, with any friend of yours, I'll say This poor stillado here, 'gainst all the stars, Ay, and 'gainst all your treacheries, which are more; That you did never good, but to do ill; But ill of all sorts, free and for itself: That (like a murdering piece, making lanes in armies, The first man of a rank, the whole rank falling) If you have wrong'd one man, you are so far From making him amends that all his race, Friends, and associates, fall into your chase: That y' are for perjuries the very prince Of all intelligencers; and your voice Is like an eastern wind, that where it flies Knits nets of caterpillars, with which you catch The prime of all the fruits the kingdom yields. That your political head is the curtst fount Of all the violence, rapine, cruelty, Tyranny, and atheism flowing through the realm. That y' have a tongue so scandalous, 't will cut The purest crystal; and a breath that will Kill to 8 that wall a spider. You will jest With God, and your soul to the devil tender For lust; kiss horror, and with death engender. That your foul body is a Lernean fen Of all the maladies breeding in all men; That you are utterly without a soul; And, for your life, the thread of that was spun When Clotho slept, and let her breathing rock 4 Fall in the dirt; and Lachesis still draws it, Dipping her twisting fingers in a bowl Deify'd, and crown'd with virtue's forced soul, And lastly (which I must for gratitude 200 Ever remember) that of all my height And dearest life, you are the only spring, Only in royal hope to kill the king. Mo. Why, now I see thou lov'st me. Come to the banquet. Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I. 5

[Enter] Henry, Monsieur, with a letter; Guise, Montsarry, Busby, Eleanor, Tamyra, Beaupre, Perno, Charlotte, Annabelle, Pyra, with four Pages.

He. Ladies, ye have not done our banquet right, Nor lookt upon it with those cheerful rays That lately turn'd your breaths to floods of gold;
Your looks, methinks, are not drawn out with thoughts So clear and free as heretofore, but foul; As if the thick complexions of men Govern'd within them. Bu. 'T is not like, my lord, That men in women rule, but contrary; For as the moon (of all things God created) Not only is the most appropriate image Or glass to show them how they wax and wane, But in her height and motion likewise bears Imperial influences that command In all their powers, and make them wax and wane:
So women, that (of all things made of nothing) Are the most perfect idols of the moon, Or still-unwean'd sweet moon-calves with white faces, Not only are patterns of change to men, But as the tender moonshine of their beauties Clear or is cloudy, make men glad or sad; So then they rule in men, not men in them. Mo. But the moons are chang'd, (as the King notes) And either men rule in them, or some power Beyond their voluntary faculty, For nothing can recover their lost faces. Mont. None can be always one: our griefs and joys Hold several sceptres in us, and have times For their divided empires: which grief now, in them Doth prove as proper to his diadem. Bu. And grief's a natural sickness of the blood, That time to part asks, as his coming had; Only slight fools griev'd suddenly are glad. A man may say 't a dead man, "Be reviv'd," As well as to one sorrowful, "Be not griev'd," And therefore, princely mistress, in all wars Against these base foes that insult on weakness, And still fight hous'd behind the shield of Na-
Your servant 1 cannot help; authority here Goes with corruption: something like some states,
That back worst men: valour to them must creep
That, to themselves left, would fear him asleep.
Du. Ye all take that for granted that doth rest
Yet to be prov'd; we all are as we were,
As merry and as free in thought as ever.
Gu. And why then can ye not disclose your thoughts?
Tu. Methinks the man hath answer'd for us
well.
Mo. The man? Why, madam, d' ye not know his name?
Tu. Man is a name of honour for a king:
Additions 2 take away from each chief thing:
The school of modesty not to learn learn'st dames:
They sit in high forms 3 there, that know men's names.
Mo. [to Bussy.] Hark! sweetheart, here's a bar set to your valour;
It cannot enter here; no, not to notice 4
Of what your name is. Your great eagle's beak
(Should you fly at her) had as good encounter
An Albion cliff, as her more craggy lonely 4.
Bu. I'll not attempt her, sir; her sight and name
(By which I only know her) doth deter me. 5
He. So do they all men else.
Mo. You would say so
If you knew all.
Tu. Knew all, my lord? What mean you?
Mo. All that I know, madam.
Tu. That you know? Speak it.
Mo. No, 'tis enough. I feel it.
He. But, methinks
Her courtship is more pure than heretofore; 6
True courters should be modest, but not nice; 6
Bold, but not impudent; pleasure love, not vice.
Mo. Sweetheart! some hither, what if one should make Horns at Montsurry? Would it not strike him jealous
Through all the proofs of his chaste lady's virtues?
Bu. If he be wise, not.
Mo. What? Not if I should name the gardener
That would have him think hath garnished him?
Bu. So the large licence that your greatness uses
To jest at all men may be taught indeed
To make a difference of the grounds you play
on,
Both in the men you scandal, and the matter.
Mo. As how? as how?
Bu. Perhaps led with a train,
Where you may have your nose made less and slit;
Your eyes thrust out.
Mo. Peace, peace, I pray thee peace. 7
Who dares do that? The brother of his king?
Bu. Were your king brother in you; all your powers (Stretch't in the arms of great men and their bawds),
Set close down by you; all your stormy laws
Spouted with lawyers' mouths, and gushing blood
Like to so many torrents; all your glories
Making you terrible, like enchanted flames
Fed with bare cockscumbs 6 and with crooked hams; 6
All your prerogatives, your shames, and tortures;
All daring heaven, and opening hell about
you; —
Were I the man ye wrong'd so and provok'd, Though ne'er so much beneath you, like a box-tree
I would out of the roughness of my root
Ram hardness, in my lowness, and like death Mounted on earthquakes, I would trot through all
Honours and horrors, thorough foul and fair,
And from your whole strength toss you into the air.
Mo. Go, th' art a devil; such another spirit
Could not be 'still'd from all th' Armenian dragons.
O my love's glory! Heir to all I have,
(That's all I can say, and that all I swear) 100
If thou outlive me, as I know thou must,
Or else hath nature no proportion'd end
To her great labours: she hath breath'd a mind
Into thy entrails, of desert to swell
Into another great Augustus Caesar;
Organs and faculties fitted to her greatness;
And should that perish like a common spirit,
Nature's a courtier and regards no merit.
He. Here's aught but whispering with us;
like a calm
Before a tempest, when the silent air
Lays her soft ear close to the earth to hearken
For that she fears steals on to ravish her;
Some fate doth join our ears to hear it coming.
Come, my brave eagle, let's to covert fly;
I see almighty Aether in the smoke
Of all his clouds descending; and the sky
Hid in the dim ostents 7 of tragedy.

Exeunt Henry with D'Ambois and Ladies.
Gu. Now stir the humour, and begin the brawl.
Mont. The King and D'Ambois now are grown all one.
Mo. Nay, they are two, 8 my lord.
Mont. How's that?
Mo. No more.
Mont. I must have more, my lord.
Mo. What, more than two?
Mont. How monstrous is this!
Mo. Why?
Mont. You make me horns.
Mo. Not I; it is a work without my power, Married men's ensigns are not made with fingers;

1 D'Ambois, who still keeps up the pretence of being the Duchess's courtly lover.
2 Titles.
3 Supposed seat of passion.
4 I. e. in disgrace.
5 Over-fastidious.
6 Signs of the sycophant.
7 Manifestations.
8 Monsieur here makes the gesture of the cuckold.
Of divine fabric they are, not men's hands.  125
Your wife, you know, is a mere 4 Cynthia,
And she must fashion horns out of her nature.
Mont. But doth she — dare you charge her?
Speak, false prince.
Mo. I must not speak, my lord; but if you'll
The learning of a nobleman, and read,
Here's something to those points; soft, you must pawn 2
Your honour having read it to return it.
Mont. Not I. I pawn my honour for a paper!
Mo. You must not buy it under.
Exeunt Guise and Monsieur.
Mont. Keep it then,
And keep fire in your bosom.
Ta. What says he?
Mont. You must make good the rest.
How fares my lord?
Ta. What, my lord?
Mont. The plague of Herod
Feast in his rotten entrails.
Ta. Will you wreak
Your anger's just cause given by him, on me?
Mont. By him?
Ta. By him, my lord. I have admir'd 8
You could all this time be at concord with him,
That still hath play'd such discords on your honour.
Mont. Perhaps 'tis with some proud string of my wife's.
Ta. How's that, my lord?
Mont. Your tongue will still admire, 146
Till my head be the miracle of the world.
Ta. Oh, woe is me! She seems to swoon.
P. What does your lordship mean?
Madam, be comforted; my lord but tries you.
Madam! Help, good my lord, are you not mov'd?
Do your set looks print in your words your thoughts?
Sweet lord, clear up those eyes,
Unbend that masking forehead; whence is it
You rush upon her with these Irish wars,
More full of sound than hurt? But it is enough
You have shot home, your words are in her heart;
She has not liv'd to bear a trial now.
Mont. Look up, my love, and by this kiss receive
My soul amongst the spirits for supply
To thine, chas'd with my fury.
Ta. Oh, my lord,
I have too long liv'd to hear this from you. 150
Mont. 'Twas from my troubled blood, and not from me.
I know not how I fare; a sudden night
Flows through my entrails, and a headlong chaos
Murmurs within me, which I must digest,
And not drown her in my confusions. 155
That was my life's joy, being best inform'd.

1 Absolute.  2 Pledge.  3 Wondered.

Sweet, you must needs forgive me, that my love
(Like to a fire disdaining his suppression) Rag'd being discourag'd; my whole heart is wounded
When any least thought in you is but toucht,
And shall be till I know your former merits;
Your name and memory altogether have
In just oblivion their eternal grave;
And then you must hear from me, there's no mean
In any passion I shall feel for you.  176
Love is a razor, cleansing being well us'd,
But fetcheth blood still being the least abus'd.
To tell you briefly all: the man that left me
When you appear'd, did turn me worse than
woman,
And stabb'd me to the heart thus, with his fingers.  180
Ta. Oh, happy woman! Comes my stain from
him,
It is my beauty, and that innocence proves
That slow Chimera, rescued Peleus
From all the savage beasts in Pelion,
And rais'd the chaste Athenian prince 5 from
hell;
All suffering with me, they for women's lusts,
I for a man's, that the Argus stable
Of his foul sin would empty in my lap.
How his guilt shunn'd me, sacred innocence
That where thou fear'st, art dreadful 6 and his face
Turn'd in flight from thee, that had thee in chase!
Come, bring me to him; I will tell the serpent Even to his venom'd teeth (from whose curst seed
A pitch'ct field starts up 'twixt my lord and me)
That his throat lies, and he shall curse his fingers, 190
For being so govern'd by his filthy soul.
Mont. I know not if himself will vaunt 't have been
The princely author of the slavish sin,
Or any other; he would have resolv'd 7 me
Had you not come; not by his word, but writing,
Would I have sworn to give it him again, 201
And pawn'd mine honour to him for a paper.
Ta. See how he flies me still; 'tis a foul heart That fears his own hand. Good my lord, make haste
To see the dangerous paper; papers hold
Oft-times the forms and copies of our souls, 206
And, though the world despise them, are the prizes
Of all our honours; make your honour then
A hostage for it, and with it confer
My nearest woman here, in all she knows; 210
Who (if the sun or Cerberus could have seen Any stain in me) might as well as they;
And, Pero, here I charge thee by my love,
And all proofs of it (which I might call bounties),
By all that thou hast seem seem good in me, 215
And all the ill which thou shouldst spit from thee.

4 Making horns.  6 Hippolytus.
5 Art feared even by those thou fearest.
7 Informed.
BUSSY D'AMBOIS

By pity of the wound this touch hath given me,
Not as thy mistress now, but a poor woman,
To death given over, rid me of my pain; 216
Pour on thy powder; clear thy breast of me;
My lord is only here; here speak thy worst,
Thy best will do me mischief. If thou sparest me,
Never shine good thought on thy memory!
Resolve, my lord, and leave me desperate.

Pe. My lord! My lord hath play’d a prodi-gal’s part,
To break his stock for nothing; and an insolent,
To cut a gordan when he could not loose it.
What violence is this, to put true fire
To a false train? to blow up long-crown’d peace
With sudden outrage, and believe a man 220
Sworn to the shame of women, ’gainst a woman,
Born to their honours? But I will to him.

Ta. No, I will write (for I shall never more Meet with the fugitive) where I will defy him,
Were he ten times the brother of my king. 225
To him, my lord, and I’ll to cursing him.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II.]

Enter D’Ambois and Friar.

Bu. I am suspicious, my most honour’d father,
By some of Monsieur’s cunning passages,
That his still ranging and contentious nostrils,
To scent the haunts of mischief have so us’d
The vicious virtue of his busy sense.
That he trails bodily of him, and will rouse him,
Driving him all engag’d and foaming, on us;
And therefore have entreated your deep skill
In the command of good aerial spirits,
To assume these magic rites, and call up one
To know if any have reveal’d unto him
Anything touching my dear love and me.

Fr. Good son, you have amaz’d me but to make
The least doubt of it, it concerns so nearly
The faith and reverence of my name and order.
Yet will I justify, upon my soul,
All I have done.
If any spirit i’ the earth or air
Can give you the resolve, 2 they do not despair.

Music. Tamylla enters with Pero, her maid, bearing a letter.

Ta. Away, deliver it:
Exit Pero.

Fill’d with the poison of a woman’s hate 21
When he shall open them, shrink up his ensters
With torturous darkness, such as stands in hell,
Stuck full of inward horrors, never lighted;
With which are all things to be fear’d, affrighted;

[Father!

Ascendit Bussy with Friar.] 8

Bu. How is it with my honour’d mistress?
Ta. O servant, help, and save me from the gripes

[1 A room in Montsury’s house.
2 Certainty.
3 Q. 1641 omits. But we must suppose that D’Ambois and the Friar have withdrawn during Pero’s presence.

Of shame and infamy. Our love is known:
Your Monsieur hath a paper where is writ
Some secret tokens that decipher it.

Bu. What cold dull northern brain, what fool
But he
Durst take into his Epimethean breast
A box of such plagues as the danger yields
Incur’d in this discovery? He had better
Ventur’d his breast in the consuming reach
Of the hot surfets cast out of the clouds,
Or stood the bullets that (to wreak the sky)
The Cyclops ram in Jove’s artillery.

Fr. We soon will take the darkness from his
face

That did that deed of darkness; we will know
What now the Monsieur and your husband do;
What is contain’d within the secret paper
Offer’d by Monsieur, and your love’s events:
To which ends, honour’d daughter, at your motion,
I have put on these exorcising rites,
And, by my power of learned holiness
Vouchsaft me from above, I will command
Our resolution 4 of a raised spirit.

Ta. Good father, raise him in some bea-teous form
That with least terror I may brook his sight.

Fr. Stand sure together, then, what’er ye see,
And stir not, as ye tender all our lives.

He puts on his robes.
Occidantium legionum spiritualium imperator (magnus ille Behemoth) venit, venit, comitatus cum Asaroth locotenente invicto. Adjuro te per Stygia [as inscrutabilta arcanam, per ipso irremercabilis infactus Avernt: adesco o Behemoth, tu cum pervia sunt Magnatum scriemia; venit, per Noctis & lenebrum abdita profundissima; per labentia sidera: per ipsomos horarum furitric, Hecateisque altum silen-tium. Appare in forma spirituali, lucentes, splendida & amabilis.

[Thunder. Ascendit Behemoth with Cartophylax and other spirits.]

Beh. What would the holy Friar?
Fr. I would see
What now the Monsieur and Montsury do;
And see the secret paper that the Monsieur
Offer’d to Count Montsury, longing much
To know on what events the secret loves
Of these two honour’d persons shall arrive.

Beh. Why call’dst thou me to this accursed light
To these light purposes? I am emperor
Of that inscrutable darkness where are hid
All deepest truths, and secrets never seen,
All which I know; and command legions
Of knowing spirits that can do more than these.
Any of this my guard that circle me
In these blue fires, and out of whose dim fumes Vast murmurs use to break, and from their sounds
Articulate voices, can do ten parts more
Than open such slight truths as you require.
Fr. From the last night’s black depth I call’d up one

4 Information.
Of the inferior ablest ministers,
And he could not resolve it: Send one then
Out of thine own command, to fetch the paper
That Monsieur hath to show to Count Montsurry.
Beh. I will. Cartophylax, thou that properly
Hast in thy hand all papers so inscrib'd,
Glide through all bars to it and fetch that paper.
Cartoph. I will.
Fr. Till he returns, great prince of darkness,
Tell me if Monsieur and the Count Montsurry
Are yet encounter'd?
Beh. Both them and the Guise
Are now together.
Fr. Show us all their persons,
And represent the place, with all their actions.
Beh. The spirit will straight return; and then I'll show thee.
See, he is come; why brought'st thou not the paper?
Cartoph. He hath prevented me, and got a spirit
Rais'd by another, great in our command,
To take the guard of it before I came.
Beh. This is your slackness, not 't invoke our powers
When first your acts set forth to their effects;
Yet shall you see it and themselves. Behold
They come here, and the Earl now holds the paper.

Enter Monsieur, Guise, Montsurry, with a paper.
Bu. May we not hear them?
Fr. No, be still and see.
Bu. I will go fetch the paper.
Fr. Do not stir;
There's too much distance and too many looks Twist you and them, bow near see'er they seem,
For any man to interrupt their secrets.
Ta. O honour'd spirit, fly into the fancy
Of my offended lord, and do not let him
Believe what there the wicked man hath written.
Beh. Persuasion hath already enter'd him
Beyond reflection; peace till their departure!

Mo.1 There is a glass of ink 2 where you may see
How to make ready black-fae'd tragedy.
You now discern, I hope, through all her paintings,
Her gasping wrinkles, and fame's sepulchres.
Gu. Think you he feigns, my lord? What hold you now?
Do we malign your wife, or honour you?
Mo. What, stricken dumb! Nay lie, lord, be not daunted;
Your case is common; were it no' er so rare,
Bear it as rarely. Now to laugh were manly.
A worthy man should imitate the weather
That sings in tempests, and being clear is silent.
Gu. Go home, my lord, and force your wife to write
Such loving lines to D'Ambois as she us'd.
When she desir'd his presence,
Mo. Do, my lord,

And make her name her conceal'd messenger,
That close and most inmemorable 6 pander,
That passeth all our studies to exquire;
By whom convey the letter to her love:
And so you shall be sure to have him come
Within the thirsty reach of your revenge.
Before which, lodge an ambush in her chamber
Behind the arras, of your stoutest men
All close 8 and soundly arm'd; and let them share
A spirit amongst them that would serve a thousand.

Enter Pero with a letter.
Gu. Yet stay a little; see, she sends for you.
Mo. Poor, loving lady; she'll make all good yet,
Think you not so, my lord?

Mo. You now peruse our letter.
Exeunt Monsieur, Guise. Lead her out.

Bu. Will he appear to me when I invoke him?
Fr. He will, be sure.
Bu. It must be shortly then:
For his dark words have tied my thoughts on knots,
Till he dissolve, and free them.

Ta. In meantime, dear servant, till your powerful voice revoke
him,
BUSSY D'AMBOIS

v. i.

Nor any sleeper; your wife is your laurel,
Sweetest sleeper; do not touch her then;
Be not more rude than the wild seed of vapour,
To her that is more gentle than that rude;
In whom kind nature suffer'd one offence
But to set off her other excellence.

Mont. Good father, leave us; interrupt no more
The scene I must run for mine honour sake.
Rely on my love to her, which her fault
Cannot extinguish. Will she but disclose
Who was the secret minister of her love,
And through what maze he serv'd it, we are friends.

Fr. It is a damn'd work to pursue those secrets That would ope more sin, and prove springs of slaughter;
Nor is't a path for Christian feet to tread,
But out of all way to the health of souls,
A sin impossible to be forgiven;
Which he that dares commit

Mont. Good father, cease your terrors;
Tempt not a man distracted; I am apt
To outrages that I shall ever rue;
I will not pass the verge that bounds a Christian,
Nor break the limits of a man nor husband.

Fr. Then Heaven inspire you both with thoughts and deeds
Worthy his high respect, and your own souls.

Tu. Father!

Fr. I warrant thee, my dearest daughter,
He will not touch thee; think'st thou him a pagan?

His honour and his soul lies for thy safety.

Mont. Who shall remove the mountain from my breast?
Stand [in] 6 the opening furnace of my thoughts,
And set fit outeries for a soul in hell?

Montsurrv turns a key.
For now it nothing fits my woes to speak
But thunder, or to take into my throat
The trump of heaven, with whose determinate 7 blast
The winds shall burst, and the devouring seas
Be drunk up in his sounds; that my hot woes
(Vented enough) I might convert to vapour,
Ascending from my infamy unseen;

Shorten the world, preventing 8 the last breath
That kills the living and regenerates death.

Tu. My lord, my fault (as you may censure 9
it
With too strong arguments) is past your pardon:
But how the circumstances may excuse me
Heaven knows, and your more temperate mind henceforth
May let my penitent miseries make you know.

Mont. Hereafter? 'Tis a suppos'd infinite,
That from this point will rise eternally.

Fame grows in going; in the scapes 11 of virtue
Exeuses damn her: they be fires in cities
Enrag'd with those winds that less lights ex-inguish.

7 The dead.
8 Judge.
9 Escapades.
Come, syren, sing, and dash against my rocks
Thy ruffian galley, rigg'd with quench for lust;
Sing, and put all the nets into thy voice
With which thou drew'st into thy strumpet's lap
The spawn of Venus; and in which ye danc'd;
That, in thy lap's stead, I may dig his tomb,
And quit his manhood with a woman's sleight,
Who never is deceiv'd in her deceit.
Sing (that is, write), and then take from mine
The mists that hide the most inscrutable pander
That ever lappt up an adulterous vomit,
That I may see the devil, and survive
To be a devil, and then learn to wive;
That I may hang him, and then cut him down,
Then cut him up, and with my soul's beams search
The cranks and caverns of his brain, and study
The errant wilderness of a woman's face;
Where men cannot get out, for all the comets
That have been lighted at it; though they know
That adders lie a-running in their smiles,
That basilisks drink their poison from their eyes,
And no way there to coast out to their hearts;
Yet still they wander there, and are not stay'd
Till they be fetter'd, nor secure before
All cares devour them; nor in human consort
Till they embrace within their wife's two breasts
All Pelion and Cythaeon with their beasts.
Why write you not?
To.
O good my lord, forbear
In wreak of great faults, to engender greater,
And make my love's corruption generate murder.
Mont. It follows needfully as child and parent;
The chain-shot of thy lust is yet aloft,
And it must murder; 'tis thine own dear twin:
No man can add height to a woman's sin,
Vice never doth her just hate so provoke,
As when she ragers under virtue's cloak.
Write I for it must be — by this ruthless steel,
By this impartial torture, and the death
Thy tyrannies have invented in my entrails,
To quicken life in dying, and hold up
The spirits in fainting, teaching to preserve,
Torments in ashes, that will ever last.
Speak! Will you write?
Ta.
Sweet lord, enjoin my sin
Some other penance than what makes it worse;
Hide in some gloomy dungeon my loath'd face,
And let condemned murderers let me down
(Stopping their noses) my abhorred food;
Hang me in chains, and let me eat these arms
That have offended; bind me face to face
To some dead woman, taken from the cart
Of execution, till death and time
In grins of dust dissolve me; I'll endure;
Or any torture that your wrath's invention
Can fright all pity from the world withal;
But to betray a friend with show of friendship,
That is too common for the rare revenge

Your rage affectest. Here then are my breasts,
Last night your pillows; here my wretched arms,
As late the wished confines of your life;
Now break them as you please, and all the bounds
Of manhood, noblesse, and religion.
Mont. Where all these have been broken,
They are kept,
In doing their justice there with any show
Of the like cruel cruelty; thine arms have lost
Their privilege in lust, and in their torture
Thus they must pay it.
Stabs her.
Ta.
O Lord!
Mont.
Till thou wittest,
I'll write in wounds (my wrong's fit characters)
Thy right of sufferance. Write.
Ta.
Oh, kill me, kill me;
Dear husband, be not crueler than death,
You have beheld some Gorgon; feel, oh, feel
How you are turn'd to stone. With my heart-blood
Dissolve yourself again, or you will grow
Into the image of all tyranny.
Mont. As thou art of adultery; I will ever
Prove thee my parallel, being most a monster;
Thus I express thee yet. Stabs her again.
Ta.
And yet I live.
Mont. Ay, for thy monstrous idol is not done yet;
This tool hath wrought enough; now, torture,

Enter Servants.

This other engine on th' habituate powers
Of her thrice-damn'd and whorish fortitude.
Use the most maddening pains in her that ever
Thy venoms soak'd through, making most of death;
That she may weigh her wrongs with them,
and then
Stand vengeance on thy stepest rock, a victor.
Ta. Oh, who is turn'd into my lord and husband?
Husband! My lord! None but my lord and husband!
Heaven, I ask thee remission of my sins,
Not of my pains; husband, oh, help me, husband!

Ascendit Friar with a sword drawn.

Fr. What rape of honour and religion —
Oh, wreck of nature! Falls and dies.
Ta.
Poor man; oh, my father.
Father, look up; oh, let me down, my lord,
And I will write.
Mont.
Author of prodigies!
What new flame breaks out of the firmament?
That turns up counsels never known before?
Now is it true, earth moves, and heaven stands still;
Even heaven itself must see and suffer ill.
The too huge bias of the world hath sway'd
Her back part upwards, and with that she braves

1 Hid. 2 In spite of. 3 Revenge. 4 Tamrya is now put on the rack.
This hemisphere, that long her mouth hath mocks;
The gravity of her religious face,
Now worn too weighty with her sacrilege,
And here discern'd sophisticate enough.

Turns to th' antipodes; and all the forms
That her illusions have impressed in her,
Have eaten through her back; and now all see,
How she is riveted with hypocrisy.

Was this the way? Was he the mean betwixt you?
Ta. He was, he was, kind worthy man, he was.

Mont. Write, write a word or two.
Ta. I will, I will.

I'll write, but with my blood, that he may see
These lines come from my wounds, and not from me.
Writs.

Mont. Well might he die for thought; methinks the frame
And shaken joints of the whole world should
To see her parts so disproportionate;
And that his general beauty cannot stand
Without these stains in the particular man.

Why wander I so far? Here, here was she
That was a whole world without spot to me, Though now a world of spots. Oh, what a lightning
Is man's delight in women! What a bubble
He builds his state, fame, life on, when he marries!
Since all earth's pleasures are so short and small,
The way 't enjoy it, is 't abuse it all.

Enough! I must be messenger myself, Disguis'd like this strange creature. In, I'll after,
To see what guilty light gives this cave eyes,
And to the world sing new impieties.

He puts the Friar in the vault and follows. She wraps herself in the arras. Exeunt [servants].

SCENE II.]

Enter Monsieur and Guise.

Mo. Now shall we see that Nature hath no end
In her great works responsive to their worths,
That she, that makes so many eyes and souls to see and foresee, is stark blind herself;
And as illiterate men say Latin prayers
By rote of heart and daily iteration,
Not knowing what they say, so Nature lays
A deal of stuff together, and by use,
Or by the mere necessity of matter,
Ends such a work, fills it, or leaves it empty.

Of strength or virtue, error or clear truth,
Not knowing what she does; but usually
Gives that which she calls merit to a man,
And belief must arise him on huge riches,
Honour, and happiness, that effects his ruin;
Even as in ships of war, whose last powder Are laid, men think, to make them last, and guard them,
When a disorder'd spark, that powder taking,
Blows up with sudden violence and horror Ships that kept empty; had sail'd long, with terror.

Gu. He that observes, but like a worldly man,
That which doth oft succeed, and by th' events
Values the worth of things, will think it true
That Nature works at random, just with you;
But with as much proportion she may make
A thing that from the feet up to the throat
 Hath all the wondrous fabric man should have,
And leave it headless, for a perfect man,
As give a full man valour, virtue, learning,
Without an end more excellent than those,
On whom she no such worthy part bestows.

Mo. Yet shall you see it here; here will be one Young, learned, valiant, virtuous, and full mank'd.

One on whom Nature spent so rich a hand
That with an ominous eye she wags to see
So much consum'd her virtuous hand.
Yet, as the winds sing through a hollow tree,
And (since it lets them pass through) lets it
stand;
But a tree solid (since it gives no way
To their wild rage) they rend up by the root;
So this whole man,
(That will not with every crooked way,
Trod by the servile world) shall reel and fall
Before the frantic puffs of blind-born chance,
That pipe through empty men, and makes them
dance.
Not so the sea raves on the Lybian sands,
Tumbling her billows in each other's neck;
Not so the surges of the Enixine sea (Near to the frosty pole, where free Boites
From those deep dark waves turns his radiant team)
Swell, being enrag'd even from their inmost drop,
As Fortune swings about the restless state
Of virtue, now thrown into all men's hate.

Enter Montesquieux disguis'd with the Murderers.

Away, my lord, you are perfectly disguis'd,
Leave us to lodge your ambush.

Mont. Speed me, vengeance. Exit.

Mo. Resolve, my masters, you shall meet with
one
Will try what proofs your privy coats are made on;
When he is ent'red, and you hear us stamp,
Approach, and make all sure.

Murd. • We will, my lord. Exeunt.

1 Her, referring to world, would be expected. He seems to refer to man, in next line.
2 A room in Montesquieux's house.
3 In place of Not . . . say, Qn. 1607, 8 read,
In whose hot zeal a man would think they knew
What they ran so away with, and were sure
To have rewards proportion'd to their labours;
Yet may improve their own confusions
For anything they know, which often times
It fails out they incur.
4 Bring.
5 To their enemies. (Boss.)
6 Store of virtues.
7 Boss amends to methinks. Coats of mail.
[Scene III.]

D'AMBOIS with two Pages with tapers.

Bu. Sit up to-night, and watch; I'll speak with none
But the old Friar, who bring to me.

Pa. We will, sir. Exeunt.

Bu. What violent heat is this? Methinks the fire
Of twenty lives doth on a sudden flash
Through all my faculties; the air goes high.
In this close chamber, and the frighted earth Trembles, and shrinks beneath me; the whole house
Nods with his shaken burthen.

Enter Umbra Friar.

Bless me, heaven!

Um. Note what I want, dear son, and be forewarn'd;
O there are bloody deeds past and to come.
I cannot stay; a fate doth ravish me;
I'll meet thee in the chamber of thy love. Exit.

Bu. What dismal change is here; the good old Friar
Is murder'd; being made known to serve my love;

And now his restless spirit would forewarn me
Of some plot dangerous and imminent.

Note what he wants? He wants his upper weed,
He wants his life and body; which of these Should be the want he means, and may supply me

With any fit forewarning? This strange vision (Together with the dark prediction
Us'd by the Prince of Darkness that was rais'd
By this embodied shadow) stir my thoughts
With remission of the spirit's promise,
Who told me that by any invocation
I should have power to raise him, though it wanted
The powerful words and decent rights of art.

Never had my set brain such need of spirit,
'T instruct and cheer it; now, then, I will claim Performance of his free and gentle vow
'T appear in greater light, and make more plain His rugged oracle. I long to know
How my dear mistress fares, and be informed
What hand she now holds on the troubled blood Of her incarned lord. Methought the spirit
(When he had utter'd his perplexed presage)
Threw his chang'd countenance headlong into clouds,
His forehead bent, as it would hide his face,
He knockt his chin against his dark'ned breast,
And struck a shrillish silence through his powers.

Terror of darkness! O, thou king of flames!
That with thy music-footed horse dost strike
The clear light out of crystal on dark earth,
And hurl'st instructive fire about the world,
Wake, wake the drowsy and enchanted night,
That sleeps with dead eyes in this heavy riddle!
Or thou great prince of shades, where never sun

Sticks his far-darted beams, whose eyes are made
To shine in darkness, and see ever best
Where men are blindest, open now the heart
Of thy abashed oracle, that, for fear
Of some ill it includes, would fain lie hid,
And rise thou with it in thy greater light.

Thunders. Surgit Spiritus cum suis.

Beh. Thus to observe my vow of apparition
In greater light, and, explicate thy fate,
I come; and tell thee that if thou obey
The summons that thy mistress next will send thee,

Her hand shall be thy death.

Bu. When will she send?

Beh. Soon as I set again, where late I rose.

Bu. Is the old Friar slain?

Beh. No, and yet lives not.

Bu. Died he a natural death?

Beh. He did.

Bu. Will my dear mistress send?

Beh. I must not tell thee.

Bu. Who lets thee?

Beh. Fate.

Bu. Who are fate's ministers?

Bu. A fit pair of shears

To cut the threads of kings and kingly spirits,
And consorts fit to sound forth harmony.

Set to the falls of kingdoms; shall the hand
Of my kind mistress kill me?

Bu. If thou yield
To her next summons, y 'are fair-war'd: farewell!

Bu. I must fare well, however, though I die,
My death consenting 4 with his augury.

Should not my powers obey when she commands,
My motion must be rebel to my will,
My will to life; if, when I have obey'd,
Her hand should so reward me, they must arm it,

Bind me or force it: or, I lay my life,
She rather would convert it many times
On her own bosom, even to many deaths;
But were there danger of such violence,
I know 'tis far from her intent to send;

And who she should send is as far from thought,
Since he is dead, whose only mean she us'd.

Knocks.

Who's there! Look to the door, and let him in,
Though politic Monsieur or the violent Guise.

Enter Montsury, like the Friar, with a letter written in blood.

Mont. Hail to my worthy son.

Bu. Oh, lying spirit! To say the Friar was dead; I'll now believe

2 Prevents.  4 Agreeing.  6 O lying ... calls him. For these lines, Q. 1607, 8, read: Buss. O lying Spirit! Welcome, loved father, How fares my dearest mistress?

Mont. Well as ever, Being well as ever thought on by her lord; Whereof she sends this witness in her hand, And prays, for urgent cause, your speediest presence.
Nothing of all his forg'd predictions.
My kind and honour'd father, well reviv'd,
I have been frighted with your death and mine,
And told my mistress' hand should be my death
If I obey'd this summons.

Mont. I believ'd
Your love had been much clearer than to give Any such doubt a thought, for she is clear,
And having freed her husband's jealousy
(Of which her much abus'd hand here is witness)
She prays, for urgent cause, your instant presence.

Bu. Why, then your prince of spirits may be call'd
The prince of liars.

Bu. What, writ in blood?

Bu. O, 'tis the ink of lovers.

Mont. So much elixir of her blood is this Dropt in the lightest dame, would make her firm
As heat to fire; and, like to all the signs,
Commands the life confin'd in all my veins.
O, how it multiplies my blood with spirit,
And makes me apt 't encounter death and hell.
But come, kind father, you fetch me to heaven,
And to that end your holy weed was given.

Exeunt.

[SCENE IV.]

Thunder. Intrat Umbra Friar, and discovers Tamyra.

Um. Up with these foolish thoughts, still loved daughter,
And strike away this heartless trance of anguish.
Be like the sun, and labour in eclipses;
Look to the end of woes: oh, can you sit
Mustering the horrors of your servant's slaughter
Before your contemplation, and not study
How to prevent it? Watch when he shall rise,
And with a sudden outcry of his murder,
Blow't your retreat before he be OFF.

Ta. O father, have my dumb woes wak'd your death?
When will our human griefs be at their height?
Man is a tree that hath no top in cares,
No root in comforts; all his power to live
Is given to no end, but t' have power to grieve.

Um. It is the misery of our creation.

Your true friend,
Led by your husband, shadowed in my weed,
Now enters the dark vault.

Ta. But, my dearest father,
Why will not you appear to him yourself,
And see that none of these deceits annoy him?

Um. My power is limited; alas! I cannot.
All that I can do — See, the cave opens.

Exit. D'Ambois at the gulf.

Ta. Away, my love, away; thou wilt be murder'd!

Enter Monsieur and Guise above.

Bu. Murder'd; I know not what that Hebrew means:
That word had never been nam'd had all been
As D'Ambois.

Monsieur. That shows me not a murderer; what such bug Ahborreth not the very sleep of D'Ambois?

Bu. Murder'd? Who dares give all the room I see
To D'Ambois' reach? or look with any odds
His fight 't th' face, upon whose hand sits death;
Whose sword hath wings, and every feather pierceth?

If I scape Monsieur's 'pothecary shops,
"Twas ill plotted;

They should have shown man'd me here,
When I was rising. I am up and ready.
Let in my politic visitants, let them in Though entr'ring like so many moving armours,
Fate is more strong than arms and fly than treason,
And I at all parts buck'ld in my fate.

Mo. Why enter not the coward villains?

Bu. Dare they not come?

Enter Murderers with Friar at the other door.

Ta. They come.

1 Mur. Come all at once.

Um. Back, coward murderers, back.

Omn. Defend us, heaven.

Exeunt all but the first.

1 Mur. Come ye not on?

Bu. No, slave, nor goest thou off.

[Strikes at him.]

Stand you so firm? Will it not enter here?

You have a face yet; so in thy life's flame
I burn the first rites to my mistress' fame.

Um. Breathe thee, brave son, against the other charge.

Bu. Oh, is it true then that my sense first told me?

Is my kind father dead?

Ta. He is, my love,

'Twas the Earl, my husband, in his weed that brought thee.

Bu. That was a speeding sleight, and well resembled.

Where is that angry Earl? My lord, come forth
And show your own face in your own affair;
Take not into your noble veins the blood
Of these base villains, nor the light reports
Of blister'd tongues for clear and weighty truth;
But me against the world, in pure defence
Of your rare lady, to whose spotless name
I stand here as a bulwark, and project
A life to her renown, that ever yet
Hath been untainted, even in envy's eye,
And where it would protect a sanctuary.
Brave Earl, come forth, and keep your scandal
in;
'Tis not our fault if you enforce the spot
Nor the wreak yours if you perform it not.

Enter Montsury, with all the Murderers.

Mont. Cowards, a fiend or spirit beat ye off!
They are your own faint spirits that have for'd
The fearful shadows that your eyes deluded.
The fiend was in you; cast him out then, thus.
D'Ambois hath Mont. down.

Ta. Favour my lord, my love, O, favour him!
Bu. I will not touch him: take your life, my lord,
And be appeas'd.

Pistols shot within.

O, then the coward Fates
Have maim'd themselves, and ever lost their honour.

Um. What have ye done, slaves? Irreligious lord!

Bu. Forbear them, father; 'tis enough for me
That Guise and Monsieur, death and destiny,
Come behind D'Ambois. Is my body, then,
But penetrable flesh? And must my mind
Follow my blood? Can my divine part add
No aid to th' earthly in extremity?

Then these divines are but for form, not fact. Man is of two sweet courtly friends compact,
A mistress and a servant; let my death
Define life nothing but a courtier's breath.
Nothing is made of nought, of all things made,
Their abstract being a dream but of a shade.
'I'll not complain to earth yet, but to heaven,
And, like a man, look upwards even in death.
And if Vespasian thought in majesty
An emperor might die standing, why not I?

She offers to help him.

Nay, without help, in which I will exceed him;
For he died splinted with his chamber grooms. Prop me, true sword, as thou hast ever done:
The equal thought I bear of life and death.
Shall make me faint on no side; I am up.
Here like a Roman statue I will stand.
Till death hath made me marble. Oh, my fame,
Live in despair of murder; take thy wings
And haste thee where the grey-ey'd morn per fumes

Her rosy chariot with Sabaean spices;
Fly, where the evening from th' Iberian vales,
Takes on their swarthy shoulders Hecate,
Crownd with a grove of oaks; fly where men fell
The burning axletree; and those that suffer
Beneath the chariot of the snowy Bear;
And tell them all that D'Ambois now is hast-
ing

To the eternal dwellers; that a thunder
Of all their sighs together (for their frailties Beheld in me) may quit my worthless fall
With a fit volley for my funeral.

Um. Forgive thy murderers.

Bu. I forgive them all; And you, my lord, their fator; for true sign
Of which unfeign'd remission, take my sword;
Take it, and only give it motion,
And it shall find the way to victory
By his own brightness, and th' inherent valour
My fight hath 'still'd into t', with charms of spirit.

Now let me pray you that my weighty blood
Laid in one scale of your impartial spleen,
May sway the forfeit of my worthy love
Weigh'd in the other; and be reconcil'd
With all forgiveness to your matchless wife.

Ta. Forgive thou me, dear servant, and this hand
That led thy life to this unworthy end;
Forgive it, for the blood with which 't is stain'd,
In which I write the summons of thy death;
The forced summons, by this bleeding wound,
By this here in my bosom; and by this
That makes me hold up both my hands imbru'd
For thy dear pardon.

Bu. O, my heart is broken.
Fate, nor these murderers, Monsieur, nor the Guise,
Have any glory in my death, but this,
This killing spectacle, this prodigy.
My sun is turn'd to blood, in whose red beams
Findus and Ossa, hid in drifts of snow
Laid on my heart and liver; from their veins
Melt like two hungry torrents, eating rocks
Into the ocean of all human life,
And make it bitter, only with my blood.
O frail condition of strength, valour, virtue,
In me (like warning fire upon the top
Of some steep beacon on a steeper hill)
Made to express it: like a falling star
Silently glance'd, that like a thunderbolt
Lookt to have struck and shook the firmament.

Mortur.

Um. [My terrors are struck inward, and no more
My penance will allow they shall enforce
Earthly afflictions but upon myself.] Farewell, brave relics of a complete man!

Look up and see thy spirit made a star,
Join flames with Hercules, and when thou sett'st

Thy radiant forehead in the firmament,
Make the vast crystal crack with thy receipt;
Spread to a world of fire; and th' aged sky
Cheer with new sparks of old humanity.
[To Mont.] Son of the earth, whom my un-rested soul,
Rues t' have begotten in the faith of heaven;
[Since thy revengeful spirit hath rejected
The charity it commands, and the remission
To serve and worship the blind rage of blood]
Assay to gratulate and pacify
The soul fled from this worthy by performing
The Christian reconcilement he besought.

6 Gratify.
Betwixt thee and thy lady. Let her wounds
Manlessly digg’d in her, be eas’d and cur’d
With balm of thine own tears; or be assur’d
Never to rest free from my haunt and horror.
Mont. See how she merits this, still kneeling by,
And mourning his fall more than her own fault.
Um. Remove, dear daughter, and content thy husband;
So piety willeth thee, and thy servant’s peace.
Tu. O wretched piety, that art so distract
In thine own constancy, and in thy right
Must be unrighteous. If I right my friend, 178
I wrong my husband; if his wrong I shun,
The duty of my friend I leave undone.
ill plays on both sides; here and there it riseth;
No place, no good, so good but ill comprised. [My soul more scruple breeds, than my blood, sin.
Virtue imposeth more than any stepdame;] 2
O had I never married but for form,
Never vow’d faith but purpos’d to deceive,
Never made conscience of any sin,
But cloak’d it privately and made it common;
Nor never honour’d been in blood or mind,
Happy had I been then, as others are
Of the like licence; I had then been honour’d;
Liv’d without envy; custom had benumb’d
All sense of scruple, and all note of frailty; 158
My fame had been untouched, my heart unbrok’en:
But (shunning all) I strike on all offence,
O husband! Dear friend! O my conscience! 184
Mo. Come, let’s away; my senses are not proof Against those plaints.

Exeunt Guise, Monsieur: D’Ambois is borne off.

Mont. I must not yield to pity, nor to love
So servile and so traitorous. Cease, my blood,
To wrangle with my honour, fame, and judgment.—
Away! Forsake my house; forbear complaints
Where thou hast bred them: here all things [are] full
Of their own shame and sorrow; leave my house.

1 Inhumanly.
2 Omitted in Q 1641.

Tu. Sweet lord, forgive me, and I will be gone,
And till these wounds, that never balm shall close
Till death hath enter’d at them, so I love them,
Being opened by your hands, by death be cur’d,
I never more will grieve you with my sight.

Never endure that any roof shall part
Mine eyes and heaven; but to the open deserts
Like to a hunted tigress I will fly,
Eating my heart, shunning the steps of men,
And look on no side till I be arriv’d.
Mont. I do forgive thee, and upon my knees,
With hands held up to heaven, wish that mine honour
Would suffer reconciliation to my love;
But since it will not, honour never serve
My love with flourishing object till it sterre:
And as this taper, though it upwards look,
Downwards must needs consume, so let our love;
As having lost his honey, the sweet taste
Runs into savour, and will needs retain
A spice of his first parents, till, like life,
It sees and dies; so let our love; and lastly,
As when the flame is suffer’d to look up,
It keeps his lustre, but, being thus turn’d down,
(His natural course of useful light inverted),
His own stuff puts it out; so let our love.
Now turn from me, as here I turn from thee,
And may both points of heaven’s straight axletree
Conjoin in one, before thyself and me.

Exeunt severally.

EPILOGUE

With many hands you have seen D’Ambois slain,
Yet by your grace he may revive again,
And every day grow stronger in his skill
To please, as we presume he is in will.
The best deserving actors of the time
Had their ascent, and by degrees did climb
To their full height, a place to study due.
To make him tread in their path lies in you;
He’ll not forget his makers, but still prove
His thankfulness as you increase your love.

PROLOGUE

Though need make many poets, and some such
As art and nature have not better'd much;
Yet ours for want hath not so lov'd the stage,
As he dare serve th' ill customs of the age,
Or purchase your delight at such a rate,
As, for it, he himself must justly hate:
To make a child now swaddled, to proceed
Man, and then shoot up, in one beard and weed,
Past threescore years; or, with three rusty swords,
And help of some few foot-and-half-foot words,
Fight over York and Lancaster's long jars,
And in the tyring-house bring wounds to scars.
He rather prays you will be pleas'd to see
One such to-day, as other plays should be;
Where neither chorus wafts you o'er the seas,
Nor creaking throne comes down the boys to please;
Nor nimble squib is seen to make afraid,
The gentlewomen; nor roll'd bullet heard
To say, it thunders; nor tempestuous drum
Rumbles, to tell you when the storm doth come;
But deeds, and language, such as men do use,
And persons, such as comedy would choose,
When she would shew an image of the times,
And sport with human follies, not with crimes;
Except we make 'em such, by loving still
Our popular errors, when we know they're ill.
I mean such errors as you'll all confess,
By laughing at them, they deserve no less:
When when you heartily do, there's hope left then,
You, that have so grace'd monsters, may like men.

ACT I

Scene I. 3

[Enter Knowell, at the door of his house.]

Know. A goodly day toward, and a fresh morning. —

Brainworm! 4

1 A frequenter of the aisle of St. Paul's Cathedral.
2 Dressing-room.
3 A street in London.

[Enter Brainworm.]

Call up your young master: bid him rise, sir.
Tell him, I have some business to employ him.

Brai. I will, sir, presently.

Know. But hear you, sirrah, if he be at his book, disturb him not.

Brai. Well, sir.

Know. How happy yet should I esteem myself,
Could I, by any practice, wean the boy
From one vain course of study he affects.
He is a scholar, if a man may trust
The liberal voice of fame in her report,
Of good account in both our Universities,
Either of which hath favour'd him with grace:
But their indulgence must not spring in me
A fond 1 opinion that he cannot err.
Myself was once a student, and, indeed,
Fed with the self-same humour he is now,
Dreaming on nought but idle poetry,
That fruitless and unprofitable art,
Good unto none, but least to the professors;
Which then I thought the mistress of all knowledge;
But since, time and the truth have wak'd my judgment,
And reason taught me better to distinguish
The vain from th' useful learnings.

[Enter Master Stephen.]

What news with you, that you are here so early?
Step. Nothing, but a'en come to see how you do, uncle.
Know. That's kindly done; you are welcome, coz.

Step. Ay, I know that, sir; I would not ha' come else.
How does my cousin Edward, uncle?
Know. O, well, coz; go in and see; I doubt he be scarce stirring yet.

Step. Uncle, afore I go in, can you tell me, an he have e'er a book of the sciences of hawk-

Know. Why, I hope you will not a hawk a newing now, will you?

Step. No, wuss; 2 but I'll practise against next year, uncle. I have bought me a hawk, and a hood, and bells, and all; I lack nothing but a book to keep it by.

Know. Oh, most ridiculous!

Step. Nay, look you now, you are angry, 3 as uncle.—Why, you know an man have not skill in the hawking and hunting languages now-a-days, I'll not give a rush for him: they are more studied than the Greek, or the Latin. 4
He is for no gallant's company without 'em; and by gads I! 5 I scorn it, I, so I do, to be a consort for every humdrum: hang 'em, scroyles! 6 4 there's nothing in 'em i' the world. What do you talk on it? Because I dwell at Hogaden, 6 I 5 I shall keep company with none but the archers of Finsbury, or the citizens that come a ducking to Islington ponds! A fine jest, i' faith! 7

Slid, 8 a gentleman man 9 show himself like a gentleman. Uncle, I pray you be not angry; I know what I have to do, I trow, I am no 10 novise.

Know. You are a prodigal, absurd coxcomb, you go to,
Nay, never look at me, 'tis I that speak:
'Take it as you will, sir, I'll not flatter you.
Ha' you not yet found means enow to waste 55

1 Foolish.
2 I-was, certainly.
3 By God's eyelid—one of the frequent oaths by parts of Christ's body.
4 Scalps, scurrvy fellows.
5 Hoxton. 6 Must.

That which your friends have left you, but you must Go cast away your money on a kite,
And know not how to keep it, when you ha' done?

O, it's comely! This will make you a gentle-
man!
Well, cousin, well, I see you are e'en past hope
Of all reclaim.—Ay, so, now you are told on't,
You look another way.

Step. What would you ha' me do?
Know. What would I have you do? I'll tell you, kinsman;
Learn to be wise, and practise how to thrive;
That would I have you do: and not to spend
Your coin on every bauble you fancy,
Or every foolish brain that humours you.
I would not have you to invade each place,
Nor thrust yourself on all societies,
Till men's affections, or your own desert,
Should worthily invite you to your rank.
He that is so respectless in his courses,
Oft sells his reputation at cheap market.
Nor would I you should melt away yourself
In flashing bravery, 7 lest, while you affect 8
To make a blaze of gentry to the world,
A little puff of scorn extinguish it:
And you be left like an unsavoury suflf,
Whose property is only to offend.
I'd ha' you sober, and contain yourself,
Not that your saib be bigger than your boat;
But moderate your expenses now, at first,
As you may keep the same proportion still:
Nor stand so much on your gentility,
Which is an airy and mere borrow'd thing,
From dead men's dust and bones; and none of yours,
Except you make, or hold it. Who comes here?

Scene II. 9

Knowell, Stephen. [Enter a] Servant.

Serv. Save you, gentlemen!

Step. Nay, we do not stand much on our gentility, friend; yet you are welcome: and I assure you mine uncle here is a man of a thousand a year, Middlesex land. He has but one son in 4 all the world, I am his next heir, at the common law, master Stephen, as simple as I stand here, if my cousin die, as there's hope he will.
I have a pretty living o' mine own too, beside, hard by here.

Serv. In good time, sir.

Step. In good time, sir! Why, and in very good time, sir! You do not float, friend, do you?

Serv. Not I, sir.

Step. Not you, sir! you were not best, sir; 10 an you should, here be them can perceive it, and that quickly too; go to: and they can give it again soundly too, an need be.

Serv. Why, sir, let this satisfy you; good faith, I had no such intent.

Step. Sir, an I thought you had, I would talk with you, and that presently. 10

1 Waste your means on showy clothes. 5 Desire.
2 The same. The scene-divisions are Jonson's.
9 At once.
Serv. Good master Stephen, so you may, sir, at your pleasure.

Step. And so I would, sir, good my saucy [35] companion! An you were out o’ mine uncle’s ground, I can tell you; though I do not stand upon my gentility neither, in’t.

Know. Cousin, cousin, will this ne’er be left?
Step. Whoreson, base fellow! a mechanical [39] serving-man! By this cudgel, an ’t were not for shame, I would —

Know. What would you do, you peremptory S[erv.]?
If you cannot be quiet, get you hence.
You see the honest man demeans himself [35]
Modestly tow’rd you, giving no reply
To your unseason’d, quarrelling, rude fashion;
And still you huff 2 it, with a kind of carriage
As void of wit, as of humanity.
Go, get you in; ’fore heaven, I am asham’d 40 Thou hast a kinsman’s interest in me.

[Exit Master Stephen.]

Serv. I pray, sir, is this master Knowell’s house?

Know. Yes, marry is it, sir.
Serv. I should inquire for a gentleman here, one master Edward Knowell; do you know any such, sir, I pray you?

Know. Should I forget myself else, sir.

Serv. Are you the gentleman? Cry you mercy, sir: I was requir’d by a gentleman i’ the [10] city, as I rode out at this end o’ the town, to deliver you this letter, sir.

Know. To me, sir! How do you mean? pray you remember your court’ry. [Reads.] To his most selected friend, master Edward Knowell. [35] What might the gentleman’s name be, sir, that sent it? Nay, pray you be cover’d.

Serv. One master Wellbred, sir.

Know. Master Wellbred! a young gentleman, is he not?

Serv. The same, sir; master Kitely married his sister; the rich merchant i’ the Old Jewry.

Know. You say very true. — Brainworm!

[Enter Brainworm.]

Brai. Sir.

Know. Make this honest friend drink here: pray you, go in.

[Exeunt Brainworm and Servant.]

This letter is directed to my son;
Yet I am Edward Knowell too, and may,
With the safe conscience of good manners, use
The fellow’s error to my satisfaction. 79
Well, I will break it ope (old men are curious);
Be it for the style’s sake and the phrase,
To see if both do answer my son’s praises,
Who is almost grown the idolater
Of this young Wellbred. What have we here?
What’s this? [16]

[Reads.] Why, Ned, I beseech thee, hast thou forsworn all thy friends? i’ the Old Jewry? or dost thou think us all Jews that inhabit there? Yet, if thou dost, come over, and but see our [19]

frippery, 4 change an old shirt for a whole smock with us: do not conceive that antipathy between us and Hogsden, as was between Jews and hog- flesh. Leave thy vigilant father alone, to number over his green apricots, evening and [4] morning, o’ the north-west wall. An I had been his son, I had saw’d him the labour long since, if taking in all the young wenches that pass by at the back-door, and cuddling every kernel of the fruit for ‘em, would ha’ serv’d. But [8] prizeth, come over to me quickly this morning; I have must a present for thee! — our Turkey company never sent the like to the Grand Signior. One is a rhymor, sir, o’ your own batch, your own leaven; but doth think himself poet-maj or o’ the town, willing to be shown, and [35] worthy to be seen. The other — I will not venture his description with you, till you come, because I would ha’ you make hither with an appetite. If the worst of ‘em be not worth your journey, draw your bill of charges, as un- [100] consciencable as any Guildhall verdict will give it you, and you shall be allow’d your viaticum. [From the Windmill.]

From the Bordello it might come as well, The Spittle, or Pict-hatch. Is this the man My son hath sung so, for the happiest wit. The choicest brain, the times have sent us forth!

I know not what he may be in the arts,
Nor what in schools; but, surely, for his manners,
I judge him a profane and dissolute wretch;
Worse by possession of such great good gifts.

Being the master of so loose a spirit.
Why, what unhallow’d ruffian would have writ
In such a scurrilous manner to a friend!

Why should he think I tell 9 my apricots,
Or play the Hesperian dragon with my fruit,

To watch it? Well, my son, I’d thought
You’d had more judgment t’ have made election
Of your companions, than t’ have ta’en on trust
Such petulant, jeering gamesters, that can spare
No argument or subject from their jest.

But I perceive affection makes a fool
Of any man too much the father. — Brainworm!

[Enter Brainworm.]

Brai. Sir.

Know. Is the fellow gone that brought this letter?

Brai. Yes, sir, a pretty while since.

Know. And where’s your young master? 125

Brai. In his chamber, sir.

Know. He spake not with the fellow, did he?

Brai. No, sir, he saw him not.

Know. Take you this letter, and deliver it my son; but with no notice that I have open’d it, on your life.

Brai. O Lord, sir! that were a jest indeed.

[Exit.]
Step. No, faith, it's no boot to follow him now; let him s'en go and hang. Printhee, help to truss 4 me a little: he does so vex me——

Brai. You'll be worst vex'd when you are so truss'd, master Stephen. Best keep unbrac'd, and walk yourself till you be cold; your choler may founder you else.

Step. By my faith, and so I will, now thou tell'st me on't. How dost thou like my leg, Brainworm?

Brai. A very good leg, master Stephen; but the woolen stocking does not commend it so well.

Step. Foh! the stockings be good enough, now summer is coming on, for the dust: I'll have a pair of silk again 6 winter, that I go to dwell in the town. I think my leg would shew in a silk hose——

Brai. Believe me, master Stephen, rarely well.

Step. In sadness, I think it would; I have a reasonable good leg.

Brai. You have an excellent good leg, master Stephen; but I cannot stay to praise it longer now, and I am very sorry for it. [Exit.]

Step. Another time will serve, Brainworm, Grameory for this.

E. Know. Ha, ha, ha! (Laughs, having read the letter.)

Step. 'Slid, I hope he laugh's not at me; an he do——

E. Know. Here was a letter indeed, to be intercepted by a man's father; and do him good with him! He cannot but think most virtuously, both of me, and the sender, sure, that make the careful costermonger of him in our familiar 16 epistles. Well, if he read this with patience I'll be gelt, and troll ballads for Master John Trundle 7 wonder, the rest of my mortality. It is true, and likely, my father may have as much patience as another man, for he takes much 17 physic; and oft taking physic makes a man very patient. But would your packet, Master Wellbred, had arriv'd at him in such a minute of his patience! then we had know'd the end of it, which now is doubtful, and threatens——

[Enter MASTER STEPHEN.] What, my wise 6 cousin! Nay, then I'll furnish our feast with one gull more toward the mess. He writes to me of a brace, and here's one, that's three: oh, for a fourth! Fortune, if ever thou'lt use thine eyes, I entreat thee——

Step. Oh, now I see who he laughed at: he laughed at somebody in that letter. By this good light, an he had laugh'd at me——

E. Know. How now, cousin Stephen, melancholy? 8

Step. Yes, a little: I thought you had laugh'd at me, cousin.

E. Know. Why, what an I had, cos? What would you ha' done?

Step. By this light, I would ha' told mine uncle——

1. Well-bred.
2. A room in Knowell's house.
3. The Albanian patriot, Castriot, whose life was translated from the French in 1598; known also as Lecker (Alexander) Bey, whence Scanderbeg or Scanderbag.

4. Tie the laces which took the place of buttons. It was also slang for beat.
5. Against, in preparation for.
7. A printer.
E. Know. Nay, if you would ha' told your uncle, I did laugh at you, coz.
Step. Did you, indeed?
E. Know. Yes, indeed.
Step. Why then —
E. Know. What then?
Step. I am satisfied; it is sufficient.
E. Know. Why, be so, gentle coz: and, I pray you, let me entreat a courtesy of you. I am sent for this morning by a friend of the Old Jewery, to come to him; it is but crossing over the fields to Moorgate. Will you bear me company? I protest it is not to draw you into bond or any plot against the state, coz.
Step. Sir, that's all one an' t were; you shall command me twice so far as Moorgate, to do you good in such a matter. Do you think I would leave you? I protest —
E. Know. No, no, you shall not protest, coz.
Step. By my tucking, but I will, by your leave: 'twill protest more to my friend, than I shall speak of at this time.
E. Know. You speak very well, coz.
Step. Nay, not so neither, you shall pardon me: but I speak to serve my turn.
E. Know. Your turn, coz! Do you know what you say? A gentleman of your sort, parts, carriage, and estimation, to talk o' your turn i' this company, and to me alone, like a tankard-bearer at a conduit! He! A wight that, hitherto, his every step hath left the stamp of a great foot behind him, as every word the savour of a strong spirit, and he! this man! so grac'd, gilded, or, to use a more fit metaphor, so tin-foil'd by nature, as not ten housewives' pewterer again than he! and he! (as I said last, so I say again, and still shall say it) this man! to conceal such real ornaments as these, and shadow their glory, as a milliner's wife does her wrought stomacher, with a smoky lawn, or a black cypris! O, coz! it cannot be answer'd! go not about it. Drake's old ship at Deptford may sooner circle the world again. Come, wrong not the quality of your desert, with looking downward, coz; but hold up your head, so: and let the idea of what you are portrayed i' your face, that men may read i' your physiognomy. Here within this place is to be seen the true, rare, and accomplish'd monster, or miracle of nature, which is all one. What think you of this, coz?
Step. Why, I do think of it: and I will be more proud, and melancholy, and gentleman-like, than I have been. I'll insure you.
E. Know. Why, that's resolve, master Stephen! — [Aside.] Now, if I can but hold him up to his height, as it is happily begun, it will do well for a suburb humour: we may hap have a match with the city, and play him for forty pound. — Come, coz.
Step. I'll follow you.
E. Know. Follow me! You must go before.

Step. Nay, an I must, I will. Pray you shew me, good cousin.

SCENE IV.

[Enter] Master Mathew.

Mat. I think this be the house. What, ho!

[Enter Cob.]

Cob. Who's there? O, master Mathew! gi' your worship good morning.

Mat. What, Cob! how dost thou, good Cob? Does thou inhabit here, Cob? —
Cob. Ay, sir, and I and my lineage ha' kept a poor house here, in our days.

Mat. Thy lineage, monsieur Cobb! What lineage, what lineage?

Cob. Why, sir, an ancient lineage, and a princely. Mine ance'try came from a king's belly no worse man; and yet no man either, by your worship's leave, I did lie in that, but herring, the king of fish (from his belly I proceed), one o' the monarchs o' the world, I assure you.

Mat. Small a herring! I was broil'd in Adam and Eve's kitchen, do I fetch my pedigree from, by the harrot's book. His cob was my great, great, mighty-great grandfather.

Mat. Why mighty, why mighty, I pray thee?

Cob. O, it was a mighty while ago, sir, and a mighty great cob.

Mat. How know'st thou that?

Cob. How know I! why, I smell his ghost ever and anon.

Mat. A ghost! O unsavoury jest! and the ghost of a herring cob?

Cob. Ay, sir. With favour of your worship's nose, master Mathew. why not the ghost of a herring cob, as well as the ghost of Rasher Bacon?

Mat. Roger Bacon, thou would'st say.

Cob. I say Rasher Bacon. They were both broil'd o' the coals; and a man may smell broil'd meat, I hope! You are a scholar; upsole me that now.

Mat. O raw ignorance! — Cob, canst thou shew me of a gentleman, one captain Bobadill, where his lodging is?

Cob. O, my guest, sir, you mean.

Mat. Thy guest! alas, ha, ha!

Cob. Why do you laugh, sir? Do you not mean captain Bobadill?

Mat. Cob, pray thee advise thyself well; do not wrong the gentleman, and thyself too. I dare be sworn, he scorns thy house; he! he ledge in such a base obscure place as thy house! Tut, I know his disposition so well, he would not lie in thy bed if thou 'dst gi' it him.

Cob. I will not give it him though, sir. Mass, I thought somewhat was in 't, we could not get him to bed all night. Well, sir, though he lie not o' my bed, he lies o' my bench; and an't please you to go up, sir, you shall find him with two cushions under his head, and his cloak wrapt about him, as though he had neither won 9 Usually, the head of a herring. In this play, a herring.

10 Prince; and yet no man either, by your worship's leave, I did lie in that; but herring, the king of fish (from his belly I proceed).

nor lost, and yet, I warrant, he ne'er cast better in his life, than he has done to-night.
Mat. Why, was he drunk?
Cob. Drunk, sir! you hear not me say so. Perhaps he swallowed a tavern-token, or some such device, sir; I have nothing to do withal. I deal with water and not with wine. —Gi' me my tankard there, ho! — God b' wi' you, sir. It's six o'clock: I should ha' carried two turns by this. What ho! my stopple! 3 come.

[Enter Tib with a water-tankard.]
Mat. Lie in a water-bearer's house! a gentleman of his havings! Well, I'll tell you what I think.
Cob, What, Tib! show this gentleman up to the captain. [Exit Tib with MASTER MATHEW.

He useth every day to a merchant's house where I serve water, one master Kitely's, i' the Old Jewry; and here's the jest, he is in love with my master's sister, Mrs. Bridget, and calls her "Mistress"; and there he will sit you a whole afternoon sometimes, reading o' these same abominable, vile (a pox on 'em! I cannot abide them), rascally verses, poetry, poetry, and speaking of interludes; 't will make a man burst to hear him. And the wenches, they do so jear, and th'he at him. — Well, should they do so much to me, I'd forsaken them, all by the foot of Pharaoh! There's an oath! How many water-bearers shall you hear swear such an oath? O, I have a guest — he teaches me — he does swear the legiblest of any man christ'ned: By St. George! The foot of Pharaoh! The body of me! As I am a gentleman and a soldier! such dainty oaths! and withal he does take this same filthy rogunish tobacco, the finest and cleanliest! It would do a man good to see the fumes come forth at 's tongues. 6 — Well, he owes me forty shillings, my wife lent him out of her purse, by sixpence a time, besides his lodging: I would I had it! I shall ha' it, he says, the next action. Halter skelter, hang 10 sorrow, care 'll kill a cat, up-tails all, and a lone for the hangman! 7

SCENE V. 7
Boradill is discovered lying on his bench.
Bob. Hostess, hostess!
[Enter Tib.]
Tib. What say you, sir?
Bob. A cup o' th' small beer, sweet hostess.

I. V.
EVERY MAN IN HIS HUMOUR

1. Pun on cast, to throw dice, and to vomit.
2. A cant term for getting drunk. (Red.) 3 Stopper.
4. See Greene's Friar Bacon and Friar Bungay.
5. More.
7. Room in Cob's house.

Tib. Sir, there's a gentleman below would speak with you.
Bob. A gentleman! Odso, I am not within.
Tib. My husband told him you were, sir.
Bob. What a plague — what meant he?
Mat. (below.) Captain Bobadill!
Bob. Who's there! — Take away the bason, good hostess; — Come up, sir.
He would desire you to come up, sir.
You come into a cleanly house, here!

[Enter MATHEW.]
Mat. Save you, sir; save you, captain!
Bob. Gentle master Mathew! Is it you, sir?
Please you sit down.
Mat. Thank you, good captain; you may see I am somewhat audacious.
Bob. Not so, sir. I was requested to supper last night by a sort 8 of gallants, where you were wish'd for, and drunk to, I assure you.
Mat. Vouchsafe me, by whom, good captain?
Bob. Marry, by young Wellbred, and others. — Why, hostess, a cool here for this gentleman. 9
Mat. No haste, sir, 'tis very well.
Bob. Body o' me! it was so late ere we parted last night, I can scarce open my eyes yet; I was but now risen, as you came. How passes the day abroad, sir? you can tell.
Mat. Faith, some half hour to seven. Now, trust me, you have an exceeding fine lodging here, very neat, and private.
Bob. Ay, sir! sit down, I pray you. Master Mathew, in any case possess no gentlemen of our acquaintance with notice of my lodging.
Bob. Not that I need to care who know it, for the cabin is convenient; but in regard I would not be too popular, and generally visited, as some are.
Mat. True, captain, I conceive you.
Bob. For, do you see, sir, by the heart of valour in me, except it be to some peculiar and choice spirits, to whom I am extraordinarily engag'd, as yourself, or so, I could not extend thus far.
Mat. O Lord, sir! I resolve 9 so.
Bob. I confess I love a cleanly and quiet privacy, above all the tumult and roar of fortune. What new book has you there? What! 10 Go by, Hieronymo? 11
Mat. Ay: did you ever see it acted? Is 't not well penn'd?
Bob. Well penn'd! I would fain see all the poets of these times pen such another play 12 as that was: they'll prate and swagger, and keep a stir of art and devices, when, as I am a gentleman, read 'em, they are the most shallow, pitiful, barren fellows that live upon the face of the earth again.
Mat. Indeed here are a number of fine speeches in this book. O eyes, no eyes, but fountains fraught with tears! There's a conceit! Fountains fraught with tears! O life, no life, but lively form of death! — another. O world, no 12 Company. 9 I am sure of it.
10 See The Spanish Tragedy, from Act. III of which Mathew reads the lines below.

world, but mass of public wrongs! — a third. Confu's'd and fill'd with murder and misdeeds! — a fourth. O, the name! Is't not excellent? Is't not simply the best that ever you heard, captain? Hal! how do you like it?

Bob. 'T is good.

Mat. To thee, the purest object to my sense, The most refined essence heaven covers, Send I these lines, wherein I do commence The happy state of turtie-billing lovers.

If they prove rough, unpolish'd, harsh, and rude, Haste made the waste: thus mildly I conclude.

Bob. Nay, proceed, proceed. Where's this?

[BOBADILL makes himself ready all this while.

Mat. This, sir! a toy o' mine own, in my nonce; the infancy of my muses. But when will you come and see my study? Good faith, I can shew you some very good things I have done of late. — That boot becomes your leg passing well, captain, methinks.

Bob. So, so; it's the fashion gentlemen now use.

Mat. Troth, captain, and now you speak o' the fashion, master Wellbred's elder brother and I are fall'n out exceedingly. This other day, I hap'ned to enter into some discourse of a hanger, which, I assure you, both for fashion and workmanship, was most peremptory2 beautiful and gentlemanlike: yet he condemn'd, and cri'd it down for the most pied8 and ridiculous that he ever saw.

Bob. Squire Downright, the half-brother, was't not?

Mat. Ay, sir, he.

Bob. Hang him, rook! he! why he has no more judgment than a malk-horse. By St. George, I wonder you 'd buy upon such an animal; the most peremptory absurd clown of Christendom, this day, he is holden. I protest to you, as I am a gentleman and a soldier, I ne'er chang'd words with his like. By his discourse, he should eat nothing but hay; he was born for the manger, pannier, or pack-saddle. He has not so much as a good phrase in his belly, but all old iron and rusty proverbs: a good commodity for some smith to make hob-nails of.

Mat. Ay, and he thinks to carry it away with his manhood still, where he comes: he brags he will gi' me the bastinado, as I hear.

Bob. How he the bastinado! How came 5 he by that word, trow?

Mat. Nay, indeed, he said cudgel me; I term'd it so, for my more grace.

Bob. That may be; for I was sure it was none of his word: but when, when said he so?

Mat. Faith, yesterday, they say; a young gallant, a friend of mine, told me so.

Bob. By the foot of Pharaoh, an't were my case now, I should send him a charter presently. The bastinado! a most proper and sufficient 6 dependence, warranted by the great Caranza.8 Come hither, you shall chastise him; I'll show you a trick or two you shall kill him with saucy pleasure; the first stoccata, 6 if you will, by this air.

Mat. Indeed, you have absolute knowledge i' the mystery, I have heard, sir.

Bob. Of whom, of whom, ha' you heard it, I beseech you?

Mat. Troth, I have heard it spoken of divers, that you have very rare, and un-in-one-breath-utterable skill, sir.

Bob. By heaven, no, not I; no skill i' the earth; some small rudiments i' the science, as to know my time, distance, or so. I have pro-fet it more for noblemen and gentlemen's use, than mine own practice, I assure you. — Hosts, accommodate us with another bed-staff here quickly. [Enter Trib.] Lend us another bed-staff — the woman does not understand the words of action. — Look you, sir: exalt not your point above this state, at any hand, and let your pension maintain your defence, thus: — give it the gentleman, and leave us. [Exit Trib.] So, sir. Come on: O, twine your body more about, that you may fall to a more sweet, comely, gentleman-like guard; so indifferent: hollow your body more, sir, thus: now, stand fast o' your left leg, note your distance, keep your due proportion of time. — Oh, you disorder your 9 point most irregularly!

Mat. How is the bearing of it now, sir?

Bob. O, out of measure ill. A well experienced hand would pass upon you at pleasure.

Mat. How mean you, sir, pass upon me?

Bob. Why, thus, sir, — make a thrust at me — [MASTER MATHEW pushes at BOBADILL] come in upon the answer, control your point, and make a full career at the body. The best practis'd gallants of the time name it the passado; a most desperate thrust, believe it.

Mat. Well, come, sir.

Bob. Why, you do not manage your weapon with any facility or grace to invite me. I have no spirit to play with you; your dearth of judgment renders you tedious.

Mat. But one veneer,8 sir.

Bob. "Venue!" be; the most gross denomination ay ever I heard. O, the "stoc cate," while you live, sir; note that. — Come put 15 on your cloak, and we'll go to some private place where you are acquainted; some tavern, or so — and have a bit. I'll send for one of these fencers, and he shall breathe 11 you, by my direction; and then I will teach you your trick: you shall kill him with it at the first, if you please. Why, I will learn you, by the true judgment of the eye, hand, and foot, to control any enemy's point i' the world. Should your adversary confront you with a pistol, 'twere 12 nothing, by this hand! You should, by the same rule, control his bullet, in a line, except it were hail shot, and spread. What money have you about you, master Mathew?

ACT II
SCENE I.

[Enter] KITELY, CASH, DOWNRIGHT.

Kit. Thomas, come hither.

Here take my key: it is no matter neither.—Where is the boy?

Cash. Within, sir; 'tis the warehouse.

Kit. Let him tell over straight that Spanish gold,

And weigh it, with the pieces of eight.

To Master Lucas: tell him, if he will,

He shall have the grog at the rate I told him,

And I will meet him on the Exchange anon.

Cash. Good, sir.

Kit. Do you see that fellow, brother Downright?

Dow. Ay, what of him?

Kit. He is a jewel, brother.

I took him of a child up at my door,

And christned him, gave him mine own name, Thomas:

Since bred him at the Hospital; where proving

A toward imp, I call'd him home, and taught

So much, as I have made him my cashier,

And giv'n him, who had none, a surname, Cash:

And find him in his place so full of faith,

That I durst trust my life into his hands.

Dow. So would not I in any bastard's, brother,

As it is like he is, although I knew

Myself his father. But you say'd somewhat

To tell me, gentle brother: what is 't, what is 't?

Kit. Faith, I am very loath to utter it,

As fearing it may hurt your patience;

But that I know your judgment is of strength,

Against the nearness of affection.

Dow. What need this circumstance? Pray you, be direct.

Kit. I will not say how much I do ascribe

Unto your friendship, nor in what regard

I hold your love: but let my past behaviour,

And usage of your sister, [both] confirm

How well I've been affected to your —

Dow. You are too tedious; come to the matter, the matter.

Kit. Then, without further ceremony, thus:

My brother Wellbred, sir, I know not how,

Of late is much decried in what he was,

And greatly alter'd in his disposition.

When he came first to lodge here in my house,

Ne'er trust me if I were not proud of him:

Methought he bare himself in such a fashion,

So full of man, and sweetness in his carriage,

And what was chief, it show'd not borrowed in him,

But all he did became him as his own,

And seem'd as perfect, proper, and possesst,

As breath with life, or colour with the blood.

But now, his course is so irregular,

So loose, affected, and depriv'd of grace,

And himself withal so far fall'n off

From that first place, as scarce no note remains,

To tell men's judgments where he lately stood.

He's grown a stranger to all due respect,

Forgetful of his friends; and, not content

To stale himself in all societies,

He makes my house here common as a mart,

A theatre, a public receptacle

For giddy humour, and diseased riot;

And here, as in a tavern, a stews,

He and his wild associates spend their hours,

In repetition of lascivious jests.

Swear, leap, drink, dance, and revel night by night,

Control my servants; and, indeed, what not?

Dow. 'Sdiena, I know not what I should say to him, i' the whole world! He values me at a crack'd three-farthings, for nought I see. It will never out o' the flesh that's bred i' the bone. I have told him enough, one would think, if that would serve; but counsel to him is as good as a shoulder of mutton to a sick horse. Well! he knows what to trust to, for George: let him spend, and spend, and domineer, till his heart ache; and he think to be reliev'd by me, when he is got into one o' your city pounds, the counters, he has the wrong sow by the ear, i' faith; and claps his dish at the wrong man's door. I'll lay my hand o' my halfpenny, ere I part with 't to fetch him out, I'll assure him.

Kit. Nay, good brother, let it not trouble you thus.

Dow. 'Sdeath! he made me; I could eat my very spur-leathers for anger! But, why are you so tame? Why do you not speak to him, and tell him how he disquiets your house?

Kit. O, there are divers reasons to dissuade, brother.

But, would yourself vouchsafe to travail in it (Though but with plain and easy circumstance),

It would both come much better to his sense,

And savour less of stomach, or of passion.

You are his elder brother, and that title

Both gives and warrants you authority,

Which, by your presence seconded, must breed

A kind of duty in him, and regard;

Whereas, if I should intimate the least,
It would but add contempt to his neglect,
Heap worse on ill, make up a pile of hatred,
That in the rearing would come tottering down,
And in the ruin bury all our love.

Nay, more than this, brother; if I should speak,
He would be ready, from his heat of humour,
And overflowing of the vapour in him,
To blow the ears of his familiar.

With the false breath of talking what disgraces
And low disparagements I had put upon him:
Whilst they, sir, to relieve him in the fable,
Make their loose comments upon every word,
Gusture, or look, I use; mock me all over,
From my flat cap unto my shining shoes;
And, out of their impetuous rioting phant'sies,
Beget some slander that shall dwell with me.
And what would that be, think you? Marry, this:
They would give out, because my wife is fair,
Myself but lately married, and my sister
Here sojourning a virgin in my house.
That I was jealous! — nay, as sure as death,
That they would say; and, how that I had quarrel'd?

My brother purposely, thereby to find
An apt pretext to banish them my house.

Dow. Mass, perhaps so; they're like enough to do it.

Kit. Brother, they would, believe it; so should I,
Like one of these penurious quack-salvers,
But set the bills up to mine own disgrace,
And try experiments upon myself;
Lend scorn and envy opportunity
To stab my reputation and good name —

SCENE II.5

KITELY, DOWNRIGHT. [Enter] MATHEW [struggling with] BOBADILL.

Mat. I will speak to him.

Bob. Speak to him! away! By the foot of Pharaoh, you shall not! you shall not do that grace. — The time of day to you, gentleman o' the house. Is master Wellbred stirring?

Dow. How then? What should he do?

Bob. Gentleman of the house, it is to you. Is he within, sir?

Kit. He came not to his lodging to-night, sir,
I assure you.

Dow. Why, do you hear? You!

Bob. The gentleman citizen hath satisfied
me;
I'll talk to no scavenger. [Exeunt Bob. and Mat.]

Dow. How! scavenger! Stay, sir, stay!

Kit. Nay, brother Downright.

Dow. 'Heart! stand you away, an you love me.

Kit. You shall not follow him now, I pray you, brother, good faith you shall not; I will overrule you.

Dow. Ha! scavenger! Well, go to, I say [la ttle; but, by this good day (God forgive me I should swear), if I put it up so, say I am the rankest cow that ever pist. 'Seems, an I swallow this, I'll ne'er draw my sword in the sight of Fleet-street again while I live; I'll sit in a barn with madge-howlet, and catch mice first.

Scavenger I heart! — and I'll go near to fill that huge tumult-slop of yours with somewhat, an
I have good luck: your Garagantua breech cannot carry it away so.

Kit. Oh, do not fret yourself thus; never think on't.

Dow. These are my brother's consorts, these! These are his cam'rades, his walking mates!
He's a gallant, a cavalier too, right hangman cut! Let me not live, an I could not find in my heart to swinge the whole gine of 'em, one after another, and begin with him first. I am grieved it should be said he is my brother, and take these courses. Well, as he brews, so shall he drink, for George, again. Yet he shall hear on't, and that tightly too, an I live, i' faith.

Kit. But, brother, let your reprehension, then,
ران in an easy current, not o'er high
Carried with rashness, or devouring choler;
But rather use the soft persuading way,
Whose powers will work more gently, and compose
Th' imperfect thoughts you labour to reclaim;
More winning than enforcing the consent.

Dow. Ay, ay, let me alone for that, I warrant
you.

Kit. How now! [Bell rings.] Oh, the bell rings to breakfast. Brother, I pray you go in, and hear my wife company till I come; I'll but give order for some despatch of business to my servants.

[Exit DOWNRIGHT.]

SCENE III.9

KITELY, [Enter] COB.

Kit. What, Cob! our maids will have you by the back, i' faith, for coming so late this morning.

Cob. Perhaps so, sir; take heed somebody have not them by the belly, for walking so late in the evening.

He passes by with his tankard.

Kit. Well; yet my troubled spirit's somewhat eas'ed,
Though not repos'd in that security
As I could wish: but I must be content,
How'er I set a face on't to the world.

Would I had lost this finger at a venture,
So Wellbred had ne'er lodged within my house.
Why 't cannot be, where there is such resort
Of wanton gallants and young revellers,
That any woman should be honest long.
Is 't like that factions beauty will preserve
The public weal of chastity unshaken,
When such strong motives must and make
head10

Against her single peace? No, no: beware.
When mutual appetite doth meet to treat,

And spirits of one kind and quality
Come once to parley in the pride of blood,
It is no slow conspiracy that follows.
Well, to be plain, if I but thought the time
Had answer'd their affections, all the world
Should not persuade me but I were a cuckold.
Marry, I hope they ha' not got that start;
For opportunity hath balk'd 'em yet,
And shall do still, while I have eyes and ears
To attend the impositions of my heart.
My presence shall be as an iron bar
'Twixt the conspiring motions of desire:
Yea, every look or glance mine eye ejects
Shall check occasion, as one doth his slave,
When he forgets the limits of prescription.

[Enter Dame Kiteley.]

Dame K. Sister Bridget, pray you fetch down the rose-water, above in the closet. — Sweet-heart, will you come in to breakfast?
Kit. An she have overheard me now! — Dame K. I pray thee, good muss, we stay for you.
Kit. By heaven, I would not for a thousand angels.
Dame K. What all you, sweet-heart? are you not well? Speak, good muss.
Kit. Troth my head aches extremely on a sudden.
Dame K. [putting her hand to his forehead.] O, the Lord!
Kit. How now! What?
Dame K. Alas, how it burns! Must, keep you warm; good truth it is this new disease, there's a number are troubled withal. For love's sake, sweet-heart, come in out of the air.
Kit. How simple, and how subtle are her answers!

A new disease, and many troubled with it?
Why true; she heard me, all the world to nothing.
Dame K. I pray thee, good sweet-heart, come in; the air will do you harm, in troth.
Kit. The air! she has made me the wind. — Sweetheart, I'll come to you presently; it will away, I hope.

Dame K. Pray Heaven it do. [Exit.]

Kit. A new disease! I know not, new or old,
But it may well be call'd poor mortals' plague; or,
For, like a pestilence, it doth infect
The houses of the brain. First it begins
Solely to work upon the phantasy,
Filling her seat with such pestiferous air
As soon corrupts the judgment; and from thence
Sends like contagion to the memory:
Still each to other giving the infection,
Which as a subtle vapour spreads itself
Confusively through every sensitive part,
Till not a thought or motion in the mind
Be free from the black poison of suspect.

Ah! but what misery is it to know this?

Or, knowing it, to want the mind's erection
In such extremes? Well, I will once more strive,
In spite of this black cloud, myself to be,
And shake the fever off that thus-shakes me.

[Exit.]

SCENE IV. 7

[Enter Brainworm disguised like a maimed Soldier.]

Brai. 8 'Slid, I cannot choose but laugh to see myself translated thus, from a poor creature to a creator; for now must I create an intolerable sort of lies, or my present profession loses the grace; and yet the he, to a man of my coat, is [2 as ominous a fruit as the fig. O, air, it holds for good polity ever, to have that outwardly in vilest estimation, that inwardly is most dear to us: so much for my borrowed shape. Well, the troth is, my old master intends to follow my 10 young master, dry-foot, over Moorfields to London, this morning; now, I knowing of this hunting-match, or rather conspiracy, and to insinuate with my young master (for so must we that are blue waiters, and men of hope and service do, or perhaps we may wear motley at the year's end, and who wears motley, — you know), have got me afores in this disguise, determined here to lie in ambuscado, and intercept him in the mid-way. If I can but get his [1 cloak, his purse, and his hat, nay, any thing to out him off, that is, to stay his journey, Veni, vidi, vici, I may say with Captain Caesar, I am made for ever, I' faith. Well, now I must practise to get the true gurp of one of these lance- 12 knights, my arm here, and my — [Odes! my] young master, and his cousin, master Stephen, as I am true counterfeit man of war, and no soldier! 13

[Exit.]

E. Know. So, sir! and how then, coz?
Step. 'Foot! I have lost my purse, I think.
E. Know. How! lost your purse? Where?
When had you it?
Step. I cannot tell; stay.
Brai. 'Slid, I am afraid they will know me:
would I could get by them!
E. Know. What, ha' you it?
Step. No; I think I was bewitcht, I — [Cries.]

E. Know. Nay, do not weep the loss: hang it, let it go.
Step. Oh, it's here. No, an it had been lost,
I had not car'd, but for a jet ring mistress Mary sent me.
E. Know. A jet ring! O the posy, the posy?
Step. Fine, i' faith.

Though Fancy sleep,
My love is deep.

Meaning, that though I did not fancy her, yet she loved me dearly.

E. Know. Most excellent! 50

Step. And then I sent her another, and my p esse was,

The deeper the sweeter,
I'll be judged by St. Peter.

Step. Marry, St. Peter, to make up the metre.

E. Know. Well, there the saint was your good patron, he help'd you at your need; thank him, thank him.

Re-enter Brainworm.

Brai. I cannot take leave on 'em so; I will venture, come what will. — Gentlemen, please you change a few crowns for a very excellent good blade here? I am a poor gentleman, a soldier, one that, in the better state of my fortune, scorn'd so mean a refuge; but now it is the humour of necessity to have it so. You seem to be gentlemen well affected to martial men, else I should rather die with silence, than live with shame: however, voutraf should remember it is my want speaks, not myself; this condition agrees not with my spirit.

E. Know. Where hast thou serv'd?

Brai. May it please you, sir, in all the late wars of Bohemia, Hungary, Dalmatia, Fo[95 land,—where not, sir?] I have been a poor servitor by sea and land any time this fourteen years, and follow'd the fortunes of the best commanders in Christendom. I was twice shot at the taking of Aleppo, once at the relief of Vienna; I have been at Marseilles, Naples, and the Adriatic gulf, a gentleman-slave in the galleys, thrice: where I was most dangerously shot in the head, through both the thighs; and yet, being thus maim'd, I am void of main-tenance, nothing left me but my scars, the noted marks of my resolution.

Step. How will you sell this rapier, friend?

Brai. Generous sir, I refer it to your own judgment; you are a gentleman, give me [59 what you please.

Step. True, I am a gentleman, I know that, friend; but what though? I pray you say, what would you ask?

Brai. I assure you, the blade may become the side or thigh of the best prince in Europe.

E. Know. Ay, with a velvet scabbard, I think.

Step. Nay, an 't be mine, it shall have a velvet scabbard, cox, that's flat; I'd not wear it, as it is, an you would give me an angel.

Brai. At your worship's pleasure, sir; [STEPHENV EXAMINES THE BLADE] nay, 't is a most pure Toledo.

Step. I had rather it were a Spaniard. But tell me, what shall I give you for it? An it had a silver hilt.

E. Know. Come, come, you shall not buy it. Hold, there's a shilling, fellow; take thy rapier.

Step. Why, but I will buy it now, because you say so; and there 's another shilling, fellow; I scorn to be out-bidden. What, shall I walk in with a cudgel, like Higginsbottom, and may have a rapier for money!

E. Know. You may buy one in the city.

Step. Tut! I'll buy this i' the field, so I will: I have a mind to, because 'tis a field [ins] rapier. Tell me your lowest price.

E. Know. You shall not buy it, I say.

Step. By this means, but I will, though I give more 't is worth.

E. Know. Come away, you are a fool.

Step. Friend, I am a fool, that's granted; but I'll have it, for that word's sake. Follow me for your money.

Brai. At your service, sir. [Exeunt.] 125

SCENE V. 1

[Enter] KNOWELL.

Know. I cannot lose the thought yet of this letter

Sent to my son; nor leave t' admir[e] 2 the change
Of manners, and the breeding of our youth

Within the kingdom, since myself was one. —

When I was young, he liv'd not in the streets

Durst have conceiv'd a scorn, and utter'd it,

On a grey head; age was authority

Against a buffoon, and a man had then

A certain reverence paid unto his years,

That had none due unto his life: so much

The sanctity of some prevailed for others.

But now we all are fall'n; youth, from their fear,

And age, from that which bred it, good example.

Nay, would ourselves were not the first, e'en parents,

That did destroy the hopes in our own children;

Or they not learn'd our vices in their cradles.

And suck'd in our ill customs with their milk!

Ere all their teeth be born, or they can speak,

We make their palates cunning; the first words

We form their tongues with, are licentious:

Can it call "whore"? or cry "bastard"? O, then,

Kiss it!

A witty child! Can't swear? The father's darling!

Give it two plums. Nay, rather than 't shall learn

No bawdy song, the mother herself will teach it!

But this is in the infancy, the days

Of the long coat; when it puts on the breeches,

It will put off all this. Ay, it is like,

When it is gone into the bone already!

No, no; this dye goes deeper than the coat,

Or shirt, or skin; it stains into the liver

And heart, in some: and, rather than it should not,

Note what we fathers do! Look how we live!

What mistresses we keep! at what expense?

In our sons' eyes, where they may handle our gifts,

Hear our lascivious courtships, see our dalliance, —

Paste of the same provoking meats with us,

To ruin of our states! Nay, when our own

Portion is fled, to prey on the remainder,

We call them into fellowship of vice;

Bait 'em with the young chamber-maid, to seal, 3

2 Wonder at.
3 Probably, to agree to the sail of family estates.
And teach 'em all bad ways to buy affliction. This is one path; but there are millions more, in which we spoil our own, with leading them. Well, I thank heaven, I have none of 'em.

That travell'd with my son, before sixteen, To shew him the Venetian courtesans; Nor read the grammar of cheating I had made, To my sharp boy, at twelve; repeating still The rule, Get money; still, get money, boy; No matter by what means; money will do More, boy, than my lord's letter. Neither have I Drest snails or mushrooms curiously before him, Perfum'd my saucers, and taught him how to make 'em; Preceding still, with my gray glutony, At all the ordinaries, and only fe'rd', His palates should degenerate, not his manners. These are the trade of fathers now; however, My son, I hope, hath met within my threshold None of these household precedents, which are strong And swift to rape youth to their precipice. But let the house at home be ne'er so clean Swept, or kept sweet from filth, nay dust and cobwebs, If he not live abroad with his companions, in dung and loysters, it is worth a fear; Nor is the danger of conversing less Than all that I have mention'd of example.

[Enter Brainworm, disguised as before.]

Brat. [Aside.] My master! nay, faith, have at you; I am flest now, I have sped so well. — Worshipful sir, I beseech you, respect the estate of a poor soldier; I am asham'd of this base course of life. — God's my comfort — but extremity provokes me to: what remedy? Know. I have not for you, now.

Brat. By the faith I bear unto truth, gentleman, it is no ordinary custom in me, but only to preserve mankind. I protest to you, a man I have been: a man I may be, by your sweet bounty.

Know. Pray thee, good friend, be satisfied.

Brat. Good sir, by that hand, you may do the part of a kind gentleman, in lending a poor soldier the price of two cans of beer, a matter of small value: the king of heaven shall pay you, and I shall rest thankful. Sweet worship —

Know. Nay, an you be so importunate —

Brat. Oh, tender sir! I need will have its course; I was not made to this vile use. Well, the edge of the enemy could not have abated me so much: it's hard when a man hath serv'd in his prince's cause, and be thus. [Weeps.] Honourable worship, let me derive a small piece of silver from you, it shall not be given in the course of time. By this good ground, I was fain to pawn my rapier last night for a poor supper; I had suck'd the hills long before, I am as pagan else. Sweet honour —

Know. Believe me, I am taken with some wonder.

To think a follow of thy outward presence,

Should, in the frame and fashion of his mind,
Be so degenerate, and sordid-base.

Know. Ah, you'd gladly find it, but you will not seek it.

Brat. Alas, sir, where should a man seek?

In the wars, there's no ascent by desert in these days; but — and for service, would it were as soon purchas'd, as wished for! The air's my comfort. — [Sighs] — I know what I would say.

Know. What's thy name?

Brat. Please you, Fitz-Sword, sir.

Know. Fitz-Sword!

Say that a man should entertain thee now, Wouldst thou be honest, humble, just, and true?

Brat. Sir, by the place and honour of a soldier —

Know. Nay, nay, I like not these affected oaths. Speak plainly, man, what think'st thou of my words?

Brat. Nothing, sir, but wish my fortunes were as happy as my service should be honest.

Know. Well, follow me; I'll prove thee, if thy deeds will carry a proportion to thy words. [Exit.]

Brat. Yes, sir, straight; I'll but garter my hose. Oh that my belly were hooted now, for I am ready to burst with laughing! never was bottle or bagpipe fuller. 'Sld, was there ever seen a fox in years to betray himself thus! Now shall I be possesst of all his counsels; and, by that conduit, my young master. Well, he is resolv'd to prove my honesty; faith, and I'm resolv'd to prove his patience: oh, I shall abuse him intolerably. This small piece of service will bring him clean out of love with the soldier for ever. He will never come within the sign of it, the sight of a cassock, or a musket-rest again. He will hate the musters at Mile-end for it, to his dying day. It's no matter, let the world think me a bad counterfeit, if I cannot give him the slip? at an instant. Why, this is better than to have staid his journey. Well, I'll follow him. Oh, how I long to be employed! [Exit.]

1 Dirt-heaps.
2 Probably this means that ultimately it will turn out to have been a loan.

7 A pun. Slip also meant counterfeit money.
ACT III

SCENE I. [Enter] MASTER MATHEW, WELLBRED, and BOBADILL.

Mat. Yes, faith, sir, we were at your lodging to seek you too.

Wel. Oh, I came not there to-night.

Bob. Your brother delivered us as much.

Wel. Who, my brother Downright?

Bob. He, Mr. Wellbred, I know not in what kind you hold me; but let me say to you this: as sure as honour, I esteem it so much out of the sunshine of reputation, to throw the least beam of regard upon such a —

Wel. Sir, I must hear no ill words of my brother.

Bob. I protest to you, as I have a thing to be said' about me, I never saw any gentleman-like part —

Wel. Good captain, faces about to some other discourse.

Bob. With your leave, sir, an there were no more men living upon the face of the earth, I should not fancy him, by St. George!

Mat. Troth, nor I; he is of a rustical cut, I know not how: he doth not carry himself like a gentleman of fashion.

Wel. Oh, master Mathew, that's a grace peculiar, but to a few, quos aequos aequat Jupiter.

Mat. I understand you, sir.

Wel. No question, you do, — [Aside] or do you not, sir.

Enter E. KNOWELL [and STEPHEN].

Ned Knowell! by my soul, welcome: how dost thou, sweet spirit, my genius? 'Slid, I shall love Apollo and the mad Thespian girls, as the better, [as] while I live, for this, my dear Fury; now I see there's some here in thee. Sirrah, these be the two I writ to thee of: nay, what a drowsy humour is this now! Why dost thou not speak? as E. Know. Oh, you are a fine gallant; you sent me a rare letter.

Wel. Why, was't not rare?

E. Know. Yes, I'll be sworn, I was ne'er guilty of reading the like; match it in all [as] Phiny, or Symmachus's epistles, and I'll have my judgment burn'd in the ear for a rogue: make much of thy vein, for it is inimitable. But I marle what came it was, that had the carriage of it; for, doubtless, he was no ordinary beast that brought it.

Wel. Why?

E. Know. Why? sayst thou! Why, dost thou think that any reasonable creature, especially in the morning, the sober time of the day too, could have mist'en my father for me? as Wel. 'Slid, you jest, I hope.

E. Know. Indeed, the best use we can turn it to, is to make a jest on't, now: but I'll assure you, my father had the full view of your [as] flourishing style some hour before I saw it.

you'll say there's some sparks of wit in 'em, when you see them.

_Web._ [Aside.] Would the sparks would kindle once, and become a fire amongst 'em! I might see self-love burn for her heresy.

_Step._ Cousin, is it well? Am I melancholy enough?

_E. Know._ Oh ay, excellent.

_Web._ Captain Bobadill, why muse you so?

_E. Know._ He is melancholy too.

Bob. Faith, sir, I was thinking of a most honourable piece of service, was perform'd to-morrow, being St. Mark's day, shall be some ten years now.

_E. Know._ In what place, captain?

Bob. Why, at the beleg'ring of Strigonium, where, in less than two hours, seven hundred resolute gentlemen, as any were in Europe, lost their lives upon the breach. I'll tell you, gentlemen, it was the first, but the best leguer that ever I beheld with these eyes, except the taking of _of_—what do you call it?_ last year, by the Genoways; but that, of all other, was the most fatal and dangerous exploit that ever I was rang'd in, since I first bore arms before the face of the enemy, as I am a gentleman and a soldier!

_Step._ So! I had as lief as an angel I could swear as well as that gentleman.

_E. Know._ Then, you were a servitor at both, at Strigonium, and what do you call it?

Bob. O lord, sir! By St. George, I was the first man that entred the breach; and had not I effectued it with resolution, I had been slain if I had had a million of lives.

_E. Know._ 'T was pity you had not ten; a cat's and your own, 1 faith. But, was it possible?

_Mat._ Pray mark this discourse, sir.

_Step._ So I do.

Bob. I assure you, upon my reputation, 't is true, and yourself shall confess.

_E. Know._ [Aside.] You must bring me to the rack, first.

Bob. Observe me judicially, sweet sir; they had planted me three demi-culverines just in the mouth of the breach; now, sir, as we were to give on, their master-gunner (a man of no mean skill and mark, you must think), contrives me with his linstock, ready to give fire; I, spying his intendement, discharg'd my petrole in his bosom, and with these single arms, my poor rapier, ran violently upon the Moors that guarded the ordnance, and put them pell-mell to the sword.

_Web._ To the sword! To the rapier, captain.

_E. Know._ Oh, it was a good figure observ'd, sir. But did you all this, captain, without hurting your blade?

Bob. Without any impeach o' the earth: you shall perceive, sir. _[Steps his rapier.]_ It is the most fortunate weapon that ever rid on poor

Wel. Why, you have done like a gentleman; he has confess’d it, what would you more?
Step. Yet, by his leave, he is a rascal, under his favour, do you see.
E. Know. Ay, by his leave, he is, and under favour: a pretty piece of civility! Sirrah, how dost thou like him?
Wel. Oh, it’s a most precious fool, make much on him. I can compare him to nothing more happily than a drum; for every one may play upon him.
E. Know. No, no, a child’s whistle were far the fitter.
Brat. Shall I entreat a word with you?
E. Know. With me, sir? You have not another Toledo to sell, ha’ you?
Brat. You are conceited, sir. Your name is Master Knowell, as I take it?
E. Know. You are i’ the right; you mean not proceed in the catechism, do you?
Brat. No, sir; I am none of that coat.
E. Know. Of as bare a coat, though. Well, say, sir.
Brat. [taking E. Know. aside.] Faith, sir, I am but servant to the drum extraordinary, and indeed, this smoky varnish being washt off, and three or four patches remov’d, I appear your worship’s in reversion, after the decease of your good father.—Brainworm.
E. Know. Brainworm! ’Slant, what breath of a conjurer hath blown thee hither in this shape?
Brat. The breath o’ your letter, sir, this morning; the same that blew you to the Windmill, and your father after you.
E. Know. My father!
Brat. Nay, never start, ’tis true; he has follow’d you over the fields by the foot, as you would a hare i’ the snow.
E. Know. Sirrah Wellbred, what shall we do, sirrah? My father is come over after me.
Wel. Thy father! Where is he?
Brat. At justice Clement’s house, in Coleman-street, where he but stays my return; and then—
E. Know. Who’s this? Brainworm!
Brat. The same, sir.
E. Know. Why how, in the name of wit, com’st thou transmuted thus?
Brat. Faith, a device; a device; nay, for the love of reason, gentlemen, and avoiding the danger, stand not here; withdraw, and I’ll tell you all.
E. Know. But art thou sure he will stay thy return?
Brat. Do I live, sir? What a question is that!
E. Know. We’ll prolong his expectation, then, a little: Brainworm, thou shalt go with us.—Come on, gentlemen.—Nay, I pray thee, sweet Ned, drop not; ’heart, an our wits be so wretchedly dull, that one old plodding brain can outstrip us all, would we were e’en prest to make porters of, and serve out the remnant 1 witty.
2 An allusion to the tricky servant in Jack Drum’s Entertainment.
3 Impressed.
Cash. Exchange-time, sir.

Kit. 'Tis a worth, then will Wellbred presently be here too.

With one or other of his loose consorts.

I am a knave if I know what to say,

What course to take, or which way to resolve.

My brain, methinks, is like an hour-glass,

Wherein my imaginations run like sands,

Filling up time; but then are turn'd and turn'd:

So that I know not what to stay upon,

And less, to put in act. — It shall be so.

Nay, I dare build upon his secrecy,

He knows not to deceive me. — Thomas!

Cash. Sir.

Kit. Yet now I have bethought me, too, I will not.

Thomas, is Cob within?

Cash. I think he be, sir.

Kit. But he'll prate too, there is no speech of him.

No, there were no man o' the earth to Thomas,

If I durst trust him; there is all the doubt.

But should he have a chink in him, I were gone.

Lost i' my fame for ever, talk for th' Exchange!

The manner he hath stood with, till this present,

Doth promise no such change: what should I fear then?

Well, come what will, I'll tempt my fortune once.

Thomas — you may deceive me, but, I hope —

Your love to me is more —

Cash. Sir, if a servant's

Duty, with faith, may be call'd love, you are

More than in hope, you are possess'd of it.

Kit. I thank you heartily, Thomas: give me your hand:

With all my heart, good Thomas. I have, Thomas,

A secret to impart unto you — but,

When once you have it, I must seal your lips up;

So far I tell you, Thomas.

Cash. Sir, for that —

Kit. Nay, hear me out. Think I esteem you,

Thomas,

When I will let you in thus to my private.

It is a thing sits nearer to my crest,

Than thou art 'ware of, Thomas; if thou should'st

Reveal it, but —

How, I reveal it?

Cash. Nay, I do not think thou would'st; but if thou should'st,

'Twere a great weakness.

Cash. A great treachery:

Give it no other name.

Kit. Thou wilt not do't, then? Cash. Sir, if I do, mankind disclaim me ever!

Kit. He will not swear, he has some reservation.

Some conceal'd purpose, and close meaning sure;

1 Ten o'clock, according to the Q.
2 Compared to.
3 Secret.

Else, being urg'd so much, how should he choose
But lend an ear to all this protestation?
He's no precision, that I'm certain of,
Nor rigid Roman Catholic: he'll play
At fayles, and tick-tack; I have heard him swear.

What should I think of it? Urge him again,
And by some other way? I will do so.

Well, Thomas, thou hast sworn not to disclose: —

Yes, you did swear?

Cash. Not yet, sir, but I will,

Please you —

Kit. No, Thomas, I dare take thy word,

But, if thou wilt swear, do as thou thinkest good;

I am resolv'd without it; at thy pleasure.

Cash. By my soul's safety then, sir, I protest,

My tongue shall not take knowledge of a word

Deliver'd me in nature of your trust.

Kit. It is too much; these ceremonies need not;

I know thy faith to be as firm as rock.

Thomas, come hither, near; we cannot be Too private in this business. So it is — [Aside.] Now he has sworn, I dare the safer venture.

I have of late, by divers observations —

[Aside.] But whether his oath can bind him, yea, or no,

Being not taken lawfully? He! say you?

I will ask council ere I do not proceed: —

Thomas, it will be now too long to stay,

I'll spy some fitter time soon, or to-morrow.

Cash. Sir, at your pleasure.

Kit. I will think: — and, Thomas,

I pray you search the books 'gainst my return,

For the receipts 'twixt me and Traps.

Cash. I will, sir.

Kit. And hear you, if your mistress' brother, Wellbred,

Chance to bring hither any gentleman

Ere I come back, let one straight bring me word.

Cash. Very well, sir.

Kit. To the Exchange, do you hear?

Or here in Coleman-street, to justice Clement's.

Forget it not, nor be not out of the way.

Cash. I will not, sir.

Kit. I pray you have a care on't.

Or, whether he come or no, if any other,

 Stranger, or else; fail not to send me word.

Cash. I shall not, sir.

Kit. Be't your special business

Now to remember it.

Cash. Sir, I warrant you.

Kit. But, Thomas, this is not the secret,

Thomas,

I told you of.

Cash. No, sir; I do suppose it.

Kit. Believe me, it is not.

Cash. Sir, I do believe you.

Kit. By heaven it is not, that's enough. But, Thomas,

I would not you should utter it, do you see, —

To any creature living; yet I care not.
Well, I must hence. Thomas, conceive thus much;
It was a trial of you, when I meant
So deep a secret to you; I mean not this. 134
But that I have to tell you; this is nothing, this.
But, Thomas, keep this from my wife, I charge you,
Lock'd up in silence, midnight, buried here.—
No greater hell than to be slave to fear. [Exit.
Cash. Lock'd up in silence, midnight, buried here!

When should this flood of passion, trow, take head? ha!
Best dream no longer of this running humour,
For fear I sink; the violence of the stream
Already hath transported me so far,
That I can feel no ground at all. But soft—Oh, 'tis our water-bearer: somewhat has crost him now.

Scene IV. 1

Cash. [Enter] Cob, [hostily].

Cob. Fasting-days! what tell you me of fasting-days? 'Slid, would they were all on a light fire for me! They say the whole world shall be consumed with fire one day, but would I had these Ember-weeks and villainous Fridays burnt in the mean time, and then—Cash. Why, how now, Cob? What moves thee to this choler, ha?

Cob. Collar, master Thomas! I scorn your collar, I, sir; I am none o' your cart-horse, 10 though I carry and draw water. An you offer to ride me with your collar or halter either, I may hap show you a jade's trick, sir.

Cash. O, you'll slip your head out of the collar? Why, goodman Cob, you mistake me. 16

Cob. Nay, I have my rheum, and I can be angry as well as another, sir.

Cash. Thy rheum, Cob! Thy humour, thy humour — thou mistak'st. 2

Cob. Humour! mak', I think it be so in- [20 deed. What is that humour? Some rare thing, I warrant.

Cash. Marry I'll tell thee, Cob: it is a gentleman-like monster, bred in the special gallantry of our time, by affectation, and fed by folly. 25

Cob. How! must it be fed?

Cash. Oh ay, humour is nothing if it be not fed; didst thou never hear that? It's a common phrase, Feed my humour.

Cob. I'll none on it: humour, avvant! I know you not, be gone! Let who will make hun'3 gry meals for your monstrosity, it shall not be I. Feed you, quoth he! 'Slid, I ha' much ado to feed myself; especially on these lean rascally days too; an 't had been any other day but a fasting-day — a plague on them all for me! By this light, one might have done the commonwealth good service, and have drown'd them all i' the flood, two or three hundred thousand years ago. O, I do stomach 4 them hugely. I 40 have a maw now, and 't were for sir Bevis his horse, against 'em.

Cash. I pray thee, good Cob, what makes thee so out of love with fasting days?

Cob. Marry, that which will make any man 45 out of love with 'em, I think; their bad conditions, as you wills know. First, they are of a Flemish breed. I am sure on't, for they raven up more butter than all the days of the week beside; next, they stink of fish and leak-porridge miserably; thirdly, they'll keep a man de- [50 voutly hungry all day, and at night send him supperless to bed.

Cash. Indeed, these are faults, Cob.

Cob. Nay, an this were all, 't were something; but they are the only known enemies to my generation. A fasting-day no sooner comes, but my lineage goes to wrack; poor cobs! they smoke for it, they are made martyrs 'o' the gridiron, they melt in passion: and your maidis 50 too know this, and yet would have me turn Hannibal, 5 and eat my own flesh and blood. My princely eos (Pulls out a red herring), fear nothing; I have not the heart to devour you, an I must be made as rich as king Cophtetus. O that I had room for my tears, I could weep salt-water 55 enough now to preserve the lives of ten thousand of my kin! But I may curse none but these filthy almanacs; for an't were not for them, these days of persecution would never 60 be known. I'll be hang'd an some fishmonger's son do not make of 'em, and puts in more fasting-days than he should do, because he would utter 7 his father's dried stock-fish and stinking cucumber.

Cash. 'Slight, peace! Thou'lt be beaten like a stock-fish else. Here is master Mathew. Now must I look out for a messenger to my master.

[Exit.]

Scene V. 8

[Enter] WELERED, E. KNOWELL, BRAINWORM, MATHEW, BORADILL, and STEPHEN.

Wel. Beshrew me, but it was an absolute good jest, and exceedingly well carried!

E. Know. Ay, and our ignorance maintain'd it as well, did it not?

Wel. Yes, faith; but was it possible thou [40 shouldst not know him? I forgive master Stephen, for he is stupidity itself.

E. Know. 'Fore God, not I, an I might have been join'd patten 9 with one of the seven wise masters for knowing him. He had so writhe 10 himself into the habit of one of your poor 11 infantry, your decay'd, ruinous, worm-eaten gentlemen of the round; 12 such as have vowed to sit on the skirts of the city, let your provost and his half-dozen of halberdiers do what 13 they can; and have translated beggaring out of the old hackney-pace to a fine easy amble, and made it run as smooth off the tongue as a shoever-board. 14 Into the likeness of one of these not lieutenant-colonel to the regiment.

Wel. Why, Brainworm, who would have thought that I, thou hadst been such an artificer?
E. Know. An artificer! an architect. Except that a man had studied begging all his life time, and been a weaver of language from his infancy
for the clothing of it, I never saw his rival.

Wel. Where gotst thou this coat, I marle?

E. Know. Tre, sir; but I did need a broker.

E. Know. Well put off: — no crafty knave, you'll

Wel. Whither went your master, Thomas, caustl thou tell?

Cash. I know not: to justice Clement's, I think, sir. — Cob!

E. Know. Justice Clement! what's he?

Wel. Why, dost thou not know him? He is a city-magistrate, a justice here, an excellent good lawyer, and a great scholar; but the only man, merry old fellow in Europe. I shou'd him you the other day.

Wel. Oho, is it that? I remember him
now. Good faith, and he is a very strange person methinks; it shows as if he stood out of the rank from other men: I have heard many of his jests at the University. They say he will commit a man for taking the wall of his horse.

Wel. Ay, or wearing his cloak on one shoulder, or serving of God; any thing indeed, if it come in the way of his humour.

Cash: goes in and out calling.

Cash. Gasher! Martin! Cob! Heart, where should they be, trow?

Bob. Master Kitely's man, pray thee vouchsafe us the lighting of this match.

Cash. Fire on your match! No time but now to vouchsafe; — Francis! Cob!

Bob. Body o' me! here's the remainder of seven pound since yesterday was seven-night.

'Tis your right Trinidad: did you never take any, master Stephen?

Step. No, truly, sir; I'll learn to take it now, since you commend it so.

Bob. Sir, believe me upon my relation, for what I tell you, the world shall not reprove. I have been in the Indies, where this herb grows, where neither myself, nor a dozen gentlemen more of my knowledge, have received the taste of any other nutriment in the world, for the space of one-and-twenty weeks, but the taste of this simple only; therefore it cannot be but this is most divine. Further, take it in the nature, in the true kind; so, it makes an antidote, that, had you taken the most deadly poisonous plant in all Italy, it should expel it, and clarify you, with as much ease as I speak. And for as your green wound,—your Balsamum and your St. John's wort, are all mere galleries and trash to it, especially your Trinidad; your Nicolian is good too. I could say what I know of the virtue of it, for the expulsion of rheums, [see raw humours, eruptions, obstructions, with a thousand of this kind; but I profess myself no quacksalver. Only thus much; by Hercules, I do hold it, and will affirm it before any prince in Europe, to be the most sovereign and pretious weed that ever the earth tend'red to the use of man.

E. Know. This speech would ha' done decently in a tobacco-trader's mouth.

[Re-enter Cash with Cob.]

Cash. At justice Clement's he is, in the middle of Coleman-street.

Bob. Where's the match I gave thee, master
Kitely's man?

Cash. Would his match and he, and pipe and all, were at Sancto Domingo! I had forgot it. [Exit.]

Cob. By God's me, I marle what pleasure or felicity they have in taking this rouglish tobacco. It's good for nothing but to choke a man, and fill him full of smoke and embers. [Re-enter There were four men died out of one house last week with taking of it, and two more the bell went for yeaste night; one of them, they say, will ne'er scape it; he voided a bushel of soot yesterday, upward and downward. By these stocks, an there were no wiser men than I,
I'd have it present. Why is it not, man or woman, that should but deal with a tobacco pipe. Why, that stifle them all in the end, as many as use it;
it's a litlle better than ratsbane or baas.

Bobadill beat him with a cudgel.

All. Oh, good captain, hold, hold!

Bob. You base sullen, you!

[Re-enter Cash.]

Cash. Sir, here's your match. — Come, thou must needs be talking too, thou 'rt well enough serv'd.

5 Tobacco from Trinidad was much prized.
6 Herb.
7 Tobacco named from M. Nicot, French ambassador to Portugal in 1559. It is usually a generic name, and the specific use here may be an intentional mistake.
8 Common poisons.
Cob. Nay, he will not meddle with his match,
I warrant you. Well, it shall be a dear beating,
And I'll mince you.

Bob. Do you prate, do you murmur? 139

E. Know. Nay, good captain, will you regard the humour of a fool? Away, knave.

Wel. Thomas, get him away.

[Exit Cash with Cob.]

Bob. A whoreson filthy slave, a dung-worm, an excrement! Body o' Caesar, but that I scorn lest it to forth so mean a spirit, I'd have stab'd dost of the earth.

Wel. Marry, the law forbid, sir!

Bob. By Pharaoh's foot, I would have done it.

Step. None, I thank you, sir. O, this gentleman does it rarely too; but nothing like the other.
By this air! As I am a gentleman!

[Exeunt Bob. and Mat.]

Brui. Master, glance, glance! master Wellbred!
STEPHEN is practising to the post. 160

Step. As I have somewhat to be saved, I protest —

Wel. You are a fool; it needs no affidavit.

E. Know. Cousin, will you any tobacco?

Step. I, sir! Upon my reputation —

E. Know. How now, cousin! 165

Step. I protest, as I am a gentleman, but no soldier, indeed —

Wel. No, master Stephen! As I remember, your name is ent'red in the artillery-garden. 166

Step. Ay, sir, that's true. Cousin, may I swear "as I am a soldier," by that?

E. Know. O yes, that you may; it is all you have for your money.

Step. Then, as I am a gentleman and a soldier, it is "divine tobacco!" 175

Wel. Butsoft, where's master Mathew? Gone?

Brai. No, sir; they went in here.

Wel. O let's follow them. Master Mathew is gone to salute his mistress in verse; we shall ha' the happiness to hear some of his poetry now; he never comes unfurnish'd. — Brainworm!

Step. Brainworm! Where? Is this Brainworm?

E. Know. Ay, cousin; no words of it, upon your gentility.

Step. Not I, body o' me! By this air! St.
George! and the foot of Pharaoh!

Wel. Rare! Your cousin's discourse is simply drawn out with oaths. 182

E. Know. 'Tis larded with 'em; a kind of French dressing, if you love it.  [Exeunt.]

SCENE VI. 2

[Enter] KITELY, Cob.

Kit. Ha! how many are there, sayest thou?

Cob. Marry, sir, your brother, master Wellbred —

Kitt. Tut, beside him: what strangers are there, man?

Cob. Who strangers? let me see, one, two; mass,
I know not well, there are so many.

Kit. How! so many?

Cob. Ay, there's some five or six of them at the most.

Kit. [Aside.] A swarm, a swarm!

Spite of the devil, how they sting my head

With forked stings, thus wide and large! — But,

Cob.

How long hast thou been coming hither, Cob?

Cob. A little while, sir.

Kit. Didst thou come running?

Cob. No, sir.

Kit. [Aside.] Nay, then I am familiar with thy haste.

Bane to my fortunes! what mean I to marry?

I, that before was rankt in such content,

My mind at rest too, in so soft a peace,

Being free master of mine own free thoughts,

And now become a slave? What! never sigh,

Be of good cheer, man; for thou art a cuckold:

'Tis done, 'tis done! Nay, when such flowing-store,

Plenty itself, falls in[to] my wife's lap,

The cornucopias will be mine, I know.—

But, Cob,

What entertainment bad they? I am sure

My sister and my wife would bid them welcome: ha?

Cob. Like enough, sir; yet I heard not a word of it.

Kit. No; —

[Aside.] Their lips were seal'd with kisses, and the voice,

Drown'd in a flood of joy at their arrival,

Had lost her motion, state, and faculty,—

Cob, which of them was 't that first kisst my wife,

My sister, I should say? My wife, alas!

I fear not her; ha! who was it sayst thou? 183

Cob. By my troth, sir, will you have the truth of it?

Kit. Oh, ay, good Cob, I pray thee heartily.

Cob. Then I am a vagabond, and fitter for Bridewell than your worship's company, if I saw any body to be kist, unless they would [e have kisst the post] 4 in the middle of the warehouse; for, there I left them all at their tobacco, with a pos.

Kit. How! were they not gone in then ere thou cam'st! 47

Cob. O no, sir.

Kit. Spite of the devil! what do I stay here then?

Cob. follow me. [Exit.]

Cob. Nay, soft and fair; I have eggs on the spit; 1 I cannot go yet, sir. Now am I, for some five and fifty reasons, hammering, hammering revenge; oh for three or four gallons of vagin, to sharpen my wits! Revenge, vagin revenge, vagin and mustard revenge! Nay, an he had not lien in my house, 't would never have grieved me; but being my guest, one that, [e

I'll be sworn, my wife has lent him her smock out.

off her back, while his own shirt has been at washing; pawn'd her neckerchiefs for clean hands for him; sold almost all my platters, to buy him tobacco; and he to turn monster of ingratitude, and strike his lawful host! Well, I hope to raise up an host of fury for't: here comes justice Clement.

SCENE VII. 1

Clem. What's master Kitely gone, Roger?

Form. Ay, sir.

Clem. 'Heart o' me! what made him leave us so abruptly? — How now, sirrah! what make you here? What would you have, ha? —

Cob. An't please your worship, I am a poor neighbour of your worship's —

Clem. A poor neighbour of mine! Why, speak, poor neighbour.

Cob. I dwell, sir, at the sign of the Water-tankard, hard by the Green Lattice: I have paid scot and lot; there any time this eighteen years.

Clem. To the Green Lattice?

Cob. No, sir, to the parish. Marry, I have seldom scant free-at-the Lattice.

Clem. O, well; what business has my poor neighbour with me?

Cob. An't like your worship, I am come to crave the peace of your worship.

Clem. Of me, knave! Peace of me, knave! Did I ever hurt thee, or threaten thee, or wrong thee, ha?

Cob. No, sir; but your worship's warrant for one that has wrong'd me, sir. His arms are at too much liberty, I would fain have them bound to a treaty of peace, my credit could compass it with your worship.

Clem. Thou goest far enough about 't, I am sure.

Know. Why, dost thou go in danger of thy life for him, friend?

Cob. No, sir; but I go in danger of my death every hour, by his means; an I die within a twelve-month and a day, I may swear by the law of the land that he kill'd me.

Clem. How, how, knave, swear he kill'd thee, and by the law? What pretence, what colour, hast thou for that?

Cob. Marry, an't please your worship, both black and blue; colour enough, I warrant you. I have it here to shew your worship.

[Shows his bruises.]

Clem. What is he that gave you this, sirrah?

Cob. A gentleman and a soldier, he says he is, of the city here.

Clem. A soldier of the city! What call you him?

Cob. Captain Bobadill.

Clem. Bobadill! and why did he bob and beat you, sirrah? How began the quarrel betwixt you, ha? Speak truly, knave, I advise you.

Cob. Marry, indeed, an't please your worship, only because I spake against their vagrant tobacco, as I came by 'em when they were talking on 't; for nothing else.

Clem. Ha! you speak against tobacco? Formal, his name.

Form. What's your name, sirrah?

Cob. Oliver, sir, Oliver Cob, sir.

Clem. Tell Oliver Cob he shall go to the jail.

Form. Oliver Cob, my master, justice Clement, says you shall go to the jail.

Cob. O, I beseech your worship, for God's sake, dear master justice!

Clem. God's precious! an such drunkards and tankards as you are, come to dispute of tobacco once, I have done. Away with him!

Cob. O, good master justice! — Sweet old gentleman! [To Knowell.]

Know. "Sweet Oliver," would I could do thine any good! — Justice Clement, let me inter you, sir.

Clem. What! a thread-bare rascal, a beggar, a slave that never drunk out of better than piss-pot metal in his life! and he to deprave and abuse the virtue of an herb so generally receiv'd in the courts of princes, the chambers of nobles, the bowers of sweet ladies, the cabins of soldiers! — Roger, away with him? By God's precious — I say, go to.

Cob. Dear master justice, let me be beaten again, I have deserv'd it: but not the prison, I beseech you.

Know. Alas, poor Oliver!

Cob. Roger, make him a warrant: — he shall not go, I but fear the knave.

Form. Do not stink, sweet Oliver, you shall not go; my master will give you a warrant.

Cob. O, the Lord maintain his worship, his worthy worship!

Clem. Away, dispatch him.

[Exeunt Formal and Cob.]

— How now, master Knowell, in dumps, in dumps! Come, this becomes not.

Know. Sir, would I could not feel my cares.

Clem. Your cares are nothing: they are as like my cap, soon put on, and as soon put off. What! your son is old enough to govern himself; let him run his course, it's the only way to make him a staid man. If he were an unthrift, a ruffian, a drunkard, or a licentious liver, then you had reason; you had reason to take care: but, being none of these, sirrah, what's my wit, an I had twice so many cares as you have, I'd drown them all in a cup of sack. Come, come, let's try it: I must your parcel of a soldier returns not all this while. [Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I. 6

[Enter] Downright and Dame Kitely.

Dow. Well, sister, I tell you true; and you'll find it so in the end.

1 The same. 2 Tavern. 3 Rates and taxes. 4 The legal limit of time in defining murder. 5 Strike.
Dame K. Alas, brother, what would you have me to do? I cannot help it; you see my brother brings 'em in here; they are his friends.

Dow. His friends! his friends, 'Shud! they do nothing but haunt him up and down like a sort of unlucky spirits, and tempt him to all manner of villainy that can be thought of. Well, by this light, a little thing would make me play the devil with some of 'em: an 't were not more for your husband's sake than anything else, I'd make the house too hot for the best on 'em;
they should say, and swear, hell were broken loose, ere they went hence. But, by God's will,
't is nobody's fault but yours; for you had done as you might have done, they should have been parboil'd, and bak'd too, every mother's son, ere they should ha' come in, o'er a one of
'em.

Dame K. God's my life! did you ever hear the like? What a strange man is this! Could I keep out all them, think you? I should put myself against half a dozen men, should I? Good faith, you'd mad the patient'st body in the is world, to hear you talk so, without any sense or reason.

SCENE II.1

DOWNRIGHT. DAME KITELY. [Enter] MISTRESS
BRIDGET, MASTER MATHEW, and BOBADILL;
[followed, at a distance, by] WELLBRED, E.
KNOWELL, STEPHEN, and BRAINWORM.

Brid. Servant,2 in troth you are too prodigal
Of your wit's treasure, thus to pour it forth
Upon so mean a subject as my worth.
Mat. You say well, mistress, and I mean as well.

Dow. Ho! day, here is stuff! 5

Wel. O, now stand close; 3 pray Heaven, she can get him to read! He should do it of his own natural impudence.

Brid. Servant, what is this same, I pray you?
Mat. Marry, an elegy, an elegy, an odd toy —

Dow. To mock an ape withal! 4 O, I could [11 sew up his mouth, now.

Dame K. Sister, I pray you let's hear it.

Dow. Are you rhyme-given too?

Mat. Mistress, I'll read it, if you please.

Brid. Pray you do, servant.

Dow. O, here's an imperty! Death! I can endure the stocks better. [Exit.]

E. Know. What ails thy brother? Can he not hold his water at reading of a ballad? 9

Wel. O, no; a rhyme to him is worse than cheese, or a bag-pipe; but mark; you lose the protestation.

Mat. Faith, I did it in a humour; I know not how it is; but please you come near, sir. This is gentleman has judgment, he knows how to censure of a — pray you, sir, you can judge?

Step. Not I, sir; upon my reputation, and by the foot of Pharaoh.

E. Know. Not I, so long as he does not for-swear himself.

Bob. Master Mathew, you abuse the expectation of your dear mistress, and her fair sister.

Mat. I shall, sir; well; incipere dulce.6

E. Know. How, incipere dulce! "A sweet thing to be a fool," indeed!

Wel. What, do you take incipere in that sense?

Mat. [Reads.] Rare creature, let me speak without offence.

E. Know. Would God my rude words had the influence
To rule thy thoughts, as thy fair looks do mine.
Then shouldst thou be his prisoner, who is thine.

Wel. O, ay: peace, we shall have more of this.
Mat. Be not unkind and fair: misshapen stuff
Is of behaviour boisterous and rough.

Wel. How like you that, sir?

Master Stephen answers with shaking his head.

E. Know. `Slight, he shakes his head like a bottle, to feel an there be any brain in it. 6
Mat. But observe the catastrophe, now:
And I in duty will exceed all other,
As you in beauty do excel Love's mother.

E. Know. Well, I'll have him free of the wit-brokers, for he utters nothing but stol'n remnants.

Wel. O, forgive it him.

E. Know. A railing? rogue, hang him! — and from the dead! It's worse than sacrilegious. [4

Wel. O, ay! — hang him! —

E. Know. But observe the catastrophe, now:
And I in duty will exceed all other,
As you in beauty do excel Love's mother.

that crowns your beauty with such enomi- [90 ums and devices; you may see what it is to be the mistress of a wit that can make your perfections so transparent, that every bleare eye may look through them, and see him drown'd over head and ears in the deep well of desire.
Sister Kityle, I marvel you get you not a servant that can rhyme, and do tricks too. 8
Dow. O monster! impudence itself! tricks!
Dame K. Tricks, brother! what tricks?
Brid. Nay, speak, I pray you, what tricks?
Dame K. Ay, never spare any body here; [100
but say, what tricks?
Brid. Passion of my heart, do tricks!
Wel. 'Slight, here's a trick vied and revied! 11
Why, you monkeys, you, what a cater-wauling do you keep! Has he not given you rhymes and verses and tricks?
Dow. O, the fiend!
Wel. Nay, you lamp of virginity, that take it in this reference, and cherish this tame poetical fury in your servant; you'll be begg'd 110 else shortly for a concealment: you go, reward his muse. You cannot give him less than a shilling in conscience, for the book he had it out of cost him a teston 2 at least. How now, gallants! [114 Master Mathew! Captain! what, all sons of sileence? No spirit?
Dow. Come, you might practise your ruffian tricks somewhere else, and not here, I wus; 6 this is no tavern nor drinking-school, to vent your exploits in.
Wel. How now; whose cow has calv'd?
Dow. Marry, that has mine, sir. Nay, boy, ever look askance at me for the matter; I'll tell you of it, I, sir; and you your companions mend yourselves when I ha' done.
Wel. My companions!
Dow. Yes, sir, your companions, so I say; I am not afraid of you, nor them neither; your hangersby here. You must have your poets and your poetlings, 6 your soldados and foolados to 110 follow you up and down the city; and here they must come to domineer and swagger. — Sirrah, you ballad-singer, and Slops 7 your fellow there,
get you out, get you home; or by this steel,
I'll cut off your ears, and that presently.
Wel. 'Slight, stay, let's see what he dare do; cut off his ears! cut a whetstone. You are an ass, do you see? Touch any man here, and by this hand I'll run my rapier to the hilt in you.
Dow. Yea, that would I fain see, boy.
They all draw, and they of the house make out to part them.
Dame K. O Jeau! murder! Thomas! Gaspier!
Brid. Help, help! Thomas!

E. Know. Gentlemen, forbear, I pray you. 14
Bob. Well, sirrah, you Holofener; by my hand, I will pick your flesh full of holes with my rapier for this; I will, by this good heaven!
Nay, let him come, let him come, gentlemen;
by the body of St. George, I'll not kill him.
Offer to fight again, and are parted.
Cash. Hold, hold, good gentlemen. 160
Dow. You whoresou, bragging coystril! 8

Scene III. 9
To them [enter] KITELY.

Kit. Why, how now! what's the matter,
what's the stir here?
Whence springs the quarrel? Thomas! where is he?
Put up your weapons, and put off this rage.
My wife and sister, they are the cause of this.
What, Thomas! where is the knife?
Cash. Here, sir.
Wel. Come, let's go; this is one of my brother's ancient humors, this.
Step. I am glad nobody was hurt by his ancient humour.

[Exeunt Wellbred, Stephen, E. Knowell, Bobadill, and Brainworm.]

Kit. Why, how now, brother, who enforce'd this brawl?
Dow. A sort, 10 of lewd rake-hells, that care neither for God nor the devil. And they must come here to read ballads, and roguery, and 11 trash! I'll mar the knot of 'em ere I sleep, perhaps; especially Bob there, he that's all maner of shapes: and Songs and Sonnets, his fellow.

Brid. Brother, indeed you are too violent,
Too sudden in your humour: and you know
My brother Wellbred's temper will not bear
Any reproof, chiefly in such a presence,
Where every slight disgrace he should receive
Might wound him in opinion and respect.
Dow. Respect! what talk you of respect among such as ha' nor spark of manhood nor good manners? 'Sdefns, I am asham'd to hear you! respect! 11

[Exit.]
Brid. Yes, there was one a civil gentleman,
And very worthily demean'd himself.
Kit. O, that was some love of yours, sister.
Brid. A love of mine! I would it were no worse, brother;
You'd pay my portion sooner than you think for.
Dame K. Indeed he seem'd to be a gentle- 124 man of a very exceeding fair disposition, and of excellent good parts.

[Exeunt Dame KITELY and BRI-DGET.]

Kit. Her love, by heaven! my wife's minion.
Fair disposition! excellent good parts!
Death! these phrases are intolerable.
Good parts! how should she know his parts? 140
His parts! Well, well, well, well, well;
It is too plain, too clear: Thomas, come hither.
What, are they gone?
Ay, sir, they went in.

My mistress and your sister—

Kit. Are any of the gallants within?

Cash. No, sir, they are all gone.

Kit. Art thou sure of it?

Cash. I can assure you, sir.

Kit. What gentleman was that they praised so, Thomas?

Cash. One, they call him Master Knowell, a handsome young gentleman, sir.

Kit. Ay, I thought so; my mind gave me as much.

I'll die, but they have hid him i' the house.

Somewhere; I'll go and search; go with me, Thomas:
Be true to me, and thou shalt find me a master.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.1

[Enter] Cob.

Cob. [knocks at the door.] What, Tib! Tib, I say!

Tib. [within.] How now, what euckold is that knocks so hard?

[Enter Tib.]

O, husband! Is it you? What's the news?

Cob. Nay, you have stunned me, I faith; you ha' giv'n me a knock o' the forehead will stick by me. Cuckold! 'Sild, cuckold!

Tib. Away, you fool! Did I know it was you that knocked? Come, come, you may call me as bad which you list.

Cob. May I? Tib, you are a whore.

Tib. You lie in your throat, husband.

Cob. How, the lie! and in my throat too! do you long to be stabb'd, ha?

Tib. Why, you are no soldier, I hope.

Cob. O, must you be stabb'd by a soldier?

Mass, that's true! When was Bobadill here, your captain? that rogue, that foist, 2 that fencing Burgilion? 3 I'll tickle him, I' faith.

Tib. Why, what's the matter, troost?

Cob. O, he has basted me rarely, sumptuously! but I have it here in black and white [Pulls out the warrant], for his black and blue shall pay him. O, the justice, the honest old bragg 4 Trojan in London; I do honour the very fea of his dog. A plague on him, though, he put me once in a villainous filthy fear; marry, it vanished away like the smoke of tobacco; but I was smok'd 5 soundly first. I thank the devil, 6 and his good angel, my guest. Well, wife, or Tib, which you will, get you in, and lock the door; I charge you let nobody in to you, wife; nobody in to you; those are my words: not Captain Bob himself, nor the fiend in his [sic] likeness. You are a woman, you have flesh and blood enough in you to be tempted; therefore keep the door shut upon all comers.

Tib. I warrant you, there shall nobody enter here without my consent.

Cob. Nor with your consent, sweet Tib; and so I leave you.

Tib. It's more than you know, whether you leave me so.

Cob. How?

Tib. Why, sweet.

Cob. Tut, sweet or sour, thou art a flower.

Keep close thy door, I ask no more. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V.5

[Enter] E. KNOWELL, WELLBRED, STEPHEN, and BRAINWORM, [disguised as before.]

E. Know. Well, Brainworm, perform this business happily, and thou makest a purchase of my love for ever.

Wel. I' faith, now let thy spirits use their best faculties: but, at any hand, remember [the message to my brother; for there's no other means to start him.

Brai. I warrant you, sir; fear nothing; I have a nimble soul has wakt all forces of my phant'sie by this time, and put 'em in true [motion. What you have posses'd, 6 me withal, I'll discharge it amply, sir; make it no question.

Wel. Forth, and prosper, Brainworm. Faith, Ned, how dost thou approve of my abilities in this device?

E. Know. Troth, well, howsoever; but it will come excellent if it take.

Wel. Take, man! why it cannot choose but take, if the circumstances miscarry not: 7 but, tell me ingeniously, dost thou affect my sister Bridget as thou pretend'st?

E. Know. Friend, am I worth belief?

Wel. Come, do not protest. In faith, she is a madam of good ornament, and much modesty; and, except I conceive'd very worthy of her, thou should'st not have her.

E. Know. Nay, that, I am afraid, will be a question yet, whether I shall have her, or no.

Wel. 'Slid, thou shalt have her; by this light thou shalt.

E. Know. Nay, do not swear.

Wel. By this hand thou shalt have her; I'll go fetch her presently. Point but where to meet, and as I am an honest man I'll bring her.

E. Know. Hold, hold, be temperate.

Wel. Why, by—what shall I swear by?

Thou shalt have her, as I am—

E. Know. Pray thee, be at peace, I am satisfied; and do believe thou wilt omit no occasion to make my desires complete.

Wel. Thou shalt see, and know, I will not. [Exeunt.]

SCENE VI.7

[Enter] FORMAL and KNOWELL.

Form. Was your man a soldier, sir?

Know. Ay, a knave; I took him begging o' the way, this morning, As I came over Moorfields.

1 The lane before Cob's house.
2 Cheat.
3 Bully.
4 Guessed, found out; but here, apparently, frightened.
5 A room in the Windmill Tavern.
6 Informed.
7 The Old Jewry.
O, here he is!—you've made fair speed, believe me.

Where, if the name of sloth, could you be thus?

Brai. Marry, peace be my comfort, where I thought I should have had little comfort of your worship's service.

Know. How so?

Brai. O, sir, your coming to the city, your entertainment of me, and your sending me to watch—indeed all the circumstances either of your charge, or my employment, are as open to your, as to yourself.

Know. How should that be, unless that villain, Brainworm, has told him of the letter, and discover'd all that I strictly charg'd him to conceal? 'Tis so.

Brai. I am partly o' the faith, 'tis so, indeed.

Know. But, how should he know thee to be my man?

Brai. Nay, sir, I cannot tell: unless it be by the black art. Is not your son a scholar, sir?

Know. Yes, but I hope his soul is not allied unto such hellish practice: if it were, I had just cause to weep my part in him,

And curse the time of his creation.

But, where didst thou find them, Fitz-Sword?

Brai. You should rather ask where they found me, sir; for I'll be sworn, I was going along in the street, thinking nothing, when, of a sudden, a voice calls, 'Mr. Knowell's man!' another cries, 'Soldier!' and thus half a dozen of 'em, till they had calld me within a house, where I no sooner came, but they seem'd men, and out flew all their rapiers at my bosom, with some three or four score oaths to accompany them; and all to tell me, I was but a dead man, if I did not confess where you were, and how I was employed, and about what; which when they could not get out of me (as, I protest, they must ha' dissected, and made an anatomy o' me first, and so I told 'em), they lock'd me up into a room i' the top of a high house, whence by great miracle (having a light heart) I slid down by a bottom of packthread into the street, and so scent. But, sir, thus much I can assure you, for I heard it while I was lockt up, there were a great many rich merchants and brave citizens' wives with 'em at a feast; and your son, [ma]ster Edward, withdrew with one of 'em, and has pointed to meet her anon at one Cob's house, a water-bearer that dwells by the Wall. Now, there your worship shall be sure to take him, for there he preys, and fail he will not.

Know. Nor will I fail to break his match, I doubt not.

Go thou along with justice Clement's man. And stay there for me. At one Cob's house, say at thou?

[Enter Brainworm, disguised as before.]

Brai. Ay, sir, there shall have him.

[Exit Knowell.] Yes—invisible! Much wenches, or much sons! Slight, when he has staid there three or four hours, travelling with the expectation of wonders, and at length be deliver'd of air! O the sport that I should then [as take to look on him, if I durst! But now, I mean to appear no more afore him in this shape: I have another trick to act yet. O that I were so happy as to light on a napsin now of this justice's novice!—Sir, I make you stay somewhat long.

Form. Not a whit, sir. Pray you what do you mean, sir?

Brai. I was putting up some papers.

Form. You ha' been lately in the wars, sir, it seems.

Brai. Marry have I, sir, to my loss, and expense of all, almost.

Form. Troth, sir, I would be glad to bestow a bottle of wine o' you, if it please you to accept it.

Brai. O, sir—

Form. But to hear the manner of your services, and your devices in the wars. They say they be very strange, and not like those [as a man reads in the Roman histories, or sees at Mile-end.]

Brai. No, I assure you, sir; why at any time when it please you, I shall be ready to discourse to you all I know; [Aside.]—and more too somewhat.

Form. No better time than now, sir; we'll go to the Windmill; there we shall have a cup of neat grist, we call it. I pray you, sir, let me make grist o' you, if I have good luck.

SCENE VII.6

[Enter] MATHEW, E. KNOWELL, BOBADILL, STEPHEN.

Mat. Sir, did your eyes ever taste the like clown of him where we were to-day, Mr. Wellbred's half-brother? I think the whole earth cannot shew his parallel, by this daylight.

E. Know. We were now speaking of him: [as captain Bobadill tells me he is fall'n foul o' you too]

Mat. O, ay, sir, he threat'ned me with the bastinado.

Bob. Ay, but I think, I taught you pre- [as prevention this morning, for that. You shall kill him beyond question, if you be so generously minded.

Mat. Indeed, it is a most excellent trick.

Bob. O, you do not give spirit enough to [as your motion; you are too tardy, too heavy! O, it must be done like lightning, hay!]

Practises at a post.

Mat. Rare, captain!

1 Skeleton. 2 Ball.

6 Where the city bands trained.
7 Slang for liquor: the product of the Windmill.
8 Moorfields.
Bob. Tut! 'tis nothing, an't be not done in a — punto. 1

E. Know. Captain, did you ever prove yourself upon any of our masters of defence here?

Mat. O good sir! yes, I hope he has.

Bob. I will tell you, sir. Upon my first coming to the city, after my long travel for know— as ledge in that mystery only, there came three or four of 'em to me, at a gentleman's house, where it was my chance to be resident at that time, to intreat my presence at their schools; and withal so much importun'd me that, as I protest to you as I am a gentleman, I was ashamed of their rude demeanour out of all measure. Well, I told 'em that to come to a public school, they should pardon me, it was opposite, in diameter, to my humour; but if so be they would give their attendance at my lodging, I protested to do them what right or favour I could, as I was a gentleman, and so forth.

E. Know. So, sir! then you tried their skill?

Bob. Alas, soon tried; you shall hear, sir. 2 Within two or three days after, they came; and, by honesty, fair sir, believe me, I grace'd them exceedingly, shew'd them some two or three tricks of prevention have purchas'd 3 'em since a credit to admiration. They cannot deny this; and yet now they hate me; and why? Because I am excellent; and for no other vile reason on the earth.

E. Know. This is strange and barbarous, as ever I heard.

Bob. Nay, for a more instance of their preposterous natures, but note, sir. They have assaulted me some three, four, five, six of them together, as I have walk't alone in divers skirts i' the town, as Turnbull, Whitechapel, Shore-ditch, 4 which were then my quarters; and since, upon the Exchange, at my lodging, and at my ordinary; where I have driven them afore me the whole length of a street, in the open view of all our gallants, plying to hurt them, believe me. Yet all thisiken will not overcome their spleen; they will be doing with the pismire, raising a hill a man may spurn abroad with his foot at pleasure. By myself, 5 I could have slain them all, but I delight not in murder. I am loth to bear any other than this bastinado for 'em: yet I hold it good polity not to go disarm'd, for though I be skilful, I may be oppress'd with multitudes.

E. Know. Ay, believe me, may you, sir: and in my conceit, our whole nation should sustain the loss by it, if it were so.

E. Know. O, but your skill, sir.

Bob. Indeed, that might be some loss; but who respects it? I will tell you, sir, by the way of private, and under seal; I am a gentleman, and live here obscure, and to myself; but so were I known to her majesty and the lords,— observe me,—I would undertake, upon this poor head and life, for the public benefit of the state, not only to spare the entire lives of her subjects in general; but to save the one half, nay, three parts of her yearly charge in holding war, and against what enemy soever. And how would I do it, think you?

E. Know. Nay, I know not, nor can I conceive.

Bob. Why thus, sir. I would select nineteen most to myself, throughout the land; gentlemen they should be of good spirit, strong and able constitution; I would choose them by an instinct, a character that I have, and I would teach these nineteen the special rules, as your 7 punto, your reverso, your stoccata, your imbrocato, your passada, your montando; 8 till they could all play very near, or altogether, as well as myself. This done, say the enemy were forty thousand, we twenty would come into the field the tenth of March, or thereabouts; and Bob. would challenge twenty of the enemy; they could not in their honor refuse us: well, we would kill them; challenge twenty more, kill them; twenty more, kill them; twenty more, kill them too; and thus would we kill every man his twenty a day, that's twenty score; twenty score, that's two hundred; 9 two hundred a day, five days a thousand; forty thousand; forty times five, five times forty, two hundred in days kills them all up by computation. And this will I venture my poor gentleman-like careeness to perform, provided there be no treason practis'd upon us, by fair and discreet manhood; 10 that is, civilly by the sword.

E. Know. Why, are you so sure of your hand, captain, at all times?

Bob. Tut! never miss thrust, upon my reputation with you.

E. Know. I would not stand in Downright's state then, an you meet him, for the wealth of any one street in London.

Bob. Why, sir, you mistake me: if he were here now, by this walking, I would not draw my weapon on him. Let this gentleman do his 11 mind; but I will bastinado him, by the bright sun, wherever I meet him.

Mat. Faith, and I'll have a fling at him, at my distance.

E. Know. 'God's so, look where he is! yonder he goes.

DOWNTOWN. Walks over the stage.

Dow. What peevish luck have I, I cannot meet with these bragging rascals?

Bob. It is not he, is it?

E. Know. Yes, faith, it is he.

Mat. I'll be hang'd, then, if that were he.

E. Know. Sir, keep your hanging good for some greater matter, for I assure you that was he.

Step. Upon my reputation, it was he.

Bob. Had I thought it had been he, he must not have gone so: but I can hardly be induc'd to believe it was he yet.

E. Know. That I think, sir.

1 Moment. 2 All low districts. 3 Ant. 4 Individual. 5 Italian terms of fencing. 6 Too much of a borrower to be an accurate reckoner.
[Re-enter Downright.]

But see, he is come again.

Dow. O, Pharaoh's foot, have I found you? Come, draw, to your tools; draw, gipsy, or I'll thrash you.

Bob. Gentleman of valour, I do believe in thee; hear me —

Dow. Draw your weapon then.

Bob. Tall man, I never thought on it till now — body of me, I had a warrant of the peace served on me, even now as I came along; by a water-bearer; this gentleman saw it, [156] Master Mathew.

Dow. 'S death! you will not draw then?

Beats and disarms him. Mathew runs away.

Bob. Hold, hold! under thy favour forbear!

Dow. Prate again, as you like this, you [150] whoreson foist you! You'll 'twill control the point, 'till you! Your consort is gone; had he said he had shar'd with you, sir. [Exit.]

Bob. Well, gentlemen, bear witness, I was bound to the peace, by this good day.

E. Know. No, faith, 'tis an ill day, captains never reckon it other; but, say you were bound to the peace, the law allows you to defend yourself: that 'twill prove but a poor excuse.

Bob. I cannot tell, sir; I desire good construction in fair sort. I never sustain'd the like disgrace, by heaven! Sure I was struck with a planet thence, for I had no power to touch my weapon.

E. Know. Ay, like enough; I have heard of many that have been beaten under a planet: [138] go, get you to a surgeon. 'Sli'd! an these be your tricks, your passades, and your montane, I'll none of them. [Exit Bobadill.] O, manners! that this age should bring forth such [170] creatures! that nature should be at leisure to make them! Come, cox.

Step. Mass, I'll ha' this cloak.

E. Know. 'Od's will, 'tis Downright's.

Step. Nay, it's mine now, another might have taken up as well as I: I'll wear it, so I will. [152] E. Know. How an he see it? He'll challenge it, assure yourself.

Step. Ay, but he shall not ha' it; I'll say I bought it.

E. Know. Take heed you buy it not too dear cox.

[Exeunt.]

Scene VIII. [Enter] Kitely, Wellbeed, Dame Kitely, and Bridget.

Kit. Now, trust me, brother, you were much to blame,

T'insence his anger, and disturb the peace
Of my poor house, where there are sentinels
That every minute watch to give alarms
Of civil war, without aduction.

Of your assistance or occasion.

Wel. No man done, brother, I warrant you.

Since there is no harm done, anger costs a man nothing; and a tall man is never his own man till he be angry. To keep his valour in obseurity, is to keep himself as it were in a cloak-bag. What's a musician, unless he play? What's a tall man unless he fight? For, indeed, all this my wise brother stands upon absolutely; and that made me fall in with him so resolutely. [156] Dame K. Ay, but what harm might have come of it, brother?

Wel. Might, sister? Some might the good warm clothes your husband wears he poison'd, for anything he knows: or the wholesome wine he [150] drank, even now at the table.

Kit. [Aside.] Now, God forbid! O me! now I remember

My wife drank to me last, and Chang'd the cup,

And bade me wear this cursed suit to-day.

See, if Heaven suffer murder undiscover'd! — [76] I feel me ill; give me some mithridate;

Some mithridate and oil, good sister, fetch me; O, I am sick at heart, I burn, I burn.

If you will save my life, go fetch it me.

Wel. O strange humour! my very breath [70] has poison'd him.

Brid. Good brother, be content, what do you mean?

The strength of these extreme conceits' will kill you.

Dame K. Beshrew your heart-blood, brother Wellbed, now,

For putting such a toy into his head!

[Enter] Brainworm, disguised like justice Clement's man.

Brui. Master Kitely, my master, justice [78] Clement, salutes you; and desires to speak with you with all possible speed.

Kit. No time but now, when I think I am sick, very sick! Well, I will wait upon his worship. Thomas! Cob! I must seek them out, and set'em sentinels till I return. Thomas! Cob! [80] [Exit.]

Wel. This is perfectly rare, Brainworm; [Takes him aside.] but how got'th thou this apparel of the justice's man?

Brui. Marry, sir, my proper fine pen-man would needs bestow the girt o' me, at the Windmill, to hear some martial discourse; where I so marshall'd him, that I made him drunk with admiration: and, because too much heat was the cause of his distemper, I stript [90] him stark naked as he lay along asleep, and borrowed his suit to deliver this counterfeit message in, leaving a rusty armour, and an old brown bill to watch him till my return; which shall be, when I ha' pawn'd his apparel, and [92] spent the better part o' the money, perhaps.

Wel. Well, thou art a successful merry knave, Brainworm; his absence will be a good subject for more mirth. I pray thee return to thy young master, and will him to meet me and my [70] sister Bridget at the Tower instantly; for here, tell him, the house is so stö'd with jealousy, there is no room for love to stand upright in. We must get our fortunes committed to some larger prison, say; and than the Tower, I [80] know no better aire, nor where the liberty of the house may do us more present service. Away!

[Exit Brainworm.]

[Re-enter KITELY, talking aside to CASH.]

K. Come hither, Thomas. Now my secret's ripe, And thou shalt have it: lay to both thine ears. Hark what I say to thee. I must go forth, Thomas:

Be careful of thy promise, keep good watch, Note every gallant, and observe him well, That enters in my absence to thy mistress: If she would shew him rooms, the jest is stale, Follow 'em, Thomas, or else hang on him, And let him not go after; mark their looks; Note if she offer but to see his band, Or any other amorous toy about him; But praise his leg, or foot: or if she say The day is hot, and bid him feel her hand, How hot it is; O, that's a monstrous thing! Note me all this, good Thomas, mark their sighs, And if they do but whisper, break 'em off: I'll hear thee out in it. Wilt thou do this? Wilt thou be true, my Thomas?

Cash. As truth's self, sir. [Exit.

Dame K. He's ever calling for Cob: I wonder how he employs Cob so.

Wel. Indeed, sister, to ask how he employs Cob, is a necessary question for you that are [100] his wife, and a thing not very easy for you to be satisfied in; but this I'll assure you, Cob's wife is an excellent bawd, sister, and oftentimes your husband haunts her house; marry, to what end? I cannot altogether accuse him; imagine [105] you what you think convenient: but I have known fair hides have foul hearts ere now, sister.

Dame K. Never said you truer than that, brother, so much I can tell you for your learning. Thomas, fetch your cloak and go with me. [Exit Cash.]

I'll after him presently: I would to fortune I could take him there, I'faith. I'd return him his own, I warrant him! [Exit.]

Wel. So, let'em go; this may make sport anon. Now, my fair sister-in-law, that you knew but [115] how happy a thing it were to be fair and beautiful.

Brid. That touches not me, brother.

Wel. That's true; that's even the fault of it; for indeed, beauty stands a woman in no [120] stead, unless it procure her touching. — But, sister, whether it touch you or no, it touches your beauties; and I am sure they will abide the touch; an they do not, a plague of all cer-

1 17 As the Tower was extra-parochial, it probably afforded some facility to private marriages." (Gifford.)

use, say I! and it touches me too in part, [125] though not in the — Well, there's a dear and respected friend of mine, sister, stands very strongly and worthily affected toward you, and hath vow'd to inflame whole bonfires of zeal at his heart, in honour of your perfections. I [130] have already engag'd my promise to bring you where you shall hear him confirm much more. Ned Knowell is the man, sister: there's no exception against the party. You are ripe for a husband; and a minute's loss to such an [135] occasion is a great trespass in a wise beauty. What say you, sister? On my soul he loves you; will you give him the meeting?

Brid. Faith, I had very little confidence in mine own constancy, brother, if I durst not [140] meet a man: but this motion of yours savours of an old knight adventurer's servant a little too much, methinks.

Wel. What's that, sister?

Brid. Marry, of the squire. [145]

Wel. No matter if it did, I would be such an one for my friend. But see, who is return'd to hinder us?

[Re-enter KITELY.]

K. What villany is this? Call'd out on a false message!

This was some plot; I was not sent for. — Bridget,

Where is your sister?

Brid. I think she be gone forth, sir.

K. How is my wife gone forth? Whither, for God's sake?

Brid. She's gone abroad with Thomas.

K. Abroad with Thomas! oh, that villain dors' me:

He hath discover'd all unto my wife. [155]

Beast that I was, to trust him! Whither, I pray you Went she?

Brid. I know not, sir.

Wel. I'll tell you, brother, Whither I suspect she's gone.

K. Whither, good brother? Wel. To Cob's house, I believe: but, keep my counsel.

K. I will, I will: to Cob's house! Doth she haunt Cob's?

She's gone a purpose now to cuckold me

With that lewd rascal, who, to win her favour, Hath told her all. [Exit.

Wel. Come, he is once more gone, Sister, let's lose no time; 'tis affair is worth it.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IX. [Enter] MATHEW and BORAILL.

Mat. I wonder, captain, what they will say of my going away, ha?

Bob. Why, what should they say, but as of a discreet gentleman; quick, wary, respectful of nature's fair lineaments? and that's all.

Mat. Why so! but what can they say of your beating?

2 White lead, used as a cosmetic. 4 Fools.

3 Used in the sense of pander.

5 A street.
Bob. A rude part, a touch with soft wood, a kind of gross battery us'd, laid on strongly, but most patiently; and that's all.
Mat. Ay, but would any man have offered it in Venice, as you say?
Bob. Tut! I assure you, no: you shall have there your nobilities, your gentility, come in bravely upon your reverse, stand you close, [is stand you firm, stand you fair, save your retraction to his left foot, come to the assalto with the right, thrust with true steel, defy your base wood! But wherefore do I awake this remembrance? I was fascinated, by Jupiter; fascinated, but I will be unwitch'd and reneg'd by law.
Mat. Do you hear? Is it not best to get a warrant, and have him arrested and brought before justice Clement?
Bob. It were not amiss? Would we had it!
[Enter Brainworm disguised as Formal.]

Mat. Why, here comes his man; let's speak to him.
Bob. Agreed, do you speak.
Mat. Save you, sir.
Brai. With all my heart, sir.
Mat. Sir, there is one Downright hath abus'd this gentleman and myself, and we determine to make our amends by law. Now, if you would do us the favour to procure a warrant to bring him afore your master, you shall be well considered, I assure you, sir.
Brai. Sir, you know my service is my living; such favours as these gotten of my master is his only preference, and therefore you must consider me as I may make benefit of my place.
Mat. How is that, sir?
Brai. Faith, sir, the thing is extraordinary, and the gentleman may be of great account; yet be he what he will, if you will lay me down a brace of angels in my hand you shall have it, otherwise not.
Mat. How shall we do, captain? He asks a brace of angels; you have no money?
Bob. Not a cross, by fortune.
Mat. Nor I, as I am a gentleman, but two- pence left of my two shillings in the morning for wine and radish; let's find him some pawn.
Bob. Pawn! We have none to the value of his demand.
Mat. O, yes; I'll pawn this jewel in my ear, and you may pawn your silk stockings, and pull up your boots, they will ne'er be mist: it must be done now.
Bob. Well, an there be no remedy, I'll step aside and pull 'em off.
[Withdraws.]

Mat. Do you hear, sir? We have no store of money at this time, but you shall have good pawns; look you, sir, this jewel, and that gentleman's silk stockings; because we would have it dispatch'd ere we went to our chambers.
Brai. I am content, sir; I will get you the warrant presently. What's his name, say you? Downright?
Mat. Ay, ay, George Downright.

1 The only preferment he gives me.
2 Penny.
3 Forthwith.

Brai. What manner of man is he?
Mat. A tall big man, sir; he goes in a cloak most commonly of silk russet, laid about with russet lace.
Brai. 'Tis very good, sir.
Mat. Here, sir, here's my jewel.
Bob. [returning.] And here are stockings.
Brai. Well, gentlemen, I'll procure you this warrant presently; but who will you have to serve it?
Mat. That's true, captain: that must be considered.
Bob. Body o' me, I know not; 't is service of danger.
Brai. Why, you were best get one o' the varlets of the city, a serjeant: I'll appoint you one, if you please.
Mat. Will you, sir? Why, we can wish better.
Bob. We'll leave it to you, sir.
[Exeunt Bob. and Mat.]
Brai. This is rare! Now will I go and pawn this cloak of the justice's man's at the brok- er's for a varlet's suit, and be the varlet myself; and get either more pawns, or more money of Downright, for the arrest.
[Exit.]

Scene X.
[Enter] Knowell.

Know. Oh, here it is; I am glad I have found it now;
Ho! who is within here?
Tib. [within.] I am within, sir? What's your pleasure?
Know. To know who is within besides yourself.
Tib. Why, sir, you are no constable, I hope?
Know. O, fear you the constable? Then I doubt not
You have some guests within deserve that fear.
I'll fetch him straight.
[Enter Tib.]
O' God's name, sir!
Know. Go to; come tell me, is not young Knowell here?
Tib. Young Knowell! I know none such, sir, o' mine honesty.
Know. Your honesty, dame! It flies too lightly from you.
There is no way but fetch the constable.
Tib. The constable! The man is mad, I think.
[Exit, and claps to the door.]

[Enter Dame Kitely and Cash.]
Cash. Ho! who keeps house here?
Know. O, this is the female copesmate of my son:
Now shall I meet him straight.
Dame K. Knoc'k, Thomas, hard.
Cash. Ho, goodwife!
[Re-enter Tib.]
Tib. Why, what's the matter with you?
Dame K. Why, woman, grieves it you to ope your door?
1 Bailiff.
2 The lane before Cob's house.
Belike you something to keep it shut.

Tib. What mean these questions, pray ye? 20
Dame K. So strange you make it! Is not my husband here?
Know. Her husband!
Dame K. My tried husband, master Kitely?
Tib. 'I hope he needs not to be tried here.
Dame K. No, dame, he does it not for need, but pleasure.
Tib. Neither for need nor pleasure is he here.
Know. This is but a device to balk me withal:
[Enter Kitely, muffled in his cloak.]

Soft, who is this? 'Tis not my son disguis'd?
Dame K. (spies her husband come, and runs to him.) O, sir, have I forestall'd your honest market?
Found your close 1 walks? You stand amaz'd now, do you?
I' faith, I am glad I have smok't 2 you yet at last.
What is your jewel, Irow? In, come, let's see her;
Fetch forth your huswife, dame; if she be fairer,
In any honest judgment, than myself,
I'll be content with it: but she is change,
She feeds you fat, she soothes your appetite, 3 3
And you are well! Your wife, an honest woman,
Is meat twice sod 4 to you, sir! O, you treach'rous! 4
Know. She cannot counterfeit thus palpably.
Kit. Out on thy more than strumpet's impudence!
Steal'st thou thus to thy haunts? and have I taken
Thy bawd and thee, and thy companion,
(pointing to old Knowell.)
This hoary-headed lecher, this old goat,
Close at your villainy, and would'st thou'scuse it
With this stale harlot's jest, accusing me,
O, old incontinent (to Knowell), dost thou not shame,
When all thy powers in chastity is spent,
To have a mind so hot, and to entice,
And feed th' enticements of a lustful woman?
Dame K. Out, I defy thee, I, dissembling wrath.
Kit. Defy me, strumpet! Ask thy pandar 5 here,
Can he deny it; or that wicked elder?
Know. Why, hear you, sir.
Kit. Tac, tac, tac; never speak:
Thy guilty conscience will discover thee.
Know. What lunacy is this, that haunts this man?
Kit. Well, good wife BA'D, 6 Cob's wife, and you,
That make your husband such a hoddody-doddy; 7
And you, young apple-squire, and old cuckold-maker;
I'II ha' you every one before a justice
Nay, you shall answer it, I charge you go.
Know. Marry, with all my heart, sir, I go willingly:
Though I do taste this as a trick put on me,

1 Secret. 2 Found. 3 Beel'd. 4 Traitor. 5 F, has in margin By Thomas, i.e. referring to Cash. 6 Apparently a poor pun on bad and bawd. 7 Dupe.

To punish my impertinent search, and justly,
And half forgive my son for the device.
Kit. Come, will you go?
Dame K. Go! to thy shame believe it.

[Enter Cob.]
Cob. Why, what's the matter here, what's here to do?
Kit. O, Cob, art thou come? I have been abused.
And 'tis thy house; was never man so wrong'd?
Cob. 'Slid, in my house, my master Kitely!
Who wrongs you in my house?
Kit. Marry, young lust in old, and old in young here:
Thy wife's their bawd, here have I taken 'em.
Cob. How, bawd! is my house come to that?
Am I prefer'd thither? Did I not charge you to keep your doors shut, Isbel? and do you let 'em lie open for all comers?
He, falls upon his wife and beats her.
Know. Friend, know some cause, before thou beat'st thy wife.

This madness in thee.
Cob. Why, is there no cause?
Kit. Yes, I'll shew cause before the justice,
Cob: Come, let her go with me.
Cob. Nay, she shall go.
Tib. Nay, I will go. I'll see an you may is be allow'd to make a bundle o' hemp 8 o' your right and lawful wife thus, at every cuckold knave's pleasure. Why do you not go?
Kit. A bitter queen! Come, we will ha' you tam'd.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE XI. 9

[Enter Brainworm, disguised as a City Serjeant.]

Brain. Well, of all my disguises yet, now am I most like myself, being in this serjeant's gown.
A man of my present profession never counterfeits, till he lays hold upon a debtor and says he 'rests him; for then he brings him to all manner of uprest. A kind of little kings we are, bearing the diminutive of a mace, made like a young artichoke, that always carries pepper and salt in itself. Well, I know not what danger I undergo by this exploit; pray Hea- 9 even I come well off!}

[Enter Mathew and Bobadill.]

Mat. See, I think, yonder is the varlet, by his gown.
Bob. Let's go in quest of him.
Mat. 'Save you, friend! Are not you here by appointment of justice Clement's man? 10
Brain. Yes, an't please you, sir; he told me two gentlemen had will'd him to procure a warrant from his master, which I have about me, to be serv'd on one Downright.
Mat. It is honestly done of you both; and so see where the party comes you must arrest; serve it upon him quickly, afore he be aware.
Bob. Bear back, master Mathew.
[Enter Stephen in Downright’s cloak.]

Brai. Master Downright, I arrest you i’ the queen’s name, and must carry you afore a justice by virtue of this warrant.

Step. Me, friend! I am no Downright; I am master Stephen. You do not well to arrest me, I tell you, truly; I am in nobody’s bonds nor books, I would you should know it. A plague on you heartily, for making me thus afraid afore my time!

Brai. Why, now are you deceived, gentleman?

Bob. He wears such a cloak, and that deceived us: but see, here’s comes indeed; this is he, officer.

[Enter Downright.]

Dow. Why how now, signior gull! Are you turn’d filcher of late! Come, deliver my cloak.

Step. Your cloak, sir! I bought it even now, in open market.

Brai. Master Downright, I have a warrant I must serve upon you, procured by these two gentlemen.

Dow. These gentlemen! These rascals!

Brai. Keep the peace, I charge you in her majesty’s name.

Dow. I obey thee. What must I do, officer?

Brai. Go before master justice Clement, to answer what they can object against you, sir, I will use you kindly, sir.

Mat. Come, let’s before, and make the justice, captain.

Bob. The varlet’s a tall man, afore heaven! [Exeunt Bob, and Mat.]

Dow. Gull, you’ll gi’ me my cloak.

Step. Sir, I bought it, and I’ll keep it.

Dow. You will?

Step. Ay, that I will.

Dow. Officer, there’s thy fee, arrest him.

Brai. Master Stephen, I must arrest you.

Step. Arrest me! I scorn it. There, take your cloak, I’ll none on’t.

Dow. Nay, that shall not serve your turn now, sir. Officer, I’ll go with thee to the justice’s; bring him along.

Step. Why, is not here thy cloak? What would you have?

Dow. I’ll ha’ you answer it, sir.

Brai. Sir, I’ll take your word, and this gentleman’s too, for his appearance.

Dow. I’ll ha’ no words taken: bring him along.

Brai. Sir, I may choose to do that, I may take bail.

Dow. ’Tis true, you may take bail, and choose at another time; but you shall not now, varlet. Bring him along, or I’ll swinge you.

Brai. Sir, I pity the gentleman’s case; here’s your money again.

Dow. ’Sdeins, tell not me of my money; bring him away, I say.

Brai. I warrant you he will go with you of himself, sir.

Dow. Yet more ado?

[Aside.] I have made a fair mash on’t.

Step. Must I go?

Brai. I know no remedy, master Stephen.

Dow. Come along afore me here; I do not love your hanging look behind.

Step. Why, sir, I hope you cannot hang me for it: can he, fellow?

Brai. I think not, sir; it is but a whipping matter, sure.

Step. Why then let him do his worst, I am resolute.

[Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I. 2

[Enter] Clement, Knowell, Kitely, Dame Kitely, Tim, Case, Cob, Servants.

Clem. Nay, but stay, stay, give me leave: my chair, sirrah. — You, master Knowell, say you went thither to meet your son?

Know, Ay, sir.

Clem. But who directed you thither?

Know. That did mine own man, sir.

Clem. Where is he?

Know. Nay, I know not now; I left him with your clerk, and appointed him to stay here for me.

Clem. My clerk! about what time was this?

Know. Marry, between one and two, as I take it.

Clem. And what time came my man with the false message to you, master Kitely?

Kit. After two, sir.

Clem. Very good; but, mistress Kitely, how chance that you were at Cob’s, ha?

Dame K. An’t please you, sir, I’ll tell you: my brother Wellbred told me that Cob’s house was a suspected place —

Clem. So it appears, methinks: but on.

Dame K. And that my husband us’d thither daily.

Clem. No matter, so he us’d himself well, mistress.

Dame K. True, sir; but you know what grows by such haunts oftentimes.

Clem. I see rank fruits of a jealous brain, mistress Kitely: but did you find your husband there, in that case as you suspected?

Kit. I found her there, sir.

Clem. Did you so? That alters the case. Who gave you knowledge of your wife’s being there?

Kit. Marry, that did my brother Wellbred, as Clem. How, Wellbred first tell her; then tell you after! Where is Wellbred?

Kit. Gone with my sister, sir, I know not whither.

Clem. Why this is a mere trick, a device; you are gull’d in this most grossly all. Alas, poor wench! wert thou beaten for this?

Tim. Yes, most pitifully, an’t please you.

Cob. And worthily, I hope, if it shall prove so.

Clem. Ay, that’s like, and a piece of a sentence.

1 Prepare.

2 Coleman St. A hall in Justice Clement’s house.
[Enter a Servant.]

How now, sir! what's the matter?

Serv. Sir, there's a gentleman i' the court without, desires to speak with your worship.

Clem. A gentleman! what is he?

Serv. A soldier, sir, he says.

Clem. A soldier! Take down my armour, my sword quickly. A soldier speak with me! Why, when, knaves! Come on, come on. (Arms him—which self); hold my cap there, so; give me my garter, my sword: stand by, I will end your matters anon. — Let the soldier enter. [Exit Servant.]

SCENE II. 2

[CLEMENT, KNOWELL, etc. Enter] BOBADILL, [followed by] MATHEW.

Now, sir, what has 'you to say to me? 3

Bob. By your worship's favour —

Clem. Nay, keep out, sir; I know not your pretence. — You send me word, sir, you are a soldier; why, sir, you shall be answer'd here: [4 here be them have been amongst soldiers. Sir, your pleasure.

Bob. Faith, sir, so it is, this gentleman and myself have been most uncivilly wrong'd and beaten by one Downright, a coarse fellow [5 as about the town here; and for mine own part, I protest, being a man in no sort given to this filthy humour of quarrelling, he hath assaulted me in the way of my peace, deosp'ld me of mine honour, disarm'd me of my weapons, [6 and rudely laid me along in the open streets, when I not so much as once offer'd to resist him.

Clem. O, God's precions! is this the soldier? Here, take my armour off quick, 7 't will make him swoon, I fear; he is not fit to look on 't, [8 that will put up a blow.

Mat. An't please your worship, he was bound to the peace.

Clem. Why, an he were, sir, his hands were not bound, were they?

[Re-enter Servant.]

Serv. There's one of the varlets of the city, sir, has brought two gentlemen here; one, upon your worship's warrant.

Clem. My warrant! Serv. Yes, sir; the officer says, procur'd by these two.

Clem. Bid him come in. [Exit Servant.] Set by this picture. 4

SCENE III. 5

[CLEMENT, BOBADILL, etc. Enter] DOWNRIGHT, STEPHEN, and BRAINWORM [disguised as before].

What, Master Downright! Are you brought in at Mr. Freshwater's 9's suit here? 7

Dow. I faith, sir, and here's another brought at my suit.

1 Armor for the throat. 2 The same. 3 In F, at end of Sc. I. 4 More picture of a soldier. 5 The same.

A freshwater soldier was one who had never crossed the sea, & had seen no service. 6

Clem. What are you, sir?

Step. A gentleman, sir. O, uncle!

Clem. Uncle! Who? Master Knowell?

Know. Ay, sir; this is a wise kinsman of mine.

Step. God's my witness, uncle, I am wrong'd here monstrously; he charges me with stealing of his cloak, and would I might never stir, if I did not find it in the street by chance.

Dow. O, did you find it now? You said you bought it ere-while.

Step. And you said, I stole it, Nay, now my uncle is here, I'll do well enough with you.

Clem. Well, let this breathe awhile. You that have cause to complain there, stand forth. Had you my warrant for this gentleman's apprehension?

Bob. Ay, an't please your worship.

Clem. Nay, do not speak in passion 8 so.

Where had you it? I

Bob. Of your clerk, sir.

Clem. That's well! an my clerk can make warrants, and my hand not at 'em! Where is the warrant— officer, have you it?

Brai. No, sir. Your worship's man, Master Formal, bid me do it for these gentlemen, [9 and he would be my discharge.

Clem. Why, Master Downright, are you such a novice, to be serv'd and never see the warrant?

Dow. Sir, he did not serve it on me.

Clem. No! how then?

Dow. Marry, sir, he came to me, and said he must serve it, and he would use me kindly, and so —

Clem. O, God's pity, was it so, sir? He must serve it! Give me my long sword there, and help me off. So, come on, sir varlet, I must cut off your legs, sirrah! [BRAINWORM kneels]; nay, stand up, I'll use you kindly; I must cut off your legs, I say.

Fowerishes over him with his long sword.

Brai. O, good sir, I beseech you; nay, good master justice!

Clem. I must do it, there is no remedy; I must cut off thy legs, sirrah, I must cut off your ears, you rascal, I must do it: I must cut off your nose, I must cut off thy head.

Brai. O, good your worship!

Clem. Well, rise; how dost thou do now? Dost thou feel thyself well? Hast thou no harm?

Brai. No, I thank your good worship, sir.

Clem. Why so? I said I must cut off thy legs, and I must cut off thy arms, and I must cut off thy head; but I did not do it: so you said you must serve this gentleman with my warrant, but you did not serve him. You knave, you slave, you rogue, do you say you must, sirrah! Away with him to the jail; I'll teach you a trick for your must, sir.

Brai. Good sir, I beseech you, be good to me.

Clem. Tell him he shall to the jail; away with him, I say.

Brai. Nay, sir, if you will commit me, it —

9 Melancholy emotion.
shall be for committing more than this: I will [10]
not lose by my travail any grain of my fame, certain. [Throws off his serjeant's gown.]

Clem. How is this?

Know. My man Brainworm!

Step. O, yes, uncle; Brainworm has been with my cousin Edward and I all this day. 76

Clem. I told you all there was some device.

Brai. Nay, excellent justice, since I have laid myself thus open to you, now stand strong for me; both with your sword and your balance. 80

Clem. Body o' me, a mercy kneave! I give me a bowl of sack. If he belong to you, Master Knowell, I beseech your patience.

Brai. That is it I have most need of. Sir, if you'll pardon me only, I'll glory in all the [as rest of my exploits.

Know. Sir, you know I love not to have my favour some hard from me. You have your pardon, though I suspect you shrewdly for being of counsel with my son against me.

Brai. Yes, faith, I have, sir, though you re-tain'd me doubly this morning for yourself:
first, as Brainworm; after, as Fitz-Sword. I was your reform'd soldier. Sir, 'Twas I sent you to Cob's upon the errand without end.

Know. Is it possible? or that thou shouldst disguise thy language so as I should not know these?

Brai. O, sir, this has been the day of my metamorphosis. It is not that shape alone [100] that I have run through to-day. I brought this gentleman, master Kitely, a message too, in the form of master Justice's man here, to draw him out o' the way, as well as your worship, while master Wellbred might make a conveyance of mistress Bridget to my young master.

Kit. How ! my sister stol'n away?

Know. My son is not married, I hope.

Brai. Faith, sir, they are both as sure as love, a priest, and three thousand pound, which [110] is her portion, can make 'em; and by this time are ready to bespeak their wedding-supper at the Windmill, except some friend here prevent
'em, and invite 'em home.

Clem. Marry, that will I; I thank thee for [115] putting me in mind on't. Sirrah, go you and fetch them hither upon my warrant. [Exit Servant.] Neither's friends have cause to be sorry, if I know the young couple aright. Here, I drink to thee for thy good news. But I pray [120] thee, what hast thou done with my man, Formal?

Brai. Faith, sir, after some ceremony past, as making him drunk, first with story, and then with wine (but all in kindness,) and strip-[125]
ing him to his shirt, I left him in that cool vein; deprived, sold your worship's warrant to these two, pawn'd his livery for that varlet's gown, to serve it in; and thus have brought myself by my activity to your worship's consideration.

Clem. And I will consider thee in another cup of sack. Here's to thee, which having drunk off this my sentence: Pledge me. Thou hast done, or assisted to nothing, in my [130] judgment, but deserves to be pardon'd for the wit of the offense. If thy master, or any man here, be angry with thee, I shall suspect his ingine,1 while I know him, for 't. How now, what noise is that?

[Enter Servant.]

Serv. Sir, it is Roger is come home.

Clem. Bring him in, bring him in.

SCENE IV. 2

To them [enter] Formal [in a suit of armour.]

What I drunk? In arms against me? Your reason, your reason for this? 3

Form. I beseech your worship to pardon me;
I happen'd into ill company by chance, that cast me into a sleep, and stript me of all my [5 clothes.

Clem. Well, tell him I am Justice Clement, and do pardon him: but what is this to your armour? What may that signify?

Form. An't please you, sir, it hung up i' [10
the room where I was stript; and I borrow'd it of one of the drawers 4 to come home in, because I was loth to do penance through the street i'
my shirt.

Clem. Well, stand by a while.

SCENE V. 2

To them [enter] E. Knowell, Wellbred, and Bridget.

Who be these? O, the young company; welcome, welcome! 5 If you joy. Nay, mistress Bridget, blush not; you are not so fresh a bride, but the news of it is come hither afore you.
Master bridegroom, I ha' made your peace, 10 give me your hand: so will I for all the rest ere you forsake my roof. 5

E. Know. We are the more bound to your humanity, sir.

Clem. Only these two have so little of man in 'em, they are no part of my care. 11

Wel. Yes, sir, let me pray you for this gentleman, he belongs to my sister the bride.

Clem. In what place, sir?

Wel. Of her delight, sir, below the stairs, [15 and in public: her poet, sir.

Clem. A poet! I will challenge him myself presently at extempore,

Mount up thy Phlegon, 6 Muse, and testify
How Saturn, sitting in an ebon cloud, 20
Disrobed his pellucid white as waxy
And through the welkin thund'ring all aloud.
Wel. He is not for extempore, sir: he is all for the pocket muse; please you command a sight
of it.

Clem. Yes, yes, search him for a taste of his vein. [They search Mathew's pockets.]

Wel. You must not deny the queen's justice, sir, under a writ o' rebellion.

Clem. What! all this verse? Body o' me, he

Clem. Nay, no speech or act of mine be drawn against such as profess it worthily. They are not born crying year, as an alderman. There grows in me to the making of a good post, than a sheriff. Master Kityle, you look upon me!—though I live in the city here, amongst you, I will do more reverence to him, when I meet him, than I will to the mayor out of his year. But these paper-pedlars! these ink-dabblers! they cannot expect reprehension or reproach; they have it with the fact.

Clem. Is all the rest of this batch? Bring me a torch; lay it together, and give fire. [Sets the papers on fire.] Here was enough to have infected the whole city, if it had not been taken in time. See, see, how our poet's glory shines! brighter and brighter! still it increases! O, now it's at the highest; and now it declines as fast. You may see, sic transit gloria mundi!

Clem. O! I had lost a sheep an he had not bleated: why, sir, you shall give master Downright his cloak; and I will intreat him to take it. A trencher and a napkin you shall have i' the buttery, and keep Cob and his wife company here; whom I will intreat first to be reconcil'd; and you to endeavour with your wit to keep 'em so.

Clem. Why, now I see thou art honest, Tib, I receive thee as my dear and mortal wife again.

Tib. And I you, as my loving and obedient husband.

Clem. Good compliment! It will be their bridal night too. They are married anew. Come, I conjure the rest to put off all discontent. You, master Downright, your anger; you, master Knowell, your cares; Master Kityle and his wife, their jealousy.

For, I must tell you both, while that is fed, Horns i' the mind are worse than o' the head.

Kit. Sir, thus they go from me; kiss me, sweetheart.

Clem. It shall be discourse for supper between your father and me, if he dare under-[as take me. But to dispatch away these: you sign o' the soldier, and picture o' the poet, (but both so false, I will not ha' you hang'd out at my door till midnight,) while we are at supper, you two shall penitently fast it out in my count without; and, if you will, you may pray there [that we may be so merry within as to forgive or forget you when we come out. Here's a third, because we tender your safety, shall watch you, he is provided for the purpose. —Look to your charge, sir, jealousy.

Step. And what shall I do?

Clem. Nay, no speech or act of mine be drawn against such as profess it worthily. They are not born crying year, as an alderman. There grows in me to the making of a good post, than a sheriff. Master Kityle, you look upon me!—though I live in the city here, amongst you, I will do more reverence to him, when I meet him, than I will to the mayor out of his year. But these paper-pedlars! these ink-dabblers! they cannot expect reprehension or reproach; they have it with the fact.

E. Know. Sir, you have sav'd me the labour of a defence.

Lo. Ju. Opinion! O God, let gross opinion Sink and be damn'd as deep as Barathrum! If it may stand with your most wist content, I can refell opinion and approve The state of poesy, such as it is, Blessed, eternal, and most true divine. Indeed, if you will look on poesy As she appears in many, poor and lame, Patch'd up in remnants and old worn-out rags, Half star'd for want of her peculiar food, Sacred invention,—then I must confirm Both your conceit and censure of her merit: But view her in her glorious ornaments, Attired in the majesty of art, Set high in spirit with the precious taste Of sweet philosophy, and, which is most, Crown'd with the rich traditions of a soul That hates to have her dignity profan'd With any relish of an earthly thought. Oh, how proud a presence doth she bear! Then is she like herself, fit to be seen Of none but grave and consecrated eyes. Nor is it any blemish to her fame That such keen, ignorant, and blasted wits,

TO THE

NO LESS NOBLE BY VIRTUE THAN BLOOD,
ESME, LORD AUBIGNY

My Lord, — If ever any ruin were so great as to survive, I think this be one I send you, The Fall of Sejanus. It is a poem, that, if I well remember, in your lordship’s sight, suffer’d no less violence from our people here, than the subject of it did from the rage of the people of Rome; but with a different fate, as, I hope, merit; for this hath outliv’d their malice, and begot itself a greater favour than he lost, the love of good men. Amongst whom, if I make your lordship the first it thanks, it is not without a just confession of the bond your benefits have, and ever shall hold upon me,

Your Lordship’s most faithful honourer,

Ben. Jonson.

TO THE READERS

The following and voluntary labours of my friends, prefixed to my book, have relieved me in much whereat, without them, I should necessarily have touched. Now I will only use three or four short and needful notes, and so rest.

First, if it be objected, that what I publish is no true poem, in the strict laws of time, I confess it: as also in the want of a proper chorus; whose habit and moods are such and so difficult, as not any, whom I have seen, since the ancients, no, not they who have most presently affected laws, have yet come in the way of. Nor is it needful, or almost possible in these our times, and to such auditors as commonly things are presented, to observe the old state and splendour of dramatic poems, with preservation of any popular delight. But of this I shall take more seasonable cause to speak, in my observations upon Horace his Art of Poetry, which, with the text translated, I

1 I. e. with a different merit.
2 Only in Q.
3 Commendatory verses.
intend shortly to publish. In the meantime, if in truth of argument, dignity of persons, gravity and height of eloquence, fulness and frequency of sentence, I have discharged the other offices of a tragic writer, let not the absence of these forms be imputed to me, wherein I shall give you occasion hereafter, and without my boast, to think I could better prescribe, than omit the due use for want of a convenient knowledge.

The next is, lest in some nice nostril the quotations might savour affected, I do let you know, that I abhor nothing more; and I have only done it to show my integrity in the story, and save myself in those common torturers that bring all wit to the rack; whose noses are ever like swine spoiling and rooting up the Muses’ gardens; and their whole bodies like moles, as blindly working under earth, to cast any, the least, hills upon virtue.

Whereas they are in Latin, and the work in English, it was presupposed none but the learned would take the pains to confer them; the authors themselves being all in the learned tongues, save one, with whose English side I have had little to do. To which it may be required, since I have quoted the page, to name what editions I followed: Tacit. Lips. in quarto, Antwerp, edit. 1600. Dio. folio, Hen. Steph. 1592. For the rest, as Sueton. Seneca, &c., the chapter doth sufficiently direct, or the edition is not varied.

Lastly, I would inform you, that this book, in all numbers, is not the same with that which was acted on the public stage; wherein a second pen had good share: in place of which, I have rather chosen to put weaker, and, no doubt, less pleasing, of mine own, than to defraud so happy a genius of his right by my loathed usurpation.

Fare you well, and if you read farther of me, and like, I shall not be afraid of it, though you praise me out.

Negae enim mili cornea fibra est.

But that I should plant my felicity in your general saying, good, or well, &c., were a weakness which the better sort of you might worthily contemn, if not absolutely hate me for.

THE ARGUMENT

AELIUS SEJANUS, born to Seius Sirabo, a gentleman of Rome, and born at Vulsinum; after his long service in court, first under Augustus; afterward, Tiberius; grew into that favour with the latter, and won him by those arts, as there wanted nothing but the name to make him a co-partner of the Empire. Which greatness of his, Drusus, the Emperor’s son, not brooking; after many smother’d dislikes, it one day breaking out, the prince struck him publicly on the face. To revenge which disgrace, Livia, the wife of Drusus (being before corrupted by him to her dishonour, and the discovery of her husband’s counsels) Sejanus practiseth with, together with her physician, called Endemus, and one Lygdis, an eunuch, to poison Drusus. This their inhuman act having successful and unsuspected passage, it emboldeneth Sejanus to farther and more insolent projects, even the ambition of the Empire; where finding the lets he must encounter to be many and hard, in respect of the issue of Germanicus, who were next in hope for the succession, he deviseth to make Tiberius’ self his means; and instils into his ears many doubts and suspicions, both against the princes, and their mother Agrippina; which Caesar jealously heark’ning to, as covetously consenteth to their ruin, and their friends. In this time, the better to mature and strengthen his design, Sejanus labours to marry Livia, and worketh with all his ingine, to remove Tiberius from the knowledge of public business, with allurements of a quiet and retired life; the latter of which, Tiberius, out of a promeness to lust, and a desire to hide those unnatural pleasures which he could not so publicly practise, embracest: the former enkindleth his fears, and there gives him first cause of doubt or suspect towards Sejanus: against whom he raiseth in private a new instrument, one Sertorius Macro, and by him underworketh, discovers the other’s counsels, his means, his ends, sounds the affections of the senators, divides, distracts them: at last, when Sejanus least looketh, and is most secure; with pretext of doing him an unwonted honour in the senate, he trains him from his guards, and with a long doubtful letter, in one day hath him suspected, accused, condemned, and torn in pieces by the rage of the people. [This do we advance, as a mark of terror to all traitors, and treasons; to show how just the heavens are, in pouring and thundering down a weighty vengeance on their unnatural intents, even to the worst princes; much more to those, for guard of whose piety and virtue the angels are in continual watch, and God himself miraculously working.]

ACT I

[Scene I.] 1

[Enter SABINIUS and SILIUS; [followed by] LATIARIS.

Sab. Hail, Caius Silius! 2

Silius. Titus Sabinus, 3 hail! You're rarely met in court, Sab.

You. Therefore, well met. Silius. 'Tis true: indeed, this place is not our sphere.

Sab. No, Silius, we are no good inquirers. 4 We want the fine arts, and their thriving use Should make us graced, or favour'd of the times:

We have no shift of faces, no eft tongues, No soft and glutinous bodies, that can stick, Like snakes, on painted walls; or, on our breasts, Creep up, to fall from that proud height, to which We did by slavery, 5 not by service climb. We are no guilty men, and then no great; We have nor place in court, office in state, That we can say, 6 we owe unto our crimes: We bring with no black secrets, 7 which can make us dear to the pale authors; or live fear'd Of their still waking jealousies, to raise Ourselves a fortune, by subverting theirs. We stand not in the lines, that do advance To that so courted point.

[Enter SATRIUS and NATTA at a distance.]

Silius. But yonder lean 20 A pair that do.

Sab. Satrius Secundus, 8 and Pinnarius Natta, 9 The great Sejanus' clients: there be two, Know more than honest counsellors; whose close 11 breasts, Were they ripp'd up to light, it would be found A poor and idle 12 sin to which their trunks Had not been made fit organs. These can lie, Flatter, and swear, forswear, 13 deprave, inform, Smile, and betray; make guilty men; then beg The forfeit lives, to get their livings; cut 16 Men's throats with whisper's rings; sell to gaping suitors The empty smoke that flies about the palace; Laugh when their patron langhia; sweat when he sweats;

Be hot and cold with him; change every mood,

10 Habit, and garb, as often as he varies; Observe him, as his watch, observe his clock; And, true as turquoise in the dear lord's ring, Look well or ill with him; ready to praise His lordship, if he spit, or but piss fair, Have an indifferent stool, or break wind well; Nothing can escape their catch.

Sab. Alas! these things

Deserve no note, conferr'd 17 with other vile And filthier flatteries, 13 that corrupt the times, When, not alone our gentry's chief are vain To make their safety from such sordid acts, But all our consuls, and no little part Of such as have been praetors, yea, the most Of senators, 20 that else not use their voices, Start up in public senate, and there strive Who shall propound most abject things, and base;

So much, as oft Tiberius hath been heard, Leaving the court, to cry, 21 O race of men, Prepar'd for servitude! — which show'd that he, Who least the public liberty could like, As least brook'd their flat servility.

Silius. Well, all is worthy of us, were it more, Who with our pride, and civil hate, Have so provok'd the justice of the gods:

We, that, within these fourscore years, were born Free, equal lords of the triumphed world, And knew no masters but afflictions; To which betraying first our liberties, We since became the slaves to one man's lusts; And now to many: 22 every minister's spy That will accuse and swear, is lord of you, Of me, of all, our fortunes and our lives. Our looks are call'd to question, 23 and our words, How innocent soever, are made crimes; We shall not shortly dare to tell our dreams, Or think, but 't will be treason.

[Enter CORDUS and ARRUNTUS.]

Now, good Cremutius Cordus.

Cor. [salutes SABINIUS.] Hail to your lordship! Nat. Who's that salutes your cousin? Lat. 'Tis one Cordus. They whisper. A gentleman of Rome: one that has writ Annals of late, they say, and very well.

Nat. Annals? Of what times?

Lat. I think of Pompey's,¹

And Caius Caesar's; and so down to these.

Nat. How stands he affected to the present state?

Is he or Drusian,² or Germanic,³ or ours, or neutral?

Lat. I know him not so far.

Nat. Those times are somewhat queasy⁴ to be toucht.

Have you or seen or heard part of his work?

Lat. Not I; he means they shall be public shortly.

Nat. O! Cordus do you call him?

Lat. Ay. [Exunt NATTA and SATRIUS.]

Sab. But these our times.⁵

Are not the same, Arruntius.⁶

Arr. Times! The men are not the same! 'Tis we are base, poor, and degenerate from th' exalted strain of our great fathers. Where is now the soul Of god-like Cato? he, that durst be good,⁷ When Caesar durst be evil; and had power, As not to live his slave, to die his master?⁸ Or where's the constant Brutus, that being proof Against all charm of benefits, did strike So brave a blow into the monster's heart?

That sought unkindly⁹ to captivate his country? O, they are fled the light! Those mighty spirits Lie rak'd up with their ashes in their urns, And not a spark of their eternal fire Grows in a present bosom. All's but blaze,ⁱ⁰ Flashes, and smoke, wherewith we labour so; There's nothing Roman in us; nothing good, Gallant, or great. 'Tis true that Cordus says, "Brave Cassius was the last of all that race."

DRUSUS passes by [attended by HATERIUS, etc.]

Sab. Stand by! Lord Drusus.⁴

Hat. Th' emperor's son! Give place.ⁱ²

Sib. I like the prince well.

There's little hope of him.

Sab. That fault his age.

That will, as it grows, correct. Methinks he bears Himself each day more nobly than other; And wins no less on men's affections, Than doth his father lose. Believe me, I love him;

And chiefly for opposing to Sejanus.⁵

Sib. And I, for gracing his young kinsmen so.⁶

The sons of prince Germanicus;¹¹ it shows

A gallant clearness in him, a straight mind, That envies not, in them, their father's name.

Arr. His name was, while he liv'd, above all envy;

And, being dead, without it. O, that man! If there were seeds of the old virtue left, They liv'd in him.

Sib. He had the fruits, Arruntius, More than the seeds;¹² Sabinus and myself Had means to know him within; and can repeat him.

We were his followers, he would call us friends; He was a man most like to virtue; in all, And every action, nearer to the gods.

Then men, in nature; of a body as fair As was his mind; and no less reverend

In face than fame;¹³ he could so use his state, Temp'ring his greatness with his gravity, As it avoided all self-love in him, And spite in others. What his funerals lack'd In images and pomp, they had suppli'd With honourable sorrow, soldiers' sadness, A kind of silent mourning, such a name, Who know no tears but from their captives, use To show in so great losses.

Cor. I thought once,

Considering their forms, age, manner of deaths, The nearness of the places where they fell, 'T have parallel'd him with great Alexander: For both were of best feature, of high race, Year'd but to thirty, and, in foreign lands, By their own people alike made away.

Sab. I know not, for his death, how you might wrest it: But, for his life, it did as much disdain Comparison with that volupitous, rash, Giddy, and drunken Macedon's, as mine Doth with my bondman's. All the good in him, His valour, and his fortune, he made his; But he had other touches of late Romans, That more did speak him: Pompey's dignity, The innocence of Cato, Caesar's spirit, Wise Brutus' temperance: and every virtue, Which, parted unto others, gave them name, Flow'd mixt in him. He was the soul of goodness;

And all our praises of him are like streams Drawn from a spring, that still rise full, and leave The part remaining greatest.

Arr. I am sure He was too great for us,¹⁵ and that they knew Who did remove him hence.

Sab. When men grow fast Honour'd and lov'd, there is a trick in state, (Which jealous princes never fail to use) How to decline that growth, with fair pretext, And honourable colours of employment, Either by embassy, the war, or such,

To shift them forth into another air.

Where they may purge, and lessen; so was he:
And had his seconds there, sent by Tiberius
And his more subtle dam, to discontent him;
To breed and cherish mutinies; detract
His greatest actions; give audacious check
To his commands; and work to put him out
In open act of treason. All which shares
When his wise cares prevented, a fine poison
Was thought on, to mature their practices.

Cor. Here comes Sejanus.

Sil. Now observe the stoops.

The bendings, and the falls.

Most creeping base!

[Enter] Sejanus, Terentius, Satrius, [Natta, etc.]

They pass over the stage.

Sej. I note 'em well: no more. Say you?

Sat. My lord, there's a gentleman of Rome would buy—

Sej. How call you him you talk'd with?

Sat. Please your worship, it is Eudemus, the physician
To Livia, Drusus's wife.

Sej. On with your suit.

Would buy, you said——

Sat. A tribune's place, my lord.

Sej. What will he give?

Sat. Fifty sextertia.

Sej. Livia's physician, say you, is that fellow?

Sat. It is, my lord. Your lordship's answer?

Sej. To what?

Sat. The place, my lord. 'T is for a gentleman

Your lordship will well like of, when you see him,

And one that you may make yours, by the grant.

Sej. Well, let him bring his money, and his name.

Sat. Thank your lordship. He shall, my lord.

Sej. Come hither.

Know you this same Eudemus? Is he learn'd?

Sat. Reputed so, my lord, and of deep practices.

Sej. Bring him in to me, in the gallery;
And take you cause to leave us there together:
I would confer with him, about a grief. — On!

[Exeunt Sejanus, Satrius, Terentius, etc.]

Of grov'ling honour! Seest thou this, O sun,
And do we see thee after? Methinks, day
Should lose his light, when men do lose their

5. Monetae nostrae 3/5 lb. vid. Budaeva de ase, ii. 64.

And for the empty circumstance of life,
Betray their cause of living.

Sil. Nothing so.

Sejanus can repair, if Jove should ruin.
He is the now court-god; and well applied
With sacrifice of knees, of crooks, and cringe,
He will do more than all the house of heav'n
Can for a thousand hecatombs. 'T is he Makes us our day, or, night; hell and elysium
Are in his look. We talk of Rhadamanth,
Furies, and firebrands; but 't is his brown
That is all these; where, on the adverse part,
His smile is more than e'er yet poets feign'd
Of bliss, and shades, nectar——

Arr. A serving boy!

I knew him, at Cains? 7 trencher, when for hire
He prostituted his abused body.
To that great gourmand, fat Apicius: 215
And was the noted pathetic 6 of the time.

Sab. And, now, 9 the second face of the whole world!

The partner of the empire, hath his image
Reard equal with Tiberius, borne in ensigns;
Commands, disposes every dignity.

Centurions, tribunes, heads of provinces,
Praetors, and consuls; all that heretofore
Rome's general suffrage gave, is now his sale.
The gain, our rather spoil of all the earth,
One, and his house, receives.

Sil. He hath of late 226
Made him a strength too, strangely, by reduc-ning
All the praetorian bands into one camp,
Which he commands: pretending that the soldier,

By living loose and scattered, fell to riot;
And that if any sudden enterprise
Should be attempted, their united strength
Would be far more than sever'd; and their life
More strict, if from the city more remov'd.

Sab. Where now he builds what kind of forts
he please,
Is heard to court the soldier by his name,
Woos, feasts the chiefest men in action,
Whose wants, nor loves, compel them to be his,
And though he ne'er were liberal by kind, 10
Yet to his own dark ends, he's most profuse,
Lavish, and letting fly he cares not what
To his ambition.

Arr. Yet hath he ambition?

Is there that step in state can make him higher,
Or more, or anything he is, but less?

Sil. Nothing but emp'ror.

Arr. The name Tiberius.

I hope, will keep, howe'er he hath foregone
The dignity and power.

Sil. Sure, while he lives.

Arr. And dead, it comes to Drusus. Should he fail,

8. A male prostitute.

And those that would be, physic soon can make them:
For those that are, their beauties fear no colours.

Eud. Your lordship is conceited.

Sej. Sir, you know it, and can, if need be, read a learned lecture
On this, and other secrets. Pray you, tell me, What more of ladies, besides Livia,
Have you your patients?

Eud. Many, my good lord.
The great Augusta, Urgulania,
Mutilia Frisen, and Plancina divers—
Sej. And all these tell you the particulars
Of every several grief? how first it grew,
And then increas'd; what action caused that;
What passion that; and answer to each part.
That you will put 'em?

Eud. Else, my lord, we know not
How to prescribe the remedies.

Sej. Go to,
You are a subtle nation, you physicians!
And grown the only cabinets in court
To ladies' privacies. Faith, which of these
Is the most pleasant lady in her physic?
Come, you are modest now.

Eud. 'Tis fit, my lord.

Sej. Why, sir, I do not ask you of their urines, Whose smell is most violent, or whose siege is best.
Or who makes hardest faces on her stool,
Which lady sleeps with her own face a nights,
Which puts her teeth off, with her clothes, in meat,
Or, which her hair, which her complexion,
And, in which box she puts it. These were questions
That might, perhaps, have put your gravity
To some defence of blush. But, I inquir'd,
Which was the Wittiest, merriest, wantonest?
Harmless interrogatories, but conceits. —
Methinks Augusta should be most perversé,
And froward in her fit.

Eud. She's so, my lord.

Sej. I knew it: and Mutilia the most jocund.

Eud. 'Tis very true, my lord.

Sej. And why would you Conceal this from me, now? Come, what is Livia?

I know she's quick and quaintly spirited,
And will have strange thoughts, when she is at leisure:
She tells 'em all to you?

Eud. My noblest lord,
He breathes not in the Empire, or on earth,
Whom I would be ambitious to serve
(In any act that may preserve mine honour)
Before your lordship.

Sej. Sir, you can lose no honour,
By trusting aught to me. The coarsest act
Done to my service, I can so requisite
As all the world shall style it honourable:
Your idle, virtuous definitions,
Keep honour poor, and are as scorn'd as vain:

3 Need fear nothing. 4 Jocular. 5 Reserved.
Those deeds breathe honour that do suck in to good account, if I should thus

The counsels of my patient, and a lady's

Of her high place and worth, what might your

(Who presently are to trust me with your)

Judge of my faith?

Sej. Only the best, I swear.

Say now that I should utter you my grief,

And with it the true cause; that it were love,

And love to Livia: you should tell her this:

Should she suspect your faith? I would you tell me as much from her; see if my brain

Could be turn'd jealous. 1

Eud. Happily, my lord, I could in time tell you as much and more;

So I might safely promise but the first

To her from you.

Sej. As safely, my Eumelius,

I now dare call thee so, as I have put

The secret into thee.

Eud. My lord —

Sej. Protest not.

They look's are vows to me; use only speed,

And but affect her with Sejanus' love,

Thou art a man made to compose. Go.

Eud. My lord, I'll promise you a private meeting.

This day together.

Canst thou?

Eud. Yes.

Sej. The place?

Eud. My gardens, whither I shall fetch your lordship.

Sej. Let me adore my Aesculapius.

Why, this indeed is physic and outspeaks

The knowledge of cheap drugs, or any use

Can be made out of it! more comforting

Than all your opiates, juleps, apozemps. 2

Magistral syrups, or —- Begone, my friend,

Not barely styled, but created so;

Expect things greater than thy largest hopes,

To overtake thee. Fortune shall be taught

To know how ill she hath deserv'd thus long;

To come behind thy wishes. Go, and speed —

[Exit Eumelius.]

Ambition makes more trusty slaves than need.

These fellows, by the favour of their art,

Have still the means to tempt; oft-times the

power. 3

If Livia will be now corrupted, then

Thou hast the way, Sejanus, to work out

His secrets, who, thou know'st, endures thee not,

Her husband, Drusus: and to work against them.

Prosper it, Pallas, thou that better'st wit;

For Venus hath the smallest share in it.

[Enter] TIBERIUS, DRUSUS, [attended.] One

kneels to TIBERIUS.

Tib. We not endure these flatteries; let him

stand;

Our empire, ensigns, axes, rods, and state

Take not away our human nature from us:

Look up on us, and fall before the gods.

Sej. How like a god speakes Caesar! 4

Arr. [Aside to Corburs.] There, observe!

He can endure that second, that's no flattery.

O, what is it proud silence will not believe.

Of his own worth, to hear it equal prais'd

Thus with the gods!

Cor. He did not hear it, sir.

Arr. He did not? Tut, he must not, we think meanly.

'Tis your most courtly known confedecary,

To have your private parasite redeem

What he, in public subtlety, will lose

To making him a name.

Hat. Right mighty lord ——

[Tib. We must make up our ears! against these assaults

Of charming tongues; we pray you use no

more

These contumelies to us; style not us

Or lord, or mighty, who profess ourself

The servant of the senate, and are proud

To enjoy them our good, just, and favouring

lords.

Cor. Rarely disembled!

Arr. Prince-like to the life.

Sab. When power that may command, so much descends,

Their bondage, whom it stoops to, it intends.

Tib. Whence these letters?

Hat. From the senate.

Tib. Whence these?

[Lat. gives him letters.]

Lat. From thence too.

Tib. Are they sitting now?

Lat. They stay thy answer, Caesar.

Sil. If this man

Hath but a mind allied unto his words,

How blest a fate were it to us, and Rome!

We could not think; that state for which to change,

Although the aim were our old liberty:

The ghosts of those that fell for that, would grieve

Their bodies liv'd not, now, again to serve.

Men are deceiv'd, to think there can be thrall

Beneath a virtuous prince. Wish'd liberty

Ne'er lovelier looks, than under such a crown.

But, when his grace is merely but lip-good,

And that no longer than he ari himself

Abroad in public, there, to seem to shun

The strokes and stripes of flatterers, which within

Are lechery unto him, and so feed

His brutish sense with their afflicting sound.

As, dead to virtue, he permits himself

Be carried like a pitcher by the ears,

To every act of vice; this is a case

Deserves our fear, and doth presage the nigh

And close approach of blood and tyranny.

Flattery is midwife unto prince's rage;

And nothing sooner doth help forth a tyrant,
Than that and whisperers' grace, who have the time,
The place, the power, to make all men offenders.
Arr. He should be told this; and be bid dissemble
With fools and blind men: we that know the evil,
Should hunt the palace-rats, or give them base
Fright hence these worse than ravens, that devour
The quick, where they but prey upon the dead:
He shall be told it.

Sob. Stay, Arrantius,
We must abide our opportunity,
And practise what is fit, as what is needful.
It is not safe t' enforce a sovereign's ear:
Princes hear well, if they at all will hear.
Arr. Ha, say you so? well! In the mean time, Jove.
(Say not but I do call upon thee now,) Of all wild beasts preserve me from a tyrant;
And all of tame, a flatterer.

Sil. 'Tis well pray'd.
Tib. [having read the letters.] Return the lords this voice: We are their creature,
And it is fit a good and honest prince,
Whom they, out of their bounty, have instructed
With so dilate, and absolute a power,
Should owe the office of it to their service,
And good of all and every citizen.
Nor shall it e'er repent us to have wish'd
The senate just and fav'ring lords unto us,
Since their free loves do yield no less defence
T' a prince's state, than his own innocence.
Say then, there can be nothing in their thought
Shall want to please us, that hath pleased them;
Our suffrage rather shall prevent than stay
Behind their wills: 'tis empire to obey,
What's such, so great, so good determine.
Yet, for the suit of Spain t' erect a temple
In honour of our mother and our self,
We must, with pardon of the senate, not Assent thereto. Their lordships may object
Our not denying the same late request
Unto the Asian cities: we desire
That our defence for suffering that be known
In these brief reasons, with our after purpose.
Since deified Augustus hind'red not
A temple to be built at Pergamum,
In honour of himself and sacred Rome;
We, that have all his deeds and words observ'd
Ever, in place of laws, the rather follow'd
That pleasing precedent, because with ours,
The senate's reverence, also, there was join'd.
But as t' have once receiv'd it, may deserve
The gain of pardon; so, to be ador'd
With the continu'd style and note of gods,
Through all the provinces, were wild ambition,
And no more pride: yea, ev'ry Augustus' name
Would early vanish, should it be profan'd
With such promiscuous flatteries. For our part,
We here protest it, and are covetous

Posternity should know it, we are mortal;
And can but deeds of men: 't were glory enough,
Could we be truly a prince. And they shall add
Abounding grace unto our memory,
That shall report us worthy our forefathers,
Careful of our affairs, constant in dangers,
And not afraid of any private wrong.
For public good. These things shall be to us
Temples and statues, reared in your minds,
The fairest, and most during imag'ry:
For those of stone or brass, if they become Odious in judgment of posterity,
Are more commend'd as dying sepulchres,
Than t' en living monuments. We then
Make here our suit, alike to gods and men;
The one, until the period of our race,
'T inspire us with a free and quiet mind,
Discerning both divine and human laws;
The other, to vouchsafe us after death,
An honourable mention. and fair praise,
'T accompany our actions and our name:
The rest of greatness princes may command,
And, therefore, may neglect; only a long,
A lasting, high, and happy memory
They should, without being satisfied, pursue:
Contempt of fame begets contempt of virtue.

Nat. Rare!
Sat. Most divine!
Sej. The oracles are ceas'd.
That only Caesar, with their tongue, might speak.
Arr. Let me be gone: most felt and open this

Cor. Stay.
Arr. What! to hear more cunning and fine
words,
With their sound flatter'd ere their sense, be meant?

Tib. Their choice of Antium, there to place
The gift.
Vow'd to the goddess for our mother's health,
We will the senate know, we fairly like;
As also of their grant to Lepidus,
For his repairing the Aemilian place,
And restoration of those monuments:
Their grace, too; in confining of Silanus
To th' other isle Cithera, at the suit
Of his religious sister, much commends
Their policy, so temp'red with their mercy.
But for the honours which they have decreed
To our Sejanus, to advance his statue
In Pompey's theatre, whose ruin'd fire
His vigilance and labour kept restrain'd
In that one loss, they have therein out-gone
Their own great wisdoms, by their skilful choice
And placing of their bounties on a man Whose merit more adorns the dignity
Than that can him; and gives a benefit,
In taking, greater than it can receive.
Blush not, Sejanus, thou great aid of Rome,
Associate of our labours, our chief helper;
Let us not force thy simple modesty
With off'ring at thy praise, for more we cannot.

Cause of death, esp. poison. 2 Anticipate. 4 Manner of address and observance.
1 Fortuna equestris. (Jonson.) 6 Raise.
7 Attempting.
Since there's no voice can take it. No man here
Receive your speeches as hyperboles:
For we are far from flattering our friend,
Let envy know, as from the need to flatter. 276
Nor let them ask the causes of our praise:
Princes have still their grounds rear'd with themselves,
Above the poor low flats of common men;
And who will search the reasons of their acts,
Must stand on equal bases. Lead, away: 280
Our loves unto the senate.

[Exeunt Tit., Sejan., Natta., Sat., Officers, etc.]

Arr. Caesar!

Cor. Great Pompey's theatre was never ruin'd
Till now, that proud Sejanus hath a statute
Rear'd on his ashes.

Arr. Place the shame of soldiers 284
Above the best of generals? Crack the world,
And bruise the name of Romans into dust,
Ere we behold it!

Stu. Check your passion;

Lord Drusus tarries;

Dru. Is my father mad,
Weary of life and rule, lords, thus to heave 288
An idol up with praise? Make him his mate,
His rival in the empire?

Arr. O, good prince!

Dru. Allow him statues, titles, honours, such
As he himself refuseth?

Arr. Brave, brave Drusus!

Dru. The first ascents to sovereignty are hard;
But entered once, there never wants or means,
Or ministers, to help th' aspirer on. 290

Arr. True, gallant Drusus.

Dru. We must shortly pray
To Modesty, that he will rest contented —
Arr. Ay, where he is, and not write em'ror.

Re-enter Sejanus, [Satrius, Latarius,] Clients, etc.

Sej. There is your bill, and yours; bring you your man. [To Satrius.]

I have mov'd for you, too, Latarius.

Dru. What! Is your vast greatness grown so blindly bold,
That you will over us? 295

Sej. Why then give way.

Dru. Give way, Colossus! Do you lift? Advance you?

Take that! Strikethim.

Arr. Good! brave! excellent, brave prince!

Dru. Nay, come, approach. [Draws his sword.]

What, stand you off? at gaze?

It looks too full of death for thy cold spirits.
Avoid mine eye, dull camel, or my sword
Shall make thy brav'ry fitter for a grave,
Than for a triumph. I'll advance a statue
O' your own bulk; but 't shall be on the cross.

1 Achieve. 2 Raise.

Where I will nail your pride at breadth and length,
And crack those sinews, which are yet but stretch'd.

With your swoln fortune's rage.

Arr. A noble prince!

All. A Castor, a Castor, a Castor, a Castor.

[Exeunt all but Sejanus.]

Sej. He that, with such wrong mov'd, can bear it through With patience, and an even mind, knows how
To turn it back. Wrath cover'd carries fate:
Revenge is lost, if I profess my hate.
What was my practice? late, I'll now pursue,
As my fell justice: this hath stily'd it new. 301

ACT II

[Scene I.] 4

Enter Sejanus, Livia, Eudemus.

Sej. Physician, thou art worthy of a province,
For the great favours done unto our loves;
And, but that greatest Livia bears a part
In the requital of thy services,
I should alone despair of aught like means
To give them worthy satisfaction.

Liv. Livemus, I will see it, shall receive
A fit and full reward for his large merit.
But for this potion we intend to Drusus,
(No more our husband, now) whom shall we choose
As the most apt and abled instrument,
To minister it to him?

Eud. I say, Lygacus.

Sej. Lygacus? What's he?

Liv. An eunuch Drusus loves.

Eud. Ay, and his cup-bearer.

Sej. Name not a second.

If Drusus love him, and he have that place,
We cannot think a fitter.

Eud. True, my lord;

Liv. But he must be wrought
To th' undertaking, with some labour'd art.

Sej. Is he ambitious?

No. Or covetous? 29

Eud. Yet, gold is a good general charm.

Sej. What is he, then?

Liv. Faith, only wanton, light.

Sej. How is he young? and fair?

Eud. A delicate youth.

Sej. Send him to me, I'll work him. — Royal lady,
Though I have lov'd you long, and with that height
Of zeal and duty, like the fire, which more
It mounts it trembles, thinking nought could add

3 Treasonous plot. 4 The garden of Eudemus.
Unto the fervour which your eye had kindled; Yet, now I see your wisdom, judgment, strength, Quickness, and will, to apprehend the means To your own good and greatness, I protest Myself through rarified, and turn'd all flame In your affection. Such a spirit as yours, Was not created for the idle second To a poor flash, as Drusus; but to shine Bright as the moon among the lesser lights, And share the sov'reignty of all the world. Then Livia triumphs in her proper sphere, When she and her Sejanus shall divide The name of Caesar, and Augusta's star. Be dim'd with glory of a brighter beam: When Agrippina's fires are quite extinct, And the scarce-seen Tiberius folds arms All little light from us, whose folded arms Shall make one perfect orb! [Knocking within.] Who's that? Eudemus, Look. [Exit Eudemus.] 'Tis not Drusus, lady, do not fear. Liv. Not I, my lord: my fear and love of him Left me at once. Sej. Illustrious lady, stay — Eud. [within.] I'll tell his lordship. [Re-enter Eudemus.]

Sej. Who is it, Eudemus? Eud. One of your lordship's servants brings you word. The emp'ror hath sent for you. Sej. O! where is he? — With your fair leave, dear princess, I'll but ask A question, and return. He goes out. Eud. Fortunate princess! How are you blest in the fruition Of this unequall'd man, the soul of Rome, The Empire's life, and voice of Caesar's world! Liv. So blessed, my Eudemus, as to know The bliss I have, with what I ought to care. The means that wrought it. How do I look to-day? Eud. Excellent clear, believe it. This same focus

Was well laid on. Liv. Methinks 'tis here not white. Eud. Lend me your scarlet, lady. 'Tis the sun, Hath giv'n some little taint unto the ceruse; You should have us'd of the white oil I gave you. Sejanus for your love! his very name Commandeth above Cupid or his shafts — [Paints her cheek.

Liv. Nay, now you've made it worse. Eud. I'll help it straight — But and pronounc'd, is a sufficient charm Against all rumour; and of absolute power To satisfy for any lady's honour. — Liv. What do you now, Eudemus? Eud. Make a light focus, To touch you o'er withal. — Honour'd Sejanus! What act, though ne'er so strange and insolent, But that addition will at least bear out, If 't do not expiate?

1 Cosmetic. 2 White lead, used as a cosmetic.

Liv. Here, good physician.

Eud. I like this study to preserve the love Of such a man, that comes not every hour To greet the world. — 'Tis now well, lady; you should Use of the dentifrice I prescrib'd you too, To clear your teeth, and the prepar'd pomatum, To smooth the skin. — A lady cannot be Too curious of her form, that still would hold The heart of such a person, made her captive, As you have his; who, to endeavour him more In your clear eye, hath put away his wife, The trouble of his bed and your delights, Fair Apicata, and made spacious room To your new pleasures.

Liv. Have not we return'd 3 That with our hate to Drusus, and discovery Of all his counsels? Eud. Yes, and wisely, lady. The age that succeed, and stand far off To gaze at your high prudence, shall admire, And reckon it an act without 4 your sex: It hath that rare appearance. Some will think Your fortune could not yield a deeper sound, Than mixt with Drusus; but, when they shall hear That and the thunder of Sejanus meet, Sejanus, whose high name doth strike the stars, And rings about the concave; great Sejanus, Whose glories, style, and titles are himself, The often iterating of Sejanus; They then will lose their thoughts, and be asham'd To take acquaintance of them. [Re-enter Sejanus.]

Sej. I must make A rude departure, lady; Caesar sends With all his haste both of command and prayer. Be resolute in our plot; you have my soul, As certain yours as it is my body's. And, wise physician, so prepare the poison, As you may lay the subtle operation Upon some natural disease of his: Your eunnuch send to me. I kiss your hands, Glory of ladies, and commend my love To your best faith and memory. Liv. My lord, I shall but change 5 your words. Farewell. Yet, this Remember for your head, he loves you not; You know what I have told you; his designs Are full of grudge and danger; we must use More than a common speed.

Sej. Excellent lady, How you do fire my blood! Liv. Well, you must go? The thoughts be best, are least set forth to show. [Exit Sejanus.] Eud. When will you take some physic, lady? Liv. When 6 I shall, Eudemus; but let Drusus' drug Be first prepar'd. Eud. Were Lyguds made, 6 that's done;

3 Counterbalanced. 4 Beyond the powers of. 5 Reciprocate. 6 Prepared for our purposes.
I have it ready. And, to-morrow morning
I'll send you a perfume, first to resolve
And procure sweat, and then prepare a bath to cleanse and clear the cutis;1 against when I'll have an excellent new fuscus made,
Resistive 'gainst the sun, the rain, or wind,
Which you shall lay on with a breath, or oil.130
As you best like, and last some fourteen hours.
This chance came timely, lady, for your health,
And the restoring your complexion,
Which Drusus' choler had almost burnt up;
Wherein your fortune hath prescrib'd you better
Than art could do.

Lov. Thanks, good physician,
I'll use my fortune, you shall see, with reverence.
Is my coach ready?

Eud. It attends your highness.

[Enter II.]2

[Exeunt.]

Sej. If this be not revenge, when I have done
And made it perfect, let Egyptian slaves,
Parthians, and barefoot Hebrews brand my face,
And print my body full of injuries.
Thou lost thyself, child Drusus, when thou thought'st
Thou couldst outstrip my vengeance, or outstand
The power I had to crush thee into air.
Thy follies now shall taste what kind of man
They have provok'd, and this thy father's house
Crack in the flame of my incensed rage,
Whose fury shall admit no shame or mean.
—Adultery! it is the lightest ill
I will commit. A race of wicked acts
Shall flow out of my anger, and overspread
The world's wide face, which no posterity
Shall 'er approve, nor yet keep silent: things,
That for their cunning, close,3 and cruel mark
Thy father would wish his, and shall, perhaps,
Carry the empty name, but we the prize.
On, then, my soul, and start not in thy course;
Though heaven's drop sulphur, and hell beleth out fire,

Laugh at the idle terrors: tell proud Jove,
Between his power and thine there is no odds:
'Twas only fear first in the world made gods.

[Enter] Tiberius [attended.]

Tib. Is yet Sejanus come?

Sej. He's here, dread Caesar.

Tib. Let all depart that chamber, and the next.

[Exeunt Attendants.]

Sit down, my comfort. When the master prince
Of all the world, Sejanus, saith he fears,
Is it not fatal?

Sej. Yes, to those are fear'd.

Tib. And not to him?

Sej. Not if he wisely turn 30
That part of fate he holdeth, first on them.
Tib. That nature, blood, and laws of kind forbid.

1 Skin 2 An apartment in the Palace. 3 Secret.

Sej. Do policy and state forbid it?

Tib. No.

Sej. The rest of poor respects, then let go by;
State4 is enough to make th' act just, them guilty.

Tib. Long hate pursues such acts.

Sej. Whom hatred frights,
Let him not dream of sovereignity.

Tib. Are rites
Of faith, love, piedad, to be trod down,
Forgotten, and made vain?

Sej. All for a crown.

The prince who shames a tyrant's name to bear,
Shall never dare do anything but fear;
All the command of sceptres quite doth perish,
If it begin religious thoughts to cherish:
Whole empires fall, swayed by those nice 6 respects;
It is the licence of dark deeds protects
Ev'n states most hated, when no laws resist
The sword, but that it acteth what it list.
Tib. Yet so, we may do all things cruelly,
Not safely.

Sej. Yes, and do them thoroughly.

Tib. Knows yet Sejanus whom we point at?

Sej. Ay, 50

Or else my thought, my sense, or both do err:
'Tis Agrippina.

Tib. She, and her proud race.

Sej. Proud I dangerous, Caesar: for in them space
The father's spirit shoots up. Germanicus Lives in their looks, their gait, their form, t upbraid us
With his close death, if not revenge the same.

Tib. The act's not known.

Sej. Not prov'd; but whispering Fame
Knows, and proof doth to the jealous 5 give,
Who, than to fall, 7 would their own thought believe.
It is not safe the children draw long breath,
That are provoked by a parent's death.

Tib. It is as dangerous to make them hence, If nothing but their birth be their offence.

Sej. Stay, till they strike at Caesar; then their crime
Will be enough; but late and out of time
For him to punish.

Tib. Do they purpose it?

Sej. You know, sir, thunder speaks not till it hit.

Be not secure; 8 none swifter are oppress
Than they whom confidence betrays to rest.
Let not your daring make your danger such:
All power's to be fear'd, where 't is too much.

The youths are of themselves hot, violent,
Full of great thought; and that male-spirited dame,
Their mother, slacks no means to put them on,
By large allowance, popular presentings,
Increase of train and state, sung for titles;
Hath them commended with like prayers, like vows,

4 Reasons of state. 5 Foolishly fastidious.
6 Suspicious. 7 Rather than fail of proof would accept their own thought as such.
8 Over-confident.
To the same gods, with Caesar: days and nights
She spends in banquets and ambitious feasts
For the nobility; where Caius Silius, 90
Titius Sabinus, old Arruntius,
Asinius Gallus, Furnius, Regulus,
And others of that discontented list,
Are the prime guests. There, and to these, she tells Whose niece she was, whose daughter, and whose wife. 55
And then must they compare her with Augusta,
Ay, and prefer her too; commend her form,
Exalt her fruitfulness, at which a shower
Falls for the memory of Germania.
Which they blow over straight with windy praise
And puffing hopes of her aspiring sons;
Who, with these hourly ticklings, grow so pleas'd,
And wantonly conceited of themselves,
As now they stick not to believe they're such
As these do give them out; and would be thought
More than competitors, immediate heirs.
Whilst to their thirst of rule, they win the rout
(That's still the friend of novelty) with hope
Of future freedom, which on every change
That greedily, though emptily expects. 100
Caesar, 'tis age in all things breeds neglects,
And princes that will keep old dignity
Must not admit too youthful heirs stand by;
Not their own issue; but so darkly set
As shadows are in picture, to give height
And lustre to themselves.
Tib. We will command
Their rank thoughts down, and with a stricter hand
Than we have yet put forth; their trains must bate, 2
Their titles, feasts, and factions.
Sej. But how, sir, will you work? Or your state.
Tib. Confine 'em.
Sej. They are too great, and that too faint a blow
To give them now; it would have serv'd at first,
When with the weakest touch their knot had burst.
But now, your care must be, not to detect
The smallest cord, or line of your suspect; 115
For such, who know the weight of princes' fear,
Will, when they find themselves discover'd,
Their forces, like seen snakes, that else would lie
Roll'd in their circles, close. Nought is more high,
Daring, or desperate, than offenders found; 120
Where guilt is, rage and courage doth abound.
The course must be, to let 'em still swell up,
Riot, and surfeit on blind Fortune's cup;
Give 'em more place, more dignities, more style,
Call 'em to court, to senate; in the while, 125
Take from their strength some one or twain or more,
Of the main fantors 8 (it will fright thy store),
And, by some by-occasion. Thus, with sleight
You shall disarm first; and they, in night
Of their ambition, 4 not perceive the train, 130
Till in the engine 6 they are caught and slain.
Sej. We would not kill, if we knew how to save;
Yet, than a throne, 'tis cheaper give a grave.
Is there no way to bind them by deserts? 135
Sej. Sir, wolves do change their hair, but not Their hearts.
While thus your thought unto a mean 6 is tied,
You neither dare enough, nor do provide.
All modesty is fond, 7 and chiefly where
The subject is no less compell'd to bear,
Than praise his sovereign's acts.
Tib. We can no longer 140
Keep on our mask to thee, our dear Sejansus;
Thy thoughts are ours, in all, and we but prov'd
Their voice, in our designs, which by assenting
Hath more confirm'd us, then if heart'ning Jove
Had, from his hundred statues, bid us strike, 145
And at the stroke clickt all his marble thumbs.
But who shall first be struck?
Sej. First, Caius Silius;
He is the most of mark, and most of danger:
In power and reputation equal strong;
Having commanded an imperial army 150
Seven years together, vanquish'd Sacrovir
In Germany, and thence obtain'd to wear
The ornaments triumphal. His steep fall,
By how much it doth give the weightier crack,
Will send more troubling terror to the rest, 155
Command them stand aloof, and give more way
To our surprising of the principal.
Tib. But what, Sabinus?
Sej. Let him grow awhile,
His fate is not yet ripe: we must not pluck
At all together, lest we catch ourselves. 160
And there's Arruntius too, he only talks.
But Sosia, Silius' wife, would be wound in
Now, for she hath a fury in her breast.
More than hell ever knew; and would be sent Thither in time. Then is there one Cremnitus
Cordus, a writing fellow, they have got 165
To gather notes of the precedent times,
And make them into Annals; a most tart
And bitter spirit, I hear; who, under colour 170
Of praising those, doth tax 8 the present state,
Censures 3 the men, the actions, leaves no trick,
No practice unexam'd, parallels
The times, the governments; a profest champion
For the old Liberty — — A perishing wretch!
Tib. As if there were that chaos bred in things,
That laws and liberty would not rather choose
To be quite broken, and ta'en hence by us,
Than have the stain to be preserv'd by such.
Have we the means to make these guilty first?
Sej. Trust that to me: let Caesar, by his power,
But cause a formal meeting of the senate,
I will have matter and accusers ready.
1 Supporters.
2 Moderate measures.
3 Blistened by ambition.
4 Supporters.
5 Corrupt.
6 Middle course.
7 Accuse.
8 Passes judgment on.
Supinely negligent? Our city’s now
Divided as in time o’ th’ civil war,
And men forbear not to declare themselves
Of Agrippina’s party. Every day
The faction multiplies; and will do more,
If not resisted: you can best enlarge it,
As you find audience. Noble Posthumus,
Commend me to your Prisca; and pray her,
She will solicit this great business
To earnest and most present execution.
With all her utmost credit with Augusta.
Pos. I shall not fail in my instructions. [Exit.]
Sej. This second, from his mother, will well urge
Our late design, and spur on Caesar’s rage;
Which else might grow remiss. The way to put
A prince in blood, is to present the shapes
Of dangers greater than they are, like late
Or early shadows: and, sometimes, to feign
Where there are none, only to make him fear.
His fear will make him cruel: and once entr’d
He doth not easily learn to stop, or spare
Where he may doubt. This have I made my rule
To thrust Tiberius into tyranny,
And make him til to turn aside those blocks,
Which I alone could not remove with safety.
Druusus once gone, Germanicus’ three sons
Would clog my way; whose guards have too much faith
To be corrupted: and their mother known
Of too unprov’d a chastity
To be attempted, as light Livia was.
Work then, my art, on Caesar’s fears, as they
On those they fear, till all my lets & be clear’d,
And he in ruins of his house, and hate
Of all his subjects, bury his own state:
When with my peace, and safety, I will rise,
By making him the public sacrifice. [Exit.]

[Scene III.]

[Enter] SATRIUS, NATTA.

Sat. They’re grown exceeding circumspect,
And wary.

Nat. They have us in the wind: and yet Arruntius Cannot contain himself.

Sat. Tis, he’s not yet
Look’d after; there are others more desir’d,
That are more silent.

Nat. Here comes he. Away! [Exeunt.]

[Enter] SABINUS, ARRUNTUS, CORDUS.

Sab. How is it, that these beagles haunt the house
Of Agrippina?

Arr. O, they hunt, they hunt!
There is some game here lodg’d, which they Must rouse,
To make the great ones sport.

Cor. Did you observe
How they inveigh’d against Caesar?

Arr. Ay, baits, baits,
1 "When I am dead, let the earth be mingled with fire."
2 Subject.
3 Confident, unsuspicious.
4 Blameless.
5 Obstacles. F. belts.
6 A room in Agrippina’s house.
For us to bite at; would I have my flesh to Torn by the public hook, these qualified hangmen
Should be my company.

Cor. Here comes another.

[Dom. Afer passes over the stage.]

Arr. Ay, there's a man, Afer the orator! 14
One that hath phrases, figures, and fine flowers,
To strew his rhetoric with, and doth make haste,
To get him note or name by any offer
Where blood or gain be objects; steeps his words,
When he would kill, in artificial tears:
The crocodile of Tiber! him I love,
That man is mine; he hath my heart and voice
When I would curse! he, he,

Sab. Contemn the slaves,
Their present lives will be their future graves.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene IV.] 1

[Enter] Silius, Agrippina, Nero, Sosia.

Sil. May't please your highness not forget yourself;
I dare not, with my manners, to attempt
Your trouble farther.

Agr. Farewell, noble Silius!

Sil. Most royal princess.

Agr. Sosia stays with us?

Sil. She is your servant, and doth owe your grace
An honest, but unprofitable love.

Agr. How can that be, when there's no gain
But virtue's?

Sil. You take the moral, not the politic sense.

I meant, as she is bold, and free of speech,
Earnest to utter what her zealous thought
Travails withal, in honour of your house;
Which act, as it is simply borne in her,
Partakes of love and honesty; but may,
By th' over-often, and unseason'd use,
Turn to your loss and danger: for your state
Is waited on by envies, as by eyes;
And every second guest your tables take
Is a fée'd spy, to observe who goes, who comes;
What conference you have, with whom, where,
When,
What the discourse is, what the looks, the thoughts
Of ev'ry person there, they do extract,
And make into a substance.

Agr. Hear me, Silius.

Were all Tiberius' body stuck with eyes,
And ev'ry wall and hanging in my house
Transparent, as this lawn I wear, or air;
Yes, had Sejanus both his ears as long
As to my densest closet. I would hate
To whisper any thought, or change an act,
To be made Juno's rival. Virtue's forces
Show ever noblest in conspicuous courses.

Sil. 'Tis great, and bravely spoken, like the spirit
Of Agrippina: yet, your highness knows,
There is nor less nor shame in providence; 2
Few can, what all should do, beware enough.
You may perceive with what officious face,
Satins, and Natta, Afer, and the rest
Visit your house of late, t' inquire the secrets;
And with what bold and privileg'd art, they rail
Against Augusta, yea, and at Tiberius;
Tell tricks of Livia, and Sejanus: all
'To excite, and call your indignation on,
That they might hear it at more liberty.
Agr. You're too suspicious, Silius.

Sosia. Pray the gods, I be so, Agrippina; but I fear
Some subtle practice. They that durst to strike
At so examples, and unblam'd a life,
As that of the renown'd Germanicus,
Will not sit down with that exploit alone:
He threatens many that hath injur'd one.

Nero. 'T were best rip forth their tongues,
Sear out their eyes,

When next they come.

A fit reward for spies.

Drus. Jun. Hear you the rumour?

Agr. What?

Agr. Dying!

Nero. That's strange!

Agr. You were with him yesternight.

Drus. Jun. One met Eudemus the physician,
Sent for, but now; who thinks he cannot live.

Sil. Thinks? If it be arriv'd at that, he knows,
Or none,

Agr. 'Tis quick! What should be his disease?

Sil. Poison, poison!

Agr. How, Silius!

Nero. What's that?

Sil. Nay, nothing. There was late a certain blow
Giv'n o' the face.

Nero. Ay, to Sejanus.

Sil. True.

Drus. Jun. And what of that?

Sil. I'm glad I gave it not.

Nero. But there is somewhat else?

Sil. Yes, private meetings,

With a great lady at a physician's,

And a wife turn'd away—

Nero. Ha!

Sil. Toys, mere toys: what wisdom's now i' th' streets, i' th' common mouth?

Drus. Jun. Fears, whisperings, tumults, noise,

I know not what:

They say the Senate sit.

Sil. I'll thither straight;
And see what's in the forges.

Agr. Good Sosia, do;

Sosia and I will in.

Sil. Haste you, my lords,
To visit the sick prince; tender your loves,
And sorrows to the people. This Sejanus,
ACT III

[Scene I.]
The Senate.

[Enter Praecones, Lictores, SEJANUS, VARRO, LATTARIS, COTTA, and AGER.]

SEJ. 'Tis only you must urge against him, Varro; No I, nor Caesar may appear therein, Except in your defence, who are the consul; And, under colour of late enmity Between your father and his, may better do it, As free from all suspicion of a practice. Here be your notes, what points to touch at; read:

BE cunning in them. Afer has them too. Var. But is he summon'd? SEJ. No. It was debated By Caesar, and concluded as most fit To take him unprepared. Afer. And prosecute All under name of treason. Var. I conceive.

[Enter SABINUS, GALLUS, LEPIDUS, and ABRUNTUS.]

SAB. Drusus being dead, Caesar will not be here.

GAL. What should the business of this senate be?

ARR. That can my subtle whisperers tell you: we That are the good-dull-noble lookers-on. Are only call'd to keep the marble warm. What should we do with those deep mysteries, Proper to these fine heads? Let them alone. Our ignorance may, perchance, help us be sav'd From whips and furies.

GAL. See, see, see their action! ARR. Ay, now their heads do travail, now they work;

Their faces run like shilltes; they are weaving Some curious cobweb to catch flies.

SUB. Observe, They take their places.

ARR. What, so low!

GAL. They must be seen to flatter Caesar's grief, Though but in sitting.

VAR. Bid us silence. PRae. Silence. VAR. "Fathers conscript, may this our present meeting Turn fair and fortunate to the commonwealth!"

[Enter Silius [and other Senators.]

SEJ. See, Silius enters.

SIL. Hail, grave fathers!

Lic. Silius, forbear thy place.

ARR. Is he come too! Nay then expect a trick.

SAB. Silius accus'd! Sure he will answer nobly.

[Enter Tiberius [attended.]

TIB. We stand amazed, fathers, to behold This general dejection. Wherefore sit Rome's consuls thus dissolve'd, as they had lost All the remembrance both of style and place? It not becomes. No woes are of fit weight To make the honour of the Empire stoop: Though I, in my peculiar self may meet Just reprehension, that so suddenly, And in so fresh a grief, would greet the senate, When private tongues, of kinsmen and allies, Inspire'd with comforts, lofty are endure'd, The face of men not seen, and scarce the day, To thousands that communicate our loss. Nor can I argue these of weakness, since They take but natural ways; yet I must seek For stronger aids, and those fair helps draw out From warm embraces of the commonwealth. Our mother, great Augusta, 's struck with time, Our self imprest with aged characters, Drusus is gone, his children young and babes; Our aims must now reflect on those that may Give timely succour to these present ills, And are our only glad-surviving hopes, The noble issue of Germanicus, Nero and Drusus: might it please the consal Honour them in, they both attend without. I would present them to the senate's care, And raise those sons of joy that should drink up These floods of sorrow in your drowned eyes. ARR. By Jove, I am not Oedipus enough To understand this Sphinx.

SAB. The princes come.

[Enter] NERO, DRUSUS JUNIOR.

TIB. Approach you, noble Nero, noble Dru-sus. These princes, fathers, when their parent died, I gave unto their uncle, with this prayer, That though he 'd proper issue of his own, He would no less bring up, and foster these, Than that self-blood; and by that act confirm Their worths to him, and to posterity. Drusus ta'en hence, I turn my prayers to you, And 'ere our country and our gods, beseech You take, and rule Augustus' nephew's sons, Sprung of the noblest ancestors; and so Accomplish both my duty, and your own. Nero, and Drusus, these shall be to you In place of parents, these your fathers, these; And not unjust: for you are so born, As all your good or ill 's the commonwealth's.

2 Share.
Receive them, you strong guardians; and blest
gods,
Make all their actions answer to their bloods;
Let their great titles find increase by them,
Not they by titles. Set them, as in place, 86
So in example, above all the Romans:
And may they know no rivals but themselves. 87
Let Fortune give them nothing, but attend
Upon their virtue: and that still come forth 89
Greater than hope, and better than their fame. 90
Believe me, fathers, with your general voice.

Senators." May all the gods consent to Caesars
wish,
And add to any honours that may crown
The hopeful issue of Germanie's!"

Tib. We thank you, reverend fathers, in their right.

Arr. (Aside.) If this were true, now! but the space, the space
Between the breast and lips! Tiberius' heart Lies a thought farrther than another man's.

Tib. My comforts are so flowing in my joys,
As, in them, all my streams of grief are lost, 100
No less than are land-waters in the sea,
Or showers in rivers; though their cause was such,
As might have sprinkled ev'n the gods with tears:
Yet, since the greater doth embrace the less,
We covetously obey.

Arr. (Aside.) 1 Well acted, Caesar. 105

Tib. And now I am the happy witness made
Of your so much desir'd affections
To this great issue, I could wish the Fates
Would here set peaceful period to my days;
However, to my labours I entreat 110
And beg it of this senate, some fit ease.

Arr. (Aside.) 1 Laugh, fathers, laugh: ha?
You spleens 2 about you?

Tib. The burden is too heavy I sustain
On my unwilling shoulders; and I pray
It may be taken off, and reconfer'd 115
Upon the consuls, or some other Roman,
More able, and more worthy.

Arr. (Aside.) Laugh on still.

Sab. Why, this doth render all the rest susp ected!

Gal. It poisons all.

Arr. O, do you taste it then?

Sab. It takes away my faith to anything 120
He shall hereafter speak.

Arr. Ay, to pray that,
Which would be to his head as hot as thunder, Gainst which he wears that charm, 3 should but the court
Receive him at his word.

Gal. Hear! 125

Tib. For myself
I know my weakness, and so little covet, 126
Like some gone past, the weight that will oppress me,
As my ambition is the counter-point.

Arr. (Aside.) 1 Finely maintain'd; good still!
1 These speeches marked (Aside) are placed in parentesises in the Folio.
2 The supposed seat of mirth and other emotions.
3 A wreath of laurel. (Jonson.)

Sej. But Rome, whose blood,
Whose nerves, whose life, whose very frame relies
On Caesar's strength, no less than heaven on Atlas,
Cannot admit it but with general ruin.

Arr. (Aside.) Ah! are you there to bring him off?

Sej. Let Caesar
No more then urge a point so contrary
To Caesar's greatness, the griev'd senate's vows,
Or Rome's necessity.

Gal. (Aside.) He comes about —

Arr. (Aside.) More nimbly than Vertumnus.

Tib. For the public,
I may be drawn to show I can neglect
All private aims, though I affect my rest;
But if the senate still command me serve,
I must be glad to practise my obedience.

Arr. (Aside.) You must and will, sir. We do know it.

Senators. "Caesar,
Live long and happy, great and royal Caesar;
The gods preserve thee and thy modesty,
Thy wisdom and thy innocence!"

Arr. (Aside.) Where is't?

The prayer is made before the subject.

Senators. "Guard
His meekness, Jove, his pitty, his care,
His bounty —"

Arr. (Aside.) And his subtilty, I'll put in:
Yet he'll keep that himself, without the gods.
All prayers are vain for him.

Tib. We will not hold
Your patience, fathers, with long answer; but Shall still contend to be what you desire, 131
And work to satisfy so great a hope.
Proceed to your affairs.

Arr. ( Aside.) Now, Silius, guard thee;
The curtain's drawing. Affer advanceeth.

Prae. Silence!

Afer. Cite Caius Silius.

Prae. Caius Silius! 136

Sil. Here.

Afer. The triumph that thou hadst in Germany
For thy late victory on Sacrovir,
Thou hast enjoy'd so freely, Caius Silius,
As no man it envi'd thee; nor would Caesar 139
Or Rome admit, that thou wert then defrauded
Of any honours thy deserts could claim
In the fair service of the commonwealth;
But now, if after all their loves and graces,
(Thy actions, and their courses being discover'd)
It shall appear to Caesar and this senate, 140
Thou hast deserv'd those glories with thy Crimes —

Sil. Crimes!

Afer. Patience, Silius.

Sil. Tell thy mule of patience;
I am a Roman. What are my crimes? Proclaim
them.
Am I too rich, too honest for the times?
Have I or treasure, jewels, land, or houses 137
That some informer gapes for? Is my strength
Too much to be admitted, or my knowledge?
These now are crimes.
III. i.

SEJANUS, HIS FALL

Afer. Nay, Silius, if the name
Of crime so touch thee, with what impotence
With thou endure the matter to be search’d? 176
Sil. I tell thee, Afer, with more scorn than fear:
Employ your mercenary tongue and art.
Where’s my accuser?
Var. Here.
Arr. Varro, the consul!
Is he thrust in?
Var. ‘Tis I accuse thee, Silius. 180
Against the majesty of Rome and Caesar,
I do pronounce thee here a guilty cause,
First of beginning and occasioning
Next, drawing out the war in Gallia,
For which thou late triumph’st; dissembling long
That Sacrovir to be an enemy,
Only to make thy entertainment more:
Whilst thou, and thy wife Sosia, poll’d 1 the province;
Wherein, with sordid-base desire of gain,
Thou hast discredited thy actions’ worth,
And been a traitor to the state.
Sil. Arr. I thank thee, Silius; speak so still and often.
Var. If I not prove it, Caesar, but unjustly
Have call’d him into trial, here I bind
Myself to suffer what I claim ‘gainst him; 194
And yield to have what I have spoke, confirm’d.
By judgment of the court, and all good men.
Sil. Caesar, I crave to have my cause deferr’d, Till this man’s consulship be out. We cannot,
Nor may we grant it.
Sil. Why? Shall he design 2
My day of trial? Is he my accuser,
And must he be my judge?
Tib. It hath been usual,
And is a right that custom hath allow’d
The magistrate, to call forth private men
And to appoint their day: which privilege
We may not in the consul see infring’d, 205
By whose deep watches and industrious care
It is so labour’d, as the commonwealth
Receive no loss, by any oblique course.
Sil. Caesar, thy fraud is worse than violence.
Tib. Silius, mistake me not, we dare not use
The credit of the consul to thy wrong;
But only do preserve his place and power,
So far as it concerns the dignity
And honour of the state.
Arr. Believe him, Silius.
Cot. Why, so he may, Arruntius.
Arr. I say so; 215
And he may choose too.
Tib. By the Capitol,
And all our gods, but that the dear republic,
Our sacred laws, and just authority
Are interest’d therein, I should be silent. 219
Afer. Please Caesar to give way unto his trial,
He shall have justice.
Sil. Nay, I shall have law;
Shall I not, Afer? Speak.

1 Plundered by extortion.
2 Name.

Afer. Would you have meoe?
Sil. No, my well-spoken man, I would no more;
Nor less: might I enjoy it natural,
Not taught to speak unto your present ends, 224
Free from thine, his, and all your unkind handling.
Furious enforcing, most unjust presuming,
Malicious, and manifold applying.
Foul wresting, and impossible construction.
Afer. He raves, he raves.
Sil. Thou dost not tell me so, 230
Hast thou not Caesar’s warrant. I can see Whose power condemns me.
Var. This betrays his spirit:
This doth enough declare him what he is.
Sil. What am I? speak. 235
Var. An enemy to the state.
Sil. Because I am an enemy to thee,
And such corrupted ministers o’ the state,
That here art made a present instrument
To gratify it with thine own disgrace.
Sej. This, to the consul, is most insolent,
And impious.
Sil. Ay, take part. Reveal yourselves. 240
Alas! I scent not your confederacies,
Your plots, and combinations! I know
Minion Sejanus hates me; and that all
This boast of law, and law, is but a form,
A net of Vulcan’s filing, a mere ingine,
To take that life by a pretext of justice,
Which you pursue in malice! I want brain
Or nostril to persuade me, that your ends
And purposes are made to what they are,
Before my answer! O, you equal gods,
Whose justice not a world of wolf-turn’d men
Shall make me to accuse (how’er provokes),
Have I for this so oft engag’d myself?
Stood in the heat and fervour of a fight,
When Phoebus sooner hath fostered the day 255
Than I the field, against the blue-eyed Gauls,
And crisped Germans? when our Roman eagles
Have fann’d their fire with their labouring wings,
And no blow dealt, that left not death behind it?
When I have charg’d, alone, into the troops 260
Of curb’d Scambrians, routed them, and came
Not off with backward ensigns of a slave,
But forward marks, wounds on my breast and face,
Were meant to thee, O Caesar, and thy Rome?
And have I this return! Did I, for this, 265
Perform so noble, and so brave defeat,
On Sacrovir! O Jove, let it become me
To boast my deeds, when he, whom they concern,
Shall thus forget them.
Afer. Silius, Silius, 270
These are the common customs of thy blood,
When it is high with wine, as now with rage.
This well agrees with that intertemperate vallent,
Thou lately mad’st at Agrippina’s table,
That, when all other of the troops were prone
To fall into rebellion, only yours 275
Remain’d in their obedience. You were he
That sav’d the Empire, which had then been lost.
Had but your legions there rebell'd, or mutin'd;
Your virtue met, and fronted every peril.
You gav'st to Caesar and to Rome their surety.
Their name, their strength, their spirit, and their state,
Their being was a donative from you.
Arr. Well worded, and most like an orator.
Tib. Is this true, Silius?
Sili. Save thy question, Caesar,
Thy spy of famous credit hath affirm'd it.
Arr. Excellent Roman!
Sab. He doth answer stoutly.
Sej. If this be so, there needs no farther cause
Of crime against him.
Var. What can more impeach
The royal dignity and state of Caesar,
Than to be urg'd with a benefit
He cannot pay.
Cot. In this, all Caesar's fortune
Is made unequal to the courtesy.
Lat. His means are clean destroy'd that should require.
Gal. Nothing is great enough for Silius' merit.
Arr. Gallus on that side too?
Sili. Come, do not hunt,
And labour so about for circumstance,
To make him guilty, whom you have foredoom'd:
Take shorter ways, I'll meet your purposes.
The words were mine, and more I now will say:
Since I have done thee that great service,
Caesar,
Thou still hast fear'd me; and, in place of grace,
Return'd me hatred: so all soon best turns,
With doubtful princes, turn deep injuries
In estimation, when they greater rise
Than can be answer'd. Benefits, with you,
Are of no longer pleasure, than you can
With ease restore them; that transcended once,
Your studies are not how to thank, but kill.
It is your nature, to have all slaves
To you, but you acknowledging to none.
The means that makes your greatness, must not come
In mention of it; if it do, it takes
So much away, you think: and that which help'd
Shall soonest perish, if it stand in eye,
Where it may front, or but upbruid the high.
Cot. Suffer him speak no more.
Var. Note but his spirit.
Afer. This shows him in the rest.
Lat. Let him be censur'd.
Sej. He hath spoke enough to prove him
Caesar's foe.
Cot. His thoughts look through his words.
Sej. A censure.
Sili. Stay,
Stay, most officious senate, I shall straight
Delude thy fury. Silius hath not plac'd
His guards within him, against fortune's spite,
So weakly he can escape your gripe
That are but hands of fortune: she herself,
When virtue doth oppose, must lose her threats.
All that can happen in humanity;

1 Judged.

The frown of Caesar, proud Sejanus' hatred,
Base Varro's spleen, and Afer's bloodying tongue,
The senate's servile flattery, and these Must' red to kill, I'm fortified against,
And can look down upon: they are beneath me.
It is not life whereof I stand enamour'd
Nor shall my end make me accuse my fate.
The coward and the valiant man must fall,
Only the cause, and manner how, discerns them:
Which then are gladdest, when they cost us dearest.
Romans, if any here be in this senate,
Would know to mock Tiberius' tyranny,
Look upon Silius, and so learn to die.

[Stabs himself.]

Var. O desperate act!
Arr. An honourable hand!
Tib. Look, is he dead?
Sab. 'Twas nobly struck, and home.
Arr. My thought did prompt him to it. Farewell, Silius.
Be famous ever for thy great example.
Tib. We are not pleas'd in this sad accident,
That thus hath staled, and abus'd our mercy,
Intended to preserve thee, noble Roman,
And to prevent thy hopes.
Arr. Excellent wolf!
Now he is full he howls.
Sej. Caesar doth wrong
His dignity and safety thus to mourn
The deserv'd end of so profligate a traitor;
And doth, by this his lenity, instruet
Others as faction to the like offence.
Tib. The confiscation merely of his state
Had been enough.
Arr. O, that was gap'd for then?
Var. Remove the body.
Sej. Let citation.

Go out for Sosia.
Gal. Let her be proscrib'd:
And for the goods, I think it suit that half
Go to the treasure, half unto the children.
Lep. With leave of Caesar, I would think that fourth Part, which the law doth cast on the informers,
Should be enough; the rest go to the children:
Wherein the prince shall show humanity,
And bounty; not to force them by their want,
Which in their parent's trespass they deserv'd,
To take ill courses.
Tib. It shall please us.
Arr. Ay,
Out of necessity. This Lepidus
Is grave and honest, and I have observ'd
A moderation still in all his censures;
Sab. And bending to the better — Stay, who's this?
Cremutius Cordus! What! is he brought in?
Arr. More blood unto the banquet! Noble Cordus,
I wish thee good; be as thy writings, free
And honest.
Tib. What is he?
Sej. For the' Annals, Caesar.

2 Forestalled.
3 Judgments.
III. i.

SEJANUS, HIS FALL 265

[Enter] Praeco. SATRIUS and NATTA, [with] Cremutius Cordus, [guarded.]

Prae. Cremutius Cordus!

Cor. Here.

Prae. Satrinus Secundus.

Pinnarius Natta, you are his accusers.

Arr. Two of Sejanus’ blood-hounds, whom he breds
With human flesh, to bay at citizens.

Afer. Stand forth before the Senate, and confront him.

Sat. I do accuse thee here, Cremutius Cordus,
To be a man factious and dangerous,
A sower of sedition in the state,
A turbulent and discontented spirit,
Which I will prove from thine own writings, here,
The Annals thou hast publish’d; where thou but’st
The present age, and with a viper’s tooth,
Being a member of it, dar’st that ill
Which never yet degenerous bastard did
Upon his parent.

Nat. To this I subscribe; And, forth! a world of more particular,
Instance in only one; comparing men
And times, thou praisest Brutus, and affirm’st
That Cassius was the last of all the Romans.

Cot. How! what are we then?

Var. What is Caesar! Nothing?

Afer. My lords, this strikes at every Roman’s private,
In whom reigns gentry and estate of spirit,
To have a Brutus brought in parallel,
A parriade, an enemy of his country,
Rank’d, and preferr’d to any real worth
That Rome now holds. This is most strangely inventive,

Most full of spite, and insolent upbraiding.

Nor is’t the time alone is here dispariz’d,
But the whole man of time, yea, Caesar’s self Brought in disvalue; and he aim’d at most,
By oblique glance of his licentious pen.

Cassius, if Cassius were the last of all Romans,
Thou hast no name.

Thb. Let’s hear him answer. Silence!

Cor. So innocent I am of fact, my lords,
As but my words are argu’d: yet those words
Not reaching either prince or prince’s parent;
The which your law of treason comprehends.

Brutus and Cassius I am charg’d to have prais’d;

Whose deeds, when many more, besides myself,
Have writ, not one hath mention’d without honour.

Great Titus Livis, great for eloquence
And faith amongst us, in his History
With so great praises Pompey did extol,
As oft Augustus call’d him a Pompeian:
Yet this not hurt their friendship. In his book
He often names Scepio, Aframus,
Yea, the same Cassius, and this Brutus too,
As worthi’est men; not thieves and parricides,
Which notes upon their names are now impos’d.

Asinius Pollio’s writings quite throughout
Give them a noble memory; so Messala Renown’d his general, Cassius: yet both these Liv’d with Augustus, full of wealth and honours.

To Cicero’s book, where Cato was heav’d up
Equal with heaven, what else did Caesar answer,
Being then dictator, but with a penn’d oration,
As if before the judges? Do but see
Antonius’ letters; read but Brutus’ pleadings:
What vile reproach they hold against Augustus,
False, I confess, but with much bitterness.

The epigrams of Bibaculus and Catullus
Are read, full stuff with spite of both the Caesars;

Yet defied Julius, and no less Augustus,
Both bore them, and esteem’d them: I not know,
Promptly to speak it, whether done with more
Temper, or wisdom; for such obloques
If they despi’es be, they die supprest;
But it with rage acknowledg’d, they are confest,
The Greeks I slip, whose licence not alone,
But also last did scape unpunish’d:
Or where some one, by chance, exception took,
He words with words reveng’d. But, in my work,

What could be aim’d more free, or farther off
From the time’s scandal, than to write of those Whom death from grace or hatred had exempted?

Did I, with Brutus and with Cassius,
Arm’d and possess’d of the Philippi fields,
Incense the people in the civil cause,
With dangerous speeches? Or do they, being slain
Seventy years since, as by their images,
Which not the conqueror hath defac’d, appears
Retain that guilty memory with writers?

Posterity pays every man his honour:
Nor shall there want, though I condemned am,
That will not only Cassius well approve,
And of great Brutus’ honour mindful be,
But that will also mention make of me.

Arr. Freely and nobly spoken.

Sab. With good temper;
I like him, that he is not mov’d with passion.

Afer. He puts ’em to their whisper.

Thb. Take him hence;

We shall determine of him at next sitting.

[Exeunt Officers with Cordus.]

Cot. Mean time, give order, that his books be burnt.

To the aides.

Sej. You have well advis’d.

Afer. It fits not such licentious things should live
T’ upbraid the age.

Arr. If th’ age were good, they might.

Lat. Let ’em be burnt.

Gal. All sought, and burnt to-day.

Prae. The court is up; lectors, resume the fasces.

[Exeunt all but] Arruntius, Sabinus, and Lexidis.

1 Out of.

2 Innocent.
Arr. Let them be burnt! O, how ridiculous
Appear the senate's brainless diligence,
Who think they can, with present power, extinguish
The memory of all succeeding times!

Sab. 'Tis true; when, contrary, the punishment
Of wit doth make th' authority increase.
Nor do they ought, that use this cruelty
Of interdiction, and this rage of burning,
But purchase to themselves rebuke and shame,
And to the writers an eternal name.
Lep. It is an argument the times are sore,
When virtue cannot safely be advanc'd,
Nor vice reprov'd.
Arr. Ay, noble Lepidus;
Augustus well foresaw what we should suffer
Under Tiberius, when he did pronounce
The Roman race most wretched, that should live
Between so slow jaws, and so long a bruising.

[Scene II.] 1

[Enter Tiberius and Sejanus.

Tib. This business hath succeeded well, Se-janus;
And quite remov'd all jealousy of practice 2
'Gainst Agrippina, and our nephews. Now,
We must bethink us how to plant our ingines
For th' other pair, Sabinus and Arruntius,
And Gallus too; how'er he flatter us,
His heart we know.

Sej. Give it some respite, Caesar.
Time shall mature, and bring to perfect crown,
What we, with so good vultures, have begun:
Sabinus shall be next.

Tib. Rather Arruntius. 10
Sej. By any means, preserve him. His frank tongue
Being lent the reins, would take away all thought
Of malice, in your course against the rest:
We must keep him to walk with.

Tib. Dearest head,
To thy most fortunate design I yield it. 16
Sej. Sir, I have been so long train'd up in grace,
First with your father, great Augustus; since,
With your most happy bounties so familiar;
As I so sooner would commit my hopes
Or wishes to the gods, than to your ears. 20
Nor have I ever yet been covetous
Of over-bright and dazzling honours; rather
To watch and travail in great Caesar's safety,
With the most common soldier.

Tib. 'Tis confest.
Sej. The only gain, and which I count most fair
Of all my fortunes, is, that mighty Caesar
Has thought me worthy his alliance. Hence Begin my hopes.

Tib. Umph!
Sej. I have heard, Augustus,
In the bestowing of his daughter, thought

1 A room in the Palace. 2Suspicion of conspiracy.

But even of gentlemen of Rome: if so— 30
I know not how to hope so great a favour—
But if a husband should be sought for Livia,
And I be had in mind, as Caesar's friend,
I would but use the glory of the kindred.
It should not make me slothful, or less caring
For Caesar's state; it were enough to me
It did confirm, and strengthen my weak house,
Against the now-unequal opposition
Of Agrippina; and for dear regard
Unto my children, this I wish: myself
Have no ambition farther than to end
My days in service of so dear a master.

Tib. We cannot but command thy piety,
Most joy'd Sejanus, in acknowledging Those bounties; which we, faintly, such remember.—

But to thy suit, The rest of mortal men,
In all their drifts and counsels, pursue profit;
Princes alone are of a different sort,
Directing their main actions still to fame:
We therefore will take time to think and answer.
For Livia, she can best, herself, resolve
If she will marry, after Drusus, or Continue in the family; besides,
She hath a mother, and a grandam yet,
Whose nearer counsels she may guide her by:
But I will simply deal, That enmity
Thou fear'st in Agrippina, would burn more,
If Livia's marriage should, as 't were in parts,
Divide th' imperial house; an emulation Between the women might break forth; and discord
Ruin the sons and nephews on both hands.
What if it cause some present difference?
Thou art not safe, Sejanus, if thou prove 3 it.
Canst thou believe, that Livia, first the wife
To Caius Caesar, then to Drusus, now
Will be contented to grow old with thee,
Born but a private gentleman of Rome,
And raise thee with her loss, if not her shame?
Or say that I should wish it, canst thou think
The senate, or the people (who have seen
Her brother, father, and our ancestors
In highest place of empire) will endure it?
The state thou hold'st already, is in talk;
Men murmur at thy greatness; and the nobles
Stick not, in public, to upbraud thy climbing
Above our father's favours, or thy scale:
And dare accuse me, from their hate to thee.
Be wise, dear friend. We would not hide these things,
For friendship's dear respect; nor will we stand
Adverse to thine, or Livia's designs.
What we have purpos'd to thee, in our thought,
And what now degrees of love to bind thee,
And make thee equal to us, for the present
We will forbear to speak. Only, thus much Believe, our lov'd Sejanus, we not know
That height in blood or honour, which thy virtue
And mind to us, may not aspire with merit.
And this we 'll publish on all watch'd occasion
The senate or the people shall present.

3 Test, attempt.
Sejanus, HIS FALL

Sej. I am restor'd, and to my sense again; Which I had lost in this so blinding suit. Caesar hath taught me better to refuse, Than I knew how to ask. How pleaseth Caesar To embrace my late advice for leaving Rome? Tib. We are resolv'd.

Sej. Here are some motives more. Which I have thought on since, may more confirm them.

Tib. Careful Sejanus! we will straight peruse them: Go forward in our main design, and prosper.

Sej. If those but take, I shall. Dull, heavy Caesar! Wouldst thou tell me, thy favours were made crimes, And that my fortunes were esteem'd thy faults, That thou for me wert hated, and not think I would with winged haste prevent that change, When thou might'st win all to thyself again, By forfeiture of me? Did those fond words Fly swifter from thy lips than this my brain, This sparkling forge, created me an armour To encounter chance and thee? Well, read my charms, And may they lay that hold upon thy senses, As thou hast smit up hemlock, or ta'en down The juice of poppy and of mandrakes. Sleep, Voluptuous Caesar, and security Seize on thy stupid powers, and leave them dead To public cares; awake but to thy lusts, The strength of which makes thy libidinous soul Ith to leave Rome! and I have thrust it on; With blaming of the city business, The multitude of suits, the confluence Of suitors; then their importunities, The manifold distractions he must suffer, Besides ill-rumours, envies, and reproaches, All which a quiet and retired life, Larded with ease and pleasure, did avoid; And yet for any weighty and great affair, The fittest place to give the soundest counsels. By this I shall remove him both from thought And knowledge of his own most dear affairs; Draw all dispatches through my private hands; Know his designments, and pursue mine own; Make mine own strengths by giving suits and places. Conferring dignities and offices; And those that hate me now, wanting access To him, will make their envy none, or less: For when they see me arbiter of all, They must observe; or else with Caesar fall.

[Enter III.]

[Enter TibERIUS.

Tib. To marry Livia! will no less, Sejanus, Content thy aims? No lower object? Well! Thou know'st how thou art wrought into our trust; Woven in our design; and think'st we must

Now use thee, whatso'er thy projects are:
'Tis true. But yet with caution and fit care;
And, now we better think — Who's there within?

[Enter an Officer.]

Off. Caesar!

Tib. [Aside.] To leave our journey off, were sin
'Gainst our decreed delights; and would appear Doubt; or, what less becomes a prince, low fear.

Yet doubt hath law, and fears have their excuse,
Where princes' states plead necessary use;
As ours doth now: more in Sejanus' pride,
Than all fell Agrippina's hates beside.
These are the dreadful enemies, we raise
With favours, and make dangerous with praise;
The injur'd by us may have will alike,
But 't is the favourite hath the power to strike;
And fury ever boils more high and strong,
Heat with ambition, than revenge of wrong.
'T is then a part of supreme skill, to grace
No man too much; but hold a certain space Between th' ascender's rise and thine own flat, Lest, when all rounds be reach'd, his aim be that.

'T is thought. — Is Macro in the palace? see:
If not, do seek him, to come to us. [Exit Officer.]

He Must be the organ we must work by now;
Though none less apt for trust: need doth allow
What choice would not. I have heard that aconite,
Being timely taken, hath a healing might
Against the scorpion's stroke; the proof we'll give:
That, while two poisons wrestle, we may live.
He hath a spirit too working to be us'd
But to th' encounter of his like; excus'd
Are wiser sovereigns then, that raise one ill
Against another, and both safely kill:
The prince that feeds great natures, they will sway him;
Who nouriseth a lion, must obey him.—

[Re-enter Officer with] MACRO.

Macro, we sent for you.

Mac. I heard so, Caesar.

Tib. Leave us a while. [Exit Officer.]

When you shall know, good Macro,
The causes of our sending, and the ends,
You will then hearken nearer; and be pleas'd
You stand so high both in our choice and trust.

Mac. The humblest place in Caesar's choice or trust,
May make glad Macro proud; without ambition,
Save to do Caesar service.

Tib. Leave your courtings.

We are in purpose, Macro, to depart
The city for a time, and see Campania;
Not for our pleasures, but to dedicate

1 Another room in the same.

2 Heated.

3 Level.
A pair of temples, one to Jupiter
At Capua; th' other at Nola, to Augustus:
In which great work, perhaps our stay will be Beyond our will produc'd. Now, since we are Not ignorant what danger may be born
Out of our shortest absence, in a state
So subject unto envy, and embroil'd
With hate and faction; we have thought on these,

Amongst a field of Romans, worthiest Macro,
To be our eye and ear: to keep strict watch
On Agrippina, Nero, Drusus; ay,
And on Sejanus: not that we distrust
His loyalty, or do repent one grace,
Of all that heap we have conferr'd on him;
For that were to disparage our election,
And call that judgment now in doubt, which then

Seem'd as unquestion'd as an oracle—
But greatness hath his cankers. Worms and moths

Breed out of too fit matter, in the things
Which after they consume, transferring quite
The substance of their makers inti themselves.
Macro is sharp, and apprehends: besides, 71
I know him subtle, close, wise, and well read
In man, and his large nature; he hath studied Affections, passions, knows their springs, their ends,
Which way, and whether they will work: 'tis proof
Enough of his great merit that we trust him.
Then to a point (because our conference Cannot be long without suspicion):
Here, Macro, we assign thee both to spy,
Inform, and chastise; think, and use thy means,
Thy ministers, what, where, on whom thou wilt;

Explore, plot, practise: all thou dost in this Shall be, as if the senate or the laws
Had giv'n it privilege, and thou thence styl'd
The saviour both of Caesar and of Rome. 85
We will not take thy answer but in act:
Whereeto, as thou proceed'st, we hope to hear
By trusted messengers. If 't be inquir'd
Wherefore we call'd you, say you have in charge
To see our chariots ready, and our horse. 90
Be still our lov'd and, shortly, honour'd Macro.

Mac. I will not ask why Caesar bids do this;
But joy, that he bids me. It is the bliss
Of courts to be employ'd, no matter how;
A prince's power makes all his actions virtue. 95
We, whom he works by, are dumb instruments,
To do, but not inquire: his great intents
Are to be serv'd, not search'd. Yet, as that bow
Is most in hand whose owner best doth know 100
'Tis to affect his aims; so let that statesman hope
Most use, most price, can hit his prince's scope. 2
Nor must he look at what or whom to strike,
But loose at all; each mark must be alike.
Were it to plot against the fame, the life

Of one with whom I twinn'd; remove a wife 105
From my warm side, as lov'd as is the air;
Practise away each parent; draw mine heir
In compass, 3 though but one; work all my kin.
To Swift perdition; leave no untrain'd engine
For friendship, or for innocence; nay, make 110
The gods all guilty; I would undertake
This, being impos'd me, both with gain and ease:
The way to rise is to obey and please.
He that will thrive in state, he must neglect 114
The trodden paths that truth and right respect;
And prove new, wilder ways: for virtue there
Is not that narrow thing she is elsewhere.
Men's fortune there is virtue; reason their will;
Their licence, law; and their observance, skill.
Occasion is their foil; conscience, their stain; 120
Profit their lustre; and what else is, vain.
If then it be the lust of Caesar's power
'Tis to bare Sejanus up, and in an hour
Overturn him, tumbling, down from height of all.
We are his ready engine: and his fall 125
May be our rise. It is no unco'ch thing
To see fresh buildings from old ruins spring.

[Exit.]

CHORUS—of Musicians.

ACT IV

[Scene I.]

[Enter] GALLUS, AGRIPPINA.

Gal. You must have patience, royal Agrippina.

Agr. I must have vengeance first; and that were nectar
Unto my famish'd spirits. O, my fortune,
Let it be sudden thou prepar'st against me;
Strike all my powers of understanding blind, 5
And ignorant of destiny to come!
Let me not fear, that cannot hope.

Gal. Dear princess.

These tyrannies on yourself are worse than Caesar's.

Agr. Is this the happiness of being born great?
Still to be aim'd at? still to be suspected? 10
To live the subject of all jealousies?
At least the colour made, if not the ground
To every painted danger? Who would not Choose once to fall, than thus to hang for ever?

Gal. You might be safe if you would —

Agr. — What, my Gallus! 15
Be lewd Sejanus' trumpet? or the bawd
To Caesar's lusts, he now is gone to practise?
Not these are safe, where nothing is. Yourself,
While thus you stand but by me, are not safe.
Was Silius safe? or the good Sosia safe? 20
Or was my niece, dear Claudia Pulchra, safe, or innocent Furnius? they that latest have
(By being made guilty) added reputation

1 Effect.  2 Aim.  3 Shoot.

1 Entrap mine heir.
2 Unknown.
3 An apartment in Agrippina's house.
4 Pretext, with a pun.
To Afes's eloquence? O, foolish friends, Could not so fresh example warn your loves, 35 But you must buy my favours with that loss Unto yourselves; and when you might perceive That Caesar's cause of raging must forsake him, Before his will! Away, good Gallus, leave me. Here to be seen, is danger; to speak, treason: 50 To do me least observance, is call'd faction. You are unhappy in me, and I in all. Where are my sons Nero and Drusus? We Are they be shot at; let us fall apart; 55 In our ruins sepulchre our friends. Or shall we do some action like offence, 1 To mock their studies that would make us faulty, And frustrate practice by preventing it? The danger's like: for what they can contrive, They will make good. No innocence is safe 40 When power contests: nor can they trespass more. Whose only being was all crime before. 55

[Enter Nero, Drusus, and Caligola.]

Ner. You hear Sejanus is come back from Caesar?
Gal. No. How? disgrac'd?
Dru. More grac'd now than ever.
Gal. By what mischance?
Cal. A fortune like enough
Ner. Is it too bad.
Dru. But turn'd too good to both.
Gal. What was 't?
Ner. Tiburinus sitting at his meat,
In a farm-house they call Spelunca, sited
By the sea-side, among the Fundane hills,
Within a natural cave; part of the grot,
About the entry, fell, and overwhelm'd
Some of the waiters; others ran away:
Only Sejanus with his knees, hands, face, face,
O'erhanging Caesar, did oppose himself
To the remaining ruins, and was found
In that so labouring posture by the soldiers
That came to succour him. With which adventure,
He hath so fix'd himself in Caesar's trust,
As thunder cannot move him, and is come
With all the height of Caesar's praise to Rome.
Agr. And power to turn those ruins all on us,
And bury whole posterities beneath them.
Nero, and Drusus, and Caligula,
Your places are the next, and therefore most
In their offence. Think on your birth and blood, Awake your spirits, meet their violence;
'Tis princely when a tyrant doth oppose,
And is a fortune sent to exercise
Your virtue, as the wind doth try strong trees,
Who by vexation grow more sound and firm.
After your father's fall, and uncle's fate,
What can you hope, but all the change of stroke
That force or sleight can give? Then stand upright;

And though you do not act, yet suffer nobly: 75
Be worthy of my womb, and take strong cheer;
What we do know will come, we should not fear.

[Scene II.]

[Enter] Macro.

Mac. Return'd so soon! Renew'd in trust
And grace!
Is Caesar then so weak, or hath the place
But wrought this alteration with the air;
And he, on next remove, will all repair?
Marco, thou art engag'd: and what before
Was public, now must be thy private more.
The weal of Caesar, fitness did imply;
But thine own fate confers necessity
On thy employment; and the thoughts borne unto ourselves, move swiftest still, and dearest.
If he recover, thou art lost; yea, all
The weight of preparation to his fall
Will turn on thee, and crush thee: therefore strike
Before he settle, to prevent the like
Upon thyself. He doth his vantage know, 95
That makes it home, and gives the foremost blow.

[Scene III.]

[Enter Latiaris, Rufus, and Opsius.]

Lat. It is a service great Sejanus will See well requited, and accept of nobly.
Here place yourselves between the roof and ceiling:
And when I bring him to his words of danger,
Reveal yourselves, and take him.
Ruf. Is he come?
Lat. I'll now go fetch him.
[Exit.]
Ops. With good speed. — I long
To merit from the state in such an action.
Ruf. I hope it will obtain the consulship
For one of us.
Ops. We cannot think of less,
To bring in one so dangerous as Sejanus.
Lat. He was a follower of Germanicus,
And still is an observer of his wife
And children, though they be declin'd in grace;
A daily visitant, keeps them company
In private and in public, and is noted
To be the only client of the house:
Pray Jove, he will be free to Latiaris.
Ops. He's all'd to him, and doth trust him well.
Ruf. And he'll requite his trust!
Ops. To do an office
So grateful to the state, I know no man
But would strain nearer bands than kindred —
Ruf. List! I hear them come.
Ops. Shift to our holes with silence.
[They retire.]
Lat. It is a noble constancy you show
To this afflicted house; that not like others,
The friends of season, you do follow fortune, And, in the winter of their fate, forsake
The place whose glories warm'd you. You are just,
And worthy such a princely patron's love,
As was the world's-renown'd Germanicus, Whose ample merit when I call to thought, And see his wife and issue objects made
To so much envy, jealousy, and hate;
It makes me ready to accuse the gods Of negligence, as men of tyranny.
Sab. They must be patient, so must we.
Lat. What will become of us or of the times,
When, to be high or noble, are made crimes,
When land and treasure are most dangerous pursuits?
Sab. Nay, when our table, yea our bed, assaults
Our peace and safety? When our writings are By any envious instruments, that dare Apply them to the guilty, made to speak What they will have to fit their tyrannous wreak?
When ignorance is scarcely innocence; And knowledge made a capital offence? When not so much, but the bare empty shade Of liberty, is reft1 us; and we made The prey to greedy vultures and vile spies, That first transfix us with their murdering eyes?
Lat. Methinks the genius of the Roman race Should not so extinct, but that bright flame Of liberty might be reviv'd again, (Which no good man but with his life should lose)
And we not sit like spent and patient fools, Still puffing in the dark at one poor coal, Held on by hope, till the last spark is out. The cause is public, and the honour, name, The immortality of every soul.
That is not bastard or a slave in Rome, Therein concern'd: whereeto, if men would change
The weari'd arm, and for the weighty shield So long sustain'd, employ the facile sword, We might have soon assurance of our vows. This ass's fortitude doth fire us all: It must be active valour must redeem Our loss, or none. The rock and our hard steel Should meet t' enforce those glorious fires again,
Whose splendour cheer'd the world, and heat gave life No less than doth the sun's.
Sab. T were better stay
In lasting darkness, and despair of day. No ill should force the subject undertake Against the sovereign, more than hell should make The gods do wrong. A good man should and must [Re-enter] Latarius, Sabinus.

Sit rather down with less than rise unjust;
Though, when the Romans first did yield themselves To one man's power, they did not mean their lives,
Their fortunes, and their liberties should be His absolute spoil, as purchas'd by the sword.
Lat. Why, we are worse, if to be slaves, and bend To Caesar's slave, be such, the proud Scajmas! He that is all, does all, gives Caesar leave To hide his ulcerous and anointed face, With his bald crown at Rhodes, while he here stalks
Upon the heads of Romans and their princes, Familiarly to empire.
Sab. Now you touch A point indeed, wherein he shows his art, As well as power.
Lat. And villany in both, Do you observe where Livius lodges? How Drusus came dead? What men have been cut off? Sab. Yes, those are things remov'd. I nearer lookt Into his later practice, where he stands Declar'd a master in his mystery.
First, ere Tiberius went, he wrought his fear To think that Agrippina sought his death. Then put those doubts in her; sent her oft word,
Under the show of friendship, to beware Of Caesar, for he laid to poison her: Drave them to frowns, to mutual jealousies, Which, now, in visible hatred are burst out. Since, he hath had his hired instruments To work on Nero, and to have him up; To tell him Caesar's old, that all the people, Yea, all the army have their eyes on him; That both do long to have him undertake Something of worth, to give the world a hope; Bids him to court their grace: the easy youth Perhaps gives ear, which straight he writes to Caesar;
And with this comment: "See ye dangerous boy; Note but the practice of the mother, there; She's trying him for purposes at hand, With men of sword." Here's Caesar put in fright 1Gainst son and mother. Yet he leaves not thus, The second brother, Drusus, a fierce nature, And fitter for his snares, because ambitions And full of envy; him he clasps and hugs, Poisons with praise, tells him what hearts he wears,
How bright he stands in popular expectation; That Rome doth suffer with him in the wrong His mother does him, by preferring Nero: Thus sets he them asunder, each 'gainst other, Projects the course that serves him to condemn, Keeps in opinion of a friend to all, And all drives on to ruin.
Lat. Caesar sleeps, And nods at this.
Sab. Would he might ever sleep, Bogg'd in his filthy lusts!

[Opium and Rufus rush in.]
Treason to Caesar! Lay hands upon the traitor, Latiaris, or take the name thyself.

Most I am for Caesar.

Spies of this head, so white, so full of years.

Well, my most reverence monsters, you may live to see yourself thus snar’d.

Away with him!

Halo him away.

To be a spy for traitors, is honourable vigilance.

You do well, my most officious instruments of state, Men of all uses. Drag me hence, away.

The year is well begun, and I fall fit To be an off’ring to Sejanus. Go!

Cover him with his garments, hide his face.

It shall not need. Forbear your rude assault.

The fault’s not shameful, villainy makes a fault.

[Scene IV.]

Mac. Sir, but observe how thick your dangers meet.

In his clear drifts! Your mother and your brothers,

Now cited to the senate; their friend Gallus,

Feasted to-day by Caesar, since committed!

Sabinus here we met, hurried to fetters:

The senators all struck with fear and silence,

Save those whose hopes depend not on good means,

But force their private prey from public spoil.

And you must know, if here you stay, your state

Is sure to be the subject of his hate,

As now the object.

Cal. What would you advise me?

Mac. To go for Caesar presently; and there

Give up yourself entirely to your uncle.

Tell Caesar (since your mother is accus’d

To fly for succours to Augustus’ statute,

And to the army, with your brethren) you

Have rather chose to place your aids in him

Than live suspected; or in hourly fear

To be thrust out, by bold Sejanus’ plots:

Which you shall confidently urge to be

Most full of peril to the state, and Caesar,

As being laid to his peculiar ends,

And not to be let run with common safety.

All which, upon the second, I’ll make plain,

So both shall love and trust with Caesar gain.

Away then, let’s prepare us for our journey.

[Scene V.]

[Enter] Arruntius.

Arr. Still dost thou suffer, heaven! Will no flame,

1 The street before Agrippina’s house.

2 Plans, purposes.

3 Another part of the street.

No heat of sin, make thy just wrath to boil

In thy distemp’red bosom, and o’erflow

The pitchy blazes of impiety,

Kindled beneath thy throne! Still canst thou sleep,

Patient, while vice doth make an antic face

At thy dread power, and blow dust and smoke

Into thy nostrils! Jove, will nothing wake thee?

Must vile Sejanus pull thee by the beard,

Ere thou wilt open thy black-lidded eye,

And look him dead? Well! I snore on, dreaming gods;

And let this last of that proud giant-race

Heave mountain upon mountain against your state.

Be good unto me, Fortune and you powers,

Whom I, expostulating, have profan’d;

I see (what’s equal with a prodigy)

A great, a noble Roman, and an honest,

Live an old man! —

[Enter Lepidus.]

O Marcus Lepidus,

When is our turn to bleed? Thyself and I,

Without our boast, are a’most all the few

Left to be honest in these impious times.

Lep. What we are left to be, we will be, Lucius;

Though tyranny did stare as wide as death,

To fright us from it.

Arr. ‘T hath so on Sabinus.

Lep. I saw him now drawn from the Gemonies,

And what increas’d the direness of the fact,

His faithful dog, upbraiding all us Romans,

Never forsook the corpse, but, seeing it thrown

Into the stream, leap’d in, and drown’d it with it.

Arr. O act, to be envi’d him of us men! We are the next the hook lays hold on, Marcus:

What are thy arts, good patriot, teach them me,

That have preserv’d thy hairs to this white dye,

And kept so reverend and so dear a head

Safe on his comely shoulders?

Lep. Arts, Arruntius! None, but the plain and passive fortitude,

To suffer and be silent; never stretch

These arms against the torrent; live at home,

With my own thoughts and innocence about me,

Not tempting the wolves’ jaws: these are my arts.

Arr. I would begin to study ’em, if I thought

They would secure me. May I pray to Jove

In secret and be safe? I say, or aloud,

With open wishes, so I do not mention

Tiberius or Sejanus? Yes, I must.

If I speak out, ‘Tis hard, that. May I think,

And not be rack’d? What danger is’t to dream,

Talk in one’s sleep, or cough? Who knows the law?

May I shake my head without a comment? Say

It rains, or it holds up, and not be thrown

Upon the Gemonies? These now are things,

Whereon men’s fortune, yea, their fate depends.

[After impious times in F.

Steps on the Aventine Hill, down which the bodies of executed criminals were thrown into the Tiber.

1 20 27
Nothing hath privilege 'gainst the violent ear.
No place, no day, no hour, we see, is free,
(Not our religious and most sacred times)
From some one kind of cruelty: all matter,
Nay, all occasion pleaseth. Madmen's rage,
The idleness of drunkards, women's nothing;
Jester's simplicity, all, is all good
That can be catched at. Nor is now th' event
Of any person, or for any crime,
To be expected; for 'tis always one:
Death, with some little difference of place.
Or time — What's this? Prince Nero, guarded!

[Enter] Laco and Nero [with guards.]

Loc. On, lictors, keep your way. My lords, forbear.

On pain of Caesar's wrath, no man attempt Speech with the prisoner.

Ner. Noble friends, be safe;
To lose yourselves for words, were as vain hazard,
As unto me small comfort. Fare you well.
Would all Rome's suff'rin's in my fate did dwell!

Loc. Lictors, away.

Lep. Where goes he, Laco?

Loc. Sir, he's banished into Pontia by the senate.

Arr. Do I see, and hear, and feel? May I trust sense,
Or doth my phant'sie form it?

Lep. Where's his brother?

Loc. Drusus is prisoner in the palace.

Arr. Ha! I smell it now: 'tis rank. Where's Agrippina?

Loc. The princess is confin'd to Pandataria.

Arr. Bolts, Vulcan; bolts for Jove! Phoebus, thy bow;
Stern Mars, thy sword; and, blue-ey'd Maid, thy spear;
Thy club, Alcides: all the armoury
Of heaven is too little! — Ha! to guard
The gods, I meant. Fine, rare dispatch! This work was swift,
Was swiftly borne! Confin'd, imprison'd, banish'd?

Most tripartite! The cause, sir?

Loc. Treason.

Arr. The complement of all accusings! That will hit, when all else fails.

Lep. This turn is strange! But yesterday the people would not hear,
Far less objected, but cri'd Caesar's letters
Were false and forg'd; that all these plots were malefaces;
And that the ruin of the prince's house
Was practis't against his knowledge. Where are now
Their voices, now that they behold his heirs
Lock'd up, disgrac'd, led into exile?

Arr. Hush'd, drown'd in their bellys. Wild Sejanus' breath
Hath, like a whirlwind, scatter'd that poor dust,

With his rude blast. — We'll talk no treason,
sir,

Turns to Laco, and the rest.

If that be it you stand for. Fare you well.
We have no need of horse-leeches. Good spy,
Now you are sp'd, be gone.

[Execut Laco, Nero, and Guards.]

Lep. I fear you wrong him:
He has the voice to be an honest Roman.

Arr. And trusted to this office! Lepidus,
I'd sooner trust Greek Simon than a man
Our state employs. He's gone: and being gone,
I dare tell you, whom I dare better trust:
That our night-ey'd Tiberius doth not see
His minion's drifts; or, if he do, he's not
So arrang'd subtle, as we fools do take him;
To breed a mongrel up, in his own house,
With his own blood, and, if the good gods please,
At his own throat flesh him to a leap.

I do not beg it, heav'n; but if the fates
Grant it these eyes, they must not wink.

Lep. They must
Not see it, Lucius. Who should let 2 rem?

Lep. Zeal, and dutty; with the thought he is our prince.

Arr. He is our monster: forfeited to vice
So far, as no rack'd virtue can redeem him.

His loathed person fooler than all crim's:
An emp'ror only in his lusts. Retir'd,
From all regard of his own fame, or Rome's,
Into an obscure island, where he lives
Acting his tragedies with a comic face,
Amidst his rout of Chaldees: spending hours,
Days, weeks, and months, in the unkind abuse
Of grave astrology, to the bane of men,
Casting the scope of men's nativities,
And having found aught worthy in their fortune,

Kill, or precipitate them in the sea,
And boast he can mock fate. Nay, muse not:

Are far from ends of evil, scarce degrees.
He hath his slaughter-house at Caprese;
Where he doth study murder as an art;
And they are dearest in his grace that can Devises the deepest tortures. Thither, too,
He hath his boys, and beauteous girls ta'en up
Out of our noblest houses, the best form'd,
Best nurtur'd, and most modest; what's their good,
Serves to provoke his bad. Some are allur'd,
Some threatned; others, by their friends detain'd,
Are ravish'd hence, like captives, and, in sight
Of their most grieved parents, dealt away
Unto his spintires, 4 sellaries, & slaves
Masters of strange and new commented lusts,
For which wise nature hath left not a name.
To this (what most strikes us, and bleeding Rome)

He is, with all his craft, become the ward
To his own vassal, a stale catamite.

Whom he, upon our low and suffering necks,

2 Hinders.
3 Unnaturals.
4 Male prostitutes.
5 Laws persons.
Hath raised from excrement to side the gods,
And have his proper sacrifice in Rome:
Which Jove beholds, and yet will sooner rive
A senseless oak with thunder than his trunk!

[Re-enter LACO, POMPLENIUS, MINUTIUS.]

LACO. These letters make men doubtful what t' expect.
Whether his coming, or his death.
POM. Troth, both:
And which comes soonest, thank the gods for.
ARR. (Aside.) Their talk is Caesar; I would hear all voices.

[ARRUNT, and LEPIUS stand aside.]

MIN. One day, he's well; and will return to Rome;
The next day, sick; and knows not when to hope it.

LAC. True; and to-day, one of Sejanus' friends
Honour'd by special writ; and on the morrow
Another punish'd—
POM. By more special writ.
MIN. This man receives his praises of Sejanus,
A second but slight mention, a third none,
A fourth rebukes: and thus he leaves the senate
Divided and suspended, all uncertain.
LAC. These forked tricks, I understand 'em not:
Would he would tell us whom he loves or hates,
That we might follow, without fear or doubt.
ARR. (Aside.) Good Heliotrope! Is this your honest man?
Let him be yours so still; he is my knave.
POM. I cannot tell. Sejanus still goes on,
And mount's, we see; new statues are advance'd; fresh leaves of titles, large inscriptions read,
His fortunes sworn by, himself new gone out Caesar's colleague in the fifth consulship;
More altars smoke to him than all the gods:
What would be more? [choke him,]
ARR. (Aside.) That the dear smoke would
That would I more.

LEPIUS. Peace, good Arruntius.] 2

LAT. But there are letters come, they say, ev'n now
Which do forbid that last.
MIN. Do you hear so?

LAC. By Castor that's the worst.
ARR. (Aside.) By Pollux, best.
MIN. I did not like the sign, when Regulus,
Whom all we know no friend unto Sejanus,
Did, by Tiberius' so precise command,
Succeed a fellow in the consulship:
It boded somewhat.
POM. Not a mote. His partner,
Fuleinius Trio, is his own, and sure. —
Here comes Terentius.

[Enter TERENTIUS]

He can give us more.

[They whisper with TERENTIUS.]

Lep. I'll ne'er believe but Caesar hath some scent

Of bold Sejanus' footing. These cross points
Of varying letters, and opposing consuls,
Mingling his honours and his punishments,
Feigning now ill, now well, raising Sejanus,
And then depressing him, as now of late
In all reports we have it, cannot be Empty of practice: 't is Tiberius' art,
For, having found his favourite grown too great,
And with his greatness strong; that all the soldiers
Are, with their leaders, made at his devotion;
That almost all the senate are his creatures,
Or hold on them their main dependencies,
Either for benefit, or hope, or fear;
And that himself hath lost much of his own,
By parting unto him; and, by th' increase
Of his rank lusts and rages, quite disarm'd
 Himself of love, or other public means
To dare an open contestation;
His subtlety hath chose this doubling line,
To hold him even in: not so to fear him,
As wholly put him out, and yet give check
Unto his farther boldness. In mean time,
By his employments, makes him odious
Unto the staggering Cfout, whose aid, in fine,
I He hopes to use, as sure, who, when they sway,
Bear down, o'erturn all objects in their way. 24
ARR. You may be a Lucius, Lepidus: yet I
See no such cause, but that a political tyrant,
Who can so well disguise it, should have ta'en
A nearer way: feign'd honest, and come home
To cut his throat, by law.
LEPIUS. Ay, but his fear
Would 'er be mask'd, all his vices were:
POM. His lordship then is still in grace?

TER. Assure you,

Never in more, either of grace or power.

POM. The gods are wise and just.
ARR. (Aside.) They thes they are,
To suffer thee belie 'em.

TER. I have here

His last and present letters, where he writes him,
"The partner of his cares," and "his Sejanus."—

LAC. But is that true, if 't is prohibited
To sacrifice unto him?

TER. Some such thing
Caesar makes scruple of, but forbids it not;
No more than to himself: says he could wish
It were forborne to all.

LAC. Is it no other?

TER. No other, on my trust. For your more surety,
Here is that letter too.

ARR. (Aside.) How easily
Do wretched men believe what they would have!

LEPIUS. Looks this like plot?

LEPIUS. (Aside.) Noble Arruntius, stay.

LAC. He names him here without his titles.

LEPIUS. (Aside.) Note!

ARR. (Aside.) Yes, and come off your notable fool. I will.

LAC. No other than Sejanus.

POM. That's but haste
In him that writes: here he gives large amends.
Mar. And with his own hand written?

Pom. Yes.

Lac. Indeed?

Ter. Believe it, gentlemen, Sejanus' breast

Never receiv'd more full contentments in,

Than at this present.

Pom. Takes he well th' escape

Of young Caligula, with Macro?

Ter. Faith,

At the first air it somewhat troubled him.

Lep. (Aside.) Observe you?

Arr. (Aside.) Nothing; riddles. Till I see

Sejanus struck, no sound thereof strikes me.

[Exeunt ARRUNTUS and LEPIDUS.]

Pom. I like it not. I must he'd not attempt

Somewhat against him in the consulsip,

Seeing the people 'gin to favour him.

Ter. He doth repent it now; but he 's employ'd.

Pagonianus after him: and he holds

That correspondence there, with all that are

Near about Caesar, as no thought can pass

Without his knowledge, thence, in act to front him.

Pom. I gratulate the news.

Lac. But how comes Macro

So in trust and favour with Caligula?

Pom. O, sir, he has a wife; and the young prince

An appetite: he can look up and spy

Flies in the roof, when there are fleas i' bed;

And hath a learned nose t' assure his sleeps.

Who to be favour'd of the rising sun,

Would not lend little of his waning moon?

It is the saft' ambition, Noble Terentius!

Ter. The night grows fast upon us. At your service.

CHORUS—of Musicians. [Exeunt.]

ACT V

[Scene I.]

[Enter] SEJANUS.

Sej. Swell, swell, my joys; and faint not to declare Yourself as ample as your causes are.

I did not live till now: this my first hour,

Wherein I see my thoughts reach'd by my power.

But this, and gripe my wishes. Great and high,

The world knows only two, that's Rome and I.

My roof receives me not; 'tis air I tread;

And, at each step, I feel my advanced head

Knock out a star in heaven! Rear'd to this height,

All my desires seem modest, poor, and slight,

That did before sound impudent; 'tis place,

Not blood, discern the noble and the base.

Is there not something more than to be Caesar?

Must we rest there? It ricks t' have come so far,

To be so near a stay. Caligula.

Would thou stood st'st stiff, and many in our way!

Winds lose their strength, when they do empty fly,

Unmet of woods or buildings; great fires die,

That want their matter to withstand them: so,

It is our grief, and will be our loss, to know

Our power shall want oppositions; unless

The gods, by mixing in the cause, would bless

Our fortune with their conquest. That were worth

Sejanus' strife, dust fate but bring it forth.

[Enter] TERENTIUS.

Ter. Safety to great Sejanus!

Sej. Now, Terentius?

Ter. Hears not my lord the wonder?

Sej. Speak it; no.

Ter. I meet it violent in the people's mouths,

Who run in routs to Pompey's theatre,

To view your statue: which, they say, sends forth

A smoke, as from a furnace, black and dreadful.

Sej. Some traitor hath put fire in: you, go see,

And let the lead be taken off, to look

What 'tis. [Exit TERENTIUS.] Some slave hath practis'd an imposture

To stir the people.—How now! Why return you?

[Re-enter TERENTIUS, with] SATRIUS and NATTA.

Sat. The head, my lord, already is ta'en off,

I saw it; and, at opening, there leapt out

A great and monstrous serpent.

Sej. Monstrous! Why? Had it a beard, and horns? no heart? a tongue

Forke'd as flatter'y? Look'd it of the hue

To such as live in great men's bosoms? Was 40

The spirit of it Macro's?

Nat. May it please

The most divine Sejanus, in my days,

(And by his sacred fortune, I affirm it,) I have not seen a more extended, grown, Foul, spotted, venomous, ugly——

Sej. O, the fates! 43

What a wild muster 's here of attributes, T' express a worm, a snake!

Ter. But how that should Come there, my lord?

Sej. What, and you too, Terentius? I think you mean to make 't a prodigy In your reporting.

Ter. Can the wise Sejanus

Think heav'n hath meant it less?

Sej. O, superstition! Why, then the falling of our bed, that brake

This morning, burd'ned with the populous weight

Of our expecting clients, to salute us; Or running of the cat betwixt our legs, As we set forth unto the Capitol,

Were prodigies.

Ter. I think them ominous:

And would they not happ'ned! As, to-day,
The fate of some your servants: who declining
Their way, not able, for the throng, to follow, Slip down the Gemonies, and brake their necks!
Besides, in taking your last anger,
No prosperous bird appear'd; but croaking ravens
Flag'd up and down, and from the sacrifice
Flew to the prison, where they sat all night.
Beating the air with their obstreperous beaks!
I dare not counsel, but I could entreat,
That great Sejanus would attempt the gods
One more with sacrifice.

Sej.,
What excellent fools
Religion makes of men! Believes Terentius,
If these were dangers, as I shame to think
them,
The gods could change the certain course of fate?
Or, if they could they would, now in a moment, for a beevie's fat, or less, be brib'd t' invert Those long decrees? Then think the gods, like flies.

Are to be taken with the stream of flesh,
Or blood, diffus'd about their altars: think
Their power as cheap as I esteem it small.
Of all the throng that fill th' Olympian hall,
And, without pity, lade poor Atlas' back,
I know not that one deify, but Fortune,
To whom I would throw up, in begging smoke,
One grain of incense; or whose ear I'd buy
With thus much oil. Her I indeed adore,
And keep her grateful image in my house,
Sometimes belonging to a Roman king,
But now call'd mine, as by the better style:
To her I care not, if, for satisfying
Your scrupulous phant'sies, I go offer. Bid
Our priest prepare us honey, milk, and poppy,
His muscular odours, and night-vestments: say
Our rites are instant; which perform'd, you'll see
How vain, and worthy laughter, your fears be,

[Scene II.]

[Enter] Cotta and Pomponius.

Cot. Pomponius, whither in such speed?

Pom. To give my lord Sejanus notice —

Cot. Is he come?

Pom. Ent'red but now

The house of Regulus.

Cot. The opposite consul! Some half hour since.

Cot. And by night too! Stay, sir; I'll bear you company.

Pom. Along then. [Exeunt.]

[Scene III.]

[Enter] Macro, Regulus, [and Attendant.]

Mac. 'Tis Caesar's will to have a frequent senate;

And therefore must your edict lay deep mulct
On such as shall be absent.

Reg. So it doth.

Bear it my fellow consul to adscibe.4

Mac. And tell him it early must be proclaim'd:

The place Apollo's temple. [Exit Attendant.

Reg. That's rememb'red.

Mac. And at what hour?

Reg. Six.

Mac. You do forget
To send one for the provost of the watch.

Reg. I have not: here he comes.

[Enter] Laco.

Mac. Gracins Laco, You are a friend most welcome: by and by, 10
I'll speak with you. — You must procure this list
Of the praetorian cohorts, with the names
Of the centurions, and their tribunes.

Reg. Ay.

Mac. I bring you letters, and a health from Caesar.

Lac. Sir, both come well.

Mac. And, hear you? with your note, 15
Which are the eminent men, and most of action.

Reg. That shall be done you too. Goes out.

[Enter] Regulus.

[Re-enter Regulus.]

Mac. O, my good lord,
We lackt you present; I would pray you send Another to Fulcinus Trio, straight,
To tell him you will come and speak with
him:

The matter we'll devise, to stay him there,
While I with Laco do survey the watch.

Regulus goes out again.

What are your strengths, Gracins?

Lac. Seven cohorts.

Mac. You see what Caesar writes; and — Gone
again!

H' as sure a vein of mercury in his feet. — 30
Know you what store of the praetorian soldiers
Sejanus holds about him, for his guard?

Lac. I cannot the just number; but I think Three centuries.

Mac. Three! good.

Lac. At most not four.

Mac. And who be those centurions?

Lac. That the consul 35
Can best deliver you.

Mac. When he's away!

Spit on his nimble industry! — Gracitus,
You find what place you hold, there, in the trust
Of royal Caesar?

Lac. Ay, and I am —

4 Sign. 5 Precise.
Mac. The honours there propos'd are but beginnings
Of his great favours.

Lac. They are more — I heard him
When he did study what to add.

And all I hold —

Mac. You were his own first choice!
Which doth confirm as much as you can speak;
And will, if we succeed, make more — Your guards

Are seven cohorts, you say?

Lac. Yes.

Mac. Those we must
Hold still in readiness and undischarg'd.

Lac. I understand so much. But how it can —

Mac. Be done without suspicion, you'll object?

Re-enter Regulus.

Reg. What's that.

Lac. The keeping of the watch in arms.

Mac. The senate shall be met, and set
So early in the temple, as all mark
Of that shall be avoided.

Reg. If we need,
We have commission to possess the palace,

Enlarge Prince Drusus, and make him our chief.

Mac. (Aside.) That secret would have burnt
His reverend mouth.

Had he not spit it out now. — By the gods,
You carry things too — Let me borrow a man
Or two, to bear these — That of freeing Drusus,

Caesar projected as the last and utmost;
Not else to be remembr'd.

[Enter Servants.]

Reg. Here are servants.

Mac. These to Arruntins, these to Lepidus.
This be to Cotta, this to Latiairis.

If they demand you of me, say I have ta'en
Fresh horse and am departed. [Exeunt Servants.]

You, my lord,

To your colleague, and be you sure to hold him
With long narration of the new fresh favours,
Meant to Sejanus, his great patron; I,
With trusted Laco, here, are for the guards:
Then, to divide. For night hath many eyes,
Whereof, though most do sleep, yet some are spies.

[Exeunt.]

Scene IV. 1

[Enter] Praecones, Flamen, [Tubicines, Tibici-nes, Ministri, Sejanus, Terentius, Satrius, Natta, etc.]

Prae. Be all profane far hence; fly, fly far off:
Be absent far; far hence be all profane!

Tubicines and Tibicines sound
while the Flamen waseth.

Fla. We have been faulty, but repent us now.

And bring pure hands, pure vestments, and pure minds.

1 Min. Pure vessels.

2 Min. And pure offerings.

3 Min. Garland pure.

Fla. Bestow your garlands: and, with reverence
The vervain on the altar.

Prae. Favour your tongues.

While they sound again, the Flamen takes of the honey with his finger,

And tastes, then ministers to all the rest:
so of the milk in an earthen vessel,

He deals about; which done,

He sprinkled on the altar, milk;

Then imposeth the honey, and kindles his gums, and

After closing about the altar, placeth his censor thereon, in Which they put several branches of poppy, and the Music ceasing, proceed.

Fla. Great mother Fortune, queen of human state,

Rectress of action, arbiter of fate,

To whom all sway, all power, all empire bow,

Be present, and propitious to our vows!

Prae. Favour it with your tongues.

Min. Be present, and propitious to our vows!

Accept our offering, and be pleased, great goddess.

Ter. See, see, the image stirs!

Sat. And turns away!

Nat. Fortune averts her face!

Fla. Avert, you gods,

The prodigy. Still! still! some pious rite

We have neglected. Yet, heavy be appeas'd,

And be all tokens false or void, that speak

Thy present wrath!

Sej. Be thou dumb, scrupulous priest:

And gather up thyself, with these thy wares,

Which I, in spite of thy blind mistress, or

Thy juggling mystery, religion, throw

Thus scorned on the earth.

[Overturns the statue and the altar.]

Nay, hold thy look

Averted till I woo thee turn again;

And thou shalt stand, to all posterity,

Th' eternal game and laughter, with thy neck

With'th to thy tail, like a ridiculous cat.

Avoid these fumes, these superstitious lights,

And all these cos'ning ceremonies; you,

Your pure and spiced conscience!

[Exeunt all but Sejanus, Terentius, Satrius, and Natta.]

I, the slave

And mock of fools, (born on my worthy head!) That have been titled and ador'd a god,

Yea sacrific'd unto, myself, in Rome,

No less than Jove: and I be brought to do

A peevish giglot rites! Perhaps the thought

And shame of that made Fortune turn her face,

Knowing herself the lesser deity,

And but my servant. — Bashful queen, if so,

Sejanus thanks thy modesty. — Who's that?

1 A chapel in Sejanus's house.

2 Trumpeters.

3 Flute-players.

4 Verbena, "herb of grace."

5 Remove.

6 Cheating.

7 Absurdly scrupulous.

8 Wench.
The senate sate an idle looker-on,
And witness of my power; when I have blush'd
More to command than it to suffer: 4 all
The fathers have sat ready and prepar'd
To give me empire, temples, or their throats,
When I would ask 'em; and, what crowns the top
Rome, senate, people, all the world have seen
Jove but my equal; Caesar but my second.
'Tis then your malice, Fates, who, but your own,
Envy and fear t' have any power long known.

[Scene V.]

[Enter] Terentius and Tribuntes.

Ter. Stay here: I'll give his lordship you are come.

Min. Marcus Terentius, pray you tell my lord
Here's Cotta, and Latiaris.

Ter. Sir, I shall. [Exit.]

Cot. My letter is the very same with yours;
Only requires me to be present there,
And give my voice to strengthen his design.

Lat. Names he not what it is?

Cot. No, nor to you.

Lat. 'Tis strange and singular doubtful!

Cot. So it is.

It may be all is left to lord Sejanus.

[Enter] Natta and Graecinus Laco.

Nat. Gentlemen, where's my lord?

Tri. We wait him here.

Col. The provost Laco! What's the news?

Lat. My lord —

[Enter] Sejanus.

Sej. Now, my right dear, noble, and trusted friends,
How much I am a captive to your kindness!
Most worthy Cotta, Latiaris, Laco,
Your valiant hand; and, gentlemen, your loves.
I wish I could divide myself unto you;
Or that it lay within our narrow powers,
To satisfy for so enlarged bounty.
Graecinus, we must pray you, hold your guards
Unquit when morning comes. Saw you the consul?

Min. Trio will presently be here, my lord.

Cot. They are but giving order for the edict,
To warn the senate?

Sej. How! the senate? Yes.

Lac. This morning in Apollo's temple —

Cot. We Are charg'd by letter to be there, my lord.

Sej. By letter! Pray you let 'em see.

Lat. Knows not his lordship?

Cot. It seems so!

Sej. A senate warn'd! without my knowledge!

And on this sudden! Senators by letters
Required to be there! Who brought these?

1 Permit. 2 A room in the same. 3 Tell.
Now, Can You May And You He In With Let Am It 278 return Mac.
Sej. Lac.
Min. Lot.
Sej. Sej. Sej.
Sat. TVi. Mac.
Mac.

That still holds out the great proportion
Of his large favours, where his judgment hath
Made once divine election: like the god
That wants not, nor is wearied to bestow
Where merit meets his bounty, as it doth
In you, already the most happy, and, ere
The sun shall climb the south, most high Sejanus.

Let not my lord be amus'd. For to this end
Was I by Caesar sent for to the isle,
With special caution to conceal my journey;
And thence had my despatch as privately
Again to Rome; charg'd to come here by night;
And only to the consul make narration
Of his great purpose: that the benefit
Might come more full, and striking, by how much
It was less look'd for, or aspir'd by you,
Or least informed to the common thought.

Sej. What may this be? Part of myself,
Dear Macro,
If good, speak out; and share with your Sejanus.
Mac. If bad, I should for ever loathe myself
To be the messenger to so good a lord.
I do exceed my instructions to acquaint
Your lordship with thus much; but 'tis my venture
On your retentive wisdom: and because
I would no jealous scruple should molest
Or rack your peace of thought. For I assure
My noble lord, no senator yet knows
The business meant: though all by several letters
Are warned to be there, and give their voices,
Only to add unto the state and grace
Of what is purposé'd.

Sej. You take pleasure, Macro,
Like a coy wench, in torturing your lover.
What can be worth this suffering?
Mac. That which follows,
The tribunal dignify and power:
Both which Sejanus is to have this day
Confer'd upon him, and by public senate.
Sej. Fortune be mine again! [Aside.] Thou hast satisfied
For thy suspected loyalty.
Mac. My lord,
I have no longer time, the day approacheth,
And I must back to Caesar.
Sej. Where's Caligula?
Mac. That I forgot to tell your lordship.
Why,
He lingers yonder about Capreae,
Disgrac'd; Tiberius hath not seen him yet.
He needs would thrust himself to go with me,
Against my wish or will; but I have quitted
His forward trouble, with as tardy note
As my neglect or silence could afford him.
Your lordship cannot now command me aught,
Because I take no knowledge that I saw you;
But I shall boast to live to serve your lordship;
And so take leave.

Honest and worthy Macro;
Sej. Your love and friendship. [Exit Macro.]
Who's there? Satrius,

£ Amazed. £ His troublesome forwardness.

[Enter Terentius, Minutius, Laco, Cotta, Latarius, and Pomponius; Regulus, Trio, and others, on different sides.]

Pom. Is not my lord here?

Ter. Sir, he will be straight.

Cot. What news, Fuleinius Trio?

Tri. Good, good tidings; but keep it to yourself. My lord Sejanus is to receive this day in open senate the tribunitial dignity.

Cot. Is 't true?

Tri. No words, not to your thought: but, sir, believe it.

Lat. What says the consul?

Cot. Speak it not again: he tells me that to-day my lord Sejanus —

Tri. I must entreat you, Cotta, on your honour not to reveal it.

Cot. On my life, sir.

Lat. Say.

Cot. Is to receive the tribunitial power, but, as you are an honourable man, let me conjure you not to utter it; for it is trusted to me with that bond.

Lat. I am Harpocrates.

Ter. Can you assure it? 12

Pom. The consul told it me; but keep it close.

Min. Lord Latarius, what's the news?

Lat. I'll tell you; but you must swear to keep it secret.

[Enter Sejanus.]

Sej. Yes: — I will speak with you anon.

Ter. To some that stand by.

My lord, 25

What is your pleasure for the tribunes?

Sej. Why, let'em be thank't and sent away.

Min. My lord —

Lac. Will 't please your lordship to command me —

Sej. No:

You are troublesome.

Min. The mood is chang'd.

Tri. Not speak, nor look!

Lac. Ay, he is wise, will make him friends of such who never love but for their ends.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene VIII.]

[Enter Arruntius and Lepidus, divers other Senators passing by them.]

Arr. Ay, go, make haste; take heed you be not last.

To tender your "All Hail" in the wide hall Of huge Sejanus: run a lictor's pace:

Stay not to put your robes on; but away With the pale troubled ensigns of great friendship.

Stamp't you face! Now, Marcus Lepidus, do you still believe your former augury? Sejanus must go downward! You perceive His wane approaching fast!

Lep. Believe me, Lucius, I wonder at this rising.

Arr. Ay, and that we must give our suffrage to it. You will say, it is to make his fall more steep and grievous: it may be so. But think it, they that can With idle wishes 'say to bring back time: In cases desperate, all hope is crime.

See, see! what troops of his officious friends Flock to salute my lord, and start before My great proud lord! to get a lord-like nod! Attend my lord unto the senate-house! Bring back my lord! like servile ushers, make Way for my lord! proclaim his idol lordship, More than ten cries, or six noise of trumpets. Make legs, kiss hands, and take a scatter'd hair From my lord's eminent shoulder! See, Sanguinius, With his slow belly, and his dropsey! Look, What toiling haste he makes! Yet here's another Retarded with the gout, will be afore him. Get thee Liburnian porters, thou gross fool, To bear thy obsequious fatness, like thy peers. They met! The gout returns, and his great carriage.

Lictors, Consuls, [Regulus and Trio] Sejanus, [Saturnus, Sanguinius, Haterius, and many other Senators] pass over the stage.

Lict. Give way, make place, room for the consul!

1 Another room in the same.

2 A space before the Temple of Apollo. 3 Essay, try.

4 Bands of trumpeters.
San. Hail, great Sejanus!
Hat. Hail, my honour’d lord!
Arr. We shall be market anon, for our not Hail.
Lep. That is already done.
Arr. It is a note.
Of upstart greatness, to observe and watch
For these poor trifles, which the noble mind
Neglects and scorn.
Lep. Ay, and they think themselves
Deeply dishonour’d where they are omitted,
As if they were necessities that help
To the perfection of their dignities;
And hate the men that but refrain ’em.

Arr. There is a farther cause of hate. Their breasts
Are guilty that we know their obscure springs
And base beginnings; thence the anger grows.
On. Follow. [Exeunt.]

[Scene IX.]

[Enter] Macro and Laco.

Mac. When all are ent’red, shut the temple
doors;
And bring your guards up to the gate.
Luc. I will.
Mac. If you shall hear commotion in the senate,
Present yourself: and charge on any man
Shall offer to come forth.

Loc. I am instructed. [Exeunt.]

[Scene X.]

The Senate.

Haterius, Trio, Sanguinius, Cotta, Regulus, Sejanus, Pomponius, Latiliaris, Leptidus, Arruntius; Praecores, Lictores.

Hat. How well his lordship looks to-day!
Tri. As if he had been born, or made for this hour’s state.
Cot. Your fellow consul’s come about, methinks?
Tri. Ay, he is wise,
San. Sejanus trusts him well.
Tri. Sejanus is a noble, bounteous lord.
Hat. He is so, and most valiant.
Lat. And most wise.
Lat. Worthy of all, and more
Than bounty can bestow.
Tri. This dignity
Will make him worthy.
Pom. Above Caesar.
San. Caesar is but the rector of an isle,
He of the Empire.
Tri. Now he will have power
More to reward than ever.
Cot. Let us look
We be not slack in giving him our voices.
Lat. Not I.

San. Nor I. The reader we seem
To propagate his honours, will more bind
His thoughts to ours.
Hat. I think right with your lordship;
It is the way to have us hold our places.
San. Ay, and get more.
Lat. More office and more titles.
Pom. I will not lose the part I hope to share
In these his fortunes, for my patrimony.
Lat. See how Arruntius sits, and Lepidus!
Tri. Let ’em alone, they will be market anon.
1 Sen. I’ll do with others.
2 Sen. So will I.
3 Sen. And I.

Men grow not in the state but as they are planted
Warm in his favours.
Cot. Noble Sejanus!
Hat. Honour’d Sejanus!
Arr. Gods! how the sponges open and take
And shut again! Look, look! is not he blest
That gets a seat in eye-reach of him! more That comes in ear, or tongue-reach? O but most
Can claw his subtle elbow, or with a buzz
Fly-bow his ears?
Fruet. Proclaim the senate’s peace,
And give last summons by the edict.
Fruet. Silence!
In the name of Caesar, and the senate, silence!
Memmius Regulus, and Fulcius Trio, [2] consuls, these present kalends of June, with the first light, shall hold a senate in the temple of Apollo Palatine: all that are fathers, and are registered fathers, that have right of ent’ring the senate, we warn or command you be frequently present, take knowledge the business is the commonwealth’s: whosoever is absent, his fine or mulet will be taken, his excuse will not be taken."

Tri. Note who are absent, and record their names.

Reg. Fathers conscript, may what I am to utter
Turn good and happy for the commonwealth!
And thou, Apollo, in whose holy house
We here are met, inspire us all with truth,
And liberty of censure to our thought!

The majesty of great Tiberius Caesar
Propounds to this grave senate, the bestowing
Upon the man he loves, honour’d Sejanus,
The tribunitial dignity and power:
Here are his letters, signed with his signet.
What pleaseth now the fathers to be done?
Sen. Read, read ’em, open, publicly read ’em.

Cot. Caesar hath honour’d his own greatness much
In thinking of this act.

Tri. It was a thought
Happy, and worthy Caesar.
Lat. And the lord
As worthy it, on whom it is directed!
Hat. Most worthy!
San. Rome did never boast the virtue
That could give envy bounds, but his: Sejanus

Prae. Silence! (Reads.)

"Tiberius Caesar to the Senate greeting.
If you, conscript fathers, with your children, be in health, it is abundantly well: we with our friends here are so. The care of the common-wealth, howsoever we are removed in person, [as cannot be absent to our thought: although, oftentimes, even to princes most present, the truth of their own affairs is hid; which nothing falls out more miserable to a state, or makes the art of governing more difficult. [2] But since it hath been our careful happiness to enjoy both the aids and industry of so vigilant a senate, we profess to have been the more in- dulgent to our pleasures, not as being careless of our office, but rather secure of the necessity. Not to do these common rungs of many, [as infamous libels published against our retire- ment, at all afflict us; being born more out of men's ignorance than their malice: and will, neglected, find their own grave quickly; [as whereas, too sensibly acknowledg'd, it would make their obloquy ours. Nor do we desire their authors, though found, be censure'd, since in a free state, as ours, all men ought to enjoy both their minds and tongues free."

Arr. (Aside.) The lapwing, the lapwing! "Yet in things which shall worthily and more near concern the majesty of a prince, we shall fear to be so unnaturally cruel to our own fame, as to neglect them. True it is, conscript fathers, that we have raised Sejanus from obscure, [as and almost unknown gentry;"

Sen. (Aside.) How, how!

"to the highest and most conspicuous point of greatness, and, we hope, deservedly; yet not without danger; it being a most bold hazard in that sov'reign who, by his particular love to one, dares adventure the hatred of all his other subjects."

Arr. (Aside.) This touches; the blood turns. "But we affy 1 in your loves and under-108 standings, and do no way suspect the merit of our Sejanus, to make our favours offensive to any,"

Sen. (Aside.) O! good, good.

"Though we could have wished his zeal had run a calmer course against Agrippina and our nephews, howsoever the openness of their actions declared them delinquents; and that he would have rememb'red no innocence is so [as safe, but it rejoices to stand in the sight of mercy: the use of which in us he hath so quite taken away toward them, by his loyal fury, as now our clemency would be thought but wea- ried cruelly, if we should offer to exercise it."

Arr. (Aside.) I thank him; there I look'd for 't. A good fox!

"Some there be that would interpret this his public severity to be particular ambition; and that, under a pretext of service to us, he doth but remove his own lusts: 2 alleging the strengths he hath made to himself, by the praetor- sionary soldiers, by his faction in court and sen- ate, by the offices he holds himself, and confers on others, his popularity and dependents, his urging and almost driving us to this our un-willing retirement, and, lastly, his aspiring to be our son-in-law."

Sen. (Aside.) This is strange!

Arr. (Aside.) I shall anon believe your vul- nures, 3 Marcus. "Your wisdoms, conscript fathers, are able 196 to examine, and censure [these suggestions. But were they left to our absolving voice, we durst pronounce them, as we think them, most malicious."

Sen. (Aside.) O, he has restor'd all; list! 146 "Yet are they offer'd to be aver'd, and on the lives of the informers. What we should say, or rather what we should not say, lords of the sen- ate, if this be true, our gods and goddesses confound us if we know! Only we must think, 146 we have plac'd our benefits ill; and conclude, that in our choice, either we were wanting to the gods, or the gods to us."

The Senators shift their places.

Arr. (Aside.) The place grows hot; they shift. "We have not been covetous, honourable fathers, to change; neither is it now any new lust that alters our affection, or old loathing; but those needless jealousies of state, that warm wiser princes hourly to provide their safety; and do teach them how learned a thing it is 146 to beware of the humblest enemy; much more of those great ones, whom their own employ'd favours have made fit for their fears."

Cot. (Aside.) Let's remove —

Arr. (Aside.) Gods! how the leaves drop off, this little wind! 166 "We therefore desire, that the offices he holds be first seized by the senate; and him- self suspended from all exercise of place or power —"

Sen. (Aside.) How! 163
San. [Thrusting by.] By your leave. [rues?
Arr. Come, purport. (Aside.) Where's Hate- His gout keeps him most miserably constant! — Your dancing shows a tempest.

Reg. Lords of the senate, hold your seats: read on.
Sec. These letters, they are forg'd.
Reg. A guard! sit still. 170

Enter Laco, with the Guards.

Arr. There's change!
Reg. Bid silence, and read forward.
Prae. Silence! — 1 and himself suspended from all exercise of place or power, but till due and mature trial be made of his innocency, which yet we can faintly apprehend the necessity to [172 doubt. If, conscript fathers, to your more searching wisdoms, there shall appear farther cause—or of farther proceeding, either to seizure of lands, goods, or more—it is not our power that shall limit your authority, or our favour that must corrupt your justice: either were dishonourable in you, and both uncharitable to ourseil. We would willingly be present with your counsels in this business; but the danger of so potent a faction, if it should prove so, forbids our attempting it: except one of the consuls would be entreated for our safety, to undertake the guard of us home; then we should most readily adventure. In the meantime, it shall not be fit for us to impor- tune so judicious a senator, who know how much they hurt the innocent that spare the guilty; and how grateful a sacrifice to the gods is the life of an ingrateful person. We reflect not in this on Sejanus, (notwithstanding, if you keep an eye upon him—and there is Latiarius, a senator, and Finnarius Natta, two of his most trusted ministers; and so profest, whom we desire not to have apprehended,) but as the necessity of the cause exacts it."

Reg. A guard on Latiarius!
Arr. O, the spy,
The reverend spy is caught! Who pits him?
Reward, sir, for your service: now, you ha'
done
Your property, you see what use is made!
[Execut Latarius and Natta guarded.]

Hang up the instrument.

Sej. Give leave.
Lac. Stand, stand! 296
He comes upon his death, that doth advance
An inch toward my point.

Sej. Have we no friends here?
Arr. Hush! Where now are all the hails and acclamations?

[Enter] Mac. 2

Reg. A guard on Sejanus!
Sej. Am I call'd?

Mac. Thou insolent monster, art bid stand.
Sej. Why, Macero, 296
It hath been otherwise between you and I;
This court, that knows us both, hath seen a

SEJANUS, HIS FALL

As common grooms; and hanging on his look
No less than human life on destiny!
That had men's knees as frequent as the gods;
And sacrifices more than Rome had altars;
And this man fall! fall? ay, without a look
That durst appear his friend, or lend so much
Of vain relief, to his chang'd state, as pity!
Arr. They that before, like goats, play'd in his beams,
And throng'd to circumscribe him, now not seen,
Nor deign to hold a common seat with him!
Others, that waited him unto the senate,
Now inhumanly ravish him to prison,
Whom but this morn they follow'd as their
lord!
Guard through the streets, bound like a fugitive,
Instead of wreaths give fetters, strokes for stools:
Blind shame for honours, and black taunts for
titles:
Who would trust slippery Chance?
Lep. They that would make Themselves her spoil; and foolishly forget,
When she doth flatter, that she comes to prey.
Fortune, thou hadst no deity, if men
Had wisdom: we have placed thee so high,
By fond belief in thy felicity.
(Shout within.) The gods guard Caesar! All the gods guard Caesar!

[Re-enter MACRO, REGULUS, and divers, Senators.

Mac. Now, great Sejanus, you that aw'd the
state,
And sought to bring the nobles to your whip;
That would be Caesar's tutor, and dispose
Of dignities and offices; that had
The public head still bare to your designs,
And made the general voice to echo yours!
That look'd for salutations twelve score off,
And would have pyramids, yes, temples, rear'd
To your huge greatness; now you lie as flat
As was your pride advanc'd!
Reg. Thanks to the gods! Sen. And praise to Macro, that hath saved
Rome!
Liberty, liberty, liberty! Lead on,
And praise to Macro, that hath saved Rome!
[Exit all but ARMENTIUS and LEPI-DUS.

Arr. I prophesy, out of the senate's flattery,
That this new fellow, Macro, will become A greater prodigy in Rome than he
That now is fall'n.

[Enter TERENTIUS.]

Ter. O you, whose minds are good,
And have not forc'd all mankind from your breasts;
That yet have so much stock of virtue left
To pity guilty states, when they are wretched:
Lend your soft ears to hear, and eyes to weep
Deeds done by men, beyond the acts of furies.

The eager multitude (who never yet
Knew why to love or hate, but only pleas'd to express their rage of power) no sooner heard
The murmur of Sejanus in decline,
But with that speed and heat of appetite,
With which they greedily devour the way
To some great sports, or a new theatre,
They fill'd the Capitol, and Pompey's Cirque
Where, like so many mastiffs biting stones,
As if his statues now were sensitive
Of their wild fury; first, they tear them down;
Then fast'ning ropes, drag them along the streets,
Crying in scorn, "This, this was that rich head
Was crown'd with garlands, and with odours,
That was in Rome so reverenced! Now
The furnace and the bellows shall to work,
The great Sejanus crack, and piece by piece
Drop in the founder's pit."
Lep. O popular rage!
Ter. The whilst the senate at the temple of Concord
Make haste to meet again, and thronging cry,
"Let us condemn him, tread him down in water,
While he doth lie upon the bank; away!"
While some, more tardy, cry unto their bearers,
"He will be censur'd ere we come; run, knaves,
And use that furious diligence, for fear
Their bondmen should inform against their slackness,
And bring their quaking flesh unto the hook.
The rout, they follow with confused voice,
Crying they're glad, say they could ne'er abide
him;
Inquire what man he was, what kind of face,
What beard he had, what nose, what lips? protest
They ever did presage he'd come to this;
They never thought him wise, nor valiant; ask
After his garments, when he dies, what death;
And not a beast of all the herd demands
What was his crime, or who were his accusers,
Under what proof or testimony he fell.
There came, says one, a huge long-worded letter
From Caprease against him. Did there so?
O, they are satisfied; no more.
Lep. Alas!
Ter. They follow Fortune, and hate men condemn'd, Guilty or not.
Arr. But had Sejanus thriv'd
In his design, and prosperously opprest
The old Tiberius; then, in that same minute,
These very rascals, that now rage like furies,
Would have proclaim'd Sejanus emperor.
Lep. But what hath follow'd?
Ter. Sentence by the senate,
To lose his head; which was no sooner off,
But that and th' unfortunate trunk were seiz'd
By the rude multitude; who not content
With what the forward justice of the state
Officially had done, with violent rage
Have rent it limb from limb. A thousand heads,
A thousand hands, ten thousand tongues and voices,
Employ'd at once in several acts of malice!

1 Raised.
Old men not staid with age, virgins with shame,
Late wives with loss of husbands, mothers of children,
Losing all grief in joy of his sad fall,
Run quite transported with their cruelty!
These mounting at his head, these at his face,
These digging out his eyes, those with his brain
Sprinkling themselves, their houses and their friends;
Others are met, have ravish’d thence an arm,
And deal small pieces of the flesh for favours;
These with a thigh, this hath cut off his hands,
And this his feet; these fingers, and these toes;
That hath his liver, he his heart: there wants
Nothing but room for wrath, and place for hatred!
What cannot oft be done, is now o’erdone.
The whole, and all of what was great Sejanus,
And, next to Caesar, did possess the world,
Now torn and scatter’d, as he needs no grave
Each little dust covers a little part:
So lies he nowhere, and yet often buried!

[Enter] Nuntoius.

Arr. More of Sejanus?
Nun. Yes.

Lep. What can be added?

We know him dead.

Nun. Then there begin your pity.

There is enough behind to melt ev’n Rome,
And Caesar into tears; since never slave
Could yet so highly offend, but tyranny,
In tormenting him, would make him worth lamenting.

A son and daughter to the dead Sejanus,
(Of whom there is not now so much remaining
As would give fast’ning to the hangman’s hook.)

Have they drawn forth for farther sacrifice;
Whose tenderness of knowledge, unripe years,
And childish silly innocence was such,
As scarce would lend them feeling of their danger;
The girl so simple, as she often ask’d
Where they would lead her? for what cause they dragg’d her?
Cried, she would do more: that she could take Warning with beating. And because our laws
Admit no virgin immature to die,
The witty and strangely cruel Macro
Deliver’d her to be deflower’d and spoil’d
By the rude lust of the licentious hangman.
Lep. O, act most worthy hell, and lasting night.
To hide it from the world!

Nun. Their bodies thrown Into the Gemonies, (I know not how,
Or by what accident return’d,) the mother,
Th’ expuls’d 1 Apicata, finds them there;
Whom when she saw lie spread on the degrees,
After a world of fury on herself,
Tearing her hair, defacing of her face,
Beating her breasts and womb, kneeling amaz’d,
Crying to heaven, then to them; at last,
Her drowned voice got up above her woes,
And with such black and bitter excreations
As might affright the gods, and force the sun
Run backward to the east; nay, make the old
Deformed chaos rise again, t’ o’erwhelm
Them, us, and all the world, she fills the air,
Upbrides the heavens with their partial dooms,
Defies their tyrannous powers, and demands,
What she, and those poor innocents have transgress’d,
That they must suffer such a share in vengeance,
Whilst Livia, Lygdupus, and Eudemus live,
Who, as she says, and firmly vows to prove it
To Caesar and the senate, poison’d Drusus?

Lep. Confederates with her husband!

Nun. Ay.

Lep. Strange act!

Arr. And strangely open’d. What says now my monster,
The multitude? They reel now, do they not?

Nun. Their gall is gone, and now they ’gin to weep
The mischief they have done.

Arr. I thank ’em, rogues.

Nun. Part are so stupid, or so flexible,
As they believe him innocent; all grieve:
And some, whose hands yet reach with his warm blood,
And grip the part which they did tear of him,
Wish him collected and created new.

Lep. How Fortune plies her sports, when she begins
To practise ’em! pursues, continues, adds,
Confounds with varying her impassion’d moods!

Arr. Dost thou hope, Fortune, to redeem thy crimes,
To make amends for thy ill placed favours,
With these strange punishments? Forbear, you things
That stand upon the pinacles of state,
To boast your slippery height; when you do fall,
You push 3 yourselves in pieces, ne’er to rise;
And he that lends you pity, is not wise.

Ter. Let this example move the insolent man
Not to grow proud and careless of the gods.
It is an odious wisdom to blaspheme,
Much more to slighten, or deny their powers:
For whom the morning saw so great and high,
Thus low and little, ’fore the even doth lie.

[Exeunt.]

Volpone, an Advocate.
Corbaccio, an old Gentleman.
Corvino, a Merchant.
Bonario, a young Gentleman, [son to Corbaccio.]
[Sir] Politic Would-be, a Knight.
Persone, a Gentleman Traveller.
Nano, a Dwarf.
Castrone, an Eunuch.
Androgyno, an Hermaphrodite.

Gege [or Mob].
Commandadori, Officers [of Justice.]
 Mercerori, three Merchants.
Avocatori, four Magistrates.
Notario, the Register.

Fine Madame Would-be, the Knight's Wife.
Chilla, [Corvino] the Merchant's Wife.
Servitore, a Servant, [two Waiting-] women, &c.

SCENE. — Venice.

THE ARGUMENT

Volpone, childless, rich, feigns sick, desairs,
Offers his state to hopes of several heirs,
Lies languishing; his parasite receives
Presents of all, assures, deludes; then weaves
Other cross plots, which ope themselves, are told.
New tricks for safety are sought; they thrive: when, bold,
Each tempts th' other again, and all are sold.

PROLOGUE

Now, luck yet send us, and a little wit
Will serve to make our play hit;
According to the palates of the season,
Here is rhyme, not empty of reason.
This we were bid to credit from our poet,
Whose true scope, if you would know it,
In all his poems still hath been this measure,
To mix profit with your pleasure;
And not as some, whose throats their envy failing,
Cry hoarsely, "All he writes is railing:"
And when his plays come forth, think they can flout them,
With saying, he was a year about them.
To this there needs no lie, but this his creature,
Which was two months since no feature:
And though he dares give them five lives to mend it,
'Tis known, five weeks fully penn'd it,
From his own hand, without a coadjutor,
Novice, journeyman, or tutor.
Yet thus much I can give you as a token
Of his play's worth, no eggs are broken,
Nor quaking custards with fierce teeth affrighted,
Wherewith your rout are so delighted;
Nor hales he in a gull, old ends reciting,
To stop gaps in his loose writing;
With such a deal of monstrous and forc'd action,
As might make Bethle"m a faction:

1 Bedlam; the madhouse.
ACT I

SCENE I. 2

[Enter] Volpone, Mosca.

Volp. Good morning to the day; and next, my gold!
Open the shrine, that I may see my saint.

[Mosca withholds the curtain, and discovers piles of gold, plate, jewels, etc.]

Hail the world's soul, and mine! More glad than is
The teeming earth to see the long'd-for sun
Pep through the horns of the celestial Ram, 5
Am I, to view thy splendid dark'ning his;
That lying here, amongst my other hoards,
Show'd like a flame by night, or like the day
Struck out of chaos, when all darkness fled
Unto the centre. 3 O thou son of Sol, 10
But brighter than thy father, let me kiss,
With adoration, thee, and every relic
Of sacred treasure in this blessed room.
Well did wise poets, by thy glorious name,
Title that age which they would have the best;
Thou being the best of things, and far transcending
All style of joy, in children, parents, friends,
Or any other waking dream on earth:
Thy looks when they to Venus did ascribe,
They should have given her twenty thousand
Cupids; 15
Such are thy beauties and our loves! Dear saint,
Riches, the dumb god, that giv'st all men tongues,
That canst do nought, and yet mak'st men do
All things;
The price of souls; even hell, with thee to boot. 20
Is made worth heaven. Thou art virtue, fame,
Honour, and all things else. Who can get thee,
He shall be noble, valiant, honest, wise——

Mos. And what he will, sir. Riches are in fortune
A greater good than wisdom is in nature.

Volp. True, my beloved Mosca. Yet I glory
More in the cunning purchase of my wealth, 25
Than in the glad possession, since I gain

1 Green vitriol, used in making ink.
2 A room in Volpone's house.
3 Centre of the earth.
4 Gifford and others have noted that in this splendid speech Jonson is indebted to Pindar, Euripides, and Horace.

No common way; I use no trade, no venture;
I wound no earth with ploughshares, I fat no beasts
To feed the shambles; have no mills for iron, 30
Oil, corn, or men, to grind them into powder;
I blow no subtle glass, expose no ships
To threat'ning of the furrow-faced sea;
I turn no monies in the public bank,
No usury private.

Mos. No, sir, nor devour 40
Soft prodigals. You shall ha' some will swallow
A melting heir as glibly as your Dutch
Will pills of butter, and ne'er purge for it;
Tear forth the fathers of poor fam'd children,
Out of their beds, and cozen them alive 45
In some kind clapping prison, where their bones
May be forthcoming, when the flesh is rotten;
But your sweet nature doth abhor these courses;
You loathe the widow's or the orphan's tears
Should wash your pavements, or their piteous cries 50
Ring in your roofs, and beat the air for vengeance.

Volp. Right, Mosca; I do loathe it.

Mos. And, besides, sir,
You are not like the thresher that doth stand
With a huge flail, watching a heap of corn, 55
And, hungry, dares not taste the smallest grain,
But feeds on mallow, and such bitter herbs;
Nor like the merchant, who hath fill'd his vaults
With Romagnia, rich and Cadian wines,
Yet drinks the lees of Lombard's vinegar:
You will not lie in straw, whilst moths and worms 60
Feed on your sumptuous hangings and soft beds;
You know the use of riches, and dare give now
From that bright heap, to me, your poor observer,
Or to your dwarf, or your hermaphrodite,
Your eunuch, or what other household trifle 65
Your pleasure allows maintenance —

Volp. Hold thee, Mosca.
Take of my hand; thou strik'st on truth in all,
And they are envious term thee parasite.
Call forth my dwarf, my eunuch, and my fool,
And let 'em make me sport. 70

[Exit Mos.]

What should I do,
But cocker up my genius, and live free
To all delights my fortune calls me to?
I have no wife, no parent, child, ally,
To give my substance to; but whom I make
Must be my heir; and this makes men observe me: This draws new clients daily to my house, Women and men of every sex and age, That bring me presents, send me plate, coin, fruits, With hope that when I die (which they expect Each greedy minute) it shall then return Tenfold upon them; whilst some, covetous Above the rest, seek to engross me whole, And counter-work the one unto the other, Contend in gifts, as they would seem in love: All which I suffer, playing with their hopes, And am content to coin 'em into profit, And look upon their kindess, and take more, And look on that; still bearing them in hand, Letting the cherry knock against their lips, And draw it by their mouths, and back again. — How now!

Scene II.

 Nano. "Now, room for fresh gamesters, who do will you to know, They do bring you neither play nor university show; And therefore do intreat you that whatsoever they rehearse, May not fare a whit the worse, for the false pace of the verse. If you wonder at this, you will wonder more ere we pass, For know, here is inclos'd the soul of Pythagoras, That juggler divine, as hereafter shall follow; Which soul, fast and loose, sir, came first from Apollo, And was breath'd into Aethalides, Mercurious his son; Where it had the gift to remember all that ever was done. From thence it fled forth, and made quick transmigration To goldy-look'd Euphorbus, who was kill'd in good fashion, At the siege of old Troy, by the cuskold of Sparta. Hermotimus was next (I find it in my charts). To whom it did pass, where no sooner it was missing. But with one Pyrrhus of Delos it learn'd to go a-fishing; And thence did it enter the sophist of Greece. From Pythagore, she went into a beautiful piece, Hight Aspasia, the meretrix; and the next toss of her Was again of a whore, she became a philosopher, Creates the cynick, as itself doth relate it: Since kings, knights, and beggars, knaves, lords, and fools get it, besides ox and ass, camel, mule, goat, and brock: In all which it hath spoke, as in the cobbler's cock. But I come not here to discourse of that matter, Or his one, two, or three, or his great oath, By quarter! His muses, his trigon, his golden thigh, Or his telling how elements shift; but I Would ask, how of late thou hast suffer'd translation, And shifted thy coat in these days of reformation. And. Like one of the reform'd, a fool, as you see, Counting all old doctrine heresy. Nano. But not on thine own forbid meats hast thou ventur'd? And. On fish, when first a Carthusian I enter'd. Nano. Why, then thy dogmatical silence hath left thee? And. Of that an obstreperous lawyer bereft me. Nano. O wonderful change, when sir lawyer forsook thee! For Pythagores's sake, what body then took thee? And. A good dull mule. Nano. And how! by that means Thou wert brought to allow of the eating of the beans? And. Yes. [thou pass? Nano. But from the mule into whom didst And. Into a very strange beast, by some writers call'd an ass; By others a precise, pure, illuminate brother Of those devour flesh, and sometimes one another; And will drop you forth a libel, or a sanctifi'd lie, Betwixt every spoonful of a nativity-pie. Nano. Now quit thee, for heaven, of that profane nation, And gently report thy next transmigration. And. To the same that I am. Nano. A creature of delight, And, what is more than a fool, an hermaphro-dite! Now, prithee, sweet soul, in all thy variation, Which body wouldst thou choose to keep up thy station? And. Troth, this I am in: even here would I tarry. Nano. 'Cause here the delight of each sex thou canst vary? And. Alas, those pleasures be stale and forsaken; No, 'tis your fool wherewith I am so taken. The only one creature that I can call blessed; For all other forms I have prov'd most distress'd. Nano. Spoke true, as thou wert in Pythagoras still.

This learned opinion we celebrate will,
Fellow surnam, as behoves us, with all our wit and art, To dignify the whereof ourselves are so great and special a part."

Volp. Now, very, very pretty! Mosca, this Was thy invention? Mos. If it please my patron, Not else. Volp. It doth, good Mosca. Mos. Then it was, sir.

[NANO and CASTRONE sing.]

SONG.

"Fools, they are the only nation
Worth men's envy or admiration;
Free from care or sorrow-taking,
Selves and others merry making:
All they speak or do is sterling.
Your fool he is your great man's darling,
And your ladies' sport and pleasure;
Tongue and bauble are his treasure,
'En face begeteth laughter,
And he speaks truth free from slaughter; 1
He's the grace of every feast,
And sometimes the chiefest guest;
Hath his tinder and his stool,
When wit waits upon the fool.
O, who would not be
He, he, he?"

One knocks without.

Volp. Who's that? Away! Look, Mosca!
Fool, begone! [Exit NANO, CAST. and ANDRO.]

Mos. 'Tis Signior Voltore, the advocate; I know him by his knock.

Volp. Fetch me my gown, My furs, and night-caps; say my coach is changing And let him entertain himself awhile Without i' th' gallery. [Exit MOSCA.] Now, now my clients Begin their visitation! Vulture, kite, Raven, and gocrow, all my birds of prey, That think me turning carcase, now they come: I am not for 'em yet.

[Re-enter MOSCA, with the gown, etc.]

How now! the news? Mos. A piece of plate, sir. Volp. Of what bigness? Mos. Huge, Massy, and antique, with your name inscrib'd, And arms engraven. Volp. Good! and not a fox Stretch't on the earth, with fine delusive sleights, Mocking a gaping crow? ha, Mosca! Mos. Sharp, sir. Volp. Give me my furs. [Puts on his sick dress.] Why dost thou laugh so, man? Mos. I cannot choose, sir, when I apprehend What thoughts he has without now, as he walks: That this might be the last gift he should give, That this would fetch you; if you died to-day, And gave him all, what he should be to-morrow; What large return would come of all his ventures; How he should worship'd be, and reverence'd; Ride with his fur, and foot cloths; waited on By herds of fools and clients; have clear way Made for his mule, as letter'd as himself; Be call'd the great and learned advocate: And then concludes, there's nought impossible, Volp. Yes, to be learned, Mosca. Mos. O, no: rich Implies it. Hood an ass with reverence purple, So you can hide his two ambitious ears, And he shall pass for a cathedral doctor.

Volp. My caps, my caps, good Mosca. Fetch him in. Mos. Stay, sir; your ointment for your eyes. Volp. That's true; Dispatch, dispatch: I long to have possession Of my new present. Mos. That, and thousands more, I hope to see you lord of. Volp. Thanks, kind Mosca. Mos. And that, when I am lost in blended dust, And hundreds such as I am, in succession — Volp. Nay, that were too much, Mosca. Mos. You shall live Still to delude these harpies. Loving Mosca! Volp. 'Tis well: my pillow now, and let him enter. [Exit MOSCA.]

Now, my feign'd cough, my phthisic, and my goat, My apoplexy, palsy, and cataarrhs, Help, with your forced functions, this my posture, Wherein, this three year, I have milk'd their hopes, He comes; I hear him — Uhr! [coughing] Uhr! Uhr! Uhr! O —

SCENE III

VOLPONE; [re-enter MOSCA, [introducing] VOLTORE [with a piece of plate.]

Mos. You still are what you were, sir. Only you, Of all the rest, he is commands his love, And you do wisely to preserve it thus, With early visitation, and kind notes Of your good meaning to him, which, I know, Cannot but come most grateful. Patron! sir! Here's Signior Voltore is come —

Volp. [Faintly.] What say you? Mos. Sir, Signior Voltore is come this morning To visit you. Volp. I thank him. Mos. And hath brought A piece of antique plate, bought of St. Mark, With which he here presents you.

1 With impunity. 2 Carrion crow.
Valp. He is welcome.

Pray him to come more often.

Yes.

What says he?

He thanks you, and desires you see him often.

Mos. My patron!

Bring him near, where is he?

I long to feel his hand.

The plate is here, sir.

I thank you, Signior Voltore; Where is the plate? mine eyes are bad.

I'm sorry To see you still thus weak.

That he's not weaker.

You are too munificent.

No, sir; would to heaven I could as well give health to you, as that plate!

You give, sir, what you can; I thank you. Your love Hath taste in this, and shall not be unanswer'd: I pray you see me often.

Be not far from me.

Do you observe, sir?

You are a happy man, sir; know your good.

I cannot now last long.

You are his heir, sir.

Am I?

I feel me going: Uh! uh! uh! uh!

I'm sailing to my port. Uh! uh! uh! uh!

And I am glad I am so near my haven.

Alas, kind gentleman! Well, we must all go.

But, Mosca —

Age will conquer.

Prizeth, hear me;

Am I inscrib'd his heir for certain?

Are you!

I do beseech you, sir, you will vouchsafe
To write me? your family. All my hopes
Depend upon your worship: I am lost
Except the rising sun do shine on me.

It shall both shine, and warm thee,

Sir,

I am a man that hath not done your love
All the worst offices: here I wear your keys,
See all your coffers and your caskets lock'd,
Keep the poor inventory of your jewels,
Your plate, and monies; am your steward, sir,
Husband your goods here.

But am I sole heir?

Without a partner, sir: confirm'd this morning:
The wax is warm yet, and the ink scarce dry
Upon the parchment.

Happy, happy me! By what good chance, sweet Mosca? Your desert, sir; I know no second cause.

Valp. Thy modesty Is loth to know it; well, we shall require it.

Mos. He ever lik'd your course, sir; that first took him.

I oft have heard him say how he adm'd
Men of your large profession, that could speak
To every cause, and things mere contraries,
Till they were hoarse again, yet all be law;

That, with most quick agility, could turn,

And, with the hand, and put it up; these men,

He knew, would thrive with their humility.

And, for his part, he thought he should be blest
To have his heir of such a suff'ring spirit,

So wise, so grave, of so perplex'd a tongue,

And loud withal, that would not wag; nor scarce

Lie still, without a fee; when every word

Your worship but lets fail, is a chequim! —

Who's that? one knock; I would not have you seen, sir.

And yet — pretend you came and went in haste;

I'll fashion an excuse — and, gentle sir,

When you do come to swim in golden lard,

Up to the arms in honey, that your chin

Is borne up stiff with fatness of the flood,

Think on your vassal; but remember me:

I ha' not been your worst of clients.

Mos. When will you have your inventory brought, sir?

Or see a copy of the will? — Anon!

I'll bring them to you, sir. Away, begone.

Put business in your face. [Exit VOLTORE.]

Valp. [Springing up.] Excellent Mosca! Come hither, let me kiss thee.

Mos. Keep you still, sir.

Here is Corbaccio.

Set the plate away.

The vulture's gone, and the old raven's come.

Scene IV. 2

Mosca, Volpone.

Mos. Betake you to your silence, and your sleep.

Stand there and multiply. [Putting the plate to the rest.] Now we shall see

A wretch who is indeed more impotent

Than this can feign to be; yet hopes to hop Over his grave.

[Enter Corbaccio.]

Signior Corbaccio!

You're very welcome, sir.

Corb. How does your patron?

Mos. Troth, as he did, sir; no amends.

Corb. What! mends he?

Mos. No, sir: he's rather worse.

Corb. That's well; Where is he?

Mos. Upon his couch, sir, newly fall'n asleep.

Corb. Does he sleep well?

1 Gifford emends to re-turn; could.

2 The same.
Mos. No wink, sir, all this night.
Nor yesterday; but slumbers.
Corb. Good! he should take Some counsel of physicians: I have brought
him.
An opiate here, from mine own doctor.
Mos. He will not hear of drugs.
Corb. Why? I myself
Stood by while 't was made, saw all th' ingredients;
And know it cannot but most gently work:
My life for his, 't is but to make him sleep.
Volp. [Aside.] Ay, his last sleep, if he would take it.
Mos. Sir,
He has no faith in physic.
Corb. Say you, say you?
Mos. He has no faith in physic: he does think
Most of your doctors are the greater danger,
And worse disease, 't escape. I often have Heard him protest that your physician
Should never be his heir.
Corb. Not I his heir?
Mos. Not your physician, sir.
Corb. O, no, no, no.
I do not mean it.
Mos. No, sir, nor their fees
He cannot brook: he says they play a man
Before they kill him.
Corb. Right, I do conceive you.
Mos. And then they do it by experiment;
For which the law not only doth absolute 'em,
But gives them great reward: and he is lost
To hire his death so.
Corb. It is true, they kill
With as much licence as a judge.
Mos. Nay, more;
For he but kills, sir, where the law condemns,
And these can kill him too.
Corb. Ay, or me;
Or any man. How does his apoplexy?
Is that strong on him still?
Mos. Most violent.
His speech is broken, and his eyes are set,
His face drawn longer than 'twas wont —
Corb. How! how!
Stronger than he was wont?
Mos. No, sir; his face
Drawn longer than 'twas wont.
Corb. O, good!
Mos. His mouth
Is ever gaping, and his eyelids hang.
Corb. Good.
Mos. A freezing numbness stiffens all his joints,
And makes the colour of his flesh like lead.
Corb. 'T is good.
Mos. His pulse beats slow, and dull.
Corb. Good symptoms still.
Mos. And from his brain —
Corb. Ha? How? Not from his brain?
Mos. Yes, sir, and from his brain —
Corb. I conceive you; good.
Mos. Flows a cold sweat, with a continual rheum,
Forth the resolved corners of his eyes.

Corb. Is't possible? Yet I am better, ha!
How does he with the swimming of his head?
Mos. O, sir, 't is past the scotomy; 't he now
Hath lost his feeling, and hath left to snort:
You hardly can perceive him, that he breathes.
Corb. Excellent, excellent! sure I shall outlast him:
This makes me young again, a score of years.
Mos. I was a-coming for you, sir.
Corb. Has he made his will?
What has he giv'n me?
Mos. No, sir.
Corb. Nothing! ha?
Mos. He has not made his will, sir.
Corb. Oh, oh, oh!
What then did Voltole, the lawyer, here?
Mos. He smelt a carcase, sir, when he but heard
My master was about his testament;
As I did urge him to it for your good — Corb. He came unto him, did he? I thought so.
Corb. Yes, and presented him this piece of plate.
Corb. To be his heir?
Mos. True.
Corb. I do not know, sir.
Mos. [Aside.] By your own scale, sir,
Corb. Well, I shall prevent him yet. See, Mosca, look,
Here I have brought a bag of bright chequins,
Will quite lay down his plate.
Mos. [taking the bag.] Yea, marry, sir.
This is true physic, this your sacred medicine;
No talk of opiates to this great elixir!
Corb. 'T is aurum palpabile, if not potabile.
Mos. It shall be minister'd to him in his bowl.
Corb. Ay, do, do, do.
Mos. Most blessed cordial!
This will recover him.
Corb. Yes, do, do, do.
Mos. I think it were not best, sir.
Corb. What?
Mos. To recover him.
Corb. O, no, no, no; by no means.
Mos. Why, sir, this
Will work some strange effect, if he but feel it.
Corb. 'T is true, therefore forbear; I' ll take my venture:
Give me 't again.
Mos. At no hand: pardon me:
You shall not do yourself that wrong, sir. I
Will so advise you, you shall have it all.
Corb. How?
Mos. All, sir; 't is your right, your own;
Can claim a part: 't is yours without a rival;
Decreed by destiny.
Corb. How, how, how, good Mosca?
Mos. I' ll tell you, sir. This fit he shall recover —
Corb. I do conceive you.
Mos. And on first advantage
Of his gain'd sense, will I re-importune him
Superior sight, with gladness.
1 Ital. ecchina, a sequin; a coin worth about two dollars.
Unto the making of his testament:
And show him this. [Pointing to the money.]
Corb. Good, good.
Mos. 'Tis better yet,
If you will hear, sir.
Corb. Yes, with all my heart.
Mos. Now would I counsel you, make home with speed;
There, frame a will; whereto you shall inscribe
My master your sole heir.
Corb. And disinherit
My son?
Mos. O, sir, the better: for that colour
Shall make it much more taking.
Corb. O, but colour?
Mos. This will, sir, you shall send it unto me.
Now, when I come to enforce, as I will do,
Your cares, your watchings, and your many prayers,
Your more than many gifts, your this day's present,
And last, produce your will; where, without thought,
Or least regard, unto your proper issue,
A son so brave, and highly meriting—
The stream of your diverted love hath thrown you
Upon my master, and made him your heir;
He cannot be so stupid, or stone-dead,
But out of conscience and mere gratitude—
Corb. He must pronounce me his?
Mos. 'Tis true.
Corb. This plot
Did I think on before.
Mos. I do believe it.
Corb. Do you not believe it?
Mos. Yes, sir,
Corb. Mine own project.
Mos. Which, when he hath done, sir—
Corb. Publish'd me his heir?
Mos. And you so certain to survive him—
Corb. Ay.
Mos. Being so lusty a man—
Corb. 'Tis true.
Mos. Yes, sir—
Corb. I thought on that too. See, how he should be—
The very organ to express my thoughts!
Mos. You have not only done yourself a good—
Corb. But multiplier'd it on my son.
Mos. 'Tis right, sir.
Corb. Still, my invention.
Mos. 'Las, sir! heaven knows,
It hath been all my study, all my care,
(I even grow gray withal) how to work things—
Corb. I do conceive, sweet Mosca.
Mos. You are he
For whom I labour here.
Corb. Ay, do, do, do;
I'll straight about it. [Going.]
Mos. [Aside.] Book go with you, 2 raven!
Corb. I know thee honest.
Mos. You do lie, sir!

1 Pretence.
2 May you be rook'd, or cheated.

Mos. Your knowledge is no better than your ears, sir.
Corb. I do not doubt to be a father to thee.
Mos. Nor I to gull my brother of his blessing.
Corb. I may ha' my youth restor'd to me,
why not?
Mos. Your worship is a precious ass!
Corb. What sayst thou?
Mos. I do desire your worship to make haste,
sir.
Corb. 'Tis done, 'tis done; I go. [Exit.
Volp. [leaping from his couch.] 'O, I shall burst!
Let out my sides, let out my sides—
Mos. Contain
Your flux of laughter, sir: you know this hope
Is such a bait, it covers any hook.
Volp. O, but thy working, and thy placing it!
I cannot hold; good rascal, let me kiss thee:
I never knew thee in so rare a humour.
Mos. Alas, sir, I but do as I am taught;
Follow your grave instructions; give 'em words;
Pour oil into their ears, and send them hence.
Volp. 'Tis true, 'tis true. What a rare punishment
Is avarice to itself!
Mos. Ay, with our help, sir.
Volp. So many cares, so many maladies,
So many fears attending on old age.
Yea, so often call'd on, as no wish
Can be more frequent with 'em, their limbs faint,
Their senses dull, their seeing, hearing, going,
All dead before them; yea, their very teeth,
Their instruments of eating, failing them:
Yet this is reckon'd life! Nay, here was one,
Is now gone home, that wishes to live longer!
Feels not his gout, nor palsy; feigns himself
Younger by scores of years, flatters his age.
With confident belying it, hopes he may
With charms like Aeson, have his youth restor'd;
And with these thoughts so battens, as if fate
Would be as easily cheated on as he,
And all turns sir! Who's that there, now? a third!
Another knocks.
Mos. Close, to your couch again; I hear his voice.
It is Corvino, our spruce merchant.
Volp. [Lies down as before.] Dead.
Mos. Another bent, sir, with your eyes [Anointing them]. Who's there?

SCENE V.

MOSCA, VOLPONE. [Enter] CORVINO.
Signior Corvino! come most wish'd for! O,
How happy were you, if you knew it, now!
Corv. Why? what? wherein?
Mos. The tardy hour is come, sir.
Corv. He is not dead?
Mos. Not dead, sir, but as good;
He knows no man.
How shall I do then?

Moses. Why, sir?

Corvino. I have brought him here a pearl.

Moses. Perhaps he has so much remembrance left as to know you, sir.

He still calls on you; nothing but your name

Is in his mouth. Is your pearl orient, sir?

Corvino. Venice was never owner of the like.

Volpone [faintly]. Signior Corvino!

Moses. Hark!

Volpone. Signior Corvino.

Moses. He calls you; step and give it him,—

He’s here, sir.

And he has brought you a rich pearl.

Corvino. How do you, sir?

Tell him it doubles the twelve carat.

Moses. Sir,

he cannot understand, his hearing’s gone;

And yet it comforts him to see you—

Say I have a diamond for him, too.

Moses. Best show’t, sir;

Put it into his hand: ’tis only there

He apprehends: he has his feeling yet.

See how he grasps it!

Corvino. ’Las, good gentleman! How pitiful the sight is!

Moses. Tut, forget, sir.

The weeping of an heir should still be laughter

Under a visor.

Corvino. Why, am I his heir?

Moses. Sir, I am sworn, I may not show the will

Till he be dead; but here has been Corbaccio,

Here has been Volpone, here were others too;

I cannot number ’em, they were so many;

All gaping here for legacies: but I,

Taking the vantage of his naming you,

Signior Corvino, Signior Corvino, took

Paper, pen, and ink, and there I ask’d him

Whom he would have his heir! Corvino. Who Should be executor? Corvino. And

To any question he was silent to,

I still interpreted the nods he made,

Through weakness, for consent: and sent home

th’ others,

Nothing bequeath’d them, but to cry and curse.

Corvino. O, my dear Mosca. (They embrace.)

Does he not perceive us?

Moses. No more than a blind harper. He knows no man,

No face of friend, nor name of any servant,

Who ’t was that fed him last, or gave him drink:

Not those he hath begotten, or brought up,

Can he remember.

Corvino. Has he children?

Moses. Bastards,

Some dozen, or more, that he begot on beggars,

Gypsies, and Jews, and black-moors, when he was drunk.

Knew you not that, sir? ’t is the common fable,

1 Used for “brilliant” as well as “oriental.”

The dwarf, the fool, the eunuch, are all his;

He’s the true father of his family,

In all save me;—but he has given’em nothing.

Corvino. That’s well, that’s well! Art sure he do not hear us?

Moses. Sure, sir! why, look you, credit your own sense. [Shouts in Volpone’s ear.]

The pox approach, and add to your diseases,

If it would send you hence the sooner, sir,

For your incontinence, it hath deserv’d it

Thoroughly and throughly, and the plague to boot!—

You may come near, sir.—Would you would once close

Those filthy eyes of yours, that flow with slime

Like two frog-pits; and those same hanging

cheeks,

Cover’d with hide instead of skin—Nay, help,

sir—

That look like frozen dish-clouts set on end!

Corvino. Or like an old smock’d wall, on which the rain

Ran down in streaks!

Moses. Excellent, sir! speak out:

You may be louder yet; a culverin

Discharged in his ear would hardly bore it.

Corvino. His nose is like a common sewer, still running.

Moses. ’Tis good! And what is his mouth?

Corvino. A very draught.

Moses. O, stop it up——

By no means.

Moses. Pray you, let me:

Faith I could stiffe him rarely with a pillow

As well as any woman that should keep him.

Corvino. Do as you will; but I’ll begone.

Moses. Be so; it is your presence makes him last so long.

Corvino. I pray you use no violence.

Moses. No, sir! why?

Why should you be thus scrupulous, pray you,

sir?

Corvino. Nay, at your discretion.

Moses. Well, good sir, be gone.

Corvino. I will not trouble him now to take my pearl.

Moses. Pub! nor your diamond. What a needless care

Is this afflicts you? Is not all here yours?

Am not I here, whom you have made your creature?

That owe my being to you?

Corvino. Grateful Mosca! Thou art my friend, my fellow, my companion,

My partner, and shalt share in all my fortunes.

Moses. Excepting one.

Corvino. What’s that?

Moses. Your gallant wife, sir. [Exit Corvino.]

Now is he gone: we had no other means

To shoot him hence but this.

Volpone. My divine Mosca! Thou hast to-day outgone thyself. Who’s there?

Another knocks.

2 To Corvino, to join in the abuse.

3 Take from Volpone’s hand, which had closed on it.
VOLPONE; OR, THE FOX

I will be troubled with no more. Prepare
Me music, dances, banquets, all delights;
The Turk is not more sensual in his pleasur-

Than will Volpone. [Exit Mos.] Let me see; a
pearl!
A diamond! plate! chequins! Good morning’s purchase.¹

Why, this is better than rob churches, yet;
Or fat, by eating, once a month, a man —

[Re-enter Mosca.]

Who is 't?

Mos. The beauteous Lady Would-be, sir, Wife to the English knight, Sir Politic Would-be,
(This is the style, sir, is directed me,) ²
Hath sent to know how you have slept to-night,
And if you would be visited?

Volp. Not now:

Some three hours hence.

Mos. I told the squire² so much.

Volp. When I am high with mirth and wine;

Then then:

'Fore heaven, I wonder at the desperate valour
Of the bold English, that they dare let loose
Their wives to all encounters!

Mos. Sir, this knight
Had not his name for nothing, he is politic,
And knows, how'er his wife affect strange airs,
She hath not yet the face to be dishonest:

But had she Signior Corvino’s wife’s face —

Volp. Hath she so rare a face?

Mos. O, sir, the wonder,
The blazing star of Italy! a wench
Of the first year, a beauty ripe as harvest!
Whose skin is whiter than a swan all over,

Than silver, snow, or lilies; a soft lip,
Would tempt you to eternity of kissing!

And flesh that melteth in the touch to blood!
Bright as your gold, and lovely as your gold!

Volp. Why had not I known this before?

Mos. Alas, sir, ¹¹
Myself but yesterday discover’d it.

Volp. How might I see her?

Mos. O, not possible;

She’s kept as warily as is your gold;

Never does come abroad, never takes air
But at a windore. All her looks are sweet,

As the first grapes or cherries, and are watch’d
As near as they are.

Volp. I must see her.

Mos. There is a guard of ten spies thick upon her,
All his whole household, each of which is set
Upon his fellow, and have all their charge.

When he goes out, when he comes in, examin’d.

Volp. I will go see her, though but at her windore.

Mos. In some disguise then.

Volp. That is true; I must Maintain mine own shape still the same: we’ll think.

[Exeunt.]

ACT II

SCENE I.⁵

[Enter] Sir Politic Would-be, and Pere-Grine.

Sir P. Sir, to a wise man, all the world’s his soil:

It is not Italy, nor France, nor Europe,

That must bound me, if my fates call me forth.

Yet I protest, it is no salt desire

Of seeing countries, shifting a religion,

Nor any disaffection to the state

Where I was bred, and unto which I owe

My dearest plots, hath brought me out, much less

That idle, antique, stale, grey-headed project

Of knowing men’s minds and manners, with Ulysses!

But a peculiar humour of my wife’s

Laid for this height of Venice, to observe,

To quote,⁴ to learn the language, and so forth —

I hope you travel, sir, with licence?

Per. Yes.

Sir P. I dare the safeliers converse — How long, sir,

Since you left England?

Per. Seven weeks.

Sir P. So lately!

You have not been with my lord ambassador? ¹⁰

Per. Not yet, sir. [climate?]

Sir P. Pray you, what news, sir, vents your

I heard last night a most strange thing reported

By some of my lord’s followers, and I long

To hear how’t will be seconded.

Per. What was’t, sir?

Sir P. Marry, sir, of a raven that should build

In a ship royal of the king’s.

Per. [Aside.] This fellow,

Does he gull me, trow? or is gull’d? Your name, sir?

Sir P. My name is Politic Would-be.

Per. [Aside.] O, that speaks him. ¹⁵⁰

Sir P. A poor knight, sir.

Per. Your lady

Lies here in Venice, for intelligence

Of tires and fashions, and behaviour,

Among the courtesans? The fine Lady Would-be?

Sir P. Yes, sir; the spider and the bee ofttimes

Suck from one flower.

Per. Good Sir Politic,

I cry you mercy; I have heard much of you:
’Tis true, sir, of your raven.

Sir P. On your knowledge?

Per. Yes, and your lion’s whelping in the Tower.

Sir P. Another whelp! ¹⁶

Per. Another, sir.

house. ² To make note of.

³ A lion is recorded by Stow to have been born in the Tower of London, Aug. 5, 1604, the first born in captivity in England.

Sir P. Now heaven! 23
What prodigies be these? The fires at Berwick!
And the new star! These things concurring,
Strange, and full ofomen! Saw you these meteors?
Per. I did, sir.
Sir P. Fearful! Pray you, sir, confirm me,
Were there three porpoises seen above the bridge,
As they give out?
Per. Six, and a sturgeon, sir.
Sir P. I am astonished.
Per. Nay, sir, be not so;
I'll tell you a greater prodigy than these.
Sir P. What should these things portend?
Per. The very day (Let me be sure) that I put forth from London,
There was a whale discover'd in the river, 46
As high as Woolwich, that had waited there,
Few know how many months, for the subversion
Of the Stode fleet.
Sir P. Is't possible? Believe it,
'Twas either sent from Spain, or the archduke's: 60
Spinola's whale, upon my life, my credit!
Will they not leave these projects? Worthy sir,
Some other news.
Per. Faith, Stone the fool is dead,
And they do lack a tavern fool extremely.
Sir P. Is Mass Stone dead? 65
Per. He's dead, sir; why, I hope you thought him not immortal?—[Aside.] O, this knight,
Were he well known, would be a precious thing
To fit our English stage: he that should write
But such a fellow, should be thought to feign
Extremely, if not maliciously.
Sir P. Stone dead! 70
Per. Dead.—Lord! how deeply, sir, you apprehend it!
He was no kinman to you?
Sir P. That I know of.
Well! that same fellow was an unknown fool.
Per. And yet you knew him, it seems?
Sir P. I did so, sir,
I knew him one of the most dangerous heads 75
Living within the state, and so I held him.
Per. Indeed, sir?
Sir P. While he liv'd, in action,
He has receiv'd weekly intelligence,
Upon my knowledge, out of the Low Countries,
For all parts of the world, in cabbages; 80
And those dispense'd again to ambassadors,
In oranges, musk-melons, apricots,
Lemons, pome-citrons, and such-like; sometimes
In Colchester oysters, and your Selsey cockles.
Per. You make me wonder.
Sir P. O, sir, upon my knowledge, 85
Nay, I've observ'd him, at your public ordinary,
Take his advertisement 1 from a traveller,
A conceal'd statesman, in a trencher of meat;
And instantly, before the meal was done,
Convey an answer in a tooth-pick.

1 Information.

Per. Strange! 90
How could this be, sir?
Sir P. Why, the meat was cut
So like his character, and so laid as he Must easily read the cipher.
Per. I have heard,
He could not read, sir.
Sir P. So 't was given out,
In policy, 'by those that did employ him:
But he could read, and had your languages,
And to 't, as sound a nodde— 95
Per. I have heard, sir,
That your baboons were spies, and that they were
A kind of subtle nation near to China.
Sir P. Ay, ay, your Mamluchi. Faith, they had Their hand in a French plot or two; but they Were so extremely giv'n to women, as
They made discovery of all: yet I
Had my addivces here, on Wednesday last,
From one of their own coat, they were returned;
Made their relations, as the fashion is, 100
And now stand fair for fresh employment.
Per. [Aside.] Heart! This Sir Pol will be ignorant of nothing.—
It seems, sir, you know all.
Sir P. Not all, sir; but I have some general notions. I do love
To note and to observe: though I live out,
Free from the active torrent, yet I'd mark
The currents and the passages of things
For mine own private use; and know the ebbs
And flows of state.
Per. Believe it, sir, I hold myself in no small tie 2 unto my fortunes,
For casting me thus luckily upon you,
Whose knowledge, if your bounty equal it,
May do me great assistance, in instruction
For my behaviour, and my bearing, which
Is yet so rude and raw.
Sir P. Why? came you forth
Empty of rules for travel? 105
Per. Faith, I had
Some common ones, from out that vulgar grammar,
Which he that cri'd Italian to me, taught me.
Sir P. Why, this is it that spoils all our brave
Bloods,
Trusting our hopeful gentry unto pedants,
Fellows of outside, and mere barke. You seem
To be a gentleman of ingenious race:—
I not profess it, but my fate hath been
To be, where I have been consulted with, 110
In this high kind, touching some great men's Sons.
Persons of blood and honour.— 115
Per. Who be these, sir?

SCENE II.

[To them enter] MOSCA and NANO [disguised, followed by persons with materials for erecting a stage.]

MOS. Under that window, there 't must be. The same.

1 Obligation.
Sir P. Fellows, to mount a bank. Did your instructor
In the dear tongues, never discourse to you
Of the Italian mountebanks?
Per.
Sir P. Why, here shall you see one.
Per. They are quacksalvers, fellows that live by venting oils and drugs. Sir P. Was that the character he gave you of them? Per. As I remember.
Sir P. Pity his ignorance. They are the only knowing men of Europe! Great general scholars, excellent physicians, Most admirable statesmen, profess favourite Cabinet counsellors to the greatest princes; The only language men of all the world! Per. And, I have heard, they are most Lewd impostors; Made all of terms and shreds; no less beliers Of great men's favours, than their own vile medicines; Which they will utter upon monstrous oaths; Selling that drug for twopence, ere they part, Which they have valued at twelve crowns before.
Sir P. Sir, calumnies are answer'd best with silence. Yourself shall judge.—Who is it mounts, my friends?
Mos. Scoito of Mantua, 2 sir.
Sir P. Is 't he? Nay, then I'll proudly promise, sir, you shall behold Another man than has been phantastick to you. I wonder yet, that he should mount his bank, Sir. Here in this nook, that has been won't appear In face of the Piazza!—Here he comes.

[Enter Volpone, disguised as a mountebank Doctor, and followed by a crowd of people.]

Volp. Mount, zany. [To Nano.]
Mob. Follow, follow, follow, follow, follow!
Sir P. See how the people follow him! he's a man
May write ten thousand crowns in bank here. Note,

[Volpone mounts the stage.]
Mark but his gesture:—I do use to observe The state he keeps in getting up.
Per.
Volp. "Most noble gentlemen, and my worthy patrons! It may seem strange that I, your Scoito Mantuan, who was ever wont to fix my bank in the face of the public Piazza, near the shelter of the Portico to the Procuratie, should now, after eight months' absence from this illustrious city of Venice, humbly retire myself into an obscure nook of the Piazza." Sir P. Did not I now object the same?
Per.
Volp. "Let me tell you: I am not, as your Lombard proverb saith, cold on my feet; or content to part with my commodities at a cheaper rate than I am accustomed: look not for it. Nor that the calumnious reports of that impudent detractor, and shame to our profession (Alessandro Buttone, I mean), who gave out, in public, I was condemn'd a sforzato to the galleys, for poisoning the Cardinal Bambor's—cook, hath at all attach'd, much less dejected me. No, no, worthy gentlemen; to tell you true, I cannot endure to see the rabble of the ground carillian, that spread their cloaks on the pavement, as if they meant to do feats of activity, and then come in lamely, with their mouldy tales out of Boccaccio, like stale Tabarin, the fabulist: some of them discoursing their travels, and of their tedious capricious activity in the Turk's galleys, when, indeed, were the truth known, they were the Christian's galleys, where very temperately they eat bread, and drunk water, as a wholesome penance, enjoin'd them by their confessors, for base pilferies."

Sir P. Note but his bearing, and contempt of these.

Volp. "These turdy-fac'd-nasty-paty-lousy-fartical rogues, with one poor groat's worth of unprepared antimony, finely wrapped up in several scariccios, are able, very well, to kill their twenty a week, and play; yet these meagre, starv'd spirits, who have half stop'd the organs of their minds with earthy oppilations, want not their favourers among your shrivell'd salad-eating artizans, who are overjoy'd that they may have their half-p'rth of physic; though it purge 'em into another world, 't makes no matter."

Sir P. Excellent! ha' you heard better language, sir?

Volp. "Well, let 'em go. And, gentlemen, honourable gentlemen, know, that for this time, our bank, being thus removed from the clamours of the canagia shall be the scene of pleasure and delight; for I have nothing to sell, little or nothing to sell."

Sir P. I told you, sir, his end.

Per. You did so, sir.

Volp. "I protest, I, and my six servants, are not able to make of this precious liquor so fast as it is fetch'd away from my lodging by gentlemen of your city; strangers of the Terra-firma; worshipful merchants; ay, and senators too: who, ever since my arrival, have detain'd me to their uses, by their splendid Liberality. And worthily; for, what avails your rich man to have his magazines stuff with moscadell, or of the purest grape, when his physicians prescribe him, on pain of death, to drink nothing but water coasted with aniseeds? O [sic] health! health! the blessing of the rich! the riches of the poor! who can buy thee at too dear a rate, since there is no enjoying this world out of thee? Be not then so sparing of your purses, honourable gentlemen, as to abridge the natural course of life —

Per. You see his end.

Sir P. Ay, is 't not good?

Volp. "For when a humid flux, or catarrh, by the mutability of air, falls from your head into an arm or shoulder, or any other part; take you a bucket, or your chequin of gold, and [110] apply to the place affected: see what good effect it can work. No, no, 't is this blessed unguento; this rare extraction, that hath only power to disperse all malignant humours, that proceed either of hot, cold, moist, or windy causes —"

Per. I would he had put in dry too.

Sir P. Pray you observe.

Volp. "To fortify the most indigest and crude stomach, ay, were it of one that, through extreme weakness, vomited blood, applying only [120] a warm napkin to the place, after the suction and fricace; — for the vertigine in the head, putting but a drop into your nostrils, likewise behind the ears; a most sovereign and ap- prov'd remedy; the mal caduco, cramps, convulsions, paralysies, epilepsyes, tremor cordicis, retir'd nerves, ill vapours of the spleen, stoppings of the liver, the stone, the strangury, hernia ventosa, illica passio; stops a dysenturia immediately; easeth the torsion of the small guts; and cures melancholia hystericata, being taken and appli'd, according to my printed receipt. (Pointing to his bill and his glass.) For this is the physician, this the medicine; this counsell, this cure; this gives the direction, [135] this works the effect; and, in sum, both together may be term'd an abstract of the theoretic and practic in the Aescluvian art. 'T will cost you eight crowns. And, — Zan Fritada, prithee sing a verse extempore in honour of it."

Sir P. How do you like him, sir?

Per. Most strangely, I!

Sir P. Is not his language rare?

Per. But alchemy, I never heard the like; or Broughton's 2 books.

[NANO SINGS.]

Had old Hippocrates, or Galen,
That to their books put medicines all in,
But known this secret, they had never
(Of which they will be guilty ever)

Been murderers of so much paper,
Or wasted many a hurtless tape;
No Indian drug had ever been fam'd,
Tobacco, saasfras not nam'd;

both it and I am at your service. I ask you not as the value of the thing, for then I should de-[245]mand of you a thousand crowns, so the Cardinals Montalto, Fernese, the great Duke of Tus-cany, my gossip,1 with divers other princes, have given me; but I despise money. Only to show my affection to you, honourable gentle-[239]men, and your illustrious State here, I have neglected the messages of these princes, mine own offices, fram'd my journey hither, only to present you with the fruits of my travels.—[241]

Tune your voices once more to the touch of your instruments, and give the honourable assembly some delightful recreation."

Per. What monstrous and most painful circumstances
Is here, to get some three or four gazettes,2
Some threepence is the whole! for that 'twill come to.

[NANO sings.]
You that would last long, list to my song,
Make no more coal, but buy of this oil.
Would you ever fair and young?
Tart of palate? quick of ear?
Sharp of sight? of nostril clear?
Moist of hand and light of foot?
Or, I will come nearer to it;
Would you live free from all diseases?
Yet fright all aches3 from your bones?
Here 's a medicin'e for the nose.

Volp. "Well, I am in a humour at this time

To make a present of the small quantity my coffer contains; to the rich in courtesy, and [246]to the poor for God's sake. Wherefore now mark: I ask'd you six crowns; and six crowns, at other times, you have paid me; you shall not give me six crowns, nor five, nor four, nor three, nor two, nor one; nor half a ducat; no, nor a[240]dozen mornings.6 Sixpence it will cost you, or six hundred pound — except no lesser price, for, by the banner of my front, I will not make a bagatine, — that I will have, only, a pledge of your loves, to carry something from amongst you, to show I am not contem'd by you. Therefore, now, toss your handkerchiefs, cheerfully, cheerfully; and be advertis'd, that the first heroic spirit that desigs to grace me with a handkerchief, I will give it a little remembrance of [249]something beside, shall please it better than if I had presented it with a double piolet.7

Per. Will you be that heroic spark, Sir Pol?

Volp. "Lady, I kiss your bounty; and for [245]this timely grace you have done your poor Scoto of Mantua, I will return you, over and above my oil, a secret of that high and inestimable nature, shall make you for ever enamour'd on that minute, wherein your eye first descended. [249]on so mean, yet not altogether to be despis'd, an object. Here is a powder conceall'd in this paper, of which, if I should speak to the worth, nine thousand volumes were but as one page, that page as a line, that line as a word; [247]so short is this pilgrimage of man (which some call life) to the expressing of it. Would I reflect on the price? Why, the whole world is but as an empire, that empire as a province, that province as a bank, that bank as a private purse [249]to the purchase of it. I will only tell you; it is the powder that made Venus a goddess (given her by Apollo), that kept her perpetually young, clear'd her wrinkles, firm'd her guns, fill'd her skin, colour'd her hair; from her deriv'd to Helen, and at the sack of Troy unfortunately lost: till now, in this our age, it was as happily recover'd, by a studious antiquary, ont of some ruins of Asia, who sent a moiety of it to the court of France (but much [249]sophisticated), wherewith the ladies there now colour their hair. The rest, at this present, remains with me; extracted to a quintessence: so that, wherever it but touches, in youth it perpetually preserves, in age restores the complection; sets your teeth, did they dance like virginal jacks, firm as a wall: makes them white as ivory, that were black as — [247]

SCENE III.10

[To them enter CORVINO.

Cor. Spite o' the devil, and my shame! come down here;

Come down! — No house but mine to make your scene?

Signor Flaminio, will you down, sir? down?
What, is my wife your Francisca, sir?
No windows on the whole house, he,
To make your properties, but mine? but mine?
Beats away [VOLPONE, NANO, etc.]

Heart! ere to-morrow I shall be new christen'd,
And called the Pantalone di Besogniosi,11

About the town.

Per. What should this mean, Sir Pol?

Sir P. Some trick of state, believe it; I will home.

Per. It may be some design on you.

Sir P. I know not.

I'll stand upon my guard.

Sir P. It is your best, sir.

Per. This three weeks, all my advices, all my letters,
They have been intercepted.

Per. Indeed, sir!

Best have a care.

Sir P. Nay, so I will.

Scene IV.

[Enter] Volpone, Mosca.

Volp. O, I am wounded!

Mos. Where, sir?

Volp. Not without; Those blows were nothing: I could bear them ever.

But angry Cupid, bolting from her eyes, Hath shot himself into me like a flame; Where now he flings about his burning heat, As in a furnace an ambitious fire Whose vent is stopt. The fight is all within me. I cannot live, except thou help me, Mosca; My liver melts, and I, without the hope Of some soft air from her refreshing breath, Am but a heap of cinders.

Mos. 'Las, good sir, Would you had never seen her!

Volp. Hadst never told me of her!

Mos. Nay, would thou didst confess I was unfortunate, And you unhappy; but I'm bound in conscience, No less than duty, to effect my best To your release of torment, and I will, sir.

Volp. Dear Mosca, shall I hope?

Mos. Sir, more than dear, I will not bid you to despair of sight Within a human compass.

Volp. O, there spoke my better angel. Mosca, take my keys, Gold, plate, and jewels, all 's at thy devotion; Employ them how thou wilt: nay, coin me too.

So thou in this but crown my longings, Mosca; Use but your patience.

Volp. So I have.

Mos. I doubt not.

Volp. Desire success to your desires.

Mos. Nay, then, I will not spend me of my late disguise. If you can horn him, sir, you need not. True:

Besides, I never meant him for my heir. Is not the colour o' my beard and eyebrows To make me known?

Mos. No jot.

Volp. I did it well.

Mos. So well, would I could follow you in mine,

With half the happiness! and yet I would Escape your epilogue. But were they gull'd

With a belief that I was Scoto?

Mos. Sir, Scoto himself could hardly have distinguish'd! I have not time to flatter you now; we'll part: And as I prosper, so applaud my art. [Exeunt.]

Scene V.

[Enter] Corvino, [with his sword in his hand, dragging in] Cellio.

Corv. Death of mine honour, with the city's fool! A juggling, tooth-drawing, prating mountebank! And at a public windire! where, whilst he With his strain'd action, and his dole of faces, To his drug-lecture draws your itching ears, A crew of old, unmarrid, noted lechers, Stood leering up like satyrs: and you smile Most graciously, and fan your favours forth, To give your hot spectators satisfaction! What, was your mountebank their call? their whistle?

Or were you enamour'd on his copper rings, His saffron jewel, with the toad-stone in 't, Or his embroider'd suit, with the cope-stitch, Made of a hearse cloth? or his old tile-feather? Or his starch'd beard! Well, you shall have him, yes!

He shall come home, and minister unto you The frieze for the mother. Or, let me see, I think you 'd rather mount; would you not mount?

Why, if you 'll mount, you may; yes, truly, you may!

And so you may be seen, down to the foot. Get you a sitter, Lady Vanity, And be a dealer with the virtuous man; Make one. I'll but protest myself a cuckold, And save your dowry. I'm a Dutchman, I! For if you thought me an Italian, You would be damn'd ere you did this, you whore!

Thou 'dst tremble to imagine that the murder Of father, mother, brother, all thy race, Should follow, as the subject of my justice.

Cel. Good sir, have patience.

Corv. What couldst thou propose? Less to thyself, than in this heat of wrath, And stung with my dishonour, I should strike This steel into thee, with as many stabs As thou wast gaz'd upon with goatish eyes?

Cel. Alas, sir, be appeas'd! I could not think My being at the windire should more now Move your impatience than other times.

Corv. No! not to seek and entertain a parley With a known knave, before a multitude! You were an actor with your handkerchief, Which he most sweetly kist in the receipt, And might, no doubt, return it with a letter, And point the place where you might meet; Your sister's, Your mother's, or your aunt's might serve the turn.

Cel. Why, dear sir, when do I make these excuses, Or ever stir abroad, but to the church? And that so seldom —

Corv. Well, it shall be less; And thy restraint before was liberty,

1 A room in Volpone's house.
2 I. e. the beating from Corvino.
3 Hysteria.
4 Grimas.
5 Expect.
To what I now decree: and therefore mark me.
First, I will have this bawdy light damnd’
And till’t be done, some two or three yards
I’ll chalk a line; o’er which if thou but chance
To set thy des’rate foot, more hell, more horror,
More wild remorseless rage shall seize on thee,
Than on a conjuror that had heedless left
His circle’s safety ere his devil was laid.
Then here’s a lock which I will hang upon thee.
And, now I think on’t, I will keep thee backwards;
Thy lodging shall be backwards: thy walks backwards;
Thy prospect, all be backwards; and no pleasure;
That thou shalt know but backwards: nay, since you force
My honest nature, know, it is your own,
Being too open, makes me use you thus:
Since you will not contain your subtle nostrils
In a sweet room, but they must sniff the air
Of rank and sweaty passengers. (Knock within.)
One knocks.
Away, and be not seen, pain of thy life;
Nor look toward the windrose; if thou dost—Nay, stay, hear this—let me not prosper,
But I will make thee an anatomy,
Dissect thee mine own self, and read a lecture
Upon thee to the city, and in public.
Away!—

[Enter Servant.]

Who’s there?

*Tis Signior Mosca, sir.

Scene VI.

Corvino. Enter Mosca.

Corv. Let him come in. His master’s dead; there’s yet
Some good to help the bad.—My Mosca, welcome!
I guess your news.

Mos. I fear you cannot, sir.

Corv. Is’t not his death?

Mos. Rather the contrary.

Corv. Not his recovery?

Mos. Yes, sir.

Corv. I am ens’d, i
I am bewitch’d, my crosses meet to vex me.
How? how? how? how?

Mos. Why, sir, with Scoto’s oil;
Corbachio and Voltore brought of it,
Whilst I was busy in an inner room—

Corv. Death! that damnd’ mountebank! but for the law
Now, I could kill the rascal: it cannot be
His oil should have that virtue. Ha’ not I Known him a common rogue, some fiddling in

1 The same.

To the osteria, with a tumbling whore,
And, when he has done all his fore’d tricks, been glad
Of a poor spoonful of dead wine, with flies
in’t?
It cannot be. All his ingredients
Are a sheep’s gall, a roasted bitch’s marrow,
Some few sod earwigs, pounded caterpillars,
A little capon’s grease, and fasting spittle: I know them to a dram.

Mos. I know not, sir;
Some on’t, there, they pour’d into his ears,
Some in his nostrils, and recover’d him;
Applying but the friacie.

Corv. Fox o’ that friacie!
Mos. And since, to seem the more officious
And flatter’ring of his health, there, they have had,
At extreme fees, the college of physicians
Consulting on him, how they might restore
Where one would have a cataplasm of spices,
Another a flay’d ape clapp’d to his breast,
A third would have it a dog, a fourth an oil,
With wild cats’ skins: at last, they all resolv’d
That to preserve him, was no other means
But some young woman must be straight sought out,
Lusty, and full of juice, to sleep by him;
And to this service most unhappily,
And most unwillingly, am I now employ’d,
Which here I thought to pre-acquaint you with,
For your advice, since it concerns you most;
Because I would not do that thing might cross
Your ends, on whom I have my whole dependence, sir;
Yet, if I do it not they may delate
My slackness to my patron, work me out
Of his opinion; and there all your hopes,
Ventures, or whatsoever, are all frustrate
I do but tell you, sir. Besides, they are all
Now striving who shall first present him; therefore—

I could entreat you, briefly conclude somewhat;
Prevent ’em if you can.

Corv. Death to my hopes,
This is my villainous fortune! Best to hire
Some common courtesan.

Mos. Ay, I thought on that, sir;
But they are all so subtle, full of art—
And age again doting and flexible,
So as—I cannot tell—we may, perchance,
Light on a queen may cheat us all.

Corv. ’Tis true.

Mos. No, no: it must be one that has no tricks, sir,
Some simple thing, a creature made unto it;
Some wench you may command. Ha’ you no kinswoman?

Gods so—Think, think, think, think, thik, think, think, think, sir.
One o’ the doctors offer’d there his daughter.

Corv. How!

Mos. Yes, Signior Lupo, the physician.

Corv. His daughter!

1 The inn.
2 Poultrice.
3 Boiled.
4 Accuse.
5 Prepared.
Mos. And a virgin, sir. Why, alas, he knows the state of his body, what it is:
That nought can warm his blood, sir, but a few ferments.
Nor any incantation raise his spirit:
A long forgetfulness hath seiz'd that part.
Besides, sir, who shall know it? Some one or two —
Corv. I pray thee give me leave. [Walks aside.]
If any man
But I had had this luck — The thing in't self,
I know, is nothing. — Wherefore should not
I
As well command my blood and my affections
As this dull doctor? In the point of honour,
The cases are all one of wife and daughter.
Mos. [Aside.] I hear him coming.
Corv. She shall do 't: 'tis done.
Slight! if this doctor, who is not engag'd,
Unless 't be for his counsel, which is nothing,
Offer his daughter, what should I, that am
So deeply in? I will prevent him: Wretch!
Covetous wretch! — Mosca, I have determin'd.
Mos. How, sir? [wot of]
Corv. We'll make all sure. The party you Shall be mine own wife, Mosca.
Mos. Sir, the thing,
But that I would not seem to counsel you,
I should have motion'd to you, at the first:
And make your count, you have cut all their threats,
Why, 'tis directly taking a possession!
And in his next fit, we may let him go.
'Tis but to pull the pillow from his head,
And he is throttled: it had been done before
But for your scrupulous doubts.
Corv. Ay, a plague on 't,
My conscience fools my wit! Well, I'll be brief,
And so be thou, lest they should be before us.
Go home, prepare him, tell him with what zeal
And willingness I do it: swear it was
On the first hearing, as thou mayst do, truly,
Mine own free motion.
Mos. Sir, I warrant you,
I'll so possess him with it, that the rest
Of his starv'd clients shall be banish'd all;
And only you receiv'd. But come not, sir,
Until I send, for I have something else to ripen for your good, you must not know 't.
Corv. But do not you forget to send now.
Mos. Fear not. [Exit.]

[Scene VII.]

Corvino.
Corv. Where are you, wife? My Celia! wife!
[Enter Celia.]

— What, blubbering?
Come, dry those tears. I think thou thought'st me earnest;

Mos. Ha! by this light I talk'd so but to try thee:
Methinks, the lightness of the occasion
Should have confirm'd thee. Come, I am not jealous.

Clo. No?
Corv. Faith I am not, I, nor never was;
It is a poor unprofitable humour.
Do not I know, if women have a will,
They'll do 'gainst all the watches o' the
world.
And that the sincerest spies are tam'd with gold?
Tut, I am confident in thee, thou shalt see 't; u
And see I'll give thee cause too, to believe it.
Come kiss me. Go, and make thee ready
straight,
In all thy best attire, thy choicest jewels,
Put 'em all on, and, with 'em, thy best looks:
We are invited to a solemn feast,
At old Volpone's, where it shall appear
How far I am free from jealousy or fear.
[Exeunt.]

ACT III

SCENE I

[Enter Mosca.
Mos. I fear I shall begin to grow in love
With my dear self, and my most prosperous parts,
They do so spring and burgeon; I can feel
A whimsy in my blood: I know not how,
Success hath made me wanton. I could skip
Out of my skin now, like a subtle snake,
I am so limber, O! your parasite
Is a most precious thing, dropt from above,
Not bred amongst clods and clodhoppers, here on earth.
I muse, the mystery was not made a science,
It is so liberally profest! Almost
All the wise world is little else, in nature,
But parasites or sub-parasites. And yet
I mean not those that have your bare town-art,
To know who's fit to feed them; have no
house,
No family, no care, and therefore mould
Tales for men's ears, to bait that sense; or get Kitchen-invention, and some stale receipts
To please the belly, and the groin; nor those,
With their court dog-tricks, that can fawn and fleer,
Make their revenue out of legs and faces,
Echo my lord, and lick away a moth:
But your fine elegant rascal, that can rise
And stoop, almost together, like an arrow;
Shoot through the air as nimbly as a star;
Turn short as doth a swallow; and be here,
And there, and here, and yonder, all at once;
Present to any humour, all occasion;
And change a visor swifter than a thought!
This is the creature had the art born with him;
Toils not to learn it, but doth practise it
Out of most excellent nature: and such sparks
Are the true parasites, others but their zanies.

1 Coming into my trap.  2 Proposed.  3 Reckon on it.  4 Outdone them all.  5 The same.  6 A street.  7 Profession.  8 Bows.
SCENE II. 1

VOLPONE; OR, THE FOX 301

MOSCA. [Enter] BONARIO.

Who's this? Bonario, old Corbaccio's son? The person I was bound to seek. Fair sir, you are happily met.

Bon. That cannot be by thee.

Mos. Why, sir? [leave me: Nay, pray thee know thy way, and I would be loth to interchange discourse with such a mate 2 as thou art.

Bon. Courteous sir, scorn not my poverty.

Mos. Baseness!

Bon. Ay; answer me, is not thy sloth sufficient argument? thy flattery? Thy means of feeding?

Mos. Heaven be good to me! These imputations are too common, sir, and easily stuck on virtue when she is poor. You are unequal 3 to me, and however your sentence may be righteous, yet you are not.

That, ere you know me, thus proceed in court:

St. Mark bear witness 'gainst you, 4 it is inhuman.

[Weeps.]

Bon. [Aside.] What! does he weep? the sign is soft and good:
I do repent me that I was so harsh.

Mos. 'Tis true, that, swain 5 by strong necessity, I am enforc'd to eat my careful bread.
With too much obsequy; 'tis true, beside, That I am fain to spin mine own poor raiment.
Out of my mere observance, being not born To a free fortune: but that I have done 6
Base offices, in rending friends asunder,
Dividing families, betraying counsels,
Whisp'ring false lies, or mining men with praises,
Train'd their credulity with perjuries,
Curing their chaste, and being in love
With mine own tender ease, but would not rather Prove the most rugged and laborious course,
That might redeem my present estimation,
Let me here perish, in all hope of goodness.

[Aside.] This cannot be a personated passion.

I was to blame, so to mistake thy nature; Frith, forgive me; and speak out thy business.

Mos. Sir, it concerns you; and though I may seem
At first to make a main offence in manners,
And in my gratitude unto my master,
Yet for the pure love which I bear all right,
And hatred of the wrong, I must reveal it.
This very hour your father is in purpose to disinherit you —

Mos. How!

Bon. And thrust you forth,

As a mere stranger to his blood: 'tis true, sir,
The work no way engageath me, but as 45
I claim an interest in the general state
Of goodness and true virtue, which I hear
To abound in you; and for which mere respect,
Without a second aim, sir, I have done it. 50

Bon. This tale hath lost thee much of the late trust
Thou hadst with me; it is impossible,
I know not how to lead it any thought,
My father should be so unnatural.

Mos. It is a confidence that well becomes Your piety; and form'd, no doubt, it is
From your own simple innocence: which makes
Your wrong more monstrous and abhor'd. But, sir,
I now will tell you more. This very minute,
It is, or will be doing; and if you 56
Shall be but pleas'd to go with me, I'll bring you,
I dare not say where you shall see, but where
Your ear shall be a witness of the deed;
Hear yourself written bastard, and profess
The common issue of the earth.

Mos. Sir, if I do it not, draw your just sword,
And score your vengeance on my front and face;
Mark me your villain: you have too much wrong,
And I do suffer for you, sir. My heart 60
Weeps blood in anguish —

Bon. Lead; I follow thee. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III. 4

VOLPONE, NANO, ANDROGYNO, CASTRONE.

VOLPONE. Mosca stays long, methinks. — Bring forth your sports,
And help to make the wretched time more sweet.

NANO. "Dwarf, fool, and enmich, well met here we be.
A question it were now, whether of us three,
Being all the known delicacies of a rich man, 6
In pleasing him, claim the precedence can?"

CAS. "I claim for myself."

AND. "And so doth the fool."

NANO. "'Tis foolish indeed: let me set you both to school.
First for your dwarf, he's little and witty,
And everything, as it is little, is pretty; 7
Else why do men say to a creature of my shape,
So soon as they see him, 'Tis a pretty little ape?"

And why a pretty ape, but for pleasing imitation
Of greater men's actions, in a ridiculous fashion? 8

Beside, this feat, 5 body of mine doth not crave
Half the meat, drink, and cloth, one of your bulks will have.
Admit your fool's face be the mother of laughter,

1 The same. 2 Fellow. 3 Unfair. 4 A room in Volpone's house. 5 Neatly made.
Yet, for his brain, it must always come after:
And though that do feed him, it's a pitiful case,
His body is beholding to such a bad face."

One knocks.
Volp. Who's there? My couche; away! look!
Nan. [Within.] It is the beauteous madam —
Volp. Would-be — is it?
Nan. The same.
Volp. Now torment on me! Squire her in;  30
For she will enter, or dwell here for ever:
Nay, quickly. [Retires to his couch.] That my fit were past! I fear
A second hell too, that my loathing this
Will quite expel my appetite to the other:
Would she were taking now her tedious leave.
Lord, how it threats me what I am to suffer!

SCENE IV.
[To him enter] Nano, Lady Politic Would-be.

Lady P. I thank you, good sir. Pray you signify Unto your patron I am here. — This band
Shows not my neck enough. — I trouble you, sir;
Let me request you bid one of my women
Come hither to me. In good faith, I am drest 4
Most favourably to-day! It is no matter:
'Tis well enough.

[Enter 1 Waiting-woman.]

Look, see these petulant things,
How they have done this!
Volp. [Aside.] I do feel the fever
Ent'ring in at mine ears; O, for a charm,
To fright it hence!
Lady P. Come nearer; is this curl 10
In his right place, or this? Why is this higher Than all the rest? You ha' not wash'd your eyes yet!
Or do they not stand even i' your head?
Where is your fellow? call her. [Exit 1 Woman.]
Nan. Now, St. Mark
Deliver us! anon she'll beat her women,
Because her nose is red.

[Re-enter 1 with 2 Woman.]

Lady P. I pray you view
This fire, 2 forsooth: are all things apt, or no?
1 Wom. One hair a little here sticks out, forsooth.
Lady P. Does 't so, forsooth! and where was your dear sight,
When it did so, forsooth! What now! bird-eye'd?  20
And you, too? Pray you, both approach and mend it.
Now, by that light I raise you're not ashamed!
I, that have preach'd these things so oft unto you,
Read you the principles, arg'd all the grounds,
Disputed every fitness, every grace,

Call'd you to counsel of so frequent dressings —
Nan. (Aside.) More carefully than of your fame or honour.

Lady P. Made you acquainted what an ample dowry,
The knowledge of these things would be unto you,
Able alone to get you noble husbands
At your return: and you thus to neglect it!
Besides, you seeing what a curious nation
Th' Italians are, what will they say of me?
"The English lady cannot dress herself."
Here's a fine imputation to our country!
Well, go your ways, and stay i' the next room.
This fucus 3 was too coarse too; it's no matter.—
Good sir, you'll give 'em entertainment?
Volp. [Exeunt Nano and Waiting-women.]

Volp. The storm comes toward me. [pens?]
Lady P. [Goes to the couch.] How does my Volp.
Volp. Troubl'd with noise, I cannot sleep; I dreamt
That a strange fury ent'red now my house,
And, with the dreadful tempest of her breath,
Did cleave my roof asunder.

Lady P. Believe me, and I
Had the most fearful dream, could I remember 't — Volp. [Aside.] Out on my fate! I have given her the occasion
How to torment me: she will tell me hers.
Lady P. Methought the golden mediocrity,
Polite, and delicate —
Volp. O, if you do love me,
No more: I sweat, and suffer, at the mention
Of any dream; feel how I tremble yet.

Lady P. Alas, good soul! the passion of the heart.
Seed-pearl were good now, boil'd with syrup of apples,
Tincture of gold, and coral, citron-pills,
Your elecampane 5 root, myrobalans 6 —
Volp. Ay me, I have ta'en a grasshopper by the wing! 7

Lady P. Burnt silk and amber. You have muscadel
Good i' the house —
Volp. You will not drink, and part?
Lady P. No, fear not that. I doubt we shall not get
Some English saffron, half a dram would serve;
Your sixteen cloves, a little musk, dried mints;
Bugloss, and barley-meal —
Volp. [Aside.] She's in again!
Before I feign'd diseases, now I have one.
Lady P. And these appli'd with a red scarlet cloth.
Volp. [Aside.] Another flood of words! a very torrent!

Lady P. Shall I, sir, make you a poltice?
Volp. No, no, no.
I'm very well, you need prescribe no more.

1 The same.  2 Head-dress.  3 Short-sighted(?)  4 Cupid
5 Astringent kind of plant.  7 "The faster you hold them by the wings, the louder they screech."
Lady P. I have a little studied physic; but now
I'm all for music, save, i' the forenoons,
An hour or two for painting. I would have
A lady, indeed, to have all letters and arts, 20
Be to discourse, to write, to paint,
But principal, as Plato holds, your music:
And so does wise Pythagoras, I take it,
Is your true rapture, when there is concet:
In face, in voice, and clothes: and is, indeed, 75
Our sex's chiefest ornament.
Volp. The poet
As old in time as Plato, and, as knowing,
Says that your highest female grace is silence.
Lady P. Which of your poets? Petrarck, or Tasso, or Dante?
Guarini? Ariosto? Aretime?
Cicero di Hadria? I have read them all.
Volp. [Aside.] Is everything a cause to my destruction?
Lady P. I think I have two or three of 'em about me.
Volp. [Aside.] The sun, the sea, will sooner both stand still.
Than her eternal tongue! nothing can sace it.
Lady P. Here's Pastor Fido —
Volp. [Aside.] Profess obstinate silence;
That's now my safest.
Lady P. All our English writers,
I mean such as are happy in th' Italian,
Will deign to steal out of this author, mainly;
Almost as much as from Montagné! 90
He has so modern and facile a vein,
Fitting the time, and catching the court EAR! 96
Your Petrarck is more passionate, yet he,
In days of setting down, trusted 'em with much:
Dante is hard, and few can understand him. 96
But for a desperate wit, there's Aretime;
Only his pictures are a little obscene —
You mark me not.
Volp. Alas, my mind's perturb'd.
Lady P. Why, in such cases, we must enre ourselves,
Make use of our philosophy —
Volp. Oh me! 106
Lady P. And as we find our passions do rebel,
Encounter them with reason, or divert 'em,
By giving scope unto some other humour
Of lesser danger: as, in poltie bodies,
There's nothing more doth overwhelm the judgment.
And cloud the understanding, than too much
Settling and fixing, and, as 'twere, subsiding
Upon one object. For the incorporating
Of these same outward things, into that part
Which we call mental, leaves some certain faeces 110
That stop the organs, and, as Plato says,
Assassinate our knowledge.
Volp. [Aside.] Now, the spirit
Of patience help me!
Lady P. Come, in faith, I must Visit you more a days; and make you well:
Laugh and be lusty.

Volp. [Aside.] My good angel save me! 115
Lady P. There was but one sole man in all the world
With whom I e'er could sympathise; and he Would lie you, often, three, four hours together
To hear me speak; and be sometime so rapt,
As he would answer me quite from the purpose, 130
Like you, and you are like him, just. I'll discourse,
An't be but only, sir, to bring you asleep,
How we did spend our time and loves together,
For some six years.
Volp. Oh, oh, oh, oh, oh, oh!
Lady P. For we were coaeantes, and brought up —
Volp. Some power, some fate, some fortune rescue me!

SCENE V. 3
[To them enter] Mosca.
Mos. God save you, madam!
Lady P. Good sir.
Volp. Mosca! welcome,
Welcome to my redemption.
Mos. Why, sir?
Volp. Oh, would of this my torture, quickly, there;
My madam with the everlasting voice:
The bells, in time of pestilence, never made
Like noise, or were in that perpetual motion!
The Cook-pit comes not near it. All my house,
But now, steam'd like a bath with her thick breath,
A lawyer could not have been heard; nor scarce
Another woman, such a hail of words
She has let fall. For hell's sake, rid her hence.
Mos. Has she presented?
Volp. Oh, I do not care;
I'll take her absence upon any price,
With any loss.
Mos. Madam
Lady P. I ha' brought your patron
A toy, a cap here, of mine own work.
Mos. 'T is well. 16
I had forgot to tell you I saw yo' knight
Where you would little think it. —
Lady P. Where? 20
Mos. Marry,
Where yet, if you make haste, you may apprehend him,
Rowing upon the water in a gondole,
With the most cunning courtesan of Venice.
Lady P. Is 't true?
Mos. Pursue 'em, and believe your eyes:
Leave me to make your gift.
[Exit Lady P. hastily.
I knew 't would take:
For, lightly, they that use themselves most licence,
Are still most jealous.
Volp. Mosca, hearty thanks
For thy quick fiction, and delivery of me. 25
Now to my hopes, what sayst thou?

1 Harmony.

2 Of the same age.
3 The same.
[Re-enter Lady P. Would-be.]

Lady P. But do you hear, sir? — Volp. Again! I fear a paroxysm. Lady P. Which way Row'd they together? Mos. Toward the Rialto. Lady P. I pray you lend me your dwarf. Your hopes, sir, are like happy blossoms, fair, and promise timely fruit, if you will stay. But the maturing; keep you at your couch, Corbaccio will arrive straight with the will. When he is gone, I'll tell you more. [Exit Lady P.]

Volp. My blood.

My spirits are return'd; I am alive: And, like your wanton gamerste at primero, Whose thought had whisper'd to him, not go less. Methinks I lie, and draw — for an encounter.

SCENE VI. 3

[Enter] Mosca, Bonario.

Mos. Sir, here conceald [Opening a door] you may hear all. But, pray you, Have patience, sir; [One knocks] the same's your father knocks: I am compell'd to leave you. [Exit.]

Bon. Do so. — Yet cannot my thought imagine this a truth. [Goes in.]

SCENE VII. 4

[Enter] Mosca, Corvino, Celia. —

Mos. Death on me! you are come too soon, what meant you? Did not I say I would send?

Cor. Yes, but I fear'd You might forget it, and then they prevent us. Mos. Prevent! [Aside.] Did e'er man haste so for his horns? A courtier would not ply it so for a place. — Well, now there is no helping it, stay here; I'll presently return. [Exit.]

Cor. Where are you, Celia?

You know not wherefore I have brought you hither?

Cel. Not well, except you told me. Cor. Now I will: [They retire to one side.]

[Re-enter Mosca.]

Mos. (to Bonario) Sir, your father hath sent It will be half an hour ere he come; and therefore, if you please to walk the while Into that gallery — at the upper end, There are some books to entertain the time: And I'll take care no man shall come unto you, sir.

Bon. Yes, I will stay there. — [Aside.] I do doubt this fellow. [Exit.]

Mos. [Looking after him.] There; he is fair enough; he can hear nothing: And for his father, I can keep him off.

Cor. Nay, now, there is no starting back, and therefore, Resolve upon it: I have so decreed. It must be done. Nor would I move 't afore, Because I would avoid all shifts and tricks, That might deny me.

Cel. Sir, let me beseech you, Affect not these strange trials; if you doubt My chastity, why, lock me up for ever;

Make me the heir of darkness. Let me live Where I may please your fears, if not your trust. Corv. Believe it, I have no such humour, I. All that I speak I mean; yet I'm not mad; Not horn-mad, you see? Go to, show yourself Obedient, and a wife.

Cel. O heaven! I say it, Do so.

Cor. Was this the train?

Corv. I've told you reasons; What the physicians have set down; how much It may concern me; what my engagements are; My means, and the necessity of these means For my recovery: wherefore, if you be Loyal and mine, be won, respect my venture. Cel. Before your honour?

Corv. Honour! tut, a breath: There's no such thing in nature; a mere term Invented to awe fools. What is my gold The worse for touching, clothes for being look'd on? Why, this 's no more. An old decrepit wretch, That has no sense, no sinew; takes his meat With others' fingers; only knows to gape When you do scald his gums; a voice, a shadow; And what can this man hurt you? Cel. [Aside.] Lord! what spirit Is this hath ent'red him?

Corv. And for your fame, That's such a jig; as if I would go tell it, Cry it on the Piazza! Who shall know it? But he that cannot speak it, and this fellow, Whose lips are 't my pocket? Save yourself, If you'll proclaim 't, you may,) I know no other Should come to know it.

Cel. Are heaven and saints then nothing? Will they be blind or stupid?

Corv. How!

Cel. Good sir, Be jealous still, emulate them; and think What hate they burn with toward every sin.

Corv. I grant you: if I thought it were a sin I would not urge you. Should I offer this To some young Frenchman, or hot Tuscan blood That had read Aretine, conn'd all his prints, Knew every quirk within lust's labyrinth, And were profest critic in lechery; And I would look upon him, and applaud him, This were a sin: but here, 't is contrary, A pious work, mere charity for physic, And honest politie, to assure mine own.

1 Hazard.

2 Terms in primero. Volpone is lying in the alcove at the back of the stage, and at the end of the scene the curtains close on him.

3 The same.

4 The same.

5 At this point, Mosca goes back and opens the curtains, discovering Volpone on his couch.
Cel. O heaven! I canst thou suffer such a change?

Vulp. Thou art mine honour, Mosca, and my pride.

My joy, my tickling, my delight! Go bring 'em.

Mos. [Advancing.] Please you draw near, sir.

Corv. Come on, what —

You will not be rebellious? By that light —

Mos. Sir, Signior Corvino, here, is come to see you.

Vulp. Oh!

Mos. And hearing of the consultation had,

So lately, for your health, is come to offer,

Or rather, sir, to prostitute —

Corv. Thanks, sweet Mosca. —

Mos. Freely, unmask'd, or unintreated —

Corv. Well. Mos. As the true fervent instance of his love,

His own most fair and proper wife; the beauty

Only of price in Venice —

Corv. 'Tis well urg'd.

Mos. To be your comfortess, and to preserve you.

Vulp. Alas, I am past, already! Pray you, thank him.

For his good care and promptness; but for that,

'T is a vain labour e'en to fight; 'gainst heaven;

Applying fire to stone — uh, uh, uh, uh!

[Coughing.]

Making a dead leaf grow again. I take

His wishes gently, though; and you may tell him.

What I have done for him: marry, my state is hopeless.

Will him to pray for me; and to use his fortune

With reverence when he comes to 't.

Mos. Do you hear, sir? Go to him with your wife.

Corv. Heart of my father! —

Wilt thou persist thus? Come, I pray thee, come.

Thou seest 'tis nothing, Celia. By this hand

I shall grow violent. Come, do't, I say.

Cel. Sir, kill me, rather: I will take down poison.

Eat burning coals, do anything —

Corv. Be damn'd! —

Heart, I will drag thee hence home by the hair;

Cry thee a strumpet through the streets; rip up

Thy mouth unto thine ears; and slit thy nose,

Like a raw rocket! — Do not tempt me; come,

Yield, I am loth — Death! I will buy some slave.

Whom I will kill, and bind thee to him alive:

And at my windord hang you forth, devising

Some monstrous crime, which I, in capital letters,

Will eat into thy flesh with aquafortis, and

And burning corrosives, on this stubborn breast.

Now, by the blood thou hast incens'd, I'll do it!

Cel. Sir, what you please, you may; I am your martyr.

1 "A rocket or roquet, so named from its red colour, is a fish of the gurnet kind, but not so large." (Whalley.)

2 Corrosives.

Corv. Be not thus obstinate, I ha' not deserv'd it:

Think who it is intreats you. Prithhee, sweet; —

Good faith, thou shalt have jewels, gowns, attires,

What thou wilt think, and ask. Do but go kiss him.

Or touch him but. For my sake. At my suit —

This once, No! not! I shall remember this.

Will you disgrace me thus? Do you thrust my undoing?

Mos. Nay, gentle lady, be advis'd.

Corv. Nay, good sir.

She has watch'd her time. God's precious, this is scurvy,

'T is very scurvy; and you are —

Mos. Nay, good sir.

Corv. An arrant locust — by heaven, a locust! —

Whore, crocodile, that hast thy tears prepar'd,

Expecting how thou 'lt bid 'em flow —

Mos. Nay, pray you, sir! She will consider.

Cel. Would my life would serve to satisfy —

Corv. 'Sdeath! if she would but speak to And save my reputation, 't were somewhat; But spitefully to affect my utter ruin! Mos. Ay, now you have put your fortune in her hands.

Why? faith, it is her modesty, I must quit her. If you were absent, she would be more coming; I know it: and dare undertake for her. What woman can before her husband? Pray you, Let us depart and leave her here.

Corv. Sweet Celia.

Mos. Thou mayest redeem all yet; I'll say no more:

If not, esteem yourself as lost. Nay, stay there. [Exit with Mosca.]

Cel. O God, and his good angels! whither, whither,

Is shame fled human breasts? that with such ease,

Men dare put off your honours, and their own? Is that, which ever was a cause of life,

Now plac'd beneath the basest circumstance, And modesty an exile made, for money?

Vulp. Ay, in Corvino, and such earth-fed minds,

That never tasted the true heaven of love.

Assure thee, Celia, he that would sell thee, Only for hope of gain, and that uncertain, He would have sold his part of Paradise For ready money, had he met a cope-man. Why art thou maz'd to see me thus reviv'd? Rather applaud thy beauty's miracle; 'tis thy great work, that hath, not now alone, But sundry times rais'd me, in several shapes, And, but this morning, like a mountebank, To see thee at thy windo': ay, before I would have left my practice, for thy love, In varying figures. I would have contended With the blue Proteus, or the horned flood. Now art thou welcome.

2 Chapman, merchant.

4 "Achelous, of whose contention there is a pretty story in Ovid." (Gifford.)
Cel. Some serene, blast me, or dire lightning strike
This my offending face!
VOLP. Why droops my Celia?
THOU hast, in place of a base husband found
A worthy lover: use thy fortune well,
With secrecy and pleasure. See, behold,
What thou art queen of; not in expectation,
As I feed others: but possess'd and crown'd.
See, here, a rope of pearl; and each more orient?
Then the brave Egyptian queen carous'd;
Dissolve and drink 'em. See, a carbuncle,
May put out both the eyes of St. Mark;
A diamond would have bought Lollia Paulina,
When she came in like star-light, hid with jewels.
That were the spoils of provinces; take these
And wear, and lose 'em; yet remains an earing
To purchase them again, and this whole state.
A gem but worth a private patrimony
Is nothing; we will eat such at a meal.
The heads of parrots, tongues of nightingales,
The brains of peacocks, and of estriches,
Shall be our food, and, could we get the pho-

Though nature lost her kind, she were our dish.
Cel. Good sir, these things might move a mind affected
With such delights; but I, whose innocence
Is all I can think wealthy, or worth th' enjoying;

And which, once lost, I have nought to lose beyond it,
Cannot be taken with these sensual baits:
If you have conscience —

VOLP. 'Tis the beggar's virtue;
If thou hast wisdom, hear me, Celia.
Thy baths shall be the juice of July-flowers,
Spirit of roses, and of violets.
The milk of unicorns, and panthers' breath
Gather'd in bags, and mix'd with Cretan wines.
Our drink shall be prepared gold and amber:
Which we will take until my root whirl round
With the vertigo; and my dwarf shall dance,
My eunuch sing, my fool make up the antic.

Whilst we, in changed shapes, act Ovid's tales,
Thou, like Europa now, and I like Jove,
Then I like Mars, and thou like Erycine:
So of the rest, till we have quite run through,
And wearied all the fables of the gods.

Then will I have thee bear marble forms,
Attired like some sprightly dame of France,
Brave Tuscan lady, or proud Spanish beauty;
Sometimes unto the Persian sophy's wife;
Or the grand signior's mistresses; and for change,
To one of our most artful courtesans,
Or some quick Negro, or cold Russian;
And I will meet thee in as many shapes:
Where we may so transfuse our wand'ring souls
Out at our lips, and score up sums of pleasures.

Cel. If you have ears that will be pierc'd — or eyes
That can be open'd — a heart that may be touch'd —
Or any part that yet sounds man about you —
If you have touch of holy saints — or heaven —
Do me the grace to let me escape: — if not,
Be bountiful and kill me. You do know,
I am a creature, hither ill betray'd,
By one whose shame I would forget it were:
If you will deign me neither of these graces,
Yet feed your wrath, sir, rather than your lust,
(It is a vice comes nearer manliness,)
And punish that unhappy crime of nature,
Which you miscall my beauty: flay my face,
Or poison it with ointments for seducing
Your blood to this rebellion. Rub these hands
With what may cause an eating leprosy,
E'en to my bones and marrow: anything
That may disfavour me, save in my honour —
And I will kneel to you, pray for you, pay down
A thousand hourly vows, sir, for your health;
Report, and think you virtuous —

VOLP. Think me cold,
Frozen, and impotent, and so report me,
That I had Nestor's hermia, thou wouldst think.
I do degenerate, and abuse my nation,
To play with opportunity thus long;
I should have done the act, and then have par-

Yield, or I'll force thee.

Cel. O! just God!
VOLPONE; OR, THE FOX

VOLPONE. In vain — 266

Bon. [leaps out from where Mosca had placed him.] Forbear, foul ravisher! libidinous swine!

Free the fore'd lady, or thou diest, impostor.

But that I'm loth to snatch thy punishment

Out of the hand of justice, thou shouldst yet

Be made the timely sacrifice of vengeance. 270

Before this altar and this cross, thy idol. —

Lady, let's quit the place, it is the den

Of villain; fear nought, you have a guard:

And he ere long shall meet his just reward. 274

[Volpone and Cael.]

Volp. Fall on me, roof, and bury me in ruin!

Become my grave, that wet my shelter! O!

I am unmask'd, unspirited, undone,

Betray'd to beggary, to infancy —

[Scene VIII.] 1

VOLPONE. [Enter Mosca, [wounded and bleeding.] 2

Mos. Where shall I run, most wretched shame of men,

To beat out my unlucky brains?

Volp. Here, here.

What! dost thou bleed?

Mos. O, that his well-kriv'n sword

Had been so courteous to have left me down

Unto the navel, ere I liv'd to see 5

My life, my hopes, my spirits, my patron, all

Thus desperately engaged by my error!

Volp. Woe on thy fortune! 6

Mos. And my follies, sir.

Volp. Thou hast made me miserable.

Mos. And myself, sir.

Who would have thought he would have heard k'ned so?

Volp. What shall we do?

Mos. I know not; if my heart

Could expiate the mischance, I'd pluck it out.

Will you be pleas'd to hang me, or out my throat?

And I'll requite you, sir. Let's die like Romans, 7

Since we have liv'd like Grecians. 8

They knock without.

Volp. Hark! who's there? 12

I hear some footing; officers, the scifi. 9

Come to apprehend us! I do feel the brand

Hissing already at my forehead; now

Mine ears are boring.

Mos. To your couch, sir, you,

Make that place good, however. [Volpone lies down as before.] Guilty men Suspect what they deserve still. Signior Corbaccio!

[Scene IX.] 1

[To them enter] CORBACCIO.

Corb. Why, how now, Mosca?

Mos. O, undone, amaz'd, sir.

Your son, I know not by what accident,

1 The same.
2 Baftif's attendants.
3 I. e. by suicide.
4 The same.
5 Deceive.
Vol. I cry thee mercy, Mosca.
Mos. — Worth your patience, 40
And your great merit, sir. And see the change!
Vol. Why, what success? 41
Mos. Most hapless! you must help, sir.
Whilst we expected th' old raven, in comes Corvino's wife, sent hither by her husband —
Vol. What, at a present? 42
Mos. No, sir, on visitation; 43
(I'll tell you how anon:) and staying long,
The youth he grows impatient, rushes forth,
Seizeth the lady, wounds me, makes her swear
(Or he would murder her, that was his vow)
'T were my patron to have done her rape: 44
Which how unlike it is, you see! and hence,
With that pretext he's gone, 't accuse his
father,
Defame my patron, defeat you —
Vol. Where's her husband? 45
Let him be sent for straight;
Mos. Sir, I'll go fetch him.
Vol. Bring him to the Scrutines. 46
Mos. Sir, I will. 47
Vol. This must be stop'd. 48
Mos. O you do nobly, sir.
Alas, 't was labour'd all, sir, for your good;
Nor was there want of counsel in the plot:
But Fortune can, at a present, o'erthrow
The projects of a hundred learned clerks, sir. 49
Corb. [listening.] What's that? 50
Vol. Wilt please you, sir, to go along? 51
[Exit CorBACCio, followed by VOlTore.]
Mos. Patron, go in, and pray for our success.
Volp. [rising from his couch.] Need makes devotion: heaven your labour bless! 52
[Exeunt.]

ACT IV

SCENE I.

[Enter] Sir Politic Would-be, Peregrine.

Sir P. I told you, sir, it was a plot; you see What observation is! You mention'd me
For some instructions: I will tell you, sir,
(Since we are met here in this height of Venice.)
Some few particulars I have set down,
Only for this meridian, fit to be known
Of your crude traveller; and they are these,
I will not touch, sir, at your phrase, or clothes,
For they are old.
Per. Sir, I have better.
Sir P. Pardon, I meant, as they are themes.
Per. O, sir, proceed: 53
Sir P. I'll slander you no more of wit, good sir.
Sir P. First, for your garb, it must be grave
And serious,
Very resv'rd and lockt; not tell a secret
On any terms, not to your father; scarce
A fable, but with caution: make sure choice
Both of your company and discourse; beware
You never speak a truth —
Per. How! 54

---

Sir P. Not to strangers,
For those be they you must converse with
Most;
Others I would not know, sir, but at distance
So as I still might be a saver in them:
You shall have tricks else past upon you hourly.
And then, for your religion, profess none,
But wonder at the diversity of all;
And, for your part, protest, were there no other
But simply the laws o' th' land, you could content you.
Nic. Machiavel and Monsieur Bodin, both Were of this mind. Then must you learn the use
And handling of your silver fork at meals,
The metal of your glass; (these are main matters
With your Italian;) and to know the hour
When you must eat your melons and your figs.
Per. Is that a point of state too?
Sir P. Here it is:
For your Venetian, if he see a man
Preposterous in the least, he has him straight;
He has: he strips him. 'Tll acquit you, sir,
Now have liv'd here 'tis some fourteen months:
Within the first week of my landing here,
All took me for a citizen of Venice,
I knew the forms so well —
Per. [Aside.] And nothing else.
Sir P. I had read Contarene, 4 took me a
house,
Dealt with my Jews to furnish it with mov-ables—
Well, if I could but find one man, one man
To mine own heart, whom I durst trust, I would —
Per. What, what, sir?
Sir P. Make him rich; make him a fortune;
He should not think again. I would command
it.
Per. As how?
Sir P. With certain projects that I have;
Which I may not discover.
Per. [Aside.] If I had
But one to wager with, I would lay odds now,
He tells me instantly.
Sir P. One is, and that
I care not greatly who knows, to serve the state
Of Venice with red herrings for three years, 5
And at a certain rate, from Rotterdam,
Where I have correspondence. There's a letter, Sent me from one o' th' states, and to that purpose:
He cannot write his name, but that's his mark.
Per. He is a chandler?
Sir P. No, a cheesemonger.
There are some others too with whom I treat
About the same negotiation;
And I will undertake it: for 'tis thus I'll do't with ease, I have cast 6 it all. Your hoy 6
Carries but three ease, I have cast it all. Your hoy 6

VOLPONE; OR, THE FOX

So if there come but one of three, I save;
If two, I can defall: — but this is now,
If my main project fail.

Per. Then you have others? 66

Sir P. I should be loth to draw the subtle
air
Of such a place, without my thousand aims.
I'll not dissemble, sir: where'er I come,
I love to be considerative; and 'tis true,
I have at my free hours thought upon
Some certain goods unto the state of Venice,
Which I do call my Cautions; and, sir, which
I mean, in hope of pension, to propropound
To the Great Council, then unto the Forty,
So to the Ten. My means are made already —

Per. By whom? 2

[be obscure.

Sir P. Sir, one that thus his place
Yet he can sway, and they will hear him. He's A commandador.

Per. What! a common serjeant?

Sir P. Sir, such as they are, put it in their mouths,

What they should say, sometimes; as well as greater:
I think I have my notes to show you —

[Searching his pockets.]

Per. Good sir.

Sir P. But you shall swear unto me, on your gentry,
Not to anticipate —

Per. I, sir!

Sir P. Nor reveal

A circumstance — My paper is not with me.

Per. O, but you can remember, sir.

Sir P. My first is 55

Concerning tinder-boxes. You must know,

No family is here without its box:
Now, sir, it being so portable a thing,
Put case, that you or I were ill affected
Unto the state, sir; with it in our pockets, 50

Might not I go into the Arsenal,
Or you come out again, and none the wiser?

Per. Except yourself, sir.

Sir P. Go to, then. I therefore

Advertise to the state, how fit it were

That none but such as were known patriots, 95
Sound lovers of their country, should be suf-fer'd

To enjoy them in their houses; and even those Seal'd at some office, and at such a bigness
As might not lurk in pockets.

Per. Admirable! Sir P. My next is, how 't inquire, and be re-
solv'd 100

By present demonstration, whether a ship,
Newly arriv'd from Soria, 1 or from Any suspected part of all the Levant,
Be guilty of the plague: and where they use
To lie out forty, fifty days, sometimes,
About the Lazzaretto, for their trial;
I'll save that charge and loss unto the merchant,
And in an hour clear the doubt.

Per. Indeed, sir!

Sir P. Or — I will lose my labour.

Per. My faith, that's much.

Sir. P. Nay, sir, conceive me. It will cost me in onions,
Some thirty livres—

Per. Which is one pound sterling.

Sir P. Beside my waterworks: for this I do, sir.

First, I bring in your ship 'twixt two brick walls;
But those the state shall venture. On the one
I strain me a fair tarpauling, and in that
I stick my onions, out in halves; the other
Is full of loopholes, out of which I thrust
The noses of my bellows; and those bellows
I keep, with waterworks, in perpetual motion,
Which is the easiest matter of a hundred. 129
Now, sir, your onion, which doth naturally Attract th' infection, and your bellows blowing
The air upon him, will show instantly,
By his chang'd colour, if there be contagion;
Or else remain as fair as at the first.

Now it is known, 't is nothing.

Per. You are right, sir.

Sir P. I would I had my note.

Per. Faith, so would I:

But you ha' done well for once, sir.

Per. Were I false,
Or would be made so, I could show you reasons
How I could sell this state now to the Turk, 130 Spite of their galleys, or their —

[Examining his papers.]

Per. Pray you, Sir Pol.

Sir P. I have 'em not about me.

Per. That I fear'd.

They are there, sir?

Sir P. No, this is my diary,

Wherein I note my actions of the day.

Per. Pray you let's see, sir. What is here?

Notandum.

[Reads.]

'A rat had gnawed my spur-leathers; notwithstanding,

I put on new, and did go forth; but first

I threw three beans over the threshold. Item,

I went and bought two toothpicks, whereof one

I burst immediately, in a discourse

With a Dutch merchant, 'bont reg'ion del stato. 136

From him I went and paid a moccinigo 4

For piecing my silk stockings; by the way

I cheapen'd 6 sprats; and at St. Mark's I went un'd.

'Faith these are politic notes!

Sir P. Sir, I do slip 146

No action of my life, but thus I quote 6 it.

Per. Believe me, it is wise!

Sir P. Nay, sir, read forth.

SCENE II.

[Enter, at a distance.] Lady Poltic Would-be, Nano, [and two Waiting]-women.

Lady P. Where should this loose knight be, straw? Sure he's hou'd.

Nam. Why, then he's fast.

1 Politics. 2 About ninepaes. 3 Bargained for. 4 Note. 5 The same.
Lady P. Ay, he plays both with me.
I pray you stay. This heat will do more harm
To my complexion than his heart is worth.
(Do not care to hinder, but to take him.) 5

How he comes off! [Rubbing her cheeks.]

Lady P. Where?

2. Wom. With a young gentleman.

Lady P. That same's the party:
In man's apparel! Pray you, sir, jog my knight:
I will be tender to his reputation,
However he demerit.

Sir P. [seeing her] My lady!

Per. Where?

Sir P. 'Tis she indeed, sir; you shall know her. She is,
Were she not mine, a lady of that merit,
For fashion and behaviour; and for beauty
I durst compare —

Per. It seems you are not jealous,
That dare commend her.

Sir P. Nay, and for discourse — 15

Per. Being your wife, she cannot miss that.

Sir P. [introducing Per.] Madam,
Here is a gentleman, pray you, use him fairly;
He seems a youth, but he is —

Lady P. None.

Sir P. Yes one
Has put his face as soon into the world —

Lady P. You mean, as early? But to-day?

Sir P. How's this? 20

Lady P. Why, in this habit, sir; you apprehend me.

Well, Master Would-be, this doth not become you;
I had thought the odour, sir, of your good name
Had been more precious to you; that you would not Have done this dire massacre on your honour;
One of your gravity, and rank besides! 25
But knights, I see, care little for the oath
They make to ladies; chiefly their own ladies.

Sir P. Now, by my spruce, the symbol of my knighthood —

Per. [Aside.] Lord, how his brain is humbled for an oath!

Sir P. I reach you not.

Lady P. Right, sir, your politeness may bear it through thus. Sir, a word with you. [To Per.]

I would be loth to contest publicly
With any gentlewoman, or to seem
Froward, or violent, as the courtier says; 35
It comes too near rusticity in a lady,
Which I would shun by all means: and however
I may deserve from Master Would-be, yet
To have one fair gentlewoman thus be made
The unkind instrument to wrong another, 40
And one she knows not, ay, and to perceive;
In my poor judgment, is not warranted
From being a selection in our sex,
If not in manners.

Per. How is this!

Sir P. How is this!

Lady P. Come nearer to your aim.

Marry, and will, sir. 45

Since you provoke me with your impudence,
And laughter of your light land-sirens here,
Your Sperus, your hermaphrodite —

Per. What's here?

Poetic fury and historic storms!

Sir P. The gentleman, believe it, is of worth
And of our nation.

Lady P. Ay, your Whitefriars nation. 50

Come, I blush for you, Master Would-be; I,
And am ashamed I should have no more forehead
Than thus to be the patron, or St. George,
To a lowd harlot, a base fricatrice, 4

A female devil, in a male outside.

Sir P. Nay,
An you be such a one, I must bid adieu
To your delights. The case appears too liquid.

[Exit.]

Lady P. Ay, you may carry it clear, with you state-face!

But for your carnival concipiscence,
Who here is fled for liberty of conscience,
From furious persecution of the marshal,
Her will I disciple, 5

This is fine, i' faith!

And do you use this often? Is this part
Of your wit's exercise, 'gainst you have occasion?

Madam —

Lady P. Go to, sir.

Per. Do you hear me, lady? 55

Why, if your knight have set you to beg shirts,
Or to invite me home, you might have done it
A nearer way by far.

Lady P. This cannot work you out of my snare.

Per. Why, am I in it, then? 60

Indeed your husband told me you were fair,
And so you are; only your nose inclines,
That side that's next the sun, to the queen-apple. 6

Lady P. This cannot be endured by any patience.

Scene III. 7

[To them enter Mosca.

Mos. What is the matter, madam?

Lady P. If the senate right not my quest in this, I will protest 'em
To all the world no aristocracy.

Mos. What is the injury, lady?

Lady P. Why, the callet 4

You told me of, here I have ta'en disguis'd.

Mos. Who? this! what means your ladyship? The creature

I mention'd to you is apprehended now,
Before the senate; you shall see her —

Lady P. Where?

Whitefriars was at this time a privileged spot, in which fraudulent debtors, gamblers, prostitutes, and other outcasts of society usually resided. (Gifford.)

Prostitute. 5

Disciple, discipline.

The queen-apple is red within. 7

The same.

1 Both "fast and loose," the name of a game.
2 Understand.
Mos. I'll bring you to her. This young gentleman, I saw him land this morning at the port.

Lady P. Is 't possible! how has my judgment waver'd?
Sir, I must, blushing, say to you, I have err'd; And plead your pardon.

Per. What, more changes yet! Lady P. I hope you ha' not the malice to remember A gentlewoman's passion. If you stay In Venice here, please you to use me, sir—
Mos. Will you go, madam?
Lady P. Pray you, sir, use me; in faith, The more you see me the more I shall conceive You have forgot our quarrel.
[Exeunt Lady Would-be, Mosca, Nano, and Waiting-women.]

Per. This is rare!

Sir Politic Would-be? No, Sir Politic Bawd, To bring me thus acquainted with his wife! Well, wise Sir Pol, since you have practis'd thus Upon my freshmanship, I'll try your salt-head, What proof it is against a counter-plot.

[Exit.]

SCENE IV. 1

[Enter] Volpone, Corbaccio, Corvino, Mosca.

Vol. Well, now you know the carriage of the business, Your constancy is all that is requir'd Unto the safety of it.

Mos. Is the lie
Safely convey'd amongst us? Is that sure?
Knows every man his burden?

Corv. Yes.

Mos. But knows the advocate the truth?

Corv. O, sir,

By no means; I devise'd a formal tale,
That salv'd your reputation. But be valiant, sir.

Corv. I fear no one but him that this his pleading

Should make him stand for a co-heir—

Mos. Co-halter! 10

Hang him; we will use his tongue, his noise,
As we do croaker's 3 here.

Corv. Ay, what shall he do?
Mos. When we ha' done, you mean?
Corv. Yes.

Mos. Why, we'll think;

Sell him for mummia; 4 he's half dust al-ready. —
Do you not smile, (to Volpone) to see this buffalo, 5

How he doth sport it with his head? [Aside.]

I should, If all were well and past. — Sir, (to Corbaccio) only you

Are he that shall enjoy the crop of all,
And these not know for whom they toil.

Corb. Ay, peace.

Mos. (turning to Corvino.) But you shall eat it. [Aside.] Much! — Worshipful sir, (to Volpone)

Mercury sit upon your thund'ring tongue,
Or the French Hercules, and make your lan-

As conquering as his club, to beat along,
As with a tempest, flat, our adversaries;

But much more yours, sir.

Vol. Here they come, ha' done. 25 Mos. I have another witness, if you need, sir,

I can produce.

Vol. Who is it?

Mos. Sir, I have her.

SCENE V. 6

[Enter] 4 Avociatori, [and take their seats.] Bonario, Cellia, Notario, Commandadori, Saffi, and other Officers of Justice.

1 Avoc. The like of this the senate never heard of;

2 Avoc. 'Twill come most strange to them when we report it.

4 Avoc. The gentlewoman has been ever held
Of unreproved name.

3 Avoc. So has the youth.

4 Avoc. The more unnatural part that of his father.

2 Avoc. More of the husband.

1 Avoc. I know not to give

His act a name, it is so monstrous!

4 Avoc. But the impostor, he's a thing created.

'To exceed example!

1 Avoc. And all after-times!

2 Avoc. I never heard a true voluptuary 10

Describ'd but him.

3 Avoc. Appear yet those were cited? Not. All but the old magnifico, Volpone.

1 Avoc. Why is not he here?

Mos. Please your fatherhoods,

Here is his advocate: himself's so weak,

So feeble—

4 Avoc. Who are you?

Bon. His parasite, His knave, his pander. I beseech the court

He may be forc'd to come, that your grave eyes

May bear strong witness of his strange impostures.

Vol. Upon my faith and credit with your virtues.

He is not able to endure the air. 20

2 Avoc. Bring him.

3 Avoc. We will see him.

4 Avoc. Fetch him. Vol. Your fatherhoods' fit pleasures be obey'd; [Exeunt Officers.]

But sure, the sight will rather move your pities

Than indignation. May it please the court,

In the mean time, he may be heard in me. 25

1 The Scrutineo, or Senate House.
2 Arranged.
3 Corbaccio's.
4 A medicine, supposed to be made of the oozing from mummies.
5 Horned animal — the usual joke on cuckolds.
6 The same.
I know this place most void of prejudice,
And therefore crave it, since we have no reason
To fear our truth should hurt our cause.
3 Avoc.
Speak free.
Volt. Then know, most honour'd fathers, I must now
Discover to you strangely abus'd ears,
The most prodigies and most frontless piece
Of solid impudence, and treachery,
That ever vicious nature yet brought forth
To shame the state of Venice. This lewd
woman,
That wants no artificial looks or tears
To help the visor she has now put on.
Hath long been known a close adulteress
To that lascivious youth there; not suspected,
I say, but known, and taken in the act
With him; and by this man, the easy husband,
Pardon'd; whose timeless bounty makes him now
Stand here, the most unhappy, innocent person,
That ever man's own goodness made accuss'd.
For these not knowing how to owe a gift
Of that dear grace, but with their shame; being plac'd
So above all powers of their gratitude,
Began to hate the benefit; and in place
Of thanks, devise t' extirp the memory
Of such an act; wherein I pray your fatherhoods
To observe the malice, yea, the rage of creatures
Discover'd in their evils; and what heart
Such take, ev'n from their crimes: — but that
Will more appear.—This gentleman, the father,
Hearing of this foul fact, with many others,
Which daily struck at his too tender ears,
And grieve'd in nothing more than that he could not Preserve himself a parent (his son's ills Growing to that strange flood), at last decreed
To disinherit him.
1 Avoc.
These be strange turns!
2 Avoc. The young man's fame was ever fair and honest.
Volt. So much more full of danger is his vice,
That can beguile so, under shade of virtue.
But, as I said, my honour'd sires, his father
Having this settled purpose, by what means
To him betray'd, we know not, and this day
Appointed for the deed; that parri'cide,
I cannot style him better, by confederacy
Preparing this his paramour to be there,
Ent'red Volpone's house (who was the man,
Your fatherhoods must understand, design'd
For the inheritance), there sought his father: —
But with what purpose sought he him, my lords?
I tremble to pronounce it, that a son
Unto a father, and to such a father,
Should have so foul, felonious intent!
It was to murder him: when being prevented
By his more happy absence, what then did he?
Not check his wicked thoughts; no, now new deeds;
(Mischief doth never end where it begins)
An act of horror, fathers! He dragg'd forth
The aged gentleman that had there lain bed-ridden
Three years and more, out of his innocent couch,
Naked upon the floor; there left him; wounded
His servant in the face; and with this strumpet,
The stale 1 to his forg'd practice, who was glad
To be so active, — (I shall here desire
Your fatherhoods to note but my collections,
As most remarkable, —) thought at once to stop
His father's ends, discredit his free choice
In the old gentleman, redeem themselves,
By laying infamy upon this man,
To whom, with blushing, they should owe their lives.
1 Avoc. What proofs have you of this?
Bon. Most honour'd fathers,
I humbly crave there be no credit given
To this man's mercenary tongue.
2 Avoc. Forbear.
Bon. His soul moves in his fee.
3 Avoc. O, sir.
Bon. This fellow,
For six sols 2 more would wield against his Maker.
1 Avoc. You do forget yourself.
Volt. Nay, nay, grave fathers,
Let him have scope: can any man imagine
That he will spare his accuser, that would not
Have sparr'd his parent?
1 Avoc. Well, produce your proofs.
Cel. I would I could forget I were a creature.
Volt. Signior Corbachio!
[Corbachio comes forward.]
4 Avoc. What is he?
Volt. The father.
2 Avoc. Has he had an oath?
Not. Yes.
Corb. What must I do now?
Not. Your testimony's caved.
Corb. Speak to the knave?
I'll ha' my mouth first stopt with earth; my heart
Abhors his knowledge: I disclaim in him.
1 Avoc. But for what cause?
Corb. The mere portent of nature!
He is an utter stranger to my loins.
Bon. Have they made you to 3 this?
Corb. I will not hear thee,
Monster of men, swine, goat, wolf, parri'cide!
Speak not, thou viper.
Bon. Sir, I will sit down,
And rather wish my innocence should suffer
Than I resist the authority of a father.
Volt. Signior Corvino!
[Corvino comes forward.]
2 Avoc. This is strange.
1 Avoc. Who's this?
Not. The husband.
4 Avoc. Is he sworn?
Not. He is.
3 Avoc. Speak then.
1 Stalking horse, mask to his false plot.
2 A sol = about a franc.
3 Disown.
4 Prepared you to do.
Corv. This woman, please your fatherhoods, is a whore, Of most hot exercise, more than a partridge, Upon record——
1. Avc. No more.
Corv. Neighs like a jennet. 118 Not. Preserve the honour of the court.
Corv. I shall, And modesty of your most reverend ears. And yet I hope that I may say, these eyes Have seen her glud unto that piece of cedar, That fine well timber’d gallant: and that here The letters may be read, thorough the horn, 1
That make the story perfect.
Mos. Excellent! sir.
Corv. [Aside to Mosca.] There is no shame in this now, is there?
Mos. None.
Corv. Or if I said, I hop’d that she were on ward To her damnation, if there be a hell Greater than whore and woman, a good Catho lic
55
May make the doubt.
1. Avc. Remove him hence.
2. Avc. Look to the woman.
CELIA swoons.
Corv. Prettily feign’d again!
4. Avc. Stand from about her.
1. Avc. Give her the air.
3. Avc. What can you say? [To Mosca.]
Mos. My wound, May it please your wisdoms, speaks for me, receiv’d In aid of my good patron, when he mist His sought-for father, when that well-taught dame Had her sue giv’n her to cry out, ‘A rape!’
Bon. O most laid 2 impudence! Fathers——
3. Avc. Sir, be silent; 132 You had your hearing free, so must they theirs.
2. Avc. I do begin to doubt th’ imposture here.
4. Avc. This woman has too many moods.
Vot. Grave fathers, She is a creature of a most profest
And prostituted lewdness.
Corv. Unsatisf’d, grave fathers! 2
Vot. May her feignings Not take your wisdoms; but this day she haited A stranger, a grave knight, with her loose eyes, And more lascivious kisses. This man saw ’em Together on the water, in a gondola.
Mos. Here is the lady herself, that saw them too, Without; who then had in the open streets Purs’d them, but for saving her knight’s hon our.
1. Avc. Produce that lady.
2. Avc. Let her come. [Exit Mosca.]

1 Playing upon the horns of the cuckold and the horn-book
2 Well-contriv’d.

4. Avc. They strike with wonder.
3. Avc. These things, I am turn’d a stone.

SCENE VI. 1

[To them re-enter] Mosca [with] Lady Would-Be.

Mos. Be resolute, madam.
Lady P. Ay, this same is she.
[Pointing to CELIA.]
Out, thou chameleon harlot! now thine eyes Vie tears with the hyena. Dar’st thou look Upon my wronged face? I cry your pardons, I fear I have forgett ingly transgress
Against the dignity of the court——
Lady P. And been exorbitant——
4. Avc. You have not, lady.
3. Avc. These proofs are strong.
Lady P. Surely, I had no purpose To scandalize your honours, or my sex’s.
4. Avc. We do believe it.
Lady P. Surely you may believe it.
2. Avc. Madam, we do.
Lady P. Indeed you may; my breeding Is not so coarse——
4. Avc. We know it.
Lady P. To offend With pertinacy——
3. Avc. Lady——
Lady P. Such a presence!
No surely.
1. Avc. We will think it.
Lady P. You may think it.
1. Avc. Let her o’ercome. What witnesses have you,
To make good your report?
Bon. Our consciences.
Cel. And heaven, that never fails the inno cent.
1. Avc. These are no testimonies.
Bon. Not in your courts, Where multitude and clamour overcomes.
1. Avc. Nay, then you do wax insolent.

VOLPONE is brought in, as impotent.

Vot. Here, here, The testimony comes that will convince, And put to utter dumbness their bold tongues! See here, grave fathers, here’s the rasher, The rider on men’s wives, the great impostor, The grand volup tuary! Do you not think These limbs should affect venery? or these eyes Covet a concubine? Pray you mark these hands; Are they not fit to stroke a lady’s breasts?
Perhaps he doth dissemble!
Bon. So he does.
Vot. Would you ha’ him tortur’d?
Bon. I would have him prov’d.
Vot. Best try him then with goads, or burning irons;
Put him to the strappado: I have heard

1 The same.
The rack hath cur’d the gout; faith, give it him, and help him of a malady; be courteous. I’ll undertake, before these honour’d fathers, he shall have yet as many left diseases, as she has known adulterers, or thou strumpets. O, my most equal hearers, if these deeds, acts of this bold and most exorbitant strain, may pass with suffr’ance, what one citizen But owes the forfeit of his life, ye, fame, To him that dares traduce him? Which of you are safe, my honour’d fathers? I would ask, with leave of your grave fatherhoods, if their plot have any face or colour like to truth? Or if, unto the dullest nostril here, it smell not rank, and most abhorred slander? I crave your care of this good gentleman, whose life is much endanger’d by their fable; and as for them, I will conclude with this: That vicious persons, when they’re hot, and flesh’d In impious acts, their constancy abounds: Damned deeds are done with greatest confidence.

1. Avoc. Take ’em to custody, and sever them.
2. Avoc. ’Tis pity two such prodigies should live.
1. Avoc. Let the old gentleman be return’d with care.

[Exeunt Officers with Volpone.]

I’m sorry our credulity wrong’d him.
4. Avoc. These are two creatures!
3. Avoc. ’Twas an earthquake in me.
2. Avoc. Their shame, ev’n in their cradles, fled their faces.
4. Avoc. You have done a worthy service to the state, sir.

In their disguise. [To Volpone.] 1. Avoc. You shall hear, ere night, What punishment the court decrees upon ’em. [Exeunt Avocats, Not., and Officers with Bonario and Celia.]

Volp. We thank your fatherhoods. How like you it?

Mos. Rare.
I’d ha’ your tongue, sir, tipt with gold for this;
I’d ha’ you be the heir to the whole city; The earth I’d have want men ere you want living; They’re bound to erect your statue in St. Mark’s.

Signior Corvino, I would have you go And show yourself that you have conquer’d.

Corv. Yes.
Mos. It was much better that you should profess Yourself a cuckold thus, than that the other Should have been prov’d.
Corv. Nay, I consider’d that:

Now it is her fault. Then it had been yours.
Corv. True; I do doubt this advocate still.

1. Boldness.

Mos. You need not, I dare ease you of that care.

Corv. I trust thee, Mosca. [Exit.]

Mos. As your own soul, sir.
Corv. Mosca! Mosca, Now for your business, sir.
Corv. How! ha’ you business?
Mos. Yes, yours, sir.
Corv. O, none else?
Mos. None else, not I.
Corv. Be careful then.
Mos. Rest you with both your eyes, sir.
Corv. Dispatch it.

Mos. Instantly.
Corv. And look that all, Whatever, be put in, jewels, plate, money, Household stuff, bedding, curtains.
Mos. Curtain-rings, sir: Only the advocate’s fee must be deducted.
Corv. ’Til pay him now; you’ll be too prodigal.

Mos. Sir, I must tender it.
Corv. Two chequins is well.
Mos. No, six, sir.
Corv. ’Tis too much.
Mos. He talk’d a great while;
You must consider that, sir.
Corv. Well, there’s three——
Mos. I’ll give it him.
Corv. Do so, and there’s for thee. [Exit.]
Mos. [Aside.] Bountiful bones! What horrid strange offence

Did he commit against nature, in his youth, Worthy this age? — You see, sir, [to Volp.] how I work Unto your ends; take you no notice.
Volp. No, I’ll leave you.
Mos. All is yours, the devil and all, Good advocate! — Madam, I’ll bring you home.
Lady P. No, I’ll go see your patron.
Mos. That you shall not.
I’ll tell you why. My purpose is to urge My patron to reform his will, and for The zeal you’ve shown to-day, whereas before You were but third or fourth, you shall be now Put in the first; which would appear as begg’d If you were present. Therefore—— Lady P. You shall sway me. [Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I.2

[Enter] Volpone.

Volp. Well, I am here, and all this brunt is past.
I never was in dislike with my disguise Till this fle’d moment: here ’t was good, in private; But in your public, — cause whilst I breathe.
‘Fore God, my left leg ’gan to have the cramp,
And I apprehended straight some power had struck me.

With a dead palsy. Well! I must be merry,
And shake it off. A many of these fears
Would put me into some villainous disease,
Should they come thick upon me: 'I'll prevent 'em.

Give me a bowl of lusty wine, to fright
This humour from my heart. (Drinks.) Hum, hum, hum!
'Tis almost gone already; I shall conquer.

Any device now of rare ingenious knavery, 14
That would possess me with a violent laughter,
Would make me up again. (Drinks again.) So,
so, so, so!

This heat is life; 'tis by blood of this time: —

MOSCA.

SCENE II. 1

VOLPONE. [Enter] MOSCA.

Mos. How now, sir? Does the day look clear again?
Are we recover'd, and wrought out of error,
Into our way, to see our path before us?
Is our trade free once more?

Volp. Exquisite Mosca! Mos. Was it not carri'd learnedly?

Volp. And stoutly:

Good wits are greatest in extremities.
Mos. It were folly beyond thought to trust
Any grand act unto a cowardly spirit.
You are not taken with it enough, methinks.
Volp. O, more than if I had enjoy'd the wench:

The pleasure of all woman-kind 's not like it.

Mos. Why, now you speak, sir. We must here be fix'd;
Here we must rest; this is our masterpiece;
We cannot think to go beyond this.

Volp. True, Than hast play'd thy prize, my precious Mosca.

Mos. To gull the court —

Volp. And quite divert the torrent
Upon the innocent.

Mos. Yes, and to make
So rare a music out of discords —

Volp. Right.

That yet to me 's the strangest, how thou 'st borne it!

That these, being so divided, 'mongst themselves,
Should not scent somewhat, or in me or thee,
Or doubt their own side.

Mos. True, they will not see 't.
Too much light blinds 'em, I think. Each of 'em
Is so posset and stuff with his own hopes
That anything unto the contrary,
Never so true, or never so apparent,
Never so palpable, they will resist it —

Volp. Like a temptation of the devil.

Mos. Right, sir.

Merchants may talk of trade, and your great signiors

Of land that yields well; but if Italy

Have any glebe more fruitful than these fellows,
I am deceiv'd. Did not your advocate rare?

Volp. O — "My most honour'd fathers, my grave fathers,
Under correction of your fatherhoods,
What face of truth is here? If these strange deeds

May pass, most honour'd fathers? — I had much ado

To forbear laughing.

Mos. It seem'd to me, you sweat, sir.

Volp. In truth, I did a little.

Mos. But confess, sir,
Were you not daunted?

Volp. In good faith, I was
A little in a mist, but not dejected;

Never but still myself.

Mos. I think it, sir.
Now, so truth help me, I must needs say this, sir,

And out of conscience for your advocate,
He has taken pains, in faith, sir, and deserv'd,
In my poor judgment, I speak it under favour,

Not to contrary you, sir, very richly —

To — to be cozen'd.

Volp. Troth, and I think so too,

By that I heard him in the latter end.

Mos. O, but before, sir: had you heard him first

Draw it to certain heads, then aggravate,
Then use his vehement figures — I look'd still
When he would shift a shirt; and doing this
Out of pure love, no hope of gain —

Volp. 'Tis right.

I cannot answer him, Mosca, as I would,
Not yet; but for thy sake, at thy entreaty,
I will begin, even now — to vex 'em all,
This very instant.

Mos. Good sir.

Volp. Call the dwarf.

Mos. Castrone, Nano!

[Enter Castrone and Nano.]

Nano. Here.

Volp. Shall we have a jig now?

Mos. What you please, sir.

Volp. Go,

Straight give out about the streets, you two,

That I am dead; do it with constancy.

Sadly, 2 do you hear? Impute it to the grief
Of this late slander.

[Exeunt Cast. and Nano.]

Mos. What do you mean, sir? O,

I shall have instantly my Vulture, Crow,
Raven, come flying hither, on the news,
To seek for carrion, my she-wolf, and all,
Greedy, and full of expectation —

Mos. And then to have it ravish'd from their Volp. 'Tis true, I will ha' thee put on a gown,

And take upon thee, as thou wert mine heir; 2

The same.
Show 'em a will. Open that chest, and reach Forth one of those that has the blanks; I'll straight
Put in thy name.

Mos. It will be rare, sir.
[Give him a paper.]

Volv. When they e'en gape, and find themselves deluded—

Mos. Yes. [patch,]

Volv. And thou use them securily! Dis-
Get on thy gown.

Mos. [Putting on a gown.] But what, sir, if they ask
After the body?

Volv. Say, it was corrupted.

Mos. I'll say it stank, sir; and was fain to have it.

Coffin'd up instantly, and sent away.

Volv. Anything; what thou wilt. Hold, here's my will.

Get thee a cap, a count-book, pen and ink,
Papers afor thee; sit as thou wart taking
An inventory of parcels. I'll get up
Behind the curtain, on a stool, and hearken:
Sometimes peep over, see how they do look,

With what degrees their blood doth leave their faces.

O, 'twill afford me a rare meal of laughter!

Mos. [Putting on a cap, and setting out the table, &c.] Your advocate will turn stark dull upon it.

Volv. It will take off his oratory's edge.

Mos. But your clarissimo, old roundback, he Will crump you like a hog-louse, with the touch.

Volv. And what Corvino?

Mos. O, sir, look for him,
To-morrow morning, with a rope and dagger,
To visit all the streets; he must run mad,
My lady too, that came into the court,

To bear false witness for your worship.

Volv. Yes, and kiss'd me 'fore the fathers, when my face
Flow'd all with oils—

Mos. And sweat, sir. Why, your gold
Is such another medicine, it dries up
All those offensive savours: it transforms
The most deformed, and restores them lovely,
As 'twere the strange poetical girdle. 1 Jove
Could not invent t' himself a shroud more subtle
To pass Acrisius' guards. It is the thing Makes all the world her grace, her youth, her beauty.

Volv. I think she loves me.

Mos. Who? The lady, sir?

She's jealous of you.

Volv. Dost thou say so?
[Knocking within.]

Mos. There's some already.

Volv. Look. It is the Vulture;

Mos. He has the quickest scent.

Volv. Thou to thy posture. [Goes behind the curtain.]

1 Cestus. (Jonson.) 2 The father of Danaë.

Mos. I am set.

Volv. But, Mosca, 110

Play the artificer now, torture 'em rarely.

SCENE III. 3

Mosca. [Enter] VoltoRE.

Volv. How now, my Mosca?

Mos. [writing]. "Turkey carpets, nine —"

Volv. Taking an inventory! that is well.

Mos. "Two suits of bedding, tissue —"

Volv. Where's the will?

Let me read that the while.

[Enter Servants with CorBaccio in a chair.]

Corb. So, set me down,
And get you home.

[Exeunt Servants.]

Volv. Is he come now, to trouble us?

Mos. "Of cloth of gold, two more —"

Corb. Is it done, Mosca?

Mos. "Of several velvets, eight —"

Volv. I like his care.

Corb. Dost thou not hear?

[Enter CorVinO.]

Corv. Ha! is the hour come, Mosca?

Volv. Ay, now they muster.

Corv. Peeps from behind a traverse.

Corv. What does the advocate here, 19

Or this Corbaccio?

Corv. What do these here?

[Enter Lady Pol. Would-be.]

Lady P. Mosca!

Is his thread spun?

Mos. "Eight chests of linen —"

Volv. 0,

My fine Dame Would-be, too!

Corv. Mosca, the will,
That I may show it these, and rid 'em
hence.

Mos. "Six chests of diapar, four of damask —" There.

[Give them the will carelessly, over his shoulder.]

Corb. Is that the will?

Mos. "Down-beds, and bolsters —" 17

Volv. Rare!

Be busy still. Now they begin to flutter:
They never think of me. Look, see, see!

How their swift eyes run over the long deed,
Unto the name, and to the legacies,

What is bequeath'd them there —

Mos. "Ten suits of hangings —"

Volv. Ay, in their garters, Mosca. Now their hopes

Are at the gasp.

Mosca the heir.

Volv. What's that?

Corb. My advocate is dumb; look to my merchant.

He's heard of some strange storm, a ship is lost,

He faints; my lady will swoon. Old glazed-eyes,
He hath not reach'd his despair yet.

3 The same.
Corb. All these
Are out of hope; I am, sure, the man.

[ Takes the will. ]

Corv. But, Mosca—

Mos. "Two cabinets — — "

Corv. Mos. " One of ebony — — "

Corv. Or do you but delude me?

Mos. " The other, mother of pearl. " — I'm very busy,

Good faith, it is a fortune thrown upon me —
" Item, one salt of agate — not my seeking. "

Lady P. Do you hear, sir? [ bear, Mos. " A perfum'd box. " — Pray you for,
You see I'm troubl'd — " made of an onyx — "

Lady P. How! 35

Mos. To-morrow or next day, I shall be at leisure
To talk with you all.

Corv. Is this my large hope's issue?

Lady P. Sir, I must have a fairer answer.

Mos. Madam!

Marry, and shall: pray you, fairly quit my house,
Nay, raise no tempest with your looks; but
hark you,
Remember what your ladyship off'rd me
To put you in an heir; go to, think on it;
And what you said 'en your best madams did
For maintenance; and why not you? Enough.

Go home, and use the poor Sir Pol, your knight, well,

For fear I tell some riddles; go, be melancholic.

[ Exit Lady Would-be. ]

Volp. O, my fine devil!

Corv. Mosca, pray you a word.

Mos. Lord! will not you take your dispatch hence yet?

Methinks, of all, you should have been th' example.

Why should you stay here? With what thought, what promise?

Hear you; do you not know, I know you an ass,
And that you would most fain have been a wittol,
If fortune would have let you? that you are
A declared'c cuckold, on good terms? This pearl,
You'll say, was yours? right: this diamond? 35
I'll not deny't, but thank you. Much here else?

It may be so. Why, think that these good works
May help to hide your bad. I'll not betray you;

Although you be but extraordinary,
And have it only in title, it sufficeth:

Go home, be melancholy too, or mad.

[ Exit Corvino. ]

Volp. Rare Mosca! how his villany becomes him!

Vol. Certain he doth delude all these for me.

Corb. Mosca the heir!

Volp. O, his four eyes have found it.

Corb. I am cozen'd, cheated, by a parasite-slave;

Harlot, 'tis hast gull'd me.

Mos. Yes, sir. Stop your mouth,
Or I shall draw the silly tooth is left.
Are not you he, that filthy cozenous wretch,
With the three legs, that here, in hope of prey,
Have, any time this three years, snuff'd about,
With your most grov'ling nose, and would have hir'd

Me to the poising of my patron, sir?

Are not you he that have to-day in court
Profess'd the disinheriting of your son?

Perjur'd yourself? Go home, and die, and stink;

If you but croak a syllable, all comes out:

Away, and call your porters! [ Exit Corbaccio. ]

Go, go, stink.

Volp. Excellent varlet!

Vol. Now, my faithful Mosca,

I find thy constancy —

Mos. Sir!

Vol. Sincere.

Mos. [ writing. ] " A table

Of porphyry " — I marle you'll be thus troublesome.

Vol. Nay, leave off now, they are gone.

Mos. Why, who are you?

What! who did send for you? O, cry you mercy,
Reverend sir! Good faith, I am grieve'd for you,

That any chance of mine should thus defeat
Your ( I must needs say ) most deserving travails:

But I protest, sir, it was cast upon me,
And I could almost wish to be without it,
But that the will o' the dead must be observ'd.

Marry, my joy is that you need it not;
You have a gift, sir ( thank your education ),

Will never let you want, while there are men,
And more, to breed causes! Would I had
But half the like, for all my fortune, sir!

If I have any suits, as I do hope,
Things being so easy and direct, I shall not,

I will make bold with your obstreperous aid,
Conceive me — for your fee, sir. In mean time,
You that have so much law, I know ha! the conscience

Not to be covetous of what is mine.

Good sir, I thank you for my plate; 'twill help

To set up a young man. Good faith, you look
As you were coveteous; best go home and purge,

sir. [ Exit Volpore. ]

Volp. [ comes from behind the curtain. ] Bid him eat lettuce? well. My witty mischief,

Let me embrace thee. O that I could now
Transform thee to a Venus! — Mosca, go, 100

Straight take my habit of clarissimo,

And walk the streets; be seen, torment 'em more:

We must pursue, as well as plot. Who would

Have lost this feast?

Mos. I doubt it will lose them.

1 Fellow: formerly used of both sexes.

2 Marvel.

3 Law-suits.

4 To make him sleep.
Volp. O, my recovery shall recover all.
That I could but think on some disguise
To meet 'em in, and ask 'em questions:
How I would vex 'em still at every turn!
Mos. Sir, I can fit you.
Volp. Canst thou?
Mos. Yes, I know
One o' the commandadori, sir, so like you;
Him will I straight make drunk, and bring you his habit.
Volp. A rare disguise, and answering thy brain!
O, I will be a sharp disease unto 'em.
Mos. Sir, you must look for curses.
Volp. Till they burst;
The Fox fares ever best when he is curst.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV. 1

[Enter] Persegrin. [disguised and] three Merchants.

Per. Am I enough disguis'd?
1 Mer. I warrant you.
Per. All my ambition is to fright him only.
2 Mer. If you could ship him away, 'twere excellent.
3 Mer. To Zant, or to Aleppo!
Per. Yes, and ha' his Adventures put i' th' Book of Voyages,
And his gull'd story regist'red for truth.
Well, gentlemen, when I am in a while,
And that you think us warm in our discourse,
Know your approaches.
1 Mer. Trust it to our care.
[Exeunt Merchants.]

[Enter Waiting-woman.]

Per. Save you, fair lady! Is Sir Pol within?
Wom. I do not know, sir.
Per. Pray say unto him
Here is a merchant, upon earnest business,
Desires to speak with him.
Wom. I will see, sir. [Exit.]
Per. Pray you.

I see the family is all female here.

[Re-enter Waiting-woman.]

Wom. He says, sir, he has weighty affairs of
That now require him whole; some other time
You may possess him.
Per. Pray you say again,
If those require him whole, they will exact him,
Whereof I bring him tidings. [Exit Woman.]
Per. What might be
His grave affair of state now! How to make Bolognian sausages here in Venice, sparing
One o' th' ingredients?

[Re-enter Waiting-woman.]

Wom. Sir, he says, he knows
By your word "tidings," that you are no statesman,
And therefore will you stay.
Per. Sweet, pray you return him;
I have not read so many proclamations,

And studied them for words, as he has done —
But — here he deigns to come. [Exit Woman.]

[Enter Sir Politic.]

Sir P. Sir, I must crave
Your courteous pardon. There hath chanced to-day
Unkind disaster 'twixt my lady and me;
And I was penning my apology,
To give her satisfaction, as you came now.
Per. Sir, I am griev'd I bring you worse disaster:
The gentleman you met at th' port to-day,
That told you he was newly arriv'd —
Sir P. Ay, was
A fugitive punk?
Per. No, sir, a spy set on you:
And he has made relation to the senate,
That you profest to him to have a plot
To sell the State of Venice to the Turk.
Sir P. O me!
[time,
Per. For which warrants are sign'd by this
To apprehend you, and to search your study
For papers —
Sir P. Alas, sir, I have none, but notes
Drawn out of play-books —
Per. All the better, sir.
Sir P. And some essays. What shall I do?
Per. Sir, best
Convey yourself into a sugar-closet;
Or, if you could lie round, a frail 2 were rare;
And I could send you aboard.
Sir P. Sir, I but talk'd so.
For discourse sake merely. [They knock without.]
Per. Hark! they are there.
Sir P. I am a wretch, a wretch!
Per. What will you do, sir?
Have you ne'er a currant-butt to leap into?
They'll put you to the rack; you must be sudden.
Sir P. Sir, I have an engine
3 Mer. [within.
Sir Politic Would-be!
2 Mer. [within.
Where is he?
Sir P. That I've thought upon before time.
Per. What is it?
Sir P. I shall ne'er endure the torture.
Marry, it is, sir, of a tortoise-shell,
Fitted for these extremities: pray you, sir, help me.
Here I've a place, sir, to put back my legs,
Please you to lay it on, sir, [Lies down while
Per. places the shell upon him.] — with this cap,
And my black gloves. I'll lie, sir, like a tortoise,
Till they are gone.
Per. And call you this an engine?
Sir P. Mine own device. — Good sir, bid my wife's women
To burn my papers. [Exit Per.]
The three Merchants rush in.
1 Mer. Where is he hid?
3 Mer. We must,
And will sure find him.
2 Mer. Which is his study?

1 A hall in Sir Politic's house.
2 Rush-basket.
3 Contrivance.
[Re-enter Peregrine.]

1 Mer. Are you, sir?
Per. I 'm a merchant, that came here
To look upon this tortoise?
3 Mer. How!
1 Mer. St. Mark!
What beast is this?
2 Mer. It is a fish.
1 Mer. Nay, you may strike him, sir, and tread upon him:
He'll bear a cart.
1 Mer. What, to run over him?
Per. Yes, sir.
3 Mer. Let's jump upon him.
2 Mer. Can he not go?
Per. He creepes, sir.
1 Mer. Let's see him creep.
Per. No, good sir, you will hurt him.
2 Mer. Heart, I will see him creep, or prick his guts.
3 Mer. Come out here!
Per. Pray you, sir, creep a little.
1 Mer. Forth.
2 Mer. Yet further.
Per. Good sir! — Creep.
2 Mer. They pull off the shell and discover him.
3 Mer. Gods so, he has garters!
1 Mer. Ay, and gloves!
2 Mer. Is this your fearful tortoise?
Per. [discovering himself.] Now, Sir Pol, we're even;
For your next project I shall be prepar'd:
1 Mer. 'Twere a rare motion, to be seen in Fleet-street.
2 Mer. Ay, in the Term.
1 Mer. Or Smithfield, in the fair.
3 Mer. Methinks 'tis but a melancholic sight.
Per. Farewell, most politic tortoise!
[Exeunt Per. and Merchants.]

[Re-enter Waiting-woman.]

Sir P. Where's my lady?
Wom. I know not, sir.
Sir P. Enquire. —
O, I shall be the fable of all feasts,
The freight of the gazetti, ship-boys' tale;
And, which is worst, even talk for ordinaries.
Wom. My lady's come most melancholic home,
And says, sir, she will straight to sea, for physic.
Sir P. And I, to shun this place and clime for ever,
Creeping with house on back, and think it well
To shrink my poor head in my politic shell.
[Exeunt.]

Scene V.

[Enter Mosca in the habit of a clarissimo, and Volpone in that of a commandatore.]

Volp. Am I then like him?
Mos. O, sir, you are he;
No man can sever you.
Volp. Good.
Mos. But what am I?
Volp. Fore heaven, a brave clarissimo; thou becom'st it!
Pity thou wert not born one.
Mos. [Aside.] If I hold My made one, 't will be well.
Volp. I'll go and see
What news first at the court.
[Exit.]
Mos. Do so. My Fox
Is out of his hole, and ere he shall re-enter,
I'll make him languish in his borrow'd care,
Except he come to composition with me. —
Androgyno, Castrone, Nano!

[Enter Androgyno, Castrone, and Nano.]

All. Here.
Mos. Go, recreate yourselves abroad; go, sport. —
[Exeunt.]
So, now I have the keys, and am possess'd
Since he will needs be dead afore his time,
I'll bury him, or gain by 'm: I'm his heir,
And so will keep me, till he share at least.
To cozen him of all, were but a cheat
Well plac'd; no man would construe it a sin:
Let his sport pay for 't. This is call'd the Fox-trap.
[Exit.]

Scene VI.

[Enter Corbaccio, Corvino.]

Corb. They say the court is set.
Corv. We must maintain
Our first tale good, for both our reputations.
Corb. Why, mine's no tale: my son would there have kill'd me.
Corv. That's true, I had forgot: — mine is,
I'm sure,
But for your will, sir.
Corb. Ay, I'll come upon him
For that hereafter, now his patron's dead.
[Enter Volpone.]

Volp. Signior Corvino! and Corbaccio! sir,
Much joy unto you.
Corv. Of what? The sudden good
Dropt down upon you—
Corb. Where?
Volp. And none knows how.
From old Volpone, sir.
Corb. Out, arrant knave!
Volp. Let not your too much wealth, sir, make you furious.
Corb. Away, thou varlet.
Volp. Why, sir?
Corb. Dost thou mock me?

1 Show.
2 The theme of the newspapers.
3 A room in Volpone's house.
4 Disguise.
5 A street.
Volp. You mock the world, sir; did you not change wills?

Corb. Out, harlot!

Volp. O! belike you are the man,
Signior Corvino? Faith, you carry it well; 16
You grow not mad withal; I love your spirit:
You are not over-learn’d with your fortune.
You should ha’ some would swell now, like a wine-fat,
With such an autumn. — Did he gi’ you all, sir?

Corb. Avoid, you rascal!

Volp. Truth, your wife has shown 20
Herself a very woman; but you are well,
You need not care, you have a good estate,
To bear it out, sir, better by this chance:
Except Corbaccio have a share.

Hence, varlet.

Volp. You will not be acknowledged, sir; why,
'tis wise.

Thus do all gamesters, at all games, ensemble.

No man will seem to win. [Exeunt Corvino and Corbaccio.] Here comes my vulture,
Heaving his beak up i’ the air, and sniffing.

SCENE VII. 1

Volpone. [Enter] Volpone.

Volt. Outstript thus, by a parasite! I slave,
Would run on errands, and make legs for crumps!

Well, what I’ll do —

Volp. The court stays for your worship.
I o’en rejoice, sir, at your worship’s happiness,
And that it fell into so learned hands,
That understand the fing’ring —

Volt. What do you mean?

Volp. I mean to be a suitor to your worship,
For the small tenement, out of reparations. 2

That, at the end of your long row of houses,
By the Piscaria: it was, in Volpone’s time, 10
Your predecessor, ere he grew diseasc’d.
A handsome, pretty, custom’d 3 bawdy-house
As any was in Venice, none disprop’s d;
But fell with him: his body and that house
Decay’d together.

Volt. Come, sir, leave your prating. 16

Volp. Why, if your worship give me but your hand
That I may ha’ the refusal, I have done.
'Tis a mere toy to you, sir; candle- rents;
As your learn’d worship knows —

Volt. What do I know?

Volp. Marry, no end of your wealth, sir; God decree it!

Volp. Mistaking knave! what, mock’st thou my misfortune? [Exit.]

Volt. His blessing on your heart, sir; would
't were more! —

Now to my first again, at the next corner.

[Exit.]
Get you a biggin\(^1\) more; your brain breaks loose.

Volp. Well sir.

Volp. Would you ha' me beat the insolent THROW dirt upon his first good clothes?

Volp. This same IS doubtless some familiar.

Volp. Sir, the court, In truth, stays for you. I am mad, a fool That never read Justinian, should get up, 10 And ride an advocate. Had you no quirk To avoid gullage, sir, by such a creature? I hope you do but jest; he has not done 't: This 's but confederacy to blind the rest.

You are the hair?

Volp. A strange, officious, 18 Troublesome knave! thou dost torment me.

Volp. It cannot be, sir, that you should be Coccon't; 'Tis not within the wit of man to do it; You are so wise, so prudent; and 'tis fit 19 That wealth and wisdom still should go together.

[Exeunt.]

Scene X. 2

[Enter] 4 Advocate, Notario, Bonario, Celia, CORBACCIO, Corvino, Commandadori, [Saffi, etc.]

1 Advocate. Are all the parties here?

Not. All but th' advocate.

2 Advocate. And here he comes.

[Enter VOLTORE and VOLPONE.]

1 Advocate. Then bring them forth to sentence.

Volp. O, my most honour'd fathers, let your mercy

Once win upon your justice, to forgive —

I am distracted —

Volp. (Aside.) What will he do now?

Volp. O, I know not which t' address myself to first; Whether your fatherhoods, or these innocents —

Corv. (Aside.) Will he betray himself?

Volp. Whom equally

I have abus'd, out of most covetous ends —

Corv. The man is mad!

Corb. What's that?

Volp. For which, now struck in conscience, here I prostrate Myself at your offended feet, for pardon.

1, 2 Advocate. Arie.

Celi. O heaven, how just thou art!

Volp. I'm caught I'm mine own noose —

Corv. [to CORBACCIO.] Be constant, sir; nought now

Can help but impudence.

1 Advocate. Speak forward.

Cor. Silence!

Volp. It is not passion in me, reverend fathers,

But only conscience, conscience, my good sires, 1 Barrister's cap.

That makes me now tell truth. That parasite, That knife, hath been the instrument of all. 10

1 Advocate. Where is that knife? Fetch him.

Volp. I go.

Volp. Grave fathers, This man's distracted; he confess it now: For, hoping to be old Volpone's heir, Who now is dead —

3 Advocate. How! 2 Advocate. Is Volpone dead?

Corv. Dead since, grave fathers.

Bon. O sure vengeance!

1 Advocate. Stay, Then he was no deceiver?

Volp. O no, none:

This parasite, grave fathers.

Corv. He does speak Out of mere envy, 'cause the servant's made The thing he gap'd for. Please your fatherhoods, This is the truth, though I'll not justify The other, but he may be some-deal faulty. 20

Volp. Ay, to your hopes, as well as mine, Corvino: But I'll use modesty, 3 Plead your wisdoms, To view these certain notes, and but confer 'em;

And as I hope favour, they shall speak clear truth.

Corv. The devil has ent'red him!

Bon. Or hides in you.

4 Advocate. We have done ill, by a public officer To send for him, if he be heir.

2 Advocate. For whom?

4 Advocate. Him that they call the parasite.

3 Advocate. 'Tis true, He is a man of great estate, now left.

4 Advocate. Go you, and learn his name, and say the court

Entreats his presence here, but to the clearing Of some few doubts.

2 Advocate. This same 's a labyrinth!

1 Advocate. Stand you unto your first report?

Corv. My state,

My life, my name —

Bon. Where is 't?

Corv. Are at the stake.

1 Advocate. Is yours so too?

Corb. The advocate's a knife, 45 And has a forked tongue —

2 Advocate. Speak to the point.

Corb. So is the parasite too.

1 Advocate. This is confusion.

Volp. I do beseech your fatherhoods, read but these —

[Give them papers.]

Corv. And credit nothing the false spirit hath writ:

It cannot be but he's possesst, grave fathers. 50

[The scene closes.]

Scene XI. 5

You, and Mosca gave it second; he must now
Help to see up this vein, or we be dead.

[Nano, Androgyno, and Castrone.]}

How now! Who let you loose? Whither go you now?
What, to buy gingerbread, or to drown kitlings?
Nan. Sir, Master Mosca call'd us out of doors,
And bid us all go play, and took the keys. 11

And. Yes. [Why, so!]
Volp. Did Master Mosca take the keys?
I'm farther in. These are my fine conceits!
I must be merry, with a mischief to me! 14
What a vile wretch was I, that could not bear
My fortune soberly? I must ha' my crochets, And my conundrums! Well, go you, and seek
him:
His making may be truer than my fear.
Bid him, he straight come to me to the court;
Thither will I, and, if 't be possible, 20
Unscrew my advocate, upon new hopes:
When I provok'd him, then I lost myself.

Scene XII. 1

Avocatori, [Bonario, Celia, Corbaggio, Corvino, Commandadori, Saffi,] etc., [as before.]

1 Avoc. These things can ne'er be reconcil'd.
He here
[showing the papers]
Professeth that the gentleman was wrong'd,
And that the gentlewoman was brought thither,
For'd by her husband, and there left.

Volp. Most true.

Cel. How ready is heaven to those that pray!

1 Avoc. But that
Volpone would have ravish'd her, he holds Utterly false, knowing his impotence.

Corv. Grave fathers, he's possest; again, I say,
Possest: nay, if there be possession, and Obsession, he has both.

3 Avoc. Here comes our officer. 19

[Enter Volpone.]

Volp. The parasite will straight be here, grave fathers.

4 Avoc. You might invent some other name, sir varlet.

3 Avoc. Did not the notary meet him?

Volp. Not that I know.

4 Avoc. His coming will clear all.

Volp. May't pleasure your fatherhoods?

Volp. [whispers Volp.]
Sir, the parasite 14
Will'd me to tell you that his master lives;
That you are still the man; your hopes the same;
And this was only a jest —

Vol. How?

Volp. Sir, to try
If you were firm, and how you stood affected.

Volp. Art sure he lives?

Volp. Do I live, sir?

Vol. O me!

Volp. I was too violent.

Volp. Sir, you may redeem it. 21
They said you were possest; fall down, and seem so:
I'll help to make it good. (Volpore falls.)

God bless the man! —
Stop your wind hard, and swell — See, see, see,
see!

He vomits crooked pins! His eyes are set,
Like a dead hare's hung in a poultier's shop!
His mouth's running away! Do you see, signior?
Now it is in his belly.

Corv. Ay, the devil!

Volp. Now in his throat.

Corv. Ay, I perceive it plain.

Volp. 'T will out, 't will out! stand clear,
See where it flies,
In shape of a blue toad, with a bat's wings!

Do you not see it, sir? 30

Corv. 'Tis too manifest.

Volp. Look! he comes t' himself!

Volp. Where am I?

Volp. Take good heart, the worst is past, sir.

You're dispossess.

1 Avoc. What accident is this! 35
2 Avoc. Sudden and full of wonder!

Avoc. If he were
Possest, as it appears, all this is nothing.

Corv. He has been often subject to these fits.

1 Avoc. Show him that writing: —do you know it, sir?

Volp. (whispers Volp.) Deny it, sir, forswear it; know it not.

Vol. Yes, I do know it well, it is my hand;
But all that it contains is false.

Bon. O practice! 42

3 Avoc. What maze is this!

1 Avoc. Is he not guilty then,
Whom you there name the parasite?
Volp. Grave fathers,
No more than his good patron, old Volpone.

4 Avoc. Why, he is dead.

Volp. O no, my honour'd fathers,

He lives —

1 Avoc. How lives he?

2 Avoc. This is subtler yet!

3 Avoc. You said he was dead.

Volp. Never.

3 Avoc. You said so.

Corv. I heard so.

4 Avoc. Here comes the gentleman; make him way.

[Enter Mosca.]

3 Avoc. A stool,
4 Avoc. [Aside.] A proper man; and were Volpone dead,

A fit match for my daughter.
Give him way.

Volpone. [Aside to Mosca.] Mosca, I was almost lost; the advocate
Had betray'd all; but now it is recover'd;
All's on the hinge again — Say I am living.
Mos. What busy knave is this! — Most reverend fathers,
I sooner had attended your grave pleasures,
But that my order for the funeral
Of my dear patron did require me —

Volpone. [Aside.]

Mosca! Mosca! Whom I intend to bury like a gentle-
man.

Volpone. [Aside.] Ay, quick, and cozen me of all.

More intricate!

1 Avoc. And come about again!

4 Avoc. [Aside.] It is a match, my daughter is bestow'd.

Mos. [Aside to Volpone.] Will you gi' me half?

Volpone. First I'll be hang'd.

Mos. I know
Your voice is good, cry not so loud.

1 Avoc. Demand
The advocate. — Sir, did you not affirm
Volpone was alive?

Volpone. Yes, and he is;

This gent' man told me so. — [Aside to Mosca.] Thou shalt have half.

Mos. Whose drunkard is this same? Speak,
some that know him:
I never saw his face. — [Aside to Volpone.] I cannot not now
Afford it you so cheap.

Volpone. No!

1 Avoc. What say you? 70
Volpone. I did, grave fathers,
And will maintain he lives, with mine own life,
And that this creature [points to Mosca.] told me. [Aside.] — I was born
With all good stars my enemies.

Mos. Most grave fathers,
If such an insolence as this must pass 95
Upon me, I am silent: 't was not this
For which you sent, I hope.

2 Avoc. Take him away.

Volpone. Mosca!

3 Avoc. Let him be whipt.

Volpone. Will thou betray me?

Cozen me?

3 Avoc. And taught to bear himself
Toward a person of his rank.

4 Avoc. [The Officers seize Volpone.] Away.

Mos. I humbly thank your fatherhoods.

Volpone. Soft, soft: [Aside.] Whipt!

And lose all that I have! If I confess,
It cannot be much more.

4 Avoc. Sir, are you married?

Volpone. They 'll be all'd anon; I must be resolute;
The Fox shall here unease.

Mos. Puts off his disguise.

Volpone. Patron!

Nay, now
My ruin shall not come alone; your match

I'll hinder sure: my substance shall not glue
you,
Nor screw you into a family.

Mos. Why, patron! [Pointing to Mosca.]

Volpone. I am Volpone, and this is my knave;
This [to Volpone], his own knave; this [to Corv.], avarice's fool.

This [to Corv.], a chimera of wit, fool,
and knave:

And, reverend fathers, since we all can hope
Nought but a sentence, let's not now despair it.

You hear me brief.

Corv. May it please your fatherhoods —

Com. Silence. 94

1 Avoc. The knot is now undone by miracle.

2 Avoc. Nothing can be more clear.

3 Avoc. Or can more prove

These innocent.

1 Avoc. Give 'em their liberty.

Bon. Heaven could not long let such gross crimes be hid.

2 Avoc. If this be held the highway to get riches,

May I be poor!

3 Avoc. This 's not the gain, but torment.

1 Avoc. These possess wealth, as sick men possess fevers,

Which truller may be said to possess them.

2 Avoc. Disrobe that parasite.

Corv. Mosca. Most honour'd fathers —

1 Avoc. Can you plead aught to stay the course of justice? 104

If you can, speak.

Corv. Volt. We beg favour.

Col. And mercy.

1 Avoc. You hurt your innocence, suing for the guilty.

Stand forth; and first the parasite. You appear

T' have been the chiefest minister, if not plotter.

In all these lewd impostures, and now, lastly,

Have with your impudence abus'd 1 the court,

And habit of a gentleman of Venice,

Being a fellow of no birth or blood:

For which our sentence is, first, thou be whipt;

Then live perpetual prisoner in our galleys. 114

Volpone. I thank you for him.

Mosca. Bane to thy wolfish nature!

1 Avoc. Deliver him to the saff. 4 [Mosca is carried off.] Thou, Volpone,

By blood and rank a gentleman, canst not fail
Under like censure; but our judgment on thee
Is, that thy substance all be straight confiscate
To the hospital of the Incurabili:

And since the most was gotten by imposture,

By feigning lame, gout, palsy, and such dis-cases,

Thou art to lie in prison, cramp'd with irons,

Till thou best sick and lame indeed. Remove him. [He is taken from the Bar.]

Volpone. This is called mortifying of a Fox. 156

1 Avoc. Thou, Voltore, to take away the scandal

Thou hast giv'n all worthy men of thy profession,

1 Deceived.

2 Under-bailiff.
Art banish’d from their fellowship, and our state.
Corbaccio! — bring him near. We here possess
Thy son of all thy state, and confine thee
To the monastery of San Spirito;
Where, since thou knew’st not how to live well
here.
Thou shalt be learn’d to die well.
Corb. Ha! what said he?
Com. You shall know anon, sir.
1 Avoc. Thou, Corvino, shalt
Be straight embark’d from thine own house,
And row’d
Round about Venice, through the Grand Canal,
Wearing a cap, with fair long ass’s ears,
Instead of horns! and so to mount, a paper
Pinn’d on thy breast, to the Berlina.¹
Corv. Yes, And have mine eyes beat out with stinking fish, Bruis’d fruit, and rotten eggs — ’tis well. I ’m glad
I shall not see my shame yet.
1 Avoc. And to expiate
Thy wrongs done to thy wife, thou art to send her Home to her father, with her dowry trebled:
And these are all your judgments.
All. Honour’d fathers — 142
1 Avoc. Which may not be revok’d. Now you begin,
When crimes are done and past, and to be
punish’d,
To think what your crimes are. Away with them!
Let all that see these vices thus rewarded,
Take heart, and love to study ’em. Mischiefs feed.
Like beasts, till they be fat, and then they bleed. [Exeunt.]

VOLPONE [comes forward].
"The seasoning of a play is the applause.
Now, though the Fox be punish’d by the laws,
He yet doth hope, there is no suffer’ring due, 143
For any fact² which he hath done ’gainst you;
If there be, censure him; here he doubtful
stands:
If not, fare jovially, and clap your hands." [Exit.]

[TO THE READER]

If thou beest more, thou art an understander, and then I trust thee. If thou art one that tak’st up, and but a pretender, beware at what hands thou receiv’st thy commodity; for thou wert never more fair in the way to be coz’ned than in this age in poetry, especially in plays: wherein now the concurrence of jigs and dances 2 so reigneth, as to run away from nature and be afraid of her is the only point of art that tickles the spectators. But how out of purpose and place do I name art, when the professors are grown so obstinate contemmers of it, and presumers on their own naturals, 3 as they are deriders of all diligence that way, and, by simple mocking at the terms when they understand not the things, think to get off with wit by their ignorance! Nay, they are esteem’d the more learned and sufficient for this by the multitude, 4 through their excellent vice 5 of judgment. For they commend writers as they do fencers or wrestlers; who, if they come in robustiously and put for it with a great deal of violence, are receiv’d for the braver fellows; when many times their own rudeness is the cause of their disgrace, and a little touch of their adversary gives all that boisterous force the foil. 6 I deny not but that these men who always seek to do more than enough may some time happen on something that is good and great; but very seldom: and when it comes, it doth not compensate the rest of their ill. It sticks out, perhaps, and is more eminent, because all is sordid and vile about it; as lights are more discern’d in a thick darkness than a faint shadow. I speak not this out of a hope to do good on any man against his will; for I know, if it were put to the question of theirs and mine, the worse would find more suffrages, because the most favour common errors. But I give thee this warning, that there is a great difference between those that (to gain the opinion of copie’s) utter 8 all they can, however unfitly, and those that use election and a mean. For it is only the disease of the unskilful to think rude things greater than polish’d, or scatter’d more numerous than compos’d.]

PROLOGUE

Fortune, that favours fools, these two short hours
We wish away, both for your sakes and ours,
Judging spectators; and desire in place,
To th' author justice, to ourselves but grace.

Our scene is London, 'cause we would make known,
No country's mirth is better than our own.
No clime breeds better matter for your whore,
Bawd, squire, impostor, many persons more,
Whose marmors, now call'd humours, feed the stage;
And which have still been subject for the rage
Or spleen of comic writers. Though this pen
Did never aim to grieve, but better men;
Howe'er the age he lives in doth endure
The vices that she breeds, above their cure.
But when the wholesome remedies are sweet,
And, in their working gain and profit meet,
He hopes to find no spirit so much diseas'd,
But will with such fair correctives be pleas'd.
For here he doth not fear who can apply.
If there be any that will sit so high
Unto the stream, to look what it doth run,
They shall find things, they'd think, or wish, were done;
They are so natural follies, but so shown,
As even the doers may see, and yet not own.

ACT I

SCENE I.1

Face. Believe it, I will.

Sub. Thy worst. I fart at thee.

Dol. Ha! your wits? Why, gentlemen! for love——

Face. Sirrah, I'll strip you——

Sub. What to do? Lick figs —

Out at my — [sleights.] 3

Face. Rogue, rogue! — out of all your

Dol. Nay, look ye, sovereign, general, are you

Madmen?

Sub. O, let the wild sheep loose. I'll gum your silks

With good strong water, an you come.

Dol. Will you have

The neighbours hear you? Will you betray all?

Hark! I hear somebody.

Face. Sirrah——

Sub. I shall mar

All that the tailor has made, if you approach. 10

Face. You most notorious whelp, you insolent slave,

Dare you do this?

Sub. Yes; faith; yes; faith.

Face. Why, who

Am I, my mongrel, who am I?

Sub. I'll tell you,

Since you know not yourself.

Face. Speak lower, rogue.

1. A room in Lovewit's house.
2. Rabelais, bk. iv. ch. 45.
3. Drop your tricks.
4. Poorly paid servant.
5. The precinct of Blackfriars.
6. I. e. sallow.
7. Grains of powder.
8. A hat of coarse material.
THE ALCHEMIST

Sub. So, sir!
Face. When all your alchemy, and your algebra,
Your minerals, vegetals, and animals,
Your conjuring, coz'ning; and your dozen of trades,
Could not relieve your corpse with so much linen
Would make you tender, but to see a fire;
I ga' you count'nance, credit for your souls,
Your stills, your glasses, your materials;
Built you a furnace, drew you customers,
Advanc'd all your black arts; lent you, beside,
A house to practise in—
Sub. Your master's house!
Face. Where you have studied the more thriving skill
Of bawdry, since.
Sub. Yes, in your master's house.
You and the rats here kept possession.
Make it not strange. I know you were one could keep
The buttery-hatch still lock'd, and save the chippings,
Sell the dote beer to aqua-vitae men,
The which, together with your Christmas vails
At post-and-pair, your letting out of counters,
Made you a pretty stock, some twenty marks,
And gave you credit to converse with cobwebs,
Here, since your mistress' death hath broke up house.

Face. You might talk softlier, rascal.
Sub. No, you scab,
I'll thunder you in pieces. I will teach you
How to beware to tempt a Fury again
That carries tempest in his hand and voice.

Face. The place has made you valiant.
Sub. No, your clothes.
Thou vermin, have I ta'en thee out of dung;
So poor, so wretched, when no living thing
Would keep thee company, but a spider or worse?
Rain'd thee from brooms, and dust, and wat'r ing-pots,
Sublim'd thee, and exalted thee, and fix'd thee
In the third region, call'd our state of grace?
Wrought thee to spirit, to quintessence, with pains?
Would twice have won me the philosopher's work?
Put thee in words and fashion? made thee fit
For more than ordinary fellowships?
Giv'n thee thy oaths, thy quarrelling dimensions?
Thy rules to cheat at horse-race, cock-pit, cards, Dice, or whatever gallant tincture else?
Made thee a second in mine own great art?
And have I this for thanks! Do you rebel?
Do you fly out? the projection?
Would you be gone now?

1. Swindling.
2. Don't pretend to forget.
3. Sell the beer intended for the poor to liquor-dealers.
4. Tips.
5. I. e., to the card-players.
6. Technical jargon of alchemy.
7. Accomplishment.
8. At the moment when success is near.
9. At the moment when success is near.

Sub. Gentlemen, what mean you? Will you mar all?

Face. Slave, thou hadst had no name

Dol. Will you undo yourselves with civil war?

Sub. Never been known, past equi clibanum,
The heat of horse-dung, under ground, in cellars,
Or an ale-house darker than deaf John's; been lost
To all mankind, but laundresses and tapsters,
Sold not I been.

Dol. Do you know who hears you, sovereign?

Face. Sirrah—were civil.

Dol. Nay, general, I thought you should hang desperate, if you grow thus loud.

Sub. And hang thyself, I care not.

Face. Hang thee, collier, and all thy pots and pans, in picture I will.

Since thou hast mov'd me—

Dol. [Aside] O, this'll o'erthrow all.

Face. Write thee up bawd in Paul's; have all thy tricks
Of coz'ning with a hollow coal, dust, scrapings.
Searching for things lost, with a sieve and shears,
Erecting figures in your rows of houses,

And taking in of shadows with a glass,
Told in red letters; and a face cut for thee,
Worse than Gamaliel Ratsley.

Dol. Are you sound?

Face. Ha! you your senses, masters?

Dol. I will have a book, but rarely reckoning thy impostures,
Shall prove a true philosopher's stone to printers.

Sub. Away, you trencher-rascal!

Dol. Out, you dog-leech!

The vomit of all prisons—Will you be:

Dol. Your own destructions, gentlemen?

Face. Still spew'd out

For lying too heavy o' the basket.

Sub. Cheater!

Face. Bawd!

Dol. Cow-herd!

Sub. Conjurer!

Face. Cutpurse!

Dol. Witch!

Dol. We are ruin'd, lost! Ha! you no more regard
To your reputations? Where's your judgment?
'Slight.

Dol. Have yet some care of me, o' your republic—

Face. Away, this brach! I'll bring thee, rogue, within

The statute of sorcery, tricesimo tertio
Of Henry the Eighth, 14 and, perhaps thy neck
Within a noose, for laund'ring gold and barbing
it.

10 Astrological tricks. 11 A notorious highwayman.
12 Eating more than his share of rations.
13 Witch.
14 Henry VIII, the first act against witchcraft in England.
15 "Sweating" and clipping the coinage.
Sub. You'll bring your head within a cockscomb, will you?¹

She catcheth out face his sword, and breaks Subtle's glass.

And you, sir, with your menstrue!² — Gather it up.

'Sdeath, you abominable pair of stinkards,
Leave off your barking, and grow one again,
Or, by the light that shines, I'll cut your throats.
I'll not be made a prey unto the marshal³
For ne'er a snarling dog-bolt,⁴ o' you both.
Ha! you together cozen d all this while,
And all the world, and shall it now be said,
You've made most courteous shift to cozen yourselves?

[To Face.] You will accuse him! You will Within the statute!¹ Who shall take your word?

A whoreson, uppstart, apocryphal captain,
Whom not a Puritan in Blackfriars will trust
So much as for a feather: and you, too,
(to Subtle)
Will give the cause, forsooth! You will insult,
And claim a primacy in the divisions!⁵
You must be chief! As if you, only, had
The powder to project with, and the work
Were not begun out of equality!

The venture tripartite! All things in common!
Without priority! 'Sdeath! you perpetual curs,
Fall to your couples again, and cozen kindly,
And heartily, and lovingly, as you should,
And lose not the beginning of a term.
Or, by this hand, I shall grow factionis too,⁶
And take my part, and quit you.

Face. 'Tis his fault;
He ever murmurs, and objects his pains,
And says, the weight of all lies upon him.

Sub. Why, so it does.

Dol. How does it? Do not we Sustain our parts?

Sub. Yes, but they are not equal.

Dol. Why, if your part exceed to-day, I hope
Ours may to-morrow match it.

Sub. Ay, they may.

Dol. May, murmuring mastiffs! Ay, and do.
Death on me!

Help me to throttle him.

[Seizes Sub. by the throat.]

Sub. Dorothy! Mistress Dorothy! 'Ods precious, I'll do anything. What do you mean?

Dol. Because o' your fermentation and cibation?⁷

Sub. Not I, by heaven —

Dol. Your Sol and Luns — help me.

[To Face.]

Sub. Would I were hang'd then! I'll conform myself.

Dol. Will you, sir? Do so then, and quickly:
swear.

Sub. What should I swear?

Dol. To leave your faction,⁸ sir,
And labour kindly in the common work.

Sub. Let me not breathe if I meant aught besides.

I only us'd those speeches as a spur
To him.

Dol. I hope we need no spurs, sir. Do we?

Face. 'Slid, prove to-day who shall shark best.

Sub. Agreed.

Dol. Yes, and work close and friendly.

Sub. 'Slight, the knot
Shall grow the stronger for this breach, with me.
[They shake hands.]

Dol. Why, so, my good baboons! Shall we go make
A sort⁹ of sober, seurvy, precise neighbours,
That scarce have smil'd twice sin' the king came in.¹⁰

A feast of laughter at our follies? Rascals,
Would run themselves from breath, to see me ride.

Oryou t' have but a hole to thrust your heads in,⁶ For which you should pay ear-rent?² No, agree.

And may Don Frovost ride a feasting long,¹¹
In his old velvet jerkin and staintd sears,
My noble sovereign, and worthy general,
Ere we contribute a new crewel⁵ garter
To his most worsted worship.

Sub. Royal Dol! Spoken like Claridiana,¹² and thyself.

Face. For which at supper, thou shalt sit in triumph,
And not be styl'd Dol Common, but Dol Proper,
Dol Singular: the longest cut at night,
Shall draw thee for his Dol Particular.

[Bell rings without.]

Sub. Who's that? One rings. To the window.

Dol: [Exit Dol.] — Pray heav'n.

The master do not trouble us this quarter.

Face. O, fear not him. While there dies one a week
O' the plague, he's safe from thinking toward London.

Beside, he's busy at his hop-yards now;
I had a letter from him. If he do.
He'll send such word, for airing o' the house,
As you shall have sufficient time to quit it:
Though we break up a fortnight, 'tis no matter.

Re-enter Dol.

Sub. Who is it, Dol?

Dol. A fine young quolding.¹³

Face. O,

My lawyer's clerk, I lighted on last night,¹⁴
In Holborn, at the Dagger. He would have (I told you of him) a familiar.

To rifle with at horses, and win cups.

Dol. O, let him in.

Sub. Stay. Who shall do t'?

Face. Get you your robes on; I will meet him, as going out.

329

Dap. And what shall I do?
Face. Not be seen; away! [Exit DOL.]
Sub. Enough. [Exit Dap.]

Face. [loud and retiring.] God be wi' you, sir,
I pray you let him know that I was here:
His name is Dapper. I would gladly have staid, but —

SCENE II. 1

FACE.

Dap. [within.] Captain, I am here. [doctor.
Face. Who's that? — He's come, I think,
[Enter DAPPER.]

Good faith, sir, I was going away.
Dap.
Face. I am very sorry, captain.
Sure I should meet you.
Dap.
Face. This is his worship.
Dap. And ha' you broke 3 with him, captain?
Face.

Dap. And how? 1 0
Face. Faith, he does make the matter, sir, so dainty, 4 I know not what to say.
Dap.
Face. Would I were fairly rid o' t, believe me.
Dap. Nay, now you grieve me, sir. Why should you wish so?
Face. I dare assure you, I'll not be ungrateful. 1 5
I cannot think you will, sir. But the law
Is such a thing — and then he says, Read's 5
matter
Falling so lately —
Dap. Read! he was an ass,
And dealt, sir, with a fool.
Face. It was a clerk, sir. 1 0
Dap. A clerk!
Face. Nay, hear me, sir. You know the law
Better, I think —
Dap. I should, sir, and the danger:
You know, I show'd the statute to you.
Face. You did so.
Dap. And will I tell then! By this hand of flesh,
Would it might never write good court-hand
more,

If I discover. 6 What do you think of me, 2 5
That I am a chiaus? ?
Face. What's that?
Dap. The Turk was here.
As one would say, do you think I am a Turk?
Face. I'll tell the doctor so.
Dap. Do, good sweet captain.
Face. Come, noble doctor, pray thee let's prevail;
This is the gentleman, and he is no chiaus. 3 0
Sub. Captain, I have return'd you all my answer.
I would do much, sir, for your love — But
this
I neither may, nor can.
Face. Tut, do not say so.
You deal now with a noble fellow, doctor,
One that will thank you richly; and he's no
chiaus: 3 5
Let that, sir, move you.
Sub. Pray you, forbear — Face. He has Four angels here.
Sub. You do me wrong, good sir.
Face. Doctor, wherein? To tempt you with these spirits?
Sub. To tempt my art and love, sir, to my peril,
Fore he's n, I scarce can think you are my friend. 4 0
That so would draw me to apparent danger.
Face. I draw you! A horse draw you, and a halter,
You, and your flies 8 together —
Dap. Nay, good captain.
Face. That know no difference of men.
Sub. Good words, sir.
Face. Good deeds, sir, doctor dogs'-meat.
'8light, I bring you.
No cheating Olms' 9 the Cloughs 9 or Claribels, 1 3
That look as big as five-and-fifty, and flush; 1 1
And spit out secrets like hot custard —
Dap. Captain!
Face. Nor any melancholy underscribe,
Shall tell the vice; but a special gentle,
That is the heir to forty marks a year,
Consorts with the small poets of the time,
Is the sole hope of his old grandmother;
That knows the law, and writes you six fair hands,
Is a fine clerk, and has his ciphering perfect. 6 6
Will take his oath o' the Greek Xenophon, 1 2
If need be, in his pocket; and can court
His mistress out of Ovid.
Dap. Nay, dear captain —
Face. Did you not tell me so?
Dap. Yes; but I'd ha' you
Use master doctor with some more respect. 6 0
6 Reveal.
7 A Turkish interpreter, like the one who had recently cheated some merchants.
8 Familiar spirits.
9 An outlaw hero.
10 Probably a hero of romance. The name occurs in Spenser.
11 Five-and-fifty was the highest number to stand on at the old game of Primer. If a flush accompanied this, the hand swept the table. (Gifford.)
12 The Q. reads Testament.
Face. Hang him, proud stag, with his broad velvet head!—
But for your sake, I'd choke ere I would change
An article of breath with such a puck-fist!
Come, let's be gone. [Going.]
Sub. Pray you le'me speak with you.
Dap. His worship calls you, captain.
Face. I am sorry
I e'er embark'd myself in such a business.
Dap. Nay, good sir; he did call you.
Face. Will he take then?
Sub. First, hear me — —
Face. Not a syllable, 'less you take.
Sub. Pray ye, sir — —
Face. Upon no terms but an assumpseit.
Sub. Your humour must be law.
He takes the money.
Face. Why, sir, talk.
Now I dare hear you with mine honour. Speak.
So may this gentleman too.
Sub. Why, sir — —
[Offering to whisper FACE.]
Face. No whispering.
Sub. 'Fore heav'n, you do not apprehend the loss
You do yourself in this.
Face. Wherein? for what?
Sub. Marry, to be so importunate for one
That, when he has it, will undo you all:
He'll win up all the money 't the town.
Face. How?
Sub. [gamerster,
Yes, and blow up gamerster after
As they do crackers in a puppet-play.
If I do give him a familiar,
Give you him all you play on; never set him:
For he will have it.
Face. You're mistaken, doctor.
Why, he does ask one but for cups and horses,
A riffing fly; none o' your great familiaris.
Dap. Yes, captain, I would have it for all games.
Sub. I told you so.
Face. [taking DAP. aside] 'Slight, that is a new business!
I understood you, a tame bird, to fly
Twice in a term, or so, on Friday nights,
When you had left the office; for a nag
Of forty or fifty shillings.
Dap. Ay, 'tis true, sir;
But I do think, now, I shall leave the law,
And therefore— —
Face. Why, this changes quite the case.
Do you think that I dare move him?
Dap. If you please, sir;
All's one to him, I see.
Face. What! for that money?
I cannot with my conscience; nor should you
Make the request, methinks.
Dap. No, sir, I mean
To add consideration.
Face. Why, then, sir,
I'll try. [ Goes to SUBTLE] Say that it were for all games, doctor?
Sub. I say then, not a mouth shall eat for him
1 Negard.
2 That he has undertaken the affair.
3 Stake against.
4 To be used in raffles.

At any ordinary, but o' the score,
That is a gaming mouth, conceive me.
Face. Indeed!
Sub. He'll draw you all the treasure of the realm,
If it be set him.
Face. Speak you this from art?
Sub. Ay, sir, and reason too, the ground of art.
He is o' the only best complexion,
The queen of Fairy loves.
Face. What! is he?
Sub. He'll overhear you. Sir, should she but see him — —
Face. What?
Sub. Do not you tell him.
Face. Will he win at cards too?
Sub. The spirits of dead Holland, living Isaac,
You'd swear, were in him; such a vigorous luck
As cannot be resisted. 'Slight, he'll put Six o' your gallants to a cloak, indeed.
Face. A strange success, that some man shall be born to!
Sub. He hears you, man — —
Dap. Sir, I'll not be ingrateful.
Face. Faith, I have a confidence in his good nature:
You hear, he says he will not be ingrateful.
Sub. Why, as you please; my venture follows yours.
Face. Troth, do it, doctor; think him trusty, and make him.
He may make us both happy in an hour;
Win some five thousand pound, and send us two on't.
Dap. Believe it, and I will, sir.
Face. And you shall, sir.
You have heard all? FACE takes him aside.
Dap. No, what was? Nothing, I, sir.
Face. Nothing?
Dap. A little, sir.
Well, a rare star
Reign'd at your birth.
Dap. At mine, sir! No.
Face. The doctor
Swears that you are — —
Sub. Nay, captain, you'll tell all now.
Face. Allied to the queen of Fairy.
Dap. Who! That I am?
Believe it, no such matter — —
Face. Yes, and that You were born with a caul o' your head.
Dap. Who says so?
Face. Come
You know it well enough, though you dissemble it.
Dap. I' fac'e, I do not; you are mistaken.
Face. How!

Table d'hote restaurant.
The gamblers (who frequented ordinaries) will be so impoverished through his winnings that they will have to eat on credit.
Supposed to refer to two alchemists, but the dates
do not agree.
Strip to the cloak.
Faith.
Swear by your face, and in a thing so known
Unto the doctor? How shall we, sir, trust you
I' the other matter? Can we ever think,
When you have won five or six thousand pound,
You'll send us shares in 't, by this rate?
Dap. By Jove, sir, 135
I'll win ten thousand pound, and send you half.
I fac's no oath.
Sub. No, no, he did but jest.
Face. Go to. Go thank the doctor. He's your friend,
To take it so.
Dap. I thank his worship.
Face. So!
Another angel.
Dap. Must I?
Face. Must you! 'Slight, 140
What else is thanks? Will you be trivial?—
Doctor. [Dapper gives him the money.]
When must he come for his familiar?
Sub. Shall I not ha' it with me?
Sub. O, good sir!
There must a world of ceremonies pass;
You must be bath'd and fumigated first: 145
Besides, the queen of Fairy does not rise
Till it be noon.
Face. Not if she dane'd to-night.
Sub. And she must bless it.
Face. Did you never see
Her royal grace yet?
Dap. Whom?
Face. Your aunt of Fairy?
Sub. Not since she kist him in the cradle, captain;
I can resolve you that.
Face. Well, see her grace,
Whate'er it cost you, for a thing that I know
It will be somewhat hard to compass; but
However, see her. You are made, believe it, 164
If you can see her. Her grace is a lone woman,
And very rich; and if she take a fancy,
She will do strange things. See her, at any hand.
'slid, she may hap to leave you all she has!
It is the doctor's fear.
Dap. How will 't be done, then?
Face. Let me alone, take you no thought. Do you
But say to me, "Captain, I'll see her grace."
Dap. "Captain, I'll see her grace."
Face. Enough. One knocks without.
Sub. Who's there?
Anon. — [Aside to Face.] Conduct him forth
by the back way.
Sir, against one o'clock prepare yourself;
Till when you must be fasting; only take
Three drops of vinegar in at your nose,
Two at your mouth, and one at either ear;
Then bathe your fingers' ends and wash your eyes,
To sharpen your five senses, and cry hum 169
Thrice, and then buzz as often; and then come.
[Exit.]

Face. Can you remember this?
Dap. I warrant you.
Face. Well then, away. It is but your bestow-
ing
Some twenty nobles 'mong her grace's servants,

And put on a clean shirt. You do not know 174
What grace her grace may do you in clean linen.

[Exeunt Face and Dapper.]

SCENE III. 1
Sub. [within.] Come in! Good wives, I pray
you forbear me now;
Troth, I can do no good till afternoon.—
[Enter Subtle, followed by Druggier.]

Sub. What is your name, say you? Abel Druggier?

Drug. Yes, sir.
Sub. A seller of tobacco?

Drug. Yes, sir.

Sub. Ump!
Free of the grocers? 2

Drug. Yes, sir.
Sub. Well — 5
Your business, Abel?

Drug. This, an't please your worship;
I am a young beginner, and am building
Of a new shop, an't like your worship, just
At corner of a street: — Here is the plot 9
on't—
And I would know by art, sir, of your worship,
Which way I should make my door, by necro-mancy,
And where my shelves; and which should be for boxes,
And which for pots. I would be glad to thrive, sir,
And I was wish'd 4 to your worship by a gentle-
man,
One Captain Face, that says you know men's planets,
And their good angels, and their bad.

Sub. If I do see 'em—

[Enter Face.]

Face. What! my honest Abel?
Thou art well met here.

Drug. Troth, sir, I was speaking,
Just as your worship came here, of your worship.
I pray you speak for me to master doctor. 20

Face. He shall do anything. Doctor, do you hear?
This is my friend, Abel, an honest fellow;
He lets me have good tobacco, and he does not Sophisticate it with sack-lees or oil,
Nor washes it in muscadel and grains, 25
Nor buries it in gravel, under ground,
Wrapp'd up in greasy leather, or piss'd cloths:
But keeps it in fine little pots, that, open'd,
Smell like conserve of roses, or French beans. 30
He has his maple block, 8 his silver tongs,
Winchester pipes, and fire of juniper: 8

A neat, spruce, honest fellow, and no goldsmith. 7

1 The same.
2 I. e. a member of the Grocers' Company.
3 Plan.
4 Recommended.
5 On which tobacco was shredded.
6 The coals of which were used to light pipes.
7 Usher.
Sub. He's a fortunate fellow, that I am sure on.

Face. Already, sir, ha' you found it? Lo thee, Abel!

Sub. And in right way toward riches—

Face. Sir!

Sub. This summer. He will be of the clothing of his company,1 and next spring call'd to the scarlet; 2 spend what he can.

Face. What, and so little beard?

Sub. Sir, you must think, he may have a receipt to make hair come; but he'll be wise, preserve his youth, and fine for 't; his fortune looks for him another way. 'Slid, doctor, how canst thou know this so soon?

I am amus'd 3 at that.

Sub. By a rule, captain, in meteorscopy, 4 which I do work by; 4 a certain star 5 the forehead, which you see not. Your chestnut or your olive-colour'd face does never fail: and your long ear doth promise. I knew 't, by certain spots, too, in his teeth, and on the nail of his mercurial finger.

Face. Which finger's that?

Sub. His little finger. Look. You were born upon a Wednesday?

Drug. Yes, indeed, sir. The thumb, in chiromancy, we give Venus; the forefinger to Jove; the midst to Saturn; the ring to Sol; the least to Mercury. Who was the lord, sir, of his horoscope, 6 his house of life being Libra; which forsho' he should be a merchant, and should trade with balance.

Face. Why, this is strange! Is it not, honest Nab?

Sub. There is a ship now coming from Ormus, that shall yield him such a commodity of drugs—this is the west, and this the south? [Pointing to the plan.]

Drug. Yes, sir.

Sub. And these are your two sides?

Drug. Ay, sir.

Sub. Make me your door then, south; your broad side, west:

And on the east side of your shop, aloft, write Mathlai, Tarmiel, and Baraborat; 66 upon the north part, Rael, Velev, Thiel. They are the names of those Mercurial spirits that do fright flies from boxes.

Drug. Yes, sir.

Sub. Beneath your threshold, bury me a leadstone, that will keep all gallants that wear spurs: the rest, they'll seem to follow.

Face. That's a secret, Nab!

Sub. And, on your stall, a puppet, with a vice...

And a court-fucus, 6 to call city-dames: You shall deal much with minerals.

Drug. Sir, I have.

At home, already—

Sub. Ay, I know, you've arsenic, 7 Vitriol, sal-tartar, argaile, 7 alkali, Cinoper: 8 I know all. —This fellow, captain, will come, in time, to be a great distiller, and give a say: I will not say directly, but very fair—at the philosopher's stone.

Face. Why, how now, Abel! is this true?

Drug. [Aside to Face.] Good captain, what must I give?

Face. Nay, I'll not counsel thee. Thou hast'st what wealth (he says, spend what thou canst), thou'rt like to come to.

Drug. I would gi' him a crown.

Face. A crown! and toward such a fortune? Heart,

Thou shalt rather gi' him thy shop. No gold about thee?

Drug. Yes, I have a portage, 10 I ha' kept this half-year.

Face. Out on thee, Nab! 'Slight, there was such an offer—Shalt keep 't no longer, I'll gi' it him for thee. Doctor, Nab prays your worship to drink this, and swears he will appear more grateful, as your skill does raise him in the world.

Drug. I would entreat another favour of his worship.

Face. What is 't, Nab?

Drug. But to look over, sir, my almanac, and cross out my ill-days, 11 that I may neither bargain, nor trust upon them.

Face. That he shall, Nab: leave it, it shall be done, 'gainst afternoon. Sub. And a direction for his shelves.

Face. Now, Nab, art thou well pleas'd, Nab?

Drug. Yes, sir. Thank, sir, both your worship.

Face. Away. [Exit Drusus.] Why, now, you smoky persecutor of nature! Now do you see, that something 's to be done. Beside your beeche-coal, and your cor'sive 12 waters, your crosslets, 13 crucibles, and encoribits? 14 You must have stuff brought home to you, to work on:

And yet you think, I am at no expense in searching out these veins, then following 'em, then trying 'em out. 'Fore God, my intelligence Costs me more money than my share oft comes to,

In these rare works.

Sub. You're pleasant, sir.—How now! 10

1 Wear the livery. 4 A branch of physiognomy. 6 A gold coin worth about three pounds, twelveshillings.
2 Be sheriff. 6 Be seen.
3 Amazed.
16 Unlucky days. 12 Crucible.
ACT II

SCENE I.

[Enter] Sir Epicure Mammon and Surlly.

Mam. Come on, sir. Now you set your foot on shore
In Novo Orbe; here's the rich Peru:
And there within, sir, are the golden mines,
Great Solomon's Ophir! He was sailing to't
Three years, but we have reach'd it in ten months.
This is the day wherein, to all my friends,
I will pronounce the happy word, Be rich;
This day you shall be spec'atissimi.
You shall no more deal with the hollow die,
Or the frail card; no more bet on keeping
The livery-punk for the young heir, that must

Seal, at all hours, in his shirt: no more,
If he deny, he' a him beaten to 't, as he is
That brings him the commodity; no more
Shall thirst of satin, or the covetous hunger
Of velvet entails, for a rude-spun cloak,
To be display'd at Madam Augusta's, make
The sons of Sword and Hazard fall before
The golden calf, and on their knees, whole nights,
Commit idolatry with wine and trumpets:
Or go a feasting after drum and ensign.
No more of this. You shall start up young viceroys,
And have your punks and punkettes, my Surlly.
And unto thee I speak it first, Be rich.
Where is my Subtle there? Within, ho!

Mam. That is his fire-drake,
His Lungs, his Zephyrus, he that puffs his coals,
Till he fork nature up, in her own centre.
You are not faithful, sir. This night I'll change
All that is metal in my house to gold:
And, early in the morning, will I send
To all the plumbers and the pewterers,
And buy their tin and lead up; and to Lothbury
For all the copper.

Sur. What, and turn that, too?
Mam. Yes, and I'll purchase Devonshire and Cornwall,
And make them perfect Indies! You admire
now?

Sur. No, faith.
Mam. But when you see the effects of the Great Med'cine,
Of which one part projected on a hundred
Of Mercury, or Venus, or the Moon,
Shall turn it to as many of the Sun; Nay,
Nay, to a thousand, so ad infinitum:
You will believe me.

Sur. Yes, when I see 't, I will.
But if my eyes do cozen me so, and I Giving 'em no occasion, sure I'll have
A whore, shall piss 'em out next day.

Mam. Ha! why?
Do you think I fable with you? I assure you,
He that has once the flower of the sun,
The perfect ruby, which we call elixir,
Not only can do that, but by its virtue,
Can confer honour, love, respect, long life;
Give safety, valour, yea, and victory,
To whom he will. In eight and twenty days,
I'll make an old man of fourscore, a child.

Sur. No doubt; he's that already.

Mam. Nay, I mean, Restore his years, renew him, like an eagle,
To the fifth age; make him get sons and daughters,
Young giants; as our philosophers have done,
The ancient patriarchs, afore the flood,
But taking, once a week, on a knife's point,
The quantity of a grain of mustard of it;
Become stout Marses, and beget young Cupids.

Sur. The decay'd vestals of Pickt-hatch 1 would thank you,
That keep the fire alive there.
Mam. 'Tis the secret
Of nature natur'd 'gainst all infectious, 65
Cures all diseases coming of all causes;
A month's grief in a day, a year's in twelve;
And, of what age soever, in a month.
Past all the doses of your drugging doctors.
I'll undertake, with'd, to fright the plague 79
Out o' the kingdom in three months.
Sur. And I'll
Be bound, the players shall sing your praises then,
Without their poets. 2
Mam. Sir, I'll do't. Meantime, I'll give away so much unto my man.
Shall serve th' whole city with preservative 75
Weekly; each house his dose, and at the rate—
Sur. As he that built the Water-work does with water?
Mam. You are incredulous.
Sur. Faith, I have a humour,
I would not willingly be gull'd. 3 Your stone
Cannot transmute me.
Mam. Pertinax, Surly. 80
Will you believe antiquity? Records?
I'll show you a book where Moses, and his sister,
And Solomon have written of the art;
Ay, and a treatise penn'd by Adam—
Sur. How! Mam. Of the philosopher's stone, and in High Dutch.
Sur. Did Adam write, sir, in High Dutch?
Mam. He did;
Which proves it was the primitive tongue.
Sur. What paper?
Mam. On cedar board.
Sur. O that, indeed, they say,
Will last 'gainst worms.
Mam. 'Tis like your Irish wood 'Gainst cobwebs. I have a piece of Jason's fleece too,
Which was no other than a book of alchemy,
Writ in large sheepskin, a good fat ram-vellum.
Such was Pythagoras' thigh, Pandoras' tub,
And all that fable of Medea's charms,
The manner of our work; the balls, our furnace,
Still breathing fire; our argent-vive, 4 the dragon:
The dragon's teeth, mercury sublimate,
That keeps the whiteness, hardness, and the biting;
And they are gather'd into Jason's helm,
Th' alembic, and then sow'd in Mars' field.
And thence sublim'd so often, till they're fix'd.
Both this, th' Hesperian garden, Cadmus' story,
Jove's shower, the boon of Midas, Argus' eyes, Boccace his Demogorgon, 5 thousands more, 84
All abstract riddles of our stone. — How now!

SCENE II. 6

MAMMON, SURLY. [Enter] FACE, [as a Servant.]
Mam. Do we succeed? Is our day come?
And holds it?
Face. The evening will set red upon you, sir;
You have colour for it, crimson: the red ferment
Has done his office; three hours hence prepare you
To see projection.
Mam. Pertinax, my Surly. 6 Again I say to thee, aloud, BE RICH.
This day thou shalt have ingots; and to-morrow
Give lords th' affront.—Is it, my Zephyrus, right?
Blushes the bolt's-head? 7
Face. Like a wrench with child, sir,
That were but now discover'd to her master. 10
Mam. Excellent witty Lungs! — My only care is Where to get stuff enough now, to project on; 8
This town will not half serve me.
Face. No, sir? Buy
The covering off o' churches.
Mam. The.
Face. That's true.
Mam. Buy them stand bare, as do their auditory; 9 15
Or cap 'em new with shingles.
Face. No, good thatch:
Thatch will lie light up' the rafters, Lungs. Lungs,
I will manumit thee from the furnace; I will restore thee thy complexion, Puff,
Lost in the embers; and repair this brain, 19
Wilt wilt the fume o' the metals.
Face. I have blown, sir,
Hard, for your worship; thrown by many a coal,
When 't was not beech; weigh'd those I put in,
just
To keep your heat still even. These blear'd eyes
Have walk'd to read your several colours, sir, 35
Of the pale citron, the green lion, the crow,
The peacock's tail, the plumed swan.
Mam. And lastly,
Thou hast descried the flower, the sanguis agni? 40
Face. Yes, sir.
Mam. Where's master?
Face. At 's prayers, sir, he;
Good man, he's doing his devotions 50
For the success.
Mam. Lungs. I will set a period
To all thy labours; thou shalt be the master
Of my seraglio.
Face. Good, sir.
Mam. But do you hear?
I'll geld you, Lungs.
Face. Yes, sir.
Mam. For I do mean
To have a list of wives and concubines.
Equal with Solomon, who had the stone
Alone with me; and I will make me a balm
With the elixir, that shall be as tough

1 A disreputable locality.
2 The theatres were closed when the plague was prevalent.
3 Fooled.
4 Quicksilver.
5 According to Boccaccio, the ancestor of all the gods.
6 The same.
7 A kind of flax.
8 Transmute.
9 Congregation.
As Hercules, to encounter fifty a night.—
Thou 'rt sure thou saw'st it blood?

Face. Both blood and spirit, sir. 40

Mam. I will have all my beds blown up, not stuff;
Down is too hard: and then, mine oval room
Fill'd with such pictures as Tiberius took
From Elephants, and dull Arctine
But coldly imitated, Then, my glasses
Cut in more subtle angles, to dispose
And multiply the figures, as I walk
Naked between my succubae. 1 My mists
I'll have of perfume, vapour'd 'bout the room,
To lose our selves in; and my baths, like pits
To fall into; from whence we will come forth,
And roll us dry in gossamer and roses.—
Is it arrived at ruby? — Where I spy
A wealthy citizen, or [a] rich lawyer,
Have a sublim'd pure wife, unto that fellow 55
I'll send a thousand pound to be my unkold.
Face. And I shall carry it?

Mam. No. I'll ha' no bawds
But fathers and mothers: they will do it best,
Best of all others. And my flatterers
Shall be the pure and gravest of divines, 60
That I can get for money. My mere fools,
Eloquent burgesses, and then my poets
The same that writ so subly of the fart,
Whom I will entertain still for that subject.
The few that would give out themselves to be 65
Court and town-stallions, and, each-where, bely
Ladies who are known most innocent, for them—
Those will I beg, to make me ennuchs of:
And they shall fan me with ten estrich tails
A-piece, made in a plume to gather wind.
We will be brave, Puff, now we ha' the medicine.

My meat shall all come in, in Indian shells,
Dishes of agate set in gold, and studded
With emeralds, sapphires, hyacinths, and rubies.
The tongues of carps, dormice, and camels' heels.
Boil'd i' the spirit of sol, and dissolv'd pearl (Apicius' dist, 'gainst the epilepsy): 75
And I will eat these broths with spoons of amber,
Headed with diamond and carbuncle,
My foot-boy shall eat pheasants, calver'd salmon, 2

Knots, godwits, lampreys: I myself will have
The beards of barbel serv'd, instead of salads; 80
Oil'd mushrooms; and the swelling unctuous paps
Of a fat pregnant sow, newly cut off,
Drest with an exquisite and poignant sauce; 85
For which, I'll say unto my cook, There's gold;
Go forth, and be a knight.

Face. Sir, I'll go look
A little, how it heightens. [Exit Mam.

Mam. Do.—My shirts
I'll have of taffeta-sarset, 5 soft and light
As cobweb; and for all my other raiment, 95

It shall be such as might provoke the Persian,
Were he to teach the world riot anew.
My gloves of fishes and birds' skins, perfum'd
With gums of paradise, and Eastern air —

Sur. And do you think to have the stone with this?

Mam. No, I do think t' have all this with the stone.

Sur. Why, I have heard he must be homo frugi. 9

A pious, holy, and religious man,
One free from mortal sin, a very virgin.

Mam. That makes it, sir; he is so. But I buy it;
My venture brings it me. He, honest wretch,
A notable, superstitious, good soul,
Has worn his knees bare, and his slippers bald,
With prayer and fasting for it: and, sir, let him
Do it alone, for me, still. Here he comes. 105
Not a profane word afore him; 't is poison.—

SCENE III.

MAMMON, SURLY. [Enter ] SUBTLE.

Mam. Good morrow, father.

Sub. Gentle son, good morrow,
And to your friend there. What is he is with you?

Mam. An heretic, that I did bring along;
In hope, sir, to convert him.

Sub. Son, I doubt
You're covetous, that thus you meet your time
I' the just point, prevent you day at morn-

This argues something worthy of a fear
Of importunate and carnal appetite.
Take heed you do not cause the blessing leave you,
With your ungodly haste. I should be sorry
To see my labours, now e'en at perfection, 11
Got by long watching and large patience,
Not prosper where my love and zeal hath plac'd 12
'em.

Which (heaven I call to witness, with your self,
To whom I have pour'd my thoughts) in all my ends,
Have look'd no way, but unto public good,
To pious uses, and dear charity,
Now grown a prodigy with men. Wherein
If you, my son, should now prevaricate,
And to your own particular lusts employ 20
So great and catholic a bliss, be sure
A curse will follow, yea, and overtake
Your subtle and most secret ways.

Mam. I know, sir; you shall not need to fear me; I but come to ha' you confute this gentleman.

Sur. Who is, 25
Indeed, sir, somewhat costive of belief
Toward your stone; would not be gull'd.

Sub. Well, son,
All that I can convince him in, is this,
The work is done, bright sol is in his robe.
We have a medic in of the triple soul, 50

1 Mistresses. 4 A fish.
2 Salmon elaborately prepared. 6 Soft silk.
3 Robin-snipes.
6 A virtuous man. 8 Exact.
7 The same. 9 Anticipate.
The glorified spirit. Thanks be to heaven,
And make us worthy of it! —

Face. [within.] Anon, sir.
Sub. Look well to the register.
And let your heat still lessen by degrees,
To the aldeuls.

Face. [within.] Yes, sir.
Sub. Did you look
O' the bolt's head yet?

Face. [within.] Which? On D, sir?
Sub. What's the complexion?
Face. [within.] Whitish.
Sub. Infuse vinegar,

To draw his volatile substance and his tincture:
And let the water in glass E be filt'red,
And put into the gripe's egg, Lute him well;
And leave him clos'd in balneo.

Face. [within.] I will, sir.
Sur. What a brave language here is! next to canting.
Sub. I have another work you never saw, son;
That three days since past the philosopher's wheel,
In the lent heat of Athanor; and's become Sulphur o' Nature.

Mam. But 'tis for me.

Sub. What need you?
You have enough, in that is, perfect.
Mam. O, but —

Sub. Why, this is covetise!
Mam. No, I assure you,
I shall employ it all in pious uses,
Founding of colleges and grammar schools,
Marrying young virgins, building hospitals,
And, now and then, a church.

[Re-enter Face.]

Sub. How now!

Face. Sir, please you,
Shall I not change the filter?
Sub. Marry, yes;
And bring me the complexion of glass B.

Mam. Ha' you another?
Sub. Yes, son; were I assur'd your piety were firm, we would not want
The means to glorify it: but I hope the best.
I mean to tinct C in sand-heate to-morrow,
And give him imbibition.
Mam. Of white oil?
Sub. No, sir, of red. F is come over the helm too,
I thank my maker, in S. Mary's bath.
And shows lac virgins. Blessed be heaven!

I sent you of his faeces there calcin'd:
Out of that calx, I ha' won the salt of mercury.
Mam. By pouring on your rectified water?
Sub. Yes, and reverberating in Athanor.

1 The hero of a well-known German jest-book.
2 A pear-shaped vessel, open at both ends.
3 An egg-shaped vessel. Gripe is grimm.
4 Seal with clay.
5 A dish of warm water.

6 Rogues' slang.

[Re-enter Face.]

How now! what colour says it?
Face. The ground black, sir.

Mam. That's your crow's head?
Sur. Your cox's comb's, is it not?
Sub. No, 'tis not perfect. Would it were the crow!

That work wants something.

Sur. [Aside.] O, I look'd for this,
The hay's a pitching.

Sub. Are you sure you loos'd 'em
In their own menstrues?

Face. Yes, sir, and then married 'em,

And put 'em in a bolt's-head nipp'd to digestion,
According as you bade me, when I set
The liquor of Mars to circulation
In the same heat.

Sub. The process then was right.

Face. Yes, by the token, sir, the retort brake,
And what was say'd was put into the pelican,
And sign'd with Hermes' seal.
Sub. I think 'tis was so.

We would have a new amalgama.

Sur. [Aside.] O, this ferret
Is rank as any polecat.
Sub. But I care not;
Let him e'en die; we have enough beside,
In emrbion. H has his white shirt on?

Face. Yes, sir,

He's ripe for incenation, he stands warm,
In his ash-fire. I would not you should let
Any die now, if I might counsel sir,
For luck's sake to the rest: it is not good.

Mam. He says right.

Sur. [Aside.] Ay, are you bolted?
Face. Nay, I know 'tis, sir,
I've seen th' ill fortune. What is some three o'unces
Of fresh materials?

Mam. Is 't no more?
Face. No more, sir.

Of gold, t' amalgam with some six of mercury,
Mam. Away, here's money. What will serve?
Face. Ask him, sir,

Mam. How much?

[ten
Sub. Give him nine pound: you may gi' him
Sur. Yes, twenty, and be cozen'd, do.
Mam. There 'tis. [Gives Face the money.]
Sub. This needs not: but that you will have it so,
To see conclusions of all: for two
Of our inferior works are at fixation,
A third is in ascension. Go your ways.
Ha' you set the oil of Luna in kemia?

Face. Yes, sir.
Sub. And the philosopher's vinegar?
Face. Aye. [Exit.]

Sur. We shall have a salad!
Mam. When do you make projection?
Sub. Son, be not hasty, I exalt our medicine,
By hanging him in balneo vaporeoso,
And giving him solution; then congeal him;
And then dissolve him; then again congeal him;

9 A net for catching rabbits.
10 Dissolving fluids.
For look, how oft I iterate the work,
So many times I add unto his virtue.
As, if at first one ounce convert a hundred,
After his second loose, he'll turn a thousand;
His third solution, ten; his fourth, a hundred;
After his fifth, a thousand thousand ounces.

Of any imperfect metal, into pure silver or gold, in all examinations,
As good as any of the natural mine.

Get you your stuff here against afternoon,
Your brass, your pewter, and your andirons.

Mam. Not those of iron?
Sub. Yes, you may bring them too.

We'll change all metals.

Mam. Then I may send my spits?
Sub. Yes, and your racks.

Sur. And dripping-pans, and pot-hangers, and hooks?

Mam. If he please.

Sur. — To be an ass.

Mam. This gent' man you must bear withal.

I told you he had no faith.

Sur. And little hope, sir;

But much less charity, should I gull myself.

Sub. Why, what have you observ'd, sir, in our art,

Seems so impossible?

Sur. But your whole work, no more.

That you should hatch gold in a furnace, sir,

As they do eggs in Egypt!

Sub. Sir, do you believe that eggs are hatch'd so?

Sur. If I should?

Sub. Why, I think that the greater miracle.

No egg but differs from a chicken more

Than metals in themselves.

Sur. That cannot be.

The egg's ordain'd by nature to that end,

And is a chicken in potentia.

Sub. The same we say of lead and other metals,

Which would be gold if they had time.

Mam. And that our art doth further.

Sub. Ay, for 't were absurd.

To think that nature in the earth bred gold

Perfect in the instant: something went before.

There must be remote matter.

Sur. Ay, what is that?

Sub. Married, we say —

Mam. Ay, now he heats: stand, father,

Pound him to dust.

Sub. It is, of the one part,

A humid exhalation, which we call

Materia liquida, or theunctuous water;

On 'th other part, a certain cess and viscous portion of earth; both which, concomurate,

Do make the elementary matter of gold;

Which is not yet propra materia,

But common to all metals and all stones;

For, where it is forsaken of that moisture,

And hath more dryness, it becomes a stone:

Where it retains more of the humid fatness,

It turns to sulphur, or to quicksilver,

Who are the parents of all other metals.

Nor can this remote matter suddenly

Progress so from extreme unto extreme.

As to grow gold, and leap o'er all the means.

Nature doth first beget th' imperfect, then

Proceeds she to the perfect. Of that airy and oily water, mercury is engendred:

Sulphur o' the fat and earthy part; the one,

Which is the last, supplying the place of male,

The other of the females, in all metals.

Some do believe hermaphrodeity,

That both do act and suffer. But these two

Make the rest ductile, malleable, extensive,

And even in gold they are; for we do find

Seeds of them by our fire, and gold in them;

And can produce the species of each metal.

More perfect thence, than nature doth in earth.

Beside, who doth not see in daily practice

Art can beget bees, hornets, beetles, wasps,

Out of the carcasses and dung of creatures:

Yes, scorpions of an herb, being rightly plac'd?

And these are living creatures, far more perfect

And excellent than metals.

Mam. Well said, father!

Nay, if he take you in hand, sir, with an argument,

He'll bray you in a mortar.

Sur. Pray you, sir, stay.

Rather than I'll be bray'd, sir, I'll believe

That Alchemy is a pretty kind of game,

Somewhat like tricks of the cards, to cheat a man

With charming.

Sub. Sir?

Sur. What else are all your terms?

Whereon no one of your writers 'gress with other?

Of your elixir, your lac virginis,

Your stone, your med'cine, and your chrysosperm,

Your sal, your sulphur, and your mercury,

Your oil of height, your tree of life, your blood

Your marchesite, your tutie, your magnesia,

Your toad, your crow, your dragon, and your pantanet;

Your sun, your moon, your firmament, your adrop,

Your lat, azoch, zernich, chibitir, heantaar,

And then your red man, and your white woman,

With all your broths, your menstrues, and materials

Of piss and egg-shells, women's terms, man's blood,

Hair o' the head, burnt clouts, chalk, merds, and clay;

Powder of bones, scalings of iron, glass,

And worlds of other strange ingredients.

Would burst a man to name?

Sub. And all these, nam'd,

Intending but one thing; which art our writers

Us'd to obscure their art.

Mam. Sir, so I told him —

Because the simple idiot should not learn it,

And make it vulgar.

Sub. Was not all the knowledge

1 In order that.
Of the Egyptians write in mystic symbols?
Speak not the scriptures oft in parables?
Are not the choicest fables of the poets,
That were the fountains and first springs of wisdom,
Wrapt in perplexed allegories?
Mam. I urg'd that. And clear'd to him, that Sisyphus was damn'd To roll the ceaseless stone, only because He would have made ours common. (Dol is seen) [at the door.] Who is this?
Sub. God’s precious! What do you mean?
Go in, good lady.
Let me entreat you. [Dol retires.] Where’s this varlet?

[Re-enter Face.]

Face. Sir.
Sub. You very knave! do you use me thus?
Face. Wherein, sir?
Sub. Go in and see, you traitor. Go! [Exit Face.]

Mam. Who is it, sir?
Sub. Nothing, sir; nothing.
Mam. What’s the matter, good sir?
I have not seen you thus distemp’re d: who is ’t?
Sub. All arts have still had, sir, their adversaries;
But ours the most ignorant. —

Face returns.

Face. ’T was not my fault, sir; she would speak with you.
Sub. Would she, sir! Follow me. [Exit.]
Mam. [stopping him.] Stay, Lungs.
Face. I dare not, sir.
Mam. How! pray thee, stay.
Face. She’s mad, sir, and sent hither —
Mam. Stay, man; what is she?
Face. A lord’s sister, sir.

He’ll be mad too.—

Mam. I warrant thee. — Why sent hither?
Face. Sir, to be cur’d.
Sub. [within.] Why, rascal!
Face. Lo you! — Here, sir! Exit.
Mam. !Fore God, a Bradamante, a brave piece.
Sur. Heart, this is a bawdy-house! I’ll be burnt else.
Mam. O, by this light, no: do not wrong him.
He’s
Too scrupulous that way: it is his vice.
No, he’s a rare physician, do him right,
An excellent Paracelsus, and has done
Strange cures with mineral physic. He deals all
With spirits, he; he will not hear a word
Of Galen; or his tedious recipes. —

Face again.

How now, Lungs!
Face. Softly, sir; speak softly. I meant
To ha’ told your worship all. This must not hear.
Mam. No, he will not be gull’d; let him alone.
Face. You’re very right, sir; she is a most rare scholar,

And is gone mad with studying Broughton’s works.
If you but name a word touching the Hebrew,
She falls into her fit, and will discourse
So learnedly of genealogies,
As you would run mad too, to hear her, sir.
Mam. How might one do t’have conference with her, Lungs?
Face. O, divers have run mad upon the conference.
I do not know, sir: I am sent in haste
To fetch a vial.
Sur. Be not gull’d, Sir Mammon.
Mam. Wherein? Pray ye, be patient.
Sur. Yes, as you are,
And trust confederate knaves and bawds and whores.
Mam. You are too foul, believe it. — Come here, Wil.
One word.
Face. I dare not, in good faith. [Going.]
Mam. Stay, knave.
Face. He’s extreme angry that you saw her, sir.
Mam. Drink that. [Gives him money.] What is she when she’s out of her fit?
Face. O, the most affablest creature, sir! so merry!
So pleasant! She’ll mount you up, like quicksilver.
Over the helm; and circulate like oil,
A very vegetal: discourse of state,
Of mathematics, bawdry, anything ——
Mam. Is she no way accessible? no means,
No trick to give a man a taste of her —— wit —— Or so?
[Sub. within.] Wil!
Face. I’ll come to you again, sir. [Exit.]
Mam. Surlly, I did not think one o’ your breeding
Would traduce personages of worth.
Sur. Sir Epicure,
Your friend to use; yet still loth to be gull’d:
I do not like your philosophical bawds.
Their stone is lechery enough to pay for,
Without this bait.
Mam. Heart, you abuse yourself.
I know the lady, and her friends, and means,
The original of this disaster. Her brother
Has told me all.
Sur. And yet you ne'er saw her
Till now!
Mam. O yes, but I forgot. I have, believe it,
One o’ the treacherous’st memories, I do think,
Of all mankind.
Sur. What call you her brother?
Mam. My lord ——
He w’ll not have his name known, now I think on’t.
Sur. A very treacherous memory!
Mam. O’ my faith ——
Sur. Tut, if you ha’ it not about you, pass it Till we meet next.
Mam. Nay, by this hand, ’tis true.

1 A learned eccentric of the time.
He's one I honour, and my noble friend;
And I respect his house.
Sue. Heart! can it be
That a grave sir, a rich, that has no need,
A wise sir, too, at other times, should thus,
With his own oats, and arguments, make hard means
To gull himself? An this be your elixir,
Your lapis mineralis, and your lunary,
Give me your honest trick yet at primero,
Or gleeck, and take your tetum sapientis, Your menstruum simplex? I'll have gold before
you.
And with less danger of the quicksilver,
Or the hot sulphur.

[Re-enter Face.]

Face. Here's one from Captain Face, sir. 325

(To Surl.)

Desires you meet him i' the Temple-church,
Some half-hour hence, and upon earnest business.
Sir. (whispers Mammon) if you please to quit us
now, and come,
Again within two hours, you shall have
My master busy examining o' the works;
And I will steal you in unto the party,
That you may see her converse. — Sir, shall I
say
You'll meet the captain's worship?
Sue. Sir, I will. — [Walks aside.

But, by attorney, and to a second purpose.
Now, I am sure it is a bawdy-house;
I'll swear it, were the marshal here to thank me:
The naming this commander doth confirm it,
Don Face! why, he's the most authentic dealer in these commodities, the superintendent
To all the quarter traffickers in town!
He is the visitor, and does appoint
Who lies with whom, and at what hour; what price;
Which gown, and in what smack; what fall; what tire.8

Him will I prove, by a third person, to find
The subtleties of this dark labyrinth: 328
Which if I do discover, dear Sir Mammon, You'll give your poor friend leave, though no philosopher,
To laugh; for you that are, 'tis thought, shall weep.

Face. Sir, he does pray you'll not forget.
Sue. I will not, sir.
Sir Epicure, I shall leave you. [Exit.]

Mam. I follow you straight. 329

Face. But do so, good sir, to avoid suspicion.
This gent'man has a parlous head.
Mam. But wilt thou, then,
Be constant to thy promise?

Face. As my life, sir.
Mam. And wilt thou insinuate what I am,
and praise me,
And say I am a noble fellow?

Face. O, what else, sir? 325

And that you'll make her royal with the stone,
An empress; and yourself King of Bantam.

Mam. Wilt thou do this?

Face. Will I, sir!

Mam. Lungs, my Lungs!

I love thee.

Face. Send your stuff, sir, that my master
May busy himself about projection. 330

Mam. Thou 'st witch'd me, rogue: take, go.
[Give him money.]

Face. Your jack, and all, sir.
Mam. Thou art a villain — I will send my jack,
And the weights too. Slave, I could bite thine
ear.
Away, thou dost not care for me.

Face. Not I, sir!

Mam. Come, I was born to make thee, my good weasel,
Set thee on a bench, and ha' thee twirl a chain
With the best lord's vermin of 'em all.

Face. Away, sir.

Mam. A count, nay, a count palatine —

Face. Good sir, go.

Mam. Shall not advance thee better: no, nor faster. 331

[Exit.]

SCENE IV.4

Face. [Re-enter] Subtle and Dol.

Sub. Has he bit? has he bit?

Face. And swallow'd, too, my Subtle.

I ha' given him line, and now he plays, 'tis faith.
Sub. And shall we twitch him?

Face. Thorough both the gills.

A wench is a rare bait, with which a man

No sooner 's taken, but he straight firks mad.5

Sub. Dol, my Lord What's-hum's sister, you must now

Bear yourself statelich.

Dol. O, let me alone,

I'll not forget my race, I warrant you,
I'll keep my distance, laugh and talk aloud;
Have all the tricks of a proud scurvy lady,

And be as rude 's her woman.

Face. Well said, sanguine!6

Sub. But will he send his andirons?

Face. His jack too,
And 's iron shoeing-horn; I ha' spoke to him.

Well,

I must not lose my wavy gamester yonder.

Sub. O, Monsieur Caution, that will not be gull'd?

Face. Ay,
If I can strike a fine hook into him, now! —
The Temple-church, there I have east mine angle.

Well, pray for me. I 'll about it.

Sub. What, more gudgeous!7

Dol, scout, scout! [Dol goes to the window.]

Stay, Face, you must go to the door;

'Pray God it be my anabaptist — Who is 't, Dol?

1 Games at cards.
2 A collar, or a veil.
3 The same.
4 Red cheeks.
5 Easy dupes.
Dol. I know him not: he looks like a gold-endman.
Sub. Gods so! 't is he, he said he would send — what call you him?
The sanctified elder, that should deal
For Mammon's jack and audlions. Let him in,
Stay, help me off, first, with my gown. [Exit FACE with the gown.] Away,
Madam, to your withdrawing chamber. Now, [Exit Dol.]
In a new tune, new gesture, but old language.—
This fellow is sent from one negotiates with me
About the stone too, for the holy brethren
Of Amsterdam, the exil'd saints, that hope
To raise their discipline 2 by it. I must use him
In some strange fashion now, to make him admire me.

SCENE V.

SUBTLE. [Enter] ANANIAS.

Where is my drudge?
[Enter] FACE.

[Aloud.]

Face. Sir!
Sub. Take away the recipient,
And rectify your menstrue from the phlegma.
Then pour it on the Sol, in the cecurbite,
And let it macerate together.
Face. Yes, sir.
And save the ground?
Sub. No: terra damnata
Must not have entrance in the work. — Who are you?
Ana. A faithful brother,4 if it please you.
Sub. What's that?
A Lullianist? a Ripley? 5
Can you sublime and dulcify? Calcine?
Know you the sapor pontic? Sapor stiptic? 6
Or what is homogene, or heterogene?
Ana. I understand no heathen language, truly.
Sub. Heathen! You Knipperdolinger? 6 Is Ars sacra,
Or chrysopoeia, or spagyrica,
Or the pamphysis, or panarchic knowledge,
A heathen language?
Ana. Heathen Greek, I take it.
Sub. How! Heathen Greek?
Ana. All's heathen but the Hebrew.
Sub. Sirrah my varlet, stand you forth and speak to him
Like a philosopher: answer i the language.
Name the vexations, and the martyrisations
Of metals in the work.
Face. Sir, putrefaction,
Solution, ablation, sublimation,
Coherence, calcination, ceration, and Fixation.
Sub. This is heathen Greek, to you, now! —
And when comes vivification?

1 A man who buys broken remnants of gold.
2 Puritan form of church government.
3 The same.
4 A Puritan. Subtle wilfully misunderstands.
5 A follower of Raymond Lully (1235-1315) or George Ripley (d. cir. 1490), well-known alchemical writers.
6 An Anabaptist leader.

Face. After mortification.
Sub. What 's cohabitation?
Face. 'T is the pouring on
Your aqua regis, and then drawing him off,
To the trine circle of the seven spheres.
Sub. What's the proper passion of metals?
Face. Malleation.
Sub. What's your ultimum supplicium auri?
Face. Antimonium.
Sub. This 's heathen Greek to you! — And what's your mercury?
Face. A very fugitive, he will be gone, sir.
Sub. How know you him?
Face. By his viscosities,
His oleseney, and his suscitability;
Sub. How do you sublime him?
Face. With the calce of egg-shells,
White marble, tale.
Sub. What's that?
Face. Shifting, sir, your elements,
Dry into cold, cold into moist, moist into hot,
Hot into dry.
Sub. This is heathen Greek to you still!
Your lapis philosophicus?
Face. 'T is a stone,
And not a stone; a spirit, a soul, and a body:
Which if you dissolve, it is dissolvd;
If you coagulate, it is coagulated;
If you make it to fly, it flies.
Sub. Enough. [Exit Face.]
This 's heathen Greek to you! What are you, sir?
Ana. Please you, a servant of the exil'd brethren,
That deal with widows' and with orphans' goods,
And make a just account unto the saints:
A deacon.
Sub. O, you are sent from Master Wholesome,
Your teacher?
Ana. From Tribulation Wholesome,
Our very zealous pastor.
Sub. Good! I have
Some orphans' goods to come here.
Ana. Of what kind, sir?
Sub. Pewter and brass, andironns and kitchen-ware.
Metals, that we must use our medicine on:
Wherein the brethren may have a penn'orth
For ready money.
Ana. Were the orphans' parents
Sincere professors?
Sub. Why do you ask?
Ana. Because
We then are to deal justly, and give, in truth,
Theirs utmost value.
Sub. 'Slid, you 'd cozen else,
An if their parents were not of the faithfull! —
I will not trust you, now I think on it,
Till I ha' talk'd with your pastor. Ha' you brought money
To buy more coals?
Ana. No, surely.
Sub. No? How so?
Ana. The brethren bid me say unto you, sir,
Surely, they will not venture any more
Till they may see projection.
Sub. How!
And. You've had
For the instruments, as bricks, and lome, and glasses,
Already thirty pound; and for materials,
They say, some ninety more: and they have heard since,
That one, at Heidelberg, made it of an egg,
And a small paper of pin-dust.
Sub. What's your name?
And. My name is Ananias.
Sub. Out, the varlet
That cozen'd the apostles! Hence, hence, away!
Flee, mischief! had your holy consistency
No name to send me, of another sound
Than wicked Ananias? Send your elders
Hither, to make atonement for you, quickly,
And give me satisfaction; or out goes
The fire; and down th' alembics, and the furnace,
Figer Henricus, or what not. Thou wretch!
Both serico and bufio shall be lost,
Tell 'em. All hope of rooting out the bishops,
Or th' anti-Christian hierarchy shall perish,
If they stay three score minutes: the aqüity,
Tereity, and sulphury
Shall run together again, and all be annul'd.
Thou wicked Ananias! [Exit Ananias.] This will fetch 'em,
And make 'em haste towards their gulling
more.
A man must deal like a rough nurse, and fright
Those that are froward, to an appetite.

SCENE VI.1

SUBLTLE. [Enter] Face [in his uniform, followed by] Druggier.

Face. He's busy with his spirits, but we'll upon him.
Sub. How now! What mates, what Bayards ha' we here?
Face. I told you he would be furious.—Sir, here's Nab
Has brought you another piece of gold to look
on;
—We must appease him. Give it me,—and prays you,
You would devise—what is it, Nab?
Drug. A sign, sir.
Face. Ay, a good lucky one, a thriving sign,
doctor.
Sub. I was devising now.
Face. [Aside to Subtle.] 'Slight, do not say
so,
He will repent he ga' you any more.—
What say you to his constellation, doctor;
The Balance?
Sub. No, that way is stale and common.
A townman born in Taurus, gives the bull,
Or the bull's head: in Aries, the ram,—
A poor-device! No, I will have his name
Form'd in some mystic character; whose radii,
Striking the senses of the passers-by,
Shall, by a virtual influence, breed affections,
That may result upon the party owns it;
As thus:

Face. Nab!
Sub. He first shall have a bell, that's Abel;
And by it standing one whose name is Dee;4
In a rug gown, there's D, and Rug, that's drug
And right anenst him a dog snarling er;
There's Druggier, Abel Druggier. That's his sign.
And here's now mystery and hieroglyphic!

Face. Abel, thou art made.
Drug. Sir, I do thank his worship.
Face. Six o' thy legs: more will not do it,
Nab.
He has brought you a pipe of tobacco, doctor.
Drug. Yes; sir;
I have another thing I would impart—
Face. Out with it, Nab.
Drug. Sir, there is lodging, hard by me,
A rich young widow—

Face. Good! a bona roba?5
Drug. But nineteen at the most.
Face. Very good, Abel.
Drug. Marry, she's not in fashion yet; she wears
A hood, but 'tstands a cop.6

Face. No matter, Abel.
Drug. And I do now and then give her a fuce

Face. What dost thou deal, Nab?
Sub. I did tell you, captain.
Drug. And physic too, sometime, sir; for which she trusts me
With all her mind. She's come up here of purpose
To learn the fashion.

Face. Good (his match too!)—On, Nab.
Drug. And she does strangely long to know her fortune.

Face. God's lid, Nab, send her to the doctor,
hither.
Drug. Yes, I have spoke to her of his worship already;
But she's afraid it will be blown abroad,
And hurt her a marriage.

Face. Hurt it! 'tis the way
To heal it, if 't were hurt; to make it more Follow'd and sought. Nab, thou shalt tell her
this.
She'll be more known, more talk'd of; and your widows
Are ne'er of any price till they be famous;
Their honour is their multitude of suitors.
Send her, it may be thy good fortune. What?
Thou dost not know?

Drug. No, sir, she'll never marry
Under a knight: her brother has made a vow.

Footnotes:
1 The same.
2 Blind horses.
3 Due to the virtue or power of the device.
4 A reference to Dr. Dee, the famous magician and astrologer, who died in 1608.
5 Of course frieze.
6 Bows.
7 Handsome wench.
8 Peaked (?) or straight on the top of her head, instead of tilted (?)
9 Paint for her face.
Face. What! and dost thou despair, my little Nab,
Knowing what the doctor has set down for thee,
And seeing so many o' the city dub'd d? 56
One glass o' thy water, with a madam I know,
Will have it done, Nab. What's her brother? a knight?
Drug. No, sir, a gentleman newly warm in's land, sir.
Scarce cold in his one and twenty, that does govern
His sister here; and is a man himself 60
Of some three thousand a year, and is come up
To learn to quarrel, and to live by his wits,
And will go down again, and die i' the country.
Face. How! to quarrel?
Drug. Yes, sir, to carry quarrels.
As gallants do; to manage 'em by line. 65
Face. 'Slid, Nab, the doctor is the only man
In Christendom for him. He has made a table,
With mathematical demonstrations,
Touching the art of quarrels: he will give him
An instrument to quarrel by. Go, bring 'em both,
Him and his sister. And, for thee, with her
The doctor happily may persuade. Go to;
'Shalt give his worship a new damask suit
Upon the premises.
Sub. O, good captain!
Face. He shall;
He is the honestest fellow, doctor. Stay not, 75
No offers; bring the damask, and the parties.
Drug. I'll try my power, sir.
Face. And thy will too, Nab.
Sub. 'Tis good tobacco, this! What is 't an ounce?
Face. He'll send you a pound, doctor.
Sub. No o.
Face. He will do 't.
It is the goodest soul! — Abel, about it. 80
Thou shalt know more anon. Away, be gone.
[Exit Abel.]
A miserable rogue, and lives with cheese,
And has the worms. That was the cause, indeed,
Why he came now: he death with me in private,
To get a medicine for 'em.
Sub. And shall, sir. This works.
Face. A wife, a wife for one on 's, my dear
Subtle!
We'll e'en draw lots, and he that fails, shall have
The more in goods, the other has in tail.
Sub. Rather the less; for she may be so light
She may want grains.
Face. Ay; or be such a burden, 90
A man would scarce endure her for the whole.
Sub. Faith, best let 's see her first, and then determine.
Face. Content: but Dol must ha' no breath
in't.
Sub. Mum.
Away you, to your Surlie yonder, catch him.
Face. Pray God I ha' not staid too long. 95
Sub. I fear it. [Exeunt.]
Not since the beautiful light first shone on me:
And I am sad my zeal hath so offended.

Tri. Let us call on him then.

Ana. The motion's good, and of the spirit; I will knock first. [Knocks.]
Peace be within! [The door is opened, and they enter.]

SCENE II.1

Sub. O, are you come? 'Twas time. Your threescore minutes
Were at last thread, you see; and down had gone.

Furnus accedens; turris circumulatorius:
Limbs, bolt's-head, retort, and pelican
Had all been cinders. Wicked Ananias!
Art thou return'd? Nay, then it goes down yet.

Tri. Sir, be appeased; he is come to humble
Himself in spirit, and to ask your patience,
If too much zeal hath carried him aside
From the due path.

Sub. Why, this doth qualify! 10
Tri. The brethren had no purpose, verily,
To give you the least grievance; but are ready
To lend their willing hands to any project
The spirit and you direct.

Sub. This qualifies more! 15
Tri. And for the orphans' goods, let them be valued,
Or what is needful else to the holy work,
It shall be numbered; here, by me, the saints
Throw down their purse before you.

Sub. This qualifies most! Why, thus it should be, now you understand.
Have I discourse'd so unto you of our stone, 20
And of the good that it shall bring your cause?
Show'd you beside the main of hiring forces
Abroad, drawing the Hollanders, your friends,
From th' Indies, to serve you, with all their fleet?
That even the medicinal use shall make you a faction
And party in the realm? As, put the case,
That some great man in state, he have the gout,
Why, you but send three drops of your elixir,
You help him straight: then you have made a friend.

Another has the palsey or the dropsy,
He takes of your incomestible stuff;
He's young again: there you have made a friend.

A lady that is past the heat of body,
Though not of mind, and hath her face decay'd
Beyond all cure of paintings, you restore
With the oil of talc: there you have made a friend.

And all her friends. A lord that is a leper,
A knight that has the bone-ache, or a squire
That hath both these, you make 'em smooth and sound

1 A room in Lovewit's house.

With a bare fricace2 of your med'cine; still
You increase your friends.

Tri. Ay, 'tis very pregnant.
Sub. And then the turning of this lawyer's pewter
To plate at Christmas——

Anan. Christ-tide, I pray you.

Sub. Yet, Ananias!

Sub. I have done.

Tri. Or changing
His parcel gift to massy gold. You cannot
But raise you friends. Withal, to be of power
To pay an army in the field, to buy
The King of France out of his realms, or Spain
Out of his Indies. What can you not do Against lords spiritual or temporal,
That shall oppose4 you?

Tri. Verily, 'tis true.

We may be temporal lords ourselves, I take it.
Sub. You may be anything, and leave off to make Long-winded exercises; or suck up
Your ha! and hum! in a tune. I not deny,
But such as are not Grace in a state,
May, for their ends, be adverse in religion,
And get a tune to call the flock together:
For, to say sooth, a tune does much with women
And other phlegmatic people; it is your bell.

Ana. Bells are profane; a tune may be religious.

Sub. No warning with you? Then farewell my patience.

Slight, it shall down; I will not be thus tortured.
Tri. I pray you, sir.

Sub. All shall perish. I have spoke it.
Tri. Let me find grace, sir, in your eyes; the man,
He stands corrected: neither did his zeal,
But as your self, allow a tune somewhere,
Which now, being 'towards the stone, we shall not need.

Sub. No, nor your holy vizard, to win widows
To give you legacies; or make zealous wives
To rob their husbands for the common cause:
Nor take the start of bonds broke but one day,
And say they were forfeited by providence.
Nor shall you need o'er night to eat huge meals,
To celebrate your next day's fast the better;

The whilst the brethren and the sisters humbled,
Abate the stiffness of the flesh. Nor cast
Before your hungry hearers scrupulous bones; 7
As whether a Christian may hawk or hunt,
Or whether matrons of the holy assembly
May lay their hair out, or wear doublets,
Or have that idol, starch, about their linen.

Ana. It is indeed an idol.

Tri. Mind him not, sir.

I do command thee, spirit (of zeal, but trouble),
To peace within him! Pray you, sir, go on.

Sub. Nor shall you need to libel 'gainst the prelates,
And shorten so your ears against the hearing

2 Rubbing. 3 Partly. 4 Oppose. 5 Near possession of. 6 Set expression of face.
7 The dry bones of discussion on such scruples. 8 Have your ears cut off in the pillory.
Of the next wire-drawn grace, Nor of necessity
Rail against plays, to please the alderman
Whose daily custard you devour; nor lie With zealous rage till you are hoarse. Not one Of these so singular arts. Nor call yourselves By names of Tribulation, Persecution, Restraint, Long-patience, and such like, affected
By the whole family or wood of you, Only for glory, and to catch the ear Of the disciple.

Tri. Truly, sir, they are Ways that the godly brethren have invented, For propagation of the glorious cause.
As very notable means, and whereby also Themselves grow soon, and profitably, famous.

Sub. O, but the stone, all's idle to 't! Nothing!
The art of angels, nature's miracle,
The divine secret that doth fly in clouds
From east to west: and whose tradition Is not from men, but spirits.

Ana. I hate traditions;
I do not trust them— Peace!
Ana. They are popish all.
I will not peace: I will not—
Tri. Ananias!

Ana. Please the profane, to grieve the godly; I may not.

Sub. Well, Ananias, thou shalt overcome.
Tri. It is an ignorant zeal that haunts him, sir:
But truly else a very faithful brother, A botcher, and a man by revelation
That hath a competent knowledge of the truth.

Sub. Has he a competent sum there? the bag
To buy the goods within? I am made guardian, And must, for charity and conscience' sake,
Now see the most be made for my poor orphan; Though I desire the brethren, too, good gainer: There they are within. When you have view'd And bought 'em, and ta'en the inventory of what they are, They are ready for projection; there's no more To do: cast on the med'cine, so much silver As there is tin there, so much gold as brass, I'll gi' it you in by weight.

Tri. But how long time,
Sir, must the saints expect yet?

Sub. Let me see,
How's the moon now? Eight, nine, ten days hence,
He will be silver potate; then three days
Before he citronise. Some fifteen days,
The magisterium will be perfected.

Ana. About the second day of the third week, In the ninth month?

Sub. Yes, my good Ananias,
Tri. What will the orphans' goods arise to, think you?

Sub. Some hundred marks, as much as fill'd three cars,
Unladed now: you'll make six millions of 'em—
But I must ha' more coals laid in.
Tri. How's the coal?
Sub. Another load.
And then we ha' finish'd. We must now increase
Our fire to ignis ardens; we are past Rutilus equinus, balaci, cineria, And all those lenter heats. If the holy purse Should with this draught fall low, and that the saints
Do need a present sum, I have a trick
To melt the pewter, you shall buy now instantly,
And with a tincture make you as good Dutch dollars
As any are in Holland.

Tri. Can you so?
Sub. Ay, and shall hide the third examination.

Ana. It will be joyful tidings to the brethren.
Sub. But you must carry it secret.
Tri. Ay; but stay,
This act of coining, is it lawful?
Ana. Lawful!
Sub. We know no magistrate: or, if we did,
This's foreign coin.
Sub. It is no coinage, sir,
It is but casting.

Tri. Ha! you distinguish well:
Casting of money may be lawful.
Ana. Lawful!
'Tis, sir.
Tri. Truly, I take it so.
Sub. There is no scruple,
Sir, to be made of it; believe Ananias;
This ease of conscience he is studied in.

Tri. I'll make a question of it to the brethren.
Ana. The brethren shall approve it lawful, doubt not.

Where shall 't be done?
Sub. For that we'll talk anon. Knock without.
There's some to speak with me. Go in, I pray you,
And view the parcels. That's the inventory.
I'll come to you straight. [Exit Trib. and Ana.] Who is it?—Face! appear.

Scene III.

Subtle. [Enter] Face [in his uniform].

Sub. How now! good prize?
Face. Good pox! Yond' covetous cheater Never came on.
Sub. How then?
Face. I ha' walk'd the round
Till now, and no such thing.

Sub. And ha' you quit him?
Face. Quit him! An hell would quit him too,
He were happy.
'Slight! would you have me stalk like a mill-jade,

* Fiery heat.
* Heat from horse-dung, warm bath, sakes.
* Milder. * The same.
Where thou shalt keep him waking with thy drum;
Thy drum, my Dol, thy drum; till he be tame
As the poor blackbirds were to the great frost,
Or bees are with a basin; and so have him.
I's the swan-skin coverlid and cambic sheets,
Till he work honey and wax, my little God's-gift.

Dol. What is he, general?

Face. An adalantado.

A grandee, girl. Was not my Dapper here yet?

Dol. No.

Face. Nor my Dragger?

Dol. Neither.

Face. A pox on 'em,
They are so long a furnishing! such stinkards
Would not be seen upon these festival days.

[Re-enter Subtle.]

How now! ha' you done?

Sub. Done. They are gone: the sum
Is here in bank, my Face. I would we knew
Another Chapman who would buy 'em outright.

Face. Skid, Nab shall don't against he ha' the widow,
To furnish household.

Sub. Excellent, well thought on:

Pray God he come.

Face. I pray he keep away
Till our new business be o'erpast.

Sub. But, Face, 0
How earst thou by this secret don?

Face. A spirit
Brought me th' intelligence in a paper here,
As I was conjuring yonder in my circle
For Surly; I ha' my flies abroad. Your bath
Is famous, Subtle, by my means. Sweet Dol, 0
You must go tune your virginal, no losing O' the least time. And — do you hear? — good action!

Firk like a floundrer; kiss like a scallop, close;
And tickle him with thy mother-tongue. His

Great
Verdugoship has not a jot of language;
So much the easier to be cozen'd, my Dolly.
He will come here in a hir'd coach, obscure,
And our own coachman, whom I have sent as guide,
No creature else. (One knocks.) Who's that?

[Exit Dol.]

Sub. It is not he?

[Re-enter Dol.]

Sub. Who's it?

Dol. Dapper.

Your clerk.

Face. God's will then, Queen of Fairy.
On with your tire; [Exit Dol.] and, doctor, with your robes.

Let's despatch him for God's sake.

Sub. 'T will be long.

1 Partner.
2 Passenger sloops.
3 Large breeches.
4 Trunk hose.
5 A Spanish gold coin worth about 16s. 8d.
6 A coin worth about 4s. 6d.
7 Pretzels.
8 Puritans, from the name of the Anabaptist leader.
9 I. e. douce et belle; sweetheart.

10 Referring to the literal meaning of Dorothy.
11 A Spanish governor.
12 Familiaris.
13 Verdugo is a Spanish name, but the precise allusion is uncertain.
Face. I warrant you, take but the ones I give you. It shall be brief enough. [Goes to the window.]

"Slight, here are more!"

Abel, and I think the angry boy, the heir, that fain would quarrel.

Sub. And the widow?

Face. Not that I see. Away! [Exit Sub.]

SCENE IV.

FACE. [Enter] DAPPER.

Face. O, sir, you are welcome. The doctor is within a moving for you; I have had the most ado to win him to it!—He swears you 'll be the darling of the dice; he never heard her highness dote till now. Your aunt has giv'n you the most gracious words. That can be thought on. Dap. Shall I see her grace? Face. See her, and kiss her too.—[Enter Abel, followed by Kastril.]

Hast brought the damask?

Nab. No, sir; here's tobacco.

Face. 'Tis well done, Nab; thou 't brought the damask too. [1] Drug. Yes. Here's the gentleman, captain, Master Kastril. I have brought to see the doctor. Face. Where's the widow? Drug. Sir, as he likes, his sister, he says, shall come. Face. O, is it so? Good time. Is your name Kastril, sir? Kas. Ay, and the best o' the Kastrils, I'd be sorry else. By fifteen hundred a year. [2] Where is this doctor? My mad tobacco-boy here tells me of one. That can do things. Has he any skill? Face. Wherein, sir? Kas. To carry a business, manage a quarrel fairly, Upon fit terms. Face. It seems, sir, you're but young. About the town, that can make that a question. Kas. Sir, not so young but I have heard some speech. Of the angry boys, and seen them take tobacco; and in his shop; and I can take it too. And I would fain be one of 'em, and go down and practise it the country. Face. Sir, for the duello. The doctor, I assure you, shall inform you, To the least shadow of a hair; and show you An instrument he has of his own making, Wherewith, no sooner shall you make report Of any quarrel, but he will take the height on't Most instantly, and tell in what degree

1 The same.
2 Folio adds (he says).
3 I. e. he is £1500 a year richer than any other of the Kastrils.
4 Roysters, young bloods.

Of safety it lies in, or mortality. And how it may be borne, whether in a right line, Or a half circle; or may else be cast Into an angle blunt, if not acute: And this he will demonstrate. And then, rules To give and take the lie by. Kas. How! to take it? Face. Yes, in oblique he'll show you, or in circle; [5] But ne'er in diameter. [6] The whole town Study his theorems, and dispute them ordinarily At the eating academies. Kas. But does he teach Living by the wits too? Face. Anything whatever. You cannot think that subtlety but he reads it. He made me a captain. I was a stark pimp, Just o' your standing, 'fore I met with him; It's not two months since. I'll tell you his method; First, he will enter you at some ordinary. Kas. No, I shall not come there: you shall pardon me. Face. For why, sir? Kas. There's gaming there, and tricks. Face. Why, would you be [5] A gallant, and not game? Kas. Ay, 'twill spend a man. [6] Face. Spend you! It will repair you when you are spent.

How do they live by their wits there, that have ventured Six times your fortunes?

Which I count nothing;—he 's to be initiated, And have a fly o' the doctor. He will win you By irresistible luck, within this fortnight. Enough to buy a barony. They will set him Upmost, at the groom porter's;[7] all the Christmas:

And for the whole year through at every place Where there is play, present him with the chair, The best attendance, the best drink, sometimes Two glasses of Canary, and pay nothing; The purest linen and the sharpest knife, The partridge next his treacher; and somewhere The dainty bed, in private, with the dainty. You shall ha' your ordinaries bid for him, As playhouses for a poet; and the master Pray him aloud to name what dish he affects, Which must be butter'd shrimps: and those that drink To no mouth else, will drink to his, as being The goodly president mouth of all the board. Kas. Do you not gull one?

5 The lie circumstantial.
6 The lie direct.
7 An officer of the royal household, having charge of the cards, dice, etc. He had the privilege of keeping open table at Christmas.
THE ALCHEMIST

III. V.

Face. 'Ods my life! Do you think it? You shall have a cast commander, (can but get In credit with a Glover, or a spurrier, For some two pair of either's ware aforesaid,) Will, by most swift post, dealing (but) with him, Arrive at competent means to keep himself, His punk, and naked boy, in excellent fashion, And he admir'd for 't.

Ras. Will the doctor teach this?

Face. He will do more, sir; when your land is gone,

(As men of spirit hate to keep earth long,)

In a vacation, when small money is stirring, And ordinances suspended till the term, He'll show a perspective, where on one side You shall behold the faces and the persons Of all sufficient young heirs in town,

Whose bonds are current for commodity;

On th' other side, the merchants' forms, and others.

That without help of any second broker,

Who would expect a share, will trust such parcels:

In the third square, the very street and sign

Where the commodity dwells, and does but wait To be deliver'd, be it pepper, soap,

Hops, or tobacco, oatmeal, wood, or cheeses. All which you may so handle, to enjoy To your own use, and never stand obli'd.

Ras. 'Tis faith! is he such a fellow?

Face. Not, Why, Nab here knows him.

And then for making matches for rich widows,

Young gentlewomen, heirs, the fortunate'st man!

He's sent to, far and near, all over England,

To have his counsel, and to know their fortunes.

Ras. God's will, my master shall see him.

Face. I'll tell you, sir,

What he did tell me of Nab. It's a strange thing—

(By the way, you must eat no cheese, Nab, it breeds melancholy,

And that same melancholy breeds worms) but pass it: —

He told me, honest Nab here was ne'er at tavern But once in 's life.

Drug. Truth, and no more I was not.

Face. And then he was so sick—

Drug. Could he tell you that too?

Face. How should I know it?

Drug. In truth, we had been a shooting,

And had a piece of fat ram-mutton to supper,

That lay so heavy o' my stomach.

Face. And he has no head to bear any wine; for what with the noise o' the fiddlers,

And care of his shop, for he dares keep no servants—

Drug. My head did so ache—

1 Of the law-courts. 2 A magic glass. 3 The reference is to the "commodity" brand, in which a borrower was obliged to take part of a loan in merchandise, which the lender frequently bought back by agents for much less than it represented in the loan. 4 A plant used for a dye.

Face. As he was fain to be brought home.

The doctor told me: and then a good old woman—

Drug. Yes, faith, she dwells in Seacoal-lane, — did cure me.

With sodden ale, and fellitory o' the wall;

Cost me but twopence. I had another sickness

Was worse than that.

Face. Ay, that was with the grief

Thou took'st for being cess'd at eighteen-

For the waterwork.

Drug. In truth, and it was like

T' have cost me almost my life.

Face. Thy hair went off?

Drug. Yes, sir; 't was done for spite.

Face. Nay, so says the doctor.

Dap. Pray thee, tobacco-boy, go fetch my suster;

I'll see this learned boy before I go;

And so shall she.

Face. Sir, he is busy now:

But if you have a sister to fetch bither,

Perhaps your own pains may command her sooner;

And he by that time will be free.

Ras. I go. [Exit.]

Face, Drugger, she's thine: the damask! —

[Exit ASEL. Subtle and I Must wrestle for her. [Aside.] Come on, Master Dapper.

You see how I turn clients here away,

To give your cause dispatch; ha' you perform'd The ceremonies were enjoind you?

Dap. Yes, o' the vinegar,

And the clean shirt.

Face. 'Tis well: that shirt may do you more worship than you think. Your aunt's a fire,

But that she will not show it, 't have a sight of you.

Ha' you provided for her grace's servants?

Dap. Yes, here are six score Edward shillings.

Face. Good!

Dap. And an old Harry's sovereign.

Face. Very good!

Dap. And three James shillings, and an Elizabeth great,

Just twenty nobles.

Face. O, you are too just.

I would you had had the other noble in Maries.

Dap. I have some Philip and Maries.

Face. Ay, those same

Are best of all: where are they? Hark, the doctor.

SCENE V.

Face, DAPPER. [Enter] SUBTLE, disguised like a priest of Fairy [with a strip of cloth].

Sub. [in a feigned voice.] Is yet her grace's cousin come?

Face. He is come.

Sub. And is he fasting?
Face. Yes. And hath cried "hum"?
Sub. Face. Thrice, you must answer.
Dap. Thrice.
Sub. And as oft "buz"?
Face. If you have, say.
Dap. I have.
Sub. Then, to her cuz,
Hoping that he hath vinegar'd his senses,
As he was bid, the Fairy queen dispenses,
By me, this robe, the petticoat of Fortune;
Which that he straight put on, she doth importune.
And though to Fortune near be her petticoat,
Yet nearer is her smock, the queen doth note:
And therefore, even of that a piece she hath sent,
Which, being a child, to wrap him in was rent;
And prays him for a scarf he now will wear it,
With as much love as then her grace did tear it,
About his eyes, (They blind him with the rag,) to show he is fortunate.
And, trusting unto her to make his state,
He'll throw away all worldly pelf about him;
Which that he will perform, she doth not doubt him.
Face. She need not doubt him, sir. Alas, he has nothing
But what he will part withal as willingly,
Upon her grace's word—throw away your purse—
As she would ask it: — handkerchiefs and all—
She cannot bid that thing but he'll obey: —
If you have a ring about you, cast it off,
Or a silver seal at your wrist; her grace will send (He throws away, as they bid him.)
Her fairies here to search you, therefore deal Directly 1 with her highness: if they find
That you conceal a mite, you are undone.
Dap. Truly, there's all.
Face. All what?
Dap. My money; truly.
Face. Keep nothing that is transitory about you.
[Aside to Subtle.] Bid Dol play music.—Look, the elves are come.
DOL. enters with a cittern.
To pinch you, if you tell not the truth. Advise you.
They pinch him.
Dap. O! I have a paper with a spur-ryal 2 in't.
Face. Ti, ti.
They knew 't, they say.
Sub. Ti, ti, ti, ti. He has more yet.
Face. Ti-ti-ti. I 't the other pocket?
Sub. Titi, titi, titi, titi.
They must pinch him or he will never confess, they say.
[They pinch him again.]
Dap. O, O! Face. Nay, pray you, hold: he is her grace's nephew Ti, ti, ti? What care you? Good faith, you shall care.—
Deal plainly, sir, and shame the fairies. Show You are innocent.

---

1 Upritely.
2 A gold coin worth 15s.

---

Dap. By this good light, I ha' nothing.
Sub. Ti, ti, ti, ti, to, ta. He does equivocate she says:
Ti, ti do, ti ti do, ti da; and swears by the light when he is blinded.
Dap. By this good dark, I ha' nothing but a half-crown
Of gold about my wrist, that my love gave me;
And a leaden heart I wore sin' she forsook me.
Face. I thought 't was something. And would you incur
Your aunt's displeasure for these trifles? Come, I had rather you had thrown away twenty half-crowns.
[They take it off.]
You may wear your leaden heart still. — How now!
Sub. What news, Dol?
Dol. Yonder's your knight, Sir Mammon.
Face. God's lid, we never thought of him till now!
Where is he?
Sub. Here hard by. He's at the door.
Dol. And you are not ready now! Dol, get his suit.
[Exit Dol.]
He must not be sent back.
Face. O, by no means. What shall we do with this same puffin? here, Now he's o' the spit?
Sub. Why, lay him back awhile, With some device.
[Re-enter Dol with Face's clothes.]
— Ti, ti, ti, ti, ti, ti. Would her grace speak with me?
I came.— Help, Dol! Knocking without.
Face. (speaks through the keyhole.) — Who's there? Sir Epicure, My master's i' the way. Please you to walk Three or four turns, but till his back he turn'd, And I am for you. — Quickly, Dol!
Sub. Her grace Commends her kindly to you, Master Dapper.
Dol. I long to see her grace.
Sub. She now is set At dinner in her bed, and she has sent you From her own private treacher, a dead mouse, And a piece of gingerbread, to be merry withal, And stay your stomach, lest you faint with fasting:
Yet if you could hold out till she saw you, she says, It would be better for you.
Face. Sir, he shall Hold out, an' t were this two hours, for her highness; I can assure you that. We will not lose All we ha' done.—
Sub. He must not see, nor speak To anybody, till then.
Face. For that we'll put, sir, A stay in's mouth.
Sub. Of what?
Face. Of gingerbread. Make you it fit. He that hath pleas'd her grace
A sort of sea-bird; used contemptuously of a puffed-up person.
Thus far, shall not now crinkle for a little. —
Gape, sir, and let him fit you. —
[They thrust a gag of gingerbread into his mouth.]

Sub. — Where shall we now bestow him?

Dol. I' the privy. —

Sub. Come along, sir. I must now show you Fortune's privy lodgings.

Face. Are they perfum'd, and his bath ready?

Sub. All:

Only the fumigation's somewhat strong.

Face. [saying through the keyhole.] Sir Epicure, I am yours, sir, by and by.

[Exeunt with Dapper.]

ACT IV

SCENE I.

[Enter] FACE and MAMMON.

Face. O, sir, you're come i' the only finest time. —

Mam. Where's master?

Face. Now preparing for projection, sir.

Your stuff will be all chang'd shortly.

Mam. Into gold?

Face. To gold and silver, sir.

Mam. Silver I care not for.

Face. Yes, sir, a little to give beggars.

Mam. Where's the lady?

Face. At hand here. I ha' told her such brave things o' you,

Touching your bounty and your noble spirit —

Mam. Hast thou?

Face. As she is almost in her fit to see you.

But, good sir, no divinity i' your conference,

For fear of putting her in rage. —

Mam. I warrant thee. 10

Face. Six men [sir] will not hold her down.

And then,

If the old man should hear or see you —

Mam. Fear not.

Face. The very house, sir, would run mad.

You know it,

How scrupulous he is, and violent,

'Gainst the least act of sin. Physics or mathematicks,

Poetry, state, or bawdry, as I told you,

She will endure, and never startle; but

No word of controversy.

Mam. I am school'd, good fellow.

Face. And you must praise her house, remember that,

And her nobility.

Mam. Let me alone.

No herald, no, nor antiquary, Langs,

Shall do it better. Go.

Face. [Aside.] Why, this is yet

A kind of modern happiness, to have

Dol Common for a great lady.

[Exit.]

Mam. Now, Epicure,

Heighten thyself, talk to her all in gold; 20

Rain her as many showers as Jove did drops

Unto his Danaé; show the god a miser, Compar'd with Mammon. What! the stone will do't.

She shall feel gold, taste gold, hear gold, sleep gold;

Nay, we will concumbere gold: I will be puissant,

And mighty in my talk to her. —

[Re-enter FACE with Dol richly dressed.]

Here she comes.

Face. To him, Dol, suckle him. This is the noble knight I told your ladyship —

Mam. Madam, with your pardon,

I kiss your vesture.

Dol. Sir, I were uncivil

If I would suffer that, my lip to you, sir. 35

Mam. I hope my lord your brother be in health, lady.

Dol. My lord my brother is, though I no lady, sir.

Face. [Aside.] Well said, my Guinea bird.

Mam. Right noble madam —

Face. [Aside.] O, we shall have most fierce idolatry.

Mam. 'Tis your prerogative.

Dol. Rather your courtesy. 40

Mam. Were there nought else 'enn'large your virtues to me,

These answers speak your breeding and your blood.

Dol. Blood we boast none, sir; a poor baron's daughter.

Mam. Poor! and gat you? Profane not. Had your father

Slept all the happy remnant of his life

After that act, ken but there still, and panted,

He'd done enough to make himself, his issue,

And his posterity noble.

Dol. Sir, although

We may be said to want the gilt and trappings,

The dress of honour, yet we strive to keep

The seeds and the materials.

Mam. I do see

The old ingredient, virtue, was not lost,

Nor the drug money us'd to make your compound.

There is a strange nobility in your eye,

This lip, that chin! Methinks you do resemble

One o' the Austrian princes.

Face. [Aside.] Very like!

Her father was an Irish costermonger.

Mam. The house of Valois just had such a nose,

And such a forehead yet the Medici

Of Florence boast.

Dol. Troth, and I have been lik'ned

To all these princes.

Face. [Aside.] I'll be sworn, I heard it.

Mam. I know not how! it is not any one,

But e'en the very choice of all their features.

Face. [Aside.] I'll in, and laugh. [Exit.]

Mam. A certain touch, or air,

That sparkles a divinity beyond

An earthly beauty!

Dol. O, you play the courtier.
Mam. Good lady, gi' me leave ——
   Dol. In faith, I may not,
   Mam. To mock me, sir.
   Dol. Nay, now you court the courter, and destroy
   What you would build. This art, sir, is your words,
   Calls your whole faith in question.
   Mam. By my soul ——
   Dol. Nay, oaths are made o' the same air, sir.
   Mam. Nature
   Never bestow'd upon mortality
   A more unblam'd, a more harmonious feature;
   She play'd the step-dame in all faces else;
   Sweet madam, le' me be particular —— Dol. Particular, sir! I pray you, know your distance.
   Mam. In no ill sense, sweet lady: but to ask
   How your fair graces pass the hours? I see
   You're lodg'd here, i' the house of a rare man,
   An excellent artist: but what's that to you?
   Dol. Yes, sir; I study here the mathematices,
   And distillation.
   Mam. O, I cry your pardon.
   He's a divine instructor! can extract
   The souls of all things by his art; call all
   The virtues, and the miracles of the sun.
   Into a temperate furnace; teach dull nature
   What her own forces are. A man, the emp'ror
   Has courted above Kelly; sent his medals
   And chains, t' invite him.
   Dol. Ay, and for his physic, sir ——
   Mam. Above the art of Aesculapius,
   That drew the envy of the thunderer!
   I know all this, and more.
   Dol. Truth, I am taken, sir,
   Whole with these studies that contemplate nature
   Mam. It is a noble humour; but this form
   Was not intended to so dark a use.
   Had you been crooked, foul, of some coarse mould.
   A cloister had done well; but such a feature,
   That might stand up the glory of a kingdom,
   To live reducse is a mere solemnity.
   Though in a nunnery. It must not be.
   I muse, my lord your brother will permit it:
   You should spend half my land first, were I he.
   Does not this diamond better on my finger
   Than t' the quarry?
   Dol. Yes.
   Mam. Why, you are like it.
   You were created, lady, for the light.
   Here, you shall wear it; take it, the first pledge
   Of what I speak, to bind you to believe me.
   Dol. In chains of adamant?
   Mam. Yes, the strongest bands.
   And take a secret too. — Here, by your side,
   Doth stand this hour the happiest man in Europe.
   Dol. You are contented, sir?
   Mam. Nay, in true being,
   The envy of princes and the fear of states.

1 The partner of Dee, the astrologer. He and Dee visited the emperor, Rodolph II, at Prague in 1584.

   Dol. Say you so, Sir Epicure?
   Mam. Yes, and thou shalt prove it,
   Daughter of honour. I have cast mine eye
   Upon thy form, and I will rear this beauty
   Above all styles.
   Dol. You mean no treason, sir?
   Mam. No, I will take away that jealousy,
   I am the lord of the philosopher's stone,
   And thou the lady.
   Dol. How, sir! ha' you that?
   Mam. I am the master of the mystery.2
   This day the good old wretch here o' the house
   Has made it for us: now he's at projection.
   Think therefore thy first wish now, let me hear
   it;
   And it shall rain into thy lap, no shower,
   But floods of gold, whole cataracts, a deluge,
   To get a nation on thee.
   Dol. You are pleas'd, sir,
   To work on the ambition of our sex.
   Mam. I am pleas'd the glory of her sex should know,
   This nook here of the Friars is no climate
   For her to live obscurely in, to learn
   Physic and surgery, for the constable's wife
   Of some odd hundred in Essex; but come forth,
   And taste the air of palaces; eat, drink
   The toils of empires, and their boasted practice;
   Tincture of pearl, and coral, gold, and amber;
   Be seen at feasts and triumphs; have it ask'd,
   What miracle she is; set all the eyes
   Of court a-fire, like a burning glass,
   And work 'em into cinders, when the jewels
   Of twenty states adorn thee, and the light Strikes out the stars that, when thy name is mention'd,
   Queens may look pale; and, we but showing our
   love,
   Nero's Poppea may be lost in story! 155
   Thus will we have it.
   Dol. I could well consent, sir.
   But in a monarchy, how will this be?
   The prince will soon take notice, and both seize
   You and your stone, it being a wealth unifit
   For any private subject.
   Mam. If he knew it.
   Dol. Yourself do boast it, sir.
   Mam. To thee, my life.
   Dol. O, but beware, sir! You may come to end
   The remnant of your days in a loath'd prison,
   By speaking of it.
   Mam. 'Tis no idle fear.
   We'll therefore go with all, my girl, and live
   In a free state, where we will eat our mullets, Sour'd in high-country wines, sup pheasants'
   eggs,
   And have our cockles boil'd in silver shells;
   Our shrimps to swim again, as when they liv'd,
   In a rare butter made of dolphins' milk;
   Whose cream does look like opals; and with these
   Delicate meats set ourselves high for pleasure,
   And take us down again, and then renew

2 The art of transmutation.
Our youth and strength with drinking the elixir,
And so enjoy a perpetuity
Of life and lust! And thou shalt have thy wardrobe
Richer than Nature’s, still to change thyself,
And very oftener, for thy pride, than she,
Or Art, her wise and almost-equal servant.

[Re-enter FACE.]

Face. Sir, you are too loud. I hear you every word
Into the laboratory. Some fitter place:
The garden, or great chamber above. How like you her?
Mam. Excellent! Langs. There’s for thee.
[Give him money.]

Face. But do you hear? Good sir, beware, no mention of the rabbins.
Mam. We think not on ’em.

[Exit Mam. and DOL.]

Face. O, it is well, sir. — Subtle! 178

SCENE II. 3

FACE. [Enter] SUBTLE.

Dost thou not laugh?
Sub. Yes; are they gone?
Face. All is clear.
Sub. The widow is come.
Face. And your quarrelling disciple?
Sub. Ay.
Face. I must to my captainship again then.
Sub. Stay, bring ’em in first.
Face. So I meant. What is she?
A bonniel?
Sub. I know not.
Face. We’ll draw lots:
You’ll stand to that?
Sub. What else?
Face. To fall now like a curtain, flap!
Sub. To th’ door, man.
Face. You’ll ha’ the first kiss, ’cause I am not ready.
[Exit.]
Sub. Yes, and perhaps hit you through both the nostrils. 2

Face. [within.] Who would you speak with?
Kas. [within.] Where’s the captain?
Face. [within.] Gone, sir.

About some business.
Kas. [within.] Gone!
Face. [within.] He’ll return straight.
But, master doctor, his lieutenant, is here.

[Enter KASTIL, followed by DAME P.LANT.]

Sub. Come near, my worshipful boy, my terrae fili,
That is, my boy of land; make thy approaches:
Welcome; I know thy lusts and thy desires, 16
And I will serve and satisfy ’em. Begin,
Charge me from thence, or thence, or in this line;
Here is my centre: ground thy quarrel.
Kas. You lie.

Sub. How, child of wrath and anger! the load he?
For what, my sudden boy? 20
Kas. Nay, that look you to, I am aforehand.
Sub. O, this is no true grammar,
And as ill logic! You must render causes, child,
Your first and second intentions, know your canons
And your divisions, moods, degrees, and differences,
Your predicaments, substance, and accident, 22
Series external and intern, with their causes,
Efficient, material, formal, final,
And ha’ your elements perfect?
Kas. What is this?
Sub. The angry tongue he talks in.
Sub. That false precept,
Of being aforehand, has deceived a number, 20
And made ’em enter quarrels oftentimes
Before they were aware; and afterward,
Against their wills.
Kas. How must I do then, sir?
Sub. I cry this lady mercy; she should first
Have been saluted. (Kisses her.) I do call you lady,
Because you are to be one ere ’t be long,
My soft and buxom widow.
Kas. Is she, ’ faith?
Sub. Yes, or my art is an egregious liar.
Kas. How know you?
Sub. By inspection on her forehead
And subtlety of her lip, which must be tasted
Often to make a judgment. (Kisses her again.)
’Slight, she melts
Like a myrobolante. Here is yet a line,
In rivo frontis, 6 tells me he is no knight.
Dame P. What is he then, sir?
Sub. Let me see your hand.
O, your linea fortunae makes it plain;
And stella here in monte Venereis.
But, most of all, junctura annularis,
He is a soldier, or a man of art, lady,
But shall have some great honour shortly.
Dame P. Brother
He’s a rare man, believe me!

[Re-enter Face, in his uniform.]

Kas. Hold your peace.
Here comes t’other rare man. — ’Save you, captain.
Face. Good Master Kastil! Is this your sister?
Kas. Ay, sir.
Sub. Please you to kiss her, and be proud to know her.
Face. I shall be proud to know you, lady.
[Disses her.]
Dame P. Brother,
He calls me lady, too.
Kas. Ay, peace! I heard it.
[Takes her aside.]

3 Swaggering.
4 A kind of dried plum, esteemed as a sweetmeat.
5 Frontal vein.
6 These are the cant phrases of palmistry.
Face. The count is come.

Sub. Where is he?

Face. At the door.

Sub. Why, you must entertain him.

Face. What will you do

With these the while?

Sub. Why, have 'em up, and show 'em

Some fustian book, or the dark glass.

Face. 'Fore God,

She is a delicate dabeckie! I must have her.

Sub. [Aside.] Must you? Ay, if your fortune will, you must. —

Come, sir, the captain will come to us presently:

I'll ha' you to my chamber of demonstrations,

Where I'll show you both the grammar and logic,

And rhetoric of quarreling; my whole method

Drawn out in tables; and my instrument,

That hath the several scales upon 't shall make you

Able to quarrel at a straw's-breadth by moonlight.

And, lady, I'll have you look in a glass,

Some half an hour, but to clear your eyesight,

Against you see your fortune; which is greater

Than I may judge upon the sudden, trust me.

[Exeunt.]

Scene III.2

[Enter] Face.

Face. Where are you, doctor?

Sub. [within.] I'll come to you presently.

Face. I will ha' this same widow, now I ha' seen her,

On any composition.

[Enter Subtle]

Sub. What do you say?

Face. Ha' you dispos'd of them?

Sub. I ha' sent 'em up.

Face. Subtle, in troth, I needs must have this widow.

Sub. Is that the matter?

Face. Nay, but hear me.

Sub. Go to.

If you rebel once, Dol shall know it all. Therefore be quiet, and obey your chance.

Face. Nay, thou art so violent now. Do but conceive,

Thou art old, and cannot serve ——

Sub. Who cannot? I? 10

'Slight, I will serve her with thee, for a

Face. Nay, but understand: I'll gi' you composition.

Sub. I will not treat with thee. What! sell my fortune?

'Tis better than my birthright. Do not murmur:

Win her, and carry her. If you grumble, Dol

Knows it directly.

Face. Well, sir, I am silent.

Will you go help to fetch in Don in state?

[Exit.]

Sub. I follow you, sir. We must keep Face in awe,

Or he will overlook us like a tyrant.

[Re-enter Face, introducing] Surly like a Spaniard.

Brain of a tailor! who comes here? Don John!

Sur. Senores, beso las manos a vuestras mercedes. 4

Sub. Would you had stoop'd a little, and kiss our ans.

Face. Peace, Subtle!

Sub. Stab me; I shall never hold, man.

He looks in that deep ruff like a head in a platter.

Serv'd in by a short cloak upon two trestles. 5

Face. Or what do you say to a collar of brawn, 6 cut down

Beneath the sonse, 8 and wriggled with a knife?

Sub. 'Shud, he does look too fat to be a Spaniard.

Face. Perhaps some Fleming or some Hollander got him

In d'Alva's time; Count Egmont's bastard.

Sub. Don, 9

Your scurry, yellow, Madrid face is welcome.

Sub. He speaks out of a fortification. Pray God he ha' no squibs in those deep sets. 7

Sur. For dios, senores, 9 muy linda casa!

Sub. What says he?

Face. Praises the house, I think; 10

I know no more but's action.

Sub. Yes, the casa,

My precious Diego, will prove fair enough To cozen you in. Do you mark? You shall be cozened, Diego. 9

Face. Cozened, do you see,

My worthy Donzel, 10 cozened.

Sur. Entiendo. 11 40

Sub. Do you intend it? So do we, dear Don.

Have you brought pistoles 12 or portagues, Mycock Don? [To Face.] Dost thou feel any?

Face. (Feels his pockets.) Full.

Sub. You shall be emptied, Don, pumped and drawn

Dry, as they say.

Face. Milked, in troth, sweet Don. 4

Sub. See all the monsters; the great lion of all, Don.

Sur. Con licencia, se puede ver a esta senora? 13

Sub. What talks he now?

Face. Of the senora.

Sub. O, Don,

This is the lioness, which you shall see

Also, my Don.

1 Spanish. "Gentlemen, I kiss your hands." 2 Neck of a boar, or boar's flesh rolled.
3 Ear.
4 The deep plaits of his ruff.
5 'Gad, sirs, a very pretty house.' 6 Spanish. Strictly, Spanish for James.
7 Diminutive of Don.
8 I understand.'
9 Spanish gold coin, worth about 16s. 8d.
10 If you please, may I see the lady?"
Scene IV. 12

[Enter] Face, Kastril, and Dame Pliant.

[Face.] Come, lady; I knew the doctor would not leave
Till he had found the very nick of her fortune.
Kos. To be a countess, say you?
[Face.] A Spanish countess, sir.

Dame P. Why, is that better than an Eng.

Face. Better! 'Slid, make you that a ques-Kos. Nay, she is a fool, captain, you must Face. Ask from your courtier to your ins-

To your mere milliner; they will tell you all,
Your Spanish jennet is the best horse; your Spanish
Stoop is the best garb; your Spanish beard
Is the best cut; your Spanish ruffs are the best
Wear; your Spanish pavlin the best dance;
Your Spanish titillation in a glove
The best perfume: and for your Spanish pike,
And Spanish blade, let your poor captain

Here comes the doctor.

[Enter Subtle with a paper.]

Sub. My most honour'd lady,
For I am now to style you, having found

Sub. As you please.
Hand. [They shake hands.]
Face. Remember now, that upon any change
You never claim her.
Sub. Much good joy and health to you, sir, 20
Marry a whore! Fate, let me wed a witch first.
Sub. For estas conradas barbas? —
Hand. He swears by his beard.

Dispatch, and call the brother too. [Exit Face.]

Sur. Tengo duda, senores, que no me hagan alguna travectoría.

Please you

Enthratha the chambratha, worthy don;
Where if you please the fates, in your bath-
You shall be soak'd, and strok'd, and tabb'd,
And scrubb'd, and faub'd, 9 dear don, before
You shall in faith, my servy baboon don,
Be curried, claw'd, and flav'd 10 and taw'd, 11
Indeed, I will the heartliest go about it now,
And make the widow a punk so much the sooner,
To be reveng'd on this impetuous Face:

The quickly doing of it is the grace.

[Execut Sub. and Surly.]
By this my scheme, you are to undergo
An honourable fortune very shortly.
What will you say now, if some —

Face. I ha' told her all, sir,
And her right worshipful brother here, that she shall be

A countess; do not delay 'em, sir; a Spanish countess.

Sub. Still, my scarce-worshipful captain, you can keep

No secret! Well, since he has told you, madam,
Do you forgive him, and I do.

Kas. She shall do that, sir;
I'll look to it; 'tis my charge.

Sub. Well then: nought rests

But that she fit her love now to her fortune.
Dame P. Truly I shall never brook a Spanish.

Sub. No?

Dame P. Never sin' eighty-eight 2 could I abide 'em,

And that was some three years afore I was born,
in truth.

Sub. Come, you must love him, or be miserable;

Choose which you will.

Face. By this good rush, persuade her,

She will cry strawberries else within this twelve month.

Sub. Nay, shads and mackerel, which is worse.

Face. Indeed, sir!

Kas. God's lid, you shall love him, or I'll kick you.

Dame P. Why,
I'll do as you will ha' me, brother.

Kas. Or by this hand I'll maul you.

Face. Nay, good sir,

Be not so fierce.

Sub. No, my enraged child;

She will be rul'd. What when she comes to taste

The pleasures of a countess! to be courted —

Face. And kiss'd and ruffled!

Sub. Ay, behind the hangings.

Face. And then come forth in pomp!

Sub. And know her state!

Face. Of keeping all th' idolaters o' the chamber

Barer to her, than at their prayers!

Sub. Is serv'd

Upon the knee!

Face. And has her pages, ushers,
Footmen, and coaches —

Sub. Her six mares —

Face. Nay, eight!

Sub. To hurry her through London, to th' Exchange.

Bet'lem, the China-houses —

Face. Yes, and have

The citizens gape at her, and praise her tires,
And my lord's goose-turd bands, 8 that rides with her!

Kas. Most brave! By this hand, you are not my suster

If you refuse.

Dame P. I will not refuse, brother.

[Enter Surly.]

Sur. Que es esto, senores, que non se venga?
Esta tardanza me mata! 9

Face. It is the count come:

The doctor knew he would be here, by his art.

Sub. En gallantia, madama, Don! gallantissima! 10

Sur. Por todos los dioses, la mas acalada

Hermosura, que he visto en ma vida! 10

Face. Is't not a gallant language that they speak?

Kas. An admirable language! Is't not French?

Face. No, Spanish, sir.

Kas. It goes like law French,
And that, they say, is the court-liest language.

Face. List, sir.

Sur. El sol ha perdido su lumbre, con el

Resplandor que trae esta diam! Vda. medios! 11

Face. H' admires your sister.

Kas. Must not she make curt'sy.
Sub. 'Ods will, she must go to him, man,
and kiss him!

It is the Spanish fashion, for the women

To make first court.

Face. 'Tis true he tells you, sir:

His art knows all.

Sur. Porque no se acude? 12

Kas. He speaks to her, I think.

Face. That he does, sir. 9

Sur. Por el amor de díos, que es esto que se tarda? 10

Kas. No, see: she will not understand him!

Gull, Noddy,

Dame P. What say you, brother?

Kas. Ass, my suster,
Go kuss him, as the cunning man would ha' you;
I'll thrust a pin i' your buttocks else.

Face. O no, sir. 7

Sur. Senora mia, mi persona muy indigna esta

Allegar a tanta hermosura. 13

Face. Does he not use her bravely?

Kas. Bravely, i' faith!

Face. Nay, he will use her better.

Kas. Do you think so?

Sur. Senora, si sera servida, entremos. 15

[Exit with Dame Pallant.]

14 "Madam, my person is unworthy to approach such beauty."
15 "Madam, at your service, let us go in."
Kas. Where does he carry her?

Face. — Into the garden, sir;
Take you no thought: I must interpret for her.

Sub. Give Dol the word.

[Aside to Face, who goes out.]

— Come, my fierce child, advance,
We’ll to our quarrelling lesson again.

Kas. Agreed.

I love a Spanish boy with all my heart...

Sub. Nay, and by this means, sir, you shall be brother
To a great count.

Kas. Ay, I knew that at first.

This match will advance the house of the Kastris.

Sub. ‘Pray God your sister prove but plian!
Kas. Why,

Her name is so, by her other husband.

Sub. How!

Kas. The Widow Pliant. Knew you not that?

Sub. No, faith, sir;
Yet, by the ecretion of her figure, 1 I guess’d it.

Come, let’s go practise.

Kas. Yes, but do you think, doctor,
I e’er shall quarrel well?

Sub. I warrant you. [Exeunt.]

SCENE V. 2

Dol. (in her fit of talking). For after Alexander’s death — 3

Mam. Good lady —

Dol. That Perdiccas and Antigonus were slain,
The two that stood, Seleuc’ and Ptolomy

Mam. Madam —

Dol. Make up the two legs, and the fourth beast,
That was Gog-north and Egypt-south: which after

Was called Gog-iron-leg and South-iron-leg —

Mam. Lady —

Dol. And then Gog-horned. So was Egypt, too:

Then Egypt-clay-leg, and Gog-clay-leg —

Mam. Sweet madam —

Dol. And last Gog-dust, and Egypt-dust, which fall

In the last link of the fourth chain. And these 10
Be stars in story, which none see, or look at

Mam. What shall I do?

Dol. For, as he says, except

We call the rabbins, and the heathen Greeks —

Mam. Dear lady —

Dol. To come from Salem, and from Athens,
And teach the people of Great Britain —

[Enter Face hastily, in his servant’s dress.]

Face. What’s the matter, sir? 15

Dol. To speak the tongue of Eber and Javan —

1 By her horoscope, with a pun on her bearing.
2 Another room in the same.
3 Doll’s ravings are taken almost at random from the headings of columns, preface, etc., of the Convent of Scripture, by Hugh Broughton.

Mam. O,

She’s in her fit.

Dol. We shall know nothing —

Face. Death, sir,

We are undone!

Dol. Where then a learned linguist

Shall see the ancient us’d communion

Of vowels and consonants —

Face. My master will hear! 20

Dol. A wisdom, which Pythagoras held most high —

Mam. Sweet honourable lady!

Dol. To comprise

All sounds of voices, in few marks of letters.

Face. Nay, you must never hope to lay her now.
(They all speak together.)

Dol. And so we may arrive by Talmud skill, 4
And profane Greek, to raise the building up 30
Of Helen’s house against the Ismaelites,
King of Thogarma, and his habergions
Brimstone, blue, and fiery; and the force
Of king Abaddon, and the beast of Cittim: 35
Which rabbi David Kimchi, Onkelos,
And Aben Ezra do interpret Rome.

Face. How did you put her into’t?

Mam. Alas, I talk’d

Of a fifth monarchy I would erect: 40
With the philosopher’s stone, by chance, and she falls
On the other four straight.

Face. Out of Broughton!

I told you so. ’Slid, stop her mouth.

Mam. Is’t best? 45

Face. She’ll never leave else. If the old man hear her,

We are but faces, ashes.

Sub. [within.] What’s to do there?

Face. O, we are lost! Now she hears him, she is quiet.

Mam. [Enter Subtle;] upon Subtle’s entry they disperse.

Mam. Where shall I hide me!

Sub. How! What sight is here? Close 4 deeds of darkness, and that shun the light!

Bring him again. Who is he? What, my son! O, I have liv’d too long.

Mam. Nay, good, dear father,

There was no unchaste purpose.

Sub. Not? and fee me 45

When I come in?

Mam. That was my error.

Sub. Error?

Mam. Guilt, guilt, my son; give it the right name. No marvel

If I found check in our great work within,
When such affairs as these were managing! 49

Mam. Why, have you so?

Sub. It has stood still this half hour: And all the rest of our less works gone back.

Where is the instrument of wickedness,
My lewd false drudge?

4 In the early editions this speech is printed in parallel columns with the dialogue immediately following, to indicate simultaneous utterance.
5 Secret.
Upon The

I saw her by chance.

T' excuse a varlet?

By my hope, 't is true, sir.

The blessing was prepar'd, would so tempt
heaven,
And lose your fortunes.

Why, sir?

This will retard
The work a month at least.

What remedy? But think it not, good father:
Our purposes were honest.

As they were,
So the reward will prove. (A great crack and noise within.) — How now! ay me!

God and all saints be good to us. —

[Re-enter Face.]

What's that?

Face. O, sir, we are defeated! All the works
Are flown in fumo, every glass is burst;
Furnace and all rent down, as if a bolt
Of thunder had been driven through the house.
Retorts, receivers, pelicans, bolt heads,
All struck in shivers!

(Snuff falls down as in a swoon.)
Help, good sir! alas,
Coldness and death invades him. Nay, Sir
Mammon,
Do the fair offices of a man! You stand,
As you were reader to depart than he.

(One knocks.)

Who's there? My lord his brother is come.

Face. His coach is at the door. Avoid his sight,
For he's as furious as his sister's mad.

Mam. Alas!
Face. My brain is quite undone with the fume, sir,
I never must hope to be mine own man again.

Mam. Is all lost, Lungs? Will nothing be preserv'd
Of all our cost?

Face. Faith, very little, sir;
A peck of coals or so, which is cold comfort,
sir.

Mam. O, my voluptuous mind! I am justly
punish'd.

Face. And so am I, sir.

Mam. Cast from all my hopes —

Face. Nay, certainties, sir.

Mam. By mine own base affections.

Sub. (seeming to come to himself.) O, the cursed fruits of vice and lust!

Mam. Good father,
It was my sin. Forgive it.

Sub. Hangs my roof

Over us still, and will not fall, O justice,
Upon us, for this wicked man!

Face. Nay, look, sir,
You grieve him now with staying in his sight.
Good sir, the nobleman will come too, and take
you,
And that may breed a tragedy.

Mam. I'll go.

Face. Ay, and repent at home, sir. It may be,
For some good penance you may ha' it yet;
A hundred pound to the box at Bethlem.

Yes.

Face. For the restoring such as — ha' their wits.

Mam. 'I'll do't.

Face. I'll send one to you to receive it.

Mam. Do.

Is no projection left?

Face. All flown, or stinks, sir.

Mam. Will nought be sa'vd that's good for med'cine, think'st thou?

Face. I cannot tell, sir. There will be perhaps Something about the scraping of the shards,
Will cure the itch, — though not your itch of mind, sir. [Aside.]

It shall be sa'vd for you, and sent home. Good
sir,
This way, for the lord shall meet you.

[Exit Mammon.]

Sub. [raising his head.]

Face!

Sub. Is he gone?

Face. Yes, and as heavily
As all the gold he hop'd for were in's blood.
Let us be light though.

Sub. [leaping up.] Ay, as balls, and bound
And hit our heads against the roof for joy:
There's so much of our care now cast away.

Face. Now to our don.

Sub. Yes, your young widow by this time
Is made a countess, Face; she's been in travail
Of a young heir for you.

Face. Good, sir.

Sub. Off with your case,
And greet her kindly, as a bridegroom should,
After these common hazards.

Face. Very well, sir.

Will you go fetch Don Diego off the while?

Sub. And fetch him over too, if you'll be pleas'd, sir.

Would Dol were in her place, to pick his pocket
now!

Face. Why, you can do't as well, if you would set to't.

I pray you prove your virtue.

Sub. For your sake, sir. [Exit.]

SCENE VI. [Enter] Surly and Dame Pliant.

Sur. Lady, you see into what hands you are fall'n;

1 Chaste.
2 Into smoke.
3 An alembic of a particular shape.
4 A globular flask.
5 The lunatic asylum.
6 His costume as Lungs.
7 Capacity.
8 Another room in the same.
THE ALCHEMIST

iv. vii.

Will close you so much gold, in a bolt's-head,
And, on a turn, convey i' the stead another
With sublim'd mercury, that shall burst i' the heat,
And fly out all in fumo! Then weeps Mammon
Then swoons his worship. Or, [Face slips out.]
it is the Faustus,
That casteth figures 6 and can conjure, cures
Plagues, piles, and pox, by the ephemerides, 6
And holds intelligence with all the bawds
And midwives of three shires: while you send in Captain! — what! is he gone? — damnsels with child,
Wives that are barren, or the waiting-maid
With the green sickness. [Seizes Subtle as he is retiring.] — Nay, sir, you must tarry,
Though he be scap'd; and answer by the ears, sir.

SCENE VII. 7

Subtle.

Face. Why, now's the time, if ever you will quarrel
Well, as they say, and be a true-born child:
The doctor and your sister both are abus'd. 9
Kas. Where is he? Which is he? He is a slave.
What's'er he is, and the son of a whore. — Are
you
The man, sir, I would know?
Sur. I should be loth, sir.
To confess so much.
Kan. Then you lie i' the throat.
Sur. How!
Face. [To Kastril.] A very arrant rogue, sir,
and a cheater,
Employ'd here by another conjurer
That does not love the doctor, and would cross
him
If he knew how.
Sur. Sir, you are abus'd. You lie:
And 'tis no matter.
Face. Well said, sir! He is
The impudent's rascal —
Sur. You are indeed. Will you hear me, sir?
Face. By no means: bid him be gone.
Kas. Begone, sir, quickly.
Sur. This is strange! — Lady, do you inform your brother.
FacA. There is not such a foist 9 in all the town.
The doctor had him presently; and finds yet
The Spanish count will come here. — Bear up, Subtle. [Aside.]
Sub. Yes, sir, he must appear within this hour.
Face. And yet this rogue would come in a disguise,
By the temptation of another spirit,
To trouble our art, though he could not hurt it!
Kas. Ay,

1 Diminutive of Don.
2 As if you had been drinking heavy Dutch beer.
3 Referring to the punishment inflicted on bawds.
4 Park.
5 Horoscopes.
6 Astrological almanacs.
7 Rascal.
8 Cheated.
9 The same.
I know — Away, [To his sister.] you talk like a foolish maunter.1
Sur. Sir, all is truth she says.
Face. Do not believe him, sir. 4
He is the lying'st swabber! Come your ways, sir.
Sur. You are valiant out of company!
Kas. Yes, how then, sir?
[Enter Drugger with a piece of damask.]
Face. Nay, here's an honest fellow too that knows him,
And all his tricks. (Make good what I say, Abel.)
This cheater would ha' cozen'd thee o' the widow.—
[Aside to Drug.]
Drug. Yes, sir. And he has damn'd himself three terms to pay me.
Face. And what does he owe for lotium? 2
Drug. Thirty shillings, sir; And for six syringes.
Sur. Hydra of villainy!
Face. Nay, sir, you must quarrel him out o' the house.
Kas. I will:
—Sir, if you get not out o' doors, you lie; And you are a pimp.
Sur. Why, this is madness, sir, Not valour in you; I must laugh at this.
Kas. It is my humour; you are a pimp and a trug. 3
And an Amadis de Gaul, or a Don Quixote. 4
Drug. Or a knight o' the curious coxcomb, do you see?

[Enter Ananias.]

Ana. Peace to the household!
Kas. I'll keep peace for no man.
Ana. Casting of dollars is concluded lawful.
Kas. Is he the constable?
Sub. Peace, Ananias.
Face. No, sir.
Kas. Then you are an otter, and a shad, a white,
A very tim. 4
Sur. You'll hear me, sir?
Kas. I will not.
Ana. What is the motive?
Sub. Zeal in the young gentleman, Against his Spanish slops.
Ana. They are profane, Lewd, superstitious, and idolatrous breeches.
Sur. New rascals!
Kas. Will you be gone, sir?
Ana. Avoid, Sathan! 5
Thou art not of the light! That ruff of pride About thy neck, betrays thee; and is the same With that which the unclean birds, in seventy-seven, 6
Were seen to prank it with on divers coasts:
Thou looke'st like anticrist, in that lewd hat. 7

1 Girl. 2 A potion. 3 Dandy.
4 Kastril's terms of abuse are not meant to be appropriate.
5 The allusion here has not been explained.
6 In Kyd's Spanish Tragedy.
That we can carry i' the two trunks. I'll keep him
Off for to-day, if I cannot longer: and then 124
At night, I'll ship you both away to Ratcliff,
Where we will meet to-morrow, and there we'll share.

Let Mammon's brass and pewter keep the cellar;
We'll have another time for that. But, Dol,
Prithee go heat a little water quickly; 190
Subtle must shave me. All my captain's beard Must off, to make me appear smooth Jeremy.
You'll do it?

Sub. Yes, I'll shave you as well as I can.

Face. And not cut my throat, but trim me?

Sub. You shall see, sir. [Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I. 5

[Enter] LOVEWIT, [with several of the] Neighbours.

Love. Has there been such resort, say you?
1 Nei. Daily, Sir.
2 Nei. And nightly, too.
3 Nei. Ay, some as brave as lords.
4 Nei. Ladies and gentlewomen,
5 Nei. Citizens' wives.
6 Nei. And knights.
7 Nei. In coaches.
8 Nei. Yes, and oyster-women.
9 Nei. Beside other gallants.
10 Nei. Sailors' wives.
11 Nei. Tobacco men.
12 Nei. Another Pimlico.

Love. What should my knave advance,
To draw this company? He hung out no banners
Of a strange calf with five legs to be seen,
Or a huge lobster with six claws?
6 Nei. No, sir.
3 Nei. We had gone in then, sir.

Love. He has no gift.

Of teaching i' the nose 7 that e'er I knew of.
You saw no bills set up that promis'd cure
Of agues or the tooth-ache?
2 Nei. No such thing, sir!

Love. Nor heard a drum struck for baboons or puppets?
5 Nei. Neither, sir.

Love. What device should he bring forth now?
I love a teeming wit as I love my nourishment:
'Pray God he ha' not kept such open house,'
That he hath sold my hangings, and my bedding!
I left him nothing else. If he have eat 'em,
A plague o' the moth, say I! Sure he has got
Some bawdy pictures to call all this ging; 8

1 Expected. 2 Quibbles. 3 The district outside the walls subject to the city authorities. 4 Stolen goods, booty.

Before Lovewit's door.
6 A summer resort, where the citizens had cakes and ale.
7 Like a Puritan preacher.
8 Gang.
The Friar and the Nun; or the new motion
Of the knight's courser covering the parson's mare:
The boy of six year old, with the great thing:
Or 't may be, he has the fleas that run at tilt
Upon a table, or some dog to dance.
When saw you him?
1 Nei. Who, sir, Jeremy?
2 Nei. Jeremy butler?

We saw him not this month.

Love. How!

4 Nei. Not these five weeks, sir.
[6 Nei. These six weeks, at the least.]

Love. You amaze me, neighbours!
5 Nei. Sure, if your worship know not where he is,

He's slipt away.

6 Nei. Pray God he be not made away.

[Enter Face in his butler's livery.]

Face. What mean you, sir?

1, 2, 4 Nei. O, here's Jeremy!

Face. Good sir, come from the door.

Love. Why, what's the matter?

Face. Yet farther, you are too near yet.

Love. I' the name of wonder,

What means the fellow!

Face. The house, sir, has been visited.

Love. What, with the plague? Stand thou then farther.

Face. No, sir,

I had it not.

[Exit.]

Love. Who had it then? I left
None else but thee 'i the house.

Face. Yes, sir, my fellow,
The cat that kept the buttery, had it on her
A week before I spied it; but I got her Convey'd away 't the night: and so I shut

The house for a month——

Love. How!

Face. Purposing then, sir,
To have burnt rose-vinegar, treadmill, and tar,
And ha' made it sweet, that you should ne'er ha' known it;
Because I knew the news would but afflict you, sir.

Love. Breathe less, and farther off! Why this is stranger:
The neighbours tell me all here that the doors
Have still been open——

Face. How, sir!

Love. Gallants, men and women,
And of all sorts, tag-rag, been to flock here
In thraves, these ten weeks, as to a second Hogsdon.

In days of Pimlico and Eye-bright.

Sir, Their wisdoms will not say so.

Love. To-day they speak
Of coaches and gallants; one in a French hood
Went in, they tell me; and another was seen
In a velvet gown at the window: divers more Pass in and out.

[Then,]

Face. They did pass through the doors Or walks, I assure their eye-sights, and their spectacles;

For, sir, are the keys, and here have been,

In this my pocket, now above twenty days!
And for before, I kept the fort alone there.
But that 'tis yet not deep i' the afternoon,
I should believe my neighbours had seen double
Through the black pot, and made these appear-ations!

For, on my faith to your worship, for these three weeks

And upwards, the door has not been open'd.

Love. Strange!

1 Nei. Good faith, I think I saw a coach.

2 Nei. And I too.

I'd ha' been sworn.

Love. Do you but think it now?

And but one coach?

4 Nei. We cannot tell, sir: Jeremy
Is a very honest fellow.

Face. Did you see me at all?

1 Nei. No; that we are sure on.

2 Nei. I'll be sworn o' that.

Love. Fine rogues to have your testimonies built on!

[Re-enter third Neighbour, with his tools.]

3 Nei. Is Jeremy come!

1 Nei. O yes; you may leave your tools;

We were deceiv'd, he says.

2 Nei. He's had the keys;
And the door has been shut these three weeks.

1 Puppet show. 2 The same.

3 Lit.; two dozen sheaves; droves.
4 A suburban tavern, eclipsed as a resort by Pimlico.
5 With drinking.
3 Nei. Like enough.
Love. Peace, and get hence, you changelings.
[Enter Surly and Mammon.]

Face. [Aside.] Surly come.
And Mammon made acquainted! They’ll tell all.
How shall I beat them off? What shall I do? Nothing’s more wretched than a guilty conscience.

SCENE III.¹

Surly, Mammon, Lovewit, Face, Neighbours.

Sur. No, sir, he was a great physician. This, it was no bawdy-house, but a mere chancell! You knew the lord and his sister.
Mam. Nay, good Surly.
Sur. The happy word, Be such. —
Mam. Play not the tyrant. —
Sur. Should be to-day pronounced to all your friends.
And where be your andiron now? And your brass pots.
That should ha’ been golden flanges, and great wedges? —
Mam. Let me but breathe. What, they ha’ shut their doors.

Methinks! He and Surly knock.
Sur. Ay, now ’tis holiday with them.
Mam. Rogues, Cozeners, impostors, bawds!
Face. What mean you, sir? —
Mam. To enter if we can.
Face. Another man’s house!

Here is the owner, sir; turn you to him, And speak your business.
Mam. Are you, sir, the owner?
Love. Yes, sir.
Mam. And are those knaves within, your Love. What knaves, what cheaters?
Mam. Subtle and his Lungs.
Face. The gentleman is distracted, sir! No lungs
Nor lights ha’ been seen here these three weeks, sir,
Within these doors upon my word.
Sur. Your word.
Groom arrogant. —
Face. Yes, sir, I am the housekeeper, And know the keys ha’ not been out o’ my hands.
Sur. This’s a new Face.
Face. You do mistake the house, sir:
What sign was ’t at?
Sur. You rascal! This is one Of the confederacy. Come, let’s get officers, And force the door.
Love. Pray you stay, gentlemen.
Sur. No, sir, we’ll come with warrant.
Mam. Ay, and then —
We shall ha’ your doors open.
[Exeunt Mam. and Sur.]
Love. What means this?

Face. I cannot tell, sir.
1 Nei. These are two o’ the gallants That we do think we saw.
Face. Two o’ the fools! You talk as idly as they. Good faith, sir, I think the moon has craz’d ’em all. — [Aside.] O me,
[Enter Kasrill.]
The angry boy come too! He’ll make a noise, And ne’er away till he have betray’d us all.
Kas. (knocking.) What, rogues, bawds, slaves, you’ll open the door anon!
Punk, cockatrice, my suster! By this light I’ll fetch the marshal to you. You are a whore To keep your castle —
Face. Who would you speak with, sir?
Kas. The bawdy doctor, and the cozening captain,
And puss my suster.
Love. This something, sure.
Face. Upon my trust, the doors were never open, sir.
Kas. I have heard all their tricks told me twice over,
By the fat knight and the lean gentleman.
Love. Here comes another.
[Enter Ananias and Tribulation.]
Face. Ananias too!
And his pastor!
Tri. The doors are shut against us.
They beat too, at the door.
Ana. Come forth, you seed of sulphur, sons of fire!
Your stench it is broke forth; abomination Is in the house.
Kas. Ay, my suster’s there.
Ana. The place, It is become a cage of unclean birds.
Kas. Yes, I will fetch the scavenger, and the constable.
Tri. You shall do well.
Ana. We’ll join to weed them out.
Kas. You will not come then, punk devise,² my suster!
Ana. Call her not sister; she’s a harlot verily.
Kas. I’ll raise the street.
Love. Good gentleman, a word.
Ana. Satan avoid, and hinder not our zeal!
[Exeunt Ana., Trib., and Kas.]
Love. The world’s turn’d Betlem.
Face. These are all broke loose, Out of St. Katherine’s, where they use to keep The better sort of mad-folks.
1 Nei. All these persons We saw go in and out here.
2 Nei. Yes, indeed, sir.
3 Nei. These were the parties.
Face. Peace, you drunkards! Sir, I wonder at it. Please you to give me leave To touch the door; I’ll try an’ lock be chang’d.
Love. It makes me!
Face. [goes to the door.] Good faith, sir, I believe² Perfect harlot.

² Perfect harlot.
There's no such thing: 'tis all deceptio visus.

[Dap. [within.] Master captain! Master doctor! Love. Who's that?

[Face. [Aside.] Our clerk within, that I forgot—I know not, sir.]

[Dap. [within.] For God's sake, when will her grace be at leisure?

Face. Ha!

Illusions, some spirit o' the air!—[Aside.] His gag is melted,

And now he sets out the throat.

[Dap. [within.] I am almost stifled—

[Face. [Aside.] Would you were together.

Love. 'Tis i' the house.

Ha! list.

Face. Believe it, sir, i' the air.

Love. Peace, you. [Sub. [within.] Mine aunt's grace does not use me well.

[Sub. [within.] You fool,

Peace, you shall mar all.

Face. [speaks through the keyhole, while Love-wax advances to the door unobserved.] Or you will else, you rogue.

Love. O, is it so? Then you converse with spirits!—

Come, sir. No more o' your tricks, good Jeremy

The truth, the shortest way.

[Face. Dismiss this rabbble, sir.]

[Aside.] What shall I do? I am catch'd,

Love. Good neighbours, I thank you all. You may depart. [Exeunt Neighbours.]—Come, sir,

You know that I am an indulgent master;
And therefore conceal nothing. What's your medicine,

To draw so many several sorts of wild fowl? 80

Face. Sir, you were wont to affect mirth and wit—

But here is no place to talk on 't i' the street.

Give me but leave to make the best of my fortune,

And only pardon me th' abuse of your house:
It's all I beg. I'll help you to a widow, 85

In recompense, that you shall gi' me thanks for,
Will make you seven years younger, and a rich one,

'Tis but your putting on a Spanish cloak:
I have her within. You need not fear the house; It was not visited.

Love. But by me, who came 90

Sooner than you expected.

[Face. It is true, sir.

'Pray you forgive me.

Love. Well: let's see your widow. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IV.

[Enter] Subtle [leading in] Dapper, [with his eyes bound as before],

Sub. How! ha' you eaten your gag?

Dap. Yes, faith, it crumbled

Away i' my mouth.

Sub. You ha' spoil'd all then.

Dap. I hope my aunt of Fairy will forgive me.

Sub. Your aunt's a gracious lady; but in troth

You were to blame.

[Dap. The fume did overcome me, 6

And I did do 't to stay my stomach. 'Pray you

So satisfy her grace.

[Enter Face in his uniform.]

Face. How now! Is his mouth down?

Sub. Ay, he has spoken!

Face. A pox, I heard him, and you too. He's undone then,— [Aside to Subtle.] I have been fain to say, the house is haunted

With spirits, to keep churl back.

Sub. And hast thou done it?

Face. Sure, for this night.

Sub. Why, then, triumph and sing

Of Face so famous, the precious king

Of present wits. 10

Face. Did you not hear the coil

About the door?

Sub. Yes, and I dwindled 8 with it.

Face. Show him his aunt, and let him be dispatch'd:

I'll send her to you. 14

[Exit Face.]

Sub. Well, sir, your aunt her grace Will give you audience presently, on my suit, And the captain's word that you did not eat your gag

In any contempt of her highness.

[Unbinds his eyes.]

Dap. 'Tis not I, in troth, sir. 20

[Enter] Dol. like the Queen of Fairy.

Sub. Here she is come. Down o' your knees and wriggle.

She has a stately presence. [Dapper kneels and shuffles towards her.] Good! Yet nearer, And bid, God save you!

Dap. Madam!

Sub. And your aunt.

Dap. And my most gracious aunt, God save your grace.

Dol. Nephew, we thought to have been angry with you;

But that sweet face of yours hath turn'd the tide, And made it flow with joy, that ebb'd of love. Arise, and touch our velvet gown. 35

The skirts, And kiss 'em. So! 40

Dol. Let me now strike that head.

Much, nephew, shall thou win, much shall thou spend;

Much shall thou give away, much shalt thou lend. 50

Sub. [Aside.] Ay, much! indeed. — Why do you not thank her grace?

Dap. I cannot speak for joy.

Sub. See, the kind wretch! Your grace's kinsman right.
Dol. Give me the bird. —
Here is your fly in a purse, about your neck, cousin; 35
Wear it, and feed it about this day sev'n-night, 36
Or your right wrist —
Sub. Open a vein with a pin
And let it suck but once a week; till then,
You must not look on it.
Dol. No: and, kinsman,
Bear yourself worthy of the blood you came on.
Sub. Her grace would ha’ you eat no more
Woolsock 1 pies, 41
Nor Daggler 1 frumenty, 2
Dol. Nor break his fast
In Heaven 1 and Hell. 1
Sub. She’s with you everywhere!
Nor play with costermongers, at mumchance, 3
traytrip, 4
God-make-you-rich 8 (when as your aunt has done it); but keep
The gallant’st company, and the best games —
Dap. Yes, sir.
Sub. Glee 3 and primero; 3 and what you get, be true to us.
Dap. By this hand, I will.
Sub. You may bring a thousand pound
Before to-morrow night, if but three thousand
Be stirring; an you will.
Dap. I swear I will then. 50
Sub. Your fly will learn you all games.
Face. [within.] It’s you done there?
Sub. Your grace will command him no more duties?
Dol. No:
But come and see me often. I may chance
To leave him three or four hundred cheasts of treasure, 44
And some twelve thousand acres of fairy land,
If he game well and comely with good game-sters.
Sub. There’s a kind aunt: kiss her departing part.
But you must sell your forty mark a year
now.
Dap. Ay, sir, I mean.
Sub. Or, give it away; pox on’t!
Dap. I’ll gi’ it mine aunt. I’ll go and fetch the writings. [Exit.] 60
Sub. ’Tis well; away.
[Re-enter Face.]
Face. Where’s Subtle?
Sub. Here: what news?
Face. Druggar is at the door; go take his suit,
And bid him fetch a parson presently.
Say he shall marry the widow. Thou shalt spend
A hundred pound by the service! 64
[Exit Subtle.]
Now, Queen Dol,
Have you pack’d up all?
Dol. Yes.

1 Names of taverns. 2 Wheat boiled in milk. 3 Games of chance.

The Lady Pliant?  And how do you like
Dol. A good dull innocent.

[Re-enter Subtle.]
Sub. Here’s your Hieronimo’s cloak and hat.
Face. Give me ‘em.
Sub. And the ruff too?
Face. Yes; I’ll come to you presently.
[Exit.]
Sub. Now he is gone about his project, Dol, 70
I told you of, for the widow.
Dol. ’Tis direct
Against our articles.
Sub. Well, we will fit him, wench.
Hast thou gull’d her of her jewels or her bracelets 6
Dol. No; but I will do’t.
Sub. Soon at night, my Dolly,
When we are shipt, and all our goods aboard, 76
Eastward for Ratcliff, we will turn our course
To Brainford, westward, if thou sayst the word,
And take our leaves of this o’erweening rascal.
This peremptory Face.
Dol. Content; I ’m weary of him.
Sub. Thou ’st cause, when the slave will run at wiving. Dol,
Against the instrument that was drawn between us.
Dol. I’ll pluck his bird as bare as I can.
Sub. Yes, tell her
She must by any means address some present
To th’ cunning man, make him amends for wronging
His art with her suspicion; send a ring, 55
Or chain of pearl; she will be tortur’d else Extremely in her sleep, say, and ha’ strange things
Come to her. Wilt thou?
Dol. Yes.
Sub. My fine flitter-mouse, 4
My bird o’ the night! We’ll tickle it at the Pigeons, 6
When we have all, and may unlock the trunks,
And say, this’s mine, and thine; and thine, and mine. They kiss.

Re-enter Face.
Face. What now! a billing?
Sub. Yes, a little exalted
In the good passage of our stock-affairs.
Face. Druggar has brought his parson; take him in, Subtle,
And send Nab back again to wash his face. 80
Sub. I will: and shave himself? [Exit.]
Face. If you can get him.
Dol. You are hot upon it, Face, what’er it is!
Face. A trick that Dol shall spend ten pound

1 A month by.

[Re-enter Subtle.]
Is he gone?
Sub. The chaplain waits you i’ the hall, sir.

4 Bat. 5 An inn at Brentford.
Is to help you over the wall, 't' the back-side,
Or lend you a sheet to save your velvet gown,
Dol.
Here will be officers presently, bethink you
Of some course suddenly to scape the dock;
For thither you'll come else. (Some knock.)
Hark you, thunder.
Sub. You are a precious fiend!
Off. [without.] Open the door.
Face. Dol, I am sorry for thee! faith; but hear'st thou?
It shall go hard but I will place thee somewhere:
Thou shalt ha' my letter to Mistress Amo—
Dol. Hang you.
Face. Or Madam Cassarean.
Dol. Fox upon you, rogue,
Would I had but time to beat thee!
Face. Subtle,
Let's know where you'll set up next; I will send you
A customer now and then, for old acquaintance.
What new course have you?
Sub. Rogue, I'll hang myself;
That I may walk a greater devil than thou,
And haunt thee 't' the flock-bed and the butter.

[Exeunt.]

---

SCENE V.

[Enter] Lovenit [in the Spanish dress, with the Parson. Loud knocking at the door.]

Love. What do you mean, my masters?
Mam. [without.] Open your door,
Cheaters, bawds, conjurers.
Off. [without.] Or we'll break it open.
Love. What warrant have you?
Off. [without.] Warrant enough, sir, doubt not,
If you 'll not open it.
Love. Is there an officer there?
Off. [without.] Yes, two or three for failing.
Love. Have but patience, &
And I will open it straight.

[Enter FACE, as butler.]

Face. Sir, ha' you done?

Is it a marriage? Perfect?
Love. Yes, my brain.
Face. Off with your ruff and cloak then; be yourself, sir.
Sur. [without.] Down with the door.
Kas. [without.] Slight, ding! it open.
Love. [opening the door.] Hold,
Hold, gentlemen, what means this violence?

[MAMMON, SURLY, KASTRIL, ANANIAS, TRIBULATION and Officers rush in.]

Mam. Where is this collier?
Sur. And my Captain Face?
Mam. These day-owls.
Sur. That are birding men's purses.
Mam. Madam Suppository.
Kas. Doxy, my master.
And borrowed to you.

Good gentlemen, hear me. Are you officers, and cannot stay this violence?

1 Off. Keep the peace.

Love. Gentlemen, what is the matter? Whom do you seek?

Mam. The chemical cozenor.

Sur. And the captain pander.

Kas. The nun my sister.

Mam. Madam Rabbi.

Ana. Scorpions, 50

And caterpillars.

Love. Fewer at once, I pray you.

1 Off. One after another, gentlemen, I charge you.

By virtue of my staff.

And the vessels.

Offide, lust, and the cart.

Love. Good seal, lie still a little while.

Tri. Peace, Deacon Ananias.

Love. The house is mine here, and the doors are open;

If there be any such persons as you seek for,

Use your authority, search on o’ God’s name,

I am but newly come to town, and finding

This tumult about my door, to tell you true,

It somewhat man’d me; till my man here, fearing

My more displeasure, told me he had done

Somewhat an insolent part, let out my house

(Blithe presuming on my known aversion

From any air o’ the town while there was sickness),

To a doctor and a captain: who, what they are

Or where they be, he knows not.

Mam. Are they gone?

Love. You may go in and search, sir. (MAMON, ANA., and TRIB, go in.) Here, I find

The empty walls worse than I left ‘em, smoke’d,

A few crack’d pots, and glasses, and a furnace:

The ceiling fill’d with poesies of the candle, &

And “Madam with a dide” writ o’ the walls.

Only one gentlewoman I met here

That is within, that said she was a widow —

Kas. Ay, that’s my sister; I’ll go thump her. Where is she?

[Go in.]

Love. And should ha’ married a Spanish count,

but he,

When he came to t, neglected her so grossly,

That I, a widower, am gone through with her.

Sur. How! have I lost her then?

Love. Were you the don, sir?

Good faith, now she does blame you extremely and says

You swore, and told her you had ta’en the pains

To dye your beard, andumber o’er your face,

Borrowed a suit, and ruff, all for her love:

And then did nothing. What an oversight

And want of putting forward, sir, was this!

1 Probably a fragment of a song.

Well fare an old harquebusier 2 yet,

Could prime his powder, and give fire, and bit,

All in a twinkling! Mammon comes forth.

Mam. The whole nest are fled!

Love. What sort of birds were they?

Mam. A kind of choughs, 3

Or thievish daws, sir, that have pick’d my purse,

Of eight score and ten pounds within these five weeks,

Beside my first materials; and my goods,

That lie in the cellar, which I am glad they ha’ left,

I may have home yet.

Think you so, sir?

Love. Ay.

Love. By order of law, sir, but not otherwise.

Mam. Not mine own stuff!

Love. Sir, I can take no knowledge

That they are yours, but by public means.

If you can bring certificate that you were gull’d

Of ’em,

Or any formal writ out of a court,

That you did cozen yourself, I will not hold

them.

Mam. I’ll rather lose ’em.

Love. That you shall not, sir,

By me, in troth; upon these terms, they’re yours.

What, should they ha’ been, sir, turn’d into gold, all?

Mam. No.

I cannot tell. — It may be they should. — What then?

Love. What a great loss in hope you have susta’nd!

Mam. Not I; the commonwealth has.

Face. Ay, he would ha’ built

The city new; and made a ditch about it

Of silver, should have run with cream from

Hogsden;

That every Sunday in Moorsfields the younkers,

And titts 4 and tom-boys should have fed on, gratis.

Mam. I will go mount a turnip-cart, and preach

The end o’ the world within these two months.

Surly,

What! in a dream?

Sur. Must I needs cheat myself

With that same foolish vice of honesty!

Come, let us go and hearken out the roggens: 5

That Face I’ll mark for mine, if e’er I meet him.

Face. If I can hear of him, sir, I’ll bring you

word

Unto your lodging; for in troth, they were strangers

To me; I thought ’em honest as myself, sir,

They come forth.

[Re-enter ANANIAS and TRIBULATION.]

Tri. ’Tis well, the saints shall not lose all yet. Go

And get some carts —

1 Musketeeer. 2 Crow. 3 Wenches.

120
Love. For what, my zealous friends?

Ana. To bear away the portion of the righteous.

Out of this den of thieves.

Love. What is that portion?

Ana. The goods sometimes the orphans', that the brethren

Bought with their silver pence.

Love. What, those i' the cellar, 26

The knight Sir Mammon claims?

Ana. I do defy

The wicked Mammon, so do all the brethren,
Thou profane man! I ask thee with what conscience

Thou canst advance that idol against us,

That hast the seal? 1 Were not the shilling's num' red

That made the pounds; were not the pounds told out

Upon the second day of the fourth week,
In the eighth month, upon the table dormant,
The year of the last patience of the saints,
Six hundred and ten?

Love. Mine earnest vehement botcher, 108

And deacon also, I cannot dispute with you:
But if you get you not away the sooner,
I shall confute you with a cudgel.

Ana. Sir!

Tri. Be patient, Ananias.

Ana. I am strong,

And will stand up, well girt, against an host 110

That threaten Gad in exile.

Love. I shall send you

To Amsterdam, to your cellar.

Ana. I will pray there,

Against thy house. May dogs defile thy walls,
And wasps and hornets breed beneath thy roof,
This seat of falsehood, and this cave of cozenage!

[Exeunt Ana. and TRIB.]

Enter DRUGGER.

Love. Another too?

Drug. Not I, sir, I am no brother. 118

Love. (beats him.) Away, you Harry Nichol-ias! 12 do you talk?

[Exeunt DRUGGER.]

Face. No, this was Abel Drugger. Good sir, go.

And satisfy him; tell him all is done:
He staid too long a washing of his face. 120

The doctor, he shall hear of him at Westchester;

And of the captain, tell him, at Yarmouth, or

Some good port-town else, lying for a wind.

[Exeunt Parson.]

If you can get off the angry child now, sir —

[Enter KASTRIL, dragging in] his sister.

Kas. Come on, you ewe, you have match'd most sweetely, ha' you not? 125

Did not I say, I would never ha' you tupt
But by a dubb'd boy 4 to make you a lady-tom?

love. [Slight, you are a mammet! 4 O, I could touse

you now.

Death, mum 5 you marry with a pox!

love. You lie, boy.

As sound as you; and I 'm aforehand with you.

Kas. Anon!' 126

Love. Come, will you quarrel? I will feize 6

you, sirrah;

Why do you not buckel to your tools?

Kas. God's light,

This is a fine old boy as e'er I saw!

Love. What, do you change your copy now?

Proceed;

Here stands my dove: stoop 7 at her if you dare.

Kas. 'Slight, I must love him! I cannot choose, i' faith,

An I should be hang'd for 't! Suster, I protest,

I honour thee for this match.

love. O, do you so, sir?

Kas. Yes, an thou canst take tobacco and drink, old boy,

I'll give her five hundred pound more to her marriage,

Than her own state;

Love. Fill a pipe full, Jeremy.

Face. Yes; but go in and take it, sir.

Love. We will.

I will be rul'd by thee in anything, Jeremy.

Kas. 'Slight, thou art not hide-bound, thou art a jovy 8 boy!

Come, let us in, I pray thee, and take our whiffs.

Love. Whiff in with your sister, brother boy.

[Exeunt KAS. and Dame P.]

That master

That had receiv'd such happiness by a ser vant,

In such a widow, and with so much wealth,
Were very ungrateful, if he would not be

A little indulgent to that servant's wit,

And help his fortune, though were some small strain

Of his own candour. 9 [Advancing.] Therefore, gentlemen,

And kind spectators, if I have outstrip

An old man's gravity, or strict canon, think 10

What a young wife and a good brain may do;

Stretched age's truth sometimes, and crack it too.

Speak for thyself, knave.

Face. So I will, sir. [Advancing to the front of the stage.] Gentlemen,

My part a little fell in this last scene,
Yet 't was decorum. 10 And though I am clean

Got off from Subtle, Surly, Mammon, Dol, 100

Hot Ananias, Dapper, Drugger, all

With whom I traded; yet I put myself

On you, that are my country; 11 and this pelf

Which I have got, if you do quit me, rests,

To feast you often, and invite new guests.

[Exeunt.]

4 Puppet.  5 Must.  6 Beat.  7 A term of falconry: used in punning allusion to the name of Kastril, which means hawk.

8 Jovial.  9 Dramatic propriety.

10 Fair reputation.  11 Jury.

THE PROLOGUE

As it was pronounced before the Queen's Majesty

As wretches in a storm, expecting day,
With trembling hands and eyes cast up to heaven,
Make prayers the anchor of their conquer'd hopes,
So we, dear goddess, wonder of all eyes,
Your meanest vassals, through mistrust and fear
To sink into the bottom of disgrace
By our imperfect pastimes, prostrate thus
On bended knees, our sails of hope do strike,
Dreading the bitter storms of your dislike.
Since then, unhappy men, our hap is such
That to ourselves ourselves no help can bring,
But needs must perish, if your saint-like ears,
Locking the temple where all mercy sits,
Refuse the tribute of all begging tongues;
Oh, grant, bright mirror of true chastity,
From those life-breathing stars, your sun-like eyes,
One gracious smile; for your celestial breath
Must send us life, or sentence us to death.

ACT I

Scene I.

Enter the Lord Mayor and the Earl of Lincoln.

Linc. My lord mayor, you have sundry times Feasted myself and many courtiers more; Seldom or never can we be so kind To make requital of your courtesy. But leaving this, I hear my cousin Lacy Is much affected to her daughter Rose.

1 A street in London. 2 In love with.
Linc. Take heed, my lord, advise you what you do! A verier unthrift lives not in the world, Than is my cousin; for I'll tell you what: 'Tis now almost a year since he requested To travel countries for experience. I furnish him with coin, bills of exchange, Letters of credit, men to wait on him, Solicited my friends in Italy Well to respect him. But, to see the end, Scant had he journey'd through half Germany, But all his coin was spent, his mon cast off, His bills embossed, and my jolly coz, Asham'd to show his bankrupt presence here, Became a shoemaker in Wittenberg, A goodly science for a gentleman Of such descent! Now judge the rest by this: Suppose your daughter have a thousand pound, He did consume me more in one half year; And make him heir to all the wealth you have One twelvemonth's rioting will waste it all. Then seek, my lord, some honest citizen To wed your daughter to. I thank your lordship.

[aside.] Well, fox, I understand your subtily. —
As for your nephew, let your lordship's eye But watch his actions, and you need not fear, For I have seen my daughter far enough.
And yet your cousin Rowlend might do well, Now he hath learn'd an occupation: And yet I scorn to call him son-in-law.
Linc. Ay, but I have a better trade for him. I thank his grace, he hath appointed him Chief colonel of all those companies Must red in London and the shires about, To serve his hightness in those wars of France. See where he comes! —

Enter Lovell, Lacy, and Askew.

Lovell, what news with you?

Loyell. My Lord of Lincoln, 'tis his hightness will,
That presently your cousin ship for France With all his powers; he would not for a million,
But they should land at Dieppe within four days.

Linc. Go certify his grace, it shall be done. Exit Lovell.

Now, cousin Lacy, in what forwardness are all your companies?

Lacy. All well prepar'd. The men of Hertfordshire lie at Mile-end, Suffolk and Essex train in Tothill-fields, The Londoners and those of Middlesex, All gallantly prepar'd in Finsbury, With frolic spirits long for their parting hour.

L. Mayor. They have their impress, coats, and furniture.

And, if it please your cousin Lacy come To the Guildhall, he shall receive his pay; And twenty pounds besides my brethren

Will freely give him, to approve our loves We bear unto my lord, your uncle here.

Lacy. I thank your honour.

Linc. Thanks, my good lord mayor.

L. Mayor. At the Guildhall we will expect your coming. Exit.

Linc. To approve your loves to me? No subtily Nephew, that twenty pound he doth bestow
For joy to rid you from his daughter Rose.
But, cousins both, now here are none but friends,
I would not have you cast an amorous eye
Upon so mean a project as the love
Of a gay, wanton, painted citizen.
I know, this churl even in the height of scorn
Doth hate the mixture of his blood with thine.
I pray thee, do thou so! Remember, coz,
What honourable fortunes wait on thee.
Increase the king's love, which so brightly shines,
And gilds thy hopes. I have no heir but thee,—
And yet not thee, if with a wayward spirit
Thou start from the true bias of my love.

Lacy. My lord, I will for honour, not desire
Of land or livings, or to be thy heir,
So guide my actions in pursuit of France,
As shall add glory to the Lacies' name.

L. Mayor. Askew, for those words here's thirty Portuguese.

And, nephew Askew, there's a few for you.
Fair Honour, in her loftiest eminence,
Stay's in France for you, till you fetch her thence.
Then, nephews, clap swift wings on your designs.

Begone, begone, make haste to the Guildhall; There presently I'll meet you. Do not stay: Where honour beckons shame attends delay.

Exit.

Askew. How gladly would your uncle have you gone!

Lacy. True, coz, but I'll o'erreach his policies. I have some serious business for three days, Which nothing but my presence can dispatch. You, therefore, cousin, with the companies, Shall haste to Dover; there I'll meet with you; Or, if I stay past my prefixed time, Away for France; we'll meet in Normandy.

The twenty pounds my lord mayor gives to me You shall receive, and these ten Portuguese, Part of mine uncle's thirty. Gentle coz, Have care to our great charge; I know your wisdom Hath tried itself in higher consequence.

Askew, coz, all myself am yours: yet have this care,
To lodge in London with all secrecy; Our uncle Lincoln hath, besides his own, Many a jealous eye, that in your face Stares only to watch means for your disgrace.

Lacy. Stay, cousin, who be these?
Enter Simon Eyre,[Margery] his wife, Hodge, Firk, Jane, and Ralph with a piece.1

Eyre. Leave whining, leave whining! Away with this whimpering, this pulling, these blubbing tears, and these wet eyes! I'll get thy husband discharged, I warrant thee, sweet Jane; go to! 131

Hodge. Master, here be the captains.

Eyre. Peace, Hodge; hush, ye knave, hush! Firk. Here be the cavaliers and the colonels, master.

Eyre. Peace, Firk; peace, my fine Firk! Stand by with your pickery-pashery,2 away! I am a man of the best presence; I'll speak to them, an3 they were Popes. — Gentlemen, captains, colonels, commandants! Brave men, brave leaders, may it please you to give me audience. I am Simon Eyre, the mad shoemaker of Tower Street; this wench with the mealy mouth that will never tire, is my wife, I can tell you; here's Hodge, my man and my foreman;4 here's Firk, my fine firking4 journeyman, and this is my proper Jane. All we come to be suitors for this honest Ralph. Keep him at home, and as I am a true shoemaker and a gentleman of the gentle craft, buy spurs yourself, and I'll [140 find ye boots these seven years.

Marg. Seven years, husband?

Eyre. Peace, midriff,5 peace! I know what I do. Peace! Firk. Truly, master cormorant,6 you shall do God good service to let Ralph and his wife stay together. She's a young new-married woman; if you take her husband away from her a-night, you undo her; she may beg in the daytime; for he's as good a workman at a prick and an awl as any in our trade. Jane. O let him stay, else I shall be undone.

Firk. Ay, truly, she shall be laid at one side like a pair of old shoes else, and be occupied for no use.

Lacy. Truly, my friends it lies not in my power:
The Londoners are press'd,7 paid, and set forth
By the lord mayor; I cannot change my fate.

Hodge. Why, then you were as good be a corporal as a colonel, if you cannot discharge one good fellow; and I tell you true, I think you do more than you can answer, to press a man within a year and a day of his marriage.

Eyre. Well said, melancholy Hodge; grammar, my fine foreman.

Marg. Truly, gentlemen, it were ill done for such as you, to stand so stiffly against a poor young wife, considering her case, she is new-married; but let that pass. I pray, deal not roughly with her; her husband is a young man, and but newly entered; but let that pass. 171

Eyre. Away with your pickery-pashery, your poles and your edipols!8 Peace, midriff; silence, Cicely Buntrinket! Let your head speak.

Firk. Yes, and the horns too, master.

Eyre. Too soon, my fine Firk, too soon!

Peace, scoundrels! See you this man? Captains, you will not release him? Well, let him go; he's a proper shot; let him vanish! 150 Peace, Jane, dry up thy tears, they'll make his powder dankish.9 Take him, brave men; Hector of Troy was an hackney to him, Hercules and Termagnant10 scoundrels, Prince Arthur's Round-table — by the Lord of Ludgate — ne'er fed such a tall,11 such a dapper swordsman; by the life of Pharaoh, a brave resolute swordsman! Peace, Jane! I say no more, mad knaves.

Firk. See, see, Hodge, how my master raves in commendation of Ralph!

Hodge. Ralph, th'art a gull,12 by this hand, an thou goest not.

Askew. I am glad, good Master Eyre, it is my hap to meet so resolute a soldier.

Trust me, for your report and love to him, 100
A common slight regard shall not respect him.

Lacy. Is thy name Ralph?

Ralph. Yes, sir. Lacy. Give me thine hand; Thou shalt not want, as I am a gentleman. Woman, be patient; God, no doubt, will send Thy husband safe again; but he must go, 200 His country's quarrel says it shall be so.

Hodge. Th'art a gull, by my stirrup, if thou dost not go. I will not have thee strike thy gimlet into these weak vessels; prick thine enemies, Ralph. 210

Enter Dodger.

Dodger. My lord, your uncle on the Tower-hill
Stays with the lord-mayor and the aldermen,
And doth request you, with all speed you may,
To hasten thither.

Askew. Cousin, let's go.

Lacy. Dodger, run you before, tell them we come, —

This Dodger is mine uncle's parasite.

Thearrant's varlet that a'er breath'd on earth;
He sets more discord in a noble house
By one day's broaching of his pickthanking tales,13
Than can be saved again in twenty years, 210
And he, I fear, shall go with us to France,
To pry into our actions.

Askew. Therefore, coz, It shall behave you to be circumspect.

Lacy. Fear not, good cousin. — Ralph, hie to your colours. [Exit LACY AND ASKEW.]

Ralph. I must, because there's no remedy; 221
But, gentle master and my loving dame, As you have always been a friend to me, So in mine absence think upon my wife.

Jane. Alas, my Ralph.

Marg. She cannot speak for weeping. 224

1 Place of leather. 5 Used as a term of contempt.
2 Twiddle-twaddle. 6 Quibbling on colonel.
3 If. 7 Impressed into service.
4 Frisky, tricky. 8 Solemn declarations.
Eyre. Peace, you crack'd groats, you mustard tokens, disquiet not the brave soldier. Go thy ways, Ralph!

Jane. Ay, ay, you bid him go; what shall I do

When he is gone?

Firk. Why, be doing with me or my fellow Hodge; be not idle.

Eyre. Let me see thy hand, Jane. This fine hand, this white hand, these pretty fingers must spin, must card, must work; work, you bombard cotton-candle-queen; work for your living. with a pox to you. — Hold thee, Ralph, here's five sixpences for thee; fight for the honour of the gentle craft, for the gentlemen shoemakers, the courageous cordwainers, the flower of St. Martin's, the mad knaves of Bedlam, Fleet Street, Tower Street and Whitechapel; crack me the crowns of the French knaves; a pox on them, crack them; fight, by the Lord of Ludgate; fight, my fine boy!

Firk. Here, Ralph, here's three two-pences; two carry into France, the third shall wash our shoes next morning, for sorrow is dry. For my sake, firk the Rosa mon eas.

Hodge. Ralph, I am heavy at parting; but here's a shilling for thee. God send thee to cramp thy slopes with French crowns, and thy enemies' bellies with bullets.

Ralph. I thank you, master, and I thank you all.

Now, gentle wife, my loving lovely Jane, Rich men, at parting, give their wives rich gifts, Jewels and rings, to grace their lily hands.

Thou know'st our trade makes rings for women's heels:

Here take this pair of shoes, cut out by Hodge, Stitch'd by my fellow Firk, seamed by myself, Made up and pink'd with letters for thy name.

Wear them, my dear Jane, for thy husband's sake,

And every morning when thou pull'st them on, Remember me, and pray for my return.

Make much of them; for I have made them so That I can know them from a thousand mo.

Drum sounds. Enter the Lord Mayor, the Earl of Lincoln, Lacy, Askew, Dodger, and Soldiers. They pass over the stage; Ralph falls in amongst them; Firk and the rest cry: Farewell," etc., and so excurt.

ACT II

SCENE I.6

Enter Rose, alone, making a garland.

Rose. Here sit thou down upon this flow'r'ry bank

And make a garland for thy Lacy's head. These pinks, these roses, and these violets, These blushing gillflowers, these marigolds, The fair embroidery of his coronet, Carry not half such beauty in their cheeks, As the sweet count'nance of my Lacy doth.

O my most unkind father! O my stars, Why lower'd you so at my nativity, To make me love, yet live robb'd of my love? Here as a thief am I imprisoned

For my dear Lacy's sake within these walls, Which by my father's cost were built up For better purposes. Here must I languish For him that doth as much lament, I know, Mine absence, as for him I pine in woe.

Enter Sybil.

Sybil. Good morrow, young mistress. I am sure you make that garland for me, against 7 I shall be Lady of the Harvest.

Rose. Sybil, what news at London?

Sybil. None but good; my lord mayor, your father, and master Philip, your uncle, and Master Scarr, your cousin, and Mistress Frig; bottom by Doctor's Commons, do all, by my troth, send you most hearty commendations.

Rose. Did Lacy send kind greetings to his love?

Sybil. O yes, out of cry, by my troth. I scant knew him; here 'a wore a scarf; and here a scarf, here a bunch of feathers, and here precious stones and jewels, and a pair of garters, — O, monstrous! like one of our yellow silk curtains at home here in Old Ford House here, in Master Bally-mount's chamber. I stood at our door in Cornhill, look'd at him, he at me indeed, spake to him, but he not is to me, not a word; marry go-up, thought I, with a wanion! He pass'd by me as proud — Marry foh! are you grown humorous, thought I; and so shut the door, and in I came.

Rose. O Sybil, how dost thou thy Lacy wrong!

My Rowland is as gentle as a lamb, No dove was ever half so mild as he.

Sybil. Mild? yes, as a bushel of stamp crape. He lookt upon me as soon as verjuice, Go thy ways, thought I, thou may'st be much in my gaskins, but nothing in my nether-stocks. This is your fault, mistress, to love him that loves not you; he thinks scorn to do as he's done to; but if I were as you, I'd cry, Go by, Jeronimo, go by!

I'd set mine old debts against my new driblets, And the hare's foot against the goose gliblets, For if ever I sigh, when sleep I should take, Pray God I may lose my maidenhead when I wake.

Rose. Will my love leave me then, and go to France?

Sybil. I know not that, but I am sure I see

1 Four-penny piece.
2 Yellow spots on the body denoting the infection of the plague.
3 Grant.
4 Breeches (pockets).
5 A garden at Old Ford.
6 1 In preparation.
7 Crushed crab-apples.
8 With a vengeance.
9 Juice of green fruits.
10 Carpiscious.
11 Wide trousers.
12 Stockings. The meaning seems to be that though we may be acquainted, we are not intimate friends.
13 A phrase from Kyd's Spanish Tragedy.
him stalk before the soldiers. By my troth, he is a proper man; but he is proper that proper doth. Let him go snick-up, young mistress.

Rose. Get thee to London, and learn perfectly

Whether my Lacy go to France, or no.

Do this, and I will give thee for thy pains

My cambic apron and my Romish gloves,

My purple stockings and a stomacher.

Say, wilt thou do this, Sybil, for my sake?

Sybil. Will I, quoth a? At whose suit? By my troth, yes, I'll go. A cambic apron, gloves, a pair of purple stockings, and a stomacher! I'll sweat in purple, mistress, for you; I'll take anything that comes a! God's name. O rich! a cambic apron! Faith, then have at 'up tails all.' I'll go jiggy-jiggy to London, and be here in a trice, young mistress. Exit. Rose. Doso, good Sybil. Meantime wretched I will sit and sigh for his lost company. Exit.[

SCENE II.

Enter Lacy, like a Dutch Shoemaker.

Lacy. How many shapes have gods and kings devis'd,

Thereby to compass their desired loves!

It is no shame for Rowland Lacy, then,

To clothe his cunning with the gentle craft,

That, thus disguis'd, I may unknown possess

The only happy presence of my Rose.

For her have I forsook my charge in France,

Incur'd the king's displeasure, and stirr'd up

Rough hatred in mine uncle Lincoln's breast.

O love, how powerful an art thou! that canst change

High birth to baseness, and a noble mind

To the mean semblance of a shoemaker!

But thus it must be; for her cruel father,

Hating the single union of our souls,

Has secretly convey'd my Rose from London,

To bar me of her presence; but I trust,

Fortune and this disguise will further me

Once more to view her beauty, gain her sight.

Here in Tower Street with Eyre the shoemaker

Mean I a while to work; I know the trade,

I learnt it when I was in Wittenberg.

Then cheer thy hoping spirits, be not dismay'd,

Thou canst not want; do Fortune what she can,

The gentle craft is living for a man. Exit.

SCENE III.

Enter Eyre, making himself ready.

Eyre. Where be these boys, these girls, these drabs, these scoundrels? They wallow in the fat brevis of my bounty, and lick up the crumbs of my table, yet will not rise to see my winds cleansed. Come out, you powder-beef! quenas! What, Nan! what, Madge Mumble-crust? [Come out, you fat midrift-swag-belly-whores, and sweep me these kennels] that the noisome stench offend not the noses of my neighbours.

What, Firk, I say; what, Hodge! Open my shop windows! What, Firk, I say!

Enter Firk.

Firk. O master, is it you that speak bandog and Bedlam this morning? I was in a dream, and mused what madman was got into the street so early. Have you drunk this morning that your throat is so clear?

Eyre. Ah, well said, Firk; well said, Firk. To work, my fine knave, to work! Wash thy face, and then 'tis more blest.

Firk. Let them wash my face that will eat it. Good master, send for a sousse-wife; if you have my face cleaner.

Enter Hodge.

Eyre. Away, sloven! away, sousard—Good-morrow, Hodge; good-morrow, my fine foreman.

Hodge. O master, good-morrow; ye're an early stirrer. Here's a fair morning. — Good-morrow, Firk, I could have slept this hour. Here's a brave day towards. Ever, Oh, haste to work, my fine foreman, haste to work.

Firk. Master, I am dry as dust to hear my fellow Roger talk of fair weather; let us pray for good leather, and let clowns and ploughboys and those that work in the fields pray for brave days. We work in a dry shop; what care I if it rain?

Enter Eyre's wife [Margery].

Eyre. How now, Dame Margery, can you see to rise? Trip and go, call up the drabs, your maids.

Marg. See to rise? I hope 'tis time enough, 'tis early enough for any woman to be seen abroad. I marvel how many wives in Tower Street are up so soon. Gods me, 'tis not noon, here's a yawling!

Eyre. Peace, Margery, peace! Where's Cicely Buntrinket, your maid? She has a privy fault, she farts in her sleep. Call the quanen up; if my men want shoe-thread, I'll swing her in a stirrup.

Firk. Yet, that's but a dry beating; here's still a sign of drought.

Enter Lacy [disguised], singing.

Lacy. Der war ein schon von Gelderland

Frölick sie byen:

He was als dronck he cold nyet stand,

Upsolce sie byen.

Tap eens de kannen,

Drinkke, denne manekin. 14

9 Watch dog.

10 Madman.

11 A woman who washed and pickled pigs' faces.

12 Bowling.

13 The language is, of course, meant for Dutch.

There was a boor from Gelderland,

Jolly they be;

He was so dronck he could not stand,

Drunk'n (f) they be:

Clink then the cannen,

Drink, pretty mannek'in!
Firk. Master, for my life, yonder 's a bro- [as] of the gentle craft; if he hear not Saint Hugh's bones, [1] I'll forfeit my bones; he's some uplandish workman: hire him, good master, that I may learn some gibble-gabble; 't will make us work the faster.

Eyre. Peace, Firk! A hard world! Let him pass, let him vanish; we have journeymen enough. Peace, my fine Firk!

Marg. Nay, nay, 'tis best to follow your man's counsel; you shall see what will come on't. We have not many, now, but we must entertain [2] every butter-box; [3] but let that pass.

Hodge. Dame, 'fore God, if my master follow your counsel, he'll consume little beef. He shall be glad of men an he can catch them.

Firk. Ay, that he shall.

Hodge. 'Fore God, a proper man, and I warrant, a fine workman. Master, farewell; dame, adieu; if such a man as he cannot find work, Hodge is not for you. Offers to go.

Eyre. Stay, my fine Hodge.

Firk. Shave, and a foreman go, dame, you must take a journey to seek a new journeyman; if Roger remove, Firk follows. If Saint Hugh's bones shall not be set a-work, I may prick mine in the walls, and go play. Fare ye well, master; good-bye, dame.

Lacy. Goeden dach, meester, ende u vro oak. [6]

Firk. Nails, [6] if I should speak after him without drinking, I should choke. And you, [6] friend Oakè, are you of the gentle craft?

Lacy. Yaw, yaw, ik bin den skomaker. [6]

Firk. Den skomaker, quoth 'a! And hark you, skomaker, have you all your tools, a good rubbing-pin, a good stopper, a good dresser, your [6] four sorts of awls, and your two bails of wax, your paring knife, your hand-and-thumb-leathers, and good Saint Hugh's bones to smooth upon your work? [6]

Lacy. Yaw, yaw; be niet voorvaerd. Ik hab all de digen voorw Mack snoevo groot and cleane?

Firk. Ha, ha! Good master, hire him; he'll make me laugh so that I shall work more in mirth than I can in earnest.

Eyre. Hear ye, friend, have ye any skill in the mystery [6] of cordwainers?

Lacy. Ik weet niet wat you seg; ich verstam you niet. [9]

1 The bones of St. Hugh were supposed to have been made into shoemaker's tools.

2 Dutchman.

3 A dish of different hashed meats. The word is sometimes used contemptuously of a versatile person, but is applied to Margery without much appropriateness.

4 Good-day, master, and your wife too.

5 Oath.

6 Yes, yes, I am a shoemaker.

7 Yes, yes; be not afraid. I have everything to make boots big and little.

8 Trade.

9 I don't know what you say; I don't understand you.

10 Yes, yes; I can do that well.

11 Slatterns.

12 O, I understand you; I must pay for half-a-dozen cans; here, boy, take this shilling, tap once freely.

13 Slang for beggar.

14 Couger-sel.

15 A field near Old Ford.
THE SHOE MAKERS' HOLIDAY

II. V.

This way with winged feet he fled from death,
Whilst the pursuing hounds, scenting his steps,
Fand out his highway to destruction.

Besides, the miller's boy told me even now, 5
He saw him take soil, 1 and he halloed him,
Affirming him to have been so embosc 2
That long he could not hold.

Warn. If it be so,
'Tis best we trace these meadows by Old Ford.

[A noise of Hunters within. Enter a Boy.]

Ham. How now, boy? Where's the deer
Speak, saw'st thou him? 11
Boy. O yea; I saw him leap through a hedge,
And then over a ditch, then at my lord mayor's Pole, over skipt me, and in he went, and and 'olla" the hunters cried, and "there, [s boy; there, boy! 19
But there he is, a' mine honesty.

Ham. Boy, Godamercy. Cousin, let's away;
I hope we shall find better sport to-day.

Exeunt.

SCENE V. 8

[Hunting within.] Enter Rose and Sybil.

Rose. Why, Sybil, wilt thou prove a forester?
Sybil. Upon some, no. Forester? Go by; no, faith, mistress. The deer came running into the barn through the orchard and over the pole; I wot well, I lookt as pale as a new cheese to see him. But whip, says Goodman Pin's close, up with his flail, and our Nick with a prong, and down he fell, and they upon him, and I upon them. By my troth, we had such sport; and in the end we ended him; his throat we cut, flay'd him, unhorn'd him, and my lord mayor shall eat of him anon, when he comes.

Horns sound within.

Rose. Hark, hark, the hunters come; y're best take heed,
They'll have a saying to you for this deed. 16

Enter Hammon, Warnet, Huntsmen, and Boy.

Ham. God save you, fair ladies.
Sybil. Ladies! O gross! 14
Warn. Came not a buck this way?
Rose. No, but two does.
Ham. And which way went they? Faith, we'll hunt at those.

Sybil. At those? Upon some, no. When, can you tell?

Warn. Upon some, ay.

Sybil. Good Lord!

Warn. Wounds! 16 Then farewell! 20
Ham. Boy, which way went he?
Boy. This way, sir, he ran.

Ham. This way he ran indeed, fair Mistress
Rose;
Our game was lately in your orchard seen.

Warn. Can you advise, which way he took his flight?

Sybil. Follow your nose; his horns will guide you right. 25

1. Cover.
2. Exhausted.
3. The garden at Old Ford.
4. Stupid.
5. An oath.
ACT III

SCENE I.

Enter LACY [as HANS], Skipper, HODGE, and FIRK.

Skip. Ick sal you wat seggen, Hans; dis skip dat come from Candy, is all vol, by God's sacrament, van sugar, civel, almonds, cambrick, and ele dingen, tosmond tosmond ding. Nempt it, Hans, nempt it vor v meester. Daer be de bils van laden. Your meester Simon Eyre sal hau good copen. Wat seggen you, Hans? 8

Firk. Wat seggen de reggen de copen, slopen — laugh, Hodge, laugh! 9

Hans. Mine liever broder Firk, bringest Meester Eyre to det signe un Swannekin; daer sal you finde dis skipper end me. Wat seggen you, broder Firk? Dot it, Hodge. 10 Come, skipper.

Firk. Bring him, quoth you? Here's no [knave, to bring my master to buy a ship worth the lading of two or three hundred thousand pounds. Alas, that's nothing; a trifle, a bauble, Hodge.

Hodge. The truth is, Firk, that the merchant owner of the ship dares not shew his head, 11 and therefore this skipper that deals for him, for the love he bears to Hans, offers my master Eyre a bargain in the commodities. He shall have a reasonable day of payment; he may sell the wares by that time, and be an huge gainer himself.

Firk. Yea, but can my fellow Hans lend my master twenty potterspents as an earnest penny?

Hodge. Portuguese, thou would'st say; here 12 they be, Firk; hark, they jingle in my pocket like St. Mary Overy's bells.

Enter EYRE and his Wife [MARGERY].

Firk. Mum, here comes my dame and my master. She'll scold, on my life, for loitering this Monday; but all's one, let them all say what they can, Monday's our holiday. 13

Marg. You sing, Sir Sauce, but I beswore your heart.
I fear for this your singing we shall smart.

Firk. Smart for me, dame; why, dame, why?
Hodge. Master, I hope you'll not suffer my dame to take down your journeys.

1 A room in Eyre's house.
2 I'll tell you what, Hans; this ship that is come from Candy, is quite full, by God's sacrament, of sugar, civel, almonds, cambrick, and all things; a thousand, thousand things. Take it, Hans, take it for your master. There are the bills of lading. Your master, Simon Eyre, shall have a good bargain. What say you, Hans?
3 My dear brother Firk, bring Master Eyre to the sign of the Swan; there shall you find the skipper and me.
What say you, brother Firk. Do it, Hodge.

Firk. If she take me down, I'll take her up?
yea, and take her down too, a button-hole lower.

Eyre. Peace, Firk; not I, Hodge; by the life of Pharaoh, by the Lord of Ludgate, by your beard, every hair whereof I value at a king's ransom, she shall not meddle with you.

Peace, you bombast-cotton-candle-queen; away, queen of clubs; quarrel not with me and my men, with me and my fine Firk; I'll firk you, if you do.

Marg. Yes, yea, man, you may use me as you please; but let that pass.

Eyre. Let it pass, let it vanish away; peace!
Am I not Simon Eyre? Are not these my brave men, brave shoemakers, all gentlemen of the gentle craft? Prince am I none, yet am I shaky born, as being the sole son of a shoemaker.
Away, rubbish! vanish, melt; melt, like kitchen-stuff.

Marg. Yea, yea, 'tis well; I must be call'd rubbish, kitchen-stuff, for a sort 4 of knaves.

Firk. Nay, dame, you shall not weep and wait in woe for me. Master, I'll stay no longer; here's an inventory of my shop-tools.
Adien, master; Hodge, farewell.

Hodge. Nay, stay, Firk; thou shalt not go alone.

Marg. I pray, let them go; there be mee maids than Mawkin, more men than Hodge, and more fools than Firk.

Firk. Fools? Nails! if I tarry now, I would my guts might be turn'd to shoe-thread.

Hodge. And if I stay, I pray God I may be turn'd to a Turk, and set in Finsbury 5 for boys to shoot at. — Come, Firk.

Eyre. Stay, my fine knaves, you arms of my trade, you pillars of my profession. What, you shall a tittle, a tattle of words make you forsake Simon Eyre? — Auvant, kitchen-stuff! Rip, you brown-bread Tannikin; out of my sight!
Move me not! Have not I ta'en you from selling tripes in Eastcheap, and set you in my shop, and made you hail-fellow with Simon Eyre, the shoemaker? And now do you deal thus 6 with my journeymen? Look, you powder-beef-quen, on the face of Hodge, here's a face of a lord.

Firk. And here's a face for any lady in Christendom.

Eyre. Rip, you chitterling, avuant! Boy, bid the tapster of the Boar's Head toll me a dozen cans of beer for my journeys.

Firk. A dozen cans? O, brave! Hodge, now
I'll stay.

Eyre. [in a low voice to the Boy.] An the [knave fills any more than two, he pays for them. [Exit Boy. Aloud.] — A dozen cans of beer for my journeys. [Re-enter Boy.] Here, you mad Mesopotamians, wash your livers 8 with this liquor. Where be the odd ten? — No more, Madge, no more. — Well said. 9 Drink and to work! — What work dost thou, Hodge?
What work?

Set.
5 Finsbury was a famous practising ground for arch ery.
6 Well done.
Hodge. I am a making a pair of shoes for my lord mayor's daughter, Mistress Rose.

Firk. And I a pair of shoes for Sybil, my lord's maid, I deal with her.

Eyre. Sybil? Fie, defile not thy fine workmanly fingers with the feet of kitchenstaff!

and basting-ladies. Ladies of the court, fine ladies, my lads, commit their feet to our appareling; put gross work to Hans. Yark and seam, yark and seam!

Firk. For yarking and seaming let me alone, and I come to 't.

Hodge. Well, master, all this is from the bias. Do you remember the ship my fellow Hans told you of? The skipper and he are both drinking at the Swan. Here be the Porta-guice to give you earnest. If you go through with it, you cannot choose but be a lord at least.

Firk. Nay, dame, if my master prove not a lord, and you a lady, hang me.

Marg. Yea, like enough, if you may loiter and tipple thus.

Firk. Tipple, dame? No, we have been bargaining with Skellum Skander-bag; can you Dutch speaken for a ship of silk Cyprus, laden with sugar-candy?

Enter Boy with a velvet coat and an Alderman's gown. EYRE puts them on.

Eyre. Peace, Firk; silence, Tittle-tattle! Hodge, I'll go through with it. Here's a seal-ring, and I have sent for a guarded gown and a damask cassock. See where it comes; look here, Maggy; help me, Firk; apparel me, Hodge; silk and satin, you mad Philistines, and silk and satin.

Firk. Ha, ha, my master will be as proud as a dog in a doublet, all in beaten damask and velvet.

Eyre. Softly, Firk, for rearing of the nap, and warding thy threadbare my garments. How dost thou like me, Firk? How do I look, my fine Hodge?

Hodge. Why, now you look like yourself, master. I warrant you, there's few in the city but will give you the wall, and come upon you with the right worshipful.

Firk. Nails, my master looks like a threadbare cloak new turn'd and drest. Lord, Lord, to see what good raiment doth! Dame, dame, are you not enameoured?

Eyre. How say'st thou, Maggy, am I not brisk? Am I not fine?

Marg. Fine? By my troth, sweetheart, very fine! By my troth, I never lik't thee so well in my life, sweetheart; but let that pass. I warrant, there be many women in the city have not such handsome husbands, but only for their apparel; but let that pass too.

---

Re-enter Hans and Skipper.

Hans. Godden day, master. Dis be de skippe that heb de skip van marchandise; de commodity ben good; nempt it, master, nempt it.

Eyre. Godamercy, Hans; welcome, skipper.

Where lies this ship of merchandise?

Skip. De skip bin in revere; dar be van sugar, civet, almonds, cambrick, and a tassow, towel tings, goz sacrum; nempt it, master: ye sal heb good copen.

Firk. To him, master! O sweet master! They may well be called butter-boxes, when they drink fat veal and thick beer too. But come, dame, I hope you'll chide us no more.

Marg. No, faith, Firk; no, perdy. I do feel honour creep upon me, and which is more, a certain rising in my flesh; but let that pass.

Firk. Rising in your flesh do you feel, say you? Ay, you may be with child, but why should not my master feel a rising in his flesh, having a gown and a gold ring on? But you are such a shrew, you'll soon pull him down.

Marg. Ha, ha! prithee, peace! Thou mak'st my worship laugh; but let that pass. Come, I'll go in; Hodge, prithee, go before me; Firk, follow me.

Firk. Firk doth follow: Hodge, pass out in state.

Scene II.

Enter the Earl of Lincoln and Dodger.

Linc. How now, good Dodger, what's the news in France?

Dodger. My lord, upon the eighteenth day of May, the French and English were prepar'd to fight; each side with eager fury gave the sign of a most hot encounter. Five long hours both armies fought together; at the length the lot of victory fell on our side.

Twelve thousand of the Frenchmen that day died, four thousand English, and no man of name. But Captain Hyam and young Arthington, two gallant gentlemen, I knew them well.

Good day, master. This is the skipper that has the ship of merchandise; the commodity is good; take it, master, take it.

The ship lies in the river; there are sugar, civet, almonds, cambrick, and a thousand thousand things. By God's sacrament, take it, master; you shall have a good bargain.

Yes, yes, I have drunk well.

Fr. Par Dieu.

London: a room in Lincoln's house.
Linc. But Dodger, prithee, tell me, in this fight
How did my cousin Lacy bear himself?
Dodger. My lord, your cousin Lacy was not there.
Linc. Not there?
Dodger. No, my good lord.
Linc. Sure, thou mistakest.
I saw him shipp’d, and a thousand eyes beside,
Were witnesses of the farewells which he gave,
When I, with weeping eyes, bid him adieu.
Dodger, take heed.
Dodger. My lord, I am advis’d.
That what I spake is true: to prove it so,
His cousin Askew, that suppli’d his place,
Sent me for him from France, that secretly
He might convey himself thither.
Linc. Is’t even so?
Dodger. I dare he so carelessly venture his life
Upon the indignation of a king?
Linc. He despis’d my love, and spurn’d those favours
Which I with prodigal hand pour’d upon his head.
He shall repent his rashness with his soul;
Since of my love he makes no estimate,
I’ll make him wish he had not known my hate.
Thou hast no other news?
Dodger. None else, my lord.
Linc. None worse I know thou hast.—Procur
To crown his giddy brows with ample honours,
Send him chief colonel, and all my hope
Thus to be dash’d! But ’tis in vain to grieve,
One evil cannot a worse relieve.
Upon my life, I have found out his plot;
That old dog, Love, that fawn’d upon him so,
Love to that puling girl, his fair-cheek’d Rose.
The lord mayor’s daughter, hath distracted him,
And in the fire of that love’s lunacy
Hath he burnt up himself, consum’d his credit,
Lost the king’s love, yea, and I fear, his life,
Only to get a wanton to his wife,
Dodger, it is so.
Linc. I fear so, my good lord.
Linc. It is so—nay, sure it cannot be!
I am at my wits’ end, Dodger!
Dodger. Yea, my lord.
Linc. Thou art acquainted with my neph ew’s haunts,
Spend this gold for thy pains; go seek him out.
Watch at my lord mayor’s—there if he live,
Dodger, thou shalt be sure to meet with him.
Prithee, be diligent.—Lacy, thy name
Liv’d once in honour, now ’tis dead in shame.—
Be circumspect.
Exit.
Dodger. I warrant you, my lord.
Exit.

SCENE III.
Enter the L. Mayor and Master Scott.
L. Mayor. Good Master Scott, I have been bold with you,
To be a witness to a wedding-knot
Betwixt young Master Hammon and my daughter.
O, stand aside; see where the lovers come.

Enter Master Hammon and Rose.
Rose. Can it be possible you love me so?
No, no, within those eyeballs I espy
Apparent likelihoods of flattery.
Pray now, let go my hand.
Ham. Sweet Mistress Rose,
Misconstrue not my words, nor misconceive
Of my affection, whose devoted soul
Swears that I love thee dearer than my heart.
Rose. As dear as your own heart? I judge it right,
Men love their hearts best when th’are out of sight.
Ham. I love you, by this hand.
Rose. Yet hands off now!
If flesh be frail, how weak and frail’s your vow!
Ham. Then by my life I swear,
Rose. Then do not brawl;
One quarrel loseth wife and life and all.
Is not your meaning thus?
Ham. In faith, you jest.
Rose. Love loves to sport; therefore leave love, y’are best.
L. Mayor. What? square they, Master Scott?
Scott. Sir, never doubt.
Lovers are quickly in, and quickly out.
Ham. Sweet Rose, be not so strange in fancying me.
Nay, never turn aside, shun not my sight:
I am not grown so fond, to fond me with your love
On any that shall quit it with disdain;
If you will love me, so;—if not, farewell.
L. Mayor. Why, how now, lovers, are you both agreed?
Ham. Yes, faith, my lord.
L. Mayor. ’Ts well, give me your hand,
Give me yours, daughter.—How now, both pull back!
What means this, girl?
Rose. I mean to live a maid.
Ham. (Aside.) But not to die one; pause, ere that be said.
L. Mayor. Will you still cross me, still be obstinate?
Ham. Nay, chide her not, my lord, for doing well;
If she can live an happy virgin’s life,
’Tis far more blessed than to be a wife.
Rose. Say, sir, I cannot: I have made a vow,
Whosoever be my husband, ’tis not you.
L. Mayor. Your tongue is quick; but Master Hammon, know,
I bade you welcome to another end.
Ham. What, would you have me pule and pine and pray,
With ‘lovely lady,’; “mistress of my heart,”
“Pardon your servant,” and the rhymers play,
Railing on Cupid and his tyrant’s-dart;
Or shall I undertake some martial spoil,

1 Certainly informed.
2 London: a room in the Lord Mayor’s house.
Wearing your glove at tourney and at tilt,
And tell how many gallants I unbore'd—
Sweet, will this pleasure you?
Rose. Yea, when wilt begin?
What, love rhymes, man? Fie on that deadly sin!
L. Mayor. If you will have her, I'll make her agree.

Ham. Enforced love is worse than hate to me.
[Aside.] There's a wench keeps shop in the Old Change.
To her will I— it is not wealth I seek.
I have enough—and will prefer her love
Before the world. —[Aloud.] My good lord mayor, adieu, Old love for me, I have no luck with new.

Exit. L. Mayor. Now, mammet, you have well behav'd yourself,
But you shall curse your coyness if I live. —
Who's within there? See you convey your mistress Straight to th' Old Ford! I'll keep you straight enough, Fore God, I would have sworn the puling girl
Would willingly accepted Hammon's love; 61
But banish him, my thoughts!— Go, minion, in!
Exit Rose.

Now tell me, Master Scott, would you have thought
That Master Simon Eyre, the shoemaker,
Had been of wealth to buy such merchandise?
Scott. 'Twas well, my lord, your honour and myself
Grew partners with him; for your bills of lading
Shew that Eyre's gains in one commodity
Rise at the least to full three thousand pound
Besides like gain in other merchandise. 70
L. Mayor. Well, he shall spend some of his thousands now,
For I have sent for him to the Guildhall.

Enter Eyre.

See, where he comes. — Good morrow, Master Eyre.

L. Mayor. Well, well, it likes 2 yourself to term you so.

Enter Dodger.

Now Master Dodger, what's the news with you?

Dodger. I'd gladly speak in private to your honour.
L. Mayor. You shall, you shall. — Master Eyre and Master Scott, I have some business with this gentleman; I pray, let me entreat you to walk before To the Guildhall; I'll follow presently.
Master Eyre, I hope ere noon to call you sheriff.
Eyre. I would not care, my lord, if you might call me King of Spain. — Come, Master Scott.

L. Mayor. Now, Master Dodger, what's the news you bring?

Dodger. The Earl of Lincoln by me greets your lordship,
And earnestly requests you, if you can,
Inform him where his nephew Lacy keeps.

L. Mayor. Is not his nephew Lacy now in France?

Dodger. No, I assure your Lordship, but dis

Lurks here in London.

L. Mayor. London? Is't even so?
It may be; but upon my faith and soul,
I know not where he lives, or whether he lives:
So tell my Lord of Lincoln. — Lurk in London?
Well, Master Dodger, you perhaps may start him;

Be but the means to rid him into France,
I'll give you a dozen angels 3 for your pains:
So much I love his honour, hate his nephew.
And, prithee, so inform thy lord from me;
Dodger. I take my leave. — Exit Dodger.

L. Mayor. Farewell, good Master Dodger.

Lacy in London? I dare pawn my life,
My daughter knows thereof, and for that cause
Deni'd young Master Hammon in his love.
Well, I am glad I sent her to Old Ford.
Gods Lord, 't is late! to Guildhall I must; he;
I know my brethren stay 4 my company.

Scene IV.

Enter Firk, Eyre's wife [Margery, Lacy as] Hans, and Roger.

Marg. Thou goest too fast for me, Roger. O, Firk. Ay, forsooth.

Marg. I pray thee, run — do you hear? — run to Guildhall, and learn if my husband, Master Eyre, will take that worshipful vocation of Master Sheriff upon him. Hie thee, good Firk.

[Enter Eyre and Scott.]

Firk. Take it? Well, I go; an he should not take it, Firk swears to forswear him. Yes, forsooth, I go to Guildhall.

Firk. O rare, your excellence is full of eloquence; how like a new cart-wheel my dame speaks, and she looks like an old musty ale- 15 bottle 6 going to scalding.

Marg. Nay, when? Thou wilt make me melancholy.

Firk. God forbid your worship should fall into that humour; — I run. — Exit. 20

Marg. Let me see now, Roger and Hans.

Hodge. Ay, forsooth, dame — mistress, I should say, but the old term so sticks to the roof of my mouth, I can hardly lye it off.

Marg. Even what thou wilt, good Roger; 25 dame is a faire name for any honest Christian; but let that pass. How dost thou, Hans? 1
Hans. Mee tanck thee, vro.

Marg. Well, Hans and Roger, you see, God hath blest your master, and, perdy, if ever [ever]

3 Come worth about 10s. each. 4 Wait for.
London: a room in Eyre's house. 6 Ale-kegs made of wood. 7 I thank you, mistress!
he comes to be Master Sheriff of London— as we are all mortal—you shall see, I will have some odd thing or other in a corner for your: I will not be your back-friend; but let that pass. Hans, pray thee, tie my shoe.

Hans. Yaw, ic sal, vro.

Mary. Roger, thou know'st the length of my foot; as it is none of the biggest, so I thank God, it is handsome enough; prithee, let me have a pair of shoes made, cork, good Roger, [wooden heel too.

Hodge. You shall.

Hodge. [Aside.] As a cat out of a pillory.—Very well, I warrant you, mistress.

Mary. Indeed, all flesh is grass; and, [Roger, canst thou tell where I may buy a good hand?

Hodge. Yes, forsooth, at the poulterer's in Gracious Street.

Mary. Thou art an ungracious wag: perdy, [I mean a false hair for my periwig.

Hodge. Why, mistress, the next time I eat my beard, you shall have the shavings of it; but they are all true hairs.

Mary. It is very hot, I must get me a fan or else a mask.

Hodge. [Aside.] So you had need, to hide your wicked face.

Mary. Fie, upon it, how costly this world's calling is; perdy, but that it is one of the won-derful works of God, I would not deal with it.

—Is not Firk come yet? Hans, be not so sad, let it pass and vanish, as my husband's worship says.

Hans. Ick bin vrolicke, lot see you soo.

Hodge. Mistress, will you drink a pipe of tobacco?

Mary. Oh, fie upon it, Roger, perdy! These filthy tobacco-pipes are the most idle slavering babbles that ever I felt. Out upon it! God bless us, men look not like men that use them.

Enter Ralph, being lame.

Mary. Perdy, I knew him not. How dost thou, good Ralph? I am glad to see thee well.

Ralph. I would to God you saw me, dame, as well when as I went from London into France.

Mary. Trust me, I am sorry, Ralph, to see thee impotent. Lord, how the wars have made him sunburnt! The left leg is not well; 'twas a fair gift of God the infancy took not hold a little higher, considering thou camest from France; but let that pass.

Ralph. I am glad to see you well, and I rejoice To hear that God hath blest my master so Since my departure.

Mary. Yea, truly, Ralph, I thank my [Maker; but let that pass.

Hodge. And, sirrah Ralph, what news, what news in France?

Ralph. Tell me, good Roger, first, what news in England?

How does my Jane? When didst thou see my wife? Where lives my poor heart? She'll be poor indeed, Now I want limbs to get whereon to feed.

Hodge. Limbs? Hast thou not hands, man? Thou shalt never see a shoemaker want bread, though he have but three fingers on a hand.

Ralph. Yet all this while I hear not of my Jane.

Mary. O Ralph, your wife,— perdy, we know not what's become of her. She was here a while, and because she was married, grew more stately than became her; I check'd her, and [so forth; away she flung, never returned, nor said bye nor bah; and, Ralph, you know, 'ka ma, ke thee.' And, so as I tell ye —— Roger, is not Firk come yet?

Hodge. No, forsooth.

Mary. And so, indeed, we heard not of her, but I hear she lives in London; but let that pass. If she had wanted, she might have opened her case to me or my husband, or to any of my men; I am sure, there's not any of them, [perdy, but would have done her good to his power. Hans, look if Firk be come.

Hans. Yaw, ic sal, vro. Exit HANS.

Mary. And so, as I said—but, Ralph, why dost thou weep? Thou knowest that naked [we came out of our mother's womb, and naked we must return; and, therefore, thank God for all things.

Hodge. No, faith, Jane is a stranger here; but, Ralph, pull up a good heart, I know thou [be hast one. Thy wife, man, is in London; one told me, he saw her a while ago very brave and neat; we'll ferret her out, an London hold her.

Mary. Alas, poor soul, he's overcome [with sorrow; he does but as I do, weep for the loss of any good thing. But, Ralph, get thee in, call for some mead and drink, thou shalt find me worshipful towards thee.

Ralph. I thank you, dame; since I want limbs and lands,

I'll trust to God, my good friends, and my hands. Exit.

Enter HANS and Firk running.

Firk. Run, good Hans! O Hodge, O mistress! Hodge, heave up thine ears; mistress, smug up your looks; on with your best apparel; my master is chosen, my master is called, nay, [condemn'd by the cry of the country to be sheriff of the city for this famous year now to 1 Faithless friend.

2 Yet, I shall, mistress!
3 I am merry; let's see you so!
4 Smoke.
5 Brave.
6 Scratch me, and I'll scratch thee.
7 Fine.
8 Ye, I shall, dame.
9 Brighten up.
come. And, time now being, a great many men in black gowns were askt for their voices and their hands, and my master had all their [100] bits about his ears presently, and they cried ‘Ay, ay, ay, ay,’ — and so I came away —

Wherefore without all other grieve
I do salute you, Mistress Shrieve.3

Hans. Yaw, my master is de great man, de [105] shrieve.

Hodge. Did not I tell you, mistress? Now I may boldly say: Good-morrow to your worship.

Mary. Good-morrow, good Roger. I thank [110] you, my good people all. — Firk, hold up thy hand: here’s a three-penny piece for thy tidings.

Firk. ’Tis but three-half-pence, I think. Yes, ’tis three-pence, I smell the rose.3

Hodge. But, mistress, be rul’d by me, and do not speak so pulingly.

Firk. ’Tis her worship speaks so, and not she. No faith, mistress, speak me in the old key: ‘To it, Firk;’ ‘there, good Firk;’ ‘‘ply your business, Hodge;’ ‘Hodge, with a full mouth;’ ‘I’ll fill your bellies with good cheer, till they cry tang.’

Enter Eyre wearing a gold chain.

Hans. See, my liever broder, heer compt my meester.3

Mary. Welcome home, Master Shrieve; I pray God continue you in health and wealth.

Eyre. See here, my Maggy, a chain, a gold chain for Simon Eyre. I shall make thee a lady; here’s a French hood for thee; on with it, with it! I dress thy brows with this flap of a shoulder of mutton,4 to make thee look lovely. Where be my fine men? Roger, I’ll make over my shop and tools to thee; Firk, thou shalt be the foreman; Hans, thou shalt have [119] an hundred for twenty.6 Be as mad knaves as your master Sim Eyre hath been, and you shall live to be sheriffs of London. — How dost thou like me, Margery? Prince am I none, yet [120] am I princely born. Firk, Hodge, and Hans! All Three. Ay, forsooth, what says your worship, Master Shrieve?

Eyre. Worship and honour, ye Babylonian knaves, for the gentle craft. But I forgot myself, I am bidden by my lord mayor to din- [125] ner to Old Ford; he’s gone before, I must after. Come, Madge, on with your trinkets! Now, my true Trojans, my fine Firk, my dapper Hodge, my honest Hans, some device, some odd crachets, some morris, or such like, for the [120] honour of the gentlemen shoemakers. Meet me at Old Ford, you know my mind. Come, Madge, away. Shut up the shop, knaves, and make holiday.

Exeunt.

Firk. O rare! O brave! Come, Hodge; follow me, Hans; [126]
We’ll be with them for a morris-dance.

Exeunt.

SCENE V.6

Enter the LORD MAYOR, [Rose.] EYRE, his wife [MARGERY] in a French hood, ESXIL, and other Servants.

L. Mayor. Trust me, you are as welcome to Old Ford
As I myself.

Mary. Truly, I thank your lordship.

L. Mayor. Would our bad cheer were worth the thanks you give.

Eyre. Good cheer, my lord mayor, fine cheer!
A fine house, fine walls, all fine and neat.

L. Mayor. Now, by my troth, I’ll tell thee,
Master Eyre,
It does me good, and all my brethren,
That such a madcap fellow as thyself
Is ent’red into our society.

Mary. Ay, but, my lord, he must learn now to put on gravity.

Eyre. Peace, Maggy, a fig for gravity! When I go to Guildhall in my scarlet gown, I’ll look as demurely as a saint, and speak as gravely as a justice of peace; but now I am here at Old Ford, at my good lord mayor’s house, let it [13] go by, vanish, Maggy, I’ll be merry; away with flip-flap, these fooleries, these gulleries. What, honey? Prince am I none, yet am I princely born. What says my lord mayor?

L. Mayor. Ha, ha, ha! I had rather than [20] a thousand pound, I had an heart but half so light as yours.

Eyre. Why, what should I do, my lord? A pound of care pays not a dram of debt. Hem, let’s be merry, whilst we are young; old age, [22] sack and sugar will steal upon us, ere we be aware.

The First Three Men’s Song?

O the month of May, the merry month of May,
So frolick, so gay, and so green, so green, so green! [50]
O, and then did I unto my true love say:

‘Sweet Peg, thou shalt be my summer’s queen!’

Now the nightingale, the pretty nightingale,
The sweetest singer in all the forest’s choir,
Entreats thee, sweet Peggy, to hear thy true love’s tale;
Lo, yonder she sitteth, her breast against a brier. [35]

‘But O, I spy the cuckoo, the cuckoo, the cuckoo;
See where she sitteth: come away, my joy; Come away, I prithee: do not like the cuckoo
Should sing where my Peggy and I kiss and toy.’

O the month of May, the merry month of May,
So frolick, so gay, and so green, so green, so green! [40]
And then did I unto my true love say:

‘Sweet Peg, thou shalt be my summer’s queen!’

L. Mayor. It’s well done. Mistress Eyre, pray, give good counsel
To my daughter.

6 A room at Old Ford.

7 A catch for three voices. It is by no means certain at what point in the play the songs were introduced.
Marg. I hope, Mistress Rose will have the grace to take nothing that's bad.

L. Mayor. Pray God she do; for I, faith, Mistress Eyre,

I would bestow upon that peevish girl

A thousand marks more than I mean to give her

Upon condition she'd be ruled by me. 60

The ape still crosseth me. There came of late

A proper gentleman of fair revenues,

Whom gladly I would call son-in-law:

But my fine cockney would have none of him.

You'll prove a coxcomb for it, you are die: 56

A courtier, or no man, must please your eye.

Eyre. Be ruled, sweet Rose: th'art ripe for a man. Marry not with a boy that has no more hair on his face than thou hast on thy [50] cheeks. A courtier, wash, go by, stand not upon fishery-pashery: those silken fellows are but painted images, outsides, outsides, Rose; their inner linings are torn. No, my fair mouse, marry me with a gentleman grocer like my lord [50]

mayor, your father; a grocer is a sweet trade:

plums, plums. Had I a son or daughter should marry out of the generation and blood of the shoemakers, he should pack. What, the gentle trade is a living for a man through Europe, through the world.

A noise within of a tabor and a pipe.

L. Mayor. What noise is this?

Eyre. O my lord mayor, a crew of good fel-lovers that for love to your honour are come hither with a morris-dance. Come in, my Mesopotamians, cheerily.

Enter Hodge, Hans, Ralph, Firk, and other

Shoemakers, in a morris; after a little dancing, the Lord Mayor speaks.

L. Mayor. Master Eyre, are all these shoe-makers?

Eyre. All cordwainers, my good lord mayor.

Rose. [Aside.] How like my Lacy looks yond shoemaker!

Hans. [Aside.] O that I durst but speak unto my love.

L. Mayor. Sybil, go fetch some wine to make these drink. You are all welcome.

All. We thank your lordship.

Rose takes a cup of wine and goes to Hans.

Rose. For his sake whose fair shape thou represent'st.

Good friend I drink to thee.

Hans. Is bedance, good frister. 1

Marg. I see, Mistress Rose, you do not want judgment; you have drunk to the proper-est man I keep.

Firk. Here be some have done their parts to be as proper as he.

L. Mayor. Well, urgent business calls me back to London.

Good fellows, first go in and taste our cheer;

And to make merry as you homework go,

Spend these two angels in beer at Stratford-

Bow.

Eyre. To these two, my mad lads, Sim Eyre adds another; then cheerily, Firk; tickle

it, Hans, and all for the honour of shoemakers.

All go dancing out.

L. Mayor. Come, Master Eyre, let's have your company.

Rose. Sybil, what shall I do?

Sybil. Why, what's the matter?

Rose. That Hans the shoemaker is my love

Lacy,

Disguis'd in that attire to find me out.

How should I find the means to speak with

him?

Sybil. What, mistress, never fear; I dare venture my maidenhead to nothing, and that's great odds, that Hans the Dutchman, when we come to London, shall not only see and speak with you, but in spite of all your father's policies steal you away and marry you. Will not this please you?

Rose. Do this, and ever be assured of my love.

Sybil. Away, then, and follow your father to London, lest your absence cause him to suspect

something:

'Tmorrow, if my counsel be obey'd,

I'll budge you prentice to the gentle trade.

[Exeunt.]

ACT IV

SCENE I. 2

JANE in a Seamster's shop, working; enter Master HARMON, muffled: he stands aloof.

Ham. You're the shop, and there my fair love sits.

She's fair and lovely, but she is not mine.

O, would she were! Thrice have I courted her,

Thrice hath my hand been moist'ned with her

hand,

Whilst my poor famished eyes do feed on that

Which made them famish. I am unfortunate:

I still love one, yet nobody loves me.

I muse in other men what women see

That I so want! Fine Mistress Rose was coy,

And this too curious! Oh, no, she is chaste, 10

And for she thinks me wanton, she denies

To cheer my cold heart with her sunny eyes.

How prettily she works! Oh pretty hand!

Oh happy work! It doth me good to stand

Unseen to see her. Thus I oft have stood

In frosty evenings, a light burning by her,

Enduring biting cold, only to eye her.

One only look hath seem'd so rich to me

As a king's crown; such is love's lunacy.

Muffled I'll pass along, and by that try

Whether she knows me.

Jane. Sir, what is 't you buy?

What is 't you lack, sir, calico, or lawn,

Fine cambric shirts, or bands, what will you buy?

Ham. [Aside.] That which thou wilt not sell.

Faith, yet I'll try:

How do you sell this handkerchief?

Jane. Good cheap. 12

1 I thank you, good maid!

2 A street in London.

3 Fastidious.
Ham. And how these ruffs?
Jane. Cheap too.
Ham. And how this band?
Jane. Cheap too. [hand?]
Ham. All cheap; how sell you this then Jane. My hands are not to be sold.
Ham. To be given them!

Nay, faith, I come to buy.
Jane. But none knows when.
Ham. Good sweet, leave work a little while;
let's play.
Jane. I cannot live by keeping holiday.
Ham. I'll pay you for the time which shall be lost.
Jane. With me you shall not be at so much cost.
Ham. Look, how you wound this cloth, so you wound me.
Jane. It may be so.
Ham. 'Tis so.
Jane. What remedy?
Ham. Nay, faith, you are too coy.
Jane. Let go my hand.
Ham. I will do any task at your command,
I would let go this beauty, were I not in mind to disobey you by a power
That controls kings: I love you!
Jane. So, now part.
Ham. With hands I may, but never with my heart.
In faith, I love you.
Jane. I believe you do.
Ham. Shall a true love in me breed hate in
you?
Jane. I hate you not.
Ham. Then you must love?
Jane. I do.

What are you better now? I love not you.
Ham. All this, I hope, is but a woman's fray,
That means, ''Come to me,'' when she cries,
''Away!''

In earnest, mistress, I do not jest,
A true chaste love hath ent'red in my breast.
I love you dearly, as I love my life;
I love you as a husband loves a wife;
That, and no other love, my love requires.
Thy wealth, I know, is little; my desires Thirst not for gold. Sweet, beanteous Jane, what's mine

Shall, if thou make myself thine, all be thine?
Say, judge, what is thy sentence, life or death?
Mercy or cruelty lies in thy breath.
Jane. Good sir, I do believe you love me
well;
For 'tis a silly conquest, silly pride
For one like you— I mean a gentleman—
To boast that by his love-tricks he hath brought Such and such women to his amorous lure;
I think you do not so, yet many do,
And make it even a trade too woo.
I could be coy, as many women be,
Feed you with sunshine smiles and wanton
looks,
But I detest witchcraft; say that I.
Do constantly believe, you constant have—
Ham. Why dost thou not believe me?
Jane. I believe you;
Come, dry these wet cheeks; tell me, faith, sweet Jane,
Yea or no, once more.
Jane. Once more I say no;
Once more be gone, I pray; else will I go.

Ham. Nay, then I will grow rude, by this white hand,
Until you change that cold "no"; here I'll stand

Till by your hard heart —
Jane. Nay, for God's love, peace!
My sorrows by your presence more increase.
Not that you thus are present, but all grief
Desires to be alone; therefore in brief
Thus much I say, and saying bid adieu:
If ever I wed man, it shall be you.

Ham. Blessed voice! Dear Jane, I'll urge no more,
Thy breath hath made me rich.

Jane. Death makes me poor.

Exeunt.

SCENE II. 1

Hodge, at his shop-board, Ralph, Firk, Hans, and a Boy at work.

All. Hey, down a down, down derry.

Hodge. Well said, my hearts; pay thy work to-day, we loitered yesterday; to it pell-mell, that we may live to be lord mayors, or aldermen at least.

Firk. Hey, down a down, derry.

Hodge. Well said, i' faith! How sayst thou, Hans, doth not Firk tickle it?

Hans. Yaw, mester.

Firk. Not so neither, my organ-pipe squeaks this morning for want of liquorings.

Hey, down a down, derry!

Hans. Forward, Firk, tov best un jolly youngster. Hort, I, mester, ic bid yo, cut me un pair vampires vor Mister Jeffre's boots.2

Hodge. Thou shalt, Hans.

Firk. Master!

Hodge. How now, boy?

Firk. Pray, now you are in the cutting vein, cut me out a pair of counterfeit,3 or else my work will not pass current; hey, down a down!

Hodge. Tell me, sirrs, are my cousin Mrs. Priscilla's shoes done?

Firk. Your cousin? No, master; one of your aunts, hang her, let them alone.

Ralph. I am in hand with them; she gave charge that none but I should do them for her.

Firk. Thou do for her? Then 't will be a lame doing, and that she loves not. Ralph, thou might'st have sent her to me, in faith, I would have yarked and firked your Priscilla. Hey, down a down, derry. This gear will not hold.

Hodge. How sayst thou, Firk, were we not merry at Old Ford?

Firk. How, merry! Why, our buttocks went jiggly-jiggly like a quagmire. Well, Sir Roger Oatmeal, if I thought all meal of that nature, I would eat nothing but bagpuddings.

Ralph. Of all good fortunes my fellow Hans had the best.

Firk. 'Tis true, because Mistress Rose drank him.

Hodge. Well, well, work space. They say, seven of the aldermen be dead, or very sick.

Firk. I care not, I'll be none.

Ralph. No, nor I; but then my Master Eyre will come quickly to be lord mayor.

Enter Sybil.

Firk. Whoop, yonder comes Sybil.

Hodge. Sybil, welcome, i' faith; and how dost thou, mad wench?

Ralph. Sir, whosethome, welcome to London.

Sybil. Godamery, sweet Firk; good lord.

Hodge, what a delicious shop you have got! You tickle it, i' faith.

Ralph. Godamery, Sybil, for our good cheer at Old Ford.

Sybil. That you shall have, Ralph.

Firk. Nay, by the mass, we had tickling cheer, Sybil; and how the plague dost thou and Mistress Rose and my lord mayor? I put the women in first.

Sybil. Well, Godamery; but God's me, I forget myself, where's Hans the Fleming?

Firk. Hark, butter-box, now you must yelp out some sproken.

Hans. Wat begaze you? Wat vod you, Frister? 4

Sybil. Marry, you must come to my young mistress, to pull on her shoes you made last.

Hans. Vare ben your egie fre, ware ben your mistres? 5

Sybil. Marry, here at our London house in Cornhill.

Hodge. Why then, Sybil, take heed of pickling.

Sybil. For that let me alone. I have a trick in my budget. Come, Hans.

Hans. Yaw, yaw, iz sall meete yo gane. 6

Exit Hans and Sybil.

Hodge. Go, Hans, make haste again. Come, who lacks work?

Firk. I, master, for I lack my breakfast; 'tis munching-time, and past.

Hodge. Is't so? Why, then leave work, Ralph. To breakfast! Boy, look to the tools. Come, Ralph; come, Firk.

Exeunt.

SCENE III.

Enter a Serving-man.

Serv. Let me see now, the sign of the Last in Tower Street. Mass, yonder's the house. What, haw! Who's within?

1 London: a street before Hodge's shop.
2 Forward, Firk, thou art a jolly youngster. Hark, at a tender, I pray you cut me a pair of vamps for Mister Jeffrey's boots. Vamps are the upper leather of a shoe.
3 Counterfeits sometimes mean vamps.
4 What do you want, what would you, girl!
5 Where is your noble lady, where is your mistress?
6 Yes, yes, I shall go with you.
7 The same.
Enter Ralph.

Ralph. Who calls there? What want you, sir?

Serv. Marry, I would have a pair of shoes made for a gentlewoman against to-morrow morning. What, can you do them?

Ralph. Yes, sir; you shall have them. But what length's her foot?

Serv. Why you must make them in all parts like this shoe; but, at any hand, fail not to do them, for the gentlewoman is to be married very early in the morning.

Ralph. How? by this shoe must it be made? by this? Are you sure, sir, by this?

Serv. How, by this? Am I sure, by this? Art thou in thy wits? I tell thee, I must have a pair of shoes dost thou mark me? A pair of shoes, two shoes, made by this very shoe, this same shoe, against to-morrow morning by four o'clock. Dost understand me? Canst thou do't?

Ralph. Yes, sir, yes—1—1—I can do't. By this shoe, you say? I should say this? Yes, sir, yes, by this shoe, I can do't. Four o'clock, well. Whither shall I bring them?

Serv. To the sign of the Golden Ball in Watling Street; enquire for one Master Hammon, a gentleman, my master.

Ralph. Yes, sir; by this shoe, you say?

Serv. I say, Master Hammon at the Golden Ball; he's the bridegroom, and those shoes are for his bride.

Ralph. They shall be done by this shoe. Well, well, Master Hammon at the Golden Shoe—I would say, the Golden Ball; very well, very well. But I pray you, sir, where must Master Hammon be married?

Serv. At Saint Faith's Church, under Paul's. But what's that to thee? Frithee, dispatch those shoes, and so farewell.

Ralph. By this shoe, said he. How am I amaz'd

At this strange accident! Upon my life, this was the very shoe I gave my wife, When I was prest for France; since when, alas!

I never could hear of her. It is the same, And Hammon's bride no other but my Jane.

Enter Firk.

Firk. 'Snails,' Ralph, thou hast lost thy part of three pots, a countryman of mine gave me to breakfast.

Ralph. I care not; I have found a better thing.

Firk. A thing? Away! Is it a man's thing, or a woman's thing?

Ralph. Firk, dost thou know this shoe?

Firk. No, by my troth; neither doth that know me! I have no acquaintance with it, 'tis a mere stranger to me.

Ralph. Why, then I do; this shoe, I must be sworn,

Once covered the instep of my Jane.

This is her size, her breadth, thus trod my love;

These true-love knots I pricket. I hold my life,
By this old shoe I shall find out my wife.

Firk. Ha, ha! Old shoe, that wert new! How a murrain came this age-fitt of foolishness upon thee?

Ralph. Thus, Firk: even now here came a serving-man,
By this shoe would he have a new pair made Against to-morrow morning for his mistress, That's to be married to a gentleman.

And why may not this be my sweet Jane?

Firk. And why may'st not thou be my sweet ass?

Ha, ha!

Ralph. Well, laugh and spare not! But the truth is this:
Against to-morrow morning I'll provide

A lusty crew of honest shoemakers,
To watch the going of the bride to church.
If she prove Jane, I'll take her in despite From Hammon and the devil, were he by.

If it be not my Jane, what remedy?

Hereof I am sure, I shall live till I die,

Although I never with a woman lie.

Exit.

Firk. Thou liest with a woman to build nothing but Cripplegate! Well, God sends fools fortune, and it may be, he may light upon his matrimony by such a device; for wedding and hanging goes by destiny.

Exit.

Scene IV. 2

Enter [Lacy as] Hans and Rose, arm in arm.

Hans. How happy am I by embracing thee! Oh, I did fear such cross mishaps did reign That I should never see my Rose again.

Rose. Sweet Lacy, since fair opportunity Offers herself to further our escape, Let not too over-fond esteem of me Hinder that happy hour. Invent the means, And Rose will follow thee through all the world.

Hans. Oh, how I surfeit with excess of joy, Made happy by thy rich perfection! But since thou pay'st sweet interest to my hopes, Redoubbling love on love, let me once more Like to a bold-faced debtor crave of thee This night to steal abroad, and at Eyre's house, Who now by death of certain aldermen Is mayor of London, and my master once, Meet thou thy Lacy, where in spite of change, Your father's anger, and mine uncle's hate, Our happy nuptials will we consummate.

Enter Sybil.

Sybil. Oh God, what will you do, mistress? Shift for yourself, your father is at hand! He's coming, he's coming! Master Lacy, hide yourself in my mistress! For God's sake, shift for yourselves!

Hans. Your father come! Sweet Rose, what shall I do?

Where shall I hide me? How shall I escape? Rose. A man, and want wit in extremity?

1 A corruption of "God's nails."

2 London: a room in the Lord Mayor's house.
Enter the LORD MAYOR.

Hans. Mass, and that 's well rememb'red.
Sybil. Here comes your father.
Hans. [aside] Your father's presence pincheth, not the shoe.
Rose. Oh God, it pincheth me; what will you do?
Hans. [aside] Your father's presence pincheth, not the shoe.
Lord Mayor. Well done; fit my daughter well, and she shall please thee well.
Hans. Yaw, yawn, ick well dat well; for ware, 'tis un good sko, 'tis ginnail van neitz leither: se ever, mine here.

Enter a Prentice.

L. Mayor. I do believe it. — What's the news with you?
Prentice. Please you, the Earl of Lincoln at the gate
Is newly lighted, and would speak with you.
L. Mayor. The Earl of Lincoln come to speak with me?
Well, well, I know his errand. Daughter Rose, Send hence your shoemaker, dispatch, have done!
Syb, make things handsome! Sir boy, follow me.
Hans. Mine uncle come! Oh, what may this portend?
Sweet Rose, this of our love threatens an end.
Rose. Be not dismay'd at this; whate'er befall,
Rose is thine own. To witness I speak truth,
Where thou appoint'st the place, I'll meet with thee.
I will not fix a day to follow thee,
But presently steal hence. Do not reply:
Love which gave strength to bear my father's hate,
Shall now add wings to further our escape.

Exeunt.

Scene V.

Enter the LORD MAYOR and the EARL OF LINCOLN.

L. Mayor. Believe me, on my credit, I speak truth:
Since first your nephew Lacy went to France,
I have not seen him. It seem'd strange to me,
When Dodger told me that he stay'd behind,
Neglecting the high charge the king imposed.
Lincoln. Trust me, Sir Roger Oateley, I did think
Your counsel had given head to this attempt,
Drawn to it by the love he bears your child.
Here I did hope to find him in your house;
But now I see mine error, and confess,
My judgment wrong'd you by conceiving so.
1. Indeed, mistress, 'tis a good shoe, it shall fit well, or you shall not pay.
2. Yes, yes, I know that well; indeed, 'tis a good shoe, it is made of neat's leather; see here, good sir!
3. At once.
4. Another room in the same house.

L. Mayor. Lodge in my house, say you?
Trust me, my lord,
I love your nephew Lacy too dearly,
Too much to wrong his honour; and he hath done so,
That first gave him advice to stay from France.
To witness I speak truth, I let you know
How careful I have been to keep my daughter
Free from all conference or speech of him;
Not that I scorn your nephew, but in love
I bear your honour, lest your noble blood
Should by my mean worth be dishonoured.
Lincoln. [aside] How far the churl's tongue wanders from his heart!—
Well, well, Sir Roger Oateley, I believe you,
With more than many thanks for the kind love
So much you seem to bear me. But, my lord,
Let me request your help to seek my nephew,
Whom if I find, I'll straight embark for France.
So shall your Rose be free, my thoughts at rest,
And much care die which now lies in my breast.

Enter SYBIL.

Sybil. Oh Lord! Help, for God's sake!
My mistress; oh, my young mistress!
L. Mayor. Where is thy mistress? What's become of her?
Sybil. She's gone, she's fled!
L. Mayor. Gone! Whither is she fled?
Sybil. I know not, forsooth; she's fled out of doors with Hans the shoemaker; I saw them scud, scud, scud, apace, apace!
L. Mayor. Which way? What, John! Where be my men? Which way?
Sybil. I know not, an it please your worship.
L. Mayor. Fled with a shoemaker? Can this be true?
Sybil. Oh Lord, sir, as true as God's in Heaven.
Lincoln. Her love turn'd shoemaker? I am glad of this.
L. Mayor. A Fleming butter-box, a shoemaker!
Will she forget her birth, requite my care
With much ingratitude? Scorn'd she young Hammon
To love a hominik, a needy knave?
Well, let her fly, I'll not fly after her,
Let her starve, if she will: she's none of mine.
Lincoln. Be not so cruel, sir.

Enter Firk with shoes.

Sybil. I am glad, she's scapt.
L. Mayor. I'll not account of her as of my child.
Was there no better object for her eyes,
But a foul drunken lubber, swill-belly,
A shoemaker? That's brave!
Firk. Yea, forsooth; 'tis a very brave shoe,
And as fit as a pudding.
L. Mayor. How now, what knave is this?
Firk. Knave, sir. I am Firk the shoe-[maker, lusty Roger's chief lusty journeyman,
And I have come hither to take up the pretty
THE SHOEMAKERS' HOLIDAY

I. V.

They are angel; I ten sheets? worship safed shoemaker, the leg I Roger, But I to IV. 1 have L. Lincoln. cry have L. Firk. L. Lincoln. [Aside.] Firk. Lincoln. Firk. Lincoln. Lincoln. Firk. Lincoln. Lincoln. Firk. Lincoln. Lincoln. Firk. Lincoln. Pointing to Sybil. Lincoln. He means not, sir, to woo you to his maid, But only doth demand whose man you are. Firk. I sing now to the tune of Rogero. Roger, my fellow, is now my master. Lincoln. Sirrah, knowst thou one Hans, a shoemaker? Firk. Hans, shoemaker? Oh yes, stay, yes, I have him. I tell you what I speak it in secret: Mistress Rose and he are by this time — no, not so, but shortly are to come over one another with "Can you dance the shaking of the [as sheets?]" It is that Hans — [Aside.] I'll so gull! these diggers! 2

L. Mayor. Knowst thou, then, where he is? Firk. Yes, forsooth; yea, marry! Lincoln. Canst thou, in sadness — Firk. No, forsooth, no, marry! L. Mayor. Tell me, good honest fellow, where he is.

And thou shalt see what I 'll bestow on thee. Firk. Honest fellow? No, sir; not so, sir; my profession is the gentle craft; I care not [194] for seeing, I love feeling; let me feel it here; aurium tenuis, ten pieces of gold; genuum tenuis, ten pieces of silver; and then Firk is your man — [Aside.] in a new pair of stretchers. 4

L. Mayor. Here is an angel, part of thy reward.

Which I will give thee; tell me where he is.

Firk. No point. Shall I betray my brother? No! Shall I prove Judas to Hans? No! I shall cry treason to my corporation? No, I shall be firk and yerk then. But give me your [194] angel; your angel shall tell you.

Lincoln. Do so, good fellow; 'tis no hurt to thee.

Firk. Send simpering Syb away.

L. Mayor. Huswife, get you in.

Exit Sybil.

Firk. Pitchers have ears, and maides have wide mouths; but for Hans Prauns, upon my word, to-morrow morning he and young Mistress Rose go to this gear, they shall be married together, by this rush, or else turn Firk to a firkin of butter, to tan leather withal. 2

L. Mayor. But art thou sure of this?

Firk. Am I sure that Paul's steeple is a handfull higher than London Stone, 4 or that the Pissing-Conduit leaketh nothing but pure [194] Mother Bunch? Am I sure I am lusty Firk? God's nails, do you think I am so base to gull you?

Lincoln. Where are they married? Dost thou know the church?

Firk. I never go to church, but I know the name of it; it is a swearing church — stay a while, 'tis — ay, by the mass, no, no, — 'tis — ay, by my troth, no, nor that; 'tis — ay, by my faith, that, that, 'tis, ay, by my Father's Church under Paul's Cross. There they shall [194] be knit like a pair of stockings in marriage; there they 'll be inconic. 8

Lincoln. Upon my life, my nephew Lacy walks in the disguise of this Dutch shoemaker.

Firk. Yes, forsooth.

Lincoln. Doth he not, honest fellow?

Firk. No, forsooth; I think Hans is nobody but Hans, no spirit.

L. Mayor. My mind misgives me now. 'tis so, indeed.

Lincoln. My cousin speaks the language, knows the trade.

L. Mayor. Let me request your company, my lord:

Your honourable presence may, no doubt, Refrain their headstrong rashness, when myself Going alone perchance may be o'erborne. Shall I request this favour?

Lincoln. This, or what else. 138

Firk. Then you must rise betimes, for they mean to fall to their hey-pass and repass, 8 pindy-pandy, which hand will you have, very early.

L. Mayor. My care shall every way equal their haste.

This night accept your lodging in my house, The earlier shall we stir, and at Saint Faith's Prevent this giddy hare-brain'd nuptial. This traffic of hot love shall yield cold gains: They ban 10 our loves, and we 'll forbid their hans.

Exit. 136

Lincoln. At Saint Faith's Church thou say'st? Firk. Yes, by their troth.

Lincoln. Be secret, on thy life. Exit. Firk. Yes, when I kiss your wife! Ha, ha, here's no craft in the gentle craft. I came [194] hither of purpose with shoes to Sir Roger's worship, whilst Rose, his daughter, be cony-catcht by Hans. Soft now; these two gulls will be at Saint Faith's Church to-morrow [194] morning, to take Master Bridegroom and Mis-

1 Fool. 2 I. e. diggere for information. 3 Seriously. 4 Stretchers of the truth, lies.

6 A stone which marked the centre from which the old Roman roads radiated.
7 A small conduit near the Royal Exchange.
8 Mother Bunch was a well-known ale-wife.
9 A pretty sight.

tress Bride napping, and they, in the mean time, shall chop up the matter at the Savoy.
But the best sport is, Sir Roger Oateley will find my fellow lame Ralph’s wife going to [15] marry a gentleman, and then he’ll stop her in stead of his daughter. Oh brave! there will be fine juggling sport. Soft now, what have I to do?
Oh, I know; now a mass of shoemakers meet at the Woolpack in Ivy Lane, to cozen my gentleman of lame Ralph’s wife, that’s [18] true.

ACT V
SCENE I.°

Enter EYRE, his wife [MARGERY], HANS, and ROSE.

Eyre. This is the morning, then; stay, my bully, my honest Hans, is it not?

Hans. This is the morning that must make us two happy or miserable; therefore, if you—

Eyre. Away with these ifs and ans, Hans, and these et ceteras! By mine honour, Rowland
Lacy, none but the king shall wrong thee.
Come, fear nothing, am not I Sim Eyre? Is not Sim Eyre lord mayor of London? Fear nothing; let them all say what they can;
dainty, come thou to me—laughest thou?

Marg. Good my lord, stand her friend in what thing you may.

Eyre. Why, my sweet Lady Madgy, think [16]
you Simon Eyre can forget his fine Dutch journeyman? No, vah! Fie, I scorn it, it shall never be cast in my teeth, that I was unthankful. Lady Madgy, thou hadst’t never cover’d thy Saracen’s head with this French flap, nor [18]
loaden thy bum with this farthingale, ‘tis trash, trumpetery, vanity); Simon Eyre had never walk’d in a red petticoat, nor wore a chain of gold, but for my fine journeyman’s Portuguese.
—And shall I leave him? No! Prince am I [19]
none, yet bear a princely mind.

Hans. My lord, ‘tis time for us to part from
hence.

Eyre. Lady Madgy, Lady Madgy, take two or three of my pie-crust-eaters, my buffet-jerkin varlets, that do walk in black gowns at [20]
Simon Eyre’s heels; take them, good Lady Madgy; trip and go, my brown queen of periwigs, with my delicate Rose and my jolly Rowland to the Savoy; see them link’d, countenance the marriage; and when it is done, cling, [21]
cling together, you Hambroow turtle-doves.
I’ll bear you out, come to Simon Eyre; come, dwell with me, Hans, thou shalt eat m’muldies and marchpane; [22] Rose, away, cricket; trip and go, my Lady Madgy, to the Savoy; Hans, wed, and to bed; kiss, and away! Go, vanish!

Marg. Farewell, my lord.
Rose. Make haste, sweet love.

Marg. She’d fain the deed were done.

Hans. Come, my sweet Rose; faster than deer we’ll run.

Exeunt HANS, ROSE, and MARGERY.

Eyre. Go, vanish, vanish! Avant, I say!
By the Lord of Landgate, it’s a mad life to be a lord mayor; it’s a stirrings life, a fine life, a velvet life, a careful life. Well, Simon Eyre, yet set a good face on it, in the honour of Saint [23]
Hugh. Soft, the king this day comes to dine with me, to see my new buildings; his majesty is welcome, he shall have good cheer, delicate cheer, princely cheer. This day, my fellow pren-tices of London come to dine with me too, [24]
they shall have fine cheer, gentlemanlike cheer.
I promised the mad Capadesicians, when we all served at the Conduit together, that if ever I came to be mayor I would feast them all, and I’ll do’t, I’ll do’t, by the life [25] of Pharaoh; by this word, Sim Eyre will be no fincher. Besides, I have procured that upon every Shrove-Tuesday, at the sound of the pancake bell, my fine dapper Assyrian ladies shall clap up their shop windows, and away. [26]
This is the day, and this day they shall do’t, they shall do’t.

Boys, that day are you free, let masters care,
And prentices shall pray for Simon Eyre.

Exeunt.

SCENE II.°

Enter HODGE, Firk, RALPH, and five or six
Shoemakers, all with cudgels or such weapons.

Hodge. Come, Ralph; stand to it, Firk. My masters, as we are the brave bloods of the shoemakers, heirs apparent to Saint Hugh, and perpetual benefactors to all good fellows, thou shalt have no wrong; were Hammon a king [27] of spades, he should not delve in thy close without thy suffrance. But tell me, Ralph, art thou sure ‘tis thy wife?

Ralph. Am I sure this is Firk? This morning, when I strok’d on her shoes, I looke upon her,
and she upon me, and sighed, ask’d me if ever
I knew one Ralph. Yes, said I. For his sake, said she—tears standing in her eyes—and for thou art somewhat like him, spend this piece of gold. I took it; my lame leg and [28] my travel beyond sea made me unknown. All is one for that: I know she’s mine.

Firk. Did she give thee this gold? Of glorious glittering gold! She’s thine own, ‘tis thy wife, and she loves thee; for I’ll stand to’t, [29]
there’s no woman will give gold to any man, but she thinks better of him than she thinks of him she gives silver to. And for Hammon, neither Hammon nor hangman shall wrong thee in London! Is not our old master Eyre, [30] lord mayor? Speak, my hearts.

All. Yes, and Hammon shall know it to his cost.

1 Chest.
2 A room in Eyre’s house.
3 A sweetmeat made of sugar and almonds.
4 A street near St. Faith’s Church.
5 Fitted.
Enter Hammon, his man, Jane, and Others.

Hodge. Peace, my bullies; yonder they come.

Ralph. Stand to 't, my hearts. Firk, let me speak first.

Hodge. No, Ralph, let me. — Hammon, hither away so early?

Ham. Unmanly, rude slave, what’s that to thee?

Firk. To him, sir? Yes, sir, and to me, and hers. Good-morrow, Jane, how dost thou? Good Lord, how the world is changed with you! God be thanked!

Ham. Villains, hands off! How dare you touch my love?

All. Villains? Down with them! Cry clubs or prentices!

Hodge. Hold, my hearts! Touch her, Hammon? Yea, and more than that: we'll carry her away with us. My masters and gentlemen, ever draw your bird-spits; shoemakers are steal to the back, men every inch of them, I spirit.

All of Hammon’s side. Well, and what of all his?

Hodge. I’ll show you. — Jane, dost thou [now this man?] ’Tis Ralph, I can tell thee; say, ‘tis he in faith, though he be lam’d by the ears. Yet look not strange, but run to him, fold him about the neck and kiss him.

Jane. Lives then my husband? Oh God, let me go.

Let me embrace my Ralph.

Ham. What means my Jane? Jane, Nay, what meant you, to tell me, he was slain?

Ham. Pardon me, dear love, for being misled. [To Ralph.] ’T was rumour’d here in London, thou wert dead.

Firk. Thou seest he lives. Lass, go, pack home with him.

Now, Master Hammon, where’s your mistress, your wife?

Serv. Whom doth, master, fight for her! Will you thus lose her?

All. Down with that creature! Clubs! Down with him!

Ham. Hold, hold, hold!

Ham. Hold, fool! Sirs, he shall do no wrong. Ill my Jane leave me thus, and break her faith?

Firk. Yea, sir! She must, sir! She shall, sir! That then? Mends it!

Hodge. Hark, fellow Ralph, follow my counsel: set the wench in the midst, and let her choose her man, and let her be his woman.

Jane. Whom shall I choose? Whom should my thoughts affect but him whom Heaven hath made to be my love? But art my husband, and these humble weeds take thee more beautiful than all his wealth. Therefore, I will but put off his attire.

Returning it into the owner’s hand, and after ever be thy constant wife.

Hodge. Not a rag, Jane! The law’s on our side: he that sows in another man’s ground, forfeits his harvest. Get thee home, Ralph; follow him, Jane; he shall not have so much as a bush-point from thee.

Firk. Stand to that, Ralph; the appurtenances are thine own. Hammon, look not at her!

Serv. O, swounds, no!

Firk. Blue coat, be quiet, we’ll give you a new livery else; we’ll make Shrove Tuesday Saint George’s Day for you. Look not, Hammon, lean not! I’ll firk you! For thy head now, one glance, one sheep’s eye, anything, at her! Touch not a rag, lest I and my brethren beat you to clouts.

Serv. Come, Master Hammon, there’s no striving here.

Ham. Good fellows, hear me speak; and, honest Ralph, Whom have I injured most by loving Jane, Mark what I offer thee: here in fair gold Is twenty pound, I’ll give it for thy Jane; If this content thee not, thou shalt have more.

Hodge. Sell not thy wife, Ralph; make her not a whore.

Ham. Say, wilt thou freely cease thy claim in her, And let her be my wife?

All. No, do not, Ralph.

Ralph. Sirrah Hammon, Hammon, dost thou think a shoemaker is so base to be a bawd to his own wife for commodity? Take thy gold, choke with it! Were I not Jane, I would make thee eat thy words.

Firk. A shoemaker sell his flesh and blood? Oh indigence!

Hodge. Sirrah, take up your pelf, and be packing.

Ham. I will not touch one penny, but in lieu Of that great wrong I offered thee Jane, To Jane and thee I give that twenty pound. Since I have fail’d of her, during my life, I vow, no woman else shall be my wife.

Farewell, good fellows of the gentle trade! Your morning mirth my morning day hath made. Exit.

Firk. [to the Serving-man.] Touch the gold creature, if you dare! Y’are best be trudging. Here, Jane, take thou it. Now let’s home, my hearts.

Hodge. Stay! Who comes here? Jane, on again with thy mask!

Enter the Earl of Lincoln, the Lord Mayor, and Servants.

Lincoln. Yonder’s the lying varlet mockst us so.

L. Mayor. Come hither, sirrah!

Firk. 1, sir? I am sirrah? You mean me, do you not?

Lincoln. Where is my nephew married?

1 “Clubs” was the rallying cry of the London apprentices.

2 A lace with a tag, which fastened the busk, or piece of wood or whalebone used to keep the stays in position.
Firk. Is he married? God give him joy. I am glad of it. They have a fair day, and the sign is in a good planet, Mars in Venus.

L. Mayor. Villain, thou toldst me that my daughter Rose

This morning should be married at Saint Faith's;

We have watch'd there these three hours at the least,

Yet see we no such thing.

Firk. Truly, I am sorry for't; a bride's a pretty thing.

Hodge. Come to the purpose. Yonder's the bride and bridgroom you look for; I hope, though you be lords, you are not to bar by your authority men from women, are you? L. Mayor. See, see, my daughter's mask. Lincoln. True, and my nephew, 150

To hide his guilt, counterfeit his name.

Firk. Yea, truly; God help the poor couple, they are lame and blind.

L. Mayor. I'll ease her blindness.
 Lincoln. I'll his lameness cure.

Firk. Lie down, sirs, and laugh! My fellow Ralph is taken for Rowland Lacy, and Jane for Mistress Damask Rose. This is all my knavery. L. Mayor. What, have I found you, minion? Lincoln. O base wretch! Nay, hide thy face, the horror of thy guilt Can hardly be washt off. Where are thy powers?

What battles have you made? O yes, I see, Thou fought'st with Shame, and Shame hath conquer'd thee.

This lameness will not serve.

L. Mayor. Unmask yourself.
 Lincoln. Lead home your daughter.
 L. Mayor. Take your nephew hence. 156 Ralph. Henes! Swounds! What mean you? Are you mad? I hope you cannot enforce my wife from me, Where's Hammon?

L. Mayor. Your wife?
 Lincoln. What, Hammon?

Ralph. Yea, my wife; and, therefore, the proudest of you that lay hands on her first, I'll lay my crutch 'cross his pate.

Firk. To him, lame Ralph! Here's a brave sport!

Ralph. Rose call you her? Why, her name is Jane. Look here else; do you know her now? [Unmasking Jane.]

Lincoln. Is this your daughter?
 L. Mayor. No, nor this your nephew.

My Lord of Lincoln, we are both abus'd

By this base, crafty varlet.

Firk. Yea, forsooth, no varlet; forsooth, no base; forsooth, I am but mean; no crafty neither, but of the gentle craft.

L. Mayor. Where is my daughter Rose?

Where is my child?

Lincoln. Where is my nephew Lacy married?

Firk. Why, here is good lad'd mutton, 1 as I promise you.

Lincoln. Villain, I'll have thee punish for this wrong.

---

1 A slang term for a woman.

Firk. Punish the journeyman villain, but not the journeyman shoemaker.

Dodger. My lord, I come to bring unwelcome news.

Your present Lord Lacy and your daughter Rose Early this morning wedded at the Savoy, None being present but the lady mayoress.

Besides, I learnt among the officers,

The lord mayor vows to stand in their defence 'Gainst any that shall seek to cross the match.

Lincoln. Dares Eyre the shoemaker uphold the deed?

Firk. Yes, sir, shoemakers dare stand in a woman's quarrel, I warrant you, as deep as another, and deeper too.

Dodger. Besides, his grace to-day dines with the mayor;

Who on his knees humbly intends to fall

And beg a pardon for your nephew's fault.

Lincoln. But I'll prevent him! Come, Sir Roger Oateley;

The king will do us justice in this cause.

Hodge. This matter is answer'd. Come, Ralph; home with thy wife. Come, my fine shoemakers, let's to our master's the new lord mayor, and there stagger this Shrove Tuesday.

I'll promise you wine enough, for Madge keeps the cellar.

All. O rare! Madge is a good wench.

Firk. And I'll promise you meat enough, for simp'ring Susan keeps the larder. I'll lead you to victuals, my brave soldiers; follow your captain. O brave! Hark, hark! Bell rings. 200

All. The pancake-bell rings, the pancake-bell! Thrill, my hearts!

Firk. Oh brave! Oh sweet bell! O delicate pancakes! Open the doors, my hearts, and shut up the windows! keep in the house, let out! 205 the pancakes! Oh rare, my hearts! Let's march together for the honour of Saint Hugh to the great new hall 4 in Gracious Street corner, which our master, the new lord mayor, hath built.

Ralph. O the crew of good fellows that will dine at my lord mayor's cost to-day!

Hodge. By the Lord, my lord mayor is a most brave man. How shall all prentices be bound to pray for him and the honour of the gentlemen shoemakers! Let's feed and be fat with my lord's bounty.

Firk. O musical bell, still! O Hodge, O my brethren! There's cheer for the heavens: venison-pasties walk up and down piping hot, like 2

Whipped.

A bell rung on the morning of Shrove Tuesday.

Leadenhall.
sergeants; beef and brewer comes marching in dry-vats, fritters and pancakes comes trowling in in wheel-barrow; hens and oranges hopping in porters' basket, collops and eggs in scuttles, and tarts and custards comes quaffing in in mallow-sloves.

Enter more Prentices.

All. Oh brave shoemakers, oh brave lord of incomprehensible good-fellowship! Whoa! Hark you! The pancake-bell rings. Cast up caps.

Firk. Nay, more, my hearts! Every Shrove-Tuesday is our year of jubiles; and when the pancake-bell rings, we are as free as my lord mayor; we may shut up our shops, and make holiday; I'll have it call'd Saint Hugh's Holiday.

All. Agreed, agreed! Saint Hugh's Holiday. Hodge. And this shall continue for ever.

All. Oh brave! Come, come, my hearts! Away, away!

Firk. O eternal credit to us of the gentle craft! March fair, my hearts! Oh rare!

Exeunt.

SCENE IV. 4

Enter the King and his Train over the stage.

King. Is our lord mayor of London such a gallant?

Noblem. One of the merriest madcaps in your land.

Your grace will think, when you behold the man, He's rather a wild ruffian than a mayor. Yet thus much I'll ensure your majesty,

In all his actions that concern his state He is as serious, provident, and wise, As full of gravity amongst the grave,

As any mayor hath been these many years.

King. I am with child 5 till I behold this huff-cap. 6

But all my doubt is, when we come in presence, His madness will be daish clean out of countenance.

Noblem. It may be so, my liege.

King. Which to prevent, Let some one give him notice, 'tis our pleasure That he put on his wonted merriment.

Set forward! All. On afofe! Exeunt.

SCENE IV. 7

Enter Eyre, Hodge, Firk, Ralph, and other Shoemakers, all with napkins on their shoulders.

Eyre. Come, my fine Hodge, my jolly gentle-men shoemakers; soft, where be these canni-

1 Beef broth. 2 Rods. 3 Swaggerer. 4 A street in London. 5 A great hall.
hals, these varlets, my officers? Let them all walk and wait upon my brethren; for my meaning is, that none but shoemakers, none but the liveries of my company shall in their satin hoods wait upon the trencher of my sovereign.

Firk. O my lord, it will be rare!

Eyre. No more. Firk; come, lively! Let your fellow-prentices want no cheer; let wine be plentiful as beer, and beer as water. Hang these penny-pinching fathers, that cram wealth in innocent lamb-skins. Rip, knaves, avaunt! Look to my guests!

Hodge. My lord, we are at our wits' end for room; those hundred tables will not feast the fourth part of them.

Eyre. Then cover me those hundred tables again, and again, till all my jolly prentices be feasted. Avoid, Hodge! Run, Ralph! Firk 30 about, my nimble Firk! Carouse me fathom-healths to the honour of the shoemakers. Do they drink lively, Hodge? Do they tickle it, Firk?

Firk. Tickle it? Some of them have taken their liquor standing so long that they can stand no longer; but for meat, they would eat it at they had it.

Eyre. Want they meat? Where's this swag-belly, this greasy kitchen stuff cook? Call the varlet to me! Want meat? Firk, Hodge, lane Ralph, run, my tall men, beaguer the shambles, beggar all Eastcheap, serve me whole oxen in chargers, and let sheep whine upon the tables like pigs for want of good fellows to eat them. Want meat? Vanish, Firk! Avaunt, Hodge!

Hodge. Your lordship mistakes my man Firk; he means, their bellies want meat, not the boards; for they have drunk so much, they can eat nothing.

THE SECOND THREE MEN'S SONG

Cold's the wind, and wet's the rain,
Saint Hugh's our good speed:
Ill is the weather that bringeth no gain,
Nor helps good hearts in need.

Trowl the bowl, the jolly nut-brown bowl,
And here, kind mate, to thee:
Let's sing a dirge for Saint Hugh's soul,
And down it merrily.

Down a down haydown a down,
(Close with the tenor boy)
Hey derry derry, down a down!
Ho, well done! to me let come!
Ring, compass, gentle joy.

Trowl the bowl, the nut-brown bowl,
And here, kind mate, to thee: etc.

Repeat as often as there be men to drink;
and at last when all have drunk, this verse:

Cold's the wind, and wet's the rain,
Saint Hugh be our good speed:
Ill is the weather that bringeth no gain,
Nor helps good hearts in need.

Enter Hans, Rose, and Wife [Margery].

Marg. Where is my lord?

Eyre. How now, Lady Madgy?

3 Pass.
Marg. The king's most excellent majesty is new come; he sends me for thy honour; one of his most worshipful peers bade me tell thou must be merry, and so forth; but let that pass.

Eyre. Is my sovereign come? Vanish, my tall shoemakers, my nimble brethren; look to my guests, the prentices. Yet stay a little! How now, Hans? How looks my little Rose?

Hans. Let me request you to remember me. I know, your honour easily may obtain Free pardon of the king for me and Rose, and reconcile me to my uncle's grace.

Eyre. Have done, my good Hans, my honest journeyman; look cheerily! I'll fall upon both my knees, till they be as hard as horn, but I'll get thy pardon.

Marg. Good my lord, have a care what you speak to his grace.

Eyre. Away, you Islington whitepot!

Eyre. his Wife [Margery], Lacy, Rose. Lacy and Rose kneel.

King. Well, Lacy, though the fact was very foul

Of your revolting from our kingly love And your own duty, yet we pardon you. Rise both, and, Mistress Lacy, thank my lord mayor For your young bridegroom here.

Eyre. So, my dear liege, Sim Eyre and my brethren, the gentlemen shoemakers, shall set your sweet majesty's image cheek by jowl by Saint Hugh for this honour you have done poor Simon Eyre. I beseech your grace, pardon my rude behaviour; I am a handicrafter, yet my heart is without craft; I would be sorry at my soul, that my boldness should offend my king.

King. Nay, I pray thee, good lord mayor, be even as merry As if thou wert among thy shoemakers; It does me good to see thee in this humour.

1 A dish, made of milk, eggs, and sugar, baked in a pot. [Webster.]
2 A steak cut crossways.
3 Ruffs for the neck.
4 Flaps; as resembling the hanging chaps of a hound.
5 Obstruction, a term in bowling.
6 An open yard before the hall.

Eyre. Say'st thou me so, my sweet Dickie-sian? Then, hump! Prince am I none, yet am I princely born. By the Lord of Ludgate, my liege, I'll be as merry as a pie.

King. Tell me, in faith, mad Eyre, how old thou art.

Eyre. My liege, a very boy, a stripling, a younger; you see not a white hair on my head, not a grey in this beard. Every hair, I as-sure thy majesty, that sticks in this beard, Sim Eyre values at the King of Babylon's ransom, Tamar Ohm's beard was a rubbing brush to't: yet I'll shave it off, and stuff tennis-balls with it, to please my bully king.

King. But all this while I do not know your age.

Eyre. My liege, I am six and fifty year old, yet I can cry hump! with a sound heart for the honour of Saint Hugh. Mark this old wench, my king: I danc'd the shaking of the sheets with her six and thirty years ago, and yet I hope to get two or three young lord mayors, ere I die. I am lusty still, Sim Eyre still. Care and cold lodging brings white hairs. My sweet Majesty, let care vanish, cast it upon thy nobles, it will make thee look always young like Apollo, and cry hump! Prince am I none, yet am I princely born.

King. Ha, ha!

Say, Cornwall, didst thou ever see his like?

Noblemen. Not I, my lord.

Enter the EARL OF LINCOLN and the LORD MAYOR.

King. Lincoln, what news with you? Lincoln. My gracious lord, have care unto yourself, For there are traitors here.

King. Where is the traitor, Lincoln?

Lincoln. Here he stands.

King. Cornwall, lay hold on Lacy! — Lincoln, speak.

What canst thou lay unto thy nephew's charge?

Lincoln. This, my dear liege: your Grace, to do me honour, Heapt on the head of this degenerate boy Desertless favours; you made choice of him To be commander over powers in France. But he —

King. Good Lincoln, prithee, pause a while! Even in thine eyes I read what thou wouldst speak.

I know how Lacy did neglect our love, Ran himself deeply, in the highest degree, Into vile treason —

Lincoln. Is he not a traitor?

King. Lincoln, he was; now have we pardoned him.

'Twas not a base want of true valour's fire, That held him out of France, but love's desire.

Lincoln. I will not bear his shame upon my back.
As bright in the world's eye as the gay beams
Of any citizen?

Lincoln. Yea, but, my gracious lord,
I do mislike the match far more than he;
Her blood is too low base.

King. Lincoln, no more.

Dost thou not know that love requires no blood,
Cares not for difference of birth or state? 116
The maid is young, well born, fair, virtuous,
A worthy bride for any gentleman.
Besides, your nephew for her sake did stoop
To bear necessity, and, as I hear,
Forgetting honours and all courtly pleasures, 120
To gain her love, became a shoemaker.
As for the honour which he lost in France,
Thus I redeem it: Lacy, kneel thee down! —
Arise, Sir Rowland Lacy! Tell me now,
Tell me in earnest, Oateley, canst thou chide,
Seeing thy Rose a lady and a bride?

L. Mayor. I am content with what your grace hath done.

Lincoln. And I, my liege, since there's no remedy.

King. Come on, then, all shake hands: I'll have you friends;
Where there is much love, all discord ends. 130
What says my mad lord mayor to all this love?

Eyre. O my liege, this honour you have done
To my fine journeyman here, Rowland Lacy, and all these favours which you have shown to me this day in my poor house, will make Simon Eyre live longer by one dozen of warm summers more than he should.

King. Nay, my mad lord mayor, that shall be thy name;
If any grace of mine can length thy life,
One honour more I'll do thee: that new building,
Which at thy cost in Cornhill is erected,
Shall take a name from us: we'll have it call'd
The Leadenhall, because in digging it
You found the lead that covereth the same. 144

Eyre. I thank your majesty.

Mary. God bless your grace! King. Lincoln, a word with you!

Enter Hodge, Firr, Ralph, and more Shoemakers.

Eyre. How now, my mad knaves? Peace, speak softly, yonder is the king.

King. With the old troop which there we keep in pay,
We will incorporate a new supply. 150
Before one summer more pass o'er my head,
France shall repent, England was injured.
What are all those?

Lacy. All shoemakers, my liege, some time my fellows; in their companies
I liv'd as merry as an emperor.

King. My mad lord mayor, are all these shoemakers?

1 "A. d. 1420. This year Sir Symon Eyre built Leadenhall, at his proper expense, as it now appears, and gave the same to the City to be employed as a public granary for laying up corn against a time of scarcity."
—Maitland's History and Survey of London, II. 187.

According to Show, Eyre was a draper, became Mayor in 1446, and died in 1450.
Eyre. All shoemakers, my liege; all gentlemen of the gentle craft, true Trojans, courageous cordwainers; they all kneel to the shrine of holy Saint Hugh.

All the Shoemakers. God save your majesty!

King. Mad Simon, would they anything with us?

Eyre. Mum, mad knaves! Not a word! I'll do 't; I warrant you. They are all beggars, my liege; all for themselves, and I for them. All on both my knees do entreat, that for the honour of poor Simon Eyre and the good of his brethren, these mad knaves, your grace would vouchsafe some privilege to my new Leadenhall, that it may be lawful for us to buy and sell leather there two days a week.

King. Mad Sim, I grant your suit, you shall have patent To hold two market-days in Leadenhall, Mondays and Fridays, those shall be the times. Will this content you?

All. Jesus bless your grace! In the name of these my poor brethren shoemakers, I most humbly thank your grace. But before I rise, seeing you are in the giving vein and we in the begging, grant Simon Eyre one boon more.

King. What is it, my lord mayor?

Eyre. Vouchsafe to taste of a poor banquet that stands sweetly waiting for your sweet presence.

King. I shall undo thee, Eyre, only with feasts; Already have I been too troublesome; Say, have I not?

Eyre. O my dear king, Simon Eyre was taken unawares upon a day of shroving, which I promised long ago to the prentices of London. For, an 't please your highness, in time past, I bare the water-tankard, and my coat Sits not a whit the worse upon my back; And then, upon a morning, some mad boys, It was Shrove Tuesday, even as 'tis now, gave me my breakfast, and I swore then by the stopple of my tankard, if ever I came to be lord mayor of London, I would feast all the prentices. This day, my liege, I did it, and the slaves had an hundred tables five times covered; they are gone home and vanish, Yet add more honour to the gentle trade, Taste of Eyre's banquet, Simon's happy made,

King. Eyre, I will taste of thy banquet, and will say, I have not met more pleasure on a day.

Friends of the gentle craft, thanks to you all, Thanks, my kind lady mayoress, for our cheer. — Come, lords, a while let's revel it at home! When all our sports and banqueting are done, Wars must right wrongs which Frenchmen have begun. Exeunt.

ACT I.

SCENE I. 2

Enter at one door a Funeral (a coronet lying on the hearse, scutcheons and garlands hanging on the sides), attended by GASPARE TREBBAZZI, Duke of Milan, CASTRUCHIO, SINEZ, POLLISTO, FLORELLO, and others. At another door enter HIPPOLITO, in discontented appearance; and MATHEO, a Gentleman, his friend, labouring to hold him back.

Duke. Behold, yon comet shows his head again! Twice hath he thus at cross-turns thrown on us Prodigious 3 looks; twice hath he troubled The waters of our eyes. See, he's turn'd wild: — Go on, in God's name.

Cas., Sir. On afore there, ho! 5

Duke. Kinsmen and friends, take from your manly sides Your weapons to keep back the desperate boy From doing violence to the innocent dead.

Hip. I prithee, dear Matheo —

Mat. Come, you're mad! Hip. I do arrest thee, murderer! Set down, Villians, set down that sorrow, 'tis all mine. 11

Duke. I do beseech you all, for my blood's sake

Send hence your milder spirits, and let wrath Join in confederacy with your weapons' points; 37

If he proceed to vex us, let your swords Seek out his bowels: funeral grief loathes words. 16

All. Set on.

Hip. Set down the body! O my lord!

You 're wrong! I 'th' open street? You see she's dead.

Hip. I know she is not dead.

Duke. Frantic young man, Wilt thou believe these gentlemen? — Pray speak. — Thou dost abuse my child, and mock'st the tears That here are shed for her. If to behold Those roses withered, that set out her cheeks; That pair of stars that gave her body light, Darkned and dim for ever; all those rivers 20 That fed her veins with warm and crimson streams Frozen and dried up: if these be signs of death, Then is she dead. Thou unreligious youth, Art not ashamed to empty all these eyes Of funeral tears, a debt due to the dead, 30 As mirth is to the living? Sham'st thou not To have them stare on thee? Hark, thou art curst

Even to thy face, by those that scarce can speak. Hip. My lord —

Duke. What wouldst thou have? Is she not dead? Hip. Oh, you ha' kill'd her by your cruelty! Duke. Admit I had, thou kill'st her now again; And art more savage than a barbarous Moor. 47 Hip. Let me but kiss her pale and bloodless lip. Duke. O fie, fie, fie.
Hip. Or if not touch her, let me look on her.
Mat. As you regard your honour——
Hip. Honour? Smoke! 4
Mat. Or if you lov'd her living, spare her now.
Duke. Ay, well done, sir, you play the gentleman.
Steal hence; — 'tis nobly done; — away; — I'll join
My forces to yours, to stop this violent torment Pass on.
EXECUT WITH FUNERAL, [ALL EXCEPT THE DUKE, HIPPOLOTO AND MATHEO.]

Hip. Matheo, thou dost wound me more.
Mat. I give you physic, noble friend, not wounds.
Duke. O, well said, well done, a true gentleman!
Alack, I know the sea of lovers' rage
Comes rushing with so strong a tide, it beats
And breaks down all respect of life of honour,
Of friends, of foes! Forget her, gallant youth.
Hip. Forget her?
Duke. Nay, nay, be but patient;
For why death's hand hath su'd a strict divorce
'Twixt her and thee. What's beauty but a curse?
What but fair sand-dust are earth's purest forms?
Queen's bodies are but trunks to put in worms.
Mat. Speak no more sentences, my good lord, but slip hence; you see they are but fits; I'll rule him, I warrant ye. Ay, so, tread glibly;
your grace is here somewhat too long already.
[EXIT DUKE.] 'Sblood, the jest were now, if, having ta'en some knocks o' th' pate already,
he should get loose again, and like a mad ox, toss my new black cloaks into the kennel.3 I must humour his lordship. — My Lord Hip.
Hippolito, is it in your stomach to go to dinner?
Hip. Where is the body?
Mat. The body, as the duke spake very wisely, is gone to be worm'd.
Hip. I cannot rest; I'll meet it at next turn:
I'll see how my love looks.

MATHEO HOLDS HIM IN 'S ARMS.
Mat. How your love looks? Worse than a scare-crow. Wrestle not with me: the great fellow gives the fall for a ducat.
Hip. I shall forget myself.
Mat. Pray, do so, leave yourself behind yourself, and go whither you will. 'Sblood, do you long to have base rogues that maintain a Saint Anthony's fire in their noses by nothing but [as twopenny ale, make ballads of you? If the duke had but so much mettle in him, as is in a cobbler's awl, he would ha' been a vex't thing:
he and his train had blown you up, but that their powder has taken the wet of coward's. You'll bleed three pottles of Alicant,4 by this light, if you follow 'em, and then we shall have a hole made in a wrong place, to have surgeons roll thee up like a baby in swaddling clouts.

HIP. What day is to-day, Matheo?
Mat. Yea marry, this is an easy question:
why to-day is — let me see — Thursday.
Hip. Oh! Thursday.
Mat. Here's a coin6 for a dead commodity.
'Shoot, women when they are alive are but dead commodities, for you shall have one woman lie upon many men's hands.
Hip. She died on Monday then.
Mat. And that's the most villainous day of all the week to die in: and she was well, and eat a mess of water-gruel on Monday morning.
Hip. Ay? It cannot be Such a bright taper should burn out so soon.
Mat. O yes, my lord, So soon? Why, I ha' known them that at dinner have been as well, and had so much health, that they were glad to pledge it, yet before three o'clock have been found dead — drunk.
Hip. On Thursday buried! and on Monday dead?
Quick haste, by'rlady.6 Sure her winding sheet
Was laid out 'fore her body; and the worms
That now must feast with her, were even bespoke,
And solemnly invited like strange guests.
Mat. Strange feeders they are indeed, my lord, and, like your jester, or young courtier, will enter upon any man's trencher without bidding.
Hip. Curst be that day for ever that rob'd her
Of breath, and me of bliss! Henceforth let it stand
Within the wizard's book (the calendar)
Markt with a marginal finger, to be chosen
By thieves, by villains, and black murderers,
As the best day for them to labour in.
If henceforth this adulterous bawdy world
Be got with child with treason, sacrilege,
Atheism, rapes, treacherous friendship, perjury,
Slander (the beggar's sin), lies (sin of fools),
Or any other damn'd impieties,
On Monday let 'em be delivered.
I swear to thee, Matheo, by my soul
Hereafter weekly on that day I'll glue
Mine eye-lids down, because they shall not gaze
On any female cheek. And being lockt up,
In my close6 chamber, there I'll meditate
On nothing but my Infelice's end,
Or on a dead man's skull draw out mine own.
Mat. You'll do all these good works now every Monday, because it is so bad; but I hope upon Tuesday morning I shall take you with a wrench.
Hip. If ever, whilst frail blood through my veins run,
On woman's beams I throw affection,
Save her that's dead; or that I loosely fly
To th' shore of any other wafing eye,
Let me not prosper, Heaven! I will be true,
Even to her dust and ashes: could her tomb
Stand whilst I live, so long that it might rot,
That should fall down, but she be ne'er forgot.
Mat. If you have this strange monster, hon-

Enter Fusigo in some fantastic Sea-suit at one door, a porter meets him at another.

Fus. How now, porter, will she come?

Por. If I may trust a woman, sir, she will come.

Fus. There's for thy pains [gives money]. God-mercy, if I ever stand in need of a wench that will come with a wet finger, porter, thou [c] shall earn my money before any clarissimo 5 in Milan; yet, so God save me, she's mine own sister, body and soul, as I am a Christian gentleman. Farewell; I'll ponder till she come. Thou hast been no bawd in fetching this woman, I 10 assure thee.

Por. No matter if I had, sir; better men than porters are bawds.

Fus. O God, sir, many that have borne offices. But, porter, art sure thou went'st into one true house?

Por. I think so, for I met with no thieves.

Fus. Nay, but art sure it was my sister Viola.

Por. I am sure, by all superscriptions, it was the party you ciphered.

Fus. Not very tall?

Por. Nor very low; a middling woman.

Fus. 'Twas she, faith 'twas she. A pretty plump cheek, like mine?

Por. At a blush, 8 a little very much like you.

Fus. Godso, I would not for a ducat had kicket up her heels, for I ha' spent an abomination this voyage; marry, I did it amongst sailors and gentlemen. There's a little modesty more, porter, for making thee stay [gives 50 money]; farewell, honest porter.

Por. I am in your debt, sir; God preserve you.

Enter Viola.

Fus. Not so, neither, good porter. God's lid, yonder she comes. Sister Viola, I am glad to see you shining: 'tis news to have me here, is't not, sister?

Vio. Yes, trust me. I wondered to be so bold to send for me. You're welcome to Milan, brother.

Fus. Troth, sister, I heard you were married to a very rich chuff, 9 and I was very sorry for it, that I had no better clothes, and that made me send; for you know we Milans are prone to stint upon Spanish leather. And how do all our friends?

Vio. Very well. You ha' travelled enough now, I trow, to sow your wild oats.

Fus. A pox on 'em! wild oats? I ha' not an oat to throw at a horse. Troth, sister, I ha', sowed my oats, and reap't two hundred ducats 11 if I had 'em here. Marry, I must entreat you to lend me some thirty or forty till the ship come. By this hand, I'll discharge at my day, by this hand.

Vio. These are your old oaths.

Fus. Why, sister, do you think I'll forswear my hand?

Vio. Well, well, you shall have them. Put yourself into better fashion, because I must employ you in a serious matter.

Fus. I'll sweat like a horse if I like the matter.

Vio. You ha' cast off all your old swaggering humours?

Fus. I had not sail'd a league in that great fishpond, the sea, but I cast up my very gall.

Vio. I am the more sorry, for I must employ a true swaggerer.

Fus. Nay by this iron, sister, they shall find I am powder and touch-box, if they put fire once into me.

Vio. Then lend me your ears.

Fus. Mine ears are yours, dear sister.

Vio. I am married to a man that has wealth enough, and wit enough.

Fus. A linen-drap'er, I was told, sister.

Vio. Very true, a grave citizen; I want nothing that a wife can wish from a husband: but here's the spite, he has not all things belonging to a man.

Fus. God's my life, he's a very mandrake, 10 or else (God bless us) one a' these whiblins, 11 and that's worse, and then all the children that he gets lawfully of your body, sister, are bastards by a statute.

Vio. O, you run over me too fast, brother; I have heard it often said, that he who cannot be angry is no man. I am sure my husband is a man in print, 12 for all things else save only in this, no tempest can move him.

Fus. 'Slid, would he had been at sea with us! he should ha' been mov'd, and mov'd again, for I'll be sworn, la, our drunken ship reel'd like a Dutchman.

Vio. No loss of goods can increase in him a wrinkle, no crabbed language make his countenance sour; the bimbomess of no servant shake him; he has no more gall in him than a dove, no more sting than an ant; musician 13 will he never be, yet I find much music in him, but he loves no frets, and is so free from anger, that many times I am ready to bite off my tongue, because it wants that virtue which all women's tongues have, to anger their husbands. Brother, mine can by no thunder turn him into a sharpness.

Fus. Belike his blood, sister, is well brev'd then.

Vio. I protest to thee, Fusigo, I love him most affectionately; but I know not—I ha' such a tickling within me — such a strange longing; say verily I do long.

"Fus. Then you're with child, sister, by all signs and tokens; nay, I am partly a physician, and partly something else. I ha' read Al- [10] bertus Magnus, and Aristotle’s Emblems.

Vio. You’re wide a’th’ bow hand still, brother: my longings are not wont, but wayward. I long to have my patient husband ebat up a whole porcunipe, to fret at the loss of a little scal’d hair. No, brother, thus it shall be — you must be secret.

"Fus. As your mid-wife, I protest, sister, or a barber-surgeon, I'll keep you money; turn yourself into a brave man: instead of the arms of your mistress, let your sword and your [10] military scarf hang about your neck.

Vio. I must have a great horseman’s French feather too, sister.

Vio. O, by any means, to show your light head, else your hat will sit like a coxcomb. [10]

To be brief, you must be in all points a most terribly wide-mouth’d swaggagerer.

"Fus. Nay, for swaggering points let me alone.

Vio. Resort then to our shop, and, in my husband’s presence, kiss me, snatch rings, [100] jewels, or any thing, so you give it back again, brother, in secret.

"Fus. By this hand, sister.

Vio. Swear as if you came but new from knightng.

Vio. Nay, I’ll swear after four hundred a year.

"Fus. No, no, it shall be cousin, or rather coz; that’s the gulling word between the citizens’ wives and their mad-caps that man [7] ’em to the garden; to call you one a’ mine aunts, [8] sister, were as good as call you arrant whore; no, no, let me alone to cousin you rarely.

Vio. He’s heard I have a brother, but never saw him, therefore put on a good face.

"Fus. The best in Milan, I warrant.

Vio. Take up wares, but pay nothing, rifle my bosom, my pocket, my purse, the boxes for money to die withal; but, brother, you must give all back again in secret.

"Fus. By this wordin here roars I will, or else let me never know what a secret is: why, sister, do you think I’ll cony-catch you, when you are my cousin? God’s my life, then I was a stark ass. If I fret not his guts, beg me for a fool. [10]

Vio. Be circumspect, and do so then. Farewell.

"Fus. The Tortoise, sister! I’ll stay there; forty ducats. Exit.

Vio. This law can none deny, Women must have their longings, or they die. Exit.

[SCENE III.] [Enter] GASPARO the Duke, Doctor BENEDICT, and two Servants.

Duke. Give charge that none do enter; lock the doors — [Speaking as he enters:]

And fellows, what your eyes and ears receive, Upon your lives trust not the gadding air To carry the least part of it. The glass, the hour-glass!

Doc. Here, my lord.

But, Doctor Benedict, does your art speak truth?

Art sure the soporiferous stream will ebb, And leave the crystal banks of her white body Pure as they were at first, just at the hour?

Doc. Just at the hour, my lord.

Duke. [A curtain is drawn back and INFELICE discovered lying on a couch.] Softly! — See, [13] doctor, what a coldish heat Spreads over all her body!

Doc. Now it works. The vital spirits that by a sleepy charm Were bound up fast, and threw an icy rust [14] On her exterior parts, now ’gin to break; [15] Trouble her not, my lord.

Duke. Some stools! You call’d for music, did you not? Oh ho, it speaks.

[Music.] It speaks! Watch, sirs, her waking, note those sands.

Doctor, sit down. A dukedom that should weigh Mine own down twice, being put into one scale, And that fond [18] desperate boy, Hippolito, [21] Making the weight up, should not at my hands Buy her ’th’ other, were her state more light Than hers, who makes a dowry with aims.

Doctor, I’ll starve her on the Apennine Ere she shall marry her. I must confess Hippolito is nobly born; a man — Did not mine enemies’ blood boil in his veins— Whom I would court to be my son-in-law;

9 Cheats.

10 Ask the king to have the wardship of me as an idiot.

11 A chamber in the Duke’s Palace.

13 Dyce suggests trust. 12 Foolish.
But princes, whose high spleen for empire swell,
Are not with easy art made parallel.
Servants. She wakes, my lord.
Duke. Look, Doctor Benedict —
I charge you on your lives, maintain for truth
What e'er the doctor or myself aver.
For you shall bear her hence to Bergamo.

[When the Duke has finished speaking.]
Inf. O God, what fearful dreams!

[Duke. Doublets, my lord, it does.

Duke. It does, it does:
Therefore, sweet girl, thou shalt to Bergamo, Inf. Even where you will; in any place there's woe.

Duke. A coach is ready; Bergamo doth stand

In a most wholesome air, sweet walks; there's deer,
Ay, thou shalt hunt and send us venison,
Which like some goddess in the Cyprian groves,
Thine own fair hand shall strike. — Sirs, you shall teach her
To stand, and how to shoot; ay, she shall hunt:
Cast off this sorrow. In, girl, and prepare
This night to ride away to Bergamo.

[Exeunt Servants.]
Inf. O most unhappy maid!

[Duke. Follow her close.
No words that she was buried, on your lives!
Or that her ghost walks now after she's dead;
I'll hang you if you name a funeral.

1 Ser. I'll speak Greek, my lord, ere I speak that deadly word.

2 Ser. And I'll speak Welsh, which is harder than Greek.

[Duke. A way, look to her. — Doctor Benedict,
Did you observe how her complexion altered
Upon his name and death? Oh, would 'twere true.

Doublet, it may, my lord.

Duke. And you may have your wish; say but the word,

And 'tis a strong spell to rip up his grave.
I have good knowledge with Hippolito;
He calls me friend, I'll creep into his bosom,
And sting him there to death; poison can't do.

Duke. Perform it; I'll create thee half mine heir.

Duke. It shall be done, although the fact 4 be foul.

Duke. Greatness hides sin, the guilt upon my soul!

[Scene IV.]

Enter Castruchio, Pioratto, and Fluello.

Cas. Signor Pioratto, Signor Fluello, shall's be merry? Shall's play the wags now?

Flu. Ay, any thing that may beget the child of laughter.

Cas. Truth, I have a pretty sportive conceit new crept into my brain, will move excellent [sic]
many.

Pio. Let's ha' t, let's ha' t; and where shall the scene of mirth lie?

Cas. At Signor Candido's house, the patient man, nay, the monstrous patient man. They [sic] say his blood is immovable, that he has taken all patience from a man, and all constancy from a woman.

Flu. That makes so many whores now-a-days.

Cas. Ay, and so many knaves too.

Pio. Well, sir.

Cas. To conclude, the report goes, he's so mild, so affable, so suffering, that nothing in deed can move him: now do but think what

1 Q. deadset.  2 Q. God knows.  3 Q. whoars.  4 Deed.  5 A street.
sport it will be to make this fellow, the mirror of patience, as angry, as vext, and as mad
as an English cuckold.

Flu. O, 't were admirable mirth, that; but how will 't be done, signor?
Cas. Let me alone, I have a trick, a conceit, a thing, a device will sting him, 't faith, if he have but a thimbleful of blood in 's belly, or a spleen not so big as a tavern token.

Pio. Thou stir him? Thou move him? Thou anger him? Alas, I know his approved temper. Thou vex him? Why he has a patience above man's injuries: thou may'st sooner raise a spleen in an angel, than rough humour in him.
Why, I'll give you instance for it. This wonderfully temper'd Signor Candido upon a time [28] invited home to his house certain Neapolitan lords, of curious taste, and no mean palates, conjurings his wife, of all lostes, to prepare cheer fitting for such honourable treacher-men. She —just of a woman's nature, covetous to try [29]
the uttermost of vexation, and thinking at last to get the start of his humour—willingly neglected the preparation, and became unfinish'd, not only of dainty, but of ordinary dishes. He,
according to the mildness of his breast, entertained the lords, and with courtesy discourse beguiled the time, as much a citizen might do. To conclude, they were hungry lords, for there came no meat in; their stomachs were plainly gull'd, and their teeth dul'd, and, [30] if anger could have seiz'd a man, there was matter enough i' faith to vex any citizen in the world, if he were not too much made a fool by his wife.

Flu. Ay, I'll swear for 't. 'Sfoot, had it [31] been my case, I should ha' play'd mad tricks with my wife and family. First, I would ha' spited the men, strew'd the maids, and bak'd the mistress, and so served them in.

Pio. Why 't would ha' tempted any blood but his,
And then to vex him? thou to anger him [32]
With some poor shallow jest?
Cas. 'Sblood, Signor Fioratto, you that dis-parage my coniect, I'll wage a hundred duets upon the head on 't, that it moves him, frets [33]
in him, and galls him.

Pio. Done. 't is a lay, 5 join golls on 't: witness Signor Fluello.
Cas. Witness: 't is done.
Come, follow me: the house is not far off, [34]
I'll thrust him from his humour; vex his breast,
And win a hundred duets by one jest. Exeunt.

[Scene V.] 6

Enter [VIOLA] CANDIDO's wife, GEORGE, two
Prentices in the shop.

Vio. Come, you put up your wares in good order here, do you not, think you? One piece cast this way, another that way! You had need have a patient master indeed.

1 A piece of brass or copper money, coined by tavern-keepers and other tradesmen for small change.
2 For love's sake.  4 Bet.
3 Chested.  5 Hands.  6 Candido's shop.

Geo. [Aside.] Ay, I'll be sworn, for we have a curst mistress.

would your master or I could be a note more angry, for two patient folks in a house spoil all the servants that ever shall come under them. [35] 1 Pren. [Aside.] You patient! Ay, so is the devil when he is horn-mad.

Enter CASTRUCIO, FLUELLO, and FIORATTO.

Geo. Gentlemen, what do you lack? 8

1 Pren. What is 't you buy?
2 Pren. See fine hollands, fine cambrics, fine lawns.

Geo. What is 't you lack?
2 Pren. What is 't you buy?
Cas. Where's Signor Candido, thy master?
Geo. Faith, signor, he's a little negociated, 9
he'll appear presently.

Cas. Fellow, let 's see a lawn, a choice one,
sirrah.

Geo. The best in all Milan, gentlemen, and this is the piece. I can fit you gentlemen [36] with fine calicoes too for doublets, the only sweet fashion now, most delicate and curiously, a meek gentle calico, cut upon two double affable taffetas,— ah, most neat, feat, and unmatchable!

Flu. A notable voluble-tong'd villain.

Pio. I warrant this fellow was never begot without much praying.

Cas. What, and is this she, sayest thou?

Geo. Ay, and the purest she that ever you [37] finger'd since you were a gentleman. Look how even she is, look how clean she is, ha! as even as the brow of Cynthia, and as clean as your sons and heirs when they ha' spent all.

Cas. Pooh, thou talk'st—pox on 't, 't is [38] rough.
pox on 't, sir, 't will take away the roughness
presently.

Flu. Ha, signor; ha he-fitted your French [40] curse?
Geo. Look you, gentlemen, here 's another.
Compare them I pray, compar Virgillum cum Homero, compare virgins with harlots.

Cas. Pooh, I ha' seen better, and as you [41] term them, evener and cleaner.
Geo. You may see further for your mind, but trust me, you shall not find better for your body.

Enter CANDIDO.

Cas. O here he comes, let 's make as though we pass.

Come, come, we 'll try in some other shop.

Cand. How now? What 's the matter?
Geo. The gentlemen find fault with this lawn, fall out with it, and without a cause too.
Cand. Without a cause? 10

And that makes you to let 'em pass away.
Ah, may I crave a word with you, gentlemen?

Flu. He calls us.

7 Qq. give first three speeches to All Three.
8 The shopkeeper's common cry at this period.
9 Engaged.
10 Fray, invoke.
Mr. Wax. Makes the better for the jest.
Mr. Can.'t. I pray come near, you're very welcome, gallants. 64
Pray pardon my man's rudeness, for I fear me
He's talk'd above a prentice with you. Lawns!
[Showing lawns.]
Look you, kind gentlemen, this — no — ay —
this:
Take this upon my honest-dealing faith,
To be a true weaver, not too hard nor slack,
But e'en as far from falsehood as from black. 70
Mr. Cas. Well, how do you rate it?
Mr. Cund. Very conscionably, eighteen shillings a yard.
Mr. Cas. That's too dear: how many yards does the whole piece contain, think you? 75
Mr. Cand. Why, some seventeen yards, I think, or thereabouts.
How much would serve your turn, I pray?
Mr. Cas. Why, let me see — would it be better
by?
Mr. Cund. Truth 'tis the best in Milan, at few words.
Mr. Cas. Well, let me have then — a whole penny-worth.
Mr. Cand. Ha, ha! you're a merry gentleman.
Mr. Cas. A penny-worth I say.
Mr. Cand. Of lawn!
Mr. Cas. Of lawn? Ay, of lawn, a penny-worth.
'Sblood, dost not hear? A whole penny-worth, are you deaf? 85
Mr. Cand. Deaf? no, sir; but I must tell you,
Our wares do seldom meet such customers.
Mr. Cas. Nay, an you and your lawns be so squeamish, fare you well.
Mr. Cand. Pray stay; a word, pray, signor: for what purpose is it, I beseech you?
Mr. Cas. 'Sblood, what's that to you: I'll have a penny-worth.
Mr. Cand. A penny-worth! Why you shall. I'll serve you presently. 84
2 Fre. 'Sfoot, a penny-worth, mistress!
Mr. Vio. A penny-worth? Call you these gentlemen? 86
Mr. Cas. No, no: not there.
Mr. Cand. What then, kind gentlemen, what, at this corner here?
Mr. Cas. No, nor there neither;
I'll have it just in the middle, or else not. 90
Mr. Cand. Just in the middle — ha — you shall too: what —
Have you a single penny?
Mr. Cas. Yes, here's one.
Mr. Cand. Lend it me, I pray.
Mr. Flu. An excellent followed jest!
Mr. Vio. What, will he spoil the lawn now? 110
Mr. Cand. Patience, good wife.
Mr. Vio. Ay, that patience makes a fool of you.
— Gentlemen, you might ha' found some other citizen to have made a kind gull ° on, besides my husband.
Mr. Cand. Pray, gentlemen, take her to be a
woman;
Do not regard her language. — O kind soul,
Such words will drive away my customers.

VIo. Customers with a murrait! Call you these customers? 130
Mr. Cand. Patience, good wife.
Mr. Vio. Fox a' your patience.
Mr. Geo. 'Sfoot, mistress, I warrant these are some cheating companions. 124
Mr. Cand. Look you, gentlemen, there's your ware; I thank you, I have your money here;
pray know my shop, pray let me have your custom.
Mr. Vio. Custom, quoth'a!
Mr. Cand. Let me take more of your money. 130
Mr. Vio. You had need so.
Mr. Flu. Hark in thine ear, thou 'st lost an hundred ducats.
Mr. Cas. Well, well, I know 'tis possible that homoe 134
Should be nor man, nor woman: not once mov'd;
No not at such an injury, not at all!
Sure he's a pigeon, for he has no gall.
Mr. Flu. Come, come, you're angry though you smoother it:
You're vext i' faith; confess.
Mr. Cand. Why, gentlemen,
Should you conceit me to be vext or mov'd? 140
He has my ware, I have his money for 't,
And that's no argument I'm angry: no:
The best logician cannot prove me so.
Mr. Flu. Oh, but the hateful name of a penn'orth of lawn,
And then cut 'i' th' middle of the piece.
Mr. Pah, I guess it by myself, 'twould move a lamb
Were he a linen-draper, 't would, 't faith.
Mr. Cand. Well, give me leave to answer you for
that:
We are set here to please all customers,
Their humours and their fancies; — offend none;
We get by many, if we lease by one.
May be his mind stood to no more than that,
A penn'orth serves him, and 'mongst trades
'tis found,
Deny a penn'orth, it may cross a pound. 164
Oh, he that means to thrive, with patient eye
Must please the devil if he come to buy!
Mr. Flu. O wondrous man, patient 'bove wrong or woe,
How blest were men, if women could be so!
Mr. Cand. And to express 'how well my breast is pleas'd,
And satisfied in all: — George fill a beaker. 150

Exit George.
Mr. Vio. I'll drink unto that gentleman, who lately
Bestow'd his money with me.
Mr. Flu. God's my life,
We shall have all our gains drunk out in beak-
er's,
To make amends for pennyworths of lawn! 164
[Re-enter George [with beaker].
Mr. Cand. Here wife, begin you to the gentleman.
Mr. Vio. I begin to him! [Spills the wine.]
Mr. Cand. George, fill it up again:
'T was my fault, my hand shook. Exit George.
Mr. Flu. How strangely doth show!
A patient man link'd with a waspish shrew.

1 At once. 2 Dupe. 3 Plague. 4 Felown. 5 Lose.
Flu. [Aside.] A silver and gilt beaker: I've a trick
To work upon that beaker, sure 't will fret him;
It cannot choose but vex him. — Signor Castruchio.

In pity to thee I have a conceit,
Will save thy hundred ducats yet; 't will do't,
And work him to impatience.

Cas. Sweet Fluello,
I should be bountiful to that conceit. 170
Flu. Well, 'tis enough.

[Re-enter GEORGE [with beaker.]

Cand. Here, gentlemen, to you,
I wish your custom, you're exceeding welcome.

Cas. I pledge you, Signor Candido —

Here you that must receive a hundred ducats.
Cand. O, yon beaker, I'll pledge them deep, i' faith, Castruchio. —

Flu. Come: play 't off to me;
I am your last man.

Cand. George, supply the cup.

Flu. So, so, good honest George,—

Here Signor Candido, all this to you. 184
Cand. O, you must pardon me, I use it not. 1
Flu. Will you not pledge me then?
Cand. Yes, but not that:
Great love is shown in little.

Flu. Blurt 2 on your sentences!

Cand. Indeed I shall not.

Flu. Not pledge me? 'Shood, I'll carry away the beaker then.

Cand. The beaker? Oh! that at your pleasure, sir.

Flu. Now by this drink I will. [Drinks.]

Cas. Pledge him, he'll do't else.

Flu. So: I ha' done right on my thumb-nail. 3

What will you pledge me now?

Cand. You know me, sir,
I am not of that sin.

Flu. I'll bear away the beaker by this light: 192

Cand. That's as you please; 't is very good.

Flu. Nay, it doth please me, and as you say,
'T is a very good one. Farewell, Signor Candido.

Cand. Farewell, Candido.

Cand. You're welcome, gentlemen.

Cas. Art not mov'd yet? 200

I think his patience is above our wit.

Exeunt [CASTRUCHIO, FLUELLO, PIORATTO, and GEORGE.]

I hope you will not let 'em sneak away so with a silver and gilt beaker, the best in the house too. — Go, fellows, make hue and cry after them.

Cand. Pray let your tongue lie still, all will be well. —
Come hither, George, to the constable, 210
And in calm order wish him to attach them.
Make no great stir, because they're gentlemen,
And a thing partly done in merriment.
'Tis but a size above a jest thou know'st,
Therefore pursue it mildly, Go, begone, 216
The constable's hard by, bring him along,—
Make haste again. Exit GEORGE.

Vio. O you're a kindly patient woodcock, 4 are you not now? See what your patience comes to:
every one saddles you, and rides you; 220 you'll be shortly the common stone-horse 6 of Milan: a woman's well holpt up with such a meacoek. 6 I had rather have a husband that would swaddle 7 me thrice a day, than such a one,
that will be gall'd twice in half-an-hour. 225
Oh, I could burn all the wares in my shop for anger.

Cand. Pray wear a peaceful temper; be my wife.
That is, be patient; for a wife and husband
Share but one soul between them; this being 230

Why should not one soul then agree in one?

Vio. Hang your agreements! but if my beaker be gone. —

Re-enter CASTRUCHIO, FLUELLO, PIORATTO, and GEORGE.

Cand. Oh, here they come. 254

Geo. The constable, sir, let 'em come along with me, because there should be no wond'ring:
he stays at door.

Cas. Constable, Goodman Abram. 9

Flu. Now Signor Candido, 'shlood, why do you attach us?

Cas. 'Sheart! attach us!

Cand. Nay swear not, gallants,
Your oaths may move your souls, but not move
me;
You have a silver beaker of my wife's.

Flu. You say not true: 't is gilt.

Cand. Then you say true;
And being gill'd, the guilt lies more on you. 244

Cas. I hope 'y're not angry, sir.

Cand. Then you hope right; for I'm not angry.

Flu. No, but a little mov'd.

Cand. I mov'd! 'T was you were mov'd, you were brought hither.

Cas. But you, out of your anger and impatience, 256

Cause'd us to be attach'd.

Cand. Nay, you misplace it:
Out of my quiet sufferance I did that,
And not of any wrath. Had I shown anger,
I should have then pursu'd you with the law,

1 I am not accustomed to drink whole beakers full.
2 An exclamation of contempt, equivalent to "a fig for" (Byce).
3 Emptied the cup so completely that the remaining drop will stand on the thumb-nail.

4 Simpleton. 5 Milksoop. 6 Stallion. 7 Beat. 8 In order that. 9 A beggar who pretended madness was called an Abraham man.
And hunted you to shame, as many worldlings
Do build their anger upon feeble grounds; 556
The more 's the pity; many lose their lives
For scarce so much coin as will hide their palm;
Which is most cruel: those have vexed spirits
That pursue lives. In this opinion rest, 558
The loss of millions could not move my breast.
Flu. Thou art a blest man, and with peace
dost deal;
Such a meek spirit can bless a commonweal.
Con. Gentlemen, now 'tis upon eating-time,
Pray part not hence, but dine with me to-day.
Cas. I never heard a carter yet say ray 560
To such a motion. I'll not be the first.
Eto. Nor I. 561
Con. The constable shall bear you company.
George, call him in: let the world say what it
Nothing can drive me from a patient man. 568
Exeunt.

[ACT II]

[Scene I.] 570

Enter Roger with a stool, cushion, looking-glass and shaving-dish; those being set down, he pulls out of his pocket a phial with white colour in it, and two boxes, one with white, another red painting: he places all things in order, and a spread by them, singing with the ends of old ballads as he does it. At last Bellafront, as he rubs his cheek with the colours, whistles within.

Roger. Anon, forsooth.
Bell. [within.] What are you playing the rogue about?
Roger. About you, forsooth: I'm drawing up a hole in your white silk stocking.
Bell. Is my glass there? and my boxes of complexion?
Roger. Yes, forsooth: your boxes of complexion are here, I think: yes, 'tis here. Here's your two compliances, — [Aside.] and if I had all [7]
the four compliances, I should 'er set a good facquer on't. Some man we see, are born under hard-favoured planets as well as women.
Zounds, I look worse now than I did before;
and it makes her face glister most damnaibly. There's knavery in daubing, I hold my life; or else this is only female pomatum.

Enter Bellafront not full ready, 2 without a gown; she sits down; with her bodkin 8 curls her hair; and colours her lips.

Bell. Where's my ruff and poker, 4 you block-
head?
Roger. Your ruff, your poker, are engendering together upon the cupboard of the court, or [7] the court cupboard. 6

Bell. Fetch 'em. Is the pox in your hams, you can go no faster? 700

Roger. Would the pox were in your fingers, [75 unless you could leave daubing! Catch. Exit. 75 Bell. I'll catch you, you dog, by by by; do you grumble?
She sings.

Cupid is a god, as naked as my nail,
I'll whip him with a rod, if he my true love fail.

[Re-enter Roger with ruff and poker.]
Roger. There's your ruff, shall I poke it?
Bell. Yes, honest Roger — no, stay; prithee, good boy, hold here.

[Sings. Roger holds the glass and candle.] 75

Down, down, down, down, I fall down and arise,— down —
I never shall arise.

Roger. Troth, mistress, then leave the trade
if you shall never rise.
Bell. What trade, Goodman Abram?
Roger. Why that of down and arise, or the falling trade.

Bell. I'll fall with you by and by.
Roger. If you do know who shall smart for it.
Trot, mistress, what do I look like now?
Bell. Like as you are; a panderly sixpenny rascal.

Roger. I may thank you for that: in faith, I look like an old proverb, "Hold the candle before the devil."

Bell. Up's life, I'll stick my knife in your guts and you prate to me so! — What? She sings.

Sing pretty wantons warble, etc. 96
We shall ha' guests-to-day, I lay my little maidench, my nose itches so.

Roger. I said so too last night, when our fleas twisted me.

Bell. So, poke my ruff now; my gown, my gown! Have I my fall? 7 Where's my fall, Roger?

Roger. Your fall, forsooth, is behind.

Bell. God's my pittikins! 8 some fool or other knocks.

Roger. Shall I open to the fool, mistress?

Bell. And all these baubles lying thus;
Away with it quickly. — Ay, ay, knock, and be damn'd, whosever you be! — So: give the fresh salmon line now: let him come ashore. 10 [Exit Roger.] He shall serve for my breakfast, though he go against my stomach.

Roger. Fetch in Flibello, Castrugio, and Pioratto.

Flu. Morrow, coz.

Cas. How does my sweet acquaintance?

1 A room in Bellafront's house.
2 Dressed.
3 A stick used for plaiting ruffs.
4 Frizzling iron.
5 Sideboard.
6 An expression of contempt.
7 A kind of collar, falling flat round the neck.
8 A corruption of "God's my pity."
9 An expression of contempt.
10 A kind of collar, falling flat round the neck.
11 A corruption of "God's my pity."
Pio. Save thee, little marmoset: how dost thou, good, pretty rogue?
Bell. Well, God-a-mercy, good, pretty rascal.
Flu. Roger, some light, I prithee.
Rog. You shall, signor, for we that live here in this vale of misery are as dark as hell.

"Exit for a candle."

Cas. Good tobacco, Fluello?
Flu. Small.
Pio. It may be tickling gear: for it plays with my nose already.

"Re-enter Roger [with candle]."
Rog. Here's another light angel, signor.
Bell. What, you pidd curtail, what's that you are neighing?
Rog. I say God send us the light of Heaven, or some more angels.
Bell. Go fetch some wine, and drink half of it.
Rog. I must fetch some wine, gentlemen, and drink half of it.
Flu. Here Roger.
Cas. No, let me send, prithee.
Flu. Hold, youアンkerworm.
Rog. You shall send both, if you please, signors.
Pio. Stay, what's best to drink o'mornings?
Rog. Hippocras, sir, for my mistress, if I fetch it, is most dear to her.
Flu. Hippocras? There then, here's a teston for you, snake.
Rog. Right sir, here's three shilling and sixpence for a pottle and a manchet.

"Exit."
Cas. Here's most Herculanæan tobacco; has some, acquaintance?
Bell. Faugh, not I, makes your breath stink like the piss of a fox. Acquaintance, where supt you last night?
Cas. At a place, sweet acquaintance, where your health danc'd the canaries, if faith: you should ha' been there.
Bell. I there among your punks! Marry, faugh, hang' em; I scorn it. Will you never leave sucking of eggs in other folk's nests?
Cas. Why, in good troth, if you'll trust me, acquaintance, there was not one hen at the board; ask Fluello.
Flu. No, faith, cos, none but cooks. Signor Malavella drunk to thee.
Bell. O, a pure beagle; that horse-leech there?
Flu. And the knight, Sir Oliver Lollio, swore he would bestow a taffeta petticote on thee, but to break his fast with thee.
Bell. With me? I'll choke him then, hang him, molecatcher! It's the dreaming'st snotty-nose.
Pio. Well, many took that Lollio for a fool, but he's a subtle fool.
Bell. Ay, and he has fellows: of all filthy, dry-fisted knights, I cannot abide that he should touch me.
Cas. Why, wench? Is he scabbed?
Bell. Hang him, he'll not live to be so honest, nor to the credit to have scabs about him; [his betteres have 'em: but I hate to wear out any of his coarse knight-hood, because he's made like an alderman's night-gown, fac'd all with cowry before, and within nothing but fox.
This sweet Oliver will eat mutton till he [be ready to burst, but the lean-jaw'd slave will not pay for the scraping of his trencher.
Pio. Plague him; set him beneath the salt, and let him not touch a bit, till every one has had his full cut.
Flu. Lord Elio, the gentleman-usher, came in to us too; marry, 't was in our cheese, for he had been to borrow money for his lord, of a citizen.
Cas. What an ass is that lord, to borrow money of a citizen!
Bell. Nay, God's my pity, what an ass is that citizen to lend money to a lord!

"Enter Matheo and Hippolito; Hippolito saluting the company, as a stranger, walks off." Roger comes in sadly behind them, with a pot-pot, and stands aloof.

Mat. Save you, gallants. Signor Fluello, exceedingly well met, as I may say.
Flu. Signor Matheo, exceedingly well met too, as I may say.
Mat. And how fares my little pretty mistress?
Bell. E'en as my little pretty servant; sees three court dishes before her, and not one good bit in them:—How now? Why the devil stand'st thou so? Art in a trance?
Rog. Yes, forsooth.
Bell. Why dost not fill out their wine?
Rog. Forsooth, 't is fill'd out already: all the wine that the signors have bestow'd upon you is to the convoy; a porter ran a little 12 at me, and said, 'Faith, me down that I had not a drop.
Bell. I'm accurst to let such a withered art-choke-faced rascal grow under my nose. Now you look like an old he-cat, going to the gallows. 'I'll be hang'd if he ha' not put up the money to cony-catch 14 us all.
Rog. No, truly, forsooth, 't is not put up yet.
Bell. How many gentlemen hast thou served thus?
Rog. None but five hundred, besides prentices and serving-men.
Bell. Dost think I'll pocket it up at thy hands?
Rog. Yes, forsooth, I fear you will pocket it up.
Bell. Fie, fie, out my lace, good servant; I shall ha' the mother 15 presently, I'm so vex at this horse-plum. 16
Flu. Plague, not for a scald 17 potte of wine!

1 A gold coin worth about ten shillings.
2 A doked horse.
3 Spiced and sweentened wine.
4 Sixpence.
5 Half a gallon.
6 A roll of fine bread.
7 Q. Herculan.
8 Prostitutes.
9 A sprightly dance.
10 A small red plum.
11 Mutton 17 was slang for a light woman.
12 Retires to the background.
13 Dyce suggests til. 14 Cheat. 15 Hysteries.
16 A small red plum.
17 Faltry.
Mat. Nay, sweet Bellafront, for a little pig’s wash!
Cas. Here Roger, fetch more. [Gives money.]
Mat. A mischance, ’t faith, acquaintance.
Bell. Out of my sight, thou ungodly puritanical creature.
Cas. For the t’other potte? Yes, forsooth.
Bell. Spill that too. [Exit Roger.] What gentleman is that, servant? Your friend?
Mat. Gods so; a stool, a stool! If you love me mistress, entertain this gentleman respectively, and bid him welcome.
Bell. He’s very welcome, — pray, sir, sit.
Hip. Thanks, lady.
Flu. Count Hippolito, is’t not? Cry you mercy, signor; you walk here all this while, and we not heard you! Let me bestow a stool upon you, beseech you; you are a stranger here, we know the fashions of ’th house.
Cas. Please you be here, my lord?
[Offers] tobacco.
Hip. No, good Castruchio.
Flu. You have abandoned the Court, I see, my lord, since the death of your mistress. Well, she was a delicate piece. — Beseech you, sweet, come let us serve under the colours of your acquaintance still for all that. — Please you to meet here at [the] lodging of my coz, I shall bestow a banquet upon you.
Hip. I never can deserve this kindness, sir.
Flu. Faith, sir, a poor gentlewoman, passing good carriage; one that has some suits in law, and lies here in an attorney’s house.
Hip. Is she married?
Flu. Ha, as all your punks are, a captain’s wife, or so. Never saw her before, my lord?
Hip. Never, trust me: a goodly creature!
Flu. By gad, when you know her as we do, you’ll swear she is the prettiest, kindest, sweetest, most bewitching honest ape under the pole. A skin your satin is not more soft, nor lawn whiter.
Hip. Belike, then, she’s some sale 2 courteous.
Flu. Troth, as all your best faces are, a good wench.
Hip. Great pity that she’s a good wench.
Mat. Thou shalt ha’, ’t faith, mistress. — How now, signors? What, whispering? Did not I lay a wager I should take you, within seven days, in a house of vanity?
Hip. You did; and, I beswore your heart, you’re won.
Mat. How do you like my mistress?
Hip. Well, for such a mistress; better, if your mistress be not your master. — I must break manners, gentlemen; fare you well.
Mat. ’Sfoot, you shall not leave us.
Bell. The gentleman likes not the taste of our company.
All. Beseech you stay.
Hip. Trust me, my affairs beckon for me; pardon me.
Mat. Will you call for me half an hour hence here?

---

Hip. Perhaps I shall.
Mat. Perhaps? laugh! I know you can swear to me you will.
Hip. Since you will press me, on my word, I will.
Bell. What sullen picture is this, servant?
Mat. It’s Count Hippolito, the brave count.
Flu. As gallant a spirit as any in Milan, [to you sweet Jew.
Flu. Oh! he’s a most essential gentleman, coz.
Cas. Did you never hear of Count Hippolito, aquaintance?
Mat. Marry, muth a’ your counts, an be no more life in’em.
Mat. He’s so malcontent! Sirrah Bellafront, and be honest gallants, let’s sup together, and have the count with us: — thou shalt [sit at the upper end, punk.]
Bell. Punk, you sons’d! gurnet!
Mat. King’s truce! Come, I’ll bestow the supper to have him but laugh.
Cas. He betrays his youth too grossly to [say] that tyrant melancholy.
Mat. All this is for a woman.
Bell. A woman? Some whore! What sweet jewel is’t?
Flu. Would she heard you!
Mat. Troth, so would I.
Cas. And I, by Heaven.
Bell. Good, servant, what woman?
Mat. Pah! Bell. Prithee, tell me; a buss, and tell me, I warrant he’s an honest fellow, if he take on thus for a wench. Good rogue, who?
Mat. By th’ Lord I will not, must not, faith, mistress. Is’t a match, sir? this night, at th’
Antelope: ay, for there’s best wine, and good boys.
All. It’s done; at th’ Antelope.
Bell. I cannot be there to-night.
Mat. Cannot? By th’ Lord you shall.
Bell. By the Lady I will not. Shall!
Flu. Why, then, put it off till Friday; w’nt come then, coz?
Bell. Well.

Re-enter Roger.

Mat. You’re the wapisheest ape. Roger, put your mistress in mind to sup with us on Friday next. You’re best come like a madwoman, without a band, in your waistcoat, and the linings of your kirtle outward, like every common hackney that steals out at the back gate of her sweet knight’s lodging.
Bell. Go, go, hang yourself!
Cas. It’s dinner-time, Matheo; shall’s hence?
All. Yes, yes. — Farewell, wench. [Exit.
Bell. Farewell, boys. — Roger, what wine sent they for?
Rog. Bastard wine,6 for if it had been truly begotten, it would not ha’ been asham’d to

---

6 The term sirrah was applied often to women as well as to men.
7 Pickled.
8 The term bastardo was applied often to women as well
as to men.
9 A sweet Spanish wine.

---
I would have been as true unto his pleasures,
Yea, and as royal to his afternoons,
As ever a poor gentlewoman could be.

Hip. This were well now to one but newly fledg'd,
And scarce a day old in this subtle world;
'T were pretty art, good bird-time, cunning
net;
But come, come, faith, confess: how many
me.

Have drunk this self-same protestation,
From that red 'ticing lip?

Bell. Indeed, not any.

Hip. "Indeed," and blush not!

Bell. No, in truth, not any.

Hip. "Indeed!" "In truth!" — how warily you swear!

'Tis well, if ill it be not; yet had I
The ruffian in me, and were drawn before you
But in light colours, I do know indeed,
You could not swear indeed, but thunder oaths
That should shake Heaven, drown the harmoni-uous spheres,
And pierce a soul that lov'd her maker's honour
With horror and amazement.

Bell. Shall I swear? —

Will you believe me then?

Hip. Worst then of all;
Our sins by custom, seem at last but small.
Were I but o'er your threshold, a next man, 330
And after him a next, and then a fourth,
Should have this golden hook, and lascivious
baiz.
Thrown out to the full length. Why let me tell
you:
I ha' seen letters sent from that white hand,
Tuning such music to Matheo's ear.

Bell. Matheo! that's true, but believe it, I
No sooner had laid hold upon your presence,
But straight mine eye convey'd you to my heart.

Hip. Oh, you cannot feign with me! Why, I know, lady,
This is the common passion of you all,
To huck in a kind gentleman, and then
Abuse his coin, conveying it to your lover,
And in the end you show him a French trick,
And so you leave him, that a coach may run
Between his legs for breath.

Bell. Oh, by my soul, 336
Not I! therein I'll prove an honest whore,
In being true to one, and to no more.

Hip. If any be dis'pos'd to trust your oath,
Let him: I'll not be he. I know you feign
All that you speak; ay, for a mingled harlot
Is true in nothing but in being false.
What I shall I teach you how to loath yourself?
And mildly too, not without sense or reason.

Bell. I am content; I would feign loath myself
If you not love me.

Hip. Then if your gracious blood 346
Be not all wasted, I shall assay to do't.
Lend me your silence, and attention.
You have no soul, that makes you weigh so light;
Heaven's treasure bought it:
And half-a-crown hath sold it:—for your body
Is like the common-shore, that still receives
All the town's filth, The sin of many men
Is within you; and thus much I suppose,
That if all your commiters stood in rank,
They'd make a lane, in which your shame
might dwell,
And with their spaces reach from hence to hell.
Nay, shall I urge it more? there has been known
As many by one harlot, main'd and dismembred.
As would ha' stint an hospital: this I might
Apply to you, and perhaps do you right.
O you're as base as any beast that bears,—
Your body is e'en his'd, and so are theirs.
For gold and sparkling jewels, if he can,
You'll let a Jew get you with Christian:
Be he a Moor, a Tartar, though his face
Look uglier than a dead man's skull.
Could the devil put on a human shape,
If his purse shake out crowns, up then he gets;
Whores will be rid to hell with golden bits.
So that you're crueller than Turks, for they Sell Christians only, you sell yourselves away.
Why, those that love you, hate you: and will term you
Liquorish 1 damnation; with themselves half-sunk.
After the sin is laid out, and e'en curse
Their fruitless riot; for what one begets
Another poisons; lust and murder bit:
A tree being often shook, what fruit can knit?
Bell. O me unhappy!
Hip. I can vex you more:
A harlot is like Dunkirk, true to none,
Swallows both English, Spanish, fulsome
Dutch,
Back-door'd Italian, last of all, the French,
And he sticks to you, faith, gives you your diet,
Brings you acquainted, first with Monsieur
Doctor,
And then you know what follows.
Bell. Misery.
Rank, stinking, and most loathsome misery.

Hip. Methinks a toad is happier than a whore;
That with one poison swells, with thousands
more
The other stocks her veins. Harlot? fie, fie!
You are the miserablest creatures breathing,
The very slaves of nature; mark me else
You put on rich attires, others' eyes wear them,
You eat, but to supply your blood with sin:
And this strange curse e'en haunts you to your graves.
From fools you get, and spend it upon slaves.
Like bears and apes, you're baited and show tricks
For money; but your bawd the sweetness licks.
Indeed, you are their journey-women, and do
All base and dam'd works they list set you
to;

1 lascivious.
2 Why.
3 Measure.

So that you ne'er are rich; for do but show me,
In present memory, or in ages past,
The fairest and most famous courtesan,
Whose flesh was dearer; that rais'd the price
of sin,
And held it up; to whose intemperate bosom,
Princes, earls, lords, the worst has been a knight,
The mean'st a gentleman, have off'red up.
Whole hecatombs of sighs, and rain'd in showers
Handfuls of gold; yet, for all this, at last Diseases suck'd her marrow, then grew so poor,
That she has begg'd e'en at a beggar's door.
And (wherein Heaven has a finger) when this idol,
From coast to coast, has leapt on foreign shores,
And had more worship than th' outlandish
whores;
When several nations have gone over her,
When for each several city she has seen,
Her maidenhead has been new, and been sold
dear;
Did live well there, and might have died unknown,
And undefam'd; back comes she to her own,
And there both miserably lives and dies.
Scorn'd even of those that once ador'd her
eyes,
As if her fatal cirled life thus ran,
Her pride should end where it first began.
What 2 do you weep to hear your story read?
Nay, if you spoil your cheeks, I'll read no
more.
Bell. O yes, I pray, proceed:
Indeed, 't will do me good to weep, indeed.
Hip. To give those tears a relish, this I add, You're like the Jews, scatter'd, in no place certain;
Your days are tedious, your hours burdensome:
And were 't not for full suppers, midnight revels,
Dancing, wine, riotous meetings, which do drown
And bury quite in you all virtuous thoughts,
And on your eyelids hang so heavily,
They have no power to look so high as Heaven,—
You'd sit and muse on nothing but despair, Curse that devil Lust, that so burns up your blood.
And in ten thousand shivers break your glass
For his temptation. Say you taste delight,
To have a golden gull from rise to set,
To meta 6 you in his hot luxurious arms,
Yet your nights pay for all. I know you dream
Of warrants, whips, and beadles, and then start
At a door's windy creak: think every weasel
To be a constable, and every rat
A long-tail'd officer. Are you now not slaves?
Oh, you 've damnation without pleasure for it!
Such is the state of harlots. To conclude: When you are old and can well paint no more, You turn bawd, and are then worse than before: Make use of this: farewell.

Bell. Oh, I pray, stay.

Hip. I see Matheo comes not: time hath bair’d me;

Would all the harlots in the town had heard me.

Bell. Stay yet a little longer! No? quite gone!

Curst be that minute — for it was no more,

So soon a maid is chang’d into a whore —

Wherein I first fell! Be it for ever black! Yet why should sweet Hippolito shun mine eyes, For whose true love I would become pure-honest, Hate the world’s mixtures, and the smiles of gold?

Am I not fair? Why should he fly me then? Fair creatures are desir’d, not scorn’d of men. How many gallants have drunk healths to me, Out of their dagger’d arms, and thought them blest, Enjoying but mine eyes at prodigal feasts! And does Hippolito detest my love?

Oh, sure their heedless lusts but flatt’red me, I am not pleasing; beautiful, nor young. Hippolito hath spied some ugly blemish, Eclipseing all my beauties: I am foul.

Harlot! Ay, that’s the spot that taints my soul.

What! has he left his weapon here behind him And gone forgetful? O fit instrument

To let forth all the poison of my flesh!

Thy master hates me, ’cause my blood hath rang’d:

But when ’tis forth, then he’ll believe I’m chang’d.

[As she is about to stab herself] re-enter HIPPOLITO.

Hip. Mad woman, what art doing?

Bell. Either love me, or split my heart upon thy rapier’s point: Yet do not neither; for thou then destroyest That which I love thee for — thy virtues. Here, here;

[Give sword to HIPPOLITO.] Th’ art crueler, and kill’st me with disdain: To die so, sheds no blood, yet ’tis worse pain.

Exit HIPPOLITO.

Not speak to me! Not bid farewell? A scorn? Hated! this must not be; some means I’ll try. Would all whores were as honest now as I!

[ACT III]

SCENE [I.]

Enter CANDIDO, his wife [VIOLA], GEORGE, and two Prentices in the shop: FUSTIGO enters, walking by.

Geo. See, gentlemen, what you lack; a fine holland, a fine cambric: see what you buy.

1 Prin. Holland for shirts, cambric for bands; what is ‘t you lack?

Fus. [Aside.] ’Steet, I lack ’em all; nay, [s more, I lack money to buy ’em. Let me see, let me look again: mass, this is the shop. — What cos! sweet cos! how dost, i’ faith, since last night after candle-light? We had good sport, i’ faith, had we not? And when shall’s laugh [s] again?

Vio. When you will, cousin.

Fus. Spoke like a kind Lacedemonian. I see yonder’s thy husband.

Vio. Ay, there’s the sweet youth, God bless him!

Fus. And how is’t, cousin? and how, how is’t, thou squall?

Vio. Well, cousin, how fare you?

Fus. How fare I? For sixpence a-meal, wench, as well as heart can wish, with calves’ chaldrons, and chitterlings; besides, I have a punk after supper, as good as a roasted apple.

Cand. Are you my wife’s cousin?

Fus. I am, sir; what hast thou to do with that?

Cand. O, nothing, but y’are welcome.

Fus. The devil’s dung in thy teeth! I’ll be welcome whether thou wilt or no, I. — What ring’s this, coz? Very pretty and fantastical, i’ faith! let’s see it.

Vio. Poo! nay, you wench my finger.

Fus. I ha’ sworn I’ll ha’ t, and I hope you will not let my oaths be crackt in the ring, will you? [Seizes the ring.] I hope, sir, you are not melancholly at this, for all your great looks.

Are you angry?

Cand. Angry? Not I, sir, nay if she can part So easily with her ring, ’tis with my heart.

Geo. Suffe this, sir, and suffer all. A whore-som gall, to —

Cand. Peace, George, when she has reapt what I have sown, She’ll say, one grain tastes better of her own, Than whole sheaves gather’d from another’s land.

Wit’s never good, till bought at a dear hand.

Geo. But in the mean-time she makes an ass of some body.

2 Prin. See, see, see, sir, as you turn your back they do nothing but kiss.

Cand. No matter, let ’em; when I touch her lip, I shall not feel his kisses, no, nor miss Any of her lip: no harm in kissing is. Lock to your business, pray, make up your wares.

Fus. Trut, coz, and well remember’d. I would thou wouldst give me five yards of lawn, to make my punk some falling bands a’ the fashion; three falling one upon another, for that’s the new edition now. She’s out of linen horribly, too; trut, sh’as never a good snook to her back neither, but one that has a great many patches in ’t, and that I’m faint to wear myself for want of shift, too. Prithée, put me into wholesome napery, and bestow some clean commodities upon us.

Vio. Reach me those cambries, and the lawns either.

Cand. What to do, wife? To lavish out my goods upon a fool?

Fus. Fool? Snails, eat the fool, or I'll so batter your crown, that it shall scarce go for five shillings.

2 Prent. Do you hear, sir? You're best be quiet, and say a fool tells you so.

Fus. Nails, I think so, for thou tell'st me.

Cand. Are you angry, sir, because I nam'd thee fool?

Trust me, you are not wise in my own house. And to my face to play the antic thus. If you'll needs play the madman, choose a stage of lesser compass, where few eyes may note Your action's error: but if still you miss, As here you do, for one clap, ten will hiss.

Fus. Zounds, cousin, he talks to me, as if I were a scurvy tragedian.

2 Prent. Sirrah George, I ha' thought upon a device, how to break his pate, beat him soundly, and ship him away.

Geo. Do't.

2 Prent. I'll go in, pass through the house, give some of our fellow-prentices the watch-word when they shall enter; then come and fetch my master in by a wise, and place one so in the hall to hold him in conference, whilst we cudgel the gull out of his coxcomb.

[Exit 2 Prentice.]

Geo. Do't; away, do't.

Vio. Must I call twice for these cambries and lawns?

Cand. Nay see, you anger her, George; prithée despatch.

1 Prent. Two of the choicest pieces are in the warehouse, sir.

Cand. Go fetch them presently.

[Exit 1 Prentice.]

Fus. Ay, do, make haste, sirrah.

Cand. Why were you such a stranger all this while, being my wife's cousin?

Cand. I perceive still it is your natural guise to mistake me, but you are welcome, sir; I much wish your acquaintance.

Fus. My acquaintance? I scorn that; I'll faith! I hope my acquaintance goes in chains of [110] gold three and fifty times double: — you know who I mean, coz; the posts of his gate are a-painting too.

[Re-enter the 2 Prentice.]

2 Prent. Signor Pandulfo the merchant desires conference with you.

Cand. Signor Pandulfo? I'll be with him straight, Attend your mistress and the gentleman. Exit.

1 Refract. 2 Misunderstand.

3 In allusion to the painting of a citizen's gateposts on his promotion to be sheriff, so as to display official notices the better. (Rhy.)
Cand. Why, sirs, do such examples flow from me?
Vio. They're of your keeping, sir. Alas, poor brother.
Fus. I 'faith they ha' pepper'd me, sister; look, doest not spin? Call you these prentices? I'll ne'er play at cards more when clubs is trump. I have a goodly coxcomb, sister, have I not?
Cand. Sister and brother? Brother to my wife?
Fus. If you have any skill in heraldry, you may soon know that; break but her pate, and you shall see her blood and mine is all one.
Cand. A surgeon! run, a surgeon! [Exit 1 Prentice.] Why then wore you that forged name of cousin?
Fus. Because it's a common thing to call coz and ningle now-a-days all the world over.
For under that common abused word,
Many an honest-temp'red citizen
Is made a monster, and his wife train'd out
To fowl adulterous action, full of fraud.
I may well call that word, a city's bawd.
Fus. Troth, brother, my sister would needs ha' me take upon me to gull your patience a little: but it has made double gules² on my coxcomb.
Vio. What, playing the woman? Blabbing now, you fool?
Cand. Oh, my wife did but exercise a jest upon your wit.
Fus. 'Sfoot, my wit bleeds for 't, methinks.
Cand. Then let this warning more of sense afford;
The name of cousin is a bloody word.
Fus. I'll ne'er call coz again whilst I live, to have such a coil about it. This should be a coronation day; for my head runs claret lustily.
Exit.

Enter an Officer.
Cand. Go, wish the surgeon to have great respect—
Exit 2 Prentice.
How now, my friend? What, do they sit to-day?
Offi. Yes, sir, they expect you at the senate-house.
Cand. I thank your pains; I'll not be last man there. —
Exit Officer.
My gown, George, go, my gown. [Exit George.]
A happy land,
Where grave men meet each cause to understand;
Whose consciences are not cut out in bribes² To gull the poor man's right; but in even scales,
Peize⁴ rich and poor, without corruption's vails.⁵

Re-enter George.

Come, where's the gown?
Geo. I cannot find the key, sir.
Cand. Request it of your mistress.
Vio. Come not to me for any key;

I'll not be troubled to deliver it.
Cand. Good wife, kind wife, it is a needful trouble, but for my gown!
Vio. Moths swallow down your gown!
Set your tooth on edge with talking on 't.²
Cand. Nay, prithee, sweet, I cannot meet without it, I should have a great fine set on my head.
Vio. Set on your coxcomb; sharp, let me no fines.
Cand. Believe me, sweet, none greets the senate-house, Without his robe of reverence,—that's his gown.
Vio. Well, then, you're like to cross that custom once;
You get nor key, nor gown; and so depart. —
[Aside.] This trick will vex him sure, and fret his heart.
Cand. Stay, let me see, I must have some device.—
My cloak's too short: fie, fie, no cloak will do't;
It must be something fashioned like a gown.
With my arms out. Oh George, come hither, George;
I prithee, lend me thine advice.
Geo. Troth, sir, were't any but you, they would break open chest.
Cand. O no! break open chest! that's a thief's office.
Therein you counsel me against my blood;
'Twould show impatience that: any meek means
I would be glad to embrace. Mass, I have got it. Go, step up,fetch me down one of the carpets.⁶
The saddest—colour'd carpet, honest George,⁷ Cut thou a hole i' th' middle for my neck, Two for mine arms. Nay, prithee, look not strange.
Geo. I hope you do not think, sir, as you mean.
Cand. Prithee, about it quickly, the hour chides me;
Warily, George, softly, take heed of eyes.

Exit George.

Out of two evils he's accounted wise, That can pick out the least; the fine impos'd For an un-gowned senator, is about Forty crusadoes,¹ the carpet not 'bove four.² Thus have I chosen the lesser evil yet, Preserv'd my patience, foil'd her desperate wit.

Re-enter George [with carpet].
Geo. Here, sir, here's the carpet.
Cand. O well done, George, we'll cut it just i' th' midst. [They cut the carpet.]
'T is very well; I thank thee: help it on.³
Geo. It must come over your head, sir, like a wench's petticoat.
Cand. Thou 'rt in the right, good George; it must indeed.
Fetch me a night-cap; for I'll gird it close,
¹ Mine inkle, i. e. my intimate. ² The heraldic term for red. ³ Desire. ⁴ Weigh. ⁵ Perquisites. ⁶ Portuguese coins, worth about 2s. 10d. each, but varying in value. ⁷ Quietest.
Enter a Bawd [Mistress Fingerlock] and Roger.

Miss F. O Roger, Roger, where's your mistress, where's your mistress? There's the finest, neatest gentleman at my house, but newly come over. Oh, where is she, where is she, where is she?

Rog. My mistress is abroad, but not amongst 'em. My mistress is not the whore now that you take her for.

Miss F. How? Is she not a whore? Do you go about to take away her good name, [50] Roger? You are a fine pander indeed.

Rog. I tell you, Madonna Fingerlock, I am not sad for nothing; I ha' not eaten one good meal this three and thirty days. I had wont to get sixteen pence by fetching a pottle [60] of hippoceras; but now these days are past. We had as good things, Madonna Fingerlock, she within doors, and I without, as any poor young couple in Milan.

Miss F. God's my life, and is she chang'd [70] now?

Rog. I ha' lost by her squeamishness more than I would have builded twelve bawdy-houses.

Miss F. And had she no time to turn honest but now? What a vile woman is this! [80] Twenty pound a night, I'll be sworn, Roger, in good gold and no silver. Why here was a time! If she should ha' pickt out a time, it could not be better: gold enough stirring; choice of men, choice of hair, choice of beards, choice of legs, and choice of every, every, everything. It cannot sink into my head, that she should be such an ass. Roger, I never believe it.

Rog. Here she comes now.

Enter Bellafort.

Miss F. O sweet madonna, on with your loose gown, your felt bonnet, and your feather; there's the sweetest, the prop, the rest, the gallantest gentleman at my house; he smells all of musk and amber-gris, his pocket full of crowns, flame-coloured doublet, red satin hose, carnation silk stockings, [20] ines, and a leg, and a body,—oh!

Bell. Hence thou, our sex's monster, poisonous bawd, Last's factor, and damnation's orator! Gossip of hell! were all the harlots' sins Which the whole world contains, numb'red to- gether,

Thine far exceeds them all: of all the creatures That ever were created, thou art basest. What serpent would beguile thee of thy office? It is detestable: for thou livest Upon the dregs of harlots, guard'st the door, [100] Whilst couples go to dancing. O coarse devil! Thou art the bastard's curse, thou brand'st his birth;

The lecher's French disease, for thou dry- suck'st him; The harlot's poison, and thine own confusion.

An other apartment in Bellafort's house.

Hat.

Handsomest.
Mist. F. Marry come up, with a pox! Have you nobody to rail against but your bawd now?
Bell. And you, knave pander, kinsman to a bawd.
Rog. You and I, madonna, are consins.
Bell. Of the same blood and making, near allied;
Thou, that slave to sixpence, base metall'd villain! 50
Rog. Sixpence? Nay, that's not so; I never took under two shillings four-pence; I hope I know my fee.
Bell. I know not against which most to inveigh;
For both of you are damn'd so equally.
Thou never spar'st for oaths, swear'st any thing,
As if thy soul were made of shoe-leather:
"God damn me, gentlemen, if she be within!" 1
When in the next room she's found dallying.
Rog. If it be my vocation to swear, every [to] man in his vocation. I hope my better's swear'd and damn themselves, and why should not I?
Bell. Roger, you cheat kind gentlemen.
Rog. The more gulls they.
Bell. Slave, I cashier thee.
Mist. F. An you do cashier him, he shall be entertain'd.
Rog. Shall I? Then blurt a' your service.
Bell. A she'll would have it, entertain'd by you; I dare the devil himself to match those two. 30
Exit.
Mist. F. Marry gup, 9 are you grown so holy, so pure, so honest with a pox?
Rog. Sourvy honest punk! But stay, madonna, how must our agreement be now? for,
you know, I am to have all the comings-in at the hall-door, and you at the chambers-door. 85
Mist. F. True, Roger, except my vails.
Rog. Vails? What vails?
Mist. F. Why as thus: if a couple come in a coach, and light to lie down a little, then, [to]
Roger, that's my fee, and you may walk abroad; for the coachman himself is their pander.
Rog. Is 'a so? In truth I have almost forgot, for want of exercise. But how if I fetch this [to] citizen's wife to that gallant, and that madonna to that gallant, how then?
Mist. F. Why then, Roger, you are to have sixpence a lane; so many lanes, so many sixpences. 100
Rog. Is 't so? Then I see we two shall agree, and live together.
Mist. F. Ay, Roger, so long as there be any taverns and hawdy-houses in Milan. Exeunt.

[Scene III.]
Enter Bellafront with lute, pen, ink, and paper being placed before her.

Song.

[Bell.] The courtier's flattering jewels,
Temptation's only fuels.
1 Go up, get out. 2 Parquisites.
3 Assigillation (?), Customer (?), Pair (?)
4 A chamber in Bellafront's house.

The lawyer's ill-got moneys,
That suck up poor bees' honey;
The citizen's son's riot,
The gallant's costly diet:
Silks and velvets, pearls and ambers,
Shall not draw me to their chambers.
Silks and velvets, &c. 5 She writes.

Oh, 'tis in vain to write! it will not please;
Ink on this paper would ha' but presented
The foul black spots that stick upon my soul,
And rather made me loathsome, than wroght
My love's impression in Hippolito's thought. 14
No, I must turn the chaste leaves of my breast,
And pick out some sweet means to breed my rest.
Hippolito, believe me, I will be
As true unto thy heart, as thy heart to thee,
And hate all men, their gifts and company! 19

Enter Mateo, Castruchio, Fluello, and Pioratto.

Mat. You, goody punk, subaudis 5 cockatrice, ob 'y a sweet whores of your promise, are you not; think you? How well you came to supper to us last night! Mew, a whore, and break her word! Nay, you may blush, and hold

Flu. Ay, and their yeomen too. 24
Cos. Nay, faith, acquaintance, let me tell you, you forgot yourself too much. We had so excellent cheer, rare vintage, and were drunk after supper.

Pio. And when we were in, our woodcocks, 6 sweet rogue, a brace of gulls, dwelling here in the city, came in, and paid all the shot.

Mat. Pox on her! let her alone.
Bell. Oh, I pray do, if you be gentlemen;
I pray, depart the house. Beshrew the door
For being so easily entreated! Faith,
I went but little ear unto your talk;
My mind was busied otherwise, in troth,
And so your words did unregarded pass.
Let this suffice. — I am not as I was.

Flu. I am not what I was? No, I'll be sworn thou art not; for thou went honest at five, 16 and now art a punk at fifteen. Thou went yesterday a simple whore, and now art a cunning, cony-catch, baggar-deyday.

Bell. I'll say I'm worse; I pray, forsook me then:
I do desire you leave me, gentlemen,
And leave yourselves. O be not what you are,
Spendthrifts of soul and body! 20
Let me persuade you to forsoke all harlots,
Worse than the deadliest poisons, they are worse:
For o'er their souls hangs an eternal curse,
In being slaves to slaves, their labours perish; They're seldom blest with fruit; for ere it blossoms,
Many a worm confounds it.
They have no issue but foul ugly ones,
That run along with them, even to their graves;

13 Understand. 14 Simpletons. 15 Cheating.
For, 'stead of children, they breed rank diseases,
And all you gallants can bestow on them
Is that French infant, which 'ne'er acts, but speaks.

What shallow son and heir, then, foolish gallants,
Would waste all his inheritance, to purchase
A filthy, loath'd disease? and pawn his body
To a dry evil: that wursy 't worst of all,
When th' interest will eat out the principal.

Mat. [Aside.] 'Sfoot, she gulls 'em the best!
This is always her fashion, when she would be rif of any company that she cares not for, to Enjoy mine alone.

Flu. What's here? Instructions, admonitions, and cautions? Come out, you scabbard of vagabondage.

Mat. Fluello, spurn your hounds when they foist, 1 you shall not spurn my punk, I can tell you; my blood is best.
Flu. Fox at your blood! make it a quarrel. 2
Mat. You're a slave! Will that serve turn?
All. 'Sblood, hold, hold!
Cas. Matheo, Fluello, for shame, put up!
Bell. O how many thus Mor'd with a little folly, have let out Their souls in brothel houses! fell down and died.

Just at their harlot's foot, as 't were in pride.
Matheo, we shall meet.

Mat. Ay, ay; any where, saving at church;
Pray take heed we meet not there.

Flu. Adieu, damnation!

Cas. Cockatrice, farewell! 3

Pio. There's more deceit in women, than in hell.

Erënt [Castruchio, Fluello, and Fioratto].

Mat. Ha, ha, thou dost gull 'em so rarely, so naturally! If I did not think thou hadst been in earnest!
Thou art a sweet rogue for 't faith.

Bell. Why are not you gone too, Signor Matheo?
I pray deposite my house: you may believe me,
In troth, I have no part of harlot in me.

Mat. How 's this?

Bell. Indeed, I love you not: but hate you worre.

Than any man, because you were the first
Gave money for my soul: you brake the ice,
Which after turn'd a puddle; I was led
By your temptation to be miserable.
I pray, seek out some other that will fall,
Or rather, I pray seek out none at all.

Mat. Is 't possible to be impossible? An honest whore! I have heard many honest wenches turn strumpets with a wet finger, but for a harlot to turn honest is one of Hercules' labours.
It was more easy for him in one night to make fhirty queans, than to make one of them honest again in fifty years. Come, I hope thou dost but jest.

Bell. 'Tis time to leave off jesting; I had almost

Jested away salvation, I shall love you,
If you will soon forsake me.

Mat. God be with thee!

Bell. O tempt no more women! Shun their weighty curse!

Women, at best, are bad, make them not worse.
You gladily seek our sex's overthrow;
But not to raise our states. For all your wrongs,
Will you vouchsafe me but due recompense,
To marry with me?

Mat. How! marry with a punk, a cockatrice, a harlot? Marry, laugh, I'll be burnt through the nose first.

Bell. Why, la, these are your oaths! you love to undo us,
To put Heaven from us, whilst our best hours
were;

You love to make us lewd, but never chaste.

Mat. I'll hear no more of this, this ground upon;

Thou 'rt damn'd for alt'reng thy religion. Exit.

Bell. Thy lust and sin speak so much. Go though, my ruin,
The first fall my soul took! By my example
I hope few maidens now will put their heads Under men's girdles; who least trusts is most wise:

Men's oaths do cast a mist before our eyes.

My best of wit, be ready! Now I go,
By some device to greet Hippolito.

[ACT IV]

SCENE [I].

Enter a Servant, setting out a table, on which he places a skull, a picture [of Infelice], a book, and a taper.

Ser. So, this is Monday morning, and now must I to my huswifery. Would I had been created a shoemaker, for all the gentleman craft are gentlemen every Monday by their copy, and scorn them to work one true stitch. My [s] master means sure to turn me into a student, for here's my book, here my desk, here my light, this my close chamber, and here my punk:
so that this dull drowsy first day of the week makes me half a priest, half a chamber, half [10]
a painter, half a sexton, ay, and half a bawd; for all this day my office is to do nothing but keep the door. To prove it, look you, this good face and yonder gentleman, so soon as ever my back is turn'd, will be naught together.

Enter Hippolito.

Hyp. Are all the window shut?

Ser. Close, sir, as the [fist] of a curtey that that stood in three reigns.

Hyp. Thou art a faithful servant, and ob-serve'st

The calendar both of my solemn vows,
And ceremonious sorrow. Get thee gone;

1 A chamber in Hippolito's house.
2 Certificate of membership in the craft.
I charge thee on thy life, let not the sound
Of any woman's voice pierce through that door.
Ser. If they do, my lord, I'll pierce some of them.

What will your lordship have to breakfast?
Hip. Sighs.
Ser. What to dinner?
Hip. Tears.
Ser. The one of them, my lord, will fill you too full of wind, the other wet you too much. [39
What to supper?
Hip. That which now thou canst not get me,
the constancy of a woman.
Ser. Indeed that's harder to come by than ever was Oasteud. [40
Hip. Prifhee, away.
Ser. I'll make away myself presently, which few servants will do for their lords: but rather help to make them away. Now to my door-keeping; I hope to pick something out of it.
Exit.

Hip. [taking up Infelice's picture.] My Infelice's face, her brow, her eye,
The couple on her cheek! and such sweet skill,
Hath from the cunning workman's pencil flown.
These lips look fresh and lively as her own,
Seeming to move and speak. 'Las! now I see,
The reason why fond women love to buy
Adulterate complexion! Here, 'tis read:--
False colours last after the true be dead.
Of all the roses grafted on her cheeks,
Of all the graces dancing in her eyes,
Of all the music set upon her tongue,
Of all that was past woman's excellence,
In her white bosom, - look! a painted board
Circumscribes all. Earth can no bliss afford,
Nothing of her but this. This cannot speak,
It has no lap for me to rest upon,
No lip worth tasting; here the worms will feed,
As in her coffin. Hence, then, idle art!
True-love's best picture'd in a true-love's heart.
Here art thou drawn, sweet maid, till this be dead;
So that thou liv'st twice, twice art buried.
Thou figure of my friend, lie there. What's here?

Perhaps this shrewd paste was mine enemy's:
'Tlas! say I were; I need not fear him now!
For all his braves, his contumelious breath,
His frowns, though dagger-pointed, all his plot,
Though ne'er so misciveous, his Italian pills,
His quarrels, and that common fence, his law,
See, see, they're all eaten out! Here's not left
one:
How clean they're pick'd away to the bare bone!

How mad are mortals, then, to rear great names
On tops of swelling houses! or to wear out
Their fingers' ends in dirt, to scrape up gold!
Not caring, so that sumpter-horse, the back,
Be hung with gaudy trappings, with what coarse--

1 Oasteud held out for three years and ten weeks, and was eventually captured by the Marquis of Spinola on Sept. 8, 1604.
2 Foolish.

Yea, rags most beggarly, they clothe the soul:
Yet, after all, their gayness looks thus foul.
What fools are men to build a garish tomb,
Only to save the carcasse whilst it rots,
To maintain 't long in stinking, make good car-riion,
But leave no good deeds to preserve them sound!

For good deeds keep men sweet, long above ground.
And must all come to this? fools, wise, all
hither?
Must all heads thus at last be laid together?
Draw me my picture then, thou grave neat workman,
After this fashion, not like this; these colours
In time, kissing but air, will be kist off:
But here's a fellow; that which he lays on Till doomsday alters not complexion.
Death's the best painter then: they that draw shapes,
And live by wicked faces, are but God's apes.
They come but near the life, and there they stay;
This fellow draws life too: his art is fuller,
The pictures which he makes are without colour.

Re-enter Servant.

Ser. Here's a person would speak with you,
sir.

Hip. Hah!

Ser. A parson, sir, would speak with you.

Hip. Vicar?

Ser. Vicar! No, sir; has too good a face to be a vicar yet; a youth, a very youth.

Hip. What youth? Of man or woman?

Ser. If it be a woman, marrow-bones and potato pies keep me from meddling with her, for the thing has got the breeches! 'Tis a male-varlet sure, my lord, for a woman's tailor measur'd him.

Hip. Let him give thee his message and be gone.

Ser. He says he's Signor Matheo's man, but I know he lies.

Hip. How dost thou know it?

Ser. 'Cause he has ne'er a beard. 'Tis his boy, I think, sir, whose'er paid for his nursing.

Hip. Send him and keep the door.

(Reads.) "Fata sileat mihii,
Fingere arbitrio meo,
Temperem zephyro levi
Vela."
I'd sail were I to choose, not in the ocean;
Cedars are shaken, when shrubs do feel no bruis.

Enter Bellafron, like a Page, [with a letter].

How? from Matheo?

Bell. Yes, my lord.

Hip. Art sick?

3 Q. 1635, brought.
4 Used as provocatives.
5 Seneca, Oedipus, 382.
Bell. Not all in health, my lord.

Hip. Keep off.

Bell. I do.—

[Aside.] Hard fate when women are compell'd to woo.

Hip. This paper does speak nothing.

Bell. Yes, my lord,

Matter of life, it speaks, and therefore writ 126

In hidden character: to me instruction

My master gives, and, lest you please to stay

Till you both meet, I can the text display,

Hip. Do so; read out.

Bell. I am already out. 1 120

Look on my face, and read the strangest story!

Hip. What, villain, ho? —

Re-enter Servant.

Ser. Call you, my lord?

Hip. Thou slave, thou hast let in the devil!

Ser. Lord bless us, where? He's not cloven, my lord, that I can see: besides the devil goes 135 more like a gentleman than a page. Good my lord, Buon coraggio. 2

Hip. Thou hast let in a woman in man's shape.

And thou art damn'd for 't. 130

Ser. Not damn'd I hope for putting in a woman to a lord,

Hip. Fetch me my rapier, — do not; I shall kill thee.

Purge this infected chamber of that plague,

That runs upon me thus. Slave, thrust her hence.

144

Ser. Alas, my lord, I shall never be able to thrust her hence without help! Come, mermaid, you must to sea again.

Bell. Hear me but speak, my words shall be all music;

Hear me but speak. [Knocking within.

Hip. Another beats the door,

T'other she-devil! look.

Ser. Why, then, hell's broke loose. 150

Hip. Hence; guard the chamber; let no more come on.

Exit [Servant].

One woman serves for man's damnation —

Bashrew thee, thou dost make me violate

The chastest and most sanctimonious vow,

That 'er was ent'd in the court of Heaven!

I was, on meditation, spotless wings, 155

Upon my journey thither; like a storm

Thou beat'st my ripened cogitations,

Flat to the ground; and like a thief dost stand,

To steal devotion from the holy land. 160

Bell. If woman were thy mother — if thy

heart,

Be not all marble, or if 't marble be,

Let my tears soften it, to pity me —

I do beseech thee, do not thus with scorn

Destroy a woman! 165

Hip. Woman, I beseech thee, 165

Get thee some other suit, this fits thee not;

I would not grant it to a kneeling queen,

I cannot love thee, nor I must not: see

[Points to INFELICE's picture.]

The copy of that obligation,

Where my soul's bound in heavy penalties. 170

Bell. She's dead, you told me; she'll let fall her suit.

Hip. My vows to her fled after her to Heaven.

Were thine eyes clear as mine, thou might'st behold her,

Watching upon yon battlements of stars,—

How I observe them! Should I break my bond,

This board would rive in twain, these wooden lips

Call me most perjur'd villain. Let it suffice,

I ha' set thee in the path; 'tis not a sign

I love thee, when with one so most most dear,

I'll have thee fellows? All are fellows there. 180

Bell. Be greater than a king; save not a body,

But from eternal shipwreck keep a soul.

If not, and that again sin's path I tread,

The grief be mine, the guilt fall on thy head!

Hip. Stay, and take physic for it; read this book,

Ask counsel of this head, what's to be done;

He'll strike it dead, that 'tis damnation

If you turn Turk again. Oh, do it not!

Though Heaven cannot allure you to do well,

From doing ill let hell fright you; and learn this,

The soul whose bosom lust did never touch,

Is God's fair bride, and maidens' souls are such:

The soul that leaving chastity's white shore,

Swims in hot sensual streams, is the devil's whore.—

Re-enter Servant [with letter].

How now, who comes? 186

Ser. No more knaves, my lord, that wear smocks: here's a letter from Doctor Benedict.

I would not enter his man, though he had hairs at his mouth, for fear he should be a woman, for some women have beards; marry, they 186 are half-witches. 'Slid! you are a sweet youth to wear a cod-piece, and have no pins to stick upon 't.

Hip. I'll meet the doctor, tell him; yet tonight

I cannot: but at morrow rising sun

I will not fail. — Go, woman; fare thee well.

[Exeunt [HIPPOLITO and Servant].

Bell. The lowest hell can be but into hell;

It does not move him: I must therefore fly

From this undoing city, and with tears

Wash off all anger from my father's brow: He cannot sure but joy, seeing me new born.

A woman honest first, and then turn whore,

Is, as with me, common to thousands more; 210

But from a trumpet to turn chaste, that sound

Has oft been heard, that woman hardly found. 210

Exit.

Scene [II].

Enter FUSTIGO, CRAMBO, and POLLO.

Fus. Hold up your hands, gentlemen, here's one, two, three [giving money] — nay, I warrant they are sound pistoles, and without flaws; I had them of my sister and I know she uses to
Vio. That's well, the Senate will leave wording presently:

But is George ready?

2 Pren. Yes, forsooth, he's furnished.

Vio. Now, as you ever hope to win my favour,

Throw both your duties and respects on him

With the like awe as if he were your master;

Let not your looks betray it with a smile

Or jeering glance to any customer;

Keep a true settled countenance, and beware

You laugh not, whatsoever ye hear or see.

2 Pren. I warrant you, mistress, let us alone for keeping our countenance: for, if I list,

there's ne'er a fool in all Milan shall make me laugh, let him play the fool never so like an ass, whether it be the fat squint-fool, or the lean [is] city-fool.

Vio. Enough then, call down George.

2 Pren. I hear him coming.

Enter George [in candido's apparel],

Vio. Be ready with your legs 4 then; let me see

How courtesy would become him. — Gallantly

Beshrew my blood, a proper seemly man.

Of a choice carriage, walks with a good port!

Geo. I thank you, mistress, my back 's broad enough, now my master's gown's on.

Vio. Sure, I should think it were the least of sin

To mistake the master, and to let him in. 35

Geo. 'T were a good Comedy of Errors that,

and faith.

2 Pren. Whist, whist! my master.

Enter Candido, [dressed as before in the carpet

he staves at George,] and exit presently.

Vio. You all know your tasks. — God's my life, what's that he has got on 's back? Who can tell?

Geo. [Aside.] That can I, but I will not.

Vio. Girl about him like a madman! What, has he lost his cloak too? This is the maddest fashion that e'er I saw. What said he, George, when he passed by thee?

Geo. Troth, mistress, nothing: not so much as he did not hum; not so much as a bawd,

he did not hum; not so much as a cuckold,

he did not; neither hum, him, nor ha;

only stared me in the face, passed along,

and made haste in, as if my looks had worked [30]

with him, to give him a stool.

Vio. Sure he's vex't now, this trick has mov'd his spleen,

He's anger'd now, because he uttur'd nothing;

And wordless wrath breaks out more violent.

May be he'll strive for place, when he comes down.

But if thou lov'st me, George, afford him none.

Geo. Nay, let me alone to play my master's prize, as long as my mistress warrants me. I'm sure I have his best clothes on, and I scorn to give place to any that is inferior in apparel [to me; that's an axiom, a principle, and is ob-

4 Quibbles. There were three degrees in fencing, the master's, the provost's, and the scholar's, for each of which a "prize was played."
serv'd as much as the fashion. Let that persuade you then, that I'll shoulder with him for the upper hand in the shop, as long as this chain will maintain it.

Vio. Spoke with the spirit of a master, though with the tongue of a prentice.

Re-enter CANDIDO like a Prentice.

Why how now, madman? What in your tricksy-coats?

Cand. O peace, good mistress.

Enter CRAMBO and POLI.

See, what you lack? What is't you buy? Pure calicoes, fine holands, choice cambries, neat lawns? See, what you buy? Pray come near, my master will use you well, he can afford you a penny-worth.

Vio. Ay, that he can, out of a whole piece of lawn, i' faith.

Cand. Pray see your choice here, gentlemen.

I'll vex you i' faith: boy take your cloak, quick, come.

Cand. Be covered, George, this chain and welted 1 gown

Base to this coat? Then the world's upside down.

Geo. Umh, umh, hum.

Cram. That's the shop, and there's the follow-Poli. Ay, but the master is walking in there.

Cram. No matter, we'll in.

Poli. 'Sblood, dost long to lie in limb? Cram. An limb be in hell, I care not.

Cand. Look you, gentlemen, your choice: cambries?

Cram. No, sir, some shirting.

Cand. You shall.

Cram. Have you none of this strip'd canvas for doublets?

Cand. None strip'd, sir, but plain.

2 Prem. I think there be one piece strip'd within.

Geo. Stop, sirrah, and fetch it, hum, hum, hum.

[Exit 2 Prem., and returns with the piece.]

Cand. Look you, gentleman, I'll make but one spreading, here 's a piece of cloth, fine, yet shall wear like iron. 'Tis without fault; take this upon my word, 'tis without fault.

Cram. Then 'tis better than you, sirrah.

Cand. Ay, and a number more. Oh, that each soul

Were but as spotless as this innocent white, and had as few breaks in it!

Cram. 'Twould have some then:

There was a fray here last day in this shop.

Cand. There was, indeed, a little flea-biting.

---

Poli. A gentleman had his pate broke; call you that but a flea-biting?

Cand. He had so.

Cram. Zounds, do you stand to it?

Geo. 'Sfoot, clubs! clubs! Prentices, down with 'em!

[Enter several Prentices with clubs, who disarm CRAMBO and POLI.]

Ah, you rogues, strike a citizen in his shop?

Cand. None of you stir, I pray; forbear, good George.

Cram. I beseech you, sir, we mistook our marks; deliver us our weapons.

Geo. Your head bleeds, sir; cry clubs!

Cand. I say you shall not; pray be patient, Give them their weapons. Sirs, 't are best be gone;

I tell you here are boys more tough than bears.

Hence, lest more fists do walk about your ears.

Cram., Poli. We thank you, sir.

Cand. You shall not follow them; Let them alone, pray; this did me no harm.

Troth, I was cold, and the blow made me warm, I thank 'em for 't: besides, I had decreed To have a vein prickt, I did mean to bleed: So that there's money sav'd. They're honest men, Pray use 'em well when they appear again.

Geo. Yes, sir, we'll use 'em like honest men.

Cand. Ay, well said, George, like honest men, though they be arrant knaves, for that's the phrase of the city. Help to lay up these wares.

Re-enter his Wife with Officers.

Vio. Yonder he stands.

1 Off. What in a prentice-coat?

Vio. Ay, ay; mad, mad; pray take heed.

Cand. How now! what news with them?

What make they with my wife?

Officers, is she attach'd? — Look to your wares.

Vio. He talks to himself: oh, he 's much gone indeed.

1 Off. Pray, pluck up a good heart, be not so fearful.

Sirs, hark, we'll gather to him by degrees.

Vio. Ay, ay, by degrees I pray. Oh me! What makes he with the lawn in his hand?

He'll tear all the ware in my shop.

1 Off. Fear not, we'll catch him on a sudden.

Vio. Oh! you had need do so; pray take heed of your warrant.

1 Off. I warrant, mistress. Now, Signor Candido.

Cand. Now, sir, what news with you, sir?

Vio. What news with you? he says: oh, he's far gone!

1 Off. I pray, fear nothing; let's alone with him.

Signor, you look not like yourself, methinks, — Steal you a t'other side; — you're chang'd, you're alt'red.

Cand. Chang'd sir, why true, sir. Is change strange? 'Tis not

1 With ornamental border.

2 Decided.
The fashion unless it alter! Monarchs turn
To beggars, beggars creep into the nests
Of princes, masters serve their prentices,
Ladies their serving-men, men turn to women.

1 Off. And women turn to men.

Cand. Ay, and women turn to men, you say true. Ha, ha, a mad world, a mad world.

[Officers seize CANDIDO.]

1 Off. Have we caught you, sir?

Cand. Caught me? Well, well, you have caught me.

Vio. He laughs in your faces.

Geo. A rescue, prentices! My master's catch-pol'd.

1 Off. I charge you, keep the peace, or have your legs.

Gartered with irons! We have from the duke A warrant strong enough for what we do.

Cand. I pray, rest quiet, I desire no rescue. Vio. La, he desires no rescue, las poor heart.

He talks against himself.

Cand. Well, what's the matter?

1 Off. Look to that arm. Pray, make sure work, double the cord. [Officers bind CANDIDO.]

Cand. Why, why?

Vio. Look how his head goes. Should he get but loose.

Oh 't were as much as all our lives were worth!

1 Off. Fear not, we'll make all sure for our own safety.

Cand. Are you at leisure now? Well, what's the matter?

Why do I enter into bonds thus, ha?

1 Off. Because y' are mad, put fear upon your wife.

Vio. Oh, ay, I went in danger of my life every minute.

Cand. What, am I mad, say you, and I not know it?

1 Off. That proves you mad, because you know not it.

Vio. Pray talk to him as little as you can, you see he's too far spent.

Cand. Bound, with strong cord! A sister's thread, 'tis faith, had been enough, To lead me anywhere. — Wife, do you long?

You are mad too, or else you do wrong.

Geo. But are you mad indeed, master?

Cand. My wife says so.

And what she says, George, is all truth, you know.

And whither now, to Bethlehem Monastery?

Ha! whither?

1 Off. Faith, e'en to the madman's pound.

Cand. A God's name! still I feel my patience sound. [Exeunt Officers with CANDIDO.]

Geo. Come, we'll see whither he goes. If the master be mad, we are his servants, and must follow his steps; we'll be mad-caps too. Farewell, mistress, you shall have us all in Bedlam.

[Exeunt George and Prentices.]

Vio. I think I ha' fitted you now, you and your clothes.

If this move not his patience, nothing can; I'll swear then I've a saint, and not a man.

[Exit.]
Duke. Which to prevent—

Doct. 'Tis from my heart as far.

Duke. No matter, doctor; 'cause I'll fear less sleep,
And that you shall stand clear of that suspicion,
I banish thee from ever from my court.
This principle is old, but true as fate.
Kings may love treason, but the traitor hate.

Exit. Doct. Is 't so? Nay then, duke, your stale principle,
With one as stale, the doctor thus shall quit.
He falls himself that digs another's pit.

Enter the Doctor's Man.

How now! where is he? will he not meet me?

Man. Meet you, sir? He might have met with three fencers in this time, and have received as less hurt than by meeting one doctor of physic. Why, sir, he has walkt under the old abbey-wall yonder this hour, till he's more cold than a citizen's country house in Janiver. You may smell him behind, sir: la, you, yonder he comes.

Enter Hippolito.

Doct. Leave me.

Man. I 'th' lurch, if you will.

Doct. O my most noble friend!

Hipp. Few but yourself, could haveentic'd me thus, to trust the air.
With my close sights. You sent for me; what news?

Doct. Come, you must doff this black, dye that pale cheek
Into his own colour, go, attire yourself
Fresh as a bridegroom when he meets his bride.
The duke has done much treason to thy love;
'Tis now reveal'd, 'tis now to be reveng'd.
Be merry, honour'd friend, thy lady lives.

Hipp. What lady?

Doct. Infelice, she's reviv'd.
Reviv'd? Alack! death never had the heart,
To take breath from her.

Hipp. Umb: I thank you, sir,
Physic prolongs life, when it cannot save;
This helps not my hopes, mine are in their grave,
You do some wrong to mock me.

Doct. By that love
Which I have ever borne you, what I speak
Is truth: the maiden lives; that funeral,
Duke's tears, the mourning, was all counterfeit.
A sleepy draught coz'ned the world and you:
I was his minister, and then chambr'ed up,
To stop discovery. O treacherous duke!

Doct. He cannot hope so certainly for bliss,
As he believes that I have poison'd you.

Hipp. He woo'd me to 't; I yielded, and confirm'd him
In his most bloody thoughts.

Hipp. A very devil!

Doct. Her did he closely coach to Bergamo,
And thither—

Hipp. Will I ride. Stood Bergamo

In the low countries of black hell, I'll to her.

Doct. You shall to her, but not to Bergamo.

How passion makes you fly beyond yourself!
Much of that weary journey I ha' cut off;
For she by letters hath intelligence
Of your supposed death, her own interment,
And all those plots which that false duke, her father,
Has wrought against you; and she'll meet you—

Hipp. Oh, when ?

Doct. Nay, see; how covetous are your desires.
Early to-morrow morn.

Hipp. Oh where, good father?

Doct. At Bethlehem Monastery: are you pleas'd now?

Hipp. At Bethlehem Monastery! The place well fits;
It is the school where those that lose their wits Practise again to get them. I am sick
Of that disease; all love is lunatic.

Doct. We'll steal away this night in some disguise.
Father Anselmo, a most reverend friar,
Expects our coming; before whom we'll lay
Reasons so strong, that he shall yield in bands
Of holy wedlock to tie both your hands.

Hipp. This is such happiness,
That to believe it, 'tis impossible.

Doct. Let all your joys then die in misbelief;
I will reveal no more.

Hipp. O yes, good father,
I am so well acquainted with despair,
I know not how to hope: I believe all.

Doct. We'll hence this night. Much must be done, much said;
But if the doctor fail not in his charms,
Your lady shall ere morning fill these arms.

Hipp. Heavenly physician! for thy fame shall spread,
That mak'st two lovers speak when they be dead.

Exit. [ACT V]

[SCENE I.]

Enter Candido's wife [VIOLET with a petition] and George, PIORATTO meets them.

Vio. Oh watch, good George, watch which way the duke comes.

Geo. Here comes one of the butterflies; ask him.

Vio. Pray, sir, comes the duke this way?

Geo. He's upon coming, mistress.

Vio. I thank you, sir. [Exit PIORATTO.] George, are there many mad fools where thy master lies?

Geo. Oh yes, of all countries some; but especially mad Greeks, they swarm. Troth, [as mistress, the world is altered with you; you had not wont to stand thus with a paper humbly complaining: but you're well enough serv'd; provender pricket 2 you, as it does many of our city wives besides.

Vio. Dost think, George, we shall get him forth?

1 A hall in the Duke's Palace.

2 High-feeding prompted.
Geo. Truly, mistress, I cannot tell; I think you'll hardly get him forth. Why, 'tis strange! Shoo, I have known many women that have had mad rascals to their husbands, whom they would belabour by all means possible to keep 'em in their right wits; but of a woman to long to turn a tame man into a madman, why the devil himself was never us'd so by his dam.

Vio. How does he talk George? Ha! good George, tell me.

Geo. Why, you're best go see.

Vio. Alas, I am afraid!

Geo. Afraid! you had more need be ashamed. He may rather be afraid of you.

Vio. But, George, he's not stark mad, is he? He does not rave, he is not horn-mad, George, is he?

Geo. Nay I know not that, but he talks like a justice of peace, of a thousand matters, and to no purpose.

Vio. I'll to the monastery. I shall be mad till I enjoy him, I shall be sick until I see him; yet when I do see him I shall weep out mine eyes.

Geo. I'd fain see a woman weep out her eyes! That's as true as to say, a man's cloak burns, when it hangs in the water. I know you'll weep, mistress, but what says the painted cloth?

Trust not a woman when she cries.
For she'll pump water from her eyes
With a wet finger, and in faster showers
Than April when he rains down flowers.

Vio. Ay, but George, that painted cloth is worthy to be hanged up for lying. All women have not tears at will, unless they have good cause.

Geo. Ay, but mistress, how easily will they find a cause, and as one of our cheese-trenchers says very learnedly,

As out of wormwood bees suck honey,
As from poor clients lawyers firk money,
As parsley from a roasted cony:
So, though the day be never so sunny,
If wives will have it rain, down then it drives.

The calmest husbands make the stormiest wives.

Vio. Tame, George. But I ha' done storming now.

Geo. Why that's well done. Good mistress, throw aside this fashion of your humour, be not so fantastical in wearing it; storm no more, long no more. This longing has made you come short of many a good thing that you might have had from my master. Here comes the duke.

Enter DUKE, FLUELLO, PIORATTO, and SINEZI.

Vio. O, I beseech you, pardon my offence. In that I durst abuse your grace's warrant; Deliver forth my husband, good my lord.

Duke. Who is his husband?

Flu. Candido, my lord.

Duke. Where is he?

Vio. He's among the lunatics;

1 A cheap substitute for tapestry, frequently adorned with mottoes and verses.
2 Readily.
3 Cheese-trenchers used to be inscribed with proverbial phrases.

He was a man made up without a gall; Nothing could move him, nothing could convert His meek blood into fury; yet like a monster, I often beat at the most constant rock Of his unshaken patience, and did long To vex him.

Duke. Did you so?

Vio. And for that purpose Had warrant from your grace, to carry him To Bethlem Monastery, whence they will not free him Without your grace's hand that sent him in.

Duke. You have long'd fair; 'tis you are mad, I fear.

It's fit to fetch him thence, and keep you there.

If he be mad, why would you have him forth?
Geo. An please your grace, he's not stark mad, but only talks like a young gentleman, somewhat fantastically, that's all. There's a thousand about your court, city, and country, try madder than he.

Duke. Provide a warrant, you shall have our hand.

Geo. Here's a warrant ready drawn, my lord.

Duke. Get pen and ink, get pen and ink.

[Exit GEORGE.]

Enter CASTRUCHIO.

Cas. Where is my lord the duke?

Duke. How now! more madmen?

Cas. I have strange news, my lord.

Duke. Of what? Of whom?

Cas. Of Infelice, and a marriage.

Duke. Ha! where? with whom?

Cas. Hipolito.

Re-enter GEORGE, with pen and ink.

Cas. Here, my lord.

Duke. Hence, with that woman! Void the room!

Flu. Away! the duke's vext.

Geo. Whoop, come, mistress, the duke's mad too.

Exeunt [VIOLA and GEORGE].

Duke. Who told me that Hipolito was dead?
Cas. He that can make any man dead, the doctor: but, my lord, he's as full of life as wild fire, and as quick. Hipolito, the doctor, and one more rid hence this evening; the inn at which they light is Bethlem Monastery; Infelice comes from Bergamo and meets them there. Hipolito is mad, for he means this day to be married; the afternoon is the hour, and Friar Anselm is the knitter.

Cas. It cannot be.

Duke. I will not swear, my lord; But this intelligence I took from one Whose brains work in the plot.

Duke. What's he?

Cas. Matheo.

Flu. Matheo knows all.

Pior. He's Hipolito's bosom.

Duke. He's Hipolito's bosom.

Cas. Six or seven miles.
Duke. Is’t so? Not married till the afternoon: Stay, stay, let’s work out some prevention. How! 110 This must strange; can none but mad men serve To dress their wedding dinner? All of you get presently to horse, disguise yourselves Like country-gentlemen, or riding citizens, or so: and take Each man a several path, but let us meet At Bethlem Monastery; some space of time Being spent between the arrival each of other, As if we came to see the lunatics. To horse, away! Be secret on your lives. 120 Love must be punish’d that unjustly thrives.

Flu. Be secret on your lives! Castruchio, You're but a scurvy spaniel. Honest lord, Good lady! Zounds, their love is just, 'tis good, And I'll prevent you, though I swim in blood.

Exeunt [all but FLUELLO].

[SCENE II.]

Enter Friar ANSELMO, HIPPOLOTO, MATHEO, and INFELICE.

Hip. Nay, nay, resolve, a good father, or deny.

Ans. You press me to an act both full of danger And full of happiness; for I behold Your father's frowns, his threats, nay, perhaps death To him that dare do this: yet, noble lord, tis such comfortable beams break through these clouds By this blest marriage, that your honour'd word Being pawn'd in my defence, I will tie fast The holy wedding-knot.

Hip. Tush, fear not the duke.

Ans. O son! wisely to fear, is to be free from fear.

Hip. You have our words, and you shall have our lives, To guard you safe from all ensuing danger.

Mat. Ay, ay, chop 'em up, and away.

Ans. Stay, when is't fit for me, and safest for you, To entertain this business?

Hip. Not till the evening. 130 Ans. Be't so, there is a chapel stands hard by, Upon the west end of the abbey wall; Thither convey yourselves, and when the sun Hath turn'd his back upon this upper world, I'll marry you; that done, no thund'ring voice Can break the sacred bond: yet, lady, be you most safe.

Inf. Father, your love's most dear.

Mat. Ay, well said; lock us into some little room by ourselves, that we may be mad for an hour or two.

Hip. O, good Matheo, no, let's make no noise.

Mat. How! no noise! Do you know where you are? 'Sfoot, amongst all the madcaps in Milan; so that to throw the house out at window will be the better, and no man will suspect that we lurk here to steal mutton. The more sober we are, the more scurvy 'tis. And though the friar tell us that here we are safest, I am not of his mind; for if those lay here that had lost their money, none would ever look after them; but here are none but those that have lost their wits, so that if hue and cry be made, hither they'll come; and my reason is, because none goes to be married till he be stark mad.

Hip. Muffle yourselves, yonder's FLUELLO.

Enter FLUELLO.

Mat. Zounds! 140 Flu. O my lord, these cloaks are not for this rain! The tempest is too great. I come sweating to tell you of it, that you may get out of it.

Mat. Why, what's the matter?

Flu. What's the matter? You have matter'd it fair; the duke's at hand.

All. The duke?

Flu. The very duke.

Hip. Then all our plots Are turn'd upon our heads and we're blown up With our own underminings. 'Sfoot, how comes he?

What villain durst betray our being here? Flu. Castruchio told the duke, and Matheo here told Castruchio.

Hip. Would you betray me to Castruchio?

Mat. 'Sfoot, he damn'd himself to the pit of all hell, if he speak on't again.

Hip. So did you swear to me: so were you damn'd.

Mat. Fox on 'em, and there be no faith in men, if a man shall not believe oaths. He took bread and salt, by this light, that he would never open his lips.

Hip. O God, O God!

Ans. Son, be not desperate, Have patience, you shall trip your enemy Down by his own slight; how far is the duke hence?

Flu. He's but new set out; Castruchio, Fioratto, and Sinezi come along with him. You have time enough yet to prevent 6 them, if you have but courage.

Ans. Ye shall steal secretly into the chapel, And presently be married. If the duke Abide here still, spite of ten thousand eyes, You shall escape hence like friars.

Hip. O blest disguise! O happy man!

Ans. Talk not of Happiness till your clos'd hand Have her by th' forehead, like the look of Time, Be nor too slow, nor hasty, now you climb Up to the tower of bliss; only be wary And patient, that's all. If you like my plot, Build and despatch; if not, farewell, then not.

1 An apartment in Bethlem Monastery.

2 Consent.

3 I. e. to steal a wench.

4 Suspicious.

5 Artifices.

6 Anticipate.
Hip. O yes, we do applaud it! we'll dispute.

No longer, but will hence and execute.

Fluello, you'll stay here: let us be gone.

The ground that fretted lovers tread upon

Is stuck with thorns.

An. Come, then, away, 'tis meet,

To escape those thorns, to put on winged feet. [Exeunt [Anselmo, Hippolito, and Invidia].

Mat. No words, I pray, Fluello, for 't stands us upon.

Flu. Oh, sir, let that be your lesson! [Exit Matheo.]

Alas, poor lovers! on what hopes and fears

Men toss themselves for women! when she's got

The best has in her that which pleaseth not.

Enter to Fluello the Duke, Castruchio, Pioratzo, and Sinezi from several doors, muffled.

Duke. Who's there?

Cas. My lord.

Duke. Peace; send that "lord" away.

A lordship will spoil all; let's be all fellows.

What's he?

Cas. Fluello, or else, Sinezi, by his little legs.

All. All friends, all friends.

Duke. What? Met upon the very point of time?

Is this the place?

Pio. This is the place, my lord.

You have not seen these lovers yet?

All. Not yet.

Duke. Castruchio, art thou sure this wedding fea

Is not till afternoon?

Cas. So 't is given out, my lord.

Duke. Nay, nay, 't is like; thieves must observe their hours;

Lovers watch minutes like astronomers;

How shall the interim hours by us be spent?

Flu. Let's all go to see the madmen.

All. Mass, content.

Enter a Sweeper.¹

Duke. Oh, here comes one; question him, question him.

Flu. Now, honest fellow? dost thou belong to the house?

Sweep. Yes, forsooth, I am one of the implements; I sweep the madmen's rooms, and fetch straw for 'em, and buy chains to tie 'em, and rods to whip 'em. I was a mad wag myself here, once, but I thank Father Anselmo, he lasht me into my right mind again.

Duke. Anselmo is the friar must marry them; Question him where he is.

Cas. And where is Father Anselmo now?

Sweep. Marry, he's gone but o'en now.

Duke. Ah, well done. — Tell me, whither is he gone?

Sweep. Why to God a' mighty.

Flu. Ha, ha! this fellow's a fool, talks idly.

Pio. Sirrah, are all the mad folks in Milan brought hither?

Sweep. How, all? There's a question indeed! Why if all the mad folks in Milan should come hither, there would not be left ten men in the city.

Duke. Few gentlemen or courtiers here, ha?

Sweep. O yes, abundance, abundance! Lands no sooner fall into their hands, but straight they run out a' their wits. Citizens' sons and heirs are to lose wits again by their fathers' copy. Farmers' sons come hither like geese, in flocks, and when they ha' sold all their cornfields, here they sit and pick the straws.

Sin. Methinks you should have women here as well as men.

Sweep. Oh, ay, a plague on 'em, there's no ho! with 'em; they're madder than March hares.

Flu. Are there no lawyers amongst you?

Sweep. Oh no, not one; never any lawyer. We dare not let a lawyer come in, for he'll make 'em mad faster than we can recover 'em.

Duke. And how long is 't ere you recover any of these?

Sweep. Why, according to the quantity of the moon that's got into 'em. An alderman's son will be mad a great while, a very great while, especially if his friends left him well. A whore will hardly come to lose wits again by puritan, there's no hope of him, unless he may pull down the steeple, and hang himself i' th' bell-ropes.

Flu. I perceive all sorts of fish come to your net.

Sweep. Yes, in truth, we have blocks for all heads; we have good store of wild-oats here; for the courtier is mad at the citizen, the citizen is mad at the countryman; the shoemaker is mad at the cobbler, the cobbler at the carman, the punks is mad that the merchant's wife is whore, the merchant's wife is mad that the punk is so common a whore. Gods so, here's Father Anselmo; pray say nothing that I tell takes out of the school.

Re-enter Anselmo [and Servants].

All. God bless you, father.

Ans. I thank you, gentlemen.

Cas. Pray, may we see some of those wretched souls,

That here are in your keeping?

Ans. Yes, you shall;

But gentlemen, I must disarm you then. There are of mad men, as there are of tame, All humour'd not alike: we have here some, So aspish and fantastic, play with a feather, And, though 't would grieve a soul to see God's image So blemish'd and defaced, yet do they act

² Citizenship. ³ Check. ⁴ Moulds for hats, or hats.
Such antic and such pretty lunacies,
That spite of sorrow they will make you smile.
Others again we have like hungry lions,
Fierce as wild-bulls, untameable as flies,
And these have oftentimes from strangers' sides
Snatch'd rapiers suddenly, and done much harm,
Whom if you'll see, you must be weaponless.
All. With all our hearts.

[Giving their weapons to ANSELMO.]

Ans. Here, take these weapons in.—
[Exit Servant with weapons;]

Stand off a little, pray; so, so, 'tis well.
I'll show you here a man that was sometimes
A very grave and wealthy citizen;
Has serv'd a prenticeship to this misfortune,
Been here seven years, and dwelt in Bergamo.

Duke. How fell he from his wits?

Ans. By loss at sea;
I'll stand aside, question him you alone,
For if he spy me, he'll not speak a word,
Unless he's thr'oughly vex'd.

Discovers an old man, wrapt in a net.

Flu. Alas, poor soul!

Cas. A very old man.

Duke. God speed, father!

1 Mad. God speed the plough, thou shalt not speed me.

Pio. We see you, old man, for all you dance in a net.

1 Mad. True, but thou wilt dance in a halter, and I shall not see thee.

Ans. Oh do not vex him, pray.

Cas. Are you a fisherman, father?

1 Mad. No, I am neither fish nor flesh.

Flu. What do you with that net then?

1 Mad. Dost not see, fool? There's a fresh salmon in 't; if you step one foot further, you'll be over shoes, for you see I'm over head and ears in the salt-water: and if you fall into this whirlpool where I am, y'are drown'd: y'are a drown'd rat. I am fishing here for five ships, but I cannot have a good draught, for my nets break still, and breaks; but I'll break some of your necks and catch you in my clutches.

Stay, stay, stay, stay, where's the wind? where's the wind? where's the wind? Out, you gulls, you goose-caps; you gudgeon-eaters! Do you look for the wind in the heavens? Ha, ha, ha! no, no! Look there, look there, look there! the wind is always at that door: hark how it blows, puff, puff, puff!

All. Ha, ha, ha!

1 Mad. Do you laugh at God's creatures? Do you mock old age, you rogue? In this gray beard and head counterfeit that you cry, ha, ha, ha? Sirrah, art not thou my eldest son?

Pio. Yes, indeed, father.

1 Mad. Then th'art a fool, for my eldest son had a polt-foot, crooked legs, a verjuice face, and a pear-colour'd beard. I made him a scholar, and he made himself a fool. — Sirrah, thou there: hold out thy hand.

1 Simpleton. 2 Dupes. 3 Club foot. 4 Sour, crabbed.

1 Mad. Look, look, look, look! Has he not long nails, and short hair?

Flu. Yes, monstrous short hair, and abominable long nails.

1 Mad. Ten-penny nails, are they not?

Flu. Yes, ten-penny nails.

1 Mad. Such nails had my second boy. Kneel down, thou varlet, and ask thy father's blessing. Such nails had my middlemost son, and I made him a promoter: and he scrapt, and hurst, and scrapt, till he got the devil and all: but he scrapt thus, and thus, and thus, and it went under his legs, till at length a company of kites, taking him for carrion, swept up all, all, all, all. If you love your lives, look to yourselves: see, see, see, see, the Turks' galleys are fighting with my ships! Bounce goes the guns! Ooh! cry the men! Rumble, rumble, go the waters! Alas, there; 'tis sunk, 'tis sunk: I am undone, I am undone! You are the damn'd pirates have undone me: you are, by the Lord, you are, you are! — Stop'em — you are!

Ans. Why, how now sirrah! Must I fall to tame you?

1 Mad. Tame me! No, I'll be madder than a roasted cat. See, see, I am burnt with gunpowder, these are our close fights!

Ans. I'll whip you, if you grow unruly thus.

1 Mad. Whip me? Out you toad! Whip [sir] me? What justice is this, to whip me because I am a beggar? Alas! I am a poor man: a very poor man! I am starv'd, and have had no meat by this light, ever since the great flood; I am a poor man.

Ans. Well, well, be quiet, and you shall have meat.

1 Mad. Ay, ay, pray do; for, look you, here be my guts: these are my ribs — you may look through my ribs — see how my guts come out! These are my red guts, my very guts, oh! oh!

Ans. Take him in there.

[Servants remove 1 Madman.]

All. A very pitious sight.

Cas. Father, I see you have a busy charge.

Ans. They must be us'd like children, pleas'd with toys.

And anon whipt for their unruliness.

I'll show you now a pair quite different.

From him that's gone. He was all words; and these

Unless you urge 'em, seldom spend their speech,
But save their tongues.

[Opens another door, from which enter 2 and 3 Madmen.]

La, you; this besommost

Fell from the happy quietness of mind

About a maiden that he lov'd, and died.

He followed her to church, being full of tears,

And as her body went into the ground,

He fell stark mad. This is a married man,

Was jealous of a fair, but, as some say.

A very virtuous wife; and that spoil'd him.

6 Informer.
3 Mad. All these are whoremongers, and lay with any wife: whore, whore, whore, whore, whore! 390

FLU. Observe him.

3 Mad. Gaffer shoemaker, you pull'd on my wife's pumps, and then crept into her pantofles; lie there, lie there! This was her tailor. 394

You cut out her loose-bodied gown, and put in a yard more than I allowed her; lie there by the shoemaker. O master doctor! are you here? You gave me a purgation, and then crept into my wife's chamber to feel her pulses, and 399 you said, and she said, and her maid said, that they went pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat. Doctor, I'll put you anon into my wife's urinal. Heigh, come aloft, Jack! This was her school-master, and taught her to play upon the virginals, 314 and still his jacks 3 leapt up, up. You pricked her out nothing but bawdy lessons, but I'll prick you all, fiddler — doctor — tailor — shoemaker — shoemaker — fiddler — doctor — tailor! So! lie with my wife again, now.

Cas. See how he notes the other, now he feeds.

3 Mad. Give me some porridge.

2 Mad. I'll give thee none.

3 Mad. Give me some porridge.

2 Mad. I'll not give thee a bit.

3 Mad. Give me that flap-dragon. 5

2 Mad. I'll not give thee a spoonful. Thou liest, it's no dragon, 'tis a parrot that I bought for my sweetheart, and I'll keep it.

3 Mad. Here's an almond for parrot. 5

2 Mad. Hang thyself!

3 Mad. Here's a rope for parrot. 5

2 Mad. Eat it, for I'll eat this.

3 Mad. I'll shoot at thee, an thou 't give me none.

2 Mad. W'lt thou?

3 Mad. I'll run a tilt at thee, an thou 't give me none.

2 Mad. W'lt thou? Do an thou dar'st.

3 Mad. Bounce! 340

[Strikes him.]

2 Mad. O — oh! I am slain! Murder, murder, I am slain; my brains are beaten out.

Ans. How now, you villains! Bring me whips: I'll whip you.

2 Mad. I am dead! I am slain! ring out the bell, for I am dead.

DUKE. How will you do now, sirrah? You ha' kill'd him.

3 Mad. I'll answer 't at sessions; he was eating of almond-butter, and I long'd for 't. The child had never been delivered out of my belly, if I had not kill'd him. I'll answer 't at sessions, so my wife may be burnt i' th' hand, too. 324

Ans. Take 'em in both: bury him, for he's dead.

1 The Q°. read 2 Mad. for 3 Mad. and 3 Mad. for 2 Mad.

2 Slippers.

3 Pieces of wood fixed to the key-levers of virginals, spinets, and harpsichords, which rose when the keys were pressed down.

4 A raisin floating on burning brandy.

5 A proverbial phrase.

2 Mad. Indeed, I am dead; put me, I pray, into a good pit-hole.

3 Mad. I'll answer 't at sessions.

[Servants remove 2 and 3 Madmen.]

Enter BELLAFRONT mad.

Ans. How now, huswife, whither gad you?

FLU. 'Tis Bellafront!

PIO. 'T is the punk, by th' Lord!

DUKE. Father, what's she, I pray?

Ans. As yet I know not. She came in but this day; talks little idly, and therefore has the freedom of the house.

BELL. Do not you know me? — nor you? — nor you? — nor you? — nor you?

ALL. No, indeed.

BELL. Then you are an ass, — and you an ass, — and you are an ass, — for I know you.

Ans. Why, what are they? Come, tell me, what are they?

BELL. They're fish-wives, will you buy any gadgeons?

God's santy! yonder come friars, I know them too. —

Enter HIPPOLETO, MATHIEO, and INFELICE disguised in the habits of Friars.

How do you, friar?

Ans. Nay, nay, away, you must not trouble friars. 319

[Aside to HIPPOLETO, etc.] The duke is here, speak nothing.

BELL. Nay, indeed, you shall not go: we'll run at barley-break first, and you shall be in hell. 8

MAT. My punk turn'd mad whore, as all her fellows are!

HIP. Say nothing; but steal hence, when you spy time.

Ans. I'll look you up, if you 're unruly: fie! BELL. Fie! Marry, so, they shall not go indeed, till I ha' told 'em their fortunes. 346

DUKE. Good father, give her leave.

BELL. Ay, pray, good father, and I'll give you my blessing.

Ans. Well then, be brief, but if you 're thus unruly,

I'll have you look't up fast.

PIO. Come, to their fortunes.

BELL. Let me see, one, two, three, and four.

I'll begin with the little friar 9 first. Here's a fine hand, indeed! I never saw friar but such a dainty hand: here's a hand for a lady! 418

Here's your fortune:

You love a friar better than a nun;
Yet long you'll love no friar, nor no friar's son.

Bow a little, the line of life is out, yet I'm afraid,

7 A corruption of God's sanctity or God's saints.

(Steevens.)

8 In the game of barley-break the ground was divided into three compartments, the middle one of which was called "hell."

9 L. e. Infelice.
And their son turned to his lady, and his heart to her. He foresaw the storm, yet willingly put forth to meet it. He knew the pain of his own heart, and the sorrow of his father. He was a man of noble birth, with a beautiful and loving heart. He would not turn his back on her, nor would he join her in her devilish ways.

Duke. You beseech fair, you have me in place fit

To bridge me. — Rise friar, you may be glad
You can make madmen tame, and tamed men mad.
Since Fate hath conquer'd, I must rest content;
To strive now, would but add new punishment.
I yield unto your happiness; be blest.
Our families shall henceforth breathe in rest.

All. Oh, happy change!

Duke. Your's now is my content,
I throw upon your joys my full consent.

Bell. Am not I a good girl, for finding [404] "the friar in the well?" [2] Gods so, you are a brave man! Will not you buy me some sugar-plums, because I am so good a fortune-teller?

Duke. Would thou hadst wit, thou pretty soul, to ask.
As I have will to give.

Bell. Pretty soul? A pretty soul is better than a pretty body. Do not you know my pretty soul? I know you. Is not your name Mattheo?

Mat. Yes, lamb.

Bell. Bas lamb! there you lie, for I am mutton. — Look, fine man! he was mad for me [405] once, and I was mad for him once, and he was mad for her once, and were you never mad? Yes, I warrant; I had a fine jewel once, a very fine jewel, and that naughty man stole it away from me. — a very fine and a rich jewel.

Duke. What jewel, pretty maid?

Bell. Maid? Nay, that's a lie. O, 't was a very rich jewel, called a maidenhead, and had not you it, leeser?

Mat. Out, you mad ass! away.

Duke. Had he thy maidenhead?

He shall make thee amends, and marry thee.

Bell. Shall he? O brave Arthur of Bradley & then:

Duke. And if he bear the mind of a gentleman, I know he will.

Mat. I think Irid her of some such paltry jewel.

Duke. Did you? Then marry her; you see the wrong

Has led her spirits into a lunacy.

Mat. How? Marry her, my lord? 'Sfoot, marry a madwoman? Let a man get the tamest wife he can come by, she'll be mad enough afterward, do what he can.

Duke. Nay then, Father Anselmo here shall do his best.

To bring her to her wits; and will you then?

Mat. I cannot tell, I may choose.

Duke. Nay, then, law shall compel. I tell you, sir,

So much her hard fate moves me, you should not breathe

Under this air, unless you married her.

Mat. Well, then, when her wits stand in their right place, I'll marry her.

Bell. I thank your grace. — Matheo, thou art mine.

1 A quibble. "Table" also meant the palm of the hand. (Dryce.)

2 The name of a well-known tale.

3 A prostitute.

4 An allusion to a ballad of that name.
I am not mad, but put on this disguise, 510
Only for you, my lord; for you wan tall
Much wonder of me; but you are gone: farewell.
Matheo, thou didst first turn my soul black,
Now make it white again. I do protest,
I 'm pure as fire now, chaste as Cynthia's breast.
Hip. I durst be sworn, Matheo, she's indeed.
Mat. Cony-catch't, gull'd! Must I sail in your fly-boat, 515
Because I help to rear your main-mast first?
Plague 'found you for 't, 't is well.
The cuckold's stamp goes current in all nations,
Some men ha' horns giv'n them at their creations; 520
If I be one of those, why so: 't is better
To take a common wench, and make her good,
Than one that simpers, and at first will scarce
Be tempted forth over the threshold door,
Yet in one ses'night, sounds, turns arrant
whore!
Come wench, thou shalt be mine, give me thy goils, 525
We'll talk of legs hereafter.—See, my lord,
God give us joy! All. God give you joy!
Enter Candido's wife [VIO. and GEO. 530
Geo. Come mistress, we are in Bedlam now; mass and see, we come in pudding-time, for here's the duke.
Vio. My husband, good my lord! 534
Duke. Have I thy husband?
Cast. It's Candido, my lord, he's here among the lunatics. Father Anselmo, pray fetch him forth. [Exit Anselmo.] This mad woman is his wife, and though she were not with child, yet did she long most spitefully to have her 538 husband mad; and because she should be sure he should turn Jew, she placed him here in Bethlem. Yonder he comes.

Enter Candido with Anselmo. 540
Duke. Come hither, signor; are you mad?
Cand. You are not mad.
Duke. Why, I know that. 545
Cand. Then may you know I am not mad, that know
You are not mad, and that you are the duke.
None is mad here but one.—How do you, wife?
What do you long for now? —Pardon, my
lord:
She had lost her child's nose else. I did cut out Pennyworths of lawn, the lawn was yet mine own:
A carpet was my gown, yet 't was mine own:
I wore my man's coat, yet the cloth mine own: 550

1 Confound. 2 Hands.

Had a crackt crown, the crown was yet mine
own. 554
She says for this I'm mad: were her words true,
I should be mad indeed. O foolish skill! 558
Is patience madness? I'll be a madman still.
Vio. Forgive me, and I'll vex your spirit no
more. 564
[Kneels.]
Duke. Come, come, we'll have you friends;
join hearts, join hands.
Cand. See, my lord, we are even,— Nay, rise, for ill deeds kneel unto none but Heaven.
Duke. Signor, methinks patience has laid on
you
Such heavy weight, that you must loathe it—
Cand. Loathe it! 570
Duke. For he whose breast is tender, blood
so cool,
That no wrongs heat it, is a patient soul.
What comfort do you find in being so calm?
Cand. That which green wounds receive from sovereign balm.
Patience, my lord! why, 't is the soul of peace;
Of all the virtues, 't is nearest kin to Heaven;
It makes men look like gods. The best of men
That e'er wore earth about him, was a sufferer,
A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit,
The first true gentleman that ever breathed.
The stock of patience, then, cannot be poor; 585
All it desires, it has; what monarch more?
It is the greatest enemy to law
That can be; for it doth embrace all wrongs,
And so chains up lawyers' and women's tongues.
'Tis the perpetual prisoner's liberty,
His walks and orchards: 't is the bond slave's freedom,
And makes him seem proud of each iron chain,
As though he wore it more for state than pain:
It is the beggars' music, and thus sings,
Although their bodies beg, their souls are kings.
O my dread liege! It is the sap of bliss
Rears us aloft, makes men and angels kiss.
And last of all, to end a household strife,
It is the honey 'gainst a waspish wife.
Duke. Thou giv'st it lively colours: who dare say
He's mad, whose words March in so good array?
'T were sin all women should such husbands have,
For every man must then be his wife's slave.
Come, therefore, you shall teach our court to shine,
So calm a spirit is worth a golden mine.
Wives with meek husbands that to vex them
long,
In Bedlam must they dwell, else dwell they wrong. 595
Exeunt.

Scene. — Milan.

Act I

Scene I.1

Enter at one door Beraldo, Carolo, Fontiello, and Astolfo, with Serving-men, or Pages, attending on them; at another door enter Lodovico, meeting them.

Lod. Good day, gallants.
All. Good morrow, sweet Lodovico.
Lod. How dost thou, Carolo?
Car. Faith, as the physicians do in a plague, see the world sick, and am well myself.
Fon. Here's a sweet morning, gentlemen.
Lod. Oh, a morning to tempt Jove from his niple; Ganymede; which is but to give dairy-wench's green gowns as they are going a-milk ing. What, is thy lord stirring yet?
Ast. Yes, he will not be horst this hour, sure.
Ber. My lady swears he shall, for she longs to be at court.
Car. Oh, we shall ride switch and spur; would we were there once.

Enter Bryan, the Footman.

Lod. How now, is thy lord ready?
Bry. No, so cress sa' me; my lady will have some little ting in her pelly first.
Car. Oh, then they 'll to breakfast.
Lod. Footman, does my lord ride i' th' coach with my lady, or on horseback?
Bry. No, foot, la; my lady will have me lord sheet wid her, my lord will sheet in de one side, and my lady sheet in de toder side. Exit.

the fire, and his countrymen could do nothing, if they cannot sweep the chimneys.

All. Good again.

Lod. Then, sir, have you many of them, like this fellow, especially those of his hair, footmen to noblemen and others, and the knaves are very faithful where they love. By my faith, very proper men, many of them, and as active as the clouds,—whirr, hah!

All. Are they so?

Lod. And stout! exceeding stout; why, I warrant, this precious wild villain, if he were put to 't, would fight more desperately than sixteen Dunkirks.1

Ast. The women, they say, are very fair.

Lod. No, no, our country bona-robas, oh! are the sugarest, delicious rogueys!

Ast. Oh, look, he has a feeling of them!

Lod. Not I, I protest. There's a saying when they commend nations. It goes, the Irishman for his hand, the Welshmen for a leg, the Englishman for a face, the Dutchman for a beard.

Fon. 'T faith, they may make swabbers of them.

Lod. The Spaniard,—let me see,—for a little foot, I take it; the Frenchman,—what a pox hath he? And so of the rest. Are they at breakfast yet? Come walk.

Ast. This Lodovico is a notable tongued fellow.

Fon. Discourses well.

Ber. And a very honest gentleman.

Ast. Oh! he's well valued by my lord.

Enter Bellafont, with a petition.

Fon. How now, how now, what's she?

Ber. Let's make towards her.

Bell. Will it belong, sir, ere my lord come forth?

Ast. Would you speak with my lord?

Lod. How now, what's this, a nurse's bill? Hath any here got thee with child and now will not keep it?

Bell. No, sir, my business is unto my lord.

Lod. He's about his own wife's now, he'll hardly dispatch two causes in a morning.

Ast. No matter what he says, fair lady; he's a knight, there's no hold to be taken at his words.

Fon. My lord will pass this way presently.

Ber. A pretty, plump rogue.

Ast. A good lusty, bouncing baggage.

Ber. Do you know her?

Lod. A pox on her, I was sure her name was in my table-book once. I know not of what cut her die is now, but she has been more common than tobacco; this is she that had the name of the Honest Whore.2

Ast. She has been a goodly creature.

Lod. She has been! that's the epitaph of all whores. I'm well acquainted with the poor gentleman her husband, Lord! what fortunes that man has overreached! She knows not me, yet I have been in her company; I scarce know her, for the beauty of her cheek hath, like the moon, suffered strange eclipses since I beheld it: but women are like medlars,—no sooner ripe but rotten:

A woman last was made, but is spent first, Yet man is oft proved in performance worst.

All. My lord is come.

Enter Hippolito, Infelice, and two Waiting women.

Hip. We ha' wasted half this morning. Morrow, Lodovico.

Lod. Morrow, madam.

Hip. Let's away to horse.

All. Ay, ay, to horse, to horse.

Bell. I do beseech your lordship, let your eye read o'er this wretched paper.

Hip. I'm in haste; pray thee, good woman, take some other time.

Inf. Good woman, do.

Bell. Oh, 'las! it does concern a poor man's life.

Hip. Life!—Sweetheart, seat yourself, I'll but read this and come.

Lod. What stockings have you put on this morning, madam? If they be not yellow, change them; that paper is a letter from some wench to your husband.

Inf. Oh sir, that cannot make me jealous.

Exeunt [all except HIPPOLITO, BELLAFORENT, and ANTONIO].

Hip. Your business, sir? To me?

Ant. Yes, my good lord.

Hip. Presently, sir.—Are you Matheo's wife?

Bell. That most unfortunate woman.

Hip. I'm sorry these storms are fallen on him; I love Matheo, and any good shall do him; he and I have seal'd two bonds of friendship, which are strong.

In me, however fortune does him wrong.

He speaks here he's condemned. Is't so?

Bell. Too true.

Hip. What was he whom he killed? Oh, his name's here;

Old Giacomo, son to the Florentine;

Giacomo, a dog, that, to meet profit, Would to the very eyelids wade in blood Of his own children. Tell Matheo,

The duke, my father, hardly shall deny His signed pardon. 'T was fair fight, yes, If rumour's tongue go true; so writes he here.—

To-morrow morning I return from court, Pray be you here then. — I'll have done, sir, straight: —

[To ANTONIO]

But in troth say, are you Matheo's wife? You have forgot me.

Bell. No, my lord.

Hip. Your turner,

1 Dunkirk pirates.
2 Courtesans.
3 Mop for cleaning decks, etc.
4 Yellow was typical of jealousy.
That made you smooth to run an even bias.
You know I lov’d you when your very soul
Was full of discord: art not a good wench still?
Bell. Umph, when I had lost my way to Heaven, you show’d it:
I was new born that day.

Re-enter Lodovico.

Lod. 'Sfoot, my lord, your lady asks if [115] you have not left your wench yet? When you got in once, you never have done. Come, come, come, pay your old score, and send her packing; come.

Hip. Ride softly on before, I’ll o’ertake you.

Lod. Your lady swears she’ll have no riding on before, without ye.

Hip. Prithie, good Lodovico.

Lod. My lord, pray hasten.

Hip. I come.

[Exit Lodovico.]

Tomorrow let me see you, face you well;

Command me to Mathew. Pray one word more:

Does not your father live about the court?

Bell. I think he does, but such rude spots of shame

Stick on my cheek, that he scarce knows my name.

Hip. Orlando Friscobaldo, is’t not?

Bell. Yes, my lord.

Hip. What does he for you?

Bell. All he should: when children

From duty start, parents from love may swerve.

He nothing does; for nothing I deserve.

Hip. Shall I join him unto you, and restore you to wondred grace?

Bell. It is impossible.

[Exit Bellafront.]

Hip. It shall be put to trial: fare you well.

The face I would not look on! Sure then ’t was rare.

When, in despite of grief, ’t is still thus fair.

Now, sir, your business with me.

Ant. I am bold

to express my love and duty to your lordship in these few leaves.

Hip. A book!

Ant. Yes, my good lord.

Hip. Are you a scholar?

Ant. Yes, my lord, a poor one.

Hip. Sir, you honour me.

Kings may be scholars’ patrons, but, faith, tell me,

to how many hands besides hath this bird flown,

How many partners share with me?

Ant. Not one.

In truth, not one: your name I held more dear
I’m not, my lord, of that low character.

Hip. Your name I pray?

Ant. Antonio Georgio.

Hip. Of Milan?

Ant. Yes, my lord.

Hip. I’ll borrow leave to read you o’er, and then we’ll talk: till then drink up this gold; good wits should love good wine;

This of your loves, the earnest of that mine.—

[Gives money.]

Re-enter Bryan.

How now, sir, where’s your lady? Not gone yet?

Bry. I fart di lady is run away from dee, a mighty deal of ground; she sent me back [230] for diue own sweet face. I pray dee come, my lord, away, wu’t tow go now?

Hip. Is the coach gone? Saddle my horse, the sorrel.

Bry. A pox a’ de horse’s nose, he is a lousy rascally fellow. When I came to gird his belly, his scurry guts rumbled; di horse farted in my face, and dow knowest, an Irishman cannot abide a fart. But I have saddled de hobby-horse, di fine hobby is ready. I pray dee, my good [230] sweet lord, wu’t tow go now, and I will run to de devil before deee?

Hip. Well, sir. — I pray let’s see you, master scholar.

Bry. Come, I pray dee, wu’t come, sweet face? Go.

Exeunt.

Scene II.

Enter Lodovico, Carolo, Astolfo, and Beraldo.

Lod. Godso, gentlemen, what do we forget?

All. What?

Lod. Are not we all enjoined as this day, —

Thursday is ’t not? Ay, as that day to be at the linen-draper’s house at dinner?

Car. Signor Candido, the patient man.

Ast. Afore Jove, true, upon this day he’s married.

Ber. I wonder, that being so stung with a wasp before, he dares venture again to [10]

come about the eaves amongst bees.

Lod. Oh ’t is rare sucking a sweet honey comb!

Pray Heaven his old wife be buried deep enough, that she rise not up to call for her dance! The poor fiddlers’ instruments would crack for [14] it; she’d tickle them. At any hand let’s try what mettle is in his new bride; if there be none, we’ll put in some. Troth, it’s a very noble citizen, I pity he should marry again; I’ll walk along, for it is a good old fellow.

Car. I warrant the wives of Milan would give any fellow twenty thousand ducats, that could but have the face to beg of the duke, that all the citizens in Milan might be bound to the peace of patience, as the linen-draper is.

Lod. Oh, fie upon ’t! ’t would undo all us that are courtiers; we should have no whoo with the wenches then.

Enter Hippolito.

All. My lord’s come.

Hip. How now, what news?

All. None.

Lod. Your lady is with the duke, her father.

Hip. And we’ll to them both presently —

Enter Orlando Friscobaldo.

Who’s that?

All. Signor Friscobaldo.

1 An apartment in the Duke’s Palace.
Hip. Friscobaldo, oh! pray call him, and leave me; we two have business.

Car. Ho Signor! Signor Friscobaldo! The Lord Hippolito.

Exeunt [all but HIPPOLITO and FRISCOBALDO].

Orl. My noble lord: my Lord Hippolito! [so the duke's son! his brave daughter's brave husband! how does your honour's lordship! Does your nobility remember so poor a gentleman as Signor Orlando Friscobaldo! old mad Orlando!]

Hip. Oh, sir, our friends! they ought to be [as unto us as our jewels, as dearly valued, being locked up, and unseen, as when we wear them in our hands. I see, Friscobaldo, age hath not command of your blood; for all Time's sickle has gone over you, you are Orlando still.]

Orl. Why, my lord, are not the fields mown and cut down, and stripit bare, and yet wear they not pied coats again? Though my head be like a leek, white, may not my heart be like the blade, green?

Hip. Scarse can I read the stories on your brow,

Which age hath writ there; you look youthful still.

Orl. I eat snakes, my lord, I eat snakes. My heart shall never have a wrinkle in it, so long as I can cry "Hem," with a clear voice.

Hip. You are the happier man, sir.

Orl. Happy man? I'll give you, my lord, the true picture of a happy man. I was turning leaves over this morning, and found it; an excellent Italian painter drew it; if I have it in [the right colours, I'll bestow it on your lordship.]

Hip. I stay for it.

Orl. He that makes gold, his wife, but not his whore,

He that at noon-day walks by a prison door,

He that i' th' sun is neither beam nor mote,

He that's not mad after a petticoat,

He for whom poor men's curses dig no grave,

He that is neither lord's nor lawyer's slave.

He that makes this his sea, and that his shore,

He that in's coffin is richer than before,

He that counts youth his sword, and age his staff,

He whose right hand carves his own epitaph,

He that upon his deathbed is a swan,

And dead, no crow — he is a happy man.

Hip. It's very well; I thank you for this picture.

Orl. After this picture, my lord, do I strive to have my face drawn: for I am not covetous, am not in debt; sit neither at the duke's [side, nor lie at his feet. Wenching and I have done; no man I wrong, no man I fear, no man I fee; I take heed how far I walk, because I know yonder's my home; I would not die like a rich man, to carry nothing away save a [winding sheet; but like a good man, to leave Orlando behind me. I sowed leaves in my youth, and I reap now books in my age. I fill this hand, and empty this; and when the bell shall toll for me, if I prove a swan, and go [singing to my nest, why so! If a crow! I throw me out like a carrion, and pick out mine eyes. May not old Friscobaldo, my lord, be merry now! ha?]

Hip. You may; would I were partner in [your mirth.]

Orl. I have a little, have all things. I have nothing; I have no wife, I have no child, have no choice; and why should not I be in my jocundare?

Hip. Is your wife then departed?

Orl. She's an old dweller in those high countries, yet not from me. Here, she's here: but, before me, when a knave and a quean are married, they commonly walk like serjeants together: but a good couple are seldom parted.

Hip. You had a daughter too, sir, had you not?

Orl. O my lord! this old tree had one branch, and but one branch growing out of it. It was young, it was fair, it was straight; I prun'd [it daily, drest it carefully, kept it from the wind, help'd it to the sun, yet for all my skill in planting, it grew crooked, it bore crabs. I hewed it down, what's become of it, I neither know, nor care.]

Hip. Then I can tell you what's become of it;

That branch is wither'd.

Orl. So 't was long ago.

Hip. Her name I think was Bellafront; she's dead.

Orl. Ha? dead?

Hip. Yes; what of her was left, not worth the keeping,

Even in my sight was thrown into a grave.

Orl. Dead! my last and best peace go with her! I see Death's a good treacherman; he can eat coarse homely meat, as well as the daintiest.

Hip. Why, Friscobaldo, was she homely?

Orl. O my lord! a strumpet is one of the devil's vines; all the sins, like so many poles, are stuck upright out of hell, to be her props, that she may spread upon them. And when she's ripe, every slave has a pull at her, then must she be prest. The young beautiful grape sets the teeth of lust on edge, yet to taste that tickler's wine, is to drink a man's own damnation. Is she dead?

Hip. She's turn'd to earth.

Orl. Would she were turn'd to Heaven! Umph, is she dead? I am glad the world has lost one of his idols; no whoremonger will at midnight beat at the doors. In her grave [sleep all my shame, and her own; and all my sorrows, and all her sins!]

Hip. I'm glad you're wax, not marble; you are made

Of man's best temper; there are now good hopes

That all these heaps of ice about your heart, [By which a father's love was frozen up, Are thaw'd in these sweet showers, fetc'ht from your eyes;]

---

1 A supposed recipe for restoring youth. (Dyce.)

2 Merriment. 3 Tempting.
We are ne'er like angels till our passion dies. She is not dead, but lives under worse fate; 184 I think it poor; and, more to clip her wings, Her husband at this hour lies in the jail, For killing of a man. To save his blood, Join all your force with mine: mine shall be shown:

The getting of his life preserves your own. 159
O rl. In my daughter, you will say! Does she live then? I am sorry I wasted tears upon a harlot; but the best is I have a handkercher to drink them up; soap can wash them all out again. Is she poor?

Hip. Trust me, I think she is. 165
O rl. Then she's a right strumpet; I ne'er knew any of their trade rich two years together. Sieves can hold no water, nor harlots hoard up money; they have many vents, too many shives to let it out; taverns, tailors, bawds, panders, fiddlers, swaggerers, fools, and knaves do all wait upon a common harlot's trencher. She is the gallipot to which these drones fly, not for love to the pot, but for the sweet sucket 2 within it, her money, her money. 170

Hip. I almost dare pawn my word, her bosom Gives warmth to no such snakes. When did you see her?

O rl. Older; it has a white head, and shall never die till she be buried: her wrongs shall be my bedfellow.

Hip. Work yet his life, since in it lives her fame.

O rl. No let him hang, and half her infamy departs out of the world. I hate him for her; 183 he taught her first to taste poison; I hate her for herself, because she refused my physic.

Hip. Nay, but Friscobaldo! —

O rl. I detest her, I defy both; she's not mine, she's —

Hip. Hear her but speak.

O rl. I love no mermaids, I'll not be caught with a quail-pipe. 8

Hip. You're now beyond all reason. 184
O rl. I am then a beast. Sir, I had rather be a beast, and not dishonour my creation, than be a doting father, and like Time, be the destruction of mine own brood.

Hip. Is't dotage to relieve your child, being poor?

O rl. Is't fit for an old man to keep a whore?

Hip. 'Tis charity, too.

O rl. 'Tis folly; relieve her! Were her cold limbs stretched out upon a bier, I would not sell this dirt under my nails.

To buy her an hour's breath, nor give this hair, Unless it were to choke her. 206

Hip. Fare you well, for I'll trouble you no more. 206

O rl. And fare you well, sir. Go thy ways; we have few lords of thy making, that love wenchers for their honesty. 'Las my girl! 206 art thou poor? Poverty dwells next door to despair, there's but a wall between them. Despair is one of hell's catch-poles; and lest that devil arrest her, I'll to her. Yet she shall not know me; she shall drink of my wealth, 215 as beggars do of running water, freely, yet never know from what fountain's head it flows.

Shall a silly bird pick her own breast to nourish her young ones, and can a father see his child starve? That were hard; the pelican does 220 it, and shall not I? Yes, I will vouch the camp for her, but it shall be by some stratagem. That knave there, her husband, will be hanged, I fear; I'll keep his neck out of the noose if I can, he shall not know how.

Enter two Serving-men.

How now, knaves? Whither wander you?

1 Ser. To seek your worship.

O rl. Stay, which of you has my purse? What money have you about you?

2 Ser. Some fifteen or sixteen pounds, sir.

O rl. Give it me. [Takes purse.] — I think I have some gold about me; yes, it's well. Leave my lodging at court, and get you home. Come, sir, though I never turned any man out of doors, yet I'll be so bold as to pull your coat over your ears.

[ORLANDO puts on the coat of 1 Serving-man, and gives him in exchange his cloak.]

1 Ser. What do you mean to do, sir? O rl. Hold thy tongue, knave; take thou my cloak. I hope I play not the paltry merchant in this bart'ring; bid the steward of my house sleep with open eyes in my absence, and to look at all things. Whatsoever I command by letters to be done by you, see it done. So, does it sit well?

2 Ser. As if it were made for your worship.

O rl. You proud varlets, you need not be ashamed to wear blue, 4 when your master is one of your fellows. Away, do not see me.

Both. This is excellent. Exeunt. 246

O rl. I should put on a worse suit, too; perhaps I will. My wizard is on; now to this masque. Say I should shave off this honour of an old man, or tie it up shorter. Well, I will spoil a good face for once.

My beard being off, how should I look? Even like a winter cuckoo, or unfeather'd owl; Yet better lose this hair, than lose her soul.

Exit.

[SCENE III.]

Enter Candido, Lodovico, Carolo, [Astolfo], other guests, and Bride with Prentices.

Cand. O gentlemen, so late! Ye're very welcome, pray sit down.

Lod. Carolo, didst e'er see such a nest of caps?

Ast. Methinks it's a most civil and most comely sight.

Lod. What does he i' th' middle look like?

1 Confection. 2 Renounce. 3 Used by fowlers to allure quails.
Ast. Troth, like a spire steeple in a country village overpeering so many thatch'd houses.

Lo'd. It's rather a long pike-staff against so many bucklers without pikes; 1 they sit for all the world like a pair of organs, 2 and he's the tall great roaring pipe 1 th' midst.

Ast. Ha, ha, ha!

Cand. What's that you laugh at, signors?

Lo'd. Troth, shall I tell you, and aloud I'll tell it;

We laugh to see, yet laugh we not in scorn.

Amongst so many caps that long hat worn,

[1 Guest.] Mine is as tall a felt as any is this day in Milan, and therefore I love it, for the block 3 was cleft out for my head, and fits me to a hair.

Cand. Indeed you're good observers; it shows strange:

But gentlemen, I pray neither content,

Nor yet deride a civil ornament;

I could build so much in the round cap's praise,

That 'bove this high roof, I this flat would raise.

Lo'd. Prithee, sweet bridegroom, do't.

Cand. So all these guests will pardon me, I'll do't.

All. With all our hearts.

Cand. Thus, then, in the cap's honour:

To every sex, and state, both nature, time,

The country's laws, yes, and the very clime

Do allot distinct habits; the spruce courtier

Jets up and down in silk; the warrior

Marches in buff; the clown plods on in gray:

But for these upper garments thus I say,

The seaman has his cap, par'd without brim;

The gallant's head is feather'd, that suits him;

The soldier has his morion; 6 women ha' ti'es; 6

Beasts have their head-pieces, and men ha' theirs.

Lo'd. Proceed.

Cand. Each degree has his fashion, it's fit then,

One should be laid by for the citizen,

And 'tis the cap which you see swells not high,

For caps are emblems of humility.

It is a citizen's badge, and first was worn

By th' Romans; for when any bondman's turn

Came to be made a freeman, thus 't was said,

He to the cap was call'd, that is, was made

Of Rome a freeman; but was first close shorn:

And so a citizen's hair is still short worn.

Lo'd. That close shaving made barbers a company,

And now every citizen uses it.

Cand. Of geometric figures the most rare,

And perfect 8 st, are the circle and the square;

The city and the school much build upon

These figures, for both love proportion.

The city-cap is round, the scholar's square,

To show that government and learning are

The perfectst limbs 1 th' body of a state;

For without them, all's disproportionate.

If the cap had no honour, this might rear it,

The reverend fathers of the law do wear it.

It's light for summer, and in cold it sits

Close to the skull, a warm house for the wits;

It shows the whole face boldly, 't is not made

As if a man to look on 't were afraid,

Nor like a draper's shop with broad dark shed,

For he's no citizen that hides his head.

Flat caps as proper to city gowns,

As to armours helmets, or to kings their crowns.

Let then the city-cap by none be scorn'd,

Since with it princes' heads have been adorn'd.

If more the round cap's honour you would know,

How would this long gown with this steeple 7 show?

All. Ha, ha, ha! most vile, most ugly.

Cand. Pray, signor, pardon me, 't was done in jest.

Bride. A cup of claret wine there.

1 Prem. Wine? yes, forsooth, wine for the bride.

Car. You ha' well set out the cap, sir.

Lo'd. Nay, that's flat.

Cand. A health!

Lo'd. Since his cap's round, that shall go round.

Be bare,

For in the cap's praise all of you have share.

[They bare their heads and drink.
As 1 Prentice offers the wine to the Bride,] she hits him on the lip's, 8 [breaking the glass].

The bride's at cuffs.

Cand. Oh, peace, I pray thee; thus far off I stand,

I spied the error of my servants;

She call'd for claret, and you fill'd out sack.

That cup give me, 't is for an old man's back,

And not for hers. Indeed, 't was but mistaken;

Ask all these else.

Guests. No faith, 't was but mistaken.

1 Prem. Nay, she took it right enough.

Cand. Good Lurke, reach her that glass of claret.

Here mistress bride, pledge me there.

Cand. How now?

Lo'd. Look what your mistresses ails.

1 Prem. Nothing, sir, but about filling a wrong glass,—a scorvy trick.

Cand. I pray you, hold your tongue.—My servant there tells me she is not well.

Guests. Step to her, step to her.

Lo'd. A word with you: do ye hear? This wench, your new wife, will take you down in [not] your wedding shoes, unless you hang her up in her wedding garters?

Cand. How, hang her in her garters?

Lo'd. Will you be a tame pigeon still? Shall your back be like a tortoise shell, to let carts go over it, yet not to break? This she-cat will have more lives than your last puss had, and will scratch worse, and mouse you worse: look to 't.

Cand. What would you have me do, sir?

Lo'd. What would I have you do? Swear, swagger, braw, fling! for fighting it's no matter, we ha' had knocking pusses snow already;

you know, that a woman was made of the rib of a man, and that rib was crooked. The [118] moral of which is, that a man must from his begging be crooked to his wife. Be you like an orange to her; let her cut you never so fair, be you sour as vinegar. Will you be ruled by me?
Cand. In any thing that's civil, honest, and just.

Lod. Have you ever a prentice's suit will fit
me?

Cand. I have the very same which myself
were.

Lod. I'll send my man for 't within this half hour, and within this two hours I'll be your prentice. The hen shall not overcock the cock;
I'll sharpen your spurs.

Cand. It will be but some jest, sir?

Lod. Only a jest: farewell, come, Carolo.

Exit [LODOVICO, CAROLO, and ASTOLFO].

All. We'll take our leaves, sir, too.

Cand. Pray conceit not ill
Of my wife's sudden rising. This young knight,
Sir Lodovico, is deep seen in physic,
And he tells me, the disease, called the mother,
Hangs on my wife, it is a vehement ha'ving
And beating of the stomach, and that swelling
Did with the pain thereof cramp up her hand,
That hit his lips, and brake the glass,—no harm.

It was no harm!

Guests. No, signor, none at all.

Cand. The straightest arrow may fly wide by chance.

But come, we'll close this brawl up in some dance.

Exeunt.

[ACT II]

[SCENE I.]

Enter BELLAFRONT and MATHEO.

Bell. O my sweet husband! wert thou in thy grave and art alive again? Oh welcome, welcome!

Mat. Dost know me? My cloak, prithee, lay 't up. Yes, faith, my widow-shect was taken [5] out of lavender, to be stuck with rosemary:
I lackt but the knot here, or here; yet if I had had it, I should ha' made a wry mouth at the world like a plac't: but, sweetest villain, I am here now and I will talk with thee soon.

Bell. And glad am I 'th' art here.

Mat. Did these heels caper in shackles? Ah!
my little plump rogue, I'll bear up for all this,
and fly high. Coa! coa!

Bell. Matheo?

Mat. What sayest, what sayest? O brave fresh air! a box on these grapes and ginning of keys, and rattling of iron. I'll bear up, I'll fly high, wench, hang toff.

1 Hysteria.
2 A room in Matheo's house.
3 Rosemary was an emblem of remembrance.
4 Ital. A term of abuse or contempt.
5 A vague exclamation. Hang it all! (?)
6 Roystering gallants.
7 Dicing.
8 Dicing.
9 Band.
Orl. The Destinies spin a strong and even thread of both your loves! — [Aside.] The mother's own face, I ha' not forgot that. — I'm an old man, sir, and am troubled with a [a] whoreson salt rheum, that I cannot hold my water. — Gentlewoman, the last man I served was your father.

Bell. My father? Any tongue that sounds his Speaks music to me; welcome, good old man! How does my father? Lives he? Has he health?

How does my father? — [Aside.] I so much do shame him, So much do wound him, that I scarce dare name him.

Orl. I can speak no more.

Mat. How, old lad, what, dost aye? [40]

Orl. The rheum still, sir, nothing else; I should be well season'd, for mine eyes lie in brine. Look you, sir, I have a suit to you.

Mat. What is't, my little white-pate?

Orl. Troth, sir, I have a mind to serve your worship.

Mat. To serve me? Troth, my friend, my fortunes are, as a man may say —

Orl. Nay, look you, sir, I know, when all sins are old in us, and go upon crutches, that covetable does but then lie in her cradle; 'tis not so with me. Lechery loves to dwell in the fairest lodging, and covetousness in the oldest buildings, that are ready to fall: but my white head, sir, is no inn for such a gossip. If a [a] serving-man at my years be not stored with biscuit enough, that has sailed about the world, to serve him the voyage out of his life, and to bring him East home, ill pity but all his days should be fasting days. I care not so much [110] for wages, for I have scraped a handful of gold together. I have a little money, sir, which I would put into your worship's hands, not so much to make it more.

Mat. No, no, you say well, thou sayest well; but I must tell you, — How much is the money, sayest thou?

Orl. About twenty pound, sir.

Mat. Twenty pound? Let me see: that shall bring thee in, after ten per centum per annum, —

Orl. No, no, no, sir, no: I cannot abide to have money engender: lie upon this silver lechery, lie! If I may have meat to my mouth, and rage to my back, and a flock-bed to his snort upon when I die, the longer liver take all.

Mat. A good old boy, i' faith! If thou servest me, thou shalt eat as I eat, drink as I drink, lie as I lie, and ride as I ride.

Orl. [Aside.] That's if you have money [120] to hire horses.

Mat. Front, what dost thou think on 't? This good old lad here shall serve me.

Bell. Alas, Matheo, wilt thou load a back That is already broke? [125]

Orl. Peace, pox upon you, peace. There's a trick in 't. I fly high; it shall be so, Front, as I tell you. Give me thy hand, thou shalt serve me i' faith: welcome. As for your money —

Orl. Nay, look you, sir, I have it here. [130]

Mat. Fish, keep it thyself, man, and then thou 'rt sure 't is safe.

Orl. Safe! an 't were ten thousand ducats, your worship should be my cash-keeper, I have heard what your worship is, an excellent [135] dunghill eck, to scatter all abroad; but I'll venture twenty pounds on 's head.

[Give money to MATHEO.]

Mat. And didst thou serve my worshipful father-in-law, Signor Orlando Friscobaldo, that madman, once?

Orl. I served him so long, till he turned me out of doors.

Mat. It's a notable chuff; I ha' not seen him many a day.

Orl. No matter an you ne'er see him; it's an arrant grandee, a churl, and as damned a cut-throat.

Bell. Thou villain, curb thy tongue! Thou art a Judas.

To sell thy master's name to slander thus.

Mat. Away, a! He speaks but truth, thy father is a — Bell. Gentleman.

Mat. And an old knave. There's more deceit in him than in sixteen pothecaries: it is a devil; thou may'st beg, starve, hang, damn! does he send thee so much as a cheese? [145]

Orl. Or so much as a gammon of bacon; he'll give it his dogs first.

Mat. A jail, a jail.

Orl. A Jew, a Jew, sir.

Mat. A dog!

Orl. An English mastiff, sir.

Mat. Fox rot out his old stinking garbage!

Bell. Art not ashamed to strike an absent man thus?

Art not ashamed to let this wild dog bark, [150]

And bite my father thus? I'll not endure it.

Out of my doors, base slave!

Mat. Your doors? A vengeance! I shall live to cut that old rogue's throat, for all you take his part thus.

[Aside.] He shall live to see thee hang'd first.

Enter HIPPOLITO.

Mat. Gods,so, my lord, your lordship is most welcome.

I'm proud of this, my lord.

Hip. Was bold to see you.

Is that your wife?

Mat. Yes, sir.

Hip. [Kisses BELA-FRONT.] I'll borrow her lip. [157]

Mat. With all my heart, my lord.

Orl. Who's this, I pray, sir.

Mat. My Lord Hippolito: what's thy name? [160]

Orl. Pacheco.

Mat. Pacheco, fine name: thou seest, Pacheco, I keep company with no scoundrels, nor base fellows.

Hip. Came not my footman to you?

Bell. Yes, my lord.

1 Notorius churl.
2 Vile.
Hippolito: The Honest Whore: Part II

II. i. THE HONEST WHORE: PART II 433

Wouldst thou wouldst leave my house; thou never shalt please me!
Weave thy nettles ere they grow,
Thou shalt be but a spider in mine eye.
Thou first rank with poison; poison temper'd well
Is food for health; but thy black tongue doth swell
With venom, to hurt him that gave thee bread.
To wrong men absent, is to spur the dead; And so didst thou thy master, and my father.
Orglia. You have small reason to take his part; for I have heard him say five hundred times, you were as arrant a whore as ever stiff-ned tiffany neckcloth in water-starch upon a Saturday night.
Bell. Let him say worse. When for the earth's offence
Hot vengeance through the marble clouds is driven,
Is't fit earth shoot again those darts at heaven?
Orglia. And so if your father call you whore [250] you'll not call him old knave. — [Aside.] Friscobaldo, she carries thy mind up and down; she's thine own flesh, blood, and bone. — Trotto, mistress, to tell you true, the fireworks that ran from me upon lines against my good old master, your father, were but to try how my young master, your husband, loved such squibs: but it's well known, I love your father as myself; I'll ride for him at midnight, run for you by owl-light; I'll die for him, drudge for you; I'll fly low, and I'll fly high, as my master says, to do you good, if you'll forgive me.
Bell. I am not made of marble; I forgive thee.
Orglia. Nay, if you were made of marble, a good stone-cutter might cut you. I hope the twenty pound I delivered to my master is in a sure hand.
Bell. In a sure hand, I warrant thee, for spending.
Orglia. I see your young master is a mad-cap, and a bonus socius. I love him well, mistress; yet as well as I love him, I'll not play the knave with you. Look you, I could cheat you of this purse full of money; but I am an old lad, and I scorn to cony-catch: yet I ha' been dog at a cony in my time. [Gives purse.] Bell. A purse? Where hadst it?
Orglia. The gentleman that went away whisper'd in mine ear, and charged me to give it you.
Bell. The Lord Hippolito?
Orglia. Yes, if he be a lord, he gave it me.
Bell. 'T is all gold.
Orglia. 'T is like so. It may be, he thinks you want money, and therefore bestows his alms bravely, like a lord.
Bell. He thinks a silver net can catch the poor; Here's bait to choke a nun, and turn her whore.
Wilt thou be honest to me?

1 Foolish. 2 Lower, take off.
Ori. As your nails to your fingers, which I think never deceived you.
Bell. Thou to this lord shalt go, commend me to him,
And tell him this, the town has held out long,
Because within  't was rather true than trite;
To sell it now were base. Say 't is no hold
Built of weak stuff, to be blown up with gold.
He shall believe thee by this token, or this;
If not, by this. [Giving purse, ring, and letters.
Ori. Is this all?
Bell. This is all.
Ori. [Aside.] Mine own girl still!
Bell. A star may shoot, not fall. Exit.
Ori. A star? nay, thou art more than the [500]
moon, for thou hast neither changing quarters, nor a man standing in thy circle with a bush of thorns.
Is 't possible the Lord Hippolito, whose face is as civil as the outside of a dedicatory book, should be a muttonmonger? A [500] poor man has but one ewe, and this grandee sheep-biter leaves whole flocks of fat wethers, whom he may knock down, to devour this.
I'll trust neither lord nor butcher with quick flesh for this trick; the cucking, I see now, [310] sings all the year, though every man cannot hear him; but I'll spoil his notes. Can neither love-letters, nor the devil's common pick-locks, gold, nor precious stones make my girl draw up
5 All are not bawds, I see now, that keep doors, Nor all good wenches that are market for whores.

[Scene II.] 8

Enter Candido, and Lodovico like a Prentice.

Lod. Come, come, come, what do ye lack, sir? What do ye lack, sir? What is 't ye lack, sir? Is not my worship well suited? Did you ever see a gentleman better disguised?

Cand. Never, believe me, signor.

Lod. Yes, but when he has been drunk.
There be prentices would make mad gallants,
for they would spend all, and drink, and whore, and so forth; and I see we gallants could make mad prentices. How does thy wife like me? [10]
Nay, I must not be so saucy, then I spoil all.
Pray you how does my mistress like me?

Cand. Well; for she takes you for a very simple fellow.

Lod. And they that are taken for such are [15] commonly the arrantest knaves: but to our comedy, come.

Cand. I shall not act it; chide, you say, and fret,
And grow impatient: I shall never do't.

Lod. 'Sblood, cannot you do as all the [20]
world does, counterfeit?

Cand. Were I a painter, that should live by drawing
Nothing but pictures of an angry man,
I should not earn my colours; I cannot do 't.

Lod. Remember you're a linen-draper, and [25] that if you give your wife a yard, she'll take an ell: give her not therefore a quarter of your yard, not a nail.

Cand. Say I should turn to ice, and nip her love
Now 't is but in the bud.

Lod. Well, say she's nipt. 50

Cand. It will so overcharge her heart with grief,
That 'like a cannon, when her sighs go off,
She in her duty either will recoil,
Or break in pieces and so die: her death,
By my unkindness might be counted murder.

Lod. Die? never, never. I do not bid you beat her, nor give her black eyes, nor pinch her sides; but cross her humours. Are not baker's arms the scales of justice? Yet is not their bread light? And may not you, I pray, [60] bridle her with a sharp bit, yet ride her gently?

Cand. Well, I will try your pills.
Do you your faithful service, and be ready
Still at a pinch to help me in this part,
Or else I shall be out clean.

Lod. Come, come, I'll prompt you.

Cand. I'll call her forth now, shall I?

Lod. Do, do, bravely.

Cand. Luke, I pray, bid your mistress to come hither.

Lod. Luke, I pray, bid your mistress to come hither.

Cand. Sirrah, bid my wife come to me: why, when?

I Pren. [within.] Presently, sir, she comes.

Lod. La, you, there's the echo! She comes.

Enter Bride.

Bride. What is your pleasure with me?

Cand. marry, wife,
I have intent; and you see this stripling here, [65]
He bears good will and liking to my trade,
And means to deal in linen.

Lod. Yes, indeed, sir, I would deal in linen, if my mistress like me so well as I like her.

Cand. I hope to find him honest, pray; good wife,
Look that his bed and chamber be made ready.

Bride. You're best to let him hire me for his maid.

I look to his bed? Look to 't yourself.

Cand. Even so?

I swear to you a great oath—

Lod. [Aside.] Swear, cry "Zounds!"— 40

Cand. I will not—go to, wife— I will not—

Lod. [Aside.] That your great oath?

Cand. Swallow these gudgeons! 45

Lod. [Aside.] Well said!
Bride. Then fast, then you may choose.

Cand. You know at table
What tricks you play'd, swagger'd, broke glasses, fie!

Fie, fie, fie! and now before my prentice here,
You make an ass of me, thon— what shall I call thee?

Bride. Even what you will.

1 Whoremonger. 2 Porteuills.
3 Before Candido's shop.
4 An expression of impatience.
5 Be so imposed upon.
I keep my ground, yet down I will be thrown
With the least blow you give me; I disdain
The wife that is her husband's sovereign.
She that upon your pillow first did rest,
They say, the breeches wore, which I detest:
The tax which she impos'd on you, I abate you;
If me you make your master, I shall hate you.

Cand. Thou win'st the day indeed, give me thy hand;
I'll challenge thee no more. My patient breast
Play'd thus the rebel, only for a jest.
Here's the rank rider that breaks colts; 'tis he
Can tame the mad folk, and curbst wives.

Bride. Who? Your man?
Cand. My man? My master, though his head be bare,
But he's so courteous, he'll put off his hair.

Bride. Nay, if your service be so hot a man cannot keep his hair on. I'll serve you no longer.

Cand. [Aside to Lord.]
Bride. Is this your schoolmaster?

Lord. Yes, faith, wench, I taught him to take thee down. I hope thou canst take him down without teaching;
You ha' got the conquest, and you both are friends.

Cand. Bear witness else.

Lord. My prenticeship then ends.

Cand. For the good service you to me have done,
I give you all your years.

Lord. I thank you, master.

I'll kiss my mistress now, that she may say
My man was bound, and free all in one day.

Exeunt.

ACT III

[SCENE I.]

Enter INFELICE, and ORLANDO [disguised as a Serving-man].

Inf. From whom say'st thou?

Ori. From a poor gentlewoman, madam, whom I serve.

Inf. And what's your business?

Ori. This madam: my poor mistress has a waste piece of ground, which is her own by inheritance, and left to her by her mother. There's a lord now that goes about not to take it clean from her, but to enclose it to himself, and to join it to a piece of his lordship's.

Inf. What would she have me do in this?

Ori. No more, madam, but what one woman should do for another in such a case. My honourable lord your husband, would do any thing in her behalf; but she had rather put herself into your hands, because you, a woman, may do more with the duke, your father.

Inf. Where lies this land?

Ori. Within a stone's cast of this place. My mistress, I think, would be content to let him enjoy it after her decease, if that would

3 An apartment in Hippolito's house serve his turn, so my master would yield too; but she cannot abide to hear that the lord should meddle with it in her lifetime.

Inf. Is she then married? Why stirs not [67] her husband in it?

Orl. Her husband stirs in it underhand: but because the other is a great rich man, my master is loth to be seen in it too much.

Inf. Let her in writing draw the cause at large.

And I wills move the duke.

Orl. 'Tis set down, madam, here in black and white already. Work it so, madam, that she may keep her own without disturbance, grievance, molestation, or meddling of any [56] other; and she bestows this purse of gold on your ladyship.

Inf. Old man, I'll plead for her, but take no fees.

Give lawyers them, I swim not in that flood; I'll touch no gold, till I have done her good. [67]

Orl. I would all proctors' clerks were of your mood, for they keep more amongst them than I do then. Here, madam, is the survey, not only of the manor itself, but of the grange-house, with every meadow pasture, plough-land, [42] cony-burrow, fish-pond, hedge, ditch, and bush, that stands in it. [Gives a letter.]

Inf. My husband's name, and hand seal at arms.

To a love letter? Where hadst thou this writing?

Orl. From the foresaid party, madam, that [67] would keep the foresaid land out of the foresaid lord's fingers.

Inf. My lord turn'd ranger now?

Orl. You're a good huntress, lady; you ha' found your game already. Your lord would [67] fain be a ranger, but my mistress requests you to let him run a course in your own park. If you'll not do't for love, then do't for money! She has no white money, but there's gold; or else she prays you to ring him by this token, [67] and so you shall be sure his nose will not be rooting other men's pastures.

[Give purse and ring.]

Inf. This very purse was woven with mine own hands;

This diamond on that very night, when he

Untied my virgin girdle, gave it him; [67]

And must a common harlot share in mine?

Old man, to quit thys pains, take thou the gold.

Orl. Not I, madam, old serving-men want no money.

Inf. Cupid himself was sure his secretary; [67]

These lines are even the arrows love let flies,

The very ink dropt out of Venus' eyes.

Orl. I do not think, madam, but he fetch'd off some poet or other for those lines, for they are parous hawks to fly at wenches.

Inf. Here's honied poison! To me he ne'er thus writ;

But lust can set a double edge on wit.

Orl. Nay, that's true, madam, a wench will what any thing, if it be not too dull.

Inf. Oaths, promises, preferments, jewels, [67] gold,

What snares should break, if all these cannot hold?

What creature is thy mistress?

Orl. One of those creatures that are contrary to man; a woman.

Inf. What manner of woman?

Orl. A little tiny woman, lower than your ladyship by head and shoulders, but as mad a wench as ever unlace a petticoat: these things should I indeed have delivered to my lord, your husband.

Inf. They are delivered better: why should she

Send back these things?

Orl. 'Ware, 'ware, there's knavery. [67]

Inf. Strumpets, like cheating gamblers, will not win

At first; these are but baits to draw him in.

How might I learn his hunting hours?

Orl. The Irish footman can tell you all his hunting hours, the park he hunts in, the doe he would strike; that Irish shackatology [73] beats the bush for him, and knows all; he brought that letter, and that ring; he is the carrier. [107]

Inf. Knowest thou what other gifts have past between them?

Orl. Little Saint Patrick knows all.

Inf. Him I'll examine presently.

Orl. Not whilst I am here, sweet madam. [107]

Inf. Be gone then, and what lies in me command.

Exit ORLANDO.

Enter BRYAN.

Inf. How much cost those satins, And cloth of silver, which my husband sent

By you to a low gentlewoman yonder?

Bry. Faat satins? faat silvers, faat low gent-folks? Dow pratest dow knowest not what, i'faat, la.

Inf. She there, to whom you carried letters. [107]

Bry. By dis hand and bod dow saist true, if I did so, oh how? I know not a letter a de [118] book i'faat, la.

Inf. Did your lord never send you with a ring, sir?

Set with a diamond?

Bry. Never, sa. crees sa; me, never! He may run at a tawsand rings i'faat, and I never [130] hold his stirrup, till he leap into de saddlle. By St. Patrick, madam, I never touch my lord's diamond, nor ever had to do, i'faat, la, with any of his precious stones. [124]

Enter HIPPOLITO.

Inf. Are you so close,2 you bawd, you pand'ring slave? [Strikes BRYAN.

Hipp. How now? Why, Infaelice; what's your quarrel?

Inf. Out of my sight, base varlet I get thee
gone.

Hipp. A way, you rogue!

Bry. Slaume loot,3 fare de well, fare de well. [118]
Ah marragh frofat boddah brein!4 Exit.

1 Hound. 2 Secret.

3 Irish:Slán leat, fare thee well.

4 Irish: As a murchr frumadh botach bréan — On the morrow of a feast, a clown is a beast. (Shy.)
A dog; whom I'll scarce spurn. Long'd you for shanrock?

Were it my father's father, heart, I'll kill him,
Although I take him on his death-bed gasping
'Twixt Heaven and hell! A shag-hair'd cur!

Bald strumpet,

Why hang'st thou on me? Think'st I'll be a bawd

To a whore, because she's noble?

I beg but this,

Says not my shame out to the world's broad eye,
Yet let thy vengeance, like my fault, soar high,
So it be in dark'ned clouds.

Dark'ned! my horns cannot be dark'ned, nor shall my revenge.

A harlot to my slave? The act is base,

Common, but foul, so shall not thy disgrace.

Could not I feed your appetite? O women

You were created angels, pure and fair;
But since the first fell, tempting devils you are.
You should be men's bliss, but you prove their rods:

Were there no women, men might live like gods.

You ha' been too much down already; rise,

Get from my sight, and henceforth shun my bed;

I'll with no strumpet's breath be poisoned.

As for your Irish lubrick, that spirit

Whom by prepost'rous charms thy lust hath raised

In a wrong circle, him I'll damn more black

Then any tyrant's soul.

Hippolito!

Tell me, didst thou bait hooks to draw him to thee,

Or did he bewitch thee?

The slave did woo me.

Tu-whoos in that screech-owl's language! Oh, who'd trust

Your cork-heel'd sex? I think to save your last

You'd love a horse, a bear, a croaking toad,

So your hot itching veins might have their bound:

Then the wild Irish dart was thrown? Come, how

The manner of this fight?

'T was thus, he gave me this battery first.—Oh, I

Mistake—believe me, all this in beaten gold;
Yet I held out, but at length thus was charmed.

[Give letter, purse and ring.]

What? change your diamond, wench? The act is base,

Common, but foul, so shall not your disgrace.

Could not I feed your appetite? O women

You were created angels, pure and fair,

But since the first fell, worse than devils you are.

You should our shields be, but you prove our rods.

Were there no men, women might live like gods.

Guilty, my lord?

Yes, guilty, my good lady.
Inf. Nay, you may laugh, but henceforth shun my bed,
With no whore's leavings I'll be poisoned.
Exit.

Hip. O'er-reached so finely? 'Tis the very diamond.
And letter which I sent. This villany
Some spider closely weaves, whose poison'd bulk
I must let forth. Who's there without?
Ser. (within.) My lord calls?
Hip. Send me the footman.
Ser. (within.) Call the footman to my lord.—Bryan, Bryan!

Re-enter Bryan.

Hip. It can be no man else, that Irish Judas,
Bred in a country where no venom prosper
But in the nation's blood, bath thus betray'd me.
Slave, get you from your service.
Bry. Feast meanest thou by this now?
Hip. Question me not, nor tempt my fury, villain!

Couldst thou turn all the mountains in the land
To hills of gold, and give me, here thou stayest not.
Bry. I pray, I care not.
Hip. Prate not, but get thee gone, I shall send else.

Bry. Ay, do predy, I had rather have thee
Make a scabbard of my guts, and let out all de Irish puddings in my poor belly, den to be a false knave to de, i' faith! I will never see dine own sweet face more. A mawhied deer a gra, fare dee well, fare dee well; I will go steal cows again in Ireland.
Exit.

Hip. He's damn'd that raised this whirlwind,
Which hath blown into her eyes this jealousy: yet I'll on,
I'll on, stood armed devils staring in my face.
To be pursued in flight, quickens the race,
Shall my blood-streams by a wife's lust be bared?

Fond woman, no: iron grows by strokes more hard;
Lawless desires are seas scouring all bounds,
Or sulphur, which being ramm'd up, more confounds;

Struggling with madmen madness nothing tames;
Winds wrestling with great fires incense the flames.
Exit.

[Scene II.]

Enter Bellafont, and Orlando [disguised as a Serving-man], Matheo [following].

Bell. How now, what ails your master?
Orl. Has taken a younger brother's purge,
Forsoth, and that works with him.

Bell. Where is his clock and rapier?
Orl. He has given up his clock, and his rapier is bound to the peace. If you look a little higher, you may see that another hath entred into hatband for him too. Six and four have put him into this sweat.

Bell. Where's all his money?
Orl. Ta put over by exchange; his doublet was going to be translated, but for me. If any man would ha' lent but half a ducat on his beard, the hair of it had stuff a pair of breeches by this time. I had but one poor penny, and that I was glad to niggle out, and buy a holly-wand to grace him through the street. As hap was, his boots were on, and them I dustied, to make people think he had been riding, and I had run by. —Bell. Oh me! —How does my sweet Matheo? [Matheo comes forward.] Mat. Oh rogue, of what devilish stuff are these dice made of, —the parings of the devil's corns of his toes, that they run thus damably?
Bell. Sir, for the time.
Mat. If any handierart's-man was ever suffred to keep shop in hell, it will be a dice-maker; he's able to undo more souls than the devil; I play'd with mine own dice, yet lost. Ha! you any money?
Bell. Las, I ha' none.
Mat. Must have money, must have some, must have a cloak; and rapier, and things. Will you go wet your lime-twigs, and get me some birds, some money?

Bell. What lime-twigs should I set?
Mat. You will not then? Must have cash and pictures, do ye hear, frailty? Shall I walk in a Plymouth cloak, that's to say, like a rogue, in my hose and doublet, and a crabtree cudge but in my hand, and you swim in your satins? Must have money, come! [Taking off her gown.]

Orl. Is't bed-time, master, that you undo my mistress?

Bell. Undo me? Yes, yes, at these risings I have been too often.

Mat. Help to flay, Pacheco.
Orl. Playing call you it?
Mat. I'll pawn you, by th' lord, to your very eyebrows.

Bell. With all my heart, since Heaven will have me poor;
As good be drown'd at sea, as drown'd at shore.
Orl. Why, hear you, sir? I 'faith, do not make away her gown.

Mat. Oh! it's summer, it's summer; your only fashion for a woman now is to be light, to be light.
Orl. Why, pray sir, employ some of that money you have of mine.

Mat. Thine? I'll starve first, I'll beg first; when I touch a penny of that, let these fingers end not.

Orl. [Aside.] So they may, for that's past touching. I saw my twenty pounds fly high. Mat. Knowest thou never a damned broker about the city?
Orl. Damned broker? Yes, five hundred.

Mat. The gown stood me in? above twenty

1 Irish: A maighíst a gráth, O master, O love.
2 Foolish.
3 A room in Matheo's house.
The divine powers never shoot darts at men
Mortal, to kill them.

Mat. You say true.

Lod. Why should we grieve at want? Say the world made thee
Her minion, that thy head lay in her lap,
And that she danc'd thee on her wanton knee,
She could but give thee a world whole: that's all,
And that all's nothing; the world's greatest part
Cannot fill up one corner of thy heart.
Say the three corners were all fill'd, alas!
Of what art thou possesst? A thin blown glass,
Such as is by boys puff into the air?
Were twenty kingdoms thine, thou'lest live in care:

Thou couldst not sleep the better, nor live longer,
Nor merrier be, nor healthfuller, nor stronger.
If, then, thou want'st, thus make that want thy pleasure,
No man wants all things, nor has all in measure.
Mat. I am the most wretched fellow: sure some left-handed priest hath christ'n'd me. I am so unlucky, I am never out of one puddle or another still falling.

Re-enter Bellafront [with wine] and Orlando.

Fill out wine to my little finger. — With my heart, i'faith.
[Drinks.] 130
Lod. Thanks, good Matheo. To your own sweet self.
[Drinks.]

Re-enter Orlando.

Orl. All the brokers' hearts, sir, are made of flint. I can with all my knocking strike but six sparks of fire out of them; here's six ducats, if you'll take them.

Mat. Give me them! [Taking money.] An evil conscience gnaw them all! Moths and plagues hang upon their lousy wardrobes!
Lod. Is this your man, Matheo? 150

[Mat.] An old serving-man.
Orl. You may give me t'other half too, sir;
that's the beggar.

Lod. What hast there, — gold?

Mat. A sort 5 of rascals are in my debt; God knows what, and they feed me with bits, with crumbs, a pox choke them.
Lod. A word, Matheo; be not angry with me;
Believe that I know the touch of time.
And can part copper, though it be gilded o'er,
From the true gold: the sails which thou dost spread,
Would show well if they were not borrowed.
The sound of thy low fortunes drew me hither,
I give my self unto thee; prithee, use me,
I will bestow on you a suit of satin,
And all things else to fit a gentleman,
Because I love you.
Mat. Thanks, good, noble knight!
Lod. Call on me when you please; till then farewell.

Exit.
Mat. Hast angled? Hast cut up this fresh salmon?

1 On.
2 In preparation for.
3 An allusion to a well-known romance.
4 A cast term for money.
Bell. Wouldst have me be so base?
Mat. It's base to steal, it's base to be a whore:
Thou'lt be more base, I'll make thee keep a door. 1
Bell. I hope he will not sneak away with all the money, will he?
Bell. Thou seest he does.
Orl. Nay then, 'tis well. I set my brains upon an upright last; 2 though my wits be old, yet they are like a wither'd pippin, wholesome.
Look you, mistress, I told him I had but six 100
ducats of the knave broker, but I had eight,
and kept these two for you.
Bell. Thou should'st have given him all.
Orl. What, to fly high?
Bell. Like waves, my misery drives on misery.
Exit. 106

Orl. Sell his wife's clothes from her back? 115
Does any poulterer's wife pull chickens alive?
He riots all abroad, wants all at home: he dices, whores, swaggerers, swears, cheats, borrors, pawns. I'll give him hook and line, a little more for all this; 119
Yet sure i' th' end he'll delude all my hopes,
And show me a French trick danc'd on the ropes. 120 Exit. 126

[SCENE III.]

Enter at one door LODOVICO and CARLO; at another BOTS. and MISTRESS HORSELEECH.
CANDIDO and his Wife appear in the Shop.

Lod. Hist, hist, Lieutenant Bots! How dost,
man?
Car. Whither are you ambling, Madam
Horseleech?
Mis. H. About worldly profit, sir: how [s your worships?
Bots. We want tools, gentlemen, to furnish the trade: they wear out day and night, they wear out till no metal be left in their back.
We hear of two or three new wench's are come [10 up with a carrier, and your old goshawk here is flying at them.
Lod. And, faith, what flesh have you at home?
Mis. H. Ordinary dishes; by my troth, [15 sweet men, there's few good i' th' city. I am as well furnish'd as any, and, though I say it, as well custom'd.
Bots. We have meats of all sorts of dressing;
we have stew'd meat for your Frenchman, 20 pretty light picking meat for your Italian, and that which is rotten roasted for Don Spaniardo.
Lod. A pox on 't.
Bots. We have poulterer's ware for your sweet bloods, as dove, chicken, duck, teal, 25 woodcock, and so forth: and butcher's meat for the citizen: yet muttons 2 fall very bad this year.
Lod. Stay, is not that my patient linen-drapyer, and my fine young smug mistress, 20
his wife?
Car. Sirrah, 5 grannam, I'll give thee for thy fee twenty crowns, if thou canst but procure me the wearing of you velvet cap.
Mis. H. You'd wear another thing be- [as sides the cap. You're a way.
Bots. Twenty crowns? We'll share, and I'll be your pully to draw her on.
Lod. Do't presently; we'll ha' some sport.
Mis. H. Wheel you about, sweet men: [40 do you see? I'll cheapen wares of the man, whilst Bots is doing with his wife.
Lod. To't: if we come into the shop to do you grace, we 'll call you madam.
Bots. Fox a' your old face, give it the [45 badge of all scurvy faces, a mask.

[MISTRESS HORSELEECH puts on a mask.]
Cand. What is 't you lack, gentlewoman?
Cambric or lounges, or fine hollands? Pray draw near; I can sell you a pennyworth.
Bots. Some cambric for my old lady.
Cand. Cambric? You shall, the purest thread in Milan.
Lod., Car. Save you, Signor Candido.
Lod. How does my noble master? How my fair mistresse? 55
Cand. My worshipful good servant. — View it well, for 't is both fine and even.

[Shows cambric.]
Car. Cry you mercy, madam; though mas'd,
I thought it should be you by your man. —
Pray, signor, show her the best, for she commonly deals for good ware.
Cand. Then this shall fit her. — This is for your ladyship.
Bots. [to Bride.] A word, I pray. There is a waiting gentlewoman of my lady's — her [60
name is Ruyna — says she's your kinswoman, and that you should be one of her aunts, Bride. One of her aunts? Troth, sir, I know her not.
Bots. If it please you to bestow the poor labour of your legs at any time, I will be your convoy thither.
Bride. I am a snail, sir, seldom leave my house. If 't please her to visit me, she shall be welcome.
Bots. Do you hear? The naked truth is, my lady hath a young knight, her son, who loves you; you're made, if you lay hold upon 't; this jewel he sends you.
[Offers jewel.] 90
Bride. Sir, I return his love and jewel with scorn. Let go my hand, or I shall call my husband. You are an arrant knave.
Exe. 93
Lod. What will she do?
Bots. Do? They shall all do if Bots sets upon them once. She was as if she had profess'd 95 the trade, squeamish at first; at last I showed her this jewel, said a knight sent it her.
Lod. Is't gold, and right stones?
Bots. Copper, copper; I go a fishing with these baits. She nibbled, but would not swallow the hook, because the conger-bead, her [100 husband, was by; but she bids the gentleman name any afternoon, and she'll meet him at her garden house, 6 which I know.

6 Gardens with summer-houses were very common in the suburbs of London at the time, and were often used as places of intrigue. (Dyce.)
There was much bawdry us'd among the soldiers,
Though they were lousy.

Cand. It may be so, that's likely. - True, indeed,

In every garden, sir, does grow that weed.

Bry. Fox on de gardens, and de weeds, and de fool's cap dere, and de clouts! Hear? dost make a hobby-horse of me.

[Tearing the cambric.]

All. Oh, fie! he has torn the cambric.

Cand. 'Tis no matter.

Ast. It frets me to the soul.

Cand. So does't not me.

My customers do oft for remnants call,
These are two remnants, now, no loss at all.
But let me tell you, were my servants here, it would ha' cost more. - Thank you, gentlemen,

I use you well, pray know my shop again.

Exit.

[ACT IV]

[Scene I.]

Enter Matheo brave, and Bellafront.

Mat. How am I suited, Front? Am I not gallant, ha?

Bell. Yes, sir, you are suited well.

Mat. Exceeding passing well, and to the time.

Bell. The tailor has play'd his part with you.

Mat. And I have play'd a gentleman's part with my tailor, for I owe him for the making of it.

Bell. And why did you so, sir?

Mat. To keep the fashion; it's your only fashion now, of your best rank of gallants, to make their tailors wait for their money; neither were it wisdom indeed to pay them upon the first edition of a new suit; for commonly the suit is owing for, when the linings are worn out, and there's no reason, then, that the tailor should be paid before the mercer.

Bell. Is this the suit the knight bestowed upon you?

Mat. This is the suit, and I need not shame to wear it, for better men than I would be glad to have suits bestowed on them. It's a generous fellow, - but - pox on him - we whose pericranions are the very limbecks and stillatories of good wit and fly high, must drive liquor out of stale gaping oysters. Shallow [8] knight, poor squire Tinache; I'll make a wild Catalan of forty such: hang him, he's an ass, he's always sober.

Bell. This is your fault to wound your friends still.

Mat. No, faith, Front. Lodovico is a noble

1 A room in Matheo's house. 2 In the fashion.
3 Finely attired. 4 Delivery.
5 It would take forty such knights to make a thief. 6 Catala is China; the Chinese were supposed to be great thieves.
Slavonian: ’tis more rare to see him in a woman’s company, than for a Spaniard to go into England, and to challenge the English fencing there. — [Knocking within.] One knocks, — see. — [Exit Bellafront.] — La, sa, sed, la, fa, la, [sings] rustle in silks and satins! There’s music in this, and a taffeta petticoat, it makes both fly high. Cato.

Re-enter Bellafront; after her Orlando, like himself, with four men after him.

Bell. Matheo! ’tis my father. Mat. Ha! father? It’s no matter, he finds no tatter’d prodigals here.

Orl. Is not the door good enough to hold your blue coats? Away, knaves, wear not your [s clothes threadbare at knees for me; beg Heaven’s blessing, not mine. [Exeunt Servants.] — Oh cry your worship mercy, sir; was somewhat bold to talk to this gentlewoman, your wife here.

Mat. A poor gentlewoman, sir. Orl. Stand not, sir, bare to me; I ha’ read oft That serpents who creep low, belch ranker poison Than winged dragons do that fly aloft. Mat. If it offend you, sir, ’tis for my pleasure.

Orl. Your pleasure be ’t, sir. Umh, is this your palace?

Bell. Yes, and our kingdom, for ’t is our content.

Orl. ’Tis a very poor kingdom then; what, are all your subjects gone a sheep-shearing? Not a maid? not a man? not so much as a cat? You keep a good house belike, just like one of your profession, every room with bare walls, and a half-headed bed to vault upon, as all your bawdy-houses are. Pray who are your upholsters? Oh, the spiders, I see, they bestow hangings upon you.

Mat. Bawdy-house? Zounds! Orl. Oh sweet Matheo, peace. Upon my knees I do beseech you, sir, not to array me For sins, which Heaven, I hope, long since hath pardoned! Those flames, like lightning flashes, are so spent, The heat no more remains, than where ships went.

Orl. Or where birds cut the air, the print remains. Mat. Fox on him, kneel to a dog.

Bell. She that’s a whore, Lives gallant, fares well, is not, like me, poor. I ha’ now as small acquaintance with that sin, As if I had never known it; that never been.

Orl. No acquaintance with it? What maintains thee then? How dost live then? Has thy husband any lands, any rents coming in, any stock going, any ploughs jogging, any ships sailing? Hast thou any wares to turn, so much as to get a single penny by? Yes thou hast ware to sell; Knaves are thy chapmen, and thy shop is hell.

Mat. Do you hear, sir?

Orl. So, sir, I do hear, sir, more of you than you dream I do. Mat. You fly a little too high, sir. Orl. They, sir, too high! Mat. I be suff red your tongue, like a barm’d cater-tray, to run all this while, and ha’ not stop it.

Orl. Well, sir, you talk like a gamer.

Mat. If you come to bark at her because she’s a poor rogue, look you, here’s a fine path, sir, and there, there, the door.

Bell. Matheo!

Mat. Your blue coats stay for you, sir. I love a good honest roaring boy, and so —

Orl. That ’s the devil.

Mat. Sir, sir, I’ll ha’ no Joves in my house to thunder a vaunt. She shall live and be maintained when you, like a keg of musty Hr geom, shall stink. Where? In your coffin. How? Be a musty fellow, and lousy.

Orl. I know she shall be maintained, but how? She like a queen, thou like a knave; she like a whore, thou like a thief.

Mat. Thief? Zounds! Thief? Bell. Good, dearest Mat! — Father!

Orl. Fox on you both! I ’ll not be braved. New satin scarves to be put down with bare bawdy velvet. Thief! Orl. Ay, thief, th’ art a murderer, a cheater, a whoremonger, a pot-hunter, a borrower, a beggar —

Bell. Dear father —

Mat. An old ass, a dog, a churl, a chuff, an usurer, a villain, a moth, a mangy mole, with an old velvet foot-cloth on his back, sir.

Bell. Oh me!

Orl. Yelet, for this I ’ll hang thee.

Mat. Ha, ha, alas!

Orl. Thou keepest a man of mine here, under my nose.

Mat. Under thy beard.

Orl. As arrant a smell-smoker, for an old mutton-monger so as thyself.

Mat. No, as yourself.

Orl. As arrant a pursuer-Taker as ever cried, Stand! yet a good fellow I confess, and valiant; but he ’ll bring thee to th’ gallows. You both have robb’d of late two poor country pedlars.

Bell. Oh, sir, no more.

Orl. Ay, knave, two pedlars. Huy and cry is up, warrants are out, and I shall see thee climb a ladder.

Mat. And come down again as well as a bricklayer or a tile. — [Aside.] How the vengeance knows be this? — If I be hanged, [Exeunt they.] I ’ll tell the people I married old Friscobaldo’s daughter; I ’ll frusoe you, and your old carcass. Orl. Tell what you canst; if I stay here longer, I shall be hang’d too, for being in thy company; therefore, as I found you, I leave you —
Mat. Kneel, and get money of him.
Orl. A knave and a quean, a thief and a strumpet, a couple of beggars, a brace of baggages.
Mat. Hang upon him — Ay, ay, sir, fare you well; we are so — follow close — we are beggars — in satin — to him.
Bell. Is this your comfort, when so many years
You ha' left me frozen to death?
Orl. Freeze still, starve still!
Bell. Yes, so I shall: I must: I must and will.
If, as you say, I'm poor, relieve me then,
Let me not sell my body to base men.
You call me strumpet, Heaven knows I am
none:
Your cruelty may drive me to be one:
Let not that sin be yours; let not the shame
Of common whore live longer than my name.
That cunning bawd, Necessity, night and day
Plots to undo me; drive that bag away,
Least being at lowest ebb, as now I am,
I sink for ever.
Orl. Lowest ebb, what ebb?
Bell. So poor, that, though to tell it be my shame,
I am not worth a dish to hold my meat;
I am yet poorer, I want bread to eat. 176
Orl. It's not seen by your cheeks.
Mat. [Aside.] I think she has read an homily to tickle the old rogue.
Orl. Want bread! There's satin: bake that.
Mat. 'Sblood, make pasties of my clothes? 177
Orl. A fair new cloak, stew that; an excel-ent girt rapier.
Mat. Will you eat that, sir?
Orl. I could feast ten good fellows with these hangers. 1
Mat. The pox, you shall!
Orl. I shall not, till thou beg'st, think thou art poor;
And when thou beg'st I'll feed thee at my door,
As I feed dogs, with bones; till then beg, borrow,
Pawn, steal, and hang; turn bawl, when thou art worse.
[Aside.] My heart-strings sure would crack, were they strain'd more. Exit. 190
Mat. This is your father, your damn'd — Confusion light upon all the generation of you! He can come bragging hither with four white herrings at's tail in blue coats, without roses in their bellies; but I may starve ere he give me so much as a cob. 2
Bell. What tell you me of this? alas!
Mat. Go, troth after your dad, do you capitu-late; I'll pawn not for you; I'll not steal to be hanged for such an hypocritical, close, common hardcoat: away, you dog! —
Brave i' faith! Udsfoot, give me some meat.
Bell. Yes, sir. Exit.
Mat. Goodman slave, my man too, is gallop'd
1 The straps attached to the girdle, from which a dagger or sword hung. They were often richly embroidered.
2 Herring's head. to the devil at' the t' other side: Pacheco, I'll cheeo you. Is this your dad's day? Eng- lang, they say, is the only hell for horses, and only paradise for women: pray get you to that paradise, because you 're called an honest whore; there they live none but honest whores with a pox. Marry, here in our city, all your [at sex are but foot-cloth nags; the master no sooner lights but the man leaps into the saddle.
Re-enter Bellafront [with meat and drink],
Bell. Will you sit down, I pray, sir?
Mat. [sitting down.] I could tear, by thi' Lord, his flesh, and eat his midriff in salt, as I eat this:— must I choke? — My father Friscoaldo,
I shall make a pitiful hog-house of you, Orlando, if you fall once into my fingers. — Here's the savourest meat! I ha' got a stomach with chafing. 3
What rogue should tell him of these [221 two pedlars? A plague choke him, and gaw him to the bare bones! — Come fill.
Bell. This is meat with a barrel sacked, so sweet:
Vex not, Las. 'tis no fault of mine. 276
Mat. Where didst buy this mutton? I never felt better ribs.
Bell. A neighbour sent it me.
Re-enter Orlando [disguised as a Serving-
man].
Mat. Hah, neighbour? Foh, my mouth stinks.
You whore, do you beg victuals for me? Is this satin doublet to be bombasted 5 with broken [231 meat? Takes up the stool.
Orl. What will you do, sir?
Mat. Beat out the brains of a beggarly —
Orl. Beat out an ass's head of your own. — Away, Mistress! [Exit Bellafront.] Zounds, do but touch one hair of her, and I'll so quilt your cap with old iron, that your coxcomb shall ache the worse these seven years for't. Does she look like a roasted rabbit, that you must have the head for the brains?
Mat. Ha, ha! go out of my doors, you rogue!
Away, four marks; trudge.
Orl. Four marks? No, sir, my twenty pound that you ha' made fly high, and I am gone. 248 Mat. Must I be fed with chippings? You're best get a claydish, 8 and say y' are proctor to some spittle-house. — Where hast thou been,
Pacheco? Come hither my little turkey-cock.
Orl. I cannot abide, sir, to see a woman wrong'd, not I.
Mat. Sirrah, here was my father-in-law to-day.
Orl. Fish, then y' are full of crowns.
Mat. Hang him! he would ha' thrust crowns upon me, to have fall'n in again, but I scorn cast clothes, or any man's gold. 255
Orl. [Aside.] — But mine. How did he brook that, sir?
Mat. Oh, swore like a dozen of drunken tinkers; at last growing foul in words, he and [290 four of his men drew upon me, sir.
2 Horses with long housings.
4 An appetite with anger.
5 Stuff'd out.
6 A dish carried by beggars, with a lid used to rattle to attract notice.
7 Hospital.
Bell. A woman gives defiance.

Hip. Sit. [They seat themselves.]

Bell. Begin:

'Tis a brave battle to encounter sin.

Hip. You men that are to fight in the same war

To which I'm prest, and plead at the same bar,

To win a woman, if you 'd have me speed,

Send all your wishes!

Bell. No doubt you 're heard; proceed.

Hip. To be a harlot, that you stand upon,
The very name's a charm to make you one.
Harlotta was a dame of so divine

And ravishing touch that she was concumbine
To an English king; her sweet bewitching eye
Did the king's heart strings in such love-knots tie

That even the coyest was proud when she could hear

Men say, " Behold, another Harlot there!" And after her all women that were fair

Were harlots call'd, as to this day some are:

Besides, her dalliance she so well does mix,
That she's in Latin call'd the Meretric.

Thus for the name; for the profession, this:

Who lives in bondage, lives lac'd; the chief bliss

This world below can yield, is liberty:

And who, than whores, with looser wings dare fly?

As Juno's proud bird spreads the fairest tail,

So does a strumpet hoist the loftiest sail,
She's no man's slave; men are her slaves; her eye

Moves not on wheels screw'd up with jealousy,
She, hars'd or coach'd, does merry journeys make,

Free as the sun in his girt zodiac:

As bravely does she shine, as fast she's driven,
But stays not long in any house of heaven;
But shifts from sign to sign, her amorous prizes

More rich being when she's down, than when she rises.
In brief, gentlemen haunt them, soldiers fight for them.
Few men but know them, few or none abhor them.

Thus for sport's sake speak I, as to a woman

Whom, as the worst ground, I would turn to common:
But you I would enclose for mine own bed.

Bell. So should a husband be dishonoured.

Hip. Dishonour'd? Not a whit: to fall to one

Besides your husband is to fall to none.
For one no number is.

Bell. Faith, should you take

One in your bed, would you that reckoning make?

'Tis time you found retreat.

Hip. Say, have I won,

Is the day ours?

1 Trick. 2 Boasters. 3 Booty. 4 Gallow's-bird. 5 His sword.

The mistresse of the father of William the Conqueror.

Quality.
Bell. The battle's but half done,
None but yourself have yet sounded alarms, 555
Let us strike too, else you dishonour arms.

Hip. If you can win the day, the glory's yours.

Bell. To prove a woman should not be a

whore:
When she was made, she'd one man, and no

more;
Yet she was tied to laws then, for even then, 1
'Tis said, she was not made for men, but man.
Anon, 't increase earth's brood, the law was vair'd,

Men should take many wives: and though they married

According to that act, yet 't is not known

But that those wives were only tied to one. 566
New parliaments were since: for now one

woman
Is shar'd between three hundred, nay she's common,

Common! as spotted leopards, whom for sport

Men hunt to get the flesh, but care not for 't.
So spread they nets of gold, and tune their salls,

To enchant silly women to take falls;

Swearing they're angels, which that they may win

They'll hire the devil to come with false dice

in,
Oh Sirens' subtle tunes! yourselves you flatter,

And our weak sex betray: so men love water;

It serves to wash their hands, but being once

foul,
The water down is pour'd, cast out of doors;

And even of such base use do men make

whores.
A harlot, like a hen, more sweetness reaps,

To pick men one by one up, than in heaps: 580
Yet all feeds but confounding. 2 Say you should taste me,

I serve but for the time, and when the day

Of war is done, am cashier'd out of pay:
If like lame soldiers I could beg, that's all,
And there's lust's rendezvous, an hospital. 585
Who then would be a man's slave, a man's

woman?
She's half starv'd the first day that feeds in common.

Hip. You should not feed so, but with me alone.

Bell. If I drink poison by stealth, is 't not all one?

Is't not rank poison still with you alone? 590
Nay, say you spied a courtesan, whose soft side
To touch you'd sell your birth-right, for one kiss

Be rack'd; she's won, you're sated: what follows this?

Oh, then you curse that bawd that toll'd 2 you
in,

The night: you curse your lust, you loathe the
sin,
You loathe her very sight, and ere the day

Arise, you rise glad when y' are stol'n away.
Even then when you are drunk with all her sweets,

1 Then. 2 Only confusion. 3 Enticed.

There's no true pleasure in a strumpet's sheets.
Women whom lust so prostitutes to sale, 400
Like dancers upon ropes, once seen, are stale.

Hip. If all the threads of harlot's lives are spun,

So coarse as you would make them, tell me

why
You so long lov'd the trade?

Bell. If all the threads
Of harlot's lives be fine as you would make

them,
Why do you persuade your wife turn

whore,
And all dames else to fall before that sin?
Like an ill husband, though I knew the same
To be my undoing, followed I that game.
Oh, when the work of lust had earn'd my bread, 410

To taste it how I trembled, lest each bit.
Ere it went down, should choke me chewing it!
My bed seem'd like a cabin hung in hell,
The bawd, hell's porter, and the lick'erish 4

wine
The pander fetch'd, was like an easy fine, 415
For which, methought, I less'd away my soul;
And oftentimes, in my quaffing bowl,
Thus said I to myself, I am a whore,
And have drunk down thus much confusion

more. 420

Hip. It is a common rule, and 't is more true,
Two of one trade never love: no more do you.
Why are you sharp 'gainst that you once profess?

Bell. Why do you on that, which you did once detest?

I cannot, seeing she's won of such bad stuff,
Set colours on a harlot base enough. 430
Nothing did make me, when I lov'd them best,
To loathe them more than this: when in the street

A fair young modest damsel I did meet,
She seem'd to all a dove, when I pass'd by,

And I to all a raven: every eye
That followed her went with a bashful glance,
At me each bold and jeering countenance
Darted forth scorn; to her as if she had been Some tower unvanquished, would they rai, 5

'Gainst me swoln rumour hoisted every sail;
She, crown'd with reverend praises, pass'd by
them,
I, though with face mask'd, could not scape

the "Hem!"

For, as if Heaven had set strange marks on
whores,
Because they should be pointing stocks to

man,
Drest up in civilest shape, a courtesan — 440
Let her walk saint-like, noteless, and unknown,
Yet she's betray'd by some trick of her own.
Were harlots therefore wise, they'd be said
dear:
For men account them good but for one year,
And then like almanacs whose dates are gone, 445
They are thrown by, and no more look'd upon.

Than dead men are to living—never sleeps, 95
Or if he do, 'tis dreams: and in those dreams
His arms work, and then cries, "Sweet"—— what's her name.
What's the drab's name?
Ast. In truth, my lord, I know not,
I know no drabs, not I.
Duke. Oh, Bellafront! — 96
And, catching her fast, cries, "My Bellafront!"
Car. A drench that's able to kill a horse, cannot kill this disease of snock-smelling,
my lord, if it have once eaten deep.
Duke. I'll try all physic, and this medicine first:
I have directed warrants strong and peremptory
To purge our city Milan, and to cure
The outward parts, the suburbs, for the attaining
Of all those women, who, like gold, want weight:
Cities, like ships, should have no idle freight. 100
Car. No, my lord, and light wenches are no idle freight; but what's your grace's reach in this?
Duke. This, Carolo. If she whom my son doth on,
Be in that muster-book enroll'd, he 'll shame
Ever t' approach one of such noted name.
Car. But say she be not?
Duke. Yet on harlots' heads
New laws shall fall so heavy, and such blows
Shall give to those that haunt them, that Hippolito
If not for fear of law, for love to her,
If he love truly, shall her bed be bear.
Car. Attach all the light heels i' the city and clap 'em up? Why, my lord, you dive into a well unsearchable: all the whores within the walls, and without the walls? I would not [136] he should meddle with them for ten such dukes: the army that you speak on is able to fill all the prisons within this city, and to leave not a drinking-room in any tavern besides.
Duke. Those only shall be caught that are of note;
Harlots in each street flow:
The fish being thus i' th' net, ourself will sit,
And with eye most severe dispose of it.
Come, girl. [Exit Duke and INPHELICE.]
Car. Arraign the poor whores!
Ast. I'll not miss that sessions. 136
Font. Nor I.
Ber. Nor I, though I hold up my hand there myself.
Exeunt.

[SCENE III.] 2
Enter MATHEO, LODOVICO, and ORLANDO [disguised as a Serving-man].

Mat. Let who will come, my noble chevalier; I can but play the kind host, and bid 'em welcome.

Lod. We'll trouble your house, Matheo, but as Dutchmen do in taverns, drink, be merry, 5 and be gone.

Orl. Indeed, if you be right Dutchmen; if you fall to drinking, you must be gone.
Mat. The rest is, my wife is not at home; but we'll fly high, my generous knight, for all that. There's no music when a woman is in [11 the concert.
Orl. No; for she's like a pair of virginals,
Always with jacks at her tail.

Enter ASTOLFO, CAROLO, BERDOSO, and FON- TINEZ.

Lod. See, the covey is sprung.
All. Save you, gallants.
Mat. Happily encounter'd, sweet bloods.
Lod. Gentlemen, you all know Signor Campano, the linen-draper, he that's more patient than a brown baker upon the day when he heats his oven, and has forty scolds about him. 31
All. Yes, we know him all; what of him?
Lod. Would it not be a good fit of mirth, to make a piece of English cloth of him, and to stretch him on the tenders, till the threads of his own natural humour crack, by making [36 him drink healths, tobacco, dance, sing bawdy songs, or to run any bids according as we think good to cast him?
Car. 'T were a morris-dance worth the seeing.
Ast. But the old fox is so crafty, we shall hardly hunt him out of his den.
Mat. To that train I ha' given fire already; and the hook to draw him hither, is to see certain pieces of law, which I told him I have [35 to sell, and indeed have such; fetch them down, Pacheco.
Orl. Yes, sir, I'm your water-spaniel, and will fetch any thing — [Aside.] but I'll fetch one dish of meat anon shall turn your stomach, and that's a constable.
Exit. 41

Enter Bots ushering Mistress HORSELECH.

All. How now? how now?
Car. What galley-foist is this?
Lod. Peace, two dishes of small prunes, a bawd and a ponder. My worthy lieutenant Bots; why, now I see thou'rt a man of thy word, welcome. — Welcome Mistress Horselech. — Pray, gentlemen, salute this reverend matron.
Mis. H. Thanks to all your worship.
Lod. I bade a drawer send in wine, too: did none come along with thee, grammam, but the lieutenant?
Mis. H. None came along with me but Bots, if it like your worship.
Bots. Who the pox should come along with you but Bots.

Enter two Vintners [with wine].

All. Oh brave! march fair.
Lod. Are you come? That's well.
Mat. Here's ordinance able to lack a city.
Lod. Come, repeat, read this inventory. 60
1 Vint. Imprimis, a pottle 7 of Greek wine, a
A frame used for stretching cloth.
5 In any direction.
6 A common dish in the brothels of the time.
7 Two quarts.
pottle of Peter-sameene, a pottle of Char-ncro, and a pottle of Leastica.

Lod. You're paid?

Mat. So shall some of us be anon, I fear.

Bots. Here's a hot day towards; but zounds, this is the life out of which a soldier sucks sweetness! When this artillery goes off roundly, some must drop to the ground: canon, demi-cannon, saker, and basiliak.

Lod. Give fire, lieutenant.

Bots. So, so: must I venture first upon the breach? To you all, gallants; Bots sets upon you all.

[Drinks.] 75

All. It's hard, Bots, if we pepper not you, as well as you pepper us.

Enter Candido.

Lod. My noble linen-draper! — Some wine! —
Welcome, old lad!

Mat. You're welcome, signor.

Cand. These laws, sir?

Mat. Presently; my man is gone for them.

We ha' rigged a fleet, you see here, to sail about
the world.

Cand. A dangerous voyage, sailing in such ships.

Bots. There's no casting over board yet.

Lod. Because you are an old lady, I have will you be acquainted with this brave citizen.
Pray bestow your lips upon him, and bid him welcome.

Mis. Any citizen shall be most welcome to me: — I have used to buy ware at your shop.

Cand. It may be so, good madam.

Mis. H. Your prentices know my dealings well; I trust your good wife be in good case.
If it please you, bear her a token from my lips, by word of mouth. [Kisses him.]

Cand. I pray, no more; forsooth, 'tis very
well;
Indeed I love no sweetmeats. — [Aside.] Sh's
a breath

Stinks worse than fifty polecats. — Sir, a word,
Is she a lady?

Lod. A woman of a good house, and an ancient; she's a bawd.

Cand. A bawd? Sir, I'll steal hence, and see your lawns

Some other time.

Mat. Steal out of such company? Pacheco, my man, is but gone for 'em. Lieutenant Bots, drink to this worthy old fellow, and teach him to fly high.

All. Swagger; and make him do't on his knees.

Cand. How, Bots? Now bless me, what do I with Bots?

No wine in sooth, no wine, good master Bots. [114

Bots. Gray-beard, goat's pizzle, 'tis a health; have this in your guts, or this, there [touching his sword]. I will sing a bawdy song, sir, because your verjuice 5 face is melancholy, to make liquor go down glib. Will you fall on your marrowbones, and pledge this health? 'Tis to my mistress, a whore.

Cand. Here's ratsbane upon ratsbane, Master Bots.

I pray, sir, pardon me: you are a soldier,
Press me not to this service, I am old,
And shoot not in such pot-guns. 6

Bots. Cap, I'll teach you.

Cand. To drink healths, is to drink sickness.

— Gentlemen,

Pray rescue me.

Bots. Zounds, who dare?

All. We shall ha' stabbing then?

Cand. I ha' reckonings to cast up, good Master Bots.

Bots. This will make you cast 'em up better.

Lod. Why does your hand shake so?

Cand. The palsy, signors, dance in my blood.

Bots. Pipe with a pox, sir, then, or I'll make your blood dance —

Cand. Hold, hold, good master Bolts. I drink.

[Knells.]

All. To whom?

Cand. To the old countess there. [Drinks.

Mis. H. To me, old boy? This is he that never drunk wine! Once again to 't.

Cand. With much ado the poison is got down,
Though I can scarce get up; never before
Drank I a whore's health, nor will never more.

Re-enter Orlando with lawns.

Mat. Hast been at gallows?

Orl. Yes, sir, for I make account to suffer today.

Mat. Look, signor; here's the commodity.

Cand. Your price?

Mat. Thus.

Cand. No; too dear: thus.

Mat. No. 0 fie, you must fly higher. Yet take 'em home, trifles shall not make us quarrel; we'll agree; you shall have them, and a pennyworth. I'll fetch money at your shop.

Cand. Be it so, good signor, send me going.

Mat. Going? A deep bowl of wine for Signor Candido.

Orl. He would be going.

Cand. I'll rather stay than go so: stop your bowl.

Enter Constable and Billmen.

Lod. How now?

Bots. Is't Shrove-Tuesday, that these ghosts walk? 8

Mat. What's your business, sir?

Const. From the duke: you are the man we look for, signor. I have warrant here from [115 the duke, to apprehend you upon felony for robbing two pedlars. I charge you i' th' duke's name, go quickly.

6 An acid liquor made from green fruit.
7 A phrase upon "pot-guns."
8 The price was here probably indicated by displaying the fingers. (Rhys.)
9 On Shrove Tuesday the city authorities made a search for brothel-keepers.
You are a citizen of worth, you shall not
Be made a pointing stock, but without guard,
Pass only with myself.

Const. To Bridewell too?

Const. No remedy.

Const. Yes, patience. Being not mad,
They had me once to Bedlam, now I'm drawn
To Bridewell, loving no whores.

Const. You will buy lawn! Exeunt.

[ACT V]

[Scene I.]

Enter at one door Hippolito; at another, Lodovico, Astolfo, Carolo, Beraldo, and Fontinell.

Lod. Yonder's the Lord Hippolito; by any means leave him and me together. Now will I turn him to a madman.

All. Save you my lord.

Exeunt [all except Hippolito and Lodovico]

Lod. I ha' strange news to tell you.

Hip. What are they?

Lod. Your mare's i' th' pound.

Hip. How's this?

Lod. Your nightingale is in a limebush.

Hip. Ha?

Lod. Your puritanical honest whore sits in a blue gown.

Hip. Blue gown!

Lod. She'll chalk out your way to her now:
she beats chalk.

Hip. Where? who dares?

Lod. Do you know the brick-house of castigation, by the river side that runs by Milan,— the school where they pronounce no letter well but C?

Hip. I know it not.

Lod. Any man that has borne office of constable or any woman that has fallen from a horse-load to a cart-load; or like an old hen that has had none but rotten eggs in her nest, [5] can direct you to her: there you shall see your punks amongst her back-friends.

There you may have her at your will,
For she beats chalk, or grinds in the mill,
With a whip deedle, deedle, deedle, deedle;

Ah, little monkey!

Hip. What rogue durst serve that warrant, knowing I loved her?

Lod. Some worshipful rascal, I lay my life.

Hip. I'll beat the lodgings down about their ears

That are her keepers.

Lod. So you may bring an old house over her head.

Hip. I'll to her—

I'll to her, stood armed fiends to guard the doors.

Exit.

1 A street.
2 Strumpets had to do penance in a blue gown.
3 Crushing chalk was one of the occupations assigned to the prisoners.
4 An allusion to the carting of prostitutes.
5 Former friends.
Lod. Oh me! what monsters are men made by whores!
If this false fire do kindle him, there’s one faggot
More to the bonfire. Now to my Bridewell birds;
What song will they sing?

[SCENE II.]

Enter Duke, Infelice, Carolo, Astolfo, Beraldo, Fontinelli, and three or four Masters of Bridewell.

Duke. Your Bridewell? that the name? For beauty, strength,
Capacity and form of ancient building,
Besides the river’s neighbourhood, few houses
Wherein we keep our court can better it.
1 Mast. Hither from foreign courts have princes come,
And with our duke did acts of State commence.
Here that great cardinal had first audience,
The grave Campanye; that duke dead, his son
That famous prince, gave free possession
Of this, his palace, to the citizens,
To be the poor man’s ware-house; and endow’d it
With lands to th’ value of seven hundred marks,
With all the bedding and the furniture, once proper,
As the lands then were, to an hospital Belonging to a Duke of Savoy. Thus Fortune can toss the world; a prince’s court
Is thus a prison now.

Duke. ’Tis Fortune’s sport:
These changes common are: the wheel of fate
Turns kingdoms up, till they fall desolate.
But how are these seven hundred marks by th’ year
Employ’d in this your work-house?
1 Mast. War and peace
Feed both upon those lands: when the iron doors
Of war burst open, from this house are sent
Men furnish’d in all martial complement.
The moon hath through her bow scarce drawn to th’ head,
Like to twelve silver arrows, all the months,
Since sixteen hundred soldiers went aboard.
Here providence and charity play such parts,
The house is like a very school of arts;
For when our soldiers, like ships driven from sea,
With ribs all broken, and with tatter’d sides,
Cast anchor here again, their ragged backs
How often do we cover! that, like men,
They may be sent to their own homes again.
All here are but one swarm of bees, and strive
To bring with weary thighs honey to the hive.
The sturdy beggar, and the lazy loon,
Gets here hard hands, or lac’d
The vagabond grows staid and learns t’ obey,

1 A room in Bridewell.
2 The allusions here really refer of course to the London Bridewell. The cardinal, duke, and prince are Campeius, Henry VIII, and Edward VI; and the other details are substantially historical.
3 Rascal.
4 By whipping.

The drone is beaten well, and sent away.
As other prisons are, some for the thief,
Some, by which undone credit gets relief
From bridled debtors; others for the poor,
So this is for the bawd, the rogue, the whore.
Car. An excellent team of horse!
1 Mast. Nor is it seen
That the whip draws blood here, to cool the spleen
Of any rugged bencher; 5 nor does offence
Feel smart on spiteful or rash evidence;
But pregnant testimony forth must stand,
Ere justice leave them in the beadle’s hand.
As iron, on the anvil they are laid,
Not to take blows alone, but to be made
And fashion’d to some charitable use.

Duke. Thus wholsom’st laws spring from the worst abuse.

Enter Orlando, [disguised as a Serving-man,] before Bellafront.

Bell. Let mercy touch your heart-strings, gracious lord,
That it may sound like music in the ear
Of a man desperate, being th’ hands of law.
Duke. His name?
Bell. Matheo.
Duke. Where is he?
Bell. In this house.

Exeunt Bellafront and one of the Masters of Bridewell.

Duke. Fetch you him hither—
Is this the party?
Orl. This is the hen, my lord, that the cock with the lordly comb, your son-in-law, would crow over, and tread.
Duke. Are you two servants ready?
Orl. My two pedlars are pack’d together, my good lord.
Duke. ’Tis well; this day in judgment shall be spent:
Vice, like a wound lance’d, mends by punishment.
Inf. Let me be gone, my lord, or stand un-scorn’d;
’Tis rare when a judge strikes and that none die,
And ’t is unfit then women should be by.
1 Mast. We’ll place you, lady, in some private room.
Inf. Pray do so.

Exit [with a Master, who returns alone].
Orl. Thus nice dames swear, it is unfit their eyes
Should view men carv’d up for anatomies; 6
Yet they’ll see all, so they may stand unseen;
Many women sure will sin behind a screen.

Enter Lodovico.

Lod. Your son, the Lord Hippolito, is ent’red.
Duke. Tell him we wish his presence. A word, Sforza;
On what wings flew he hither?
Lod. These: — I told him his lack whom he loved, was a Bridewell-bird; ’s he mad that 6 Tavern loafers.

Subjects for dissection.
this cage should hold her, and is come to let her out.

Duke. 'Tis excellent: away, go call him hither.

Exit Lodovico.

Re-enter one of the Governors of the House; Bellafonte after him with Matheo; after him the Constable; enter at another door Lodovico and Hippolito. Orlando steps forth and brings in two [of his Servants disguised as] Pedlars.

Duke. You are to us a stranger, worthy lord; 'Tis strange to see you here.

Hip. It is most fit
That where the sun goes, atomies 1 follow it.

Duke. Atomies neither shape nor honour bear:
Be you yourself, a sunbeam to shine clear.

Is this the gentleman? Stand forth and hear Your accusation.

Mat. I'll hear none; I fly high in that:
Rather than kites shall seize upon me, and
Pick out mine eyes to my face, I'll strike my talons through mine own heart first, and spit my blood in theirs. I am here for shining those two fools of their sinful pack. When those jackdaws have caw'd over me, then must I cry 2 guilty, or not guilty. The law has work enough already and therefore I'll put no work of mine into his hands; the hangman shall 'st first. I did pluck those ganders, did rob them.

Duke. 'Tis well done to confess.

Mat. Confess and be hanged, and then I fly high, is 't not so? That for that; a gallows is the worst rub 3 that a good bowler can meet with; I stumbled against such a post, else this night I had play'd the part of a true son in 10 these days, undone my father-in-law; with him would I ha' run at leap-frog, and come over his gold, though I had broke his neck for 't: but the poor salmon-trout is now in the net.

Hip. And now the law must teach you to fly high.

Mat. Right, my lord, and then may you fly low; no more words:—a mouse, mum, you are stopp'd.

Bell. Be good to my poor husband, dear my lords.

Mat. Aas!

Why shouldst thou pray them to be good to me?
When no man here is good to one another?

Duke. Did any hand work in this theft but yours?

Mat. O yes, my lord, yes:—the hangman has never one son at a birth, his children always come by couples. Though I cannot give 115 the old dog, my father, a bone to gnaw, the daughter shall be sure of a choke-piear. —Yes, my lord, there was one more that fiddled my fine pedlars, and that was my wife.

Bell. Alas, I ?

Orl. [Aside.] O everlasting, supernatural, superlative villain!

All. Your wife, Matheo?

Hip. Sure it cannot be.

Mat. Oh, sir, you love no quarters of mutton

1 Atoms.
2 Obstruction.

that hang up, you love none but whole mutton. She set the robbery, I perform'd it; she spurr'd me on, I gallop'd away.

Orl. My lords,—

Bell. My lords,—fellow, give me speech,—if my poor life

May ransom thine, I yield it to the law.

Thou hurt'st thy soul, yet wip'st off no offence, By casting blasts upon my innocence.

Let not these spare me, but tell truth; no, see Who slips his neck out of the misery, Though not out of the rascal. let thy servant That 'st in this base act accuse me here, Why should my husband perish, he go clear?

Orl. [Aside.] A good child, hang thine own father!

Duke. Old fellow, was thy hand in too?

Orl. My hand was in the pie, my lord, I confess it. My mistress, I see, will bring me to the gallows, and so leave me; but I'll not leave her. I had rather hang in a woman's com-pany, than in a man's; because if we should go to hell together, I should scarce be let in, for all the devils are afraid to have any women come amongst them. As I am true thief, she neither consented to this felony, nor knew of it.

Duke. What fury prompts thee on to kill thy wife?

Mat. It is my humour, sir, 'tis a foolish bag-pipe that I make myself merry with. Why should I cast hemp-seed at the hangman's thirteenth? ordinary, and have this whore laugh at me, as I swing, as I totter? 106 Duke. Is she a whore?

Mat. A six-penny mutton pasty, for any to cut up.

Orl. Ah, toad, toad, toad.

Mat. A barber's as 4 for every serving-man to play upon; that lord, your son, knows it.

His. I, sir? Am I her bawd then?

Mat. No, sir, but she's your whore then.

Orl. [Aside.] Yea, spider; dost catch at great flies?

Hip. My whore?

Mat. I cannot talk, sir, and tell of your rems and your rees and your whirligigs and devices: but, my lord, I found 'em like sparrows in one nest, billing together, and bulling of me. I took 'em in bed, was ready to kill him, was up 106 to stab her—

Hip. Close thy rank jaws:—pardon me, I am vex'd—

Thou art a villain, a malicious devil;
Deep as the place where thou art lost, thou liest.

Since I am thus far got into this storm, 105 I'll through, and thou shalt see I'll through untouch'd,

When thou shalt perish in it.

Re-enter Infelice.

Inf. 'Tis my one

To enter now.—Room! I let my prize 5 be play'd; 6

1 The amount of the hangman's fee.
4 Musical instruments hung in the barbers' shops of the period.
5 Bout. A term in fencing.
I ha' lurked in clouds, yet heard what all have said.
What jury more can prove sh'as wrong'd my bed,
Than her own husband? She must be punished.
I challenge law, my lord; letters and gold
And jewels from my lord that woman took.
_Hip._ Against that black-mouth'd devil,
against letters and gold,
And against a jealous wife, I do uphold.
Thus far her reputation; I could sooner
Shake the Appennine and crumble rocks to dust
Than, though Jove's shower rain'd down, tempt her to lust.
_Bell._ What shall I say?
_Orl._ (discovers himself.) Say thou art not a [500] whore, and that there's more than fifteen women amongst five hundred dare swear without lying, this shall thou say — no, let me say 't for thee; —
thy husband 's a knave, this lord 's an honest man;
thou art no punk, this lady 's a right [500] lady.
Faccheo is a thief as his master is, but old
Orlando is as true a man as thy father is.
I ha' seen you fly high, sir, and I ha' seen you fly low,
sir, and to keep you from the gallows, sir,
a blue coat have I worn, and a thief did I turn.
Mine own men are the pedlars, my twenty pounds did fly high, sir, your wife's gown did fly low, sir; whither fly you now, sir? You ha' scap'd the gallows, to the devil you fly next, sir.
Am I right, my liege?
_Duke._ Your father has the true physician play'd.
_Mat._ And I am now his patient.
_Hip._ And he be so still;
'T is a good sign when our cheeks blush at ill.
_Const._ The linen-draper, Signor Candido,
He whom the city terms the patient man, is likewise here for buying of those lawns
The pedlars lost.
_Inf._ Alas, good Candido!
_Duke._ Fetch him; and when these payments up are cast,
_Exit Constable._
Weigh out your light gold, but let's have them last.
_Enter Candido and Constable, [who presently goes out.]
_Duke._ In Bridewell, Candido?
_Cand._ Yes, my good lord.
_Duke._ What make you here?
_Cand._ My lord, what make you here?
_Duke._ I am here to save right, and to drive wrong hence.
_Cand._ And I to bear wrong here with patience.
_Duke._ You ha' bought stol'n goods.
_Cand._ So they do say, my lord,
Yet bought I them upon a gentleman's word,
And I imagine now, as I thought then,
That there be thieves, but no thieves, gentlemen.
_Hip._ Your credit 's crack'd, being here.
_Cand._ No more than gold,
Being crack'd, which does his estimation hold.
I was in Bedlam once, but was I mad?
They made me pledge whores' healths, but am I bad
Because I 'm with bad people?

_Duke._ Well, stand by;
If you take wrong, we 'll cure the injury.
_Re-enter Constable, after him Boys, after them two Beadles, one with hemp, the other with a beetle._

_Duke._ Stay, stay, what 's he? A prisoner?
_Const._ Yes, my lord.
_Hip._ He seems a soldier?
_Boys._ I am what I seem, sir, one of fortune's bastards, a soldier and a gentleman, and am brought in here with master constable's band of billmen, because they face me down that I live, like those that keep bowling alleys, by the sins of the people, in being a squire of the body.
_Hip._ Oh, an apple-squire.
_Boys._ Yes, sir, that degree of scurvy squires;
and that I am maintained by the best part [500] that is commonly in a woman, by the worst players of those parts; but I am known to all this company.
_Lod._ My lord, 't is true, we all know him; 't is Lieutenant Bots.

_Duke._ Bots, and where ha' you served, Bots?
_Boys._ In most of your hottest services in the Low-countries: at the Groyne I was wounded in this thigh, and halted upon, but 't is now sound. In Cleveland I mist but little, having the bridge of my nose broken down with two great stones, as I was scaling a fort. I ha' been tried, sir, too, in Gelderland, and scap'd hardly there from being blown up at a breach: I was fired, and lay in the surgeon's hands for 't, till the fall of the leaf following.
_Hip._ All this may be, and yet you no soldier.
_Boys._ No soldier, sir? I hope these are services that your proudest commanders do venture upon, and never come off sometimes.

_Duke._ Well, sir, because you say you are a soldier,
I 'll use you like a gentleman.—Make room there,
Plant him amongst you; we shall have anon
Strange hawks fly here before us. If none light On you, you shall with freedom take your flight; But if you prove a bird of baser wing,
We 'll use you like such birds, here you shall sing.
_Boys._ I wish to be tried at no other weapon.
_Duke._ Why, is he furnish'd with those implements?

1 _Master._ The pander is more dangerous to a State

Than is the common thief; and though our laws Lie heavier on the thief, yet that the pander May know the hangman's ruff should fit him too.
Therefore he 's set to beat hemp.

_Duke._ This does savour Of justice; basest slaves to basest labour.
Now pray, set open hell, and let us see
The she-devils that are here.
_Inf._ Methinks this place Should make e'en Lais honest.

1 _Mast._ Some it turns good,

1 A heavy mallet.
2 A pander.
But as some men, whose hands are once in blood, Do in a pride spill more, so, some going hence Are, by being here, lost in more impudence. Let it not to them, when they come, appear That any one does as their judge sit here; But that as gentlemen you come to see, And then perhaps their tongues will walk more free.

Duke. Let them be marshall'd in. — [Exeunt Masters, Constable, and Beadles.] Be cover'd all, Follwes, now to make the scene more comical. Car. Will not you be smelt out, Bots? Bots. No, your bravest whores have the worst noses.

Re-enter two of the Masters; a Constable after them, then DOROTHEA TARGET, brave; after her two Beadles, th' one with a wheel, the other with a blue gown.

 Lod. Are not you a bride, forsooth? Dor. Say ye? Car. He would know if these be not your broiderns.
 Dor. Vuh! yes, sir: and look ye, do you see? the bride-laces that I give at my wedding, will serve to tie rosemary to both your coiffins when you come from hanging — Seab! Orl. Fie, punk, fie, fie, fie! Dor. Out, you stale, stinking head of garlic, foh, at my heels. Orl. My head's cloven. Hip. O, let the gentlewoman alone, she's going to shift. Ast. Nay, to do penance. Dor. Ay, ay, go, punk, go to the cross and be whipt.
 Dor. Marry mew, marry miff, marry hang you, Goodman do. Whipt? do ye take me for a base, spital-whore? In troth, gentlemen, you wear the clothes of gentlemen, but you carry not the minds of gentlemen, to abusing a gentlewoman of my fashion.
 Duke. O be, abuse her not, let us two talk, What mought I call your name, pray? Dor. I'm not ashamed of my name, sir; my name is Mistress Doll Target, a Western gentlewoman.
 Lod. Her target against any pike in Milan. Duke. Why is this wheel borne after her? 1 Mast. She must spin.
 Dor. A coarse thread it shall be, as all threads are. Ast. If you spin, then you'll earn money here too?
 Dor. I had rather get half-a-crown abroad, than ten crowns here. Orl. Abroad? I think so.
 Inf. Dost thou not weep now thou art here? Dor. Say ye? weep? Yes, forsooth, as you did when you lost your maidenhead. Do you not hear how I weep?
 1 Mast. Being stript out of her wanton loose attire,
 That garment she puts on, base to the eye, Only to clothe her in humility. Duke. Are all the rest like this? 1 Mast. No, my good lord. You see, this drab swells with a wanton rein. The next that enters has a different strain. Duke. Variety is good, let's see the rest.

Bots. Your grace sees I'm sound yet, and no bullets hit me.

Duke. Come off so, and 'tis well. All. Here's the second mess.

Re-enter the two Masters, after them Constable, after him Penelope Whorehound, like a Citizen's Wife; after her two Beadles, one with a blue gown, another with chalk and a wallet.

Pen. I ha' worn many a costly gown, but I was never thus guarded with blue coats, and beadles, and constables, and —

Car. Alas, fair mistress, spoil not thus your eyes.

Pen. Oh, sweet sir, I feel the spoofing of other places of women that are dearer than my eyes; if you be gentlemen, if you be men, or ever came of a woman, pity my case! Stand to me, stick to me, good sir, you are an old man.

Orl. Hang not on me, I prithee; old trees bear no such fruit.

Pen. Will you bail me, gentlemen?
 Lod. Bail thee? Art in for debt? Pen. No; God is my judge, sir, I am in for no debts; I paid my tailor for this gown, the last five shillings a-week that was behind, yesterday. Duke. What is your name. I pray? Pen. Penelope Whorehound, I come of the Whorehounds. How does lieutenant Bots?

All. Aha, Bots?
 Bots. A very honest woman, as I'm a soldier — a posh Bots ye.
 Pen. I was never in this pickle before! and yet if I go amongst citizens' wives, they jeer at me; if I go among the loose-bodied gowns, they cry a posh on me, because I go civilly attired, and swear their trade was a good trade, till such as I am took it out of their hands. Good lieutenant Bots, speak to these captains to bail me.

1 Mast. Begging for bail still? You are a trim gossip. Go give her the blue gown, set her to her chare. Work, huswife, for your bread, away.
 Pen. Out, you dog! — a posh on you all! — women are born to curse thee — but I shall live to see twenty such flat-caps shaking dice for a penny-worth of pippins. Out, you blue-eyed rogue! Exit.
All. Ha, ha, ha.

Duke. Even now she wept, and pray'd; now does she curse?

1 Most. Seeing me, if still she had stay'd, this had been worse.

Hip. Was she ever here before?

1 Most. Five times at least, And thus, if men come to her, have her eyes Wrung, and went out her bail.

All. Bots, you know her?

Bots. Is there any gentleman here, that knows not a whore, and is he a hair the worse for that?

Duke. Is she a city-dame? She's so attired.

1 Most. No, my good lord, that's only but the veil
To her loose body, I have seen her here
In gayer masking suits; as several sauces
Give one dish several tastes, so change of habits
In whores is a bewitching art; to-day
She's all in colours to besot gallants, then
In modest black, to catch the citizen.
And this from their examination's drawn.
Now shall you see a monster both in shape
And nature quite from these, that sheds no tear
Nor yet is nice; 'tis a plain ramping bear;
Many such whales are cast upon this shore.

All. Let's see her.

1 Most. Then behold a swaggering whore.

Exeunt [Masters and Constables].

Ori. Keep your ground, Bots.

Bots. I do but traverse to spy advantage how to arm myself.

Re-enter the two Masters first; after them the Constable; after them a Beadle beating a basin, then CATHERINA BOUNTINALLY, with Mistress HORSELEACH; after them another Beadle with a blue head guarded with yellow.

Cat. Sirrah, when I cry, hold your hands, hold, you rogue-catcher, hold. — Bawd, are [are] the French chilblains in your heels, that you can come no faster? Are not you, bawd, a whore's ancient; and must not I follow my colours?

Mis. H. O Mistress Catherine, you do me wrong to accuse me here as you do, before the right worshipful. I am known for a motherly, honest woman, and no bawd.

Cat. Marry foh, honest? Burnt* at fourteen, seven times whipt, six times carted, nine times duck'd, search'd by some hundred and fifty constables, and yet you are honest? Honest Mistress Horseleech, is this world a world to keep bawds and whores honest? How many times hast thou given gentlemen a quart of wine in a gallon pot? How many twelve-penny fees, nay two shillings fees, nay, when any [an] ambassadors ha' been here, how many half-crown fees hast thou taken? How many carriers hast thou bribed for country wench's? How often have I rins your lungs in aqua voto, and yet you are honest?

Duke. And what were you the whilst?

1 At the carting of bawds and prostitutes they were preceded by a mob beating basins and performing other rough music. (Rhy.)

2 Head-dress trimmed. 3 Ensign. 4 Branded.
Duke. Why before her does the basin ring?
1 Must. It is an emblem of their revelling.
The whips we use let forth their wanton blood, Making them calm; and, more to calm their pride,
Instead of coaches they in carts do ride.
Will your grace see more of this bad ware?
Duke. No, shut up shop, we'll now break up the fair.
Yet ere we part — you, sir, that take upon ye
The name of soldier, that true name of worth,
Which, action, not vain boasting, best sets forth,
To let you know how far a soldier's name
Stands from your title, and to let you see Soldiers must not be wrong'd where princes be;
This be your sentence: —
All. Defend yourself, Bots.
Duke. First, all the private sufferance that the house
Inflicts upon offenders, you, as the basest,
Shall undergo it double, after which
You shall be whipt, sir, round about the city,
Then banish't from the land.
Bots. Beseech, your grace!
Duke. Away with him, see it done. Panders and whores
Are city-plagues, which, being kept alive,
Nothing that looks like goodness ere can thrive.
Now good Orlando, what say you to your bad son-in-law?
Orl. Marry this, my lord, he is my son-in-law, and in law will I be his father: for if law can pepper him, he shall be so parboil'd, that he shall stink no more i' th' nose of the commonwealth.
Bell. Be yet more kind and merciful, good father.
Orl. Dost thou beg for him, thou precious man's meat, thou? Has he not beaten thee,

CELSO, a friend to Altorfromto.

[THE SCENE.—Genoa.]

TO THE READER

I am an ill orator; and, in truth, use to indite more honestly than eloquently, for it is my custom to speak as I think, and write as I speak.

In plainness, therefore, understand that in some things I have willingly erred, as in supposing a Duke of Genoa, and in taking names different from that city's families: for which some may witfully accuse me; but my defence shall be as honest as many reproofs unto me have been most malicious: since, I heartily protest, it was my care to write so far from reasonable offence, that even strangers, in whose state I laid my scene, should not from thence draw any disgrace to any, dead or living. Yet, in despite of my endeavours, I understand some have been most unadvisedly over-turning in misinterpreting me, and with subtilety as deep as hell have maliciously spread ill rumours, which, springing from themselves, might to themselves have heavily returned. Surely I desire to satisfy every firm spirit, who, in all his actions, proposeth to himself no more ends than God and virtue do, whose intentions are always simple: to such I protest that, with my free understanding, I have not glanced at disgrace of any, but of those whose unquiet studies labour innovation, contempt of holy policy, reverence, comely superiority, and establish unity: for the rest of my supposed tarness, I fear not but unto every worthy mind it will be approved so general and honest as may modestly pass with the freedom of a satire. I would fain leave the paper; only one thing afflicts me, to think that scenes, invented merely to be spoken, should be enforceably published to be read, and that the least hurt I can receive is to do myself the wrong. But, since others otherwise would do me more, the least inconvenience is to be accepted. I have myself, therefore, set forth this comedy; but so, that my enforced absence must much rely upon the printer's discretion: but I shall entreat slight errors in orthography may be as slightly overpassed, and that the unhandsome shape which this trifle in reading presents, may be pardoned for the pleasure it once afforded you when it was presented with the soul of lively action.

Sine aliqua dementia nullus Phoebus. 1

1 Some copies of Q1 read Me mea sequentur fata.
Enter W. Sly, a Tire-man following him with a stool.

Tire-man. Sir, the gentlemen will be angry if you sit here.

Sly. Why, we may sit upon the stage at the private house. Thou dost not take me for a country gentleman, dost? Dost think I fear your hissing? I'll hold my life thou tookest me for one of the players.

Tire-man. An't please you to go in, sir, you may.

Sly. I tell you, no: I am one that hath seen this play often, and can give them intelligence for their action. I have most of the jests here in my table-book.

Enter Sinklo.

Sinklo. Save you coz!

Sly. O, cousin, come, you shall sit between my legs here.

Sinklo. No, indeed, cousin: the audience then will take me for a viol-de-gambo, and think that you play upon me.

Sly. Nay, rather that I work upon you, coz.

Sinklo. We stayed for you at supper last night at my cousin Honeymoon's, the woolender. After supper we drew cuts for a score of apricocks, the longest cut still to draw an apricock: by this light, 'twas Mistress Frank Honeymoon's fortune still to have the longest [as est cut: I did measure for the women.—What be these, coz?]?

Enter D. Burbadge, H. Condell, and J. Lowin.

Sly. The players.—God save you!

Burbadge. You are very welcome.

Sly. I pray you, know this gentleman, my cousin; 'tis Master Daymost's son, the usher.

Condell. I beseech you, sir, be cover'd.

Sly. No, in good faith, for mine ease. Look...

THE INDUCTION

TO

THE MALCONTENT, AND THE ADDITIONS, ACTED BY THE KING'S MAJESTY'S SERVANTS.

WRITTEN BY JOHN WEBSTER.

You, my hat is the handle to this fan. God's so, what a beast was I, I did not leave my feather at home! Well, but I'll take an order with you: Puts his feather in his pocket. Burbadge. Why do you condescend your feather, sir?

Sly. Why, do you think I'll have jests broken upon me in the play, to be laught at? This play hath beaten all your gallants out of the feathers. Blackfriars hath almost spoiled Blackfriars for feathers.

Sinklo. God's so, I thought 'twas for whatsoever our gentlewomen at home counsel'd me to wear my feather to the play: yet I am loath to spoil it.

Sly. Why, coz?

Sinklo. Because I got it in the tiltyard; there was a herald broke my pate for taking it up: but I have worn it up and down the Strand, and met him forty times since, and yet he dares not challenge it.

Sly. Do you hear, sir? this play is a bitter play.

Condell. Why, sir, 'tis neither satire nor moral, but the mean passage of a history: yet there are sorts of discontented creatures that hear a stingless envy to great ones, and these will wrest the doings of any man to their base, malicious applicment: but should their interpretation come to the test, like your marmoset, they presently turn their teeth to their tail and eat it.

Sly. I will not go so far with you; but I say, any man that 'hat wit may censure, if he sit in the twelve-penny room; and I say again, the play is bitter.

Burbadge. Sir, you are like a patron that, presenting a poor scholar to a benefice, enjoins him not to rail against anything that stands within compass of his patron's folly. Why should not we enjoy the ancient freedom of poesy? Shall we protest to the ladies that their painting makes them angels? or to my young gallant that his expense in the brothel shall gain him reputation? No, sir, such vices as stand not accountable to law should be censured as men heal tetter, by casting ink upon them. Would you be satisfied in anything else, sir?

5 The meaning is that in The Malcontent, which had been originally acted in Blackfriars Theatre, the practice of wearing feathers had been so ridiculed that the feather-makers of Blackfriars had suffered injury in their business. See V. iv. (Bullen.)

4 Application. 6 Box. 7 Judge. 8 Scabas.
Enter Bit. The, the book was lost; and, because 't was pity so good a play should be lost, we found it, and play it. Syl. I wonder you would play it, another company having interest in it.

Condell. Why not. Malevole in folio with us, as Jeronimo in decimo-sexto with them? They taught us a name for our play; we call it One For Another. Syl. Where's your additions? Burdodge. Sooth, not greatly needful; only—as your salad to your great feast, to entertain a little more time, and to abridge the not-received custom of music in our theatre. I must leave you, sir. Sinklo. Doth he play the Malcontent? 129

Condell. Yes, sir.

Sinklo. I durst lay four of mine ears the play is not so well acted as it hath been. Condell. O, no, sir; nothing ad Parthenonis sun. 127

Lowin. Have you lost your ears, sir, that you are so prodigal of laying them? Sinklo. Why did you ask that, friend? Lowin. Marry, sir, because I have heard of a fellow would offer to lay a hundred-pound wager, that was not worth five baubees: and in this kind you might venture four of your elbows; yet God defend your coat should have so many! Sinklo. Nay, truly, I am no great censurae rerum, and yet I might have been one of the college of critics once. My cousin here hath an excellent memory, indeed, sir.

Syl. Who? I? I'll tell you a strange thing of myself; and I can tell you, for one that never studied the art of memory, 'tis very strange too.

Condell. What's that, sir? Syl. Why, I'll lay a hundred pound, I'll walk but once down by the Goldsmith's Row in Cheap, take notice of the signs, and tell you them with a breath instantly.

Lowin. 'Tis very strange.

Syl. They begin as the world did, with Adam and Eve. There's in all just five and fifty. I do use to meditate much when I come to play too. What do you think might come into a man's head now, seeing all this company?

1. J. J. Why should not the King's company of grown up (fello) actors play The Malcontent (which was the property of the children's company playing at Blackfriars), since the children (16mo actors) have appropriated The Spanish Tragedy, in which the King's company had rights?

4. It is reported that Parmeno, being very famous for imitating the grunting of a pig, some endeavoured to rival and outdo him. And when the hearers, being prejudiced, cried out, 'Very well, indeed, but nothing comparable to Parmeno's sow,' one took a pig under his arm and came upon the stage; and when, tho' they heard the very pig, they still continued, 'This is nothing comparable to Parmeno's sow,' he threw the pig among them to show that they judged according to opinion and not truth.' (Plutarch's Symposium, V. I., cited by "L. S." and Bullen.)

Pietro. Come down, thou rugged 2 our, and smart here; I give thy dogged sullenness free liberty; trot about and bespatter whom thou pleasest.

Malevole. I’ll come among you, you goats- 15 ish-blooded toderers, 2 as gum into taffeta, to fret, to fret. I’ll fall like a sponge into water, to suck up, to suck up. Howl again; 6 I’ll go to church and come to you. [Exit above.]

Pietro. This Malevole is one of the most 20 prodigious affections that ever convert with nature: a man, or rather a monster, more discontent than Lucifer when he was thrust out of the presence. His appetite is insatiable as the grave; as far from any content as from 25 heaven. His highest delight is to procure others vexation, and therein he thinks he truly serves heaven; for ‘tis his position, whatsoever in this earth can be contented is a slave and damned; therefore does he afflict all in 30 that to which they are most affected. The elements struggle within him; his own soul is at variance [within herself]; 7 his speech is halter-worthy at all hours. I like him, faith: he gives good intelligence to my spirit, makes 35 me understand those weaknesses which others’ flattery palliates. Hark! they sing.

SCENE III. 8

A Song.

Enter Malevole after the song.

[Pietro.] See, he comes. Now shall you hear the extremity of a malcontent: he is as free as air; he blows over every man. — And, sir, whence come you now?

Male. From the public place of much dissimulation, the church. 12

Pietro. What didst there?

Male. Talk with a usurer; take up at interest.

Pietro. I wonder what religion thou art off of? 9

Male. Of a soldier’s religion.

Pietro. And what dost thou think makes most infidels now? 14

Male. Sects, sects. I have seen seeming Pietso change her robe so oft, that sure none but some arch-devil can shape her a new petticote.

Pietro. O, a religious policy.

Male. But, damnation on a politic religion! I am weary: would I were one of the duke’s hounds now! 21

Pietro. But what’s the common news abroad, Malevole? Thou dogg’d at rumour still.

Male. Common news? Why, common words are, “God save ye,” “Take ye well;” common actions, flattery and cozenance; common things, women and cuckolds. — And how does my little Ferrard? Ah, ye lecherous animal! — my little ferret, he goes sucking up and down the palace into every hen’s nest, like a weasel; 25 to and what dost thou add thy time to now more than to those antique painted drabs that are still affected of 30 young courtiers, Flattery, Pride, and Venery?

Fer. I study languages. Who dost think to be the best linguist of our age?

Male. Phew! the devil: let him possess thee; he’ll teach thee to speak all languages most readily and strangely; and great reason, marry, he’s travel’d greatly 1 the world, and is everywhere.

Fer. Save i’ th’ court.

Male. Ay, save i’ th’ court. — (To Bilioso.) And how does my old muckhill, overspread with fresh snow? Thou half a man, half a goat, all a beast! how does thy young wife, old huddle?

Bil. Out, you impertinent rascal!

Male. Do, kick thou hugely-horn’d old duke’s ox; good Master Make-pleas. 60

Pietro. How dost thou live nowadays, Malevole?

Male. Why, like the knight, Sir Patrick Penlollis, with killing o’ spiders for my lady’s monkey.

Pietro. How dost spend the night? I hear thou never sleep’st.

Male. O, no; but dream the most fantastical! O heaven! of fabric, fabulous! 11

Pietro. Dream! What dream’st? 65

Male. Why, methinks I see that signior pawn his footcloth, 12 that meteza 12 her plate: this madam takes physic that ‘t other monsieur may minister to her: here is a pander jewel’d; there a fellow in shift of satin this day, that 30 could not shift a shirt 4 other night: here a Paris supports that Helen; there’s a lady Guinever bears up that Sir Lancelot. Dreams, dreams, visions, fantasies, chimera’s, imaginations, tricks, conceits! — (To PREPASSO.) Sir 70 Tristram, Trimtram, come aloft, Jack-an-apes, 14 with a whim-wham: here’s a knight of the land of Catito shall play at trap 15 with any page in Europe; do the sword-dance with any morris-dancer in Christendom; ride at the ring till: 75 the pin 16 of his eyes look as blue as the weikin; and run the wildgoose-chase even with Pompey the Huge.

Pietro. You run! 77

Male. To the devil. Now, signior Guerrino, that thou from a most pitied prisoner shouldst grow a most loath’d flatterer! — Alas, poor Celso, thy star’s opprest: thou art an honest lord: ’tis pity.

1 Male prostitutes. 2 Q, ragged. 3 Bespatter. 4 Nares suggests “dealers in wool or mutton,” & c. mutton-mongers, lascivious fellows. 5 Bullen prints Hounds again as a stage direction. 6 Which they care most for. 7 Q, omits. 8 The same. 9 Q, omits.
To her sheets, nay, diets strong his blood,
To give her height of hymenial sweets,—

Mal. Whist she lisps, and gives him some court-quelquechose,

Made only to provoke, not satiate:
And yet, even then, the thaw of her delight
Flows from lewd heart of apprehension,
Only from strange imagination's rankness,
That forms the adulterer's presence in her
soul,

And makes her think she clips the foul knave's loins.

Pietro. Affliction to my blood's root!
Mal. Nay, think, but think what may proceed of this;
adultery is often the mother of incest.

Pietro. Incest!

Mal. Yes, incest: mark,—Mendoza of his wife begets per chance a daughter:
Mendoza dies, his son marries this daughter:
say you?
nay, 'tis frequent, not only probable, but no,
question often acted, whilst ignorance,
fearless ignorance, clasps his own seed.

Pietro. Hideous imagination!

Mal. Adultery! Why, next to the sin of simony, 'tis the most horrid transgression under the cope of salvation.

Pietro. Next to simony!

Mal. Ay, next to simony, in which our men in next age shall not sin.

Pietro. Not sin! why?

Mal. Because (thanks to some churchmen) our age will leave them nothing to sin with.
But adultery, O dulness! should show exemplary punishment, that intemperate bloods may freeze but to think it; I would damn him [115] and all his generation: my own hands should do it; ha, I would not trust heaven with my vengeance anything.

Pietro. Anything, anything, Malevole: thou shalt see instantly what temper my spirit holds. Farewell; remember I forget thee not;
farewell.

Exit Pietro.

Lean thoughtfulness, a sallow meditation,
Suck thy veins dry! Distemperance rob thy sleep!

The heart's disquiet is revenge most deep:
He that gets blood, the life of flesh but spills,
But he that breaks heart's peace, the dear soul kills,

Well, this disguise doth yet afford me that
Which kings do seldom hear, or great men
use,—

Free speech: and though my state's usurp,
Yet this affected strain gives me a tongue
As fetterless as an emperor's;
I may speak foolishly, ay, knavishly,
Always carelessly, yet no one thinks it fashion
To poise [12] my breath; for he that laughs and strikes

Under heaven! In spite of which a man can purchase salvation (?)

Q. reads shue, should.

Q. omits the rest of this scene.

Weigh seriously.
Is lightly felt, or seldom struck again.
Duke, I'll torment thee now: my just revenge
From thee then crown a richer gem shall part:
Beneath God, naught's so dear as a calm heart.]

SCENE IV. 1

Enter Celso.

Celso. My honour'd lord,—

Mal. Peace, speak low, peace! O Celso, constant lord, (Thou to whose faith I only rest discovered,
Thou, one of full ten millions of men,
That loves virtue only for itself;
Thou in whose hands old Ops [2] may put her soul)
Behold forever-banish't Altofront,
This Genoa's last year's duke. O truly noble!
I wanted those old instruments of state,
Dissemblance and suspect: I could not time it
Celso;
My throne stood like a point in midst of a circle
To all of equal nearness; bore with none;
Rein'd all alike; so slept in fearless virtue,
Suspectless, too suspectless; till the crowd,
(Still likerous of 3 untried novelties)
Impatient with severer government,
Made strong with Florence, banish't Altofront.

Celso. Strong with Florence, ay; thence your mischief rose;
For when the daughter of the Florentine
Was match'd once with this Pietro, now duke,
No stratagem of state untr'd was left,
Till you of all—

Mal. Of all was quite bereft:
Alas, Maria too, close imprisoned,
My true faith'd duchess, 1 the citadell! 2

Celso. I'll still adhere: let's mutiny and die.

Mal. O, no, climb not a falling tower, Celso;
'Tis well held desperation, no zeal,
Hopeless to strive with fate. Peace! Temporize!
Hope, hope, that never forsak'st the wretched'at man; lord,
Yet bidd'st me live, and lurk in this disguise!
What, play I well the free-breath'd discontent?
Why, man, we are all philosophical monarchs
Or natural fools. Celso, the court 'a-fire;
The duchess' sheets will smoke for 't ere 't be long:
Impure Mendoza, that sharp-nos'd lord, that made
The cursed match that linkt Genoa with Florence,
Now broad-horns the duke, which he now knows.
Discord to malcontents is very manna:
When the ranks are burst, then scuffle, Altofront.

Celso. Ay, but durst,—

Mal. 'Tis gone; 't is swallowed like a mineral:
Some say 't will work; phent, I'll not shirk:
He's resolute who can no lower sink:

[Enter BILIOSO, MALCONTENT shifting his speech.

O the father of May-poles! did you never see a fellow whose strength consisted in his breath, [53] respect in his office, religion in his lord, and love in himself, who, why, then, behold!

Bil. Signior,—

Mal. My right worshipful lord, your court night-cap makes you a passing high forehead.

Bil. I can tell you strange news, but I am sure you know them already: the duke speaks much good of you.

Mal. Go to, then: and shall you and I now enter into a strict friendship?

Bil. Second one another?

Mal. Yes.

Bil. Do one another good offices?

Mal. Just: what though I call'd thee old ox, egregious wittol, broken-bellied coward, rotten mummy? yet, since I am in favour—

Bil. Words of course, terms of disport. His grace presents you by me a chain, as his grateful remembrance for— I am ignorant for—what; marry, ye may impart: yet howsoever—

Mal. I shall be a dog, man.

Bil. Believe me a she-bitch. O, 't is a good creature! thou shalt be her servant. I'll make thee acquainted with my young wife too: what! I keep her not at court for nothing. 'Tis grown to supper-time; come to my table: that, anything I have, stands open to thee.

Mal. (Aside to Celso.) How smooth to him that is in state of grace.

Bil. What profit, nay, what nature would keep down,
Are he'rd to them are minions to a crown.
Envious ambition never sates his thirst,
Till, sucking all, he swells and swells, and bursts.

Bil. I shall now leave you with my always-best wishes; only let's hold betwixt us a firm correspondence, a mutual friendly-reciprocal kind of a steady-unanimous-heartily-leagued—

Mal. Did your signorship ne'er see a pigeon-house that was smooth, round, and white without, and full of holes and stink within? Ha! ye not, old courtier?

Bil. O, yes, 't is the form, the fashion of them all.

Mal. Adieu, my true court-friend: farewell, my dear Castilio, 6

Exit BILIOSO.]

1 The same.
2 The goddess of plenty.
3 Qq print the rest of this speech as prose, perhaps rightly.
4 Q. omits II. 44-98.
5 An allusion to Castiglione, author of The Courtier.
Cello. Yonder's Mendoza, Describes Mendoza.
Mal. True, the privy-key.
Cello. I take my leave, sweet lord.
Mal. 'Tis fit; away! Exit Cello.

SCENE V.

Enter Mendoza with three or four Suitors.

Men. Leave your suits with me; I can and will. Attend my secretary; leave me.

[Exeunt Suitors.]
Mal. Mendoza, hark ye, hark ye. You are a treacherous villain! God b' wi' ye!
Men. Out, you base-born rascal!
Mal. We are all the sons of heaven, though a tripe-wife were our mother: ah, you whoreson, hot-rein'd he-marmoset! Aegisthus! didst ever hear of one Aegisthus?
Men. Gisthus?
Mal. Ay, Aegisthus: he was a filthy incontinent flesh-monger, such a one as thou art.
Men. Out, grinding rogue!
Mal. Orestes, beware Orestes!
Men. Out, be gone!
Mal. I once shall rise!
Men. Thou rise!
Mal. At the resurrection.

No vulgar seed but once may rise and shall:
No king so huge but 'fore he die may fall.

Exit.

Men. Now, good Elysium! what a delicious heaven is it for a man to be in a prince's favour! O sweet God! O pleasure! O fortune! O all thou best of life! What should I think, what say, what do to be a favourite, a minion?

[To have a general timorous respect observe]
A man, a stateful silence in his presence, solicitarness in his absence, a confused hum and busy murmur of obsequious suitors training him; the cloth held up, and way proclaimed be—fore him; petitionary vessels licking the pavement with their slavish knees, whilst some odd palace-lampreys that engender with snakes, and are full of eyes on both sides, with a kind of insinuating humbleness, fix all their delights upon his brow. O blessed state!

what a ravishing prospect both the Olympus of favour yield! Death, I curstone the duke!
Sweet women! most sweet ladies! nay, angels! by heaven, he is more accursed than a devil that hates you, or is hated by you; and happier than a god that loves you, or is beloved by you. You preservers of mankind, life-blood of society, who would live, nay, who can live without you? O paradise! how majestical is your austerer presence! how imperiously chaste is your more modest face! but, O, how full of ravishing attraction is your pretty, petulant, languishing, lasciviously-composed countenance! these amorous smiles, those soul-warming sparkling glances, ardent as those flames that singed the world by heedless Phaeton! in body how delicate, in soul how witty, in discourse how pregnant, in life, how wary, in favours how judicious, in day how sociable, and [as in night how — O pleasure unutterable! indeed, it is most certain, one man cannot deserve only to enjoy a beauteous woman: but a duchess! In despite of Phoebus, I'll write a sonnet instantly in praise of her.

Exit.

SCENE VI.

Enter Ferneze ushering Aurella, Emilia and Maquerelle bearing up her train, Blanca attending; then exeunt Emilia and Blanca.

Aurel. And is't possible? Mendoza slight me! Possible?
Fer. Possible!
What can be strange in him that's drunk with favour,
Grows insolent with grace? — Speak, Maquerelle, speak.

Maq. To speak feelingly, more, more richly in solid sense than worthless words, give me those jewels of your ears to receive my enforced duty. As for my part, 'tis well known I can put up anything (Ferneze privately feeds Maquerelle's hands with jewels during this speech) can bear patiently with any man: but when I heard he wronged your precious sweetness, I was enforced to take deep offence. 'Tis most certain he loves Emilia with high appetite: and, as she told me (as you know we women impart our secrets one to another), when she repulsed his suit, in that he was possessed with your endeared grace, Mendoza most ingratiately renounced all faith to you.

Fer. Nay, call'd you — Speak, Maquerelle, speak.

Maq. By heaven, witch, dri'd biscuit; and contested blushlessly he lov'd you but for a spurt or so.

Fer. For maintenance.

Maq. Advancement and regard.

Aurel. O villain! O impudent Mendoza!
Maq. Nay, he is the rustiest-jaw'd, the foulest mouth'd knave in railing against our sex: he will rail again women — Aurel. How? how?
Maq. I am ashamed to speak 't; I.
Aurel. I love to hate him: speak.

Maq. Why, when Emilia scornd his base unsteadiness, the black-throated rascal scolded, and said—

Aurel. What?

Maq. Treth, 'tis too shameless.
Aurel. What said he?

Maq. Why, that, at four, women were fools; at fourteen, drabs; at forty, bawds; at fourscore, witches; and (at) a hundred, cats.

Aurel. O unimitable impudence!

Fer. But as for poor Ferneze's fixed heart,
Was never shadeless meadow drier parched
Under the scorching heat of heaven's dog;
Than is my heart with your enforcing eyes.

Maq. A hot simile.

1 The same.
2 Pay obsequious attention to.
3 Following.
4 Lampreys.
5 The same.
Fer. Your smiles have been my heaven, your tresses my hell; O, pity, then! grace should with beauty dwell.

Mag. Reasonable perfect, by 'r lady.

Aurel. I will love thee, be it but in despite Of that Mendoza: — witch! Ferneze, — witch! —

Ferneze, thou art the duchess' favourite: Be faithful, private: but 'tis dangerous.

Fer. His love is lifeless that for love fears death:
The worst that's due to sin, O, would 't were death!

Aurel. Enjoy my favour, I will be sick instantly and take physic: therefore in depth of night visit,

Mag. Visit her chamber, but conditionally you shall not offend her bed: by this diamond!

Fer. By this diamond. Gives it to Maq.

Mag. Nor tarry longer than you please: by this ruby!

Fer. By this ruby. Gives again.

Mag. And that the door shall not creak.

Fer. And that the door shall not creak.

Mag. Nay, but swear.

Fer. By this purse. Giving her his purse.

Mag. Go to, I'll keep your oaths for you: [91 remember, visit.

Enter Mendoza, reading a sonnet.

Aurel. Dried biscuit! — Look where the base wretch comes.

Men. Beauty's life, heaven's model, love's queen,

Mag. That's his Emilia.

Men. Nature's triumph, best of earth, —

Mag. Meaning Emilia.

Men. Thou only wonder that the world hath seen, —

Mag. That's Emilia.

Aurel. Must I, then, hear her praise'd? — Mendoza!

Men. Madam, your excellency is graciously encounter'd: I have been writing passionate flashes in honour of — Exit Ferneze.

Aurel. Out, villain, villain!

O judgment, where have been my eyes? what Bewitch'd election made me dote on thee?

What sorcery made me love thee? But, be gone;

Bury thy head. O, that I could do more Than loath thee! hence, worst of ill!

No reason else, 'tis our reason is our will.

Exit with Maquerelle.

Men. Women! nay, Furies; nay, worse; [96 for they torment only the bad, but women good and bad. Damnation of mankind! Breath, hast thou praise'd them for this? and is 't you, Ferneze, are wriggled into smack-grace? Sit sure.

O, that I could rail against these monsters [100 in nature, models of hell, curse of the earth, women! that dare attempt anything, and what they attempt they care not how they accomplish: without all premeditation or prevention; rash in asking, desperate in working, impa-

Q. aske. constant in unconstancy, only perfect in counterfeiting: their words are feigned, their eyes forg'd, their sighs disembled, their looks counterfeit, their hair false, their given hopes deceitful, their very breath artificial; their blood is their only god; bad clothes and old age are only the devils they tarry at. That I could rail now!

SCENE VII.

Enter Pietro, his sword drawn.

Pietro. A mischief fill thy throat, thou foul-jaw'd slave!

Say thy prayers.

Men. I ha' forgot 'em.

Pietro. Thou shalt die.

Men. So shalt thou. I am heart-mad.

Pietro. I am horn-mad.

Men. Extreme mad.

Pietro. Monstrously mad.

Men. Why?

Pietro. Why! thou, thou hast dishonoured my bed.

Men. I! Come, come, sit; here's my bare heart to thee,

As steady as is the 3 centre to this 4 glorious world:

And yet, hark, thou art a cornuto,—but by me?

Pietro. Yes, slave, by thee.

Men. Do not, do not with tart and spleenful breath

Lose him can lose thee. I offend my duke!

Bear record, O ye dumb and raw-air'd nights,

How vigilant my sleepless eyes have been

To watch the traitor! Record, thou spirit of truth,

With what debasement I ha' thrown myself

To under offices, only to learn

The truth, the party, time, the means, the place,

By whom, and when, and where thou wast dis-gra'd!

And am I paid with 'slave'! Hath my intrusion

To places private and prohibited,

Only to observe the closer passages,

Heaven knows with vows of revelation,

Made me suspected, made me deem'd a villain?

What rogue hath wrong'd us?

Pietro. Mendoza, I may err.

Men. Err! 't is too mild a name: but err and err,

Run giddy with suspect, 'fore through me thou know

That which most creatures, save thyself, do not know:

Nay, since my service hath so loath'd reject, 'fore I'll reveal, shall find them eclip't together.

Pietro. Mendoza, thou know'st I am a most plain-breasted man.

Men. The fitter to make a cuckold: would your brows were most plain too!
Pietro. Tell me: indeed, I heard thee rail—

Men. At women, true: why, what cold phlegm could choose,

Knowing them honest, virtuous,
So boundless loving, bounteous, fair-shap'd, sweet,
To be contemn'd, abus'd, defam'd, made cuckold?

Heart! I hate all women for't: sweet sheets, wax lights, antique bedposts, cambrie smocks, villainous curtains, arras pictures, oil'd hinges, and all ye tongue-tied lascivious witnesses of great creatures' wantonness,—what salvation can you expect?

Pietro. Will thou tell me?

Men. Why, you may find it yourself; observe, observe.

Pietro. I ha' not the patience. Will thou deserveme, tell, give it.

Men. Take't: why, Ferneze is the man, Ferneze: I'll prove't; this night you shall take him in your sheets. Will't serve?

Pietro. It will; my bosom's in some peace:
till night—

Men. What?

Pietro. Farewell.

Men. God! how weak a lord are you! Why, do you think there is no more but so?

Pietro. Why!

Men. Nay, then, will I presume to counsel you:
It should be thus. You with some guard upon the sudden Break into the princess' chamber: I stay behind,
Without the door, through which he needs must pass:
Ferneze flies; let him: to me he comes; he's kill'd
By me, observe, by me: you follow: I, and
And seem to save the body. Duchess comes,
On whom (respecting her advanced birth,
And your fairest air), I know, nay, I do know,
No violence must be us'd; she comes: I storm,
I praise, excuse Ferneze, and still maintain
The duchess' honour; she for this loves me.
I honour you; shall know her soul, you mine:
Then naught shall she contrive in vengeance
(As women are most thoughtful in revenge).
Of her Ferneze, but you shall sooner know 't
Than she can think 't. Thus shall his death come sure,
Your duchess' brain-caught: so your life secure.

Pietro. It is too well: my bosom and my heart
When nothing helps, cut off the rotten part. Exit.

Men. Who cannot feign friendship can ne'er produce the effects of hatred. Honest fool duke! subtle lascivious duchess! silly novice Ferneze! I do laugh at ye. My brain is in labour till it [produce mischief, and I feel sudden throes, proofs sensible, the issue is at hand.
As bears shape young, so I'll form my device,
Which grown proves horrid: vengeance makes men wise. [Exit.]
ACT II

SCENE I.1

Enter Mendoza, with a scence, to observe Fernandez's entrance, who, whilst the act is playing, enters unbraced, two Pages before him with lights; is met by Maquerelle and convey'd in; the Pages are sent away.

Men. He's caught, the woodcock's head is i' th' noose.

Now treads Fernandez in dangerous path of lust, Swearing his sense is merely defiled:
The fool grasps clouds, and shall beget Centaurs:
And now, in strength of panting faint delight, The goat bids heaven envy him. — Good goose, I can afford thee nothing:
But the poor comfort of calamity, pity,
Lust 's like the plummets hanging on clock-lines,
Will ne'er ha' done till all is quite undone;
Such is the course salt sallow lust doth run;
Which thou shalt try. I'll be reveng'd. Duke, thy suspect;
Duchess, thy disgrace; Fernandez, thy rivalship;
Shall have swift vengeance. Nothing so holy,
No band of nature so strong,
No law of friendship so sacred,
But I'll profane, burst, violate, 'fore I'll endure disgrace, contempt, and poverty.
Shall I, whose very "Hun" struck all heads bare,
Whose face made silence, eearing of whose shoe
For'o the most private passages fly ope,
Mal. Save ye, Duke!
Pietro. From thee; begone, I do not love thee! Let me see thee no more; we are displeas'd.

Mal. Why, God b'w' thee! Heaven hear my curse,—may thy wife and thee live long together!
Pietro. Begone, sirrah!
Mal. "When Arthur first in court began,"—Agamemnon — Menelaus — was ever any duke a cornuto?
Pietro. Begone, hence!
Mal. What religion wilt thou be of next?
Men. Out with him!
Mal. With most servile patience. — Time will come

When wonder of thy error will strike dumb
Thy bezzled 1 senses.—
Slaves! ay, favour: ay, marry, shall he rise:
Good God! how subtle hell doth flatter vice!
Mounts him aloft, and makes him seem to fly,
As fowl the tortoise mock'd, who to the sky
The ambitious shell-fish rais'd! The end of all
Is only, that from height he might dead fall.
(Aside.) Why, when? Out, ye rogue! begone, ye rascal!
Mal. I shall now leave ye with all my best wishes.

Bil. Out, ye cur!
Mal. Only let's hold together a firm correspondence.
Bil. Out!
Mal. A mutual-friendly-reciprocal-perpetual kind of steady-unanimous-heartily-leagued —
Bil. Hence, ye gross-jaw, pleasantly — out, go!
Mal. Adieu, pigeon-house; thouurr, that only stickiest to nappy fortunes. The serpigo, the strangury, an eternal uneffectual priapism seize thee!
Bil. Out, rogue!
Mal. May'st thou be a notorious wittolly pander to thine own wife, and yet get no office, bout but live to be the utmost misery of mankind, a beggarly unkold!

Exit.
Pietro. It shall be so.
Men. It must be so, for where great states
revenge,
'T is requisite the parts be closely dogg'd,
(Which piety and soft respect forbears).
Lay one into his breast shall sleep with him,
Peep in the same dish, run in self-action,
Who may discover any shape of danger;
For once disgrac'd, displayed in offence,
It makes man blushless, and man is (all confess)
More prone to vengeance than to gratefulness.
Favours are writ in dust; but stripes we feel
Depraved nature stamps in lasting steel.
Pietro. You shall be leagu'd with the duchess.
Equato. The plot is very good.
Men. You shall both kill, and seem the corse to save.

Fer. A most fine brain-trick.
Celso. (Aside.) Of a most cunning knave.
Pietro. My lords, the heavy action we intend
Is death and shame, two of the ugliest shapes
That can confound a soul; think, think of it.
I strike, but yet, like him that 'gainst stone
walls

Directs, his shafts rebound in his own face;
My lady's shame is mine, O God, 'tis mine!
Therefore I do conjure all secrecy:
Let it be as very little as may be,
Fray ye, as may be,
Make frightless entrance, salute her with soft
eyes,

Stain nought with blood; only Ferneze dies,
But not before her brows. O gentlemen,
God knows I love her! Nothing else, but this: —
I am not well: if grief, that sucks veins dry,
Rivels 6 the skin, casts ashes in men's faces,
Be-dulle the eye, unstrengthen all the blood,
Chance to remove me to another world,
As sure I once must die, let him succeed me:
I have no child; all that my youth begot
Hath been your loves, which shall inherit me:
Which as it ever shall, I do conjure it,
Mendoza may succeed: he's nobly born;
With me of much desert.

Celso. (Aside.) Much!
Pietro. Your silence answers, "Ay,"
I thank you. Come on now. O, that I might die Before her shame's display'd! Would I were fore'd
To burn my father's tomb, unseal 6 his bones,
And dash them in the dirt, rather than this!
This both the living and the dead offends:
Sharp surgery where naught but death amends.

Exeunt.

SCENE IV.7
Enter Maquerelle, Emilia, and Bianca with a posset.

Mag. Even here it is, three curds in three regions individually distinct, most methodically according to art compos'd, without any drink.
Bian. Without any drink!
Mag. Upon my honour. Will ye sit and eat?
Emilia. Good; the possum, the receipt,
how is't?
Mag. 'Tis a pretty pearl; by this pearl (how does it with me?) thus it is: Seven and thirty yolks of Barbary hens' eggs; eighteen spoon-fuls and a half of the juice of cock-sparrow bones; one ounce, three drams, four scruples, and one quarter of the syrup of Ethiopian dates;
sweetened with three quarters of a pound of pure candied Indian eringoes; stewed over with the powder of pearl of America, amber of Catania, and lamb-stones of Muscovia.
Bian. Trust me, the ingredients are very cordial, and, no question, good, and most powerful in restoration.

Mag. I know not what you mean by restoration; but this it doth, — it purifietb the blood, smootheth the skin, enliveneth the eye, strengtheneth the veins, muddifieth the teeth, comforteth the stomach, fortieth the back, and quickeneth the wit; that's all.

Emil. By my troth, I have eaten but two spoonfuls, and methinks I could discourse most swiftly and wittily already.

Mag. Have you the art to seem honest? 30

Bian. Ay, thank advice and practice.

Mag. Why, then, eat me o' this posset, quicken your blood, and preserve your beauty. Do you know Doctor Plaster-face? by this curd, he is the most exquisite in forging of veins, sprightening of eyes, dying of hair, sleeking of skins, blushing of cheeks, surpiling of breasts, blanching and bleaching of teeth, that ever made an old lady gracious by torchlight; by this curd, la.

Bian. Well, we are resolved, what God has given us we'll cherish.

Mag. Cherish anything saving your husband; keep him not too high, lest he leap the pale: but, for your beauty, let it be your saint; bequests two hours to it every morning in your closet. I ha' been young, and yet, in my conscience, I am not above five and twenty: but, believe me, preserve and use your beauty; for youth and beauty once gone, we are like bee- sives without honey, out-o'-fashion apparel that no man will wear; therefore use me your beauty.

Emil. Ay, but men say——

Mag. Men say! let men say what they will: life o' woman! they are ignorant of our wants. The more in years, the more in perfection they grow; if they lose youth and beauty, they gain wisdom and discretion: but when our beauty fades, good-night with us. There cannot be an uglier thing than to see an old woman: from which, O pruning, pinching, and painting, deliver all sweet beauties!

[Music within.]

Bian. Hark! music!

Mag. Peace, 'tis i' the duchess' bed-chamber.

Emil. Good night, sentinel.

Bian. Night, dear Maquerelle.

Exeunt all but Mag.

Mag. May my posset's operation send you my wit and honesty; and me, your youth and beauty; the pleasing'st rest!  Exit.

SCENE V. 9

A Song [within].

Whilst the song is singing, enter MENDOZA with his sword drawn, standing ready to murder FERNZE as he flies from the duchess' chamber.

—Tumult within.

All [within.] Strike, strike!

Aur. [within.] Save my FERNZE! O, save my FERNZE!

Enter FERNZE in his shirt, and is receiv'd upon MENDOZA's sword.

All [within.] Follow, pursue!

Aur. [within.] O, save FERNZE!

Men. Pierce, pierce! — Thou shallow fool, drop there!

He that attempts a princess' lawless love 6

Must have broad hands, close heart, with Argus' eyes,

And back of Hercules, or else he dies.

Thrusts his rapier in Orr.

Enter AURELIA, PIETRO, FERRARDO, BILISO, CELSO, and EQUATO.

All. Follow, follow! 1

Men. Stand off, forbear, ye most uncivil lords!

PIETRO. Strike!

Men. Do not; tempt not a man resolv'd: 10

MENDOZA bestrides the wound body of FERNZE, and seems to save him.

Would you, inhuman murderers, more than death?

Aur. O poor FERNZE!

Men. Alas, now all defence too late!

Aur. He's dead.

PIETRO. I am sorry for our shame. — Go to your bed; 15

Weep not too much, but leave some tears to shed

When I am dead.

Aur. What, weep for thee! my soul no tears shall find.

PIETRO. Alas, alas, that women's souls are blind!

Men. Betray such beauty!

MURDER such youth! Contemn civility!

He loves him not that rails not at him.

PIETRO. Thou canst not move us: we have blood enough,—

And please you, lady, we have quite forgot

All your defects: if not, why, then——

PIETRO. Not: the best of rest: good-night.

Exeunt PIETRO, with other Courtiers.

Aur. Despite go with thee!

Men. Madam, you ha' done me foul disgrace; you have wrong'd him much loves you too much; go to, your soul knows you have.

Aur. I think I have.

Men. Do you but think so?

Aur. Nay, sure, I have: my eyes have witnessed thy love: thou hast stood too firm for me.

Men. Why, tell me, fair-cheek'd lady, who even in tears art powerfully beauteous, what unadvised passion struck ye into such a violent heat against me? Speak, what mis-chiefs wrong'd us? What devil injur'd us? Speak.

Aur. The thing ne'er worthy of the name of man, FERNZE;

Fernze swore thou lov'st Emilie;

Which to advance, with most reproachful breath

Thou both didst blemish and denounce my love.

Men. Ignoble villain! did I for this bestride
Thy wounded limbs? for this, rank opposite
Even to my sovereign? for this, O God, for this,
Sunk all my hopes, and with my hopes my life?
Ripp'd bare my throat unto the hangman's axe?

Thou most dishonour'd trunk! — Emilia!
By life, I know her not — Emilia! —
Did you believe him?

_Men._ Did you? And thereupon you graced
him?

_Aur._ Pardon me, I did.

_Men._ Took him to favour, nay even clasp'd
With him?

_Aur._ Alas, I did!

_Men._ And in your lustful twixes the duke took you?

_Aur._ A most sad truth.

_Men._ O God, O God! how we duff honest souls,

Heavy brain'd men, are swallowed in the bogs
Of a deceitful ground, whilst nimble bloods, Light-jointed spirits, speed; 1 cut good men's throats,
And scape! Alas, I am too honest for this age,
Too full of phlegm and heavy steadiness;
Stood still whilst this slave cast a noose about
me;
Nay, then to stand in honour of him and her,
Who had even slic'd my heart!

_Aur._ Come, I did err,

And am most sorry I did err.

_Men._ Why, we are both but dead: the duke
hates us;

And those whom princes do once groundly 2
hate,
Let them provide to die, as sure as fate.
Prevention is the heart of policy.

_Aur._ Shall we murder him?

_Men._ Instantly?

_Aur._ Instantly; before he casts a plot,
Or further blaze my honour's much-known blot,
Let's murder him.

_Men._ I would do much for you; will ye marry
me?

_Aur._ I'll make thee duke. We are of Med-lois.

Florence our friend; in court my faction
Not meanly strengthful; the duke then dead;
We well prepar'd for change; the multitude
Irresolutely reeling; we in force;
Our party seconded; the kingdom maz'd;
No doubt of swift success all shall be grac'd.

_Men._ You do confirm me, we are resolute:
To-morrow look for change: rest confident.
'Tis now about the immodest waist of night:
The mother of moist dew with pallid light
Spreads gloomy shades about the numbed earth.
Sleep, sleep, whilst we contrive our mischief's birth.
This man I'll get inhum'd. Farewell: to bed;

1 Dodsley's emend. Q1 pent; Q2 spent.

Mal. Hark! last cries for a surgeon. What news from Limbo? How does the grand cuzz-old, Lucifer, 156
Per. O, help, help! conceal and save me.
FERNNEZE stirs, and MALVOLIO helps him up and conveys him away.

Mal. Thy shame more than thy wounds do grieve me far:
Thy wounds but leave upon thy flesh some scar;
But fame ne'er heals, still rankles worse and worse;
Such is of uncontrolled lust the curse. 160
Think what it is in lawless sheets to lie;
But, O, Femeze, what in lust to die!
Then thou that shame respect'st, O, fly converse!

With women's eyes and lisping wantonness! 164
Stick candles 'gainst a virgin wall's white back;
If they not burn, yet at the least they'll black;
Come, I'll convey thee to a private port,
Where thou shalt live (O happy man!) from court.

The beauty of the day begins to rise,
From whose bright form night's heavy shadow flies. 170
Now 'gin close plots to work; the scene grows full,
And craves his eyes who hath a solid skull.

Exeunt.

ACT III

Scene I. 1

Enter PIETRO, MENDOZA, EQUATO, and BILLOSO.

Pietro. 'Tis grown to youth of day: how shall we waste this light?
My heart's more heavy than a tyrant's crown.
Shall we go hunt? Prepare for field.

Men. Would ye could be merry!
Pietro. Would God I could! Mendoza, bid
'em haste.

Exit EQUATO.

I would fain shift place; O vain relief!
Sad souls may well change place, but not change grief:

As deer, being struck, fly thorough many soils,
Yet still the shaft sticks fast, so — —
Bil. A good old simile, my honest lord. 18

Pietro. I am not much unlike to some sick man
That long desired hurtful drink; at last
Swills in and drinks his last, ending at once
Both life and thirst. O, would I ne'er had known.

My own diabolism! Good God, that men should desire
To search out that, which, being found, kills all
Their joy of life! to taste the tree of knowledge,
And then be driven from out paradise! — —
Canst give me some comfort?
Bil. My lord, I have some books which have been dedicated to my honour, and I never read 'em, and yet they had very fine names,

1 A room in the Duke's Palace. 2 Streams.

Physic for Fortune, Louanges of Sanctified Sincerity; very pretty works of curates, scriveners, and schoolmasters. Marry, I remember one 25
Seneca, Lucius Annaeus Seneca. — —

Pietro. Out upon him! he writ of temperance and fortitude, yet lived like a voluptuous epicure, and died like an emmellate coward. — —

Haste thee to Florence: 30
Here, take our letters; see 'em seal'd; away!
Report in private to the honour'd duke
His daughter's fore'd disgrace; tell him at length
We know too much: due compliments 8 advance:

There's naught that's safe and sweet but ignorance.

[Enter 8 BIANCA.

Bil. Madam, I am going ambassador for Florence; 't will be great charges to me.

Bian. No matter, my lord, you have the lease of two manors come out next Christmas;
you may lay your tenants on the greater rack for it: and when you come home again, I'll teach you how you shall get two hundred pounds a-year by your teeth.

Bil. How, madam?

Bian. Cut off so much from house-keep- ing: that which is saved by the teeth, you know, is got by the teeth.

Bil. 'Fore God, and so I may; I am in wondrous credit, lady.

Bian. See the use of flattery: I did ever counsel you to flatter greatness, and you have profited well: any man that will do so shall be sure to be like your Scotch barnacle, now a block, instantly a worm, and presently a great goose: this is it to rot and putrefy in the bosom of greatness.

Bil. Thou art ever my politician, O, how happy is that old lord that hath a politician to his young lady! I'll have fifty gentlemen shall attend upon me: marry, the most of them shall be farmer's sons, because they shall bear their own charges; and they shall go apparelled thus, — in sea-water-green suits, ash-colour cloaks, watchet stockings, and popinjay-green feathers: will not the colours do excellent? 55

Bian. Out upon 't! they'll look like citizens riding to their friends at Whitsuntide; their apparel just so many several parishes.

Bil. I'll have it so; and Passarelli, my fool, shall go along with me; marry, he shall be in velvet.

Bian. A fool in velvet!

Bil. Ay, 'tis common for your fool to wear satin; I'll have mine in velvet.

Bian. What will you wear, then, my lord? 75

Bil. Velvet too; marry, it shall be embroidered, because I'll differ from the fool somewhat. I am horribly troubled with the gout: nothing grieves me, but that my doctor hath forbidden me wine, and you know your ambassador 80 must drink. Didst thou ask thy doctor what was good for the gout?

Bian. Yes; he said, ease, wine, and women, were good for it.

Bill. Nay, thou hast such a wit! What was good to cure it, said he?

Bian. Why, the rack. All your epics could never do the like cure upon the gout the rack did in England, or your Scotch boot. The French harlequin will instruct you.

Bill. Surely, I do wonder how thou, having for the most part of thy lifetime been a country body, shouldst have so good a wit.

Bian. Who, I? why, I have been a courtier thrice two months.

Bill. So have I this twenty year, and yet there was a gentleman-usher called me coxcomb t'other day, and to my face too: was 't not a backbiting rascal? I would I were better travelled, that I might have been better acquainted with the fashions of several countrymen: but my secretary, I think, he hath sufficiently instructed me.

Bian. How, my lord?

Bill. "Marry, my good lord," quoth he, "your lordship shall ever find amongst a hundred Frenchmen forty hot-shots; amongst a hundred Spaniards, three-score braggarts; amongst a hundred Dutchmen, four-score drunkards; amongst a hundred Englishmen, four-score and ten madmen; and amongst an hundred Welshmen."

Bian. What, my lord?

Bill. "Four-score and nineteen gentlemen."

Bian. But since you go about a sad embassy, I would have you go in black, my lord.

Bill. Why, dost think I cannot mourn, unless I wear my hat in cypress, like an alderman's heir? That's vile, very old, in faith.

Bian. I'll learn of you shortly: O, we should have a fine gallant of you, should not I instruct you? How will you bear yourself when you come into the Duke of Florence's court?

Bill. Proud enough, and 'twill do well enough. As I walk up and down the chamber, I'll [115] spit frowns about me, have a strong perfume in my jerkin, let my beard grow to make me look terrible, salute no man beneath the fourth button; and 'twill do excellent.

Bian. But there is a very beautiful lady there; how will you entertain her?

Bill. I'll tell you that, when the lady hath entertained me: but to satisfy thee, here comes the fool.

Enter Passarello.

Fool, thou shalt stand for the fair lady. [135]

Pass. Your fool will stand for your lady most willingly and most uprightly.

Bill. I'll salute her in Latin.

Pass. O, your fool can understand no Latin.

Bill. Ay, but your lady can.

Pass. Why, then, if your lady take down your fool, your fool will stand no longer for your lady.

Bill. A pestilent fool! 'fore God, I think the world he turned upside down too.

Pass. O, no, sir; for then your lady and all the ladies in the palace should go with their heels upward, and that were a strange sight, you know.

Bill. There be many will repine at my preference.

Pass. O, ay, like the envy of an elder sister, that hath her younger made a lady before her.

Bill. The duke is wondrous discontented.

Pass. Ay, and more melancholy than a [100] usurer having all his money out at the death of a prince.

Bill. Didst thou see Madam Floris to-day?

Pass. Yes, I found her repairing her face to-day; the red upon the white showed as if her cheeks should have been served in for two dishes of barberries in stewed broth, and the flesh to them a woodcock.

Bill. A bitter fool! [4] Come, madam, this night thou shalt enjoy me freely, and tomorrow [100] for Florence.

Pass. What a natural fool is he that would be a pair of bodies to a woman's petticoat, to be trusted and pointed to them! Well, I'll dog my lord; and the word is proper: for when I fawn upon him, he feeds me; when I snap him by the fingers, he spits in my mouth. If a dog's death were not stranding, I had rather be one than a serving-man; for the corruption of coin is either the generation of a usurer or a lousy beggar. [Exeunt Blanco and Passarello.]

Scene II.

Enter Malevole in some frieze gown, whilst Bilioso reads his patent.

Mal. I cannot sleep; my eyes ill-neighbouring lids will hold no fellowship. O thou pale sober night, Thou that in sluggish fumes all sense dost steep; Thou that giv'st all the world full leave to play, Unbend'st the feebled veins of sweaty labour! The galley-slave, that all the toilsome day Tags at his oar against the stubborn wave, Straining his rugged veins, sours fast; The stooping seythe-man, that doth barb the field, Thou mak'st wink sure: in night all creatures sleep;

Only the malcontent, that 'gainst his fate Repines and quarrels,—alas he's goodman tell-clock!

His sallow jaw-bones sink with wasting moan; Whilst others' beds are down, his pillow's stone.

Bill. Malevole!

Mal. Elder of Israel, thou honest defect of 1 A form of torture.

2 Welshmen were notoriously proud of their pedigrees.
3 Crap.
And yet, though speak, and witty, thus strong Fair-spoken, youth entic'd lascivious to to a surfeit sin keep goes ridge did Ithaca, Mai.

Scene III.
Enter Count Celso.

Celso. My honour'd lord—.

Celso. Peace! how is 't? Speak low: pale fears Suspect that hedges, walls, and trees, have ears:
Speak, how runs all?

Celso. I faith, my lord, that beast with many heads,
The starveling multitude, recoils space:
Though thorough great men's envy, most men's malice,
Their much-intemperate heat hath banish'd you.
Yet now they find envy and malice ne'er
Produce faint reformation.

The duke, the too soft duke, lies as a block,
1 The usual costume of Hymen in masques.
2 So Bullen. Qu. clothe, cloke.
3 The same.

For which two tugging factions seem to saw;
But still the iron through the ribs they draw.

Celso. I find the wind begins to come about;
I'll shift my suit of fortune.

Both banish'd me and made this weak lord duke,
Will now forsake them all; he sure he will.

Celso. But how stands Mendoza? How is 't with him?

O, my disguise fools him most powerfully!

For that I seem a desperate malecontent,
He faint would clasp with me: he's the true slave
That will put on the most affected grace
For some vile second cause.

Enter Mendoza.

Celso. He's here.

Mendoza. Exit Celso.

I'll, ho, ho, ho! art there, old true penny?
Where hast thou spent thyself this morning?
I see flattery in thine eyes, and damnation in thy soul. Ha, ye huge rascal!

Men. Thou art very merry.

Celso. As a scholar, futuens gratis. How does the devil go with thee now?

Men. Malevolo, thou art an arrant knave.

Celso. Who, I? I have been a sergeant, [to Men. Thou art very poor.

Celso. As Job, an alchymist, or a poet.

Men. The duke hates thee.

Celso. As Irishmen do burn-cracks.

Men. Thou hast lost his amity.

Celso. As pleasing as maids lose their virginity.

Men. Would thou were of a lusty spirit! Would thou were noble!

Celso. Why, sure my blood gives me I am noble, sure I am of noble kind; for I find myself possessed with all their qualities:—love dogs, dice, and drabs, scorn wit in stuff clothes; have beat my shoemaker, knocked my seam-[as stress, cuckold'd] my 'potheracy, and undone my tailor. Noble! why not? since the stoics said, Neminem servum non ex regibus, neminem regem non ex servis esse orium; only busy fortune toises, and the provident Chances Whose force alone.

Seneca, Epist. xiv.
blend them together. I’ll give you a simile: did you e’er see a well with two buckets, whilst one comes up full to be emptied, another goes down empty to be filled? Such is the state of all human life. Why, look you, I may be the son of some duke; for, believe me, intertemperate lascivious bastardy makes nobility doubtful: I have a lusty daring heart, Mendonda.

Men. Let’s grasp; I do like thee infinitely. Wilt enact one thing for me?

Mal. Shall I get by it? (MEN. gives him his purse.) Command me; I am thy slave, beyond death and hell.

Men. Murder the duke.

Mal. My heart’s wish, my soul’s desire, my fantasy’s dream, my blood’s longing, the only height of my hopes! How, O God, how! O, how my united spirits throng together, to strengthen my resolve!

Men. The duke is now a-hunting.

Mal. Excellent, admirable, as the devil would have it! Let me, lend me, rapier, pistol, cross-bow: so, so, I’ll do it.

Men. Then we agree.

Men. Know that this weak-brain’d duke, who only stands
On Florence’ stilts, hath out of witless zeal
Made me his heir, and secretly confirm’d
The wreath to me after his life’s full point.

Mal. Upon what merit?

Men. Merit! by heaven, I horn him.

Only Fernze’s death gave me state’s life.

Tut, we are politic, he must not live now.

Mal. No reason, marry: but how must he die now?

Men. My utmost project is to murder the duke, that I might have his state, because he makes me his heir; to banish the duchess, that I might be rid of a cunning Lacedaemonian, because I know Florence will forsake her; and then to marry Maria, the banished Duke Alfortron’s wife, that her friends might strengthen me and my faction: that is all, la.

Mal. Do you love Maria?

Men. Faith, no great affection, but as wise men do love great women, to enoble their blood and augment revenue. To accomplish this now, thus now. The duke is in the forest, next the sea: i’ the main, and proclaim thou sawest wolves eat him.

Mal. Um! Not so good. Methinks when he is slain,
To get some hypocrite, some dangerous wretch
That’s muffled o’er with feigned holiness, To swear he heard the duke on some steep cliff Lament his wife’s dishonour, and, in an agony Of his heart’s torture, hurl’d his groaning sides Into the swollen sea,—this circumstance Well may confuse probable: and hereupon
The duchess—

Men. May well be banish’d:

O unpeerable invention! rare!
Thou god of policy! it honeys me.

Mal. Then fear not for the wife of Alfortron.

I’ll close to her.

Men. Thou shalt! thou shalt. Our excellency is pleas’d:
Why wert not thou an emperor? When we
Are duke, I’ll make thee some great man, sure.

Mal. Nay. Make me some rich knave, and I’ll make myself
Some great man.

Men. In thee be all my spirit:
Retain ten souls, unite thy virtual powers:
Resolve; ha, remember greatness! Heart, farewell;
The fate of all my hopes in thee doth dwell.
[Exit.]

Re-enter Celso.

Mal. Celso, didst hear?—O heaven, didst hear
Such devilish mischief? Suffer’st thou the world
Carouse damnation even with greedy swallow,
And still dost wink, still does thy vengeance slumber?
If now thy brows are clear, when will they thunder?

Exeunt.

Scene IV.

Enter PIETRO, FERRARDO, PREFASSO, and Three Pages.

Pietro. The dogs are at a fault.

Cornets like horns.

Pietro. Would God nothing but the dogs were at it! Let the deer pursue safety, the dogs follow the game, and do you follow the dogs: as for me, ’tis unit one beast should hunt an- other; I ha’ one chaseth me: an’t please you, I would be rid of ye a little.

Fel. Would your grief would, as soon as we, leave you to quietness!

Pietro. I thank you.

Exeunt [FERRARDO and PREFASSO].

Boy, what dost thou dream of now?

1 Page. Of a dry summer, my lord; for here’s a hot world towards; but, my lord, I had a strange dream last night.

Pietro. What strange dream?

1 Page. Why, methought I pleased you with singing, and then I dreamt that you gave me that short sword.

Pietro. Prettily begg’d: hold thee, I’ll prove thy dream true; take’t. [Giving sword.]

1 Page. My duty: but then I dreamt on, my lord; and, methought, an’t shall please your excellency, you would needs out of your royal bounty give me that jewel in your hat.

Pietro. O, thou dist but dream, boy; do [as not believe it; dreams prove not always true; they may hold in a short sword, but not in a jewel. But now, sir, you dreamt you had pleased me with singing; make that true, as I hath made the other.

1 A forest near the sea. 2 Qq. safety.

1 Page. Faith, my lord, I did but dream, and dreams, you say, prove not always true; they may hold in a good sword, but not in a good song. The truth is, I ha' lost my voice.

Pietro. Lost thy voice! How?

1 Page. With dreaming, faith: but here's a couple of sirencal rascals shall enchant ye. What shall they sing, my good lord?

Pietro. Sing of the nature of women: and that the song shall be surely full of variety. Old crotchets, and most sweet closes; it shall be humorous, grave, fantastic, amorous, melancholy, sprightly, one in all, and all in one.

1 Page. All in one!

Pietro. By r lady, too many. Sing: my speech grows culpable of untruthful idleness; sing.

Song [by 2 and 3 Pages].

SCENE V. [To Pietro] Enter MALEVOLe, with cross-bow and pistol.

Pietro. Ah, so, so, sing. I am heavy: walk off; I shall talk in your sleep: walk off.

Exit Pages.

Should stumble upon greatness!—Do not sleep, duke;
Give ye good-morrow. I must be brief, duke;
I am fee'd to murder thee:—start not:—Mendoza, Mendoza hir'd me; here's his gold, his pistol, Cross-bow, [and] sword: 'tis all as firm as earth. O fool, fool, choked with the common maze Of easy idiota, credulity!
Make him thine heir! What, thy sworn murderer!

Pietro. O, can it be?
Mal. Can!

Pietro. Discover'd he not Ferrone?
Mal. Yes, but why? but why? For love to thee?

Much, much! To be reveng'd upon his rival, Who had thrust his jaws awry; Who being slain, suppos'd by thine own hands, Defended by his sword, made thee most loathsome,

Him most gracious with thy loose princess; Thou, closely yielding egress and regress to her, Madest him heir; whose hot unquiet lust,

Straight tors'd thy sheets, and now would seize thy state.

Politician! Wise man! Death to be Led to the stake like a bull by the horns; To make even kindness cut a gentle throat! Life, why art thou numb'd? Thou foggy dulness, speakeck:

Lives not more faith in a home-thrusting tongue Than in those fencing tip-tap courtiers?

Enter Celso, with a hermit's gown and beard.

[Pietro.] 6 Lord Malevole, if this be true—
Mal. If! Come, shade thee with this disguise! If! Thou shalt handle it; he shall thank thee for killing thyself. Come, follow my directions, and thou shalt see strange sleights.

Pietro. World, whither wilt thou?

Mal. Why, to the devil. Come, the morn grows late:
A steady quickness is the soul of state. Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I. 8

Enter MAQUERELLE, knocking at the ladies' door.

Mag. Medam, medam, are you stirring, medam? If you be stirring, medam,—if I thought I should disturb ye—

[Enter Page.]

Page. My lady is up, forsooth.

Mag. A pretty boy, faith: how old art thou?

Page. I think fourteen.

Mag. Nay, an ye be in the teens—are ye a gentleman born? Do you know me? My name is Medam Maquerelle; I lie in the old Cunny-court.

Enter BLANCA and EMILIA.

Bian. A fair day to ye, Maquerelle.

Emil. Is the duchess up yet, sentinel?

Mag. O ladies, the most abominable mischief! O dear ladies, the most piteous disaster! Ferneze was taken last night in the duchess' chamber. Alas, the duke catcht him and kill'd him!

Bian. Was he found in bed?

Mag. O, no; but the villainous certainty is, the door was not bolted, the tongue-tied hatch held his peace: so the naked he was, he was found in his shirt, whilst I, like an arrant beast, lay in the outward tromb, heard nothing; and yet they came by me in the dark, and yet I felt them not, like a senseless creature as I was. O beauties, look to your busk-points; if not chastely, yet charily: be sure the door be bolted.—Is your lord gone to Florence?

Bian. Yes, Maquerelle.

Mag. I hope you'll find the discretion to purchase a fresh gown 'fore his return. —Now, by my troth, beauties, I would ha' ye once wise. He loves ye; pish! He is witty; bubble! Fair-proportioned; mew! Nobly-born; wind! Let this he still your fixed position: esteem me every man according to his good gifts, and so ye shall ever remain most worthy to be most dear ladies.

1 Vanity, frivolity.  2 Q. omits; Q. you.  3 The same, continued.  4 Secretly.

6 Qu. Cel.  6 Palace of the Duke.
7 The tags of the laces fastening the "busk," the whale-bone in the front of the stays.
Emil. Is the duke returned from hunting yet?

Mag. They say not yet.

Bian. 'Tis now in midst of day.

Emil. How bears the duchess with this blemish now?

Mag. Faith, boldly; strongly defies defame, as one that has a duke to her father. And if there's a note to you: be sure of a stout friend in a corner, that may always owe your husband. Mark the behaviour of the duchess now: she dares defame; cries, "Duke, do what thou canst, I'll quit mine honour." Nay, as one confirmed in her own virtue against ten thousand mouths that matter her disgrace, she's presently for dances.

Enter Ferrando.

Bian. For dances!

Mag. Most true.

Emil. Most strange. See, here's my servant, young Ferrando. How many servants thinkest thou I have, Maquerelle?

Mag. The more, the merrier, 'Tis well said, use your servants as you do your smoaks; have many, use one, and change often; for that's most sweet and courtlike.

Fer. Save ye, fair ladies! Is the duke return'd?

Bian. Sweet sir, no voice of him as yet in court.

Fer. 'Tis very strange.

Bian. And how like you my servant, Maquerelle?

Mag. I think he could hardly draw Ulysses' bow; but, by my fidelity, were his nose narrower, his eyes broader, his hands thinner, his lip thicker, his legs bigger, his feet lesser, his hair blacker, and his teeth whiter, he were a tolerable sweet youth; i' faith, And he will come to my chamber, I will read him the fortune of his beard.

Cornsounds.

Fer. Not yet return'd! I fear—but the duchess approacheth.

Scene II.

Enter Mendoza supporting the Duchess and Guerri: the ladies that are on the stage rise: Ferrando ushers in the Duchess, and then takes a lady to tread a measure.

Aur. We will dance: music!—we will dance.

Guer. Les guanto, lady, Pensèz bien, Passa regis, or Bianca's brawl?

Aur. We have forgot the brawl.

Fer. So soon! 'Tis wonder.

Guer. Why, 'tis but two singles on the left, two on the right, three doubles forward, a traverse of six round: do this twice, three singles side, galliard trick—of—twenty, coranto-pace; a figure of eight, three singles broken down, come up, meet, two doubles, fall back, and then honour.

Aur. O Daedalus, thy maze! I have quite forgot it.

Mag. Trust me, so have I, saving the falling-back, and then honour.

Enter Prefasso.

Aur. Music, music!

Prep. Who saw the duke? the duke?

Enter Equato.

Aur. Music!

Equato. The duke? is the duke returned?

Aur. Music!

Enter Celso.

Celso. The duke is either quite invisible, or else is not.

Aur. We are not pleased with your intrusion upon our private retirement; we are not pleased: you have forgot yourselves.

Enter a Page.

Celso. Boy, thy master? Where's the duke?

Page. Alas, I left him burying the earth with his spread joyless limbs: he told me he was heavy, would sleep; bade me walk off, for that the strength of fantasy oft made him talk in his dreams. I straight obey'd, nor ever saw him since: but whereas or he is, he's sad.

Aur. Music, sound high, as is our heart! Sound high!

Scene III.

[To them] enter Malevole, and Pietro disguised like an hermit.

Mal. The duke,—peace!—the duke is dead.

Aur. Music!

Mal. Is't music?

Men. Give proof.

Fer. How?

Celso. Where?

Prep. When?

Mal. Rest in peace, as the duke does: quietly sit: for my own part, I beheld him but dead; that's all. Marry, here's one can give you a more particular account of him.

Men. Speak, holy father, nor let any brow Within this presence fright thee from the truth:

Speak confidently and freely.

Aur. We attend.

Pietro. Now had the mounting sun's all-rippling wings

Swept the cold sweat of night from earth's dank breast,

When I, whom men call Hermit of the Rock, Forsook my cell, and clambered up a cliff, Against whose base the heady Neptune dash'd His high-curled brows; there 'twas I clas'd my limbs:

When, lo! my entrails melted with the moan

1 Lover.
2 This speech should probably be given to Bianca.
3 The same, continued.
4 A slow dance.
5 Dyce cites Les Guanto from Munday as the name of a courtly dance.

Men. A dangerous fellow, very perilous. He must die.
Mal. Ay, he must die.
Men. Thou'lt kill him. We are wise; we must be wise.
Mal. And provident.
Men. Yea, provident: beware an hypocrite; A churchman once corrupted, O, avoid!
A fellow that makes religion his stalking-horse. He breeds a plague. Thou shalt poison him.
Mal. O, 'tis wondrous necessary: how?
Men. You both go jointly to the citadel; There sup, there poison him: and Maria, Because she is our opposite, shall bear The sad suspect; on which she dies or loves us.
Men. We that are great, our sole self-good still moves us.
They shall die both, for their deserts crave more Than we can recompense; their presence still Imbrails our fortunes with beholdingness, Which we abhor; like deed, not doer: then conclude,
They live not to cry out "Ingratitude!" One stick burns t'other, steel cuts steel alone: 'Tis good trust few; but, O, 'tis best trust none! Exit.
IV. V.

THE MALCONTENT

For whom I lost soul, body, fame, and honour. But 'tis most fit: why should a better fate Attend on any who forsake chaste sheets; Fly the embrace of a devoted heart, Join'd by a solemn vow 'fore God and man, To taste the brackish flood of beastly lust In an adulterous touch? Oravenous immodesty! Inscripte impudence of appetite!

Look, here's your end; for mark, what sap in dust,
What good in sin, even so much love in lust. Joy to thy ghost, sweet lord! pardon to me! Celso. 'Tis the duke's pleasure this night you rest in court.

Aur. Soul, lurk in shades; run, shame, from bright skies some; In night the blind man misses not his eyes. Exit with Celso, Ferrando, and halberts.

Mal. Do not weep, kind cuckold: take comfort, man; thy better have been becos: Agamemnon, emperor of all the merry Greeks, that tickled all the true Trojans, was a cuckold; Prince Arthur, that cut off twelve kings' beards, was a cuckold; Hercules, whose back bore up heaven, and got forty wenches with child in one night, —

Pietro. Nay, 't was fifty.

Mal. Faith, forty's snow, o' conscience, — yet was a cuckold. Patience; mischief grows proud: be wise.

Pietro. Thou pinches too deep; art too keen upon me.

Mal. Tut, a pitiful surgeon makes a dan- gerous sore: I'll tent thee to the ground. Thinkest I'll sustain myself by flattering thee, because thou art a prince? I had rather follow a drunkard, and live by licking up his vomit, than by servile flattery.

Pietro. Yet great men ha' done 't.

Mal. Great slaves fear better than love, born naturally for a coal-basket; though the common usher of princes' presence, Fortune, ha' blindly given them better place. I am vowed to thy affliction.

Pietro. Prithee, be: I love much misery, and be thou son to me.

Mal. Because you are an usurping duke. —

Enter BILIOSO.

Your lordship's well returned from Florence.

Bil. Well return'd, I prais my pride.

Mal. What news from the Florentines?

Bil. I will conceal the great duke's pleasure; only this was his charge: his pleasure is, that his daughter die; Duke Pietro be banished; for publishing his blood's dishonour; and that Duke Altofront be re-accepted. This is all: but I hear Duke Pietro is dead.

Mal. Ay, and Mendoza is duke: what will you do?

Bil. Is Mendoza strongest?

Mal. Yet he is.

---

Bil. Then yet I'll hold with him.

Mal. But if that Altofront should turn straight again?

Bil. Why, then, I would turn straight again. 'Tis good run still with him that has most might:

I had rather stand with wrong, than fall with right.

Mal. What religion will you be of now?

Bil. Of the Duke's religion, when I know what it is.

Mal. O Hercules!

Bil. Hercules! Hercules was the son of Jupiter and Alcmena.

Mal. Your lordship is a very wit-all.

Bil. Wittal!

Mal. Aye, all-wit.

Bil. Amphitryo was a cuckold.

Mal. Your lordship swears; your young lady will get you a cloth for your old worship's brows. (Exit BILIOSO.) Here's a fellow to be damn'd: this is his inviolable maxim, — flatter the greatest and oppress the least: a whoreson flesh-fly, that still knows upon the lean galled backs.

Pietro. Why dost, then, salute him?

Mal. Faith, as bawds go to church, for fashion sake. Come, be not confounded; thou'rt but in danger to lose a dukedom. Think this: — this earth is the only grave and Golgotha wherein all things that live must rot; 'tis but the draught wherein the heavenly bodies discharge their corruption; the very muck-hill on which the sublunary orbs cast their excrements: man is the slime of this dung pit, and princes are the governors of these men; for, for our souls, they are as free as emperors, all of one piece; there goes but a pair of shears betwixt an emperor and the son of a bagpiper; only the dying, dressing, pressing, glossing, makes the difference.

Now, what art thou like to lose?

A gaoler's office to keep men in bonds, Whilst toil and treason all life's good confounds.

Pietro. Here renounce for ever regency: O Altofront, I wrong thee to supplant thy right, To trip thy heels up with a devilish slight! For which I now from throne am thrown: world-tricks abjure;

For vengeance, though 't comes slow, yet it comes sure.

O, I am chang'd! for here, 'fore the dread power,

In true contrition, I do dedicate

My breath to solitary holiness,

My lips to prayer, and my breast's care shall be,

Restoring Altofront to regency.

Mal. Thy vows are heard, and we accept thy faith.

Undisguiseth-himself.

Re-enter FERNEZE and CELSO.

Banish amazement: come, we must stand.

ACT V

[Scene I."

Enter Bilioso and Passarello.

Bil. Fool, how dost thou like my calf in a long stocking?

Pass. An excellent calf, my lord.

Bil. This calf hath been a reveler this twenty year. When Monsieur Gundi lay here am[1]assador, I could have carried a lady up and down at arm's end in a platter; and I can tell you, there were those at that time who, to try the strength of a man's back and his arm, would be coistered. I have measured calves with [10]most of the palace, and they come nothing near me; besides, I think there be not many armours in the arsenal will fit me, especially for the headpiece. I'll tell thee —

Pass. What, my lord?

Bil. I can eat stewed broth as it comes seething off the fire; or a custard as it comes reeking out of the oven; and I think there are not many lords can do it. A good pomander, a little decayed in the scent; but six grains of musk, [30]ground with rose-water, and tempered with a little civet, shall fetch her again presently.

Pass. O, ay, as a bawd with aqua-vitae.

Bil. And, what, dost thou rail upon the ladies as thou wert wont?

Pass. I were better roast a live cat, and might do it with more safety. I am as secret to [the] thieves as their painting. There's Maquerelle, oldest bawd and a perpetual beggar — did you never hear of her trick to be known in the [50]city?

Bil. Never.

Pass. Why, she gets all the picture-makers to draw her picture; when they have done, she most courteously finds fault with them one after [as] another, and never fetcheth them. They, in revenge of this, execute her in pictures as they do in Germany, and hang her in their shops. By this means is she better known to the stinkards than if she had been five times carted.

Bil. 'Fore God, an excellent policy.

Pass. Are there any revels to-night, my lord?

Bil. Yes.

Pass. Good my lord, give me leave to break a fellow's pate that hath abused me.

Bil. Whose pate?

Pass. Young Ferrardo, my lord.

Bil. Take heed, he's very valiant; I have known him fight eight quarrels in five days, believe it.

Pass. O, is he so great a quarreler? Why, then, he's an arrant coward.

Bil. How prove you that?

Pass. Why, thus. He that quarrels seeks to fight; and he that seeks to fight seeks to [5]die; and he that seeks to die seeks never to fight more; and he that will quarrel, and seeks means never to answer a man more, I think he's a coward.

Bil. Thou canst prove anything.

Pass. Anything but a rich knave; for I can make no man.

Bil. Well, be not drunk, good fool: I shall see you anon in the presence.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE I."

Enter, from opposite sides, Malevole and Maquerelle, singing.

Mal. "The Dutchman for a drunkard."

Mag. "The Dane for golden locks."

Mal. "The Irishman for usquebaugh."

Mag. "The Frenchman for the (. )."

Mal. O, thou art a blessed creature! Had [I] a modest woman to conceal, I would put her to thy custody; for no reasonable creature would ever suspect her to be in thy company. Ah, thou art a melodious Maquerelle, — thou picture of a woman, and substance of a beast!"

[Enter Passarello with wine.

Mag. O fool, will ye be ready anon to go [1]with me to the revels? The hall will be so posterred? anon.

Pass. Ay, as the country is with attorneys.

Mal. What hast thou there, fool?

Pass. Wine; I have learned to drink since I went with my lord ambassador: I'll drink to the health of Madam Maquerelle.

Mal. Why, thou wast wont to rail upon her.

Pass. Ay; but since I borrowed money of [her], I'll drink to her health now: as gentlemen visit brokers, or as knights send venison to the city, either to take up more money, or to procure longer forbearance.

[Drinks.]"

Pass. Art? art? When Griffin saw the reconciled queen Offering about his neck her arms to cast, 40 He threw off sword and heart's malignant spleen, 8 And lovely her below the joys embrac'd. —

Adieu, Madam Maquerelle.

Mal. And how dost thou think o' this transformation of state now? 48 Mag. Verily, very well; for we women always note, the falling of the one is the rising of the other; some must be fat, some must be lean; some must be fools, and some must be belchers; some must be knaves, and some must be officers; some [80] must be beggars, some must be knights; some must be cuckolds, and some must be citizens. As for example, I have two court-dogs, the most fawning dogs, the one called Watch, the other Catch: now I, like Lady Fortune, sometimes love this dog, sometimes raise that [80] dog, sometimes favour Watch, most commonly fancy Catch. Now, that dog which I favour I feed; and he's so ravenous, that what I give he never chaws it, guls it down whole, without any relish of what he has, but with a greedy [81] expectation of what he shall have. The other dog now—

Mal. No more dog, sweet Maquerelle, no more dog. And what hope hast thou of the [80] Duchess Maria? Will she stoop to the duke's lure? Will she come, thinkest?

Mag. Let me see, where's the sign now? Ha' ye e'er a calendar? Where's the sign, trow you?

Mal. Sign! why is there any moment in that?

Mag. O, believe me, a most secret power: look ye, a Chaldean or an Assyrian, I am sure 'twas a most sweet Jew, told me, court a woman in the right sign, you shall not miss. But you must take her in the right vein [80] then; as, when the sign is in Pisces, a fishmonger's wife is very sociable; in Cancer, a pensioner's wife is very flexible; in Capricorn, a merchant's wife hardly holds out; in Libra, a lawyer's wife is very tractable, especially if [81] her husband be at the term; only in Scorpio 'tis very dangerous meddling. Has the duke sent any jewel, any rich stones?

Enter CAPTAIN.

Mal. Ay, I think those are the best signs to [80] take a lady in. By your favour, signior, I must discourse with the Lady Maria, Altofront's duchess; I must enter for the duke.

Capt. She here shall give you interview. I received the guardianship of this citadel from the good Altofront, and for his use I'll keep it, till I am of no use.

Mal. Wilt thou? O heavens, that a Christian should be found in a buff-jerkin! Captain Consti- science, I love thee, captain. (Exit Captain.)

We attend. And what hope hast thou of this duchess' easiness?

Mag. 'T will go hard, she was a cold creature ever; she hated monkeys, fools, jesters, [29] and gentlemen-ushers extremely; she had the vile trick on't, not only to be truly modestly honourable in her own conscience, but she would avoid the least wanton carriage that might in- cur suspect; as, God bless me, she had almost brought bed-pressing out of fashion; I [105] could scarce get a fine for the lease of a lady's favour once in a fortnight.

Mal. Now, in the name of immodesty, how many maidens has thou brought to the block?

Mag. Let me see: heaven forgive us our mis- deeds! —Here's the duchess.

SCENE II.

[To them] enter MARIA with CAPTAIN.

Mal. God bless thee, lady!

Maria. Out of thy company!

Mal. We have brought thee tender of a hus- band.

Maria. I hope I have one already.

Mag. Nay, by mine honour, madam, as good ha' ne'er a husband as a banished husband; he's in another world now. I'll tell ye, lady, I have heard of a sect that maintained, when the husband was asleep the wife might law-[105] fully entertain another man, for then her hus- band was as dead; much more when he is banished.

Maria. Unhonest creature!

Mag. Fish, honesty is but an art to seem so: Pray ye, what 's honesty, what 's constancy, But fables feign'd, odd old fools' chat, devis'd By jealous fools to wrong our liberty?

Mal. Molly, he that loves thee is a duke, Mendoza; he will maintain thee royally, love [29] thee ardently, defend thee powerfully, marry thee sumptuously, and keep thee in despite of Rosideer 4 or Donzel del Phebo. There's jewels: if thou wilt, so; if not, so.

Maria. Captain, for God's love, save poor wretchedness

From tyranny of lustful insolence!

Enforce me in the deepest dungeon dwell,

Rather than here; here round about is hell.— O my dearest Altofront! where'er thou breathe,

Let my soul sink into the shades beneath,

Before I stain thine honour! 'Tis thou hast 't,

And long as I can die, I will live chaste.

Mal. Gainst him that can enforce how vain is strife!

1 A hero in Orlando Furioso. (Reed.)
2 Bullen's emend. Qt. stream.
Maria. She that can enforce'd has ne'er a knife:
She that through force her limbs with lust enrolls,
Wants Cleopatra's asps and Portia's coals.
God amend you!  Exit with Captain.
Mal. Now, the fear of the devil for ever go with thee! — Maquerelle, I tell thee, I have found an honest woman; faith, I perceive, (46) when all is done, there is of women, as of all other things, some good, most bad; some saints, some sinners: for as nowadays no courtez but has his mistresse, no captain but has his cock: (44) atrice, no cuckold but his horns, and no fool but his feather; even so, no woman but has her weakness and feather too, no sex but has his
— I can hunt the letter no farther. — (Aside.) O
God, how loathsome this toying is to me! That (48) a duke should be forced to fool it! Well, stublerum plena sunt omnias: 1 better play the fool lord than be the fool lord. — Now, where's your sleights, Madam Maquerelle?

Mag. Why, are ye ignorant that 't is said a squeamish affected niceness is natural to (50) women, and that the excuse of their yielding is only, forsooth, the difficult obtaining? You must put her back: women are flax, and will fire in a moment.
Mal. Why, was the flax put into thy mouth, and yet thou —
Thou set fire, thou inflame her! — Mag. Marry, but I'll tell ye now, you were too hot.
Mal. The fitter to have inflamed the flax,
woman. 55
Mag. You were too boisterous, spleeny, for, indeed —
Mal. Go, go, thou art a weak pandress; now I see,
Sooner earth's fire heaven itself shall waste, 60
Than all with heat can melt a mind that's chaste.
Go; thou the duke's lime-twig! I'll make the duke turn thee out of thine office: what, not got one touch of hope, and had her at such advantage!

Mag. Now, o' my conscience, now I think in my discretion, we did not take her in the right sign; the blood was not in the true vein, sure.
Exit.

SCENE III.

the enthronement. — Malevole —

Mal. Out, rogue! —

Bil. Nay, sweet Malevole, since my return I hear you are become the thing I always prope-hied would be, — an advanced virtue, a worthily-employed, faithfulness, a man o' grace, [10 dear friend. Come; what! Si quiesce peccant homines [14 — often depraves virtue.

20 Bil. Do: let us be friends, man.
30 Mal. And knaves, man.
35 Bil. Right; let us prosper and purchase: our lordships shall live, and our knavery be forgotten.

Exeunt all saving MALEVOL [and MENDOZA].

Stay, where is the hermit?
Men. Is he dead? Is he poisoned?
Mal. Dead, as the duke is.
Men. Good, excellent: he will not blab: se-cureness lives in secrecy. Come hither, come hither.
Mal. Thou hast a certain strong villainous scent about thee my nature cannot endure.
Men. Scent, man! What returns Maria, what answer to our suit?
Men. Cold, frosty: she is obstinate.
Men. Then she's but dead; 't is resolute, she dies:
"Black deed only through black deed safely
flies."
Mal. Fool! per sceleras semper sceleribus tutum est iter. 5
Men. What, art a scholar? Art a politician?
Sure, thou art an arrant knave.
Mal. Who, I? I ha' been twice an under-sheriff, man? [Well, I will go rail upon some great man, that I may purchase the bastinado, or else go marry some rich Genoan lady, and instantly go travel.

he would never travel so far as the uni[verse: yet, when he married her, tales off, and, Catso, for England!]

Men. And why for England?

Mal. Because there is no brothel-houses there.

Men. Nor courtisans?

Mal. Neither; your whore went down with the stews, and your punk came up with your puritan.

Men. Canst thou empioin? Canst thou empioin?

Mal. Excellently; no Jew, 'pothecary, or politician better. Look ye, here's a box: whom wouldst thou empioin? Here's a box (giving it), which, opened and the fume ta'en up in conduits thorough which the brain purges itself, doth instantly for twelve hours' space bind up all show of life in a deep senseless sleep:

here's another (giving it), which, being opened under the sleeper's nose, chokes all the pores of life, kills him suddenly.

Men. I'll try experiments; 'tis good not to be deceived.—So, so; catso!

Seems to poison MALEVOLE [who fails].

Who would fear that may destroy?

Mal. Death hath no teeth nor tongue;
And he that's great, to him are slaves,
Shame, murder, fame, and wrong. —

Celso!

Enter Celso.

Celso. My honour'd lord?

Men. The good Malevoile, that plain-tong'd
man,
Alas, is dead on sudden, wondrous strangely!
He held in our esteem good place. Celso,

See him buried, see him buried.

Celso. I shall observe ye.

Men. And, Celso, pricethe, let it be thy care to-night
To have some pretty show, to solemnize
Our high instaunct; some music, masquery.
We'll give fair entertain unto Maria,
The duchess to the banish'd Altofront:
Thou shalt conduct her from the citadel
Unto the palace. Think on some masquery. 105

Celso. Of what shape, sweet lord?

Men. What! shape! Why, any quick-done fiction;
As some brave spirits of the Genoan dukies,
To come out of Elysium, forsooth,
Led in by Mercury, to gratulate
Our happy fortune; some such anything,
Some far-fet trick good for ladies, some stale toy
Or other, no matter, so't be of our devising.
Do thou prepare it; 'tis but for fashion sake.
Fear not, it shall be grace'd, man, it shall take.

Celso. All service.

Men. All thanks; our hand shall not be close. 2 to thee; farewell.

(Aside.) Now is my treacherous secure, nor can we fall:
Mischief that prospers, men do virtue call.
I'll trust no man: he that by tricks gets wreaths Keeps them with steel; no man securely breathes
Out of deserved ranks; the crowd will mutter,
'fool!'

Who cannot bear with spite, he cannot rule.
The poorest secret for a man of state
Is, to live senseless of a strengthless hate. Exit.

Mal. (starts up and speaks.) Death of the [the damned thief! I'll make one; the masque; thou shalt ha' some brave spirits of the antique dukies.

Celso. My lord, what strange delusion?

Mal. Most happy, dear Celso, poisoned with an empty box: I'll give thee all, anon. My lady comes to court; there is a whirl of fate comes tumbling on; the castle's captain stands for me, the people pray for me, and the [the yourselves, Celso;

For no disastrous chance can ever move him
That leaveth nothing but a God above him.

Exeunt.

Enter BILIOSO and PREPASSO, two Pages before them; MAQUEBILLE, BLANCA, and EMILIA.

Bil. Make room there, room for the ladies! Why, gentlemen, will not ye suffer the ladies to be entered in the great chamber? Why, gallants! and you, sir, to drop your torch where the beauties must sit too?

Pre. And there's a great fellow plays the knave; why dost not strike him?

Bil. Let him play the knave, o' God's name;
thinkest thou I have no more wit than to strike
a great fellow? — The music! more lights! [10 oaths enow ready at the door, swear out the

if the lords be ready for them.

Exeunt BILIOSO, PREPASSO, and Pages.

Mag. And, by my troth, beauties, why do ye not put you into the fashion? This is a stale out; you must come in fashion: look ye, you must be all felt, felt and feather, a felt upon your bare hair. Look ye, these tiring things 6 are justly out of request now: and, do ye [as hear? you must wear falling-bands, you must come into the falling fashion: there is such a deal o' pinning these ruffs, when the fine clean fall is worth all: and again, if ye should chance to take a nap in the afternoon, your falling- 8 band requires no pokying-stick 7 to recover his form: believe me, no fashion to the falling, I say.

6 A part of dress, now usually called a vandyke; it fell flat upon the dress from the neck, and succeeded the stiff ruffs. (Nares.)
7 Or pokying-stick, for setting the plaits of ruffs.
Men. And is not Signior St. Andrew a gallant fellow now.

Mag. By my maidenhead, la, honour and he agrees as well together as a satin suit and woollen stockings.

Emilia. But is not Marshal Make-room, my servant in reversion, a proper gentleman?

Mag. Yes, in reversion, as he had his office; as, in truth, he hath all things in reversion: he has his mistress in reversion, his clothes in reversion, his wit in reversion; and, indeed, is a suitor to me for my dog in reversion: but, in good verity, la, he is as proper a gentleman in reversion as—and, indeed, as fine a man as may be, having a red beard and a pair of wart legs.

Bian. But, i' faith, I am most monstrously in love with Count Quidlibet-in-quadlibet; [44] is he not a pretty, dapper, unile gallant?

Mag. He is even one of the most busy-fingered lords; he will put the beauties to the squeak most hideously.

Re-enter BILIOSO.

Bil. Room! make a lane there! the duke [50] is entering: stand handsomely for beauty's sake, take up the ladies there! So, cornets, cornets!

SCENE V.

Re-enter PREPASSO, joins to BILIOSO; then enter two Pages with lights, FERRARDO, MENDOZA; at the other door, two Pages with lights, and the Captain leading in MARIA; MENDOZA meets MARIA and closeth with her; the rest fall back.

Men. Madam, with gentle ear receive my suit; A kingdom's safety should o'er-peise slight rite: Marriage is merely nature's policy: Then, since unless our royal beds be join'd, Danger and civil tumults fright the state, Be wise as you are fair, give way to fate.

Maria. What wouldst thou, thou affliction to our house? Thou ever-devil, 't was thou that banished' st My truly noble lord!

Men. I! 10

Maria. Ay, by thy plots, by thy black stratagems: Twelve moons have suffer'd change since I beheld The loved presence of my dearest lord. O thou far worse than Death! he parts but soul From a weak body; but thou soul from soul Is dissever'd, that which God's own hand did knit; Thou scant of honour, full of devilish wit!

Men. We'll check your too-intemperate lasshness:
I can and will.

Maria. What canst thou?

Men. Go to; in banishment thy husband dies. Maria. He ever is at home that's ever wise. Men. You'st ne'er meet more: reason should love control.

Maria. Not meet!

She that dear loves, her love's still in her soul.

Men. You are but a woman, lady, you must yield.

Maria. O, save me, thou innated bashfulness, Thou only ornament of woman's modesty!

Men. Modesty! death, I'll torment thee.

Maria. Do, urge all torments, all afflictions try, I'll die my lord's as long as I can die.

Men. Thou obstinate, thou shalt die.—Captain, that lady's life Is forfeited to justice: we have examind her, And we do find she hath empioinned,

The reverend hermit; therefore we command Severest custody.—Nay, if thou 'll do's no good, You 'st do's no harm: a tyrant's peace is blood.

Maria. O, thou art merciful! O gracious devil, Rather by much let me condemned be For seeming murder than be damn'd for thee! I'll mourn no more; come, girt my brows with flowers:

Revel and dance, soul, now thy wish thou hast; Die like a bride, poor heart, thou shalt die chastely.

Enter AURELIA in mourning habit.

Aur. "Life is a frost of cold felicity, And death the thaw of all our vanity:" 5

Was't not an honest priest that wrote so?

Men. Who let her in?

Bil. Forbear!

Pre. Forbear!

Aur. Alas, calamity is everywhere:
Sad misery, despite your double doors, Will enter even in court.

Bil. Peace!

Aur. I ha' done.

Bil. One word,—take head!

Aur. I ha' done.

Enter MERCURY with loud music.

Mer. Cyllenian Mercury, the god of ghosts, From gloomy shades that spread the lower coasts, Calls four high-famed Genoan dukes to come, And make this presence their Elision,

To pass away this high triumphal night: With song and dances, court's more soft delight.

Aur. Are you god of ghosts? I have a suit pending in hell betwixt me and my conscience; I would fain have thee help me to an advocate.

Bil. Mercury shall be your lawyer, lady.

Aur. Nay, faith, Mercury has too good a face to be a right lawyer.

Pre. Peace, forbear! Mercury presents the masque.

Cornets: the song to the cornets, which playing, the masque enters; MALEVOL, FIERTO, FERNEZE, and CELSO, in white robes, with duke's crowns upon laurel wreaths, pistols and short swords under their robes.

Mer. Celso, Celso, court Maria for our love.—Lady, be gracious, yet grace.

1 Some copies of Q, give this line to Maria.
2 From Thomas Baskard's "Chrestoloros," 1589. (Bullen.)
3 Qq. gives this line to Aurelia. 4 Regions.
Maria. With me, sir?

MALVOLE takes MARIA to dance.

Mal. Yes, more loved than my breath; With you I'll dance.

Maria. Why, then, you dance with death. But, come, sir, I was never more apt for mirth. Death gives eternity a glorious breath:

O, to die honours'd, who would fear to die?

Mal. They die in fear who live in villainy. Men. Yes, believe him, lady, and be rul'd by him.

PIETRO. Madam, with me.

PIETRO takes AURELLA to dance.

Aur. Wouldst thou, then, be miserable?

PIETRO. I need not wish.

Aur. O, yet forbear my hand! away! fly! fly!

O, seek not her that only seeks to die!

PIETRO. Poor loved soul!

Aur. What, wouldst court misery?

PIETRO. Yes.

Aur. She'll come too soon: — O my grieved heart!

PIETRO. Lady, ha' done, ha' done:

Come, let us dance: be once from sorrow free.

Aur. Art a sad man?

PIETRO. Yes, sweet.

Aur. Then we'll agree.

FERNEZE takes MAQUERELLE and CELSO, BLANCA: then the cornets sound the measure, one change and rest.

FER. (to BLANCA.) Believe it, lady; shall I swear? Let me enjoy you in private, and I'll marry you, by my soul.

BLANCA. I had rather you would swear by your body: I think that would prove the more regarded oath with you.

FER. I'll swear by them both, to please you.

BLANCA. O, damn them both not to please me, for God's sake!

FER. Faith, sweet creature, let me enjoy you to-night, and I'll marry you to-morrow for my troth, la.

MAQ. On his troth, la! believe him not; [105] that kind of love-catching[1] is as stale as Sir Oliver Anchovy's perfumed jerkin: promise of matrimony by a young gallant, to bring a virgin lady into a fool's paradise; make her a great woman, and then cast her off; — 't is as com-MON [and] natural to a courtier, as jealousy to a citizen, gluttony to a puritan, wisdom to an alderman, pride to a tailor, or an empty hand-basket to one of these six-penny damations: of his troth, la! believe him not; traps to[106] catch pole-cats.

MAL. (to MARIA.) Keep your face constant, Let no sudden passion Speak in your eyes.

MARIA. O my Altofront!

PIETRO. (to AURELLA.) A tyrant's jealousies Are very nimble: you receive it all?

AUR. My heart, though not my knees, doth humbly fail Low as the earth, to thee.

[Mal.] Peace! next change; no words.

MARIA. Speech to such, ay, O, what will afford?

CORNETS sound the measure over again; which danced, they unmask.

MEN. MALVOLE!

They environ MENDOZA, bending their pistols on him.

MAL. No.

MEN. Altofront! Duke Pietro! Ferneze! ha! All. Duke Altofront! Duke Altofront! CORNETS, a flourish.—They seize upon MENDOZA.

MEN. Are we surpris'd? What strange de-fusions mock

Our senses? Do I dream? or have I dreamt

This two days' space? Where am I?

Mal. Where an arch-villain is.

Men. O, lend me breath till I am fit to die!

For peace with heaven, for your own souls' sake,

Vouchsafe me life!

PIETRO. Ignoble villain! whom neither heaven nor hell,

Goodness of God or man, could once make good!

MAL. Base, treacherous wretch! what grace canst thou expect,

That hast grown impudent in gracelessness?

Men. O, life!

MAL. Slave, take thy life.

Wert thou defended, (to) rough blood and wounds,

The sternest horror of a civil fight.

Would I achieve thee; but prostrate at my feet,

I scorn to hurt thee: 'tis the heart of slaves

That deigns to triumph over peasants' graves;

For such thou art, since birth doth ne'er enroll

A man 'mong monarchs, but a glorious soul.

O, I have seen strange accidents of state!

The flatterer, like the ivy, clip the oak,

And waste it to the heart; lust so confirm'd,

That the black act of sin itself not sham'd

To be term'd courtship.

O, they that as great as be their sins,

Let them remember that th' inconstant people

Love many princes merely for their faces

And outward shows; and they do covet more

To have a sight of these than of their virtues.

Yet thus much let the great ones still conceive,

When they observe not heaven's impos'd conditions,

They are no kings, but forfeit their commissions.

MAQ. O good my lord, I have lived in the court this twenty year: they that have been old courtiers, and come to live in the city, they are spied at, and thrust to the walls like apri-cocks, good my lord.

BIL. My lord, I did know your lordship in this disguise; you heard me ever say, if Altofront did return, I would stand for him: besides, 'twas your lordship's pleasure to call me wittol and cuckold: you must not think, but that I knew you, I would have put it up so patiently.

1 Deceiving. 2 Qq. as.
Mal. You o'er-joy'd spirits, wipe your long-wet eyes.
To PIETBO and AURELIA.
Hence with this man (kicks out MENDOZA): an eagle takes not flies.
You to your vows (to PIETBO and AURELIA): and thou into the suburbs.
To MAQUERELLE.
You to my worst friend I would hardly give; Thou art a perfect old knave (to BILioso): all-pleas'd live.
You two unto my breast (to CELSO and the Captain): thou to my heart. (To MAria.)
The rest of idle actors idly part:
And as for me, I here assume my right, To which I hope all 's pleas'd: to all, good-night.
Cornets, a flourish. Exeunt omnes.

AN IMPERFECT ODE, BEING BUT ONE STAFF
SPOKEN BY THE PROLOGUE.
To wrest each hurtless thought to private sense
Is the foul use of ill-bred impudence:
Immodest censure now grows wild,
All over-running.
Let innocence be ne'er so chaste,
Yet to the last
She is defil'd
With too nice-brained cunning.

1 The disreputable district.

O you of fairer soul,
Control
With an Herculean arm
This harm:
And once teach all old freedom of a pen, Which still must write of fools, whiles 't writes of men!

EPILOGUS
YOUR modest silence, full of heedly stillness, Makes me thus speak: a voluntary illness
Is merely senseless; but unwilling error, Such as proceeds from too rash youthful fervour,
May well be call'd a fault, but not a sin:
Rivers take names from founts where they begin.
Then let not too severe an eye peruse
The slighter brakes 2 of our reformed Muse, Who could herself herself of faults detect, But that she knows 'tis easy to correct,
Though some men's labour: troth, to err is fit, As long as wisdom 's not profess'd, but wit. Then till another's 4 happier Muse appears,
Till his Thalia feast your learned ears,
To whose desertful lamps pleased Fates impart
Art above nature, judgment above art,
Receive this piece, which hope nor fear yet daunteth:
He that knows most knows most how much he wanteth.

Prologue

I come but like a harbinger, being sent
To tell you what these preparations mean.
Look for no glorious state; our Muse is bent
Upon a barren subject, a bare scene.
We could afford this twig a timber-tree,
Whose strength might boldly on your favours build;
Our russet, tissue; drone, a honey-bee;
Our barren plot, a large and spacious field;
Our coarse fare, banquets; our thin water, wine;
Our brook, a sea; our bat’s eyes, eagle’s sight;
Our poet’s dull and earthy Muse, divine;
Our ravens, doves; our crow’s black feathers, white.
But gentle thoughts, when they may give the foil,
Save them that yield, and spare where they may spoil.

[Act I]

[Scene I.] 3

Enter Master John Frankford, Mistress [Frankford]. Sir Francis Acton, Sir Charles Mountford, Master Malby, Master Wendell, and Master Cranwell.

Sir F. Some music, there! None lead the bride a dance?
Sir C. Yes, would she dance The Shaking of the Sheets?
But that’s the dance her husband means to lead her.
Wen. That’s not the dance that every man must dance.
According to the ballad. 4

1 Defeat.
2 Room in Frankford’s house. 3 Q: Acton.
4 The Shaking of the Sheets, or The Dance of Death, was a well-known ballad and dance tune.

Sir F. Music, ho! By your leave, sister,—by your husband’s leave,
I should have said,—the hand that but this day
Was given you in the church I’ll borrow.—
Sound!
This marriage music hoists me from the ground.
Frank. Ay, you may caper; you are light and free!
Marriage hath yok’d my heels; pray, then, pardon me.
Sir F. I’ll have you dance too, brother!
Sir G. Master Frankford, You are a happy man, sir, and much joy Succeed your marriage mirth: you have a wife
So qualified, and with such ornaments
Both of the mind and body. First, her birth
Is noble, and her education such
As might become the daughter of a prince;
Her own tongue speaks all tongues, and her own hand
Sir F. We keep you here too long, good brother Frankford.
Into the hall; away! Go cheer your guests.
What! Bride and bridegroom both withdrawn at once?
If you be mist, the guests will doubt their welcome,
And charge you with unkindness.

Frank. To prevent it,
I'll leave you here, to see the dance within.
Mrs. F. And so will I.

Exeunt [MASTER AND MISTRESS FRANKFORD].

Sir F. To part you it were sin.
Now, gallants, while the town musicians
Finger their frets within, and the mad lads
And country lads, every mother's child,
With nosegays and bride-laces in their hats,
Dance all their country measures, rounds, and jigs.
What shall we do? Hark! They're all on the hoist;
They toil like mill-horses, and turn as round,—
Marry, not on the toe! Ay, and they capper,
[NOT] without cutting; you shall see, to morrow,
The hall-floor pecked and dinted like a millstone,
Made with their high shoes. Though their skill be small,
Yet they tread heavy where their hobnails fall.
Sir C. Well, leave them to their sports!—
Sir Francis Acton,
I'll make a match with you! Meet me to morrow
At Chivy Chase; I'll fly my hawk with yours.
Sir F. For what? For what?
Sir C. Why, for a hundred pound.
Sir F. Pawn me some gold of that!
Sir C. Here are ten angels;
I'll make them good a hundred pound to-morrow.
Upon my hawk's wing.
Sir F. 'T is a match; 't is done.
Another hundred pound upon your dogs;—
Dare ye, Sir Charles?
Sir C. I dare; were I sure to lose,
I durst do more than that; here is my hand,
The first course for a hundred pound!
Sir F. A match.

Wen. Ten angels on Sir Francis Acton's hawk;
As much upon his dogs!

Cran. I'm for Sir Charles Mountford: I have seen
His hawk and dog both tried. What! Clap ye hands, or is't no bargain?
Wen. Yes, and stake them down.
Were they five hundred, they were all my own.
Sir F. Be stirring early with the lark to morrow;

1 Gained the dignity.
2 In preparation for marrying.
3 Reduces her to submission.
4 The points where the strings of a musical instrument are stopped.
5 Streamers.
6 Bristerous.
7 Qi. But.
8 Gold coins worth about $2.50.
9 Shake hands on it.
I'll rise into my saddle ere the sun
Rise from his bed.

Sir C. If there you miss me, say
I am no gentleman! I'll hold my day.

Sir F. It holds on all sides. — Come, to-night,
let's dance;

Early to-morrow let's prepare to ride:

We'd need be three hours up before the bride.

Exeunt.

[SCENE II.] 1

Enter Nicholas and Jenkin, Jack Slime, Roger Brickbat, with Country Wenches, and two or three Musicians.

Jen. Come, Nick, take you Joan Miniver, to trace withal; Jack Slime, traverse you with Cicely Milkpail; I will take Jane Trubkin, and Roger Brickbat shall have Isabel Motley. And now that they are busy in the parlour, come, 15 strike up; we'll have a crash 2 here in the yard.

Nich. My humour is not compebbious: dancing I possess not, though I can foot it; yet, since I am fallen into the hands of Cicely 10
Milkpail, I consent.

Slime. Truly, Nick, though we were never brought up like serving-courtiers, yet we have been brought up with serving-creatures,—ay, and God's creatures, too; for we have been brought up to serve sheep, oxen, horses, hogs, and such like; and, though we be but country fellows, it may be in the way of dancing we can do the horse-trick as well as the serving-men.

Brick. Ay, and the cross-point too.

Jen. O Slime! O Brickbat! Do not you know that comparisons are odious? Now we are odio-selves, too; therefore there are no comparisons to be made betwixt us.

Nich. I am sudden, and not superfluous; 20
I am quarrelsome, and not seditious;
I am peaceable, and not contentious;
I am brief, and not compebbious.

Slime. Foot it quickly! If the music overcome not my melancholy, I shall quarrel; and if 30 they suddenly do not strike up, I shall presently strike them down.

Jen. No quarrelling, for God's sake! Truly,
if you do, I shall set a knave between ye.

Slime. I come to dance, not to quarrel. [35
Come, what shall it be? Brick?

Jen. Roger? No; we will dance The Begining of the World.

Cicely. I love no dance so well as John come kiss me now.

Nich. I that have ere now deserv'd a cushion, call for the Cushion-dance.

Brick. For my part, I like nothing so well as Tom Tyler.

Jen. No; we'll have The Hunting of the [40
Fox.

Slime. The Hay, The Hay! There's nothing like The Hay.

Nich. I have said, I do say, and I will say
again.

Jen. Every man agree to have it as Nick says!

All. Content.

Nich. It hath been, it now is, and it shall be —

Cicely. What, Master Nicholas? What? 35
Nich. Put on your Smock a Monday.

Jen. So the dance will come cleanly off! Come, for God's sake, agree of something: if you like not that, put it to the musicians; or let me speak for all, and we'll have Seller's 50 Round.

All. That, that, that!

Nich. No, I am resolv'd thus it shall be;
First take hands, then take ye to your heels.

Jen. Why, would you have us run away? 60 Nich. No; but I would have you shake your heels. — Music, strike up!

They dance; Nick dancing, speaks stately and severely, the rest after the country fashion.

Jen. Hey! Lively, my lasses! Here's a turn for thee!

Exeunt.

[SCENE III.] 4

Wind horns. Enter Sir Charles Mountford,
Sir Francis Acton, Malby, Cranwell,
Wendoll, Falconer, and Huntsmen.

Sir C. So; well cast off! Aloft, aloft! Well flown!
Oh, now she takes her at the souse, 5 and strikes
her
Down to the earth, like a swift thunder-clap.

Wen. She hath struck ten angels out of my way.

Sir F. A hundred pound from me.

Sir C. What, falconer!

Falc. At hand, sir!

Sir C. Now she hath seiz'd the fowl and 'gin to plume 6 her,

Rebeck 7 her not; rather stand still and check
her!

So, seize her gets, 8 her jesses, 9 and her bells! 10
Away!

Sir F. My hawk kill'd, too.

Sir C. Ay, but 't was at the quere, 10
Not at the mount like mine.

Sir F. Judgment, my masters! Cran.
Yours mist her at the ferr 11

Wen. Ay, but our merlin first had plum'd
the fowl,

And twice renew'd 12 her from the river too.

Her bells, Sir Francis, had not both one weight,
Nor was one semi-tone above the other.

Methinks, these Milan bells do sound too full,
And spoil the mounting of your hawk.

Sir C. 'Tis lost. 20

Sir F. I grant it not. Mine likewise seiz'd a fowl

Within her talons, and you saw her paws

1 Yard of the same.
2 Frolic, bout.
3 The names of the dance-tunes here were all famili
4 Chevy Chase.
5 Pluck.
6 Call back.
7 Verity explains as "booty," but apparently it is the same as jesse.
8 Leg-straps.
9 Quarry: "the swoop upon the bird." (N. E. D.)
10 Not satisfactorily explained.
11 Attacked afresh.
Full of the feathers; both her petty singles 1
And her long singles grip'd her more than other;
The terials 2 of her 3 legs were stain'd with blood,
Not of the fowl only; she did discernfit
Some of her feathers; but she brake away.
Come, come; your hawk is but a riffer. 4
Sir F. Ay, and your dogs are trindle-tails 5 and curs.
Sir C. You stir my blood.
You keep not one good hound in all your kennel,
Nor one good hawk upon your perch.
Sir F. How, knight!
Sir C. So, knight. You will not swagger, sir?
Sir F. Why, say I did?
Sir C. Why, sir,
I say you would gain as much by swagg'ring 6
As you have got by wagers on your dogs.
You will come short in all these things.
Sir F. Not in this!
Now I'll strike home. [Strikes Sir Charles.]
Sir C. Thou shalt to thy long home,
Or I will want my will.
Sir F. All they that love Sir Francis, follow me!
Sir C. All that affect Sir Charles, draw on my part!
Wen. On this side heaves my hand.
Sir C. My God, what have I done! What have I done!
My rage hath plung'd into a sea of blood,
In which my soul lies drown'd. Poor innocents,
For whom we are to answer! Well, 'tis done,
And I remain the victor. A great conquest,
When I would give this right hand, nay, this head,
To breathe in them new life whom I have slain!
Forgive me, God! 'Twas in the heat of blood,
And anger quite removes me from myself.
It was not I, but rage, did this vile murder;
Yet I, and not my rage, must answer it.
Sir Francis Acton, he is fled the field;
With him all those that did partake his quarrel;
And I am left alone with sorrow dumb,
And in my height of conquest overcome.

Enter Susan.

Susan. O God! My brother wounded 'mong
the dead!
Unhappy jest, that in such earnest ends!
The rumour of this fear stretch't to my ears,
And I am come to know if you be wounded.
Sir C. Oh, sister, sister! Wounded at the heart.
Susan. My God forbid!
Sir C. In doing that thing which he for bad,
I am wounded, sister.
Susan. I hope, not at the heart. 7
Sir C. Yes, at the heart.
Susan. O God! A surgeon, there.
Sir C. Call me a surgeon, sister, for my soul!
The sin of murder, it hath pierc'd my heart
And made a wide wound there; but for these scratches,
They are nothing, nothing.
Susan. Charles, what have you done? 7
Sir Francis hath great friends, and will pursue
you
Unto the utmost danger 6 of the law.
Sir C. My conscience is become mine enemy,
And will pursue me more than Acton can.
Susan. Oh! Fly, sweet brother!
Sir C. Shall I fly from thee? 7
Why, Sue, art weary of my company?
Susan. Fly from your foe!
Sir C. You, sister, are my friend,
And flying you, I shall pursue my end.
Susan. Your company is as my eyeball
dear;
Being far from you, no comfort can be near.
Yet fly to save your life! What would I care
To spend my future age in black despair,
So you were safe? And yet to live one week Without my brother Charles, through every check
My streaming tears would downwards run so rank,
Till they could set on either side a bank,
And in the midst a channel; so my face
For two salt-water brooks shall still find place.
Sir C. Thou shalt not weep so much; for I will stay,
In spite of danger's teeth. I'll live with thee,
Or I'll not live at all, I will not sell
My country and my father's patrimony,
Nor thy sweet sight, for a vain hope of life.

Enter Sheriff, with Officers.

Sher. Sir Charles, I am made the unwilling instrument
Of your attach 8 and apprehension.
I'm sorry that the blood of innocent men
Should be of you exacted. It was told me
That you were guard'd with a troop of friends,
And therefore I come thus arm'd.
Sir C. Oh, Master Sheriff! I
I came into the field with many friends,

1 Ten.
Unexplained.
The rest of the speech seems to refer to Mountford's hawk.
Bungler.
Curly-tailed.
6 Limit of liability.
7 Abundantly.
8 Arrest.
But see, they all have left me; only one
Clings to my sad misfortune, my dear sister.
I know you for an honest gentleman;
I yield my weapons, and submit to you.
Convey me where you please!
SHER. To prison, then, 105
To answer for the lives of these dead men.
Susan. O God! O God!
SIR C. Sweet sister, every strain
Of sorrow from your heart augments my pain;
Your grief abounds,1 and hits against my breast.
SHER. Sir, will you go?
SIR C. Even where it likes you best. 110
[Exeunt.]

[ACT II]

[SCENE I.]

Enter Master Frankford in a study.

FRANK. How happy am I amongst other men,
That in my mean estate embrace content!
I am a gentleman, and by my birth
Companion with a king; a king's no more.
I am possess'd of many fair revenues,
Sufficient to maintain a gentleman;
Touching my mind, I am studied in all arts;
The riches of my thoughts and of my time
Have been a good proficient;2 but, the chief
Of all the sweet felicities on earth,
I have a fair, a chaste, and loving wife,—
Perfection all, all truth, all ornament.
If man on earth may truly happy be,
Of these at once posset, sure, I am he.

Enter Nicholas.

NICH. Sir, there's a gentleman attends without
To speak with you.

FRANK. On horseback?
NICH. Yes, on horseback.
FRANK. Entreat him to alight, I will attend
him.

Know'st thou him, Nick?
NICH. Know him? Yes; his name's Wendoll.
It seems, he comes in haste: his horse is booted.3
Up to the flank in mire, himself all spotted.4
And stain'd with slashing. Sure, he rid in fear,
Or for a wager. Horse and man both sweat;
I ne'er saw two in such a smoking heat.
FRANK. Entreat him in: about it instantly!
[Exit Nicholas.]

This Wendoll I have noted, and his carriage
Hath pleas'd me much; by observation
I have noted many good deserts in him.
He's affable, and seen4 in many things;
Discourses well; a good companion;
And though of small means, yet a gentleman.
Of a good house, though somewhat prest by want.
I have preferr'd him to a second place
In my opinion and my best regard.

Enter Wendoll, Mistress Frankford, and Nicholas.

Mrs. F. Oh, Master Frankford! Master Wendoll here
Brings you the strangest news that e'er you heard.
FRANK. What news, sweet wife? What news, good Master Wendoll?
WEN. You knew the match made 'twixt Sir Francis Acton
And Sir Charles Mountford?
FRANK. True; with their hounds and hawks.
WEN. The matches were both play'd.
FRANK. Ha? And which won? Wen. Sir Francis, your wife's brother, had the worst,
And lost the wager.
FRANK. Why, the worse his chance;
Perhaps the fortune of some other day
Will change his luck.

Mrs. F. Oh, but you hear not all. Sir Francis lost, and yet was loth to yield.44
At length the two knights grew to difference.
From words to blows, and so to bandying sides;5
Where valorous Sir Charles slew, in his spleen,
Two of your brother's men,—his falconer,
And his good huntsman, whom he lov'd so well.

More men were wounded, no more slain outright.
FRANK. Now, trust me, I am sorry for the knight.
But is my brother safe?
WEN. All whole and sound.
His body not being blemish'd with one wound.
But poor Sir Charles is to the prison led,
To answer at th' assize for them that's dead.
FRANK. I thank your pains, sir. Had the news been better,
Your will was to have brought it, Master Wendoll.

Sir Charles will find hard friends; his case is heinous
And will be most severely censur'd on.
I'm sorry for him. Sir, a word with you!
I know you, sir, to be a gentleman
In all things; your possibilities but mean:
Please you to use my table and my purse;
They're yours.
WEN. O Lord, sir! I shall ne'er deserve it.
FRANK. O sir, disparage not your worth too much:
You are full of quality and fair desert.
Choose of my men which shall attend on you,
And he is yours. I will allow you, sir.
Your man, your gelling, and your table, all
At my own charge; be my companion.
WEN. Master Frankford, I have oft been bound to you
By many favours; this exceeds them all,
That I shall never merit your least favour; But when your last remembrance I forget,
Heaven at my soul exact that weighty debt! 75
Frank. There needs no protestation; for I know you Virtuous, and therefore grateful. — Prithée, Nan, Use him with all thy loving'st courtesy! Mrs. F.' As far as modesty may well extend, It is my duty to receive your friend. 50

Frank. To dinner! Come, sir, from this present day, Welcome to me for ever! Come, away! Exit. [FRANKFORD, MISTRESS FRANKFORD, AND WENDOLL.]

Nich. I do not like this fellow by no means: I never see him but my heart still yearns. Zounds! I could fight with him, yet know not why;
The devil and he are all one in mine eye.

Enter JENKIN.

Jen. O Nick! What gentleman is that comes to lie at our house? My master allows him one to wait on him, and I believe it will fall to thy lot.

Nich. I love my master; by these hilts, I do; But rather than I'll ever come to serve him, I'll turn away my master.

Enter Cicely.

Cic. Nich'las! where are you, Nich'las? You must come in, Nich'las, and help the young gentleman off with his boots. 95

Nich. If I pluck off his boots, I'll eat the spurs.

And they shall stick fast in my throat like burrs.

Cic. Then, Jenkin, come you! Jen. Nay, t'is no boot for me to deny it. 100 My master hath given me a coat here, but he takes pains himself to brush it once or twice a day with a holly wand.

Cic. Come, come, make haste, that you may wash your hands again, and help to serve you in dinner!

Jen. You may see, my masters, though it be afternoon with you, 'tis yet but early days with us, for we have din'd not yet. Stay but a little; I'll but go in and help to bear up the first course, and come to you again presently.

Exeunt.

[Scene II.]

Enter Malby and Cranwell.

Mal. This is the sessions-day; pray can you tell me
How young Sir Charles hath sped? Is he acquitted,
Or must he try the laws' strict penalty?
Cran. He's clear'd of all, spite of his enemies,
Whose earnest labour was to take his life. 5
But in this suit of pardon he hath spent
All the revenues that his father left him;
And he is now turn'd a plain countryman, Reform'd 4 in all things. See, sir, here he comes.

Enter Sir Charles and his Keeper.

Keeper. Discharge your fees, and you are then at freedom.

Sir C. Here, Master Keeper, take the poor remainder
Of all the wealth I have! My heavy foes
Have made my purse light; but, alas! to me
'Tis wealth enough that you have set me free.
Mal. God give you joy of your delivery! 15
I am glad to see you abroad, Sir Charles.

Sir C. The poorest knight in England, Master Malby.

My life has cost me all my patrimony
My father left his son. Well, God forgive them
That are the authors of my penury! 20

Enter Shafton.

Shaft. Sir Charles! A hand, a hand! At liberty?
Now, by the faith I owe, I am glad to see it.
What want you? Wherein may I pleasure you?

Sir C. Oh me! Oh, most unhappy gentleman!
I am not worthy to have friends stirr'd up, 25 Whose hands may help me in this plunge of want.
I would I were in Heaven, to inherit there
Th' immortal birthright which my Saviour keeps,
And by no unthrift can be bought and sold;
For here on earth what pleasures should we trust?

Shaft. To rid you from these contemplations,
Three hundred pounds you shall receive of me;
Nay, five for fail. 30 Come, sir, the sight of gold
Is the most sweet receipt for melancholy,
And will revive your spirits. You shall hold law
With your proud adversaries. Tush! let Frank
Acton
Wage, with his knighthood, like expense with me,
And he will sink, he will. — Nay, good Sir Charles,
Appland your fortune and your fair escape
From all these perils.

Sir C. Oh, sir! they have undone me. 40
Two thousand and five hundred pound a year
My father at his death posset me of;
All which the envious Acton made me spend;
And, notwithstanding all this large expense,
I had much ado to gain my liberty;
And I have only now a house of pleasure,
With some five hundred pounds reserve'd,
Both to maintain me and my loving sister.

Shaft. [Aside.] That must I have, it lies convenient for me.
If I can fasten but one finger on him,
With my full hand I'll gripe him to the heart.
'Tis not for love I proffer'd him this coin,
But for my gain and pleasure. — Come, Sir Charles,
I know you have need of money; take my offer.

1 Grieves.
2 Use.
3 The Gaol.
4 Changed.
5 To prevent failure.
Sir C. Sir, I accept it, and remain indebted
Even to the best of my unfeeling power. [5]
Come, gentlemen, and see it tend’red down! [12]

[Exeunt.]

[Scene III.] 8

Enter Wendell, melancholy.

Wen. I am a villain, if I apprehend. 4
But such a thought! Then, to attempt the deed,
Slave, thou art damn’d without redemption. —
I’ll drive away this passion with a song.
A song! Ha, ha! A song! As if, fond 6 man,
Thy eyes could swim in laughter, when thy soul
Lies drench’d and drowned in red tears of blood!
I’ll pray, and see if God within my heart
Plant better thoughts. Why, prayers are meditations,
And when I meditate (oh, God forgive me!) 10
It is on her divine perfections.
I will forget her; I will arm myself
Not to entertain a thought of love to her;
And, when I come by chance into her presense,
I’ll hale these balls until my eye-strings crack.
[Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Enter over the Stage, Frankford, his Wife, and Nicholas (and exit).

O God, O God! With what a violence
I’m hurried to mine own destruction!
There great thou, the most perfectest man
That ever England bred a gentleman, 50
And shall I wrong his bed? — Thou God of thunder!
Stay, in Thy thoughts of vengeance and of wrath,
Thy great, almighty, and all-judging hand
From speedy execution on a villain, —
A villain and a traitor to his friend.

[Scene III.]

Jen. Did your worship call?

Wen. He doth maintain me; he allows me largely Money to spend.

Jen. By my faith, so do not you me: I cannot get a cross of you. 30

Wen. My gilding, and my man.

Jen. That’s Sorrel and I.

Wen. This kindness grows of no alliance 6
’twixt us.

Jen. Nor is my service of any great acquaintance.

Wen. I never bound him to me by desert. 55
Of a mere stranger, a poor gentleman,
A man by whom in no kind he could gain,
He hath plac’d me in the height of all his thoughts,
Made me companion with the best and chiefest
In Yorkshire. He cannot eat without me, 70
Nor laugh without me; I am to his body
¹ Feeble. ³ Paid over. ⁵ Frankford’s house. ⁶ Relationship.

As necessary as his digestion,
And equally do make him whole or sick.
And shall I wrong this man? Base man! Ingrate!

Hast thou the power, straight with thy gory hands,
To rip thy image from his bleeding heart,
To scratch thy name from out the holy book
Of his remembrance, and to wound his name
That holds thy name so dear? Or rend his heart
To whom thy heart was knit and join’d together? —
And yet I must. Then Wendell, be content!
Thus villains, when they would, cannot repent.

Jen. What a strange humour is my new master in! Pray God he be not mad; if he should be so, I should never have any mind to serve [5] him in Bedlam. It may be he’s mad for missing of me.

Wen. What, Jenkin! Where’s your mistress?

Jen. Is your worship married?

Wen. Why dost thou ask?

Jen. Because you are my master; and if I have a mistress, I would be glad, like a good servant, to do my duty to her.

Wen. I mean Mistress Frankford.

Jen. Marry, sir, her husband is riding out of town; and she went very lovingly to bring him on his way to horse. Do you see, sir? Here she comes, and here I go.

Wen. Vanish! 70

[Exit Jenkin.]

Mrs. F. You are well met, sir; now, in truth, my husband
Before he took horse, had a great desire
To speak with you; we sought about the house,
Halloo’d into the fields, sent every way,
But could not meet you. Therefore, he enjoin’d me
To do unto you his most kind commands, —
Nay, more: he willed you, as you prize his love,
Or hold in estimation his kind friendship,
To make bold in his absence, and command
Even as himself were present in the house; 80
For you must keep his table, use his servants,
And be a present Frankford in his absence.
Wen. I thank him for his love. — [Aside.] Give me a name, you, whose infectious tongues
Are tipt with gall and poison: as you would Think on a man that had your father’s slain.
Murder your children, made your wives base strumpets,
So call me, call me so; print in my face
The most stigmatic 7 title of a villain,
For hating treason so true a friend! 80

Mrs. F. Sir, you are much beholding to my husband;
You are a man most dear in his regard.

Wen. I am bound unto your husband, and you too.

7 Opprobrious.
[Aside.] I will not speak to wrong a gentleman
Of that good estimation, my kind friend. 99
I will not; sounds I will not. I may choose,
And I will choose. Shall I be so misled,
Or shall I purchase 1 to my father's crest
The motto of a villain? If I say
I will not do it, what thing can enforce me? 100
What can compel me? What sad destiny Hath such command upon myyielding
thoughts?
I will not; — ha! some fury pricks me on;
The swift vates drag me at their chariot wheel,
And hurry me to mischief. Speak I must: 105
Injury myself, wrong her, deceive his trust!
Mrs. F. Are you not well, sir, that you seem thus troubled?
There is sedition in your countenance.
Wen. And in my heart, fair angel, chaste and wise.
I love you! Start not, speak not, answer not;
I love you, — nay, let me speak the rest;
Bid me to swear, and I will call to record
The host of Heaven.
Mrs. F. The host of Heaven forbid
Wendoll should hatch such a disloyal thought?
Wen. Such is my fate; to this suit was I born.
To wear rich pleasure's crown, or fortune's
scorn.
Mrs. F. My husband loves you.
Wen. I know it.
Mrs. F. He esteems you,
Even as his brain, his eye-ball, or his heart.
Wen. I have tried it.
Mrs. F. His purse is your exchequer, and his table
Doth freely serve you.
Wen. So I have found it.
Mrs. F. Oh! With what face of brass, what brow of steel,
Can you, unblushing, speak this to the face
Of the espous'd wife of so dear a friend? 114
It is my husband that maintains your state. —
Will you dishonour him that in your power
Hath left his whole affairs? I am his wife,
It is to me you speak.
Wen. O speak no more;
For more than this I know, and have recorded
Within the red-lea'd table of my heart. 120
Fair, and of all beli'd, I was not fearful
Bluntly to give my life into your hand,
And at one hazard all my earthly means.
Go, tell your husband; he will turn me off,
And I am then undone. I care not, I;
'T was for your sake. Perchance, in rage he'll kill me; 125
I care not, 't was for you, Say I incur
The general name of villain through the world,
Of traitor to my friend; I care not, I.
Beggary, shame, death, scandal, and reproach,—
For you I'll hazard all. Why, what care I?
For you I'll live, and in your love I'll die.
1 Acquire, add.

Mrs. F. You move me, sir, to passion and to pity.
The love I bear my husband is as precious
As my soul's health.
Wen. I love your husband too, 145
And for his love I will engage my life.
Mistake me not; the augmentation
Of my sincere affection borne to you
Doth no whit lessen my regard to him.
I will be secret, lady, close as night;
And not the light of one small glorious star
Shall shine here in my forehead, to bewray
That act of night.
Mrs. F. What shall I say?
My soul is wandering, hath lost her way.
Oh, Master Wendoll! Oh!
Wen. Sigh not, sweet saint; 155
For every sigh you breathe draws from my heart
A drop of blood.
Mrs. F. I ne'er offended yet:
My fault, I fear, will in my brow be writ.
Women that fall, not quite bereft of grace,
Have their offences noted in their face. 160
I blush, and am asham'd. Oh, Master Wendoll,
Pray God I be not born to curse your tongue,
That hath enchanted me! This maze I am in
I fear will prove the labyrinth of sin.

Enter Nicholas [behind].
Wen. The path of pleasure and the gate to bliss,
Which on your lips I knock at with a kiss!
Nich. I'll kill the rogue.
Wen. Your husband is from home, your bed's no blab.
Nay, look not down and blush!
[Exeunt Wendoll and Mistress
Frankeford.]
Ay, Nick, was it thy chance to come just in the nick?
I love my master, and I hate that slave;
I love my mistress, but these tricks I like
not.
My master shall not pocket up this wrong;
I'll eat my fingers first. What say'st thou, metal?
Does not that rascal Wendoll go on legs 175
That thou must cut off? Hath he not ham-strings
That thou must hough? Nay, metal, thou shalt stand
To all I say. I'll henceforth turn a spy,
And watch them in their close conveyances. 2
I never look'd for better of that rascal, 180
Since he came miching 2 first into our house.
It is that Satan hath corrupted her;
For she was fair and chaste. I'll have an eye
In all their gestures. Thus I think of them:
If they proceed as they have done before, 185
Wendoll's a knave, my mistress is a ——
 Exit.
2 Secret proceedings. 2 Speaking.
[ACT III]

[SCENE I.]

Enter Sir Charles Mountford and Susan.

Sir C. Sister, you see we are driven to hard shift,
To keep this poor house we have left unsold.
I'm now enforce'd to follow husbandry,
And you to milk; and do we not live well?
Well, I thank God.

Susan. Oh, brother! here's a change, 6
Since old Sir Charles died in our father's house.

Sir C. All things on earth thus change,
some up, some down;
Content's a kingdom, and I wear that crown.

Enter Shafton, with a Sergeant.

Shaft. Good morrow, morrow, Sir Charles!
What! With your sister,
Plying your husbandry?—Sergeant, stand off!—You have a pretty house here, and a garden,
And goodly ground about it. Since it lies
So near a lordship that I lately bought,
I would fain buy it of you. I will give you—

Sir C. Oh, pardon me; this house successively
Hath long'd me and my progenitors
Three hundred years. My great-grand-grandfather,
He in whom first our gentle style began,
Dwelt here, and in this ground increased this mole-hill
Unto that mountain which my father left me.
Where he the first of all our house began,
I now the last will end, and keep this house—
This virgin title, never yet deflower'd
By any unfruit of the Montforts' line.
In brief, I will not sell it for more gold
Than you could hide or pave the ground withal.

Shaft. Ha! a proud mind and a beggar's purse!
Where's my three hundred pounds, besides the use? 9
I have brought it to an execution
By course of law. What! Is my money ready?
Sir C. An execution, sir, and never tell me
You put my bond in suit? You deal extremely.

Shaft. Sell me the land, and I'll acquit you straight.

Sir C. Alas, alas! 'Tis all trouble hath left me
To cherish me and my poor sister's life,
If this were sold, our names should then be quite Raz'd from the head-roll 4 of gentility.
You see what hard shift we have made to keep it
Allied still to our name. This palm you see,
Lobovesthath crown'd within; her silver brow,
That never tasted a rough winter's blast
Without a mask or fan, doth with a grace
Defy cold winter, and his storms outface.

Susan. Sir, we feed sparing, and we labour hard,
We lie uneasy, to reserve to us
And our succession this small spot of ground.

Sir C. I have so bent my thoughts to husbandry,
That I protest I scarcely can remember
What a new fashion is; how silk or satin
Feels in my hand. Why, pride is grown to us 50
A more, more stranger. I have quite forgot
The names of all that ever waited on me.
I cannot name ye any of my hounds
Once from whose echoing mouths I heard all music
That e'er my heart desir'd. What should I say?
To keep this place, I have chang'd myself away.

Shaft. Arrest him at my suit!—Actions and actions
Shall keep thee in perpetual bondage fast;
Nay, more, I'll sue thee by a late appeal,
And call thy former life in question.
The keeper is my friend; thou shalt have iron,
And usage such as I'll deny to dogs.—
Away with him!

Sir C. You are too timorous. 6
But trouble is my master,
And I will serve him truly.—My kind sister,
Thy tears are of no use to mollify
The flinty man. Go to my father's brother,
My kinsmen, and allies; entreat them for me,
To ransom me from this injurious man
That seeks my ruin.

Shaft. Come, iron! Come away! 7
I'll see thee lodg'd far from the sight of day.

Enter Sir Francis Action and Malby.

Sir F. Again to prison! Malby, hast thou seen
A poor slave better tortur'd? Shall we hear
The music of his voice cry from the grate, 6
Meat, for the Lord's sake? No, no; yet I am not Throughly reveng'd. They say, he hath a pretty wench
Unto his sister; shall I, in mercy-sake
To him and to his kindred, bribe the fool
To shame herself by lewd, dishonest lust?
I'll proffer largely; but, the deed being done,
I'll smile to see her base confusion.

Mal. Methinks, Sir Francis, you are full re-veng'd 5
For greater wrongs than he can proffer you.
See where the poor sad gentlewoman stands!

Sir F. Ha, ha! Now will I flout her poverty,
Deride her fortunes, scoff her base estate;
My very soul the name of Mountford hater.
But stay, my heart! Oh, what a look did fly

1 Sir Charles Mountford's house.
2 Interest.
3 Extremely rigorously.
4 List. Properly a list of names to be prayed for.
5 Ed. conj. tyrannous. 6 Of the debtor's prison.
To strike my soul through with thy piercing eye!
I am enchanted; all my spirits are fled.
And with one glance my ensnare spleen struck dead.

Susan. Acton! That seeks our blood!

Sir F. Runs away.

Mal. Sir Francis! Why, Sir Francis! Zounds, in a trance?

Sir Francis! What cheer, man? Come, come, how is 't?

Sir F. Was she not fair? Or else this judging eye

Cannot distinguish beauty.

Mal. She was fair.

Sir F. She was an angel in a mortal's shape,

And never descended from old Mountford's line.

But soft, soft, let me call my wits together!

A poor, poor wench, to my great adversary

Sister, whose very souls denounce stern war

One against other! How now, Frank, turn'd fool

Or madman, whether? But no! Master of My perfect senses and directest wits.

Then why should I be in this violent humour

Of passion and of love? And with a person

So different every way, and so oppos'd

In all contractions and still-warring actions?

Fie, fie! How I dispute against my soul!

Come, come; I'll gain her, or in her fair guest

Purchase my soul free and immortal rest.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.]

Enter three or four Serving-men, one with a woider 3 and a wooden knife, to take away all; another the salt and bread; another with the table-cloth and napkins; another the carpet;

JENKIN with two lights after them.

Jen. So; march in order, and retire in battle array! My master and the guests have supp'd already; all's taken away. Here, now spread for the serving-men in the hall! — Butler, it belongs to your office.

But. I know it, Jenkin, What d' ye call the gentleman that supp'd there to-night?

Jen. Who? My master?

But. No, no; Master Wendell, he's a daily guest. I mean the gentleman that came [to this afternoon.

Jen. His name's Master Cranwell. God's light! Hark, within there; my master calls to lay more billets upon the fire. Come, come! Lord, how we that are in office here in the house are troubled! One spread the carpet in the parlour, and stand ready to snuff the lights; the rest be ready to prepare their stomachs! More lights in the hall, there! Come, Nicholas.

[Exeunt all but Nicholas.

Nich. I cannot eat, but had I Wendell's heart.

I would eat that. The rogue grows impudent,

Oh! I have seen such vile, notorious tricks,

1 Legal transactions.  2 Frankford's house.  3 Tray for removing dishes.
And I am plung'd into strange agonies.
What did'st thou say? If any word that toucht
His credit, or her reputation,
It is as hard to enter my belief,
As Diwys into heaven.
Nich. I can gain nothing:
They are two that never wrong'd me. I knew before,'Twas but a thankless office, and perhaps
As much as is my service, or my life Is worth. All this I know; but this, and
more,
More by a thousand dangers, could not hire me
To smoother such a heinous wrong from you.
I saw, and I have said.
Frank. 'Tis probable. Though blunt, yet he is honest.
Though I durst pawn my life, and on their faith
Hazard the dear salvation of my soul,
Yet in my trust I may be too secure.
May this be true? Oh, may it be? Can it be?
Is it by any wonder possible?
Man, woman, what thing mortal can we trust,
When friends and bosom wives prove so unjust?
What instance hast thou of this strange report?
Nich. Eyes, [master,] eyes.
Frank. Thy eyes may be deceiv'd, I tell thee:
For should an angel from the heavens drop down,
And preach this to me that thyself hast told,
He should have much ado to win belief;
In both their loves I am so confident.
Nich. Shall I discourse the same by circumstance?
Frank. No more! To supper, and command your fellows
To attend us and the strangers! Not a word,
I charge thee, on thy life! Be secret then;
For I know nothing.
Nich. I am dumb; and, now that I have eas'd my stomach,
I will go fill my stomach. [Exit.]
Frank. Away! Begone! —
She is well born, descended nobly;
Virtuous her education; her repute
Is in the general voice of all the country
Honest and fair; her carriage, her demeanour,
In all her actions that concern the love
To me her husband, modest, chaste, and godly.
Is all this seeming gold plain copper?
But he, that Judas that hath borne my purse,
Hath sold me for a sin. O God! O God!
Shall I put up these wrongs? No! Shall I trust
The bare report of this suspicious groom,
Before the double-gilt, the well-hatch'd ore
Of their two hearts? No, I will lose these thoughts;
Distraction I will banish from my brow,
And from my looks exile sad discontent.
Their wonted favours in my tongue shall flow;
Till I know all, I'll nothing seem to know. —
Lights and a table there! Wife, Master
Wendoll,
And gentle Master Cranwell!

Enter Mistress Frankford, Master Wendoll, Master Cranwell, Nicholas, and Jenkin with cards, carpets, stools, and other necessaries.

Frank. O! Master Cranwell, you are a stranger here,
And often balk my house; faith, ye' are a churl! —
Now we have supp'd, a table, and to cards!
Jen. A pair of cards, Nicholas, and a carpet to cover the table! Where's Cicely, with her counters and her box? Candles and candlesticks, there! Pie! We have such a household of serving-creatures! Unless it be Nick and I, there's not one amongst them all that can say bo to a goose. — Well said, Nick!

They spread a carpet: set down lights and cards.

Mrs. F. Come, Mr. Frankford, who shall take my part? 7
Frank. Marry, that will I, sweet wife.
Wen. No, by my faith, when you are togethger, I sit out. It must be Mistress Frankford and I, or else it is no match.
Frank. I do not like that match.
Nich. [Aside.] You have no reason, marry, knowing all.
Frank. 'Tis no great matter, neither. — Come, Master Cranwell, shall you and I take them up? 8
Cran. At your pleasure, sir.
Frank: I must look to you, Master Wendoll, for you'll be playing false. Nay, so will my wife, too.
Nich. [Aside.] Ay, I will be sworn she will.
Mrs. F. Let them that are taken playing false, forfeit the set! 145
Frank. Content; it shall go hard but I'll take
you.
Cran. Gentlemen, what shall our game be?
Wen. Master Frankford, you play best at doddy. 9
Frank: You shall not find it so; indeed, you shall not.
Mrs. F. I can play at nothing so well as double-ruff. 10
Frank. If Master Wendoll and my wife be together, there's no playing against them at double-hand.
Nich. I can tell you, sir, the game that Master
Wendoll is best at.
Wen. What game is that, Nick?
Nich. Marry, sir, knave out of doors.
Wen. She and I will take you at idom.
Mrs. F. Husband, shall we play at saint?

4 Avoid. 8 Be their opponents.
5 Pack. 9 A game like cribbage.
6 Well done. 10 An earlier kind of whist.
7 Be my partner.

1 Evidence. 2 Resentment. 3 Of noble origin.
Frank. [Aside.] My saint's turn'd devil,—
No, we'll none of saint:
You are best at new-cut, wife, you'll play at that.
Wen. If you play at new-cut, I'm soonest hitter of any here, for a wager.
Frank. [Aside.] 'Tis me they play on.—
Well, you may draw out;
For all your cunning, 'twill be to your shame;
I'll teach you, at your new-cut, a new game.
Come, come!
Cran. If you cannot agree upon the game,
To post and pair!
Wen. We shall be soonest pairs; and my good host,
When he comes late home, he must kiss the post.1
Frank. Whoever wins, it shall be to thy coat.
Cran. Faith, let it be vide-ruff, and let's make honours!
Frank. If you make honours, one thing let me draw:
Honour the king and queen, except the knave.2
Wen. Well, as you please for that. — Lift, who shall deal?3
Mrs. F. The least in sight. What are you, Master Wendell?
Wen. I am a knave.
Nich. [Aside.] I'll swear it.
Mrs. F.
Frank. [Aside.] A queen, thou shouldst say.
— Well, the cards are mine:
They are the grossest pair 'tis ever I felt.4
Mrs. F. Shuffle, I'll cut: would I had never dealt!
Frank. I have lost my dealing.
Wen. Sir, the fault's in me;
This queen I have more than mine own, you see.
Give me the stock.5
Frank. My mind's not on my game.
Many a deal I've lost; the more's your shame.
You have serv'd me a bad trick, Master Wendell.6
Wen. Sir, you must take your lot. To end this strife,
I know I have dealt better with your wife.
Frank. Thou hast dealt falsely, then.
Mrs. F. What's trumps?7
Wen. Hearts, Partner, I rub.
Frank. [Aside.] Thou robb'st me of my soul,
of her chaste love;
In thy false dealing thou hast robb'd my heart.—
Booty you play; I like a loser stand,
Having no heart, or here or in my hand.8
Frank. I will give o'er the set, I am not well.
Cran. Who will hold my cards?
Mrs. F. Not well, sweet Master Frankford?
Alas, what ails you? 'Tis some sudden qualm.
Wen. How long have you been so, Master Frankford?
Frank. Sir, I was lusty, and I had my health,
But I grew ill when you began to deal. —
Take hence this table! — Gentle Master Cranwell,
Ye are welcome; see your chamber at your pleasure!
I am sorry that this megrim takes me so,
I cannot sit and bear you company,—
Jenkin, some lights, and show him to his chamber! 4
Mrs. F. A nightgown for my husband; — quickly, there!
It is some rheum or cold.
Wen. Now, in good faith,
This illness you have got by sitting late
Without your gown.
Frank. I know it, Master Wendell.
Go, go to bed, lest you complain like me! —
Wife, prithee, wife, into my bed-chamber! The night is raw and cold, and rheumatic.
Leave me my gown and light; I'll walk away my fit.
Wen. Sweet sir, good night!
Frank. Myself, good night! [Exit Wendell.]
Mrs. F. Shall I attend you, husband?
Frank. No, gentle wife, thou 'lt catch cold in thy head.
Prithee, be gone; sweet, I'll make haste to bed.
Mrs. F. No sleep will fasten on mine eyes,
you know,
Until you come.
[Exit.]
Frank. Sweet Nan, I prithee, go! —
I have bethought me; get me by degrees
The keys of all my doors, which I will mould
In wax, and take their fair impression,
To have by them new keys. This being com pact,
At a set hour a letter shall be brought me,
And when they think they may securely play,
They nearest are to danger. — Nick, I must rely Upon thy trust and faithful secrecy.
Nick. Build on my faith!
Frank. To bed, then, not to rest!
Care lodges in my brain, grief in my breast. su
[Exit.]

[SCENE III.]

Enter Sir Charles's Sister, Old Mountford, Sandy, Roder, and Tidy.

Old Mount. You say my nephew is in great distress;
Who brought it to him but his own lewd life?
I cannot spare a cross. I must confess,
He was my brother's son; why, niece, what then?
This is no world in which to pity men.
Susan. I was not born a beggar, though his extremes Enforce this language from me. I protest
No fortune of mine own could lead my tongue to this base key. I do beseech you, uncle,

4 This line should probably be given to Mrs. F. If not, Cranwell exit here with Jenkin.
5 Old Mountford's house.
For the name's sake, for Christianity,— Nay, for God's sake, to pity his distress. He is desir'd the freedom of the prison, And in the hole is laid with men condemn'd; Plenty he hath of nothing but of irons, And it remains in you to free him thence.

Old Mount. Money I cannot spare; men should take heed.

He lost my kindred when he fell to need. Exit.

Susan. Gold is but earth; thou earth enough shalt have.

When thou hast once took measure of thy grave. You know me, Master Sandy, and my suit.

Sandy. I knew you, lady, when the old man liv'd; I knew you ere your brother sold his land. Then you were Mistress Sue, trick'd up in jewels; Then you sung well, play'd sweetly on the lute; But now I neither know you nor your suit.

[Exit.]

Susan. You, Master Roder, was my brother's tenant; Rent-free he plac'd you in that wealthy farm, Of which you are possesst.

Roder. True, he did; And have I not there dwelt still for his sake? I have some business now; but, without doubt, They that have hurl'd him in, will help him out.

Susan. Cold comfort still. What say you, cousin Tidy? Tidy. I say this comes of roysting, 1 swag'ring.

Call me not cousin; each man for himself! Some men are born to mirth, and some to sorrow:

I am no cousin unto them that borrow. Exit.

Susan. O Charity, why art thou fled to heaven, And left all things [upon this earth uneven?] Their scoffing answers I will ne'er return, But to myself his grief in silence mourn.

Enter Sir Francis and Malby.

Sir F. She is poor, I'll therefore tempt her with this gold. Go, Malby, in my name deliver it, And I will stay thy answer.

Mal. Fair mistress, as I understand your grief Doth grow from want, so I have here in store A means to furnish you, a bag of gold, Which to your hands I freely tender you.

Susan. I thank you, Heavens! I thank you, gentle sir: God make me able to requite this favour!

Mal. This gold Sir Francis Acton sends by me, And prays you—

Susan. Acton? O God! That name I'm born to curse. Hence, bawd; hence, broker! See, I spurn his gold. My honour never shall for gain be sold.

Sir F. Stay, lady, stay!

Susan. From yon I'll posting hie, 55 Even as the doves from feather'd eagles fly.

Sir F. She hates my name, my face; how should I woo? I am disgrac'd in every thing I do, The more she hates me, and disdains my love, The more I am rapt in admiration Of her divine and chaste perfections. Woo her with gifts I cannot, for all gifts Sent in my name she spurns; with looks I cannot, For she abhors my sight; nor yet with letters, For none she will receive. How then? how then? Well, I will fasten such a kindness on her, As shall o'ercome her hate and conquer it.

Sir Charles, her brother, lies in execution For a great sum of money; and, besides, The appeal is sued still for his hunstmen's death.

Which only I have power to reverse. In her I'll bury all my hate of him, — Go seek the Keeper, Malby, bring him to me! To save his body, I his debts will pay; To save his life, I his appeal will stay.

[Exit.]

[ACT IV]

[Scene I.]

Enter Sir Charles [Mountford], in prison, with irons, his feet bare, his garments all ragged and torn.

Sir C. Of all on the earth's face most miserable, Breathe in this hellish dungeon thy laments! Thus like a slave ragg'd, like a felon gyv'd,— That hurls thee headlong to this base estate. Oh, unkind uncle! Oh, my friends ingrate! Unthankful kinsmen! Mountford's all too base, To let thy name be fetter'd in disgrace. A thousand deaths here in this grave I die; Fear, hunger, sorrow, cold, all threat my death, And join together to deprive my breath. But that which most torment me, my dear sister Hath left 3 to visit me, and from my friends Hath brought no hopeful answer; therefore, I Divine they will not help my misery. If it be so, shame, scandal, and contempt Attend their covetous thoughts; need make their graves! Usurers they live, and may they die like slaves!

Enter Keeper.

Keep. Knight, be of comfort, for I bring thee freedom From all thy troubles.

Sir C. Then, I am doom'd to die: Death is the end of all calamity, 20 Keep. Live! Your appeal is stay'd; the execution Of all your debts discharg'd; your creditors Even to the utmost penny satisfied.

1 Rioting.

2 York Castle.

3 Ceased.
In sign whereof your shackles I knock off.
You are not left so much indebted to us
As for your fees; all is discharg'd; all paid.
Go freely to your house, or where you please;
After long miseries, embrace your ease.

_Sir C._ Thou grumblest out the sweetest
That ever organ play'd. — Is this a dream?
Or do my waking senses apprehend
The pleasing taste of these applausible news?
Slave that I was, to wrong such honest friends,
My loving kinsman, and my near allies!
Tongue, I will bite thee for the scandal breath'd Against such faithful kinsmen; they are all
Compos'd of pity and compassion,
Of melting charity and of moving ruth.
That which I spoke before was in my rage;
They are my friends, the mirrors of this age;
Bounteous and free. The noble Mountford's race
Ne'er bred a covetous thought, or humour base.

_Enter Susan._

_Susan._ I cannot longer stay from visiting
My woful brother. While I could, I kept
My hapless tidings from his hopeful ear.

_Sir C._ Sister, how much am I indebted to thee
And to thy travail!

_Susan._ What, at liberty?

_Sir C._ Thou seest I am, thanks to thy industry.
Oh! Unto which of all my courteous friends Am I thus bound? My uncle Mountford, he Even of an infant lov'd me; was it he?
So did my cousin Tidy; was it he?
So Master Roder, Master Sandy, too.
Which of all these did this high kindness do?

_Susan._ Charles, can you mock me in my poverty,
Knowing your friends deride your misery?
Now, I protest I stand so much amaz'd,
To see your bonds free, and your iron knock'd off,
That I am rapt into a maze of wonder;
The rather for I know not by what means
This happiness hath chang'd.

_Sir C._ Why, by my uncle,
My cousins, and my friends; who else, I pray,
Would take upon them all my debts to pay?
_Susan._ Oh, brother! they are men [made] all of spirit,
Pictures of marble, and as void of pity
As chased bears. I begg'd, I sued, I kneel'd,
Laid open all your griefs and miseries,
Which they decry'd; more than that, deni'd us
A part in their alliance; but, in pride,
Said that our kindred with our plenty died.

_Sir C._ Drudges too much, — what did they?
Oh, known evil!
Rich fly the poor, as good men shun the devil.
Whence should my freedom come? Of whom alive,
Saving of those, have I deserv'd so well?

_Guess_, sister, call to mind, remember me!

These have I rais'd, they follow the world's guise,
Whom rich [they] honour, they in woe despise.

_Susan._ My wits have lost themselves; let's ask the keeper!

_Sir C._ -Gaoler!

_Keep._ At hand, sir.

_Sir C._ Of course resolve me one demand!
What was he took the burden of my debts
From off my back, staid my appeal to death,
Discharg'd my fees, and brought me liberty?

_Keep._ A courteous knight, one call'd Sir Francis Acton.

_Sir C._ Ha! Acton! Oh me! More distress'd in this Than all my troubles! Hail me back,
Double my iron, and my sparing meals
Put into halves, and lodge me in a dungeon
More deep, more dark, more cold, more conferr'd!

By Acton freed! Not all thy mauncles
Could fetter so my heels, as this one word
Hath thrill'd my heart; and it must now lie bound
In more strict prison than thy stony gaol.
I am not free, I go but under bail.

_Keep._ My charge is done, sir, now I have my fees.
As we get little, we will nothing loose.

_Sir C._ By Acton freed, my dangerous opposite,
Why, to what end? On what occasion? Ha!
Let me forget the name of enemy,
And with indifference balance this high favour!

_Ha!_ [Aside.]

_Susan._ His love to me, upon my soul,
't is so!
That is the root from whence these strange things grow.

_Sir C._ Had this proceeded from my father, he
That by the law of Nature is most bound
In offices of love, it had deserv'd
My best employment to requite that grace.
Had it proceeded from my friends, or him,
From them this action had deserv'd my life,—
And from a stranger more, because from such,
There is less execution of good deeds.
But he, nor father, nor ally, nor friend,
More than a stranger, both remote in blood,
And in his heart oppos'd my enemy,
That this high bounty should proceed from him,
Oh! there I lose myself. What should I say,
What think, what do, his bounty to repay?

_Susan._ You wonder, I am sure, whence this strange kindness
Proceeds in Acton; I will tell you, brother.
He dotes on me, and oft hath sent me gifts,
Letters, and tokens; I refus'd them all.

_Sir C._ I have enough, though poor: my heart is set,
In one rich gift to pay back all my debt.

_Exit._

---

1 Joyful.  2 Too base in their conduct. (Ward.)

3 Ed. conj. Qq. in.  4 Lose.  5 Weigh impartially.
6 Verity emends to expectation.
Enter FRANKFORD and NICHOLAS, with keys and a letter in his hand.

FRANK. This is the night that I must play my part,
To try two seeming angels.—Where's my keys?
NICH. They are made according to your mould in wax.
I have the smith be secret, gave him money,
And here they are. The letter, sir! 6
FRANK. True, take it, there it is;
And when thou seest me in my pleasant'st vein,
Ready to sit to supper, bring it me!
NICH. I'll do't; make no more question, but I'll do it. Exit.

Enter MISTRESS FRANKFORD, CRANWELL, WENDOLL, and JENKIN.

MRS. F. Sirrah, 'tis six o'clock already struck;
Go bid them spread the cloth, and serve in supper.

JEN. It shall be done, forsooth, mistress. Where's Spiogot, the butler, to give us out salt and trenchers?

WEN. We that have been a hunting all the day,
Come with prepared stomachs.—Master Frankford,
We wish'd you at our sport.

FRANK. My heart was with you, and my mind was on you.—
Fie, Master Cranwell! You are still thus sad.—
A stool, a stool! Where's Jenkin, and where's Nick?
'Tis supper time at least an hour ago.
What's the best news abroad?
WEN. I know none good.
FRANK. [Aside.] But I know too much bad.

Enter Butler and Jenkin, with a table-cloth, bread, trenchers, and salt; [then execute.]

CRAN. Methinks, sir, you might have that interest
In your wife's brother, to be more remiss. In his hard dealing against poor Sir Charles,
Who, as I hear, lies in York Castle, needy
And in great want.

FRANK. Did not more weighty business of mine own
Hold me away, I would have laboured peace Betwixt them with all care; indeed I would, sir.

MRS. F. I'll write unto my brother earnestly
In that behalf.

WEN. A charitable deed,
And will beget the good opinion
Of all your friends that love you, Mistress Frankford.

FRANK. That's you, for one; I know you love Sir Charles, [Aside.] And my wife too, well.

WEN. He deserves the love
Of all true gentlemen; be yourselves judge!

FRANK. But supper, ho!—Now, as thou love'st me, Wendoll,
Which I am sure thou dost, be merry, pleasant,
And frolic it to-night!—Sweet Mr. Cranwell,
Do you the like!—Wife, I protest, my heart
Was ne'er more bent on sweet alacrity.

FRANK. Whence comes it, and who brought it?
NICH. A stripling that below attends your answer.

And, as he tells me, it is sent from York.

FRANK. Have him into the cellar, let him taste
A cup of our March beer; go, make him drink,
NICH. I'll make him drunk, if he be a Trojan.

FRANK. [after reading the letter.] My boots and spurs! Where's Jenkin? God forgive me,
How I neglect my business!—Wife, look here! I have a matter to be tri'd to-morrow By eight o'clock; and my attorney writes me, I must be there betimes with evidence, Or it will go against me. Where's my boots?

Enter Jenkin, with boots and spurs.

MRS. F. I hope your business craves no such despatch,
That you must ride to-night?

WEN. [Aside.] I hope it doth.

FRANK. God's me! No such despatch? Jenkin, my boots! Where's Nick? Saddle my roan,

And the grey dapple for himself!—Content ye, It much concerns me. —Gentle Master Cranwell,

And Master Wendoll, in my absence use
The very ripest pleasure of my house!
WEN. Lord! Master Frankford, will you ride to-night?

FRANK. The ways are dangerous.

FRANK. Therefore will I ride
Appointed well; and so shall Nick, my man.

MRS. F. I'll call you up by five o'clock to-morrow.

FRANK. No, by my faith, wife, I'll not trust to that:
'Tis not such easy rising in a morning From one I love so dearly. No, by my faith, I shall not leave so sweet a bedfellow, But with much pain. You have made me a sluggard.

Since I first knew you.

MRS. F. Then, if you needs will go
This dangerous evening, Master Wendoll, Let me entreat you bear him company.
WEN. With all my heart, sweet mistress. —
My boots, there!

FRANK. Fie, fie, that for my private business I should disease a friend, and be a trouble To the whole house!—Nick!

1 Frankford's house.  2 Influence with.  3 Good fellow.  4 Armed.  5 Cause discomfort to.
THOMAS HEYWOOD.

IV. IV.

Jen. Now you talk of a cat, Cicely, I smell a rat.

Cic. Good words, Jenkin, lest you be call'd to answer them!

Jen. Why, God make my mistress an honest woman! Are not these good words? Pray God my new master play not the knave with my old master! Is there any hurt in this? God send no villainy intended; and if they do sup together, pray God they do not lie together! God make my mistress chaste, and make us all His servants! What harm is there in all this? Nay, more; here in my hand, thou shalt never have my heart, unless thou say, Amen.

Enter Serving-man.

Serving-man. My mistress sends that you should make less noise. So, lock up the doors, and see the household all got to bed! You, Jenkin, for this night are made the porter, to see the gates shut in.

Jen. Thus by little and little I creep into office. Come, to kennel, my masters, to kennel; 'tis eleven o'clock already.

Serving-man. When you have lock'd the gates in, you must send up the keys to my mistress.

Cic. Quickly, for God's sake, Jenkin; for I must carry them. I am neither pillow nor bolster, but I know more than both.

Jen. To bed, good Spigot; to bed, good honest serving-creatures; and let us sleep as snug as pigs in pease straw!

[Exit.]

[Scene IV.] 3

Enter Frankford and Nicholas.

Frank. Soft, soft! We've tied our geldings to a tree,

Two flight-shot 4 off, lest by their thundering hoofs

They blab our coming back. Hear'rt thou no noise?

Nich. Hear? I hear nothing but the owl and you.

Frank. So; now my watch's hand points upon twelve,

And it is dead midnight. Where are my keys?

Nich. Here, sir.

Frank. This is the key that open my outward gate;

This, the hall-door; this, the withdrawing-chamber;

But this, that door that's baw'd unto my shame,

Fountain and spring of all my bleeding thoughts,

Where the most hallowed order and true knot

Of nuptial sanctity hath been profan'd. It leads to my polluted bed-chamber,

Once my terrestrial heaven, now my earth's hell,

The place where sins in all their ripeness dwell.

But I forget myself; now to my gate!

Nich. It must ope with far less noise than Cripplegate, or your plot's dash'd. 5 1 Intimacy.

2 Another part of the house.

3 Outside the house.

4 Bow-shots.
FRANK. So; reach me my dark lantern to the rest!

Tread softly, softly!

NICH. I will walk on eggs this pace.

FRANK. A general silence hath surpris’d the house,

And this is the last door. Astonishment,

Fear, and amazement, beat upon my heart,

Even as a madman beats upon a drum.

Oh, keep my eyes, you Heavens, before I enter,

From any sight that may transfuse my soul;

Or, if there be so black a spectacle,

Oh, strike mine eyes stark blind; or if not so,

Lend me such patience to digest my grief,

That I may keep this white and virgin hand

From any violent outrage, or red murder! —

And with that prayer I enter.

[Exeunt into the house.]

[Scene V.]

[Enter Nicholas.]

NICH. Here’s a circumstance!

A man may be made succinct in the time

That he’s about it. An the case were mine,

As’t is my master’s, ’sblood! (that he makes me swear!),

I would have plac’d his action, enter’d there;

I would, I would!

[Enter Frankford.]

FRANK. Oh! oh!

NICH. Master! ’Sblood! Master, master!

FRANK. Oh me unhappy! I have found them lying

Close in each other’s arms, and fast asleep.

But that I would not damn two precious souls,

Bought with my Saviour’s blood, and send them, laden

With all their scarlet sins upon their backs,

Unto a fearful judgment, their two lives

Had met upon my rapier.

NICH. Master, what, have you left them sleeping still?

Let me go wake ‘em!

FRANK. Stay, let me pause awhile! —

Oh, God! Oh, God! That it were Possible

To undo things done; to call back yesterday;

That Time could turn up his swift sandy glass,

To untell the days, and to redeem these hours!

Or that the sun

Could, rising from the west, draw his coach backward;

Take from th’ account of time so many minutes,

Till he had all these seasons call’d again,

Those minutes, and those actions done in them,

Even from her first offence; that I might take her

As spotless as an angel in my arms!

But, oh! I talk of things impossible,

And cast beyond the moon. God give me patience;

For I will in, and wake them.

Exit.

NICH. Here’s patience perforce! He needs must trot afoot that tires his horse.

[Exit.]

Enter Wendoll, running over the stage in a night-gown; FRANKFORD after him with his sword drawn; a maid in her smock stays his hand, and clasps hold on him. He pauses for a while.

FRANK. I thank thee, maid; thou, like the angel’s hand,

Hast stay’d me from a bloody sacrifice. —

Go, villain; and my wrongs sit on thy soul

As heavy as this grief doth upon mine!

When thou record’st my many courtesies,

And shalt compare them with thy treacherous heart,

Lay them together, weigh them equally, —

’T will be revenge enough. Go, to thy friend

A Judas; pray, pray, lest I live to see

Thee, Judas-like, hang’d on an elder-tree!

Enter Mistress Frankford in her smock, night-gown, and night-attire.

MRS. F. Oh, by what word, what title, or what name,

Shall I entreat your pardon? Pardon! Oh!

I am as far from hoping such sweet grace,

As Lucifer from Heaven. To call you husband, —

(Oh me, most wretched! I have lost that name;

I am no more your wife.

NICH. ’Sblood, sir, she swoons.

FRANK. Spare thou thy tears, for I will weep for thee;

And keep thy countenance, for I’ll blush for thee.

Now, I protest, I think ’tis I am tainted.

For I am most asham’d; and ’tis more hard

For me to look upon thy guilty face

Than on the sun’s clear brow. What! Would’st thou speak?

MRS. F. I would I had no tongue, no ears, no eyes,

No apprehension, no capacity.

When do you spurn me like a dog? When tread me

Under feet? When drag me by the hair?

Though I deserve a thousand, thousand fold,

More than you can inflict — yet, once my husband,

For womanhood, to which I am a shame,

Though once an ornament — even for His sake,

That hath redeem’d our souls, mark not my face,

Nor hack me with your sword; but let me go

Perfect and undeformed to my tomb!

I am not worthy that I should prevail

In the least suit; no, not to speak to you,

Nor look on you, nor to be in your presence;

Yet, as an object, this one suit I crave; —

This granted, I am ready for my grave.

FRANK. My God, with patience arm me! —

Rise, nay, rise,

And I’ll debate with thee. Was it for want

Dressing-gown.

Outcast.
Thou play'dst the strumpet? Wast thou not appall'd
With every pleasure, fashion, and new toy,—
Nay, even beyond my calling?

Mrs. F. I was.

Frank. Was it, then, disability in me?

Or in thine eye seem'd he a proper man?

Mrs. F. Oh, no!

Frank. Did I not lodge thee in my bosom?

Wear thee here in my heart?

Mrs. F. You did.

Frank. I did, indeed; witness my tears; I did—

Go, bring my infants hither!—

[Two Children are brought in.]

Oh, Nan! Oh, Nan!

If neither fear of shame, regard of honour,
The blemish of my house, nor my dear love,
Could have withheld thee from so lewd a fact;
Yet for these infants, these young, harmless souls,
On whose white brows thy shame is character'd,
And grows in greatness as they wax in years—

Look but on them, and melt away in tears—

Away with them; lest, as her spotted body Hath stain'd their names with stripes of bastardy,
So her adulterous breath may blast their spirits
With her infectious thoughts! Away with them!

[Exit Children.]

Mrs. F. In this one life, I die ten thousand deaths,

Frank. Stand up, stand up! I will do nothing rashly.

I will retire awhile into my study,

And thou shalt hear thy sentence presently.

Exit.

Mrs. F. 'Tis welcome, be it death. Oh me, base strumpet,
That, having such a husband, such sweet children,
Must enjoy neither! Oh, to redeem mine honour,
I 'd have this hand cut off, these my breasts

Be rack'd, strappado'd, put to any torment:

Nay, to whip but this scandal out, I'd hazard
The rich and dear redemption of my soul!

He cannot be so base as to forgive me,
Nor I so shameless to accept his pardon.

Oh, women, women, you that yet have kept your holy matrimonial vow unstain'd,
Make me your instance; when you tread away,
Your sins, like mine, will on your conscience lie.

Enter Cicely, Spicot, all the Serving-men, and Jenkin, as newly come out of bed.

All. Oh, mistress, mistress! What have you done, mistress?

Nich. 'Sblood, what a caterwauling keep you here!

Jen. O Lord, mistress, how comes this to pass? My master is run away in his shirt, and never so much as call'd me to bring his clothes after him.

Mrs. F. See what guilt is! Here stand I in this place,

Asham'd to look my servants in the face.

Enter Frankford and Cranwell; whom seeing,

she falls on her knees.

Frank. My words are registred in Heaven already.

With patience hear me! I'll not martyr thee,
Nor mark thee for a strumpet; but with usage
Of more humility torment thy soul,

And kill thee even with kindness.

Cran. Master Frankford—

Frank. Good Master Cranwell!—Woman, hear thy judgment!

Go make thee ready in thy best attire;

Take with thee all thy gowns, all thy apparel;

Leave nothing that did ever call thee mistress,

Or by whose sight, being left here in the house,

I may remember such a woman by.

Choose thee a bed and hangings for thy chamber;

Take with thee every thing which hath thy mark,

And get thee to my manor seven mile off,

Where live;—'tis thine; I freely give it thee.

My tenants by shall furnish thee with

To carry all thy stuff within two hours;

No longer will I limit thee my sight.

Choose which of all my servants thou lik'st best,

And they are thine to attend thee.

Mrs. F. But, as thou hop'st for Heaven, as thou believest

Thy name's recorded in the book of life,

I charge thee never after this sad day

To see me, or to meet me; or to send,

By word or writing, gift or otherwise,

To move me, by thyself, or by thy friends;

Nor challenge any part in my two children.

So farewell, Nan; for we will henceforth be

As we had never seen, nor'ER more shall see.

Mrs. F. How full my heart is, in mine eyes appears;

What wants in words, I will supply in tears.

Frank. Come, take your coach, your stuff; all must along.

Servants and all make ready; all begone!

It was thy hand cut two hearts out of one.

[Exeunt.]

[ACT V]

[Scene I.]

Enter Sir Charles Mountford, gentleman-like, and his Sister, gentlewoman-like.

Susan. Brother, why have you trick'd me like a bride,

Bought me this gay attire, these ornaments?

Forget you our estate, our poverty?

Nearby.

Before Sir Francis Acton's house.

Dressed.
Sir C. Call me not brother, but imagine me
Some barbarous outlaw, or uncivil kern; 1
For if thou shu'tst thine eye, and only he'st
The words that I shall utter, thou shalt judge me
Some starring ruffian, not thy brother Charles.
Oh, sister! —
Susan. Oh, brother! what doth this strange language mean? 2
Sir C. Dost love me, sister? Wouldst thou see me live
A bankrupt beggar in the world's disgrace,
And die indebted to mine enemies? 3
Wouldest thou behold me stand like a huge beam
In the world's eye, a by-word and a scorn? 4
It lies in thee of these to acquit me free,
And all my debt I may outstrip by thee.

Susan. By me? Why, I have nothing, nothing left;
I owe even for the clothes upon my back;
I am not worth —
Sir C. — O sister, say not so! 5
It lies in you my downcast state to raise;
To make me stand on even points with the
world.
Come, sister, you are rich; indeed you are,
And in your power you have, without delay
Acton's five hundred pounds back to repay.

Susan. Till now I had thought you lov'd me.
By my honour
(Which I have kept as spotless as the moon),
I ne'er was mistress of that single doin 2
Which I reserv'd not to supply your wants;
And do you think that I would hoard from
you? 6
Now, by my hopes in Heaven, knew I the
means
To buy you from the slavery of your debts (Especially from Acton, whom I hate),
I would redeem it with my life or blood! 2
Sir C. I challenge it, and, kindred set apart,
Thus, ruffian-like, I lay siege to thy heart.
What do I owe to Acton?

Susan. Why, some five hundred pounds; to wards which, I swear,
In all the world I have not one denier. 8
Sir C. It will not prove so. Sister, now resolve 4 me:
What do you think (and speak your conscience)
Would Acton give, might he enjoy your bed?
Susan. He would not shrink to spend a thousand pound
To give the Mountfords' name so deep a wound.

Sir C. A thousand pound! I but five hundred owe:
Grant him your bed; he's paid with interest so.
Susan. Oh, brother!

Sir C. Oh, sister! only this one way,
With that rich jewel you my debts may pay.
In speaking this my cold heart shakes with
shame;
Nor do I woo you in a brother's name,
But in a stranger's. Shall I die in debt
To Acton, my grand foe, and you still wear
The precious jewel that he holds so dear?

Susan. My honour I esteem as dear and precious
As my redemption.

Sir C. I esteem you, sister,
As dear, for so dear prizing it.

Susan. Will Charles
Have me cut off my hands, and send them
Acton?
Rip up my breast, and with my bleeding heart
Present him as a token?

Sir C. Neither, sister;
But hear me in my strange assertion!
Thy honour and my soul are equal in my regard;
Nor will thy brother Charles survive thy shame.
His kindness, like a burden, hath surcharg'd
me,
And under his good deeds I stooping go,
Not with an upright soul. Had I remain'd
In prison still, there doubtless I had died.
Then, unto him that freed me from that prison,
Still do I owe this life. What mov'd my foe
To enfanchise me? 'T was, sister, for your love
With full five hundred pounds he bought your
love;
And shall he not enjoy it? Shall the weight
Of all this heavy burden lean on me,
And will not you bear part? You did partake
The joy of my release; will you not stand
In joint-bond to satisfy the debt?
Shall I be only charg'd?

Susan. But that I know
These arguments come from an honour'd mind,
As in your most extremity of need
Sparing to stand in debt to one you hate,— Nay, rather would engage your unsustain'd
honour,
Than to be held ingrate,—I should condemn
you.
I see your resolution, and assent;
So Charles will have me, and I am content.

Sir C. For this I trick'd 5 you up.

Susan. But here's a knife,
To save mine honour, shall slice out my life.

Sir C. I know thou pleasest me a thousand times
More in that resolution than thy grant.—
Observe her love; to soothe it to my suit,
Her honour she will hazard, though not lose;
To bring me out of debt, her rigorous hand
Will pierce her heart,—O wonder!—that will choose,
Rather than stain her blood, her life to lose.
Come, you sad sister to a woful brother,
This is the gate. I'll bear him such a present,
Such an acquittance for the knight to seal,
As will amaze his senses, and surprise
With admiration all his fantasies.

Enter Sir Francis Acton and Malsley.

Susan. Before his unchaste thoughts shall seize on me,
'T is here shall my imprison'd soul set free.

1 A Celtic foot-soldier; often used in contempt.
2 A small coin.
3 Penny.
4 Tell.
5 Dressed finely.
Sir F. How! Mountford with his sister, hand in hand!
Sir C. Not amaz'd to see me thus attended.
Acton, I owe thee money, and, being unable
To bring thee the full sum in ready coin,
Lo! for thy more assurance, here's a pawn, —
My sister, my dear sister, whose chaste honour
I prize above a million. Here! Nay, take her;
She's worth your money, man; do not forsake her.
Sir F. I would he were in earnest!
Susan. Impu'te it not to my immodesty.
My brother, being rich in nothing else
But in his interest that he hath in me,
According to his poverty hath brought you
Me, all his store; whom, howsoever you prize,
As forfeit to your hand, he values highly,
And would not sell, but to acquit your debt,
For any emperor's ransom.
Sir F.
Thy former cruelty at length repent
Was ever known, in any former age,
Such honourable, wretched courtesy?
Lands, honours, life, and all the world forego,
Rather than stand engag'd to such a foe!
Sir C. Acton, she is too poor to be thy bride,
And I too much oppos'd to be thy brother.
There, take her to thee; if thou hast the heart
To seize her as a rape, or lustful prey;
To blur our house, that never yet was stain'd;
To murder her that never meant thee harm;
To kill me now, whom once thou sav'dst from death: —
Do them at once; on her all these rely,
And perish with her spotless chastity.
Sir F. You overcome me in your love, Sir Charles.
I cannot be so cruel to a lady
I love so dearly. Since you have not spair'd
To engage your reputation to the world,
Your sister's honour, which you prize so dear,
Nay, all the comforts which you hold on earth,
To grow out of my debt, being your foe, —
Your honour'd thoughts, lo! thus I recompense,
Your metamorphos'd foe receives your gift
In satisfaction of all former wrongs.
This jewel I will wear here in my heart;
And where before I thought her, for her wants,
Too base to be my bride, to end all strife,
I seal you my dear brother, her my wife,
Susan. You still exceed us. I will yield to fate,
And learn to love, where I till now did hate.
Sir C. With that enchantment you have charm'd my soul
And made me rich even in those very words!
I pay no debt, but am indebted more;
Rich in your love, I never can be poor.
Sir F. All's mine is yours; we are alike in state;
Let's knit in love what oppos'd in hate!

Come, for our nuptials we will straight provide,
Blest only in our brother and fair bride.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.]

Enter CRANWELL, FRANKFORD, and NICHOLAS.
CRAN. Why do you search each room about
Your house,
Now that you have despatch'd your wife away?
FRANK. Oh, sir! to see that nothing may be left
That ever was my wife's. I lov'd her dearly;
And when I do but think of her unkindness,
My thoughts are all in hell; to avoid which torment,
I would not have a bodkin or a cuff,
A bracelet, necklace, or rabato wire,
Nor anything that ever was call'd hers,
Left me, by which I might remember her. —
Seek round about.
NICH. 'Shood! master, here's her lute flung in a corner.
FRANK. Her lute! Oh, God! Upon this instrument
Her fingers have rung quick division,
Sweeter than that which now divides our hearts.
These frets have made me pleasant, that have now
Frets of my heart-strings made. Oh, Master Cranwell,
Oft hath she made this melancholy wood
(Now mute and dumb for her disastrous chance)
Speak sweetly many a note, sound many a strain
To her own ravishing voice; which being well strung,
What pleasant strange airs have they jointly sung! —
Post with it after her! — Now nothing's left;
Of her and hers I am at once bereft.
NICH. I'll ride and overtake her; do my message,
And come back again.
CRAN. Meantime, sir, if you please,
I'll to Sir Francis Acton, and inform him
Of what hath past betwixt you and his sister.
FRANK. Do as you please. — How ill am I bested,
To be a widower ere my wife be dead!

[Exeunt.]

[Scene III.]

Enter MISTRESS FRANKFORD; with JENKIN, hers maid CICELY, her Coachmen, and three Carters.
MRS. F. Bid my coach stay! Why should I ride in state,
Being hur'd so low down by the hand of fate?
A seat like to my fortunes let me have,—
Earth for my chair, and for my bed a grave!
JEN. Comfort, good mistress; you have [s watered your coach with tears already. You have but two miles now to go to your manor.

2 Frankford's house.
3 Wire used to support a ruff.
4 Variation.
5 Merry.
6 Road near Mistress Frankford's manor.
A man cannot say by my old master Frankford
as he may say by me, that he wants manors; for he hath three or four, of which this is one that we are going to now. 21

Cic. Good mistress, be of good cheer! Sorrow, you see, hurts you, but helps you not; we all mourn to see you so sad.

Carter. Mistress, I spy one of my landlord's
men
Come riding post: 'tis like he brings some news.

Mrs. F. Comes he from Master Frankford, he is welcome;
So is his news, because they come from him.

Enter Nicholas.

Nich. There!

Mrs. F. I know the lute. Oft have I sung to thee;
We both are out of tune, both out of time.

Nich. Would that had been the worst instrument that 'er you played on! My master commends him to ye; there's all he can find was ever yours; he hath nothing left that ever you could lay claim to but his own heart,—and 26 he could afford you that! All that I have to deliver you is this: he prays you to forget him;
and so he bids you farewell.

Mrs. F. I thank him; he is kind, and ever was.
All you that have true feeling of my grief,
That know my loss, and have relenting hearts,
Gird me about, and help me with your tears,
To wash my spotted sins! My lute shall groan;
It cannot weep, but shall lament my soul. 30

[She plays.]

Enter Wendell [behind].

Wen. Purs'd with horror of a guilty soul,
And with the sharp scourge of repentance lash'd,
I fly from mine own shadow. O my stars!
What have my parents in their lives describ'd, 35
That you should lay this penance on their son?
When I but think of Master Frankford's love,
And lay it to my treason, or compare
My murdering blow for relieving me,
It strikes a terror like a lightning's flash,
To scorch my blood up. Thus I, like the owl, 40
Asham'd of day, live in these shadowy woods,
Afraid of every leaf or murmuring blast,
Yet longing to receive some perfect knowledge
How he hath dealt with her. [Seeing Mistress
Frankford.] O my sad fate!
Here, and so far from home, and thus attended!
Oh, God! I have divorce'd the truest turtles 45
That ever liv'd together, and, being divided,
In several places make their several moan;
She in the fields laments, and he at home;
So poets write that Orpheus made the trees
And stones to dance to his melodious harp,
Meaning the rustic and the barbarous minds,
That had no understanding part in them:
So she from these rude cartes tears extracts,
Making their flinty hearts with grief to rise, 50
And draw down rivers from their rocky eyes.

Mrs. F. [to Nicholas.] If you return unto my master, say
(Though not from me, for I am all unworthy
To blast his name so with a trumpet's tongue)
That you have seen me weep, wish myself dead!

Nay, you may see, too (for my vow is past),
Last night you saw me eat and drink my last.
This to your master you may say and swear;
For it is writ in heaven, and decreed here.

Nich. I'll say you wept; I'll swear you made me sad.

Why, how now, eyes? What now? What's here to do?

I'm gone, or I shall straight turn baby too.

Wen. [Aside.] I cannot weep, my heart is all on fire.

Curs'd be the fruits of my uneasie desire!

Mrs. F. Go, break this lute upon my coach's wheel,
As the last music that I e'er shall make,—
Not as my husband's gift, but my farewell.
To all earth's joy; and so your master tell!

Nich. If I can for crying.

Wen. [Aside.] Grief, have done.
Or, like a madman, I shall frantic run.

Mrs. F. You have beheld the wofullst wretch on earth,—
A woman made of tears; would you had words
To express but what you see! My inward grief,
No tongue can utter; yet unto your power
You may describe my sorrow, and disclose
To thy sad master my abundant woes.

Nich. I'll do your commendations. 2

Mrs. F. Oh, no! I dare not so presume; nor to my children!
I am disclaim'd in both; alas! I am.
Oh, never teach them, when they come to speak,

To name the name of mother: chide their
tongue,
If they by chance light on that hated word;
Tell them 'tis naught; for when that word
they name,
Poor, pretty souls! they harp on their own
shame.

Wen. [Aside.] To recompense their wrongs,
what canst thou do?
Thou hast made her husbandless, and childless too.

Mrs. F. I have no more to say.—Speak not
for me;
Yet you may tell your master what you see.

Nich. I'll do't.

Wen. [Aside.] I'll speak to her, and comfort her in grief.
Oh, but her wound cannot be cur'd with words!
No matter, though; I'll do my best good will
To work a cure on her whom I did kill.

Mrs. F. So, now unto my coach, then to my home,
So to my death-bed; for from this sad hour,
I never will nor eat, nor drink, nor taste
Of any eaters 2 that may preserve my life,
I never will nor smile, nor sleep, nor rest;
But when my tears have wash'd my black soul
white,
Sweet Saviour, to thy hands I yield my sprite.

1 Sworn. 2 Commands. 3 Food.
Wen. [coming forward.] Oh, Mistress Frankford!

Mrs F. Oh, for God's sake, fly!
The devil doth come to tempt me, ere I die.
My coach!—This sin, that with an angel's face
Conjur'd mine honour, till he sought my wreck,
In my repentant eye seems ugly, black. 1

Exeunt all except WENDOLL and JENKIN; the Carters whistling.

Jen. What, my young master, that fled in his shirt! How come you by your clothes again? You have made our house in a sweet pickle, ha' ye not, think you? What, shall I serve you still, or cleave to the old house? 320

Wen. Hence, slave! Away, with thy unseason'd mirth!
Unless thou canst shed tears, and sigh, and howl,
Curse thy and fortunes, and exclain on fate,
Thou art not for my turn.

Jen. Marry, an you will not, another will; farewell, and be hang'd! Would you had never come to have kept this coil 2 within our doors! We shall ha' you run away like a sprite again.

Wen. She's gone to death; I live to want and woe,
Her life, her sins, and all upon my head.
And I must now go wander, like a Cain,
In foreign countries and remoted climes,
Where the report of my ingratitude
Cannot be heard. I'll over first to France, 335
And so to Germany and Italy;
Where, when I have recovered, and by travel Gotten those perfect tongues, 3 and that these rumours
May in their height abate, I will return:
And I divine (however now dejected), 340
My worth and parts being by some great man praiz'd,
At my return I may in court be rais'ed. Exit.

[SCENE IV.] 4

Enter Sir Francis ACTON, Sir Charles MOUNTFORD, CRANWELL, [MALBY,] and SUSAN.

Sir F. Brother, and now my wife, I think these troubles,
Fall on my head by justice of the heavens,
For being so strict to you in your extremities;
But we are now aton'd. I would my sister
Could with like happiness o'ercome her griefs 5
As we have ours.

Susan. You tell us, Master Cranwell, wondrous things
Touching the patience of that gentleman,
With what strange virtue he demeanes 6 his grief.

Cran. I told you what I was a witness of; 10
It was my fortune to lodge there that night.
Sir F. Oh, that same villain, Wendoll! 7
'Twas his tongue
That did corrupt her; she was of herself
Chaste and devoted well. 6 Is this the house? Cran. Yes, sir; I take it, here your sister lies. 15

Sir F. My brother Frankford show'd too mild a spirit
In the revenge of such a leathed crime.
Less than he did, no man of spirit could do.
I am so far from blaming his revenge,
That I commend it. Had it been my case, 20
Their souls at once had from their breasts been freed;
Death to such deeds of shame is the due meed.

Enter JENKIN and CICELY.

Jen. Oh, my mistress, mistress! my poor mistress!

Cicely. Alas! that ever I was born; what 25 shall I do for my poor mistress?

Sir C. Why, what of her?

Jen. Oh, Lord, sir! she no sooner heard that her brother and her friends had come to see how she did, but she, for very shame of her 30 guilty conscience, fell into such a swoon, that we had much ado to get life in her.

Susan. Alas, that she should bear so hard a fate!
Pity it is repentence comes too late.

Sir F. Is she so weak in body? 35

Jen. Oh, sir! I can assure you there's no hope of life in her; for she will take no sust'na'ce; she hath plainly starv'd herself, and now she's as lean as a latch. She ever looks for the good hour.

Many gentlemen and gentlewomen of the 40 country are come to comfort her.

[SCENE V.] 8

[SIR CHARLES MOUNTFORD, SIR FRANCIS AC- TON, MALBY, CRANWELL, and SUSAN.]

Enter MISTRESS FRANKFORD in her bed.

Mal. How fare you, Mistress Frankford?

Mrs. F. Sick, sick, oh, sick! Give me some air, I pray you!

Tell me, oh, tell me, where is Master Frankford?

Will not he deign to see me ere I die?

Mal. Yes, Mistress Frankford; divers gentle- men,
Your loving neighbours, with that just request
Have here, and told him of your weak estate; 9
Who, though with much ado to get belief,
Examining of the general circumstance,
Seeing your sorrow and your penitence,
And hearing therewithal the great desire
You have to see him, ere you left the world,
He gave to us his faith to follow us,
And sure he will be here immediately.

8 Dutiful. 7 Dwells. 6 The Manor House. The scene was really unchanged.
9 Condition.
Mrs. F. You have half reviv'd me with the pleasing news, 18
Raise me a little higher in my bed.—
Blush I not, brother Acton? Blush I not, Sir Charles?
Can you not read my fault writ in my cheek?
Is not my crime there? Tell me, gentlemen.
Sir C. Alas, good mistress, sickness hath not left you.
Blood in your face enough to make you blush.
Mrs. F. Then, sickness, like a friend, my fault would hide.
Is my husband come? My soul but tarry
His arrive; then I am fit for heaven.
Sir F. I came to chide you, but my words of hate
Are turn'd to pity and compassionate grief.
I came to rate you, but my brawls, you see,
Malt into tears, and I must weep by thee. —
Here's Master Frankford now.

Enter Frankford.

Frank. Good morrow, brother; morrow, gentlemen!
God, that hath laid this cross upon our heads,
Might (had He pleas'd) have made our cause of meeting
On a more fair and more contented ground;
But He that made us made us to this woe.
Mrs. F. And is he come? Methinks, that voice I know.

Frank. How do you, woman?
Mrs. F. Well, Master Frankford, well; but shall be better,
I hope within this hour. Will you vouchsafe,
Out of your grace and your humanity,
To take a spotted strumpet by the hand?

Frank. This hand once held my heart in faster bonds,
Than now 'tis garr'd by me. God pardon them
That made us first break hold!
Mrs. F. Amen, amen! Out of my zeal to Heaven, whither I'm now bound,
I was so impudent to wish you here;
And once more beg your pardon. O, good man,
And father to my children, pardon me.
Pardon, oh, pardon me: my faith so heinous is,
That if you in this world forgive it not,
Heaven will not clear it in the world to come.
Faintness hath so usurp'd upon my knees,
That kneel I cannot; but on my heart's knees
My prostrate soul lies thrown down at your feet,
To beg your gracious pardon. Pardon, oh, pardon me!

Frank. As freely, from the low depth of my soul,
As my Redeemer hath forgiven His death,
I pardon thee. I will shed tears for thee;
pray with thee:
And, in mere pity of thy weak estate,
I'll wish to die with thee.

All. So do we all.

Nich. So will not I;
I'll sigh and sob, but, by my faith, not die.

Sir F. Oh, Master Frankford, all the near alliance
I lose by her, shall be suppli'd in thee.
You are my brother by the nearest way;
Her kindred hath fall'n off, but yours doth stay.

Frank. Even as I hope for pardon, at that day
When the Great Judge of heaven in scarlet sits,
So be thou pardon'd! Though thy rash offence
Divorc'd our bodies, thy repentant tears
Unite our souls.

Sir C. Then comfort, Mistress Frankford!
You see your husband hath forgiven your fall;
Then rouse your spirits, and cheer your fainting soul.

Susan. How is it with you?

Sir F. How? ye feel yourself?

Mrs. F. Not of this world.

Frank. I see you are not. and I weep to see it.
My wife, the mother to my pretty babes!
Both those lost names I do restore thee back,
And with this kiss I wed thee once again.
Though thou art wounded in thy honour'd name,
And with that grief upon thy death-bed liest,
Honest in heart, upon my soul, thou diest.

Mrs. F. Pardon'd on earth, soul, thou in heaven art free;
Once more thy wife, dies thus embracing thee. [Dies.]

Frank. New-married, and new-widow'd.—
Oh! she's dead,
And a cold grave must be her nuptial bed.
Sir C. Sir, be of good comfort, and your heavy sorrow
Part equally amongst us; storms divided
Abate their force, and with less rage are guided.

Cran. Do, Master Frankford; he that hath least part,
Will find enough to drown one troubled heart.

Sir F. Peace with thee, Nan! — Brothers and gentlemen,
All we that can plead interest in her grief,
Bestow upon her body funeral tears!
Brother, had you with threats and usage bad
Punish'd her sin, the grief of her offence
Had not with such true sorrow touch'd her heart.

Frank. I see it had not; therefore, on her grave
Will I bestow this funeral epitaph,
Which on her marble tomb shall be engrav'd.
In golden letters shall these words be fill'd:

Here lies whom her husband's kindness kill'd.

1 Verity suggests, Once more (i.e. Kiss me once more); thy wife dies, etc.
2 Cut and fill'd in with gold.
THE EPILOGUE

An honest crew, disposed to be merry,
Came to a tavern by, and call'd for wine.
The drawer brought it, smiling like a cherry,
And told them it was pleasant, neat 1 and fine.
'T Taste it,' quoth one. He did so. 'Fie!' (quoth he)
'This wine was good; now 't runs too near the lee.'

Another sipp'd, to give the wine his due,
And said unto the rest, it drunk too flat;

1 Pure.

The third said, it was old; the fourth, too new;
Nay, quoth the fifth, the sharpness likes me not.
Thus, gentlemen, you see how, in one hour,
The wine was new, old, flat, sharp, sweet, and sour.

Unto this wine we do allude 2 our play,
Which some will judge too trivial, some too grave:
You as our guests we entertain this day,
And bid you welcome to the best we have.
Excuse us, then; good wine may be disgrac'd,
When every several mouth hath sundry taste.

2 Compare.

TO THE READERS OF THIS COMEDY.

GENTLEMEN;
The world is so nice in these our times, that for apparel there is no fashion; for music (which is a rare art, though now slighted) no instrument; for diet, none but the French kickshaws that are delicate; and for plays, no invention but that which now runneth an invective way, touching some particular persons, or else it is contemned before it is thoroughly understood. This is all that I have to say: that the author had no intent to wrong any one in this comedy; but, as a merry passage, here and there interlaced it with delight, which he hopes will please all, and be hurtful to none.

PROLOGUE.

WHERE the bee can suck no honey, she leaves her sting behind; and where the bear cannot find origanum to heal his grief, he blasteth all other leaves with his breath. We fear it is like to fare so with us; that, seeing you cannot draw from our labours sweet content, you leave behind you a sour dislike, and with open reproach blame our good meaning, because you cannot reap the wonted mirth. Our intent was at this time to move inward delight, not outward lightness; and to breed (if it might be) soft smiling, not loud laughing; knowing it, to the wise, to be a great pleasure to hear counsel mixed with wit, as to the foolish, to have sport mingled with rudeness. They were banished the theatre of Athens, and from Rome hissed, that brought parasites on the stage with apish actions, or fools with uncivil habits, or courtiers with immodest words. We have endeavoured to be as far from unseemly speeches, to make your ears glow, as we hope you will be free from unkind reports, or mistaking the authors' intention, (who never aimed at any one particular in this play,) to make our cheeks blush. And thus I leave it, and thee to thine own censure, to like or dislike. — VALE.

[INDUCTION]

[Several Gentlemen sitting on Stools upon the Stage. The Citizen, his Wife, and Ralph sitting below among the Audience.]

Enter Prologue.

[Prolo.]* From all that's near the court, from all that's great,
Within the compass of the city-walls,
We now have brought our scene — — ,
Citizen [leaps on the stage].

Cit. Hold your peace, goodman boy!

Prol. What do you mean, sir?

Cit. That you have no good meaning: this

1 The Q spellings; Ra*fe and Raph indicate the pronunciation.
3 Fastidious.
4 Idem. "This Prologue is almost an exact Transcript of 'The Prologue at the Black fryers' prefixed to Lyly's Sapho and Phaon." (Murch.)* Disapproval.
5 Marjoram.
6 Q2 authors.
seven years there hath been plays at this house, I have observed it, you have still girds at citizens; and now you call your play "The London Merchant." Down with your title, boy! down with your title! 11

Prol. Are you a member of the noble city?
Cit. I am.

Prol. And a freeman?
Cit. Ye, and a grocer.  4

Prol. So, grocer, then, by your sweet favour, we intend no abuse to the city.

Cit. No, sir! yes, sir. If you were not resolv'd to play the Jacks, 6 what need you study for new subjects, purposely to abuse your betters? Why could not you be contented, as well as others, with "The legend of Whittington," or "The Life and Death of Sir Thomas Gresham, with the building of the Royal Exchange," or "The story of Queen Eleanor, with the rearing of London Bridge upon woollacks!"  8

Prol. You seem to be an understanding man: what would you have us do, sir?  20

Cit. Why present something notably in honour of the commons of the city.

Prol. Why, what do you say to "The Life and Death of fat Drake, or the Repairing of Fleet-prives?"  24

Cit. I do not like that; but I will have a citizen, and he shall be of my own trade.

Prol. Oh, you should have told us your mind a month since; our play is ready to begin now.

Cit. 'Tis all one for that; I will have a grocer, and he shall do admirable things.  40

Prol. What will you have him do?

Cit. Marry, I will have him——
Wife. (below.) Husband, husband!  52

Ralph. (below.) Peace, mistress.  44

Wife. (below.) Hold thy peace, Ralph; I know what I do, I warrant 'ee. — Husband, husband!

Cit. What say'st thou, cony? 10

Wife. (below.) Let him kill a lion with a pestle, husband! Let him kill a lion with a pestle!

Cit. So he shall. — I'll have him kill a lion with a pestle.

Wife. (below.) Husband! shall I come up, husband? 65

Cit. Ay, cony. — Ralph, help your mistress this way. — Pray, gentlemen, make her a little room. — I pray you, sir, lend me your hand to help up my wife: I thank you, sir. — So.
[The stage is crowded.]

Wife. By your leave, gentlemen all; I'm so something troublesome. I'm a stranger here; I was ne'er at one of these plays, as they say, before; but I should have seen 11 "Jane Shore" 12 once; and my husband hath promised me, any time this twelvemonth, to carry me to "The Bold Beauchamps," 13 but in truth he did not. I pray you, bear with me.

Cit. Boy, let my wife and I have a couple of stools and then begin; and let the grocer do rare things.

[Stools are brought.]
Prol. But, sir, we have never a boy 16 to play him: every one hath a part already.

Wife. Husband, husband, for God's sake, let Ralph play him! Beshrew me, if I do not think he will go beyond them all.

Cit. Well remember'd, wife. — Come up, Ralph. — I'll tell you, gentlemen; let them but lend him a suit of repaire 16 and necessaries, and, by gad, if any of them all blow wind in the tail on him, 10 I'll be hang'd.  80

[Ralph comes on the stage.]

Wife. I pray you, youth, let him have a suit of repaire! — I'll be sworn, gentlemen, my husband tells you true. He will act you sometimes at our house, that all the neighbours cry out on him; he will fetch you up a courag'ing part so in the garret, that we are all as fear'd, I warrant you, that we quake again: we'll fear our children with him; if they be never so unruly, do but cry, Ralph comes, Ralph comes! 17 to them, and they'll be as quiet as lambs. — Hold up thy head, Ralph; show the gentlemen what thou canst do; speak a huffing part; I warrant you, the gentlemen will accept of it.

Cit. Do, Ralph, do.  95

Ralph. "By Heaven, methinks, it were an easy

To pluck bright honour from the pale-fac'd moon;

Or dive into the bottom of the sea,

Where never fathom-line touch'd any ground,

And pluck our drowned honour from the lake of hell."  109

Cit. How say you, gentlemen, is it not as I told you?

Wife. Nay, gentlemen, he hath play'd before, my husband says, "Mucedorus," 10 before the warden's of our company.  106

Cit. Ay, and he should have play'd Jeronimo 20 with a shoemaker for a wager.

Prol. He shall have a suit of apparel, if he will go in.

Cit. In, Ralph; in, Ralph; and set out the grocery in their kind, if thou lov'st me. 111

[Exit Ralph.]

Wife. I warrant, our Ralph will look finely when he's dress'd.

Prol. But what will you have it call'd?

1 Probably Whitefriars, a private theatre.
2 Jeers.
3 A placard announcing the name of the play.
4 I. a member of the Grocers' Guild, one of the great livery companies.
5 Behave trickily.
6 A lost play, author unknown.

Both of myself and friends to thy endeavours;
So fair were thy beginnings. But with these,
As I remember, you had never charge
To love your master's daughter, and even then
When I had found a wealthy husband for her;
I take it, sir, you had not: but, however,
I'll break the neck of that commission,
And make you know you are but a merchant's factor.

Jasp. Sir, I do liberally confess I am yours,
Bound both by love and duty to your service,
In which my labour hath been all my profit:
I have not lost in bargain, nor delighted
To wear your honest gains upon my back;
Nor have I given a pension to my blood,
Or lavishly in play consum'd your stock;
These, and the miseries that do attend them,
I dare with innocence proclaim are strangers
To all my temperate actions. For your daughter,
If there be any love to my dispensings
Borne by her virtuous self, I cannot stop it;
Nor am I able to restrain her wishes.
She's private to herself, and best of knowledge Whom she will make so happy as to sigh for:
Besides, I cannot think you mean to match her
Unto a fellow of so lame a presence;
One that hath little left of nature in him.

Vent. 'Tis very well, sir: I can tell your wisdom
How all this shall be cur'd.

Jasp. Your care becomes you.

Vent. And thus it must be, sir: I here discharge you
My house and service; take your liberty;
And when I want a son, I'll send for you. Exit.

Jasp. These be the fairest rewards of them that love!
Oh, you that live in freedom, never prove
The travail of a mind led by desire!

Enter Luce.

Luce. Why, how now, friend? Struck with my father's thunder!

Jasp. Struck, and struck dead, unless the remedy

Be full of speed and virtue; I am now,
What I expected long, no more your father's.

Luce. But mine.

Jasp. But yours, and only yours, I am;
That's all I have to keep me from the statute.

You dare be constant still?

Luce. Oh, fear me not!

In this I dare be better than a woman:
Nor shall his anger nor his offers move me,

Were they both equal to a prince's power.

Jasp. You know my rival!

Luce. Yes, and love him dearly,
Even as I love an ague or foul weather.
I prithee, Jasper, fear him not.

Jasp. Oh, no! I do not mean to do him so much kindness.
But to our own desires: you know the plot.

We both agreed on?

Wife. Ay, when Ralph comes, cony! — Well, my youth, you may proceed.

Vent. Well, sir, you know my love, and rest, I hope,
Assur'd of my consent; get but my daughter's,
And wed her when you please. You must be bold,
And clap in close unto her: come, I know
You have language good enough to win a wench.

Wife. A whoreson tyrant! he's been an old stringer in 's days, I warrant him.

Hum. I take your gentle offer, and withal
Yield love again for love reciprocal.
Vent. What, Luce! within there!

Enter Luce.

Luce. Call'd you, sir? Vent. I did: 40
Give entertainment to this gentleman;
And see you be not froward. — To her, sir,
My presence will but be an eye-sore to you.

Exit.

Hum. Fair Mistress Luce, how do you do?
Are you well?
Give me your hand, and then I pray you tell
How doth your little sister and your brother;
And whether you love me or any other.
Luce. Sir, these are quickly answered.
Hum. So they are,
Where women are not cruel. But how far
Is it now distant from the place we are in,
Unto that blessed place, your father's warren?
Luce. What makes you think of that, sir?
Hum. Even that face;
For, stealing rabbits whilom in that place,
God Cupid, or the keeper, I know not whether,
Unto my cost and charges brought you thither,
And there began —

Luce. Your game, sir.
Hum. Let no game.
Or any thing that tendeth to the same,
Be evermore rememb'red, thou fair killer,
For whom I set me down, and brake my tiller.

Wife. There's a kind gentleman, I warrant you; when will you do as much for me, George?

Luce. Beshrew me, sir, I am sorry for your losses,
But, as the proverb says, I cannot cry.
I would you had not seen me!
Hum. So would I.

Unless you had more reason to do me good.
Luce. Why, cannot this strange passion be withstood?
Send for a constable, and raise the town.
Hum. Oh, no! my valiant love will batter down Millions of constables, and put to flight.

night.

Luce. Beshrew me, sir, 't were good I yielded,
then;
Weak women cannot hope, where valiant men
Have no resistance.
Hum. Yield, then; I am full
Of pity, though I say it, and can pull
Out of my pocket thus a pair of gloves.
Look, Luce, look; the dog's tooth nor the dove's
Are not so white as these; and sweet they be,
And whipt about with silk, as you may see.
If you desire the price, shoot from your eye
A beam to this place, and you shall esp'y
F S, which is to say, my sweetest honey,
They cost me three and twopence, or no money.
Luce. Well, sir, I take them kindly, and I thank you:
What would you more?
Hum. Nothing.
Luce. Why, then, farewell.
Hum. Nor so, nor so; for, lady, I must tell,
Before we part, for what we met together:
God grant me time and patience and fair weather!
Luce. Speak, and declare your mind in terms
so brief.
Hum. I shall: then, first and foremost, for relief
I call to you, if that you can afford it:
I care not at what price, for, on my word, it Shall be repaid again, although it cost me
More than I'll speak of now; for love hath lost
me
In furious blanket like a tennis-ball,
And now I rise aloft, and now I fall.
Luce. Ales, good gentleman, alas the day!
Hum. I thank you heartily; and, as I say,
Thus do I still continue without rest,
I' th' morning like a man, at night a beast,
Roaring and bellowing mine own disquiet,
That much I fear, forsaking of my diet
Will bring me presently to that quandyary,
I shall bid all adieu.
Luce. Now, by St. Mary,
That were great pity!
Hum. So it were, beshrew me; 100
Then, ease me, lusty Luce, and pity show me.
Luce. Why, sir, you know my will is nothing worth
Without my father's grant; get his consent,
And then you may with assurance try me.
Hum. The worshipful your sire will not deny
me;
For I have askt him, and he hath repli'd,
"Sweet Master Humphrey, Luce shall be thy bride."
Luce. Sweet Master Humphrey, then I am content.
Hum. And so am I, in truth.
Luce. Yet take me with you; 105

There is another clause must be annexed,
And this it is: I swore, and will perform it,
No man shall ever joy me as his wife
But he that stole me hence. If you dare venture,
I am yours (you need not fear; my father loves
you);
If not, farewell for ever!
Hum. Stay, nymph, stay: 110
I have a double wording, colour'd day,
Sprung by his father from Barbarian kind;
Another for myself, though somewhat blind,
Yet true as trusty tree.
Luce. I am satisfied;
And so I give my hand. Our course must lie
Through Waltham-forest, where I have a friend
Will entertain us. So, farewell, Sir Humphrey,
And think upon your business. Exit.
Hum. Though I die,
I am resolv'd to venture life and limb
For one so young, so fair, so kind, so trim. 115

Exit.

Wife. By my faith and troth, George, and as I am virtuous, it is 'en the kindest young man that ever trod on shoe-leather.—Well, go thy ways; if thou hast her not, 't is not thy fault,
"faith."
Cit. I prithee, mouse, be patient; 'a shall have her, or I'll make some of 'em smoke for 't.
Wife. That's my good lamb, George.—Fie, this stinking tobacco kills me! 120 would there [were none in England!—Now, I pray, gentlemen, what good does this stinking tobacco do you? Nothing, I warrant you: make chimneys of your faces! Oh, husband, husband, now, now!
there's Ralph, there's Ralph.

[SCENE III.]

Enter RALPH, like a Grocer in's shop with two Prentices [Tim and George], reading "Palmerin of England."

Cit. Peace, fool! let Ralph alone.—Hark you, Ralph; do not strain yourself too much at the first.—Peace! —Begin, Ralph.

Ralph. [reads.] Then Palmerin and Trinien, snatching their lances from their dwarfs, 5 and clasping their helmets, galloped amain after the giant; and Palmerin, having gotten a sight of him, came posting amain, saying, "Stay, traitorous thief! for thou mayst not so carry away her, that is worth the greatest lord in the world;" and, with these words, gave him a blow on the shoulder, that he struck him besides 6 his elephant. And Trinien, coming to the knight that had Agricola behind him, set him soon beside his horse, with his neck [was broken in the fall; so that the princess, getting out of the throng, between joy and grief, said,
"All happy knight, the mirror of all such as follow arms, now may I be well assured of the love thou beardest me." 1 I wonder why the kings do not raise an army of fourteen or fifteen hundred thousand men, as big as the army that the Prince of Portigo brought against Rosicleer, and destroy these giants; they do much hurt to women damsels, that go in quest of their knights.

Wife. Faith, husband, and Ralph says true; for they say the King of Portugal cannot sit at his meat, but the giants and the ettins 2 will come and snatch it from him.

Cit. Hold thy tongue. — On, Ralph!

Ralph. And certainly those knights are much to be commended, who, neglecting their possessions, wander with a squire and a dwarf through the deserts to relieve poor ladies.

Wife. Ay, by my faith, are they, Ralph; let 'em say what they will, they are indeed. Our knights neglect their possessions well enough, but they do not the rest.

Ralph. There are no such courteous and fair well-spoken knights in this age: they will call one "the son of a whore," that Palmerin of England would have called "fair sir;" and one that Rosicleer would have call'd "right beauteous damsel," they will call "damn'd bitch."

Wife. I'll be sworn will they, Ralph; they have call'd me so an hundred times about a scurvy pipe of tobacco.

Ralph. But what brave spirit could be content to sit in his shop, with a flappet of wood, 3 and a blue apron before him, selling mithridatum 4 and dragon's-water 5 to visited houses, that might pursue feats of arms, and, through his noble achievements, procure such a famous history to be written of his heroic prowess?

Cit. Well said, Ralph; some more of those words, Ralph!

Wife. They go finel, by my troth.

Ralph. Why should not I, then, pursue this course, both for the credit of myself and our company? for amongst all the worthy books of achievements, I do not call to mind that I yet hear of a grocer-errant. I will be the said knight.

— Have you heard of any that hath wand'red unfurnished of his squire and dwarf? My elder prentice Tim shall be my trusty squire, and little George my dwarf. Hence, my blue apron! Yet, in remembrance of my former trade, upon my shield shall be portrayed a Burning Pestle, 6 and I will be call'd the Knight of the Burning Pestle.

Wife. Nay, I dare swear thou wilt not forget thy old trade; thou wilt ever meek.

Ralph. Tim!

Tim. Anon.

Ralph. My beloved squire, and George my dwarf, I charge you that from henceforth you never call me by any other name but "the right courteous and valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle:" and that you never call any female by the name of a woman or wench, but "fair lady," if she have her desires, if not, "distressed damsel," that you call all woods, and woods, "deserts," and all horses "palfreys."

Wife. This is very fine, faith.— Do the gentle- men like Ralph, think you, husband?

Cit. Ay, I warrant thee; the players would give all the shoes in their shop for him.

Ralph. My beloved squire Tim, stand out. 7 Admit this were a desert, and over it a knight- errant pricking, 8 and I should bid you inquire of his intents, what would you say?

Tim. Sir, my master sent me to know whither you are riding?

Ralph. No, thus: "Fair sir, the right courteous and valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle commanded me to inquire upon what adventure you are bound, whether to relieve some distressed damsels, or otherwise." 9

Cit. Whoreson blockhead, cannot remember! Wife. I' faith, and Ralph told him on't before: all the gentlemen heard him.— Did he not, gentlemen? Did not Ralph tell him on't?

George. Right courteous and valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle, here is a distressed damsel to have a halfpenny-worth of pepper.

Wife. That's a good boy! See, the little boy can hit it; by my troth, it's a fine child.

Ralph. Relieve her, with all courteous language. Now shut up shop; no more my prentices, but this trusty squire and dwarf. I must bespeak my shield and arming 7 pestle.

[Exeunt Tim and George.]

Cit. Go thy ways, Ralph! As I'm a true man, thou art the best on 'em all.

Wife. Ralph, Ralph!

Ralph. What say you, mistress?

Wife. I prithee, come again quickly, sweet Ralph.

Ralph. By and by.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter JASPER and his mother, MISTRESS MERRYTHOUGHT.

Mist. Mer. Give thee my blessing? No, I'll ne'er give thee my blessing; I'll see thee spurring. 6 Her. 7 Honest.

6 Spurring.
7 Heraldic.
8 Honest.
Enter Michael.

Come, Michael, down on thy knees; thou shalt have my blessing.

Mich. [kneels.] I pray you, mother, pray to God to bless me.

Mist. Mer. God bless thee! but Jasper shall never have my blessing; he shall be hang'd first; shall he not, Michael? How sayst thou?

Mich. Yes, forsooth, mother, and grace of God.

Mist. Mer. That's a good boy!

Wife. I' faith, it's a fine spoken child.

Jasp. Mother. Though you forget a parent's love, I must preserve the duty of a child. I ran not from my master, nor return to have your stock maintain my idleness.

Wife. Ungracious child, I warrant him; hark, how he chops logic with his mother!—Thou hadst best tell her she lies; do, tell her she lies.

Cit. If he were my son, I would hang him [up by the heels, and flay him, and salt him, whorson haltersack.]

Jasp. My coming only is to beg your love, Which I must ever, though I never gain it; And, howsoever you esteem of me, There is no drop of blood in these veins But, I remember well, belongs to you That brought me forth, and would be glad for you To rip them all again, and let it out.

Mist. Mer. I' faith, I had sorrow enough for thee, God knows; but I'll harper thee well enough. Get thee in, thou vagabond, get thee in, and learn of thy brother Michael,

[Exeunt JASPER and MICHAEL.]

Mer. (within.)

Nose, nose, jolly red nose,
And who gave thee this jolly red nose?

Mist. Mer. Hark, my husband! he's singing and hoiting; and I'm fain to cark and care, and all little enough. — Husband! Charles! Charles Merrythought!

Enter old MERRYTHOUGHT.

Mer. [sings.]

Nutmegs and ginger, cinnamon and cloves;
And they gave me this jolly red nose.

1 Squander. 2 Gallows-bird. 3 To be careful.

Mist. Mer. If you would consider your state, you would have little list to sing, i-wis.

Mer. It should never be considered, while it were an estate, if I thought it would spoil my singing.

Mist. Mer. But how wilt thou do, Charles? Thou art an old man, and thou canst not work; and thou hast not forty shillings left, and thou eatest good meat, and drunkest good drink, and laughest.

Mer. And will do.

Mist. Mer. But how wilt thou come by it, Charles?

Mer. How? why, how have I done hitherto? I never came into my dining room, but at eleven and six o'clock, I found excellent meat and drink at 'th' table; my clothes were never worn out, but next morning a tailor brought me a new suit: and with-out question it will be so ever; use makes perfection. If all should fail, it is but a little straining myself extraordinary, and laugh myself to death.

Wife. It's a foolish old man this; is not so, George?

Cit. Yes, cony.

Wife. Give me a penny i' th' purse while I live, George.

Cit. Ay, by lady, cony, hold thee there.

Mist. Mer. Well, Charles; you promised to provide for Jasper, and I have laid up for Michael. I pray you, pay Jasper his portion: he's come home, and he shall not consume Michael's stock; he says his master turn'd him away, but I promise you truly, I think he ran away.

Wife. No, indeed, Mistress Merrythought; though he be a notable gallows, yet I'll assure you his master did turn him away, even in this place; it was, I' faith, within this half-hour, about his daughter; my husband was by.

Cit. Hang him, rogue! he serv'd him well enough: love his master's daughter! By my troth, cony, if there were a thousand boys, thou wouldst spoil them all with taking their parts; let his mother alone with him.

Wife. Ay, George; but yet truth is truth.

Mer. Where is Jasper? He's welcome, however. Call him in; he shall have his portion. Is he merry?

Mist. Mer. Ah, foul chivè him, he is too merry! — Jasper! Michael!

Re-enter JASPER and MICHAEL.

Mer. Welcome, Jasper! though thou run'st away, welcome! God bless thee! 'Tis thy mother's mind thou shouldst receive thy portion; thou hast been abroad, and I hope hast learn'd experience enough to govern it; thou art of sufficient years. Hold thy hand — one, 4 Certainly. 5 Gallows-bird. 6 Dinner and supper hours. 7 Ill luck to him. 8 Stick to your opinion.
two, three, four five, six, seven, eight, nine, [115] there is ten shillings for thee. [Gives money.] Threaten thyself into the world with that, and take some settled course. If fortune cross thee, thou hast a retiring place; come home to me; I have twenty shillings left. Be a good hus- [120] band; [1] that is, wear ordinary clothes, eat the best meat, and drink the best drink; be merry, and give to the poor, and, believe me, thou hast no end of thy goods.

Jasp. Long may you live free from all thought of ill, And long have cause to be thus merry still! But, father —

Mer. No more words, Jasper; get thee gone. Thou hast my blessing; thy father's spirit upon thee! Farewell, Jasper! [Sings.] 120

But yet, or ere you part (oh, cruel!) Kiss me, kiss me sweetly, mine own dear jewel!

So, now begone; no words. Exit JASPER.

Mist. Mer. So, Michael, now get thee gone too. 125

Mich. Yes, forsooth, mother; but I'll have my father's blessing first.

Mist. Mer. No, Michael; 'tis no matter for his blessing; thou hast my blessing: begone. I'll fetch my money and jewels, and follow thee; I'll stay no longer with him, I warrant thee. [Exit MICHAEL.] — Truly, Charles, I'll be gone too.

Mer. What! you will not? Mist. Mer. Yea, indeed will I. 130

Mer. [Sings.]

Heigh-ho, farewell, Nan! I'll never trust wench more again, if I can.

Mist. Mer. You shall not think, when all your own is gone, to spend that which I have been scraping up for Michael.

Mer. Farewell, good wife; I expect it not: all I have to do in this world, is to be merry; which I shall, if the ground be not taken from me; and if it be,

[Sings.]

When earth and seas from me are rest, 156
The skies aloft for me are left.

Exeunt [severally].

Wife. I'll be sworn he's a merry old gentleman for all that. [Music.] Bark, bark, husband, bark! fiddles, fiddles! now surely they go finely. They say 'tis present death for these fiddlers, to tune their rebecks 2 before the great Turk's grace; it's not, George? [Boy danceth.] But, look, look! here's a youth dances! — Now, good youth, do a turn a' th' toe. — Sweetheart, I' faith, I'll have Ralph come and do some of his gambols. — He'll ride the wild mare 3 gentlemen, 't would do your hearts good to see him. — I thank you, kind youth; pray, bid Ralph come.

Cit. Peace, cony! — Sirrah, you scurry boy, bid the players send Ralph; or, by God's — 4 an they do not. I'll tear some of their periwig's beside their heads: this is all ruff-ruff. [Exit Boy.]

ACT II

SCENE I 6

Enter Merchant [VENTUREWELL] and HUM- PHYREY.

Vent. And how, faith, how goes it now, son Humphrey? Hum. Right worshipful, and my beloved friend

And father dear, this matter's at an end. Vent. 'Tis well; it should be so. I'm glad the girl is found so tractable.

Hum. Nay, she must whirl 5 From hence (and you must wink; for so, I say, The story tells,) to-morrow before day.

Wife. George, dost thou think in thy conscience now 't will be a match? Tell me but what thou thinkst, sweet rogue. Thou seest [sic] the poor gentleman, dear heart, how it labours and thes; I warrant you, to be atrest! I'll go move the father for 't.

Cit. No, no; I prithee, sit still, honeysuckle; thou 'st spoil all. If he deny him, I'll bring [sic] half-a-dozen good fellows myself, and in the shutting 6 of an evening, knock 't up, and there's an end.

Wife. I'll buss thee for that, 't faith, boy. Well, George, well, you have been a wag in [sic] your days, I warrant you; but God forgive you, and I do with all my heart.

Vent. How was it, son? You told me that to-morrow Before day-break, you must convey her hence. Hum. I must, I must; and thus it is agreed: Your daughter rides upon a brown-bay steed, 26 I on a sorrel, which I bought of Brian, The honest host of the Red roaring Lion, In Waltham situate. Then, if you may, Consent in seemly sort; lest, by delay, The Fatal Sisters come, and do the office, And then you'll sing another song. Vent. Alas, Why should you be thus full of grief to me, That do as willing as yourself agree To any thing, so it be good and fair? Then, steal her when you will, if such a pleasure Content you both; I'll sleep and never see it, To make your joys more full. But tell me why You may not here perform your marriage?

Wife. God's blessing a' thy soul, old man! 60 I' faith, thou art loth to part true hearts. I see 'a has her, George; and I'm as glad on 't! — Well, go thy ways, Humphrey, for a fair-spoken man; I believe thou hast not thy follow within the walls of London; an I should say the [46] suburbs too, I should not lie. — Why dost not rejoice with me, George?

Cit. If I could but see Ralph again, I were as merry as mine host, i' faith.

Hum. The cause you seem to ask, I thus declare —

Help me, O Muses mine! Your daughter swears
A foolish oath, and more it was the pitty;
Yet no one but myself within this city
Shall dare to say so, but a bold defiance
So shall meet him, were he of the noble science;
And yet she scarce, and yet why did she swear? Truly, I cannot tell, unless it were
For her own ease; for, sure, sometimes an oath,
Being sworn thereafter, is like cordial brood;
And this it was she swore, never to marry
But such a one whose mighty arm could carry
(As meaning me, for I am such a one)
Her bodily away, through stick and stone,
Till both of us arrive, at her request.

Some ten miles off, in the wild Waltham-forest.

Vent. If this be all, you shall not need to fear
Any denial in your love: proceed;
I'll neither follow, nor repent the deed.

Hum. Good night, twenty good nights, and twenty more,
And twenty more good nights, — that makes three-score!

Exeunt [severally].

[Scene II.] 2

Enter Mistress Merrythought and her son Michael.

Cit. Mer. Come, Michael; art thou not weary, boy?
Mich. No, forsooth, mother, not I.

Cit. Mer. Where be we now, child?
Mich. Indeed, forsooth, mother, I cannot tell, unless we be at Mile-End. Is not all the world Mile-End, mother?

Cit. Mer. No, Michael, not all the world; but I can assure thee, Michael, Mile-End is a goodly matter: there has been a pitch- [10] field, my child, between the naughty Spaniards and the Englishmen; and the Spaniards ran away, Michael, and the Englishmen followed: my neighbor Coxstone was there, boy, and kill'd them all with a birding-piece. 3

Mich. Mother, forsooth —
Cit. Mer. What says my white boy? 4
Mich. Shall not my father go with us too?
Cit. Mer. No, Michael, let thy father go: he shall never come between a pair of sheets with me again while he lives; let him stay at home, and sing for his supper, boy. Come, child, sit down, and I'll show you boy fine knacks, indeed. [They sit down: and she takes out a casket.] Look here, Michael; here's a ring, and here's a brooch, and here's a [25] bracelet, and here's two rings more, and here's money and gold by thy eye, my boy.

Mich. Shall I have all this, mother?

Cit. How likest thou this, wench?

Wife. I cannot tell; I would have Ralph, George; I'll see no more else, indeed, I; and I pray you, let the youths understand so [36] much by word of mouth; for, I tell you truly, I'm afraid a' my boy. Come, come, George, let's be merry and wise: the child 's a fatherless child; and say they should put him into a straight pair of gauntlets; it were worse than [40] knot-grass; it would never grow after it.

Enter Ralph, Squire [Tim], and Dwarf [George].

Cit. Here's Ralph, here's Ralph! Wife. How do you do, Ralph? you are welcome, Ralph, as I may say. It's a good boy, hold up thy head, and be not afraid; we are thy friends, Ralph; the gentlemen will praise thee, Ralph, if thou play'st thy part with auda- [47] city. Begin, Ralph, a' God's name!

Ralph. My trusty squire, unlace my helm; give me my hat.

Where are we, or what desert may this be? George. Mirror of knighthood, this is, as I take it, the perilous Waltham-down; in whose bottom stands the enchanted valley.

Cit. Mer. Oh, Michael, we are betray'd, we are betray'd! Here be giants! Fly, boy! fly, boy, fly!

Exit with Michael [leaving the casket].

Ralph. Lace on my helm again. What noise is this?

A gentle lady, flying the embrace
Of some ununcerneous knight! I will relieve her.

Go, squire, and say, the Knight that wears this Pestle
In honour of all ladies, swears revenge
Upon that recreant coward that pursues her;
Go, comfort her, and that same gentle squire
That bears her company.

Tim. I go, brave knight. [Exit.]

Ralph. My trusty dwarf and friend, reach me my shield;

And hold it while I swear. First, by my knighthood;

Then by the soul of Amadis de Gaul,
My famous ancestor; then by my sword
The beauteous Brionella 12 girl about me;
By this bright burning Pestle, of mine honor;

The living trophy; and by, all respect
Due to distressed damsels; here I vow
Never to end the quest of this fair lady
And that forsaken squire till by my valour
I gain their liberty!

II. iv.

George. Heaven bless the knight! That thus relieves poor errant gentlewomen! Exeunt.

Wife. Ay, marry, Ralph, this has some savour in’t. I would see the proudest of them all offer to carry his books after him. But George, I will not have him go away so soon; I shall be sick if he go away, that I shall. Call Ralph [1] again, George, call Ralph again; I prithee, sweetheart, let him come fight before me, and let’s ha’ some drums and some trumpets, and let him kill all that comes near him, an thou love’t me, George!

Cit. Peace a little, bird: he shall kill them all, an they were twenty more on ’em than there are.

Enter JASPER.

Jasp. Now, Fortune, if thou be’t not only ill,
Show me thy better face, and bring about
Thy desperate wheel, that I may climb at length.
And stand. This is our place of meeting;
If love have any constancy. Oh, age
Where only wealthy men are counted happy! [96
How shall I please thee, how deserve thy smiles,
When I am only rich in misery?
My father’s blessing and this little coin
Is my inheritance; a strong revenue!
From earth thou art, and to the earth I give thee:
[Throws away the money.] There grow and multiply, whilst fresher air.
Breed me a fresher fortune.—How! illusion?
Spies the casket.
What, hath the devil coin’d himself before me?
’T is metal good, it rings well; I am waking,
And taking too, I hope. Now, God’s dear blessing
Upon his heart that left it here! ’Tis mine;
These pearls, I take it, were not left for swine.
Exit [with the casket].

Wife. I do not like that this unthrifty youth should embezzle away the money; the poor gentlewoman his mother will have a heavy heart for it, God knows.

Cit. And reason good, sweetheart.

Wife. But let him go; I’ll tell Ralph a tale in’s ear shall fetch him again with a wanion; I warrant him, if he be above ground; and besides, George, here are a number of suitors; [118
Sic] gentleman can witness, and myself, and yourself, and the musicians, if we be call’d in question. But here comes Ralph, George; thou shalt hear him speak as he were an emperor.

[SCENE III.]

Enter RALPH and Dwarf [GEORGE].

Ralph. Comes not sir squire again?
George. Right courteous knight,

Your squire doth come, and with him comes the lady,

Enter MISTRESS MERRYTHOUGHT, MICHAEL, and Squire [Tim].

For and the Squire of Damsels, as I take it. Ralph. Madam, if any service or devotion of a poor errant knight may right your wrongs, Command it: I am prest to give you succour; For to that holy end I bear my armour.

Mist. Mer. Alas, sir, I am a poor gentlewoman, and I have lost my money in this forest!

Ralph. Desert, you would say, lady; and not lest

Whilst I have sword and lance. Dry up your tears,
Which ill betid the beauty of that face,
And tell the story, if I may request it,
Of your disastrous fortune.

Mist. Mer. Out, alas! I left a thousand pound, a thousand pound, ’en all the money I had laid up for this youth, upon the sight of your mastership, you lookit so grim, and, as I may say it, saving your presence, more like a giant than a mortal man.

Ralph. I am as you are, lady; so are they;
All mortal. But why weeps this gentle squire?

Mist. Mer. Has he not cause to weep, do you think, when he hath lost his inheritance?

Ralph. Young hope of valour, weep not; I am here

That will confound thy foe, and pay it dear
Upon his coward head, that dares deny Distressed sisters and ladies equity.

I have but one horse, on which shall ride
This fair lady behind me, and before,

This courteous squire: fortune will give us more
Upon our next adventure. Fairly speed Beside us, squire and dwarf, to do us need! Exeunt.

Cit. Did not I tell you, Nell, what your man would do? By the faith of my body, wench, for clean action and good delivery, they may all cast their caps at him.

Wife. And so they may, ’tis faith; for I dare speak it boldly, the twelve companies of London cannot match him, timber for timber.

Well, George, an he be not inveigled by some of these paltry players, I ha’ much marvel: but, George, we ha’ done our parts, if the boy have any grace to be thankful.

Cit. Yes, I warrant thee, duckling.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter HUMPHREY and LUCY.

Hum. Good Mistress Lucy, however I in fault am
For your lame horse, you’re welcome unto Wal- tham;
But which way now to go, or what to say,
I know not truly, till it be broad day.

1 With a vengeance.
2 Imperial, i.e. emperor.
3 Another part of the forest.

4 And also.
5 Ready.
6 Salute him as superior. (Moorman.)
7 I. Live companies, guilds.
8 Man for man.
9 Another part of the forest.
Luce. Oh, fear not, Master Humphrey; I am sure
For this place good enough.
Hum. Then, up and ride; Or, if it please you, walk, for your reposing;
Or sit, or, if you will, go pluck a rose;
Either of which shall be indifferent
To your good friend and Humphrey, whose consent
Is so entangled ever to your will,
As the poor harmless horse is to the mill.
Luce. Faith, an you say the word, we'll e'en sit down,
And take a nap.
Hum. 'Tis better in the town,
Where we may nap together; for, believe me, To sleep without a snatch would mickle grieve me.
Luce. You're merry, Master Humphrey.
Hum. So I am, And have been ever merry from my dam.
Luce. Your nurse had the less labour.
Hum. Faith, it may be,
Unless it were by chance I did berate \[me.\]

Enter JASPER.
Jasp. Luce! dear friend Luce!
Luce. Here, Jasper.
Jasp. You are mine.
Hum. If it be so, my friend, you use me fine.
What do you think I am?
Jasp. An arrant noddy.
Hum. A word of obloquy! Now, by God's body, I'll tell thy master; for I know thee well.
Jasp. Nay, an you be so forward for to tell, Take that, and that; and tell him, sir, I gave it: And say, I paid you well. [Beats him.]
Hum. Oh, sir, I have it, And do confess the payment! Pray, be quiet.
Jasp. Go, get [you] to your night-cap and the diet,
To cure your beaten bones.
Luce. Alas, poor Humphrey; Get thee some wholesome broth, with sage and comfrey;^3 A little oil of roses and a feather To 'noth thy back withal.
Hum. When I came hither, Would I had gone to Paris with John Dory!^4
Luce. Farewell, my pretty nump; I am very sorry
I cannot bear thee company.
Hum. Farewell: The devil's dam was ne'er so bang'd in hell.
Exeunt LUCE and JASPER.

[Scene V.]

[HUMPHREY MANET.] Enter RALPH, MISTRESS MERRYTHOUGHT, MICHAEL, Squire [TOM], and DWARF [GEORGE].

Ralph. What knight is that, squire? Ask him if he keep
The passage, bound by love of lady fair, Or else but prikant.\[13\]
Hum. Sir, I am no knight, But a poor gentleman, that this same night Had stolen from me, on yonder green, My lovely wife, and suffered (to be seen Yet extant on my shoulders) such a greeting, That whilst I live I shall think of that meeting.

Wife. Ay, Ralph, he beat him unmercifully, Ralph; an thou sparest him, Ralph, I would 'twere hung'd.
Ct. No more, wife, no more.

Ralph. Where is the caitiff-wretch hath done this deed?
Lady, your pardon, that I may proceed Upon the quest of this injurious knight.— And thou, fair squire, repute me not the worse, In leaving the great venture of the purse And the rich casket, till some better leisure.

2. Befoul.
3. A healing herb.
4. John Dory, according to the legend, engaged with the King of France to bring the crew of an English ship prisoners to Paris, but was himself captured whilst making the attempt. The song and tune were for a long time popular in England. (Strachey.)
5. Teach him.
6. Vagaries.
7. A lump.
8. Appease (?) (Moorman.) Perhaps, have him bound to keep the peace.
10. Wager.
11. Silence!
12. The same.
13. Traveling, spurring along.
Enter Jasper and Luce.

Hum. Here comes the broker hath purloin’d my treasure.

Ralph. Go, squire, and tell him I am here. An errant knight-at-arms, to crave delivery Of that fair lady to her own knight’s arms. If he deny, bid him take choice of ground, And so defy him.

Tim. From the Knight that bears The Golden Pestle, I defy thee, knight. Unless thou make fair restitution Of that bright lady.

Jasp. Tell the knight that sent thee, He is an ass; and I will keep the wench, And knock his head-piece.

Ralph. Knight, thou art but dead If thou recall not thy uncomteous terms.

Wife. Break’s pate, Ralph; break’s pate, Ralph, soundly!

Jasp. Come, knight; I am ready for you. Now your Pestle (Snatches away his pestle.) Shall try what temper, sir, your mortar’s of.”

With that he stood upright in his stirrups, — and gave the Knight of the calf-skin such a knock [Knocks Ralph down.] that he forsook his horse, and down he fell: and then he leaped upon him, and plucking off his helmet. —

Hum. Nay, an my noble knight be down so soon,

Though I can scarcely go, I needs must run. —

Exeunt Humphrey and Ralph.

Wife. Run, Ralph, run, Ralph; run for thy life, boy;

Jasper comes, Jasper comes!

Jasp. Come Luce, we must have other arms for you: Humphrey, and Golden Pestle, both adieu! —

Exeunt.

Wife. Sure the devil (God bless us!) is in this spring-gald! Why, George, didst ever see such a fire-dracon? I am afraid my boy’s miscarried: if he be, though he were Master Merrythought’s son a thousand times, if there be any law in England, I’ll make some of them smart for’t.

Cit. No, no; I have found out the matter, sweetheart; Jasper is enchanted; as sure as we are here, he is enchanted: he could no more have stood in Ralph’s hands than I can in my lord mayor’s. I’ll have a ring to discover all enchantments, and Ralph shall beat him yet. Be no more vex, for it shall be so.

[Scene VI.]

Enter Ralph, Mistress Merrythought, Michael, Squire [Tim], and Dwarf [George].

Wife. Oh, husband, here’s Ralph again! — Stay, Ralph, let me speak with thee. How dost thou, Ralph? Art thou not shrewdly. 4

1 Youth.
2 Before the Bell Inn, Waltham.
3 Fiery dragon.
4 Severely.

hurt? — The foul great lungies 6 laid unmercifully on thee: there’s some sugar-candy for thee. Proceed; thou shalt have another bout with him.

Cit. If Ralph had him at the fencing-school, if he did not make a puppy of him, and drive him up and down the school, he should ne’er [10 come in my shop more.

Mich. Indeed, la, mother, and I am very hungry.

Ralph. Take comfort, gentle dame, and you fair squire;

For in this desert there must needs be place’d Many strong castles held by courteous knights; And till I bring you safe to one of those, I swear by this my order ne’er to leave you. 20 Wife. Well said, Ralph! — George, Ralph was ever comfortable, 3 was he not?

Cit. Yes, duck.

Wife. I shall never forget him. When we had lost our child, (you know it was stray’d al- most, alone, to Puddle-Wharf, and the criers were abroad for it, and there it had drown’d itself but for a sculler,) Ralph was the most comfortable to me: “Peace, mistress,” says he, “let it go; I’ll get you another as good.” 24

Did he not, George, did he not say so?

Cit. Yes, indeed did he, mouse.

George. I would we had a mess of pottage and a pot of drink, squire, and were going to bed! —

Tim. Why, we are at Waltham town’s end, and that’s the Bell Inn.

George. Take courage, valiant knight, damsel, and squire! I have discovered, not a stone cast off, An ancient castle, held by the old knight Of the most holy order of the Bell, Who gives to all knights-errant entertain. There plenty is of food, and all prepar’d By the white hands of his own lady dear. He hath three squires that welcome all his guests;

The first, high; Chamberlino, who will see Our beds prepar’d, and bring us snowy sheets, Where never footman stretch’d his butter’d hams; —

The second, light Tapetero, who will see Our pots full fill’d, and no froth therein; The third, a gentle squire, Ostlero big, Who will our palfreys sicken with waves of straw, And in the manger put them oats enough, And never grease their teeth with candle- snuff. 8

Wife. That same dwarf’s a pretty boy, but the squire’s a groan. —

8 Great dirty lout.
6 Consoling.
7 Running footmen had their legs greased to keep them supple.
8 A common trick of the ostlers in the time to prevent the horses from eating the hay. (Weber.)
9 Blockhead.

THE KNIGHT OF THE BURNING PESTLE

---

Ralph. Knock at the gates, my squire, with stately lance. [Tim knocks at the door.]

Enter Tapster.

Tap. Who's there? — You're welcome, gentlemen: will you see a room?

George. Right courteous and valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle, this is the Squire [as Tapster.

Ralph. Fair Squire Tapster, I a wandering knight,

Hight of the Burning Pestle, in the quest
Of this fair lady's casket and wrought purse,
Losing myself in this vast wilderness,
Am to this castle well by fortune brought;
Where, hearing of the goodly entertain
Your knight of holy order of the Bell
Gives to all damsels and all errant knights,
I thought to knock, and now am bold to enter.

Tap. An't please you see a chamber, you are very welcome. [Exeunt.

Wife. George, I would have something done, and I cannot tell what it is.

Cit. What is it, Nell?

Wife. Why, George, shall Ralph beat nobody again? Prifthee, sweetheart, let him.

Cit. So he shall, Nell; and if I join with him, we'll knock them all.

[SCENE VII.]

Enter Humphrey and Merchant [Ventu-

Wife. Oh, George, here's Master Humphrey again now, that lost Mistress Luce, and Mistress Luce's father. Master Humphrey will do somebody's errand, I'll warrant him.

Hum. Father, it's true in arms I ne'er shall clasp her;
For she is stolen away by your man Jasper.

Wife. I thought he would tell him.

Vent. Unhappy that I am, to lose my child!
Now I begin to think on Jasher's words,
That old man urg'd [to] me thy foolishness. Why didst thou let her go? Thou lovest her not. That wouldst bring home thy life, and not bring her.

Hum. Father, forgive me. Shall I tell you true?
Look on my shoulders, they are black and blue. Whilst to and fro fair Luce and I were winding,
He came and basted me with a hedge-binding.

Vent. Get men and horses straight: we will be there.
Within this hour. You know the place again? [Hum. I know the place where he my loins did swaddle;

---

1 A room in the house of Venturewell.
2 Something used to bind together the bushes composing a hedge. (N. E. D.)

---

Wife. George, what wilt thou lay with me now, that Master Humphrey has not Mistress Luce yet? Speak, George, what wilt thou lay with me?

Cit. No, Nell; I warrant thee Jasper is at Puckeridge with her by this.

Wife. Nay, George, you must consider Mistress Luce's feet are tender; and besides 'tis dark; and, I promise you truly, I do not see how he should get out of Waltham-forest with her yet.

Cit. Nay, cony, what wilt thou lay with me, that Ralph has her not yet?

Wife. I will not lay against Ralph, honey, because I have not spoken with him. But look, George, peace! here comes the merry old gentleman again.

[SCENE VIII.]

Enter old MERRYTHOUGHT.

Mer. [sings.]

When it was grown to dark midnight,
And all were fast asleep,
In came Margaret's grimy ghost,
And stood at William's feet.

I have money, and meat, and drink before [s hand, till to-morrow at noon; why should I be sad? Methinks I have half-a-dozen jovial spirits within me!

[Sings.]

I am three merry men, and three merry men!
To what end should any man be sad in this world? Give me a man who when he goes to hanging cries,

Troul the black bowl to me!

and a woman that will sing a catch in her travail! I have seen a man come by my door with a serious face, in a black cloak, without a hatband, carrying his head as if he lookt for pins in the street; I have lookt out of my window half a year after, and have spied that man's head upon London-bridge. This vile: never trust a tailor that does not sing at his work; his mind is of nothing but fileching.

Wife. Mark this, George; 'tis worth noting:
Godfrey my tailor, you know, never sings, and he had fourteen yards to make this gown: as I'll be sworn, Mistress Penistone the draper's wife had one made with twelve.

Mer. [sings.]

'Tis mirth that fills the veins with blood,
More than wine, or sleep, or food;
Let each man keep his heart at ease,
No man dies of that disease.

---

3 Thirteen miles beyond Waltham.
4 A room in Merrythought's house.
5 Pass.
6 Where the heads of traitors and heretics were exposed.
He that would his body keep
From diseases, must not weep;
But whoever laughs and sings,
Never he his body brings. 86
Into fevers, gouts, or rheums,
Or long’ringly his lungs consumes,
Or meets with aches in the bone,
Or catarrhs or griping stone;
But contented lives for aye;
The more he laughs, the more he may.

Wife. Look, George; how sayest thou by this, George? Is’t not a fine old man? — Now, God’s blessing a’ thy sweet lips! — When wilt thou be so merry, George? Faith, thou art 55 the frowning’est little thing, when thou art angry, in a country.

_Enter Merchant [VENTUREWELL]._

Cit. Peace, cony; thou shalt see him taken down too, I warrant thee. Here’s Luce’s father come now.

Mer. [sings.]

As you came from Walsingham,
From that holy land,
There met you not with my true love
By the way as you came?

_Vent._ Oh, Master Merrythought, my daughter’s gone!

This mirth becomes you not; my daughter’s gone!

Mer. [sings.]

Why, an if she be, what care I?
Or let her come, or go, or tarry.

_Vent._ Mock not my misery; it is your son (Whom I have made my own, when all forsook him)

Has stolen my only joy, my child, away.

Mer. [sings.]

He set her on a milk-white steed,
And himself upon a grey;
He never turn’d his face again,
But he bore her quite away.

_Vent._ Unworthy of the kindness I have shown
To thee and thine! too late I well perceive
Thou art consenting to my daughter’s loss.

Mer. Your daughter! what a stir ’s here wi’ your daughter? Let her go, think no more [on] her, but sing loud. If both my sons were on the gallows, I would sing;

Down, down, down they fall;
Down, and arise they never shall.

_Vent._ Oh, might I behold her once again, 76
And she once more embrace her aged sire!

Mer. Fie, how scurvily this goes! "And she once more embrace her aged sire?" You’ll make a dog on her, will ye? She cares much for her aged sire, I warrant you. [Sings.]

She cares not for her daddy, nor 81
She cares not for her mamma,
For she is, she is, she is, she is
My lord of Lowgave’s lassy.

Vent. For this thy scorn I will pursue that son
Of thine to death.

Mer. Do; and when you ha’ kill’d him

[Sings.]

Give him flowers now, palmer, give him flowers now;
Give him red, and white, and blue, green, and yellow.

Vent. I’ll fetch my daughter—

Mer. I’ll hear no more a’ your daughter; it spoils my mirth.

Vent. I say, I’ll fetch my daughter.

Mer. [sings.]

Was never man for lady’s sake,
De derry down,
For Lucy’s sake, that lady bright,
Down, down,
As ever men beheld with eye, De derry down.

_Vent._ I’ll be reveng’d, by Heaven! _Exeunt [severally]._

Music.

_Wife._ How dost thou like this, George?
Cit. Why, this is well, cony; but if Ralph were hot once, thou shouldst see more.

_Wife._ The fiddlers go again, husband.

_Cit._ Ay, Nell; but this is scurvy music. I gave the whoreson gallows money, and I think he has not got me the waits of Southwark. If I hear ’em not anon, I’ll twinge him by the ear,—You musicians, play Baloo! 105

_Wife._ No, good George, let’s ha’ Lachrymae! _Cit._ Why, this is it, cony.
_Wife._ It’s all the better, George. Now, sweet lamb, what story is that painted upon the cloth? The Confitution of St. Paul? 115

_Cit._ No, lamb; that’s Ralph and Lucrece. _Wife._ Ralph and Lucrece! Which Ralph? Our Ralph?

_Cit._ No, mouse; that was a Tartarian.1

_Wife._ A Tartarian! Well, I would the fiddlers had done, that we might see our Ralph again!

ACT III

_SCENE I.²_

_Enter JASPER and LUCE._

Jasp. Come, my dear dear; though we have lost our way,
We have not lost ourselves. Are you not weary With this night’s wand’ring, broken from your rest, And frighted with the terror that attends The darkness of this wild unpeopled place? 8

_Luce._ No, my best friend; I cannot either fear, Or entertain a weary thought, whilst you (The end of all my full desires) stand by me. Let them that lose their hopes, and live to languish

[Thief.]

² Waltham-forest.
Amidst the number of forsaken lovers,
Tell the long weary steps, and number time,
Start at a shadow, and shrink up their blood,
Whilst I (possess with all content and quiet)
Thus take my pretty love, and thus embrace
her.

Jasp. You have caught me, Luce, so fast, that, whilst I live,
I shall become your faithful prisoner,
And wear these chains for ever. Come, sit down,
And rest your body, too, too delicate
For these disturbances. — [They sit down.] So:
will you sleep?
Come, do not be more able 1 than you are;
I know you are not skilful in these watches,
For women are no soldiers. Be not nice, 2
But take it; 3 sleep, I say.

Luce. I cannot sleep;
Indeed, I cannot, friend.

Jasp. Why, then we'll sing,
And try how that will work upon our senses. 25
Luce. I'll sing, or say, or any thing but sleep.

Jasp. Come, little mermaid, rob me of my heart
With that enchanting voice.

Luce. You mock me, Jasper. [They sing.]

Song.

Jasp. Tell me, dearest, what is love?
Luce. 'Tis a lightning from above;
'Tis an arrow, 'tis a fire,
'Tis a boy they call Desire;
'Tis a smile,
Doth beguile.

Jasp. The poor hearts of men that prove. 35

Tell me more, are women true?
Luce. Some love change, and so do you.

Jasp. Are they fair and never kind?
Luce. Yes, when men turn with the wind.

Jasp. Are they froward? 40
Luce. Ever toward
Those that love, to love anew.

Jasp. Dissemble it no more; I see the god
Of heavy sleep lay on his heavy mace 44
Upon your eyelids.

Luce. I am very heavy. [Sleeps.]

Jasp. Sleep, sleep; and quiet rest crown thy sweet thoughts!
Keep from her fair blood distempers, startings,
Horrors, and fearful shapes! Let all her dreams
Be joys, and chaste delights, embraces, wishes,
And such new pleasures as the ravish't soul 50
Gives to the senses! — So; my charms have took. —
Keep her, you powers divine, whilst I contemplate
Upon the wealth and beauty of her mind!
She is only fair and constant, only kind,
And only to thee, Jasper. Oh, my joys! 66
Whither will you transport me? Let not fulness

1 Capable of endurance. 2 Foolish. 3 Give in.
Enter Merchant [Venturewell], Humphrey, and his men.

Vent. Whereabouts? Jasp. No more of this; now to myself again. [Aside.]

Hum. There, he stands, with sword, like martial knight, Drawn in his hand; therefore beware the fight, You that be wise; for, were I good Sir Bevis, I would not stay his coming, by your leaves. Vent. Sirrah, restore my daughter! Jasp. Sirrah, no. Vent. Upon him, then! [They attack Jasper, and force Luce from him.]

Wife. So; down with him, down with him, down with him! Cut him i' the leg, boys, cut him i' the leg! 118

Vent. Come your ways, minion: I'll provide a cage For you, you're grown so tame.—Horse her away.

Hum. Truly, I'm glad your forces have the day. Except all except Jasper.

Jasp. They are gone, and I am hurt; my love is lost, Never to get again. Oh, me unhappy! Bleed, bleed and die! I cannot. Oh, my folly, Thou hast betray'd me! Hope, where art thou fled? Tell me, if thou be'st any where remaining, Shall I but see my love again? Oh, no! 115 She will not design to look upon her butcher, Nor is it fit she should; yet I must venture. Oh, Chance, or Fortune, or whatsoever thou art, That men adores for powerful, hear my cry, And let me loving live, or losing die! Exit.

Wife. Is 'a gone, George? 131

Cit. Ay, cony.

Wife. Marry, and let him go, sweetheart. By the faith a' my body, 'a has put me into such a fright, that I tremble (as they say) as [135 't were an aspen-leaf. Look a' my little finger, George, how it shakes. Now, 't truth, every member of my body is the worse for 't. Cit. Come, hug in mine arms, sweet mouse; he shall not fright thee any more. Alas, mine own dear heart, how it quivers! 141

[Scene II.]

Enter Mistress Merrythought, Ralph, Michael, Squire [Tim], Dwarf [George], Host, and Tapster.

Wife. Oh, Ralph! how dost thou, Ralph? How hast thou slept to-night? Has the knight us'd thee well? Cit. Peace, Nell; let Ralph alone.

Tap. Master, the reckoning is not paid. 8 Ralph. Right courteous knight, who, for the order's sake

Which thou hast ta'en, hang'st out the holy Bell,
As I this flaming Pestle bear about,
We render thanks to your puissant self,
Your beauteous lady, and your gentle squires, 12
For thus refreshing of our wearied limbs,
Stiff'n'd with hard achievements in wild desert.

Taps. Sir, there is twelve shillings to pay.

Ralph. Thou merry Squire Tapster, thanks to thee
For comforting our souls with double jug: 19
And, if adventurous fortune prick thee forth,
Thou jovial squire, to follow feats of arms,
Take heed thou tender every lady's cause,
Every true knight, and every damsel fair;
But spill the blood of treacherous Saracens, 20
And false enchanters that with magic spells
Have done to death full many a noble knight.

Host. Thou valiant Knight of the Burning Pestle, give ear to me; there is twelve shillings to pay, and, as I am a true knight, I will not 26 bate a penny.

Wife. George, I prithee, tell me, must Ralph pay twelve shillings now? Cit. No, Nell; no; nothing but the old knight is merry with Ralph. 30

Wife. Oh, is 't nothing else? Ralph will be as merry as he.

Ralph. Sir Knight, this mirth of yours becomes you well;
But, to requite this liberal courtesy,
If any of your squires will follow arms,
He shall receive from my heroic hand
A knighthood, by the virtue of this Pestle.

Host. Fair knight, I thank you for your noble offer:
Therefore, gentle knight,
Twelve shillings you must pay, or I must cap 3 you.

Wife. Look, George! did not I tell thee as much? The knight of the Bell is in earnest. Ralph shall not be beholding to him; give him his money, George, and let him go sick up. 6 Cit. Cap Ralph? No.—Hold your hand, [as Sir Knight of the Bell; there 's your money [Gives money]; have you any thing to say to Ralph now? Cap Ralph!

Wife. I would you should know it, Ralph has friends that will not suffer him to be cap't [as for ten times so much, and ten times to the end of that. — Now take thy course, Ralph.

Mist. Mer. Come, Michael; thou and I will go home to thy father; he hath enough left to keep us a day or two, and we 'll set fellows [as abroad to cry our purse and our casket: shall we, Michael? 7

Mich. Ay, I pray, mother; in truth my feet are full of chilblains with travelling.

Wife. Faith, and those chilblains are a [as foul trouble. Mistress Merrythought, when

2 Arrest.
3 Go hang.
your youth comes home, let him rub all the soles of his feet, and his heels, and his ankles, with a mouse-skin; or, if none of your people can catch a mouse, when he goes to bed, let me him roll his feet in the warm embers, and, I warrant you, he shall be well; and you may make him put his fingers between his toes, and smell to them; it's very sovereign for his head, if he be costive.

Mist. Mer. Master Knight of the Burning Pestle, my son Michael and I bid you farewell: I thank your worship heartily for your kindness.

Ralph. Farewell, fair lady, and your tender squire.

If pricking through these deserts, I do hear Of any traitorous knight, who through his guise Hath light upon your casket and your purse, I will dispoil him of them, and restore them. Mist. Mer. I thank your worship.

Ralph. Dwarf, bear my shield; squire, elevate my lance:— And now farewell, you Knight of holy Bell.

Cit. Ay, ay, Ralph, all is paid.

Ralph. But yet, before I go, speak, worthy knight, If aught you do of sad adventures know, Where errant knight may through his prowess win Eternal fame, and free some gentle souls From endless bonds of steel and ling'ring pain. Host. Sirrah, go to Nick the barber, and bid him prepare himself, as I told you before, quickly.

Tap. I am gone, sir. Exit. Host. Sir Knight, this wilderness affordeth none But the great venture, where full many a knight Hath tri'd his prowess, and come off with shame; And where I would not have you lose your life Against no man, but furious fiend of hell. Ralph. Speak on, Sir Knight; tell what he is and where:

For here I vow, upon my blazing badge, Never to blaze a day in quietness, But bread and water will I only eat, And the green herb and rock shall be my couch, Till I have quell'd that man, or beast, or fiend, That works such damage to all errant knights. Host. Not far from hence, near to a craggy cliff.

At the north end of this distressed town, There doth stand a lowly house, Ruggedly builded, and in it a cave In which an ugly giant now doth win, Ycleped Barbaroso: in his hand

He shakes a naked lance of purest steel, With sleeves turn'd up; and him before he wears A motley garment, to preserve his clothes From blood of those knights which he massacres, And ladies gent: 4 without his door doth hang A copper basin on a pricking spear; At which no sooner gentle knights can knock, But the shrill sound fierce Barbaroso hears, And rushing forth, brings in the errant knight And sets him down in an enchanted chair; Then with an engine, which he hath prepar'd, With forty teeth, he claws his courtly crown; Next makes him wink, and underneath his chin He plants a brazen piece of mighty boulders And knocks his bullets round about his cheeks;

Whilst with his fingers, and an instrument With which he snaps his hair off, he doth fill The wretch's ears with a most hideous noise. Thus every knight-adventurer he doth trim, And now no creature dares encounter him. Ralph. In God's name, I will fight him. Kind sir, Go but before me to this dismal cave, Where this huge giant Barbaroso dwells, And, by that virtue that brave Rosicule, That damned brood of ugly giants slew, And Palmerin Frannasco overthrew, I doubt not but to curb this traitor foul, And to the devil send his guilty soul. Host. Brave-sprighted knight, thus far I will perform This your request: I'll bring you within sight Of this most loathsome place, inhabited By a more loathsome man; but dare not stay, For his main force swoops all he sees away. Ralph. Saint George, set on before! March squire and page! Exeunt.

Wife. George, dost think Ralph will con— found the giant?

Cit. I hold my cap to a farthing he does. Why, Nell, I saw him wrestle with the great Dutchman, and hurl him.

Wife. Faith, and that Dutchman was a goodly man, if all things were answerable to his bigness. And yet they say there was a Scotchman higher than he, and that they two and a knight met, and saw one another for nothing. But of all the sights that ever were in London, since I was married, methinks the little child that was so fair grown about the members was the prettiest; that and the hermaphrodite. Cit. Nay, by your leave, Nell, Ninivie was better.

Wife. Ninivie! Oh, that was the story of Jone and the wall, 5 was it not, George?

Cit. Yes, lamb.

1. Serious.
2. Killed.
3. Dwelt.
4. Elegant, courteous, noble.
5. Pointing upward. The reference is, of course, to the usual sign of the barber-surgeon.
6. Circumference.
8. I.e. The puppet-show of Nineveh.
Enter Mistress Merrythought.

Wife. Look, George, here comes Mistress Merrythought again! and I would have Ralph come and fight with the giant; I tell you true, I long to see 't.

Cit. Good Mistress Merrythought, begone, [I pray you, for my sake; I pray you, forbear a little; you shall have audience presently; I have a little business.

Wife. Mistress Merrythought, if it please you to refrain your passion a little, till Ralph [have despatched the giant out of the way, we shall think ourselves much bound to you. I thank you, good Mistress Merrythought.

Exit Mistress Merrythought.

Enter a Boy.

Boy, come hither. Send away Ralph and this whoreson giant quickly.

Boy. In good faith, sir, we cannot; you'll utterly spoil our play, and make it to be hit; and it cost money; you will not suffer us to go on with our plot. I pray, gentlemen, rule him.

Cit. Let him come now and despatch this, [and I'll trouble you no more.

Boy. Will you give me your hand of that?

Wife. Give him thy hand, George, do; and I'll kiss him. I warrant thee, the youth means plainly.

Boy. I'll send him to you presently.2

Wife. [kissing him.] I thank you, little youth. (Exit Boy.) Faith, the child hath a sweet breath, George; but I think it be troubled with the worms; cardius benedictus and marc's milk were the only thing in the world for 't.

[SCENE IV.] 8

Enter Ralph, Host, Tim, and George.

Wife. Oh, Ralph! 's here, George! — God send thee good luck, Ralph!

Host. Puissant knight, yonder his mansion is. Lo, where the spears and copper basin are! Behold that string, on which hangs many a tooth, drawn from the gentle jaw of wand'ring knights! I dare not stay to sound; he will appear.4

Ralph. Oh, faint not, heart! Susan, my lady dear, The cobbler's maid in Milk-street, for whose sake I take these arms, oh, let the thought of thee Carry thy knight through all adventurous deeds; And, in the honour of thy beauteous self, May I destroy this monster Barbaroso! — Knock, squire, upon the basin, till it break. 14 With the shrill strokes, or till the giant speak.

[Tim knocks upon the basin.]

Enter Barber.

Wife. Oh, George, the giant, the giant! —

Bar. What fond 5 unkowning wight is this, that dares
So rudely knock at Barbaroso’s cell,
Where no man comes but leaves his fleece behind?

Ralph. I, traitorous caitiff, who am sent by fate
To punish all the sad enormities
Thou hast committed against ladies gent
And errant knights. Traitor to God and men,
Prepare thyself! This is the dismal hour
Appointed for thee to give strict account
Of all thy beastly treacherous villainies.

Bar. Fool-hardy knight, full soon thou shalt aby 6
This fond reproach: thy body will I hang; 29
Takes down his pole.

And, lo, upon that string thy teeth shall hang! Prepare thyself, for dead soon shalt thou be.

Ralph. Saint George for me! They fight. Bar. Gargantua for me!

Wife. To him, Ralph, to him! hold up the giant; set out thy leg before, Ralph! 35

Cit. Falsify a blow, Ralph, falsify a blow! The giant lies open on the left side.

Wife. Bear t' off, bear t' off still! there, boy! —

Oh, Ralph's almost down, Ralph's almost down!

Ralph. Susan, inspire me! Now have up again. 40

Wife. Up, up, up, up, up! so, Ralph! down with him, down with him, Ralph! Cit. Fetch him o'er the lip, boy!

[Ralph knocks down the Barber.]

Wife. There, boy! kill, kill, kill, kill, kill, Ralph!

Cit. No, Ralph; get all out of him first. 45

Ralph. Presumptuous man, see to what des- perate end
Thy treachery hath brought thee! The just gods,
Who never prosper those that do despise them,
For all the villainies which thou hast done,
To knights and ladies, now have paid thee home
By my stiff arm, a knight adventurous.

But say, vile wretch, before I send thy soul
To sad Avernum, whither it must go,
What captives holdst thou in thy sable cave? Bar. Go in, and free them all; thou hast the day.

Ralph. Go, squire and dwarf, search in this dreadful cave,
And free the wretched prisoners from their bonds.

Exeunt Tim and George. 59

6 Foolish. 6 Pay for. 7 Feign.
Bar. I crave for mercy, as thou art a knight,
And I demand to spill the blood of those that beare.

Ralph. Thou show'st no mercy, nor shalt thou have any:
Prepare thyself, for thou shalt surely die.

Re-enter Squire [Tm], leading one winking, with a Basin under his Chin.

Tim. Behold, brave knight, here is one prisoner,
Whom this wild man hath used as you see.

Wife. This is the first wise word I heard the squire speak.

Ralph. Speak what thou art, and how thou hast been us'd,
That I may give him condign punishment.

1 Kn. I am a knight that took my journey post
Northward from London; and in courteous
wise
This giant train'd me to his loathsome den,
Under pretence of killing of the itch;
And all my body with a powder strew'd,
That smarted and stings; and cut away my beard;
And my curl'd locks wherein were ribands ti'd;
And with a water wash'd my tender eyes.
(Whiles up and down about me still he skipt,)
Whose virtue is, that, till my eyes be wipt
With a dry cloth, for this my foul disgrace,
I shall not dare to look a dog i' th' face.

Wife. Alas, poor knight!—Relieve him, [80]
Ralph; relieve poor knights, whilst you live.

Ralph. My trusty squire, convey him to the town,
Where he may find relief.—Adieu, fair knight.
Exit 1 Knight.

Re-enter Dwarf [George], leading one, with a patch o'er his nose.

George. Puissant Knight, of the Burning Pestle hight,
See here another wretch, whom this foul beast
Hath scour'd 1 and seor'd in this inhuman wise.

Ralph. Speak me thy name, and eke thy place of birth,
And what hath been thy usage in this cave.
2 Kn. I am a knight, Sir Pockhole is my name,
And by my birth I am a Londoner,
Free by my copy, 2 but my ancestors
Were Frenchmen 3 all; and riding hard this
way
Upon a trotting horse, my bones did ache;
And I, faint knight, to ease my weary limbs,
Light at this cave; when straight this furious
fiend,
With sharpest instruments of purest steel,
Did cut the gristle of my nose away,
And in the place this velvet plaster stands.
Relieve me, gentle knight, out of his hands!
90

Wife. Good Ralph, relieve Sir Pockhole, and send him away; for in truth his breath stinks.

Ralph. Convey him straight after the other knight.—
Sir Pockhole, fare you well.

2 Kn. Kind sir, good night. Exit.
Man. [within.] Deliver us! Cries within.
Woman. [within.] Deliver us!
100

Wife. Hark, George, what a woeful cry there is! I think some woman lies-in there.

Man. [within.] Deliver us!
Women. [within.] Deliver us!
Ralph. What ghastly noise is this? Speak,
Barbaroso,
Or, by this blazing steel, thy head goes off!
Bar. Prisoners of mine, whom I in diet keep.
Send lower down into the cave,
And in a tub that's heated smoking hot,
There may they find them, and deliver them.
110
Ralph. Run, squire and dwarf; deliver them with speed. Execunt Tim and George.

Wife. But will not Ralph kill this giant?
Surely I am afraid, if he let him go, he will do as much hurt as ever he did.

Cit. Not so, mouse, neither, if he could convert him.

Wife. Ay, George, if he could convert him; but a giant is not so soon converted as one of our ordinary people. There's a pretty tale of a witch, that had the devil's mark about her, (God bless us!) that had a giant to her son, that was call'd Lob-lie-by-the-fire; didst never hear it, George?

Re-enter Squire [Tm], leading a Man, with a glass of lotion in his hand, and Dwarf [George], leading a Woman, with diet-bread and drink
in her hand.

Cit. Peace, Nell, here comes the prisoners.

George. Here be these pined wretches, manful
knight,

That for this six weeks have not seen a wight.
Ralph. Deliver what you are, and how you came.

To this sad cave, and what your usage was?

Man. I am an errant knight that followed arms
With spear and shield; and in my tender years
I stricken was with Cupid's fiery shaft,
And fell in love with this my lady dear,
And stole her from her friends in Turnbull-
street,
And bore her np and down from town to town,
Where we did eat and drink, and music hear;
Till at the length at this unhappy town
We did arrive, and coming to this cave,

1 The resort of prostitutes.
This beast us caught, and put us in a tub,
Where we this two months sweat, and should have done.
Another month, if you had not reliev’d us. 140

Woman. This bread and water hath our diet been.
Together with a rib out from a neck
Of burned mutton; hard hath been our fare.
Release us from this ugly giant’s snare! 160

Man. This hath been all the food we have receiv’d;
But only twice a-day, for novelty,
He gave a spoonful of this hearty broth
To each of us, through this same slender quill.

Pul’s out a syringe.

Ralph. From this infernal monster you shall go,
That useth knights and gentle ladies so!— 156
Convey them hence.

Exeunt Man and Woman.

Cit. Cony, I can tell thee, the gentlemen like Ralph.

Wife. Ay, George, I see it well enough.— Gentlemen, I thank you all heartily for 160 graceful my man Ralph; and I promise you, you shall see him off her.

Bar. Mercy, great knight! I do recount my ill,
And henceforth never gentle blood will spill.

Ralph. I give thee mercy; but yet shalt thou swear
Upon my Burning Pestle, to perform Thy promise uttered.

Bar. I swear and kiss. [Kisses the Pestle.] Ralph. Depart, then, and amend.— [Exit Barber.]

Come, squire and dwarf; the sun grows towards his set,
And we have many more adventures yet. 170

Exeunt.

Cit. Now Ralph is in this humour, I know he would ha’ beaten all the boys in the house, if they had been set on him.

Wife. Ay, George, but it is well as it is. I warrant you, the gentlemen do consider what it is to overthrow a giant. But, look, George; here comes Mistress Merrythought, and her son Michael. Now you are welcome, Mistress Merrythought; now Ralph has done, you may go on.

[Scene V.]

Enter Mistress Merrythought and Mic- checkbox. 1

Mist. Mer. Mick, my boy—
Mist. Mer. Be merry, Mick; we are at home now; where, I warrant you, you shall find the house hung out of the windows. [Music within.] 5

Hark! hey, dogs, hey! this is the old world, 8
If faith, with my husband. If I get in among
1 A common method of treating syphilis.
2 The street before Merrythought’s house.
3 His old habits.
4 Military leader.
5 Ignorant (?) ingrate(?)

'em, I’ll play 'em such a lesson, that they shall have little list to come scraping hither again.— Why, Master Merrythought! husband! Charles Merrythought! 11

Mer. [appearing above, and singing.]
If you will sing, and dance, and laugh,
And hollow, and laugh again.
And then cry, "There, boys, there!" why, then,
One, two, three, and four,
We shall be merry within this hour.

Mist. Mer. Why, Charles, do you not know your own natural wife? I say, open the door, and turn me out those many companions; 'tis more than time that they were fellow and 6 fellow-like with you. You are a gentleman, Charles, and an old man, and father of two children; and I myself, (though I say it) by my mother’s side nieces to a worshipful gentleman and a conductor; 4 he has been three times as in his majesty’s service at Chester, and is now the fourth time, God bless him and his charge, upon his journey.

Mer. [sings.]

Go from my window, love, go; 30
Go from my window, my dear! The wind and the rain
Will drive you back again;
You cannot be lodged here.

Hark you, Mistress Merrythought, you that walk upon adventures, and forsake your hus- band, because he sings with never a penny in his purse; what, shall I think myself the worse? Faith, no, I’ll be merry. You come not here; here’s none but lads of mettle, lives of a hundred years and upwards; care never 40 drunk their bloods, nor want made ‘em warble "Heigh-ho, my heart is heavy."

Mist. Mer. Why, Master Merrythought, what am I, that you should laugh to scorn thus abruptly? Am I not your fellow-feeler, as 45 we may say, in all our miseries? your comforter in health and sickness? Have I not brought you children? Are they not like you, Charles? look upon thine own image, hard-hearted man! and yet for all this—

Mer. [sings.]

Begone, begone, my jugg, my puggy,
Begone, my love, my dear!
The weather is warm,
’Twill do thee no harm:
Thou canst not be lodged here.—

Be merry, boys! some light music, and more wine! [Exit above.]

Wife. He’s not in earnest, I hope, George, is he?

Cit. What if he be, sweetheart?

Wife. Marry, if he be, George, I’ll make bold to tell him he’s an ingrati 6 old man to use his bed-fellow so scurvily.

Cit. What! how does he use her, honey?

Wife. Marry, come up, sir saucebox! I think you’ll take his part, will you not? Lord, how (as bot you are grown! You are a fine man, an you had a fine dog; it becomes you sweetly!

1 A common method of treating syphilis.
2 The street before Merrythought’s house.
3 His old habits.
4 Military leader.
5 Ignorant (?) ingrate(?
of my mind yet. — Gentlemen, I'll begin to you all; and I desire more of your acquaintance with all my heart. [Drinks.] Fill the gentlemen some beer, George. Music. Boy dance. Look, George; the little boy's come again: methinks he looks something like the Prince of Orange in his long stocking, if he had a little harness about his neck. George, I will have him dance Fading. — Fading is a fine jig. [i] I'll assure you, gentlemen. — Begin, brother. — Now 'a capers, sweetheart! — Now a turn i' th' toe, and then tumble! cannot you tumble, youth?

Boy. No, indeed, forsooth.

Wife. Nor eat fire?

Boy. Neither.

Wife. Why, then, I thank you heartily; there's twopence to buy you points with.

ACT IV

SCENE I.

Enter Jasper and Boy.

Jasp. There, boy, deliver this; but do it well.

Hast thou provided me four lusty fellows, [Gives a letter.]

Able to carry me? and art thou perfect in all thy business?

Boy. Sir, you need not fear; I have my lesson here, and cannot miss it: the men are ready for you, and what else Pertains to this employment.

Jasp. There, my boy; Take it, but buy no land. [Gives money.]

Boy. Faith, sir, 't were rare

To see so young a purchaser. I fly,
And on my wings carry your destiny.

Jasp. Go and be happy! [Exit Boy.] Now, my latest hope, Forsake me not, but firing th' anchor out, And let it hold! Stand fixt, thou rolling stone, Till I enjoy my dearest! Hear me, all You powers, that rule in men, celestial! Exit.

Wife. Go thy ways; thou art as crooked a sprig as ever grew in London. I warrant him, he'll come to some naughty end or other; for his looks say no less: besides, his father (you know, George) is none of the best; you heard [b] him take me up like a flirt-gill, and sing bawdy songs upon me; but I, faith, if I live, George —

Cit. Let me alone, sweetheart: I have a trick in my head shall lodge him in the Arches for one year, and make him sing peccavi ere [c] I leave him; and yet he shall never know who hurt him neither.

Wife. Do, my good George, do!

1 Qualities.
2 A lively dance.
3 Be lively.
4 After his own nature.

5 Qn begin Act IV here.
6 Armour.
7 Tagged laces used to attach the hose or breeches to the doublet.
8 A street.
9 A loose woman.
10 Apparently a prison attached to the Court of Arches.
Citi. What shall we have Ralph do now, [50] boy?
Bo-y. You shall have what you will, sir.
Citi. Why, so, sir; go and fetch me him then, and let the Sophy of Persia come and christen him a child. 1
Boy. Believe me, sir, that will not do so well; 'tis stale; it has been had before at the Red Bull. 2
Wife. George, let Ralph travel over great hills, and let him be very weary, and come 46 to the King of Cracovia's house, covered with velvet; and there let the king's daughter stand in her window, all in beaten gold, combing her golden locks with a comb of ivory; and let her spy Ralph, and fall in love with him, and come down to him, and carry him into her father's house; and then let Ralph talk with her. Citi. Well said, Nell; it shall be so. — Boy, let's ha' done quickly.
Boy. Sir, if you will imagine all this to be [50] done already, you shall hear them talk together; but we cannot present a house covered with black velvet, and a lady in beaten gold.
Citi. Sir boy, let's 'a's as you can. Then.
Boy. Besides, it will show ill-favouredly [53] to have a grocer's prentice to court a king's daughter.
Citi. Will it so, sir? You are well read in histories! I pray you, what was Sir Dagonet? Was not he prentice to a grocer in London? [50] Read the play of 'The Four Prentices of London,' 47 where they toss their pikes so. I pray you, fetch him in, sir, fetch him in.
Boy. It shall be done. — It is not our fault, gentlemen. Exit. 56
Wife. Now we shall see fine doings, I warrant 'ee, George.

[Scene II.] 5

Enter the Lady [POMPIONA], Ralph, Squire, and Dwarf.

Wife. Oh, here they come, how prettily the King of Cracovia's daughter is drest!
Citi. Ay, Nell, it is the fashion of that country, I warrant 'ee.

Pomp. Welcome, Sir Knight, unto my father's court.

King of Moldavia: unto me Pompiona, His daughter dear! But, sure, you do not like Your entertainment, that will stay with us No longer but a night.

Ralph. Damsel right fair, I am on many sad adventures bound, That call me forth into the wilderness; Besides, my horse's back is something gall'd, Which will enforce me ride a sober pace. But many thanks, fair lady, be to you For using errant knight with courtesy! 15

1 An allusion to an incident in a play called The Travail of the Three English Brothers, by Day, Rowley, and Wilkins.
2 Another theatre.
3 Tales.
4 No, Eyrewod. But Dagonet is in Malory.
5 A Hall in the King of Moldavia's Court. 6 Serious.

Pomp. But say, brave knight, what is your name and birth?

Ralph. My name is Ralph; I am an Englishman,
As true as steel, a hearty Englishman,
And prentice to a grocer in the Strand
By deed indent, 1 of which I have one part: 2
But fortune calling me to follow arms,
On me this holy order I did take
Of Burning Pestle, which in all men's eyes
I bear, confounding ladies' enemies.
Pomp. Oft have I heard of your brave countrymen,
And fertile soil, and store of wholesome food;
My father oft will tell me of a drink
In England found, and nipitato, 3 call'd,
Which driveth all the sorrow from your hearts.

Ralph. Lady, 'tis true; you need not lay your lips
To better nipitato than there is.
Pomp. And of a wild fowl he will often speak,
Which pow'd'red 9 -beef and mustard called is:
For there have been great wars 'twixt us and you;
But truly, Ralph, it was not 'long of me.
Tell me then, Ralph, could you contented be
To wear lady's favour in your shield?
Ralph. I am a knight of religious order,
And will not wear a favour of a lady
That trusts in Antichrist and false traditions.

Citi. Well said, Ralph! convert her, if thou canst.

Ralph. Besides, I have a lady of my own
In merry England, for whose virtuous sake
I took these arms; and Susan is her name, 45
A cobbler's maid in Milk Street; whom I vow
Ne'er to forsake whilst life and Pestle last.
Pomp. Happy that cobbling dame, whoe'er she be.
That for her own, dear Ralph, hath gotten thee!
Unhappy, that ne'er shall see the day 50
To see thee more, that bear'st my heart away!

Ralph. Lady, farewell; I needs must take My leave.
Pomp. Hard-hearted Ralph, that ladies dost deceive!

Citi. Hark thee, Ralph: there's money for thee [gives money]; give something in the King of Cracovia's house; be not beholden to him. 53

Ralph. Lady, before I go, I must remember Your father's officers, who truth to tell, Have been about me very diligent. Hold up thy snowy hand, thou princely maid! There's twelve-pence for your father's chamberlain;

1 Indenture.
2 A mock learned form of nipitate, or strong ale.
3 Salted.

And another shilling for his cook,
For, by my troth, the goose was roasted well;
And twelve-pence for your father's horse-keeper,
For nailing my horse' back, and for his butt-er. 65
There is another shilling; to the maid
That wash'd my boot-hose there's an English groat,
And two-pence to the boy that wipt my boots;
And last, fair lady, there is for yourself
Three-pence, to buy you pins at Bumbo Fair.
Pomp. Full many thanks; and I will keep them safe
Till all the heads be off, for thy sake, Ralph.
Ralph. Advance, my squire and dwarf! I cannot stay.
Pomp. Thou kill'st my heart in passing thus away. 71

Exeunt.

Wife. I commend Ralph yet, that he will [is] not stoop to a Cracovian; there's properer women in London than any are there, I-wis. But here comes Master Humphrey and his love again now, George.

Cit. Ay, cony; peace. 80

Scene III.

Enter Merchant [Venturewell], Humphrey, Luce, and Boy.

Vent. Go, get you up; I will not be entreated; And, gossip mine, I'll keep you sure hereafter From gadding out again with boys and un-thrifts. Come, they are women's tears; I know your fashion,— Go, sirrah, lock her in, and keep the key Safe as you love your life. 5 Exeunt Luce and Boy. Now, my son Humphrey, You may both rest assured of my love In this, and rest your own desire. Hum. I see this love you speak of, through your daughter, Although the hole be little; and hereafter Will yield the like in all I may or can, Fitting a Christian and a gentleman. Vent. I do believe you, my good son, and thank you; For 't was an impudence to think you flatered. Hum. It were, indeed: but shall I tell you why? I have been beaten twice about the lie. Vent. Well, son, no more of compliment. My daughter Is yours again: appoint the time and take her. We'll have no stealing for it; I myself And some few of our friends will see you married.

Hum. I would you would, 't faith! for, be it known, I ever was afraid to lie alone. Vent. Some three days hence, then. Hum. Three days! let me see: 'T is somewhat of the most; yet I agree,Because I mean against the appointed day To visit all my friends in new array.

Enter Servant.

Serv. Sir, there's a gentlewoman without would speak with your worship. Vent. What is she? Serv. Sir, I ask't her not. Vent. Bid her come in. [Exit Servant.] Enter Mistress Merrythought and Michael.

Mist. Mer. Peace be to your worship! I come as a poor suitor to you, sir, in the behalf of this child.

Vent. Are you not wife to Merrythought? Mist. Mer. Yes, truly. Would I had ne'er seen his eyes! Ha has undone me and himself and his children; and there he lives at home, and sings and hoists and revels among his drunken companions! but, I warrant you, where to get a penny to put bread in his mouth he knows not: and therefore, if it like your worship, I would entreat your letter to the honest host of the Bell in Waltham, that I may place my child under the protection of his tapster, in some settled course of life.

Vent. I'm glad the heavens have heard my prayers. Thy husband, When I was ripe in sorrows, laught at me; Thy son, like an unthankful wretch, I having Redeem'd him from his fall, and made him mine, To show his love again, first stole my daughter, Then wronged this gentleman, and, last of all, Gave me that grief had almost brought me down Unto my grave, had not a stronger hand Reliev'd my sorrows. Go, and weep as I did, And be unpitied: for I here profess An everlasting hate to all thy name.

Mist. Mer. Will you so, sir? how say you by that?—Come, Mick; let him keep his wind to cool his porridge. We'll go to thy nurse's. Mick: she knits silk stockings, boy; and we'll knit too, boy, and be beholding to none of them all. [Exit with Michael.

Enter a Boy with a letter.

Boy. Sir, I take it you are the master of this house.

Vent. How then, boy?

Boy. Then to yourself, sir, comes this letter.

Vent. From whom, my pretty boy?

Boy. From him that was your servant; but no more

Shall that name ever be, for he is dead:

Pretty long. 6 In anticipation of.
Grief of your purchase'd anger broke his heart.
I saw him die, and from his hand receiv'd this paper, with a charge to bring it hither:
Read it, and satisfy yourself in all.

Vent. [reads.] Sir, that I have wrong'd your love I must confess; in which I have pur- chas'd to myself, besides mine own undoing, the ill opinion of my friends. Let not your anger, good sir, outlive me, but suffer me to rest in peace with your forgiveness: let my body (if a dying man may so much prevail with you) be brought to your daughter, that she may truly know my hot flames are now buried, and withal receive a testimony of the zeal I bore her virtue. Farewell for ever, and be ever happy. JASPER.

God's hand is great in this. I do forgive him; Yet I am glad he's quiet, where I hope He will not bite again. — Boy, bring the body, And let him have his will, if that be all. Boy. 'Tis here without, sir.

Vent. So, sir; if you please, You may conduct it in; I do not fear it.

Hum. I'll be your usher, boy; for, though I say it, He ow'd me something once, and well did pay it.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Luce.

Luce. If there be any punishment inflicted Upon the miserable, more than yet I feel, Let it together seize me, and at once. Press down my soul! I cannot bear the pain Of these delaying tortures. — Thou that art The end of all, and the sweet rest of all, Come, come, oh, Death! bring me to thy peace, And blot out all the memory I nourish Both of my father and my cruel friend! — Oh, wretched maid, still living to be wretched, To be a say to Fortune in her changes, And grow to number times and woes together! How happy had I been, if, being born, My grave had been my cradle!

Enter Servant.

Serv. By your leave, Young mistress; here's a boy hath brought a coffin: What 'a would say, I know not; but your father Charg'd me to give you notice. Here they come.

[Exit.]

Enter two bearing a Coffin, Jasper in it.

Luce. For me I hope 'tis come, and 'tis most welcome. Boy. Fair mistress, let me not add greater grief To that great store you have already. Jasper (That whilst he liv'd was yours, now dead And here enclos'd) commanded me to bring His body hither, and to crave a tear

From those fair eyes, (though he deserv'd not pity,) To deck his funeral; for so he bid me Tell her for whom he died.

Luce. He shall have many. — Good friends, depart a little, whilst I take My leave of this dead man, that once I lov'd.

Exeunt Coffin-carrier and Boy. Hold yet a little, life! and then I give thee To thy first heavenly being. Oh, my friend! Hast thou deceiv'd me thus, and got before me? I shall not long be after. But, believe me, Thou wert too cruel, Jasper, 'gainst thyself, In punishing the fault I could have pardon'd, With so untimely death: thou didst not wrong me,

But ever wert most kind, most true, most loving; And I the most unkind, most false, most cruel! Didst thou but ask a troth? I'll give thee all, Even all my eyes can pour down, all my sighs, And all myself, before thou goest from me. These are but sparing rites; but if thy soul Be yet about this place, and can behold And see what I prepare to deck thee with, It shall go up, borne on the wings of peace, And satisfied. First will I sing thy dirge, Then kiss thy pale lips, and then die myself, And fill one coffin and one grave together.

Song.

Come, you whose loves are dead, And, whiles I sing, Weep, and wring Every hand, and every head Bind with cypress and sad yew; Ribands black and candles blue For him that was of men most true! Come with heavy moaning, And on his grave Let him have Sacrifice of sighs and groaning; Let him have fair flowers snow, White and purple, green and yellow, For him that was of men most true!

Thou sable cloth, sad cover of my joys, I lift thee up, and thus I meet with death.

[Removes the Cloth, and Jasper rises out of the Coffin.]

Jasp. And thus you meet the living.

Luce. Save me, Heaven!

Jasp. Nay, do not fly me, fair; I am no spirit: Look better on me; do you know me yet? Luce. Oh, thou dear shadow of my friend! Jasp. Dear substance, I swear I am no shadow; feel my hand, It is the same it was; I am your Jasper, Your Jasper that's yet living, and yet loving. Pardon my rash attempt, my foolish proof I put in practice of your constancy; For sooner should my sword have drunk my blood, And set my soul at liberty, than drawn The least drop from that body: for which boldness...
Doom me to any thing; if death, I take it, and willingly.

Luce. This death I'll give you for it.[Kisses him.]

So, now I am satisfied you are no spirit, but my own trust, trust, trust friend: Why do you come thus to me?

Jasp. First, to see you;

Then to convey you hence.

Luce. It cannot be; For I am locked up here, and watch't at all hours, That 'tis impossible for me to escape.

Jasp. Nothing more possible. Within this coffin Do you convey yourself. Let me alone, I have the wits of twenty men about me; Only I crave the shelter of your closet A little, and then fear me not, Creep in, That they may presently convey you hence; Fear nothing, dearest love; I'll be your second; [Luce lies down in the Coffin, and Jasper covers her with the cloth.]

Lie close: so; all goes well yet.—Boy! [Re-enter Boy and Men.]

Boy. At hand, sir.

Jasp. Convey away the coffin, and be wary.

Boy. 'Tis done already.

[Execute Men with the Coffin.]

Jasp. Now must I go conjure. Exit [into a Closet].

Enter Merchant [Venturewell].

Vent. Boy, boy!

Boy. Your servant, sir.

Vent. Do me this kindness, boy; (hold, here's a crown)

Before thou bury the body of this fellow, Carry it to his old merry father, and salute him From me, and bid him sing; he hath cause.

Boy. I will, sir.

Vent. And then bring me word what tune he is in, And have another crown; but do it truly. I have fitted him a bargain now will vex him.

Boy. God bless your worship's health, sir!

Vent. Farewell, boy! Exeunt [severally].

[Scene V.]

Enter Merythought.

Wife. Ah, old Merythought, art thou there again? Let's hear some of thy songs.

Mer. [sings.]

Who can sing a merrier note Than he that cannot change a grait?

Not a denier left, and yet my heart leaps. I do wonder yet, as old as I am, that any man will follow a trade, or serve, that may sing and laugh, and walk the streets. My wife and both my sons are I know not where; I have nothing left, nor know I how to come by bent to sup —[per; yet am I merry still, for I know I shall find it upon the table at six o'clock; therefore, hang thought!]

[Sings.]

I would not be a serving-man To carry the cloak-bag still, Nor would I be a falconer The greedy hawks to fill; But I would be in a good house, And have a good master too; But I would eat and drink of the best, And no work would I do.

This is it that keeps life and soul together, —mirth; this is the philosopher's stone that they write so much on, that keeps a man ever young.

Enter a Boy.

Boy. Sir, they say they know all your money is gone, and they will trust you for no more drink.

Mer. Will they not? let 'em choose! The best is, I have mirth at home, and need not send abroad for that; let them keep their drink to themselves.

[Sings.]

For Jillian of Berry, she dwells on a hill, And she hath good beer and ale to sell, And of good fellows she thinks no ill; And if that will we go now, now, now, And if that will we go now.

And when you have made a little stay, You need not ask what is to pay, But kiss your hostess, and go your way; And then will we go now, now, now, And then will we go now.

Enter another Boy.

2 Boy. Sir, I can get no bread for supper.

Mer. Hang bread and supper! Let's preserve our mirth, and we shall never feel hunger, [as I'll warrant you. Let's have a catch; boy, follow me, come sing this catch.

Ho, ho, nobody at home! Meat, nor drink, nor money ha' we none. Fill the pot, Eedy, Never more need I.

Mer. So, boys; enough. Follow me: let's change our place, and we shall laugh afresh.

[Exeunt.

Wife. Let him go, George; 'a shall not have any countenance from us, nor a good word from any i' th' company, if I may strike stroke'in 't.

Cit. No more 'a sha'n't, love. But, Neill, I will have Ralph do a very notable matter now, to the eternal honour and glory of all grocers.

Sirrah! you there, boy! Can none of you hear?

[Enter Boy.]

Boy. Sir, your pleasure?

Cit. Let Ralph come out on May-day in the morning, and speak upon a conduit, with all his 6 Portmanteau. 7 Have a say.

scarfs about him, and his feathers, and his rings, and his knacks.

Boy. Why, sir, you do not think of our plot; what will become of that, then?

Cit. Why, sir, I care not what become on' t: I'll have him come out, or I'll fetch him out myself; I'll have something done in honour of the city. Besides, he hath been long enough upon adventures. Bring him out quickly; or, if I come in amongst you —

Boy. Well, sir, he shall come out, but if our play miscarry, sir, you are like to pay for't. 76

Cit. Bring him away then!

Enter RALPH [dressed as a May-lord].

Ralph. London, to thee I do present the merry month of May; 85
Let each true subject be content to hear me what I say:
For from the top of conduit-head, as plainly may appear,
I will both tell my name to you, and wherewith I came here.
My name is Ralph, by due descent though not ignoble I; 86
Yet far inferior to the flock of gracious groc-ery;
And by the common counsel of my fellows in the Strand,
With gilded staff and crossed scarfs, the May-lord here I stand.
Rejoice, oh, English hearts, rejoice! rejoice, oh, lovers dear!
Rejoice, oh, city, town, and country! rejoice, eke every shire!
For now the fragrant flowers do spring and sprout in seemly sort,
The little birds do sit and sing, the lambs do make fine sport;
And now the birchen-tree doth bud, that makes the schoolboy cry;
The morris rings, while hobby-horse doth foot it feazously; 8
The lords and ladies now abroad, for their disport and play,
Do kiss sometimes upon the grass, and sometimes in the hay;
Now butcher with a leaf of sage is good to purge the blood,
Fly Venus and phlebotomy, 4 for they are neither good;
Now little fish on tender stone begin to cast their bellies; 5
And sluggish snails, that erst were mew'd, do creep out of their shells;

3 Neatly, expertly. 4 Blood-letting. 5 Spawn.
6 Shut up, confined. Symson emend. Qq. mut.]
In any place, but I will visit thee,
With ghastly looks, and put into thy mind
The great offences which thou didst to me.
When thou art at thy table with thy friends,
Merry in heart, and fill'd with swelling wine,
I'll come in midst of all thy pride and mirth,
Invisible to all men but thyself,
And whisper such a sad tale in thine ear
Shall make thee let the cup fall from thy hand,
And stand as mute and pale as death itself.

Vent. Forgive me, Ralph! Oh, what might I do,
Tell me, to satisfy thy troubled ghost?
Jasp. There is no means; too late thou think'st of this.

Vent. But tell me what were best for me to do?
Jasp. Repent thy deed, and satisfy my father,
And beat fond Humphrey out of thy doors.

-Wife. Look, George; his very ghost would have folks beaten.

Enter Humphrey.

Hum. Father, my bride is gone, fair Mistress
Luce:
My soul's the fount of vengeance, mischief's sluice.

Vent. Hence, fool, out of my sight with thy fond passion!
Thou hast undone me.

Hum. Hold, my father dear,
For Luce thy daughter's sake, that had no peer!

Vent. Thy father, fool! There's some blows more; begone.—

Jasper. I hope thy ghost be well appeas'd
To see thy will perform'd. Now will I go
To satisfy thy father for thy wrongs. Exit.

Hum. What shall I do? I have been beaten twice,
And Mistress Luce is gone. Help me, device!
Since my true love is gone, I never more,
Whilst I do live, upon the sky will pore;

But in the dark will wear out my shoe-soles
In passion in Saint Faith's church under Paul's.

Exit.

-Wife. George, call Ralph hither; if you love me, call Ralph hither: I have the bravest thing for him to do. George, prithee, call him quickly.

Cit. Ralph! why, Ralph, boy! Exit Ralph.

Ralph. Here, sir.

Cit. Come hither, Ralph; come to thy mistress, boy.

-Wife. Ralph, I would have thee call all the youths together in battle-array, with drums, and guns, and flags, and march to Mile-End in pompous fashion, and there exhort your soldiers to be merry and wise, and to keep their beards from burning, Ralph; and then skirmish, and let your flags fly, and cry, "Kill, kill, kill!" My husband shall lend you his jer-kin, Ralph, and there's a scart; for the rest,

the house shall furnish you, and we'll pay for 't.
Do it bravely, Ralph; and think before whom you perform, and what person you represent.

Ralph. I warrant you, mistress; if I do it not for the honour of the city and the credit of my master, let me never hope for freedom!

Wife. 'Tis well spoken, i' faith. Go thy ways; thou art a spark indeed.

Cit. Ralph, Ralph, double your files bravely, Ralph!

Ralph. I warrant you, sir. Exit.

Cit. Let him look narrowly to his service; I shall take him else. I was there myself a pikeman once, in the midst of the day, wench; had my feather shot sheer away, the fringe of my pike burnt off with powder, my pate broken with a scouring-stick, and yet, I thank God, I am here.

Drum within.

Wife. Hark, George, the drums!

Cit. Ran, tan, tan, ran, ran, tan! Oh, wench, an thou hast but seen little Ned of Aldgate, [a Drum Ned, how he made it roar again, and laid on like a tyrant, and then struck softy till the ward came up, and then thund'rd again, and together we go! "Sa, sa, sa, bonnec!" [b quoth the guns; "Courage, my hearts!" quoth the captains; "Saint George!" quoth the pikemen;
and withal, here they lay, and there they lay:
and yet for all this I am here, wench.

Wife. Be thankful for it, George; for indeed
't is wonderful.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Ralph and Company of Soldiers (among whom are William Hammerton, and George Greengoose), with drums and colours.

Ralph. March fair, my hearts! Lientenant, beat the rear up.—Ancient, let your colours fly; but have a great care of the butchers' hooks at Whitechapel; they have been the death of many a fair ancient.—Open your files, that I may take a view both of your persons and munition.—Sergeant, call a muster.

Serg. A stand!—William Hammerton, pewterer!

Ham. Here, captain!

Ralph. A corset and a Spanish pike; 'tis well: can you shake it with a terror?

Ham. I hope so, captain.

Ralph. Charge upon me. [He charges on Ralph.]—'Tis with the weakest: put more strength, William Hammerton, more strength.
As you were again!—Proceed, Sergeant.

Serg. George Greengoose, poulterer!

1 Sorrow, melancholy.
2 Magnificent.
3 I. e. full membership in his Company.
4 Ramrod.
5 Guard (Moorman); regiment (March).
6 A street (and afterwards Mile-End).
7 Ensign (the flag or its bearer).
Remember, then, whose cause you have in hand,
And, like a sort of true-born scavengers,
Scour me this famous realm of enemies.
I have no more to say but this: stand to your tacklings, lads, and show to the world you can as well brandish a sword as shake an apron.
Saint George, and on, my hearts!
All. Saint George, Saint George! Exeunt. 90

Mrs. 'Tis well done, Ralph! I'll send thee a cold capon a-field and a bottle of March beer;
and, it may be, come myself to see the Gt. Nell, the boy has deceived me much; I did not think it had been in him. He has performed such a matter, wench, that, if I live, next year I'll have him captain of the galleyfoist 7 or I'll want my will.

[SCENE III.]

Enter MERRYTHOUGHT.

Mrs. Yet, I thank God, I break not a wrinkle more than I had. Not a stoop, boy! Care, thee. I defy thee! My heart is as sound as an oak; and though I want drink to wet my whistle, I can sing;
Come no more there, boys, come no more there;
For we shall never whilst we live come any more there.

Enter Boy, [and two Men] with a Coffin.

Boy. God save you, sir!
Mer. It's a brave boy, Canst thou sing?
Boy. Yes, sir, I can sing; but 'tis not so necessary at this time.

Mer. [sings.]

Sing we, and chant it;
Whilst love doth grant it.

Boy. Sir, sir, if you knew what I have brought you, you would have little list to sing.

Mer. [sings.]

Oh, the Mimmon round,
Full long, long I have thee sought,
And now I have thee found,
And what hast thou here brought?

Boy. A coffin, sir, and your dead son Jasper in it. [Exit with Men.]

Mer. Dead!

Why, farewell be!
Thou want a bonny boy,
And I did love thee.

Enter JASP. 79

Jasp. Then, I pray you, sir, do so still.
Mer. Jasper's ghost!

[Sings.]

Thou art welcome from Stygian lake so soon;
Declare to me what wondrous things in Pluto's court are done.

Jasp. By my troth, sir, I never came there;
'tis too hot for me, sir.

Mer. A merry ghost, a very merry ghost!

[Sings.]

And where is your true love? Oh, where is yours?

Band. 7 Weapons.

Mer. A room in Merrythought's house.

Tankač.
Jasp. Marry, look you, sir! Heaves up coffin.

Mer. Ah, ha! art thou good at that, i' faith? [Sings.]

With hey, trixy, tarlery-whiskin,
The world it runs on wheels;
When the young man's-
Up goes the maiden's heels.

Mrs. Merrythought and Michael within.

Mist. Mer. [within.] What, Master Merrythought! will you not let's in? What do you think shall become of us?

Mer. [sings.]

What voice is that, that calleth at our door.

Mist. Mer. [within.] You know me well enough; I am sure I have not been such a stranger to you.

Mer. [sings.]

And some they whistled, and some they sung,
Hey, down, down! And some did loudly say,
Ever as the Lord Barnet's horn blew,
Away, Musgrave, away!

Mist. Mer. [within.] You will not have us starve here, will you, Master Merrythought? Jasp. Nay, good sir, be persuaded; she is my mother.

If her offences have been great against you,
Let your own love remember she is yours,
And so forgive her.

Lucy. Good Master Merrythought,
Let me entreat you; I will not be denied.

Mist. Mer. [within.] Why, Master Merrythought, will you be a vext thing still?

Mer. Woman, I take you to my love again;
but you shall sing before you enter; therefore despatch your song and so come in.

Mist. Mer. [within.] Well, you must have your will, when all's done. — Mee, what song canst thou sing, boy?

Misch. [within.] I can sing none, forsooth, but A lady's daughter, of Paris properly.

Mist. Mer. [Song.]

It was a lady's daughter, &c.

[Merrythought opens the Door; enter Mistress Merrythought and Michael.]

Mer. Come, you're welcome home again. [Sings.]

If such danger be in playing,
And jest must to earnest turn,
You shall go no more a-maying —

Vent. [within.] Are you within, sir? Master Merrythought!

Jasp. It is my master's voice! Good sir, go hold him
In talk, whilst we convey ourselves into
Some inward room. [Exit with Lucy.]

Mer. What are you? Are you merry?

You must be very merry, if you enter.

Vent. [within.] I am, sir.

Mer. Sing, then.

Vent. [within.] Nay, good sir, open to me.

Mer. Sing, I say, or, by the merry heart, you come not in! 1

V. iii. THE KNIGHT OF THE BURNING PESTLE 537

Vent. [within.] Well, sir, I'll sing. [Sings.]

Fortune, my foe, &c.

[Merrythought opens the Door: Enter Ventursewell.]

Mer. You are welcome, sir, you are welcome: you see your entertainment; pray you, be merry.

Vent. Oh, Master Merrythought, I'm come to ask you Forgiveness for the wrongs I offered you
And your most virtuous son! They're infinite;
Yet my contrition shall be more than they:
I do confess my hardness broke his heart,
For which just Heaven hath given me punishment
More than my age can carry. His wandering spirit,
Not yet at rest, pursues me every where,
Crying, "I'll haunt thee for thy cruelty."

My daughter, she is gone, I know not how,
Taken invisible, and whether living
Or in [the] grave, 'tis yet uncertain to me.
Oh, Master Merrythought, these are the weights
Will sink me to my grave! Forgive me, sir.

Mer. Why, sir, I do forgive you; and be merry.

And if the wag in 's lifetime play'd the knave
Can you forgive him too?

Vent. With all my heart, sir.

Mer. Speak it again, and heartily.

Vent. I do, sir;

Now, by my soul, I do.

Re-enter Lucy and Jasper.

Mer. [sings.]

With that came out his paramour;
She was as white as the lily flower:
Hey, troth, truly, jolly!

With that came out her own dear knight;
He was as true as ever did fight, &c.

Sirs, if you will forgive him, clop their hands 115 together; there's no more to be said i' th' matter.

Vent. I do, I do.

Cit. I do not like this. Peace, boys! Hear me, one of you! Every body's part is come to an end but Ralph's, and he's left out.

Boy. 'Tis long of yourself, sir; we have nothing to do with his part.

Cit. Ralph, come away! — Make [an end] 2 on him, as you have done of the rest, boys; come.

Wife. Now, good husband, let him come out and die.

Cit. He shall, Nell. — Ralph, come away quickly, and die, boy!

Boy. 'T will be very unkind he should die, sir, upon no occasion — and in a comedy too.

Cit. Take you no care of that, sir boy; is not his part at an end, think you, when he's dead? — Come away, Ralph! 128

1 So printed in Qq.

2 Qq. omit. Added in Ed. of 1778.
Enter RALPH, with a forked Arrow through his Head.

RALPH. When I was mortal, this my costive corps Did lap up figs and raisins in the Strand; Where sitting, I espi'd a lovely dame, Whose master wrought with lingo 1 and with awl. And underground he vamp'd many a boot. 140 Straight did her love prick forth me; tender sprig, To follow feats of arms in warlike wise Through Waltham-desert; where I did perform Many achievements, and did lay on ground Huge Barbaroso, that insulting giant, 145 And all his captives soon set at liberty. Then honour prickt me from my native soil Into Moldavia, where I gain'd the love Of Pompiona, his beloved daughter; But yet prov'd constant to the black thumb'd maid Susan, and scorn'd Pompiona's love; Yet liberal I was, and gave her pins, And money for her father's officers. I then returned home, and thrust myself In action, and by all men chosen was Lord of the May, where I did flourish it, With scarfs and rings, and posy in my hand. After this action I preferred was, And chosen city-captain at Mile-End, 159 With hat and feather, and with leading-staff, 2 And train'd my men, and brought them all off clear, Save one man that beray'd him 3 with the noise. But all these things I Ralph did undertake Only for my beloved Susan's sake. Then coming home, and sitting in my shop 155 With apron blue, Death came into my stall To cheapen 4 aqua vitae; but ere I Could take the bottle down and fill a taste, Death caught a pound of pepper in his hand, And sprinkled all my face and body o'er, 159 And in an instant vanished away.

CIT. 'Tis a pretty fiction, 't faith.

RALPH. Then took I up my bow and shaft in hand, And walkt into Moorfields to cool myself; But there grim cruel Death met me again, 165 And shot this forked arrow through my head;

And now I faint; therefore be warn'd by me, My fellows every one, of forked heads! Farewell, all you good boys in merry London! Ne'er shall we more upon Shrove-Tuesday meet, 180 And pluck down houses of iniquity: 5 — My pain increaseth — I shall never more Hold open, whilst another pumps both legs, Nor daub a satin gown with rotten eggs; Set up a stake, oh, never more I shall! 185 I die! fly, fly, my soul, to Grocers' Hall! Oh, oh, oh, &c. 6

WIFE. Well said, Ralph! do your obeisance to the gentlemen, and go your ways: well said, Ralph!

RALPH [rises, makes obeisance and] exit.

MER. Methinks all we, thus kindly and unexpectedly reconciled, should not depart 7 without a song.

VENT. A good motion.

MER. Strike up, then!

SONG.

Better music ne'er was known Than a choir of hearts in one. Let each other, that hath been Troubled with the gall or spleen, Learn of us to keep his brow Smooth and plain, as ours are now: Sing, though before the hour of dying; He shall rise, and then be crying, 11 Hey, ho, 'tis sought but mirth That keeps the body from the earth! 105

Exeunt.

EPILOGUS.

CIT. Come, Nell, shall we go? The play is done.

WIFE. Nay, by my faith, George, I have more manners than so; I'll speak to these gentlemen first. — I thank you all, gentlemen, for your patience and countenance to Ralph, a poor fatherless child; and if I might see you at my house, it should go hard but I would have a pot of wine and a pipe of tobacco for you: for, truly, I hope you do like the youth, but I would be glad to know the truth; I refer it to your own discretions, whether you will applaud him or no; for I will wink, and whilst you shall do what you will. I thank you with all my heart. God give you good night! — Come. 220

George. 225

[Exeunt.]

Enter Dion, Clearemont, and Thrasiline.

Cle. Here's nor lords nor ladies.

Dion. Credit me, gentlemen, I wonder at it.

They receiv'd strict charge from the King to attend here; besides, it was boldly published that no officer should forbid any gentleman [5] that desired to attend and hear.

Cle. Can you guess the cause?

Dion. Sir, it is plain, about the Spanish Prince that's come to marry our kingdom's heir and be our sovereign.

Thra. Many that will seem to know much say she looks not on him like a maid in love.

Dion. Faith, sir, the multitude, that seldom know any thing but their own opinions, speak that they would have; but the prince, before his own approach, receiv'd so many confident messages from the state, that I think she's resolv'd to be rul'd.

Cle. Sir, it is thought, with her she shall enjoy both these kingdoms of Sicily and Calabria.

Dion. Sir, it is without controversy so [21] meant. But 't will be a troublesome labour for him to enjoy both these kingdoms with safety,

the right heir to one of them living, and living

so virtuously: especially, the people admiring the bravery of his mind and lamenting his injuries.

Cle. Who? Philaster?

Dion. Yes; whose father, we all know, was by our late King of Calabria unrighteously [29] deposed from his fruitful Sicily. Myself drew some blood in those wars, which I would give my hand to be washed from.

Cle. Sir, my ignorance in state-policy will not let me know why, Philaster being heir to one [33]

of these kingdoms, the King should suffer him to walk abroad with such free liberty.

Dion. Sir, it seems your nature is more constant than to inquire after state-news. But the King, of late, made a hazard of both the [34] kingdoms, of Sicily and his own, with offering but to imprison Philaster; at which the city was in arms, not to be charm'd down by any state-order or proclamation, till they saw Phil-aster ride through the streets pleas'd and [46]

without a guard: at which they threw their hats and their arms from them; some to make bonfires, some to drink, all for his deliverance:

which wise men say is the cause the King labour's to bring in the power of a foreign nation to awe his own with.

Enter Galatea, a Lady, and Megra.

Thra. See, the ladies! What's the first?

Dion. A wise and modest gentlewoman that attends the princess.

Cle. The second?

Dion. She is one that may stand still discreetly enough and ill-favour'dly dance her measure; simper when she is courted by her friend, and slight her husband.

Cle. The last?

Dion. Faith, I think she is one whom the state keeps for the agents of our confederate princes; she'll coquet and lie with a whole army, before the league shall break. Her name is common through the kingdom, and the trophies of her dishonour advanced beyond Hercles' Pillars. She loves to try the several constitutions of men's bodies; and, indeed, has destroyed the worth of her own body by making experiments upon it for the good of the commonwealth.

Ole. She's a profitable member.

Meg. Peace, if you love me! You shall see these gentlemen stand their ground and not court us.

Gal. What if they should? 70

La. What if they should!

Meg. Nay, let her alone.—What if they should!
Why, if they should, I say they were never abroad. What foreigner would do so? [78
It writes them directly untrav'ld.

Gal. Why, what if they be?

La. What if they be!

Meg. Good madam, let her go on.—What if they be! Why, if they be, I will justify, ['s4 they cannot maintain discourse with a judicious lady, nor make a leg 1 nor say “Excuse me.”

Gal. Ha, ha, ha!

Meg. Do you laugh, madam?

Dion. Your desires upon you, ladies!

Meg. Then you must sit beside us.

Dion. I shall sit near you then, lady.

Meg. Near me, perhaps; but there's a lady endures no stranger; and to me you appear a very strange fellow.

La. Methinks he's not so strange; he would quickly be acquainted.

Thra. Peace, the King!

Enter King, Pharamond, Arethusa, and Train.

King. To give a stronger testimony of love Than sickly promises (which commonly
In princes find both birth and burial)
In one breath) we have drawn you, worthy
sir,
To make your fair endearments to our daughter,
And worthy services known to our subjects,
Now lov'd and wondered at; next, our intent
To plant you deeply our immediate heir
Both to our blood and kingdoms. For this lady,
(The best part of your life, as you confirm me,
And I believe,) though her few years and sex Yet teach her nothing but her fears and blushes,
'Desire, without desire, discourse and knowledge
Only of what herself is to herself, Make her feel moderate health; and when she sleeps,
In making no ill day, knows no ill dreams.
Think not, dear sir, these undivided parts,
That must mould up a virgin, are put on
To show her so, as borrowed ornaments
To speak her perfect love to you, or add
An artificial shadow to her nature,—
No, sir; I boldly dare proclaim her yet
No woman. But woo her still, and think her modesty

A sweeter mistress than the offer'd language

1 Bow.

Of any dame, were she a queen, whose eye
Speaks common loves and comforts to her servants.'

Last, noble Dion (for so I now must call you),
What I have done thus public, is not only
To add a comfort in particular
To you or me, but all; and to confirm
The nobles and the gentry of these kingdoms
By oath to your succession, which shall be Within this month at most.

Thra. This will be hardly done.

Ole. It must be ill done, if it be done.

Dion. When 'tis at best, 'twill be but half done, whilst
So brave a gentleman is wrong'd and flung off.

Thra. I fear.

Ole. Who does not?

Dion. I fear not for myself, and yet I fear too.

Well, we shall see, we shall see. No more.

Pha. Kissing your white hand, mistress, I take leave
To thank your royal father; and thus far
To be my own free trumpet. Understand, Great King, and these your subjects, mine that must be,
(For so deserving you have spoke me, sir,
And so deserving I dare speak myself,)
To what a person, of what eminence,
Ripe expectation, of what faculties,
Manners and virtues, you would wed your kingdoms;
You in me have your wishes. Oh, this country!
By more than all the gods, I hold it happy;

Happy in their dear memories that have been Kings great and good; happy in yours that is;
And from you (as a chronicle to keep Your noble name from eating age) do I
Opine myself most happy. Gentlemen,
Believe me in a word, a prince's word,
There shall be nothing to make up a kingdom
Mighty and flourishing, defended, fear'd,
Equal to be commanded and obeyed,
But through the travails of my life I'll find it,
And tie it to this country. By all the gods,
My reign shall be so easy to the subject,
That every man shall be his prince himself,
And his own law — yet I his prince and law.
And dearest lady, to your dearest self (Dear in the choice of him whose name and lust-
'ere
Must make you more and mightier) let me say,
You are the blessed'st living; for, sweet princess,
You shall enjoy a man of men to be Your servant; you shall make him yours, for whom

Great queens must die.

Thra. Miraculous!

Ole. This speech calls him Spaniard, being nothing but a large inventory of his own commandations.

Dion. I wonder what's his price; for certainly

He'll sell himself, he has so prais'd his shape.
Enter Philaster.

But here comes one more worthy those large speeches,
Than the large speaker of them.
Let me be swallowed quick, if I can find,
In all the anatomy of man's virtues. 180
One sinew sound enough to promise for him,
He shall be constable. By this sun,
He'll ne'er make king unless it be of trifts,
In my poor judgment.

Phi. [kneeling.] Right noble sir, as low as my obedience,
And with a heart as loyal as my knee,
I beg your favour.

King. Rise; you have it, sir.

[PHILASTER rises.]

Dion. Mark but the King, how pale he looks! He fears!
Oh, this same whorson conscience, how it jades us!
King. Speak your intents, sir.

Phi. Shall I speak 'em freely? 188

Be still my royal sovereign.

As a subject,
We give you freedom.

Dion. Now it heats.

Phi. Then thus I turn
My language to you, prince; you, foreign man!
Ne'er stare nor put on wonder, for you must Endure me, and you shall. This earth you tread upon (A dowry, as you hope, with this fair princess),
By my dead father (oh, had I a father, Whose memory I bow to!) was not left
To your inheritance, and I up and living —
Having myself about me and my sword,
The souls of all my name and memories,
These arms and some few friends beside the gods —
To part so calmly with it, and sit still
And say, “I might have been.” I tell thee, Pharamond,
When thou art king, look I be dead and rotten;
And my name ashes: 1 for, hear me, Pharamond!
This very ground thou goest on, this fat earth,
My father's friends made fertile with their faiths,
Before that day of shame shall gape and swallow
Thee and thy nation, like a hungry grave,
Into her hidden bowels. Prince, it shall:
By the just gods, it shall!

Pha. He's mad; beyond cure, mad.

Dion. Here is a fellow has some fire in's veins:
The outlandish prince looks like a tooth-drawer.

Phi. Sir Prince of popinjays, I'll make it well Appear to you I am not mad.

King. You displease us:
You are too bold.

Phi. No, sir, I am too tame,
Too much a turtle, a thing born without passion,

A faint shadow, that every drunken cloud
Sails over, and makes nothing.

King. I do not fancy this. 229

Call our physicians; sure, he's somewhat tainted. 2

Thra. I do not think 'twill prove so.

Dion. E, as given him a general purge already,
For all the right he has; and now he means
To let him blood. Be constant, gentlemen: 218
By heaven, I'll run his hazard.

Although I run my name out of the kingdom!

Cle. Peace, we are all one soul.

Phi. What you have seen in me to stir offence
I cannot find, unless it be this lady,
Offer'd into mine arms with the succession;
Which I must keep, (though it hath pleas'd your fury
To mutiny within you,) without disputing
Your genealogies, or taking knowledge
Whose branch you are. The King will leave it me,

And I dare make it mine. You have your answer.

Phi. If thou wert sole inheritor to him
That made the world his, 8 and couldst see no sun
Shine upon anything but thine; were Pharamond
As truly valiant as I feel him cold,
And ring'd amongst the choicest of his friends
(Such as would blush to talk such serious follies,
Or back such bellied commendations),
And from this possession, spite of all these bugs, 6
You should hear further from me.

King. Sir, you wrong the prince; I gave you not this freedom to brace our best friends. You deserve our frown.

Go to; be better temper'd.

Phi. It must be, sir, when I am nobler us'd.

Gal. Ladies,

This would have been a pattern of succession,
Had he ne'er met this mischief. By my life,
He is the worthiest the true name of man
This day within my knowledge.

Meg. I cannot tell what you may call your knowledge. 246

But the other is the man set in mine eye.
Oh, 'tis a prince of wax! 7

Gal. A dog it is. 8

King. Philaster, tell me
The injuries you aim at in your riddles. 292

Phi. If you had my eyes, sir, and sufferance,
My griefs upon you, and my broken fortunes,
My wants great, and now nought but hopes and fears,
My wrongs would make ill riddles to be laught at.
Dare you be still my king, and right me not? 2

King. Give me your wrongs in private.

Dion.

Dion, I cannot blame him; there's danger
't. Every man in this age has not a soul of crystal, for all men to read their actions through: men's hearts and faces are so assunder, that they hold no intelligence. Do but view you stranger well, and you shall see a fever through all his bravery,1 and feel him shake like a true tenant. If he give not back his crown again upon the report of an elder-gun, I have no anger.

King. Go to;
Be more yourself, as you respect our favour;
You'll stir us else. Sir, I must have you know,
That y'are and shall be, at our pleasure, what Fashion we will put upon you. Smooth your brow,
Or by the gods —

Phi. I am dead, sir; y'are my fate. It was not I

Said, I was wrong'd: I carry all about me
My weak stars lead me to, all my weak fortunes.

Who dares in all this presence speak, (that is
But man of flesh, and may be mortal,) tell me
I do not most entirely love this prince,
And honour his full virtues!

King. Sure, he's possess'd, 280

Phi. Yes, with my father's spirit. It's here,
O King,
A dangerous spirit! Now he tells me, King,
I was a king's heir, bide me be a king,
And whispers to me, these are all my subjects.
'Tis strange he will not let me sleep, but dives
Into my fancy, and there gives me shapes 286
That kneel and do me service, cry me king,
But I'll suppress him; he's a faction spirit,
And will undo me. — [To PHAR.] Noble sir,
your hand;
I am your servant.

King. Away! I do not like this: 300
I'll make you tamer, or I'll dispossess you
Both of your life and spirit. For this time
I pardon your wild speech, without so much
As your imprisonment.

Exeunt King, PHARAMOND, ARE-TUSA [and Train].

Dion. I thank you, sir; you dare not for the people.

Gal. Ladies, what think you now of this brave fellow?

Meg. A pretty talking fellow, hot at hand.
But eye yeon stranger: is he not a fine complete gentleman? Oh, these strangers, I do affect them strangely! They do the rarest home-things, and please the fullest! As I live, I could love all the nation over and over for his sake.

Gal. Gods comfort your poor head-piece, lady! 'Tis a weak one, and had need of a nightcap.

Exeunt Ladies. 315

Thra. But are you sure it was the princess sent?
It may be some foul train to catch your life.
Phi. I do not think it, gentlemen; she's noble,
Her eye may shoot me dead, or those red roses
And white friends in her cheeks may steal my soul out;
There's all the danger in 't. But, be what may,
Her single name hath arm'd me.
Exit.
Dion. Go on,
And be as truly happy as thou art fearless!—
Come, gentlemen, let's make our friends acquainted,
Lest the King prove false.
Exeunt.

[Scene II.]
Enter Arethusa and a Lady.

Are. Comes he not?
Lady. Madam?
Are. Will Philaster come?
Lady. Dear madam, you were wont to credit
me
At first.
Are. But didst thou tell me so?
I am forgetful, and my woman's strength
Is so o'ercharg'd with dangers like to grow
About my marriage, that these under-things
Dare not abide in such a troubled sea.
How lookst he when he told thee he would come?
Lady, Why, well.
Are. And not a little fearful?
Lady. Fear, madam! Sure, he knows not what it is.
Are. You all are of his faction; the whole court
Is bold in praise of him; whilst I
May live neglected, and do noble things,
As fools in strife throw gold into the sea,
Drown'd in the doing. But, I know he fears.
Lady. Fear, madam! Methought, his looks hid more of love than fear.
Are. Of love! To whom? To you?
Did you deliver those plain words I sent,
With such a winning gesture and quick look
That you have caught him?
Lady. Madam, I mean to you.
Are. Of love to me! Alas, thy ignorance
Let's thee not see the crosses of our births!
Nature, that loves not to be questioned
Why she did this or that, but has her ends,
And knows she does well, never gave the world
Two things so opposite, so contrary
As he and I am: if a bowl of blood
Drawn from this arm of mine would poison thee,
A draught of his would cure thee. Of love to me!
Lady. Madam, I think I hear him.
Are. Bring him in.
You gods, that would not have your dooms
withstood,
Whose holy wisdoms at this time it is
To make the passion of a feeble maid
The way unto your justice, I obey.

[Re-enter [Lady with] Philaster.

Lady. Here is my Lord Philaster.
Are. Withdraw yourself.
Oh, 'tis well.
Madam, your messenger
Made me believe you wish'd to speak with me.
Are. 'Tis true, Philaster; but the words are such
I have to say, and do so ill beseen
The mouth of woman, that I wish them said,
And yet am loth to speak them. Have you known
That I have caught detracted from your worth?
Have I in person wrong'd you, or have set
My baser instruments to throw disgrace
Upon your virtues?
Phi. Never, madam, you.
Are. Why, then, should you, in such a public place,
Injure a princess, and a scandal lay
Upon my fortunes, fam'd to be so great,
Calling a great part of my dowry in question?
Phi. Madam, this truth which I shall speak will be Foolish: but, for your fair and virtuous self,
I could afford myself to have no right
To any thing you wish'd.
Are. Philaster, know,
I must enjoy these kingdoms.
Phi. Madam, both?
Are. Both, or I die: by heaven, I die, Phil-aster,
If I not calmly may enjoy them both.
Phi. I would do much to save that noble life;
Yet would be loth to have posterity
Find in our stories, that Philaster gave His right unto a sceptre and a crown
To save a lady's longing.
Are.
Nay, then, hear:
I must and will have them, and more—
Phi. What more?
Are. Or lose that little life the gods prepared
To trouble this poor piece of earth withal.
Phi. Madam, what more?
Are. Turn, then, away thy face.
Phi. No.
Are. Do.
Phi. I can endure it. Turn away my face!
I never yet saw enemy that lookt
So dreadfully, but that I thought myself
As great a basilisk 2 as he; or spake
So horrible, but that I thought my tongue Bore thunder underneath, as much as his:
Nor beast that I could turn from. Shall I then Begin to fear sweet sounds? A lady's voice.
Whom I do love? Say you would have my life;
Why, I will give it you; for 't is of me
A thing so loath'd, and unto you that ask
Of so poor use, that I shall make no price:
If you entreat, I will unmov'dly hear.
Are. Yet, for my sake, a little bend thy looks.
Phi. I do.
Are. Then know, I must have them and thee.
Phi. And me?

1 Mere.
2 Arethusa's apartment in the palace.

3 A fabulous serpent that killed with a glance.
Are. Thy love; without which, all the land Discovered yet will serve me for no use
But to be buried in.

Phi. Is't possible?

Are. With it, it were too little to bestow
On thee. Now, though thy breath do strike me dead, (Which, know, it may,) I have unrip't my breast.

Phi. Madam, you are too full of noble thoughts,
To lay a train for this contempl'd life,
Which you may have for asking. To suspect
Were base, where I deserve no ill. Love you!
By all my hopes, I do, above my life!
But how this passion should proceed from you
So violently, would amaze a man
That would be jealous.¹

Are. Another soul into my body shot
Could not have fill'd me with more strength and spirits
Than this thy breath. But spend not hasty time
In seeking how I came thus: 'tis the gods,
The gods, that make me so; and, sure, our love
Will be the nobler and the better blest,
In that the secret justice of the gods
Is mingled with it. Let us leave, and kiss;
Lest some unwelcome guest should fall betwixt us,
And we should part without it.

Phi. I should abide here long. 'Twill be ill
You should come often. How shall we devise
To hold intelligence, that our true loves
On any new occasion, may agree
What path is best to tread?

Phi. I have a boy,
Sent by the gods, I hope, to this intent,
Not yet seen in the court. Hunting the buck,
I found him sitting by a fountain's side,
Of which he borrow'd some to quench his thirst,
And paid the nymph again as much in tears.
A garland lay him by, made by himself
Of many several flowers bred in the vale,
Stuck in that mystic order that the rareness
Delighted me: but ever when he turn'd
His tender eyes upon 'em, he would weep,
As if he meant to make 'em grow again.

Seeing such pretty helpless innocence
Dwell in his face, I ask'd him all his story.
He told me that his parents gentle died,
Leaving him to the mercy of the fields,
Which gave him roots; and of the crystal springs,
Which did not stop their courses; and the sun,
Which still, he thank'd him, yielded him his light.

Then took he up his garland, and did show
What every flower, as country-people hold,
Did signify, and how all, ordered thus,
Express his grief; and, to my thoughts, did read
The prettiest lecture of his country-art

¹ Suspicious.

That could be wish't: so that methought I could Have studied it. I gladly entertain'd
Him, who was glad to follow; and have got
The trustiest, loving'st, and the gentlest boy
That ever master kept. Him will I send
To wait on you, and bear our hidden love.

Are. 'Tis well; no more.

Re-enter Lady.

Lady. Madam, the prince is come to do his service.

Are. What will you do, Philaster, with yourself?

Phi. Why, that which all the gods have pointed out for me.

Are. Dear, hide thyself. — Bring in the prince. [Exit Lady.]

Phi. He cannot know it.

Are. Though it should sleep for ever to the world,
It is a simple sin to hide myself;
Which will for ever on my conscience lie.

Are. Then, good Philaster, give him scope and way
In what he says; for he is apt to speak
What you are loth to hear. For my sake, do.

Phi. I will.

[Re-enter [Lady with PHARAMOND.]

Pha. My princely mistress, as true lovers ought,

[Exit Lady.]

I come to kiss these fair hands, and to show,
In outward ceremonies, the dear love
Writ in my heart.

Phi. If I shall have an answer no directlier,
I am gone.

Pha. To what would he have answer?

Are. To his claim unto the kingdom.

Pha. Sirrah, I forbare you before the King —

Phi. Good sir, do so still; I would not talk with you.

Pha. But now the time is fitter. Do but offer
To make mention of right to any kingdom,
Though it be scarce habitable —

Phi. Good sir, let me go.

Pha. And by the gods —

Phi. Peace, Pharamond! if thou —

Are. Leave us, Philaster.

Phi. I have done. [Going.]

Pha. You are gone! by Heaven I'll fetch you back.

Phi. You shall not need. [Returning.]

Pha. What now?

Phi. Know, Pharamond,

I loathe to brawl with such a blast as thou,
Who art nought but a valiant voice; but if Thou shalt provoke me further, men shall say,
Thou wert, and not lament it.
ACT II.

SCENE I. 2

Enter Philaster and Bellario.

Phi. And thou shalt find her honourable, boy; Full of regard unto thy tender youth, For thine own modesty; and, for my sake, Apter to give than thou wilt be to ask, Ay, or deserve.

Bel. Sir, you did take me up 5 When I was nothing; and only yet am something By being yours. You trusted me unknown; And that which you were apt to conster 3 A simple innocence in me, perhaps Might have been craft, the cunning of a boy 10 Hard'ned in lies and theft: yet ventur'd you To part my miseries and me: for which, I never can expect to serve a lady That bears more honour in her breast than you.

Phi. But, boy, it will prefer thee. Thou art young, And bear'st a childish overflowing love To them that clap thy cheeks and speak thee fair yet; But when thy judgment comes to rule those passions, Thou wilt remember best those careful friends That plac'd thee in the noblest way of life. 20 She is a princess I prefer thee to.

1 Anticipate. 2 An apartment in the palace. 3 Contrue, interpret. 4 Advance.

[Scene II.] 6

Enter Pharamond.

Pha. Why should these ladies stay so long? They must come this way. I know the queen employs 'em not; for the reverend mother sent me word, they would all be for the garden. If they should all prove honest, now, I were in a fair taking; I was never so long without sport in my life, and, in my conscience, 'tis not my fault. Oh, for our country ladies!

Enter Galatea.

Here's one bolted; I'll hound at her.—Madam! Gal. Your grace!
Shall I not be a trouble?

Gal. Not to me, sir. 11

Pha. Nay, nay, you are too quick. By this sweet hand—

Gal. You'll be forsworn, sir; 'tis but an old glove.

If you will talk at distance, I am for you:
But, good prince, be not bawdy, nor do not brag;

These two I bar;
And then, I think, I shall have sense enough
To answer all the weighty apothegms
Your royal blood shall manage.

Pha. Dear lady, can you love?

Gal. Dear prince! how dear? I ne'er cost you a coach yet, nor put you to the dear repast ance of a banquet. Here's no scarlet, sir, to blush the sin out it was given for. This wire mine own hair covers; and this face has been so far from being dear to any, that it ne'er cost penny painting; and, for the rest of my poor wardrobe, such as you see, it leaves no hand 3 behind it, to make the jealous mercer's wife curse our good doings.

Pha. You mistake me, lady.

Gal. Lord, I do so; would you or I could help it?

[Pha. You're very dangerous bit, like a poison.

Gal. No, sir, I do not mean to purge you, though
I mean to purge a little time on you.] 2 35

Pha. Do ladies of this country use to give
No more respect to men of my full being?

Gal. Full being! I understand you not, un less your grace means growing to fatness; and then your only remedy (upon my knowledge, 46 prince) is, in a morning, a cup of neat white wine brewed with carduus, 4 then fast till sup ner; about sight you may eat; use exercise, and keep a sparrow-hawk; you can shoot in a tiller: 4 but, of all, your grace must fly phle botomy, 6 fresh pork, conger, 6 and clarified whey; they are all dully of the vital spirits.

Pha. Lady, you talk of nothing all this while.

Gal. 'Tis very true, sir; I talk of you. 45

Pha. [Aside.] This is a crafty wench; I like her wit well; 'twill be rare to stir up a leader appetite. She's a Danae, and must be courted in a shower of gold. —Madam, look here; all these, and more than —

Gal. What have you there, my lord? Gold! now, as I live, 'tis fair gold! You would have silver for it, to play with the pages. You could not have taken me in a worse time; but, if you have present use, my lord, I'll send my man with silver and keep your gold for you. 60

Pha. Lady, lady!

Gal. She's coming, sir, behind, will take white money.—

[Aside.] Yet for all this I'll match ye.

Exit behind the hangings.

Pha. If there be but two such more in this kingdom, and near the court, we may even [66

2 A kind of thistle used as a medicine.
3 Cross-bow.
4 Blood letting.

hang up our harps. Ten such camphire 7 con stitutions as this would call the golden age again in question, and teach the old way for every ill-fac'd husband to get his own children;
and what a mischief that would breed, let all consider!

Enter Megra.

Here's another: if she be of the same last, the devil shall pluck her on.—Many fair mornings,
lady!

Meg. As many mornings bring as many days,
Fair, sweet and hopeful to your grace! 76

Pha. [Aside.] She gives good words yet; sure this wench is free.— 8

If your more serious business do not call you,
Let me hold quarter with you; we will talk
An hour out quickly.

Meg. What would your grace talk of?

Pha. Of some such pretty subject as yourself:
I'll go no further than your eye, or lip;
There's theme enough for one man for an age.

Meg. Sir, they stand right, and my lips are yet even,
Smooch, smooth enough, ripe enough, and red enough,
Or my glass wrongs me.

Pha. Oh, they are two twinn'd cherries dy'd in blushes
Which those fair saxes above with their bright beams
Reflect upon and ripen. Sweetest beauty,
Bow down those branches, that the longing
taste
Of the faint looker-on may meet those blessings,
And taste and live. —They kiss.

Meg. [Aside.] Oh, delicate sweet prince!
She that hath snow enough about her heart
To take the wanton spring of ten such lines off,
May be a nun without probation.—Sir,
You have in such neat poetry gathered a kiss,
That if I had but five lines of that number,
Such pretty begging blanks, I should com mand
Your forehead or your cheeks, and kiss you
too.

Pha. Do it in prose; you cannot miss it,
madam.

Meg. I shall, I shall.

Pha. [Aside.] By my life, but you shall not;
I'll prompt you first. [Kisses her.] Can you do it now?

Meg. Methinks 'tis easy, now you ha' done 't before me;
But yet I should stick at it. [Kisses him.]

Pha. Stick till to-morrow; I'll ne'er part you, sweetest. But we lose time:
Can you love me?

Meg. Love you, my lord! How would you have me love you?

Pha. I'll teach you in a short sentence, 'cause I will not load your memory; this is all:
love me, and lie with me.

Meg. Was it 'lie with you' that you said?
'T is impossible.
PHILASTER

11. iii.

Pha. Not to a willing mind, that will endeavour. If I do not teach you to do it as easily in one night as you 'll go to bed, I'll lose my royal blood for 't.

Meg. Why, prince, you have a lady of your own

That yet wants teaching.

Pha. I'll sooner teach a mare the old meaures than teach her anything belonging to the function. She's afraid to lie with herself if she have but any masculine imaginations about her. I know, when we are married, I must ravish her.

Meg. By mine honour, that's a foul fault,
indeed;

But time and your good help will wear it out, sir.

Pha. And for any other I see, excepting your dear self, dearest lady, I had rather be Sir Tim the schoolmaster, and leap a dairy-maid,
madam.

Meg. Has your grace seen the court-star,
Galatea?

Pha. Out upon her! She's as cold of her fa-our as an apoplexy; she sail'd but by now.

Meg. And how do you hold her wit, sir?

Pha. I hold her wit? The strength of all the guard cannot hold it, if they were tied to it; she would blow 'em out of the kingdom. They talk of Jupiter; he's but a squib-cracker to her: look well about you, and you may find a tongue-bolt. But speak, sweet lady, shall I be freely welcome.

Meg. Whither?

Pha. To your bed. If you mistrust my faith, you do me the unoblest wrong.

Meg. I dare not, prince, I dare not.

Pha. Make your own conditions, my purse shall seal 'em, and what you dare imagine you want, I'll furnish you withal. Give two hours to your thoughts every morning about it.

Come I know you are bashful;

Speak in my ear, will you be mine? Keep
this,

And with it, me: soon I will visit you.

Meg. My lord, my chamber's most unsafe;

but when 't is night,

I'll find some means to slip into your lodging
Till when ——

Pha. Till when, this and my heart go with [Exeunt several ways.

Re-enter Galatea from behind the hangings.

Gal. Oh, thou pernicious petticoat prince I are these thy virtues? Well, if I do not lay a train to blow your sport up, I am no woman:
and, Lady Towsabel, I'll fit you for 't. Exit.

[Scene III.] 2

Enter Aréthusa and a Lady.

Are. Where's the boy?

Lady. Within, madam.

Are. Gave you him gold to buy him clothes?

1 Stately dances.

2 Aréthusa's apartment in the palace.

Lady. I did.

Are. And has he done 't?

Lady. Yes, madam.

Are. 'Is a pretty sad-talking boy, is it not?

Asked you his name?

Lady. No, madam.

Enter Galatea.

Are. Oh, you are welcome. What good news?

Gal. As good as any one can tell your grace,

That says she has done that you would have wish'd.

Are. Hast thou discovered?

Gal. I have strain'd a point of modesty for

you.

Are. I prithee, how?

Gal. In list'ning after bawdry. I see, let a lady live never so modestly, she shall be sure to find a lawful time to hearken after bawdry.

Your prince, brave Pharamond, was so hot

on 't.

Are. With whom?

Gal. Why, with the lady I suspected. I can tell the time and place.

Are. Oh, when, and where?

Gal. To-night, his lodging.

Are. Run thyself into the presence; mingle
there again

With other ladies; leave the rest to me.

[Exit Galatea.]

If destiny (to whom we dare not say,
"Why didst thou this?") have not decreed it so,
In lasting leaves (whose smallest characters Were never alter'd yet), this match shall break. —

Where's the boy?

Lady. Here, madam.

Enter Bellario.

Are. Sir, you are sad to change your service;

is't not so?

Bel. Madam, I have not chang'd; I wait on

you.

To do him service.

Are. Thou disclaim'st in me.

Tell me thy name.

Bel. Bellario.

Are. Thou canst sing and play?

Bel. If grief will give me leave, madam, I can.

Are. Alas, what kind of grief can thy years

know?

Hadst thou a curst master when thou went'st to school?

Thou art not capable of other grief:

Thy brows and cheeks are smooth as waters be
When no breath troubles them. Believe me, boy,

Care seeks out wrinkled brows and hollow eyes,

And builds himself caves, to abide in them.

Come, sir, tell me truly, doth your lord love
me?

Bel. Love, madam! I know not what it is

Are. Canst thou know grief, and never yet knew'st love?

Thou art deceiv'd, boy. Does he speak of me

As if he wish'd me well?
Bel. If it be love
To forget all respect of his own friends
With thinking of your face; if it be love
To sit cross-arm'd and sigh away the day,
Mingled with starts, crying your name as loud
And hastily as men 't the streets do fire;
If it be love to weep himself away
When he but hears of any lady dead
Or kill'd, because it might have been your chance;
If, when he goes to rest (which will not be),
'Twixt every prayer he says, to name you once,
As others drop a head, be to be in love,
Then, madam, I dare swear he loves you.
Arc. Oh you 're a cunning boy, and taught to lie
For your lord's credit! But thou know'st a lie
That bears this sound is welcomer to me
Than any truth that says he loves me not.
Lead the way. boy. — [To Lady.] Do you attend me too. —
'Tis thy lord's business hastes me thus. Away!
Exeunt.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Dion, Clearemont, Thrasilune, Megra, and Galatea.

Dion. Come, ladies, shall we talk a round? As men
Do walk a mile, women should talk an hour
After supper: 't is their exercise.
Gal. 'T is late.
Meg. 'T is all
My eyes will do to lead me to my bed.
Gal. I fear, they are so heavy, you'll scarce
Find the way to your own lodging with 'em to-night.

Enter Pharamond.

Thra. The prince!
Pha. Not a-bed, ladies? You 're good siters-up.
What think you of a pleasant dream, to last Till morning?
Meg. I should choose, my lord, a pleasing
Wake before it.

Enter Arethusa and Bellario.

Arc. 'T is well, my lord; you 're courting of these ladies. —
Is 't not late, gentlemen?
Cle. Yes, madam.
Arc. Wait you there. [Exit.
Meg. [Aside.] She's jealous, as I live. — Look
you, my lord.
The princess has a Hylas, an Adonis.
Pha. His form is angel-like.
Meg. Why, this is he that must, when you are wed,
Sit by your pillow, like young Apollo, with His band and voice binding your thoughts in sleep.
The princess does provide him for you and for herself.

1 Before Pharamond's lodging in the court of the palace.

Pha. I find no music in these boys.
Meg. Not I: 35
They can do little, and that small they do,
They have not wit to hide.
Dion. Serves he the princess?
Thra. Yes, [keeps him]
Dion. 'T is a sweet boy: how brave the she Pha. Ladies all, good rest; I mean to kill a buck
To-morrow morning ere you've done your dreams.
Meg. All happiness attend your grace! [Exit
Pharamond.] Gentlemen, good rest. —
Come, shall we go to bed?
Gal. Yes. — All good night.
Dion. May your dreams be true to you! —
Exeunt Arethusa and Megra.
What shall we do, gallants? 'T is late. The King
Is up still: see, he comes; a guard along
With him.

Enter King, Arethusa, and Guard.

King. Look your intelligence be true.
Arc. Upon my life, it is; and I do hope
Your highness will not tie me to a
That in the heat of wooing throws me off,
And takes another.
Dion. What should this mean? 40
King. If it be true,
That lady had been better have embrac'd
Curseless diseases. Get you to your rest:
You shall be righted.

Exeunt Arethusa and Bellario.
— Gentlemen, draw near;
We shall employ you. Is young Pharamond 48
Come to his lodging? 49
Dion. I saw him enter there.
King. Haste, some of you, and cunningly discover
If Megra be in her lodging. [Exit Dion.]
Cle. Sir,
She parted hence but now, with other ladies. 50
King. If she be there, we shall not need to make
A vain discovery of our suspicion.
[Aside. ] You gods, I see that who unrighteously Holds wealth or state from others shall be cursed
In that which meaner men are blest withal: 55
Ages to come shall know no male of him
Left to inherit, and his name shall be Blotted from earth; if he have any child,
It shall be crossly match'd; the gods themselves
Shall sow wild strife betwixt her lord and her.
Yet, if it be your wills, forgive the sin
I have committed; let it not fall
Upon this understanding child of mine!
She has not broke your laws. But how can I Look to be heard of gods that must be just.
Praying upon the ground I hold by wrong?

Re-enter Dion.

Dion. Sir, I have asked, and her women swear
she is within; but they, I think, are bawds.
‘Tis the poor breaking of a lady’s honour
They hunt so hotly after; let ’em enjoy it. — 114
You have your business, gentlemen; I lay here.
Oh, my lord the King, this is not noble in you
To make public the weakness of a woman!
King. Come down.
Meg. I dare, my lord. Your footings and your clamours,
Your private whispers and your broad fleeceings,
Can no more vex my soul than this base carriage.
But I have vengeance yet in store for some Shall, in the most contempt you can have of me,
Be joy and nourishment.
King. Will you come down?
Meg. Yes, to laugh at your worst; but I shall wring you,
If my skill fail me not. [Exit above.]
King. Sir, I must dearly chide you for this looseness;
You have wrong’d a worthy lady; but, no
more —
Conduct him to my lodging and to bed.
[Exeunt PHARAMOND and Attendants.]
Cle. Get him another wench, and you bring him to bed indeed.
Dion. ’Tis strange a man cannot ride a stage
Or two, to breathe himself, without a warrant.
If his gear hold, that lodgings be search’d thus,
Pray God we may lie with our own wives in safety,
That they be not by some trick of state mistaken!

Enter [Attendants] with MEGRA [below].

King. Now, lady of honour, where’s your honour now?
No man can fit your paleate but the prince,
Thou most ill-shrouded rottenness, thou piece
Made by a painter and a ’pothecary,
Thou troubled sea of lust, thou wilderness
Inhabited by wild thoughts, thou swollen cloud
Of infection, thou ripe mine of all diseases,
Thou all-sin, all-hell, and last, all-devils, tell me,
Had you none to pull on with your courtesies
But he that must be mine, and wrong my daughter?
By all the gods, all these, and all the pages,
And all the court, shall hoot thee through the
court,
Fling rotten oranges, make ribald rhymes,
And tear thy name with candles upon walls!
Do you laugh, Lady Venus?
Meg. Faith, sir, you must pardon me;
I cannot choose but laugh to see you merry.
If you do this, O King! nay, if you dare do it,
By all those gods you swore by, and as many
More of my own, I will have fellows, and such Fellows in it, as shall make noble mirth!
The princess, your dear daughter, shall stand by me
On walls, and sung in ballads, any thing.
Urges me no more; I know her and her haunts,
Her lays, leaps, and outlays, and will discover
all!
Nay, will dishonour her. I know the boy

I told ’em, I must speak with her; they laught, and said, their lady lay speechless. I said, my business was important; they said, their lady was about it. I grew ho, and cried, my business was a matter that concern’d life and death; they answered, so was sleeping, at which their lady was. I urg’d again, she had scarce time to be so since last I saw her; they smil’d again, and seem’d to instruct me that sleeping was nothing but lying down and winking. Answers more direct I could not get: in short, sir, I think she is not there.

King. ’Tis then no time to dally. — You o’
the guard,
Wait at the back door of the prince’s lodging,
And see that none pass thence, upon your lives.

Knock, gentlemen; knock loud; louder yet.
[Exeunt Guards.]

What, has their pleasure taken off their hearing? —
I’ll break your meditations. — Knock again.
— Not yet? I do not think he sleeps, having this Larum by him. — Once more. — Pharamond prince! Pharamond [appears] above.
Pha. What saucy groom knocks at this dead of night?
Where be our waiters? By my vexed soul,
He meets his death that meets me, for his bold-
ness.

King. Prince, prince, you wrong your thoughts; we are your friends:
Come down.

Pha. The King!
King. The same, sir. Come down, sir:
We have cause of present counsel with you.
Pha. If your grace please
To use me, I’ll attend you to your chamber.

[Exeunt PHARAMOND below.]

King. No, ’tis too late, prince; I’ll make bald with yours.
Pha. I have some private reasons to myself Makes me unmannerly, and say you cannot. —
They press to come in.
Nay, press not forward, gentlemen; he must Come through my life that comes here.
King. Sir, be resolv’d; I must and will come.
— Enter.

Pha. I will not be dishonour’d.
He that enters, enters upon his death.
Sir, ’tis a sign you make no stranger of me,
To bring these renegades to my chamber
At these unseasoned hours.

King. Why do you Chafe yourself so? You are not wrong’d nor shall be;
Only I will search your lodging, for some cause
To ourself known. — Enter, I say.

Pha. I say, no. 110

Enter MEGRA above.

Meg. Let ’em enter, prince, let ’em enter;
I am up and ready: ’I know their business;

1 Closing the eyes. 2 Convinced. 3 Dressed.

Meg. Let ’em enter, prince, let ’em enter;
I am up and ready: ’I know their business;
She keeps; a handsome boy, about eighteen;
Know what she does with him, where, and when. Come, sir, you put me to a woman's madness,
The glory of a fury; and if I do not
Do 't to the height—

King. What boy is this she raves at?
Meg. Alas! good-minded prince, you know not these things! I am loth to reveal 'em. Keep this fault,
As you would keep your health from the hot
Of the corrupted people, or, by Heaven,
I will not fall alone. What I have known
Shall be as public as a print; all tongues Shall speak it as they do the language they
Are born in, as free and commonly; I'll set it,
Like a prodigious star, for all to gaze at,
And so high and glowing, that other kingdoms Shall read it there, nay, travel with it, till they find
No tongue to make it more, nor no more people;
And then behold the fall of your fair princess!
King. Has she a boy?
Cle. So please your grace, I have seen a boy
On her, a fair boy.
King. Go, get you to your quarter:
For this time I will study to forget you.
Meg. Do you study to forget me, and I 'll study
To forget you.

Exeunt King, Megra, and Guard.
Cle. Why, here's a male spirit fit for Hercules. If ever there be Nine Worthies of women, this wench shall ride astride and be their captain.
Dion. Sure, she has a garrison of devils in her tongue, she uttered such balls of wild-fire. She has so nettled the King, that all the doctors in the country will scarce cure him. That boy was a strange-found-out antidote to cure her infection; that boy, that princess' boy; that brave, chaste, virtuous lady's boy; and a fair boy, a well-spoken boy! All these considered, can make nothing else—but there I leave you, gentlemen.

Thra. Nay, we 'll go wander with you.

ACT III.

SCENE I.

Enter Dion, Cleremont, and Thrasilion.

Cle. Nay, doubtless, 't is true.
Dion. Ay; and 't is the gods
That rais'd this punishment, to scourge the King
With his own issue. Is it not a shame
For us that should write noble in the land,
For us that should be freemen, to behold
A man that is the bravery of his age.

Philaster, prest down from his royal right
By this regardless King? and only look
And see the sceptre ready to be cast
Into the hands of that lascivious lady
That lives in lust with a smooth boy, now to be married
To you strange prince, who, but that people please
To let him be a prince, is born a slave
In that which should be his most noble part.
His mind?
Thra. That man that would not stir with you
To aid Philaster, let the gods forget
That such a creature walks upon the earth!
Cle. Philaster is too backward in 't himself.
The gentry do await it, and the people,
Against their nature, are all beat for him,
And like a field of standing corn, that's moved
With a stiff gale, their heads bow all one way.
Dion. The only cause that draws Philaster back
From this attempt is the fair princess' love,
Which he admires, and we can now confute.
Thra. Perhaps he 'l.1l believe it.
Dion. Why, gentlemen, 't is without question so.
Cle. Ay, 't is past speech she lives dishonestly.
But how shall we, if he be curious, work
Upon his faith?
Thra. We all are satisfied within ourselves.
Dion. Since it is true, and tends to his own good,
I'll make this new report to be my knowledge;
I'll say I know it; nay, I'll swear I saw it.
Cle. It will be best.
Thra. 'T will move him.

Enter Philaster.

Dion. Here he comes.
Good morrow to your honour: we have spent
Some time in seeking you.

Phi. My worthy friends,
You that can keep your memories to know
Your friend in miseries, and cannot frown
On men disgrac'd for virtue, a good day
Attend you all! What service may I do Worthy your acceptation?

Dion. My good lord,
We come to urge that virtue, which we know
Lives in your breast, forth. Rise, and make a head,
The nobles and the people are all dull'd
With this usurping king; and not a man,
That ever heard the word, or knew such a thing
As virtue, but will second your attempts.

Phi. How honourable is this love in you
To me that have deserv'd none! Know, my friends,
(You, that were born to shame your poor Philaster
With too much courtesy,) I could afford
To melt myself in thanks: but my designs

1 Portentous, ominous. 2 The court of the palace. 3 Scrupulous. 4 Raise an armed force.
Are not yet ripe. Suffice it, that ere long 65
I shall employ your loves; but yet the time
Is short of what I would.

Dion. The time is fuller, sir, than you expect;
That which hereafter will not, perhaps, be reach’d6
By violence, may now be caught. As for the King,
You know the people have long hated him;
But now the princess, whom they lov’d——

Phi. Why, what of her?

Dion. Is loath’d as much as he.

Phi. By what strange means?

Dion. She’s known a whore.

Phi. Thou liest.

Dion. My lord——

Phi. Thou liest, 65

Offers to draw and is held.

And thou shalt feel it! I had thought thy mind
Had been of honour. Thus to rob a lady
Of her good name is an infectious sin;
Not to be pardon’d. Be it false as hell, 70
'Twill never be redeem’d, if it be sown
Amongst the people, fruitful to increase
All evil they shall hear. Let me alone
That I may cut off falsehood whilst it springs!
Set hills on hills betwixt me and the man
That utters this, and I will scale them all,
And from the utmost top fall on his neck,
Like thunder from a cloud.

Dion. This is most strange:
Sure, he does love her.

Phi. I do love fair truth.
She is my mistress, and who injures her Draws vengeance from me. Sirs, let go my arms.

Thra. Nay, good my lord, be patient.

Cle. Sir, remember this is your honour’d friend,
That comes to do his service, and will show you
Why he utter’d this.

Phi. I ask your pardon, sir; 65

My zeal to truth made me unmann’ly:
Should I have heard dishonour spoke of you,
Behind your back, untruly, I had been
As much distemper’d and enrag’d as now.

Dion. But this, my lord, is truth.

Phi. Oh, say not so! 90

Good sir, forbear to say so: ’tis then truth,
That womankind is false: urge it no more;
It is impossible. Why should you think
The princess light?

Phi. ’Tis false! by Heaven, ’tis false! It cannot be!

Dion. Why, she was taken at it.

Phi. ’Tis false! by Heaven, ’tis false! It cannot be!

Can it? Speak, gentlemen; for God’s love, speak!

Is ’t possible? Can women all be damn’d?

Phi. Why, no, my lord.

Dion. Why, then, it cannot be.

Phi. And she was taken with her boy.

Phi. What boy? 90

Dion. A page, a boy that serves her.

Phi. Oh, good gods!

A little boy?

Phi. Ah, know you him my lord?

Phi. [Aside.] Hell and sin know him! — Sir,
you are deceiv’d;

I’ll reason it a little coldly with you.

If she were lustful, would she take a boy,
That knows not yet desire? She would have
one

Should meet her thoughts and know the sin he acts,

Which is the great delight of wickedness.
You are abus’d, and so is she, and I.

Dion. How you, my lord?

Phi. Why, all the world’s abus’d 70

In an unjust report.

Dion. Oh, noble sir, your virtues Cannot look into the subtle thoughts of woman!

In short, my lord, I took them; I myself.

Phi. Now, all the devils, thou didst! Fly from my rage!

Would thou hadst ta’en devils eng’ring plagues,

When thou didst take them! Hide thee from mine eyes!

Would thou hadst taken thunder on thy breast,
When thou didst take them; or been strucken dumb

For ever; that this foul deed might have slept

In silence!

Thra. Have you known him so ill-temper’d?

Cle. Never before.

Phi. The winds that are let loose 130
From the four several corners of the earth,
And spread themselves all over sea and land,
Kiss not a chaste one. What friend bears a sword

To run me thorough?

Dion. Why, my lord, are you
So mov’d at this?

Phi. I am distract; I have an interest in ’t.

Dion. But, good my lord, recall yourself, and think

What’s best to be done.

Phi. I thank you; I will do it.

Please you to leave me; I’ll consider of it.

To-morrow I will find your lodging forth,
And give you answer.

Dion. All the gods direct you

The readiest way!

Thra. He was extreme impatient.

Cle. It was his virtue and his noble mind.

Exeunt Dion, Cleremon, and Thrasilion.

Phi. I had forgot to ask him where he took them;

I’ll follow him. Oh that I had a sea

Within my breast, to quench the fire I feel!

More circumstances will but fan this fire:

It more afflicts me now, to know by whom

This deed is done, than simply that ’tis done;

And he that tells me this is honourable.

As far from lies as she is far from truth.

Oh, that, like beasts, we could not grieve ourselves

Deceived.
FRANCIS BEAUMONT AND JOHN FLETCHER

III. i.

With that we see not! Bulls and rams will fight To keep their females standing in their sight; But take 'em from them, and you take at once Their spleens away; and they will fall again Unto their pastures, growing fresh and fat, And taste the waters of the springs as sweet As 't was before, finding no start in sleep; But miserable man ——

Enter Bellario.

See, see, you gods, He walks still; and the face you let him wear When he was innocent is still the same, Not blast'd! Is this justice? Do you mean To intrap mortality, that you allow Treason so smooth a brow? I cannot now Think he is guilty.

Bel. Health to you, my lord!
The princess doth commend her love, her life, And this, unto you.

Phi. Oh, Bellario, Now I perceive she loves me; she does show it In loving thee, my boy, she has made thee brave.

Bel. My lord, she hath attir'd me past my wish, Past my desert; more fit for her attendant, Though far unfit for who do attend.

Phi. Thou art grown courteously, boy. — Oh, let all women,

That love black deeds, learn to dissemble here, Here, by this paper! She does write to me As if her heart were mines of adamant To all the world besides; but, unto me, A maiden-snow that melted with my looks. — Tell me, my boy, how doth the princess use thee?

For I shall guess her love to me by that.

Bel. Scare like her servant, but as if I were, Something allied to her, or had preserv'd Her life three times by my fidelity; As mothers fond do use their only sons, As I'd use one that's left unto my trust, For whom my life should pay if he met harm, So she does use me.

Phi. Why, this is wondrous well! But what kind language does she feed thee with?

Bel. Why, she does tell me she will trust my youth With all her loving secrets, and does call me Her pretty servant; bids me weep no more For leaving you; she'll see my services Regarded; and such words of that soft strain That I am nearer weeping when she ends Than ere she spake.

Phi. This is much better still.

Bel. Are you not ill, my lord?

Phi. Ill? No, Bellario.

Bel. Menthinks your words Fall not from off your tongue so evenly, Nor is there in your looks that quietness That I was wont to see.

Phi. Thou art deceiv'd, boy:

And she strokes thy head?

Bel. Yes.

Phi. And she does clap thy cheeks?

Bel. She does, my lord.

Phi. And she does kiss thee, boy? ha!

Bel. How, my lord? 194

Phi. She kisses thee?

Bel. Never, my lord, by heaven.

Phi. That's strange, I know she does.

Bel. No, by my life.

Phi. Why then she does not love me. Come, she does.

I bade her do it; I charg'd her, by all charms Of love between us, by the hope of peace We should enjoy, to yield thee all delights Naked as to her bed; I took her oath Thou shouldst enjoy her. Tell me, gentle boy, Is she not parallelless? Is not her breast Sweet as Arabian winds when fruits are ripe? Are not her breasts two liquid ivory balls?

Is she not all a lasting mine of joy?

Bel. Ay, now I see why my disturbed thoughts Were so perplex'd. When first I went to her, My heart held angry, You are abus'd; Some villain has abus'd you; I do see Whereo you tend. Fall rocks upon his head That put this to you! 'Tis some subtle train To bring that noble frame of yours to nought.

Phi. Thou think'st I will be angry with thee. Come,

Thou shalt know all my drift. I hate her more Than I love happiness, and plac'd thee there To pry with narrow eyes into her deeds. Hast thou discovered? Is she fallen to lust, As I would wish her? Speak some comfort to me.

Bel. My lord, you did mistake the boy you sent.

Had she the lust of sparrings or of goats, Had she a sin that way, bid from the world, Beyond the name of lust, I would not aid Her base desires; but what I came to know As servant to her, I would not reveal, To make my life last ages.

Phi. Oh, my heart! This is a salve worse than the main disease. — Tell me thy thoughts; for I will know the least That dwells within thee, or will rip thy heart To know it. I will see thy thoughts as plain As I do now thy face.

Bel. Why, so you do. She is (for aught I know) by all the gods, As chaste as ice! But were she foul as hell, And I did know it thus, the breath of kings, The points of swords, tortures, nor bulls of brass, Should draw it from me.

Phi. Then it is no time To daily with thee; I will take thy life, For I do hate thee. I could curse thee now, Bel. If you do hate, you could not curse me worse;

The gods have not a punishment in store Greater for me than is your hate.

Phi. Fie, fie, So young and so dissembling! Tell me when
And where thou didst enjoy her, or let plagues
Fall on me, if I destroy thee not!

Bel. By heaven, I never did; and when I lie
To save my life, may I live long and loath'd! 245
Hew me asunder, and, whilst I can think,
I'll love those pieces you have cut away
Better than those that grow, and kiss those limbs.

Because you made 'em so.

Phi. Fear'st thou not death?

Can boys contram that?

Bel. Oh, what boy is he
Can be content to live to be a man,
That sees the best of men thus passionate,
Thus without reason?

Phi. What 'tis to die.

Bel. Yes, I do know, my lord: 'Tis less than to be born; a lasting sleep;
A quiet resting from all jealousy,
A thing we all pursue. I know, besides,
It is but giving over a game
That must be lost.

Phi. But there are pains, false boy,
For perjur'd souls. Think but on those, and then
Thy heart will melt, and thou wilt utter all.

Bel. May they fell all upon me whilst I live,
If I be perjur'd, or have ever thought
Of that you charge me with! If I be false,
Send me to suffer in those punishments
You speak of; kill me!

Phi. Oh, what should I do?
Why, who can but believe him? He does swear
So earnestly, that if it were not true,
The gods would not endure him. Rise, Bel- 270
lario:
Thy protestations are so deep, and thou
Dost look so truly when thou utter'st them,
That, though I know 'em false as were my hopes,
I cannot urge thee further. But thou wert
To blame to injure me, for I must love
Thy honest looks, and take no revenge upon
Thy tender youth. A love from me to thee
Is firm, what'er thou dost; it troubles me
That I have call'd the blood out of thy cheeks,
That did so well become thee. But, good boy,
Let me not see thee more! something is done
That will distract me, that will make me mad,
If I behold thee. If thou tender'st me,
Let me not see thee.

Bel. I will fly as far
As there is morning, ere I give distaste
To that most honour'd mind. But through these tears, Shed at my hopeless parting, I can see
A world of treason often d upon you,
And her, and me. Farewell for evermore!

If you shall hear that sorrow strick me dead,
And after find me loyal, let there be
A tear shed from you in my memory,
And I shall rest in peace. 290

Phi. Blessing be with thee,
Whatever thou desirest! Oh, where shall I Go bathe this body? Nature too unkind;
That made no medicine for a troubled mind!

Enter Aretusa.

Are. I marvel my boy comes not back again:
But that I know my love will question him
Over and over,—how I slept, wak'd, talk'd,
How I remember'd him when his dear name
Was last spoke, and how when I sigh'd, wept, sung,
And ten thousand such,—I should be angry at his stay.

Enter King.

King. What, at your meditations! Who attends you?

Are. None but my single self. I need no guard;
I do no wrong, nor fear none.

King. Tell me, have you not a boy?

Are. Yes, sir. 20

King. What kind of boy?

Are. A page, a waiting-boy.

King. A handsome boy?

Are. I think he be not ugly:
Well qualified and dutiful I know him;
I took him not for beauty.

King. He speaks and sings and plays?

Are. Yes, sir. 24

King. About eighteen?

Are. I never ask'd his age.

King. Is he full of service?

Are. By your pardon, why do you ask?

King. Put him away.

Are. Sir!

King. Put him away, I say.

H'as done you that good service shames me to speak of.

Are. Good sir, let me understand you.

King. If you fear me,
Show it in duty; put away that boy.

Are. Let me have reason for it, sir, and then
Your will is my command.

King. Do not you blush to ask it? Cast him
off,
Or I shall do the same to you. You're one
Shame with me, and so near unto myself,
That, by my life, I dare not tell myself
What you, myself, have done.

Are. What have I done, my lord?

King. 'Tis a new language, that all love to learn:
The common people speak it well already;
They need no grammar. Understand me well;
There be foul whispers stirring. Cast him off,
And suddenly. Do it! Farewell. 35

Exit. 36

Are. Where may a maiden live securely free,
Keeping her honour fair? Not with the living;
They feed upon opinions, errors, dreams,
And make 'em truths; they draw a nourishment

1 Aretusa's apartment in the palace.
Out of defamings, grow upon disgraces, And, when they see a virtue fortified Strongly above the batt'ry of their tongues, Oh, how they cast to sink it! And, defeated, (Soul-sick with poison) strike the monuments Where noble names lie sleeping, till they sweat, And the cold marble melt.

Enter Philaster.

Phi. Peace to your fairest thoughts, dearest mistress!
Are. Oh, my dearest servant, I have a war within me!
Phi. He must be more than man that makes these crystals Run into rivers. Sweetest fair, the cause? And, as I am your slave, tied to your goodness, Your creature, made again from what I was And newly-spirited, I'll right your honour.
Are. Oh, my best love, that boy?
Phi. What boy?
Are. The pretty boy you gave me —
Phi. What of him?
Are. Must be no more mine.
Phi. Why?
Are. They are jealous of him.
Phi. Jealous! Who?
Are. The King.
Phi. [Aside.] Oh, my misfortune! Then 'tis no idle jealousy. — Let him go.
Are. Oh, cruel!
Are you hard-hearted too? Who shall now tell you How much I lov'd you? Who shall swear it to you, And weep the tears I send? Who shall now bring you Letters, rings, bracelets? Lose his health in service? Wake tedious nights in stories of your praise? Who shall now sing your crying elegies, And strike a sad soul into senseless pictures, And make them mourn? Who shall take up his lute, And touch it till he crown a silent sleep Upon my eye-lids, making me dream, and cry, "Oh, my dear, dear Philaster!"
Phi. [Aside.] Oh, my heart! Would he had broken thee, that made me know This lady was not loyal — Mistress, Forget the boy; I'll get thee a far better.
Are. Oh, never, never such a boy again As my Bellario!
Phi. 'Tis but your fond affection.
Are. With thee, my boy, farewell for ever All secrecy in servants! Farewell, faith, And all desire to do well for itself! Let all that shall succeed thee for thy wrongs Sell and betray chaste love!
Phi. And all this passion for a boy?
Are. He was your boy, and you put him to me, And the loss of such must have a mourning for.
Phi. Oh, thou forgetful woman!
Are. How, my lord?

Phi. False Arethusa!
Hast thou a medicine to restore my wits, When I have lost 'em? If not, leave to talk, And do thus.
Are. Do what, sir? Would you sleep?
Phi. For ever, Arethusa. Oh, you gods Give me a worthy patience! Have I stood, Naked, alone, the shock of many fortunes? Have I seen mischiefs numberless and mighty Grow like a sea upon me? Have I taken Danger as stern as death into my bosom, And taught upon it, made it but a mirth, And flung it by? Do I live now like him, Under this tyrant King, that languishing Hears his sad bell and sees his mourners? Do I Bear all this bravely, and must sink at length Under a woman's falsehood? Oh, that boy, That cursed boy! None but a villain boy To ease your lust?
Are. Nay, then, I am betrayed: I feel the plot cast for my overthrow. Oh, I am wretched!
Phi. Now you may take that little right I have To this poor kingdom. Give it to your joy; For I have no joy in it. Some far place, Where never WOMANKIND durst set her foot For a bursting with her poisons, must I seek, And live to curse you; There dig a cave, and preach to birds and beasts What woman is, and help to save them from you; How heaven is in your eyes, but in your hearts More hell than hell has; how your tongues, like scorpions, Both heal and poison; how your thoughts are woven With the thousand changes in one subtle web, And worn so by you; how that foolish man, That reads the story of a woman's face And dies believing it, is lost for ever; How all the good you have is but a shadow, I the morning with you, and at night behind you. Past and forgotten; how your vows are frosts, Fast for a night, and with the next sun gone; How you are, being taken all together, A mere confusion, and so dead a chase, That love cannot distinguish. These sad texts, Till my last hour, I am bound to utter of you. So, farewell all my woe, all my delight! Exit. Are. Be merciful, ye gods, and strike me dead!
What way have I deserv'd this? Make my breast Transparent as pure crystal, that the world, Jealous of me, may see the foulest thought My heart holds. Where shall a woman turn her eyes, To find out constancy?

Enter Bellario.

Save me, how black And guiltily, methinks, that boy looks now! 3 For fear of.

1 Plan. 2 Lover.

3 It was believed that scorpions, applied to the wound they made, cured it.
Oh, thou dissembler, that, before thou speak'st,
Wert in the cradle false, sent to make lies
And betray innocents! Thy lord and thou
May glory in the ashes of a maid.
Fool'd by her passion; but the conquest is Nothing so great as wicked. Fly away!
Let my command force thee to that which

Would do without it. If thou understood'st
The leathed office thou hast undertaken,
Why, thou wouldst hide thee under heaps of hills.

Lest men should dig and find thee.

Bel.

Angry with men, hath sent this strange disease
Into the noblest minds! Madam, this grief
You add unto me is no more than drops
To seas, for which they are not seen to swell.
My lord hath struck his anger through my heart,
And let out all the hope of future joys.
You need not bid me fly; I came to part,
To take my latest leave. Farewell for ever!
I durst not run away in honesty
From such a lady, like a boy that stole
Or made some grievous fault. The power of gods Assist you in your sufferings! Hasty time
Reveal the truth to your abused lord
And mine, that he may know your worth;
whilst I
Go seek out some forgotten place to die! Exit.

Are. Peace guide thee! Thou hast overthrown me once;
Yet, if I had another Troy to lose,
Thou, or another villain with thy looks,
Might talk me out of it, and send me naked,
My hair dishevell'd, through the fiery streets.

Enter a Lady.

Lady. Madam, the King would hunt, and calls for you
With earnestness.

Are.
I am in tune to hunt!
Diana, if thou canst rage with a maid
As with a man, let me discover thee;
Bathing, and turn me to a fearful hind,
That I may die pursued by cruel hounds,
And have my story written in my wounds!

Execut.

ACT IV

Scene I. 2

Enter King, Pharamond, Arethusa, Galatea, Megara, Dion, Cleremont, Thraseline, and Attendants.

King. What, are the hounds before and all the woodmen?

Our horses ready and our bows bent?

Dion. All, sir.

King. [to Pharamond.] You are cloudy, sir.

Come, we have forgotten

1 Actaeon. 2 Before the palace.
[Scene II.]

Enter two Woodmen.

Wood. What, have you lodged the deer?
Wood. Yes, they are ready for the bow.
Wood. Who shoots?
Wood. The prince.
Wood. No, she'll hunt.
Wood. She'll take a stand, I say.
Wood. Who else?
Wood. Why, the young stranger-prince.
Wood. He shall shoot in a stone-bow for me. I never lov'd his beyond-sea-ship since he forsook the say, for paying ten shillings. He was there at the fall of a deer, and would needs (out of his mightiness) give ten groats for the dowcets; marry, his steward would have the velvet-head into the bargain, to his turf his hat whithal. I think he should love venery; he is an old Sir Tristrem; for, if you be rememb'red, he forsook the stag once to strike a rascal miching in a meadow, and her he kill'd in the eye. Who shoots else?

Wood. The Lady Galatea.
Wood. That's a good wench, an she would not chide us for tumbling of her women in the brakes. She's liberal, and by the Gods, they say she's honest, and whether that be a fault. I have nothing to do. There's all?
Wood. No, one more; Megra.
Wood. That's a firker, i' faith, boy. There's a wench will ride her harnasses as hard after a kennel of hounds as a hunting saddle; and when she comes home, get'em clapt, and all is well again. I have known her lose herself three times in one afternoon (if the woods have been answerable), and it has been work enough for one man to find her, and he has sweat for it. She rides well and she pays well. Hark! I let's go.

Exit FELLASTER.

Phi. Oh, that I had been nourish'd in these woods
With milk of goats and acorns, and not known
The right of crowns nor the dissembling trains
Of women's looks; but digg'd myself a cave.
Where I, my fire, my cattle, and my bed,
Might have been shut together in one shed;
And then had taken me some mountain-girl,
Beaten with winds, chaste as the hard'ned rocks.
Whereon she dwelt, that might have strewed
My bed
With leaves and reeds, and with the skins of beasts,
Our neighbours, and have borne at her big breasts

My large coarse issue! This had been a life
Free from vexation.

Enter BELLARIO.

Bel. Oh, wicked men!
An innocent may walk safe among beasts;
Nothing assaults me here. See, my griev'd lord
Sits as his soul were searching out a way
To leave his body! — Pardon me, that must Break thy last commandment; for I must speak.

You that are griev'd can pity; hear, my lord!

Phi. Is there a creature yet so miserable,
That I can pity?

Bel. Oh, my noble lord,
View my strange fortune, and bestow on me,
According to your bounty (if my service
Can merit nothing), so much as may serve
To keep that little piece I hold of life
From cold and hunger!

Phi. Is it thou? Be gone!
Go, sell those misbecoming clothes thou wear'st,
And feed thyself with them.

Bel. Alas, my lord, I can get nothing for them!
The silly country-people think 'tis treason
To touch such gay things.

Phi. Now, by the gods, this is Unkindly done, to vex me with thy sight.
Thou 'rt fallen again to thy dissembling trade;
How shouldst thou think to cozen me again? n
Remains there yet a plague unhurt for me?
Even so thou wept'st, and lookt'st, and spok'st when first
I took thee up.
Curse on the time! If thy commanding tears
Can work on any other, use thy art;
I'll not betray it. Which way wilt thou take,
That I may shun thee, for thine eyes are poison
To mine, and I am loth to grow in rage?
This way, or that way?

Bel. Any will serve; but I will choose to have
That path in chase that leads unto my grave.

Exit FELLASTER severally.

Enter [on one side] DION, and [on the other] the two Woodmen.

Dion. This is the strangest sudden chance!
You, woodmen!

Wood. This is the strangest sudden chance!

1. Wood. My lord Dion?
Dion. Saw you a hare pursue this way on a sable horse studded with stars of white?

2. Wood. Was she not young and tall?
Dion. Yes. Rod she to the wood or to the plain?

2. Wood. Faith, my lord, we saw none.

Exit Woodmen.

Dion. Fox of your questions then!

Enter CLEREMONT.

What, is she found?

Cle. Nor will be, I think.

Dion. Let him seek his daughter himself.
She cannot stray about a little necessary natural business, but the whole court must be in arms.
When she has done, we shall have peace.
Cle. There's already a thousand father- [25 less tales amongst us. Some say, her horse ran away with her; some, a wolf pursued her; others, 'twas a plot to kill her, and that arm'd men were seen in the wood: but questionless she rode away willingly.

Enter King and Thrasilin.

King. Where is she?
Cle. Sir, I cannot tell.
King. How's that?

Answer me so again!

Cle. Sir, shall I lie?
King. Yes, lie and damn, rather than tell me that.

I say again, where is she? Mutter not! —
Sir, speak you; where is she?
Dion. Sir, I do not know. 106
King. Speak that again so boldly, and, by Heaven,
It is thy last! — You, fellows, answer me;
Where is she? Mark me, all; I am your king:
I wish to see my daughter; show her me,
I do command you all, as you are subjects, 110
To show her me! What! am I not your king?
If ay, then am I not to be obeyed?
Dion. Yes, if you command things possible
and honest.

King. Things possible and honest! Hear me, thou, Thou traitor, that dar'st confine thy King to Possible and honest! Show her me,
Or, let me perish, if I cover not
All Sicily with blood!
Dion. Faith, I cannot,
Unless you tell me where she is.

King. You have betray'd me; you have let me lose
The jewel of my life. Go, bring her to me,
And set her here before me. 'Tis the king
Will have it so; whose breath can still the winds,
Uncloud the sun, charm down the swelling sea,
And stop the floods of heaven. Speak, can it not Dion. No.

King. No! I cannot the breath of kings do Dion. No; nor smell sweet itself, if once the luings
Be but corrupted.

King. Is it so? Take heed!
Dion. Sir, take you heed how you dare the powers
That must be just.

King. Alas! what are we kings! 130
Why do you gods place us above the rest,
To be serv'd, flatter'd, and ador'd, till we Believe we hold within our hands your thunder?
And when we come to try the power we have,
There's not a leaf shakes at our threat'nings.
I have sim'd, 'tis true, and here stand to be
punish'd;
Yet would not thus be punish'd. Let me choose
My way, and lay it on!
Dion. [Aside.] He articles with the gods.

Would somebody would draw bonds for the performance of covenants betwixt them! 141

Enter Pharamond, Galatea, and Megra.

King. What, is she found?
Pha. No; we have ta'en her horse;
He galloped empty joy. There is some treason.
You, Galatea, rode with her into the wood;
Why left you her?

Gal. She did command me. 146
King. Command! you should not.
Gal. 'T would ill become my fortunes and my birth.
To disobey the daughter of my king.
King. You're all cunning to obey us for our hurt;
But I will have her.
Pha. If I have her not, 150
By this hand, there shall be no more Sicily.
Dion. [Aside.] What, will he carry it to Spain
in's pocket?
Pha. I will not leave one man alive, but the
king,
A cook, and a tailor.
Dion. [Aside.] Yes; you may do well to spare your lady-bedfellow;
and you her may keep for a spawner.

King. [Aside.] I see the injuries I have done must be reveng'd.
Dion. Sir, this is not the way to find her out.
King. Run all, disperse yourselves. The man that finds her,
Or (if she be kill'd) the traitor, I'll make him
great.

Dion. I know some would give five thousand pounds to find her.
Pha. Come, let us seek.
King. Each man a several way; here I myself.
Dion. Come, gentlemen, we here.
Cle. Lady, you must go search too.
Meg. I had rather be search'd myself.

[Scene III.] 1

Enter Arethusa.

Are. Where am I now? Feet, find me out a
way,
Without the counsel of my troubled head.
I'll follow you boldly about these woods,
O'er mountains, thorough brambles, pits, and floods.
Heaven, I hope, will ease me: I am sick.

Sits down.

Enter Bellario.

Bel. [Aside.] Yonder's my lady. God knows
I want nothing.
Because I do not wish to live; yet I Will try her charity. — Oh hear, you have plenty!
From that flowing store drop some on dry ground. — See.
The lively red is gone to guard her heart!

1 Another part of the forest.
Enter PHILASTER.

Phi. I am to blame to be so much in rage.
   I'll tell her coolly when and where I heard
This killing truth. I will be temperate
In speaking, and as just in hearing.

Oh, monstrous! Tempt me not, you gods! gods Tempt not a frail man! What's he, that has a heart,
But he must ease it here!

Bel. My lord, help, help! The princess!
Are. I am well: forbear.

Phi. [aside.] Let me love lightning, let me be embrac'd
And kist by scorpions, or adore the eyes
Of basilisks, rather than trust the tongues
Of hell-bred women! Some good god look down,
And shrive these veins up! Stick me here a stone,
Lasting to ages in the memory
Of this damned act!—Hear me, you wicked ones!
You have put hills of fire into this breast,
Not to be quench'd with tears; for which may guilt
Sit on your bosoms! At your meals and beds Despair await you! What, before my face?
Poison of asps between your lips! Diseases
Be your best issues! Nature make a curse,
And throw it on you!

Are. Dear Philaster, leave it.

Phi. To be enraged, and hear me.
I have done;
Forgive my passion. Not the calmed sea,
When Aeolus locks up his windy brood,
Is less disturb'd than I. I'll make you know 't.

Dear Arethusa, do but take this sword,
Offers his drawn sword.
And search how temperate a heart I have;
Then you and this your boy may live and reign
In lust without control. — Wilt thou, Bellario?
I prithee kill me; thou art poor, and may'st
Nourish ambitious thoughts; when I am dead,
Thy way were freer. Am I raging now?
If I were mad, I should desire to live.
Sir, I feel my pulse, whether you have known
A man in a more equal tune to die.

Bel. Alas, my lord, your pulse keeps madman's time!

So do your tongue.

Phi. You will not kill me, then?

Are. Kill you!

Bel. Not for the world.

Phi. I blame not thee,
Bellario; thou hast done but that which gods
Would have transform'd themselves to do. Be gone,

Leave me without reply; this is the last
Of all our meetings—(Exit Bellario.) Kill me with this sword;

Be wise, or worse will follow: we are two Earth cannot bear at once. Resolve to do,
Or suffer.

Are. If my fortune be so good to let me fail
Upon thy hand, I shall have peace in death.
Yet tell me this, will there be no slaughters,
No jealousy in the other world; no ill there?

Phi. No.

Are. Show me, then, the way.

Bel. Then guide my feeble hand,
You that have power to do it, for I must Perform a piece of justice! — If your youth
Have any way offended Heaven, let prayers
Short and effectual reconcile you to it.

Are. I am prepared.

Enter a Country Fellow.

C. Fell. I'll see the King, if he be in the forest; I have hunted him these two hours. If I should come home and not see him, my sisters would laugh at me. I can see nothing but people better hors'd than myself, that outride me; I can hear nothing but shouting. These kings had need of good brains; this whooping is able to put a man man out of his wits. There's a courtier with his sword drawn; by this hand, upon a woman, I think! I am prepared.

C. Fell. Hold, dastard! strike a woman!
Thou'rt a craven. I warrant thee, thou wouldst be loth to play half a dozen venices at wasters, with a good fellow for a broken head.

Phi. Leave us, good friend,

Are. What ill-bred man art thou, to intrude thyself
Upon our private sports, our recreation?

C. Fell. God's urchins, I understand you not; but I know the rogue has hurt you.

Phi. Pursue thy own affairs: it will be ill
To multiply blood upon my head; which thou Wilt force me to.

C. Fell. I know not your rhetoric; but I can lay it on, if you touch the woman.

Phi. Slave, take what thou deservest!

They fight.

Are. Heavens guard my lord!

C. Fell. Oh, do you breathe?

Phi. I hear the tread of people. I am hurt.

The gods take part against me: could this boor

Have held me thus else? I must shift for life,
Though I do loathe it. I would find a course

1 Formerly used to women as well as to men.
2 Bouts.
3 Cudgels.
4 God judge.
To lose it rather by my will than force. Exit.

C. Fell. I cannot follow the rogue. I pray thee, wench, come and kiss me now. 111

Enter PHARAMOND, DION, CLEREMONT, THREASILINE, and Woodmen.

Pha. What art thou?
C. Fell. Almost kill'd I am for a foolish woman; a knave has hurt her. 114
Pha. The princess, gentlemen! — Where's the wound, madam? Is it dangerous?
Are. He has not hurt me.
C. Fell. By God, she lies; he's hurt her in the breast.

Look else.

Pha. O sacred spring of innocent blood! Dion. 'Tis above wonder! Who should dare this?
Are. I felt it not.
Pha. Speak, villain, who has hurt the princess?
C. Fell. Is it the princess?
Dion. Ay.
C. Fell. Then I have seen something yet. 115 Pha. But who has hurt her?
C. Fell. I told you, a rogue; I ne'er saw him before.
Pha. Madam, who did it?
Are. Some dishonest wretch; Alas, I know him not, and do forgive him!
C. Fell. He's hurt too; he cannot go far; 130 I made my father's old fox fly about his ears.
Pha. How will you have me kill him?
Are. Not at all; 'tis some distracted fellow.
Pha. By this hand, I'll leave ne'er a piece of him bigger than a nut, and bring him all to you in my hat.
Are. Nay, good sir, If you do take him, bring him quick 2 to me, And I will study for a punishment Great as his fault. 140
Pha. I will.
Are. But swear.

Cho. By all my love, I will. — Woodmen, conduct the princess to the King, And bear that wounded fellow to dressing. — Come, gentlemen, we'll follow the chase close.
Exeunt [on one side] PHARAMOND, DION, CLEREMONT, and THREASILINE; [exit on the other] ARETHUSA [attended by] 1 Woodman.

C. Fell. I pray you, friend, let me see the King.
2 Wood. That you shall, and receive thanks.
C. Fell. If I get clear with this, I'll go see no more gay sights. Exeunt. 160

For ever, if thou wilt. You sweet ones all.
[Exeunt.]

Let me unworthy press you; I could wish I rather were a corse strew'd o'er with you Than quick above you. Dulness 4 shuts mine eyes, And I am giddy: oh, that I could take So sound a sleep that I might never wake!

Enter PHILOSTRAT.

Phi. I have done ill; my conscience calls me false
To strike at her that would not strike at me. 10 When I did fight, methought I heard her pray The gods to guard me. She may be abus'd, And I a loathed villain; if she be, She will conceal who hurt her. He has wounds And cannot follow; neither knows he me. 15 Who 's this? Bellario sleeping! If thou be' st Guilty, there is no justice that thy sleep Should be so sound, and mine, whom thou hast wrong'd?
So broken. [Cry within.] Hark! I am pursu'd.
You gods I'll take this offer'd means of my escape. 30 They have no mark to know me but my blood, If she be true; if false, let mischief light On all the world at once! Sword, print my wounds Upon this sleeping boy! I ha' none, I think, Are mortal, nor would I lay greater on thee. 35 Wounds BELLARIO.

Bel. Oh, death, I hope, is come! Blest be that hand!
It meant me well. Again, for pity's sake!
Phi. I have caught myself; Falls.
The loss of blood hath stay'd my flight. Here, here, Is he that struck thee: take thy full revenge; Use me, as I did mean thee, worse than death; I'll teach thee to revenge. This luckless hand Wound the princess; tell my followers Thou didst receive these hurts in staying me, And I will second thee; get a reward. 35 Bel. Fly, fly, my lord, and save yourself!
Phi. How 's this? Wouldst thou I should be safe?
Bel. Else were it vain
For me to live. These little wounds I have Ha' not bled much. Reach me that noble hand;
I'll help to cover you.
Phi. Art thou then true to me? 40 Bel. Or let me perish loath'd! Come, my good lord, Creep in amongst those bushes; who does know But that the gods may save your much-lov'd breath?
Phi. Then I shall die for grief, if not for this, That I have wounded thee. What wilt thou do?

1 Broad sword.
2 Alive.
3 Another part of the forest.
4 Sleepiness.
5 Pursuers.
Bel. Shift for myself well. Peace! I hear 'em come. [Pha. creeps into a bush.]

[Voices within. Follow, follow, follow! that way they went.]

Bel. With my own wounds I'll bloody my own sword.

I need not counterfeit to fall; Heaven knows That I can stand no longer. Falls. 50

Enter PHARAMOND, DION, CLEREMON, and TRAHSLINE.

Pha. To this place we have tracked him by his blood.

Cle. Yonder, my lord, creeps one away. Dion. Stay, sir! what are you?

Bel. A wretched creature, wounded in these woods

By beasts. Relieve me, if your names be men,
Or I shall perish.

Dion. This is he, my lord,

Upon my soul, that hurt her. 'T is the boy.

That wicked boy, that serv'd her.

Pha. Oh, thou damnd In thy creation! What cause couldst thou shape To hurt the princess?

Bel. Then I am betrayed. 60

Dion. Betrayed! No, apprehended, I confess,

(Urze it no more) that, big with evil thoughts I set upon her, and did make my aim,

Her death. For charity let fall at once

The punishment you mean, and do not load

This weary flesh with tortures.

Pha. I will know

Who hit'd thee to this deed.

Bel. Mine own revenge.

Pha. Revenge! for what?

Bel. It pleas'd her to receive

Me as her page and, when my fortunes ebb'd, That men strid o'er them careless, she did shower

Her welcome graces on me, and did swell

My fortunes till they overflow'd their banks,

Threat'ning the men that crost 'em; when, as swift

As storms arise at sea, she turn'd her eyes To burning suns upon me, and did dry

The streams she had bestow'd, leaving me worse

And more contem'n'd than other little brooks,

Because I had been great. In short, I knew I could not live, and therefore did desire To die reveng'd.

Pha. If tortures can be found

Long as thy natural life, resolve to feel

The utmost rigour.

Pha. creeps out of the bush. Help to lead him hence.

Pha. Turn back, you ravishers of innocence! Know ye the price of that you bear away So rudely?

Pha. Who's that?

Dion. 'Tis the Lord Philaster. 55

Pha. 'T is not the treasure of all kings in one, The wealth of Tagus, nor the rocks of pearl That pave the court of Neptune, can weigh down

That virtue. It was I that hurt the princess. Place me, some god, upon a pyramis 1

Higher than hills of earth, and lend a voice Loud as your thunder to me, that from hence I may discourse to all the under-world

The worth that dwells in him!

Pha. How's this? Bel. My lord, some man

Weary of life, that would be glad to die.

Phi. Leave these untimely courtesies, Beliaro.

Bel. Alas, he's mad! Come, will you lead me on?

Phi. By all the oaths that men ought most to keep, And gods to punish most when men do break, He touch'd her not. —Take heed, Bellario, 110

How thou dost drown the virtues thou hast shown

With perjury. —By all that's good, 'twas I! You know she stood betwixt me and my right. Phi. Thy own tongue be thy judge!

Cle. It was Philaster.

Dion. Is't not a brave boy? 115

Well, sir, I fear me we were all deceived.

Phi. Have I no friend here?

Dion. Yes.

Phi. Then show it: some Good body lend a hand to draw us nearer.

Would you have tears shed for you when you die?

Then lay me gently on his neck, that there I may weep floods and breathe forth my spirit. 'T is not the wealth of Plutus, nor the gold

Lockt in the heart of earth, can buy away This arm-full from me; this had been a ransom

To have redeem'd the great Augustus Caesar, Had he been taken. You hard-hearted men, More stony than these mountains, can you see Such clear pure blood drop, and not cut your flesh

To stop his life, to bind whose bitter wounds, Queens ought to tear their hair, and with their tears Bathe 'em? —Forgive me, thou that art the wealth

Of poor Philaster!

Enter KING, ARETHUSA, and Guard.

King. Is the villain ta'en?

Phi. Sir, here be two confess the deed; but sure

It was Philaster.

King. Question it no more;

It was. Are. Aye me! I know he will.

King. Did not you know him?

Are. Sir, if it was he, He was disguis'd.

Phi. I was so.—Oh, my stars, That I should live still.

1 Pyramld.
King. Thou ambitious fool, Thou that hast laid a train for thy own life! —
Now I do mean to do, I'll leave to talk. 181
Bear them to prison.
Are. Sir, they did plot together to take hence
This harmless life; should it pass unreveang'd,
I should to earth go weeping. Grant me, then,
By all the love a father bears his child,
Their custodies, and that I may appoint
Their tortures and their deaths.
Dion. Death! Soft; our law will not reach
That for this fault.
King. 'Tis granted; take 'em to you with a guard. —
Come, princely Pharamond, this business past,
We may with security go on
To your intended match.
[Exeunt all except Dion, Cleremont, and Thrasiline.]
Cle. I pray that this action lose not Philaster
The hearts of the people.
Dion. Fear it not; their over-wise heads will Think it but a trick.
Exeunt.

ACT V

SCENE I.1

Enter Dion, Cleremont, and Thrasiline.

Thra. Has the King sent for him to death?
Dion. Yes; but the King must know 'tis not in his power to war with Heaven.
Cle. We linger time; the King sent for Philaster and the headsmen an hour ago.
Thra. Are all his wounds well?
Dion. All; they were but scratches; but the loss of blood made him faint.
Cle. We daily, gentlemen.
Thra. Away!
Dion. We'll scuffle hard before we perish.
Exeunt.

[SCENE II.] 2

Enter Philaster, Arethusa, and Bellario.

Are. Nay, faith, Philaster, grieve not; we are well.
Bel. Nay, good my lord, forbear; we're wondrous well.
Phi. Oh, Arethusa, oh, Bellario,
Leave to be kind!
I shall be shut from Heaven, as now from earth,
If you continue so. I am a man
False to a pair of the most trusty ones
That ever earth bore; can it bear us all?
Forgive, and leave me. But the King hath sent
To call me to my death: oh, shew it me,
And then forget me! And for thee, my boy,
I shall deliver words will mollify
The hearts of beasts to spare thy innocence.
Bel. Alas, my lord, my life is not a thing Worthy your noble thoughts! 'Tis not a life,
'Tis but a piece of childhood thrown away.
Should I outlive you, I should then outlive
Virtue and honour; and when that day comes,

If ever I shall close these eyes but once,
May I live spotted for my perjury,
And waste my limbs to nothing!
Are. And I (the woful'stmaid that ever was, Fore'd with my hands to bring my lord to death)
Do by the honour of a virgin swear
To tell no hours beyond it!
Phi. Make me not hate so.
Are. Come from this prison all joyful to our deaths!
Phi. People will tear me, when they find you
true
To such a wretch as I; I shall die loath'd.
Enjoy your kingdoms peaceably, whilst I
For ever sleep forgotten with my faults.
Every just servant, every maid in love,
Will have a piece of me, if you be true.
Are. My dear lord, say not so.
Bel. A piece of you!
He was not born of woman that can cut
It and look on.
Phi. Take me in tears betwixt you, for my heart
Will break with shame and sorrow.
Are. Why, 'tis well.
Bel. Lament no more.
Phi. Why, what would you have done
If you had wrong'd me basely, and had found Your 6 life no price compar'd to mine? For love, sirs,
Deal with me truly.
Bel. 'T was mistaken, sir.
Phi. Why, if it were?
Bel. Then, sir, we would have ask'd
You pardon.
Phi. And have hope to enjoy it?
Are. Enjoy it! ay.
Bel. We would, my lord.
Phi. Forgive me, then.
Are. So, so. 46
Bel. 'Tis as it should be now.
Phi. Lead to my death. Exeunt.

[SCENE III.] 4

Enter King, Dion, Cleremont, Thrasiline
[and Attendants].

King. Gentlemen, who saw the prince?
Cle. So please you, sir, he's gone to see the city
And the new platform, with some gentlemen
Attending on him.

King. Is the princess ready
To bring her prisoner out?

Thra. She waits your grace. 8
King. Tell her we stay. Exit Thrasiline.
Dion. [Aside.] King, you may be deceiv'd yet.
The head you aim at cost more setting on
Than to be lost so lightly. If it must o' er,
Like a wild overflow, that swoops before him
A golden stack, and with it shakes down bridges,

1 Before the palace. 2 A prison.
Cracks the strong hearts of pines, whose cable-roots
Held out a thousand storms, a thousand thunders,
And, so made mightier, takes whole villages
Upon his back, and in that heat of pride
Charges strong towns, towers, castles, palaces,
And lays them desolate; so shall thy head,
Thy noble head, bury the lives of thousands,
That must bleed with thee like a sacrifice,
In thy red ruins.

Enter Aretusa, Philaster, Bellario in a robe and garland [and Thrasiline].

King. How now? What masque is this? 29
Bel. Right royal sir, I should
Sing you an epithalamion of these lovers,
But having lost my best airs with my fortunes,
And wanting a celestial harp to strike
This blessed union on, thus in glad story 36
I give you all. These two fair cedar-branches,
The noblest of the mountain where they grew,
Straightest and tallest, under whose still shades
The worthier beasts have made their lairs, and Free from the fervour of the Siurian star
And the fell thunder-stroke, free from the clouds
When they were big with humour, and deliver'd
In thousand spoils their issues to the earth;
Oh, there was none but silent quiet there!
Till never-pleased Fortune shot up shrubs, 35
Base under-branches, to divorce these branches;
And for a while they did so, and did reign
Over the mountain, and choke up his beauty
With brakes, rude thorns and thistles, till the sun
Sooch't them even to the roots and dried them there. 40
And now a gentle gale hath blown again,
That made these branches meet and twine together,
Never to be divided. The god that sings
His holy numbers over marriage-beds
Hath knit their noble hearts; and here they stand
Your children, mighty King; and I have done.

King. How, how? 45
Bel. Sir, if you love it in plain truth,
(For now there is no masquing in't,) this gentleman,
The prisoner that gave you, is become
My keeper, and through all the bitter thorns 50
Your jealousies and his ill fates have wrought him,
Thus nobly hath he struggled, and at length
Arrived here my dear husband.

King. Your dear husband! —
Call in the Captain of the Citadel —
There you shall keep your wedding. I'll provide
A masque shall make your Hymen turn his saffron
Into a sullen coat, and sing sad requiems
To your departing souls. Blood shall put out your torches; and, instead
Of gaudy flowers about your wanton necks,

An axe shall hang, like a prodigious meteor,
Ready to crop your loves' sweets. Hear, you gods!
From this time do I shake all title off
Of father to this woman, this base woman;
And what there is of vengeance in a lion 56
Chafe among dogs or robb'd of his dear young,
The same, enforce'd more terrible, more mighty,
Expect from me!

Are. Sir, by that little life I have left to swear by,
There's nothing that can stir me from myself.
What I have done, I have done without repentance,
For death can be no bugbear unto me,
So long as Pharamond is not my headman.

Dion. [Aside.] Sweet peace upon thy soul,
Thou worthy maid,
Where'er thou diest! For this time I'll excuse thee,
Or be thy prologue.

Phl. Sir, let me speak next;
And let my dying words be better with you
Than my dull living actions. If you aim
At the dear life of this sweet innocent,
You are a tyrant and a savage monster.
That feeds upon the blood you gave a life to; 1
Your memory shall be as foul behind you,
As you are living; all your better deeds
Shall be in water writ, but this in marble; 34
No chronicle shall speak you, though your own,
But for the shame of men. No monument, Though high and big as Pelion, shall be able to cover this base murder: make it rich
With brass, with purest gold, and shining jasper.
Like the Pyramids; lay on epitaphs
Such as make great men gods; my little marble,
That only clothes my ashes, not my faults,
Shall far outshine it. And for after-issues,
Think not so madly of the heavenly wisdoms,
That they will give you more for your mad rage
To cut off, unless it be some snake, or something Like yourself, that in his birth shall strangle you.
Remember my father, King! There was a fault,
But I forgive it. Let that sin persuade you
To love this lady; if you have a soul,
Think, save her, and be saved. For myself,
I have so long expected this glad hour,
So languisht under you, and daily withered,
That, Heaven knows, it is a joy to die;
I find a recreation in't.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. Where is the King?
King. Here. 105
Mess. Get you to your strength,
And rescue the Prince Pharamond from danger;
He's taken prisoner by the citizens,
Fearing 2 the Lord Philaster.

1 Q. Other edd. omit.  I. c. fearing for.
Dion. [Aside.] Oh, brave followers! Mutiny, my fine dear countrymen, mutiny!
Now, my brave valiant foremen, shew your weapons
In honour of your mistresses!

Enter a Second Messenger.

2 Mess. Arm, arm, arm, arm!

King. A thousand devils take 'em!

Dion. [Aside.] A thousand blessings on 'em!

2 Mess. Arm, O King! The city is in mutiny,

Led by an old gray ruffian, who comes on

In rescue of the Lord Philaster.

King. Away to the citadel! I'll see them safe,

And then cope with these burghers. Let the guard

And all the gentlemen strong attendance.

Exeunt all except Dion, Cleermont, and Thrasiline.

Cle. The city up! This was above our wishes.

Dion. Ay, and the marriage too. By my life,

This noble lady has deceiv'd us all.

A plague upon myself, a thousand plagues, for having such unworthy thoughts of her dear honour!

Oh, I could beat myself! Or do you beat me,

And I'll beat you; for we had all one thought.

Cle. No no, 't will but lose time.

Dion. You say true. Are your swords sharp?

—Well, my dear countrymen What Ye lacks, if you continue, and fall not back upon the first broken skin, I'll have youchronicled and chronicled, and cut and chronicled, and all-to be-prais'd and sung in sonnets, and bawled in new brave ballads, that all tongues shall trow you in saecula saeculorum, my kind cæ- carriers.

Thru. What, if a toy take 'em i' th' heels now, and they run all away, and cry, 'the devil take the hindmost'?

Dion. Then the same devil take the foremost too, and scarce him for his breakfast! If they all prove cowardice and horses fly among them, and be spreading! May they have murrains reign to keep the gentlemen at home un- bound in easy frieze! May the moths branch their velvets, and their silks only be worn before sore eyes! May their false lights undo 'em, and discover presses, holes, stains, and oldness in their stuffs, and make them shop-rid! May they keep whores and horses, and break; and live mewed up with necks of beef and turmips! May they have many children, and none like the father! May they know no language but that gibberish they prattle to their parcels, unless it be the goatish Latin they write in their bonds —and may they write that false, and lose their debts!

Re-enter King.

King. Now the vengeance of all the gods confound them! How they swarm together! What a hum they raise! — Devils choke your 1 I.e. shopkeepers, who were in the habit of thus addressing passers-by.

2 Trife, whim.

3 Eat patterns on.

4 Greases.

wild throats! — If a man had need to use their valours, he must pay a brokage for it, and then bring 'em on, and they will fight like sheep.

This Philaster, none but Philaster, must ally this heat. They will not hear me speak, but fling dirt at me and call me tyrant. Oh, run, dear friend, and bring the Lord Philaster! Speak him fair; call him prince; do him all the courtesy you can; commend me to him. Oh, my wits, my wits!

Exit Cleremont.

Dion. [Aside.] Oh, my brave countrymen! as I live, I will not buy a pin out of your walls for this. Nay, you shall cozen me, and I'll thank you, and send you brawn and bacon, and soil of you every long vacation a brace of fore-

men,

that at Michaelmas shall come up fat and kicking.

King. What they will do with this poor prince, the gods know, and I fear.

Dion. [Aside.] Why, sir, they'll flay him, and make church-buckets on's skin, to quench rebellion; then clap a rivet in's scorne, and hang him up for a sign.

Enter Cleremont with Philaster.

King. Oh, worthy sir, forgive me! Do not make

Your miseries and my faults meet together,

To bring a greater danger. Be yourself,

Still sound amongst diseases. I have wrong'd you;

And though I find it last, and beaten to it,

Let first your goodness know it. Calm the people,

And be what you were born to. Take your love,

And with her my repentance, all my wishes,

And all my prayers. By the gods, my heart speaks this;

And if the least fall from me not perform'd,

May I be struck with thunder!

Phi. Mighty sir, I will not do your greatness so much wrong, As you to make your word truth. Free the princess

And the poor boy, and let me stand the shock Of this mad sea-breath, which I'll either turn,

Or perish with it.

King. Let your own word free them.

Phi. Then thus I take my leave, kissing your hand,

And hanging on your royal word. Be kingly,

And be not mov'd, sir. I shall bring you peace

Or never bring myself back.

King. All the gods go with thee. Exeunt.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter an old Captain and Citizens with Pharamond.

Cap. Come, my brave myrmidons, let us fall on.

Let your caps swarm, my boys, and your nimble tongues

5 Fatten.

6 Geese.

7 A street.
Forget your mother-gibberish of "what do you lack?"
And set your mouths ope, children, till your palates
Fall frightened half a fathom past the cure
Of bay-salt and gross pepper, and then cry
"Philaster, brave Philaster!" Let Philaster
Be deeper in request, my ding-dongs,
My pairs of dear indentures, kings of clubs,
Than your cold water-camlets, or your paintings
Spitted with copper. Let not your nasty silks,
Or your branch'd cloth of bodkin, or your tresses,
Dearly belov'd of spiced cake and custards,
Your Robin Hoods, Scarletts, and Johns, tie your affections
In darkness to your shops. No dainty duckers,
Up with your three-pil'd spirits, your wrought valours,
And let your uncut chokers make the King feel
The measure of your mightiness. Philaster!
Cry, my rose-nobles, cry!
All.
Philaster! Philaster!
Cap. How do you like this, my lord-prince?
These are mad boys, I tell you; these are things
That will not strike their topsails to a foist,
And let a man of war, an argosy, Hull
And cry cockles.
Pha. Why, you rude slave, do you know what you do?
Cap. My pretty prince of puppets, we do know;
And give your greatness warning that you talk
No more such bug's-words, or that sold'rd crown
Shall be scratch'd with a musket. Dear prince Pippin,
Down with your noble blood, or, as I live,
I'll have you coddled. — Let him loose, my spirits:
Make us a round ring with your bills, my Heers,
And let us see what this trim man dares do.
Now, sir, have at you! here I lie;
And with this swashing blow (do you see, sweet spirit?)
I could hurl your grace, and hang you up cross-legg'd.
Like a hare at a poulter's, and do this with this wiper.

Pha. You will not see me murder'd, wicked villains?
1 Cit. Yes, indeed, will we, sir; we have not seen one
For a great while.
Cap. He would have weapons, would he? Give him a broadside, my brave boys, with your pikes;
Branch me his skin in flowers like a satin, And between every flower a mortals cut. — Your royalty shall ravel! I'll have him cut to the hilt, then down the seams.
O for a whip to make him galloono-laces! I'll have a coach-whip.
Pha. Oh, spare me, gentlemen!
Cap. Hold, hold;
The man begins to fear and know himself.
He shall for this time only be seel'd up,
With a feather through his nose, that he may only
See heaven, and think whither he is going.
Nay, my beyond-sea sir, we will proclaim you: You would be king!
Thou tender heir apparent to a church-ale, Thou slight prince of single sacerents,
Thou royal ring-tail, fit to fly at nothing.
But poor men's poultry, and have every boy Beat thee from that too with his bread and butter!
Pha. Gods keep me from these hell-hounds!
1 Cit. Shall's gold him, captain? Cap. No, you shall spare his dowcets, my dear dossels; As you respect the ladies, let them flourish.
The curses of a longing woman kill
As speedily as a plague, boys.
1 Cit. I'll have a leg, that's certain.
2 Cit. I'll have an arm.
3 Cit. I'll have his nose, and at mine own charge build
A college and clap 't upon the gate.
4 Cit. I'll have his little gut to string a kit with;
For certainly a royal gut will sound like silver.
Pha. Would they were in thy belly, and I past
My pain once!
5 Cit. Good captain, let me have his liver to feed ferrets.
Cap. Who will have parcels else? Speak.
Pha. Good gods, consider me! I shall be tortur'd.
1 Cit. Captain, I'll give you the trimming of your two-hand sword,
And let me have his skin to make false scabbards.

1 Darlings.
2 Apprentices, who were bound by indentures, and whose usual weapons were clubs. Throughout these scenes, it is, of course, London citizens who are in view.
3 A cloth, made of wool, sometimes mixed with silk, with a watered surface.
4 Colored cloth interwoven with copper.
5 Embroidered cloth, originally of gold and silk.
6 Oringeres (?), duck-hunters (?).
7 A pun on vellum.
8 A pun on collar.
9 Another pun. Rose-nobles were gold coins.
10 A small vessel.
11 Float idly.
12 Swaggering words.
13 A male sparrow-hawk, with a pun on the weapon.
14 Disembowled.
15 Fray out.
16 The caul about the hart's paunch.
17 Ribbons, tape.
18 Have his eyelids sewed together like a hawk's.
19 J. e. a bastard, one born after the conivials of a church feast.
20 Thin silk.
21 A sort of cite.
22 Diminuitive of dons.
23 In allusion to Brazenose College, Oxford.
24 Cittern.
2 Cit. He had no horns, sir, had he?
Cap. No, sir, he 's a pollard.
What wouldst thou do with horns?
2 Cit. Oh, if he had had,
I would have made rare hafts and whistles of 'em;
But his shin-bones, if they be sound, shall serve me.

Enter Philaster.

All. Long live Philaster, the brave Prince Philaster!

Phi. I thank you, gentlemen. But why are these rude weapons brought abroad, to teach your hands
Uncivil trades?

Cap. My royal Rosiclerel.
We are thy myrmidons, thy guard, thy roarsers;
And when thy noble body is in durance,
Thus do we clap our musty murmurs on,
And trace the streets in terror. Is it peace,
Thou Mars of men? Is the King sociable,
And bids thee live? Art thou above thy foes?
And free as Phoebus? Speak. If not, this stand
Of royal blood shall be abroach, a-tilt,
And run even to the lees of honour.

Phi. Hold, and be satisfied. I am myself;
Free as my thoughts are; by the gods, I am!
Cap. Art thou the dainty darling of the King?
Art thou the Hylas to our Hercules?
Do the lords bow, and the regarded scarlets
Kiss their gum'd golls, and cry, "We are your servants"?

Is the court navigable and the presence stuck
With flags of friendship? If not, we are thy castle,
And this man sleeps.

Phi. I am what I desire to be, your friend;
I am what I was born to be, your prince.

Phi. Sir, there is some humanity in you;
You have a noble soul. Forget my name,
And know my misery; set me safe aboard
From these wild cannibals, and as I live,  I'll quit this land for ever. There is nothing,— Perpetual imprisonment, cold, hunger, sickness
Of all sorts, of all dangers, and together,
The worst company of the worst men, madness, age,
To be as many creatures as a woman,
And do as all they do, nay, to despair,—
But I would rather make it a new nature,
And live with all these, than endure one hour
Amongst these wild dogs.

Phi. I do pity you. — Friends, discharge your fears;

Deliver me the prince. I 'll warrant you
I shall be old enough to find my safety.
3 Cit. Good sir, take heed he does not hurt you;
He is a fierce man. I can tell you, sir.

Cap. Prince, by your leave, I 'll have a surcingle.

And make you like a hawk. [Phar.] strives.

Phi. Away, away, there is no danger in him:
Alas, he had rather sleep to shake his fit off!
Look you, friends, how gently he leads! Upon my word,
He's tame enough, he needs no further watching.

Good my friends, go to your houses,
And by me have your pardons and my love;
And know there shall be nothing in my power
You may deserve, but you shall have your wishes.

To give you more thanks, were to flatter you.
Continue still your love; and for an earnest,
Drink this. [Gives money.]

All. Long mayst thou live, brave prince brave prince, brave prince!

Exeunt Phil. and Phar.

Cap. Go thy ways, thou art the king of courtsey!
Fall off again, my sweet yorths. Come,
And every man trace to his house again,
And hang his pewter up; then to the tavern,
And bring your wives in muffs. We will have music;
And the red grape shall make us dance and rise,
boys.

[Scene V.]

Enter King, Arethusa, Galatea, Megra, Dion, Clermont, Thrasillae, Bellario, and Attendants.

King. Is it appeas'd?
Dion. Sir, all is quiet as this dead of night,
As peaceable as sleep. My lord Philaster
Brings on the prince himself.

Kind gentleman! I will not break the least word I have given
In promise to him. I have hearp'd a world
Of grief upon his head, which yet I hope
To wash away.

Enter Philaster and Pharamond.

Cle. My lord is come.

King. My son! Blest be the time that I have leave to call Such virtue mine! Now thou art in mine arms,
Methinks I have a salve unto my breast
For all the stings that dwell there. Streams of grief
That I have wrong'd thee, and as much of joy
That I repent it, issue from mine eyes;
Let them appease thee. Take thy right; take her;
She is thy right too; and forget to urge
My vexed soul with that I did before.

Phi. Sir, it is blotted from my memory,
Past and forgotten. — For you, prince of Spain, Whom I have thus redeem’d, you have full leave To make an honourable voyage home, And if you would go furnish’d to your realm With fair provision, I do see a lady, Methinks, would gladly bear you company. How like you this piece?

Meg. Sir, he likes it well. For he hath tried it, and hath found it worth His princely liking: We were ta’en abed; I know your meaning. I am not the first That nature taught to seek a fellow forth; Can shame remain perpetually in me, And not in others? Or have princes savies To cure ill names, that meaner people want? Phi. What mean you?

Meg. You must get another ship, To bear the princess and her boy together, Dion. How now! Meg. Others took me, and I took her and him At that all women may be ta’en sometime. Ship us all four, my lord; we can endure Weather and wind alike. King. Clear thou thyself, or know not me for father. Are. This earth, how false it is! What means is left for me To clear myself? It lies in your belief. My lords, believe me; and let all things else Struggle together to dishonour me. Bel. Oh, stop your ears, great King; that I may speak As freedom would! Then I will call this lady As base as are her actions. Hear me, sir; Believe your heated blood when it rebels Against your reason, sooner than this lady. Meg. By this good light, he bears it hand-somely. Phi. This lady! I will sooner trust the wind With feathers, or the troubled sea with pearl, Than her with any thing. Believe her not, Why, think you, if I did believe her words, I would outlive ’em? Honour cannot take Revenge on you; then what were to be known But death? King. Forget her, sir, since all is knit Between us. But I must request of you One favour, and will sadly be denied. Phi. Command, what’er it be. King. Swear to be true To what you promise. Phi. By the powers above, Let it not be the death of her or him, And it is granted! King. Bear away that boy To torture: I will have her clear’d or buried. Phi. Oh, let me call my word back, worthy sir! Ask something else: bury my life and right In one poor grave; but do not take away My life and fame at once. King. Away with him! It stands irrevocable. Phi. Turn all your eyes on me. Here stands a man,

1 Shall be sorry to be denied.

The falsest and the basest of this world. Set words against this breast, some honest man, For I have liv’d till I am pitied! My former deeds were hateful; but this last Is pitiful, for I unwillingly Have given the dear preserver of my life Unto his torture. Is it in the power Of flesh and blood to carry this, and live? Offers to stab himself.

Bel. Then I shall not break my vow, You know, just gods, though I discover all. King. How’s that? Will he confess? Dion. Sir, so he says. King. Speak then. Bel. Great King, if you command This lord to talk with me alone, my tongue Unt’d by my heart, shall utter all the thoughts My youth hath known; and stranger things than these You hear not often. King. Walk aside with him. [Dion and Bellario walk apart.] Dion. Why speak’st thou not? Bel. Know you this face, my lord? Dion. No. Bel. Have you not seen it, nor the like? Dion. Yes, I have seen the like, but readily I know not where.

Bel. I have been often told In court of one Euphrasia, a lady, And daughter to you; betwixt whom and me They that would flatter my bad face would swear There was such strange resemblance, that we two Could not be known asunder, drest alike. Dion. By Heaven, and so there is! Bel. For her fair sake. Who now doth spend the spring-time of her life In holy pilgrimage, move to the King, That I may escape this torture. Dion. But thou speakest As like Euphrasia as thou dost look. How came it to thy knowledge that she lives In pilgrimage? Bel. I know it not, my lord; But I have heard it, and do scarce believe it. Dion. Oh, my shame! is it possible? Draw near, That I may gaze upon thee. Art thou she, Or else her murderer? 2 Where went thou born? Bel. In Syracuse. Dion. What’s thy name? Bel. Euphrasia.
Dion. Oh, 'tis just, 'tis she!
Now do I know thee. Oh, that thou hadst died,
And I had never seen thee nor my shame!
How shall I own thee? Shall this tongue of mine

'Er call thee daughter more?
Bel. Would I had died indeed! I wish it too;
And so I must have done by vow, ere publish'd
What I have told, but that there was no means
To hide it longer. Yet I joy in this,

The princess is all clear.
King. What, have you done?
Dion. All is discovered.
Phi. Why then hold you me?
All is discovered! Pray you, let me go.

Offers to stab himself.
King. Stay him.
Are. What is discovered?
Phi. How? That again!
Dion. It is a woman.
Phi. Blest be you powers that favour innocence!
King. Lay hold upon that lady.

[Megara is seized.]
Phi. It is a woman, sir!—Hark, gentlemen,
It is a woman!—Arethusa, take
My soul into thy breast, that would be gone
With joy. It is a woman! Thou art fair,
And virtuous still to ages, in despite
Of malice.
King. Speak you, where lies his shame?
Bel. I am his daughter.
Phi. The gods are just.
Dion. I dare accuse none; but, before you two,
The virtue of our age, I bend my knee
For mercy.
Phi. [raising him.] Take it freely; for I know,
Though what thou didst were undiscover'd done,
'T was meant well.

Are. And for me,
I have a power to pardon sins, as oft
As any man has power to wrong me.
Cle. Noble and worthy!
Phi. But, Bellario,
(For I must call thee still so,) tell me why
Thou didst conceal thy sex. It was a fault,
A fault, Bellario, though thy other deeds
Of truth outweigh'd it: all these jealousies
Had flown to nothing if thou hadst discovered
What now we know.
Bel. My father oft would speak
Your worth and virtue; and, as I did grow
More and more apprehensive, I did thirst
To see the man so prais'd. But yet all this
Was but a maiden-longing, to be lost
As soon as found; till, sitting in my window,
Printing my thoughts in lawn, I saw a god,
I thought, (but it was you,) enter our gates.
My blood flew out and back again, as fast
As I had put it forth and suckt it in Like breath. Then was I call'd away in haste
1 Quick to understand.

To entertain you. Never was a man,
Heav'd from a sheep-cote to a sceptre, rais'd
So high in thoughts as I. You left a kiss Upon these lips then, which I mean to keep
From you for ever. I did hear you talk,
Far above singing. After you were gone,
I grew acquainted with my heart, and search'd
What stirr'd it so: alas, I found it love!
Yet far from lust; for, could I but have liv'd
In presence of you, I had had my end.

For this I did delude my noble father
With a feign'd pilgrimage, and drest myself
In habit of a boy; and, for I knew
My birth no match for you, I was past hope
Of having you; and, understanding well
That when I made discovery of my sex
I could not stay with you, I made a vow,
By all the most religious things a maid
Could call together, never to be known,
Whilst there was hope to hide me from men's eyes,

For other than I seem'd, that I might ever Abide with you. Then sat I by the fount,
Where first you took me up.
King. Search out a match
Within our kingdom, where and when thou wilt,
And I will pay thy dowry; and thyself
Wilt well deserve him.
Bel. Never, sir, will I
Marry; it is a thing within my vow:
But, if I may have leave to serve the princess,
To see the virtues of her lord and her,
I shall have hope to live.

Are. I, Philaster,
Cannot be jealous, though you had a lady
Drest like a page to serve you; nor will I Suspect her living here.—Come, live with me;
Live free as I do. She that loves my lord,
Curst be the wife that hates her!
Phi. I grieve such virtue should be laid in earth
Without an heir.—Hear me, my royal father:
Woe, not the freedom of our souls so much,
To think to take revenge of that base woman;
Her malice cannot hurt us. Set her free
As she was born, saving from shame and sin.
King. Set her at liberty.—But leave the court;
This is no place for such.—You, Pharamond,
Shall have free passage, and a conduct home
Worthy so great a prince. When you come there,
Remember 't was your faults that lost you her,
And not my purpos'd will.
Phi. I do confess,
Renowned sir.
King. Last, join your hands in one. Enjoy,
Philaster,
This kingdom, which is yours, and, after me,
Whatever I call mine. My blessing on you!
All happy hours be at your marriage-joys,
That you may grow yourselves over all lands,
And live to see your plenteous branches spring
Wherever there is sun! Let princes learn
By this to rule the passions of their blood:
For what Heaven wills can never be withheld.

MASQUES.
Night, Cynthia, Neptune, Aeolus, [Sea Gods, Winds.]

[SCENE. — The City of Rhodes.]

ACT I

SCENE I.1

Enter Cleon, Strato, Lysippus, and Diphilus.

Cleon. The rest are making ready, sir.

Lys. So let them; there's time enough.

Diph. You are the brother to the King, my lord;
We'll take your word.

Lys. Strato, thou hast some skill in poetry; 5
What think'st thou of the masque? Will it be well?

Strato. As well as masques can be.

Lys. As masques can be!

Strato. Yes; they must commend their king, and speak in praise
Of the assembly, bless the bride and bridegroom
In person of some god; they're tied to rules 10
Of Hattery.
Cleon. See, good my lord, who is return'd! 15

Enter Melantius.

Lys. Noble Melantius, the land by me
Welcomes thy virtues home to Rhodes;
Thou that with blood abroad buyest our peace!
The breath of kings is like the breath of gods;
My brother wishest thee here, and thou art here.
He will be too kind, and weary thee
With often welcomes; but the time doth give thee
A welcome above his or all the world's.

Mel. My lord, my thanks; but these scratcht limbs of mine
Have spo'ke my love and truth unto my friends,
More than my tongue e'er could. My mind's the same 20

1 An apartment in the palace.

It ever was to you: where I find worth,
I love the keeper till he let it go,
And then I follow it.

Diph. Hail, worthy brother! 25
He that rejoices not at your return
In safety is mine enemy for ever,

Mel. I thank thee, Diphilus. But thou art faulty:
I sent for thee to exercise thine arms
With me at Patria; thou cam'st not, Diphilus;
'Twas ill.

Diph. My noble brother, my excuse
Is my king's strict command, which you, my lord,
Can witness with me.
Lys. 'T is most true, Melantius;
He might not come till the solemnities
Of this great match were past.

Diph. Have you heard of it? 30

Mel. Yes, and have given cause to those that here
Envy my deeds abroad to call me gamesome;
I have no other business here at Rhodes.

Lys. We have a masque to-night, and you must tread
A soldier's measure.

Mel. These soft and silken wars are not for me:
The music must be shrill and all confus'd
That stirs my blood; and then I dance with arms.

But is Amintor wed? 35

Diph. This day.

Mel. All joys upon him! for he is my friend,
Wonde'ring not that I call a man so young my friend:
His worth is great; valiant he is and temperate;
And one that never thinks his life his own,
If his friend need it. When he was a boy,
As oft as I return'd (as, without boast, 40
I brought home conquest, he would gaze upon me
And view me round, to find in what one limb
The virtue lay to do these things he heard;
Then would he wish to see my sword, and feel
The quickness of the edge, and in his hand
Weigh it. He oft would make me smile at this.
His youth did promise much, and his ripe years
Will see it all perform’d.

Enter Aspatia, passing by.

Hail, maid and wife!

Thou, fair Aspatia, may the holy knot
That thou hast tied to-day last till the hand
Of age undo ’t! May’st thou bring a race
Unto Amintor, that may fill the world
Successively with soldiers!

Asp. My hard fortunes
Deserve not scorn, for I was never proud
When they were good. Exit. Mel. How is this?

Lys. You are mistaken, sir ;
She is not married.

Mel. You said Amintor was.

Diph. ’Tis true; but —

Mel. Pardon me; I did receive Letters at Patria from my Amintor,
That he should marry her.

Diph. And so it stood
In all opinion long; but your arrival
Made me imagine you had heard the change.

Mel. Who hath he taken then?

Lys. A lady, sir, that bears the light about her, and strikes dead
With flashes of her eye; the fair Evadne,
Your virtuous sister.

Mel. Peace of heart betwixt them! But this is strange.

Lys. The King, my brother, did it
To honour you; and these solemnities Are at his charge.

Mel. ’Tis royal, like himself. But I am sad
My speech bears so unfortunate a sound
To beautiful Aspatia. There is rage
Hid in her father’s breast, Caltanax,
Bent long against me; and he should not think,
If I could call it back, that I would take
So base revenges, as to scorn the state
Of his neglected daughter. Holds he still His greatness with the King?

Lys. Yes. But this lady
Walks discontented, with her watery eyes
Bent on the earth. The unrequited woods
Are her delight; where, when she sees a bank
Stuck full of flowers, she with a sigh will tell
Her servants what a pretty place it were
To bury lovers in; and make her maids
Pluck ’em, and strow her over like a corse.
She carries with her an infectious grief,
That strikes all her beholders: she will sing
The mournful’st things that ever ear hath heard,
And sigh, and sing again; and when the rest

1.1. Of our young ladies, in their wanton blood,
Tell mirthful tales in course,2 that fill the room
With laughter, she will, with so sad a look, 101
Bring forth a story of the silent death
Of some forsworn virgin, which her grief
Will put in such a phrase that, ere she end,
She will send them weeping one by one away. 105

Mel. She has a brother under my command,3
Like her; a face as womanish as hers;
But with a spirit that hath much outgrown
The number of his years.

Enter Amintor.

Cle. My lord the bridegroom!

Mel. I might run fiercely, not more hastily,
Upon my foe. I love thee well, Amintor; 111
My mouth is much too narrow for my heart;
I joy to look upon those eyes of thine;
Thou art my friend, but my disordered speech
Cuts off my love.

Amin. Thou art Melantius; 116
All love is spoke in that. A sacrifice,
To thank the gods Melantius is return’d
In safety! Victory sits on his sword,
As she was wont. May she build there and dwell;
And may thy armour be, as it hath been,
Only thy valour and thine innocence!
What endless treasures would our enemies give,
That I might hold thee still thus!

Mel. I am poor
In words; but credit me, young man, thy mother
Could do no more but weep for joy to see thee
After long absence. All the wounds I have Fetkht not so much away, nor all the cries
Of widowed mothers. But this is peace,
And that was war.

Amin. Pardon, thou holy god
Of marriage-bed, and frown not, I am for’th,
In answer of such noble tears as those, 131
To weep upon my wedding-day!

Mel. I fear thou art grown too fickle; for I hear
A lady mourns for thee, men say, to death.
Forsaken of thee, on what terms? I know not.
Amin. She had my promise; but the King forbad it,
And made me this worthy change, thy sister,
Accompanied with graces [far]5 above6 her,
With whom I long to lose my lusty youth
And grow old in her arms.

Mel. Be prosperous! 140

Enter Messenger.

Mess. My lord, the masquers rage for you.

Lys. Cleon, Strato, Diphilus! We are gone.

Amin. We’ll all attend you. —

Enter Lyseippus, Cleon, Strato, Diphilus [and Messenger].

We shall trouble you

With our solemnities.

Mel. Not so, Amintor;

2 In turn.

But if you laugh at my rude carriage
In peace, I'll do as much for you in war;
When you come thither. Yet I have a mistrees to bring to your delights; rough though I am,
I have a mistress, and she has a heart
She says; but, trust me, it is stone, no better;
There is no place that I can challenge in't.

But you stand still, and here my way lies.

Exeunt severally.

[Scene II.]

Enter Callianax with Diogoras.

Cal. Diogoras, look to the doors better, for shame! You let in all the world, and anon the King will rat at me. Why, very well said. By Jove, the King will have the show i' th' court! Diag. Why do you swear so, my lord? You know he'll have it here.

Cal. By this light, if he be wise, he will not.

Diag. And if he will not be wise, you are forsworn.

Cal. One may wear his heart out with swearing, and get thanks on no side. I'll be gone, [I look to 't who will.

Diag. My lord, I shall never keep them out. Pray, stay; your looks will terrify them.

Cal. My looks terrify them, you coxcombly ass, you! I'll be judged by all the company whether thou hast not a worse face than I.

Diag. I mean, because they know you and your office.

Cal. Office! I would I could put it off! I am sure I sweat quite through my office. I might have made room at my daughter's wedding; they ha' near kill'd her among them; and now I must do service for him that hath forsaken her. Serve that will! [Exit.

Diag. He's so humorously since his daughter was forsaken! (Knock within.) Hark! hark! there, there! so, so! codes, codes! What now? Mel. (within.) Open the door.

Diag. Who's there?

Mel. (within.) Melantius.

Diag. I hope your lordship brings no troop with you; for, if you do, I must return them.

[Opens the door.]

Enter Melantius and a Lady.

Mel. None but this lady, sir.

Diag. The ladies are all plac'd above, save those that come in the King's troop; the best of Rhodes sit there, and there's room.

Mel. I thank you, sir. When I have seen you placed, madam, I must attend the King; but, the masque done, I'll wait you on again.

Diag. [opening another door.] Stand back there! — Room for my Lord Melantius! (Exeunt Melantius and Lady, other door.) — Pray, bear back — this is no place for such youth and their trulls — let the doors shut again. — No! — do your heads itch? I'll scratch them for you.

5 Wenches.
That sea of blood, that I have lost in fight, 96
Were running in thy veins, that it might make thee
Apt to say less, or able to maintain,
Should'st thou say more! This Rhodes, I see, is nought
But a place privilegd to do men wrong.
Cal. Ay, you may say your pleasure.

Enter Amintor.

Amin. What vile injury 100
Has stirr'd my worthy friend, who is as slow
To fight with words as he is quick of hand?
Med. That heap of age, which I should reverence
If it were temperate, but testy years
Are most contemptible.
Amin. Good sir, forbear. 105
Cal. There is just such another as yourself.
Amin. He will wrong you, or me, or any man,
And talk as if he had no life to lose,
Since this our match. The King is coming in;
I would not for more wealth than I enjoy 110
He should perceive you raging. He did hear
You were at difference now, which hast'n'd him.

Hautboys play within.

Cal. Make room there!

Enter King, Evadne, Aspatia, Lords, and Ladies.

King. Melantius, thou art welcome, and my love
Is with thee still; but this is not a place 115
To brabble in. — Calianax, join hands.
Cal. He shall not have mine hand.
King. This is no time
To force you to. I do love you both: —
Calianax, you look well to your office; —
And you, Melantius, are welcome home.
Begin the masque.
Med. Sister, I joy to see you and your choice;
You look'd with my eyes when you took that man.
Be happy in him! Recorders [play].
Evad. O, my dearest brother,
Your presence is more joyful than this day 120
Can be unto me.

THE MASQUE

Night rises in mists.

Night. Our reign is come; for in the raging sea
The sun is drown'd, and with him fell the Day.
Bright Cynthia, hear my voice! I am the Night,
For whom thou bear'st about thy borrowed light.
Appear! no longer thy pale visage shroud,
But strike thy silver horns quite through a cloud,
And send a beam upon my swarthy face,
By which I may discover all the place
And persons, and how many longing eyes
Are come to wait on our solemnities.

I. ii. THE MAID'S TRAGEDY 571

Enter Cynthia.

How dull and black am I! I could not find
This beauty without thee, I am so blind:
Methinks they show like to those eastern streaks,
That warn us hence before the morning breaks.
Back, my pale servant! 15 These eyes know how
To shoot far more and quicker rays than thou.
Cynth. Great queen, they be a troop for whom alone
One of my dearest moons I have put on;
A troop, that looks as if thyself and I
Had pluck'd our reins in and our whips laid by,
To gaze upon these mortals, that appear Brighter than we.

Night. Then let us keep 'em here,
And never more our chariots drive away,
But hold our places and quit the Day.
Cynth. Great beauty of shadows, you are pleas'd to speak
Of more than may be done. We may not break
The gods' decrees; but, when our time is come,
Must drive away, and give the Day our room.
Yet, while our reign lasts, let us stretch our power
To give our servants one contented hour, 30
With such unwonted solemn grace and state,
As may forever after force them hate
Our brother's glorious beams, and wish the Night
Crown'd with a thousand stars and our cold light:
For almost all the world their service bend 55
To Phoebus, and in vain my light I lend,
Gaz'd on unto my setting from my rise
Almost of none but of unquiet eyes.

Night. Then shine at full, fair queen, and by thy power
Produce a birth, to crown this happy hour, 60
Of nymphs and shepherds; let their songs discover
Easy and sweet, who is a happy lover:
Or, if thou wou'dst, then call thine own Endymion
From the sweet flow'ry bed he lies upon,
On Latmus' top, thy pale beams drawn away, 65
And of his long night let him make a day.
Cynth. Thou dream'st, dark queen; that fair boy was not mine,
Nor went I down to kiss him. Ease and wine
Have bred these bold tales: poete, when they rage,
Turn gods to men, and make an hour an age. 70
But I will give a greater state and glory,
And raise to time a nobler memory
Of what these lovers are. — Rise, rise, I say,
Thou power of deeps, thy surges laid away,
Neptune, great king of waters, and by me. 75
Be proud to be commanded!

4 I. e. of the court ladies. 5 Will.
Neptune rises.

Nept. Cynthia, see
The wave hath fetched me hither: let me know
Why I ascend.

Cynth. Doth this majestic show
Give thee no knowledge yet?

Nept. Yes, now I see Something intended, Cynthia, worthy thee. 50
Go on; I'll be a helper.

Cynth. Hee thee, then,
And charge the Wind fly from his rocky den,
Let loose his subjects; only Boreas,
Too foul for our intentions as he was,
Still keep him fast chain'd: we must have done
But vernal blasts and gentle winds appear,
Such as blow flowers, and through the glad boughs sing
Many soft welcomes to the lusty spring;
These are our music. Next, thy wat'ry race
Bring on in couples (we are pleas'd to grace
This noble night), each in their richest things
Your own deeps or the broken vessel brings.
Be prodigal, and I shall be as kind
And shine at full upon you.

Nept. Oh, the Wind!
Commanding Aeolus!

Enter Aeolus out of a Rock.

Aeol. Great Neptune!

Nept. He. 76

Aeol. What is thy will?

Nept. We do command thee free
Favonius and thy milder winds, to wait
Upon our Cynthia; but tie Boreass strait,
He's too rebellious.

Aeol. I shall do it. [Exit AEOLUS.]

Nept. Do.

Aeol. [within.] Great master of the flood and all below,
Thy full command has taken. — Oh, the Main!

Neptune!

Nept. Here.

[Re-enter AEOLUS, followed by FAVONIUS and other Winds.]

Aeol. Boreas has broken his chain,
And, struggling with the rest, has got away.

Nept. Let him alone, I'll take him up at sea;
I will not long be thence. Go once again,
And call out of the bottoms of the main
Blue Proteus and the rest; charge them put on Their greatest pearls, and the most sparkling stone
The beaten rock breeds; tell this night is done
By me a solemn honour to the Moon:
Fly, like a full sail.

Aeol. I am gone. [Exit.]

Cynth. Dark Night,
Strike a full silence, do a thorough right.
To this great chorus, that our music may

Touch high as Heaven, and make the east break day
At midnight.

[First] Song.

[During which PROTEUS and other Sea-deities enter.]

Cynthia, to thy power and thee
We obey.
Joy to this great company!
And no day.
Come to steal this night away,
Till the rites of love are ended,
And the lusty bridegroom say,
Welcome, light, of all befriended!
Face out, you watery powers below;
Let your feet,
Like the galleys when they row,
Even beat.
Let your unknown measures set
To the still winds, tell to all,
That gods are come, immortal, great,
To honour this great nuptial.

The Measure.

Second Song.

Hold back thy hours, dark Night, till we have done;
The Day will come too soon:
Young maids will curse thee, if thou steal'st away,
And leave their losses open to the day:
Stay, stay, and hide
The blushes of the bride.

Stay, gentle Night, and with thy darkness cover
The kisses of her lover:
Stay, and confound her tears and her shrill crying,
Her weak denials, vows, and often-dyings;
Stay, and hide all
But help not, though she call.

Nept. Great queen of us and Heaven, hear what I bring
To make this hour a full one.2

Cynth. Speak, sea's king. 150

Nept. The tunes my Amphitrite joys to have,
When she will dance upon the rising wave,
And court me as she sails. My Tritons, play
Music to lay a storm! I'll lead the way.

A Measure, NEPTUNE leads it.

[Third] Song.

To bed, to bed! Come, Hymen, lead the bride,
And lay her by her husband's side;
Bring in the virgins every one,
That grieve to lie alone,
That they may kiss while they may say a maid;
To-morrow 'twill be other kiss and said.
Hesperus, be long a-shining,
Whilst these lovers are a-twinning.

Aeol. [within.] Ho, Neptune!

Nept. Aeolus!

[Re-enter AEOLUS.]

Aeol. The sea goes high,
Boreas hath rais'd a storm: go and apply
Thy trident; else, I prophesy, ere day

1 Crushed (?) or beaten by the waves (?).
Many a tall ship will be cast away.
Descend with all the gods and all their power,
To strike a calm.

Cynth. [We thank you for this hour:
My favour to you all].
To gratefully
So great a service, done at my desire,
Ye shall have many floods, fuller and higher
Than you have wist for; and no ebb shall dare
To let the Day see where your dwellings are.
Now back unto your governments in haste,
Lest your proud charge should swell above the waste,
And win upon the island.
Nept.
We obey.

Neptune descends and the Sea-Gods. [Exeunt Favonius and other Winds.]
Cynth. Hold up thy head, dead Night; see'st thou not day?
The east begins to lighten. I must down,
And give my brother place.

Night.
Oh, I could frown
To see the Day, the Day that flings his light
Upon my kingdom and contemns old Night!
Let him go on and flame! I hope to see
Another wild-fire in his axle-tree,
And all fall drencht. But I forget; — speak, queen:
The Day grows on; I must no more be seen.
Cynth. Heave up thy drowsy head and see
A greater light, a greater majesty, Between our set
and us! Whip up the team:
The Day breaks here, and you same flashing stream.
Shot from the south. Say, which way wilt thou go?

Night. I'll vanish into mists.

Cynth. I into Day.

Exeunt Night and Cynthia.

Finis Masque.

King. Take lights there! — Ladies, get the bride to bed. —
We will not see you laid; good night, Amintor;
We'll ease you of that tedious ceremony.
Were it my case, I should think time run slow.
If thou be'st noble, youth, get me a boy,
That may defend my kingdoms from my foes.
Amin. All happiness to you!
King. Good night, Melantius. Exeunt.

ACT II
[Scene I.].

Enter Evadne, Aspasia, Dula, and other Ladies.

Dula. Madam, shall we undress you for this fight?
The wars are nak'd that you must make to-night.

Evad. You are very merry, Dula.
Dula. I should be Far merrier, madam, if it were with me
As it is with you.

Evad. How's that?
Dula. That I might go
To bed with him wi' th' credit that you do.

Evad. Why, how now, wench?
Dula. Come, ladies, will you help?
Evad. I am soon undone.
Dula. Good store of clothes will trouble you at both.
Evad. Art thou drunk, Dula?
Dula. Why, here's none but we.

Evad. Thou think'st like there is no modesty
When we're alone.

Dula. Ay, by my troth, you hit my thoughts Right.

Evad. You prick me, lady.

Dula. Anon you must endure more and lie still;
You're best to practise.

Evad. Sure, this wench is mad.

Dula. No, faith, this is a trick that I have had Since I was fourteen.

Evad. 'T is high time to leave it.

Dula. Nay, now I'll keep it till the trick leave me,

A dozen wanton words put in your head.
Will make you livelier in your husband's bed.

Evad. Nay, faith, then take it.
Dula. Take it, madam! Where?
We all, I hope, will take it that are here.

Evad. Nay, then I'll give you o'er.

Dula. So will I make
The ablest man in Rhodes, or his head ache.

Evad. Wilt take my place to-night?
Dula. I'll hold your cards
Against any two I know.

Evad. What wilt thou do?
Dula. Madam, we'll do't, and make'em leave play too.

Evad. Aspasia, take her part.
Dula. I will refuse it:
She will pluck down a side;
She does not use it.

Evad. Why, do, I prithee.
Dula. You will find the play
Quickly, because your head lies well that way.

Evad. I thank thee, Dula. Would thou couldst instil
Some of thy mirth into Aspasia!
Nothing but sad thoughts in her breast do dwell:

Methinks, a mean betwixt you would do well.

Dula. She is in love: hang me, if I were so,

But I could run my country, I love too
To do those things, that people in love do.
Asp. It were a timeless smile should prove my cheek.

1 So Q7. Q8. thanks to every one, and.
2 Setting, the West. Qd. Sect, emended by Seward.
3 The effulgence of the court. (Thomdike.)
4 Ante-room to Evadne's bed-chamber.
5 I. e. the trick. (Thomdike.)
6 Cause the loss of the game.
7 Drive at a fast pace.
8 Untimely.
It were a fitter hour for me to laugh,
When at the altar the religious priest
Were pacifying the offended powers
With sacrifice, than now. This should have been My rite; and all your hands have been employ'd
In giving me a spotless offering
To young Amintor's bed, as we are now
For you. Pardon, Evadne: would my worth
Were great as yours, or that the King, or he,
Or both, I thought so! Perhaps he found me worthless:

But till he did so, in these ears of mine,
These credulous ears, he pour'd the sweetest words
That art or love could frame. If he were false,
Pardon it, Heaven! and, if I did want
Virtue, you safely may forgive that too;
For I have lost none that I had from you.
Evadne. Nay, leave this sad talk, madam.
Asp. Would I could!
Then I should leave the cause.

Evadne. See, if you have not spoil'd all Dula's mirth!
Asp. Thou think'st thy heart hard; but, if thou be'st caught,
Remember me; thou shalt perceive a fire
Shot suddenly into thee.
Dula. That's not so good;
Let 'em shoot anything but fire, I fear 'em not.

Asp. Well, wench, thou may'st be taken.
Evadne. Ladies, good-night; I'll do the rest myself.

Dula. Nay, let your lord do some.
Asp. [singing.]
Lay a garland on my hearse
Of the dismal yew —

Evadne. That's one of your sad songs, madam.
Asp. Believe me, 'tis a very pretty one.
Evadne. How is it, madam?
Asp. [singing.]
Lay a garland on my hears
Of the dismal yew;
Maidens, willow-branches bear;
Say I died true.
My love was false, but I was firm
From my hour of birth:
Upon my buried body lie
Lightly, gentle earth!

Evadne. Fie on't, madam! The words are so strange, they Are able to make one dream of hobgoblins —
"I could never have the power" — sing that,

Dula. [singing.]
I could never have the power
To love one above an hour,
But my heart would prompt mine eye
On some other man to fly.
Venus, fix mine eyes fast;
Or, if not, give me all that I shall see at last!

Evadne. So, leave me now.
Dula. Nay, we must see you laid.

---

Asp. Madam, good night. May all the marriage-joys
That longing maids imagine in their beds
Prove so unto you! May no discontent
Grow 'twixt your love and you! but, if there do.
Inquire of me, and I will guide your moan;
Teach you an artificial way to grieve,
To keep your sorrow waking. Love your lord
No worse than I; but, if you love so well,
Alas, you may displeasure him! so did I.
This is the last time you shall look on me. —
Ladies, farewell. As soon as I am dead,
Come all and watch one night about my hearse;
Bring each a mournful story and a tear,
To offer at it when I go to earth;
With flattering ivy clasp my coffin round;
Write on my brow my fortune; let my bier
Be borne by virgins, that shall sing by course
The truth of maids and perjuries of men.
Evadne. Alas, I pity thee.
Evadne. Madam, good night. Exit Evadne.
Ladies. Come, we'll let in the bridgroom.
Dula. Where's my lord?
Ladies. Here, take this light.

Enter Amintor.

Dula. You'll find her in the dark.
Ladies. Your lady's scarce a-bed yet; you must help her.
Asp. Go, and be happy in your lady's love
May all the wrongs that you have done to me
Be utterly forgotten in my death!
I'll trouble you no more; yet I will take
A parting kiss, and will not be denied.
[Passes.]

Amintor. You'll come, my lord, and see the virgins weep
When I am laid in earth, though you yourself
Can know no pity. Thus I wind myself
Into this willow-garland, and am prouder
That I was once your love, though now refus'd,
Than to have had another true to me.
So with my prayers I leave you, and must try
Some yet unpractis'd way to grieve and die.
Exit.

Dula. Come, ladies, will you go?
All. Good night, my lord.
Amin. Much happiness unto you all!
[Exeunt [Dula and] Ladies.]

I did that lady wrong. Methinks, I feel
A grief shoot suddenly through all my veins;
Mine eyes rain: this is strange at such a time.

It was the King first mov'd me to 't: but he Has not my will in keeping. Why do I
Perplex myself thus? Something whispers me, Go not to bed. My guilt is not so great
As mine own conscience, too sensible,
Would make me think; I only brake a promise,
And 't was the King that forc'd me. Timorous flesh,
Why shak'st thou so? Away, my idle fears!
Re-enter Evadne.

Yonder she is, the lustre of whose eye
Can blot away the sad remembrance
Of all these things. — Oh, my Evadne, spare
That tender body; let it not take cold!
The vapours of the night will not fall here.
To bed, my love: Hymen will punish us
For being slack performers of his rites.

Canst thou to call me?

Evad. No.

Amin. Come, come, my love,
And let us lose ourselves to one another.
Why art thou up so long?

Evad. I am not well.

Amin. To bed then; let me wind thee in these arms
Till I have banished sickness.

Evad. Good my lord,

I cannot sleep.

Amin. Evadne, we will watch;
I mean no sleeping.

Evad. I will not go to bed.

Amin. I prithee, do.

Evad. I will not for the world.

Amin. Why, my dear love?

Evad. Why! I have sworn I will not.

Amin. Sworn!

Evad. Ay.

Amin. How? Sworn, Evadne!

Evad. Yes, sworn, Amintor; and will swear again,

If you will wish to hear me.

Amin. To whom have you sworn this?

Evad. If I should name him, the matter were not great.

Amin. Come, this is but the coyness of a bride.

Evad. The coyness of the bride!

Amin. How prettily
That coyness becomes thee!

Evad. Do you like it so?

Amin. Thou canst not dress thy face in such a look
But I shall like it.

Evad. What look likes 1 you best?

Amin. Why do you ask?

Evad. That I may show you one less pleasing unto you.

Amin. How's that?

Evad. That, I may show you one less pleasing unto you.

Amin. I prithee, put thy jests in milder
looks;

It shows as thou wert angry.

Evad. So perhaps

I am indeed.

Amin. Why, who has done thee wrong?

Name me the man, and by thyself I swear,
Thy yet unconquered saif, I will revenge thee!

Evad. Now I shall try thy truth. If thou dost love me,

Thou weigh'st not anything compar'd with me:

Life, honour, joys eternal, all delights

This world can yield, or hopeful people feign,
Or in the life to come, are light as air
To a true lover when his lady browses,
And bids him, "Do this." Will thou kill this man?

Swear, my Amintor, and I'll kiss the sin

Off from thy lips.

Amin. I wo' not swear, sweet love,

Till I do know the cause.

Evad. I would thou wouldest.

Why, it is thou that wrong'st me; I hate thee;

Thou shouldst have kill'd thyself.

Amin. If I should know that, I should quickly kill

The man you hated.

Evad. Know it, then, and do't.

Amin. Oh, no! what look soe'er thou shalt put on

To try my faith, I shall not think thee false;

I cannot find one blemish in thy face,

Where falsehood should abide. Leave, and to bed.

If you have sworn to any of the virgins

That were your old companions, to preserve

Your maidenhead a night, it may be done

Without this means.

Evad. A maidenhead, Amintor,

At my years!

Amin. Sure she raves; this cannot be

Her natural temper. — Shall I call thy maids?

Either thy healthful sleep hath left thee long,

Or else some severe rages in thy blood.

Evad. Neither, Amintor: think you I am mad,

Because I speak the truth?

Amin. [Is this the truth?] Will you not lie with me to-night?

Evad. To-night! You talk as if you thought; I would hereafter.

Amin. Hereafter! yes, I do.

Evad. You are deceiv'd.

Put off amazement, and with patience mark

What I shall utter, for the oracle

Knows nothing truer. 'Tis not for a night

Or two that I forbear thy bed, but ever.

Amin. I dream. Awake, Amintor!

Evad. You hear right: I sooner will find out the beds of snakes,

And with my youthful blood warm their cold flesh.

Letting them curl themselves about my limbs,

Than sleep one night with thee. This is not feign'd.

Nor sounds it like the coyness of a bride.

Amin. Is flesh so earthly to endure all this?

Are these the joys of marriage? Hymen, keep

This story, that will make succeeding youth

Neglect thy ceremonies, from all ears;

Let it not rise up, for thy shame and mine

To after-ages: we will scorn thy laws,

If thou no better bless them. Touch the heart

Of her that thou hast sent me, or the world

Shall know; there's not an altar that will smoke

1 Please.

2 Only in Q.
In praise of thee; we will adopt as sons; Then virtue shall inherit, and not blood. If we do lust, we'll take the next we meet, Serving ourselves as other creatures do; And never take note of the female more, Nor of her sake. — I do rage in vain; She can but jest. — Oh, pardon me, my love! So dear the thoughts are that I hold of thee, That I must break forth. Satisfy my fear; Is it a pain, beyond the hand of death, To be in doubt. Confirm it with an oath, If this be true.

_Evad._ Do you invent the form? Let there be in it all the binding words Devils and conjurers can put together, And I will take it. I have sworn before, And here by all things holy do again, Never to be acquainted with thy bed! Is your doubt over now?

_Amin._ I know too much; would I had doubted still! Was ever such a marriage-night as this! You powers above, if you did ever mean Man should be us'd thus, then you have thought a way How he may bear himself, and save his honour: Instruct me in it; for to my dull eyes There is no mean, no moderate course to run; I must live scorn'd, or be a murderer. Is there a third? Why is this night so calm? Why does not Heaven speak in thunder to us, And drown her voice?

_Evad._ This rage will do no good. _Amin._ Evadne, hear me. Thou hast ta'en an oath, But such a rash one, that to keep it were Worse than to swear it. Call it back to thee; Such vows as that never ascend to Heaven; A tear or two will wash it quite away. Have mercy on my youth; my hopeful youth, If thou be pitiful! for, without boast, This land was proud of me. What lady was there, That men call'd fair and virtuous in this isle, That would have shunn'd my love? It is in thee To make me hold this worth. Oh, we vain men, That trust [out]! all our reputation To rest upon the weak and yielding hand Of feeble woman! But thou art not stone; Thy flesh is soft, and in thine eyes doth dwell The spirit of love; thy heart cannot be hard. Come, lead me from the bottom of despair To all the joys thou hast; I know thou wilt; And make me careful lest the sudden change O'ercome my spirits.

_Evad._ When I call back this oath, The pains of hell environ me!

_Amin._ I sleep, and am too temperate. Come to bed! Or by those hairs, which, if thou had'st a soul Like to thy locks, were threads for kings to wear About their arms —

---

1 In Q₃ only.

---

_Evad._ Why, so perhaps they are.

_Amin._ I'll drag thee to my bed, and make thy tongue

_Undo this wicked oath, or on thy flesh_

_I'll print a thousand wounds to let out life!_

_Evad._ I fear thee not: do what thou dar'st to me!

_Evad._ Every ill-sounding word or threat'ning look Thou shew'st to me will be reveng'd at full.

_Amin._ It will not sure, Evadne?

_Evad._ Do not you hazard that.

_Evad._ Ha' ye your champions?

_Evad._ Alas, Amintor, think'st thou I forbear

_To sleep with thee, because I have put on_

_A maiden's strictness? Look upon these cheeks, And thou shalt find the hot and rising blood Unapt for such a vow. No; in this heart There dwells as much desire and as much will To put that wished _2_ act in practice as ever yet Was known to woman; and they have been shown Both. But it was the folly of thy youth To think this beauty, to what land _3_ soe'er It shall be call'd, shall stoop to any second. I do enjoy the best, and in that height Have sworn to stand or die. You guess the man.

_Amin._ No; let me know the man that wrongs me so, That I may cut his body into motes, And scatter it before the northern wind.

_Evad._ You dare not strike him.

_Amin._ Do not wrong me so.

_Amin._ Yes, if his body were a poisonous plant That it were death to touch, I have a soul

_Will throw me on him._

_Evad._ Why, 'tis the King.

_Amin._ The King!

_Evad._ What will you do now?

_Amin._ 'Tis not the King!

_Evad._ What did he make this match for, dull Amintor?

_Amin._ Oh, thou hast nam'd a word, that wipes away All thoughts revengeful! In that sacred name, _The King,_ there lies a terror. What frail man Dares lift his hand against it? Let the gods Speak to him when they please: till when, let us Suffer and wait.

_Evad._ Why should you fill yourself so full of heat, And haste so to my bed? I am no virgin.

_Amin._ What devil put it in thy fancy, then, To marry me?

_Evad._ Alas, I must have one

To father children, and to bear the name Of husband to me, that my sin may be More honourable!

_Amin._ What strange thing am I!

_Evad._ A miserable one; one that myself Am sorry for.

_Amin._ Why, show it then in this:

---

2 So Q₃. Wishes.

2 Bullen conjectures hand.
If thou hast pity, though thy love be none,
Kill me; and all true lovers, that shall live
In after ages crost in their desires,
Shall bless thy memory, and call thee good,
Because such mercy in thy heart was found,
To rid a ling'ring wretch.

Evad. I must have one
To fill thy room again, if thou wert dead;
Else, by this night, I would I pity thee.

Amin. These strange and sudden injuries have fall'n
So thick upon me, that I lose all sense
Of what they are. Methinks, I am not wrong'd;
Nor is it aught, if from the censoring world
I can but hide it. Reputation,
Thou art a word, no more! — But thou hast shown
An impudence so high, that to the world
I fear thou wilt betray or shame thyself.

Evad. To cover shame, I took thee; never fear
That I would blaze myself.

Amin. Nor let the King Know I conceive he wrongs 'me; then mine honour
Will thrust me into action, though my flesh
Could bear with patience. And it is some ease
To me in these extremes, that I know this Before I touch thee; else, had all the sins
Of mankind stood bewixt me and the King,
I had gone through 'em to his heart and thine.
I have lost one desire: 'twas not his crown
Shall buy me to thy bed, now I resolve
He has dishonour'd thee. Give me thy hand:
Be careful of thy credit, and sin close;
'Tis all I wish. Upon thy chamber-floor
I'll rest to-night, that morning visitors
May think we did as married people use:
And prithee, smile upon me when they come,
And seem to toy, as if thou hadst been pleased
With what we did.

Evad. Fear not; I will do this.
Amin. Come, let us practise; and, as wantonly
As ever loving bride and bridegroom met,
Let's laugh and enter here.

Evad. I am content.
Amin. Down all the swellings of my troubled
heart!
When we walk thus intwined, let all eyes see
If ever lovers better did agree.

[Scene II.]

Enter ASPATIA, ANTIPHILA, and OLYMPIAS.

Asp. Away, you are not sad! force it no further.

Ant. Good gods, how well you look! Such a full colour
Young bashful brides put on: sure, you are new married!

Ant. Yes, madam, to your grief.

Amin. Alas, poor wenches!

Go learn to love first; learn to lose yourselves;
Learn to be flattered, and believe and bless
The double tongue that did it; make a faith
Out of the miracles of ancient lovers,
Such as spake truth and died in't; and, like me,
Believe all faithful, and be miserable.

Did you never love yet, wenches? Speak.

Asp. Nor you, Antiphila.

Ant. Then, my good girls, be more than women, wise;
At least be more than I was; and be sure
You credit any thing the light gives life to,
Before a man. Rather believe the sea
Weeps for the ruin'd merchant, when he roars;
Rather, the wind courts but the pregnant sails,
When the strong cordage cracks; rather, the sun
Comes but to kiss the fruit in wealthy autumn,
When all falls blasted. If you needs must love, (Fore'd by ill fate,) take to your maiden-bosoms
Two dead cold aspies, and of them make lovers.
They cannot flatter nor forswear; one kiss
Makes a long peace for all. But man — Oh, that beast man! Come, let's be sad, my girls:
That down-east of thine eye, Olympias,
Shows a fine sorrow. — Mark, Antiphila;
Just such another was the nymph Oenone.

When Paris brought home Helen. — Now, a tear;
And then thou art a piece expressing fully
The Carthage queen, when from a cold sea-rock,
Full with her sorrow, she tied fast her eyes
To the fair Trojan ships; and, having lost them,
Just as thine does, down stole a tear. — Ant-iphila.

What would this wench do, if she were Aspatia?
Here she would stand, till some more pitying god Turn’d her to marble! — 'Tis enough, my wench!

Show me the piece of needlework you wrought.

Ant. Of Ariadne, madam?

Asp. Yes, that piece. —

This should be Theseus; 'tis a cozening face. —

You meant him for a man?

Ant. He was so, madam.

Asp. Why, then, 'tis well enough. — Never look back;
You have a full wind and a false heart, The-seus. —

Does not the story say, his keel was split,
Or his masts spent, or some kind rock or other
Met with his vessel?

Ant. Not as I remember.

Asp. It should ha' been so. Could the gods know this,
And not, of all their number, raise a storm? —

But they are all as evil. This false smile
Was well exprest; just such another caught
me.—

1 Despatch. 2 Proclaim. 3 So edd. 1778. Early Q. and F that.
4 Q. left. 5 Am convinced. 6 Q. longing. 7 An apartment in the house of Callimach.
You shall not go so, —
Ant. in this place work a quicksand,
And over it a shallow smiling water,
And his ship ploughing it; and then a Fear:
Do that Fear to the life: wench.
Ant. 'Twill wrong the story.
Asp. 'Twill make the story, wrong'd by wanton poets,
Live long and be believ'd. But where's the lady?
Ant. There, madam.
Asp. Fie, you have mist it here, Antipha;
You are much mistaken, wench.
These colours are not dull and pale enough
To show a soul so full of misery
As this sad lady's was. Do it by me,
Do it again by me, the lost Aspatia;
And you shall find all true but the wild island.
I stand upon the sea-breach now, and think Mine arms thus, and mine hair blown with the wind,
Wild as that desert; and let all about me
Tell that I am forsaken. Do my face
(If thou hadst ever feeling of a sorrow)
Thus, thus, Antipha: strive to make me look Like sorrow's monument; and the trees about me,
Let them be dry and leafless; let the rocks
Groan with continual surges; and behind me,
Make all a desolation. See, see, wenches,
A miserable life of this poor picture!
Olym. Dear madam!
Asp. I have done. Sit down; and let us
Upon that point fix all our eyes, that point there.
Make a dull silence, till you feel a sudden sadness
Give us new souls.

Enter Callianax.
Cal. The King may do this, and he may not My child is wrong'd, disgrac'd. — Well, how now, huswives?
What, at your ease! Is this a time to sit still?
Up, you young lazy whores, up, or I'll swinge
you!
Olym. Nay, good my lord —
Cal. You'll lie down shortly. Get you in,
and work!
What, are you grown so resty you want heats?
We shall have some of the court-boys do that office.
Ant. My lord, we do no more than we are charg'd:
It is the lady's pleasure we be thus
In grief she is forsaken.
Cal. There's a rogue too,
A young dissembling slave! — Well, get you
in —
I'll have a bost with that boy. 'Tis high time
Now to be valiant: I confess my youth Was never prone that way. What, made an ass!

---

A court-sable. Well, I will be valiant, And beat some dozen of these whoels; I will! And there's another of 'em, a trim cheating soldier;
I'll maul that rascal; has out-brav'd me twice.
But now, I thank the gods, I am valiant.— Go, get you in. I'll take a course with all.

Exeunt.

ACT III

[Scene I.]

Enter Cleon, Strato, and Diphilus.

Cleon. Your sister is not up yet.

Diph. Oh, brides must make their morning's rest; the night is troublesome.

Strato. But not tedious.

Diph. What odds, he has not my sister's maidenhead to-night?

Strato. None; 'tis odds against any bridegroom living, he n'er gets it while he lives.

Diph. You're merry with my sister; you'll please to allow me the same freedom with your mother.

Strato. She's at your service.

Diph. Then she's merry enough of herself; she needs no tickling. Knock at the door.

Strato. We shall interrupt them.

Diph. No matter; they have the year before them.

[Strato knocks at the door.] Good morrow, sister. Spare yourself to day; the night will come again.

Enter Amintor.

Amintor. Who's there? My brother! I'm no reader yet.

Your sister is but now up.

Diph. You look as you had lost your eyes to-night:

I think you ha' not slept.

Amintor. I' faith I have not.

Diph. You have done better, then.

Amintor. We ventur'd for a boy; when he is twelveth.

'A shall command against the foes of Rhodes.

Shall we be merry?

Strato. You cannot; you want sleep.

Amintor. 'Tis true. — (Aside.) But she, As if she had drank Lethe, or had made Even with Heaven, did fetch so still a sleep, So sweet and sound ——

Diph. What's that?

Amintor. Your sister frets This morning; and does turn her eyes upon me, As people on their headsmen. She does chafe, And kiss, and chafe again, and clap my cheeks: She's in another world.

Diph. Then I had lost: I was about to lay You had not got her maidenhead to-night.

Amintor. [Aside.] Ha! does he not mock me? You'd lost indeed;

I do not use to bungle.
Cleo. You do deserve her.

Amin. (Aside.) I laid my lips to hers, and that wild breath,
That was so rude and rough to me last night,
Was sweet as April, I’ll be guilty too,
If these be the effects.

Enter MELANTIUS.

Mel. Good day, Amintor; for to me the name
Of brother is too distant: we are friends,
And that is nearer.

Amin. Dear Melantius!
Let me behold thee. Is it possible?

Mel. What sudden gaze is this?

Amin. ’Tis wondrous strange!

Mel. Why does thine eye desire so strict a view
Of that it knows so well? There’s nothing here
That is not thine.

Amin. I wonder much, Melantius,
To see those noble looks, that make me think
How virtuous thou art; and, on the sudden,
’Tis strange to me thou shouldst have worth and honour;
Or not be base, and false, and treacherous,
And every ill. But —

Mel. Stay, stay, my friend;
I fear this sound will not become our loves.

No more; embrace me.1

Amin. Oh, mistake me not!
I know thee to be full of all those deeds
That we enjoin men call good; but by the course
Of nature thou shouldest be as quickly chang’d
As are the winds; dissembling as the sea,
That now wears brows as smooth as virgins’ be,
Teeming the merchant to invade his face,
And in an hour calls his billows up,
And shoots ‘em at the sun, destroying all
A carres on him.—(Aside.) Oh, how near am
I
To utter my sick thoughts!

Mel. But why, my friend, should I be so by nature?

Amin. I have wed thy sister, who hath virtuous thoughts
Enough for one whole family; and it is strange
That you should feel no want.

Mel. Believe me, this is compliment too cunning
for me.

Diph. What should I be then by the course of nature,
They having both robb’d me of so much virtue?2

Str. Oh, call the bride, my Lord Amintor,
That we may see her blush, and turn her eyes
down.

It is the prettiest sport?

Amin. Evadne!

Evad. (within.) My lord?

Amin. Come forth, my love;
Your brothers do attend to wish you joy.

Evad. (within.) I am not ready yet.

Amin. Enough, enough.

Evad. (within.) They’ll mock me.

Amin. Faith, thou shalt come in.

Enter Evadne.

Mel. Good morrow, sister. He that understands
Whom you have wed, need not to wish you joy;
You have enough: take heed you be not proud.

Diph. Oh, sister, what have you done?

Evad. I done! why, what have I done?

Sira. My Lord Amintor swears you are no maid now.

Evad. Fish!

Str. I faith, he does.

Diph. With a truth.

Evad. If it were to do again,
In faith I would not marry.

Amin. (Aside.) Nor I, by Heaven!

Diph. Sister, Dula swears
She heard you cry two rooms off.

Evad. Fie, how you talk!

Diph. Let’s see you walk, Evadne. By my troth,

You’re spoil’d.2

Mel. Amintor. —

Amin. Ha!

Mel. Thou art sad.

Amin. Who, I? I thank you for that.

Shall Diphilus, thou, and I, sing a catch?

Mel. How!

Amin. Prithée, let’s.

Mel. Nay, that’s too much the other way.

Amin. I’m so light’ned with my happiness! —

How dost thou, love? Kiss me.

Evad. I cannot love you, you tell tales of
me.

Amin. Nothing but what becomes us. —

Gentlemen, Would you had all such wives, and all the
world,
That I might be no wonder! You’re all sad:
What, do you envy me? I walk, methinks,
On water, and ne’er sink, I am so light.

Mel. ’Tis well you are so.

Amin. Well! how can I be other,
When she looks thus? — Is there no music
there?

Let’s dance.

Mel. Why is this strange, Amintor?

Amin. I do not know myself; yet I could wish
My joy were less.

Diph. I’ll marry too, if it will make one thus.

Evad. (Aside.) Amintor, hark.

Amin. What says my love? — I must obey.

Evad. You do irreverently, ’t will be perceiv’d.

Cleo. My lord, the King is here.

Enter King and Lysippus.

Amin. Where?

Str. And his brother.

King. Good morrow, all! —

Amintor, joy on joy fall thick upon thee! —

And, madam, you are alter’d since I saw you;

1 In Qq. and F this sentence is given to Evadne, her name becoming a speech-tag.
I must salute you; you are now another’s.  128

How lik’d you your night’s rest?  129

Evad.  Ill, sir.

Amin.  Indeed,

She took but little.

Lys.  You’ll let her take more,

And thank her too, shortly.

King.  Amintor, wert thou truly honest till 130

Thou wert married?

Amin.  Yes, sir.

King.  Tell me, then, how shows

The sport unto thee?

Amin.  Why, well.

Amin.  No more, nor less, than other couples

use;

You know what ’tis; it has but a coarse name.

King.  But, prithee, I should think, by her black eye,

And her red cheek, she should be quick and stirring

In this same business; ha?

Amin.  I cannot tell;

I ne’er tried other, sir; but I perceive

She is as quick as you delivered.

King.  Well, you’ll trust me then, Amintor, to choose

A wife for you again?

Amin.  No, never, sir.

Amin.  Why, like you this so ill?

Amin.  So well I like her.

For this I bow my knee in thanks to you,

And unto Heaven will pay my grateful tribute

Hourly; and do hope we shall draw out

A long contented life together here,

And die both, full of grey hairs, in one day:

For which the thanks is yours. But if the powers

That rule us please to call her first away,

Without pride spoke, this world holds not a wife

Worthy to take her room.

King.  I do not like this.—All forbear the room,

But you, Amintor, and your lady.

[Exeunt all but the KING, AMINTOR, and EVADNE.]  140

I have some speech with you, that may concern

Your after living well.

Amin.  [Aside.] ’A will not tell me that he lies with her!

If he do, something heavenly stay my heart,

For I shall be apt to thrust this arm of mine

To acts unlawful!

King.  You will suffer me

To talk with her, Amintor, and not have

A jealous pang?

Amin.  Sir, I dare trust my wife

With whom she dares to talk, and not be jealous.

King.  How do you like Amintor?

Evad.  As I did, sir.

King.  How’s that?

Evad.  As one that, to fulfil your will and

pleasure,

I have given leave to call me wife and love.

King.  I see there is no lasting faith in sin;

They that break word with Heaven will break

again

With all the world, and so dost thou with me.

Evad.  How, sir?

King.  This subtle woman’s ignorance 170

Will not excuse you: thou hast taken oaths,

So great that, methought, they did misbecome

A woman’s mouth, that thou wouldst ne’er enjoy

A man but me.

Evad.  I never did swear so;

You do me wrong.

King.  Day and night have heard it.  175

Evad.  I swore indeed that I would never love

A man of lower place; but, if your fortune

Should throw you from this height, I bade you trust

I would forsake you, and would bend to him

That won your throne. I love with my ambition,

Not with my eyes. But, if I ever yet

Touch any other, leprosy light here

Upon my face! which for your royalty

I would not stain!

King.  Why, thou dissemblest, and

It is in me to punish thee.

Evad.  Why, it is in me,

Then, not to love you, which will more afflict

Your body than your punishment can mine.

King.  But thou hast let Amintor lie with thee.

Evad.  I ha’ not.

King.  Impudence! he says himself so.

Evad.  ’A lies.

King.  ’A does not.

Evad.  By this light, he does, 190

Strangely and basely! and I’ll prove it so.

I did not only shun him for a night,

But told him I would never close with him.

King.  Speak lower; it is false.

Evad.  I am no man

To answer with a blow; or, if I were, 195

You are the King. But urge me not; ’tis most true.

King.  Do not I know the uncontrolled thoughts

That youth brings with him, when his blood is high

With expectation and desire of that

He long hath waited for? Is not his spirit, 200

Though he be temperate, of a valiant strain

As this our age hath known? What could he do,

If such a sudden speech had met his blood,

But ruin thee for ever, if he had not kill’d thee?

He could not bear it thus: he is as we, 205

Or any other wrong’d man.

Evad.  It is dissembling.

King.  Take him! farewell: henceforth I am thy foe;

And what disgraces I can blot thee with, look for.

Evad.  Stay, sir!—Amintor!—You shall hear.—Amintor!

Amin.  [coming forward.] What, my love.  210
Evad. Amintor, thou hast an ingenious look, And shouldst be virtuous; it amazeth me
Why, nothing can be baser than to sow Dissension amongst lovers.
distaste, Were it not for such pickpockets as thyself.
Did you lie with me? Swear now, and be punished.
In hell for this! Amin. The faithless sin I made
To fair Aspasia is not yet reveng'd; It follows me. I will not lose a word
To this vile woman: but to you, my King, The anguish of my soul thrusts out this truth: You're a tyrant! and not so much to wrong
An honest man thus, as to take a pride
In talking with him of it. Evad. Now, sir, see How loud this fellow lied! Amin. You that can know to wrong, should know how men Must right themselves. What punishment is due From me to him that shall abuse my bed? Is it not death? Nor can that satisfy, Unless I send your limbs through all the land, To show how nobly I have freed myself. Evad. King. Draw not thy sword; thou know'st I cannot a subject's hand; but thou shalt feel the weight
Of this, if thou dost rage.
Amin. The weight of that! If you have any worth, for Heaven's sake, think I fear not swords; for, as you are mere man, I dare as easily kill you for this deed, As you dare think to do it. But there is Divinity about you that strikes dead
My rising passions: as you are my King, I fall before you, and present my sword
To cut mine own flesh, if it be your will. Alas, I am nothing but a multitude Of walking griefs! Yet, should I murder you, I might before the world take the excuse
Of madness: for, compare my injuries, And they will well appear too sad a weight For reason to endure. But, fall I first Amongst my sorrows, ere my treacherous hand Touch holy things! But why (I know not what I have to say), why did you choose out me To make thus wretched? There were thousands, fools
Easy to work on, and of state enough, Within the island. Evad. I would not have a fool; It were no credit for me. Amin.

Thou, that dar'st talk unto thy husband thus, Profess thyself a whore, and, more than so, Resolve to be so still! -- It is my fate To bear and bow beneath a thousand griefs, To keep that little credit with the world! -- But there were wise ones too; you might have ta'en
Another.
King. No: for I believe'd thee honest, As thou wert valiant.
Amin. All the happiness I Bestow'd upon me turns into disgrace.
Gods, take your honesty again, for I Amloaden with it! -- Good my lord the King, Be private in it.
King. Thou mayst live, Amintor,
Free as thy king, if thou wilt wink at this, And be a means that we may meet in secret.
Amin. A bawd! Hold, hold, my breast! A bitter curse
Seize me, if I forget not all respects That are religious, on another word Sounded like that; and through a sea of sins Will wade to my revenge, though I should call Pains here and after life upon my soul! King. Well, I am resolute you lay not with her;
And so I leave you. Exit. Evad. You must needs be prating;
And see what follows! Amin. Prity thee, vex me not.
Leave me; I am afraid some sudden start Will pull a murder on me.
Evad. I am gone; I love my life well. Exit. Amin. I hate mine as much.
This 'tis to break a troth! I should be glad, If all this tide of grief would make me mad. Exit.

[Scene II.] Enter Melantius.

Mel. I'll know the cause of all Amintor's griefs, Or friendship shall be idle.
Enter Callianax.

Cal. Oh, Melantius, My daughter will die!

Mel. Trust me, I am sorry;
Would thou hadst ta'en her room!

Cal. Thou art a slave, A cut-throat slave, a bloody treacherous slave! Mel. Take heed, old man; thou wilt be heard to rave,
And lose thine offices.

Cal. I am valiant grown At all these years, and thou art but a slave!

Mel. Leave! Some company will come, and I respect Thy years, not thee, so much, that I could wish To laugh at thee alone.

Cal. I'll spoil your mirth: I mean to fight with thee. There lie, my cloak.
This was my father's sword, and he durst fight.
Are you prepar'd?

Mel. Why wilt thou dote thyself out of thy life? Hence, get thee to bed.
Have careful looking-to, and eat warm things, And trouble not me: my head is full of thoughts
More weighty than thy life or death can be.

Cal. You have a name in war, where you stand safe
Amongst a multitude; but I will try
What you dare do unto a weak old man
In single fight. You will give ground, I fear.

Comes, draw.

Mel. I will not draw, unless thou pull'st thy death
Upon thee with a stroke. 'Tis no one blow, That thou canst give bath strength enough to kill me.

Tempt me not so far, then: the power of earth Shall not redeem thee.

Cal. [Aside.] I must let him alone;
He's stout and able; and, to say the truth,
However I may set a face and talk,
I am not valiant. When I was a youth,
I kept my credit with a testy trick
I had 'mongst cowards, but durst never fight.

Mel. I will not promise to preserve your life,
If you do stay.

Cal. [Aside.] I would give half my land
That I durst fight with that proud man a little.
If I had men to hold him, I would beat him
Till he ask me mercy.

Mel. Sir, will you be gone?

Cal. [Aside.] I dare not stay; but I will go home, and beat
My servants all over for this.

Exit.

Mel. This old fellow haunts me.
But the distracted carriage of mine Amintor
Takes deeply on me. I will find the cause:
I fear his conscience cries, he wrong'd Aspasia.

Enter AMINTOR.

Amin. [Aside.] Men's eyes are not so subtle to perceive
My inward misery: I bear my grief
Hid from the world. How art thou trenched then?
For aught I know, all husbands are like me;
And every one I talk with of his wife
Is but a well dissembler of his woes,
As I am. Would I knew it! for the rareness
Afflicts me now.

Mel. Amintor, we have not enjoy'd our friendship of late, for we were wont to change our souls in talk.

Amin. Melantius, stay: you shall know what that is.

Mel. See how you play'd with friendship! Be advis'd
How you give cause unto yourself to say
You ha' lost a friend.

Amin. Forgive what I ha' done;
For I am so o'ergone with injuries
Unheard of, that I lose consideration
Of what I ought to do. Oh, oh!

Mel. Do not weep.

Amin. What is't? May I once but know the man Hath turn'd my friend thus!

Mel. I had spoke at first, But that —

Amin. [Aside.] But what?

Mel. I held it most unfit
For you to know. Faith, do not know it yet.

Amin. Thou see'st my love, that will keep company
With thee in tears; hide nothing, then, from me; For when I know the cause of thy distemper, With mine old armour I'll adorn myself,

1 Affects me deeply.
2 Irresistible.
3 Caajoled.
To urge a weighty secret from your friend, 166
And then rage at it. I shall be at ease,
If I be kill'd; and, if you fall by me,
I shall not long outlive you.

Mel. Stay awhile.—
The name of friend is more than family,
Or all the world besides: I was a fool.
Thou searching human nature, that didst waké to do me wrong, thou art inquisitive, 172
And trusts me upon questions that will take
My sleep away! Would I had died, ere known
This sad dishonour!—Pardon me, my friend!

[Sheaths his sword.]

If thou wilt strike, here is a faithful heart;
Pierce it, for I will never leave my hand
To thine. Behold the power thou hast in me!
I do believe my sister is a whore,

A leprous one. Put up thy sword, young man.
Amin. How should I hear it, then, she being so?
I fear, my friend, that you will lose me shortly;
[Sheaths his sword.]

And I shall do a foul act on myself,
Through these disgraces.

Mel. Better half the land 155
Were buried quick, together. No, Amintor;
Thou shalt have ease. Oh, this adulterous King,
That drew her to 't! Where got he the spirit
To wrong me so?
Amin. What is it, then, to me,
If it be wrong to you?

Mel. Why, not so much. 190
The credit of our house is thrown away.
But from his iron den I'll waken Death,
And hurl him on this King. My honest
Shall steel my sword; and on its horrid point
I'll wear my cause, that shall amaze the eyes
Of this proud man, and be too glittering
For him to look on.
Amin. I have quite undone my fame.

Mel. Dry up thy watery eyes,
And cast a manly look upon my face;
For nothing is so wild as I, thy friend,
Till I have freed thee. Still this swelling breast.
I go thus from thee, and will never cease
My vengeance till I find thy heart at peace.

Amin. It must not be so. Stay. Mine eyes would tell
How loth I am to this; but, love and tears,
Leave me awhile! for I have hazarded
All that this world calls happy. — Thou hast wronged
A secret from me, under name of friend,
Which art could never have found, nor torture wrung
From out my bosom. Give it me again;
For I will find it, whereasoe'er it lies,
Hid in the mortal's part. Invent a way
To give it back.

Mel. Why would you have it back?
I will to death pursue him with revenge. 216 Amin. Therefore I call it back from thee; for I know
Thy blood so high, that thou wilt stir in this,
And shame me to posterity. Take to thy weapon!
[Draws his sword.]
Mel. Hear thy friend, that bears more years
Than thou.
Amin. I will not hear: but draw, or I—
Mel. Amen. Draw, then; for I am full as resolute
As fame and honour can enforce me to:
I cannot linger. Draw!
Mel. I do. But is not
My share of credit equal with thine,
If I do stir?
Amin. No; for it will be call'd
Honour in thee to spill thy sister's blood,
If she her birth abuse; and, on the King
A brave revenge: but on me, that have walk'd
With patience in it, it will fix the name
Of fearful end! Oh, that word! Be quick.
Mel. Then, join with me.
Amin. I dare not do a sin,
Or else I would. Be speedy.
Mel. Then, dare not fight with me; for that's a sin.

His grief distracts him.—Call thy thoughts again,
And to thyself pronounce the name of friend,
And see what that will work. I will not fight.
Amin. You must.
Mel. [sheathing his sword.] I will be kill'd first.
Though my passions
Offered the like to you, 'tis not this earth
Shall buy my reason to it. Think awhile,
For you are (I must weep when I speak that)
Almost besides yourself.
Amin. [sheathing his sword.] Oh, my soft temper!
So many sweet words from thy sister's mouth,
I am afraid would make me take her to Embrace, and pardon her. I am mad indeed,
And know not what I do. Yet, have a care
Of me in what thou dost.
Mel. Why, thinks my friend
I will forget his honour? or, to save
The bravery of our house, will lose his fame,
And fear to touch the throne of majesty?
Amin. A curse will follow that; but rather live
And suffer with me.
Mel. I will do what worth
Shall bid me, and no more.
Amin. Faith, I am sick,
And desperately I hope; yet, leaning thus,
I feel a kind of ease.
Mel. Your mirth about you.
Amin. I shall never do't.
Mel. I warrant you; look up; we'll walk together;
Put thine arm here; all shall be well again.
Amin. Thy love (oh, wretched!) ay, thy love
Melantius;
Why, I have nothing else.
Mel. Be merry, then. Exeunt.

To counterfeit again. Sword, hold thine edge;
My heart will never fail me.

Enter Diphilus.

Diphilus!
Thou com'st as sent.
Diph. Yonder has been such laughing.
Mel. Betwixt whom?
Diph. Why, our sister and the King.
I thought their spleens would break; they laughed us all
Out of the room.
Mel. They must weep, Diphilus.
Diph. Must they?
Thou art my brother; and, if I did believe
Thou hast a base thought, I would rip it out,
Lie where it durst.
Diph. You should not; I would first
Mangle myself and find it.
Mel. That was spoke
According to our strain. Come, join thy hands to mine.
And swear a firmness to what project I Shall lay before thee.
Diph. You do wrong us both.
People hereafter shall not say there past
A bond, more than our loves, to tie our lives
And deaths together.
Mel. It is as nobly said as I would wish.
Anon I'll tell you wonders: we are wrong'd.
Diph. But I will tell you now, we'll right ourselves.
Mel. Stay not: prepare the armour in my house;
And what friends you can draw unto our side,
Not knowing of the cause, make ready too.
Haste, Diphilus, the time requires it, haste! —
Exit Diphilus.

I hope my cause is just; I know my blood
Tells me it is; and I will credit it.
To take revenge, and lose myself withal,
Were idle; and to escape impossible,
Without I had the fort, which (misery!) Remaining in the hands of my old enemy Calianax—— but I must have it. See

Re-enter Callianax.

Where he comes shaking by me! —Good my lord,
Forget your spleen to me. I never wrong'd you,
But would have peace with every man.

Cal. 'Tis well;
If I durst fight, your tongue would lie at quiet.
Mel. You're touchy without all cause.
Cal. Do, mock me, so.
Mel. By mine honour, I speak truth.
Cal. Honour! where is 't?
Mel. See, what starts you make
Into your idle hatred, to my love
And freedom to you. I come with resolution
To obtain a suit of you.
Cal. A suit of me!
'T is very like it should be granted, sir.
Mel. Nay, go not hence.

1 Race, stock.
'Tis this; you have the keeping of the fort,
And I would wish you, by the love you ought
To bear unto me, to deliver it
Into my hands.
Cal. I am in hope thou art mad,
To talk to me thus.
Mel. But there is a reason
To move you to it: I would kill the King,
That wrong'd you and your daughter.
Cal. Out, traitor!
Mel. Nay, but stay: I cannot escape, the deed
one done,
Without I have this fort.
Cal. And should I help thee?
Now thy treacherous mind betrays itself.
Mel. Come, delay me not;
Give me a sudden answer, or already Thy last is spoke! Refuse not offered love
When it comes clad in secrets.
Cal. [Aside.] If I say
I will not, he will kill me; I do see 't
Writ in his looks; and should I say I will,
He'll run and tell the King. — I do not shun
Your friendship, dear Melantius; but this cause
Is weighty: give me but an hour to think.
Mel. Take it. — [Aside.] I know this goes unto the King;
But I am arm'd.
Exit.
Cal. Methinks I feel myself
But twenty now again. This fighting fool
Wants policy: I shall revenge my girl,
And make her red again. I pray my legs
Will last that pace that I will carry them:
I shall want breath before I find the King.
Exit.

ACT IV

[Scene I.]

Enter Melantius, Evadne, and Ladies.

Mel. Save you!
Evad. Save you, sweet brother.
Mel. In my blunt eye, methinks, you look, Evadne — Evad. Come, you would make me blush.
Mel. I would, Evadne;
I shall displease my ends else.
Evad. You shall, if you do.
Mel. I would not have your women hear me
Break into commendation of you; 't is not Seemly.
Evad. Go wait me in the gallery.
Exeunt Ladies.

Now speak.

Mel. I'll lock the door first.
Evad. Why?
Mel. I will not have your gilded things, that dance
In visitation with their Milan skins,
Choke up my business.

---

Notes:
1. An apartment of Evadne.
2. Gloves manufactured at Milan.
3. Theobald read, As though Evad. Other edd. take fill in sense of "cover with writing;" Dyce as "inflame," which is perhaps best.
Let all mine honours perish but I'll find him
Though he lie lock'd up in thy blood! Be sudden;
There is no facing it; and be not flattered.
The burnt air, when the Dog reigns, is not foul.
Then thy contagious name, till thy repentance
(If the gods grant thee any) purge thy sickness.
Evad. Begone! you are my brother; that's your safety.

Mel. I'll be a wolf first. 'Tis, to be thy brother,
An infamy below the sin of coward.
I am as far from being part of thee
As thou art from thy virtue. Seek a kindred
'Mongst sensual beasts, and make a goat thy brother;
A goat is cooler. Will you tell me yet?

Evad. If you stay here and rail thus, I shall Tell you I'll ha' you whipt! Get you to your command,
And there preach to your sentinels, and tell them
What a brave man you are: I shall laugh at you.
Mel. You're grown a glorious whore! Where be your fighters?
What mortal fool durst raise thee to this daring,
And I alive! By my just sword, he'd safer
Beatrid a billow when the angry North
Ploughs up the sea, or made Heaven's fire his foe!
Work me no higher. Will you discover yet?

Evad. The fellow's mad. Sleep, and speak sense.

Mel. Force my swol'n heart no further; I would save thee.
Your great maintainers are not here, they dare not.
Would they were all, and armed! I would speak loud;
Here's one should thunder to 'em! Will you tell me?—
Thou hast no hope to escape. He that dares most,
And damns away his soul to do thee service,
Will sooner snatch meat from a hungry lion
Than come to rescue thee. Thou hast death, about thee;—
Has undone thine honour, poison'd thy virtue,
And, of a lovely rose, left thee a canker.

Evad. Let me consider.
Mel. Do, whose child thou wert,
Whose honour thou hast murdered, whose grave opened,
And so pull'd on the gods that in their justice
They must restore him flesh again and life,
And raise his dry bones to revenge this scandal.

Evad. The gods are not of my mind; they had better
Let 'em lie sweet still in the earth; they'll stink here.

Mel. Do you raise mirth out of my easiness? Forsake me, then, all weaknesses of nature.

[Draws his sword.]

That make men women! Speak, you whore, speak truth.
Or, by the dear soul of thy sleeping father,
This sword shall be thy lover! Tell, or I'll kill thee;
And, when thou hast told all, thou wilt deserve it.

Evad. You will not murder me?
Mel. No; 'tis a justice, and a noble one,
To put the light of such base offenders.

Evad. Help!
Mel. By thy foul self, no human help shall help thee.
If thou criest! When I have kill’d thee, as I
Have vow’d to do, if thou confess not, naked
As thou hast left thine honour will I leave thee,
That on thy branded flesh the world may read
Thy black shame and my justice. Wilt thou bend yet?

Evad. Yes. Mel. Up, and begin your story.

Evad. Oh, I am miserable!
Mel. 'Tis true, then art. Speak truth still.
Evad. I have offended: noble sir, forgive me!
Mel. With what secure slave?

Evad. Do not ask me, sir;
Mine own remembrance is a misery.
Too mighty for me.

Mel. Do not fall back again;
My sword's unsheathed yet.

Evad. What shall I do? Mel. Be true, and make your fault less.
Evad. I dare not tell.

Mel. Tell, or I'll be this day a-killing thee.

Evad. Will you forgive me, then?

Mel. Stay; I must ask mine honour first.
I have too much foolish nature in me:

Evad. Is there none else here?
Mel. None but a fearful conscience; that's too many.

Who is't?

Evad. Oh, hear me gently! It was the King.
Mel. No more. My worthy father's and my services
Are liberally rewarded! King, I thank thee!
For all my dangers and my wounds thou hast paid me
In my own metal: these are soldiers' thanks!—
How long have you liv'd thus, Evadne?

Evad. Too long.

Mel. Too late you find it. Can you be sorry?

Evad. Would I were half as blameless!
Mel. Evadne, thou wilt to thy trade again.

Evad. First to my grave.

Mel. Would gods thou hadst been so blest!
Dost thou not hate this King now? Prithee, hate him:

Couldst thou not curse him? I command thee,
curse him;

Curse till the gods hear, and deliver him
To thy just wishes. Yet I fear, Evadne,
You had rather play your game out.

Evad. No; I feel
Too many sad confusions here, to let in Any loose flame hereafter.

Cowardly.

Q. very sorry.
Mel. Dost thou not feel, 'mongst all those, one brave anger, That breaks out nobly, and directs thine arm To kill this base King?

Evad. All the gods forbid it! All the gods require it; 145
They are dishonoured in him. Evad. 'Tis too fearful. Mel. You're valiant in his bed, and bold enough To be a stale whore, and have your madam's name Discourse for grooms and pages; and hereafter, When his cool majesty hath laid you by, 150 To be at pension with some needy sir For meat and coarser clothes; thus far you know No fear. Come, you shall kill him. Evad. Good sir! Mel. An 't were to kiss him dead, thou 'dst smother him: Be wise, and kill him. Canst thou live, and know What noble minds shall make thee, see thyself Found out with every finger, made the shame Of all successions, and in this great ruin Thy brother and thy noble husband broken? Thou shalt not live thus. Kneel, and swear to help me. 160 When I shall call thee to it; or, by all Holy in Heaven and earth, thou shalt not live To breathe a full hour longer; not a thought! Come 't is a righteous oath. Give me thy hands, And, both to Heaven held up, swear, by that wealth This lustful thief stole from thee, when I say it, To let his foul soul out.

Evad. Here I swear it; [Kneels.] And, all you spirits of abused ladies, Help me in this performance! Mel. [raising her.] Enough. This must be known to none; But you and I, Evadne; not to your lord, Though he be wise and noble, and a fellow Dares step as far into a worthy action As the most daring, ay, as far as justice. Ask me not why, Farewell. Exit. 175

Evad. Would I could say so to my black disgrace! Oh, where have I been all this time? How friended, That I should lose myself thus desperately, And none for pity show me how I wand'red? There is not in the compass of the light A more unhappy creature: sure, I am monstrous; For I have done those follies, those mad mischiefs, Would dare 3 a woman. Oh, my loaden soul, Be not so cruel to me; choke not up The way to my repentance!

Enter AMINTOR.

Amin. How now? Oh, my lord! 185

Evad. My much abused lord! [Kneels.] Amin. This cannot be! Evad. I do not kneel to live; I dare not hope it:
The wrongs I did are greater. Look upon me, Though I appear with all my faults. Amin. Stand up. This is a new way to begot more sorrow; I 190 Heaven knows I have too many. Do not mock me:
Though I am tame, and bred with my wrongs, Which are my foster-brothers, I may leap, Like a hand-wolf, 2 into my natural-wildness, 195 And do an outrage. Prishee, do not mock me. Evad. My whole life is so leprous, it infects All my repentance, I would buy your pardon, Though at the highest set, 3 even with my life: That slight contrition, that's no sacrifice For what I have committed. Amin. Sure, I dazzle; There cannot be a faith in that foul woman, That knows no god more mighty than her mischiefs. Thou dost still worse, still number on thy faults, To press my poor heart thus. Can I believe There's any seed of virtue in that woman Left to shoot up, that doth go on in sin? Known, and so known as thine is? Oh, Evadne! Would there were any safety in thy sex, That I might put a thousand sorrows off, And credit thy repentance! but I must not. Thou hast brought me to that dull calamity, To that strange misbelief of all the world And all things that are in it, that I fear I shall fall like a tree, and find my grave, Only remembering that I grieve.

Evad. My lord, Give me your griefs: you are an innocent, A soul as white as Heaven; let not my sins Perish your noble youth. I do not fall here To shadow by dissembling with my tears, (As all say women can,) or to make less What my hot will hath done, which Heaven and you Know to be tougher than the hand of time Can cut from man's remembrance; no, I do not; I do appear the same, the same Evadne, Drest in the shape I liv'd in, the same monster. 205 But these are names of honour to what I am; I do present myself the foulest creature; Most poisonous, dangerous, and despis'd of men, Lerna 4 e'er bred or Nilus. I am hell, 210 Till you, my dear lord, shoot your light into me, The beams of your forgiveness; I am soul-sick, And wither with the fear of one condemn'd, Till I have got your pardon.

Amin. Rise, Evadne. Those heavenly powers that put this good into thee Grant a continuance of it! I forgive thee: 220 Make thyself worthy of it; and take heed, 3 A tame wolf.
2 Stake.
4 The marsh where the Hydra lived which Hercules slew.
He said it to me; and I'll justify it
What way he dares oppose— but with my sword.
King. But did he break, without all circumstance,
To you, his foe, that he would have the fort,
To kill me, and then escape?
Cal. If he deny it,
I'll make him blush.
King. It sounds incredibly.
Cal. Ay, so does every thing I say of late.
King. Not so, Calianax.
Cal. Yes, I should sit
Mute, whilst a rogue with strong arms cuts your throat.
King. Well, I will try him; and, if this be true,
I'll pawn my life I'll find it; it 'tis be false,
And that you clothe your hate in such a lie,
You shall hereafter dote in your own house,
Not in the court.
Cal. Why, if it be a lie,
Mine ears are false, for I'll be sworn I heard it.
Old men are good for nothing; you were best
Put me to death for hearing, and free him
For meaning it. You would ha' trusted me
Once, but the time is altered.
King. And will still,
Where I may do with justice to the world.
You have no witness.
Cal. Yes, myself.
King. No more,
I mean, there were that heard it.
Cal. How? no more!
Would you have more? Why, am not I enough
To hang a thousand rogues?
King. But so you may
Hang honest men too, if you please.
Cal. I may! 'T is like I will do so: there are a hundred
Will swear it for a need too, if I say it—
King. Such witnesses we need not.
And 'tis hard
If my word cannot hang a boisterous knave.
King. Enough. — Where's Strato?

Enter Strato.

Strato. Sir?
King. Why, where's all the company? Call Amintor in;
Evadne. Where's my brother, and Melantius?
Bid him come too; and Diphilus. Call all
That are without there.
Exit Strato.
If he should desire
The combat of you, 'tis not in the power
Of all our laws to hinder it, unless
We mean to quit 'em.
Cal. Why, if you do think
'T is fit an old man and a councillor
To fight for what he says, then you may grant it.

Enter Amintor, Evadne, Melantius, Diphilus, Lysippus, Cleon, Strato, and Diagoras.

King. Come, sirs! — Amintor, thou art yet a bridegroom,
And I will use thee so; thou shalt sit down.—
Evadne, sit; — and you, Amintor, too;
This banquet is for you, sir. — Who has brought
A merry tale about him, to raise laughter
Amongst our wine? Why, Strato, where art thou?
Thou wilt chop out with them unseasonably,
When I desire 'em not.

Strat. 'Tis my ill luck, sir, so to spend them,

King. Reach me a bowl of wine. — Melantius, m Thou art sad.

Mel. I should be, sir, the merriest here,
But I ha' ne'er a story of mine own
Worth telling at this time.

King. Give me the wine. —

Mel. I think it were not hard, sir, for a knave.

Cal. [Aside.] Such as you are.

King. 'Tis my fault, 't were easy. It becomes us
well
To get plain-dealing men about ourselves;
Such as you all are here,— Amintor, to thee;
And to thy fair Evadne.

[Drinks.]

Mel. [Aside.] Have you thought
Of this, Calianax?

Cal. Yes, marry, have I.

Mel. And what's your resolution?

Cal. You shall have it, —

[Aside.] Soundly, I warrant you.

King. Reach to Amintor, Strato.

Amin. Here, my love;

[Drinks and then hands the cup to Evadne.]

This wine will do thee wrong, for it will set
Blushes upon thy cheeks; and, till thou dost
A fault, 't were pity.

King. Yet I wonder much
[At this strange desperation of these men,
That dare attempt such acts here in our state:
He could not scape that did it.

Were he known,

Unpossible.

King. It ought to be. If he got then away,
He must wear all our lives upon his sword:
He need not fly the island; he must leave
No one alive.

King. No; I should think no man Could kill me, and scarce clear, but that old
man.

Cal. But! Heaven bless me! I! should I,
my liege?

King. I do not think thou wouldest; but yet thou mightest.

For thou hast in thy hands the means to scape,
By keeping of the fort.— He has, Melantius,
And he has kept it well.

Mel. From cobwebs, sir,
'Tis clean swept; I can find no other art
In keeping of it now. 'Twas ne'er besieged

Cal. I shall be sure
Of your good word; but I have kept it safe
From such as you.

Mel. Keep your ill temper in:

I speak no malice; had my brother kept it,
I should ha' said as much.

You are not merry.

Brother, drink wine. Sit you all still: — [Aside.]
Calianax,
I cannot trust this. I have thrown out words,
That would have fetched warm blood upon the cheeks
Of guilty men, and he is never mov'd;
He knows no such thing.

Cal. Impudence may escape,
When feeble virtue is accus'd.

King. 'A must,
If he were guilty, feel an alteration
At this our whisper, whilst we point at him:
You see he does not.

Cal. Let him hang himself;
What care I what he does? This he did say.

King. Melantius, you can easily conceive
What I have meant; for men that are in fault
Can subtly apprehend when others aim
At what they do amiss: but I forgive
Freely before this man, — Heaven do so too!
I will not touch thee, so much as with shame
Of telling it. Let it be so no more.

Cal. Why, this is very fine!

Mel. I cannot tell
What 't is you mean; but I am apt enough
Rudely to thrust into an ignorant fault.
But let me know it. Happily 't is nought
But misconception; and, where I am clear,
I will not take forgiveness of the gods,
Much less of you.

King. Nay, if you stand so stiff,
I shall call back my mercy.

Mel. I want smoothness
To thank a man for pardoning of a crime
I never knew.

King. Not to instruct your knowledge, but to show you
My ears are every where; you meant to kill me,
And get the fort to scape.

Mel. Pardon me, sir;
My bluntness will be pardoned. You preserve
A race of idle people here about you,
Faces and talkers, to defame the worth Of those that do things worthy. The man that uttered this
Had persif without food, be 't who it will,
But for this arm, that fenc'd him from the foe;
And if I thought you gave a faith to this,
The plainness of my nature would speak more.
Give me a pardon (for you ought to do 't)
To kill him that spake this.

Cal. [Aside.] Ay, that will be
The end of all; then I am fairly paid
For all my care and service.

Mel. That old man,
Who calls me enemy, and of whom I

(Though I will never match my hate so low)

1 Happily.
2 Shameless fellows. So Q. Q. 2, F. Eaters.
Have no good thought, would yet, I think, excuse me, And swear he thought me wrong'd in this, Thou shameless fellow! didst thou not speak to me Of it thyself?

Mel. Oh, then it came from him! Cal. From me! who should it come from but from me? Nay, I believe your malice is enough; But I have lost my anger.—Sir, I hope You are well satisfied.

King. Lysippus, cheer Amintor and his lady.—There's no sound Comes from you; I will come and do't myself.

Amin. [Aside.] You have done already, sir, for me, I thank you.

King. Melantius, I do credit this from him, How slight soever you make it.

Mel. 'Tis strange a should believe an old man's word

That never lied in 's life!

Mel. I talk not to thee.—Shall the wild words of this distempered man, Frantic with age and sorrow, make a breach Betwixt your majesty and me? 'T was wrong To hearken to him; but to credit him, As much as least as I have power to bear, But pardon me—whilst I speak only truth, I may commend myself—I have bestow'd My careless blood with you, and should be loth To think an action that would make me lose That and my thanks too. When I was a boy, I thrust myself into my country's cause, And did a deed that pluckt five years from time, And stild'me man then. And for you, my King,

Your subjects all have fed by virtue of
My arm. This sword of mine hath plough'd the ground, And reap't the fruit in peace; And you yourself liv'd at home in ease, So terrible I grew, that without swords, My name hath fetched you conquest: and my heart And limbs are still the same; my will as great To do you service. Let me not be paid With such a strange distrust.

King. Melantius, I held it great injustice to believe Thine enemy, and did not; if I did, I do not; let that suffice. —What, struck With sadness all? More wine!

Cal. Have overthrown my truth. Ah, thou'rt a villain!

Mel. [Aside.] Why, thou wert better let me have the fort:

Dotard, I will disgrace thee thus for ever; There shall no credit lie upon thy words. Think better, and deliver it.

Cal. My liege, He's at me now again to do it.—Speak;

Deny it, if thou canst.—Examine him Whilst he is hot; for, if he cool again, He will forswear it.

King. This is lunacy, I hope, Melantius.

Mel. He hath lost himself Much, since his daughter mist the happiness My sister gain'd; and, though he call me foe, I pity him.

Cal. Pity! A pox upon you! Mel. Mark his disordered words: and at the masque Diogoras knows he rag'd and rail'd at me, And call'd a lady "whore," so innocent She understood him not. But it becomes Both you and me too to forgive distraction: Pardon him, as I do.

Cal. I'll not speak for thee, For all thy cunning.—If you will be safe, Chop off his head; for there was never known So impudent a rascal.

King. Some, that love him,

Get him to bed. Why, pity should not let Age make itself contemptible; we must be All old. Have him away.

Mel. [Aside.] Calianax,
The king believes you; come, you shall go home,
And rest; you ha' done well. You'll give it up,
When I have us'd you thus a month, I hope.

Cal. Now, now, 'tis plain, sir; he does move me still. He says, he knows I'll give him up the fort, When he has us'd me thus a month. I am mad, Am I not, still?

All. Ha, ha, ha!

Cal. I shall be mad indeed, if you do thus.
Why should you trust a sturdy fellow there? (That has no virtue in him, all 's in his sword) Before me? Do but take his weapons from him, And he's an ass; and I am a very fool, Both with 'em and without 'em, as you use me.

All. Ha, ha, ha!

King. 'Tis well, Calianax: but if you use This once again, I shall entreat some other To see your offices be well discharged.—Be merry, gentlemen.—It grows somewhat late.—

Amin. Yes, sir.

King. And you, Evadne.—Let me take Thee in my arms, Melantius, and believe Thou art, as thou deserv'st to be, my friend Still and for ever. —Good Calianax, Sleep soundly; it will bring thee to thyself.

[Exeunt all except MELANTIUS and CALLIANAX]

Cal. Sleep soundly! I sleep soundly now, I hope: I could not be thus else.—How dar'st thou stay Alone with me, knowing how thou hast us'd me?

So Dyce. Old edd. him.
Mel. You cannot blast me with your tongue, and that's
   The strongest part you have about you.

Cal. I do look for some great punishment for this; For I begin to forget all my hate, And take 't unknowingly that mine enemy Should use me so extraordinarily scurvily. Mel. I shall melt too, if you begin to take Unkindnesses; I never meant you hurt. Cal. Thou 'lt anger me again. Thou wretched rogue, Meant me no hurt! Disgrace me with the King! Lose all my offices! This is no hurt. Is it? I prithee, what dost thou call hurt? Mel. To poison men, because they love me not; To call the credit of men's wives in question; To murder children betwixt me and land; This is all hurt.

Cal. All this thou think'st is sport; For mine is worse: but use thy will with me; For betwixt grief and anger I could cry. Mel. Be wise, then, and be safe; thou may'st revenge — Cal. Ay, o' the King: I would revenge of thee.

Mel. That you must plot yourself.

Cal. I'm a fine plotter.

Mel. The short is, I will hold thee with the King In this perplexity, till peevishness And thy disgrace have laid thee in thy grave. But if thou wilt deliver up the fort, I'll take thy trembling body in my arms, And bear thee over dangers. Thou shalt hold Thy wondert state.

Cal. If I should tell the King, Canst thou deny 't again?

Mel. Try, and believe.

Cal. Nay, then, thou canst bring anything about.

Melantius, thou shalt have the fort.

Mel. Why, well. Here let our hate be buried; and this shall Right us both. Give me thy aged breast To compass.

Cal. Nay, I do not love thee yet; I cannot well endure to look on thee; But if I thought it were a courtesy, Thou shouldst not have it. But I am disgrac'd; My offices are to be ta'en away; And, if I did but hold this fort a day, I do believe the King would take it from me, And give it thee, things are so strangely carried. Ne'er thank me for 't; but yet the King shall know There was some such thing in 't I told him of, And that I was an honest man.

Mel. He'll buy That knowledge very dearly.

Re-enter Diphilus.

Diphilus, This were a night indeed To do it in: the King hath sent for her. Mel. She shall perform it then. — Go, Diphilus, And take from this good man, my worthy friend, The fort; he'll give it thee.

Diph. Ha' you got that? Cal. Art thou of the same breed? Canst thou deny This to the King too?

Diph. With a confidence

As great as his.

Cal. Away, and use him kindly.

Cal. Touch not me; I hate the whole strain. If thou follow me A great way off, I'll give thee up the fort; And hang yourselves.

Mel. Begone.

Diph. He's finely wrought. Exeunt CALIANAX and DIPHILUS.

Mel. This is a night, spite of astronomers, To do the deed in. I will wash the stain That rests upon our house off with his blood.

Re-enter AMINTOR.

Amin. Melantius, now assist me: if thou hast That which thou say'st, assist me. I have lost All my distempers, and have found a rage So pleasing! Help me.

Mel. [Aside.] Who can see him thus, And not swear vengeance? — What's the matter, friend?

Amin. Out with thy sword; and, hand in hand with me, Rush to the chamber of this hated King, And sink him with the weight of all his sins To hell for ever.

Mel. 'T were a rash attempt, Not to be done with safety. Let your reason Plot your revenge, and not your passion.

Amin. If thou refusest me in these extremities, Thou art no friend. He sent for her to me; By Heaven, to me, myself! and, I must tell you, I love her as a stranger: there is worth In that vile woman, worthy things, Melantius; And she repents. I'll do't myself alone, Though I be slain. Farewell.

Mel. [Aside.] He'll overthrow My whole design with madness. — Amintor, Think what thou dost: I dare as much as valour; But 'tis the King, the King, the King, Amintor, With whom thou fightest! [Aside.] I know he is honest, And this will work with him.

Amin. I cannot tell What thou hast said; but thou hast charm'd my sword Out of my hand, and left me shaking here, Defenceless.

1 Family. 2 Astrologers. 3 Loyal.
I will take it up for thee.

What a wild beast is uncontrolled man!

The thing that we call honour bears us all
Headlong unto sin, and yet itself is nothing.

Alas, how variable are thy thoughts!

Just like my fortunes. I was run to that
I purposed to have chid thee for. Some plot,
I did distrust, thou hadst against the King,
By that old fellow's carriage. But take heed;
There's not the least limb growing to a King
But carries thunder in 't.

I have none
Against him.

Why, come, then; and still remember
We may not think revenge.

I will remember. Exeunt.

ACT V.

[Scene I.] 2

Enter Evadne and a Gentleman [of the Bed-chamber].

Sir, is the King a-bed?

Madam, an hour ago.

Give me the key, then, and let none be near;
'Tis the King's pleasure.

I understand you, madam; would
't were mine!

I must not wish good rest unto your ladyship.

You talk, you talk.

'Tis all I dare do, madam; but the
King
Will wake, and then, methinks —

Saving your imagination, pray, good night, sir.

A good night be it, then, and a long one, madam.

Exit.

The night grows horrible; and all about me
Like my black purpose. Oh, the conscience

Of a lost virgin, 4 whither wilt thou pull me?

To what things dismal as the depth of hell
Wilt thou provoke me? Let no woman dare
From this hour be disloyal, if her heart be flesh,
If she have blood, and can fear. 'T is a daring
Above that desperate fool's that left his peace,
And went to sea to fight: 't is so many sins,
An age cannot repent 'em; and so great,
The gods want mercy for. Yet I must through
'em:

I have been a slaughtered on my honour,
And I must end it there. — 'A sleeps. Good Heavens!

Why give you peace to this untemperate beast,
That hath so long transgress you? I must kill
him,
And I will do it bravely: the mere joy

1 Without self-control. 2 A room in the palace. 3 Most mod. edd. begin a new scene here. 4 Q, virtue.
More chastely sweet, till thou, thou, thou, foul canker,¹ (Stir not I didst poison me. I was a world of virtue,
Till your curt'rous court and you (Hast bless you for't I)
With your temptations on temptations
Made me give up mine honour; for which,
King, I am come to kill thee.
King. No!
Evad. I am.
King. Thou art not!
I prithee speak not these things. Thou art gentle,
And wert not meant thus rugged.
Evad. Peace, and hear me.
Stir nothing but your tongue, and that for mercy
To those above us; by whose lights I vow. 65
Those blessed fires² that shot to see our sin,
If thy hot soul had substance with thy blood,
I would kill that too; which, being past my steel,
My tongue shall reach. Thou art a shameless villain;
A thing out of the overcharge of nature 90
Sent, like a thick cloud, to disperse a plague
Upon weak catching³ women; such a tyrant,
That for his lust would sell away his subjects,
Ay, all his Heaven hereafter!
King. Hear, Evadne,
Thou soul of sweetness, hear! I am thy King.
Evad. Thou art my shame! Lie still; there’s none about you,
Within thy cries; all promises of safety
Are but deluding dreams. Thus, thus, thou foul man, Thus I begin my vengeance!  Stabs him.
I do command thee hold.
Evad. I do not mean, sir. 100
To part so fairly with you; we must change
More of these love-tricks yet.
King. What bloody villain
Provokst thee to this murder?
Evad. Thou, thou monster! King. Oh!
Evad. Thou kept’st me brave at court, and whor’d me, King; 105
Then married me to a young noble gentleman,
And whor’d me still.
King. Evadne, pity me!
Evad. Hell take me, then! This for my lord
Amintor.
This for my noble brother! And this stroke
For the most wrong’d of women!  Kills him.
King. Oh! I die. 110
Evad. Die all our faults together! I forgive thee.  Exit.

Enter two [Gentlemen] of the bed-chamber.

1 Gent. Come, now she’s gone, let’s enter; the King expects it, and will be angry.

2 Gent. ’Tis a fine wench; we’ll have a snap at her one of these nights, as she goes from 116
him.
1 Gent. Content. How quickly he had done with her! I see kings can do no more that way than other mortal people.
2 Gent. How fast he is! I cannot hear him breathe.
1 Gent. Either the tapers give a feeble light,
Or he looks very pale.
2 Gent. And so he does: Pray heaven he be well; let’s look. — Alas!
He’s stiff, wounded, and dead! Treason, treason!
1 Gent. Run forth and call. 120
2 Gent. Treason, treason! Exit.
1 Gent. This will be laid on us:
Who can believe a woman could do this?

Enter Cleon and Lysippus.

Cleon. How now! where’s the traitor?
1 Gent. Fled, fled away; but there her woeful act
Lies still.
Cleon. Her act! a woman!
Lys. Where’s the body?
1 Gent. There.
Lys. Farewell, thou worthy man! There were two bonds
That tied our loves, a brother and a king,
The least of which might fetch a flood of tears;
But such the misery of greatness is,
They have no time to mourn; then, pardon me!
Sirs, which way went she?

Enter Strato.

Str. Never follow her;
For she, alas! was but the instrument.
News is now brought in, that Melanius
Has got the fort, and stands upon the wall,
And with a loud voice calls those few that pass
At this dead time of night, delivering
The innocence of this act.
Lys. Gentlemen,
I am your King.
Str. We do acknowledge it. 146
Lys. I would I were not! Follow, all; for this Must have a sudden stop. Exeunt.

[Scene II.]²

Enter Melanius, Diphilus, and Callanax, on the Walls.

Mel. If the dull people can believe I am arm’d,
(But constant, Diphilus,) now we have time
Either to bring our banish’t honours home,
Or create new ones in our ends.
Diph. I fear not;
My spirit lies not that way.—Courage, Callanax!
Cal. Would I had any! you should quickly
know it.
Mel. Speak to the people; thou art eloquent. ² Before the Fort.
Cal. 'Tis a fine eloquence to come to the gallows:
You were born to be my end; the devil take you!
Now must I hang for company, 'Tis strange, I should be old, and neither wise nor valiant.

Enter Lysippus, Diogoras, Cleon, Strato, and Guard.

Lys. See where he stands, as boldly confident
As if he had his full command about him.

Stræ. He looks as if he had the better cause, sir;
Under your gracious pardon, let me speak it!
Though he be mighty-spirited, and forward
To all great things, to all things of that danger
Worse men shake at the telling of, yet certainly
I do believe him noble, and this action
Rather pull'd on than sought: his mind was ever
As worthy as his hand.

Lys. 'Tis my fear, too.

Heaven forgive all! — Summon him, Lord

Cleon.

Cleon. Ho, from the walls there!

Mel. Worthy Cleon, welcome:

We could have wished you here, lord; you are honest.

Cal. (Aside.) Well, then art as flattering a knave, though

I dare not tell thee so —

Mel. Sir?

Lys. I am sorry that we meet thus; our old love

Never requir'd such distance. Pray to Heaven,

You have not left yourself, and sought this safety

More out of fear than honour! You have lost A noble master, whose faith, Melanius,

Some think might have preserved: yet you know best.

Cal. (Aside.) When time was, I was mad: some that dares fight,

I hope will pay this rascal.

Mel. Royal young man, those tears look lovely on thee!

Had they been shed for a deserving one,

They had been lasting monuments. Thy brother,

Whilst he was good, I call'd him King, and serv'd him

With that strong faith, that most unwearied valour,

Pull'd people from the farthest sun to seek him,

And buy his friendship. I was then his soldier.

But since his hot pride drew him to disgrace me,

And brand my noble actions with his lust,

(That never-our'd dishonour of my sister,

Base stain of whose, and, which is worse, the joy

To make it still so,) like myself, thus I

Have flung him off with my allegiance;

And stand here, mine own justice, to revenge What I have suffered in him, and this old man

Wrong'd almost to lunacy.

Mel. The short is this. 'Tis no ambition to lift up myself Urgeth me thus; I do desire again To be a subject, so I may be free:

If not, I know my strength, and will unbuild This goodly town. Be speedy, and be wise, In a reply.

Stræ. Be sudden, sir, to tie

All up again. What's done is past recall,

And past you to revenge; and there are thousands

That wait for such a troubled hour as this.

Throw him the blank.

Lys. Melantius, write in that Thy choice: my seal is at it.

(Throws a paper to Melanitus.)

Mel. It was our honours drew us to this act,

Not gain; and we will only work our par dons.

Cal. Put my name in too.

Diph. You disclaim'd us all

But now, Calianax.

Cal. That's all one;

I'll not be hang'd hereafter by a trick:

I'll have it in.

Mel. You shall, you shall. —

Come to the back gate, and we'll call you King,

And give you up the fort.

[Scene III.]

Enter Aspasia, in man's apparel, [and with artificial scars on her face.]

Asp. This is my fatal hour. Heaven may forgive

My rash attempt, that causelessly hath laid

Griefs on me that will never let me rest,

And put a woman's heart into my breast.

It is more honour for you that I die;

For she that can endure the misery

That I have on me, and be patient too,

May live and laugh at all that you can do.

Enter Servant.

God save you, sir!

Ser. And you, sir! What's your business?

Asp. With you, sir, now; to do me the fair office

To help me to your lord.

Ser. What, would you serve him?

Asp. I'll do him any service; but, to haste,

For my affairs are earnest, I desire

To speak with him.

Ser. Sir, because you are in such haste, I would Be loth delay you longer: you can not.

1 Anteroom to Amintor's apartments.
Asp. It shall become you, though, to tell your lord.
Ser. Sir, he will speak with nobody; [But in particular, I have in charge,
About no weighty matters.] 1
Asp. This is most strange. 50
Art thou gold-proof? There’s for thee; help me to him. [Gives money.]
Ser. Pray be not angry, sir: I’ll do my best.
Exit.
Asp. How stubbornly this fellow answer’d me!
There is a vile dishonest trick in man,
More than in women. All the men I meet 28
Appear thus to me; are harsh and rude,
And have a subtlety in every thing,
Which love could never know; but we fond women
Harbour the easiest and the smoothest thoughts,
And think all shall go so. It is unjust 50
That men and women should be matchet together.

Enter AMINTOR and his man.
Amin. Where is he?
Ser. There, my lord.
Amin. What would you, sir?
Asp. Please it your lordship to command your man
Out of the room, I shall deliver things
Worthy your hearing.
Amin. Leave us. [Exit Servant.]
Asp. (Aside.) Oh, that that shape 55
Should bury falsehood in it!
Amin. Now your will, sir.
Asp. When you know me, my lord, you needs must guess
My business; and I am not hard to know;
For till the chance of war markth this smooth face
With these few blemishes, people would call me
My sister’s picture, and her mine. In short, I am brother to the wrong’d Aspatia.
Amin. The wrong’d Aspatia! Would thou were not too Unto the wrong’d Amintor! Let me kiss
That hand of thine, in honour that I bear 55
Unto the wrong’d Aspatia. Here I stand
That did it. Would he could not! Gentle youth, leave me; for there is something in thy looks
That calls my sins in a most hideous form
Into my mind; and I have grief enough
Without thy help.
Asp. I would I could with credit
Since I was twelve years old, I had not seen
My sister till this hour I now arriv’d:
She sent for me to see her marriage, —
A woful one! but they that are above 55
Have ends in everything. We usu’d few words,
But yet enough to make me understand
The baseness of the injuries you did her.
That little training I have had is war:
I may behave myself rudely in peace; 60
I would not, though. I shall not need to tell

I am but young, and would be loth to lose
Honour, that is not easily gain’d again.
Fairly I mean to deal: the age is strict
For single combats; and we shall be stopt, 65
If it be publish’d. If you like your sword,
Use it; if mine appear a better to you,
Change; for the ground is this, and this the time,
To end our difference. [Draws.]
Amin. Charitable youth.
If thou be’st such, think not I will maintain
So strange a wrong: and, for thy sister’s sake,
Know, that I could not think that desperate thing
I durst not do; yet, to enjoy this world,
I would not see her; for, beholding thee,
I am I know not what. If I have aught!
That may content thee, take it, and begone,
For death is not so terrible as thou;
Thine eyes shoot guilt into me.
asp. Thus, she swore,
Thou wouldst behave thyself, and give me words
That would fetch tears into my eyes; and so
Thou dost indeed, but yet she bade me watch
Lest I were cozen’d; and be sure to fight
Ere I return’d.
Amin. That must not be with me.
For her I’ll die directly; but against her
Will never hazard it.
Asp. You must be urg’d. 85
I do not deal uncivilly with those
That dare to fight; but such a one as you Must be us’d thus. She strikes him.
Amin. I prithee, youth, take heed.
Thy sister is a thing to me so much
Above mine honour, that I can endure
All this — Good gods! a blow I can endure;
But stay not, lest thou draw a timeless 2 death
Upon thyself.
Asp. Thou art some prating fellow;
One that hath studied out a trick to talk, 95
And move soft hearted people; to be kiekt.
She kicks him.
Thus to be kiekt. (Aside.) Why should he be so slow
In giving me my death?
Amin. A man can bear
No more, and keep his flesh. Forgive me, then!
I would endure yet, if I could. Now show [Draws.]
The spirit thou pretend’st, and understand
Thou hast no hour to live:
They fight; [Aspatia is wounded.] 100
What dost thou mean? Thou canst not fight: the blows thou mak’st at me
Are quite besides; and those I offer at thee,
Thou spread’st thine arms, and tak’st upon thy breast, 105
Alas, defenceless!
Asp. I have got enough.
And my desire. There is no place so fit
For me to die as here. [Falls.]
Enter Evadne, her hands bloody, with a knife.

Evad. Amintor, I am loaden with events,
That fly to make thee happy; I have joys,
That in a moment can call back thy wrongs,
And settle thee in thy free state again.
It is Evadne still that follows thee,
But not her mischiefs.
Amin. Thou canst not fool me to believe
again;
But thou hast looks and things so full of news,
That I am stay'd.

Evad. Noble Amintor, put off thy amaze,
Let thine eyes loose, and speak. Am I not fair?
Looks not Evadne beauteous with these rites
now?

Were those hours half so lovely in thine eyes
When our hands met before the holy man?
I was too foul inside to look fair then:
Since I knew ill, I was not free till now.

Amin. There is presage of some important thing
About thee, which, it seems, thy tongue hath lost.

Thy hands are bloody, and thou hast a knife.

Evad. In this consists thy happiness and mine.

Joy to Amintor! for the King is dead.

Amin. Those have most power to hurt us, that we love;
We lay our sleeping lives within their arms.
Why, thou hast rais'd up mischief to his height,
And found one to out-name thy other faults;
Thou hast no intermission of thy sins
But all thy life is a continued ill.
Black is thy colour now, disease thy nature.

Joy to Amintor! Thou hast touch'd a life,
The very name of which had power to chain
Up all my rage, and calm my wildest wrongs.

Evad. 'Tis done; and, since I could not find
a way
To meet thy love so clear as through his life,
I cannot now repent it.

Amin. Couldst thou procure the gods to speak to me,
To bid me love this woman and forgive,
I think I should fall out with them. Behold, Here lies a youth whose wounds bleed in my breast,
Sent by a violent fate to fetch his death
From my slow hand! And, to augment my woe,
You now are present, stain'd with a king's blood
Violently shed. This keeps night here,

And throws an unknown wilderness about me.

Asp. Oh, oh, oh!
Amin. No more; pursue me not.

Evad. Forgive me, then,
And take me to thy bed: we may not part.

Amin. Forbear, be wise, and let my rage go this way.

Evad. 'Tis you that I would stay, not it.
Amin. Take heed;
It will return with me.

1 Surpass.
2 Wildness.

Evad. If it must be,
I shall not fear to meet it. Take me home.
Amin. Thou monster of cruelty, forbear!

Evad. For Heaven's sake look more calm!
Thine eyes are sharper
Than thou canst make thy sword.

Amin. Away, away!
Thy knees are more to me than violence.
I am worse than sick to see knees follow me
For that I must not grant. For God's sake, stand.

Evad. Receive me, then.

Amin. I dare not stay thy language.

In midst of all my anger and my grief,
Thou dost awake something that troubles me,
And says, I lov'd thee once. I dare not stay;
There is no end of woman's reasoning.

Evad. [rising.] Amintor, thou shalt love me now again.

Go; I am calm. Farewell, and peace for ever!
Evadne, whom thou hast't, will die for thee.
Stabs herself.

Amin. (returning.) I have a little human nature yet,
That's left for thee, that bids me stay thy hand.

Evad. Thy hand was welcome, but it came too late.

Oh, I am lost! the heavy sleep makes haste.
She dies.

Asp. Oh, oh, oh!
Amin. This earth of mine doth tremble, and I feel
A stark affrighted motion in my blood.
My soul grows weary of her house, and I

All over am a trouble to myself.
There is some hidden power in these dead
things,
That calls my flesh unto 'em; I am cold.
Be resolute and bear 'em company.
There's something yet, which I am loth to leave;

There's man enough in me to meet the fears
That death can bring; and yet would it were done!
I can find nothing in the whole discourse
Of death, I durst not meet the boldest way;
Yet still, betwixt the reason and the act,
I have not such another fault to answer.
Though she may justly arm herself with scorn
And hate of me, my soul will part less troubled,
When I have paid to her in tears my sorrow.
I will not leave this act unsatisfied,
If all that's left in me can answer it.

Asp. Was it a dream? There stands Amitor still;
Or I dream still.

Amin. How dost thou? speak; receive my love and help.
Thy blood climbs up to his old place again;
There's hope of thy recovery.

Asp. Did you not name Aspasia?
Amin. I did.

Asp. And talkt of tears and sorrow unto
her?
Amin. 'Tis true; and, till these happy signs in thee,

Did stay my course, 't was thither I was going.

Asp. Thou art there already, and these wounds are hers.

Those threats I brought with me sought not revenge,
But came to fetch this blessing from thy hand:

I am Aspatia yet.

Amin. Dare my soul ever look abroad again?

Asp. I shall sure live, Amintor; I am well;
A kind of healthful joy wanders within me.

Amin. The world wants lives to excuse thy loss;

Come, let me bear thee to some place of help.

Asp. Amintor, thou must stay; I must rest
here;

My strength begins to disobey my will.

How dost thou, my best soul? I would fain live
Now, if I could. Wouldst thou have lov'd me, then?

Amin. Alas,

All that I am: not worth a hair from thee!

Asp. Give me thy hand; mine hands grope up and down,
And cannot find thee; I am wondrous sick.

Have I thy hand, Amintor?

Amin. Thou greatest blessing of the world, zhast.

Asp. I do believe thee better than my sense.
Oh, I must go! farewell!Dies.

Amin. She swoons. — Aspatia! — Help! for God's sake, water,

Such as may chain life ever to this frame! —

Aspatia, speak! — What, no help yet? I fool!
I'll chase her temples. Yet there's nothing stirs.

Some hidden power tell her, Amintor calls,
And let her answer me! — Aspatia, speak! —
I have heard, if there be any life, but bow
The body thus, and it will show itself.

Oh, she is gone! I will not leave her yet.

Since out of justice we must challenge nothing,
I'll call it mercy, if you'll pity me,

You heavenly powers, and lend for some few years

The blessed soul to this fair seat again!

No comfort comes; the gods deny me too.

I'll bow the body once again. — Aspatia!

The soul is fled for ever; and I wrong
Myself, so long to lose her company.

Must I talk now? Here's to be with thee, love!

Kills himself.

Re-enter Servant.

Serv. This is a great grace to my lord, to have the new king come to him. I must tell him he is ent'ring. — Oh, God! — Help, help!

Enter Lysippus, Melanius, Callanax, Cleon, Diphilus, and Strato.

Lys. Where's Amintor?

Str. Oh, there, there!

Lys. How strange is this!

Cal. What should we do here?

Mel. These deaths are such acquainted things with me,

That yet my heart dissolves not. May I stand Stiff here for ever! — Eyes, call up your tears!

This is Amintor. Heart, he was my friend;

Melt! now it flows. — Amintor, give a word

To call me to thee.

Amin. Oh!

Mel. Melanius calls his friend Amintor. Oh,
Thy arms are kinder to me than thy tongue!

Speak, speak!

Amin. What?

Mel. That little word was worth all the sounds

That ever I shall hear again.

Diph. Oh, brother, Here lies your sister slain! You lose yourself
In sorrow there.

Mel. Why, Diphilus, it is

A thing to laugh at, in respect of this.

Here was my sister, father, brother, son;
All that I had. — Speak once again; what

Youth

Lies slain there by thee?

Amin. 'Tis Aspatia.

My last is said. Let me give up my soul

Into thy bosom.[Dies.]

Cal. What's that? What's that? Aspatia!

Mel. I never did

Repeat the greatness of my heart till now;

It will not burst at need.

Cal. My daughter dead here too! And you have all fine new tricks to grieve; but I ne'er knew any but direct crying.

Mel. I am a prattler: but no more.

[Offers to stab himself.]

Diph. Hold, brother!

Lys. Stop him.

Diph. Fie, how unmanly was this offer in
you!

Does this become our strain?

Cal. I know not what the matter is, but I am grown very kind, and am friends with you all now. You have given me that among you will kill me quickly; but I'll go home, and live as long as I can.[Exit.]

Mel. His spirit is but poor that can be kept
From death for want of weapons.

Is not my hand a weapon sharp enough
To stop my breath? or, if you tie down those,
I vow, Amintor, I will never eat,
Or drink, or sleep, or have to do with that
That may preserve life! This I swear to keep.

Lys. Look to him, though, and bear those bodies in.

May this a fair example be to me

To rule with temper; for on lustful kings Unlookt-for sudden deaths from God are sent;

But curse is he that is their instrument.[Exeunt.]

TO THE READER

If you be not reasonably assur'd of your knowledge in this kind of poem, lay down the book, or read this, which I would wish had been the prologue. It is a pastoral tragi-comedy, which the people seeing when it was play'd, having ever had a singular gift in defining, concluded to be a play of country hired shepherds in gray cloaks, with curtail'd dogs in strings, sometimes laughing together, and sometimes killing one another; and, missing Whitson-ales, cream, wassail, and morris-dances, began to be angry. In their error I would not have you fall, lest you incur their censure. ¹ Understand, therefore, a pastoral to be a representation of shepherds and shepherdesses with their actions and passions, which must be such as may agree with their natures, at least not exceeding former fictions and vulgar traditions; they are not to be adorn'd with any art, but such improper ones as nature is said to bestow, as singing and poetry; or such as experience may teach them, as the virtues of herbs and fountains, the ordinary course of the sun, moon, and stars, and such like. But you are ever to remember shepherds to be such as all the ancient poets, and modern, of understanding, have received them; that is, the owners of flocks, and not hirelings. A tragi-comedy is not so called in respect of mirth and killing, but in respect it wants deaths, which is enough to make it no tragedy, yet brings some near it, which is enough to make it no comedy, which must be a representation of familiar people, with such kind of trouble as no life be question'd; ² so that a god is as lawful in this as in a tragedy, and mean people as in a comedy. Thus much I hope will serve to justify my poem, and make you understand it; to teach you more for nothing, I do not know that I am in conscience bound.

JOHN FLETCHER.

ACT I

SCENE I.

Enter Clorin, a shepherdess, having buried her love in an arbour.

Clorin. Hail, holy earth, whose cold arms do embrace
The trustiest man that ever fed his flocks
By the fat plains of fruitful Thessaly!
Thus I salute thy grave; thus do I pay
My early vows and tribute of mine eyes
To thy still-loved ashes; thus I free
Myself from all ensuing heats and fires
Of love; all sports, delights, and [jolly] ³ games,
That shepherds hold full dear, thus put I off.

¹ I. e. the judgment which must be passed on them.
² Called in question; endangered.
³ Q., signifies Some copies of Q. read merry.

NOW NO MORE SHALL THESE SMOOTH BROWS BE BEGIRT
With youthful coronals, ⁴ and lead the dance;
No more the company of fresh fair maids
And wanton shepherds be to me delightful;
Nor the shrill pleasing sound of merry pipes
Under some shady dell, when the cool wind
Plays on the leaves: all be far away,
Since thou art far away, by whose dear side
How often have I sat crown'd with fresh flowers
For summer's queen, whilst every shepherd's boy
Puts on his lusty green, with gaudy hook,
And hanging scrip of finest cordovan.
But thou art gone, and these are gone with thee,
And all are dead but thy dear memory;

⁴ Garlands. ⁵ Leather (from Cordova in Spain).
That shall outlive thee, and shall ever spring,
Whilst there are pipes or jolly shepherds sing. 26
And here will I, in honour of thy love,
Dwell by thy grave, forgetting all those joys
That former times made precious to mine eyes.

Only rememb'ring what my youth did gain
In the dark, hidden virtuous use of herbs: 36
That will I practise, and as freely give
All my endeavours, as I gain'd them, free.
Of all green wounds I know the remedies
In men or cattle, be they stung with snakes,
Or charm'd with powerful words of wicked art,
Or be they love-sick, or through too much heat
Grown wild or lunatic, their eyes or ears
Thick'ned with misty film of dulling rheum;
These I can cure, such secret virtue lies
In herbs applied by a virgin's hand.

My mead shall be what these wild woods afford,
Berries and chestnuts, plantains, on whose cheeks
The sun sits smiling, and the lofty fruit
Pulld from the fair head of the straight-grown pine:

On these I'll feed with free content, and rest,
When night shall blind the world, by thy side blest.

Enter a Satyr [with a basket of fruit].

Sat. Through your same bending plain,
That flings his arms down to the main,
And through these thick woods, have I run,
Whose bottom never kist the sun
Since the lusty spring began;
All to please my master Pan,
Have I trod without rest
To get him fruit; for at a feast
He entertains, this coming night,
His paramour, the Syrinx bright.—

But, behold, a fairer sight!

He stands amazed.

By that heavenly form of thine,
Brightest fair, thou art divine,
Sprung from great immortal race
Of the gods; for in thy face
Shines more awful majesty
Than dull weak mortality
Dare with misty eyes behold,
And live: therefore on this mould
Lowly do I bend my knee
In worship of thy deity.
Deign it, goddess, from my hand
To receive what' er this land
From her fertile womb doth send
Of her choice fruits; and but lend Belief to that the Satyr tells:
Fairer by the famous wells
To this present day ne'er grew,
Never better nor more true.
Here be grapes, whose lusty blood
Is the learned poets' good
Sweeter yet did never crown
The head of Bacchus; nuts more brown
Than the squirrel's teeth that crack them;
Deign, O fairest fair, to take them!

For these black-eyed Dryope
Hath oftentimes commanded me
With my clasped knee to climb:
See how well the lusty time
Hath deckt their rising cheeks in red,
Such as on your lips is spread!
Here be berries for a queen,
Some be red, some be green;
These are of that luscious meat,
The great god Pan himself doth eat;
All these, and what the woods can yield,
The hanging mountain or the field,
I freely offer, and ere long
Will bring you more, more sweet and strong; 96
Till when, humbly leave I take,
Lest the great Pan do awake,
That sleeping lies in a deep glade,
Under a broad beech's shade.

I must go, I must run
Swifter than the fiery sun.

Clo. And all my fears go with thee!
What greatness, or what private hidden power,
Is there in me, to draw submission
From this rude man and beast? Sure I am mortal,
The daughter of a shepherd; he was mortal,
And she that bore me mortal: prick my hand,
And it will bleed; a fever shakes me, and
The selfsame wind that makes the young lambs shrink
Makes me a cold: my fear says I am mortal.

Yet I have heard (my mother told it me,
And now I do believe it, if I keep
My virgin-flower uncorpt, pure, chaste, and fair,
No goblin, wood-god, fairy, elf, or fiend,
Satyr, or other power that haunts these groves,
Shall hurt my body, or by vain illusion
Draw me to wander after idle fires;
Or voices calling me in dead of night,
To make me follow, and so toll me on,
Through mires and standing pools [to find my ruin:] 120

Else why should this rough thing, who never knew
Manners nor smooth humanity, whose heats
Are rougher than himself and more mis-shapen,
Thus mildly kneel to me? Sure there is a power
In that great name of virgin, that binds fast
All rude uncivil bloods, all appetites
That break their confines. Then, strong chastity,
Be thou my strongest guard, for here I'll dwell
In opposition against fate and hell!

[Retires into her bower.]

[SCENE II.]

Enter an Old Shepherd, with four couples of Shepherds and Shepherdesses, [among whom are Perigot and Amoret.]

Old Shep. Now we have done this holy festival

1 Entice. 2 Culture. 3 Passions. 4 In the neighbourhood of a village.
In honour of our great god, and his rites
Perform’d, prepare yourselves for chaste
And uncorrupted fires; that as the priest
With powerful hand shall sprinkle on your brows
His pure and holy water, ye may be
From all hot flames of lust and loose thoughts free.
Kneel, shepherd, kneel; here comes the priest of Pan.

Enter Priest.

Priest. Shepherds, thus I purge away
[Sprinkling them with water.]

Whatever this great day,
Or the past hours, gave not good,
To corrupt your maiden blood.
From the high rebellious heat
Of the grapes, and strength of meat,
From the wanton quick desires
They do kindle by their fires
I do wash you with this water;
Be you pure and fair hereafter!
From your livers and your veins
Thus I take away the stains;
All your thoughts be smooth and fair:
Be ye fresh and free as air!
Never more let lustful heat
Through your purged conduits¹ heat,
Or a pilgittieth broken
Or a wanton verse be spoken
In a shepherdess’s ear:
Go your ways, ye are all clear.

They rise and sing in praise of PAN.

The Song.

Sing his praises that doth keep
Our flocks from harm,
Pan, the father of our sheep;
And arm in arm
Thou and I softly in a round,
Whilst the hollow neighbouring ground
Fills the music with her sound.

Pan, O great god Pan, to thee
Thus do we sing!
Thou that keepst us chaste and free
As the young spring;
Ever be thy honour spoke,
From that place the Morn is broke
To that place Day doth unyoke!

Excunt omnes but PERIGOT and AMORET.

Peri. Stay, gentle Amoret, thou fair-brow’d maid;
Thy shepherd prays thee stay, that holds thee dear,
Equal with his soul’s good.

Amo. Speak; I give thee freedom, shepherd; and thy tongue be still.
The same it ever was, as free from ill
As he whose conversation never knew
The court or city; be thou ever true!

Peri. When I fall off from my affection,

Or mingle my clean thoughts with foul desires,
First, let our great god cease to keep my flocks,
That, being left alone without a guard,
The wolf, or winter’s rage, summer’s great heat
And want of water, rots, or what to us
Of ill is yet unknown, fall speedily,
And in their general ruin let me go!

Amo. I pray thee, gentle shepherd, wish not so:
I do believe thee; ’tis as hard for me
To think thee false, and harder, than for thee
To hold me foul.

Peri. Oh, you are fairer far
Than the chaste blushing morn, or that fair star
That guides the wand’ring seaman through the deep:
Straightener than the straightest pine upon the steep
Head of an aged mountain; and more white
Than the new milk we strip before day-light
From the full-freighted bags of our flocks;
Your hair more beauteous than those hanging looks
Of young Apollo!

Amo. Shepherd, be not lost;
Y’ art sail’d too far already from the coast
Of your discourse.

Peri. Did you not tell me once
I should not love alone. I should not lose
Those many passions, vows, and holy oaths,
I’ve sent to heaven? Did you not give your hand,
Even that fair hand, in hostage? Do not, then,
Give back again those sweets to other men,
You yourself vow’d were mine.

Amo. Shepherd, so far as maiden’s modesty
May give assurance, I am once more thine,
Once more I give my hand. Be ever free
From that great foe to faith, foul jealousy!

Peri. I take it as my best good; and desire,
For stronger confirmation of our love,
To meet this happy night in that fair grove,
Where all true shepherds have rewarded been
For their long service: say, sweet, shall it hold?

Amo. Dear friend, you must not blame me, if I make
A doubt of what the silent night may do,
Coupled with this day’s heat, to move your blood.

Maid’s must be fearful. Sure you have not been Wash’d white enough, for yet I see a stain
Stick in your liver:² go and purge again.

Peri. Oh, do not wrong my honest simple truth!

Myself and my affections are as pure
As those chaste flames that burn before the shrine
Of the great Dian: only my intent
To draw you thither was to pilot our troths
With interchange of mutual chaste embraces,
And ceremonious tying of our souls.
For to that holy wood is consecrate
A virtuous well, about whose flowery banks
The nimble-footed fairies dance their rounds
By the pale moonshine, dipping oftentimes

¹ Veins.

² Seat of the passions.
Their stolen children, so to make them free
From dying flesh and dull mortality.

By this fair fount hath many a shepherd sworn,
And given away his freedom, many a troth
Been plight, which neither envy nor old time
Could ever break, with many a chaste kiss
Given,

In hope of coming happiness; by this
Fresh fountain many a blushing maid
Hath crown’d the head of her long-loved shepherd
With gaudy flowers, whilst he happy sung
Lays of his love and dear captivity.

There grows all herbs fit to cool looser flames
Our sensual parts provoke, chiding our bloods,
And quenching by their power those hidden sparks
That else would break out, and provoke our sense
To open fires; so virtuous is that place.

Then, gentle shepherdess, believe, and grant.
In troth, it fits not with that face to scant.
Your faithful shepherd of those chaste desires
He ever aimed at, and —

Amo. Thou hast prevail’d: farewell. This coming night
Shall crown thy chaste hopes with long-wish’d delight.

Peri. Our great god Pan reward thee for that good Thou hast given thy poor shepherd! Fairest bud
Of maiden virtues, when I leave to be
The true admirer of thy chastity,
Let me deserve the hot polluted name
Of a wild woodman, or affect some dame
Whose often prostitution hath begot
More foul diseases than ever yet the hot
Sun bred thorough his burnings, whilst the Dog
Pursues the raging Lion, throwing fog
And deadly vapour from his angry breath,
Filling the lower world with plague and death!

Enter Amarillis, another Shepherdess that is in love with Perigot.

Amar. Shepherd, may I desire to be believ’d,
What shall I blushing tell? Peri.

Fair maid, you may,
Amar. Then, softly thus: I love thee, Perigot;
And would be gladder to be lov’d again
Than the cold earth is in his frozen arms
To clip 1 the wanton spring. Nay, do not start,
Nor wonder that I woo thee; thou that art
The prime of our young grooms, even the top
Of all our lusty shepherds. What dull eye,
That never was acquainted with desire,
Hath seen thee wrestle, run, or cast the stone
With nimble strength and fair delivery,
And hath not sparkled fire, and speedily
Sent secret heat to all the neighbouring veins?
Who ever heard thee sing, that brought again
That freedom back was lent unto thy voice?
Then, do not blame me, shepherd, if I be

One to be numb’red in this company,
Since none that ever saw thee yet were free.

Peri. Fair shepherdess, much pity I can lend
To your complaints; but sure I shall not love.
All that is mine, myself and my best hopes,
Are given already. Do not love him, then,
That cannot love again; on other men
Bestow those heats, more free, that may return
You fire for fire, and in one flame equal burn.

Amar. Shall I rewarded be so slenderly
For my affection, most unkind of men?
If I were old, or had agreed with art
To give another nature to my cheeks,
Or were I common mistress to the love
Of every swain, or could I with such ease
Call back my love as many a wanton doth,
Thou mightst refuse me, shepherd; but to thee
I am only fix’d and set; let it not be
A sport, thou gentle shepherd, to abuse
The love of silly 2 maid.

Peri. Fair soul, ye use
These words to little end: for, know, I may Better call back that time was yesterday,
Or stay the coming night, than bring my love
Home to myself again, or recreant prove.
I will no longer hold you with delays:
This present night I have appointed been
To meet that chaste fair that enjoys my soul,
In yonder grove, there to make up our loves.
Be not deceiv’d no longer, choose again:
These neighbouring plains have many a comely swain,
Fresher and fresher 3 far than I e’er was;
Bestow that love on them, and let me pass.
Farewell: be happy in a better choice! Exit.

Amar. Cruel, thou hast struck me deader
With thy voice
Than if the angry heavens with their quick flames
Had shot me through. I must not leave to love,
I cannot; no, I must enjoy thee, boy.
Though the great dangers ‘twixt my hopes and that
Be infinite. There is a shepherd dwells
Down by the moor, whose life hath ever shown
More sullen discontent than Saturn’s brow
When he sits frowning on the births of men;
One that doth wear himself away in loneness,
And never joys, unless it be in breaking
The holy plighted troths of mutual souls;
One that lusts after every several beauty,
But never yet was known to love or like,
Were the face fairer or more full of truth
Than Phoebe in her fulness, or the youth
Of smooth Lyaeus; whose high-starved flocks
Are always scabby, and infect all sheep
They feed withal; whose lambs are ever last,
And die before their weaning; and whose dog
Looks, like his master, lean and full of sour,
Not caring for the pipe or whistle. This man may,
If he be well wrought, do a deed of wonder.
Forcing me passage to my long desires:
And here he comes, as fitly to my purpose
As my quick thoughts could wish for.

1 Embrace. 2 Weak. 3 More gracious.
Enter Sullen Shepherd.

Sull. Shep. Fresh beauty, let me not be thought uncivil,
Thus to be partner of your loneliness; 't was my love (that ever-working passion) drew
Me to this place, to seek some remedy
For my sick soul. Be not unkind and fair,
For such the mighty Cupid in his doom
Hath sworn to be aveng'd on; then, give room
To my consuming fires, that so I may enjoy my long desires, and so alay
Those flames that else would burn my life away.

Amar. Shepherd, were I but sure thy heart was sound
As thy words seem to be, means might be found
To cure thee of thy long pains; for to me
That heavy youth-consuming misery
The love-sick soul endures never was pleasing.
I could be well content with the quick easing
Of thee and thy hot fires, might it procure Thy faith and farther service to be sure.

Sull. Shep. Name but that work, danger, or what can Be compass'd by the wit or art of man;
And, if I fail in my performance, may I never more kneel to the rising day!

Amar. Then, thus I try thee, shepherd. This same night
That now comes stealing on, a gentle pair
Have promis'd equal love, and do appoint
To make you wood the place where hands and hearts
Are to be tied for ever. Break their meeting
And their strong faith, and I am ever thine.

Sull. Shep. Tell me their names, and if I do not move
By my great power, the centre of their love
From his first being, let me never more Warm me by those fair eyes I thus adore.

Amar. Come; as we go, I'll tell thee what they are,
And give thee fit directions for thy work. Exeunt.

[Scene III.]

Enter Cloe.

Cloe. How have I wrong'd the times or men, that thus,
After this holy feast, I pass unknown
And unsaluted? 'T was not won't to be thus frozen with the younger company
Of jolly shepherds; 't was not then held good
For lusty grumes to mix their quicker blood
With that dull humour, most unfit to be
The friend of man, cold and dull chastity.
Sure I am held not fair, or am too old,
Or else not free enough, or from my fold
Drive not a flock sufficient great to gain
The greedy eyes of wealth-alluring swain.
Yet, if I may believe what others say,
My face has foil enough; nor can they lay
Justly too strict a coyness to my charge;

My flocks are many, and the downs as large
They feed upon. Then, let it ever be
Their coldness, not my virgin-modesty
Makes me complain.

Enter Thenot.

The. Was ever man but I
Thus truly taken with uncertainty,
Where shall that man be found that loves a mind
Made up in constancy, and dares not find
His love rewarded? Here, let all men know,
A wretch that lives to love his mistress so.
Cloe. Shepherd, I pray thee stay. Where hast thou been?

Or whither go'st thou? Here he woods as green
As any; air [likewise] as fresh and sweet
As where smooth Zephyrus plays on the fleet
Face of the curd streams; with flowers as many
As the young spring gives, and as choice as any;
Here be all new delights, cool streams and wells,
Arbours o'ergrown with woodbines, eaves, and dells;
Choose where thou wilt, whilst I sit by and sing,
Or gather rushes, to make many a ring
For thy long fingers; tell thee tales of love,—
How the pale Phoebus, hunting in a grove,
First saw the boy Endymion, from whose eyes
She took eternal fire that never dies;
How she convey'd him softly in a sleep,
His temples bound with poppy, to the steep Head of old Latmus, where she stoops each night,
Gilding the mountain with her brother's light,
To kiss her sweetest.

The. Far from me are these
Hot flashes, bred from wanton heat and ease;
I have forgot what love and loving meant;
Rhymes, songs, and merry rounds, that oft are sent
To that dear ear of maid, are strange to me:
Only I live 't admires a chastity,
That neither pleasing age, smooth tongue, nor gold.
Could ever break upon, so sure a mould
Is that her mind was cast in; 'tis to her I only am resolv'd; she is my form I stir
By, breathe and move; 'tis she, and only she,
Can make me happy, or give misery.

Cloe. Good shepherd, may a stranger crave to know
To whom this dear observance you do owe?
The. You may, and by her virtue learn to square
And level out your life; for to be fair,
And nothing virtuous, only fits the eye
Of gaudy youth and swelling vanities.
Then, know, she's call'd the Virgin of the Grove,
She that hath long since buri'd her chaste love,
And now lives by his grave, for whose dear soul

1 Another part of the wood. 2 Beauty. 3 Qt. 4 omit. 5 Faire. 6 Worship.
She bath vow'd herself into the holy roll
Of strict virginity: 'tis her I so admire.
Not any looser blood or new desire. [Exit.]
Cloe. Farewell, poor swain! thou art not for my bend: I must have quicker souls, whose words may tend To some free action. Give me him dare love
At first encounter, and as soon dare prove! 70

The Song.
[Aside.] Here comes another. Better be my speed,
Thou god of blood! But certain, if I read
Not false, this is that modest shepherd, he
That only dare salute, but ne'er could be Brought to kiss any, hold discourse, or sing,
Whisper, or boldly ask that wished thing
We all are born for; one that makes loving faces,
And could be well content to covet graces,
Were they not got by boldness. In this thing
My hopes are frozen; and, but fate doth bring Him hither, I would sooner choose
A man made out of snow, and freer use
An emmich to my ends; but since he's here, Thus I attempt him. — Thou, of men most
dear,
Welcome to her that only for thy sake
Hath been content to live! Here, boldly take
My hand in pledge, this hand, that never yet
Was given away to any; and but sit Down on this rushy bank, whilst I go pull
Fresh blossoms from the boughs, or quickly cull
The choicest delicacies from yonder mead,
To make thee chains or chaplets, or to spread
Under our fainting bodies, when delight
Shall look up all our senses. How the sight
Of those smooth rising cheeks renew the story
Of young Adonis, when in pride and glory
He lay infolded 'twixt the beating arms
Of willing Venus! Methinks stronger arms 116
Dwell in those speaking eyes, and on that brow
More sweetness than the painters can allow
To their best pieces. Not Narcissus, he
That wept himself away in memory.
Of his own beauty, nor Silvanus' boy, 2

Not the twice-ravish'd maid, for whom old Troy
Fell by the hand of Pyrrhus, may to thee
Be otherwise compar'd, than some dead tree
To a young fruitful olive.

Daph. I can love,
But I am loth to say so, lest I prove Too soon unhappy.

Cloe. Happy, thou wouldst say.
My dearest Daphnis, blush not; if the day
To thee and thy soft heats be enemy,
Then take the coming night; fair youth, 'tis
free
To all the world. Shepherd, I'll meet thee then 120
When darkness hath shut up the eyes of men.
In yonder grove. Speak, shall our meeting hold?
Indeed you are too bashful; be more bold,
And tell me ay.

Daph. I am content to say so,
And would be glad to meet, might I but pray Much from your fairness, that you would be true.
Cloe. Shepherd, thou hast thy wish.

Daph. Fresh maid, adieu.
Yet one word more: since you have drawn me
on
To come this night, fear not to meet alone
That man that will not offer to be ill,
Though your bright self would ask it, for his fill
Of this world's goodness; do not fear him, then,
But keep your pointed time. Let other men
Set up their bloods to sale, mine shall be ever Fair as the soul it carries, and unchaste never.

Exit.

Cloe. Yet am I poorer than I was before.
Is it not strange, among so many a score
Of lusty bloods, I should pick out these things
Whose veins, like a dull river far from springs,
Is still the same, slow, heavy, and unfit
For stream or motion, though the strong winds hit
With their continual power upon his sides?
Oh, happy be your names that have been brides,
And tasted these rare sweets for which I pine!
And far more heavy be thy grief and time, 3
Thou lazy swain, that mayst relieve my needs,
Than his, upon whose liver always feeds
A hungry vulture!

Enter Alexis.

Alex. Can such beauty be Safe in his own guard, and not draw the eye
Of him that passeth on, to greedy gaze
Or covetous desire, whilst in a maze
The better part contemplates, giving rein,
And wished freedom to the labouring vein?
Fairest and whitest, may I crave to know
The cause of your retirement, why you go Thus all alone? Methinks the downs are sweeter,
And the young company of swains more meeter,
Than these forsaken and untrodden places.
Give not yourself to loneliness, and those graces

1 Aim, purpose.
2 Cyparissus, metamorphosed into a cypress.
3 Sorrow. * Its.
Hide from the eyes of men, that were intended
To live amongst us swains.

Cloe. Thou art befriended. 171
Shepherd: in all my life I have not seen
A man in whom greater contents hath been,
Than thou thyself art. I could tell thee more,
Were there but any hope left to restore 172
My freedom lost. Oh, lend me all thy red,
Thou shame-fast Morning, when from Tithon’s 1 bed
Thou risest ever-maiden!

Alex. If for me.
Thou sweetest of all sweets, these flashes be,
Speak, and be satisf’d. Oh, guide her tongue,
My better angel; force my name among 181
Her modest thoughts, that the first word may be

Cloe. Alexis, when the sun shall kiss the sea,
Taking his rest by the white Thetis’ side,
Meet me in the holy wood, where I’ll abide 185
Thy coming, shepherd.

Alex. If I stay behind,
An everlasting dulness, and the wind,
That as he passeth by shews up the stream
Of Rhine or Volga, whilst the sun’s hot beam
Beats back again, seize me, and let me turn 190
To coldness more than ice! Oh, how I burn
And rise in youth and fire! I dare not stay.

Cloe. My name shall be your word.

Alex. Fly, fly, thou day! Exit.

Cloe. My grief is great, if both these boys should fail:

He that will use all winds must shift his sail.

Exit.

ACT II

SCENE I. 2

Enter Old Shepherd with a bell ringing, and the Priest following.

Priest. Shepherds all, and maidens fair,
Fold your flocks up, for the air
‘Gins to thicken, and the sun
Already his great course hath run.
See the dew-drops how they kiss
Every little flower that is;
Hanging on their velvet heads,
Like a rope of crystal beads;
See the heavy clouds down 4 falling,
And bright Hesperus loud 5 calling
The dead Night from under ground;
At whose rising mists unsound,
Damps and vapours fly apiece,
Hovering o’er the wanton face
Of these pastures, where they come,
Striking dead both bud and bloom.
Therefore, from such danger lock
Every one his loved flock;
And let your dogs lie loose without,
Lest the wolf come as a scout
From the mountain, and, ere day,
Bear a lamb or kid away;

1 Tithon’s. F. reads Tithor. 2 A pasture.
3 Dyce amend. Q. 1-4 transpose down and loud, F.
4 low falling... down calling.
5 Unwholesome.

Or the crafty thievish fox
Break upon your simple flocks.
To secure yourselves from these,
Be not too secure in ease.
Let one eye his watches keep,
Whilst the ’t other eye doth sleep;
So you shall good shepherds prove,
And for ever hold the love
Of our great god. Sweetest slumbers,
And soft silence, fall in numbers
On your eyelids! So, farewell:
Thus I end my evening’s knell.

[Scene II.] 3

Enter Cloxin, the Shepherdess, sorting of herbs, and telling the natures of them.

Cloe. Now let me know what my best art hath done,
Helpd by the great power of the virtuous moon
In her full light. Oh, you sons of earth,
You only brood, unto whose [happy] 6 birth
Virtue was given, holding more of nature
Than man, her first-born and most perfect creature,
Let me adore you! you, that only can Help or kill nature, drawing out that span
Of life and breath even to the end of time;
You, that these hands did [crop] long before prime
Of day, give me your names, and, next, your hidden power.
This is the clole, [8 bearing a yellow flower;
And this, black horehound; both are very good
For sheep or shepherd bitten by a wood
Dog’s venom’d teeth; these rhamnus 10 branches are,
Which, stuck in entries, or about the bar
That holds the door, kill all enchantments, charms
(Were they Medea’s verses), that do harms
To men or cattle; these for frezeny be
A speedy and a sovereign remedy,
The bitter wormwood, sage, and marigold;
Such sympathy with man’s good they do hold:
This tormentil, 11 whose virtue is to part
All deadly killing poison from the heart;
And, here, narcisus root, for swellings best;
Yellow lysimachus, 12 to give sweet rest
To the faint shepherd, killing, where it comes,
All busy gnats, and every fly that hums:
For leprosy, danel and celandine,
With calamin, whose virtues do refine
The blood of man, making it free and fair
As the first hour it breath’d, or the best air:
Here, other two; but your rebellious use
Is not for me, whose goodness is abuse;
Therefore, foul standergrass, 13 from me and
mine
I banish thee, with lustful turpentine
You that entice the veins and stir the heat
To civil mutiny, scaling the seat
Our reason moves in, and deluding it

5 The wood before Cloxin’s bower.
6 Q, high 7 Mad. 8 F.
9 Q, low. 10 Backthorn. 11 Orchis mascula.
12 Water-lily. 13 Saffron.
With dreams and wanton fancies till the fit
Of burning lust be quenched, by appetite.
Robbing the soul of blessedness and light,
And thou, light vervain, too, thou must go after,
Provoking easy souls to mirth and laughter;
No more shall I dip thee in water now;
And sprinkle every post and every bough
With thy well-pleasing juice, to make the grooms
Swell with high mirth, and with joy all the rooms.

Enter THENOT.

_The._ This is the cabin where the best of all
Her sex that ever breath’d, or ever shall.
Give heat or happiness to the shepherd’s side,
Doth only to her worthy self abide.
Thou blessed star, I thank thee for thy light,
Thou by whose power the darkness of sad night
Is banish’d from the earth, in whose dull place
Thy brother bears play on the heavy face
Of all the world, make the blue sea smile,
To see how cunningly thou dost beguile
Thy brother of his brightness, giving day
Again from chaos; whiter than that way
That leads to Jove’s high court, and chaster far
Than chastity itself, you blessed star
That brightly shines! thou, all the constancy
That in all women was or e’er shall be;
From whose fair eye-balls flies that holy fire
That styled is the mother of desire,
Infusing into every gentle breast
A soul of greater price, and far more blest,
Than that quick power which gives a difference
’Twixt man and creatures of a lower sense!

_Clo._ Shepherd, how kam’st thou hither to this place?

_No way is trodden; all the verdant grass
The spring shot up stands yet unbruised here
Of any foot; only the dappled deer,
Far from the feared sound of crooked horn,
Dwells in this fastness._

_The._ Chastier than the morn,
I have not wand’red, or by strong illusion
Into this virtuous place have made intrusion:
But hither am I come (believe me, fair),
To seek you out, of whose great good the air
Is full, and strongly labours, whilst the sound
Breaks against heaven, and drives into a stound

Th’ amazed shepherd, that such virtue can
Be resident in lesser than a man.

_Clo._ If any art I have, or hidden skill,
May cure thee of disease or fest’red ill
Whose grief or greenness to another’s eye
May seem unpossible of remedy,
I dare yet undertake it.

_The._ ’Tis no pain
I suffer through disease, no beating vein
Conveys infestation dangerous to the heart,
No part imposthm’d, to be cur’d by art,
This body holds; and yet a feller grief
Than ever skillful hand did give relief,

_Dwells on my soul, and may be heal’d by you,
Fair, beauteous virgin._

_Clo._ Then, shepherd, let me sue
To know thy grief: that man yet never knew
The way to health that durst not show his sore.

_The._ Then, fairest, know, I love you.

_Clo._ Swain, no more!
Thou hast abus’d the strictness of this place,
And off’red sacrilegious foul disgrace
To the sweet rest of these interred bones;
For fear of whose ascending, fly at once.
Thou and thy idle passions, that the sight
Of death and speedy vengeance may not fright
Thy very soul with horror.

_The._ Let me not,
Thou all perfection, merit such a blot
For my true zealous faith.

_Clo._ Darst thou abide
To see this holy earth at once divide,
And give her body up? for sure it will.
If thou pursu’dst with wanton flame to fill
This hallowed place: therefore repent and go.
Whilst I with prayers appease his ghost below;
That else would tell thee what it were to be
A rival in that virtuous love that he.

_The._ Embraces yet.

_The._ ’Tis not the white or red
Inhabit’s in your cheeks that thus can wed
My mind to adoration: nor your eye,
Though it be full and fair, your forehead high
And smooth as Pelops’ shoulder; not the smile
Lies watching in those dimples to beguile
The easy soul; your hands and fingers long,
With veins enamell’d richly; nor your tongue,
Though it spoke sweeter than Arion’s harp;
Your hair woven into many a curious warp,
Able in endless error to entwine
The [wand’ring] soul; not the true perfect mould
Of all your body, which as pure doth show
In maiden-whiteness as the Alpine snow:
All these, were but your constancy away.
Would please me less than a black stormy day
The wretched seaman toiling through the deep.
But, whilst this honour’d strictness you do keep,
Though all the plagues that e’er begotten were
In the great womb of air were settled here,
In opposition, I would, like the tree,
Shake off those drops of weakness, and be free
Even in the arm of danger.

_Clo._ Wouldst thou have Me raise again, fond man, from silent grave
Those sparks, that long ago were buried here
With my dead friend’s cold ashes?

_The._ Dearest dear,
I dare not ask it, nor you must not grant:
Stand strongly to your vow, and do not faint.
Remember how he lov’d you, and be still
The same opinion speaks you: let not will,
And that great god of women, appetite,
Set up your blood again; do not invite Desire and fancy from their long exile.
To see them once more in a pleasing smile:
Be, like a rock, made firmly up ’gainst all

Q: forces.
2 Amazement.
The power of angry heaven, or the strong fall
Of Neptune's battery. If you yield, I die
To all affection; 'tis that loyalty
You tie unto this grave I so admire:
And yet there's something else I would desire,
If you would hear me, but withal deny. 166
Oh, Pan, what an uncertain destiny
Hangs over all my hopes! I will retire;
For, if I longer stay, this double fire
Will lick my life up.

Clo.  Do; and let time wear out 166
What art and nature cannot bring about.
The Farewell, thou soul of virtue, and be blest
For ever, whilst [that here] 1 I wretched rest
Thus to myself! Yet grant me leave to dwell
In kenning 2 of this arbour: you same dell, 166
O'ertop'd with mourning cypress and sad yew,
Shall be my cabin, where I'll early rue,
Before the sun hath kist this dew away,
The hard uncertain chance which faith doth lay
Upon his head.

Clo.  The gods give quick release 170
And happy cure unto thy hard disease!

[Scene III.] 8

Enter Sullen Shepherd.

Sull.  Shep.  I do not love this wench that I should meet;
For ne'er did my unconstant eye yet greet
That beauty, were it sweeter or more fair
Than the new blossoms when the morning-air
Blows gently on them, or the breaking light,
When many maiden-blushes to our sight
Shoot from his early face: were all these set
In some neat form before me, 'twould not get
The least love from me; some desire it might,
And present burning. All to me in sight
Are equal; be they fair, or black, or brown,
Virgin, or careless wanton, I can crown
My appetite with any; swear as oft,
And weep, as any; melt my words as soft
Into a maiden's ears, and tell how long
My heart has been her servant, and how strong
My passions are; call her unkind and cruel;
Offer her all I have to gain the jewel
Maidsen so highly [prise]; 4 then loathe, and fly:
This do I hold a blessed destiny.

Enter Amarillis.

Amar.  Hail, shepherd! Pan bless both thy flock and thee.
For being mindful of thy word to me!

Sull.  Shep.  Welcome, fair shepherdess! Thy loving swain
Gives thee the self-same wishes back again;
Who till this present hour ne'er knew that eye
Could make me cross mine arms, or daily die
With fresh consumings. Boldly tell me, then,
How shall we part their faithful loves, and when?

Shall I believe to her? Shall I swear
His faith is false and he loves every where? 30

1 Q-2 Q, omit.  3 Another part of the wood.
2 See.
4 Q-2 Q, praise.
Who must pronounce this charm too, which she gave Showing a scroll.
Me on her death-bed; told me what, and how,
I should apply unto the patients’ brow
That would be chang’d, casting them thrice asleep,
Before I trusted them into this deep.
All this she show’d me, and did charge me to prove
This secret of her art, if crost in love.
I’ll this attempt now, shepherd; I have here all her prescriptions, and I will not fear
To be myself div’d. Come, my temples bind
With these sad herbs, and when I sleep you find,
As you do speak your charm, thrice down me let,
And bid the water raise me Amoret;
Which being done, leave me to my affair,
And ere the day shall quite itself outlaw, I will return unto my shepherd’s arm;
Dip me again, and then repeat this charm,
And pluck me up myself, whom freely take,
And the hot’st fire of thine affection slake.
Sull. Shep. And if I fit thee not, then fit not me.
I long the truth of this well’s power to see.

Enter Alexis.

This is some shepherd. Sure, I am awake:
What may this riddle mean? I will retire,
To give myself more knowledge. [Retires.

Alexis. Oh, my fire,
How thou consumst me! — Cloe, answer me!
Alexis, strong Alexis, high and free,
Calls upon Cloe. See, mine arms are full
Of entertainment, ready for to pull
That golden fruit which too, too long hath hung Tempting the greedy eye. Thou stayst too long;
I am impatient of those mad delays:
I must not leave unsought those many ways
That lead into this centre, till I find Quench for my burning lust. I come, unkind!

Daph. [coming forward.] Can my imagination work me so much ill?
That I may credit this for truth, and still Believe mine eyes? Or shall I firmly hold
Her yet untainted, and these sights but bold Illusion? Sure, such fancies oft have been Sent to abuse true love, and yet are seen
Daring to blind the virtuous thought with error;
But be they far from me with their fond terror!
I am resolved my Cloe yet is true.

Cloe! Hark! Cloe! Sure, this voice is new,
Whose shrillness, like the sounding of a bell,
Tells me it is a woman. — Cloe, tell
Thy blessed name again.

Cloe. Here!
Daph. Oh, what a grief is this, to be so near,
And not encounter!

Enter Cloe.

Cloe. Shepherd, we are met:
Draw close into the covert, lest the wet,
Which falls like lazy mist upon the ground,
Soak through your startups.

Daph. Fairer, are you found?
How have we wand’red, that the better part
Of this good night is perish’d? Oh, my heart!
How have I long’d to meet you, how to kiss
These lily hands, how to receive the bliss
That charming tongue gives to the happy ear
Of him that drinks your language! But I fear
I am too much unmanner’d, far too rude,
And almost grown lascivious, to intrude
These hot behaviours; where regard of fame,
Honour and modesty, a virtuous name,
And such discourse as one fair sister may
Without offence unto the brother say,
Should, rather have been tend’red. But, believe,
Here dwells a better temper: do not grieve,
Then, ever-kindest, that my first salute
Seasons so much of fancy; I am mute
Henceforth to all discourses but shall be Suiting to your sweet thoughts and modesty.
Indeed, I will not ask a kiss of you,
No, not to wring your fingers, nor to sue
To those best pairs of fixed stars for smiles; 75
All a young lover's cunning, all his wiles,
And pretty wanton dyings shall to me
Be strangers; only to your chastity
I am devoted ever.
Cloe. Honest swain,
First let me thank you, then return again 80
As much of my love. — [Aside.] No, thou art too cold,
Unhappy boy, not temp't to my mould;
Thy blood falls heavy downward. 'T is not fear
To offend in boldness wise; they never wear Deserved favours that deny to take
When they are offered freely. Do I wake,
To see a man of his youth, years, and feature,
And such a one as we call goodly creature,
Thus backward? What a world of precious art
Were merely lost, to make him do his part! 90
But I will shake him off, that dares not hold:
Let men that hope to be belov'd be bold.
Daphnis, I do desire, since we are met
So happily, our lives and fortunes set
Upon one stake, to give assurance now,
By interchange of hands and holy vow,
Never to break again. Walk you that way,
Whilest I in zealous meditation stray
A little this way. When we both have ended
These rites and duties, by the woods befriended
And secrecy of night, retire and find
An aged oak, whose lowliness may bind
Us both within his body; thither go;
It stands within you bottom.
Daph.
Cloe. And I will meet thee there never more with thine,
Thou idle shamefastness! Cloe. [within.] Alexis! 106
Cloe. That dare, I hope, be bolder.
Alexis. [within.] Cloe!
Cloe. Great Pan, for Syrinx' sake, bid speed our plough!

ACT III

SCENE I. 1

Enter Sullen Shepherd, with Amarillis in a sleep.

Sull. Shep. From thy forehead thus I take These herbs, and charge thee not awake
Till in yonder holy well
Thrice, with powerful magic spell
Fill'd with many a baleful word
Thou hast been dyed. Thus, with my cord
Of blasted hemp, by moonlight twin'd
I do thy sleepy body bind.

I turn thy head unto the east,
And thy feet unto the west,
Thy left extremity to the south put forth,
And thy right unto the north.
I take thy body from the ground,
In this deep and deadly swound,
And into this holy spring
I let thee slide down by my string.—

[Lets her down into the well.]

Take this maid, thou holy pit,
To thy bottom; nearer yet;
In thy water pure and sweet,
By thy leave I dip her feet;
Thus I let her lower yet,
That her ankles may be wet;
Yet down lower, let her knees
In thy waters washed be;
There stop. — Fly away,
Every thing that loves the day!
Truth, that hath but one face,
Thus I charm thee from this place.
Snakes that cast your coats for new,
Chameleons that alter hue,
Hares that yearly sexes change,
Protens all'ring o'ft and strange,
Hecate with shapes three.
Let this maiden changed be,
With this holy water wet,
To the shape of Amoret!
Cynthia, work thou with my charm! —
Thus I draw thee, free from harm,

[Draws her out of the well, in the shape of AMORET.]

Up out of this blessed lake.
Rise both like her and awake! She awaketh. 40

Amar. Speak, shepherd, am I Amoret to sight?
Or hast thou mist in any magic rite,
For want of which any defect in me
May make our practices discovered be?

Sull. Shep. By yonder moon, but that I here do stand,
Whose breath hath thus transform'd thee, and whose hand
Let thee down dry, and pluckst thee up thus wet,
I should myself take thee for Amoret!
Thou art in clothes, in feature, voice and hue,
So like, that sense cannot distinguish you. 50

Amar. Then, this deceit, which cannot crossed be,
At once shall lose her him, and gain thee me.
Hither she needs must come, by promise made;
And, sure, his nature never was so bad,
To bid a virgin meet him in the wood,
When night and fear are up, but understood
'T was his part to come first. Being come, I'll say,
My constant love made me come first and stay;
Then will I lead him further to the grove;
But stay you here, and, if his own true love
Shall seek him here, set her in some wrong path,
Which say her lover lately trodden hath;
I'll not be far from hence. If need there be,
Here is another charm, whose power will free
The dazzled sense, read by the moonbeams clear,
And in my own true shape make me appear.

Enter PERIGOT.
Sull. Shep. Stand close; here ’s Perigot, whose constant heart.
Longs to behold her in whose shape thou art.
[Retires with Amarillis.]
Peri. This is the place.—Fair Amoret!—The hour
Is yet scarce come. Here every sylvan power
Delights to be, about you sacred well,
Which they have best with many a powerful spell;
For never traveller in dead of night,
Nor stray’d beasts have fallen in; but when the sight
Hath fail’d them, then their right way they have found
By help of them, so holy is the ground.
But I will farther seek, lest Amoret
Should be first come, and so stray long unmet.

My Amoret, Amoret!—Exit. [Amar. coming forward. Perigot !]
Peri. [within.] My love! Amor.
Sull. Shep. Now she hath got Her own desires, and I shall gainer be
Of my long lookt-for hopes, as well as she.
How bright the moon shines here, as if she strove
To show her glory in this little grove

Enter AMORET.
To some new-loved shepherd! Yonder is Another Amoret. Where differs this
From that? But that she Perigot hath met,
I should have ta’en this for the counterfeit.
Herbs, woods, and springs, the power that in you lies,
If mortal men could know your properties! 2
Amp. Methinks it is not night; I have no fear,
Walking this wood, of lion or of bear.
Whose names at other times have made me quake,
When any shepherdess in her tale spake
Of some of them, that underneath a wood
Have torn true lovers that together stood;
Methinks there are no goblins, and men’s talk,
That in these woods the nimble fairies walk,
Are fables: such a strong heart I have got Because I come to meet with Perigot.—
My Perigot! Who ’s that ? my Perigot?
Sull. Shep. (coming forward.) Fair maid!
Amo. Aye me, thou art not Perigot?
Sull. Shep. But I can tell you news of Perigot.
An hour together under yonder tree
He sat with wreathed arms, and call’d on thee
And said, “Why, Amoret, stay’st thou so long?”

Then starting up, down yonder path he flung,
Lest thou hadst miss’d thy way. Were it day-light,
He could not yet have borne him out of sight.
Amo. Thanks, gentle shepherd; and beshrew
my stay,
That made me fearful I had lost my way.
As fast as my weak legs (that cannot be Weary with seeking him) will carry me,
I’ll follow; and, for this thy care of me, I Pray Pan thy love may ever follow thee! Exit.
Sull. Shep. How bright she was, how lovely did she show!
Was it not pity to deceive her so?
She pluckt her garments up, and tript away,
And with a virgin-innocence did pray
For me that perjur’d her. Whilst she was here,
Methought the beams of light that did appear
Were shot from her; methought the moon gave
But what it had from her. She was alone
With me; if then her presence did so move,
Why did I not assay to win her love?
[Would she?] 3 not sure have yielded unto me?
Women love only opportunity,
And not the man; or if she had dem’d,
Alone, I might have forc’d her to have trat’d
Who had been stronger. Oh, vain fool, to let Such best occasion pass! I’ll follow yet;
My blood is up; I cannot now forbear.

Enter ALEXIS and CLOE.
I come, sweet Amoret!—Soft, who is here?
A pair of lovers? He shall yield her me:
Now lust is up, alike all women be. [Retires.]
Alexis. Where shall we rest? But for the love of me, Cloe, I know, ere this would weary be.
Cloe. Alexis, let us rest here, if the place
Be private, and out of the common trace
Of every shepherd; for, I understood,
This night a number are about the wood:
Then, let us choose some place, where, out of sight,
We freely may enjoy our stol’n delight.
Alexis. Then, boldly here, where we shall never be found.
No shepherd’s way lies here, ’tis hallow’d ground;
No maid seeks here her strayed cow or sheep;
Fairies and fawns and satyrs do it keep.
Then, carelessly rest here, and clip and kiss,
And let no fear make us our pleasures miss.
Cloe. Alexis, then, lie by me: the sooner we begin,
The longer ere the day desery our sin.
[They lie down.]
Sull. Shep. [coming forward.] Forbear to touch my love; or, by thy name,
The greatest power that shepherds dare to name,
Here where thou sit’st, under this holy tree,
Her to dishonour, thou shalt bury be!—
Alexis. If Pan himself should come out of the lawns,
With all his troops of satyrs and of fawns,

1 Early ed. Ez. Amaryllis, Perigot.
2 For, 'I'll seek him out; and for thy Courtesie.
3 Ed. conj. Early ed. She would.
And bid me leave, I swear by her two eyes
(A greater oath than thine), I would not rise!
_Sull. Shep._ Then, from the cold earth never thou shalt move,
But lose at one stroke both thy life and love. 169

_Cloe._ Hold, gentle shepherd!
_Sull. Shep._ Come you with me; I do not love you less Than that fond man, that would have kept you there
From me of more desert.
_Alexis._ Oh, yet forbear 165
To take her from me! Give me leave to die
By her!

_Enter Satyr; Sullen Shepherd runs one way, and Cloe another._
_Sat._ Now, whilst the moon doth rule the sky,
And the stars, whose feeble light
Gives a pale shadow to the night,
Are ye not here?—and, Cloe, if so,
To walk this grove about, whilst he,
In a corner of the wood,
Where never mortal foot hath stood,
Keeps dancing, music, and a feast,
To entertain a lovely guest;
Where he gives her many a rose,
Sweeter than the breath that blows
The leaves; grapes, berries of the best;
I never saw so great a feast.
But, to my charge, Here must I stay,
To see what mortals lose their way,
And by a false fire, seeming bright,
Train them in and leave them right,
Then must I watch if any be Forcing of a chastity;
If I find it, then in haste
Give my wreathed horn a blast,
And the fairies all will run,
Wildly dancing by the moon.
And will pinch him to the bone,
Till his insist thoughts be gone.
_Alexis._ Oh, death!
_Sat._ Back again about this ground;
Sure, I bear a mortal sound,—
I bind thee by this powerful spell.
By the waters of this well,
By the glimmering moonbeams bright,
Speak again, thou mortal wight!
_Alexis._ Oh!
_Sat._ Here the foolish mortal lies,
Sleeping on the ground. — _Arisé!—
The poor wight is almost dead;
On the ground his wounds have bled,
And his clothes foul’d with his blood:
To my goddess in the wood
Will I lead him, whose hands pure
Will help this mortal wight to cure.
[Exit carrying _Alexis._]

_Re-enter Cloe._
_Cloe._ Since I beheld yon shaggy man, my breast
Doth pant; each bush, methinks, should hide a beast.
Yet my desire keeps still above my fear: 210

I would fain meet some shepherd, knew I
where;
For from one cause of fear I am most free,
It is impossible to ravish me,
I am so willing. Here upon this ground
I left my love, all bloody with his wound; 215
Yet, till that fearful shape made me begone,
Though he were hurt, I furnished was of one;
But now both lost. — _Alexis, speak or move,
If thou hast any life; thou art yet my love! —
He’s dead, or else is with this little might Crept from the bank for fear of that ill sprite. —
Then, where art thou that struck’st my love?
Oh, stay!
Bring me thyself in change, and then I’ll say
Thou hast some justice. I will make thee trim
With flowers and garlands that were meant for
him; 225
I’ll clip thee round with both mine arms, as fast
As I did mean he should have embraced.
But thou art fled. — What hope is left for me?
I’ll run to Daphnis in the hollow tree, Whom I did mean to mock; though hope be small
To make him bold, rather than none at all,
I’ll try him; his heart, and my behaviour too.
Perhaps may teach him what he ought to do.
_Edit._

_Re-enter Sullen Shepherd._
_Sull. Shep._ This was the place. ’Twas but my feeble sight,
Mixt with the horror of my deed, and night,
That shapt these fears, and made me run away,
And lose my beauteous hardly-gotten prey.
— Speak, gentle shepherdess! I am alone,
And tender love for love. — But she is gone
From me, that, having struck her lover dead,
For silly fear left her alone and fled.
And see, the wounded body is remov’d
By her of whom it was so well belov’d.

_Enter Perigot, and Amarillis in the shape of Amoret._
But all these fancies must be quite forgot.
I must lie close; here comes young Perigot,
With subtle Amarillis in the shape
Of Amoret. Pray, love, he may not scape!
[Retires._

_Amar._ Beloved Perigot, show me some place,
Where I may rest my limbs weak with the chase
Of thee, an hour before thou cam’st at least.

_Pert._ Beechrow my tardy steps! Here shalt thou rest
Upon this holy bank: no deadly snake
Upon this turf herself in folds doth make;
Here is no poison for the toad to feed;
Here boldly spread thy hands; no venom’d weed
Darës blister them; no slimy snail dare creep
Over thy face when thou art fast asleep;
Here never durst the babbling cuckoo spit;
No slough of falling star did ever hit 1 The popular explanation of the foam secreted by the cicada.
Upon this bank: let this thy cabin be; 260
This other, set with violets, for me.

[They lie down.]

Amar. Thou dost not love me, Perigot.
Peri. Fair maid,
You only love to hear it often said;
You do not doubt,

Amar. Believe me, but I do.
Peri. What, shall we now begin again to woo?
'Tis the best way to make your lover last,
Toplay with him when you have caught him fast.

Amar. By Pan I swear, beloved Perigot,
And by your moon, I think thou lov'st me not.
Peri. By Pan I swear, and, if I falsely swear,
Let him not guard my flocks; let foxes tear
My earliest lambs, and wolves, whilst I do sleep.
Fall on the rest; a roat among my sheep,—
I love thee better than the careful ewe 274
The new-yea'n'd lamb that is of her own hue:
I dote upon thee more than that young lamb
That on the bag that feeds him from his dam!
Were there a sort 4 of wolves got in my fold,
And one ran after thee, both young and old
Should be devour'd, and it should be my strife
To save thee, whom I love above my life. 281

Amar. How should I trust thee, when I see thee the choose Another bed, and dost my side refuse?
Peri. 'Twas only that the chaste thoughts might be shown
'Twixt thee and me, although we were alone.

Amar. Come, Perigot will show his power, that he
Can make his Amoret, though she weary be,
Rise nimbly from her couch, and come to his.
Here, take thy Amoret; embrace and kiss.
[Lies down beside him.]

Peri. What means my love?

Amar. To do as lovers should, 290
That we be enjoy'd, not to be woo'd.
There's never a shepherdess in all the plain
Can kiss thee with more art; there's none can feign
More wanton tricks.

Peri. Forbear, dear soul, to try
Whether my heart be pure; I'll rather die 295
Than nourish one thought to dishonour thee.
Amar. Still think as thou such a thing as chastity
Is amongst women? Perigot, there's none
That with her love is in a wood alone,
And would come home a maid: be not abus'd
With thy fond first belief; let time be us'd. 301

[PERIGOT rises.]

Why dost thou rise?

Peri. My true heart thou hast slain!
Amar. Faith, Perigot, I'll pluck thee down again.
Peri. Let go, thou serpent, that into my breast
Hast with thy cunning div'd! — Art not in jest? 306

Amar. Sweet love, lie down.
Peri. Since this I live to see,
Some bitter north wind blast my flocks and me!
Amar. You swore you lov'd, yet will not do my will.
Peri. Oh, be as thou wert once, I'll love thee still!
Amar. I am as still I was, and all my kind;
Though other shows we have, poor men to blind.

Peri. Then, here I end all love; and, lest my vain
Belief should ever draw me in again,
Before thy face, that hast my youth misted,
I end my life! my blood be on thy head! 311

[Offers to kill himself with his spear.]

Amar. [rising.] Oh, hold thy hands, thy Amoret doth cry!
Peri. Thou counsel'st well; first, Amoret shall die,
That is the cause of my eternal smart!

Amar. Oh, hold!

Peri. This steel shall pierce thy lustful heart!

[Exit.] running after her. The Sul-len Shepherd steps out and uncharms her.

Sull. Shep. Up and down, every where, 320
I strew the herbs, to purge the air;
Let your odour drive hence
All mists that dazzle sense.
Herbs and springs, whose hidden might Alters shapes, and mocks the sight,
Thus I charge ye to undo
All before I brought ye to!
Let her fly, let her escape;
Give again her own shape! 331
[Retires.]

Re-enter AMARILLIS in her own shape, [and PERIGOT following with his spear.]

Amar. Forbear, thou gentle swain! thou dost mistake;
She whom thou follow'st fled into the brake,
And as I crost thy way, I met thy wrath;
The only fear of which near slaine me hath.
Peri. Pardon, fair shepherdess: my rage and night
Were both upon me, and beguil'd my sight: 335
But far be it from me to spill the blood
Of harmless maids that wander in the wood!

Exit AMARILLIS.

Enter AMORET.

Amo. Many a weary step, in yonder path,
Poor hopeless Amoret twice trodden hath,
To seek her Perigot; yet cannot hear
His voice. — My Perigot! She loves thee dear
That calls.

Peri. See yonder where she is! How fair
She shows! and yet her breath infects the air.

Amo. My Perigot!

Peri. Here.

Amo. Happy! 340
Peri. Hapless! first
It lights on thee: the next blow is the worst. 345

[Wounds her.]
Amo. Stay, Perigot! My love, thou art unjust.

Peri. Death is the best reward that's due to just.

Sull. Shep. Now shall their love be cross: for, being struck,

I'll throw her in the fount, lest being took
By some night-traveller, whose honest care
May help to cure her. —

[Comes forward.] Shepherdess, prepare Yourself to die!

Amo. No mercy I do crave;
Thou canst not give a worse blow than I have.
Tell him that gave me this, who lov'd him too,
He struck my soul, and not my body through;
Tell him, when I am dead, my soul shall be,
At peace, if he but think he injur'd me.

Sull. Shep. In this fount be thy grave. Thou wert not meant
Sure for a woman, thou art so innocent. —
He stings her into the well.

She cannot escape; for, underneath the ground,
In a long hollow the clear spring is bound,
Till on you side, where the morn's sun doth look,
The struggling water breaks out in a brook.

Exit.

The God of the River riseth with Amoret in his arms.

God of the R. What powerful charms my streams do bring Back again unto their spring,
With such force that I their god,
Three times striking with my rod,
Could not keep them in their ranks?
My fishes shoot into the banks;
There's not one that stays and feeds,
All have hid them in the weeds.
Here's a mortal almost dead,
Fall'n into my river-head,
Hallowed so with many a spell,
That till now none ever fell,
'Tis a female young and clear,
Cast in by some raverish:
See, upon her breast a wound,
On which there is no plaster bound.
Yet, she's warm, her pulses beat,
'Tis a sign of life and heat. —
If thou be'st a virgin pure,
I can give a present cure:
Take a drop into thy wound,
From my watery locks, more round
Than orient pearl, and far more pure
Than unchaste flesh may endure.—
See, she pants, and from her flesh
The warm blood gusheth out afresh.
She is an unpolluted maid;
I must have this bleeding stay'd.
From my banks I pluck this flower
With holy hand, whose virtuous power
Is at once to heal and draw.
The blood returns, I never saw
A fairer mortal. Now doth break
Her deadly slumber. — Virgin, speak.

Amo. Who hath restor'd my sense, given me new breath,
And brought me back out of the arms of death?

God of the R. I have heal'd thy wounds.

Amo. Aye, me! 409

God of the R. Fear not him that succour'd thee.

I am this fountain's god: below,
My waters to a river grow,
And 'twixt two banks with osiers set,
That only prosper in the wet,
Through the meadows do they glide,
Wheedling still on every side,
Sometimes winding round about,
To find the evenest channel out.
And if thou wilt go with me,
Leaving mortal company,
In the cool streams shalt thou lie,
Free from harm as well as I:
I will give thee for thy food
No fish that useth in the ground;
But trout and pike, that love to swim
Where the gravel from the brim
Through the pure streams may be seen;
Oriental pearl fit for a queen,
Will I give, thy love to win,
And a shell to keep them in;
Not a fish in all my brook
That shall disobey thy look,
But, when thou wilt, come sliding by,
And from thy white hand take a fly:
And, to make thee understand,
How I can my waves command,
They shall bubble, whilst I sing,
Sweeter than the silver string.

[Sings.]

The Song
Do not fear to put thy feet
Naked in the river sweet;
Think not leech, or newt, or toad,
Will bite thy feet when thou hast trod;
Nor let the water rising high,
As thou wad'st in, make thee cry
And sob; but ever live with me,
And not a wave shall trouble thee.

Amo. Immortal power, that rulest this holy flood,
I know myself unworthy to be wo'd
By thee, a god; for ere this, but for thee,
I should have shown my weak mortality:
Besides, by holy oath between us twain,
I am betroth'd unto a shepherd-swan,
Whose comely face, I know, the gods above
May make me leave to see, but not to love. 445

God of the R. May he prove to thee as true!
Fairest virgin, now adieu:
I must make my waters fly,
Lest they leave their channels dry,
And beasts that come unto the spring
Miss their morning's watering;
Which I would not; for of late
All the neighbour-people sate
On my banks, and from the fold
Two white lambs of three weeks old
Offered to my deity;
For which this year they shall be free
From raging floods, that, as they pass,
Leave their gravel in the grass;
Nor shall their meads be overflown
When their grass is newly mown.
Amo. For thy kindness to me shown,
Never from thy banks be blown
Any tree, with windy force,
Cross thy streams, to stop my course;
May no beast that comes to drink,
With his horns cast down thy brink;
May none that for thy fish do look,
Cut thy banks to dam thy brook;
Barefoot may no neighbour wade
In thy cool streams, wife nor maid,
When the spaws on stones do lie,
To wash their hemp, and spoil the fry!
God of the R. Thanks, virgin. I must down
again.
Thy wound will put thee to no pain.
Wonder not so soon 'tis gone;
A holy hand was laid upon.
[Descends.]
Amo. And I, unhappy born to be,
Must follow him that flies from me.
Exit.

ACT IV

SCENE I.¹

Enter Perigot.

Peri. She is untrue, unconstant, and unkind;
She's gone, she's gone! Blow high, thou north-west wind,
And raise the sea to mountains; let the trees
That dare oppose thy raging fury cease;
Their firm foundation; creep into the earth,
And shake the world, as at the monstrous birth
Of some new prodigy; whilst I constant stand,
Holding this trusty bear-spear in my hand,
And falling thus upon it.

[Offers to fall on his spear.]

Enter Amarillis running.

Amar. Stay thy dead-doing hand! Thou art too hot Against thyself. Believe me, comely swain,
If that thou diest, not all the showers of rain
The heavy clouds send down can wash away
That foul unmanly guilt the world will lay
Upon thee. Yet thy love untainted stands:
Believe me, she is constant; not the sands
Can be so hardly numbed as she won.
I do not trifle, shepherd; by the moon,
And all those lesser lights our eyes do view,
All that I told thee, Perigot, is true.

Then, be a free man; put away despair
And will to die; smooth gently up that fair
Defected forehead; be as when those eyes
Took the first heat.

Peri. Alas, he double dies
That would believe, but cannot! 'Tis not well
You keep me thus from dying; here to dwell
With many worse companions. But, oh, death!
I am not yet enamour'd of this breath
So much but I dare leave it; 'tis not pain

In forcing of a wound, nor after-gain
Of many days, can hold me from my will.
'Tis not myself, but Amoret, bids kill.
Amar. Stay but a little, little; but one hour;
And if I do not show thee, through the power
Of herbs and words I have, as dark as night,
Myself turn'd to thy Amoret, in sight,
Her very figure, and the robe she wears,
With tawny buskins, and the hook she bears,
Of thine own carving, where thy names are set,
Wrought underneath with many a curious fret,
The primrose-chaplet, tawdry-lace, and ring,
Thou gav'st her for her singing, with each thing
Else that she wears about her, let me feel
The first fell stroke of that revenging steel!

Peri. I am contented, if there be a hope,
To give it entertainment for the scope
Of one poor hour. Go; you shall find me next
Under your shady beech, even thus perplexed,
And thus believing.

Amar. Bind, before I go,
Thy soul by Pan unto me, not to do
Harm or outrageous wrong upon thy life,
Till my return.

Peri. By Pan, and by the strife
He had with Phoebus for the mastery,
When golden Midas' judg'd their minstrelsy,
I will not!

Exeunt [severally].

[SCENE II.]²

Enter Satyr with Alexis.

Sat. Softly gliding as I go,
With this bough that full of woe,
Through still silence of the night
Guided by the glow-worm's light,
Hither am I come at last.
Many a thicket have I past;
Not a twig that durst deny me,
Not a bush that durst deny me
To the little bird that sleeps
On the slender spray; nor creeps
That hardy worm with pointed tail,
But if I be under sail,
Flying faster than the wind,
Leaving all the clouds behind,
But doth hide her tender head
In some hollow tree, or bed
Of seeded nettles; not a hare
Can be started from his fare
By my footing; nor a wish
Is more sudden, nor a fish
Can be found with greater ease
Cut the vast unbounded seas,
Leaving neither print nor sound,
Than I, when nimbly on the ground
I measure many a league an hour.
But, behold, the happy power
That must ease me of my charge,
And by holy hand enlarge
The soul of this sad man, that yet
Lies fast bound in deadly fit:
Heaven and great Pan succour it! —

² Lose.
Hail, thou beauty of the bower,
Whiter than the paramour
Of my master! Let me crave
Thy virtuous help, to keep from grave
This poor mortal, that he lies,
Waiting when the Destinies
Will undo his thread of life:
View the wound, by cruel knife
Trench't into him.

_Clo. [coming from the bower.]_ What art thou call'st me from my holy rites,
And with the feared name of death affrights
My tender ears? Speak me thy name and will.

_Sat. I am the Satyr that did fill Your lap with early fruit; and will,
When I hap to gather more,
Bring you better and more store,^2^ Yet I come not empty now:
See, a blossom from the bough;
But bestrew his heart that pull'd it,
And his perfect sight that call'd it
From the other springing blooms!
For a sweeter youth the grooms
Cannot show me, nor the downs,
Nor the many neighbouring towns.
Low in yonder glade I found him;
Softly in mine arms I bound him;
Hither have I brought him sleeping
In a trance, his wounds fresh weeping,
In remembrance such youth may
Spring and perish in a day.

_Clo. Satyr, they wrong thee that do term thee rude;
Though thou be'st outward-rough and tawny-hu'd,
Thy manners are as gentle and as fair
As his who brags himself born only heir
To all humanity. — Let me see thy wound:
This herb will stay the current, being bound
Fast to the orifice, and this restrain
Ulcers and swellings, and such inward pain
As the cold air hath forc'd into the sorer;
This to draw out such putrefying gore
As inward falls.

_Sat. Heaven grant it may do good!
_Clo. Fairly wipe away the blood.
Hold him gently, till I fling
Water of a virtuous^3^ spring
On his temples; turn him twice
To the moonbeams; pinch him thrice;
That the labouring soul may draw
From his great eclipse.

_Sat. I saw
His eyelids moving._

_Clo. Give him breath;
All the danger of cold death
Now is vanisht! With this plaster
And this unction do I master
All the fest'red ill that may Give him grief another day.

_Sat. See, he gathers up his spirit,
And begins to hunt for light;
Now he gaps and breathes again:
How the blood runs to the vein
That erst was empty!_
THE FAITHFUL SHEPHERDESS

IV. iv.

So I take my leave, and wish
On this bower may ever dwell
Spring and summer!

[SCENE III.] 1

Enter Amoret.

Amo. This place is ominous; for here I lost
My love and almost life, and since have crost
All these woods over; ne'er a nook or dell,
Where any little bird or beast doth dwell,
But I have sought it; ne'er a bending brow
Of any hill, or glade the wind sings through,
Nor a green bank nor shade where shepherds
use
To sit and riddle, sweetly pipe, or choose
Their valentines, that I have mist, to find My love in. Perigot! Oh, too unkind,
Why hast thou fled me? Whither art thou gone?
How have I wrong'd thee. Was my love alone
To thee worthy this scorn; 'tis a well;
I am content to feel it. But I tell
Thee, shepherd, and these lusty woods shall hear,
Forsaken Amoret is yet as clear
Of any stranger fire, as heaven is
From foul corruption, or the deep abyss
From light and happiness; and thou mayst know
All this for truth, and how that fatal blow
Thou gav'st me, never from desert of mine
Fell on my life, but from suspect of thine,
Or fury more than madness. Therefore here,
Since I have lost my life, my love, my dear,
Upon this cursed place, and on this green
That first divorce'd us, shortly shall be seen
A sight of so great pity, that each eye
Shall daily spend his spring in memory
Of my untimely fall.

Enter Amarillis.

Amar. [Aside.] I am not blind,
Nor is it through the working of my mind
That this shows Amoret. Forsake me, all
That dwell upon the soul, but what men call
Wonder, or, more than wonder, miracle!
For, sure, so strange as this, the oracle
Never gave answer of; it passeth dreams,
Or madmen's fancy, when the many streams
Of new imaginations rise and fall.
'Tis but an hour since these ears heard her call
For pity to young Perigot; whilst he Directed by his fury, bloody Lanc'd up her breast, which bloodless fell and cold:
And, if belief may credit what was told,
After all this, the Melancholy Swain
Took her into his arms, being almost slain,
And to the bottom of the holy well
Flung her, for ever with the waves to dwell.
'T is she, the very same; 't is Amoret,
And living yet; the great powers will not let

Their virtuous love be crost. — Maid, wipe away
Those heavy drops of sorrow, and allay
The storm that yet goes high, which, not depress,
Breaks heart and life and all before it rest.
Thy Perigot —

Amo. Where, which is Perigot?
Amar. Sits there below, lamenting much,
On God's note,
Thee and thy fortune. Go, and comfort him; 55
And thou shalt find him underseath a brim
Of sailing pines, that edge you mountain in.
Amo. I go, I run. Heaven grant me I may win
His soul again!

Enter Sullen Shepherd.

Sull. Shep. Stay, Amarillis, stay!
You are too fleet; 'tis two hours yet to day.
I have perform'd my promise; let us sit
And warm our bloods together, till the fit
Come lively on us.

Amar. Friend, you are too keen;
The morning riseth, and we shall be seen;
Forbear a little.

Sull. Shep. I can stay no longer.

Amar. Hold, shepherd, hold! Learn not to be a wronger
Of your word. Was not your promise laid,
To break their loves first?

Sull. Shep. I have done it, maid.
Amar. No; they are yet unbroken, met
again,
And are as hard to part yet as the stain
Is from the finest lawn.

Sull. Shep. I say they are Now at this present parted, and so far
That they shall never meet
Amar. Swain, 'tis not so;
For do but to you hanging mountain go,
And there believe your eyes.

Sull. Shep. You do but hold Off with delays and trifles. — Farewell, cold
And frozen bashfulness, unfit for men! —
Thus I salute thee, virgin!

[Attempts to seize her.]

Amar. And thus, then,
I bid you follow: catch me if you can! — Exit.
Sull. Shep. And, if I stay behind, I am no man! — Exit, running after her. 90

[SCENE IV.] 2

Enter Perigot.

Peri. Night, do not steal away; I woo thee yet
To hold a hard hand o'er the rusty bit
That guides thy lazy team. Go back again,
Boôtes, thou that driv'st thy frozen wain
Round as a ring, and bring a second night,
To hide my sorrows from the coming light;
Let not the eyes of men stare on my face,
And read my falling; give me some black place,
Where never sunbeam shot his wholesome
light,

1 Part of the wood with the holy well.

2 A dale in the wood.
That I may sit and pour out my sad sprite
Like running water, never to be known
After the forced fall and sound is gone.

Enter Amoret, looking for Perigot.

Amo. This is the bottom.¹—Speak, if thou be here,
My Perigot! Thy Amoret, thy dear,
Calls on thy loved name.

Peri. What art thou dare to Tread these forbidden paths, where death and care Dwell on the face of darkness?

Amo. Thy Amoret, come hither, to give end
To these consummings. Look up, gentle boy:
I have forgot those pains and dear annoy
I suffer'd for thy sake, and am content
To be thy love again. Why hast thou rent
Those curled locks, where I have often hung Ribands and damask-roses, and have flung
Waters distill'd, to make thee fresh and gay,
Sweter than nosegay's on a bridal day?
Why dost thou cross thine arms, and hang thy face
Down to thy bosom, letting fall space
From those two little heavens, upon the ground,
Showers of more price, more orient, and more round.

Than those that hang upon the moon's pale brow?
Cease these complaining, shepherd: I am now
The same I ever was, as kind and free,
And can forgive before you ask of me;
Indeed, I can and will.

Peri. So spoke my fair! ²
Oh, you great working powers of earth and air,
Water and forming fire, why have you lent
Your hidden virtues of so ill intent?
Even such a face, so fair, so bright of hue,
Had Amoret: such words, so smooth and new,
Came flowing from her tongue; such was her eye,
And such the pointed sparkle that did fly
Forth like a bleeding staff; all is the same,
The robe and buskins, painted hook, and frame
Of all her body. Oh me, Amoret!

Amo. Shepherd, what means this riddle? Why hath set
So strong a difference 'twixt myself and me,
That I am grown another? Look, and see
The ring thou gav'st me, and about my wrist
That curious braclet thou thyself didst twist
From those fair tresses. Knowst thou Amoret?
Hath not some newer love fore'd thee forget
Thy ancient faith?

Peri. Still nearer to my love!
These be the very words she oft did prove Upon my temper; so she still would take.
Wonder into her face, and silent make
Signs with her head and hand, as who would say,
"Shepherd, remember this another day."

Amo. Am I not Amoret? Where was I lost?
Can there be heaven, and time, and men, and most ¹ Dell.

Of these unconstant? Faith, where art thou fled?
Are all the vows and protestations dead,
The hands held up, the wishes and the heart?
Is there not one remaining, not a part
Of all these to be found? Why, then, I see Men never knew that virtue, constancy.

Peri. Men ever were most blessed, till cross fate
Brought love and women forth, unfortunate
To all that ever tasted of their smiles;
Whose actions are all double, full of wiles;
Like to the subtile hare, that 'fore the hounds
Makes many turnings, leaps, and many rounds,
This way and that way, to deceive the scent
Of her pursuers.

Amo. 'Tis but to prevent
Their speedy coming on, that seek her fall;
The hands of cruel men, more bestial,
And of a nature more refusing good
Than beasts themselves, or fishes of the flood.

Peri. Thou art all these, and more than nature meant
When she created all; frowns, joys, content;
Extreme fire for an hour, and presently
Colder than sleepy poison, or the sea
Upon whose face sits a continual frost;
Your actions ever driven to the most,
Then down again as low, that none can find
The rise or falling of a woman's mind.

Amo. Can there be any age, or days, or time,
Or tongues of men, guilty so great a crime
As wronging simple maid? Oh, Perigot,
Thou that wast yesterday without a blot;
Thou that wast every good and every thing
That men call blessed; thou that wast the spring
From whence our looser grooms drew all their best;
Thou that wast always just and always blest
In faith and promise; thou that hadst the name
Of virtuous given thee, and made good the same
B'vn from thy cradle; thou that wast that all
That men delighted in! Oh, what a fall
Is this, to have been so, and now to be
The only best in wrong and infamy!

And I to live to know this! and by me,
That low'd thee dearer than mine eyes, or that
Which we esteem'd our honour, virgin state!
Dearer than swallows love the early morn,
Or dogs of chase the sound of merry horn;
Dearer than thou canst love thy new love, if Thou hast
Another, and far dearer than the last;
Dearer than thou canst love thyself, though all
The self-love were within thee that did fall
With that coy swain that now is made a flower,
For whose dear sake Echo weeps many a shower!

And am I thus rewarded for my flame?
Lov'd worthily to get a wan'ton's name?
Come, thou forsaken willow, wind my head,
And noise it to the world, my love is dead! ³
I am forsaken, I am cast away,
And left for every lazy groom to say
I was unconstant, light, and sooner lost
Than the quick clouds we see, or the chill frost
When the hot sun beats on it! Tell me yet, 129
Canst thou not love again thy Amoret?

Fer. Thou art not worthy of that blessed name;
I must not know thee. Fling thy wanton flame
Upon some lighter blood that may be hot
With words and feigned passions; Perigon
Was ever yet unstand’sd, and shall not now
Stoop to the meatings of a borrowed brow.

Am. Then hear me, Heaven, to whom I call for right,
And you, fair twinkling stars, that crown the night; 129
And hear me, woods, and silence of this place,
And ye, sad hours, that move a sullen pace;
Hear me, ye shadows, that delight to dwell
In horrid darkness, and ye powers of hell,
Whilst I breathe out my last! I am that maid,
That yet-unattainted Amoret, that play’d 130
The careless prodigal, and gave away
My soul to this young man that now dares say
I am a stranger, not the same, more void; 1
And thus with much belief I was begu’d
I am that maid, that have delay’d, deni’d, 160
And almost scorn’d the loves of all that tri’d
To win me, but this swain; and yet confess
I have been woo’d by many with no less Soul of affection; and have often had Rings, belts, and cracknels, sent me from the lad
That feeds his flocks down westward; lambs and doves
By young Alexis; Daphnis sent me gloves;
All which I gave to thee: nor these nor they
That sent them did I smile on, or e’er lay
Up to my after-memory. But why
Do I resolve to grieve, and not to die?
Happy had been the stroke thou gav’st, if home;
By this time had I found a quiet room,
Where every slave is free, and every breast,
That living bred new care, now lies at rest; 150
And thither will poor Amoret.

Fer. Thou must.
Was ever any man so loth to trust
His eyes as I? or was there ever yet
Any so like as this to Amoret?
For whose dear sake I promise, if there be
A living soul within thee, thus to free
Thy body from it? He hurts her again.

Am. [falling.] So, this work hath end.
 Farewell, and live; be constant to thy friend
That loves thee next.

Enter Satyr; Perigon runs off.

Sat. See, the day begins to break,
And the light shoots like a streak
Of subtle fire; the wind blows cold,
Whilst the morning doth unfold,
Now the birds begin to rouse,
And the squirrel from the boughs
Leaps, to get him nuts and fruit.
The early lark, that erst was mute,
Carols to the rising day
Many a note and many a lay:

Therefore here I end my watch,
Least the wand’ring swain should catch
Harm, or lose himself.

Am. Ah me!
Sat. Speak again, what’er thou be;
I am ready; speak, I say;
By the dawning of the day,
By the power of night and Pan,
I enforce thee speak again!

Am. Oh, I am most unhappy.

Sat. Yet more blood!
Sure, these wanton swains are wood. 3
Can there be a hand or heart
Dare commit so wild a part
As this murder? By the moon,
That hid herself when this was done,
Never was a sweeter face:
I will bear her to the place
Where my goddess keeps, and crave
Her to give her life or grave.

Exit [carrying Amoret].

[Scene V.]

Enter Clorin.

Clo. Here whilst one patient takes his rest secure,
I steal abroad to do another cure. —
Pardon, thou buried body of my love,
That from thy side I dare so soon remove;
I will not prove unconstant, nor will leave
Thee for an hour alone. When I deceive
My first-made vow, the wildest of the wood
Tear me, and o’er thy grave let out my blood!
I go by wit to cure a lover’s pain,
Which no herb can; being done, I’ll come again.

Exit.

Enter Thenot.

The. Poor shepherd, in this shade for ever lie,
And seeing thy fair Clorin’s cabin, die! 180

[Lying down.]
Oh, hapless love, which being answer’d, ends!
And, as a little infant cries and bends
His tender brows, when, rolling of his eye,
He hath said something that grieves me much,
Which he would have; yet, give it him, away
He throws it straight, and cries afresh to play
With something else, such my affection, set
On that which I should loathe, if I could get.

Re-enter Clorin.

Clo. [Aside.] See, where he lies! Did ever man but he Love any woman for her constancy
To her dead lover, which she needs must end
Before she can allow him for her friend,
And he himself must needs the cause destroy
For which he loves, before he can enjoy?
Poor shepherd, Heaven grant I at once may free
Thee from thy pain, and keep my loyalty! —
Shepherd, look up.

The. Thy brightness doth amaze;
So Phoebus may at noon bid mortals gaze; 20

Mad. The wood before Clorin’s bower.
Thy glorious constancy appears so bright.
I dare not meet the beams with my weak sight.

Clo. Why dost thou pine away thyself for me?
The. Why dost thou keep such spotless constancy?
Clo. Thou holy shepherd, see what for thy sake
Clorin, thy Clorin, now dare undertake.
He starts up.

The. Stay there, thou constant Clorin! If there be Yet any part of woman left in thee,
To make thee light, think yet before thou speak.

Clo. See, what a holy vow for thee do I break;
That I already have my fame far spread
For being constant to my lover dead.
The. Think yet, dear Clorin, of thy love;
how true,
If you had died, he would have been to you.
Clo. Yet, all I'll lose for thee——

The. Think but how blest
A constant woman is above the rest!

Clo. And offer up myself, here on this ground,
To be dispos'd by thee.

The. Why dost thou wound,
His heart with malice against women more,
That hated all the sex but thee before?
How much more pleasant it had been to me
To die than to behold this change in thee!
Yet, yet return; let not the woman sway!

Clo. Insult not on her now, nor use delay,
Who for thy sake hath ventur'd all her fame.
The. Thou hast not ventur'd, but bought certain shame;
Your sex's curse, foul falsehood, must and shall,
I see, once in your lives, light on you all.
I hate thee now. Yet turn!

Be just to me:
Shall I at once lose both my fame and thee?

The. Thou hadst no fame; that which thou didst like good
Was but thy appetite that sway'd thy blood
For that time to the best: for as a blast
That through a house comes, usually doth cast
Things out of order, yet by chance may come,
And blow some one thing to his proper room,
So did thy appetite, and not thy zeal,
Sway thee by chance to do some one thing well.
Yet turn!

Clo. Thou dost but try me, if I would Forsake thy dear embraces for my old
Love's, though he were alive: but do not fear.
The. I do contemn thee now, and dare come near,
And gaze upon thee; for methinks that grace,
Austerity, which sate upon that face,
Is gone, and thou like others. False maid, see,
This is the gain of foul inconstancy! Exit.

Clo. 'Tis done: great Pan, I give thee thanks for it!——
What are could not have heal'd is cur'd by wit.

Re-enter THRONT.

The. Will ye be constant yet? Will ye remove
Into the cabin to your buried love?

Clo. No, let me die, but by thy side remain.
The. There's none shall know that thou didst ever stain
Thy worthy strictness, but shall honour'd be,
And I will lie again under this tree,
And pine and die for thee with more delight
Than I have sorrow now to know thee light.
Clo. Let me have thee, and I'll be where thou wilt.
The. Thou art of women's race, and full of guilt.
Farewell all hope of that sex! Whilst I thought
There was one good, I fear'd to find one naught:
But since their minds I all alike espy,
Henceforth I'll choose, as others, by mine eye.

Clo. Blest be ye powers that gave such quick redress,

And for my labours sent so good success!
I rather choose, though I a woman be,
He should speak ill of all than die for me.

[Exit into the bower.]
Priest. God pardon sin! — Show me the way that leads To any of their haunts.
Old Shep. This to the meads,
And that down to the woods.
Priest. Then, this for me.

Come, shepherd, let me crave your company.

[Scene II]

Enter Clorin in her cabin, Alexis with her.

Clo. Now your thoughts are almost pure,
And your wound begins to cure;
Strive to banish all that's vain,
Lest it should break out again.
Alexis. Eternal thanks to thee, thou holy maid!
I find my former wand'ring thoughts well staid
Through thy wise precepts: and my outward pain
By thy choice herbs is almost gone again.
Thy sex's vice and virtue are reveal'd
At once; for what one hurt another heal'd.
Clo. May thy grief more appease!
Relapses are the worst disease.
Take heed how you in thought offend;
So mind and body both will mend.

Enter Satyr, carrying Amoret.

Amo. Be'st thou the wildest creature of the wood,
That bear'st me thus away, drown'd in my blood,
And by thy hand I cannot injur'd be;
I am a maid; let that name fight for me.
Sat. Fairest virgin, do not fear
Me, that doth thy body bear,
Not to hurt, but heal'd to be;
Men are ruder far than we.
See, fair goddess, in the wood
They have let out yet more blood.
Some savage man hath struck her breast,
And by his hand I cannot injur'd be;
I am a maid; let that name fight for me.
Sat. The better trial to endure.
Clo. In this flame his finger thrusts,
Which will burn him if he last;
But if not, away will turn,
As loth unsotted flesh to burn.

[Carrying Amoret into the bower.]
She is so light. — Lie on these leaves.
Sleep, that mortal sense deceives,
Crown thine eyes and ease thy pain;
May'st thou soon be well again!
Clo. Satyr, bring the shepherd near;
Try him, if his mind be clear.
Sat. Shepherd, come.

Daph. My thoughts are pure.
Sat. The better trial to endure.
Clo. In this flame his finger thrusts,
Which will burn him if he last;
But if not, away will turn,
As loth unsotted flesh to burn.

[Satyr applies Daphnis's finger to the taper.]

See, it gives back; let him go,
Farewell, mortal: keep thee so.

[Exit Daphnis.

Stay, fair nymph; fly not so fast;
We must try if you be chaste.
Here's a hand that quakes for fear;
Sure, she will not prove so clear.

Clo. Hold her finger to the flame;
That will yield her praise or shame.
Sat. To her doom she dares not stand,

[Applies Cloe's finger to the taper.]

But pleucks away her tender hand;
And the taper darting sends
His hot beams at her fingers' ends, —
Oh, thou art foul within, and hast
A mind, if nothing else, unchaste!
Alex. Is not that Cloe? 'Tis my love, 'tis she!

Cloe, fair Cloe!

My Alexis!
[Scene III.]

Enter Old Shepherd and Priest of Pan.

Priest. Sure, they are lost for ever; 'tis in vain
To find them out with trouble and much pain
That have a ripe desire and forward will
To fly the company of all but ill.
What shall be counsel'd now? Shall we retire,
Or constant follow still that first desire
We had to find them?

Old Shep. Stay a little while;
For, if the morning's mist do not beguile
My sight, if shadows, sure I see a swain:
One of this jolly troop's come back again.

Enter Thanot.

Priest. Dost thou not blush, young shepherd, to be known
Thus without care leaving thy flocks alone,
And following what desire and present blood
Shapes out before thy burning sense for good;
Having forgot what tongue hereafter may Tell to the world thy falling off, and say
Thou art regardless both of good and shame, Spurning at virtue and a virtuous name?
And like a glorious desperate man, that buys
A poison of much price, by which he dies.
Dost there lay out for lust, whose only gain Is foul disease, with present age and pain,
And then a grave? These be the fruits that grow
In such hot veins, that only heat to know
Where they may take most ease, and grow ambitious
Through their own wanton fire and pride de-licious.

The. Right holy sir, I have not known this night
What the smooth face of mirth was, or the sight
Of any looseness; music, joy, and ease,
Have been to me as bitter drugs to please
A stomach lost with weakness, not a game
That I am skill'd at throngingly: nor a dame,
Went her tongue smoother than the feet of time,
Her beauty ever-living like the rhyme
Our blessed Tityrus did sing of yore;
No, were she more enticing than the store
Of fruitful summer, when the loaden tree

1 A pasture.
2 Chaucer.

Bids the faint traveller be bold and free;
'T were but to me like thunder 'gainst the bay,
Whose lightning may enclose, but never stay
Upon his charmed branches; such am I
Against the catching flames of woman's eye.

Priest. Then, wherefore hast thou wand'red?
The.

That drew me out last night, which I have now
Strictly perform'd, and homewards go to give Fresh pastures to my sheep, that they may live.

Priest. 'T is good to hear you, shepherd, if the heart
In this well-sounding music bear his part.
Where have you left the rest?

The. Since yesternight we met upon this green
To fold our flocks up, any of that train;
Yet have I walkt those woods round, and have lain
All this long night under an aged tree;
Yet neither wand'ring shepherd did I see,
Or shepherdess; or drew into mine ear
The sound of living thing, unless it were
The nightingale, among the thick-leav'd spring
That sits alone in sorrow, and doth sing
Whole nights away in mourning; or the owl,
Or our great enemy, 3 that still doth howl
Against the moon's cold beams.

Priest. Go, and beware
Of after-falling.

The. Father, 't is my care. Exit.

Enter Daphnis.

Old Shep. Here comes another straggler; sure I see
A shame in this young shepherd. — Daphnis?

Daph. He.

Priest. Where hast thou left the rest, that should have been Long before this grazing upon the green
Their yet-imprison'd flocks?

Daph. Thou holy man,
Give me a little breathing, till I can
Be able to unfold what I have seen;
Such horror, that the like hath never been Known to the ear of shepherd. Oh, my heart
Labours a double motion to impart
So heavy tidings! You all know the bower
Where the chaste Clorin lives, by whose great power
Sick men and cattle have been often cur'd;
There lovely Amoret, that was assur'd 4
To lusty Perigot, bleeds out her life.
Fore'd by some iron hand and fatal knife;
And, by her, young Alexis.

Enter AMARILLIS, running from her Sullen Shepherd.

Amar. If there be
Ever a neighbour-brock or hollow tree,
Receive my body, close me up from lust
That follows at my heels! Be ever just,
Thou god of shepherds, Pan, for her dear sake
That loves the rivers' brink, and still doth shake

3 The wolf.
4 Betrothed.
In cold remembrance of thy quick pursuit; I
Let me be made a reed, and, ever mute,
Nod to the waters’ fall, whilst every blast Sings through my slender leaves that I was chaste!

Priest. This is a night of wonder.—Amarill,
Be comforted: the holy gods are still Revelers of these wrongs.

Amar. Thou blessed man,
Honour’d upon these plains, and lov’d of Pan,
Hear me, and save from endless infamy
My yet-unblasted flower, virginity!
By all the garlands that have crown’d that
head,
By thy chaste office, and the marriage-bed
That still is blessed by thee; by all the rites
Due to our god, and by those virgin-lights
That burn before his altar; let me not Fall from my former state, to gain the blot
That never shall be purg’d! I am not now
That wanton Amarillis: here I vow
To Heaven, and thee, grave father, if I may Scape this unhappy night, to know the day
A virgin, never after to endure
The tongues or company of men unpure!
I hear him come; save me!

Priest. Retire a while
Behind this bush, till we have known that vile Abuser of young maidens. [They retire.]

Enter Sullen [Shepherd].

Sull. Shep. Stay thy pace,
Most lov’d Amarillis; let the chase
Grow calm and milder: fly me not so fast:
I fear the pointed brambles have unlace’d
Thy golden buskins. Turn again, and see
Thy shepherd follow, that is strong and free,
Able to give thee all content and ease.
I am not bashful, virgin; I can please
At first encounter, hug thee in mine arm,
And give thee many kisses, soft and warm
As those the sun prints on the smiling cheek
Of plums or mellow peaches; I am sleek
And smooth as Neptune when stern Aeolus
Locks up his surly winds, and nimbly thus
Can show my active youth. Why dost thou fly?
Remember, Amarillis, it was I
That kill’d Alexis for thy sake, and set
An everlasting hate twixt Amoret
And her beloved Perigot: ’t was I That crown’d her in the well, where she must lie
Till time shall leave to be. Then, turn again,
Turn with thy open arms, and clasp the swain
That hath perform’d all this; turn, turn, I say;
I must not be deluded.

Priest [coming forward.] Monster, stay!
 Thou that art like a canker to the state
Thou livest and breath’st in, eating with debate
Through every honest bosom, forcing still
The veins of any that may serve thy will;
Thou that hast offer’d with a sinful hand
To seize upon this virgin, that doth stand
Yet trembling here!

Sull. Shep. Good holiness, declare

What had the danger been, if being bare
I had embrac’d her; tell me, by your art,
What coming wonders would that sight impart.

Priest. Lust and a branded soul.

Sull. Shep. Yet, tell me more;
Hath not our mother Nature, for her store
And great encrease, said it is good and just,
And will’d that every living creature must Beget his like?

Priest. You’re better read than I,
I must confess, in blood and lechery.—
Now to the bower, and bring this beast along,
Where he may suffer penance for his wrong.

Exeunt.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Perigot, with his hand bloody.

Peri. Here will I wash it in the morning’s
dew,
Which she on every little grass doth strew
In silvery drops against the sun’s appear;
’Tis holy water, and will make me clear.
My hand will not be cleans’d—My wronged
love.
If thy chaste spirit in the air yet move,
Look mildly down on him that yet dost stand
All full of guilt, thy blood upon his hand;
And though I struck thee undeservedly,
Let my revenge on her that injur’d thee
Make less a fault which I intended not,
And let these dew-drops wash away my spot—
It will not cleanse. Oh, to what sacred flood
Shall I resort, to wash away this blood?
Amidst these trees the holy Clorin dwells,
In a low cabin of out boughs, and heals
All wounds: to her I will myself address,
And my rash faults repentantly confess;
Perhaps she’ll find a means, by art or prayer,
To make my hand, with chaste blood stained,
fair.

That done, not far hence, underneath some tree
I’ll have a little cabin built, since she Whom I ador’d is dead; there will I give Myself to strictness, and, like Clorin, live.

Exit.

[Scene V.]

The curtain is drawn, Clorin appears sitting in the cabin, Amoret sitting on the one side of her, Alexis and Cloe on the other; the Satyr standing by.

Clo. Shepherd, once more your blood is staid:
Take example by this maid,
Who is heal’d ere you be pure;
So hard it is to keep lust to cure.
Take heed, thou, how you turn your eye
On this other lustfully.—
And, shepherdess, take heed lest you
Move his willing eye thereto:
Let no riving, nor pinch, nor smile,
Of yours his weaker sense beguile.—
Is your love yet true and chaste,
And for ever so to last?

Alexis. I have forgot all vain desires,
2 Part of the wood.
3 Appearance.
4 The wood before Clorin’s bower.
5 Q, Q., these; F, each.
All looser thoughts, ill-temper'd fires:
True love I find a pleasant fume,
Whose moderate heat can never consume.

_Clo._ And is a new fire feel in me,
Whose chaste flame is not quench'd to be.
_Clo._ Join your hands with modest touch,
And for ever keep you such.

Enter _Perigot._

_Peri._ [Aside.] You is her cabin: thus far off
I'll stand,
And call her forth; for my unhallowed hand
I dare not bring so near your sacred place.—
_Clorin._ Come forth, and do a timely grace
To a poor swain.

_Clo._ What art thou that dost call?
_Clorin._ Clorin is ready to do good to all:
Come near.

_Peri._ I dare not.

_Clo._ Satyr, see
Who it is that calls on me.

_Sat._ [coming from the bower.] There, at hand,
Some swain doth stand,
Stretching out a bloody hand.

_Peri._ Come, Clorin, bring thy holy waters clear
To wash my hand.

_Clo._ [coming out.] What wonders have been here
To-night! Stretch forth thy hand, young swain;
Wash and rub it, whilst I rain
Holy water.

_Peri._ Still you pour,
But my hand will never scour.

_Clo._ Satyr, bring him to the bower:
We will try the sovereign power
Of other waters.

_Sat._ Mortal, sure,
'Tis the blood of maiden pure
That stains thee so.

_The Satyr leadeth him to the bower,
Where he spied Amoret, and Kneeling down, she knew him._

_Peri._ Whate'er thou be,
Be'st thou her sprite, or some divinity,
That in her shape thinks good to walk this grove,
Pardon poor Perigot!

_Amo._ I am thy love,
Thy Amoret, for evermore thy love:

Strike once more on my naked breast, I'll prove
As constant still. Oh, couldst thou love me yet,
How soon could I my former griefs forget!

_Peri._ So over-great with joy that you live,
now
I am, that no desire of knowing how Doth seize me. Hast thou power to forgive?

_Amo._ Whilst thou hast power to love, or I to live:
More welcome now than hast thou never gone
Astray from me!

_Peri._ And when thou lov'st alone,
And not I [thee,] death, or some ling'ring pain
That's worse, light on me!

_Clo._ Now your stain
Perhaps will clean'st be; once again.
See, the blood that erst did stay,
With the water drops away.
All the powers again are pleas'd,
And with this new knot are appeas'd.
Join your hands, and rise together:
Pan be blest that brought you hither!

Enter Priest of Pan and Old Shepherd.

Go back again, whate'er thou art; unless
Smooth maiden-thoughts possess thee, do not press
This hallowed ground.—Go, Satyr, take his hand,
And give him present trial.

_Sat._ Mortal, stand,
Till by fire I have made known
Whether thou be such a one
That mayst freely tread this place.

Hold thy hand up.—Never was _[Applying the Priest's hand to the taper._

More untainted flesh than this.
Fairest, he is full of bliss.

_Clo._ Then boldly speak, why dost thou seek this place?

_Priest._ First, honour'd virgin, to behold thy face,
Where all good dwells that is; next, for to try
The truth of late report was given to me,—
Those shepherds that have met with foul misfortune
Through much neglect and more ill government,
Whether the wounds they have may yet endure
The open air, or stay a longer cure;
And lastly, what the doom may be shall light
Upon those guilty wretches, through whose spite
All this confusion fell; for to this place,
Thou holy maiden, have I brought the race
Of these offenders, who have freely told
Both why and by what means they gave this bold
Attempt upon their lives.

_Clo._ Fume all the ground,
And sprinkle holy water, for unsound
And foul infection 'gins to fill the air;
It gathers yet more strongly; take a pair
_[The Satyr fumes the ground, etc._]

Of censers fill'd with frankincense and myrrh,
Together with cold camphire: quickly stir
Thee, gentle Satyr, for the place begins
To sweat and labour with th' abhorred sins
Of these offenders: let them not come nigh,
For full of itching flame and leprosy
Their very souls are, that the ground goes back,
And shrinks to feel the sullen weight of black
And so unheard-of venom.—His thee fast,
Thou holy man, and banish from the chaste

1 Moorman's conj. for Qq. cleanse thee. F, reads, This perhaps will cleanse again.
These manlike monsters; let them never more
Be known upon these downs, but, long before
The next sun’s rising, put them from the sight
And memory of every honest wight:
Be quick in expedition, lest the sores
Of these weak patients break into new sores.1

Exil. Priest.

Peri. My dear, dear Amoret, how happy are Those blessed pairs, in whom a little jar
Hath bred an everlasting love, too strong
For time, or steel, or envy to do wrong!
How do you feel your hurts? Alas, poor heart,
How much I was abus’d! Give me the smart,
For it is justly mine.

Amo. I do believe.

It is enough, dear friend; leave off to grieve,116
And let us once more, in despite of ill,
Give hands and hearts again.

Peri. With better will
Than e’er I went to find in hottest day
Cool crystal of the fountain, to allay
My eager thirst. May this band never break!
Hear us, oh, Heaven!

Amo. Be constant.

Peri. Else Pan wreak
With double vengeance my disloyalty!
Let me not dare to know the company
Of men, or any more behold these eyes!

Amo. Thus, shepherd, with a kiss all envy
dies.

Re-enter Priest of Pan.

Priest. Bright maid, I have perform’d your will. The swain
In whom such heat and black rebellions reign
Hath undergone your sentence and disgrace;
Only the maid I have reserv’d, whose face
Shows much amendment; many a tear doth fall
In sorrow of her fault. Great fair, recall
Your heavy doom, in hope of better days,
Which I dare promise; once again upraise
Her heavy spirit, that near drowned lies
In self-consuming care that never dies.

Clo. I am content to pardon; call her in.—
The air grows cool again, and doth begin
To purge itself: how bright the day doth show
After this stormy cloud!—Go, Satyr, go,
And with this taper boldly try her hand,
If she be pure and good, and firmly stand
To be so still, we have perform’d a work
Worthy the gods themselves.

Saty. Come forward, maiden; do not lurk,
Nor hide your face with grief and shame;
Now or never get a name
That may raise thee, and re-cure
All thy life that was impure.
Hold your hand unto the flame;
If thou be’st a perfect dame,
Or hast truly vow’d to mend,
This pale fire will be thy friend.—

[Applies her hand to the taper.]

See, the taper hurts her not!

1 Blessings.

Go thy ways; let never spot
Henceforth seize upon thy blood:
Thank the gods, and still be good.

Clo. Young shepherdess, now ye are brought
again.

To virgin-state, be so, and so remain
To thy last day, unless the faithful love
Of some good shepherd force thee to remove;
Then labour to be true to him, and live
As such a one that ever strives to give
A blessed memory to after-time;
Be famous for your good, not for your crime.—
Now, holy man, I offer up again
These patients, full of health and free from pain.

Keep them from after-ills; be ever near Unto their actions; teach them how to clear
The tedious way they pass through from suspect;
Keep them from wronging others, or neglect
Of duty in themselves; correct the blood
With thrifty bits2 and labour; let the flood,
Or the next neighbouring spring, give remedy
To greedy thirst and travail, not the tree
That hangs with wanton clusters; let not wine,
Unless in sacrifice or rites divine,
Be ever known of shepherds; have a care,
Thou man of holy life! Now do not spare Their faults through much remissness, nor forget
To cherish him whose many pains and sweat
Hath giv’n increase and added to the downs.
Sort all your shepherds from the lazy clowns
That feed their heifers in the budded brooms.
Teach the young maidens strictness, that the grooms

May ever fear to tempt their blowing youth.
Banish all compliment, but single truth,
From every tongue and every shepherd’s heart;
Let them still use persuading, but no art.
Thy, holy priest, I wish to thee and these
All the best goods and comforts that may
please.

All. And all those blessings Heaven did ever give.

We pray upon this bower may ever live.

Priest. Kneel, every shepherd, whilst with powerful hand
I bless your after-labours, and the land
You feed your flocks upon. Great Pan defend

you
From misfortune, and amend you;
Keep you from those dangers still
That are followed by your will;
Give ye means to know at length,
All your riches, all your strength,
Cannot keep your foot from falling
To lewd lust, that still is calling
At your cottage, till his power
Bring again that golden hour
Of peace and rest to every soul;
May his care of you control
All diseases, sores, or pain,
That in after-time may reign
Either in your flocks or you;

2 Well-earned morsels. (Moorman.)
Give ye all affections new,
New desires, and tempers new,
That ye may be ever true!
Now rise, and go; and, as ye pass away,
Sing to the God of Sheep that happy lay
That honest Dorus taught ye,—Dorus, he
That was the soul and god of melody.

They all sing [and strew the ground with flowers].

The Song.

All ye woods, and trees, and bowers,
All ye virtues and ye powers
That inhabit in the lake,
In the pleasant springs or brakes,
Move your feet
To our sound,
Whilst we greet
All this ground
With his honour and his name
That defends our flocks from blame.

He is great, and he is just,
He is ever good, and must
Thus be honour'd. Daffadillies,
Roses, pinks, and loved lilies,
Let us sing,
Whilst we greet
Ever holy,
Ever holy,
Ever honour'd, ever young!
Thus great Pan is ever sung!

Exeunt [all except Clorin and Satyr].

Sat. Thou divinest, fairest, brightest,
Thou most powerful maid and whitest,
Thou most virtuous and most blessed,
Eyes of stars, and golden-tressed

Like Apollo; tell me, sweetest,
What new service now is meatest
For the Satyr? Shall I stray
In the middle air, and stay
The sailing rack, or nimbly take Hold by the moon, and gently make
Suit to the pale queen of night
For a beam to give thee light?
Shall I dive into the sea,
And bring thee coral, making way
Through the rising waves that fall
In snowy fleeces? Dearest, shall
I catch thee wanton fawns, or flies
Whose woven wings the summer dyes
Of many colours? get thee fruit,
Or steal from Heaven old Orpheus' lute?
All these I'll venure for, and more,
To do her service all these woods adore.

Clo. No other service, Satyr, but thy watch
About these thickes, lest harmless people
Catch
Mischief or sad mischance.

Sat. Holy virgin, I will dance
Round about these woods as quick
As the breaking light, and prick
Down the lawns and down the vales
Faster than the windmill sails.
So I take my leave, and pray
All the comforts of the day,
Such as Phoebus' heat doth send
On the earth, may still befriend
Thee and this arbour!

Clo. And to thee
All thy master's love be free!

Exeunt.
THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

BY

JOHN FLETCHER

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

De Gard, a noble staid Gentleman, that, being newly lighted from his travels, assists his sister Oriana in her chase of Mirabel the Wild-Goose. Acted by Mr. Robert Benfield.

La Castre, the indulgent father to Mirabel. Acted by Mr. Richard Robinson.

Mirabel, the Wild-Goose, a travelled Monsieur, and great defier of all ladies in the way of marriage, otherwise their utmost loose servant, at last caught by the despided Oriana. Incomparably acted by Mr. Joseph Taylor.

Pitac, his fellow-traveller, of a lively spirit, and servant to the no less sprightly Lillia Bianca. Admirably well acted by Mr. Thomas Pollar.

Belknap, Companion to both, of a stout blunt humour, in love with Rosalura. Most naturally acted by Mr. John Lowin.

Nantolet, father to Rosalura and Lillia Bianca. Acted by Mr. William Penn.

Lucier, the rough and confident tutor to the ladies, and chief engine to entrap the Wild-Goose. Acted by Mr. Hilliard Swanston.

Oriana, the fair betrothed of Mirabel, and witty follower of the chase. Acted by Mr. Steph. Hammerton.

Rosalura, the airy daughters of Nantolet.

Lillia Bianca, | William Trigg, Sander Gough.

Petrilla, their servant. Mr. Shonck.

Mariana, an English Courtesan.

Four Women.

SCENE.—Paris.

ACT I

SCENE I. 1

Enter Monsieur De Gard and a Foot-boy.

De Gard. Sirrah, you know I have rid hard; stir my horse well, and let him want no litter.

Foot. I am sure I have run hard; would somebody would walk me, and see me litter'd.

De Gard. For I think my fellow-horse cannot in reason desire more rest, nor take up his chamber before me: But we are the beasts now, and the beasts are our masters.

De Gard. When you have done, step to the ten-crown ordinary.

Foot. Yes, sir, presently. 2

De Gard. For whom, I beseech you, sir?

Foot. For myself, I take it, sir.

De Gard. In truth, you shall not take it; 'tis not meant for you.

There's for your provender. [Gives money.] Bespeak a dinner for Monsieur Mirabel and his companions; they'll be in town within this hour. When you have done, sirrah,

1 A hall in the house of La Castre. 2 At once.

Make ready all things at my lodging for me, and wait me there.

F. Boy. The ten-crown ordinary?

De Gard. Yes, sir, if you have not forgot it.

F. Boy. I'll forget my feet first: 'tis the best part of a footman's way. Exit. De Gard. These youths, 20 for all they have been in Italy to learn thrift, and seem to wonder at men's lavish ways, yet they cannot rub off old friends, their French itcheth; they must meet sometimes to disport their bodies with good wine and good women, and good store too. 26 Let 'em be what they will, they are arm'd at all points, and then hang saving, let the sea grow high! This ordinary can fit 'em of all sizes.

Enter La Castre and Oriana.

They must salute their country with old customs.

Ori. Brother!

De Gard. My dearest sister!

Ori. Welcome, welcome! 30 Indeed, ye are welcome home, most welcome! De Gard. Thank ye.

You are grown a handsome woman, Oriana. (Blush at your faults): I am wondrous glad to see ye.—Monsieur La Castre, let not my affection to my fair sister make me be held unmannerly.
I am glad to see ye well, to see ye lusty,
Good health about ye, and in fair company;
Believe me, I am proud —

La Cast.

Fair sir, I thank ye.
Monsieur De Gard, you are welcome from your journey;
Good men have still good welcome. Give me your hand, sir.
Once more, you are welcome home. You look still younger.

De Gard. Time has no leisure to look after us;
We wander every where; Age cannot find us.

La Cast. And how does all?

De Gard. All well, sir, and all lusty.

La Cast. I hope my son be so. I doubt not, sir,
But you have often seen him in your journeys,
And bring me some fair news.

De Gard. Your son is well, sir,
And grown a proper gentleman; he is well and lusty.
Within this eight hours I took leave of him,
And over-hied him, having some slight business
That fore'd me out o' th' way. I can assure you,
He will be here to-night.

La Cast. Ye make me glad, sir,
For, o my faith, I almost long to see him.
Methinks, he has been away
De Gard. 'Tis but your tenderness.
What are three years? A love-sick wench will allow it.

His friends that went out with him are come back too,
Belleur and young Pinac. He bid me say little,
Because he means to be his own glad messenger.

La Cast. I thank ye for this news, sir. He shall be welcome,
And his friends too; indeed, I thank you heartily.
And how (for I dare say you will not flatter him)
Has Italy wrought on him? Has he mew'd 1 yet
His wild fantastic toys? They say that climate
Is a great purger of those humorous fluxes.
How is he improved, I pray ye?

De Gard. No doubt, sir, well; 55
He has borne himself a full and noble gentleman:
To speak him farther is beyond my charter.

La Cast. I am glad to hear so much good.
Come, I see
You long to enjoy your sister; yet I must entreat ye,
Before I go, to sup with me to-night,
And must not be den'td.

De Gard. I am your servant.

La Cast. Where you shall meet fair, merry,
And noble company;
My neighbour Nantolet and his two fair daughters,

De Gard. Your supper's season'd well, sir;
I shall wait upon ye.

La Cast. Till then I'll leave ye; and y'are once more welcome.

De Gard. I thank ye, noble sir! Now, Oriana,
How have ye done since I went? Have ye had your health well?
And your mind free?

Ori. You see, I am not bated;
Merry, and eat my meat.

De Gard. A good preservative.
And how have you been us'd? You know, Oriana,
Upon my going out, at your request,
I left your portion in La Castre's hands,
The main means you must stick to. For that reason,
And 'tis no little one, I ask ye, sister,
With what humanity he entertains ye,
And how ye find his courtesy?

Ori. Most ready.
I can assure you, sir, I am us'd most nobly.

De Gard. I am glad to hear it; but, I prithee, tell me
And tell me true, what end had you, Oriana,
In trusting your money here? He is no kinsman,
Nor any tie upon him of a guardian;
Nor dare I think ye doubt my prodigality.

Ori. No, certain, sir; none of all this provoked 2 me;
Another private reason.

De Gard. 'Tis not private,
Nor carried so; 'tis common, my fair sister;
Your love to Mirabel: your blushes tell it.
'Tis too much known, and spoken of too largely;
And with no little shame I wonder at it.

Ori. Is it a shame to love?

De Gard. To love undiscreetly:
A virgin should be tender of her honour,

Ori. I am as close as can be,
And stand upon as strong and honest guards too;
Unless this warlike age need a portcullis:
Yet I confess, I love him.

De Gard. Hear the people.

Ori. Now, I say, hang the people! He that dares Believe what they say dares be mad, and give
His mother, nay, his own wife, up to rumour.
All grounds of truth they build on is a tavern,
And their best censure's sack, sack in abundance;
For, as they drink, they think: they ne'er speak modestly,
Unless the wine be poor, or they want money.
Believe them! Believe Amadis de Gaul,
The Knight of the Sun, or Palmerin of England;
For these, to them, are modest and true stories.
Pray, understand me; if their tongues be truth,
And if in vino veritas be an oracle,
What woman is, or has been ever, honest?
Give 'em but ten round cups, they'll swear
Lauretia
Died not for want of power to resist Tarquin,
But want of pleasure, that he stay'd no longer;
And Portia, that was famous for her piety.
To her lov'd lord, they'll face ye out, died o' th' pox.

De Gard. Well, there is something, sister.

Ori. If there be, brother, 'tis none of their things; 'tis not yet so monstrous:

My thing is marriage; and, at his return, I hope to put their squint eyes right again.

De Gard. Marriage? 'Tis true his father is a rich man,
Rich both in land and money; he his heir,
A young and handsome man, I must confess, too;
But of such qualities, and such wild flings,
Such admirable imperfections, sister,
(For all his travel and bought experience,
I should be loth to own him for my brother.
Methinks, a rich mind in a state indifferent
Would prove the better fortune.

Ori. If he be wild, The reclaiming him to good and honest, brother,
Will make much for my honour; which, if I prosper,
Shall be the study of my love, and life too.

De Gard. Ye say well; would he thought as well, and loved too!
He marry! He'll be hanged first. He knows no more
What the conditions and the ties of love are,
The honest purposes and grounds of marriage,
Nor will know, nor be ever brought t' endeavour,
Than I do how to build a church. He was ever
A loose and strong defier of all order;
His loves are wanderers, they knock at each door,
And taste each dish, but are no residents.
Or say, he may be brought to think of marriage,
(As 't will be no small labour, thy hopes are strangers.
I know there is a labour'd match now follow'd,
Now at this time, for which he was sent for home to
Be not abus'd: Nantolet has two fair daughters,
And he must take his choice.

Ori. Let him take freely.
For all this I despair not; my mind tells me that I, and only I, must make him perfect; And in that hope I rest.

De Gard. Since y' are so confident, Prosper your hope! I'll be no adversary;
Keep yourself fair and right, he shall not wrong you.

Ori. When I forget my virtue, no man know me!

SCENE II. 2

Enter Mirabel, Pinac, Belleur, and Servants.

Mir. Welcome to Paris, once more, gentlemen!
We have had a merry and a lusty ordinary,
And wine, and good meat, and a bonning reckoning;

And let it go for once; 't is a good physic.
Only the wenches are not for my diet; They are too lean and thin, their embraces brawn-fallen.
Give me the plump Venetian, fat and husky, That meets me soft and supple; smiles upon me, As if a cup of full wine leap'd to kiss me, These slight things I affect not.

Pin. They are ill-built; Pin-buttocked, like your dainty Barbarys,
And weak 't the pasterns; they'll endure no hardness.

Mir. There's nothing good or handsome bred amongst us;
Till we are travell'd, and live abroad, we are cossomces.
Ye talk of France — a slight unseason'd country,
Abundance of gross food, which makes us blockheads.
We are fair set out indeed, and so are fore-horses:

Men say, we are great courtiers, — men abuse us;
We are wise, and valiant too, — non credo, sive nor;
Our women the best linguists, — they are parrots;
O' this side the Alps they are nothing but mere drolleries.
Ha! Roma la Santa, Italy for my money!
Their policies, their customs, their frugalities, Their courtesies so open, yet so reserv'd too, As, when you think y' are known best, ye are a stranger.

Their very pick-teeth speak more man than we do.
And season of more salt.

Pin. 'Tis a brave country; Not pester'd with your stubborn precise puppies, That turn all useful and allow'd contentments, To scabs and scruples — hang 'em, capon-worshippers.

Bel. I like that freedom well, and like their women too,
And would fain do as others do; but I am so bashful, So naturally an ass! Look ye, I can look upon 'em,
And very willingly I go to see 'em,
(There's no man willinger), and I can kiss 'em, And make a shift —

Mir. But, if they chance to frown ye, Or say, "Ye are too bold! Fir, sir, remember! I pray, sit farther off —"

Bel. 'Tis true — I am humbled, I am gone; I confess ingenuously, I am silenced; The spirit of amber cannot force me answer. 4

Pin. Then would I sing and dance —

Bel. You have wherewithal, sir.

Pin. And charge her up again.

Bel. I can be hang'd first:
Yet, where I fasten well, I am a tyrant.

Mir. Why, thou dar'st fight?
John Fletcher

Scene III.

Enter La Castre, Nantolet, Lugier, Rosalumb, and Filia Bianca.

La Castre. You and your beauteous daughters are most welcome.

Beshrew my blood, they are fair ones!—Welcome, beauties. Welcome, sweet birds. [Courtesies.

Nant. They are bound much to your La Castre. I hope we shall be nearer acquainted.

Nant. That's my hope too.

For, certain, sir, I much desire your alliance.

You see 'em; they are no gypsies. For their breeding,

It has not been so coarse but they are able

To rank themselves with women of fair fashion;

Indeed, they have been trained well.

Lug. Thank me.

Nant. Fit for the heirs of that state I shall leave 'em:

To say more, is to sell 'em. They say your son,

Now he has travell'd, must be wondrous curious
And choice in what he takes; these are no coarse ones.

Sir, here's a merry wench—let him look to himself—

All heart, I'm faith—may chance to startle him;

For all his care, and travell'd caution,

May creep into his eye. If he love gravity,

Affect a solemn face, there's one will fit him.

La Castre. So young and so demure?

Nant. She is my daughter.

Else I would tell you, sir, she is a mistrees

Both of those manners and that modesty

You would wonder at. She is no often-speaker,

But, when she does, she speaks well; nor no reveller,

Yet she can dance, and has studied the court elements,

And sings, as some say, handsomely; if a woman,

With the decency of her sex, may be a scholar,

I can assure ye, sir, she understands too.

La Castre. These are fit garments, sir.

Lug. Thank them that out 'em.

Yes, they are handsome women; they have handsome parts too,

Pretty becoming parts.

La Castre. 'Tis like they have, sir.

Lug. Yes, yes, and handsome education they have had too,

Had it abundantly; they need not blush at it.

I taught it, I'll avouch it.

For 't is a kind of bilboes to be married,

Before he manifest to the world his good parts;

Tug ever, like a rascal, at one ear?

Give me the Italian liberty!

Mir. That I study,

And that I will enjoy. Come, go in, gentlemen;

There mark how I behave myself, and follow.

Exeunt.
THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

La Cast. Ye say well, sir.

Lug. I know what I say, sir, and I say but right, sir.

I am no trumpet of their commendations
Before their father; else I should say farther.

La Cast. Pray ye, what's this gentleman?

Nant. One that lives with me, sir; a man well bred and learned, but blunt and bitter;
Yet it offends no wise man; I take pleasure in't.

Many fair gifts he has, in some of which,
That most easy to their understandings,
He's handsomely bred up my girls, I thank him.

[Laug.] I have put it to 'em, that's my part,
I have urg'd it.

It seems, they are of years now to take hold on't.

Nant. He's wondrous blunt.

La Cast. By my faith, I was afraid of him.

Does he not fall out with the gentlewomen sometimes?

Nant. No, no; he's that way moderate and discreet, sir.

Ros. If he did, we should be too hard for him.

Lug. Well said, sulphur!

Too hard for thy husband's head, if he wear not armour.

Enter Mirabel, Pinac, Belleur, De Gard, and Oriana.

Nant. Many of these bickerings, sir.

La Cast. I am glad they are no oracles.

Sure as I live, he beats them, he's so puissant.

Ori. Well, if ye do forget —

Mir. Prithée, hold thy peace.

I know thou art a pretty wench; I know thou lov'st me;
Preserve it till we have a fit time to discourse on't,
And a fit place. I'll ease thy heart, I warrant thee.

Thou seest I have much to do now.

Ori. I am answer'd, sir; with me ye shall have nothing on these conditions.

De Gard. Your father and your friends.

La Cast. You are welcome home, sir;
Bless ye, ye are very welcome! Pray, know this gentleman,

And these fair ladies.

Nant. Monsieur Mirabel,
I am much affected with your fair return, sir;
You bring a general joy.

Mir. I bring you service.

And these bright beauties, sir.

Nant. Welcome with all my heart!

Welcome with all my heart!

We thank ye, sir.

La Cast. Your friends will have their share too.

Bel. Sir, we hope

They'll look upon us, though we show like strangers.

Nant. Monsieur De Gard, I must salute you also,

And this fair gentlewoman; you are welcome from your travel too.

All welcome, all.

De Gard. We render ye our loves, sir.
The best wealth we bring home. — By your favours, beauties.

[Aside to Ori.] One of these two: you know my meaning.

Ori. Well, sir;
They are fair and handsome, I must needs confess it,
And, let it prove the worst, I shall live after it.
Whilst I have meat and drink, love cannot starve me;
For, if I die o' th' first fit, I am unhappy,
And worthy to be buried with my heels upward.

Mir. To marry, sir?

La Cast. You know I am an old man,
And every hour declining to my grave,
One foot already in; more sons I have not,
Nor more I dare not seek whilst you are worthy.

In you lies all my hope, and all my name,
The making good or wretched of my memory,
The safety of my state.

Mir. And you have provided,
Out of this tenderness, these handsome gentlewomen,
Daughters to this rich man, to take my choice of?

La Cast. I love, dear son.

Mir. 'Tis true, ye are old and feebl'd;
Would ye were young again, and in full vigour!

I love a bounteous father's life, a long one;
I am none of those that, when they shoot to ripeness,
Do what they can to break the boughs they grew on.

I wish ye many years and many riches,
And pleasures to enjoy 'em; but, for marriage,
I neither yet believe in't, nor affect it;
Nor think it fit.

La Cast. You will render me your reasons?

Mir. Yes, sir, both short and pithy, and these they are: —
You would have me marry a maid?

La Cast. A maid! what else?

Mir. Yes, there be things called widows, dead men's wills,
I never lov'd to prove those; nor never long'd yet
To be buried alive in another man's cold monument.
And there be maids appearing, and maids being;
The appearing are fantastic things, mere shadows;
And, if you mark 'em well, they want their heads, too;

Only the world, to cozen. misty eyes,
Has clapt 'em on new faces: the maids being
A man may venture on, if he be so mad to marry,

1 Desire.
2 Cheat.
If he have neither fear before his eyes, nor fortune;
And let him take heed how he gather these too: 119
For, look ye, father, they are just like melons,
Musk-melons are the emblems of these maids;
Now they are ripe, now cut ’em, they taste pleasantly,
And are a dainty fruit, digested easily;
Neglect this present time, and come to-morrow,
They are so ripe they are rotten gone, their sweetness
Run into humour, and their taste to surfeit.

Lil Cast. Why, these are now ripe, son.

Mir. I’l try them presently,
And, if I like their taste —

La Cast. ’Pray ye, please yourself, sir.

Mir. That liberty is my due, and I’ll maintain it. 120

Lady, what think you of a handsome man now?
Ros. A wholesome too, sir?

Mir. That’s as you make your bargain.
A handsome, wholesome man, then, and a kind man,
To cheer your heart up, to rejoice ye, lady?
Ros. Yes, sir, I love rejoicing.

Mir. To lie close to ye? 125

Close as a cockle? Keep the cold nights from ye?
Ros. That will be look’d for too; our bodies ask it.

Mir. And get two boys at every birth?
Ros. That’s nothing?

I have known a cobbler do it, a poor thin cobbler,
A cobbler out of mouldy cheese perform it, 120
Cabbage, and coarse black bread. Methinks, a gentleman
Should take foul scorn to have an awl out-name 1 him.

Two at a birth! Why, every house-dove has it.
That man that feeds well, promises as well too,
I should expect indeed something of worth from you.

You talk of two!

Mir. [Aside.] She would have me get two dozen.

Like buttons, at a birth.

Ros. You love to brag, sir.

If you proclaim these offers at your marriage,
(’Ye are a pretty-timber’d man, take heed.)
They may be taken hold of, and expected, 149
Yes, if not hoped for at a higher rate too.

Mir. I will take heed, and thank ye for your counsel.

Father, what think ye?

La Cast. ’Tis a merry gentlewoman;
Will make, no doubt, a good wife.

Mir. Not for me.

I marry her, and, happily, 2 get nothing: 146
In what a state am I then, father? I shall suffer,
For any thing I hear to the contrary, more majo-

1 Surpass. 2 Haply.

I were as sure to be a cuckold, father,
A gentleman of antler —

La Cast. Away, away, fool!

Mir. As I am sure to fail her expectation. 146

I had rather get the pox than get her babies.

La Cast. Ye are much to blame. If this do not affect 3 ye,
Pray, try the other; she’s of a more demure way.

Bel. [Aside.] That I had but the audacity to talk thus!

I love that plain-spoken gentlewoman admirably;
And, certain, I could go as near to please her,
If down-right doing — she has a per’lous countenance —
If I could meet one that would believe me,
And take my honest meaning without circumstance —

Mir. You shall have your will, sir; I will try the other;

But ’t will be to small use. — I hope, fair lady,
(For, methinks, in your eyes I see more mercy,) You will enjoin your lover a less penance;
And though I’ll promise much, as men are liberal,
And woe an ample sacrifice of service,
Yet your discretion, and your tenderness,
And thriftiness in love, good huswife’s carefulness
To keep the stock entire —

Lil. Good sir, speak louder,

That these may witness, too, you talk of nothing.

I should be loth alone to bear the burden
Of so much indiscretion.

Mir. Hark ye, hark ye!

Ods-bobs, 4 you are angry, lady.

Lil. Angry! no, sir;

I never own’d an anger to lose poorly.

Mir. But you can love, for all this; and delight too,
For all your set austerity to hear
Of a good husband, lady?

Lil. You say true, sir;

For, by my troth, I have heard of none these ten years.

They are so rare; and there are so many, sir,
So many longing women on their knees too,
That pray the dropping-down of these good husbands —

The dropping-down from Heaven; for they are not bred here —

That you may guess at all my hope, but hearing —

Mir. Why may not I be one?

Lil. You were near ’em once, sir,
When ye came o’er the Alps; those are near Heaven.

But since ye miss’d that happiness, there’s no hope of ye.

Mir. Can ye love a man?

Lil. Yes, if the man be lovely,
That is, be honest, modest. I would have him valiant,

3 Please. 4 God’s body!
His anger slow, but certain for his honour; 200
Travell’d he should be, but through himself 205 exactly,
For ’tis fairer to know manners well than countries. He must be no vain talker, nor no lover 210
To hear himself talk; they are bags of a wanderer,
Of one finds no retreat for fair behaviour. Would ye 215 learn more?

Mir. Yes, and like it. 220
This thing must have the strangest observation, to mark, father?

Do you hear this moral lecture? 225
La Cast. Yes, and I must say, I have My Sappho, Lelaps, and my Metaphysics, to serve you.

Do you think he will be ever firm? 230
Or, I fear not. Exeunt. 235

ACT II

Scene I.
Enter Mirabel, Pinac, and Belleu.

Mir. Ne’er tell me of this happiness; ’tis nothing;
The state 2 they bring with being sought-to, 2
I had rather make mine own play, and I will do. 3
My happiness is in mine own content, 4
And the despising of such glorious trifles. 5
As I have done a thousand more. For my humour,
Give me a good free fellow, that sticks to me, 6
A jovial fair companion; there’s a beauty!
For women, I can have too many of them; 7
Good women too, as the age reckons ’em, 8
More than I have employment for.

Pin. You are happy. 9
Mir. My only fear is, that I must be forced, 10
Against my nature, to conceal myself; 11
And put a little of my travell’d liberty 12
Out of the way, and look upon ’em seriously. 13
Methinks, this grave-carried wench — 14
Bel. Methinks, the other, 15
The home-spoken gentlewoman, that desires to be fruitful, 16
That treats of the full manage of the matter, 17
(For there lies all my aim,) that wench, me-

If I were but well set on, for she is affable, 18
If I were but hounded right, and one to teach
me — 19
She speaks to th’ matter, and comes home to

th’ point —
Now do I know I have such a body to please her
As all the kingdom cannot fit her with, I am sure on 't. 99
If I could but talk myself into her favour.
Mir. That's easily done, Bel.
Bel. That's easily said; would 't were done!
You should see then how I would lay about me.
If I were virtuous, it would never grieve me,
Or any thing that might justify my modesty; 93
But when my nature is prone to do a charity,
And my call's tongue will not help me —
Mir. Will ye go to 'em?
They cannot but take it courteously,
Pin. I'll do my part,
Though I am sure 't will be the hardest I e'er play'd yet.
A way I never tried too, which will stagger me;
And, if it do not shame me, I am happy.
Mir. Win 'em, and wear 'em; I give up my interest.
Pin. What say you, Monsieur Belleur?
Bel. Would I could say,
Or sing, or any thing that were but handsome!
I would be with her presently!
Pin. A merry ready wench.
Bel. A vengeance squibber; 1
She'll fleer me out of faith too.
Mir. I'll be near thee;
Pluck up thy heart; I'll second thee at all brunts. 46
Be angry, if she abuse thee, and beat her a little;
Some women are won that way.
Bel. And let me think: I am resolv'd to go on;
But how shall I get off again ——
Mir. I am persuaded
Thou wilt so please her, she will go near to ravish thee.
Bel. I would 't were come to that once! Let me pray a little.
Mir. Now, for thine honour, Pinac, board me this modesty; 55
Warm but this frozen snow-ball, 't will be a conquest
(Although I know thou art a fortunate wench,
And hast done rarely in thy days) above all thy ventures.
Bel. You will be ever near?
Mir. At all necessities; 99
And take thee off, and set thee on again, boy,
And cherish thee, and stroke thee.
Bel. Help me out too;
For I know I shall stick i' th' fire. If you see us close once,
Be gone, and leave me to my fortune, suddenly,
For I am then determin'd to do wonders.
Farewell, and fling an old shoe. How my heart throbs!
Would I were drunk! Farewell, Pinac; Heaven send us
A joyful and a merry meeting, man!
Pin. 1

And cheer thy heart up; and remember, Belleur,
They are but women.
Bel. I had rather they were lions.
Mir. About it; I'll be with you instantly. —
Exeunt [Belleur and Pinac].

Enter ORIANA.

Shall I ne'er be at rest? No peace of conscience?
No quiet for these creatures? Am I ordain'd
To be devour'd quick 8 by these she-cannibals?
Here's another they call handsome; I care not for her,
I ne'er look after her. When I am half-tipped,
It may be I should turn her, and pursue her; 76
Or, in my want of women, I might call for her;
But to be haunted when I have no fancy,
No maw to th' matter — [aside.] Now, why do you follow me?
Ori. I hope, sir, 'tis no blemish to my virtue;
Nor need you, out of scruple, ask that question,
If you remember ye, before your travel,
The contract you tied to me. 'Tis my love, sir,
That makes me seek ye, to confirm your memory;
And, that being fair and good, I cannot suffer.
I come to give ye thanks too.
Mir. For what, prithee? 56
Ori. For that fair piece of honesty you show'd sir,
That constant nobleness.
Ori. I'll tell you then; for refusing that free offer
Of Monsieur Nantolet's, those handsome beauties, 90
Those two prime ladies, that might well have press'd ye
If not to have broken, yet to have bow'd your promise.
I know it was for my sake, for your faith-sake,
You slipt 'em off; your honesty compelld ye;
And let me tell ye, sir, it show'd most handsomely.
Mir. And let me tell thee, there was no such matter;
Nothing intended that way, of that nature.
I have more to do with my honesty than to fool it,
Or venture it in such leak barks as women.
I put 'em off because I lov'd 'em not, 100
Because they are too queasy 4 for my temper,
And not for thy sake, nor the contract-sake,
Nor vows, nor oaths; I have made a thousand
of 'em;
They are things indifferent, whether kept or broken;
Mere venial slips, that grow not near the conscience; 105
Nothing concerns those tender parts; they are trifles;
For, as I think, there was never man yet hop'd for Either constancy or secrecy from a woman,
Unless it were an ass ordain'd for sufferance;

1 Satirist.  2 Against all attacks.  3 Alive.  4 Fastidious.
Nor to contract with such can be a tie-all. 110
So let them know again; for 'tis a justice
And a main point of civil policy,
Whate'er we say or swear, they being repro-bates,
Out of the state of faith, we are clear of all sides,
And 'tis a curious blindness to believe us. 118
Ori. You do not mean this, sure?
Mir. Yes, sure, and certain; and hold it positively, as a principle,
As ye are strange things, and made of strange fires and fluxes,
So we are allow'd as strange ways to obtain ye,
But not to hold; we are all created errant. 120
Ori. You told me other tales.
Mir. I have tales of all sorts for all sorts of women,
And protestations likewise of all sizes,
As they have vanities to make us coxcombs.
If I obtain a good turn, so it is, 125
I am thankful for it; if I be made an ass,
The 'mends are in mine own hands, or the surgeon's,
And there's an end on 't.
Ori. Do not you love me, then?
Mir. As I love others; heartily I love thee;
When I am high and lusty, I love thee cruelly.
After I have made a plentiful meal, and satisfied
My senses with all delicates, come to me,
And thou shalt see how I love thee.
Ori. Will not you marry me?
Mir. No, certain, no, for any thing I know yet.
I must not lose my liberty, dear lady, 130
And, like a wanton slave, cry for more shackles.
What should I marry for? Do I want any thing?
Am I an inch the farther from my pleasure?
Why should I be at charge to keep a wife of mine own,
When other honest married men will ease me,
And thank me too, and be beholden to me?
Thou think'st I am mad for a maidhead; thou artazen'd:
Or, if I were addicted to that diet,
Can you tell me where I should have one? Thou art eighteen now,
And, if thou hast thy maidhead yet extant,
Sure, 'tis as big as cods-head; and those grave dishes
I never love to deal withal. Dost thou see this book here? 135
[Shows a book.]
Look over all these ranks; all these are women, Maids, and pretenders to maidheads; these are my conquests;
All these I swore to marry, as I swore to thee,
With the same reservation, and most righteously:
Which I need not have done neither; for, alas,
they made no scruple,
And I enjoy 'em at my will, and left 'em.
Some of 'em are married since, and were as pure maids again,
Nay, o' my conscience, better than they were bred for;
The rest, fine sober women.

Ori. Are ye not ashamed, sir?
Mir. No, by my troth, sir; 1 there's no shame belongs to it;
I hold it as commendable to be wealthy in pleasure;
As others do in rotten sheep and pasture. 160
Enter De Gard.
Ori. Are all my hopes come to this? Is there no faith,
No troth, no modesty, in men?  1[Weeps.]
De Gard. How now, sister? Why weeping thus? Did I not prophesy?
Come, tell me why —
Ori. I am not well; pray ye pardon me. 165
Exit.

De Gard. Now, Monsieur Mirabel, what ails
my sister?
You have been playing the wag with her.
Mir. As I take it,
She is crying for a cod-piece. Is she gone?
Lord, what an age is this! I was calling for ye;
For, as I live, I thought she would have ravish'd
me.
De Gard. Ye are merry, sir. 170
Mir. Thou know'st this book, De Gard, this inventory?
De Gard. The debt-book of your mistresses;
I remember it.
Mir. Why, this was it that anger'd her; she was stark mad
She found not her name here; and cried downright
Because I would not pity her immediately, 175
And put her in my list.
De Gard. Sure, she had more modesty.
Mir. Their modesty is anger to be overdone;
They'll quarrel sooner for precedence here,
And take it in more dudgeon to be slighted,
Than they will in public meetings; 't is their natures: 180
And, alas, I have so many to despatch yet,
And to provide myself for my affairs too,
That, in good faith —
De Gard. Be not too glorious 2 foolish;
Sum not your travels up with vanities;
It'll becomes your expectation. 3
Temper your speech, sir: whether your loose story
Be true or false, (for you are so free, I fear it,) Name not my sister in 't; I must not hear it.
Upon your danger, name her not! I hold her
A gentlewoman of those happy parts and car-rriage,
A good man's tongue may be right proud to speak her.
Mir. Your sister, sir! D' ye bleach at that?
D' ye cavil?
Do you hold her such a piece she may not be play'd withal?
I have had an hundred handsomer and nobler
Have su'd to me, too, for such a courtesy; 185
Your sister comes i' the rear. Since ye are so angry,

1 Formerly used to women as well as to men.
2 Boastful.
3 The expectation formed of you.
And hold your sister such a strong recusant,
I tell ye, I may do it; and, it may be, will too;
It may be, have too; there's my free confession;
Work upon that now!
De Gard. If I thought ye had, I would work,
And work such stubborn work should make your heart ache:
But I believe ye, as I ever knew ye,
A glorious talker, and a legend-maker
Of idle tales and trifles; a depraver
Of your own truth: their honours fly about ye!
And so, I take my leave; but with this caution,
Your sword be surer than your tongue; you'll smart else.
Mir. I laugh at thee, so little I respect thee;
And I'll talk louder, and despise thy sister;
Set up a chamber-maid that shall outshine her.
And carry her in my coach too, and that will killed her.
Go, get thy rents up, go!
De Gard. Ye are a fine gentleman! Exit.
Mir. Now, have at my two youths! I'll see how they do;
How they behave themselves; and then I'll study
What wench shall love me next, and when I'll loose  her. Exit.

Scene II.
Enter Pinac and Servant.

Pin. Art thou her servant, sayest thou?
Serv. Her poor creature;
But servant to her horse, sir.

Pin. The way to her chamber, or where I may conveniently
See her, or come to talk to her?
Serv. That I can, sir;
But the question is, whether I will or no.

Pin. Why, I'll content thee.
Serv. Why, I'll content thee, then; now ye come to me.

Pin. There's for your diligence.

[Give money.]
Serv. There's her chamber, sir,
And this way she comes out, stand ye but here, sir,
You have her at your prospect or your pleasure,
Pin. Is she not very angry?
Serv. You'll find that quickly.
May be she'll call ye saucy, servy fellow,
Or some such familiar name; may be she knows
ye
And will fling a piss-pot at ye, or a pantoffle.
According as ye are in acquaintance. If she like ye,
May be she'll look upon ye; may be no;
And two months hence call for ye.

Pin. This is fine.

She is monstrous proud, then?
Serv. She is a little haughty;
Of a small body, she has a mind well mounted.
Can you speak Greek?

Pin. No, certain.
Serv. Get ye gone, then!— And talk of stars, and firmaments, and firedrakes?
Do you remember who was Adam's schoolmaster,
And who taught Eve to spin? She knows all these,
And will run ye over the beginning o' th' world
As familiar as a fiddler.
Can you sit seven hours together, and say nothing?
Which she will do, and, when she speaks, speak
oracles,
Speak things that no man understands, nor herself neither.

Pin. Thou mak'st me wonder.
Serv. Can ye smile?

Pin. Yes, willingly;
For naturally I bear a mirth about me.
Serv. She'll ne'er endure ye, then; she is ever merry;
If she see one laugh, she'll swound past aqua vitae.
Never come near her, sir; if ye chance to venture,
And talk not like a doctor, you are damn'd too.
I have told ye enough for your crown, and so,
good speed you! Exit.

Pin. I have a pretty task, if she be thus curious,
As, sure, it seems she is! If I fall off now,
I shall be laugh'd at fearfully; if I go forward,
I can but be abus'd, and that I look for;
And yet I may hit right, but 'tis unlikely.
Stay: in what mood and figure shall I attempt
her?
A careless way? No, no, that will not waken
her;
Besides, her gravity will give me line still,
And let me lose myself; yet this way often
Has hit, and handsomely. A wanton method?
Ay, if she give it leave to sink into her consideration:
But there's the doubt: if it but stir her blood
one,
And creep into the crannies of her fancy,
Set her a-gog; — but, if she chance to slight
it,
And by the power of her modesty fling it back,
I shall appear the arrant'st rascal to her,
The most licentious knave, for I shall talk lewdly.
To bear myself austerely? Rate my words?
And fling a general gravity about me,
As if I meant to give laws? But this I cannot do.
This is a way above my understanding;
Or, if I could, 'tis odds she'll think I mock
her;
For serious and sad things are ever still suspicious.
Well, I'll say something:
But learning I have none, and less good manners,
Especially for ladies. Well I'll set my best
face.
Enter Lillia Bianca and Petella.

I hear some coming. This is the first woman
I ever fear'd yet, the first face that shakes me.

Lil. Give me my hat, Petella; take this veil off,
This sullen cloud; it darkens my delights.
Come, wench, be free, and let the music warble:—

Play me some lusty measure.

[Music within, to which presently Lillia dances.]

Pin. [Aside.] This is she, sure,
The very same I saw, the very woman,
The gravity I wonder'd at. Stay, stay;
Let me be sure. Ne'er trust me, but she danceth!
Summer is in her face now, and she skippeth!
I'll go a little nearer.

Lil. Quicker time, fellows!

Enter Mirabel [and remains at the side of the stage].

I cannot find my legs yet—Now, Petella!

Pin. [Aside.] I am amaz'd; I am founder'd in my fancy!

Mir. [Aside.] Ha! say you so? Is this your gravity?

This the austerity you put upon you?
I'll see more o' this sport.

Lil. A song now!
Call in for a merry and a light song;
And sing it with a liberal spirit.

Enter a Man.

Man. Yes, madam.

Lil. And be not amaz'd, sirrah, but take us for your own company.—

[A song by the Man who then exit.]

Let's walk ourselves; come, wench. Would we had a man or two!

Pin. [Aside.] Sure, she has spied me, and will abuse me dreadfully.
She has put on this for the purpose; yet I will try her.—

[Advances.]

Madam, I would be loth my rude intrusion,
Which I must crave a pardon for —

Lil. Oh, ye are welcome,
Ye are very welcome, sir! We want such a one.

Strike up again! — I dare presume ye dance
well;
Quick, quick, sir, quick! the time steals on.

Pin. I would talk with you.

Lil. Talk as you dance.

[They dance.]

Mir. [Aside.] She'll beat him off his legs
first.

This is the finest masque!

Lil. Now, how do ye, sir?

Pin. You have given me a shrewd heat.

Lil. I'll give you a hundred.

Come, sing now, sing: for I know ye sing well;
I see ye have a singing face.

Pin. [Aside.] A fine modesty!
If I could, she'd never give me breath.—

Madam, would
I might sit and recover!

Lil. Sit here, and sing now;
Let's do things quickly, sir, and handsomely.—

[Retires.]

Pin. I am lesson'd.

Lil. 'Tis very pretty, i' faith. Give me some wine now.

Pin. I would fain speak to you.

Lil. You shall drink first, believe me.
Here's to you a lusty health. [They drink.]

Pin. I thank you, lady. — [Aside.] Would I were off again! I smell my misery;

I was never put to this rack: I shall be drunk
too.

Mir. [Aside.] If thou be'st not a right one, I have lost mine aim much:
I thank Heaven that I have escaped thee. To her, Petella!
For thou art as sure to have her, and to groan
for her.—

I'll see how my other youth does; this6 speeds trimly.

A fine grave gentlewoman, and worth much honour! Exit.

Lil. Now, how do ye like me, sir?

Pin. I like ye rarely.

Lil. Ye see, sir, though sometimes we are grace and silent,
And put on sadder dispositions,
Yet we are compounded of free parts, and sometimes too
Our lighter, airy, and our fiery mettles Break out, and show themselves: and what think you of that, sir?

Pin. Good lady, sit (for I am very weary),
And then I'll tell ye.

Lil. Fie! a young man idle!

Up, and walk; be still in action;
The motions of the body are fair beauties;
Besides, 'tis cold. 'Ods me, sir, let's walk faster!

What think ye now of the Lady Felicia?

And Bellafronte, the duke's fair daughter! ha!
Are they not handsome things? There is Duarta,

And brown Olivia —

Pin. I know none of 'em.

Lil. But brown must not be cast away, sir.

If young Lelia

Had kept herself till this day from a husband,
Why, what a beauty, sir! You know Ismena,
The fair gem of Saint-Germain's?

Pin. By my troth, I do not.

Lil. And, then, I know, you must hear of Brisac,
How unlike a gentleman —

Pin. As I live, I have heard nothing.

Lil. Strike me another galliard! 1

Pin. By this light, I cannot!

In troth, I have sprain'd my leg, madam.

Lil. Now sit ye down, sir,
And tell me why ye came hither? Why ye chose me out?
What is your business? Your errand? Despatch, despatch.

Maybe, you are some gentleman's man, and I mistook ye,

1 A lively dance.
That have brought me a letter, or a haunch of venison,
Sent me from some friend of mine.
Pin. Do I look like a carrier? You might allow me, what I am, a gentleman.
Lil. Cry ye mercy, sir! I saw ye yesterday; You are new-come out of travel; I mistook ye.
And how do all our impudent friends in Italy? Pin. Madam, I came with duty, and fair courtesy,
Service, and honour to ye.
Lil. Ye came to jeer me. Ye see I am merry, sir; I have chang’d my copy;
None of the sages now: and, pray ye, proclaim it.
Fling on me what aspersion you shall please, sir,
Of wantonness or wildness; I look for it;
And tell the world I am an hypocrite,
Mask in a fore’d and borrow’d shape; I expect it;
But not to have you believ’d: for, mark ye, sir,
I have won a nobler estimation,
A stronger tie, by my discretion,
Upon opinion (howe’r you think I fore’d it),
Than either tongue or art of yours can slugger;
And, when I please, I will be what I please, sir,
So I exceed not mean; and none shall brand it,
Either with scorn or shame, but shall be slighted.
Pin. Lady, I come to love ye.
Lil. I love yourself, sir; And, when I want observers,1 I’ll send for ye.
Heigh-ho! my fit’s almost off; for we do all by fits, sir.
If ye be weary, sit till I come again to ye.
Exit [with PETELA].

Pin. This is a wench of a dainty spirit; but Hang me, if I know yet either what to think Or make of her. She had her will of me, And baited me abundantly, I thank her; And, I confess, I never was so blurted,2 Nor never so abus’d. I must bear mine own sins.
Ye talk of travels; here’s a curious country! Yet I will find her out, or forswear my faculty. Exit.

SCENE III.4

Enter ROSALURA and ORIANA.

ROS. Ne’er vex yourself, nor grieve; ye are a fool, then.
ORI. I am sure I am made so: yet, before I suffer
Thus like a girl, and give him leave to triumph —
ROS. You say right; for, as long as he perceives ye

Sink under his proud scornings, he’ll laugh at ye.
For me, secure yourself; and, for my sister, I partly know her mind too: howsoever, To obey my father, we have made a tender Of our poor beauties to the travell’d monsieur; Yet two words to a bargain. He slights us. As skittish things, and we shun him as curious.5 May be, my free behaviour turns his stomach, And makes him seem to doubt a loose opinion.6 I must be so sometimes, though all the world saw it.

Ori. Why should not ye? Are our minds only measur’d?
As long as here ye stand secure——
Ros. Ye say true; As long as mine own conscience makes no question,
What care I for report? That woman’s miserable,
That’s good or bad for their tongues’ sake.
Come, let’s retire, And get my veil, wench. By my troth, your sorrow,
And the consideration of men’s humorous madnings,
Have put me into a serious contemplation.

Enter MIRABEL and BELLEUR.

Ori. Come, faith, let’s sit and think.
Ros. That’s all my business.

[MIRABEL] [They go into the summer-house, and sit down, ROSALURA having taken her veil from a table, and put it on.]?

Mir. Why stand’st thou peeping here? Thou great slug, forward!
Bel. She is there; peace!
Mir. Why stand’st thou here, then,5 Sneaking and peeking 8 as thou wouldst steal linen?
Hast thou not place and time?
Bel. I had a rare speech Studied, and almost ready; and your violence Has beat it out of my brains.
Mir. Hang your rare speeches! Go me on like a man.
Bel. Let me set my beard up. 30
How has Pinae performed?
Mir. He has won already;
He stands not thrumming 9 of caps thus.
Bel. Lord, what should I do! What a cold I have over my stomach! Would I had some hum! 10 Certain I have a great mind to be at her, A mighty mind.

Mir. On, fool!
Bel. Good words, I beseech ye; 35 For I will not be abus’d by both.
Mir. Adieu, then; (I will not trouble you; I see you are valiant); And work your own way.
Bel. Hist, hist! I will be rul’d; I will, i’ faith; I will go presently.

1 Moderation.
2 Contemptuously treated.
4 A garden belonging to the house of Nantolet, with a summer-house in the back-ground.
5 Fastidious.
6 Peeping.
7 This S. D. is from Dyce.
8 Strong ale.
II. iii.

THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

Will ye forsake me now, and leave me i' th' sneds?
You know I am false-hearted this way, I seech ye,
Good sweet Mirabel— I'll cut your throat, if ye leave me,
Indeed I will— sweet-heart—
Mir. I will be ready,
Still at thine elbow. Take a man's heart to thee,
And speak thy mind; the plainer still the better.
She is a woman of that free behaviour,
Indeed, that common courtesy, she cannot deny thee.
Go bravely on.
Bel. Madam— keep close about me,
Still at my back — Madam, sweet madam—
Ros. Ha! What noise is that? What saucy sound to trouble me?
Bel. What said she?
Mir. I am saucy.
Bel. [ROSALIND and ORIANA rise and come forward.]
Mir. 'Tis the better.
Bel. She comes; must I be saucy still?
Mir. More saucy.
Ros. Still troubled with these vanities?
Heaven bless us!
What are we born to? — Would you speak with any of my people?
Go in, sir; I am busy.
Bel. This is not she, sure:
Mine was a merry gentlewoman, talk'd daintily,
Talk'd of those matters that befitted women;
This is a parcel prayer-book. I'm serv'd sweetly!
And now I am to look to; I was prepar'd for th' other way.
Ros. Do you know that man?
Ori. Sure, I have seen him, lady.
Ros. Methinks 'tis pity such a lusty fellow
Should wander up and down, and want employment.
Bel. She takes me for a rogue! — You may do well, madam,
To stay this wanderer, and set him a-work,
forsooth;
He can do something that may please your ladyship.
I have heard of women that desire good breedings,
Two at a birth, or so.
Ros. The fellow's impudent.
Ori. Sure, he is craz'd.
Ros. I have heard of men too that have had good manners.
Sure, this is want of grace: indeed, 'tis great pity
The young man has been bred so ill; but this swain's age
Is full of such examples.

Bel. I am founder'd,
And some shall rue the setting of me on.
Mir. Ha! so bookish, lady? Is it possible?
Turn'd holy at the heart too? I' ll be hang'd then:
Why, this is such a feat, such an activity,
Such fast and loose! A veil too for your knavery?
O Dio, Dio!
Ros. What do you take me for, sir?
Mir. An hypocrite, a wanton, a dissembler,
Howe'er ye seem; and thus ye are to be handled—
Mark me, Belleur; — and this you love, I know it.
[Attempts to remove the veil.]
Ros. Stand off, bold sir!
Mir. You wear good clothes to this end,
Jewels; love feasts and masques.
Ros. Ye are monstrous saucy.
Mir. All this to draw on fools: and thus, thus, thus, lady. — [Attempts to remove the veil.]
You are to be lull'd.
Bel. Let her alone, I'll swinge ye else,
I will, i' faith! for, though I cannot skill o' this matter
Myself, I will not see another do it before me,
And do it worse.
Ros. Away! ye are a vain thing.
You have travell'd far, sir, to return again.
A windy and poor bladder. You talk of women,
That are not worth the favour of a common one,
The grace of her grew in an hospital!
Against a thousand such blown fooleries
I am able to maintain good woman's honours,
Their freedoms, and their fames, and I will do
it. —
Mir. She has almost struck me dumb too.
Ros. And declaim
Against your base malicious tongues, your noises,
For they are nothing else. You teach behaviours,
Or touch us for our freedoms! Teach yourselves manners,
Truth and sobriety, and live so clearly
That our lives may shine in ye; and then task us.
It seems ye are hot; the suburbs will supply ye:
Good women scorn such gamsters.
I am sorry to see this: faith, sir, live fairly.
Mir. This woman, if she hold on, may be virtuous;
'Tis almost possible: we'll have a new day.
Bel. Ye brought me on, ye foord me to this foolery.
I am sham'd, I am scorn'd, I am flur'ted; yes, I am so:
Though I cannot talk to a woman like your worship,

1 Partly a prayer-book.
2 Accuse, tax.
3 Where the houses of ill-repute were situated.
4 Dissolute fellows.
5 Flur'ted.
And use my phrases and my learn'd figures,
Yet I can fight with any man.
Mir.  I can, sir;
Bel. And I will fight.
Mir.  With whom?
Bel. With you; with any man;
For all men now will laugh at me.
Mir. Prithée, be moderate.
Bel. And I'll beat all men. Come.
Mir. I love thee dearly.
Bel. I [will] beat all that love; love has undone me.
Never tell me; I will not be a history.
Bel. Thou art not.
If I do not satisfy thee — Well, look ye do.
But, now I think on't better, 'tis impossible;
I must beat somebody. I am maul'd myself.
And I ought in justice —
Mir. No, no, no; you are cozen'd.
But walk, and let me talk to thee.
Bel. Talk wisely,
And see that no man laugh, upon no occasion;
For I shall think then 'tis at me.
Bel. Nor no more talk of this.
Mir. Dost think I am maddish?
Bel. I must needs fight yet; for I find it concerns me:
A pox on't: I must fight.
Mir. I'faith, thou shalt not.
     Exeunt.

ACT III

SCENE I.
Enter De Gard and Lugier.

De Gard. I know ye are a scholar, and can do wonders.
Lug. There's no great scholarship belongs to this, sir;
What I am, I am. I pity your poor sister,
And heartily I hate these travellers,
These gim-cracks, made of mops and motions.
There's nothing in these houses here but humings;
A bee has more brains. I grieve and vex too
The insolent licentious carriage
Of this out-facing fellow Mirabel;
And I am mad to see him prick his plumes up.
De Gard. His wrongs you partly know.
Lug. Do not you stir, sir;
Since he has begun with wit, let wit revenge it:
Keep your sword close; we'll cut his throat a new way.
I am ashamed the gentlewoman should suffer
Such base lewd wrongs.
De Gard. I will be ruled; he shall live, and Left to your revenge.

Lug. Ay, ay, I'll fit him.
He makes a common scorn of handsome women;
Modesty and good manners are his May-games;
He takes up maidenheads with a new commission, —
The church-warrant's out of date. Follow my counsel.
For I am jealous in the cause.
De Gard. I will, sir,
And will be still directed; for the truth is,
My sword will make my sister seem more monstrous.

Besides, there is no honour won on reprobates.
Lug. You are 't th' right. The slight he has show'd my pupils Sets me a fire too. Go; I'll prepare your sister.
And as I told ye —
De Gard. Yes; all shall be fit, sir.
Lug. And seriously, and handsomely.
De Gard. I warrant ye.
Lug. A little counsel more.
[Whispers.]
De Gard. 'Tis well.
Lug. Most stately:
See that observ'd; and then —
De Gard. I have ye every way.
Lug. Away, then, and be ready.
De Gard. With all speed, sir. Exit.

Enter Lellia Bianca, Rosalcura, and Oriana.

Lug. We'll learn to travel too, may be, beyond him.
Good day, fair beauties!
Lil. You have beautified us.
We thank ye, sir; ye have set us off most gallantly
With your grave precepts.
Ros. We expected husbands as
Out of your documents and taught behaviours.
Excellent husbands; thought men would run stark mad on us,
Men of all ages and all states; we expected
An inundation of desires and offers.
A torrent of trim suitors; all we did,
Or said, or purposed, to be spells about us,
Spells to provoke.
Lil. Ye have provok'd us finely!
We follow'd your directions, we did rarely,
We were stately, coy, demure, careless, light, giddy,
And play'd at all points: this, you swore, would carry.

Ros. We made love, and contemn'd love; now seem'd holy,
With such a reverent put-on reservation
Which could not miss, according to your principles;
Now gave more hope again; now close, now public,
Still up and down we beat it like a billow;
And ever those behaviours you read to us,
Subtle and new: but all this will not help us.
Lil. They help to hinder us of all acquaintance,
They have frightened off all friends. What am I better

1 Instructions.
2 Private.
For all my learning, if I love a dunce,
A handsome dunce? To what use serves my reading?
You should have taught me what belongs to horses,
Dogs, dice, hawks, banquets, masques, free and fair meetings,
To have studied gowns and dressings.
Lug. Ye are not mad, sure!
Ros. We shall be, if we follow your encouragements.
I'll take mine own way now.
Lil. And I my fortune;
We may live maids else till the moon drop mill-stones.
I see, your modest women are taken for monkisters;
A dowry of good breeding is worth nothing.
Lug. Since ye take it so to th' heart, pray ye, give me leave yet.
And ye shall see how I'll convert this heretic.
Mark how this Mirabel—
Lil. Name him no more;
For, though I long for a husband, I hate him,
And would be married sooner to a monkey,
Or to a Jack of Straw, than such a juggler.
Ros. I am of that mind too. He is too nimble,
And plays at fast and loose too learnedly,
For a plain-meaning woman; that's the truth
on't.
Here's one too, that we love well, would be angry;
And reason why. — No, no, we will not trouble
ye,
Nor him at this time: may he make you happy!
We'll turn ourselves loose now to our fair fortunes;
And the downright way—
Lil. The winning way we'll follow;
We'll bait that men may bite fair, and not be frighted.
Yet we'll not be carried so cheap neither; we'll have some sport.
Some mad-morris or other for our money, tutor.
Lug. 'Tis like enough: prosper your own devices!
Ye are old enough to choose. But, for this gentlewoman,
So please her give me leave—
Ori. I shall be glad, sir,
To find a friend whose pity may direct me.
Lug. I'll do my best, and faithfully deal for
ye;
But then ye must be rul'd.
Ori. In all, I vow to ye.
Ros. Do, do: he has a lucky hand sometimes,
I'll assure ye,
And bents the recovery of a lost lover deadly.
Lug. You must away straight.
Ori. Yes.
Lug. And I'll instruct ye:
Here ye can know no more.
Ori. By your leave, sweet ladies;
And all our fortunes arrive at our own wishes!
Lil. Amen, amen!
Lug. I must borrow your man.
Lil. Pray, take him;
He is within. To do her good, take any thing.
Take us and all.
Lug. No doubt, ye may find takers;
And so, we'll leave ye to your own dispose.
Ros. We'll go a brave way, fear not;
A safe and sure way too; and yet a by-way.
I must confess I have a great mind to be mar-rried.
Lil. So have I too a grudging of good-will that way,
And would as fain be despatch'd. But this Monsieur Quicksilver—
Ros. No, no; we'll bar him, bye and main.2
Let him trample;
There is no safety in his surdity.3
A navalny-royal of women are too few for him;
He keeps a journal of his gentleness,
And will go near to print his fair despatches,
And call it his "Triumph over time and women."
Let him pass out of memory! What think you
Of his two companions?
Lil. Pinac, methinks, is reasonable;
A little modesty he has brought home with
him,4
And might be taught, in time, some handsome duty.
Ros. They say, he is a wencher too.
Lil. I like him better;
A free light touch or two becomes a gentleman,
And sets him seemly off: so he exceed not,
But keep his compass clear, he may be lookt at.
I would not marry a man that must be taught,
And conjur'd up with kisses; the best game
Is play'd still by the best gamblers.
Ros. Fie upon thee!
What talk hast thou!
Lil. Is he not alone, and merry?
Why should we be ashamed to speak what we think? Thy gentleman,
The tall fat fellow, he came to see thee —
Ros. Is't not a goodly man?
Lil. A wondrous goodly!
H's weight enough, I warrant thee. Mercy upon me,
What a serpent wilt thou seem under such a
St. George!
Ros. Thou art a fool! Give me a man brings mettle,
Brings substance with him, needs no broths to lure him.
These little fellows shew like fleas in boxes,
Hop up and down, and keep a stir to vex us.
Give me the puissant pike; take you the small shot.
Lil. Of a great thing, I have not seen a duller;
Therefore, methinks, sweet sister —
Ros. Peace, he's modest;
A bashfulness; which is a point of grace,
wench:

1 Secret inclination.
2 Entirely: a phrase from the game of hazard.
3 Arrogance.
4 Limits.
5 Perhaps lard, fatten.
But, when these fellows come to moulding,
To heat, and handling — As I live, I like him;
    Enter MIRABEL.
And, methinks, I could form him.

_Lit._ Peace; the fire-drake. _Mir._ Bless ye, sweet beauties, sweet incomparable ladies.

Sweet wits, sweet honours! Bless you, learned lady!
And you, most holy nun, bless your devotions!

_Lit._ And bless your brains, sir, your most pregnant brains, sir!
They are in travail; may they be delivered.

Of a most hopeful wild-goose!

_Ros._ Bless your manhood!
They say ye are a gentleman of action,
A fair accomplish'd man, and a rare engineer.
You have a trick to blow up maidensheads,
A subtle trick, they say abroad.

_Mir._ I have, lady.
_Ros._ And often glory in their ruins.

_Mir._ Yes, forsooth; I have a speedy trick, please you to try it;
My engine will despatch you instantly.

_Ros._ I would I were a woman, sir, fit for you!

As there be such, no doubt, may engine you too;

May, with a counter-mine, blow up your valour:

But, in good faith, sir, we are both too honest;
And, the plague is, we cannot be persuaded;
For, look you, if we thought it were a glory
To be the last of all your lovely ladies —

_Mir._ Come, come, leave prating: this has spoil'd your market!

This pride and put-up heart will make ye fast, ladies,

Fart when ye are hungry too.

_Ros._ The more our pain, sir.

_Lit._ The more our health, I hope too.

_Mir._ Your behaviours have made men stand amaz'd; those men that lov'd ye,

Men of fair states and parts. Your strange evolutions

Into I know not what, nor how, nor wherefore;
Your scorns of those that came to visit ye;
Your studied whim-whams and your fine set faces —

What have these got ye? Proud and harsh opinions.

A travell'd monster was the strangest creature,
The wildest monster to be wond'red at;
His person made a public scoff, his knowledge
(As if he had been bred mongst bears and bandogs)

Shun'd and avoided; his conversation snuff'd at; —

What harvest brings all this?

_Ros._ I pray you, proceed, sir.

_Mir._ Now ye shall see in what esteem a traveller,

An understanding gentleman, and a monsieur,
Is to be held; and, to your griefs, confess it,
Both to your griefs and galls.

_Lit._ In what, I pray ye, sir?

We would be glad to understand your excellence.

_Mir._ Go on, sweet ladies; it becomes ye rarely!
For me, I have blest me from ye; scoff on seriously.
And note the man ye mock'd. You, Lady Learning,

Note the poor traveller that came to visit you,
That flat unfurnish'd fellow; note him throughly;
You may chance to see him anon.

_Lit._ 'Tis very likely.

_Mir._ And see him courted by a travell'd lady,
 Held dear and honour'd by a virtuous virgin;
May be, a beauty not far short of yours neither;
It may be, clearer.

_Lit._ Not unlikely.

_Mir._ Younger:

As killing eyes as yours, a wit as poigniant;
May be, a state, too, that may top your fortune.
Inquire how she thinks of him, how she holds him;

His good parts, in what precious price already;
Being a stranger to him, how she courts him;
A stranger to his nation too, how she dotes on him.
Inquire of this; he sick to know: curse, lady,
And keep your chamber; cry, and curse: a sweet one,

A thousand in yearly land, well bred, well friended,

Travell'd, and highly followed for her fashions.

_Lit._ Bless his good fortune, sir!

_Mir._ This scurvy fellow, I think they call his name Finch, this serving-man

That brought ye venison, as I take it, madam,

Note but this scab: 'tis strange that this coarse creature,

That has no more set-off but his juggling's,

His travell'd tricks —

_Lit._ Good sir, I grieve not at him,
Nor envy his fortune: yet I wonder.

He's handsome; yet I see no such perfection.

_Mir._ Would I had his fortune! For 'tis a woman

Of that sweet-temper'd nature, and that judgment,

Besides her state, that care, clear understanding,

And such a wife to bless him —

_Ros._ Pray you, whence is she?

_Mir._ Of England, and a most accomplish'd lady;

So modest that men's eyes are frighted at her,
And such a noble carriage —

_Enter a Boy._

_How now, sirrah?

Boy._ Sir, the great English lady —

_Mir._ What of her, sir?

_Estates._

_Ft. conventions._

_Dogs kept chained on account of their fierceness._

_Treated contemptuously._
Boy. Has newly left her coach, and coming this way,
Where you may see her plain: Monsieur Pinac
The only man that leads her.

Enter PINAC, MARIANA, and Attendants.

Mir. He is much honoured; 216
Would I had such a favour! (Exit Boy.)

Envy, and vex, and rail!
Ros. You are short of us, sir.
Mir. Bless your fair fortune, sir!
Pin. I nobly thank ye.
Mir. Is she married, friend?
Pin. No, no.
Mir. A goodly lady;
A sweet and delicate aspect! — Mark, mark,
And wonder! —

Hast thou any hope of her?
Pin. A little.
Mir. Follow close, then;

Lose not that hope.
Pin. To you, sir.
[Mariana courtesy to Mirabel.]
Mir. Gentle lady!
Ros. She is fair, indeed.
Lil. I have seen a fairer; yet
She is well.
Ros. Her clothes sit handsome too.
Lil. She dresses prettily.
Ros. And, by my faith, she is rich; she looks still sweeter.

A well-bred woman, I warrant her.
Lil. Do you hear, sir?
May I crave this gentlewoman's name?
Pin. Mariana, lady.
Lil. I will not say I owe ye a quarrel, monsieur,
For making me your stale;  a noble gentleman
Would have had more courtesy, at least more
faith,
Than to turn off his mistress at first trial.
You know not what respect I might have show'd ye;
I find ye have worth.
Pin. I cannot stay to answer ye;
Ye see my charge. I am beholding to ye
For all your merry tricks ye put upon me,
Your bobs, and base accounts. I came to love
Ye,
To woo ye, and to serve ye; I am much indebted to ye
For dancing me off my legs, and then for walking
me;
For telling me strange tales I never heard of,
Might to abuse me; for mistaking me.
When you both knew I was a gentleman,
And one deserv'd as rich a match as you are.
Lil. Be not so bitter, sir.
Pin. You see this lady:
She is young enough and fair enough to please
me;
A woman of a loving mind, a quiet,
And one that weighs the worth of him that loves her:

1 Stalking-horse.  3 Bitter jests.

I am content with this, and bless my fortune.
Your curious wits, and beauties —

Lil. Faith, see me once more.
Pin. I dare not trouble ye.
Lil. May I speak to your lady?
Pin. I pray ye, content yourself. I know ye are bitter,
And, in your bitterness, ye may abuse her;
Which if she comes to know (for she understands ye not),
It may breed such a quarrel to your kindred,
And such an indiscretion fling on you too
(For she is nobly friended) —

Lil. [Aside.] I could eat her.
Pin. Rest as ye are, a modest noble gentle-
woman,
And afford your honest neighbours some of your prayers.

Exeunt [Pinac, MARIANA, and Attendants].

Mir. What think you now?
Lil. Faith, she's a pretty whiting;
She has got a pretty catch too.

Mir. You are angry,
Monstrous angry now, grievously angry;
And the pretty heart does swell now.
Lil. No, in troth, sir.
Mir. And it will cry anon, "A pox upon it!"
And it will curse itself, and eat no meat, lady;
And it will sigh.
Indeed, you are mistaken;
It will be very merry.

Ros. Why, sir, do you think
There are no more men living, nor no hand-
Some,
Than he or you? By this light, there be ten thousand,
Ten thousand thousand! Comfort yourself,
Dears Monsieur;
Faces, and bodies, wits, and all abiliments —
There are so many we regard 'em not.

Enter BELLEUR and two Gentlemen.

Mir. That such a noble lady — I could burst
now! —
So far above such trifles —

Bel. You did laugh at me;
And I know why ye laughed.
1 Gent. I pray ye, be satisfied:
If we did laugh, we had some private reason,
And not at you.
2 Gent. Alas, we know you not, sir!
Bel. I'll make you know me. Set your faces soberly;
Stand this way, and look sad; I'll be no May-game;
Sadder, demurer yet.

Ros. What is the matter?
What ails this gentleman?
Bel. Go off now backward, that I may behold ye;
And not a simper, on your lives!
[Exeunt Gentlemen, walking backwards.]

Lil. He's mad, sure.
Bel. Do you observe me too? I may look on ye.
Mir. Why do you grin? I know your mind.
Bel. You do not.
You are strangely humorous. Is there no mirth or pleasure?
But you must be the object?
The very word shall raise a general sadness,
For the disgrace this scurvy woman did me,
This proud pert thing. Take heed ye laugh not at me,
Provoke me not; take heed.
Ros. I would fain please ye;
Do any thing to keep ye quiet.
Bel. I hear me.
Till I receive a satisfaction
Equal to the disgrace and scorn ye gave me,
Ye are a wretched woman; till thou woo'at me,
And I scorn thee as much, as seriously
Jeer and abuse thee; ask what gill thou art,
Or any baser name; I'll proclaim thee,
I will so sing thy virtue, so be-paint thee —
Ros. Nay, good sir, be more modest.
Bel. Do you laugh again? —
Because ye are a woman, ye are lawless,
And out of compass of an honest anger.
Ros. Good sir, have a better belief of me.
Lug. Away, dear sister!
[Exit [with Rosaluma].
Mir. Is not this better now, this seeming madness,
Than falling out with your friends?
Bel. Have I not frightened her?
Mir. Into her right wits, I warrant thee.
Follow this humour,
And thou shalt see how prosperously 'twill guide thee.
Bel. I am glad I have found a way to woo yet; I was afraid once
I never should have made a civil suitor.
Well, I'll about it still.
Bel. Do, do, and prosper.
What sport do I make with these fools! What pleasure
Feeds me, and fats my sides at their poor innocence!

Enter Lugier, [disguised.]
Wooing and wiving — hang it! Give me mirth,
Witty and dainty mirth! I shall grow in love, sure,
With mine own happy head.
Who's this? — To me, sir? —
[Aside.] What youth is this?
Lug. Yes, sir, I would speak with you, if your name be Monsieur Mirabel.
Mir. You have hit it;
Your business, I beseech you?
Lug. This it is, sir;
There is a gentlewoman hath long time affected you,
And lov'd you dearly.
Mir. Turn over, and end that story;

'Tis long enough: I have no faith in women, sir.
Lug. It seems so, sir. I do not come to woo for her,
Or sing her praises, though she well deserve 'em;
I come to tell ye, ye have been cruel to her,
Unkind and cruel, falsers of faith, and careless,
Taking more pleasure in abusing her,
Wresting her honour to your wild disposses,
Than noble in requiring her affection;
Which, as you are a man, I must desire ye (A gentleman of rank) not to persist in,
No more to load her fair name with your injuries.
Mir. Why, I beseech you, sir?
Lug. Good sir, I'll tell ye.
And I'll be short; I'll tell ye because I love ye,
Because I would have you shun the shame may follow.
There is a nobleman, new come to town, sir,
A noble and a great man, that affects her, (A countryman of mine, a brave Savoyan, Nephew to th' duke) and so much honors her,
To touch at any thing concerns her honour,
Believe, most dangerous. Her name is Oriane,
And this great man will marry her. Take heed, sir;
For howsoe'er her brother, a staid gentleman,
Shall things pass upon better hopes, this lord, sir,
Is of that fiery and that poignant metal,
Especially provok'd on by affection.
That 'twill be dangerous to pursue your old way,
To touch at any thing concerns her honour,
Believe, most dangerous. Her name is Oriane,
And this great man will marry her. Take heed, sir;
For how soe'er her brother, a staid gentleman,
Shall things pass upon better hopes, this lord, sir,
Is of that fiery and that poignant metal,
Especially provok'd on by affection.
That 'twill be hard — but you are wise.
Mir. A lord, sir?
Lug. Yes, and a noble lord.
Mir. Send her good fortune!
This will not stir her lord. A baroness!
Say ye so? Say ye so? By 'r lady, a brave title!
Top and top-gallant now! Save her great ladyship!
I was a poor servant of hers, I must confess, sir,
And in those days I thought I might be joyous,
And make a little bold to call in to her;
But, haste; now I know my rules and distance;
Yet, if she want an usher, such an implement,
One that is thoroughly paed, a clean-made gentleman,
Can hold a hanging up with approbation,
Plant his hat formally, and wait with patience,
I do beseech you, sir —
Lug. Sir, leave your scoffing,
And, as ye are a gentleman, deal fairly.
I have given ye a friend's counsel; so, I'll leave ye.
Mir. But, hark ye, hark ye, sir; is 't possible
I may believe what you say?
Lug. You may choose, sir.
Mir. No baits, no fish-hooks, sir? No gins?
No nooses?
No pitfalls to catch puppies?
Lug. I tell ye certain:

1 Wanton wench.
2 Jovial.
3 Ital. "enough."
You may believe; if not, stand to the danger! Exit.

Mir. A lord of Savoy, says he? The duke's nephew?
A man so mighty? By lady, a fair marriage!
For my faith, a handsome fortune! I must leave praying:
For, to confess the truth, I have abus'd her, 310
For which I should be sorry, but that will seem survy.
I must confess she was, ever since I knew her,
As modest as she was fair; I am sure she lov'd me;
Her means good, and her breeding excellent;
And for my sake she has refus'd fair matches.
I may play the fool finely. — Stay: who are these?

Re-enter De Gard with Oriana, [both of them disguised, and in rich dresses;] and Attendants.

[Aside.] 'T is she, I am sure; and that the lord, it should seem.
He carries a fair port, is a handsome man too.
I do begin to feel I am a coxcomb. 1
Ori. Good my lord, choose a nobler; for I know
I am so far below your rank and honour,
That what ye can say this way I must credit
But spoken to heget your sport. Alas, sir,
I am so far off from deserving you,
My beauty so unfit for your affection,
That I am grown the scorn of common railers,
Of such injurious things that, when they cannot Reach at my person, lie with my reputation!
I am poor, besides.
De Gard. Ye are all wealth and goodness;
And none but such as are the scum of men, 500
The ulcers of an honest state, spite-weavers,
That live on poison only, like swoln spiders,
Dare once profane such excellence, such sweetness.
Mir. This man speaks loud indeed.
De Gard. Name but the men, lady; let me but know these poor and base depravers,
Lay but to my revenge their persons open,
And you shall see how suddenly, how fully,
For your most beauteous sake, how direfully,
I'll handle their desipes. Is this thing one?
Be what he will —
Mir. Sir?
De Gard. Dare your malicious tongue, sir —
Mir. I know you not, nor what ye mean.
Ori. Good my lord —
De Gard. If he, or any he —
Ori. I beseech your honour
This gentleman's a stranger to my knowledge;
And, no doubt, sir, a worthy man.
De Gard. Your mercy! — 406
But, had he been a tainter of your honour,
A blast of those beauties reign within ye —
But we shall find a fitter time. Dear lady,
As soon as I have freed ye from your guardian,
And done some honour'd offices unto ye, 410
I'll take ye with those faults the world flings on ye.

And dearer than the whole world I'll esteem ye! Exit [with Oriana and Attendants].

Mir. This is a thundering lord: I am glad I scap'd him.
How lovingly the wench disclaim'd my villany!
I am vex'd now heartily that he shall have her.
Not that I care to marry, or to lose her,
But that this bilbo-lord 2 shall reap that maidenhead.
That was my due; that he shall rig and top her:
I'd give a thousand crowns now, he might miss her.

Enter a Servant.

Serv. Nay, if I bear your blows, and keep your counsel,
You have good luck, sir: I teach ye to strike lighter.
Mir. Come hither, honest fellow: canst thou tell me
Where this great lord lies, this Savoy lord?
Thou met'st at him;
He now went by thee, certain.
Serv. Yes, he did, sir; I know him, and I know you are fool'd.
Mir. Come hither: 425
Here's all this, give me truth. [Gives money.] Serv. Not for your money,
(And yet that may do much!) but I have been beaten,
And by the worshipful contrivers beaten, and I'll tell ye:
This is no lord, no Savoy lord.
Mir. Go forward.
Serv. This is a trick, and put upon you grossly.
By one Lugier. The lord is Monsieur De Gard, sir,
An honest gentleman, and a neighbour here;
Their ends you understand better than I, sure.
Mir. Now I know him; know him now plain.
Serv. I have discharg'd my colours, 3 so God bye, sir! —
Exit. Mir. What a purblind puppy was I. Now I remember him;
All the whole cast on 's face, though it were umber'd, 4
And mask'd with patches. What a dunder-whelp, 5
To let him dominate thus! How he strutted,
And what a load of lord he clapt upon him! 46
Would I had him here again! I would so bounce him,
I would so thank his lordship for his lewd 6
plot! 7
Do they think to carry it away, with a great band made of bird-pots, 8
And a pair of pin-buttock'd breeches? — Ha! 9
't is he again;
He comes, he comes, he comes! have at him! 46

1 Swaggering lord.
2 Several editors read choler.
3 Stupid dog.
4 Brownd.
5 Vile.
6 Apparently some extravagance of dress.
Re-enter De GARD, ORIANA, [both disguised as before and Attendants.]

[MIRABEL sings.]

My Savoy lord, why dost thou frown on me?
And wilt that favour never sweeter be?
Wilt thou, I say, for ever play the fool?
De Gard, be wise, and, Savoy, go to school!
My lord De Gard, I thank you for your antic; my lady bright, that will be sometimes frantic;
You worthy train, that wait upon this pair,
Send you more wit, and them a bouncing hair?

And so I take my humble leave of your honours! Exit.

De Gard. We are discover'd; there's no remedy.

Lillia Bianca's man, upon my life,
In stubbornness, because Lugier corrected him—
A shameless slave! Plague on him for aascal! - Ori. I was in a perfect hope. The bane in't is now,
He will make mirth on mirth, to persecute us,
De Gard. We must be patient; I am vex'd to the proof too.
I'll try once more; then, if I fail, here's one speaks. [Puts his hand on his sword.]
Ori. Let me be lost and scorn'd first!
De Gard. Well, we'll consider.

Away, and let me shift; I shall be hooted else. Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I.³

Enter LUGIER, LILLIA BIANCA, and Servant [carrying a willow garland].

Lug. Faint not, but do as I direct ye: trust me.
Believe me too; for what I have told ye, lady, As true as you are Lillia, is authentic;
I know it, I have found it: 'tis a poor courage
Flies off for one repulse. These travellers shall find, before we have done, a home-spun
A plain French understanding, may cope with 'em.
They have had the better yet, thank your sweet squire here!
And let 'em brag. You would be reveng'd?
Lil. Yes, surely.
Lug. And married too?
Lil. I think so.
Lug. Then be commissell'd; ¹⁰
You know how to proceed. I have other irons
Heating as well as yours, and I will strike
Three blows with one stone home. Be rul'd, and happy;
And so, I leave ye. Now is the time.
Lil. I am ready.
If he do come to dor' me. [Exit Lugier.]
Serv. Will ye stand here, is

² Bairn.
³ A street before the lodging of Pinac.

And let the people think ye are God knows what, mistress?
Let boys and prentices presume upon ye?
Lil. Frithee, hold thy peace.
Serv. Stand at his door that hates ye?
Lil. Frithee, leave prating.
Serv. Fray ye, go to the tavern: I'll give ye a pint of wine there.
If any of the mad-cap gentlemen should come by,
That take up women upon special warrant, you were in a wise case now.

Enter MIRABEL, PINAC, MARIANA, Priest, and Attendants.

Lil. Give me the garland;
And wait ye here. [Takes the garland from Servant, who retires.]

Mir. She is here to seek thee, sirrah.
I told thee what would follow; she is mad for thee.
Show, and advance. — So early stirring, lady? It shows a busy mind, a fancy troubled.
A willow garland too? Is 't possible?
'T is pity so much beauty should lie musty;
But 't is not to be help'd now.
Lil. The more's my misery. — Good fortune to ye, lady! you deserve it;
To me, too late repentance! I have sought it.
I do not envy, though I grieve a little,
You are mistress of that happiness, those joys,
That might have been, had I been wise — but fortune —
Pin. She understands ye not; pray ye, do not trouble her;
And do not cross me like a hare thus; 't is as ominous.
Lil. I come not to upbraid your levity
(Though ye made show of love, and though I lik'd ye),
To claim an interest (we are yet both strangers; But what we might have been, had you persever'éd, sir!) To be an eye-sore to your loving lady: This garland shows I give myself forsaken (Yet, she must pardon me, 't is most unwillingly); And all the power and interest I had in ye (As, I persuaded myself, somewhat ye lov'd me) Thus patiently I render up, I offer To her that must enjoy ye, and so bless ye; Only, I heartily desire this courtesy, And would not be den't'd, to wait upon ye This day, to see ye tied, then no more trouble ye.
Pin. It needs not, lady.
Lil. Good sir, grant me so much.
Pin. 'Tis private, and we make no invitation.
Lil. My presence, sir, shall not proclaim it public.
Pin. May be, 't is not in town.
Lil. I have a coach, sir, And a most ready will to do you service.
Of wife can steer you, but the noble nature, 100
The diligence, the care, the love, the patience:
She makes the pilot, and preserves the husband,
That knows and reckons every rib he is built
on.
But this I tell ye, to my shame.
Pin.
I admire ye;
And now am sorry that I aim beyond ye. 108 Mir. [Aside.] So, so, so: fair and softly! She is thine own, boy,
She comes now without lure.
Pin.
But that it must needs
Be reckon'd to me as a wantonness,
Or worse, a madness, to forsake a blessing,
A blessing of that hope——
Lil.
I dare not urge ye; 110
And yet, dear sir —
Pin.
'Tis most certain, I had rather,
If 't were in mine own choice — for you are my country-woman,
A neighbour here, born by me; she a stranger,
And who knows how her friends —
Lil.
Do as you please, sir;
For ye be fast, not all the world — I love ye. 115
It is most true, and clear I would persuade ye;
And I shall love ye still.
Pin.
Go, get before me —
So much ye have won upon me — do it presently.
Here's a priest ready — I'll have you.
Lil.
Not now, sir; 119
No, you shall pardon me. Advance your lady;
I dare not hinder your most high preferment:
'Tis honour enough for me I have unmask'd
you.
Pin.
How's that?
Lil. I have caught ye, sir. Alas, I am no
stateswoman,
Nor no great traveller, yet I have found ye; 125
I have found your lady too, your beauteous lady;
I have found her birth and breeding too, her discipline,
Who brought her over, and who kept your lady,
And, when he laid her by, what virtuous nun-
ner
Receiv'd her in: I have found all these. Are ye blank now?
Methinks, such travell'd wisdoms should not fool thus,—
Such excellent indiscretions!
Mir.
How could she know this?
Lil.
'Tis true she's English-born; but most part French now,
And so I hope you'll find her to your comfort.
Alas, I am ignorant of what she cost ye! 135
The price of these hired clothes I do not know,
gentlemen!
Those jewels are the broker's, how ye stand bound for 'em!
Pin.
Will you make this good?
Lil.
Yes, yes; and to her face, sir,
That she is an English whore, a kind of flingdust,
One of your London light-o'loves, a right one;
Come over in thin pumps and half a petticoat,
One faith, and one smock, with a broken haberdasher —
I know all this without a conjurer.
Her name is Jumping Joan, an ancient sin-weaver;
She was first a lady's chambermaid, there
slipp'd,
And broke her leg above the knee; departed,
And set up shop herself; stood the fierce conflicts
Of many a furious term; there lost her colours,
And last slipp'd over hither,
Sir. We are betray'd!
Lil. Do you come to fright me with this mystery?
To stir me with a stink none can endure, sir?
I pray ye, proceed; the wedding will become ye:
Who gives the lady? You? An excellent fa-thor!
A careful man, and one that knows a beauty!
Send ye fair shipping, sir! and so, I'll leave ye.
Be wise and manly; then I may chance to love ye!
Exit [with Servant].
Mir. As I live, I am asham'd this wench has reach'd me,
Monstrous asham'd; but there's no remedy.
This skew'd-eye'd carrion —
Pin. This I suspected ever.— Come, come, uncase; we have no more use of ye; Your clothes must back again.
Mari. Sir, you shall pardon me;
'Tis not our English use to be degraded.
If you will visit me, and take your venture,
You shall have pleasure for your properties.
And so, sweet heart —
[Exit.]
Mir. Let her go, and the devil go with her!
We have never better luck with these preludiums.
Come, be not daunted; think she is but a
woman,
And, let her have the devil's wit, we'll reach
her!

Scene II.

Enter Rosalina and Lugier.
Ros. You have now redeem'd my good opinion, tutor,
And ye stand fair again.
Lug. I can but labour,
And sweat in your affairs, I am sure Belleur
Will be here instantly, and use his anger,
His wond'rous harshness.
Ros. I hope he will not beat me.
Lug. No, sure, he has more manners. Be you ready.
Ros. Yes, yes, I am; and am resolv'd to fit
him,
With patience to outdo all he can offer.
But how does Oriana?

1 In term-time London was full of strangers from the country. (Dyce.)
2 A public walk.
To threaten gentlewomen! Thou a man! A Maypole,
A great dry pudding.
Be angry, if thou dar'st.
Bel. The Lord deliver me!
4 Wom. Do but look securily upon this lady,
Or give us one foul word! — We are all mistaken;
This is some mighty dairy-maid in man's clothes.
Lil. I am of that mind too.
Bel. [Aside.] What will they do to me?
Lil. And hired to come and abuse us. — A man has manners;
A gentleman, civility and breeding: —
Some tinker's trull, with a beard glüd on.
1 Wom. Let's search him,
And, as we find him —
Bel. Let me but depart from ye,
Sweet Christian women!
Lil. Hear the thing speak, neighbours.
Bel. 'Tis but a small request: if o'er I trouble ye,
If e'er I talk again of beating women,
Or beating any thing that can but turn to me;
Of ever thinking of a handsome lady
But virtuously and well; of ever speaking
But to her honour,—this I'll promise ye,
I will take rhubarb, and purge choler,
And abundantly I'll purge.
Lil. I'll send ye broths, sir. 101
Bel. I will be laugh'd at, and endure it patiently;
I will do any thing.
Ros. I'll be your baii, then.
When ye come next to woo, pray ye come not boisterously,
And furnish'd like a bear-ward. 6
Bel. No, in truth, forsooth.
Ros. I scented ye long since.
Bel. I was to blame, sure:
I will appear a gentleman.
Ros. 'Tis the best for ye,
For a true noble gentleman's a brave thing.
Upon that hope, we quit ye. You fear seriously?
Bel. Yes, truly do I; I confess I fear ye,
And honour ye, and any thing.
Ros. Farewell, then.
Wom. And, when ye come to woo next,
bring more mercy.

Exeunt [all except BELLEUR].

Enter two Gentlemen.

Bel. A dairy-maid! A tinker's trull! Heaven bless me!
Sure, if I had provok'd 'em, they had quarter'd me.
I am a most ridiculous ass, now I perceive it;
A coward, and a knave too.
Gent. 'Tis the mad gentleman; 118
Let's set our faces right.

1 Arrogance. 2 Handsome. 3 Gulled.
Bos. No, no; laugh at me, and laugh aloud.

2 Gent. We are better manner’d, sir. I do deserve it; call me patch 1 and puppy, and beat me, if you please.

Bel. Now, or either that! Ye are an ass, then, a coxcomb, and a calf! I am a great calf.

Bel. Kick me a little now. Why, when! [They kick him.] Sufficient. Now laugh aloud, and scorn me. So good b’ ye! And ever, when ye meet me, laugh.

Gentlemen. We will, sir. 125

SCENE III. 2

Enter NANTOLET, LA CASTRE, DE GARD, LUCIER, and MIRABEL.

Mir. Your patience, gentlemen; why do ye bait me?

Nant. Is’t not a shame you are so stubborn-hearted, So stony and so dull, to such a lady, Of her perfections and her misery?

Lug. Does she not love ye? Does not her distraction

For your sake only, her most pitted lunacy

Of all but you, show ye? Does it not compel ye?

Mir. Soft and fair, gentlemen; pray ye, proceed temperately.

Lug. If ye have any feeling, any sense in ye, The least touch of a noble heart —

La Cast. Let him alone:

It is his glory that he can kill beauty.

— Ye bear my stamp, but not my tenderness; Your wild unsavoury courses let 3 that in ye! For shame, be sorry, though ye cannot cure her;

Show something of a man, of a fair nature.

Mir. Ye make me mad! De Gard. Let me pronounce this to ye:

You take a strange felicity in slighting

And wronging women, which my poor sister feels now;

Heaven’s hand be gentle on her! Mark me, sir,

That very hour she dies (there’s small hope otherwise),

That minute, you and I must grapple for it;

Either your life or mine.

Mir. Be not so hot, sir; I am not to be wroth with by these policies, 25 In truth, I am not; nor do I fear the tricks, Or the high-sounding threats, of a Savayan.

I glory not in cruelty, (ye wrong me,) Nor grow up water’d with the tears of women.

This let me tell ye, howsoever I show to ye, 30 Wild, as you please to call it, or self-will’d, When I see cause, I can both do and suffer, Freely and feelingly, as a true gentleman.

1 Fool.
2 A hall in the house of La Castre.

Enter ROSALURA and LILLIA BLANCA.

Ros. Oh, pity, pity! thousand, thousand pities!

Lil. Alas, poor soul, she will die! She is grown senseless;

She will not know nor speak now.

Ros. And love of such a youth! I would die for a dog first:

He that kills me, I’ll give him leave to eat me; I’ll know men better, ere I sigh for any of ’em.

Lil. You have done a worthy act, sir, a most famous;

Ye have kill’d a maid the wrong way; ye are a conqueror.

Ros. A conqueror? A cobbler! Hang him, sower! 4 —

Go hide thyself, for shame! Go lose thy memory! Live not ‘mongst men; thou art a beast, a monster,

A blatant beast!

Lil. If ye have yet any honesty, 46 Or ever heard of any, take my counsel:

Off with your garters, and seek out a bough,—

A handsome bough, for I would have ye hang like a gentleman;

And write some doleful matter to the world,

A warning to hard-hearted men.

Mir. Out, kitlings! 50 What caterwauling ’s here! What gibbing! 5

Do you think my heart is soft’n’d with a black santis? 5

Show me some reason.

Enter ORIANA on a bed.

Ros. Here then, here is a reason.

Nant. Now, if ye be a man, let this sight shake ye!

La Cast. Alas, poor gentlewoman — Do ye know me, lady?

Lug. How she looks up, andstares!

Ori. I know ye very well; Ye are my godfather: and that’s the monsieur.

De Gard. And who am I?

Ori. You are Amadis de Gaul, sir.

Oh, oh, my heart! — Were you never in love, sweet lady?

And do you never dream of flowers and gardens?

I dream of walking fires: take heed; it comes now.

Who’s that? Pray, stand away. I have seen that face, sure.

How light my head is!

Ros. Take some rest.

Ori. I cannot; For I must be up to-morrow to go to church,

And I must dress me, put my new gown on, And be as fine to meet my love! Heigh-ho! 56 Will you not tell me where my love lies buried?

Mir. He is not dead. — [Aside.] Beshrew my heart, she stirs me!

4 Cobbler.
5 Cat-like behavior.
6 I. e. black-santus, a burlesque hymn accompanied by discordant noises.
Ori. He is dead to me.

Mir. [Aside.] Is 't possible my nature Should be so damnable to let her suffer? — Give me your hand.

Ori. How soft ye feel, how gentle! I'll tell you your fortune, friend.

Mir. You have a flattering face, but 'tis a fine one;
I warrant you may have a hundred sweethearts.
Will ye pray for me? I shall die to-morrow; And will ye ring the bells?

Mir. I am most unworthy, I do confess, unhappy. Do you know me?

Ori. I would I did! Mir. Oh, fair tears, how ye take me!
Ori. Do you weep too? You have not lost your lover?

You mock me: I'll go home and pray.

Or, if it please ye to consider justly,
Scorn me, for I deserve it; scorn and shame me,

Sweet Oriana!

Let her alone; she trembles:
Her fits will grow more strong, if ye provoke her.

La Cast. Certain she knows ye not, yet loves to see ye.

How she smiles now!

Enter BELLEUR.

Bel. Where are ye? Oh, why do not ye laugh? Come, laugh at me:
Why a devil art thou sad, and such a subject,
Such a ridiculous subject, as I am,
Before thy face?

Mir. Prithée, put off this lightness; This is no time for mirth, nor place; I have us'd too much on't.
I have undone myself and a sweet lady
By being too indulgent to my follery,
Which truly I repent. Look here.

Bel. What ails she?

Mir. Alas, she's mad!

Bel. Mad!

Mir. Yes, too sure; for me too.
Bel. Dost thou wonder at that? By this good light, they are all so;
They are co'zing-mad, they are brawling-mad, they are proud-mad;
They are all, all mad. I came from a world of mad women,
Mad as March hares. Get 'em in chains, then deal with 'em.
There's one that's mad; she seems well, but she is dog-mad.

Is she dead, dost think?

Mir. Dead! Heaven forbid!

Bel. Heaven further it!
For, till they be key-cold dead, there's no trusting of 'em:
Whate'er they seem, or howsoever they carry it,
Till they be chap-fallen, and their tongues at peace,

Nail'd in their coffins sure, I'll ne'er believe 'em.

Shall I talk with her?

Bel. I'll walk aside, and come again anon. But take heed to her:
You say she is a woman?

Mir. Yes.
Bel. Take great heed;
For, if she do not cozen thee, then hang me;
Let her be mad, or what she will, she'll cheat thee!

Mir. Away, wild fool! — How wild this shows in him now! —
Now take my faith, (before ye all I speak it,) And with it my repentant love.

La Cast. This seems well.

Mir. Were but this lady clear again, whose sorrows
My very heart melts for, were she but perfect,
(For thus to marry her would be two miseries,) Before the richest and the noblest beauty,
France or the world could show me, I would take her.

As she is now, my tears and prayers shall wed her.

De Gard. This makes some small amends.

Ros. She beckons to ye; To us, too, to go off.

Nant. [Exeunt all except ORIANA and MIRABEL.]

Ori. Oh, my best friend! I would fain —
Mir. [Aside.] What, she speaks well, And with another voice.

Ori. But I am fearful,
And shame a little stops my tongue —

Mir. Speak boldly. Ori. Tell ye, I am well. I am perfect well (pray ye, mock not); And that I did this to provoke your nature; Out of my infinite and restless love, To win your pity. Pardon me!

Mir. Go forward:

Who set ye on?

Ori. None, as I live, no creature;
Not any knew or ever dream'd what I meant. Will ye be mine?

Mir. 'Tis true, I pity ye;
But, when I marry ye, ye must be wiser.
Nothing but tricks? devices?

Ori. Will ye shame me?

Mir. Yes, marry, will I. — Come near, come near! a miracle!
The woman's well; she was only mad for marriage,
Stark mad to be ston'd to death: give her good counsel.
Will this world never mend? — Are ye caught, damsel?

Enter BELLEUR, NANTOLET, LA CASTRE, DE GARD, LUGIER, ROSALURA, and LILLIA BIANCA.

Bel. How goes it now?

Mir. Thou art a kind of prophet;
The woman's well again, and would have gull'd me;
Well, excellent well, and not a taint upon her.
Bel. Did not I tell ye? Let 'em be what can be,
Saints, devils, any thing, they will abuse us:
Thou wert an ass to believe her so long, a coxcomb:
Give 'em a minute, they'll abuse whole millions.
Mir. And am not I a rare physician, gentlemen,
That can cure desperate mad minds?
De Gard. Be not insolent.
Mir. Well, go thy ways: from this hour I disclaim thee,
Unless thou hast a trick above this; then I'll love thee.
Ye owe me for your cure. — Pray, have a care of her,
For fear she fall into relapse. — Come, Belleur;
We'll set up bills to cure diseased virgins.
Bel. Shall we be merry?
Mir. Yes.
Bel. But I'll no more projects:
If we could make 'em mad, it were some mystery.
Exeunt [Mirabel and Belleur].
Lil. I am glad she is well again.
Ros. So am I, certain. —
Be not ashamed.
Or. I shall never see a man more.
De Gard. Come, ye are a fool: had ye but told me this trick,
He should not have gloried thus.
Lug. He shall not long, neither.
La Cast. Be rude, and be at peace. Ye have my consent,
And what power I can work with.
Nant. Come, leave blushing;
We are your friends: an honest way compell'd ye:
Heaven will not see so true a love unrecompens'd.
Come in, and slight him too.
Lug. The next shall hit him. Exeunt.

ACT V

SCENE I.

Enter De Gard and Lugier.

De Gard. 'T will be discover'd.
Lug. That's the worst can happen:
If there be any way to reach, and work upon him,
Upon his nature suddenly, and catch him — That he loves,
Though he dissemble it, and would show contrary,
And will at length relent, I'll lay my fortune; Nay, more, my life.
De Gard. Is she won?
Lug. Yes, and ready.

And my designments set.

De Gard. They are now for travel;
All for that game again; they have forgot wooing.
Lug. Let 'em; we'll travel with 'em.
De Gard. Where's his father?
Lug. Within; he knows my mind too, and allows it,
Pities your sister's fortune most sincerely,
And has appointed, for our more assistance,
Some of his secret friends.

De Gard. Speed the plough!
Lug. Well said I
And be you serious too.
De Gard. I shall be diligent.
Lug. Let's break the ice for one, the rest will drink too
(Compare me, sir) of the same cup. My young gentlewomen Wait but who sets the game a-foot. Though they seem stubborn,
Reserve'd, and proud now, yet I know their hearts,
Their passions how they beat, and for what cause,
And how they long to venture their abilities
In a true quarrel. Husbands they must and will have,
Or numeries and thin collations
To cool their bloods. Let's all about our business,
And, if this fail, let nature work.

De Gard. Ye have arm'd me. Exeunt.

SCENE II.

Enter Mirabel, Nantolet, and La Castre.

La Cast. Will ye be Wilful, then?
Mir. Pray, sir, your pardon;
For I must travel. Lie lazy here,
Bound to a wife! Chain'd to her subtilties,
Her humours, and her wills, which are mere feiters!
To have her to-day pleas'd, to-morrow peevish,
The third day mad, the fourth rebellious!
You see before they are married, what moriscoes:
What masques and numeries they put upon us:
To be tied here, and suffer their lavoltas
Nant. 'T is your own seeking.
Mir. Yes, to get my freedom.
Were they as I could wish 'em —
La Cast. Fools and meacocks.
To endure what you think fit to put upon 'em.
Come, change your mind.
Mir. Not before I have chang'd air, father.
When I know women worthy of my company,
I will return again, and wait upon 'em;
Till then, dear sir, I'll amble all the world over,
And run all hazards, misery, and poverty.

Enter Pinac and Belleur.

So I escape the dangerous bay of matrimony.
Pin. Are ye resolv'd?

1 A street, before the house of La Castre.

2 Approves.
3 A public walk.
4 Morris-dances.
5 Lively dances.
6 Dastards.
Mir. Yes, certain; I will out again.

Pin. We are for ye, sir; we are your servants once more;

Once more we'll seek our fortune in strange countries;

Ours is too scornful for us,

Bel. Is there ne'er a land
That you have read or heard of (for I care not how far it be, Nor under what pestiferous star it lies),
A happy kingdom, where there are no women,
Nor have been ever, nor no mention
Of any such lewd things with lewer qualities,
(For thither would I travel) where 'tis felony
To confess he had a mother; a mistress, treason?

La Cast. Are you for travel too?

Bel. For any thing.

For living in the moon, and stopping hedges,

Ere I stay here to be abus'd and baffled.

Nant. Why did ye not break your minds to me? They are my daughters;
And, sure, I think I should have that command to see 'em well bestow'd.
I know ye are gentlemen,

Men of fair parts and states; I know your parents;
And, had ye told me of your fair affections —
Make but one trial more, and let me second ye.

Bel. No; I'll make hob-nails first, and mend old kettles.

Can ye lend me an armour of high proof, to appear in,
And two or three field-pieces to defend me?
The king's guard are mere pigmies.

Nant. They will not eat ye.

Bel. Yes, and you too, and twenty fatter gentlemen,
If their high stomachs hold. They came with chopping-knives,

To cut me into randes and sirloins, and so pow'd me.

Come, shall we go?

Nant. You cannot be so discourteous, If ye intend to go, as not to visit 'em,
And take your leaves.

Mir. That we dare do, and civilly,

And thank 'em too.

Pin. Yes, sir, we know that honesty.

Bel. I'll come i' the rear, forty foot off, I'll assure ye,

With a good gun in my hand. I'll no more Amazons,
I mean, no more of their frights. I'll make my three legs,
Kiss my hand twice, and, if I smell no danger,
If the interview be clear, may be I'll speak to her;
I'll wear a privy coat too, and behind me,

To make those parts secure, a bandog.

La Cast. You are a merry gentleman.

Bel. A wary gentleman, I do assure you.
I have been warn'd; and must be arm'd.

La Cast. Those are your hasty thoughts; when I see you are bent to it,
Then I'll believe, and join with ye: so, we'll leave ye.

[Aside.] There's a trick will make ye stay.

Nant. [Aside]. I hope so.

Exeunt [La Castre and Nantolet].

Mir. We have won immortal fame now, if we leave 'em.

Pin. You have; but we have lost.

Mir. I know they love ye; and to gain ye handsomely,
Not to be thought to yield, they would give millions.

Their father's willingness, that must needs show ye.

Pin. If I thought so —

Mir. Ye shall be hang'd, you recreant!
Would ye turn renegado now?

Bel. No; let's be away, boys,

Out of the air and tumult of their villanies.

Though I was married to that grasshopper, and had her fast by the legs, I should think she would cozen me.

Enter a Young [Man, disguised as a] Factor.

Y. Man. Monsieur Mirabel, I take it?

Mir. Y' are i' th' right, sir.

Y. Man. I am come to seek ye, sir. I have been at your father's;

And, understanding you were here —

Mir. Ye are welcome.

May I crave your name?

Y. Man. Fosse, sir, and your servant.

That you may know me better, I am factor To your old merchant, Leverdure.

Mir. How does he?

Y. Man. Well, sir, I hope; he is now at Orleans.

About some business.

Mir. You are once more welcome.

Your master's a right honest man, and one I am much beholding to, and must very shortly Trouble his love again.

Y. Man. You may be bold, sir.

Mir. Your business, if you please now?

Y. Man. This, it is sir.

I know ye well remember in your travel A Genoa merchant —

Mir. I remember many.

Y. Man. But this man, sir, particularly; your own benefit

Must needs imprint him in ye; one Alberto, A gentleman you saw'd from being murther'd.

A little from Bologna:
I was then myself in Italy, and supplied ye; Though haply you have forgot me now.

Mir. No, I remember ye, and that Alberto too; a noble gentleman; More to remember were to thank myself, sir.

What of that gentleman?

Y. Man. He is dead.

Mir. I am sorry.

Y. Man. But on his death-bed, leaving to his sister
All that he had, beside some certain jewels, Which, with a ceremony, he bequeath’d to you 100
In grateful memory, he commanded strictly His sister, as she lov’d him and his peace, To see those jewels safe and true deliver’d, And, with them, his last love. She, as tender To observe his will, not trusting friend nor servant 115
With such a weight, is come herself to Paris
And at my master’s house.
Mir. You tell me a wonder, Y. Man. I tell ye, a truth, sir. She is young and handsome,
And well attend’d; of much state and riches; So loving and obedient to her brother, 110
That, on my conscience, if he had given her also, She would most willingly have made her tender.
Mir. May not I see her?
Y. Man. She desires it heartily.
Mir. And presently?
Y. Man. She is now about some business,
Passing accounts of some few debts here owing;
And burying jewels of a merchant.
Mir. Is she wealthy?
Y. Man. I would ye had her, sir, at all adventure!
Her brother had a main state. 1
Mir. And fair too?
Y. Man. The prime of all those parts of Italy, 119
For beauty and for courtesy.
Mir. I must needs see her.
Y. Man. ’Tis all her business, sir. Ye may now see her;
But to-morrow will be fitter for your visitation,
For she is not yet prepared.
Mir. Only her sight, sir;
And, when you shall think fit, for further visit.
Y. Man. Sir, ye may see her, and I’ll wait your coming:—
Mir. And I’ll be with ye instantly; I know the house;—
Meantime, my love and thanks, sir.
Pin. Thou hast the strangest luck! What was that Alberto?
Mir. An honest noble merchant ’t was my chance 110
To rescue from some rogues had almost slain him;
And he in kindness to remember this!
Bel. Now we shall have you For all your protestations and your forwardness, Find out strange fortunes in this lady’s eyes, 115
And new enticements to put off your journey; And who shall have honour then?
Mir. No, no, never fear it: I must needs see her to receive my legacy.
Bel. If it be tied up in her smock, Heaven help thee!
May not we see too?
Mir. Yes, afore we go: 120

I must be known myself, ere I be able To make thee welcome. Wouldst thou see more women?
I thought you had been out of love with all.
Bel. I may be (I find that), with the least encouragement; Yet I desire to see whether all countries Are naturally possess’d with the same spirits, For, if they be, I ’ll take a monastery, And never travel: for I had rather be a friar, And live me’o’t at home, than be a fool, and flout it.
Mir. Well, well, I ’ll meet ye anon, then tell you more, boys; However, stand prepared, prest 2 for our journey;
For certain we shall go, I think, when I have seen her, And view’d her well.
Pin. Go, go, and we ’ll wait for ye;
Your fortune directs ours.
Bel. Ye shall find us i’ th’ tavern,
Lamenting in sack and sugar for our losses.
If she be right Italian, and want servants, 4
You may prefer the properest man. How I could Worry a woman now!
Pin. Come, come, leave prating:
Ye may have enough to do, without this boasting.

Exeunt [on one side, Pinac and Belleur; on the other Mirabel].

Scene III. 5
Enter Lugier, De Gard, Rosalura, and Lilia Blanca.

Lug. This is the last adventure.
De Gard. And the happiest,
As we hope, too.
Rosal. We should be glad to find it.
Lil. Who shall conduct us thither?
Lug. Your man is ready,
For I must not be seen; no, nor this gentleman;
That may beget suspicion; all the rest 6
Are people of no doubt. I would have ye, ladies, Keep your old liberties, and as we instruct ye.
Come, look not pale; you shall not lose your wishes,
Nor beg ’em neither; but be yourselves and happy.
Rosal. I tell you true, I cannot hold off longer,
Nor give no more hard language.
De Gard. You shall not need. 11
Rosal. I love the gentleman, and must now shew it:
Shall I beat a proper man out of heart?
Lug. There’s none advises ye.
Lil. Faith, I repent me too.
Lug. Repent and spoil all;
Tell what ye know, ye had best! 12
Lil. I’ll tell what I think; 12
For, if he ask me now if I can love him, I’ll tell him, yes, I can. The man’s a kind man, And out of his true honesty affects me.

1 Large fortune. 2 Shut. 3 Ready. 4 Lovers. 5 A room in the house of Nantolet.
Although he play'd the fool, which I requited,
Must I still hold him at the staff's end?

Lug. You are two strange women.
Ros. We may be, if we fool still.

Dare ye believe me?
Follow but this advice I have set you in now,
And if ye lose—Would ye yield now so basely?
Give up without your honours sav'd?
De Gard. Fie, ladies!
Preserve your freedom still.

Lil. Well, well, for this time.
Lug. And carry that full state—

Ros. That's as the wind stands;
If it begin to chop about, and scout us,
Hang me, but I know what I'll do! Come,
direct us;
I make no doubt we shall do handsomely.
De Gard. Some part o' th' way we'll wait upon ye, ladies;
The rest your man supplies.

Lug. Do well, I'll honour ye. Exit.

SCENE IV.¹

ORIANA [disguised as an Italian lady.] and two [persons disguised as] Merchants, [discovered above.] Enter, [below, the Young Man disguised as a] Factor, and MIREFEL.

Y. Man. Look ye, sir, there she is; you see how busy.

Methinks you are infinitely bound to her for her journey.

Mir. How gloriously she shows! She is a tall woman.

Y. Man. Of a fair size, sir. My master not being at home,
I have been so out of my wits to get her company!
I mean, sir, of her own fair sex and fashion—

Mir. Afar off, she is most fair too.

Y. Man. Nearly, most excellent.
At length, I have entreated two fair ladies
[And happily you know 'em], the young daughters Of Monsieur Nantolet.

Mir. I know 'em well, sir.

What are those? Jewels?

Y. Man. All.
They make a rich show.

Y. Man. There is a matter of ten thousand pounds, too,
Was owing here. You see those merchants with her;
They have brought it in now.
Mir. How handsomely she shape shows!
Y. Man. Those are still neat; your Italians are most curious.

Now she looks this way.
Mir. She has a goodly presence;
How full of courtesy! — Well, sir, I'll leave ye;
And, if I may be bold to bring a friend or two,
Good noble gentlemen—

Y. Man. No doubt, ye may, sir;
For you have most command.

Mir. I have seen a wonder! Exit.

Ori. Is he gone?

Y. Man. Yes.
Ori. How?

Y. Man. Taken to the utmost:

A wonder dwells about him.

Ori. He did not guess at me?

Y. Man. No, be secure; ye show another woman.

He is gone to fetch his friends.

Ori. Where are the gentlewomen?

Y. Man. Here, here: now they are come,
Sit still, and let them see ye.

Enter [below] ROSALITA, LILLIA BIANCA, and Servant.

Ros. Pray you, where's my friend, sir?

Y. Man. She is within; ladies; but here's another gentlewoman,
A stranger to this town: so please you visit her,
'Twill be well taken.

Lil. Where is she?

Y. Man. There, above, ladies.

Serv. Bless me, what thing is this? Two pinnacles Upon her pate! Is't not a glode ² to catch woodcocks?

Ros. Peace, you rude knave!

Serv. What a bawling hum she has too!

There's sail enough for a carrack.³
Ros. What is this lady?

For as I live, she is a goodly woman.

Y. Man. Guess, guess.

Lil. I have not seen a nobler presence.

Serv. 'Tis a lusty wench: now could I spend my forty-pence,
With all my heart, to have but one fling at her,
To give her but a [washing blow].

Lit. Ye rascal!

Serv. Ay, that's all a man has for 's good will.

'Twill be long enough

Before ye cry, 'Come, Anthony, and kiss me.'

Lit. I'll have ye whip up.

Ros. Has my friend seen this lady?
Y. Man. Yes, yes, and is well known to her.

Ros. I much admire her presence.

Lit. So do I too;

For, I protest, she is the handsomest,
The rarest, and the newest to mine eye,
That ever I saw yet.

Ros. I long to know her;
My friend shall do that kindness.

Ori. So she shall, ladies:
Come, pray ye, come up.

Ros. Oh me!

Lit. Hang me, if I knew her! —
Were I a man myself, I should now love ye;
Nay, I should dote.

Ros. I dare not trust mine eyes;
For, as I live, ye are the strangest alter'd!
I must come up to know the truth.

Serv. So must I, lady:
For I'm a kind of unbeliever too.

Lit. Get ye gone, sirrah;
² Glade. The space between the pinnacles is compared to the opening in a wood, where nets were spread to snare woodcocks.
³ A large ship of burden.
And what ye have seen be secret in; you are paid else!
No more of your long tongue.
Y. Man.
Will ye go in, ladies, and talk with her? These venturers will come straight.
Away with this fellow.
Lil. There, sirrah; go, disport you.
Serv. I would the trumpet-hos’d woman would go with me.

[Enter [on one side, Rosaltra, Lillia Bianca, and the Young Man disguised as a Factor; on the other, Servant.]

Scene V.¹

Enter Mirabel, Pinac, and Belleur.

Pin. Is she so glorious handsome?
Mir. You would wonder; Our women look like gipsies, like gills² to her; Their clothes and fashions beggarly and bankrupt,
Base, old, and securry,
Bel. How looks her face?
Mir. Most heavenly;
And the becoming motion of her body
So sets her off!
Bel. Why then, we shall stay.
Mir. That’s more than I know. If she be that woman
She appears to be——
Bel. As it is impossible.
Mir. I shall then tell ye more.
Pin. Did ye speak to her?
Mir. No, no. I only saw her; she was busy.
Now I go for that end; and mark her, gentlemen, If she appear not to ye one of the sweetest,
The handsomest, the fairest in behaviour!
We shall meet the two wenches there too; they come to visit her,
To wonder, as we do.
Pin. Then shall we meet ’em.
Bel. I had rather meet two bears.
Mir. There you may take your leaves, despatch that business,
And, as ye find their humours——
Pin. Is your love there too?
Mir. No, certain; she has no great heart to set out again.
This is the house; I’ll usher ye.
Bel. I’ll bless me.
Mir. Come, nobly.

[Exeunt into the house.]

Scene VI.³

Enter [the Young Man disguised as a Factor, Rosaltra, Lillia Bianca, and Oriana [disguised as before].

Y. Man. They are come in. Sit you two off, as strangers. —
There, lady. — Where’s the boy?
¹ The street, before the same house.
² Slute.
³ A room in the same house.

[Enter Boy.]
And clear your pipes. — The music now; they enter.

Enter MirabeL, Pinac, and Belleur.

Pin. What a state she keeps! How far off they sit from her!
How rich she is! Ay, marry, this shows bravely!
Bel. She is a lusty wench, and may allure a good man;
But, if she have a tongue, I’ll not give twopence for her.
There sits my Fury; how I shake to see her!
Y. Man. Madam, this is the gentleman.
Mir. How sweet she kisses!

[MirabeL salutes Oriana.]
She has a spring dwells on her lips, a paradise!
This is the legacy?

Song [by the Boy, while he presents a casket to MirabeL.]
From the honour’d dead I bring
Thus his love and last off’ring.
Take it nobly, ’tis your due;
From a friendship ever true;
From a faith, &c.

Ori. Most noble sir,
This from my now-dead brother, as his love,
And grateful memory of your great benefit;
From me my thanks, my wishes, and my service.

Till I am more acquainted, I am silent;
Only I dare say this, — you are truly noble.
Mir. What should I think?
Pin. Think you have a handsome fortune:
Would I had such another!
Ros. Ye are all well met, gentlemen;
We hear ye are for travel.
Pin. You hear true, lady; —
And come to take our leaves.
Lil.
We’ll along with ye:
We see you are grown so witty by your journey,
We cannot choose but step out too. This lady
We mean to wait upon as far as Italy.
Bel. I’ll travel into Wales, amongst the mountains,
In hope they cannot find me.
Ros. If you go further,
So good and free society we hold ye,
We’ll jog along too.
Pin. Are you so valiant, lady?
Lil. And we’ll be merry, sir, and laugh.
Pin. It may be
We’ll go by sea.
Lil. Why, ’tis the only voyage!
I love a sea-voyage, and a blustering tempest;
And let all split!
Pin. This is a dainty damosel! —
I think ’t will tame ye. Can ye ride post?
Lil. Oh, excellently! I am never weary that way;
A hundred mile a day is nothing with me.
Enter LA CASTRE, NANTOLET, LUGIER, and DE GARD.

La Cast., Nant., &c. And we'll make up the rest, lady.

Ort. Then Oriana takes ye! Nay, she has caught ye;
If ye start now, let all the world cry shame on ye!
I have out-travell'd ye.

Bel. Did not I say she would cheat thee? 50

Mir. I thank ye: I am pleas'd ye have deceiv'd me,
And willingly I swallow it, and joy in 't;
And yet, perhaps, I knew ye. Whose plot was this?

Lug. He is not ashamed that cast it; he that executed,
Follov'd your father's will.

Mir. What a world's this! 80
Nothing but craft and cozenage!

Ori. Who begun, sir? 85

Mir. Well; I do take thee upon mere compassion;
And I do think I shall love thee. As a testimony,
I'll burn my book, and turn a new leaf over.
But these fine clothes you shall wear still.

Ori. I obey you, sir, in all. 90

Nant. And how, how, daughters? What say you to these gentlemen?—

What say ye, gentlemen, to the girls?

Pin. By my troth — if she can love me —

Lil. How long?

Pin. Nay, if once ye love —

Lil. Then take me,

And take your chance.

Pin. Most willingly: ye are mine, lady; 95
And, if I use ye not that ye may love me —

Lil. A match, if faith.

Pin. Why, now ye travel with me.

Ros. How that thing stands!

Bel. It will, if ye urge it:

Bless your five wits!

Ros. Nay, prithee, stay; I shall have thee.

Bel. You must ask me leave first.

Ros. Wilt thou use me kindly,
And beat me but once a week?

Bel. If you deserve no more. 100

Ros. And wilt thou get me with child?
Bel. Dost thou ask me seriously?

Ros. Yes, indeed, do I.

Bel. Yes, I will get thee with child. Come, presently,
And be but in revenge, I'll do thee that courtesy.

Well, if thou wilt fear God and me, have at thee!
Ros. I'll love ye, and I'll honour ye.

Bel. I am pleas'd, then.

Mir. This Wild-Goose Chase is done; we have won o' both sides.
Brother, your love: now to church of all hands;

Let's lose no time.

Pin. Our travelling lay by. 110

Bel. No more for Italy; for the Low Countries, [L.] 11

Exeunt.
THE DUCHESS OF MALFI

BY

JOHN WEBSTER

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

Ferdinand [Duke of Calabria].
Cardinal [his brother].
Antonio [Bologna, Steward of the Household to the Duchess].
Delio [his friend].
Daniel de Bosola [Gentleman of the Horse to the Duchess].
Castruccio, an old Lord.
Marquis of Pescaia.
Count Malatesta.

Ladies, Three Young Children, Two Pilgrims, Executioners, Court Officers, and Attendants.

ACT I

Scene I. 1

[Enter] Antonio and Delio.

Delio. You are welcome to your country, dear Antonio;
You have been long in France, and you return
A very formal Frenchman in your habit.
How do you like the French court?

Ant. I admire it.
In seeking to reduce both state and people
To a fix'd order, their judicious king
Begin at home; quits first his royal palace
Of flatt'ring syphons, of dissolve and infamous persons,—which he sweetly terms
His master's master-piece, the work of heaven;
Considering duly that a prince's court
Is like a common fountain, whence should flow
Pure silver drops in general, but if 't chance
Some cum'd example poison 't near the head,
Death and diseases through the whole land spread.
And what is 't makes this blessed government
But a most provident council, who dare freely inform him the corruption of the times?
Though some o' th' court hold it presumption
To instruct princes what they ought to do,
It is a noble duty to inform them
What they ought to forsee. — Here comes Bosola,
The only court-gall; yet I observe his railing
Is not for simple love of piety:
Indeed, he rails at those things which he morrow? What creature ever fed worse than hoping Tantalus? Nor ever died any man more fearfully than he that hop'd for a pardon. There are rewards for hawks and dogs when [6] they have done us service; but for a soldier that hazards his limbs in a battle, nothing but a kind of geometry is his last supportation.

Delia. Geometry 5

Bos. Ay, to hang in a fair pair of slings, take his latter swing in the world upon an hon- [7] ourable pair of crutches, from hospital to hospital. Fare ye well, sir: and yet do not you scorn us; for places in the court are but like beds in the hospital, where this man's head lies at that man's foot, and so lower and lower. [Exit.] 76

Del. I knew this fellow seven years in the galleys
For a notorious murder; and 'tis thought The cardinal suborn'd it: he was releas'd 50 By the French general, Gaston de Foix, 50 Whom he recover'd Naples. 50

Ant. 'Tis great pity He should be thus neglected: I have heard He's very valiant. This foul melancholy Will poison all his goodness; for, I'll tell you, If too immoderate sleep be truly said 55 To be an inward rust unto the soul, It then doth follow want of action Breeds all black malcontents; and their close rearing, Like moths in cloth, do hurt for want of wearing.

SCENE II. 1

ANTONIO, DELIO. [Enter] SILVIO, CASTRUCIO, JULIA, RODERIGO, and GRISOLAN.

Delio. The presence 'gins to fill: you prom- is'd me To make me the partaker of the natures Of some of your great courtiers. Ant. The lord cardinal's And other strangers' that are now in court? I shall. — Here comes the great Calabrian duke.

[Enter Ferdinando and Attendants.]

Ferd. Who took the ring oft'nest? 2

Sil. Antonio Bologna, my lord.

Ferd. Our sister duchess' great master of her household? Give him the jewel. — When shall we leave this sportive action, and fall to action indeed? 11

Cast. Methinks, my lord, you should not de- sire to go to war in person.

Ferd. Now for some gravity. — Why, my lord? 16

Cast. It is fitting a soldier arise to be a prince, but not necessary a prince descend to be a cap- tain.

Ferd. No?

Cast. No, my lord; he were far better do it by a deputy.

Ferd. Why should he not as well sleep or eat by a deputy? This might take idle, offensive, and base office from him, whereas the other de- prives him of honour.

Cast. Believe my experience, that realm is never long in quiet where the ruler is a soldier.

Ferd. Thou told'st me thy wife could not en- dure fighting.

Cast. True, my lord.

Ferd. And of a jest she broke of 3 a captain she met full of wounds: I have forgot it.

Cast. She told him, my lord, he was a pitiful fellow, to lie, like the children of Ismael, all in tents. 35

Ferd. Why, there's a wit were able to undo all the chirurgeons 5 o' the city; for although gallants should quarrel, and had drawn their weapons, and were ready to go to it, yet her persuasions would make them put up. 40

Cast. That she would, my lord.—How do you like my Spanish gennet? 5

Rod. He is all fire.

Ferd. I am of Pliny's opinion, I think he was begot by the wind; he runs as if he were bal- las'd 7 with quicksilver.

Sil. True, my lord, he reeTs from the tilt often.

Rod. Gris. Ha, ha, ha!

Ferd. Why do you laugh? Methinks you that are courtiers should be my touch-wound; 31 take fire when I give fire; that is, laugh when I laugh, were the subject never so witty.

Cast. True, my lord: I myself have heard a very good jest, and have scorn'd to seem to have so silly a wit as to understand it.

Ferd. But I can laugh at your fool, my lord.

Cast. He cannot speak, you know, but he makes faces; my lady cannot abide him.

Ferd. No? 60

Sil. Nor endure to be in merry company; for she says too full laughing, and too much company, fills her too much of the wrinkle.

Ferd. I would, then, have a mathematical in- strument made for her face, that she might not laugh out of compass. — I shall shortly visit 66 you at Milan, Lord Silvio.

Sil. Your grace shall arrive most welcome.

Ferd. You are a good horseman, Antonio: you have excellent riders in France; what do you think of good horsemanship? 71

Ant. Nobly, my lord: as out of the Grecian horse issued many famous princes, so out of brave horsemanship arise the first sparks of growing resolution, that raise the mind to noble action.

Ferd. You have bespoke it worthily.

Sil. Your brother, the lord cardinal, and sis- ter duchess.

[Enter CARDINAL, with DUCHESS, and CAR- OLA.]

Cord. Are the galleys come about?

Gris. They are, my lord. 60

Ferd. Here's the Lord Silvio is come to take his leave.

1 The same.

2 The reference is to the knightly sport of riding at the ring.

3 At the expense of.

4 Rolls of lint used to dress wounds.

5 Surgeons. 6 A small horse. 7 Ballasted.
Delio. Now, sir, your promise: what's that cardinal? I mean his temper. They say he's a brave fellow, will play his five thousand crowns at tennis, dance, Court ladies, and one that hath fought single combats.

Ant. Some such flashes superficially hang on him for form; but observe his inward character: he is a melancholy churchman. The spring in his face is nothing but the engend'ring of toads; where he is jealous of any man, he lays worse plots for them than ever was im-pos'd on Hercules, for he strews in his way flatterers, panders, intelligencers, atheists, and a thousand such political monsters. He should have been Pope; but instead of coming to it by the primitive decency of the church, he did [96] bestow bribes so largely and so impudently as if he would have carried it away without heaven's knowledge. Some good he hath done——

Delio. You have given too much of him. What's his brother? 100

Ant. The duke there? A most perverse and turbulent nature. What appears in him mirth is merely outside; If he laughed heartily, it is to laugh All honesty out of fashion.

Delio. Twins? 110

Ant. In quality. He speaks with others' tongues, and hears men's suits

With others' ears; will seem to sleep o' th' bench

Only to entrap offenders in their answers;

Dooms men to death by information;

Rewards by hearsay.

Delio. Then the law to him is like a fowl, black cobweb to a spider,—

He makes it his dwelling and a prison

To entangle those shall feed him.

Ant. Most true: He never pays debts unless they be shrewd turns,

And those he will confess that he doth owe.

Last, for his brother there, the cardinal,

They that do flatter him most say oracles Hang at his lips; and verily I believe them,

For the devil speaks in them.

But for their sister, the right noble duchess, You never fix'd your eye on three fair medals Cast in one figure, of so different temper. 121

For her discourse, it is so full of rapture,

You only will begin then to be sorry

When she doth end her speech, and wish, in wonder,

She held it less vain-glory to talk much,

Than your penance to hear. Whilst she speaks,

She throws upon a man so sweet a look

That it were able to raise one to a galliard 1

That lay in a dead palsy, and to dote

On that sweet countenance; but in that look 120

There speaketh so divine a continent

1 A lively dance.

As cuts off all lascivious and vain hope.

Her days are practis'd in such noble virtue,

That sure her nights, may, more, her very sleeps,

Are more in heaven than other ladies' shrifts.

Let all sweet ladies break their flatt'ring glasses,

And dress themselves in her.

Delio. Fie, Antonio. You play the wire-drawer with her commendations.

Ant. I'll case the picture up: only thus much;

All her particular worth grows to this sum,—

She stains the time past, lights the time to come.

Cart. You must attend my lady in the gallery,

Some half an hour hence.

Ant. I shall. [Exeunt ANTONIO and DELIO.]

Ferd. Sister, I have a suit to you.

Duch. To me, sir?

Ferd. A gentlemen here, Daniel de Bosola,

One that was in the galleys——

Duch. Yes, I know him. 140

Ferd. A worthy fellow he's: pray, let me entreat for

The provis'ship of your horse.

Duch. Your knowledge of him

Commends him and prefers him.

Ferd. Call him hither. [Exit Attendants.]

We are now upon 8 parting. Good Lord Silvio,

Do us commend to all our noble friends 150

At the leaguer.

Sil. Sir, I shall.

Duch. You are for Milan?

Sil. I am.

Duch. Bring the caroches, 4 — We'll bring you down

To the haven.

[Exeunt DUCHESS, SILVIO, CAST-

TUCIO, RODERIGO, GRISOLAN, CARIOLA, JULIA, and ATTENDANTS.]

Card. Be sure you entertain that Bosola. 155

For your intelligence, 5 I would not be seen in it; And therefore many times I have slighted him

When he did court our furtherance, as this morning.

Ferd. Antonio, the great master of her household,

Had been far fitter.

Card. You are deceiv'd in him. 160

His nature is too honest for such business. —

He comes: I'll leave you.  [Exit.]

[Re-enter BOSOLA.]

Bos. I was lurn'd to you.

Ferd. My brother, here, the cardinal could never Abide you.

Bos. Never since he was in my debt.

Ferd. May be some oblique character in your face

Made him suspect you.
Bos. Doth he study physiognomy? 188
There's no more credit to be given to th' face
Than to a sick man's urine, which some call
The physician's whore, because she cozened
him.
He did suspect me wrongfully.
Ferd. For that You must give great men leave to take their times.
Distract doth cause us seldom be deceiv'd.
You see the oft shaking of the cedar-tree
Fastens it more at root.
Bos. Yet take heed;
For to suspect a friend unworthily
Instructs him the next way to suspect you, 240
And prompts him to deceive you.
Ferd. There's gold.
Bos. What follows? — [Aside.] Never rain'd such showers as these
Without thunderbolts i'th' tail of them. —
Whose throat must I cut?
Ferd. Your inclination to shed blood rides post
Before my occasion to use you. I give you that
To live i'th' court here, and observe the duchess;
To note all the particulars of her behaviour,
What suitors do solicit her for marriage,
And whom she best affects. 2 She's a young
widow:
I would not have her marry again.
Bos. No, sir? 186
Ferd. Do not you ask the reason; but be satisfied.
I say I would not.
Bos. It seems you would create me
One of your familiars.
Ferd. Familiar! What's that?
Bos. Why, a very quaint invisible devil in flesh, —
An intelligence. 8
Ferd. Such a kind of thriving thing 190
I would wish thee; and ere long thou mayst arrive
At a higher place by 't.
Bos. Take your devils,
Which hell calls angels! These cure'd gifts would make
You a corrupter, an impudent traitor;
And should I take these, they'd take me [to]
hell. 195
Ferd. Sir, I'll take nothing from you that I have given.
There is a place that I procur'd for you
This morning, the provisorship o' th' horse;
Have you heard on 't?
Bos. No.
Ferd. 'Tis yours: is 't not worth thanks?
Bos. I would have you curse yourself now, that your bounty
(Which makes men truly noble) e'er should make me
A villain. O, that to avoid ingratitude
For the good deed you have done me, I must do
1 Cheats. 2 Likes. 3 Spy.

All the ill man can invent! Thus the devil Candies all sins o'er: and what heaven terms
vile,
That names he complimenter.
Ferd. Be yourself:
Keep your old garb of melancholy; 't will express
You envy those that stand above your reach, Yet strive not to come near 'em. This will gain
Access to private lodgings, where yourself
May, like a politic dormouse.
Bos. As I have seen some Feed in a lord's dish, half asleep, not seeming to listen to any talk; and yet these rogues Have cut his throat in a dream. What's my place?
The provisorship o' th' horse? Say, then, my corruption.
Ferd. Grew out of horse-dung: I am your creature.
Bos. Away! [Exit.] 210
Ferd. Lord. Let good men, for good deeds, covet good fame,
Since place and riches oft are bribes of shame.
Sometimes the devil doth preach.

[Scene III.]

[Enter Ferdinando, Duchess, Cardinal, and Cariola.]

Card. We are to part from you; and your own discretion
Must now be your director.
Ferd. You are a widow:
You know already what man is; and therefore Let not youth, high promotion, eloquence —
Card. No,
Nor anything without the addition, honour,
Sway your high blood.
Ferd. Marry! They are most luxurious.
Will wed twice.
Card. O, fie!
Ferd. Their livers are more spotted Than Laban's sheep. 6
Duch. Diamonds are of most value,
They say, that have past through most jewelers' hands.
Ferd. Whores by that rule are preciouns.
Duch. Will you hear me?
I'll never marry.
Card. So most widows say;
But commonly that motion lasts no longer
Than the turning of an hour-glass: the funeral sermon
And it end both together.
Ferd. Now hear me:
You live in a rank pasture, here, 'tis court;
There is a kind of honey-dew that's deadly;
'T will poison your fame; look to 't. Be not cunning;
For they whose faces do belie their hearts
Are witches ere they arrive at twenty years,
Aye, and give the devil suck.
Duch. This is terrible good counsel.

1 Amal. Gallery in the Duchess's palace.
2 Lustful. 6 Genesis xxx. 31-42. 7 Impulse.
ford. Hypocrisy is woven of a fine small thread,
Subtler than Vulcan's engine; yet, believe 'tis,
Your darkest actions, nay, your privatest thoughts,
Will come to light.
Card. You may flatter yourself,
And take your own choice; privately be married
Under the eaves of night—
ford. Think 'tis the best voyage
That e'er you made; like the irregular crab,
Which, though 't goes backward, thinks that it goes right.
Because it goes its own way: but observe,
Such weddings may more properly be said
To be executed than celebrated.
Card. The marriage night
Is the entrance into some prison.
ford. And those joys,
Those lustful pleasures, are like heavy sleeps
Which do fore-run man's mischief.
Card. Fare you well.
Wisdom begins at the end: remember it.
[Exit.]
duch. I think this speech between you both was studied,
It came so roundly off.
ford. You are my sister;
This was my father's poniard, do you see it?
I'd be loth to see 't look rusty, 'cause it was his,
I would have you give 'oer these chargeable revels:
A visor and a mask are whispering-rooms
That were ne'er built for goodness,—fare ye well—
And women like that part which, like the lamprey,
Hath ne'er a bone in 't.
duch. Fie, sir!
ford. Nay,
I mean the tongue; vanity of courtship.
What cannot a neat knave with a smooth tale
Make a woman believe? Farewell, lusty widow.
[Exit.]
duch. Shall this move me? If all my royal kindred Lay in my way unto this marriage,
I'd make them my low footsteps. And even now,
Even in this hate, as men in some great battles,
By apprehending danger, have achiev'd Almost impossible actions (I have heard soldiers say so),
So I through frights and threatnings will assay
This dangerous venture. Let old wives report
I wink'd and chose a husband. — Cariola,
To thy known secrecy I have given up
More than my life,—my fame.
carri. Both shall be safe; 60
For I'll conceal this secret from the world
As warily as those that trade in poison.
duch. Thy protestation

1 The net in which he caught Venus and Mars.

---

Is ingenious and hearty; I believe it.
Is Antonio come?
carri. He attends you.
duch. Good dear soul, 82
Leave me; but place thyself behind the arras,
Where thou mayest overhear us. Wish me good speed:
For I am going into a wilderness,
Where I shall find nor path nor friendly clue
To be my guide.

[Cariola goes behind the arras.]

[Enter Antonio.]

I sent for you: sit down; 70
Take pen and ink, and write: are you ready?
ant. Yes.
duch. What did I say?
ant. That I should write somewhat.
duch. O, I remember.
After these triumphs and this large expense
It's fit, like thrifty husbands, 2 we inquire What's laid up for to-morrow.
ant. So please your beauteous excellence.
duch. Beauteous! Indeed, I thank you. I look young for your sake;
You have ta'en my cares upon you.
ant. I'll fetch your grace
The particulars of your revenue and expense. 80
duch. Where?
ant. In heaven. 85
I am making my will (as 'tis fit princes should,
In perfect memory), and, I pray, sir, tell me,
Were not one better make it smiling, thus,
Than in deep groans and terrible ghastly looks,
As if the gifts we parted with procure'd
That violent distraction?
ant. O, much better.
duch. If I had a husband now, this care were quit:
But I intend to make you overseer.
What good deed shall we first remember? Say.
ant. Begin with that first good deed 'gan
I th' world 95
After man's creation, the sacrament of marriage,
I'd have you first provide for a good husband;
Give him all.
duch. All! Yes, your excellent self.
duch. In a winding-sheet?
ant. In a couple.
duch. Saint Winifred, that were a strange will!
ant. We were strangers if there were no will
in you
To marry again.
duch. What do you think of marriage?
ant. I take 't, as those that deny purgatory, Itlocallycontainsorheavenorhell;
There'snothirdplacein't.
Duch. How do you affect it? 116
Ant. My banishment, feeding my melancholy,
Would ofter reason thus:—
Duch. Pray, let's hear it.
Ant. Say a man never marry, nor have children,
What takes that from him? Only the bare name
Of being a father, or the weak delight
To see the little wanton ride a-cook-horse
Upon a painted stick, or hear him chatter
Like a taught starling.
Duch. Fie, fie, what's all this?
One of your eyes is blood-shot; use my ring
to't.
They say 'tis very sovereign. 'T was my wed-ing-ring.
And I did vow never to part with it.
But to my second husband.
Ant. You have parted with it now.
Duch. Yes, to help your eye-sight.
Ant. You have made me stark blind.
Duch. How? 119
Ant. There is a saucy and ambitious devil
Is dancing in this circle.
Duch. Remove him.
Ant. Duch. There needs small conjuration, when your finger
May do it: thus. Is it fit?
[She puts the ring upon his finger]: he kneels.
Ant. Duch. What said you?
This goodly roof of yours is too low built; 125
I cannot stand upright in 't nor discourse,
Without I raise it higher. Raise yourself;
Or, if you please, my hand to help you: so.
[Raises him.]
Ant. Ambition, madam, is a great man's madness,
That is not kept in chains and close-pent rooms,
But in fair lightsome lodgings, and is girt
With the wild noise of prattling visitors,
Which makes it lucent beyond all cure.
Conceive not I am so stupid but I aim 1
Where to your favours tend: but he's a fool 126
That, being a-cold, would thrust his hands i'
'th' fire
To warm them.
Duch. So, now the ground's broke,
You may discover what a wealthy mine
I make you lord of.
Ant. Duch. You were ill to sell yourself;
This dark'ning of your worth is not like that Which tradesmen use i'th' city; their false lights
Are to rid bad wares off: and I must tell you,
If you will know where breathes a complete
man
(I speak it without flattery), turn your eyes, 146
And progress through yourself.

Ant. Were there nor heaven nor hell,
I should be honest: I have long serv'd virtue,
And ne'er'ta'en wages of her.
Duch. Now she pays it.
The misery of us that are born great! 150
We are force'd to woo, because none dare woo us;
And as a tyrant doubles with his words
And fearfully equivocates, so we
Are force'd to express our violent passions
In riddles and in dreams, and leave the path of simple virtue, which was never made
To seem the thing it is not. Go, go brag
You have left me heartless; mine is in your bosom:
I hope 'twill multiply love there. You do tremble:
Make not your heart so dead a piece of flesh;
To fear more than to love me. Sir, be confident:
What is 't distracts you? This is flesh and blood, sir;
'Tis not the figure cut in alabaster
Kneels at my husband's tomb. Awake, awake,
man!
I do here put off all vain ceremony,
And only do appear to you a young widow
That claims you for her husband, and, like a widow,
I use but half a blush in 't.
Ant. Truth speak for me;
I will remain the constant sanctuary
Of your good name.
Duch. I thank you, gentle love; 170
And 'cause you shall not come to me in debt,
Being now my steward, here upon your lips
I sign your Quietus et 2 This you should have begg'd now.
I have seen children oft eat sweetmeats thus,
As fearful to devour them too soon. 175
Ant. But for your brothers?
Duch. Do not think of them:
All discord without this circumference
Is only to be pitied, and not fear'd:
Yet, should they know it, time will easily
Scatter the tempest.
Ant. These words should be mine, 180
And all the parts you have spoke, if some part
of it
Would not have savoy'd flattery.
Duch. [Cariola comes from behind the arras.]
Kneel. Ha!
Duch. Be not amaz'd: this woman's of my counsel.
I have heard lawyers say, a contract in a chamber
Per verba [de] presenti 3 is absolute marriage. 188
[She and Antonio kneel.]
Bless, heaven, this sacred gordian, 4 which let violence
Never untwine.

2 The phrase used to indicate that accounts had been examined and found correct.
3 Using words of present time: i. e., "I take," not
"I will take."
4 Knot.
Ant. And may our sweet affections, like the spheres,
Be still in motion!
Duch. Quick’ning, and make 100
The like soft music!
Ant. That we may imitate the loving palms,
Best emblem of a peaceable marriage,
That ne’er bore fruit, divided!
Duch. What can the church force more?
Ant. That fortune may not know an accident,
Either of joy or sorrow, to divide
Our fixed wishes!
Duch. How can the church build faster? 1
We now are man and wife, and ’tis the church
That must but echo this.—Maid, stand apart:
I now am blind.
Ant. What’s your conceit in this? 200
Duch. I would have you lead your fortune by the hand.
Unto your marriage-bed:
(You speak in this, for we now are one.)
We’ll only lie and talk together, and plot
To appease my humorous 2 kindred; and if you please,
Like the old tale in Alexander and Lodowick,
Lay a naked sword between us, keep us chaste.
O, let me shroud my blushes in your bosom,
Since ’tis the treasury of all my secrets! 230
Car. Whether the spirit of greatness or of woman Reign most in her, I know not; but it shows
A fearful madness. I owe her much of pity. Exit.

ACT II

SCENE I.
[Enter] Bosola and Castruccio.
Bos. You say you would fain be taken for an eminent courtier?
Castr. ’Tis the very main 4 of my ambition.
Bos. Let me see: you have a reasonable good face for ’t already, and your night-cap expresses your ears sufficient largely. I would have you 5 learn to twirl the strings of your hand with a good grace, and in a set speech, at th’ end of every sentence, to hum three or four times, or blow your nose till it smart again, to recover your memory. When you come to be a presi- 10 dent in criminal causes, if you smile upon a prisoner, hang him; but if you frown upon him and threaten him, let him be sure to escape the gallows.
Castr. I would be a very merry president. 25
Bos. Do not sup o’ nights; ’twill beget you an admirable wit.
Castr. Rather it would make me have a good stomach to quarrel; for they say, your roaring boys eat meat seldom, and that makes them so valiant. But how shall I know whether the people take me for an eminent fellow?

Bos. I will teach a trick to know it: give out you lie a-dying, and if you hear the common people curse you, be sure you are taken for one of the prime night-caps. 5

[Enter an Old Lady.]

You come from painting now.
Old Lady. From what?
Bos. Why, from your seerly face-physic. To behold thee not painted inclines somewhat near a miracle. These in thy face here were deep rents and foul sloughs the last progress. 6 There was 7 a lady in France that, having had the small-pox, flayed off her face to make it more level; and whereas before she looked like a nutmeg-grater, after she resembled an abortive hedge-hog. 8
Old Lady. Do you call this painting?
Bos. No, no, but you call [it] careening 7 of an old morphew’d 6 lady, to make her disembogue 9 again: there’s a rough-ast phras’d to your plastic, 10
Old Lady. It seems you are well acquainted 40 [with my closet.
Bos. One would suspect it for a shop of witchcraft, to find in it the fat of serpents, spawn of snakes, Jews’ spittle, and their young children’s ordure; and all these for the face. I would 11 sooner eat a dead pigeon taken from the soles of the feet of one sick of the plague, than kiss one of you fasting. Here are two of you, whose sin of your youth is the very patriomy of the physician; makes him renew his foot-cloth 9 with the spring, and change his high-priest’d courtesan with the fall of the leaf. I do wonder you do not loathe yourselves. Observe my meditation now.
What thing is in this outward form of man 55
To be belov’d? We account it ominous,
If nature do produce a colt, or lamb,
A fawn, or goat, in any limb resembling
A man, and fly from ’t as a prodigy. 60
When stands amaz’d to see his deformity
In any other creature but himself.
But in our own flesh though we bear diseases
Which have their true names only ta’en from beasts,—
As the most ulcerous wolf 11 and swinish measle, 12—
Though we are eaten up of lice and worms,
And though continually we bear about us
A rotten and dead body, we delight
To hide it in rich tissue: all our fear,
Nay, all our terror, is, lest our physician
Should put us in the ground to be made sweet. — Your wife’s gone to Rome: you two couple, and get you to the wells at Lucelia to recover your aches. I have other work on foot.

[Exeunt Castruccio and Old Lady.]

I observe our duchess 74
Is sick a-days, she pukes, her stomach seethes,

4 Bullis (Basiiist): lawyers (Vaughan).
5 Royal journey.
6 Turning a boat on its side for repairs.
7 Scabbard.
8 Empty.
9 Face-modelling. (Sampson.) “There’s a plain statement of your practices.”
10 Lupus.
11 A disease of swine.
The fins of her eye-lids look most teemingly blue; she wanes i' th' cheek, and waxes fat i' th' flank.

And, contrary to our Italian fashion, Wears a loose-bodied gown; there's something in't.

I have a trick may chance discover it. A pretty one; I have bought some apricocks, The first our spring yields.

[Enter Antonio and Delio, talking together apart.]

Delio. And so long since married? You amaze me,

Ant. Let me seal your lips for ever:

For, did I think that anything but th' air Could carry these words from you, I should wish

You had no breath at all. — Now, sir, in your contemplation? You are studying to become a great wise fellow.

Bos. O, sir, the opinion of wisdom is a foul tetter* that runs all over a man's body: if simplicity direct us to have no evil, it directs us [to a happy being; for the subtlest folly proceeds from the subtlest wisdom. Let me be simply honest.

Ant. Do you understand your inside.

Bos. Because you would not seem to appear to th' world Puff'd up with your preferment, you continue This out-of-fashion melancholy: leave it, leave it.

Bos. Give me leave to be honest in any phrase, in any compliment whatsoever. Shall I confess myself to you? I look no higher than [100] I can read: they are the gods that must ride on winged horses. A lawyer's mule of a slow pace will both suit my disposition and business; for, mark me, when a man's mind rides faster than his horse can gallop, they quickly both [106] tire.

Ant. You would look up to heaven, but I think The devil, that rules i' th' air, stands in your light.

Bos. O, sir, you are lord of the descendant, chief man with the duchess: a duke was your cousin-german remov'd. Say you were lineally descended from King Pepin, or he himself, what of this? Search the heads of the greatest rivers in the world, you shall find them but bubbles of water. Some would think the souls of princes were brought forth by some more weighty cause than those of meaner persons: they are deceiv'd, there's the same hand to them: the like passions sway them; the same reason that makes a vicar go to law for a tithe-pig, and undo his neighbours, makes him spoil a whole province, and batter down goodly cities with the cannon.

1 Blue like those of a woman with child.
2 Scorn.
3 Person of highest influence.

[Enter Duchess and Ladies.]

Duch. Your arm, Antonio: do I not grow fat? I am exceeding short-winded. — Bosola, I would have you, sir, provide for me a litter, Such a one as the Duchess of Florence rode in.

Bos. The duchess us'd one when she was great with child.

Duch. I think she did. — Come hither, mend my ruff: Here, when? thou art such a tedious lady; and Thy breath smells of lemon-pills: wouldst thou hadst done! Shall I swoon under thy fingers? I am So troubled with the mother! [Aside.]

Bos. I fear, too much.

Duch. I am come to hear you say that the French courtiers Wear their hats on 'fore the king.

Ant. I have seen it.

Duch. In the presence? Ant. Yes.

Duch. Why should we not bring up that fashion? 'Tis ceremony more than duty that consists In the removing of a piece of felt. Be you the example to the rest o' th' court; Put on your hat first.

Ant. You must pardon me: I have seen, in colder countries than in France, Nobles stand bare to th' prince; and the distinction Methought show'd reverently.

Bos. I have a present for your grace.

Duch. For me, sir? Apricocks, madam.

Duch. O, sir, where are they? I have heard of none to-year.

Bos. Good; her colour rises.

Duch. Indeed, I thank you: they are wondrous fair ones.

What an unskilful fellow is our gardener! We shall have none this month.

Bos. Will not your grace pare them? Duch. No: they taste of musk, methinks; indeed they do.

Bos. I know not: yet I wish your grace had par'd 'em.

Duch. Why? Bos. I forgot to tell you, the knave gardener, Only to raise his profit by them the sooner, Did ripen them in horse-dung.

Duch. O, you jest. — You shall judge: pray, taste one.

Ant. Indeed, madam, I do not love the fruit.

Duch. Sir, you are loth To rob us of our dainties. 'Tis a delicate fruit; They say they are restorative.

Bos. This grafting. Duch. 'Tis so; a bettering of nature.

Bos. To make a pippin grow upon a crab. A damson on a black-thorn. — [Aside.] How greedily she eats them!

4 Hysteria.
5 This year.
A whirlwind strike off these bawd farthingales! For, but for that and the loose-bodied gown, I should have discover’d apparently 1

The young spring 2 cutting a caper in her belly.

Duch. I thank you, Bosola: they were right good ones, if they do not make me sick.

Ant. How, now, madam! 170

Duch. This green fruit and my stomach are not friends:

How they swell me! Bos. [Aside.] Nay, you are too much swell’d already.

Duch. O, I am in an extreme cold sweat!

Bos. I am very sorry. [Exit.] Duch. Lights to my chamber! — O good Antonio.

I fear I am undone!

Delio. Lights there, lights! Exeunt Duchess [and Ladies].

Ant. O my most trusty Delio, we are lost! I fear she’s fallen in labour, and there’s left No time for her remove.

Delio. Have you prepar’d Those ladies to attend her; and procur’d 180 That politic safe conveyance for the midwife Your duchess pointed?

Ant. I have.

Delio. Make use, then, of this forc’d occasion; Give out that Bosola hath poison’d her With these apricocks; that will give some colour For her keeping close.

Ant. Will then flock to her.

Delio. For that you may pretend She’ll use some prepar’d antidote of her own, Lest the physicians should re-poison her. 190

Ant. I am lost in amazement: I know not what to think on’t.

[Aside.]

SCENE II. 8

[Enter] Bosola and Old Lady.

Bos. So, so, there’s no question but her tech- 4

Iness 6 and most vulturous eating of the apricocks are apparent signs of breeding. — Now? Old Lady. I am in haste, sir.

Bos. There was a young waiting-woman had a monstrous desire to see the glass-house — Old Lady. Nay, pray, let me go.

Bos. And it was only to know what strange instrument it was should swell up a glass to the fashion of a woman’s belly.

Old Lady. I will hear no more of the glass-house, You are still 6 abusing women!

Bos. Who? I? No; only, by the way now and then, mention your frailties. The orange-tree bears ripe and green fruit and blossoms all together; and some of you give entertainment for pure love, but more for more precious reward. The lusty spring smells well; but droop-1 Clearly.

2 Youngster.

3 A hall in the same palace.
The Duchess of Malfi

I Serv. By this hand, 'tis credibly reported by one o' th' black guard. 1

[Exeunt all except António and Delio.] 2

Delio. How fares it with the duchess?

Ant. She's expos'd
Unto the worst of torture, pain and fear.

Delio. Speak to her all happy comfort.

Ant. How I do play the fool with mine own danger
You are this night, dear friend, to post to Rome:

My life lies in your service.

Delio. Do not doubt me.

Ant. O, 'tis far from me: and yet fear presents me

Somewhat that looks like danger.

Delio. Believe it,
'Tis but the shadow of your fear, no more.

How superstitiously we mind our evils!

The throwing down salt, or crossing of a hare,
Bleeding at nose, the stumbling of a horse,
Or singing of a cricket, are of power
To daunt whole man in us. Sir, fare you well:
I wish you all the joys of a bless'd father;
And, for my faith, lay this unto your breast,—
Old friends, like old swords, still are trusted best.

[Enter Carlota.]

Carlota. Sir, you are the happy father of a son:
Your wife commends to you.

Ant. Blessed comfort!—
For heaven's sake, tend her well. I'll presently 2
Go set a figure for 's nativity. 3

Scene III.

[Enter Bosola, with a dark lantern.]

Bos. Sure I did hear a woman shriek: list, ha!

And the sound came, if I receiv'd it right,
From the duchess' lodgings. There's some stratagem
In the confining all our courtiers
To their several wards: I must have part of it;
My intelligence will freeze else. List, again! 4

It may be 't was the melancholy bird,
Best friend of silence and of solitary,
The owl, that scream'd so.—Ha! Antonio!
[Enter Antonio with a candle, his sword drawn.]

Ant. I heard some noise.—Who's there?

What art thou? Speak. 5

António, put not your face nor body
To such a forc'd expression of fear;
I am Bosola, your friend.

Ant. Bosola!—

[Aside.] This mole does undermine me.—

Heard you not
A noise even now?

Bos. From whence?

Ant. From the duchess' lodging. 6

Bos. Not I: did you?

1 The meaner servants.
2 At once.
3 Cast his horoscope.
4 The court of the same palace.
5 Making an astrological calculation.
6 Going to the root of the matter.
7 Write. 8 J. C. on his handkerchief.
8 Addressing the lantern.
hours twelve and one in the night, Anno Dom. 1504. — that's this year — the lord of the first house being, as the sun stands over the meridian of Malpí, — that's our duchess: happy discovery! — The lord of the first house being mbust in the ascendant signifies short life; and Mars being in a human sign, joined to the tail of the Dragon, in the eighth house, doth threaten a violent death. Cautera non sunt asserita.

Why, now 'tis most apparent; this precise felow
Is the duchess' bawd: — I have it to my wish! This is a parcel of intellignency
Our curtiers were cas'd up for: it needs must follow
That I must be committed on pretence
Of poisoning her; which I'll endure, and laugh at.

If one could find the father now! but that
The will discover. Old Castruccio
I th' morning posts to Rome; by him I'll send
A letter that shall make her brothers' gall Ov'erflow their livers. This was a thrifty way!
Though Lust do mask in ne'er so strange disguise,
She's oft found witty, but is never wise.

SCENE IV.

[Enter Cardinal and Julia.

Card. Sit: thou art my best of wishes. Friar, tell me
What trick didst thou invent to come to Rome
Without thy husband? Julia. Why, my lord, I told him
I came to visit an old anchorite. Here for devotion.
Card. Thou art a witty false one; — I mean, to him. Julia. You have prevail'd with me
Beyond my strongest thoughts; I would not now Find you inconstant.

Card. Do not put thyself
To such a voluntary torture, which proceeds
Out of your own guilt.

Julia. How, my lord! Card. You fear my constancy, because you have approv'd Those giddy and wild turnings in yourself.
Julia. Did you e'er find them?
Card. Sooth, generally for women, A man might strive to make glass malleable, Ere he should make them fixed.

Julia. Card. We had need go borrow that fantastic glass Invented by Galileo the Florentine
To view another spacious world 'tis that moon,
And look to find a constant woman there.
Julia. This is very well, my lord.
Card. Why do you weep?

Are tears your justification? The self-same tears
Will fall into your husband's bosom, lady,
With a loud protestation that you love him
Above the world. Come, I'll love you wisely,
That's jealously; since I am very certain
You cannot make me cuckold.

Julia. I'll go home
To my husband.
Card. You may thank me, lady,
I have taken you off your melancholy perch,
Bore you upon my fist, and show'd you game,
And let you fly at it. — I pray thee, kiss me —
When thou wast with thy husband, thou wast watch'd
Like a tame elephant: — still you are to thank me: —
Thou hast only kisses from him and high feeding:
But what delight was that? 'T was just like one
That hath a little fing'ring on the lute,
Yet cannot tune it: — still you are to thank me.

Julia. You told me of a piteous wound i' th' heart,
And a sick liver, when you wou'd me first,
And spoke like one in physic.

Card. Who's that? —

[Enter Servant.

Rest firm for my affection to thee,
Lightnings move slow to 't.
Serv. Madam, a gentleman
That's comes post from Malpí, desires to see you.
Card. Let him enter: I'll withdraw. Exit Serv.

Your husband, old Castruccio, is come to Rome,
Most pitifully tir'd with riding post. [Exit.]

[Enter Delio.]

Julia. [Aside.] Signior Delio! 'tis one of my old suitors.
Delio. I was bold to come and see you.
Julia. Sir, you are welcome.
Delio. Do you lie here?
Julia. Sure, your own experience
Will satisfy you no: our Roman prelates Do not keep lodging for ladies.

Delio. I have brought you no commendations from your husband, For I know none by him.
Julia. I hear he's come to Rome.
Delio. I never knew man and beast, of a horse and a knight, So weary of each other. If he had had a good back,
He would have undertook to have borne his horse,
His breech was so pitifully sore.

Julia. Your laughter
Is my pity.

1 The rest not considered.
2 A piece of news.
3 Cleverly contrived.
4 Religious recluse.
5 Experienced.
Delio. Lady, I know not whether
You want money, but I have brought you some.
Julia. From my husband?
Delio. No, from mine own allowance. 90
Julia. I must hear the condition, ere I be bound to take it.
Delio. Look on't, 'tis gold; hath it not a fine colour?
Julia. I have a bird more beautiful.
Delio. Try the sound on't.
Julia. A lute-string far exceeds it.
It hath no smell, like cassia or civet;
Nor is it physical, though some fond doctors
Persuade us seethe't in cullises. 9 I'll tell you,
This is a creature bred by —

[Re-enter Servant.]

Serv. Your husband's come, Hath deliver'd a letter to the Duke of Calabria
That, to my thinking, hath put him out of his wits. Exit. 70
Julia. Sir, you hear:
Pray, let me know your business and your suit
As briefly as can be.
Delio. With good speed: I would wish you,
At such time as you are non-resident 75
With your husband, my mistress.
Julia. Sir, I'll go ask my husband if I shall,
And straight return your answer. Exit. Delio.

Very fine!
Is this her wit, or honesty, that speaks thus?
I heard one say the duke was highly mov'd
With a letter sent from Malph. I do fear Antonio is betray'd. How fearfully
Shows his ambition now! Unfortunate fortune!
They pass through whirl-pools, and deep woes do shun,
Who the event ere the action's done. 85

SCENE V. 8

[Enter] CARDINAL and FERDINAND with a letter.

Ferd. I have this night digg'd up a mandrake. 4
Card. Say you?
Ferd. And I am grown mad with it.
Card. What's the prodigy?
Ferd. Read there,— a sister damn'd: she's loose i' th' hils; 5
Grown a notorious strumpet.
Card. Speak lower.
Ferd. Lower!
Rogues do not whisper 't now, but seek to publish 't
(As servants do the bounty of their lords)
Alone; and with a covetous searching eye,
To mark who note them. O, confusion seize her!

She hath had most cunning bawds to serve her turn,
And more secure conveyances for lust
Than towns of garrison for service.
Card. Is't possible?
Can this be certain?
Ferd. Rhubarb, O, for rhubarb
To purge this choler! Here's the cursed day
To prompt my memory; and here 't shall stick
Till of her bleeding heart I make a sponge
To wipe it out.
Card. Why do you make yourself
So wild a tempest?
Ferd. Would I could be one,
That I might toss her palace 'bout her ears,
Root up her goodly forests, blast her meads,
And lay her general territory as waste
As she hath done her honours.
Card. Shall our blood,
The royal blood of Arragon and Castile,
Be thus attainted?
Ferd. Apply desperate physic:
We must not now use balsamum, but fire,
The smarting cupping-glass, for that's the mean
To purge infected blood, such blood as hers.
There is a kind of pity in mine eye,
I'll give it to my handkercher, and now 't is here,
I'll bequeath this to her bastard.

[Enter] SERVANT with a letter from the Duke of Calabria.
Card. What to do?
Ferd. Why, to make soft lint for his mother's wounds.
When I have hew'd her to pieces.
Card. Curs'd creature!
Unequal nature, to place women's hearts
So far upon the left side! 5
Ferd. Foolish men,
That e'er will trust their honour in a bark
Made of so slight weak bulrush as is woman, 35
Apt every minute to sink it!
Card. Thus ignorance, when it hath purchas'd honour,
It cannot wield it.
Ferd. Methinks I see her laughing,—
Excellent hyena! Talk to me somewhat quickly,
Or my imagination will carry me
To see her in the shameful act of sin.
Card. With whom? 5
Ferd. Happily with some strong-thigh'd
Or one o' th' wood-yard that can quoit the aledge? 3
Or toss the bar, or else some lovely squire
That carries coals up to her privy lodgings.
Card. You fly beyond your reason.
Ferd. Go to, mistress!
'Tis not your whore's milk that shall quench
my wild-fire,
But your whore's blood.
Card. How idly shows this rage, which Carries you,
As men convey'd by witches through the air,
On violent whirlwinds! This intertemperate noise
Fitly resembles deaf men's shrill discourse,
4 Supposed to be a sign of folly.
7 Throw the hammer.
3 Supposed to be a sign of folly.
7 Throw the hammer.
8 Unchaste.
1 Medicinal.
2 Strong broth.
3 Another apartment in the same palace.
4 The mandrake was supposed to give forth shrieks when uprooted, which drove the heater mad.
5 Unchaste.
9 Such a broach.
Who talk aloud, thinking all other men
To have their imperfection.

Ferd. Have not you
My palsy?

Card. Yes, [but] I can be angry
Without this rupture. There is not in nature
A thing that makes man so deform'd, so beastly,
As doth intemperate anger. Chide yourself.
You have divers men who never yet express'd
Their strong desire of rest but by unrest,
By vexing of themselves. Come, put yourself
In tune.

Ferd. So I will only study to seem
The thing I am not. I could kill her now,
In you, or in myself; for I do think
It is some sin in us heaven doth revenge
By her.

Card. Are you stark mad?

Ferd. I would have their bodies
Burnt in a coal-pit with the vantage stopp'd,
That their coulters smoke might not ascend to heaven;
Or dip the sheets they lie in in pitch or sulphur,
Wrap them in 't, and light them like a match;
Or else to-boil 1 their bastard to a cullis,
And give 't his lecherous father to renew
The sin of his back.

Card. I'll leave you.

Ferd. Nay, I have done.
I am confident, had I been damn'd in hell, 26
And should have heard of this, it would have put me
Into a cold sweat. In, in; I'll go sleep.
Till I know who leaps my sister, I'll not stir:
That known, I'll find scorpions to string my whips,
And fix her in a general eclipse. Exeunt. 80

ACT III

SCENE I. 2

[Enter] Antonio and Delio.

Ant. Our noble friend, my most beloved Delio!
O, you have been a stranger long at court:
Came you along with the Lord Ferdinand?

Delio. I did, sir: and how fares your noble duchess?

Ant. Right fortunately well: she's an excellent
Feeder of pedigrees; since you last saw her,
She hath had two children more, a son and daughter.

Delio. Methinks 'twas yesterday. Let me
but wink,
And not behold your face, which to mine eye
Is somewhat leaner, verily I should dream 10
It was within this half hour.

Ant. You have not been in law, friend Delio,
Nor in prison, nor a suitor at the court,
Nor begg'd the reversion of some great man's
place,

Nor troubled with an old wife, which doth
make
Your time so insensibly hasten.

Delio. Pray, sir, tell me,
Hath not this news arriv'd yet to the ear
Of the lord cardinal?

Ant. I fear it hath:
The Lord Ferdinand, that's newly come to
court,
Doth bear himself right dangerously.

Delio. Pray, why? 20

Ant. He is so quiet that he seems to sleep
The tempest out, as dormice do in winter.
Those houses that are haunted are most still
Till the devil be up.

Delio. What say the common people?

Ant. The common rabble do directly say 25
She is a strumpet.

Delio. And your gracious heads
Which would be politick, what censure they?

Ant. They do observe I grow to infinite purchase, 3
The left hand way; and all suppose the duchess
Would amend it, if she could; for, say they, 30
Great princes, though they grudge their officers
Should have such large and unconfined means
To get wealth under them, will not complain,
Lest thereby they should make them odious
Unto the people. For other obligation
Of love or marriage between her and me
They never dream of.

Delio. The Lord Ferdinand
Is going to bed.

[Enter Duchess, Ferdinand, and Attendants.]

Ferd. I'll instantly to bed,
For I am weary. — I am to bespeak
A husband for you.

Duch. For me, sir! Pray, who is 't? 40

Ferd. The great Count Malatesti.

Duch. Be upon him! A count! He's a mere stick of sugar-candy;
You may look quite through him. When I choose
A husband, I will marry for your honour.

Ferd. You shall do well in 't. — How is 't, 45 worthy Antonio?

Duch. But, sir, I am to have private conference with you
About a scandalous report is spread
Touching mine honour.

Ferd. Let me be ever deaf to 't:
One of Pasquils paper-bullets, 4 court-calumny,
A pestilent air, which princes' palaces 5
Are seldom purg'd of. Yet, say that it were true,
I pour it in your bosom, my fix'd love
Would strongly excuse, extenuate, nay, deny Faults, were they apparent in you. Go, be safe
In your own innocence.

Duch. [Aside.] O bless'd comfort! 50

This deadly air is purg'd.

Exeunt [Duchess, Antonio, Delio, and Attendants.]

Ferd. Her guilt treads on Hot-burning coulters. 6

1 Boit to shreds. (Dyce.) Qq. to boil.
2 A coulters. An apartment in the palace of the Duchess.
3 Wealth.
4 Lampoons.
5 Ploughshares.
THE DUCHESS OF MALFI

[Enter Bosola.]

Now, Bosola,
How thrives our intelligence?

Bos. Sir, uncertainly:
'Tis rumour'd she hath had three bastards, but
By whom we may go read 't h' stars.

Ferd. Why, some
Hold opinion all things are written there.
Bos. Yes, if we could find spectacles to read them.
I do suspect there hath been some sorcery
Us'd on the duchess.

Ferd. Sorcery to what purpose?
Bos. To make her dote on some desertless fellow
She shames to acknowledge.

Ferd. Can your faith give way
To think there's power in potions or in charms,
To make us love whether we will or no?

Bos. Most certainly.
Ferd. Away! these are mere gulleries,
Invented by some cheating mountebanks.
To abuse us. Do you think that herbs or charms
Can force the will? Some trials have been made
In this foolish practice, but the ingredients
Were lenitive poisons, such are of force
To make the patient mad; and straight the witch
Sweats by equivocation they are in love.
The witch-craft lies in her rank blood. This night
I will force confession from her. You told me
You had got, within these two days, a false key
Into her bed-chamber.

Bos. I have.
Ferd. As I would wish.
Bos. What do you intend to do?
Ferd. Can you guess?
Bos. No.
Ferd. Do not ask, then:
He that can compass me, and know my drifts,
May say he hath put a girdle 'bout the world,
And sounded all her quick-sands.

Bos. I do not think so.
Ferd. What do you think, then, pray?
Bos. That you are your own chronicle too much, and grossly Flatter yourself.

Ferd. Give me thy hand; I thank thee:
I never gave pension but to flatterers,
Till I entertained thee. Farewell.
That friend a great man's ruin strongly checks,
Who rails into his belief all his defects.

Enter Duchess, Antonio, and Caria

Duch. Bring me the casket hither, and the glass.—
You get no lodging here to-night, my lord.

Ant. Indeed, I must persuade one.

Duch. Very good:
I hope in time 't will grow into a custom,
That noblemen shall come with cap and knee
To purchase a night's lodging of their wives.

Ant. I must lie here.

Duch. Must! You are a lord of mis-rule.

Ant. Indeed, my rule is only in the night.

Duch. To what use will you put me?

Ant. We'll sleep together.

Duch. Alas, what pleasure can two lovers find
In sleep?

Car. My lord, I lie with her often, and I know
She'll much disquiet you.

Ant. See, you are complain'd of.

Car. For she's the sprawling'st bedfellow.

Ant. Nay, that's but one; Venus had two soft doves
To draw her chariot; I must have another.—

[She kisses him again.]

When wilt thou marry, Caria?

Car. Never, my lord.

Ant. O, fie upon this single life! forgo it.
We read how Daphne, for her peevish [flight,]
Became a fruitless bay-tree; Syrinx turn'd
To the pale empty reed; Anaxarque
Was frozen into marble: whereas those Which married, or prov'd kind unto their friends,
Were by a gracious influence trans-shap'd
Into the olive, pomegranate, mulberry Became flowers, precious stones, or eminent stars.

Car. This is a vain poetry: but I pray you,
tell me,
If there were propos'd me, wisdom, riches, and beauty,
In three several young men, which should I choose?

Ant. 'T is a hard question. This was Paris' case,
And he was blind in't, and there was a great cause;
For how was 't possible he could judge right,
Having three amorous goddesses in view.
And they stark naked? 'T was a motion
Were able to benteight the apprehension
Of the severest counsellor of Europe.
Now I look on both your faces so well form'd,
It puts me in mind of a question I would ask.

Car. What is 't?

Ant. I do wonder why hard-favour'd ladies,
For the most part, keep worse-favour'd waiting-
women
To attend them, and cannot endure fair ones.

1 Spying. 2 Deceptions. 3 Soothing. 4 The bed-chamber of the Duchess in the same.
Duch. O, that’s soon answer’d.
Did you ever in your life know an ill painter
Desire to have his dwelling next door to the shop
Of an excellent picture-maker? ’T would disgrace
His face-making, and undo him. I prithee,
When were we so merry? My hair tangles.
Ant. Pray thee, Cariola, let’s steal forth the room,
And let her talk to herself: I have divers times
Serv’d her the like, when she hath chaf’d extremely.
I love to see her angry. Softly, Cariola.

Duch. Doth not the colour of my hair ‘gin to change?
When I wax gray, I shall have all the court
Powder their hair with arras, to be like me. You have cause to love me; I ent’red you into my heart.

[Enter FerdinanD unseem.]
Before you would vouchsafe to call for the keys.
We shall one day have my brothers take you napping.
Methinks his presence, being now in court, Should make you keep your own bed; but you’ll Love mixt with fear is sweetest. I’ll assure you,
You shall get no more children till my brothers Consent to be your gossips. Have you lost your tongue?
’Tis welcome:
For know, whether I am doom’d to live or die,
I can do both like a prince.

Ferd. Die, then, quickly.

Virtue, where art thou hid? What hideous thing
Is it that doth eclipse thee?
Duch. Pray, sir, hear me.
Ferd. Or is it true thou art but a bare name,
And no essential thing?
Duch. Sir — Do not speak.

Ferd. No, sir:
I will plant my soul in mine ears, to hear you.
Ferd. O most imperfect light of human reason,
That mak’st [us] so unhappy to foresee
What we can least prevent! Pursue thy wishes, And glory in them: there’s in shame no comfort
But to be past all bounds and sense of shame.
Duch. I pray, sir, hear me: I am married.
Ferd. So!

Duch. Happily, not to your liking: but for that,
Alas, your shears do come untimely now
To clip the bird’s wings that’s already flown!
Will you see my husband?
Ferd. Yes, if I could change
Eyes with a basilisk.

1 Powder of orris-root.

Duch. Sure, you came hither
By his confederacy.

Ferd. The howling of a wolf
In music to thee, screech-owl: prithee, peace.—
Whate’er thou art that hast enjoy’d my sister, For I am sure thou hast enjoy’d me, for thine own sake
Let me not know thee. I came hither prepar’d
To work thy discovery; yet am now persuaded
It would beget such violent effects
As would damn us both. I would not for ten millions
I had beheld thee: therefore use all means
I never may have knowledge of thy name;
Enjoy thy lust still, and a wretched life,
On that condition. — And for thee, wild woman,
If thou dost wish thy lecher may grow old
In thy embracements, I would have thee build
Such a room for him as our anchorites
To holier use inhabit. Let not the sun
Shine on him till he’s dead; let dogs and monkeys

Only converse with him, and such dumb things
To whom nature denies use to sound his name;
Do not keep a parquito; lest she learn it;
If thou dost love him, cut out thine own tongue,
Lest it bewray him.

Duch. Why might not I marry?

I have not gone about in this to create
Any new word or custom; say
Thou art undone; And thou hast ta’en that massy sheet of lead
That hid thy husband’s bones, and folded it
About my heart.

Duch. Mine bleeds for’t.

Ferd. Thine! th’ heart! 116

What should I name ’t, unless a hollow bullet
Fill’d with unquenchable wild-fire?

Duch. You are in this Too strict; and were you not my princely brother,
I would say, too wilful: my reputation
Is safe.

Ferd. Dost thou know what reputation is?
I’ll tell thee, — to small purpose, since th’ instruction
Comes now too late.

Upon a time Reputation, Love, and Death,
Would travel o’er the world; and it was concluded
That they should part, and take three several ways.
Death told them, they should find him in great battles,
Or cities plag’d with plagues; Love gives them counsel
To inquire for him ’mongst unambitious shepherds,
Where dowries were not talk’d of and sometimes
’Mongst quiet kindred that had nothing left
By their dead parents: ’Stay,’ quoth Reputation,

‘Do not forsake me; for it is my nature,
If once I part from any man I meet,
I am never found again.’ And so for you:
You have shook hands with Reputation,
And made him invisible. So, fare you well:
I will never see you more.

Duch. Why should only I,
Of all the other princes of the world,
Be cas’d up, like a holy relic? I have youth
And a little beauty.

Ferd. So you have some virgins. That are witches. I will never see thee more.
       Exit.

Re-enter Antionio with a pistol, [and Cariola.]

Duch. You saw this apparition?
Ant. Yes: we are betray’d. How came he hither? I should turn
This to thee, for that.

Cari. Pray, sir, do; and when
That you have cleft my heart, you shall read
There Mine innocence.

Duch. That gallery gave him entrance.

Ant. I would this terrible thing would come again,
That, standing on my guard, I might relate
My warrantable love. — (She shows the poniard.)
Ha! what means this?

Duch. He left this with me,
Ant. And it seems did wish
You would use it on yourself.

Duch. His action seem’d
To intend so much.

Ant. This hath a handle to’t,
As well as a point: turn it towards him, and
So fasten the keen edge in his rank gall.

[Knocking within.]

How now! who knocks? More earthquakes?

Duch. I stand.

As if a mine beneath my feet were ready
To be blown up.

Cari. ’Tis Bosola.

Duch. Away!

O misery! methinks unjust actions
Should wear these masks and curtains, and not we,
You must instantly part hence: I have fashion’d
It already. Exit Antonio.

[Enter Bosola.]

Bos. The duke your brother is ta’en up in a Whirlwind;
Hath took horse, and ’s rid post to Rome.

Duch. So late? Bos. He told me, as he mounted into th’ saddle,
You were undone.

Duch. Indeed, I am very near it.
Bos. What’s the matter?
Duch. Antonio, the master of our household,
Hath dealt so falsely with me in ’s accounts.
My brother stood engag’d with me for money
Ta’en up of certain Neapolitan Jews,
And Antonio lets the bonds he forfeit.

Bos. Strange! — [Aside.] This is cunning.
Duch. And hereupon
My brother’s bills at Naples are protested
Against. — Call up our officers.

Bos. I shall. Exit.

[Re-enter Antonio.]

Duch. The place that you must fly to is Ancona:

Hire a house there; I’ll send after you
My treasure and my jewels. Our weak safety
Runs upon enginous wheels; 1 short syllables
Must stand for periods. I must now accuse you
Of such a feigned crime as Tasso calls
Magnanima mensopna, a noble lie,
’Cause it must shield our honours.— Hark! they are coming.

[Re-enter Bosola and Officers.]

Ant. Will your grace hear me?

Duch. I have got well by you; you have yielded me
A million of loss: I am like to inherit
The people’s curses for your stewardship,
You had the trick in audit-time to be sick,
Till I had sign’d your quietus; 2 and that cur’d
you
Without help of a doctor. — Gentlemen,
I would have this man be an example to you
all.
So shall you hold my favour; I pray, let him;
For he’s done that, alas, you would not think of,
And, because I intend to be rid of him,
I mean not to publish. — Use your fortune elsewhere.

Ant. I am strongly arm’d to brook my overthrow,
As commonly men bear with a hard year.
I will not blame the cause on ’t; but do think
The necessity of my malevolent star
Procures this, not her humour. O, the inconstant
And rotten ground of service! You may see,
’T is even like him, that in a winter night,
Takes a long slumber o’er a dying fire,
A-loth to part from ’t; yet parts thence as cold
As when he first sat down.

Duch. We do confiscate,
Towards the satisfying of your accounts,
All that you have.

Ant. I am all yours; and ’t is very fit
All mine should be so.

Duch. So, sir, you have your pass.
Ant. You may see, gentlemen, what ’t is to serve
A prince with body and soul.

Bos. Here’s an example for extortion: what moisture is drawn out of the sea, when foul 110 weather comes, pours down, and runs into the sea again.

Duch. I would know what are your opinions
Of this Antonio.

2 Off. He could not abide to see a pig’s head gaping: I thought your grace would find him a Jew.

3 Off. I would you had been his officer, for your own sake.

4 Off. You would have had more money.
1 Off. He stopp'd his ears with black wool, and to those came to him for money said he was thick of hearing.

2 Off. Some said he was an hermaphrodite, for he could not abide a woman.

3 Off. How scurvy proud he would look when the treasury was full! Well, let him go.

1 Off. Yes, and the chippings of the buttery fly after him, to scour his gold chain. Duch. Leave us. — Exeunt [Officers].

What do you think of these?

Bos. That these are rogues that in 's prosperity, but to have waited on his fortune, could have wish'd

His dirty stirrup riveted through their noses, and follow'd after 's mule, like a bear in a ring;

Would have prostituted their daughters to his lust;

Made their first-born intelligencers; 2 thought none happy

But such as were born under his blest planet, and wore his livery: and do these lice drop off now?

Well, never look to have the like again:

He hath left a sort 3 of flattering rogues behind him;

Their doom must follow. Princes pay flatterers in their own money: flatterers dissemble their vices, and they dissemble their lies; that 's justice.

Alas, poor gentleman!

Duch. Poor! I hate amply fill'd his coffers.

Bos. Sure, he was too honest. Pluto, 4 the god of riches,

When he's sent by Jupiter to any man, he goes limping, to signify that wealth that comes on God's name comes slowly; but when he's sent,

On the devil's errand, he rides post and comes in by sentinels. 6

Let me show you what a most unval'd jewel you have in a wanton humour thrown away, to bless the man shall find him. He was an excellent courtier and most faithful; a soldier that thought it as beastly to know his own value too little as devilish to acknowledge it too much.

Both his virtue and form deserv'd a far better fortune,

His discourse rather delighted to judge itself than show itself:

His breast was fill'd with all perfection, and yet it seem'd a private whisper-room, it made so little noise of 't.

Duch. But he was basely descended.

Bos. Will you make yourself a mercenary herald, rather to examine men's pedigrees than virtues?

You shall want 6 him:

For know an honest statesman to a prince

1 The badge of a steward. 2 Spies. 3 Lot. 4 For Plutus. 5 Quick steps. 6 Miss.

Is like a cedar planted by a spring; the spring bathes the tree's root, the grateful tree;

Reward him with decay: you have not done 30.

I would sooner swim to the Bermoothes on two politicians' rotten bladders, tied together with an intelligenier's heart-string, than depend on so changeable a prince's favour.

Fare thee well, Antonio! Since the malice of the world would needs down with thee, it cannot be said yet

That any ill happen'd unto thee, considering thy fall.

Was accompanied with virtue.

Duch. O, you render me excellent music! Bos. Say you?

Duch. This good one that you speak of is my husband.

Bos. Do I not dream? Can this ambitious age have so much goodness in 't as to prefer a man merely for worth, without these shadows of wealth and painted honours? Possible?

Duch. I have had three children by him.

Bos. Fortunate lady! For you have made your private muptial bed the humble and fair seminary of peace, no question but: many an unbenefic'd scholar shall pray for you for this deed, and rejoice that some preferment in the world can yet arise from merit. The virgins of your land that have no dowries shall hope your example will raise them to rich husbands. Should you want soldiers, 't would make the very Turks and Moors turn Christians, and serve you for this act.

Last, the neglected poets of your time, in honour of this man, raised by that curious engine, your white hand, shall thank you in your grave for 't, and make that more reverend than all the cabinets.

Of living princes. For this Antonio, his fame shall likewise flow from many a pen, when heralds shall want coats to sell to men.

Duch. As I taste comfort in this friendly speech, so would I find concealment.

Bos. O, the secret of my prince, which I will wear on 't inside of my heart! Duch. You shall take charge of all my coin and jewels, and follow him; for he retires himself to Ancona.

Bos. So.

Duch. Whither, within few days, I mean to follow thee.

Bos. Let me think: I would wish your grace to feign a pilgrimage to our Lady of Loreto, scarce seven leagues from fair Ancona; so may you depart your country with more honour, and your flight
Will seem a princely progress, retaining
Your usual train about you.
Duch. Shall lead me by the hand. Sir, your direction
Cari. In my opinion, She were better progress to the baths at Lucca,
Or go visit the Spa.
In Germany; for, if you will believe me, I do not like this jesting with religion,
This feigned pilgrimage.
Duch. Thou art a superstitious fool:
Prepare us instantly for our departure.
Fast sorrows, let us moderately lament them,
For those to come, seek wisely to prevent them.

Bos. A politician is the devil's quilted anvil;
He fashions all sins on him, and the blows
Are never heard: he may work in a lady's chamber,
As here for proof. What rests 1 but I reveal
All to my lord? O, this base quality 2
Of intelligence! Why, every quality 'tis the world
Prefers but gain or commendation:
Now, for this act I am certain to be rais'd, 335
And men that paint weeps to the life are rais'd.
Exit.

SCENE III. 3

[Enter] CARDINAL, FERDINAND, MALATESTI,
PESCARA, DELIO, and SILVIO.

Card. Must we turn soldier, then?
Mal.  The emperor,
Hearing your worth that way, ere you attain'd
This reverend garment, joins you in commission
With the right fortunate soldier the Marquis of Pesca,
And the famous Lannoy.

Card. He that had the honour 5
Of taking the French king prisoner?
Mal. The same.
Here's a plot drawn for a new fortification
At Naples.

Ferd. This great Count Malatesti, I perceive,
Hath got employment?
Delio. No employment, my lord;
A marginal note in the muster-book that he is
A voluntary lord.

Ferd. He's no soldier?
Delio. He has worn gun-powder in 's hollow tooth for the tooth-ache.

Sil. He comes to the leaguer with a full intent
To eat fresh beef and garlic, means to stay
Till the scent be gone, and straight return to court.

Delio. He hath read all the late service
As the City Chronicle relates it;
And keeps twain pouters going, only to express
Battles in model.

Sil. Then he 'll fight by the book.
Delio. By the almanac, I think.

To choose good days and shun the critical;
That 's his mistres's scarf.
Sil. Yes, he protests
He would do much for that taffeta.
Delio. I think he would run away from a battle.
To save it from taking prisoner.

Sil. He is horribly afraid 25
Gun-powder will spoil the perfume on 't.
Delio. I saw a Dutchman break his pate once
For calling him a pot-gun; he made his head
Have a bone in 't like a musket.
Sil. I would he had made a touch-hole to 't. 30
He is indeed a guarded sumpter-cloth; 4
Only for the remove of the court.

[Enter Bosola.]

Pes. Bosola arriv'd! What should be the business?
Some falling-out among the cardinals.
These factions amongst great men, they are like

Foxes, when their heads are divided,
They carry fire in their tails, and all the country
About them goes to wrack for 't.

Sil. What's that Bosola?
Delio. I knew him in Padua, — a fantastical scholar, like such who study to know how many knots was in Heracles' club, of what colour [18 Achilles' beard was, or whether Hector were not troubled with the tooth-ache. He hath studied himself half bear-ey'd to know the true symmetry of Caesar's nose by a shoeing- [45 horn; and this he did to gain the name of a speculative man.

Pes. Mark Prince Ferdinand:
A very salamander lives in 's eye,
To mock the eager violence of fire.
Sil. That cardinal hath made more bad faces with his complexion than ever Michael Angelo made good ones. He lifts up 's nose, like a foul porpoise before a storm.

Pes. The Lord Ferdinand laughs.
Delio. Like a deadly cannon 55
That lightens ere it smokes.
Pes. These are your true pangs of death,
The pangs of life, that struggle with great statesmen.

Delio. In such a deformed silence witches whisper their charms.

Card. Both she make religion her riding-hood.

To keep her from the sun and tempest?

Ferd. That, that damns her. Methinks her fault and beauty,
Blended together, show like leprosy,
The whiter the fouler. I make it a question
Whether her beggarly brats were ever christ-

Card. I will instantly solicit the state of Ancona
To have them banish'd.

Ferd. You are for Loretto:

1 Remains.
2 Profession.
3 An apartment in the Cardinal's palace at Rome.
4 A decorated horse-cloth, used only when the court is traveling.
Scene IV.

[Enter] Two Pilgrims to the Shrine of our Lady of Loretto.

1 Pil. I have not seen a goodlier shrine than this;
Yet I have visited many.
2 Pil. The Cardinal of Arragon
Is this day to resign his cardinal’s hat;
His sister duchess likewise is arriv’d
To pay her vow of pilgrimage. I expect
A noble ceremony.

1 Pil. No question. — They come.
[Here the ceremony of the Cardinal’s instalment in the habit of a soldier perform’d in delivering up his cross, hat, robes and ring at the shrine, and investing him with sword, helmet, shield, and spurs. Then Antonio, the Duchess and their children, having presented themselves at the shrine, are, by a form of banishment in dumb-show expressed towards them by the Cardinal and the state of Ancona, banished; during all which ceremony, this ditty is sung, to every solemn music, by divers church-men; and then exeunt [all except the Two Pilgrims].

Arms and honours deck thy story, 1
To thy fame’s eternal glory!
Adverse fortune ever fly thee;
No disastrous fate come nigh thee!
I alone will sing thy praises,
Whom to honour virtue raises,
And thy study, that divine is,
Bent to martial discipline is,
Lay aside all those robes lie by thee;
Crown thy arts with arms, they’ll beautify thee.
O worthy of worthiest name, adorn’d in this manner,
Lead bravely thy forces on under war’s warlike banner!
O, mayst thou prove fortunate in all martial courses!
Guide thou still by skill in arts and forces!
Victory attend thee nigh, whilst fame sings loud thy powers;
Triumphant conquest crown thy head, and blessings pour down showers!

1 Pil. Here’s a strange turn of state! who would have thought
So great a lady would have match’d herself

1 The first quarto has in the margin: “The author disclaims this ditty to be his.”

Unto so mean a person? Yet the cardinal
 Bears himself much too cruel.
2 Pil. They are banish’d.
1 Pil. But I would ask what power hath this state
Of Ancona to determine of a free prince?
2 Pil. They are a free state, sir, and her brother show’d
How that the Pope, fore-hearing of her looseness,
Hath seiz’d into th’ protection of the church
The dukedom which she held as dowager.
1 Pil. But by what justice?
2 Pil. Sure, I think by none,
Only her brother’s instigation.
1 Pil. What was it with such violence he took Off from her finger? 2 Pil. ’Twas her wedding-ring;
Which he vow’d shortly he would sacrifice
To his revenge.
1 Pil. Alas, Antonio!
If that a man be thrust into a well,
No matter who sets hand to t’it, his own weight
Will bring him sooner to th’ bottom. Come, let’s hence.
Fortune makes this conclusion general,
All things do help th’ unhappy man to fall.

Exeunt.

Scene V. 2

Duch. Banish’d Ancona!
Ant. Yes, you see what power
Lightens in great men’s breath.
Duch. Is all our train
Shrunken to this poor remainder?
Ant. These poor men,
Which have got little in your service, vow
To take your fortune: but your wiser hunteings,
Now they are fledg’d, are gone.
Duch. They have done wisely.
This puts me in mind of death: physicians thus,
With their hands full of money, use to give o’er
Their patients.
Ant. Right the fashion of the world: 3
From decay’d fortunes every flatterer shrinks;
Men cease to build where the foundation sinks.
Duch. I had a very strange dream to-night.
Ant. What was it?
Duch. Methought I wore my coronet of state,
And on a sudden all the diamonds
Were chang’d to pearls.
Ant. My interpretation
Is, you’ll weep shortly; for me the pearls
Do signify your tears.
Duch. The birds, that live i’ th’ field
On the wild benefit of nature, live
Happier than we: for they may choose their mates,
And carol their sweet pleasures to the spring.

2 Near Loretto.  3 Small birds.
[Enter Bosola with a letter.]

Bos. You are happily o'erta'en.
Duch. From my brother? Bos. Yes, from the Lord Ferdinand your brother. All love and safety.
Duch. Thou dost Blanch mischief, Wouldst make it white. See, see, like to calm weather.
At sea before a tempest, false hearts speak fair.
To those they intend most mischief. [Reads.] "Send Antonio to me; I want his head in a business."
A politic equivocation!
He doth not want your counsel, but your head;
That is, he cannot sleep till you be dead.
And here's another pitfall that's strew'd o'er With roses; mark it, it's a cunning one:
"I stand engaged for your husband for several debts at Naples: let not that trouble him; I had rather have his heart than his money."
And I believe so too.
Bos. What do you believe?
Duch. That he so much distrusts my husband's love, He will by no means believe his heart is with him Until he see it: the devil is not cunning enough
To circumvent us in riddles.
Bos. Will you reject that noble and free league
Of amity and love which I present you?
Duch. Their league is like that of some politic kings,
Only to make themselves of strength and power
To be our after-ruin: tell them so.
Bos. And what from you?
Ant. Thus tell him; I will not come.
Bos. And what of this?
Ant. My brothers have dispers'd bloodhounds abroad; which till I hear are muz'd.
No truce, though hatch'd with ne'er such politic skill,
Is safe, that hangs upon our enemies' will.
I'll not come at them.
Bos. This proclaims your breeding.
Every small thing draws a base mind to fear
As the adamanthus iron. Fare you well, sir;
You shall shortly hear from's. Exit.
Duch. I suspect some ambush;
Therefore by all my love I do conjure you
To take your eldest son, and fly towards Milan,
Let us not venture all this poor remainder
In one unlucky bottom.
Ant. You counsel safely.
Best of my life, farewell. Since we must part,
Heaven hath a hand in 't; but no otherwise
Than as some curious artist takes in sunder
A clock or watch, when it is out of frame,
To bring 't in better order.
Duch. I know not which is best,
To see you dead, or part with you. Farewell, boy:
Thou art happy that thou hast not understanding
To know thy misery; for all our wit
And reading brings us to a truer sense
Of sorrow. — In the eternal church, sir, I do hope we shall not part thus.
Ant. O, be of comfort! Make patience a noble fortune,
And think not how unkindly we are us'd:
Man, like to cassia, is prov'd best, being bruised.
Duch. Must I, like to a slave-born Russian,
Account it praise to suffer tyranny?
And yet, O heaven, thy heavy hand is in 't! I have seen my little boy oft scourge his top,
And compar'd myself to 't: naught made me o'er
Go right but heaven's scourge-stick.
Ant. Do not weep:
Heaven fashion'd us of nothing; and we strive
To bring ourselves to nothing. — Farewell, Catriona.
And thy sweet armful. — If I do never see thee more,
Be a good mother to your little ones,
And save them from the tiger: fare you well.
Duch. Let me look upon you once more, for that speech
Came from a dying father. Your kiss is colder
Than that I have seen an holy anchorite
Give to a dead man's skull.
Ant. My heart is turn'd to a heavy lump of lead,
With which I sound my danger: fare you well.
Exit [Antonio and his son].
Duch. My laurel is all withered.
Cari. Look, madam, what a troop of armed men
Make toward us!
Re-enter Bosola [wizards.,] with a Guard.
Duch. O, they are very welcome:
When Fortune's wheel is over-charg'd with princes,
The weight makes it move swift: I would have been
Be sudden. — I am your adventure, am I not?
Bos. You are: you must see your husband no more.
Duch. What devil art thou that counterfeit'st heaven's thunder?
Bos. Is that terrible? I would have you tell me whether
Is that note worse that frights the silly birds out
Of the corn, or that doth allure them to the nets? You have heard 'n to the last too much.
Duch. O misery! I like to a rusty overcharg'd cannon.
Shall I never fly in pieces? Come, to what prison?
Bos. To none.
Duch. Whither, then?
Bos. To your palace.
Duch. I have heard. That Charon's boat serves to convey all o'er
The dismal lake, but brings none back again.
Bos. Your brothers mean you safety and pity.
Duch. With such a pity men preserve alive Pheasants and quails, when they are not fat enough To be eaten. Bos. These are your children? Duch. Yes. Bos. Can they prattle? Duch. No. But I intend, since they were born accurs'd, Curses shall be their first language. Bos. Forget this base, low fellow. Duch. Were I a man, I'd beat that counterfeit face into thy other. Bos. One of no birth. Duch. Say that he was born mean, Man is most happy when 's own actions Be arguments and examples of his virtue. Bos. A barren, beggarly virtue. Duch. I prithee, who is greatest? Can you tell? Sad tales befit my wo: 'I'll tell you one. A salmon, as she swam unto the sea, Met with a dog-fish, who encounters her With this rough language; 'Why art thou so bold That to mix thyself with our high state of floods, Being no eminent courtier, but one For the calmest and fresh time o' th' year Dost live in shallow rivers, rank'st thyself With silly smelts and shrimps? And darest thou Pass by our dog-ship without reverence? 'O,' quoth the salmon, 'sister, be at peace: Thank Jupiter we both have pass'd the net! Our value never can be truly known, Till in the fisher's basket we be shown: I th' market then my price may be the higher, Even when I am nearest to the cook and fire.' So to great men the moral may be stretched; Men oft are valu'd high, when they're most wretched. — But come, whither you please. I am arm'd 'gainst misery; Bent to all ways of the oppressor's will. There's no deep valley but near some great hill.

ACT IV

SCENE I.²

[Enter] FERDINAND and Bosola.

Ferd. How doth our sister duchess bear herself In her imprisonment? Bos. Nobly: I'll describe her. She's sad as one long us'd to 't, and she seems Rather to welcome the end of misery Than shun it; a behaviour so noble As gives a majesty to adversity: ¹

² Amalfi. An apartment in the palace of the Duchess.

You may discern the shape of loveliness More perfect in her tears than in her smiles: She will muse four hours together; and her silence, Methinks, expresseth more than if she spake. ¹

Ferd. Her melancholy seems to be fortified With a strange disdain. Bos. 'Tis so; and this restraint, Like English mastives that grow fierce with tying, Makes her too passionately apprehend Those pleasures she is kept from. Ferd. Curse upon her! ¹ I will no longer study in the book Of another's heart. Inform her what I told you.

[Enter Duchess and Attendants.]

Bos. All comfort to your grace! Ferd. I will have none. Pray thee, why dost thou wrap thy poison'd pills In gold and sugar? Bos. Your elder brother, the Lord Ferdinando, Is come to visit you, and sends you word, Cause once he rashly made a solemn vow Never to see you more, he comes i' th' night; And prays you gently neither torch nor taper Shine in your chamber. He will kiss your hand, And reconcile himself; but for his vow He dares not see you. Ferd. At his pleasure. — Take hence the lights. — He's come.

[Enter FERDINAND.]

Ferd. Where are you? Ferd. This darkness suits you well. Ferd. You have it; For I account it the honorablist revenge, Where I may kill, to pardon. — Where are your cubs? Ferd. Call them your children; For though our national law distinguish bastards From true legitimate issue, compassionate nature Makes them all equal.

Duch. Do you visit me for this? You violate a sacrament o' th' church Shall make you howl in hell for 't. Ferd. It had been well Could you have liv'd thus always; for, indeed, You were too much i' th' light: — but no more; I come to seal my peace with you. Here's a hand Gives her a dead man's hand. To which you have vow'd much love; the ring upon't You gave. Ferd. I affectionately kiss it.

Ferd. Pray, do, and bury the print of it in your heart. I will leave this ring with you for a love-token;
And the hand as sure as the ring; and do not doubt, But you shall have the heart too. When you need a friend, Send it to him that ow'd it; you shall see Whether he can aid you.

Duch. You are very cold: O I fear you are not well after your travel. —

Ha! lights! — O, horrible!

Ferd. Let her have lights enough. Exit. Duch. What witchcraft doth he practise, that he hath left

A dead man's hand here?

Here is discover'd, behind a traverse, the artificial figures of Antonio and his children, appearing as if they were dead.

Bos. Look you, here's the piece from which 't was ta'en.

He doth present you this sad spectacle, That now you know directly they are dead, Hereafter you may wisely cease to grieve For that which cannot be recovered. Duch. There is not between heaven and earth one wish I stay for after this. It wastes me more Than were 't my picture, fashion'd out of wax, Stuck with a magical needle, and then buried In some foul dung hill; and 's an excellent property For a tyrant, which I would account mercy.

Bos. What's that? Duch. If they would bind me to that lifeless trunk, And let me freeze to death.

Bos. Come, you must live. Duch. That's the greatest torture souls feel in hell, In hell, that they must live, and cannot die. Portia, I'll new kindle thy coals again, And revive the rare and almost dead example Of a loving wife.

Bos. O, fie! despair? Remember You are a Christian.

Duch. The church enjoins fasting; al I'll starve myself to death.

Bos. Leave this vain sorrow. Things being at the worst begin to mend: the bee, When he hath shot his sting into your hand, May then play with your eye-lid.

Duch. Good comfortable fellow, Persuade a wretch that's broke upon the wheel To have all his bones new set; entreat him live To be executed again. Who must despatch me? I account this world a tedious theatre.

For I do play a part in 't against my will.

Bos. Come, be of comfort; I will save your life. Duch. Indeed, I have not leisure to tend so small a business. Bos. Now, by my life, I pity you.

Duch. Thou art a fool, then.

To waste thy pity on a thing so wretched

As cannot pity itself. I am full of daggers. Puff, let me blow these vipers from me.

[Enter Servant.]

What are you? Serv. One that wishes you long life.

Duch. I would thou wert hang'd for the horrible curse Thou hast given me: I shall shortly grow one Of the miracles of pity. I'll go pray: —

[Exit Serv.]

No, I'll go curse.

Bos. O, fie! Duch. I could curse the stars —

Bos. O, fearful! Duch. And those three smiling seasons of the year

Into a Russian winter; nay, the world To its first chaos. Bos. Look you, the stars shine still. Duch. O, but you must Remember, my curse hath a great way to go. —

Plagues, that make lanes through largest families, Consume them! —

Bos. Fie, lady! Duch. Let them, like tyrants, Never be remembered but for the ill they have done;

Let all the zealous prayers of mortified Churchmen forget them! —

Bos. O, uncharitable! Duch. Let heaven a little while cease crowning martyrs, To punish them! —

Go, howl them this, and say, I long to bleed: It is some mercy when men kill with speed. Exit.

[Re-enter Ferdinand.]

Ferd. Excellent, as I would wish; she's plagu'd in art. These presentations are but fram'd in wax By the curious master in that quality, Vincenzo Lauriola, and she takes them For true substantial bodies.

Bos. Why do you do this? Ferd. To bring her to despair.

Bos. Faith, end here, And go no farther in your cruelty: Send her a penitential garment to put on Next to her delicate skin, and furnish her With beads and prayer-books.

Ferd. Damn her! that body of hers, While that my blood ran pure in 't, was more worth Than that which thou wouldst comfort, call'd a soul. I will send her masques of common courte- sans, Have her meat serv'd up by bawds and ruffians, And, 'cause she'll needs be mad, I am resolvd To move forth the common hospital All the mad-folk, and place them near her lodging;

1 Curtain.
2 The wife of Brutus, who died by swallowing fire.
3 By artificial means.
4 Profession.
There let them practise together, sing and
dance.
And act their gambols to the full o’ th’ moon:
If she can sleep the better for it, let her.
Your work is almost ended.
Bos. Must I see her again?
Ferd. Yes.
Bos. Never.
Ferd. You must.
Bos. Never in mine own shape;
That’s forfeited by my intelligence
And this last cruel lie: when you send me next,
The business shall be comfort.
Ferd. Very likely,
Thy pity is nothing of kin to thee. Antonio
Lucks about Milan: thou shalt shortly this,
To feed a fire as great as my revenge;
Which ne’er will slack till it hath spent his fuel:
Intemperate agues make physicians cruel.

[Scene II.]

Enter Duchess and Cariola.

Duch. What hideous noise was that?
Cari. ’Tis the wild consort
Of madmen, lady, which your tyrant brother
Hath plac’d about your lodging. This tyranny,
I think, was never practis’d till this hour.
Duch. Indeed, I thank him. Nothing but noise and folly
Can keep me in my right wits; whereas reason
And silence make me stark mad. Sit down;
Discourse to me some dismal tragedy.
Cari. O, ’t will increase your melancholy!
Duch. Thou art deceiv’d:
To hear of greater grief would lessen mine.

This is a prison?

Cari. Yes, but you shall live
To shake this durance off.
Duch. Thou art a fool:
The robin-red-breast and the nightingale
Never live long in cages.
Cari. Pray, dry your eyes.
What think you of, madam?
Duch. Of nothing;
When I muse thus, I sleep.
Cari. Like a madman, with your eyes open?
Duch. Dost thou think we shall know one another
In th’ other world?

Cari. Yes, out of question.
Duch. O, that it were possible we might But hold some two days’ conference with the dead!
From them I should learn somewhat, I am sure,
I never shall know here. I’ll tell thee a miracle:
I am not mad yet, to my cause of sorrow:
Th’ heaven o’er my head seems made of molten brass.

The earth of flaming sulphur, yet I am not mad.

I am acquainted with sad misery

As the tann’d galley-slave is with his ear;
Necessity makes me suffer constantly,
And custom makes it easy. Who do I look like
now?

Cari. Like to your picture in the gallery,
A deal of life in show, but none in practice;
Or rather like some reverend monument
Whose ruins are even pitied.

Duch. Very proper;
And Fortune seems only to have her eye-sight
To behold my tragedy.—How now!

What noise is that?

[Enter Servant.]

Serv. I am come to tell you
Your brother hath intended you some sport.
A great physician, when the Pope was sick
Of a deep melancholy, presented him
With several sorts of madmen, which wild object
Being full of change and sport, fore’d him to laugh.

And so th’ imposthume broke: the self-same cure
The duke intends on you.

Duch. Let them come in.

Serv. There’s a mad lawyer; and a secular priest;

A doctor that hath forfeited his wits
By jealousy; an astrologian.
That in his works said such a day o’ th’ month
Should be the day of doom, and, falling of’t,
Ran mad; an English tailor craz’d i’ th’ brain
With the study of new fashions; a gentleman-usher
Quite beside himself with care to keep in mind
The number of his lady’s salutations,
Or ‘How do you,’ she employ’d him in each morning;
A farmer, too, an excellent knave in grain,
Mad ‘cause he was hind’red transportation:;
And let one broker that’s mad loose to these,
You’d think the devil were among them.

Duch. Sit, Cariola. —Let them loose when you please,
For I am chain’d to endure all your tyranny.

[Enter Madman.]

Here by a Madman this song is sung to a dismal kind of music.

O, let us howl some heavy note,
Some deadly dogged howl,
Sounding as from the threatening throat
Of beasts and fatal fowl!
As ravens, screech-owls, bulls, and bears,
We’ll bell, and bawl our parts,
Till irksome noise have cloy’d your ears
And corrois’d your hearts.
At last, when as our choir wants breath,
Our bodies being blest,
We’ll sing, like swans, to welcome death,
And die in love and rest.

1 Madman. Doom’s-day not come yet! I’ll draw it nearer by a perspective, or make a [74
Banda. 75 Bell.
76 Punning on the two senses of “dye” and “corn.”
77 From exporting his grain.
78 Optical glass.
glass that shall set all the world on fire upon an instant. I cannot sleep; my pillow is stuff with a litter of porcupines.

2 Madman. Hell is a mere glass-house, where the devils are continually blowing up women's souls on hollow iron, and the fire never goes out.

3 Madman. I will lie with every woman in my parish the tenth night. I will tithe them over like hay-cocks.

4 Madman. Shall my 'pothecary out-go me, because I am a cuckold? I have found out his roguery: he makes alum of his wife's urine, and sells it to Furtaeus that have sore throats with over-straining.

1 Madman. I have skill in heraldry.

2 Madman. Hast?

1 Madman. You do give for your crest a wood-cock's head with the brains pickt out on't; you are a very ancient gentleman.

3 Madman. Greek is turn'd Turk: we are only to be sav'd by the Helvetian translation.

1 Madman. Come on, sir, I will lay the law to you.

2 Madman. O, rather lay a corrosive: the law will eat to the bone.

3 Madman. He that drinks but to satisfy nature is damn'd.

4 Madman. If I had my glass here, I would show a sight that could make all the women here call me mad doctor.

1 Madman. What's he? A rope-maker?

2 Madman. No, no, no; a snuffling knave that while he shows the tombs, will have his hand in a wench's placket.

3 Madman. Woe to the caroche that brought home my wife from the masque at three o'clock in the morning! It had a large feather-bed in it.

4 Madman. I have pared the devil's nails forty times, roasted them in raven's eggs, and cur'd agues with them.

3 Madman. Get me three hundred milk-bats, to make messest to procure sleep.

4 Madman. All the college may throw their caps at me: I have made a soap-boiler cos-tive; it was my masterpiece.

Here the dance, consisting of Eight Madmen, with music answerable thereunto; after which, Bosola, like an old man, enters.

Duch. Who am I?

Bos. Thou art a box of worm-seed, at best but a salutary of green mummy. What's this flesh? A little crusted milk, fantastical puf-f paste. Our bodies are weaker than those paper-prisons boys use to keep flies in; more contemptible, since ours is to preserve earth-worms. Didst thou ever see a lark in a cage? Such is the soul in the body: this world is like her little turf of grass, and the heaven o'er our heads, like her looking-glass, only gives us a miserable knowledge of the small compass of our prison.

Duch. Am I not thy duchess?

Bos. Thou art some great woman, sure, for riot begins to sit on thy forehead (Elad in gray hairs) twenty years sooner than on a merry milk-maid's. Thou sleep'st worse than if a house should be forc'd to take up her lodging in a cat's ear: a little infant that breeds its teeth, should it lie with thee, would cry out, as if thou wert the more unquiet bedfellow.

Duch. I am Duchess of Malifi still.

Bos. That makes thy sleep so broken: Glories, like glow-worms, afar off shine bright, but, look'd to near, have neither heat nor light.

Duch. Thou art very plain.

Bos. My trade is to flatter the dead, not the living. I am a tomb-maker.

Duch. And thou com'st to make my tomb?

Bos. Yes.

Duch. Let me be a little merry:—of what stuff wilt thou make it?

Bos. Nay, resolve me first, of what fashion?

Duch. Why, do we grow fantastical on our deathbed?

Do we affect fashion in the grave?

Bos. Most ambitiously. Princes' images on their tombs do not lie, as they were wont, seeming to pray up to heaven; but with their hands under their cheeks, as if they died of the tooth-ache. They are not carv'd with their eyes fix'd upon the stars, but as their minds were wholly bent upon the world, the self-same way they seem to turn their faces.

Duch. Let me know fully therefore the effect Of this thy dismal preparation, This talk fit for a charnel.

Now I shall:—

[Enter Executioners, with] a coffin, cords, and a bell.

Here is a present from your princely brothers; And may it arrive welcome, for it brings Last benefit, last sorrow.

Duch. Let me see it: I have so much obedience in my blood, I wish it in their veins to do them good.

Bos. This is your last presence-chamber. Cari. O my sweet lady! Duch. Peace; it affrights not me. Bos. I am the common bellman.
That usually is sent to condemn’d persons
The night before they suffer.
Duch. Even now thou said’st
Thou wast a tomb-maker.

 Bos. ’Twas to bring you
By degrees to mortification. Listen.
Hark, now everything is still,
The scream-owl and the whistler shrill
Call upon our dame aloud,
And bid her quickly don her shroud:
Much you had of land and rent;
Your length in clay’s now competent;
A long war disturb’d your mind;
Here your perfect peace is sign’d.

Of what is’t fools make such vain keeping?
Sin their conception, their birth weeping,
Their life a general mist of error,
Their death a hideous storm of terror.
Strew your hair with powders sweet,
Don clean linen, bathe your feet,
And (the soul fiend more to check)
A crucifix let bless your neck.
’Tis now full tide ‘tween night and day;
End your groan, and come away.

Cari. Hence, villains, tyrants, murderers!
Alas! What will you do with my lady? — Call for help!
Duch. To whom? To our next neighbours?
They are mad-folks.

 Bos. Remove that noise.
Duch. Farewell, Cariola.

In my last will I have not much to give:
A many hungry guests have fed upon me;
Thine will be a poor reversion.
Cari. I will die with her.
Duch. I pray thee, look thou giv’st my little boy
Some syrup for his cold, and let the girl
Say her prayers ere she sleep.

What death?

 Bos. Strangling; here are your executioners.
Duch. I forgive them.

The apoplexy, catarrh, or cough o’ th’ lungs,
Would do as much as they do,

 Bos. Doth not death fright you?
Duch. Who would be afraid on’t.

Knowing to meet such excellent company
In th’ other world?

 Bos. Yet, methinks,
The manner of your death should much afflict you:
This cord should terrify you.

Duch. Not a whit:
What would it pleasure me to have my throat cut
With diamonds? or to be smothered
With cassis? or to be shot to death with pearls?
I know death hath ten thousand several doors
For men to take their exits; and ’tis found
They go on such strange geometrical hinges,
You may open them both ways: any way, for heaven-sake,
So I were out of your whispering. Tell my brothers
That I perceive death, now I am well awake,
Best gift is they can give or I can take.
I would fain put off my last woman’s fault,
I’ld not be tedious to you.

 1 Execut. We are ready.

Duch. Dispose my breath how please you; but my body
Bestow upon my women, will you?

 1 Execut. Yes.

Duch. Pull, and pull strongly, for your able strength
Must pull down heaven upon me: —
Yet stay; heaven-gates are not so highly arch’d
As princes’ palaces; they that enter there
Must go upon their knees (kneels). — Come, violent death,
Serve for mandragora to make me sleep! —
Go tell my brothers, when I am laid out,
They then may feed in quiet. They strangle her.

 Bos. Where’s the waiting-woman?

Fetch her: some other strangle the children.

[Enter Cariola.]

Look you, there sleeps your mistress.

Cari. O, you are damn’d
Perpetually for this! My turn is next;

Is’t not so ordered?

 Bos. Yes, and I am glad
You are so well prepar’d for’t.

Cari. You are deceiv’d, sir,
I am not prepar’d for’t, I will not die;
I will first come to my answer, and know
How I have offended.

 Bos. Come, despatch her.—

You kept her counsel; now you shall keep ours.

Cari. I will not die, I must not; I am contract’d
To a young gentleman.

 1 Execut. Here’s your wedding-ring.

Cari. Let me but speak with the duke. I’ll discover Treason to his person.

 Bos. Delays: — throttle her.

 1 Execut. She bites and scratches.

Cari. If you kill me now,
I am damn’d; I have not been at confession
This two years.

 Bos. [To Executioners.] When! 2

Cari. I am quick with child.

 Bos. Why, then,
Your credit’s saved.

[Executioners strangle CARIOLA.]

Bear her into th’ next room; 3

Let these lie still.

[Execut Executioners with body of CARIOLA.]

[Enter FERDINAND.]

Ferd. Is she dead?

 Bos. She is what
You’d have her. But here begin your pity:
Shows the Children strangled.

Alas, how have these offended?

Ferd. The death
Of young wolves is never to be pitied.

 1 Trial. 2 An exclamation of impatience.
Bos. Fix your eye here.
Ferd. Constantly.
Bos. Do you not weep? 270

Other sins only speak; murder shrieks out.
The element of water moistens the earth,
But blood flies upwards and bedews the heavens.
Ferd. Cover her face; mine eyes dazzle: she died young.
Bos. I think not so; her infelicity 275

Seem'd to have years too many.
Ferd. She and I were twins;
And should I die this instant, I had liv'd
Her time to a minute.
Bos. It seems she was born first:
You have bloodyly approv'd the ancient truth,
That kindred commonly do worse agree 281
Than remote strangers.
Ferd. Let me see her face
Again. Why didst thou not pity her? What An excellent honest man mightst thou have been,
If thou hadst borne her to some sanctuary! 284
Or, bold in a good cause, — oppos'd thyself,
With thy advanced sword above thy head,
Between her innocence and my revenge!
I bade thee, when I was distracted of my wits,
Go kill my dearest friend, and thou hast done 't.
For let me but examine well the cause: 284
What was the meanness of her match to me?
Only I must confess I had a hope,
Had she continu'd widow, to have gain'd
An infinite mass of treasure by her death: 290
And that was the main cause, — her marriage,
That drew a stream of gall quite through my heart.
For thee, as we observe in tragedies
That a good actor many times is curs'd
For playing a villain's part, I hate thee for 't.
And, for my sake, say, thou hast done much ill well.
Bos. Let me quicken your memory, for I perceive
You are falling into ingratitude: I challenge
The reward due to my service.
Ferd. I'll tell thee
What I'll give thee.
Bos. Do.
Ferd. I'll give thee a pardon 305
For this murder.
Bos. Ha!
Ferd. Yes, and 'tis
The largest bounty I can study to do thee,
By what authority didst thou execute
This bloody sentence?
Bos. By yours.
Ferd. Mine! Was I her judge? 310
Did any ceremonial form of law
Doom her to not-being? Did a complete jury
Deliver her conviction up 't, th' court?
Where shalt thou find this judgment register'd,
Unless in hell? See, like a bloody fool, 315
Thou'st forfeited thy life, and thou shalt die
for 't.
Bos. The office of justice is perverted quite When one thief hangs another. Who shall dare
To reveal this?
Ferd. O, I'll tell thee;
The wolf shall find her grave, and scrape it up,
Not to devour the corpse, but to discover 321
The horrid murder.
Bos. You, not I, shall quake for 't.
Ferd. Leave me.
Bos. I will first receive my pension.
Ferd. You are a villain.
Bos. When your ingratitude
Is judge, I am so.
Ferd. O horror,
That not the fear of him which binds the devils
Can prescribe man obedience! —
Never look upon me more.
Bos. Why, fare thee well.
Your brother and yourself are worthy men!
You have a pair of hearts; hollow graces, 330
Rotten, and rotting others; and your vengeance,
Like two chain'd-bullets, still goes arm in arm:
You may be brothers; for treason, like the plague;
Doth take much in a blood. I stand like one
That long hath ta'en a sweet and golden dream:
340
I am angry with myself now, that I wake.
Ferd. Get thee into some unknown part o' the
world,
That I may never see thee.
Bos. Let me know
Wherefore I should be thus neglected. Sir,
I serv'd your tyranny, and rather strove
To satisfy myself, than all the world:
And though I loath'd the evil, yet I lov'd
You that did counsel it; and rather sought
To appear a true servant than an honest man.
Ferd. I'll go hunt the bawd with owl-light: 345
'Tis a deed of darkness.
Exit.
Bos. He's much distracted. Off, my painted
honour!
While with vain hopes our faculties we tire,
We seem to sweat in ice and freeze in fire.
What would I do, were this to do again? 350
I would not change my peace of conscience
For all the wealth of Europe.—She stir's; here's life:

Return, fair soul, from darkness, and lead
mine
Out of this sensible hell!—she's warm, she breathes: —

Upon thy pale lips I will melt my heart, 355
To store them with fresh colour.—Who's there?

Some cordial drink! — Alas! I dare not call:
So pity would destroy pity.—Her eye opes,
And heaven in it seems to ope, that late was shut,
To take me up to mercy.

Duck. Antonio!
Bos. Yes, madam, he is living;

The dead bodies you saw were but feign'd

Statues.

He's reconcil'd to your brothers; the Pope hath wrought
The atonement.

Duck. Mercy!
Bos. O, she's gone again! there the cords of life broke.

O sacred innocence, that sweetly sleeps
On turtles' feathers, whilst a guilty conscience Is a black register wherein is writ All our good deeds and bad, a perspective That shows us hell! That we cannot be suffer'd To do good when we have a mind to it! 371 This is manly sorrow; These tears, I am very certain, never grew In my mother's milk. My estate is sunk Below the degree of fear: where were 375 These penitent fountains while she was living? O, they were frozen up! Here is a sight As direful to my soul as is the sword Unto a wretch hath slain his father. Come, I'll bear thee hence, 385 And execute thy last will; that's deliver Thy body to the reverend dispose Of some good women; that the cruel tyrant Shall not deny me. Then I'll post to Milan, Where somewhat I will speedily enact 390 Worth my dejection. Exit [with the body].

ACT V

SCENE I.1

[Enter] ANTONIO and DELIO.

Ant. What think you of my hope of reconcilement To the Arragonian brethren?

Delio. I misdoubt it; For though they have sent their letters of safe-conduct For your repair to Milan, they appear But nets to entrap you. The Marquis of Pesca-

Under whom you hold certain land in cheat,2 Much 'gainst his noble nature hath been mov'd To seize those lands; and some of his dependants Are at this instant making it their suit To be invested in your revenues. I cannot think they mean well to your life That do deprive you of your means of life, Your living.

Ant. You are still an heretic.8 To any safety I can shape myself. Delio. Here comes the marquis: I will make myself Petitioner for some part of your land, To know whither it is flying.

Ant. I pray, do. [Withdraws.]

Enter PESCARA.

Delio. Sir, I have a suit to you. Pes. To me?

Delio. An easy one: There is the Citadel of Saint Bennet, With some demesnes, of late in the possession Of Antonio Bologna, — please you bestow them on me. Pes. You are my friend; but this is such a suit, Nor fit for me to give, nor you to take. Delio. No, sir?

1 Milan. A public place. 2 Disbeliever.

Pes. I will give you ample reason for 't Soon in private: — here 's the cardinal's mistress.

[Enter JULIA.]

Julia. My lord, I am grown your poor petitioner. And should be an ill beggar, had I not A great man's letter here, the cardinal's, To court you in my favour. [Gives a letter.] Pes. He entreats for you The Citadel of Saint Bennet, that belong'd To the banish'd Bologna. Julia. Yes. Pes. I could not have thought of a friend I could rather Pleasure with it: 'tis yours.

Julia. Sir, I thank you; And he shall know how doubly I am engag'd Both in your gift, and speediness of giving, Which makes your grant the greater. Exit. Ant. How they fortify Themselves with my ruin!

Delio. Little bound to you. Pes. Why?

Delio. Because you deni'd this suit to me, and gave 't To such a creature.

Pes. Do you know what it was? It was Antonio's land; not forfeited By course of law, but ravish'd from his throat By the cardinal's entreaty. It were not fit I should bestow so main a piece of wrong Upon my friend; 't is a gratification Only due to a strumpet, for it is injustice. Shall I sprinkle the pure blood of innocents To make those followers I call my friends Look ruddier upon me? I am glad This land, ta'en from the owner by such wrong, Returns again unto so foul an use As salary for his lust. Learn, good Delio, To ask noble things of me, and you shall find I 'll be a noble giver.

Delio. You instruct me well.

Ant. [Aside.] Why, here 's a man now would fright impudence

From sauciest beggars.

Pes. Prince Ferdinand's come to Milan, Sick, as they give out, of an apoplexy; But some say 'tis a frenzy: I am going To visit him. Exit.

Ant. What course do you mean to take, Antonio? 60

Ant. This night I mean to venture all my fortune, Which is no more than a poor ling'ring life, To the cardinal's worst of malice. I have got Private access to his chamber; and intend To visit him about the mid of night. As once his brother did our noble duchess. It may be that the sudden apprehension Of danger, — for I 'll go in mine own shape, — When he shall see it fraught with love and duty,
May draw the poison out of him, and work
A friendly reconciliation. If it fail,
Yet it shall rid me of this infamous calling;
For better fall once than be ever falling.

Delia. I'll second you in all danger; and, howe'er,
My life keeps rank with yours.

Ant. You are still my lov'd and best friend.

[Exeunt.]

[Scene II.]

[Enter] Pescara and Doctor.

Pes. Now, doctor, may I visit your patient?
Doc. If 't please your lordship; but he's instantly
To take the air here in the gallery
By my direction.

Pes. Pray thee, what's his disease?
Doc. A very pestilent disease, my lord,
They call lycanthropia.

Pes. What's that?

I need a dictionary to 't.

Doc. I'll tell you.

In those that are possess'd with 't there o'erflows
Such melancholy humour they imagine Themselves to be transformed into wolves;
Steal forth to church-yards in the dead of night,
And dig dead bodies up: as two nights since
One met the duke 'bout midnight in a lane
Behind Saint Mark's church, with the leg of a man
Upon his shoulder; and how I'd fearfully
Said he was a wolf, only the difference
Was, a wolf's skin was hairy on the outside,
His on the inside; bade them take their swords,
Rip up his flesh, and try. Straight I was sent for,
And, having minister'd to him, found his grace
Very well recovered.

Pes. I am glad on 't.

Doc. Yet not without some fear
Of a relapse. If he grow to his fit again,
I'll go a nearer way to work with him
Than of Sir Paracelsus dream'd of; if They'll give me leave, I'll buffet his madness out of him.

Stand aside; he comes.

[Enter Ferdinand, Cardinal, Malatesti, and Bosola.]

Ferd. Leave me.

Mal. Why dost thou thy lordship love this solitariness?

Ferd. Eagles commonly fly alone: they are [crows, daws, and starlings that flock together.]

Look, what's that follows me?

Mal. Nothing, my lord.

Ferd. Yes.

Mal. 'Tis your shadow.

Ferd. Stay it; let it not haunt me.

Mal. Impossible, if you move, and the sun shine.

Ferd. I will throttle it.

[Throws himself down on his shadow.]
None of our family dies but there is seen
The shape of an old woman, which is given
By tradition to us to have been murder'd. 199
By her nephews for her riches. Such a figure
One might, as the prince sat up late at 's book,
Appear'd to him; when crying out for help,
The gentleman of 's chamber found his grace
All on a cold sweat, alter'd much in face.
And language: since which apparition,
He hath grown worse and worse, and I much fear
He cannot live.

Bos. Sir, I would speak with you.

Pec. We 'll leave your grace,
Wishing to the sick prince, our noble lord,
All health of mind and body.

Card. You are most welcome.

[Exeunt Pescara, Malatesti, and Doctor.

Are you come ? so. — [Aside.] This fellow must not know. 211

By any means I had intelligence
In our duchess' death; for, though I counsel'd it,
The full of all th' engagement seem'd to grow
From Ferdinand. — Now, sir, how fares our sister?

I do not think but sorrow makes her look
Like to an oft-dy'd garment: she shall now
Take comfort from me. Why do you look so wildly?
O, the fortune of your master here, the prince,
Dejects you; but he be of happy comfort: 219
If you 'll do one thing for me I 'll entertain,
Though he had a cold tomb-stone o'er his bones,
I 'd make you what you would be.

Bos. Give it me in a breath, and let me fly to 't.
They that think long small expedition win,
For musing much o' th' end cannot begin.

[Enter JULIA.

Julia. Sir, will you come in to supper?

Card. I am busy; leave me.

Julia. [Aside.] What an excellent shape hath that fellow! 220

Exit. Card. 'Tis thus. Antonio lurks here in Milan:
Inquire him out, and kill him. While he lives,
Our sister cannot marry; and I have thought
Of an excellent match for her. Do this, and style me
Thy advancement.

Bos. But by what means shall I find him out?

Card. There is a gentleman call'd Delio.

Here in the camp, that hath been long approv'd
His loyal friend. Set eye upon that fellow;
Follow him to mass; may be Antonio,
Although he do account religion
But a school-name, for fashion of the world.
May accompany him; or else go inquire out
Delio's confessor, and see if you can brie
Him to reveal it. There are a thousand ways
A man might find to trace him; as to know
What fellows haunt the Jews for taking up
Great sums of money, for sure he 's in want;
Or else to go to th' picture-makers, and learn

Who bought her picture lately: some of these Happily may take.

Bos. Well, I 'll not freeze i' th' business:
I would see that wretched thing, Antonio.

Above all sights i' th' world.

Card. Do, and be happy. Exit.

Bos. This fellow doth breed basilisks in 's eyes,
He 's nothing else but murder; yet he seems
Not to have notice of the duchess' death.
'Tis his cunning: I must follow his example;
There cannot be a surer way to trace
Than that of an old fox.

[Re-enter JULIA, with a pistol.

Julia. So, sir, you are well met.

Bos. How now! Julia. Nay, the doors are fast enough:
Now, sir, I will make you confess your treachery.

Bos. Treachery!

Julia. Yes, confess to me
Which of my women 't was you hid 'd put Love-powder into my drink?

Bos. Love powder!

Julia. Yes, when I was at Malfi,
Why should I fall in love with such a face else?
I have already suffer'd for thee so much pain,
The only remedy to do me good
Is to kill my longing.

Bos. Sure, your pistol holds
Nothing but perfumes or kissing-comfits. 2

Excellent lady! You have a pretty way on 't to discover
Your longing. Come, come, I 'll disarm you,
And arm you thus: yet this is wondrous strange.

Julia. Compare thy form and my eyes togeth-
You 'll find my love no such great miracle.

Now you 'll say
I am wanton: this nice modesty in ladies
Is but a troublesome familiar
That haunts them.

Bos. Know you me, I am a blunt soldier.

Julia. The better: Sure, there wants fire where there are no lively sparks
Of roughness.

Bos. And I want compliment.

Julia. Why, ignorance
In courtship cannot make you do amiss,
If you have a heart to do well.

Bos. You are very fair.

Julia. Nay, if you lay beauty to my charge,
I must plead unguilt.

Bos. Your bright eye
Carry a quiver of darts in them, sharper
Than sun-beams.

Julia. You will mar me with commend-
Put yourself to the charge of courting me,
Whereas now I woo you.

Bos. [Aside.] I have it, I will work upon this creature,

1 So Dyce. Q. brought.

2 Perfumed sweetmeats for the breath.
Let us grow most amorously familiar;
If the great cardinal now should see me thus,
Would he not count me a villain?

Julia. No; he might count me a wanton, \[Aside,\]
Not lay a scruple of offence on you;
For if I see and steal a diamond,
The fault is not 't th' stone, but in me the thief
That purloins it. I am sudden with you.
We that are great women of pleasure use to cut off

These uncertain wishes and unquiet longings,
And in an instant join the sweet delight
And the pretty excuse together. Had you been i th' street,
Under my chamber-window, even there
I should have courted you.

Bos. O, you are an excellent lady!
Julia. Bid me do somewhat for you presently
To express I love you.

Bos. I will; and if you love me,
Fail not to effect it.
The cardinal is grown wondrous melancholy;
Demand the cause, let him not put you off
With feign'd excuse; discover the main ground
on't.
Julia. Why would you know this?
Bos. I have depended on him,
And I hear that he is fall'n in some disgrace
With the emperor: if he be, like the mice
That forsake falling houses, I would shift
To other dependance.
Julia. You shall not need
Follow the wars: I'll be your maintenance.
Bos. And I your loyal servant: but I cannot Leave my calling.
Julia. Not leave an ungrateful
General for the love of a sweet lady!
You are like some cannot sleep in feather-beds,
But must have blocks for their pillows.
Bos. Will you do this?
Julia. Cunningly.
Bos. To-morrow I'll expect th' intelligence.
Julia. To-morrow! Get you into my cabinet;
You shall have it with you. Do not delay me,
No more than I do you: I am like one
That is condemn'd; I have my pardon promis'd,
But I would see it seal'd. Go, get you in:
You shall see me wind my tongue about his heart.
Like a skein of silk.

[Exit BOSOLA.]

[Re-enter CARDINAL.]
Card. Where are you?

[Enter Servants.]
Servants. Here.
Card. Let none, upon your lives, have conference
With the Prince Ferdinand, unless I know it.

[Aside.] In this distraction he may reveal
The murder.

Yond 's my lingering consumption:
I am weary of her, and by any means
Would be quit of.
Card. Come, I will swear you to 't upon this book.
Jul. Most religiously.
Card. Kiss it. [She kisses the book.] Now you shall never utter it; thy curiosity Hath undone thee; thou 'rt poison'd with that book.
Because I knew thou couldst not keep my counsel,
I have bound thee to 't by death. [Re-enter Bosola.]

Bos. For pity sake, hold! Ha, Bosola! I forgive you Juli. This equal piece of justice you have done; For I betray'd your counsel to that fellow. He over-heard it; that was the cause I said It lay not in me to conceal it. Bos. O foolish woman, Couldst not thou have poison'd him? Juli. 'Tis weakness
Too much to think what should have been done. I go, I know not whither. [Dies.] Card. Wherefore com'st thou hither? Bos. That I might find a great man like yourself, Not out of his wits, as the Lord Ferdinand, To remember my service. Card. I'll have thee hew'd in pieces. Bos. Make not yourself such a promise of that life
Which is not yours to dispose of. Card. Who plac'd thee here? Bos. Her lust, as she intended. Card. Very well; Now you need no longer care for your fellow-murderer. Bos. And wherefore should you lay fair marble colours Upon your rotten purposes to me? Unless you imitate some that do plot great treasons, And when they have done, go hide themselves i' th' graves
Of those were actors in 't? Card. No more; there is A fortune attends thee. Bos. Shall I go sue to Fortune any longer? 'Tis the fool's pilgrimage. Card. I have honours in store for thee. Bos. There are a many ways that conduct to seeming Honour, and some of them very dirty ones. Card. Throw to the devil Thy melancholy. The fire burns well; What need we keep a stirring of 't, and make A greater smoker? I Thou wilt kill Antonio? Bos. Yes. Card. Take up that body.

Bos. I think I shall Shortly grow the common bier for church-yards. Card. I will allow thee some dozen of attendants To aid thee in the murder.

Bos. O, by no means. Physicians that apply horse-leeches to any rank swelling use to cut off their tails, that the blood may run through them the faster; let me have no train when I go To shed blood, less it make me have a greater when I ride to the gallows.
Card. Come to me after midnight, to help to remove That body to her own lodging. I'll give out She died o' th' plague; 't will breed the less inquiry
After her death.
Bos. Where's Castruccio her husband? Card. He's rode to Naples, to take possession Of Antonio's citadel. Bos. Believe me, you have done a very happy turn.
Card. Fail not to come. There is the mystery Of our lodgings, and by that you may conceive What trust I plant in you.
Bos. You shall find me ready. Exit CARDINAL.
O poor Antonio, though nothing be so needful To thy estate as pity, yet I find Nothing so dangerous! I must look to my footing:
In such slippery ice-pavements men had need To be frost-nail'd well, they may break their necks else;
The precedent's here afore me. How this man Bears up in blood! seems fearless! Why, 'tis well:
Security some men call the suburbs of hell, Only a dead wall between. Well, good Antonio, I'll seek thee out; and all my care shall be To put thee into safety from the reach Of these most cruel biters that have got Some of thy blood already. It may be, I'll join with thee in a most just revenge. The weakest arm is strong enough that strikes With the sword of justice. Still methinks the duchess Haunts me: there, there! — 'Tis nothing but my melancholy.
O Penitence, let me truly taste thy cup, That throws men down only to raise them up! Exit.

SCENE III.2

[Enter] ANTONIO and DELIO. Echo (from the DUCHESS'S Grave).

Delio. Yond's the cardinal's window. This fortification Grew from the ruins of an ancient abbey; And to yond side o' th' river lies a wall, Piece of a cloister, which in my opinion Gives the best echo that you ever heard, So hollow and so dismal, and withal So plain in the distinction of our words, That many have supposed it is a spirit That answers. I do love these ancient ruins. We never tread upon them but we set

1 Smoke.

2 A fortification.
Our foot upon some reverend history;
And, questionless, here in this open court,
Which now lies naked to the injuries
Of stormy weather, some men lie inter’d Lov’d the church so well, and gave so largely to’t.

They thought it should have canopied their bones
Till dooms-day. But all things have their end;
Churches and cities, which have diseases like to men,
Must have like death that we have.

Echo. Like death that we have.
Delia. Now the echo hath caught you.
Ant. It groan’d methought, and gave
A very deadly accent.

Echo. Deadly accent.
Delia. I told you ’t was a pretty one. You may make it
A huntsman, or a falconer, a musician,
Or a thing of sorrow.

Echo. A thing of sorrow.
Ant. Ay, sure, that suits it best.
Echo. That suits it best.
Ant. ’T is very like my wife’s voice.
Ay, wife’s voice.

Delia. Come, let us walk further from ’t.
I would not have you go to the cardinal’s tonight:

Do not.

Echo. Do not.
Delia. Wisdom doth not more moderate wasting sorrow
Than time. Take time for ’t; be mindful of thy safety.

Echo. Be mindful of thy safety.
Ant. Necessity compels me.

Make scrutiny throughout the passages
Of your own life, you’ll find it impossible
To fly your fate.

Echo. O, fly your fate!
Delia. Hark! the dead stones seem to have pity on you,
And give you good counsel.

Ant. Echo, I will not talk with thee,
For thou art a dead thing.

Echo. Thou art a dead thing.
Ant. My duchess is asleep now,
And her little ones, I hope sweetly. O heaven,
Shall I never see her more?

Echo. Never see her more.
Ant. I mark’d not one repetition of the echo
But that; and on the sudden a clear light
Presented me a face folded in sorrow.

Delia. Your fancy merely.
Ant. Come, I’ll be out of this ague.

For to live thus is not indeed to live:
It is a mockery and abuse of life,
I will not henceforth save myself by halves;
Lose all, or nothing.

Delia. Your own virtue save you!
I’ll fetch your eldest son, and second you.
It may be that the sight of his own blood
Spread in so sweet a figure may begot
The more compassion. However, fare you well.

Though in our miseries Fortune have a part,
Yet in our noble suff’rings she hath none.
Contempt of pain, that we may call our own.

SCENE IV.*

[Enter] CARDINAL, PESCARA, MALATESTI, RODERIGO, and GRISOLAN.

Card. You shall not watch to-night by the sick prince;
His grace is very well recover’d.
Mal. Good my lord, suffer us.
Card. O, by no means;
The noise, and change of object in his eye,
Doth more distract him. I pray, all to bed;
And though you hear him in his violent fit,
Do not rise, I entreat you.

Pess. So, sir; we shall not.
Card. Nay, I must have you promise
Upon your honours, for I was enjoin’d to ’t
By himself; and he seem’d to urge it sensibly.

Pess. Let our honours bind this trifle.

Card. Nor any of your followers,
Mal. Neither.
Card. It may be, to make trial of your promise,
When he’s asleep, myself will rise and feign
Some of his mad tricks, and cry out for help,
And feign myself in danger.
Mal. If your throat were cutting,
I’d not come at you, now I have protested against it.

Card. Why, I thank you.
Gris. ’T was a foul storm to-night.
Rod. The Lord Ferdinand’s chamber shook like an osier.
Mal. ’T was nothing but pure kindness in the devil
To rock his own child.*

Exeunt [all except the CARDINAL].

Card. The reason why I would not suffer these
About my brother, is, because at midnight
I may with better privacy convey Julia’s body to her own lodging. O, my conscience!
I would pray now; but the devil takes away my heart
For having any confidence in prayer.
About this hour I appointed Bosola
To fetch the body. When he hath serv’d my turn,
He dies.

Exit.

[Enter Bosola].

Bos. Ha! ’t was the cardinal’s voice; I heard him name Bosola and my death. Listen; I hear one’s footing.

[Enter Ferdinand.]

Ferd. Strangling is a very quiet death.
Bos. Aside. Nay, then, I see I must stand upon my guard.
Ferd. What say to that? Whisper softly: do you agree to ’t? So; it must be done!

1 Milan. An apartment in the residence of the Cardinal and Ferdinand.
dark; the cardinal would not for a thousand pounds the doctor should see it. Exit.

Bos. My death is plotted; here's the consequence of murder.

We value not desert nor Christian breath, When we know black deeds must be cur'd with death.

[Enter Antonio and Servant.]

Serv. Here stay, sir, and be confident, I pray; I'll fetch you a dark lantern. Exit.

Ant. Could I take him at his prayers, There were hopes of pardon.

Bos. Fall right, my sword! — [Stabs him.] I'll not give thee so much leisure as to pray. O, I am gone! Thou hast ended a long suit In a minute.

Bos. What art thou?

Ant. A most wretched thing, That only have thy benefit in death, To appear myself.

[Re-enter Servant with a lantern.]

Serv. Where are you, sir?

Ant. Very near my home. — Bosola!

Serv. O, misfortune!

Bos. Smother thy pity, thou art dead else. — Antonio!

The man I would have say'd 'bove mine own life! We are merely the stars' tennis-balls, struck and banded. Which way please them. — O good Antonio, I'll whisper one thing in thy dying ear Shall make thy heart break quickly! Thy fair duchess

And two sweet children — Their very names

Kindle a little life in me.

Bos. Are murder'd. At the hearing of sad tidings; I am glad That I shall do 't in sadness. I would not now Wish my wounds balm'd nor heal'd, for I have no use To put my life to. In all our quest of greatness, Like wanton boys whose pastime is their care, We follow after bubbles blown in th' air.

Pleasure of life, what's 't? Only the good hours Of an age; merely a preparative to rest, To endure vexation. I do not ask The process of my death; only command me To Delio.

Bos. Break, heart! Ant. And let my son fly the courts of princes. [Dies.]

Bos. Thou seem'st to have lov'd Antonio.

Serv. I brought him hither, To have reconcile'd him to the cardinal.

Bos. I do not ask thee that.

Take him up, if thou tender thine own life, And bear him where the lady Julia Was wont to lodge. — O, my fate moves swift! I have this cardinal in the forge already; Now I'll bring him to th' hammer. O direful misprision!

I will not imitate things glorious, No more than base; I will be mine own example.— On, on, and look thou represent, for silence, The thing thou bear'st.

Scene V.

[Enter Cardinal, with a book.

Card. I am puzzl'd in a question about hell; He says, in hell there's one material fire, And yet it shall not burn all men alike. Lay him by. How tedious a guilty conscience! When I look into the fish-ponds in my garden, Methinks I see a thing arm'd with a rake, That seems to strike at me.

[Enter Bosola, and Servant bearing Antonio's body.]

Now, art thou come?

Thou look'st ghastly; There sits in thy face some great determination Mix'd with some fear.

Bos. Thus it lightens into action: I am come to kill thee.

Card. Hal! — Help! Our guard! Bos. Thou art deceiv'd; they are out of thy howling.

Card. Hold; and I will faithfully divide Revenues with thee.

Bos. Thy prayers and proffers Are both unseasonable.

Card. Raise the watch! We are betray'd!

Bos. I have confin'd thy flight: I'll suffer thy retreat to Julia's chamber, But no further.

Card. Help! we are betray'd!

[Enter, above, Feschara, Malatesti, Roderigo, and Grisolan.]

Mal. Listen.

Card. My dukedom for rescue!

Rod. Fie upon his counterfeiting!

Mal. Why, 'tis not the cardinal.

Rod. Yes, yes, 'tis he: But, I'll see him hang'd ere I go down to him.

Card. Here's a plot upon me; I am assaulted! I am lost,

Unless some rescue! Gris. He doth this pretty well; But it will not serve to laugh me out of mine honour.

Card. The sword's at my throat!

Rod. You would not bawl so loud then.

Mal. Come, come, let's go to bed: he told us this much aforehand.

Pee. He wish'd you should not come at him; but, believe 't.

The accent of the voice sounds not in jest.

I'll down to him, howsoever, and with engines Force ope the doors.

[Exit above.]

Rod. Let's follow him aloof, And note how the cardinal will laugh at him.

[Exeunt, above, Malatesti, Roderigo, and Grisolan.]

4. i.e., the dead body. 5. Another apartment in the same.
'Tis ready to part from me. I do glory
That thou, which stood'st like a high pyramid
Begun upon a large and ample base,
Shalt end in a little point, a kind of nothing.

[Enter, below, Pescara, Malatesta, Roderigo, and Grisolan.]

Pesc. How now, my lord!
Mal. O sad disaster!
Rod. How comes this?
Bos. Revenge for the Duchess of Malfi murdered

By th' Arragonian brethren; for Antonio
Slain by this hand; for lustful Julia
Poison'd by this man; and lastly for myself,
That was an actor in the main of all
Much'gainst mine own good nature, yet i' th' end Neglected.

Pesc. How now, my lord!
Card. Look to my brother:
He gave us these large wounds, as we were struggling
Here i' th' rushes. And now, I pray, let me be laid by and never thought of. [Dies.]
Pesc. How fatally, it seems, he did withstand His own rescue!

Mal. Thou wretched thing of blood,
How came Antonio by his death?
Bos. In a mist; I know not how;
Such a mistake as I have often seen
In a play. O, I am gone!
We are only like dead walls or vaulted graves,
That, ruin'd, yields no echo. Fare you well! It may be pain, but no harm, to me to die
In so good a quarrel. O, this gloomy world!
In what a shadow, or deep pit of darkness,
Doth womanish and fearful mankind live!
Let worthy minds ne'er stagger in distrust
To suffer death or shame for what is just:
Mine is another voyage. [Dies.]
Pesc. The noble Delio, as I came to th' palaes, Told me of Antonio's being here, and show'd me
A pretty gentleman, his son and heir.

[Enter Delio, and Antonio's Son.]

Mal. O sir, you come too late!
Delio. I heard so, and
Was arm'd for't, ere I came. Let us make noble use
Of this great ruin; and join all our force
To establish this young hopeful gentleman
In 's mother's right. These wretched eminent things
Leave no more fame behind 'em, than should one
Fall in a frost, and leave his print in snow;
As soon as the sun shines, it ever melts,
Both form and matter. I have ever thought
Nature doth nothing so great for great men
As when she's pleas'd to make them lords of truth:
Integrity of life is fame's best friend,
Which nobly, beyond death, shall crown the end.

A TRICK TO CATCH THE OLD ONE

BY

THOMAS MIDDLETON

[DRAMATIS PERSONAE]

Theodorus Witgood.
Pecunius Lucre, his uncle.
Walkadune Hoard.
Oenophorus Hoard, his brother.
Lamplough, Kiy, Spicock, Harry Dampit, Gulf, Ladder, lamplugh, son of Mistress Lucre.
Moneylove.
Host.
Sir Lauenclot.

Man live now that has no living? Hum, — why, are there not a million of men in the world that only sojourn upon their brain, and make their wits their mercers; and am I but one amongst that million, and cannot thrive upon 't? Any [a] trick, out of the compass of law, now would come happily to me.

Enter Courtesan.

Cour. My love!

Wit. My loathing! has thou been the se- cret consumption of my purse, and now com'st to undo my last means, my wits? Wilt leave no virtue in me, and yet thou ne'er the better? Hence, courtesan, round-webb'd tarantula. That dry'st the roses in the cheeks of youth! 44

Cour. I've been true unto your pleasure; and all your lands

Thrice rack'd was never worth the jewel which I prodigally gave you, my virginity.

Lands mortgag'd may return, and more esteem'd.

But honesty once pawn'd, is ne'er redeem'd. 43

Wit. Forgive; I do thee wrong

To make thee sin, and then to chide thee for 't.

Cour. I know I am your loathing now; fare-well.

Wit. Stay, best invention, stay.

Cour. I that "have been the secret con- sumption of your purse," shall I stay now "to undo your last means, your wits? Hence, courtesan," away!

Wit. Pray thee, make me not mad at my own weapon: stay (a thing few women can do), I [a] Excessively rented.

4 A street in a country town.
5 Used of any one's estate.
6 Used vaguely of a legal scrape.
know that, and therefore they had need wear stays), be not contrary. Dost love me? Fate has so cast it that all my means I must derive from thee.

Cour. From me? be happy then;

What lies within the power of my performance
Shall be commanded of thee.

Wit. Spoke like
An honest drab, i' faith. It may prove something;
What trick is not an embryo at first,
Until a perfect shape come over it?

Cour. Come, I must help you: whereabouts left you?

I'll proceed.

Though you beget, 'tis I must help to breed.
Speak, what is 't? I'd fain conceive it.

Wit. So, so, so: thou shalt presently take the name and form upon thee of a rich country widow, four hundred a-year valiant, in woods, in bullocks, in barns, and in rye-stacks. We'll to London, and to my covetous uncle.

Cour. I begin to applaud thee; our states being both desperate, they are soon resolute. But how for horses?

Wit. Mass, that's true; the jest will be of some continuance. Let me see; horses now, a bota on'em! Stay, I have acquaintance with a mad host, never yet bawd to thee. I have rins'd the whoreson's gums in mull-sack many a time and often. Put but a good tale into his ear now, so it come off cleanly, and there's horse and man for us, I dare warrant thee.

Cour. Arm your wits then.

Speedily; there shall want nothing in me, Either in behaviour, discourse, or fashion, That shall discredit your intended purpose.

I will so artfully disguise my wants,
And set so good a courage on my state,
That I will be believed.

Wit. Why, then, all's furnish. I shall go nigh to catch that old fox, mine uncle. Though he make but some amends for my un-doing, yet there's some comfort in 't, he cannot otherwise choose (though it be but in hope to cozen me 'again) but supply any hasty want that I bring to town with me. The device well and cunningly carried, the name of a rich widow, and four hundred a-year in good earth, will so conjure up a kind of user's love in him to me, that he will not only desire my presence, —which at first shall scarce be granted him, —I'll keep off a purpose, —but I shall find him so officious to desire me, so ready to supply! I know the state of an old man's affection so well: if his nephew be poor indeed, why, he lets his God along with him; but if he be once rich, then he'll be the first man that helps him.

Cour. 'Tis right the world: for, in these days, an old man's love to his kindred is like his kindness to his wife, 'tis always done before he comes at it.

Wit. I owe thee for that jest. Begone: here's all my wealth; prepare the self, away. I'll to mine host with all possible haste; and with the best art, and most profitable form, pour the sweet circumstance into his ear, which shall have the gift to turn all the wax to honey. [Exit Courtesan.] —How now? O, the right worshipful signors of our country!

[Enter Onesiphorus Hoard, Limber, and Kix.]

[O. Hoa.] Who's that?

[Lim.] O, the common rioter; take no note of him.

Wit. [Aside.] You will not see me now; the comfort is, Ere it be long you will scarce see yourselves.

[Exit.]

[O. Hoa.] I wonder how he breathes; h'as consum'd all Upon that courtesan.

[Lim.] We have heard so much.

[O. Hoa.] You've heard all truth. His uncle and my brother Have been these three years mortal adversaries:

Two old tough spirits, they seldom meet but fight,

Or quarrel when 'tis calmest:

I think their anger be the very fire
That keeps their age alive.

[Lim.] What was the quarrel, sir?

[O. Hoa.] Faith, about a purchase, fetching over a young heir. Master Hoard, my brother, having wasted much time in beating the bargain, what did me old Lucre, but as his con-science mov'd him, knowing the poor gentleman, stept in between 'em and cozened him himself.

[Lim.] And was this all, sir?

[O. Hoa.] This was e'en it, sir; yet for all this, I know no reason but the match might go forward betwixt his wife's son and my niece; what though there be a dissension between the two old men, I see no reason it should put a difference between the two younger; "tis as natural for old folks to fall out, as for young to fall in. A scholar comes a-wooing to my niece; well, he's wise, but he's poor; her son comes a-wooing to my niece; well, he's a fool, but he's rich.

[Lim.] Ay, marry, sir.

[O. Hoa.] Pray, now, is not a rich fool better than a poor philosopher?

[Lim.] One would think so, i' faith.

[O. Hoa.] She now remains at London with my brother, her second uncle, to learn fashions, practise music; the voice between her lips, and the viol between her legs, she'll be fit for a consort very speedily: a thousand good pound is her portion; if she marry, we'll ride up and be merry.

[Kix.] A match, if it be a match. [Exeunt.]
Enter at one door, Witgood, at the other, Host.

Wit. Mine host.

Host. Young Master Witgood.

Wit. I have been laying 2 all the town for thee.

Host. Why, what's the news, bully Had-land?

Wit. What geldings are in the house, of thine own? Answer me to that first.

Host. Why, man, why?

Wit. Mark me what I say: I'll tell thee such a tale in thine ear, that thou shalt start me spite of thy teeth, furnish me with some money willy nilly, and ride up with me thyself contra voluntatem et professionem. 3

Host. How? Let me see this trick, and I'll say thou hast more art than a conjurer.

Wit. Dost thou joy in my advancement? Host. Do I love sack and ginger?

Wit. Comes my prosperity desired to thee?

Host. Come forfeitures to a usurer, fees to an officer, punks to an host, and pigs to a parson desirably? Why, then, la.

Wit. Will the report of a widow of four hundred a-year, boy, make thee leap, and sing, and dance, and come to thy place again? Host. Wilt thou command me now? I am thy spirit; conjure me into any shape.

Wit. I ha' brought her from her friends, [9 turn'd back the horses by a little; not so much as one among her six men, goodly large yeomanly fellows, will she trust with this her purpose: by this light, all unnam'd, 4 regardless of her state, neglectful of vain-glorious ceremony, all for my love. O, 'tis a fine little volatile tongue, mine host; that witts a widow! Host. No, 'tis a tongue with a great T, my boy, that wins a widow.

Wit. Now, sir, the case stands thus: good mine host, if thou loves my happiness, assist me.

Host. Command all my beasts i' th' house.

Wit. Nay, that's not all neither: prithee take truce with thy joy, and listen to me. Thou know'st I have a wealthy uncle i' th' city, somewhat the wealthier by my follies. The report of this fortune, well and cunningly carried, might be a means to draw some goodness from the usuring rascal; for I have put her in hope of [10 already of some estate that I have either in land or money. Now, if I be found true in neither, what may I expect but a sudden breach of our love, utter dissolution of the match, and confusion of my fortunes for ever?

Host. Wilt thou but trust the managing of thy business with me?

Wit. With thee? Why, will I desire to thrive in my purpose? Will I hug four hundred a-year, I that know the misery of nothing? Will that man wish a rich widow, that has ne'er a [50 hole to put his head in? With thee, mine host? Why, believe it, sooner with thee than with a covey of counsellors.

Host. Thank you for your good report, i' faith, sir; and if I stand you not in stead, [as why then let an host come off i' th' court hostels, a deadly enemy to all drunk, and venery. Come, where's this widow? 9 Wit. Hard at Park-end.

Host. I'll be her serving-man for once. Wit. Why, there we let off together, keep full time; my thoughts were striking then just the same number.

Host. I knew't: shall we then see our merry days again?

Wit. Our merry nights—[Aside.] which ne'er shall be more seen.

Exeunt.

Enter at several doors, old Lucre and old Hoard; [Lamphrey, Spichcock, Freedom, and Moneylove,] gentlemen coming between them to pacify them.

Lam. Nay, good Master Lucre, and you, Master Hoard, anger is the wind which you're both too much troubled withal.

Hoa. Shall my adversary thus daily affront me, ripping up the old wound of our malice, [6 which three summers could not close up? into which wound the very sight of him drops scalding lead instead of balsamum.

Luc. Why, Hoard, Hoard, Hoard, Hoard! may I not pass in the state of quietness to mine own house? Answer me to that, before witness, and why? I'll refer the cause to honest, even-minded gentlemen, or require the mere indifference of the law to decide this matter. I got the purchase; true: was 't [7 is not any man's case? Yes. Will a wise man stand this as a bawd, whilst another wipes his nose of the bargain? No! I answer no in that case.

Lam. Nay, sweet Master Lucre.

Hoa. Was it the part of a friend—no, [9 rather of a Jew;—mark what I say—when I had beaten the bush to the last bird, or, as I may term it, the price to a pound, then, like a cunning usurer, to come in the evening of the bargain, and glean all my hopes in a minute? [10 to enter, as it were, at the back door of the purchase? for thou ne'er cam'est the right way by it.

Luc. Host thou the conscience to tell me so without any impeachment to thyself? 9

Hoa. Thou that canst defeat thy own nephew Lucre, lap his lands into bonds, and take the extremity of thy kindred's forfeitures, because he's a rascal, a wastethrift, a brothel-master, and so forth,—what may a stranger expect [5 from thee but vulnera dilacerata, as the poet says, dilacerate dealing?

Luc. Upbraidest thou me with nephew? Is all imputation laid upon me? What acquaintance have I with his follies? If he riot, 'tis 9

6 A street in London.
7 The booty.
8 Impartiality.
9 Cheats him.
he must want it; if he surfeit, 'tis he must feel it; if he draw it, 'tis he must lie by 't: what 's this to me?

Host. What's all to thee? Nothing, nothing; such is the gulf of thy desire and the wolf of [as] thy conscience: but be assured, old Pecunius Lucre, if ever Fortune so bless me that I may be at leisure to vex thee, or any means so favour me that I may have opportunity to mad thee, I will pursue it with that flame of hate, [as] spirit of malice, unexpressed wrath, that I will blast thy comforts.

Luc. Ha, ha, ha!

Lam. Nay, Master Hoard, you're a wise gentleman—

Hoar. I will so cross thee—

Luc. And I thee.

Hoar. So without mercy fret thee—

Luc. So monstrously oppose thee—

Hoar. Dost scoff at my just anger? O, that [as] I had as much power as usurly has over thee!

Luc. Then thou wouldst have as much power as the devil has over thee.

Hoar. Toad!

Luc. Aspic! [as] Serpent!

Luc. Viper!

Spi. Nay, gentlemen, then we must divide you perforce.

Lam. When the fire grows too unreason- [as] able hot, there's no better way than to take off the wood.

Exeunt [LAMPREY and SPICHEROCK, drawing off LUCRE and HOARD different ways].

Free. A word, good signior.

Mon. How now, what's the news?

Free. 'Tis given me to understand that [as] you are a rival of mine in the love of Mistress Joyce, Master Hoard's niece: say me ay, say me no?

Mon. Yes, 'tis so.

Free. Then look to yourself, you cannot [as] live long. I'm practising every morning; a month hence I'll challenge you.

Mon. Give me your hand upon 't; there's my pledge I'll meet you. Strikes him, and exit.

Free. O! O! what reason had you for that, sir, to strike before the month? You knew [as] I was not ready for you, and that made you so crank: I am not such a coward to strike again, I warrant you. My ear has the law of her side, for it burns horribly. I will teach him to strike a naked face, the longest day of his life. [as] 'Slid, it shall cost me some money but I'll bring this box into the chancery. Exit.

[SCENE IV.]

Enter WITGOOD and Host.

Host. Fear you nothing, sir; I have lodg'd her in a house of credit, I warrant you.

Wit. Hast thou the writings?

Host. Firm, sir.

Wit. Frithee, stay, and behold two the [as] most prodigious rascals that ever slipt into the shape of men; Dampit, sirrah, and young Gulf, his fellow-caterpillar.

Host. Dampit? Sure I have heard of that Dampit?

Wit. Heard of him! Why, man, he that has lost both his ears may hear of him; a famous infamous trampler [as] of time; his own phrase. Note him well: that Dampit, sirrah, he in the uneven heard and the serge cloak, is the [as] most notorious, usuring, blasphemous, atheistical, brothel-vomiting rascal, that we have in these latter times now extant; whose first beginning was the stealing of a masty dog from a farmer's house.

Host. He lookt as if he would obey the commandment[s] well, when he began first with stealing.

Wit. True: the next town he came at, he set the dogs together by th' ears.

Host. A sign he should follow the law, by my faith.

Wit. So it followed, indeed; and being destitute of all fortunes, stak't his masty against a noble, [as] and by great fortune his dog had the [as] day. How he made it up ten shillings, I know not, but his own boast is, that he came to town with but ten shillings in his purse, and now is credibly worth ten thousand pound.

Host. How the devil came he by it?

[ENTER DAMMIT and GULF.]

Wit. How the devil came he not by it? If you put in the devil once, riches come with a vengeance. Has been a trampler of the law, sir; and the devil has a care of his footmen. The rogue has spied me now; he nibbled me finely [as] once, too: — a pox search you! — O, Master Dampit! — the very loins of thee! — Cry you mercy, Master Gulf; you walk so low, I promise you I saw you not, sir.

Gulf. He that walks low walks safe, the [as] poets tell us.

Wit. [Aside.] And nigher hell by a foot and a half than the rest of his fellows. — But, my old Harry!... Dam. My sweet Theodorus!

Wit. 'T was a merry world when thou cam'st to town with ten shillings in thy purse.

Dam. And now worth ten thousand pound, my boy. Report it; Harry Dampit, a trampler of time, say, he would be up in a morning, [as] and be here with his serge gown, dash'd up to the hams in a cause; have his feet stink about Westminster Hall, and come home again; see the galleons, the galleasses, [as] the great armadas of the law; then there be hoy's [as] and petty [as] vessels, arms and scullers of the time; there be picklocks of the time too: then would I be here; I would trample up and down like a mule: now to the judges. "May it please your reverend honourable fatherhoods;" then to [as] my counsellor, "May it please your worshipful..."
patience;" then to the examiner's office, "May it please your master's gentleness;" then to one of the clerks, "May it please your worshipful lousiness," for I find him scrubbing [70] in his codpiece; then to the hall again, then to the chamber again.

Wit. And when to the cellar again?

Dam. Even when thou wilt again: trampers of time, motions [83] of Fleet Street, and visions [85] of Holborn; here I have fees of one, there I have fees of another; my clients come about me, the fooliamity [2] and coaxcrum of the country: I still trash [8] and trotted for other men's causes. Thus was poor Harry Dampt [80] made rich by others' laziness, who though they would not follow their own suits, I made 'em follow me with their purses.

Wit. Didst thou so, old Harry?

Dam. Ay, and I sous'd 'em with bills of [86] charges, I faith; twenty pound a-year I brought in for boat-hire, and I ne'er stepped into boat in my life.

Wit. Trampers of time!

Wit. Ah, thou 'rt a mad old Harry! — Kind Master Gulf, I am bold to renew my acquaintance.

Gulf. I embrace it, sir. [Exeunt. 96

MUSIC

ACT II

[SCENE I.] 6

Enter Lucie.

Luc. My adversary evermore twist me with my nephew, forsooth, my nephew: why may not a virtuous uncle have a dissolute nephew? What though he be a brotheller, a wastethrift, a common surfeiter, and, to conclude, a beggar, must sin in him call up shame in me? Since we have no part in their follies, why should we have part in their insanities? For my strict hand toward his mortgage, that I deny not: I confess I had an uncle's penworth; [10] let me see, half in half, true. I saw neither hope of his reclaiming, nor comfort in his being; and was it not then better bestow'd upon his uncle than upon one of his aunts? — I need not say bawd, for every one knows what "aunt" stands for in the last translation.

[Enter Servant.]

Now, Sir? Ser. There's a country serving-man, sir, attends to speak with your worship.

Luc. I'm at best leisure now; send him in to me. [Exit Servant.]

Enter Host like a serving-man.

Host. Bless your venerable worship.

Luc. Welcome, good fellow.

Host. [Aside.] He calls me thief [8] at first sight, yet he little thinks I am an host.

Luc. What's thy business with me?

Host. Faith, sir, I am sent from my mistress, to any sufficient gentleman indeed, to ask advice upon a doubtful point: 'tis indifferent, and to whom I come, for I know none; nor [90] did my mistress direct me to any particular man, for she 's as more a stranger here as myself; only I found your worship within, and 'tis a thing I ever lov'd, sir, to be despatched as soon as I can.

Luc. [Aside.] A good, blunt honesty; I like him well.— What is thy mistress?

Host. Faith, a country gentlewoman, and a widow, sir. Yesterday was the first flight of us; but now she intends to stay till a little [80] term business be ended.

Luc. Her name, I prithee?

Host. It runs there in the writings, sir, among her lands; Widow Medler.

Host. Yes, I warrant you, have you, sir; not the rich widow in Staffordshire?

Luc. Cuds [8] we, there 's is indeed; thou hast put me into memory. There's a widow in [50] deed; ah, that I were a bachelor again!

Host. No doubt your worship might do much then; but she's fairly promis'd to a bachelor already.

Luc. Ah, what is he, I prithee?

Host. A country gentleman too; one of whom your worship knows not, I'm sure; 's has spent some few follies in his youth, but marriage, by my faith, begins to call him home. My mistress loves him, sir, and love covers faults, you [60] know: one Master Witgood, if ever you have heard of the gentleman.

Luc. He! Witgood, sayst thou?

Host. That's his name indeed, sir; my mistress is like to bring him to a goodly seat [85] yonder; four hundred a-year, by my faith.

Luc. But, I pray, take me with you. [9]

Host. Ay, sir.

Luc. What countryman might this young Witgood be?

Host. A Leicestershire gentleman, sir.

Luc. [Aside.] My nephew, by th' mass, my nephew! I'll fetch out more of this, I'm faith: a simple country fellow, I'll work 't out of him. — And is that gentleman, sayst thou, presently to marry her?

Host. Faith, he brought her up to town, sir; 's has the best card in all the bunch for 't, her heart; and I know my mistress will be married ere she go down; [10] may, I'll swear that, for [9] she 's none of those widows that will go down

5 "Good fellow" was then slang for a thief.
7 Q. I have.
8 A corruption of "Gods."
9 Let me understand you.
10 To the country, with a pun.
first, and be married after; she hates that, I can tell you, sir.

Luc. By my faith, sir, she is like to have a proper gentleman, and a comely; I’ll give [96] her that gift.

Host. Why, does your worship know him, sir?

Luc. I know him? Does not all the world know him? Can a man of such exquisite [98] qualities be hid under a bushel?

Host. Then your worship may save me a labour, for I had charge given me to inquire after him.

Luc. Inquire of him? If I might counsel thee, thou shouldst ne’er trouble thyself further; inquire of him no more, but of me; I’ll fit thee. I grant he has been youthful; but is he not now reigned? Mark you that, sir: has not your mistres[s] think you, been wanton [100] in her youth? If men be wags, are there not women wagtails?

Host. No doubt, sir.

Luc. Does not he return wisest that comes home whipt with his own follies? [105]

Host. Why, very true, sir.

Luc. The worst report you can hear of him, I can tell you, is that he has been a kind gentleman, a liberal, and a worthy; who but lusty Witgood, thrice-noble Witgood!

Host. Since your worship has so much knowledge in him, can you resolve me, sir, what his living might be? My duty binds me, sir, to have a care of my mistres[s] estate; she has been ever a good mistress to me, though I [110] say it. Many wealthy suitors has she nonsuited for his sake; yet, though her love be so fixt, a man cannot tell whether his non-performance may help to remove it, sir; he makes us believe he has lands and living.

Luc. Who, young Master Witgood? Why, believe it, he has as goodly a fine living out yonder,—what do you call the place?

Host. Nay, I know not; if faith.

Luc. He, sir, looks like a beast, if I have [115] not forgot the name—pooh! and out yonder again, goodly grown woods and fair meadows: pa[z] 1 on’t, I can ne’er hit of that place neither.

—He? Why, he’s Witgood of Witgood Hall; he an unknown thing!

Host. Is he so, sir? To see how rumour will alter! Trust me, sir, we heard once he had no lands, but all lay mortgage’d to an uncle he has in town here.

Luc. Push! ’tis a tale, ’tis a tale.

Host. I can assure you, sir, ’twas credibly reported to my mistres[s].

Luc. Why, do you think, if faith, he was ever so simple to mortgage his lands to his uncle, or his uncle so unnatural to take the extremity of such a mortgage?

Host. That was my saying still, sir.

Luc. Pooh, ne’er think it.

Host. Yet that report goes current.

Luc. Nay, then you urge me; cannot I tell that best that am his uncle?

Host. How, sir? what have I done!

Luc. Why, how now! In a swoon, man?

Host. Is your worship his uncle, sir?

Luc. Can that be any harm to you, sir? [119]

Host. I do beseech you, sir, do me the favour to conceal it. What a beast was I to utter so much? Pray, sir, do me the kindness to keep it in; I shall have my coat pull’d o’er my ears, an’t should be known; for the truth is, an’ I please your worship, to prevent much rumour and many suitors, they intend to be married very suddenly and privately.

Luc. And dost thou think it stands with my judgment to do them injury? Must I needs [120] say the knowledge of this marriage comes from thee? Am I a fool at fifty-four? Do I lack subtlety now, that have got all my wealth by it? There’s a leach of angels 2 for these; come, let me woo thee speak where lie 3 they? [125]

Host. So I might have no anger, sir—

Luc. Passion of me, not a jot: prithee, come.

Host. I would not have it known, sir, it came by my means.

Luc. Why, am I a man of wisdom?

Host. I dare trust your worship, sir; but I’m a stranger to your house; and to avoid all intelligencers, I desire your worship’s ear.

Luc. [Aside.] This fellow’s worth a matter of trust.—Come, sir. [Host whispers to him.] Why, now, thou’rt an honest lad.—Ah, [127] sirrah, nephew!

Host. Please you, sir, now I have begun with your worship, when shall I attend for your advice upon that doubtful point? I must come warily now.

Luc. Tut, fear thou nothing;

To-morrow’s evening shall resolve the doubt.

Host. The time shall cause my attendance.

Luc. Fare thee well.—There’s more true [130] honesty in such a country serving-man than in a hundred of our cloak companions: I may well call ’em companions, 4 for since blue 5 coats have been turn’d into cloaks, we can scarce know the man from the master.—George! [135]

[Enter George.]

Geo. Anon, sir.

Luc. List hither: [whispers] keep the place secret: commend me to my nephew; I know no cause, tell him, but he might see his uncle.

Geo. I will, sir.

Luc. And, do you hear, sir?

Take heed to use him with respect and duty.

Geo. [Aside.] Here’s a strange alteration; one day he must be turn’d out like a beggar, and now he must be call’d in like a knight. [140]

Luc. Ah, sirrah, that rich widow!—four hundred a-year! beside, I hear she lays claim to a title of a hundred more. This falls unhappily that he should bear a grudge to me now, being likely to prove so rich. What [145]

Wit. He desires your worship to hold him excus'd; he has such weighty business, it commands him wholly from all men.

Luc. Were those my nephew's words?

Geo. [Aside.] When men grow rich, they grow proud too, I perceive that. He would not have sent me such an answer once within this twelvemonth: see what 'tis when a man comes to his lands! Return to him again, sir; tell him his uncle desires his company for an hour; I'll trouble him but an hour, say; 'tis for his own good, tell him; and, do you hear, sir? put 'worse' upon him. Go to, do as I bid you; he's like to be a gentleman of worship very shortly.

Geo. [Aside.] This is good sport, 'tis faith.

Luc. Troth, he uses his uncle discourteously now. Can he tell what I may do for him? Goodness may come from me in a minute, that comes not in seven year again. He knows my humour; I am not so usually good; 'tis no small thing that draws kindness from me, he may know that an he will. The chief cause that invites me to do him most good is the sudden astonishing of old Hoard, my adversary. How pale his face will look at my nephew's advancement! With what a decked spirit he will behold his fortunes, whom last day he proclaimed roister, penurious makeshift, despised brothel-master! Ha, ha! 'twill do me more secret joy than my last purchase, more precious comfort than all these widow's revenues.

[Re-enter [GEORGE, showing in] WITGOOD.

Wit. O, nephew, let me salute you, sir! Your welcome, nephew.

Luc. Uncle, I thank you.

Wit. You've a fault, nephew; you're a stranger here. Well, Heaven give you joy!

Luc. Of what, sir?

Wit. 'Hah, we can hear!

You might have known your uncle's house, I, faith,
You and your widow: go to, you were to blame;

If I may tell you so without offence.

Luc. How could you hear of that, sir?

Wit. 'Twas your will to have kept it from me, I perceive now.

Luc. Not for any defect of love, I protest, uncle.

Wit. I am sorry you take it in that sense, sir.

Luc. Pooh, you cannot colour it, I, faith, nephew.

Wit. Will you but hear what I can say in my just excuse, sir.

Luc. Yes, faith, will I, and welcome.

Wit. You that know my danger! 'tis city, sir, so well, how great my debts are, and how extreme my creditors, could not out of your pure judgement, sir, have wished us hither.

Luc. Mass, a firm reason indeed.

Wit. E'en, my uncle's house! why, 'tis had been the only make-match.

Luc. Nay, and thy credit.

Wit. My credit? Nay, my countenance. Pish, nay, I know, uncle, you would have wrought it so by your wit, you would have made her believe in time the whole house had been mine.

Luc. Ay, and most of the goods too.

Wit. La, you there! Well, let'em all prate what they will, there's nothing like the bringing of a widow to one's uncle's house.

Luc. Nay, let nephews be ruled as they list, they shall find their uncle's house the most natural place when all's done.

Wit. There they may be bold.

Luc. Life, they may do anything there, man, and fear neither beadle nor summoner. An uncle's house! a very Cole-Harbour. Sirrah, I'll touch thee near now: hast thou so much interest in thy widow, that by a token thou couldst presently send her?

Wit. Troth, I think I can, uncle.

Luc. Go so, let me see that.

Wit. Pray, command one of your men hither, uncle.

Luc. George!

[Re-enter GEORGE.]
ness of a thing is all, nephew: you might have sent me close word on 't, without the least danger or prejudice to your fortunes.

Wit. Troth, I confess it, uncle; I was to blame there; but, indeed, my intent was to have clapt it up suddenly, and so have broke forth like a joy to my friends, and a wonder to the world. Beside, there's a trifle of a forty pound matter toward the setting of me forth; my friends should never have known on 't; I meant to make shift for that myself.

Luc. How, nephew? let me not hear such a word again, I beseech you. Shall I be beholding to you?

Wit. To me? Alas, what do you mean, uncle?

Luc. I charge you, upon my love, you trouble nobody but myself.

Wit. You've no reason for that, uncle.

Luc. Troth, I'll never be friends with you while you live, an you do.

Wit. Nay, an you say so, uncle, here's my hand; I will not do 't.

Luc. Why, well said! there's some hope in thee when thou wilt be fool'd. I'll make it up fifty, faith, because I see thee so reclaim'd.

Wit. Peace; here comes my wife with Sam, her t'other husband's son.

[Enter Mistress Lucrée and Freedom.]

Wit. Good aunt.

Free. Cousin Witgood, I rejoice in my salute; you're most welcome to this noble city, govern'd with the sword in the scabbard.

Wit. [Aside.] And the wit in the pomblion. —

Good Master Sam Freedom, I return the salute.

Luc. By the mass, she's coming, wife; let [see me now how thou wilt entertain her.

Mis. L. I hope I am not to learn, sir, to entertain a widow; 'tis not so long since I was one myself.

[Enter Courtesan.]

Wit. Uncle —

Luc. She's come indeed.

Wit. My uncle was desirous to see you, widow, and I presumed to invite you.

Cour. The presumption was nothing, Master Witgood. Is this your uncle, sir?

Luc. Marry am I, sweet widow; and his good uncle he shall find me; ay, by this smack that I give thee, thou art welcome. — Wife, bid the widow welcome the same way again.

Free. [Aside.] I am a gentleman now too by my father's occupation, and I see no reason but I may kiss a widow by my father's copy; truly, I think the charter is not against it; surely these are the words, 'The son once a gentleman may revel it, though his father were a dauber.' It is about the fifteenth page: I'll to her. [Offers to kiss the Courtesan, who repulses him.]

Luc. You're not very busy now; a word with thee, sweet widow.

Free. Coads-nigs! I was never so disgrac'd since the hour my mother whipt me.

Luc. Beside, I have no child of mine own to care for; she's my second wife, old, past bearing; clap sure to him, widow; he's like to be my heir, I can tell you.

Cour. Is he so, sir?

Luc. He knows it already, and the knave's prond on 't; jolly rich widows have been offer'd him here i' th' city, great merchants' wives; and do you think he will once look upon th' em? Forsooth, he'll none. You are beholding to him i' th' country, then, ere we could be: nay, I'll hold a wager, widow, if he were once known to be in town, he would be presently sought after; nay, and happy were they that could catch him first.

Cour. I think so.

Luc. O, there would be such running to and fro, widow! He should not pass the streets for 'em: he'd be took up in one great house or other presently: fangh! they know he has it, and must have it. You see this house here, widow; this house and all comes to him; goodly rooms, ready furnish'd, ceil'd with plaster of Paris, and all hung about with cloth of arras.

Nephew.

Wit. Sir.

Luc. Show the widow your house; carry her into all the rooms, and bid her welcome. — [Aside] You shall see, widow. — [Aside to Witgood.] Nephew, strike all sure above an thou beest a good boy, — ah!

Wit. Alas, sir, I know not how she would take it!

Luc. The right way, I warrant t'ee. A pox, art an ass? Would I were in thy stead! get you up, I am ashamed of you. [Exit Witgood and Courtesan. So: let 'em agree as they will now: many a match has been struck up in my house a' this fashion: let 'em try all man-ner of ways, still there's nothing like an uncle's house to strike the stroke in. I'll hold my wife in talk a little. — Now Jenny, your son there goes a-wooing to a poor gentlewoman but of a thousand pound portion: see my nephew, a lad of less hope, strikes at four hundred a-year in good rubish.

Mis. L. Well, we must do as we may, sir.

Luc. I'll have his money ready told for him again he come down. Let me see, too; — by th' mass, I must present the widow with some jewel, a good piece a' plate, or such a device; 'till hearten her on well. I have a very fair standing cup; and a good high standing cup we will please a widow above all other pieces.

Exit.

Mis. L. Do you mock us with your nephew?

— I have a plot in my head, son; — i' faith, husband, to cross you.

Free. Is it a tragedy plot, or a comedy plot, good mother?

Mis. L. 'Tis a plot shall vex him. I charge you, of my blessing, son Sam, that you presently withdraw the action of your love from Master Hoard's niece.

Free. How, mother?

Mis. L. Nay, I have a plot in my head, 'tis faith. Here, take this chain of gold, and this fair diamond: dog me the widow home to her lodging, and at thy best opportunity, fasten 'em [435] both upon her. Nay, I have a reach: [2] I can tell you thou art known what thou art, son, among the right worshipful, all the twelve companies.

Free. Truly, I thank 'em for it.

Mis. L. He? he's a scab to thee: and so certify her thou hast two hundred a-year of thyself, besides thy good parts — a proper person and a lovely. If I were a widow, I could find in my heart to have thee myself, son; ay, [488] from 'em all.

Free. Thank you for your good will, mother; but, indeed, I had rather have a stranger: and if I woo her not in that violent fashion, that [489] I will make her be glad to take these gifts ere I leave her, let me never be called the heir of your body.

Mis. L. Nay, I know there's enough in you, son, if you once come to put it forth.

Free. I'll quickly make a bolt or a shaft on 't. [Scene II.]

Enter Hoard and MoneyLove.

Mon. Faith, Master Hoard, I have bestowed many months in the suit of your niece; such was the dear love I ever bore to her virtues: but since she hath so extremely denied me, I am to lay out for my fortunes elsewhere.

Hoa. Heaven forbid but you should, sir! I ever told you my niece stood otherwise affected.

Mon. I must confess you did, sir; yet, in regard of my great loss of time, and the zeal with which I sought your niece, shall I desire one [10] favour of your worship?

Hoa. In regard of those two, 'tis hard but you shall.

Mon. I shall rest grateful: 'tis not full three hours, sir, since the happy rumour of a rich [15] country widow came to my hearing.

Hoa. How? a rich country widow?

Mon. Four hundred a-year landed.

Hoa. Yea?

Mon. Most firm, sir; and I have learnt her [20] lodging. Here my suit begins, sir; if I might but entreat your worship to be a countenance for me, and speak a good word (for your words will pass), I nothing doubt but I might set fair for the widow; nor shall your labour, sir, end [25] altogether in thanks; two hundred angels —

Hoa. So, so: what suitors has she?

Mon. There lies the comfort, sir; the report of her is yet but a whisper; and only solicited by young riotous Witgood, nephew to your mortal adversary.

Hoa. Ha! art certain he's her suitor?

Mon. Most certain, sir; and his uncle very industrious to beguile the widow, and make up the match.

Hoa. Say, very good.

Mon. Now, sir, you know this young Witgood is a spendthrift, dissolve fellow.

Hoa. A very rascal.

Mon. A midnight surfeiter.

Hoa. The spume of a brothel-house.

Mon. True, sir; which being well told in your worship's phrase, may both heave him out of her mind, and drive a fair way for me to the widow's affections.

Hoa. Attend me about five.

Mon. With my best care, sir.

Hoa. Pool, thou hast left thy treasure with a thief.

To trust a widower with a suit in love!

Happy revenge, I hug thee! I have not only [50] the means laid before me, extremely to cross my adversary, and confound the last hopes of his nephew, but thereby to enrich my estate, augment my revenues, and build mine own fortunes greater: ha, ha!

I'll mar your phrase, o'erturn your flatteries,

Undo your windings, policies, and plots,

Fall like a secret and despatchful plague

On your secured comforts. Why, I am able

To buy three of Lucre; thrice outbid him,

Let my out-monies be reckoned and all.

Enter three (of Witgood's) Creditors.

1 [Cred.] I am glad of this news.

2 [Cred.] So are we, by my faith.

3 [Cred.] Young Witgood will be a gallant again now.

Hoa. Peace.

[Listening.]

1 Cred. I promise you, Master Cockpit, she's a mighty rich widow.

2 Cred. Why, have you ever heard of her?

3 Cred. Four hundred a-year, they say, in very good land.

1 Cred. [Nay.] take 't of my word, if you believe that, you believe the least.

2 Cred. And to see how close he keeps it!

1 Cred. O, sir, there's policy in that, to prevent better suitors.

3 Cred. He owes me a hundred pound, and I protest I ne'er look'd for a penny.

1 Cred. He little dreams of our coming; he'll wonder to see his creditors upon him.

[Exit Creditors.]

Hoa. Good, his creditors: I'll follow. This makes for me:

All know the widow's wealth; and 'tis well known

I can estate her fairly, ay, and will.

In this one chance shines a twice happy fate;

I both deject my foe and raise my state.

ACT III

[SCENE 1.]

[Enter] Witgood with his Creditors.

Wit. Why, alas, my creditors, could you find no other time to undo me but now? Rather your malice appears in this than the justness of the debt.

1 Cred. Master Witgood, I have forborne [s

Wit. I pray, speak low, sir: what do you mean?

2 Cred. We hear you are to be married suddenly to a rich country widow.

Wit. What can be kept so close but you creditors hear on 't! Well, 'tis a lamentable state, that our chiefest affiector should first hear of our fortunes. Why, this is no good course, i' faith, sirs: if ever you have hope to be satisfy'd, why do you seek to confound the means that should work it? There's neither pitie, no, nor policy in that. Shine favourously now: why, I may rise and spread again, to your great comfort.

3 Cred. He says true, i' faith.

Wit. Remove me now, and I consume for ever.

2 Cred. Sweet gentleman!

Wit. How can it thrive which from the sun you sever?

3 Cred. It cannot, indeed.

Wit. O, then, show patience! I shall have enough To satisfy you all.

Cred. Ay, if we could Be content, a shame take us!

Wit. For, look you; I am but newly sure yet to the widow, And what a rend might this discredite make! Within these three days will I bind you lands For your securities.

1 Cred. No, good Master Witgood: Would 't were as much as we dare trust you with!

Wit. I know you have been kind; however, now, Either by wrong report or false incitement, Your gentleness is injured: in such A state as this a man cannot want foes. If on the sudden he begin to rise, No man that lives can count his enemies. You had some intelligence, I warrant ye, From an ill-willer.

2 Cred. Faith, we heard you brought up a rich widow, sir, and were suddenly to marry her.

Wit. Ay, why there it was; I knew 't was so; but since you are so well resolv'd, of my faith toward you, let me be so much favour'd of you, I beseech you all——

All. O, it shall not need, i' faith, sir!——

Wit. As to lie still awhile, and bury my debts in silence, till I be fully possess of the widow; for the truth is — I may tell you as my friends——

---

[Enter Courtesan.]

Cour. Master Witgood, where are you?

Wit. Holla!

Cour. Rich news!

Wit. Would 't were all in plate!

---

1 Witgood's lodgings. 2 Betrothed. 3 Satisfied.

4 A sweet wine, taken with eggs as an aphrodisiac.
Cour. There's some in chains and jewels. I am so haunted with suitors, Master Witgood, I know not which to despatch first. \footnote{1}
Wit. You have the better term, \footnote{1} by my faith.
Cour. Among the number
One Master Hoard, an ancient gentleman.
Wit. Upon my life, my uncle's adversary. \footnote{2}
Cour. It may well hold so, for he rails on you.
Speaks shamefully of him.
Wit. As I could wish it.
Cour. I first denied him, but so cunningly,
It rather promis'd him assured hopes,
Than any loss of labour.
Wit. Excellent! \footnote{3}
Cour. I expect him every hour with gentle-
men,
With whom he labours to make good his words,
To approve you riotous, your state consum'd.
Your uncle —
Wit. Wench, make up thy own fortunes \footnote{4} now; do thyself a good turn once in thy days.
He's rich in money, movables, and lands;
marry him: he's an old dodging fool, and that's worth all; marry him. 'Twould be a great comfort to me to see thee do well, \footnote{5} faith; marry \footnote{5} him. 'T would ease my conscience well to see thee well bestow'd; I have a care of thee, \footnote{6} faith.
Cour. Thanks, sweet Master Witgood.
Wit. I reach at farther happiness: first, I \footnote{7} am sure it can be no harm to thee, and there may happen goodness to me by it. Prosecute it well; let's send up for our wits, now we require their best and most pregnant assistance.
Cour. Step in, I think I hear 'em. \footnote{8} [Exeunt.]

Enter HOARD and Gentlemen with the Host as serving-man.

Hoar. Art thou the widow's man? By my \footnote{9} faith, sh's a company of proper men then.
Host. I am the worst of six, \footnote{9} sir; good enough for blue coats.
Hoar. Hank biker: I hear say thou art in most credit with her.
Host. Not so, sir.
Hoar. Come, come, thou 'rt modest. There's a brace of royalties; \footnote{10} a prithee, help me to th' speech of her. \footnote{10}
[Give him money.] \footnote{11}
[Aside.] Is not this a better place \footnote{11} than five mark \footnote{12} a-year standing wages? Say a man had but three such clients in a day, he-thinks he might make a poor living on't; beside, I was never brought up with so little honesty to refuse any man's money; never. \footnote{13}
What gulls there are! 'Tis like the world! Now know I the widow's mind; none but my young master comes in her clutches: ha, ha, ha!

Hoar. Now, my dear gentlemen, stand firmly
to me;
You know his follies and my worth.

2 Gent. \footnote{11} But, Master Hoard, are you sure he is not 't house now?
Hoar. Upon my honesty, I chose this time
At purpose, fit: the spendthrift is abroad.
Assist me; here she comes.

Enter Couresan.

Now, my sweet widow. \footnote{12}
Cour. You're welcome, Master Hoard.
Hoar. Despatch, sweet gentlemen, despatch. —
I am come, widow, to prove those my words
Neither of envy, sprung nor of false tongues,
But such as their \footnote{13} deserts and actions.
Do merit and bring forth; all which these
gentlemen.
Well known, and better reputed, will confess.
Cour. I cannot tell
How my affections may dispose of me;
But surely if they find him so desertless,
They'll have that reason to withdraw themselves:
And therefore, gentlemen, I do entreat you,
As you are fair in reputation:
And in appearing form, so shine in truth.
I am a widow, and, alas, you know, \footnote{12}
Soon overthrown! 'T is a very small thing
That we withstand, our weakness is so great:
Be partial unto neither, but deliver,
Without affection, your opinion.
Hoar. And that will drive it home. \footnote{12}
Cour. Nay, I beseech your silence, Master
Hoard;
You are a party.
Hoar. Widow, not a word.
1 Gent. The better first to work you to belief,
Know neither of us owe him foresty,
Nor 't other malice; but unbribed censure,\footnote{12}
So help us our best fortunes!
Cour. \footnote{12} It suffices.
1 Gent. \footnote{12} That Witgood is a riotous, undone
man,

take heed
You do not wrong the gentleman.
1 Gent. \footnote{12} What we speak
Our lives and means are ready to make good.
Cour. Alas, how soon are we poor souls be-guil'd! \footnote{12}
2 Gent. And for his uncle —
Hoar. \footnote{12} Let that come to me.
His uncle, a severe extortioner;
A tyrant at a forfeiture; greedy of others' Miseries; one that would undo his brother,
Nay, swallow up his father, if he can.
Within the fathoms of his conscience.

\footnote{5} Judgment.
You had not only matched yourself to wants,
But in an evil and unnatural stock.

Hoa. [Aside to Gent.] Follow hard, gentlemen, follow hard.

Cour. Is my love so deceiv'd? Before you all
I do renounce him; on my knees I vow
He ne'er shall marry me.

Wit. [looking in.] Heaven knows he never meant it!

Hoa. [Aside to Gent.] There take her at the bound.

1 Gent. Then, with a new and pure affection,
Behold you gentleman; grave, kind, and rich,
A match worthy yourself: esteeming him,
You do regard your state.

Hoa. [Aside to Gent.] I'll make her a jointure, say.

1 Gent. He can join land to land, and will possess you
Of what you can desire.

2 Gent. Come, widow, come.

Cour. The world is so deceitful!

1 Gent. There, 'tis deceitful, where flattery, want, and imperfection lies;
But none of these in him: push!

Cour. Pray, sir.

1 Gent. Come, you widows are ever most backward when you should do yourselves most good; but were it to marry a chin not worth a hair now, then you would be forward enough. Come, clap hands, a match.

Hoa. With all my heart, widow. [Hoard and Courtesan shake hands.]—Thanks, gentlemen:
I will deserve your labour, and to Courtesan thy love.

Cour. Alas, you love not widows but for wealth!

I promise you I ha' nothing, sir.

Hoa. Well said, widow;
Well said; thy love is all I seek, before
These gentlemen.

Cour. Now I must hope the best.

Hoa. My joys are such they want to be express.

Cour. But, Master Hoard, one thing I must remember you of, before these gentlemen, your friends: how shall I suddenly avoid the loathed soliciting of that perjur'd Witgood, and his tedious, dissembling uncle? who this very day hath appointed a meeting for the same purpose too; where, had not truth come forth, I had been undone, utterly undone.

Hoa. What think you of that, gentlemen?

1 Gent. 'T was well devised.

Hoa. Hack thee, widow: train 1 out young Witgood single; hasten him thither with thee, somewhat before the hour; where, at the place appointed, these gentlemen and myself will wait the opportunity, when, by some slight removing him from thee, we'll suddenly enter and surprise thee, carry thee away by boat to Cole Harbour, have a priest ready, and there clap it up instantly. How likest it, widow?

Cour. In that it pleaseth you, it likes me well.

Hoa. I'll kiss thee for these words. Come, gentleman,
Still must I live a suitor to your favours,
Still to your aid beholding.

1 Gent. We're engag'd, sir;
'T is for our creditors now to see 't well ended.

Hoa. 'T is for your honours, gentlemen; nay, look to 't.

Not only in joy, but in wealth excel:
No more sweet widow, but, sweet wife, farewell.

Cour. Farewell, sir.

Exeunt [Hoard and Gentlemen].

Re-enter Witgood.

Wit. O for more scope! I could laugh eternally! Give you joy, Mistress Hoard, I promise your fortune was good, forsooth; you've fallen upon wealth enough, and there's young gentlemen soon can help you to the rest. Now, it requires our wits: carry thyself but heedfully now, and we are both——

[Re-enter Host.]

Host. Master Witgood, your uncle.

Wit. Cuds me! 2 remove thyself awhile; I'll serve for him.

[Exeunt Courtesan and Host.]

Enter Luc.

Luc. Nephew, good morning, nephew.

Wit. The same to you, kind uncle.

Luc. How fares the widow? Does the meeting hold?

Wit. O, no question of that, sir.

Luc. I'll strike the stroke, then, for thee; no more days.

Wit. The better, the better, uncle. O, she's mightily follow'd!

Luc. And yet so little rumour'd!

Wit. Mighty! here comes one old gentleman, and he'll make her a jointure of three hundred a year, forsooth; another wealthy suitor will estate his son in his lifetime, and make him weigh down the widow; here a merchant's son will possess her with no less than three goodly lordships at once, which were all pawned to his father.

Luc. Peace, nephew, let me hear no more of 'em; it made me. Thou shalt prevent all. No words to the widow of my coming hither. Let me see—'t is now, upon nine: before twelve, nephew, we will have the bargain struck, we will, faith, boy.

Wit. O, my precious uncle!

[Exeunt.]

Enter Hoard and Niece [Joyce].

Hoa. Niece, sweet niece, prithee, have a care to my house; I leave all to thy discretion. Be content to dream awhile; I'll have a husband for thee shortly: put that care upon me, wench,

10 To give.

2 God's me. Perhaps a corruption of "God save me!"

3 Postponements.

4 Anticipate.

5 A room in Hoard's house.
for in choosing wives and husbands I am only fortunate; I have that gift given me.

Joy. But 'tis not likely you should choose for me,

Since nephew to your chiefest enemy

Is he whom I affect: but, O, forgetful!

Why dost thou flatter thy affections so,

With name of him that for a widow's bed Neglects thy purer love? Can it be so,

Or does report dissemble?

[Enter George.]

How, now, sir?

Geo. A letter, with which came a private charge.

Joy. Therein I thank your care.

[Exit George.]

(Reads.) Dearer than sight, what the world reports of me, yet believe not; rumour will alter shortly: be thou constant; I am still the same that I was in love, and I hope to be the same in fortunes.

Theodorus Witgood.

I am resolv'd; no more shall fear or doubt

Raise their pale powers to keep affection out.

Exit.

[Scene III.]

Enter, with a Drawer, Hoard and two Gentlemen.

Dra. You're very welcome, gentlemen. — Dick, show those gentlemen the Pomegranate there.

Hoa. Hist!

Dra. Up those stairs, gentlemen.

Hoa. Hist! drawer!

Dra. Anon, sir.

Hoa. Prithie, ask at the bar if a gentlewoman came not in lately.

Dra. William, at the bar, did you see any gentleman come in lately? Speak you any, speak you no?

Within. No, none came in yet, but Mistress Florence.

Dra. He says none came in, sir, but one [

Mistress Florence.

Hoa. What is that Florence? A widow?

Dra. Yes, a Dutch widow.

Hoa. How?

Dra. That's an English drab, sir: give your worship good morrow.

Hoa. A merry knave, 'tis faith! I shall remember a Dutch widow the longest day of my life.

Dra. Did not I use most art to win the widow?

2 Gent. You shall pardon me for that, sir; Master Hoard knows I took her at best advantage.

Hoa. What's that, sweet gentlemen, what's that?

2 Gent. He will needs bear me down, that his art only wrought with the widow most.

Hoa. O, you did both well, gentlemen, you did both well, I thank you.

1 Gent. I was the first that mov'd her.

Hoa. You were, I'th faith.

2 Gent. But it was I that took her at the bound.

Hoa. Ay, that was you: faith, gentlemen, 'tis right.

3 Gent. I boasted least, but 'tis was I join'd their hands.

Hoa. By the mass, I think he did: you did all well,

Gentlemen, you did all well; contend no more.

1 Gent. Come, yon room's fittest.

Hoa. True, 'tis next the door.

Exeunt.

Enter Witgood, Courtesan, Host [and Drawer].

Dra. You're very welcome: please you to walk up stairs; cloth's laid, sir.

Cour. Up stairs? Troth, I am very weary, master Witgood.

Wit. Rest yourself here awhile, widow; we'll have a cup of muscadine in this little room.

Dra. A cup of muscadine? You shall have the best, sir.

Wit. But, do you hear, sirrah?

Dra. Do you call? Anon, sir.

Wit. What is there provided for dinner?

Dra. I cannot readily tell you, sir: if you please you may go into the kitchen and see [as yourself, sir,] many gentlemen of worship do use to do it, I assure you, sir.

Exit.

Host. A pretty familiar, priggish rascal; he has his part without book.

Wit. Against you are ready to drink to me, widow, I'll be present to pledge you.

Cour. Nay, I commend your care, 'tis done well of you. [Exit Witgood.] — 'Las, what have I forgot!

Host. What, mistress?

Cour. I slept my wedding ring off when I washt, and left it at my lodging. Prithie, run; I shall be mad without it. [Exit Host.] — So, he's gone. Boy!

[Enter Boy.]

Boy. Anon, forsooth.

Cour. Come hither, sirrah: learn secretly if one Master Hoard, an ancient gentleman, be about house.

Boy. I heard such a one nam'd.

Cour. Command me to him.

Re-enter Hoard and Gentlemen.

Hoa. Ay, boy, do thy commendations.

Cour. Or you come well: away, to boat, be gone.

Hoa. Thus wise men are reveng'd, give two for one.

Exeunt.

Re-enter Witgood and Vintner.

Wit. I must request

You, sir, to show extraordinary care: My uncle comes with gentlemen, his friends, And 'tis upon a making.
Vin. Is it so?
I'll give a special charge, good Master Wit-good.

May I be bold to see her?

Wit. Who? the widow? 65
With all my heart, i' faith, I'll bring you to her.

Vin. If she be a Staffordshire gentlewoman,
't is much if I know her not.

Wit. How now? Boy! drawer!

[Re-enter Host.]

Boy. Do you call, sir?

Wit. Went the gentlewoman up that was here?

Boy. Up, sir? She went out, sir.

Wit. Out, sir?

Boy. Out, sir: one Master Hoard, with a guard of gentlemen, carried her out at back door, a pretty while since, sir.

Wit. Hoard? Death and darkness! Hoard?

[Re-enter Host.]

Host. The devil of a ring I can find. 110

Wit. How now? What news? Where's the widow?

Host. My mistress! Is she not here, sir?

Wit. More madness yet!

Host. She sent me for a ring.

Wit. A plot, a plot! To boat! she's stole away.

Host. What?

Enter Lucrè, and Gentlemen.

Wit. Follow! Inquire old Hoard, my uncle's adversary.

[Exit Host.]

Luc. Nephew, what's that?

Wit. Thrice-miserable wretch!

Luc. Why, what's the matter?

Vin. The widow's borne away, sir.

Luc. Ha! passion of me! — A heavy welcome, gentlemen.

1 Gent. The widow gone?

Luc. Who durst attempt it?

Wit. Who but old Hoard, my uncle's adversary?

Luc. How?

Wit. With his confederates.

Luc. Hoard, my deadly enemy? — Gentlemen, stand to me,

I will not bear it; 'tis in hate of me;

That villain seeks my shame, nay, thirsts my blood;

He owes me mortal malice.

I'll spend my wealth on this despiteful plot,

Ere he shall cross me and my nephew thus. 125

Wit. So maliciously!

[Re-enter Host.]

Luc. How now, you treacherous rascal?

Host. That's none of my name, sir.

Wit. Poor soul, he knew not on 't!

Luc. I'm sorry, I see then 't was a mere plot.

Host. I trae'd 'em nearly —

Luc. Well?

Host. And hear for certain 131

They have took Cole-Harbour.

— The devil's sanctuary! They shall not rest; I'll pluck her from his arms —

Kind and dear gentlewomen,
If ever I had seats within your breasts —

1 Gent. No more, good sir; it is a wrong to us

To see you injur'd; in a cause so just

We'll spend our lives but we will right our friends.

Luc. Honest and kind! come we've delay'd too long;

Nephew, take comfort; a just cause is strong.

[Exeunt [all but WitGOOD]. 146

Wit. That's all my comfort, uncle. Ha, ha, ha!

Now may events fall luckily and well;

He that ne'er strives, says wit, shall ne'er excel.

[Exit.]

[Scene IV.]

Enter DAMPIT, the usurer, drunk.

Dam. When did I say my prayers? In anno 88, when the great armada was coming; and in anno 99, when the great thunder and lightning was, I pray'd heartily then, i' faith, to overthrow Poovies' new buildings; I kneeled by [see my great iron chest, I remember.

[Enter AUDREY.]

Aud. Master Dampt, one may hear you before they see you: you keep sweet hours, Master Dampt; we were all a-bed three hours ago.

Dam. Audrey?

Aud. O, you're a fine gentleman!

Dam. So I am i' faith, and a fine scholar. Do you use to go to bed so early, Audrey?

Aud. Call you this early, Master Dampt?

Dam. Why, is 't not one of clock i' th' 18 morning? Is not that early enough? Fetch me a glass of fresh beer.

Aud. Here, I have warm'd your nightcap for you, Master Dampt.

Dam. Draw it on then. I am very weak; truly: I have not eaten so much as the bulk of an egg these three days.

Aud. You have drunk the more, Master Dampt.

Dam. What's that?

Aud. You ought, an you would, Master Dampt.

Dam. I answer you, I cannot. Hold your prating; you prate too much, and understand too little: are you answered? Give me a glass of beer.

Aud. May I ask you how you do, Master Dampt?

Dam. How do I? I' faith, naught.

Aud. I ne'er knew you do otherwise.

Dam. I eat not one pen'north of bread these two years. Give me a glass of fresh beer. I am not sick, nor I am not well.

Aud. Take this warm napkin about your neck, sir, whilst I help to make you unready.

1 A room in Dampt's house.
2 Might.
3 Undress you.
Cour. You Luc. Hoa.

7stink, quean of thee foolery, thou swe r'd art pit. you akin' of him, his peaceably; you know we're sure from any act of his. Hoa. Most true. [Cour.] You may stand by and smile at his old weakness; Let me alone to answer him. Hoa. Content; 'Twill be good mirth, 't faith. How think you, gentlemen? Lam. Good gallery! Hoa. Upon calm conditions let him in. Luc. [within.] All spite and malice! Lam. Hear me, Master Lucre: So you will vow a peaceful entrance With those your friends, and only exercise Calm conference with the widow, without fury, The passage shall receive you.

Enter Lucre. [Gentlemen, and Host.]

Luc. I do vow it. Lam. Then enter and talk freely: here she stands. Luc. 0, Master Hoard, your spite has watcht the hour!

You're excellent at vengeance, Master Hoard. Hoa. Ha, ha, ha!

Luc. I am the fool you laugh at: You are wise, sir, and know the seasons well.— Come hither, widow: why is it thus? O, you have done me infinite disgrace, And your own credit no small injury! Suffer mine enemy so despitefully To hear you from my nephew? O, I had Rather half my substance had been forfeit And begg'd by some starv'd rascal! Cour. Why, what would you wish me do, sir? I must not overthrow my state for love: We have too many precedents for that; From thousands of our wealthy undone widows One may derive some wit. I do confess

ACT IV

[SCENE I.]

Enter at Cole-Harbour Hoard, the Widow, [Lamplrey, Speckcock.] and Gentlemen, he married now.

1 (Gent.) Join hearts, join hands,
In wedlock's bands,
Never to part
Till death cleave your heart.
[To Hoard.] You shall forsake all other women;

1 Cheating. 2 Fears.

[To Courtesan.] You lords, knights, gentlemen, and yeomen.

What my tongue slips
Make up with your lips.
Hoa. Give you joy, Mistress Hoard; let the kiss come about. [Knocking.]

Who knocks? Convey my little pig-eater 2 out. Luc. [within.] Hoard!

Hoa. Upon my life, my adversary, gentlemen! Luc. [within.] Hoard, open the door, or we will force it ope:

Give us the widow.

Hoa. Gentlemen, keep 'em out.

Lam. He comes upon his death that enters here. Luc. [within.] My friends, assist me!

Hoa. He has assistants, gentlemen. Lam. Tut, nor him nor them we in this action fear.

Luc. [within.] Shall I, in peace, speak one word with the widow?

Cour. Husband, and gentlemen, hear me but a word.

Hoa. Freely, sweet wife.

Cour. Let him in peaceably; you know we're sure from any act of his.

Hoa. Most true.

[Cour.] You may stand by and smile at his old weakness; Let me alone to answer him.

Hoa. Content; 'Twill be good mirth, 't faith. How think you, gentlemen? Lam. Good gallery!

Hoa. Upon calm conditions let him in.

Luc. [within.] All spite and malice!

Lam. Hear me, Master Lucre: So you will vow a peaceful entrance With those your friends, and only exercise Calm conference with the widow, without fury, The passage shall receive you.

Enter Lucre, [Gentlemen, and Host.]

Luc. I do vow it.

Lam. Then enter and talk freely: here she stands.

Luc. 0, Master Hoard, your spite has watcht the hour!

You're excellent at vengeance, Master Hoard. Hoa. Ha, ha, ha!

Luc. I am the fool you laugh at: You are wise, sir, and know the seasons well.— Come hither, widow: why is it thus? O, you have done me infinite disgrace, And your own credit no small injury! Suffer mine enemy so despitefully To hear you from my nephew? O, I had Rather half my substance had been forfeit And begg'd by some starv'd rascal! Cour. Why, what would you wish me do, sir? I must not overthrow my state for love: We have too many precedents for that; From thousands of our wealthy undone widows One may derive some wit. I do confess

3 A term of endearment.
4 Qt. give this speech to Lucre.
I lov'd your nephew, nay, I did affect him
Against the mind and liking of my friends;
Believ'd his promises; lay here in hope
Of fatter'd living, and the boast of lands.
Coming to touch his wealth and state indeed,
It appears dross; I find him not the man;
Imperfect, mean, scarce furnisht of his needs:
In words, fair lordships; in performance, hovels:
Can any woman love the thing that is not? 81
Luc. Broke you for this?
Cour. Was it not cause too much?
Send to inquire his state: most part of it
Lay two years mortgag'd in his uncle's hands.
Luc. Why, say it did, you might have known my mind:
I could have soon restor'd it.
Cour. Ay, had I but seen any such thing perform'd,
Why, 't would have tied my affection, and contain'd
Me in my first desires. Do you think, i' faith, 79
That I could twine such a dry oak as this,
Had promise in your nephew took effect?
Luc. Why, and there's no time past; and rather than
My adversary should thus thwart my hopes,
I would—
Cour. Tut, you've been ever full of golden speech:
If words were lands, your nephew would be rich.
Luc. Widow, believe 't, I vow by my best bliss,
Before these gentlemen, I will give in
The mortgage to my nephew instantly,
Before I sleep or eat.
1 Gent. [friend to LucrE.] We'll pawn our credits,
Widow, what he speaks shall be perform'd
In fulness.
Luc. Nay, more; I will estate him
In farther blessings; he shall be my heir;
I have no son;
I'll bind myself to that condition.
Cour. When I shall hear this done, I shall soon yield
To reasonable terms.
Luc. In the mean season,
Will you protest, before these gentlemen, 89
To keep yourself as you 're now at this present?
Cour. I do protest, before these gentlemen,
I will be as clear then as I am now.
Luc. I do believe you. Here's your own honest servant,
I'll take him along with me.
Cour. Ay, with all my heart.
Luc. He shall see all perform'd, and bring you word.
Cour. That's all I wait for.
Hooa. What, have you finisht, Master LucrE?
Ha, ha, ha, ha!
Luc. So laugh, Hoard, laugh at your poor enemy, do;
The wind may turn, you may be laught at too;
Yes, marry may you, sir. — Ha, ha, ha! 89
Exeunt [LucrE, Gentlemen, and Host].
Hoa. Ha, ha, ha! if every man that swells in malice

Could be reveng'd as happily as I,
He would choose hate, and forswear amity.—
What did he say, wife, prithees?
Cour. Faith, spoke to ease his mind.
Hoa. 0, 0, 0! 100
Cour. You know now, little to any purpose.
Hoa. True, true, true!
Cour. He would do mountains now.
Hoa. Ay, ay, ay, ay.
Lam. You've struck him dead, Master Hoard.
Spit. And his nephew desperate.
Hoa. I know 't sirs, I.
Never did man so crush his enemy. Exeunt. 119

[ScENs II.] 1

Enter LucrE, Gentlemen, [and Host,] meeting
Sam Freedom.

Luc. My son-in-law, Sam Freedom, where's my nephew?
Free. O man in lamentation, father.
Luc. How!
Free. He thumps his breast like a gallant dicer that has lost his double, and stands [s] in a shirt to do penance.
Luc. Alas, poor gentleman!
Free. I warrant you may hear him sigh in a still evening to your house at Highgate.
Luc. I prithee send him in.
Free. Were it to do a greater matter, I will not stick with you, sir, in regard you married my mother.
[Exit.]
Luc. Sweet gentlemen, cheer him up; I will but fetch the mortgage and return to you 15 instantly.
[Exit.
1 [Gent.] We'll do our best, sir. — See where he comes,
E'en joyless and regardless of all form.

[Enter WiTGoood.]

2 [Gent.] Why, how now, Master WiTgood?
Fie! you a firm scholar, and an understanding gentleman, and give your best parts to passion? 9
1 Gent. Come, fie fie!
Wit. O, gentlemen —
1 Gent. Sorrow of me, what a sigh was there,
sir!
Nine such widows are not worth it.
Wit. To be borne from me by that lecher, 25
Hoard! 5
1 Gent. That vengeance is your uncle's; being done
More in despite to him than wrong to you:
But we bring comfort now.
Wit. I beseech you, gentlemen — 30 2 Gent. Cheer thyself, man; there's hope of her, i' faith.
Wit. Too gladsome to be true.
Re-enter LucrE.

Luc. Nephew, what cheer?
Alas, poor gentleman, how art thou chang'd 1
1 A room in LucrE's house.
2 "O man in desperation" is the name of an old tune mentioned by Nashe and Feele.
3 Grief.
Call thy fresh blood into thy cheeks again: She comes.

Wit. Nothing afflicts me so much, 35
But that it is your adversary, uncle, And merely plotted in spite of you.

Luc. Ay, that's it made me, spites me! I'll spend my wealth ere he shall carry her so, because I know't is only to spite me. Ay, this is it. Here, nephew [giving a paper], before these kind gentlemen, I deliver in your mortgage, my promise to the widow; see, it's done. Be wise, you're once more master of your own. The widow shall perceive now you are not altogether such a beggar as the world reputes you; you can make shift to bring her to three hundred a-year, sir.

1 Gent. By'r lady, and that's no toy, sir.
Luc. A word, nephew.
1 Gent. [to Host.] Now you may certify the widow.
Luc. You must conceive it a right, nephew, now;
To do you good I am content to do this.
Wit. I know it, sir.
Luc. But your own conscience can tell I had it
Dearily enough of you.

Wit. Ay, that's most certain.
Luc. Much money laid out, beside many a journey
To fetch the rent; I hope you'll think on't, nephew.
Wit. I were worse than a beast else, i' faith.
Luc. Although to blind the widow and the world,
I out of policy don't, yet there's a conscience, nephew.
Wit. Heaven forbid else!
Luc. When you are full possesse
'Tis nothing to return it.
Wit. Alas, a thing quickly done, uncle! 35
Luc. Well said! you know I give it you but in trust.
Wit. Pray, let me understand you rightly, uncle:
You give it me but in trust?
Luc. No.
Wit. That is, you trust me with it? 70
Luc. True, true.
Wit. [Aside.] But if ever I trust you with it again,
Would I might be trust'd up for my labour!
Luc. You can all witness, gentlemen; and you, sir yeoman? 36
Host. My life for yours, sir, now, I know my mistress's mind too well toward your nephew; let things be in preparation; and I'll train her hither in most excellent fashion. 80
Exeunt
Luc. A good old boy!—Wife! Jenny! 80

Enter Wife.

Mis. L. What's the news, sir?
Luc. The wedding-day's at hand: prithee, sweet wife, express thy housewifery. Thou'rt a fine cook, I know't; thy first husband married thee out of an alderman's kitchen; go to, he rais'd thee for raising of paste. What! here's none but friends; most of our beginnings must be wink't at. — Gentlemen, I invite you all to my nephew's wedding against Thursday morning.

1 Gent. With all our hearts, and we shall joy to see Your enemy so mockt.
Luc. He laugh'd at me, gentlemen; ha, ha, ha!
Exeunt [all but Worsergood].
Wit. He has no conscience, faith, would laugh at them:
They laugh at one another;
Who then can be so cruel? Troth, not I;
I rather pity now, than ought envy.
I do conceive such joy in mine own happiness, I have no leisure yet to laugh at their follies.
Thou soul of my estate, I kiss thee! 100

[To the mortgage.]
I miss life's comfort when I miss thee.
O, never will we part again,
Until I leave the site of men!
We'll ne'er trust conscience of our kin,
Since cozenage brings that title in. 105

[Scene III.]

Enter three Creditors.

1 Cred. I'll wait these seven hours but I'll see him caught.
2 Cred. Faith, so will I.
3 Cred. Hang him, prodigal! He's stript of the widow.

1 Cred. A' my troth, she's the wiser; she has made the happier choice: and I wonder of what stuff those widows' hearts are made of, that will marry unfledg'd boys before comely thrum-chim'd 2 gentlemen.

Enter Boy.

Boy. News, news, news!
1 Cred. What, boy?
Boy. The rioter is caught.
1 Cred. So, so, so! it warms me at the heart:
I love a life to see dogs upon men.
O, here he comes.

Enter WITGOOD, with Sergeants.

Wit. My last joy was so great, it took away the sense of all future afflictions. What a day is here o'ereast! How soon a black tempest rises:
1 Cred. O, we may speak with you now, sir! What's become of your rich widow? I think you may cast your cap at the widow, may you not, sir? 2 Cred. He a rich widow? Who, a prodigal, a daily rioter, and a nightly vomiter? He a widow of account? He a hole i' th' Counter.
Wit. You do well, my masters, to tyrannise over misery, to afflict the afflicted; 3 it is a custom you have here amongst you; I would wish you never leave it, and I hope you'll do as I bid you.

1 A street.
2 Rough-chinned. "Thrum" is the end of the warp in weaving.
3 A debtors' prison.
A TRICK TO CATCH THE OLD ONE

1 Cred. Come, come, sir, what say you extempore now to your bill of a hundred pound? A sweet debt for frothing your doubles?
2 Cred. Here's mine of forty.
3 Cred. Here's mine of fifty.
Wit. Pray, sirs, — you'll give me breath?
1 Cred. No, sir, we'll keep you out of breath still; then we shall be sure you will not run away from us.
Wit. Will you but hear me speak?
2 Cred. You shall pardon us for that, sir; we know you have too fair a tongue of your own; you overcame us too lately, a shame take you! We are like to lose all that for want of wit—neteries; we dealt in policy then: always when we strive to be most politic we prove most coxcombs: non plus ultra I perceive by us, we're not ordain'd to thrive by wisdom, and therefore we must be content to be tradesmen.
Wit. Give me but reasonable time, and I protest I'll make you ample satisfaction.
1 Cred. Do you talk of reasonable time to us?
Wit. 'Tis true, beasts know no reasonable time.
2 Cred. We must have either money or carcass.
Wit. Alas, what good will my carcass do you?
3 Cred. O, 'tis a secret delight we have amongst us! We that are us'd to keep birds in cages, have the heart to keep men in prison, I warrant you.
Wit. [Aside.] I perceive I must crave a little more aid from my wits: do but make shift for me this once, and I'll forswear ever to trouble you in the like fashion hereafter; I'll have better employment for you, an I live. — You'll give me leave, my masters, to make trial of my friends, and raise all means I can?
1 Cred. That's our desires, sir.

[Enter Host.]

Host. Master Witgood.
Wit. O, art thou come?
Host. May I speak one word with you in private, sir?
Wit. No, by my faith, cast thou; I am in hell here, and the devils will not let me come to thee.
1 Cred. Do you call us devils? You shall find us puritans. — Bear him away; let 'em talk as they go: we'll not stand to hear 'em. — Ah, sir, am I a devil? I shall think the better of myself as long as I live: a devil, i' faith!

[Scene IV.]

[Enter Hoard.]

Hoa. What a sweet blessing hast thou, Master Hoard, above a multitude! Wilt thou never be thankful? How dost thou think to be blest another time? Or dost thou count this the full measure of thy happiness? By my troth, I think thou dost: not only a wife large in possess—shall have all our sports within ourselves; all the gentlemen a' th'country shall be beholding to us and our pastimes.

_Ful._ And we'll make your worship admire,
sir.

_Hoa._ Sayest thou so? Do but make me admire, and thou shall want for nothing.—My tailor.

_Tai._ Anon, sir.

_Hoa._ Go presently in hand with the liveries.

_Tai._ I will, sir.

_Hoa._ My barber.

_Bar._ Here, sir.

_Hoa._ Make 'em all trim fellows, base 'em well,—especially my huntsman,—and cut all their beards of the Polonian fashion.—My perfumer.

_Per._ Under your nose, sir.

_Hoa._ Cast a better savour upon the knaves,
to take away the scent of my tailor's feet,
and my barber's lotium-water.

_Per._ It shall be carefully perform'd, sir.

_Hoa._ But you, my falconer and huntsman, thou wilt keep 'em alive, I'faith!

_Hunt._ And we'll show you that, sir, shall deserve your worship's favour.

_Hoa._ I prithee, show me that. —Go, you knaves all, and wash your lungs i' th' buttery, go. [Exit Tailor, Barber, &c.] —By th' mass, and well remember'd! I'll ask my wife that question.—Wife, Mistress Jane Hoard!

_Enter Courtesan, alter'd in apparel._

_Cour._ Sir, would you with me?

_Hoa._ I would but know, sweet wife, which might stand best to th' liking, to have the wedding dinner kept here or i' th' country?

_Cour._ Hum:—faith, sir, 'twould like me better here; here you were married, here let all rites be ended.

_Hoa._ Could a marguessa give a better answer? Hoard, bear thy head aloft, thou'st a wife will advance it.

Enter Host with a letter.

What haste comes here now? Yeaa, a letter?
Some dreg of my adversary's malice, Come hither; what's the news?

_Host._ A thing that concerns my mistress, sir.

_Giving a letter to Courtesan._

_Hoa._ Why then it concerns me, knave.

_Hoa._ Ay, and you, knave, too (cry your worship mercy). You are both like to come into trouble, I promise you, sir; a pre-contract.

_Hoa._ How? a pre-contract, sayest thou? I

_Host._ I fear they have too much proof on 't, sir: old Lucre, he runs mad up and down, and will to law as fast as he can; young Witgood bathed on by his creditors, he exclaims 'I upon you a' other side, says you have wrought his undoing by the injurious detaining of his contract.

_Hoa._ Body a' me!

1 Marchioness.
2 A pre-contract of marriage could not be set aside without the mutual consent of the parties. (Bullen.)

Host. He will have utmost satisfaction;
The law shall give him recompense, he says.

_Cour._ [Aside.] Alas, his creditors so merciless! my state being yet uncertain, I deem it not unconsiderable to further him.

_Host._ True, sir.

_Hoa._ Wife, what says that letter? Let me construe it.

_Cour._ Curst be my rash and unadvised words!

_[Tears the letter and stamps on it._

I'll set my foot upon my tongue,
And break my inconsiderate grant to dust.

_Hoa._ Wife.—

_Host._ [Aside.] A pretty shift, i' faith! I commend a woman when she can make away a letter from her husband handsomely, and this was cleanly done, by my troth.

_Cour._ I did, sir;

Some foolish words I must confess did pass,
Which now litigiously he fastens on me.

_Hoa._ Of what force? Let me examine 'em.

_Cour._ Too strong, I fear: I would be well fread of him.

_Hoa._ Shall I compound?

_Cour._ No, sir, I'd have it done some nobler
way
Of your side; I'd have you come off with honour;
Let baseness keep with them. Why, have you not
The means, sir? The occasion's offer'd you.

_Hoa._ Where, how, dear wife?

_Cour._ He is now caught by his creditors; the slave's needy; his debts petty; he'll rather bind himself to all inconveniences than rot in prison; by this only means you may get a release from him. 'Tis not yet come to his uncle's hearing;
send speedily for the creditors; by this time he's desperate; he'll set his hand to anything: take order for his debts, or discharge
'em quite: a pax on him, let's be rid of a rascal!

_Hoa._ Excellent!

Thou dost astonish me.—Go, run, make haste;
Bring both the creditors and Witgood hither.

_Host._ [Aside.] This will be some revenge yet.

_[Exit._

_Hoa._ In the mean space I'll have a release drawn—

Within there!

_[Enter Servant._

[Ser.] Sir?

_Hoa._ Sirrah, come take directions; go to my servivener;

_Cour._ [Aside, while Hoard gives directions to the Servant.] I'm yet like those whose riches lie in dreams,

If I be waked, they're false; such is my fate,
Who venture deeper than the desperate state.
Though I have sinn'd, yet could I become new,
For where I once vow, I am ever true.

_Hoa._ Away, despatch, on my displeasure, quickly.

_[Exit Servant._

Happy occasion! pray Heaven he be in the right vein now to set his hand to 't, that nothing alter him; grant that all his follies may meet in him at once, to besot him enough! I pray for him, i' faith, and here he comes.
[Enter Witgood and Creditors.]

Wit. What would you with me now, my uncle's spiteful adversary?

Hoa. Nay, I am friends.

Wit. Ay, when your mischief's spent.

Hoa. I heard you were arrested.

Wit. Well, what then?

You will pay none of my debts, I am sure.

Hoa. A wise man cannot tell; there may be those conditions 'greed upon making me to do much.

Wit.

'Tis thou, perjured woman! (O, no name Is vile enough to match thy treachery!)

That art the cause of my confusion.

Cour. Out, you penurious slave!

Hoa. Nay, wife, you are too froward; let him alone; give losers leave to talk.

Wit. Shall I remember thee of another promise?

Cour. I'ld fain know that.

Wit. 'T would call shame to thy cheeks.

Shame!

Cour. Hark in your ear. — [They converse apart.]

Will he come off, think'st thou, and pay my debts roundly?

Cour. Doubt nothing; there's a release a-drawing and all, to which you must set your hand.

Wit. Excellent!

Cour. But methinks, i' faith, you might have made some shift to discharge this yourself, having in the mortgage, and never have burnd my conscience with it.

Wit. A' my troth, I could not, for my creditors' cruelties extend to the present.

Cour. No more. — Why, do you worst for that, I defy you.

Wit. You 'reimpudent: I'll call up witnesses.

Cour. Call up thy wits, for thou hast been devoted

To follies a long time.

Hoa. Wife, you're too bitter.—Master Witgood, and you, my masters, you shall hear a mild speech come from me now, and [as this it is: 't has been my fortune, gentlemen, to have an extraordinary blessing poured upon me a' late, and here she stands; I have wedded her, and bedded her, and yet she is little the worse. Some foolish words she hath past to you in the country, and some peevish debts you [as owe here in the city; set the hare's head to the goose-giblet, release you her of her words, and I'll release you of your debts, sir.

Wit. Would you so? I thank you for that, sir; I cannot blame you, i' faith.

Hoa. Why, are not debts better than words, sir?

Wit. Are not words promises, and are not promises debts, sir?

Hoa. [Aside.] He plays at back-racket 3 with me.

1 Trifling.
2 A proverbial phrase.
3 A return in tennis; a tu quoque.
In Holborn some, in Fleet Street some,
Where'er he come there's some, there's some.

Dam. Trathe, trahite, draw the curtain; give me a sip of sack more.

[While he drinks,] enter Gentlemen, [LAMPREY and SPICHCOCK.]

Lam. Look you; did not I tell you he lay like the devil in chains, when he was bound for a thousand years?

Spi. But I think the devil had no steel to bedastaffs; he goes beyond him for that.

Lam. Nay, but mark the conceit of his drinking; one must wipe his mouth for him with a muckkinder,2 do you see, sir?

Spi. Is this the sick trampler? Why, he is only bed-ridden with drinking.

Lam. True, sir. He spies us.

Dam. What, Sir Tristram? You come and see a weak man here, a very weak man.

Lam. If you be weak in body, you should be strong in prayer, sir.

Dam. O, I have prayed too much, poor man!
Lam. There's a taste of his soul for you!

Spi. Faugh, loathsome!
Lam. I come to borrow a hundred pound2 of you, sir.

Dam. Alas, you come at an ill time! I cannot spare it; faith, I ha' but two thousand 'th
house.

Aud. Ha, ha, ha!

Dam. Out, you germain, a quean, the multipo-pt of villany, the spinner of conciviscupancy.

Enter [SIR LAUNCELOT and other Gentlemen.

Sir L. Yea, gentlemen, are you here before us? How is he now?

Lam. Faith, the same man still: the tav-ten em birch has bit him 't the head.4

Sir L. We shall have the better sport with him: peace. — And how cheers Master Dampit
now?

Dam. O, my bosom, Sir Launcelot, how cheer
I? Thy presence is restorative.

Sir L. But I hear a great complaint of you,
Master Dampit, among gallants.

Dam. I am glad of that, i't faith: prithee, what?

Sir L. They say you are wax'd proud a' late, and if a friend visit you in the afternoon, you'll scarce know him.

Dam. fie, fie; proud? I cannot remember any such thing: sure I was drunk then.

Sir L. Think you so, sir?

Dam. There 't was, i't faith; nothing but the pride of the sack; and so certify 'em. — Fetch sack, sirrah.

Boy. A vengeance sack you once!

[Exit, and returns presently with sack.]

Aud. Why, Master Dampit, if you hold on as you begin, and lie a little longer, you need

2 Handkerchief.
3 As before, Dampit's words must be interpreted by the context.
4 I. e. he is drunk.
not take care how to dispose your wealth; you'll make the vintner your heir. 59
Dam. Out, you babbling, you unfeathered enamoured quack, you oullasime of scabiosity!
Aud. Good words, Master Dampit, to speak before a maid and a virgin!
Dam. Hang thy virginity upon the pole of carnality!
Aud. Sweet terms! My mistress shall know
'em.
Lam. Note but the misery of this warring slave: here he lies, like a noisome dunghill, full of the poison of his drunken blasphemies; 170 and they to whom he bequeaths all, grudge him the very meat that feeds him, the very pillow that eases him. Here may a usurer behold his end. What profits it to be a slave in this world, and a devil i' th' next?
Dam. Sir Launcelot, let me buss thee, Sir Launcelot; thou art the only friend that I honour and respect.
Sir L. I thank you for that, Master Dampit.
Dam. Farewell, my bosom Sir Launcelot.
Sir L. Gentlemen, an you love me, let me step behind you, and one of you fall a-talking of me to him.
Lam. Content.—Master Dampit—
Dam. So, sir.
Lam. Here came Sir Launcelot to see you
'c'm now.
Dam. Hang him, rascal!
Lam. Who? Sir Launcelot?
Dam. Pythagorical rascal!
Lam. Pythagorical?
Dam. Ay, he changes his cloak when he meets a sergeant.
Sir L. What a rogue's this!
Lam. I wonder you can rait at him, sir; [55
he comes in love to see you.
Dam. A house for his love! his father was a comb-maker: I have no need of his crawling love. He comes to have longer day, 2 the superlative rascal! 100
Sir L. 'Sfoot, I can no longer endure the rascal!—Master Dampit, I come to take my leave once again, sir.
Dam. Who? my dear and kind Sir Laun-celot, the only gentleman of England? Let me hug thee; farewell, and a thousand.
Lam. Compos'd of wrongs and slavish flatteries!
Sir L. Nay, gentlemen, he shall show you more tricks yet; I'll give you another taste [59 of him.
Lam. Is't possible?
Sir L. His memory is upon departing.
Dam. Another cup of sack!
Sir L. Mass, then it will be quite gone! Before he drink that, tell him there's a country client come up, and here attends for his learned advice.
Dam. Enough.
One cup more, and then let the bell [520 toll: I hope I shall be weak enough by that time.
Lam. Master Dampit—
Dam. Is the sack spouting?
Lam. The coming forward, sir. Here's a countryman, a client of yours, waits for deep and profound advice, sir.
Dam. A coxcomb, where is he? Let our approach: set me up a peg higher.
Lam. [to Sir Laun.] You must draw
sir.
Dam. Now, good man fooliamy, what do you to me now?
Sir L. Please your good worship, I am man, sir.
Dam. What make you in my chamber?
Sir L. I would entreat your worship's vice in a just and honest case, sir.
Dam. I meddle with no such matters
'c'm to Master No-man's office.
Sir L. I had but one house left me in this world, sir, which was my father's, my grandfather's, and my villain has unjustly wrung me out, and taken possession on't.
Dam. Has he such feats? Thy best con-to bring thy actions before the law.
Sir L. Alas, an't please your worship, small friends and less money!
Dam. Hoyday! this gear will fadge
Hast no money? Why, then, my advi-our house, and so go out.
Lam. That will break strike, indeed.
Sir L. I thank your worship for your counsel, sir.—Alter ing but my voice a bit, you see he knew me not: you may obser-vise, that a drunkard's memory holds lower than the voice of the person. But, gent-men, shall I show you a sight? Behold the dive-dapper 3 of damnation, Gulf the for his time worse than th'other.

Enter Hoard with Gulp.
Lam. What's he comes with him?
Sir L. Why, Hoard, that married late the Widow Medler.
Lam. O, I cry you mercy, sir.
Hoa. Now, gentlemen visitors, how Master Dampit?
Sir L. Faith, here he lies, e'en drawing sir, good canary as fast as he can, sir; a wea creature, truly, he is almost past ory.
Hoa. Fie, Master Dampit! you lie a-bed here, and I come to invite you to my wedding-dinner: up, up, up!
Dam. Who's this? Master Hoard? hast thou married, in the name of foolery?
Hoa. A rich widow.
Dam. A Dutch widow? 6
Hoa. A rich widow; one Widow Medl
Dam. Medler? She keeps open house.
Hoa. She did, I can tell you, in her first husband's days: open house for all com-horse and man was welcome, and room enough for 'em all. 188

Dam. There's too much for thee, then; thou mayst let out some to thy neighbours.

Gulf. What, hung alive in chains? O spectacle! bed-staffs of steel? O monstrum horridum, informe, ingenio, cut lumen ademptum! O Dam, Dam, Dam! there's a just judgment shown upon usury, extortion, and trampling-villany!

Sir L. This is excellent, thief rails upon 186 the thief!

Gulf. Is this the end of cut-throat usury, brothel, and blasphemy? Now mayst thou see what race a usurer runs.

Dam. Why, thou rogue of universality, do not I know thee? Thy sound is like the cuckoo, the Welsh ambassador; 2 thou cowardly slave, that offers to fight with a sick man when his weapon's down! Rail upon me in my naked bed? Why, thou great Lucifer's little vicar! I am not so weak but I know a knave at first sight. Thou inconceivable rascal! thou that goest upon Middlesex juries, and wilt make haste to give up thy verdict because thou wilt not lose thy dinner! Are you answered?

Gulf. An't were not for shame—

[Draws his dagger.]

Dam. Thou wouldst be hang'd then.

Lam. Nay, you must exercise patience. Master Gulf, always in a sick man's chamber. 215

Sir L. He'll quarrel with none, I warrant you, but those that are bed-rid.

Dam. Let him come, gentlemen, I am arm'd: reach my close-stool hither.

Sir L. Here will be a sweet fray anon: 226 I'll leave you, gentlemen.

Lam. Nay, we'll go along with you.—Master Gulf—

Gulf. Hang him, usuring rascal!

Sir L. Fish, set your strength to his, your wit to his!

Aud. Pray, gentlemen, depart; his hour's come upon him.—Sleep in my bosom, sleep.

Sir L. Nay, we have enough of him, I' faith; keep him for the house.

Now make your best:

For thrice his wealth I would not have his breast.

Gulf. A little thing would make me beat him now he's asleep.

Sir L. Mass, then 'twill be a pitiful day 232 when he waketh: I would be loath to see that day: come.

Gulf. You overrule me, gentlemen, I' faith.

[Exeunt.]

ACT V

[SCENE I.] 4

Enter Lucius Witgood.

Wit. Nay, uncle, let me prevail with you so much; I' faith, go, now he has invited you.

1 Virg. Aen. iii. 688.
2 So named, Nares conjectures, from the bird's migrating from the west.
3 I. e. Naked in bed. 4 A room in Lucius's house.

Luc. I shall have great joy there when he has borne away the widow

Wit. Why, la, I thought where I should find you presently. Uncle, a' my troth, 'tis nothing so.

Luc. What's nothing so, sir? Is not he married to the widow?

Wit. No, by my troth, is he not, uncle. 10

Luc. How?

Wit. Will you have the truth on't? He is married to a whore, i' faith.

Luc. I should laugh at that.

Wit. Uncle, let me perish in your favour if you find it not so; and that 'tis I that have married the honest woman.

Luc. Ha! I'd walk ten mile a foot to see that, i' faith.

Wit. And see you shall, or I'll ne'er see you again.

Luc. A quean, i' faith? Ha, ha, ha! [Exeunt.]

[SCENE II.] 5

Enter Hoard, tasting wine. Host following in a livery cloak.

Hoa. Pup, pup, pup, pup, pup, I like not this wine: is there never a better tice in the house?

Host. Yes, sir, there are as good tierces in the house as any are in England. 6

Hoa. Desire your mistress, you know, to taste 'em all over: she has best skill.

Host. [Aside.] Has she so? The better for her, and the worse for you.

Exit. 10

Hoa. Arthur!

[Enter Arthur.]

Is the cupboard of plate set out?

Arth. All's in order, sir. 11

[Exit.]

Hoa. I am in love with my liveries every time I think on 'em; they make a gallant show, by my troth. Niece! 12

[Enter Joyce.]

Joyce. Do you call, sir?

Hoa. Prithee, show a little diligence, and overlook the knaves a little; they'll filch and steal to-day, and send whole pasties home to their wives; an thou be'st a good niece, do not see me purloin'd.

Joyce. Fear it not, sir.—[Aside.] I have cause: though the feast be prepared for you, yet it serves fit for my wedding-dinner too. [Exit.]

Enter two Gentlemen [LAMPREY and SPIECHcooke].

Hoa. Master Lamprey and Master Spichcooke, two the most welcome gentlemen alive! Your fathers and mine were all free a' th' fishmongers. 6

Lam. They are indeed, sir. You see bold guests, sir; soon entreated.

Hoa. And that's best, sir. 30

6 A room in Hoard's house.
5 Members of the Fishmongers' Company.
[Enter Servant.]

How now, sirrah?
Ser. There's a coach come to th' door, sir.

[Exit.]

Hoa. My Lady Foxtone, a' my life! — Mistress Jane Hoard! wife! — Mass,'tis her lady.—[Enter Lady Foxtone.] ship indeed!

Madam, you are welcome to an unfurnisht house, deearth of cheer, scarcity of attendance. L. Fox. You are pleas'd to make the worst, sir.

Hoa. Wife!

[Enter Courtesan.]

L. Fox. Is this your wife?
Hoa. Yes, madam. — Salute my Lady Foxtone.
Cour. Please you, madam, awhile to taste [6] the air in the garden.
L. Fox. 'Twill please us well.

[Exit.]

Hoa. Who would not wed? The most delicious life!
No joys are like the comforts of a wife.

Lam. So we bachelors think, that are not troubled with them.

[Re-enter Servant.]

Ser. Your worship's brother, with other ancient gentlemen, are newly alighted, sir. [Exit.]
Hoa. Master Onesiphorus Hoard? Why, now our company begins to come in.

[Enter Onesiphorus Hoard, Limber, and Kix.]

My dear and kind brother, welcome, i' faith.
O. Hoa. You see we are men at an hour, brother.
Hoa. Ay, I'll say that for you, brother; you keep as good an hour to come to a feast as [6] any gentleman in the shire. — What, old Master Limber and Master Kix! Do we meet, i' faith, jolly gentlemen?
Lim. We hope you lack guests, sir?
Hoa. O, welcome, welcome! We lack still such guests as your worship.
O. Hoa. Ah, sirrah brother, have you catched up Widow Medler?
Hoa. From 'em all, brother; and I may tell you I had mighty enemies, those that stuck [to] sore; old Lucre is a sore fox, I can tell you, brother.
O. Hoa. Where is she? I'll go seek her out;
I long to have a smack at her lips.
Hoa. And most wishfully, 1 brother, see where she comes.

[Re-enter Courtesan and Lady Foxtone.]

Give her a smack now we may hear it all the house over. (Courtesan and O. Hoard turn back.)
Cour. O Heaven, I am 'betray'd! I know that face.

Just on your wish.

[Enter Hoard, Witgood, and Joyce.]

Hoa. Ha, ha, ha! why, how now? Are you both asham'd? — Come, gentlemen, we'll look another way.
O. Hoa. Nay, brother, hark you: come, you're dispos'd to be merry.
Hoa. Why do we meet else, man?
O. Hoa. That's another matter: I was ne'er so 'fraid in my life but that you had been in earnest.
Hoa. How mean you, brother?
O. Hoa. You said she was your wife.
Hoa. Did I so? By my troth, and so she is.
O. Hoa. By your troth, brother?
Hoa. What reason have I to dissemble [6] with my friends, brother? If marriage can make her mine, she is mine. Why —
O. Hoa. Troth, I am not well of a sudden. I must crave pardon, brother; I came to see you, but I cannot stay dinner, i' faith.
Hoa. I hope you will not serve me so, brother?
Lim. By your leave, Master Hoard —
Hoa. What now? what now? Pray, gentlemen, had you were wont to show yourselves wise men.
Lim. But you have shown your folly too much here.

Hoa. How?
Kix. Fie, fie! a man of your repute and name!
You'll feast your friends, but cloy 'em first with shame.
Hoa. This grows too deep; pray, let us reach the sense.
Lim. In your old age dote on a courtesan!
Hoa. Ha!
Kix. Marry a strumpet!
Hoa. Gentlemen!
O. Hoa. And Witgood's queen!
Hoa. O! nor lands nor living?
O Hoa. Living!
Hoa. [to Courtesan.] Speak.
Cour. Alas, you know, at first, sir,
I told you I had nothing!
Hoa. Out, out! I am cheated; infinitely co-zoned!

Lim. Nay, Master Hoard —

Enter Lucre, Witgood, [and Joyce.]

Hoa. A Dutch widow! a Dutch widow! a Dutch widow!
Luc. Why, nephew, shall I trace thee still a liar?
Wit. Make me mad? Is not you thing the widow?
Lim. Why, la, you are so hard a' belief, uncle!

By my troth, she's a whore.
Luc. Then thou'rt a knave.

Wit. Negatur argumentum, uncle.
Luc. Probo tibi, nephew: he that knows a woman to be a quean must needs be a knave; thou sayst thou knowest her to be one; ergo, if she be a quean, thou'rt a knave.

Wit. Negatur sequela majoris, uncle; he that knows a woman to be a quean must needs be a knave; I deny that.
Hoa. Lucre and Witgood, you're both villains; get you out of my house!

Luc. Why, didst not invite me to thy wedding-dinner?

Wit. And are not you and I sworn perpetual friends before witness, sir, and were both drunk upon 't?

Hoa. Daintily abus'd! You've put a junt upon me!

Luc. Ha, ha, ha!

Hoa. A common strumpet!

Wit. Nay, now You wrong her, sir; if I were she, I'd have The law on you for that; I 'dust depose for her.

She ne'er had common use nor common thought.

Cour. Despise me, publish me, I am your wife;

What shame can I have now but you'll have part?

If in disgrace you share, I sought not you;

You pursued, nay, forc'd me; had I friends would follow it,

Less than your action has been prov'd a rape.

O. Hoa. Brother!

Cour. Nor did I ever boast of lands unto you,

Money, or goods; I took a plainer course, And told you true, I 'd nothing:

If error were committed, 't was by you;

Thank your own folly. Nor has my sin been So odious, but worse has been forgiven;

Nor am I so deform'd, but I may challenge The utmost power of any old man's love.

She that tastes not sin before, twenty to one but she'll taste it after: most of you old men are content to marry young virgins, and take that which follows; where, marrying one of us, you both save a sinner and are quit from a cuckold for ever:

And more, in brief, let this your best thoughts win,

She that knows sin, knows best how to hate sin.

Hoa. Curst be all malice! black are the fruits of spite,

And poison first their owners. O, my friends, I must embrace shame, to be rid of shame!

Conceal'd disgrace prevents a public name.

Ah, Witgood! ah, Theodorus!

Wit. Alas, sir, I was prick'd in conscience to see her well bestowed, and where could I bestow her better than upon your pitiful worship? Excepting but myself, I dare swear she's a virgin; and now, by marrying your niece, I have banish'd myself for ever from her. She's mine aunt now, by my faith, and there's no meddling with mine aunt, you know: a sin against my uncle.

Cour. Lo, gentlemen, before you all

[AM.]

In true reclaimed form I fall.
Henceforth for ever I defy
The glances of a sinful eye,
Waving of fans (which some suppose Tricks of fancy 2), treading of toes,
Wringing of fingers, biting the lip,
The wanton gait, th' alluring trip;
All secret friends and private meetings,
Close-borne letters and bawds' greetings;
Reigning excuse to women's labours
When we are sent for to th' next neighbour's;
Taking false physic, and ne'er start
To be let blood though sign 4 be at heart;
Removing chambers, shifting beds,
To welcome friends in husbands' steads,
Them to enjoy, and you to marry,
They first serv'd, while you must tarry,
They to spend, and you to gather,
They to get, and you to father:
These, and thousand, thousand more,
New reclaim'd, I now abhor.

Luc. [to Witgood.] Ah, here's a lesson, rioter, for you!

Wit. I must confess my follies; I'll down too:
And here for ever I disdain
The cause of youth's undoing, game,
Chiefly dice, those true outlanders,
That shake out beggars, thieves, and panders;
Soul-wasting surfeits, sinful riots,
Queens' evils, doctors' diets,
'Pothecaries' drugs, surgeons' glisters;
Stabbing of arms, for a common mistress;
Riband favours, ribald speeches;
Dear perfume'd jackets, penniless breeches;
Dutch fladragons, healths in urine;
Drabs that keep a man too sure in:
I do defy you all.
Lend me each honest hand, for here I rise
A reclaim'd man, loathing the general vice.

Hoa. So, so, all friends! the wedding-dinner cools:

Who seem most crafty prove oftimes most fools.

[Exeunt.]

ACT I

[SCENE I.] 1

Enter ALSIMERO.

Als. 'Twas in the temple where I first beheld her,
And now again the same: what omen yet
Follows of that? None but imaginary;
Why should my hopes or fate be timorous?
The place is holy, so is my intent:
I love her beauties to the holy purpose;
And that, methinks, admits comparison
With man's first creation, the place blessed,
And is his right home back, if he achieve it.
The church hath first begun our interview,
And that's the place must join us into one;
So there's beginning and perfection too.

Enter Jasperino.

Jas. O sir, are you here? Come, the wind's fair with you;
You're like to have a swift and pleasant passage.

Als. Sure, you're deceived, friend; 'tis contrary,
In my best judgment.

Jas. What, for Malta?
If you could buy a gale amongst the witches,
They could not serve you such a lucky penny-worth
As comes a' God's name.

Als. Even now I observ'd
The temple's vane to turn full in my face;
I know it is against me.

Jas. Against you?

Als. Then you know not where you are.

Jas. Are you not well, sir?

Als. Yes, Jasperino,

1 A street. 2 Q. blest. 3 Cf. Macbeth, I. iii.

Unless there be some hidden malady
Within me, that I understand not.

Jas. And that
I begin to doubt, sir, I never knew
Your inclinations to Travels at a pause
With any cause to hinder it, till now.
Ashore you were wont to call your servants up,
And help to trap your horses for the speed;
At sea I've seen you weigh the anchor with 'em,
Hoist sails for fear to lose the foremost breath,
Be in continual prayers for fair winds;
And have you chang'd your orisons?

Als. No, friend;
I keep the same church, same devotion.

Jas. Lover I'm sure you're none; the stoic was Found in you long ago; your mother nor Best friends, who have set stores of beauty, ay,
And choice ones too, could never trap you that way.

What might be the cause?

Als. Lord, how violent Thou art! I was but meditating of Somewhat I heard within the temple.

Jas. Is this
Violence? 'Tis but idleness compar'd
With your haste yesterday.

Als. I'm all this while
A-going, man.

Enter servants.

1 Ser. The seamen call; shall we board your trunks?

Als. No, not to-day.

Jas. 'T is the critical day, it seems, and the sign in Aquarius.

2 Ser. We must not to sea to-day; this smoke will bring forth fire.

Als. Keep all on shore; I do not know the end,
Enter BEATRICE, DIAPHANTA, and Servants
[ALSEMERO accosts BEATRICE and then kisses her].

Jas. [Aside.] How now? The laws of the Medes are chang'd sure; salute a woman! He kisses too; wonderful! Where learnt he this? and does it perfectly too. In my conscience, he ne'er rehearsed it before. Nay, go on; this will be stranger and better news at Valencia than if he had ransom'd half Greece from the Turk.

Beat. You are a scholar, sir?

Als. A weak one, lady.

Beat. Which of the sciences is this love you speak of?

Als. From your tongue I take it to be music.

Beat. You're skilful in it, can sing at first sight.

Als. And I have show'd you all my skill at once;

I want more words to express me further,
And must be forc'd to repetition;
I love you dearly.

Beat. Be better advis'd, sir: Our eyes are sentinels unto our judgments, and should give certain judgment what they see;

But they are rash sometimes, and tell us wonders
Of common things, which when our judgments find,
They can then check the eyes, and call them blind.

Als. But I am further, lady; yesterday Was mine eyes' employment, and hither now They brought my judgment, where are both agreed.

Both houses then consenting, 'tis agreed; Only there waits the confirmation
By the hand royal; that's your part, lady.

Beat. Oh, there's one above me, sir.—[Aside.]

For five days past
To be recall'd! Sure mine eyes were mistaken;
This was the man was meant. That he should come
So near his time, and miss it!

Jas. We might have come by the carriers from Valencia, I see, and sav'd all our provision; we are at farthest sure. Methinks I should do something too;
I meant to be a venturer in this voyage.
Yonder's another vessel, I'll board her;
If she be lawful prize, down goes her topsail.

[Accosts DIAPHANTA.]

Enter DE FLORES.

De F. Lady, your father.

Beat. Is in health, I hope.

De F. Your eye shall instantly instruct you, lady;

He's coming hitherward.

Beat. What needed then
Your duteous preface? I had rather
He had come unexpect'd; you must stall
A good presence with unnecessary blabbing;
And how welcome for your part you are,
I'm sure you know.

De F. [Aside.] Will 't never mend, this storm.

One side nor other? Must I be enjoin'd
To follow still whilst she flies from me? Well, Fates, do your worst, I'll please myself with sight
Of her at all opportunities,
If but to spite her anger. I know she had Rather see me dead than living; and yet She knows no cause for 't but a peevish will.

Als. You seem'd displeas'd, lady, on the sudden.

Beat. Your pardon, sir, 'tis my infirmity; Nor can I other reason render you Than his or hers, of some particular thing They must abandon as a deadly poison, Which to a thousand other tastes were wholesome;
Such to mine eyes is that same fellow there, The same that report speaks of the basilisk.

Als. This is a frequent frailty in our nature; There's scarce a man amongst a thousand found
But hath his imperfection: one distastes The scent of roses, which to infinities Most pleasing is and odoriferous; One oil, the enemy of poison;
Another wine, the cheerer of the heart And lively refresher of the countenance. Indeed this fault, if so it be, is general; There's scarce a thing but is both lov'd and loath'd:
Myself, I must confess, have the same frailty.

Beat. And what may be your poison, sir? I'm bold with you.

Als. What might be your desire, perhaps; a cherry.

Beat. I am no enemy to any creature My memory has, but you gentleman.

Als. He does ill to tempt your sight, if he knew it.

Beat. He cannot be ignorant of that, sir, I have not spar'd to tell him so; and I want To help myself, since he's a gentleman In good respect with my father, and follows him.

Als. He's out of his place then now.

[They talk apart.]

Jas. I am a mad wag, wench.

Dia. So methinks; but for your comfort, I can tell you, we have a doctor in the city that undertakes the cure of such.

Jas. Tush, I know what physic is best for the state of mine own body.

Dia. 'Tis scarce a well-govern'd state, I believe.

Jas. I could show thee such a thing with an ingredient that we two would compound to—

1 Forestall. Mod. edd. stale. 2 Q. or. 3 A fabulous animal said to kill with a glance. 4 Q. And what.
Enter VERMAMERO and Servants.

Beat. My father, sir.

Ver. O Joanna, I came to meet thee.

Your devotion's ended.

Beat. For this time, sir. — [Aside.] I shall change my saint, I fear me; I find

A giddy turning in me. — Sir, this while

I am beholding to this gentleman,

Who left his own way to keep me company,

And in discourse I find him much desirous

To see your castle. He hath desired it, sir,

If ye please to grant it.

Ver. With all my heart, sir.

Yet there's an article between; I must know

Your country; we use not to give survey

Of our chief strengths to strangers; our citadels

Are plac'd conspicuous to outward view,

On promontories, tops, but within our secrets.

Als. A Valencian, sir.

Ver. A Valencian? That's native, sir. Of what name, I beseech you?

Als. Alsemero, sir.

Ver. Alsemero? Not the son

Of John de Alsemero?

Als. The same, sir.

Ver. My best love bids you welcome.

Beat. He was wont

To call me so, and then he speaks a most

Unfeign'd truth.

Ver. O sir, I knew your father;

We two were in acquaintance long ago,

Before our chins were worth inlaid down,

And so continued till the stamp of time

Had coin'd us into silver. Well, he's gone;

A good soldier went with him.

Als. You went together in that, sir.

Ver. No, by Saint Jacques, I came behind him;

Yet I've done somewhat too: an unhappy day

Swallowed him at last at Gibraltar,

In fight with those rebellious Hollanders.

Was it not so?

Als. Whose death I had reveng'd,

Or followed him in fate, had not the late league

Prevented me.

Ver. Ay, ay, 'twas time to breathe. —

O Joanna, I should ha' told thee news;

I saw Pirataco lately.

Beat. [Aside.] That's ill news.

Als. Promontories. A coinage from the Greek, meaning the first growth of the beard.

Ver. He's hot preparing for this day of triumph:

Thou must be a bride within this sevensight.

Als. [Aside.] Ha!

Beat. Nay, good sir, be not so violent; with speed

I cannot render satisfaction

Unto the dear companion of my soul,

Virginity, whom I thus long have liv'd with,

And part with it so rude and suddenly.

Can such friends divide, never to meet again,

Without a solemn farewell?

Ver. Tush, tush! there's a toy.

Als. [Aside.] I must now part, and never meet again

With any joy on earth. — Sir, your pardon;

My affairs call on me.

Ver. How, sir? By no means;

Not chang'd so soon, I hope? You must see my castle,

And her best entertainment, e'er we part,

I shall think myself unkindly us'd else.

Come, come, let's on; I had good hope your stay

Had been a while with us in Alicant;

I might have bid you to my daughter's wed-ning;

Als. [Aside.] He means to feast me, and poisons me beforehand.

I should be dearly glad to be there, sir,

Did my occasions suit as I could wish.

Beat. I shall be sorry if you be not there

When it is done, sir; but not so suddenly.

Ver. I tell you, sir, the gentleman's complete,

A courtier and a gallant, enricht

With many fair and noble ornaments;

I would not change him for a son-in-law.

For any he in Spain, the proudest he,

And we have great ones, that you know.

Als. He's much bound to you, sir.

Ver. He shall be bound to me

As fast as this tie can hold him; I'll want

My will else.

Beat. [Aside.] I shall want mine, if you do it.

Ver. But come, by the way I'll tell you more of him.

Als. [Aside.] How shall I dare to venture in his castle,

When he discharges murderers at the gate?

But I must on, for back I cannot go.

Beat. [Aside.] Not this serpent gone yet?

[Dies a glove.]

Ver. Look, girl, thy glove's fallen.

Stay, stay; De Flores, help a little.

[Execut VERMAMERO, ALSEMERO, and Servants.]

De F. Here, lady. [Offers her the glove.]

Beat. Mischief on your officious forwardness;

Who bade you stoop? They touch my hand no more:

There! For 't other's sake I part with this;

[Take off and throws down the other glove.]

Als. Trifling fancy.

Cannon.
Take 'em, and draw thine own skin off with 'em!

Exit [with DIAPHANTA and Servants].

De F. Here's a favour come with a mischief now! I know
She had rather wear my pelt;² tamm'd in a pair
Of dancing pumps, than I should thrust my fingers
Into her sockets here. I know she hates me,
Yet cannot choose but love her. No matter,
If but to vex her, I will haunt her still;
Though I get nothing else, I'll have my will.

Exit.

[SCENE II.]

Enter ALIBIUS and LOLLIO.

Alib. Lollio, I must trust thee with a secret,
But thou must keep it.

Lol. I was ever close to a secret, sir.

Alib. The diligence that I have found in thee,
The care and industry already past,
Assures me of thy good continuance.

Loll. I have a wife.

Alib. No, sir, 'tis too late to keep her secret; she's known to be married all the town and country over.

Loll. Thou goest too fast, my Lollio. That knowledge
I allow no man can be barr'd it;
But there is a knowledge which is nearer,
Deeper, and sweeter, Lollio.

Lol. Well, sir, let us handle that between you and I.

Alib. 'Tis that I go about, man. Lollio,
My wife is young.

Loll. So much the worse to be kept secret, sir.

Alib. Why, now thou meet'st the substance of the point;
I am old, Lollio.

Loll. No, sir, 'tis I am old Lollio.

Alib. Yet why may not this concord and sympathize?

Old trees and young plants often grow together,
Well enough agreeing.

Loll. Ay, sir, but the old trees raise them-theselves higher and broader than the young planta

Alib. Shrewd application! There's the fear,
man;
I would wear my ring on my own finger;
Whilst it is borrowed, it is none of mine,
But his that useth it.

Loll. You must keep it on still then, if it but lie by, one or other will be thrusting into't.

Alib. Thou conceiv'est me, Lollio; here thy watchful eye
Must have employment; I cannot always be
At home.

Loll. I dare swear you cannot.

Alib. I must look out.

Loll. I know 't, you must look out; 'tis every man's case.

Alib. Here, I do say, must thy employment be;

To watch her treadings, and in my absence
Supply my place.

Loll. I'll do my best, sir; yet surely I cannot see who you should have cause to be jealous of.

Alib. Thy reason for that, Lollio? It is
A comfortable question.

Loll. We have but two sorts of people in the house, and both under the whip, that's fools and madmen; the one has not wit enough to be knives, and the other not knavery enough to be fools.

Alib. Ay, those are all my patients, Lollio;
I do profess the cure of either sort;
My trade, my living is; I thrive by it;
But here's the care that mixes with my thrift:
The daily visitants, that come to see
My brain-sick patients, I would not have
To see my wife. Gallants I do observe
Of quick enticing eyes, rich in habits,
Of stature and proportion very comely:
These are most shrewd temptations, Lollio.

Loll. They may be easily answered, sir; if they come to see the fools and madmen, you and I may serve the turn, and let my mis-trees alone; she's of neither sort.

Alib. 'Tis a good ward; indeed, come they to see
Our madmen or our fools, let 'em see no more
Than what they come for; by that consequent
They must not see her; I'm sure she's no fool.

Loll. And I'm sure she's no madman.

Alib. Hold that buckler fast; Lollio, my trust
Is on thee, and I account it firm and strong.

What hour is 't, Lollio?

Loll. Towards belly-hour, sir.

Alib. Dinner-time? Thou mean'st twelve o'clock?

Loll. Yes, sir, for every part has his hour: we wake at six and look about us, that's eye-hour;
at seven we should pray, that's knee-hour:
at eight walk, that's leg-hour; at nine gather flowers and pluck a rose,⁵ that's nose-hour; at ten we drink, that's mouth-hour; at eleven lay about us for vultures, that's hand-hour; at twelve go to dinner, that's belly-hour.

Alib. Profoundly, Lollio! It will be long Ere all thy scholars learn this lesson, and
I did look to have a new one entred; — stay,
I think my expectation is come home.

Enter PEDRO, and ANTONIO [disguised] like an idiot.

Ped. Save you, sir; my business speaks itself:

This sight takes off the labour of my tongue.

Alib. Ay, ay, sir, it is plain enough, you mean

Ped. And if your pains prove but commodiuous, to give but some little strength to his sick and weak part of nature in him, these are

1 Skin.
2 A room in the house of Alibius.
3 Idiots.
4 Guard (in fencing). (Dyce.)
5 "Pluck a rose" = alnum exonerare. (Bullen.)
A fool, I had had more wit than I have now. Remember what state you found me in.

I will, and so leave you. Your best cares, I beseech you.
Exit Pedro.

Aib. Take you none with you, leave 'em all with us.

Ant. O, my cousin's gone! cousin, cousin, O!

Lol. Peace, peace, Tony; you must not cry, child, you must be whipt if you do; your cousin is here still; I am your cousin, Tony.

Ant. He, he! then I'll not cry, if thou best my cousin; he, he, he!

Lol. I were best try his wit a little, that I may know what form to place him in.

Aib. Ay, do, Lollio, do.

Lol. I must ask him easy questions at first.

— Tony, how many true fingers has a tailor on his right hand?

Ant. As many as on his left, cousin.

Lol. Good: and how many on both?

Ant. Two less than a dozen, cousin.

Lol. Very well answered. I come to you again, cousin Tony; how many fools goes to a wise man?

Ant. Forty in a day sometimes, cousin.

Lol. Forty in a day? How prove you that?

Ant. All that fall out amongst themselves, and go to a lawyer to be made friends.

Lol. A parlous fool! he must sit in the fourth form at least. I perceive that. — I come again, Tony; how many knaves make an honest man?

Ant. I know not that, cousin.

Lol. No, the question is too hard for you. I'll tell you, cousin; there's three knaves may make an honest man, — a sergeant, a jailor, and a beadle; the sergeant catches him, the jailor holds him, and the beadle lashes him; and if he be not honest then, the hangman must cure him.

Ant. Ha, ha, ha! that's fine sport, cousin.

Aib. This was too deep a question for the fool, Lollio.

Lol. Yes, this might have serv'd yourself, though I say 't. — Once more and you shall go play, Tony.

Ant. Ay, play at push-pin, cousin; ha, he!

Lol. So thou shalt: say how many fools are here —

Ant. Two, cousin; thou and I.

Lol. Nay, you're too forward there, Tony. Mark my question; how many fools and knaves are here; a fool before a knave, a knave behind a knave, between every two fools a knave; how many fools, how many knaves?

Ant. I never learnt so far, cousin.

Aib. Thou puttest too hard questions to him, Lollio.

Lol. I'll make him understand it easily. — Cousin, stand there.

Ant. Ay, cousin.

Lol. Master, stand you next the fool.

Aib. Well, Lollio.

Lol. Here's my place. Mark now, Tony, there's a fool before a knave.
ACT II

[Scene I.]

Enter Beatrice and Jasper severally.

Beat. O sir, I'm ready now for that fair service Which makes the name of friend sit glorious on you!
Good angels and this conduct be your guide!

[Giving a paper.

Fitness of time and place is there set down,
sir.

Jas. The joy I shall return rewards my service.

Beat. How wise is Alsemoro in his friend!
It is a sign he makes his choice with judgment;
Then I appear in nothing more approvd
Than making choice of him; for 'tis a principle,

He that can choose
That bosom well who of his thoughts partakes,
Proves most discreet in every choice he makes.
Methinks I love now with the eyes of judgment,
And see the way to merit, clearly see it.
A true deserver like a diamond sparkles;
In darkness you may see him, that's in absence,
Which is the greatest darkness falls on love;
Yet is he best discern'd then
With intellectual eyesight. What's Piraoque,
My father spends his breath for? And his blessing
Is only mine as I regard his name,
Else it goes from me, and turns head against me,
Transform'd into a curse. Some speedy way
Must be rememb'red. He's so forward too,
So urgent that way, scarce allows me breath
To speak to my new comforts.

Enter De Flores.

De F. [Aside.] Yonder's she;
Whatever ails me, now a-late especially,
I can as well be hang'd as refrain seeing her;
Some twenty times a day, nay, not so little,
Do I force errands, frame ways and excuses,
To come into her sight; and I've small reason
for 't,
And less encouragement, for she baits me still
Every time worse than other; does profess herself
The cruellest enemy to my face in town;
At no hand can abide the sight of me,
As if danger or ill-luck hung in my looks.
I must confess my face is bad enough,
But I know far worse has better fortune,
And not endur'd alone, but doted on;
And yet such pick-hair'd faces, chins like witches,
Here and there five hairs whispering in a corner,
As if they grew in fear one of another,
Wrinkles like troughs, where swine-deformity swills
The tears of perjury, that lie there like wash
Fallen from the slimy and dishonest eye,—
Yet such a one plucks sweets without restraint,
And has the grace of beauty to his sweet.
Though my hard fate has thrust me out to servitude,
I tumbled into th' world a gentleman.
She turns her blessed eye upon me now,
And I'll endure all storms before I part with 't.
Beat. [Aside.] Again?
This ominous ill-fac'd fellow more disturbs me
Than all my other passions.
De F. [Aside.] Now 't begins again;
I'll stand this storm of hail, though the stones
pelt me.
Beat. Thy business? What's thy business?
De F. [Aside.] Soft and fair!
I cannot part so soon now.
Beat. [Aside.] The villain's fixt.
Thou standing toad-pool——
De F. [Aside.] The shower falls amain now.
Beat. Who sent thee? What's thy errand?
Leave my sight!
De F. My lord your father, charg'd me to deliver
A message to you.
Beat. What, another since?
Do't, and be hang'd then; let me be rid of thee.
De F. True service merits mercy.
Beat. What's thy message?
De F. Let beauty settle but in patience,
You shall hear all.
Beat. A dallying, trifling torment!
De F. Signor Alonzo de Piraquo, lady,
Solo brother to Tomaso de Piraquo
Beat. Slave, when wilt make an end?
De F. Too soon I shall.
Beat. What all this while of him?
De F. The said Alonzo.
With the foresaid Tomaso —
Beat. Is new alighted.
Beat. Vengeance strike the news!
Thou thing most loath'd, what cause was there in this
To bring thee to my sight?
De F. My lord your father
Charg'd me to seek you out.
Beat. Is there no other?
To send his errand by?
De F. It seems 'tis my luck
To be 'th' way still.
Beat. Get thee from me!
De F. So: —
[Aside.] Why, am not I an ass to devise ways
Thus to be rast'd at? I must see her still!
I shall have a mad qualm within this hour
again,
I know 't; and, like a common Garden bull,
I do but take breath to be lugg'd again.
What this may bode I know not; I despair
the less.
Because there's daily precedents of bad faces
Belov'd beyond all reason. These foul chaps
May come into favour one day 'mongst their fellows.
Wrangling has prov'd the mistress of good pastime;
As children cry themselves asleep, I ha' seen
Women have chid themselves a-bed to men.
Exit.
Beat. I never see this fellow but I think
Of some harm towards me; danger's in my mind still;
I scarce leave trembling of an hour after.
The next good mood I find my father in,
I'll get him quite discarded. O, I was Lost in this small disturbance, and forgot Affliction's fiercer torrent that now comes
To bear down all my comforts!

Enter Vermandero, Alonzo, and Tomaso.
Ver. You're both welcome,
But an especial one belongs to you, sir,
1 Paris Garden, on the Bankside, where bull-baiting was carried on.
2 Dragged by the ear.

To whose most noble name our love presents
Th' addition of a son, our son Alonzo.
Alonzo. The treasury of honour cannot bring forth
A title I should more rejoice in, sir.
Ver. You have improv'd it well.—Daughter, prepare;
The day will steal upon thee suddenly.
Beat. [Aside.] How'er, I will be sure to keep the night,
If it should come so near me.
[Beatrice and Vermandero talk apart.]
Alonzo.
Tom. Brother?
Ver. In truth I see small welcome in her eye.
Alonzo. Fie, you are too severe a censurer.
Of love in all points, there's no bringing on you.
If lovers should mark everything a fault,
Affection would be like an ill-set book,
Whose faults might prove as big as half the volume.
Beat. That's all I do entreat.
Ver. It is but reasonable;
I'll see what my son says to t. — Son Alonzo,
Here is a motion made but to retrieve
A maidenhead three days longer; the request
Is not far out of reason, for indeed
The former time is pinching.
Alonzo. Though my joys
Be set back so much time as I could wish
They had been forward, yet since she desires it,
The time is set as pleasing as before,
I find no gladness wanting.
Ver. May I ever Meet it in that point still! You're nobly welcome, sir.
Exit with Beatrice.
Tom. So; did you mark the dulness of her parting now?
Alonzo. What dulness? Thou art so exceptious still!
Tom. Why, let it go then; I am but a fool
To mark your harms so heedfully.
Alonzo. Where's the oversight?
Tom. Come, your faith's cozened in her,
strongly cozened.
Unsettle your affection with all speed
Wisdom can bring it to; your peace is ruin'd else.
Think what a torment 'tis to marry one
Whose heart is leapt into another's bosom:
If ever pleasure she receive from thee,
It comes not in thy name, or of thy gift;
She lies but with another in thine arms,
He the half-father unto all thy children
In the conception; if he get 'em not,
She helps to get 'em for him; and how dangerous
And shameful her restraint may go in time to,
It is not to be thought on without sufferings.
Alonzo. You speak as if she lov'd some other, then.
Tom. Do you apprehend so slowly?

Alon. Nay, an that
Be your fear only, I am safe enough.
Preserve your friendship and your counsel, brother,
For times of more distress; I should depart An enemy, a dangerous, deadly one,
To any but thyself, that should but think She knew the meaning of inconstancy, Much less the use and practice: yet we're friends.

Pray, let no more be urg'd; I can endure
Much, till I meet an injury to her,
Then I am not myself. Farewell, sweet brother;
How much we're bound to Heaven to depart lovingly.

Tom. Why, here is love's tame madness;
thus a man
Quickly steals into his vexation.

[Scene II.] ¹

Enter Diaphanta and Alsemero.

Dia. The place is my charge; you have kept your hour,
And the reward of a just meeting bless you!
I hear my lady coming. Complete gentleman,
I dare not be too busy with my praises,
They're dangerous things to deal with. Exit. Als. This goes well; ⁵
These women are the ladies' cabinets,
Things of most precious trust are lock'd into 'em.

Enter Beatrice.

Beat. I have within mine eye all my desires.
Requests that holy prayers ascend Heaven for,
And brings 'em down to furnish our defects, ¹⁰
Come not more sweet to our necessities
Than thou unto my wishes.
Als. We're so like
In our expressions, lady, that unless I borrow
The same words, I shall never find their equals.

Beat. How happy were this meeting, this embrace,
If it were free from envy! This poor kiss
It has an enemy, a hateful one,
That wishes poison to 't. How well were I now,
If there were none such name known as Piraquco,
Nor no such tie as the command of parents! ²⁰
I should be but too much bless'd.
Als. One good service
Would strike off both your fears, and I'll go near 't too,
Since you are so distrest. Remove the cause,
The command ceases; so there's two fears blown out
With one and the same blast.

Beat. Pray, let me find ² you, sir: ³⁵
What might that service be, so strangely happy?
Als. The honourable piece about man, valour:
I'll send a challenge to Piraquco instantly.

Beat. How? Call you that extinguishing of fear,
When 'tis the only way to keep it flaming? ⁴⁰

Beat. What ha' you done
To your face a' late? You've met with some good physician;
You've prun'd 1 yourself, methinks: you were not wont
To look so amorously. 2

De F. Not I; —

[Aside.] 'Tis the same physomy, to a hair and pimple.
Which she called seuryve scarce an hour ago:
How is this?
Beat. Come hither; nearer, man.
De F. [Aside.] I'm up to the chin in Heaven!

Beat. Turn, let me see;
Faugh, 'tis but the heat of the liver, I perceive't;
I thought it had been worse.

De F. [Aside.] Her fingers toucht me! 3
She smells all amber. 3
Bea. I'll make a water for you shall cleanse
this
Within a fortnight.
De F. With your own hands, lady? 4
Beat. Yes, mine own, sir; in a work of cure
I'll trust no other.
De F. [Aside.] 'T is half an act of pleasure
To hear her talk thus to me.
Beat. When we're us'd
To a hard face, it is not so unpleasing;
It mends still in opinion, hourly mends;
I see it by experience.
De F. [Aside.] I was blest 20
To light upon this minute; I'll make use on't.
Beat. Hardness becomes the visage of a man
well;
It argues service, resolution, manhood,
If cause were of employment.
De F. 'T would be soon seen
If e'er your ladyship had cause to use it; 96
I would but wish the honour of a service
So happy as that mounts to.
Beat. We shall try you —
O my De Flores!
De F. [Aside.] How's that? She calls me hers
Already! My De Flores! — You were about
To sigh out somewhat, madam?
Beat. No, was I? 100
I forgot. — O ! —

De F. There 'tis again, the very fellow on't.
Beat. You are too quick, sir,
De F. There's no excuse for 't now; I heard it twice, madam;
That sigh would fain have utterance: take pity
on 't,
And lend it a free word. 'Las, how it labours
For liberty! I hear the murmur yet
Beat at your bosom.

Would creation —

Beat. De F. Ay, well said, that is it.
Beat. Had form'd me man!
Beat. De F. Nay, that's not it.
Beat. O, 't is the soul of freedom!
I should not then be forc'd to marry one 110

Enter Alonzo.

Alon. De Flores.

De F. My kind, honourable lord?

Alon. I'm glad I ha' met with thee.

De F. Sir?

Alon. Thou canst show me
The full strength of the castle?

De F. That I can, sir.

Alon. I much desire it.

De F. And if the ways and straits of some of the passages be not too tedious for you, I'll assure you, worth your time and sight, my lord.

Alon. Pooh, that shall be no hindrance.

De F. I'm your servant, then. 'T is now near dinner-time; 'gainst your lordship's rising I'll have the keys about me.

Alon. [Aside.] Thanks, kind De Flores.

De F. [Aside.] He's safely thrust upon me beyond hopes.

Exeunt [severally].

ACT III

[Scene I.] ²

Enter Alonzo and De Flores, (In the act-tone.) De Flores hides a naked rapier [behind a door.]

De Flores. Yes, here are all the keys; I was afraid, my lord, I'd wanted for the postern, this is it.

I've all, I've all, my lord: this for the scene.²

Alon. 'Tis a most spacious and impregnable fort.

De F. You'll tell me more, my lord. This descent is somewhat narrow, we shall never pass well with our weapons, they'll but trouble us.

Alon. Thou sayest true.

De F. Pray, let me help your lordship.

Alon. 'Tis done: thanks, kind De Flores.

De F. Here are hooks, my lord, to hang such things on purpose.

Hanging up his own sword and that of Alonzo. Exeunt.

[Scene II.] ⁶

[Enter Alonzo and De Flores.]

De F. All this is nothing; you shall see anon a place you little dream on.

Alon. I am glad I have this leisure; all your master's house I imagine I ha' taken a gondola.

De F. All but myself, sir,—[aside] which makes up my safety.

² In anticipation of.
³ A narrow passage in the Castle.

⁵ Fortification.
⁶ Q. Exeunt at one door and enter at the other.
⁷ A vault.

My lord, I'll place you at a casement here Will show you the full strength of all the castle. Look, spend your eye awhile upon that object. Alon. Here's rich variety, De Flores.

De F. Yes, sir.

Alon. Goodly munition.

De F. Ay, there's ordnance, sir; no bastard metal, will ring you a peal like bells.

At great men's funerals. Keep your eye straight, my lord; take special notice of that scene before you, there you may dwell awhile.

[Takes the rapier which he had hid behind the door.]

Alon. De F. And so am I. [Stabs him.]

Alon. De Flores! O De Flores! Whose malice hast thou put on?

De F. Do you question a work of secrecy? I must silence you.

[Stabs him.]

Alon. O, O, O! De F. I must silence you. [Stabs him.]

So here's an undertaking well accomplished. This vault serves to good use now: ha, what's that?

Threw sparks in my eye? 'Tis a diamond He wears upon his finger; 'tis well found; this will approve the work. What, so fast on? Not part in death? I'll take a speedy course then.

Finger and all shall off. [Cuts off the finger.]

So, now I'll clear the passages from all suspect or fear. Exit with body.

[Scene III.] ⁸

Enter Isabella and Lollio.

Isa. Why, sirrah, whence have you commission to fetter the doors against me? If you keep me in a cage, pray, whistle to me, let me be doing something.

Lol. You shall be doing, if it please you; I'll whistle to you, if you'll pipe after.

Isa. Is it your master's pleasure, or your own? To keep me in this pinfold?

Lol. 'Tis for my master's pleasure, lest being taken in another man's corn, you might be [pounded in another place.

Isa. 'Tis very well, and he'll prove very wise. Lol. He says you have company enough in the house, if you please to be sociable, of all sorts of people.

Isa. Of all sorts? Why, here's none but fools and madmen.

Lol. Very well: and where will you find any other, if you should go abroad? There's my master and I to boot too.

Isa. Of either sort one, a madman and a fool.

⁸ Prove it has been done.
⁹ An apartment in the house of Alibius.
LoL. I would ev'n participate of both then if I were as you; I know you’re half-mad already, be half foolish too.

Isa. You’re a brave saucy rascal! Come on, sir.

Afford me then the pleasure of your bedlam.

You were commending once to-day to me
Your last-come lunatic; what a proper
Body there was without brains to guide it, 39
And what a pitiful delight appear’d
In that defect, as if your wisdom had found
A mirth in madness; pray, sir, let me partake,
If there be such a pleasure.

LoL. If I do not show you the handsomest, [38] discreetest madman, one that I may call the understanding madman, then say I am a fool.

Isa. Well, a match, I will say so.

LoL. When you have had a taste of the madman, you shall, if you please, see Fool’s College, 40
leges, o’ th’ [other] side. I seldom look there; ’tis but shooting a bolt or two, and you are amongst ’em. Exit. Enter presently. — Come on, sir; let me see how handsomely you’ll behave yourself now.

Enter FRANCISCS.

Fran. How sweetly she looks! O, but there’s a wrinkle in her brow as deep as philosophy.
Anacreon, drink to my mistress’ health. I’ll pledge in. Stay, stay, there’s a spider in the cup! No, ’tis but a grape-stone; swallow it, 41 fear nothing, poet; so, so, lift higher.

Isa. Alack, alack, it is too full of pity
To be laught at! How fell he mad? Canst thou tell?

LoL. For love, mistress. He was a pretty poet, too, and that set him forwards first; 42 the muses then forsook him; he ran mad for a chambermaid, yet she was but a dwarf neither.

Fran. Hail, bright Titania!
Why stand’st thou idle on these flow’ry banks?
Oberon is dancing with his Dryades; 43
I’ll gather daisies, primroses, violets,
And bind them in a verse of poesy.

LoL. [holding up a whip.] Not too near! You see your danger.

Fran. O, hold thy hand, great Diomede! 44
Thou feed’st thy horses well, they shall obey thee.

Get up, Bucephalus kneels. [Kneels.]

LoL. You see how I awe my flock; a shepherd has not his dog at more obedience.

Isa. His conscience is unquiet; sure that was

The cause of this: a proper gentleman!

Fran. Come hither, Aesculapius; hide the poison.

LoL. Well, ’tis bid. [Hides the whip.]

Fran. Didst thou ne’er hear of one Tiresias,
A famous poet?

LoL. Yes, that kept tame wild geese. 45

Fran. That’s he; I am the man.

LoL. No?

Fran. Yes; but make no words on ’t. I was

Seven years ago. 46

LoL. A stripling, I think, you might.

Fran. Now I’m a woman, all feminine.

LoL. I would I might see that!

Fran. Juno struck me blind.

LoL. I’ll ne’er believe that; for a woman, they say, has an eye more than a man.

Fran. I say she struck me blind.

LoL. And Luna made you mad: you have two trades to beg with.

Fran. Luna is now big-bellied, and there’s room

For both of us to ride with Hecate;
I’ll drag thee up into her silver sphere.

And there we’ll kick the dog — and beat the bush—
That barks against the witches of the night;
The swift lycanthropi 2 that walks the round,
We’ll tear their wolfgang skins, and save the sheep. [Attempts to seize Lolllo.]

LoL. Is ’t come to this? Nay, then, my 47 poison comes forth again. [Showing the whip.]

Mad slave, indeed, abuse your keeper!

Isa. I prithee, hence with him, now he grows dangerous.

Fran. [sings.]

Sweet love, pity me,
Give me leave to lie with thee. 48

LoL. No, I’ll see you wiser first. To your own kennel!

Fran. No noise, she sleeps; draw all the curtains round.

Let no soft sound molest the pretty soul
But love, and love creeps in at a mouse-hole.

LoL. I would you would get into your hole! (Exit FRANCISCS.) — Now, mistress, I will 49 bring you another sort; you shall be fool’d another while. [Exit, and brings in ANTONIO. — Tony, come hither, Tony: look who’s yonder, Tony.]

Ant. Cousin, is it not my aunt? 50

LoL. Yes, ’tis one of ’em, Tony.

Ant. He, he! how do you, uncle?

LoL. Fear him not, mistress; ’tis a gentle nigget; 4 you may play with him, as safely with him as with his bauble.

Isa. How long hast thou been a fool?

Ant. Ever since I came hither, cousin.

Isa. Cousin? I’m none of thy cousins, fool.

LoL. O, mistress, fools have always so much wit as to claim their kindred.

Madman. [within.] Bounce, bounce! he falls, he falls!

Isa. Hark you, your scholars in the upper room
Are out of order.

LoL. Must I come amongst you there? —
Keep you the fool, mistress; I’ll go up and play left-handed Orlando amongst the madmen.

Exit.

Isa. Well, sir.

Ant. ’T is opportune now, sweet lady! nay,
Cast no amazing eye upon this change.

Isa. Ha!

3 Persons suffering from lycanthropia, or wolf-madness. Cf. Duchess of Malf, V. ii. 10.

4 Cant term for bawd.

5 Niglet, & c. idiot.
Ant. This shape of folly shrinks your dearest love,
The truest servant to your powerful beauties,
Whose magic had this force thus to transform me.

Isa. You're a fine fool indeed!

Ant. O, 'tis not strange! Love has an intellect that runs through all
The scrutinizing sciences; and, like a cunning poet,
Catches a quantity of every knowledge, yet brings all home into one mystery,
Into one secret that he proceeds in.

Isa. You're a parous fool.

Ant. No danger in me; I bring nought but love
And his soft-wounding shafts to strike you with.

Try but one arrow; if it hurt you, I
Will stand you twenty back in recompense.

[Kisses her.]

Isa. A forward fool too!

Ant. This was love's teaching:
A thousand ways he fashion'd out my way,
And this I found the safest and the nearest,
To trend the galaxy to my star.

Isa. Profoundest wisdom! I cannot dream'd of this.

Love never taught it waking.

Ant. Take no acquaintance
Of these outward follies, there's within
A gentleman that loves you.

Isa. When I see him,
I'll speak with him; so, in the meantime, keep
Your habit; it becomes you well enough.
As you're a gentleman, I'll not discover you;
That's all the favour that you must expect.
When you are weary, you may leave the school.
For all this while you have but play'd the fool.

Re-enter Lolloio.

Ant. And must again.—He, he! I thank you, cousin;
I'll be your valentine to-morrow morning.

Lol. How do you like the fool, mistress?

Isa. Passing well, sir.

Lol. Is he not witty, pretty well, for a fool?

Isa. If he holds on as he begins, he's like to come to something.

Lol. Ay, thank a good tutor. You may put him to 't; he begins to answer pretty hard questions. — Tony, how many is five times six?

Ant. Five times six is six times five.

Lol. What arithmetician could have answer'd better? How many is one hundred and seven?

Ant. One hundred and seven is seven hundred and one, cousin.

Lol. This is no wit to speak on! — Will you be rid of the fool now?

Isa. By no means; let him stay a little.

Madman. [within.] Catch there, catch the last couple in hell!

Lol. Again! must I come amongst you?
Would my master were come home! I am not able to govern both these wards together.

Exit.

Ant. Why should a minute of love's hour be lost?

Isa. Hee, out again! I had rather you kept
Your other posture; you become not your tongue.

When you speak from the clothes.

Ant. How can he freeze
Lives near so sweet a warmth? Shall I alone
Walk through the orchard of thine Hesperides,
And, cowardly, not dare to pull an apple?

Enter Lolloio above.

This with the red cheeks I must venture for.

[Attempts to kiss her.]

Isa. Take heed, there's giants keep 'em.

Lol. [Aside.] How now, fool, are you good at that? Have you read Lipsius? He's past Asisci; Ars Amanti; I believe I must put harder questions to him, I perceive that.

Isa. You're bold without fear too.

Ant. What should I fear, having all joys about me? Do you smile,
And love shall play the wanton on your lip, meet and retire, retire and meet again;
Look you but cheerfully, and in your eyes
I shall behold mine own deformity,
And dress myself up fairer. I know this shape
Becomes me not, but in those bright mirrors
I shall array me handsomely.

[Cries of madmen are heard within.] some as birds others as beasts.

Lol. Cuckoo, cuckoo!

Ant. What are these?

Isa. Of fear enough to part us;
Yet are they but our schools of lunatics,
That act their fantasies in any shapes,
Suiting their present thoughts: if sad, they cry;
If mirth be their conceit, they laugh again:
Sometimes they imitate the beasts and birds,
Singing or howling, braying, barking; all
As their wild fancies prompt 'em.

Enter Lolloio.

Ant. These are no bears.

Lol. But here's a large one, my man.

Ant. Ha! he! that's fine sport, indeed, cousin.

Lol. I would my master were come home! 'Tis too much for one shepherd to govern two of these flocks; nor can I believe that one churchman can instruct two benefices at once; there will be some incurable mad of the one side, and very fools on the other. — Come, Tony.

Ant. Prithée, cousin, let me stay here still.

Lol. No, you must to your book now; you have play'd sufficiently.

THE CHANGELING

III. iv.

Isa. Your fool has grown wondrous witty.
Lol. Well, I'll say nothing: but I do not think but he will put you down one of these days. 231
Exit with Antonio.
Isa. Here the restrained current might make breach,
Spite of the watchful bankers. Would a woman
stray,
She need not gad abroad to seek her sin,
It would be brought home one ways or [another:] 235
The needle's point will to the fixed north;
Such drawing arctic women's beauties are.

Re-enter Lolloio.

Lol. How dost thou, sweet rogue?
Isa. How now?
Lol. Come, there are degrees; one fool may be better than another. 241
Isa. What's the matter?
Lol. Nay, if thou giv'st thy mind to fool's flesh, have at thee!
Isa. Thou bold slave, thou! 245
Lol. I could follow now as t'other fool did:
'What should I fear,
Having all joys about me? Do you but smile,
And love shall play the wanton on your lip, 250
Meet and retire, retire and meet again;
Look you but cheerfully, and in your eyes
I shall behold my own deformity,
And dress myself up fairer. I know this shape
Becomes me not.— 255
And so as it follows: but is not this the most foolish way? Come, sweet rogue; kiss me, my little Lacedaemonian; let me feel how thy pulses beat. Thou hast a thing about thee would do a man pleasure, I'll lay my hand
on't.
Isa. Sirrah, no more! I see you have discoverered
This love's knight errant, who hath made adventure
For purchase of my love: be silent, mute,
Mute as a statue, or his injunction 259
For me enjoying, shall be to eat thy throat;
I'll do it, though for no other purpose; and
Be sure he'll not refuse it.
Lol. My share, that's all;
I'll have my fool's part with you.
Isa. No more! Your master.

Enter Alibuthus.

Alib. Sweet, how dost thou?
Isa. Your bounden servant, sir. 260
Alib. Fie, fie, sweethearth, no more of that.
Isa. You were best lock me up.
Alib. In my arms and bosom, my sweet Isabell,
I'll lock thee up most nearly.— Lolloio,
We have employment, we have task in hand.
At noble Vermandero's, our castle's captain, 265
There is a nuptial to be solemnis'd—
Beatrice-Joanna, his fair daughter, bride, —

For which the gentleman hath bespoken our pains,
A mixture of our madmen and our fools, 268
To finish, as it were, and make the fag 2
Of all the revels, the third night from the first;
Only an unexpected passage over,
To make a frightful pleasure, that is all;
But not the all I aim at. Could we so act it,
To teach it in a wild distracted measure, 272
Though out of form and figure, breaking time's
head,
It were no matter, 't would be heal'd again
In one age or other, if not in this:
This, this, Lolloio, there's a good reward begun,
And will beget a bounty, be it known. 276
Lol. This is easy, sirs, I'll warrant you: you have about you fools and madmen that can dance very well; and 'tis no wonder, your best dancers are not the wisest men; the reason is,
with often juming they jolt their brains 280 down into their feet, that their wits lie more in their heels than in their heads.
Alib. Honest Lolloio, thou giv'st me a good reason,
And a comfort in it.
Isa. You've a fine trade on't.
Madmen and fools are a staple commodity. 281 Alib. O wife, we must eat, wear clothes, and live.
Just at the lawyer's haven we arrive,
By madmen and by fools we both do thrive.
Exeunt.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Vermandero, Beatrice, Alsemoro, and Jasperino.

Ver. Valencia speaks so nobly of you, sir,
I wish I had a daughter now for you.
Alb. The fellow of this creature were a partner
For a king's love.
Ver. I had her fellow once, sir,
But Heaven has married her to joys eternal; 5
'Twere sin to wish her in this vale again.
Come, sir, your friend and you shall see the pleasures
Which my health chiefly joys in.
Alb. I hear
The beauty of this seat largely [commended]. 4
Ver. It falls much short of that.
Exit with Alsemoro and Jasper-ino.

Beat. So, here's one step
Into my father's favour; time will fix him;
I've got him now the liberty of the house,
So wisdom, by degrees, works out her freedom;
And if that eye be dark'ned that offends me,—
I wait but that eclipse,— this gentleman 15
Shall soon shine glorious in my father's liking,
Through the resolute virtue of my love.

Enter De Flores.

De F. [Aside.] My thoughts are at a banquet; for the deed,

1 To gain.
2 End. 3 An apartment in the Castle. 4 Q. omits.
I feel no weight in 't; 't is but light and cheap
For the sweet recompense that I set down for 't.
Beat. De Flores?
De F. Lady?
Beat. Thy looks promise cheerfully.
De F. All things are answerable, time, circumstance.
Your wishes, and my service.
Beat. Is it done, then?
De F. Piraquio is no more.
Beat. My joys start at mine eyes; our sweet's delights
Are evermore born weeping.
De F. I've a token for you.
Beat. For me?
De F. But it was sent somewhat unwillingly;
I could not get the ring without the finger.
[Producing the finger and ring.]
Beat. Bless me, what hast thou done?
De F. Why, is that more so
Than killing the whole man? I cut his heart-strings;
A greedy hand thrust in a dish at court,
In a mistake hath had as much as this.
Beat. 'Tis the first token my father made me send him.
De F. And I [have] made him send it back again
For his last token, I was loth to leave it,
And I'm sure dead men have no use of jewels;
He was as loth to part with 't, for it stuck
As if the flesh and it were both one substance.
Beat. At the stag's fall, the keeper has his fees;
'Tis soon appli'd, all dead men's fees are yours, sir.
I pray, bury the finger, but the stone
You may make use on shortly; the true value,
Take 't of my truth, is near three hundred doceats.

De F. 'T will hardly buy a capace for one's conscience though,
To keep it from the worm, as fine as 't is.
Well, being my fees, I'll take it;
Great men have taught me that, or else my merit
Would scorn the way on 't.
Beat. It might justly, sir.
Why, thou mistake 'st, De Flores; 't is not given
In state 2 of recompense.
De F. No, I hope so, lady; a
You should soon witness my contempt to 't then.
Beat. Prithee, — thou look'st as if thou wert offended.
De F. That were strange, lady; 't is not possible
My service should draw such a cause from you Offended? Could you think so? That were much
For one of my performance, and so warm
Yet in my service.
Beat. 'T were misery in me to give you cause, sir.

---

De F. I know so much, it were so; misery
In her most sharp condition.
Beat. 'T is resolv'd then;
Look you, sir, here's three thousand golden florins;
I have not meanly thought upon thy merit.
De F. What! salary? Now you move me.
Beat. How, De Flores?
De F. Do you place me in the rank of verminous fellow,
To destroy things for wages? Offer gold
For the life-blood of man? Is anything
Valued too precious for my recompense?
Beat. I understand thee not.
De F. I could ha' hir'd a journeyman in murder at this rate,
And mine own conscience might have [slept at ease],
And have had the work brought home.
Beat. [Aside.] I'm in a labyrinth;
What will content him? I'd fain be rid of him.
I'll double the sum, sir.
De F. You take a course
To double my vexation, that's the good you do.
Beat. [Aside]. Bless me, I'm now in worse plight
Than I was;
I know not what will please him. — For my fear's sake,
I prithee, make away with all speed possible;
And if thou be'st so modest not to name
The sum that will content thee, paper blushes not,
Send thy demand in writing, it shall follow thee;
But, prithee, take thy flight.
De F. You must fly too, then.
Beat. I?
De F. I'll not stir a foot else.
Beat. What's your meaning?
De F. Why, are not you as guilty? In, I'm sure,
As deep as I; and we should stick together.
Come, your fears counsel you but ill; my absence
Would draw suspect upon you instantly;
There were no rescue for you.
Beat. [Aside.] He speaks home! De F. Nor is it fit we two, engag'd so jointly,
Should part and live asunder.
Beat. How now, sir?
This shows not well.
De F. What makes your lip so strange?
This must not be 'twixt us.
Beat. The man talks wildly!
De F. Come, kiss me with a zeal now.
Beat. [Aside.] Heaven, I doubt him!
De F. I will not stand so long to beg 'em shorty.
Beat. Take heed, De Flores, of forgetfulness,
'T will soon betray us.
De F. Take you heed first;
Faith, you're grown much forgetful, you're to blame in 't.
Beat. [Aside.] He's bold, and I am blam'd for it.
De F. I have eas'd you

---

1 Band-box. 2 Place.

Q. 15. "Beat."
Q. 16. "De F."
Q. 44. "Beat."
Of your trouble, think on it; I am in pain.
And must be eas'd of you; 'tis a charity,
Justice invites your blood to understand me.

Beat. I dare not.

De F. Quickly!

Beat. O, I never shall!
Speak it yet further off, that I may lose
What has been spoken, and no sound remain on 't;
I would not hear so much offence again.

For such another deed.

De F. Soft, lady, soft!
The last is not yet paid for. O, this act
Has put me into spirit; I was as greedy on 't
As the parched earth of moisture, when the clouds weep.

Did you not mark, I wrought myself into 't?
Nay, su'd and kneel'd for 't? Why was all that pains took?

You see I've thrown contempt upon your gold;
Not that I want it [not], for I do piteously,
In order I'll come unto 't, and make use on 't,
But 't was not held so precious to begin with,
For I place wealth after the heels of pleasure;
And were not I resolv'd in my belief
That thy virginity were perfect in thee,
I should but take my recompense with grudge-
As if I had but half my hopes I agreed for.

Beat. Why, 'tis impossible thou canst be so wicked,
Or shelter such a cunning cruelty,
To make his death the murderer of my honour!
Thy language is so bold and vicious,
I cannot see which way I can forgive it
With any modesty.

De F. Fish! you forget yourself;
A woman dipt in blood, and talk of modesty!

Beat. O, misery of sin! would I'd been bound Perpetually unto my living hate
In that Piracquo, than to hear these words!
Think but upon the distance that creation
Set 'twixt thy blood and mine, and keep thee
there.

De F. Look but into your conscience, read me there;
'T is a true book, you'll find me there your equal.
Fish I fly not to your birth, but settle you
In what the act has made you; you're no more
now.

You must forget your parentage to me;
You're the deed's creature; by that name
You lost your first condition, and I challenge
you.

As peace and innocence has turnd you out,
And made you one with me.

Beat. With thee, foul villain!

De F. Yes, my fair murtheress. Do you urge
me,
Though thou wret'st maid, thou where in thy affection?
'T was chang'd from thy first love, and that's a kind
Of whoredom in thy heart; and he's chang'd
now

To bring thy second on, thy Alesmoro,
Whom, by all sweetest that ever darkness tasted,
If I enjoy thee not, thou ne'er enjoy'st!
I'll blast the hopes and joys of marriage,
I'll confess all; my life I rate at nothing.

Beat. De Flores!

De F. I shall rest from all love's 4 plagues
I live in pain now; that shooting eye
Will burn my heart to cinders.

Beat. O sir, hear me!

De F. She that in life and love refuses me,
In death and shame my partner she shall be.

Beat. [kneeling.] Stay, hear me once for all;
I make thee master
Of all the wealth I have in gold and jewels;
Let me go poor unto my bed with honour,
And I am rich in all things!

De F. Let this silence thee.

The wealth of all Valencia shall not buy
My pleasure from me;
Can you weep fate from its determin'd purpose?
So soon may you weep me.

Beat. Vengeance begins;
Murder, I see, is followed by more sins.

Was my creation in the womb so curst,
It must engender with a viper first?

De F. [raising her.] Come, arise, and shrou'd your blushes in my bosom;

Silence is one of pleasure's best receipts:

Thy peace is wrought for ever in this yielding.

'Las! how the turtle pants! Thou 'rt love anon
What thou so fear'st and faint'st to venture on.

Exeunt.

ACT IV

[Scene I.]

Enter Gentlemen, VERMANDERO meeting them with action of wonderment at the flight of PI-ACQUO. Enter ALESMERO with JASPERINO and gallants: VERMANDERO points to him,
the gentlemen seeming to applaud the choice.
ALESMERO, JASPERINO, and Gentlemen;
BEATRICE the bride following in great state, accompanied with DIAPHRANTA, ISABELLA,
and other gentiwomen; DE FLORES after all, smiling at the accident: ALONZO's ghost apppears to DE FLORES in the midst of his smile, startles him, showing him the hand whose finger he had cut off. They pass over in great solemnity.

Enter Beatrice.

Beat. This fellow has undone me endlessly;
Never was bride so fearfully distress.
The more I think upon th' ensuing night,
And whom I am to cope with in embraces,
One [who's] 7 ennobled both in blood and mind,
So clear in understanding, that's my plague
now—

4 Q. omits.

5 Stately ceremony.

6 Alesmoro's apartment in the Castle.

7 Q. both.
Before whose judgment will my fault appear
Like malefactors’ crimes before tribunals.
There is no hiding on’t, the more I dive
Into my own distress. How a wise man Stands for a great calamity! There’s no venturing
Into his bed, what course so’er I light upon,
Without my shame, which may grow up to danger.
He cannot but in justice strangle me
As I lie by him; as a cheater use me.
’T is a precious craft to play with a false die
Before a cunning gamester. Here’s his closet;
The key left in ‘t, and he abroad i’ th’ park!
Sure ‘t was forgot; I’ll be so bold as look in ‘t.

[Opens closet.]

Bless me! a right physician’s closet ‘tis,
Set round with vials; every one her mark too.
Sure he does practise physic for his own use,
Which may be safely call’d your great man’s wisdom.
What manuscript lies here? “The Book of Experiment,
[Reads.] “How to know whether a woman be with child or no.”
I hope I am not yet; if he should try though!
Let me see [reads] “folio forty-five,” here ‘tis,
The leaf tucked down upon ‘t, the place suspicious.
[Reads.] “If you would know whether a woman be with child or not, give her two spoonfuls of the white water in glass C—”
Where’s that glass C? O yonder, I see ‘t now—[Reads.] “and if she be with child, she sleeps full twelve hours after; if not, not:
None of that water comes into my belly;
I’ll know you from a hundred; I could break you now,
Or turn you into milk, and so beguile
The master of the mystery; but I’ll look to you.
Ha! that which is next is ten times worse:
[Reads.] “How to know whether a woman be a maid or not:”
If that should be appli’d, what would become of me?
Belike he has a strong faith of my purity,
That never yet made proof; but this he calls
[Reads.] “A merry slight, but true experiment; the author Antonius Mizaldus. Give the party you suspect the quantity of a spoonful of the water in the glass M, which, upon her that is a maid, makes three several effects: ‘t will [makes her incontinently] gape, then fall into a sudden sneezing, last into a violent laughing; else, dull, heavy, and lumpish.”
Where had I been?
I fear it, yet ‘t is seven hours to bed-time.

Enter Diaphanta.

Dia. Gods, madam, are you here?
Bea. Seeing that wench now,
A trick comes in my mind; ’tis a nice piece

Gold cannot purchase. [Aside.]—I come hither, wench.
To look my lord.

Dia. Would I had such a cause
To look him too.—Why, he’s i’ th’ park, madam.

Bea. There let him be.

Dia. Ay, madam, let him compass
Whole parks and forests, as great rangers do,
At roosting-time a little lodge can hold ’em.
Earth-conquering Alexander, that thought the world
Too narrow for him, in th’ end had but his pit-hole.

Bea. I fear thou art not modest, Diaphanta.
Dia. Your thoughts are so unwilling to be known, madam.
’T is ever the bride’s fashion, towards bed-time,
To set light by her joys, as if she ow’d ’em
Bea. Her joys? Her fears thou wouldst say.

Dia. Fear of what?

Bea. Art thou a maid, and talk’st so to a maid?
You leave a blushing business behind;
Behshr your heart for’t!

Dia. Do you mean good sooth, madam?

Bea. Well, if I’d thought upon the fear at first,
Man should have been unknown.

Dia. Is’t possible?

Bea. I’d give a thousand ducats to that woman
Would try what my fear were, and tell me true
To-morrow, when she gets from ‘t; as she likes,
I might perhaps be drawn to ‘t.

Dia. Are you in earnest?

Bea. Do you get the woman, then challenge to
And see if I’ll fly from ‘t; but I must tell you
This by the way, she must be a true maid.
Else there’s no trial, my fears are not her’s.

Dia. Nay, she that I would put into your hands, madam,
Shall be a maid.

Bea. You know I should be sham’d else,
Because she lies for me.

Dia. ’T is a strange humour! But are you serious still? Would you resign Your first night’s pleasure, and give money too?

Bea. As willingly as live.—[Aside.] Alas, the gold
Is but a by-bet to wedge in the honour!

Dia. I do not know how the world goes abroad
For faith or honesty; there’s both requir’d in this.
Madam, what say you to me, and stray no further?

I’ve a good mind, in truth, to earn your money.

Bea. You are too quick, I fear, to be a maid.

58 Thompson.
Dia. How? Not a maid? Nay, then you urge me, madam; Your honourable self is not a truer, With all your fears upon you—Beat. [Aside.] Bad enough then. Dia. Than I with all my lightsome joys about me. Beat. I'm glad to hear 't. Then you dare put your honesty 1 196
Upon an easy trial.

Dia. Easy? Anything. Beat. I'll come to you straight. [Goes to the closet.]

Dia. She will not search me, will she, Like the forewoman of a female jury? 2 Beat. Glass M: ay, this is it. [Brings vial.]
Look, Diaphanta, You take no worse than I do. [Drinks.]
I will not question what it is, but take it. [Drinks.]

Beat. [Aside.] Now if th' experiment be true, 't will praise itself, And give me noble ease: begins already; [Diaphanta gapes.]
There's the first symptom; and what haste it makes To fall into the second, there by this time! 110

Most admirable secrecy, on the contrary, It stirs not me a whit, which most concerns it. Dia. Ha, ha, ha! 120
Beat. [Aside.] Just in all things, and in order 125 As if 't were circumscrib'd: one accident 8 Gives way unto another.

Dia. Ha, ha, ha! Beat. How now, wench? Dia. Ha, ha, ha! I'm so, so light At heart—ha, ha, ha!—so pleasurable! But one swig more, sweet madam. Beat. Ay, to-morrow, 130 We shall have time to sit by. Dia. Now I'm sad again. Beat. [Aside.] It lays itself so gently too! —Come, wench.
Most honest Diaphanta I dare call thee now. Dia. Pray, tell me, madam, what trick call you this? Beat. I'll tell thee all hereafter; we must study The carriage of this business. Dia. I shall carry 't well, Because I love the burden. Beat. About midnight You must not fail to steal forth gently, That I may use the place. Dia. O, fear not, madam, I shall be cool by that time. The bride's place, And with a thousand ducats! I'm for a justice now. 135
I bring a portion with me; I scorn small fools. [Exit.

1 Chastity.
2 I suspect that there is an allusion here to the examination by matrons of the notorious Countess of Essex. (Bullen.)
3 Property, symptom.

IV. ii. THE CHANGELING 731

[Scene II.] 4
Enter Vermandero and Servant.
Ver. I tell thee, knave, mine honour is in question,
A thing still now free from suspicion,
Nor ever was there cause. Who of my gentle-
Are absent? Tell me, and truly, how many, and who?
Ser. Antonio, sir, and Francisca. 5
Ver. When did they leave the castle?
Ser. Some ten days since, sir; the one intending to Briamata, th' other for Valencia.
Ver. The time accuses 'em; a charge of murder
Is brought within my castle-gate, Piraquo's murder;
I dare not answer faithfully their absence.
A strict command of apprehension
Shall pursue 'em suddenly, and either wipe
The stain off clear, or openly discover it.
Provide me winged warrants for the purpose. 15 Exit Servant.

See, I am set on again.

Enter Tomaso.
Tom. I claim a brother of you.
Ver. You're too hot; Seek him not here.
Tom. Yes, 'mongst your dearest bloods;
If my peace find no fairer satisfaction.
This is the place must yield account for him,
For here I left him; and the lusty tie 31
Of this snatch'd marriage gives strong testimony
Of his most certain ruin.
Ver. Certain falsehood! This is the place indeed; his break of faith
Has too much marr'd both my abused love, 25
The honourable love I reserv'd for him,
And mock'd my daughter's joy; the prepar'd morning
Blush'd at his infidelity; he left
Contemp and scorn to throw upon those friends
Whose belief hurt 'em. O, 't was most ignoble
To take his flight so unexpectedly, 31
And throw such public wrongs on those that lov'd him!
Tom. Then this is all your answer?
Ver. Tis too fair For one of his alliance; and I warn you
That this place no more see you. Exit.

Enter De Flores.
Tom. The best is,
There is more ground to meet a man's revenge on.
Honest De Flores?
De F. That's my name indeed.
Saw you the bride? Good sweet sir, which way took she?
Tom. I've blest mine eyes from seeing such a false one.

4 Another apartment in the Castle.
De F. [Aside.] I'd fain get off, this man's not for my company;
I smell his brother's blood when I come near
him.
Tom. Come hither, kind and true one; I remember
My brother lov'd thee well.

[Aside.] Methinks I'm now again a-killing on
him,
He brings it so fresh to me.
Tom. Thou canst guess, sirrah—
[An honest friend has an instinct of jealousy—]
At some foul guilty person.

De F. Als! sir,
I am so charitable, I think none Worse than myself! You did not see the bride then?
Tom. I prithee, name her not: is she not wicked?
De F. No, no; a pretty, easy, round-pack'd sinner,
As your most ladies are, else you might think
I flatter'd her; but, sir, at no hand wicked,
Till they're so old their chins and noses meet,
And they salute witches. I 'm call'd, I think, sir—[Aside.] His company ev'n overlays my conscience.

Tom. That De Flores has a wondrous honest
heart!
He 'll bring it out in time, I 'm assur'd on 't.
O, here 's the glorious master of the day's joy!
'T will not be long till he and I do reckon. —

Enter ALSEMERO.

Sir.

Als. You're most welcome.
Tom. You may call that word back;
I do not think I am, nor wish to be.

Als. 'Tis strange you found the way to this house, then.

Tom. Would I'd never known the cause! I'm none of those, sir,
That come to give you joy, and swell your wine;
'T is a more precious liquor that must lay
The fiery thirst I bring.

Als. Your words and you
Appear to me great strangers.

Time and our swords
May made us more acquainted. This the business:
I should have had a brother in your place;
How treachery and malice have dispos'd of
him,
I 'm bound to inquire of him which holds his right,
Which never could come fairly.

Als. You must look
To answer for that word, sir.

Tom. Fear you not, I'll have it ready drawn at our next meeting.

Keep your day solemn; farewell, I disturb it not;
I'll bear the smart with patience for a time.

Als. 'T is somewhat ominous this; a quarrel ent'red
Upon this day; my innocence relieves me,

Enter JASPERINO.

I should be wondrous sad else. — Jasperino,
I've news to tell thee, strange news.

Jasp. I ha' some too, I think as strange as yours. Would I might keep Mine, so my faith and friendship might be kept in 't!

Faith, sir, dispense a little with my zeal,
And let it cool in this.

Als. This puts me on,
And blames thee for thy slowness.

Jas. All may prove nothing;
Only a friendly fear that leapt from me, sir.

Als. No question, 't may prove nothing; let's partake it though.

Jas. 'T was Diaphanta's chance — for to that wench
I pretend honest love, and she deserves it—
To leave me in a back part of the house,
A place we chose for private conference.
She was no sooner gone, but instantly
I heard your bride's voice in the next room to
me;
And lending more attention, found De Flores
Louder than she.

Als. De Flores! Thou art out now.

Jas. You'll tell me more anon.

Als. Still I'll prevent thee,
The very sight of him is poison to her.

Jas. That made me stagger too; but Dia-phanta
At her return confirm'd it,

Als. Diaphanta!

Jas. Then fell we both to listen, and words past
Like those that challenge interest in a woman.

Als. Peace: quench thy zeal; 't is dangerous to thy bosom.

Jas. Then truth is full of peril.

Als. Such truths are.
O, were she the sole glory of the earth,
Had eyes that could shoot fire into king's breasts,
And touch'd, 't she sleeps not here! Yet I have time,
Though might be near, to be resolve'd hereof;
And, prithee, do not weigh me by my passions.

Jas. I never weigh'd friend so.

Als. Done charitably! That key will lead thee to a pretty secret, [Giving key.] By a Chaldean taught me, and I have My study upon some. Bring from my closet
A glass inscrib'd there with the letter M,
And question not my purpose.

Q. One.
3 Q. Sins and vices. The correction was suggested by Dyce.
2 Q. I.

4 Celebrate your wedding day.
6 Anticipate.
8 Profess, offer.
7 Taunted.
Jas. It shall be done, sir. Exit.
Als. How can this hang together? Not an hour since

Her woman came pleading her lady’s fears,
Deliver’d her for the most timorous virgin
That ever shrunk at man’s name, and so
She charg’d her weep out her request to me,
That she might come obscurely to my bosom.

Enter Beatrice.

Beat. [Aside.] All things go well; my woman’s preparing yonder
For her sweet voyage, which grieves me to lose;
Necessity compels it; I lose all, else.

Als. [Aside.] Fish! modesty’s shrine is set in yonder forehead:
I cannot be too sure though.—My Joanna!
Beat. Sir, I was bold to weep a message to you;

Pardon my modest fears.

Als. The dove’s not meeker;
[Aside.] She’s abus’d, questionless.

Re-enter JASPERINO [with vial].

O, are you come, sir?
Beat. [Aside.] The glass, upon my life! I see her [Giving vial.]
Als. ’T is it.
Beat. [Aside.] I am suspected.
Als. How fitly our bride comes to partake with us!
Beat. What is’t, my lord?
Als. No hurt.
Beat. Sir, pardon me,
I seldom taste of any composition.
Als. But this, upon my warrant, you shall venture on.
Beat. I fear’t will make me ill.
Als. Heaven forbid that.
Beat. [Aside.] I’m put now to my cunning:
’t effects I know,
If I can now but feign ’em handsomely.
[Drinks.]

Als. It has that secret virtue, it ne’er mist, sir.

Upon a virgin.
Jas. Treble-qualified.

[Beatrice gapes and sneezes.]
Als. By all that’s virtuous it takes there! proceeds!

Jas. This is the strangest trick to know a maid-by.
Beat. Ha, ha, ha!

You have given me joy of heart to drink, my lord.
Als. No, thou hast given me such joy of heart,
That never can be blasted.
Beat. What’s the matter, sir?
Als. [Aside.] See now ’tis settled in a melancholy;

Keeps both the time and method.—My Joanna,
Chaste as the breath of Heaven, or morning’s womb,
That brings the day forth! thus my love encloses thee.

[Scene III.]

Enter ISABELLA and LOLLIO.

Isa. O Heaven! is this the [waning] moon?
Does love turn fool, run mad, and all at once?
Sirrah, here’s a madman, akin to the fool too,
A lunatic lover.

Lol. No, no, not he I brought the letter from?
Isa. Compare his inside with his out, and tell me.

Lol. The out’s mad, I’m sure of that; I had a taste on’t. [Reads letter.] “To the bright Andromeda, chief chambermaid to the Knight of the Sun, at the sign of Scorpio, in the middle region, sent by the bellows-mender of Aelous. Pay the post.” This is stark madness!
Isa. Now mark the inside. [Takes the letter and reads.] “Sweet lady, having now cast off this counterfeit; cover of a madman, I appear [as] to your best judgment a true and faithful lover of your beauty.”

Lol. He is mad still.
Isa. [reads.] “If any fault you find, chide those perfections in you which have made me imperfect; ’t is the same sun that causeth to grow and enforceth to wither—.”

Lol. O rogue!
Isa. [reads.] “Shapes and transhapes, destroys and builds again. I come in winter to you, dismantled of my proper ornaments; by the sweet splendour of your cheerful smiles, I spring and live a lover.”
Lol. Mad rascal still!
Isa. [reads.] “Tread him not under foot, that shall appear an honour to your bounties. I remain—mad till I speak with you, from whom I expect my cure, yours all, or one beside himself, FRANCISCUS.”
Lol. You are like to have a fine time on’t. [As my master and I may give over our professions; I do not think but you can cure fools and madmen faster than we, with little pains too.
Isa. Very likely.
Lol. One thing I must tell you, mistress: if you perceive that I am privy to your skill; if I find you minister once, and set up the trade, I put in for my thirds; I shall be mad or fool else.
Isa. The first place is thine, believe it, Lollio, if I do fall.
Lol. I fall upon you.
Isa. So.
Lol. Well, I stand to my venture.
Isa. But thy counsel now; how shall I deal with ’em?
Lol. [Why.] do you mean to deal with ’em?
Isa. Nay, the fair understanding, how to use ’em.
Lol. Abuse ’em! That’s the way to mad the fool, and make a fool of the madman, and then you use ’em kindly.
Isa. ’T is easy, I’ll practise; do thou observe it.

The key of thy wardrobe.

1 A room in the house of Albius.
2 So Bullen. Q. Wasting.
3 Take the words in their modest sense.
4 Deceive.
There [gives key]; sit yourself for 'em, and I'll sit 'em both for you.

Take thou no further notice than the outside. Exit.

Not an inch; I'll put you to the inside.

Enter ALIBIUS.

Lollio, art there? Will all be perfect, think'st thou?

To-morrow night, as if to close up the Solemnity, Vermandero expects us.

I mistrust the madmen most; the fools will do well enough; I have taken pains with them.

Tush! they cannot miss; the more absurdity,
The more commends it, so no rough behaviour

Affright the ladies; they're nice things, thou know'st.

You need not fear, sir; so long as we are there with our commanding pizazzes, they'll be as tame as the ladies themselves.

I'll see them once more rehearse before they go.

I was about it, sir: look you to the madman's morris, and let me alone with the other.

There is one or two that I mistrust their [70] fooling; I'll instruct them, and then they shall rehearse the whole measure.

Do so; I'll see the music prepared:

but, Lollio,

By the way, how does my wife brook her restraint?

Does she not grudge at it?

So, so; she takes some pleasure in the house, she would abroad else. You must allow her a little more length, she's kept too short.

She shall along to Vermandero's with us.

That will serve her for a month's liberty.

What's that on your face, sir?

Where, Lollio? I see nothing.

Cry you mercy, sir, 'tis your nose; it show'd like the trunk of a young elephant.

Away, rascal! I'll prepare the music, Lollio.

Do, sir, and I'll dance the whilst.

Tony, where art thou, Tony?

Enter ANTONIO.

Here, cousin; where art thou?

Come, Tony, the footmanship I taught you.

I had rather ride, cousin.

A whip take you! but I'll keep you out; vault in: look you, Tony; fa, la, la, la.

[Sings and dances.]

There, an honour.

Is this an honour, coz?

Yes, an it please your worship.

Does honour bend in the hams, coz?

Marry does it, as low as worship, [106]

Provided that. 2 Fastidious. 3 Beg pardon. 4 The usual jest on the cuckold's horns.

squireship, nay, yeomanry itself sometimes,

from whence it first stiffened: there rise, a caper.

Caper after an honour, coz?

Very proper, for honour is but a caper, rises as fast and high, has a knee or two, and falls to th' ground again. You can remember your figure, Tony?

Yes, cousin; when I see thy figure. I can remember mine.

Exit Lollio.

Re-enter ISABELLA, [dressed as a madwoman.]

Hey, how he treads the air! Shough, shough, t'other way! he burns his wing-selves.

Here's wax enough below, Icarus, more than will be cancelled these eighteen moons. He's down, he's down! what a terrible fall he had!

Stand up, thou son of Cretan Daedalus,

And let us tread the lower labyrinth;

I'll bring thee to the clue.

Prithee, coz, let me alone.

Art thou not drown'd?

About thy head I saw a heap of clouds

Wrat's like a Turkish turban; on thy back

A crook'd chameleon-colour'd rainbow hung

Like a tiara down unto thy hams.

Let me suck out those billows in thy belly;

Hark, how they roar and rumble in the straits!

Bless thee from the pirates!

Again thou touch me, thou wild unshapen antick.

I am no fool, you bedlam!

But you are, as sure as I am, mad.

I have put on this habit of a frantic,

With love as full of fury, to beguile

The nimble eye of watchful jealousy,

And am I thus rewarded?

Ha! dearest beauty!

No, I have no beauty now, nor never had but what was in my garments.

You a quick-sighted lover! come not near me:

Keep your caparisons, you're aptly clad;

I came a feigning, to return stark mad.

Stay, or I shall change condition,

And become as you are.

Re-enter Lollio.

Why, Tony, whither now? Why, fool—

Whose fool, usher of idiots? You coaxcomb!

I have fool'd too much.

You were best be mad another while then.

So I am, stark mad; I have cause

And I could throw the full effects on thee,

And beat thee like a fury.

Do not, do not; I shall not forbear the

Q. she. 6 Q. streets.
gentleman under the fool, if you do. Alas! I saw through your fox-skin before now! Come, I can give you comfort; my mistress loves you; and there is as arrant a madman in th' house as you are a fool, your rival, whom she loves not. If after the masque we can rid her of him, you earn her love, she says, and the fool shall ride her. 168

Ant. May I believe thee?
Lol. Yes, or you may choose whether you will or no.
Ant. She's eas'd of him; I've a good quarrel on 't.
Lol. Well, keep your old station yet, and be quiet.
Ant. Tell her I will deserve her love.
Lol. And you are like to have your desert.

[Exit.]

Fran. [sings.] "Down, down, down, a-down a-down,"—and then with a horse-trick To kick Latona's forehead, and break her bow-string.

Lol. This is 't other counterfeit; I'll put [169] him out of his humour. [Aside. Takes out a letter and reads.] "Sweet lady, having now cast this counterfeit cover of a madman, I appear to your best judgment a true and faithful lover of your beauty. This is pretty well for a madman.

Fran. Ha! what's that?
Lol. [reads.] "Chide those perfections in you which have made me imperfect."
Fran. I am discover'd to the fool.
Lol. I hope to discover the fool in you ere [170] I have done with you. [Reads.] "Yours all, or one beside himself, FRANCISCO." This madman will mend sure.

Fran. What do you read, sIRRah?
Lol. Your destiny, sir; you'll be hang'd for this trick, and another that I know.
Fran. Art thou of counsel with my mistress?
Lol. Next her apron-strings.
Fran. Give me thy hand.
Lol. Stay, let me put yours in my pocket first. [Putting letter into his pocket.] Your hand is [171] true; is it not? It will not pick? I partly fear it, because I think it does lie.
Fran. Not in a syllable.
Lol. So if you love my mistress so well as you have handled the matter here, you are like to be cur'd of your madness.
Fran. And none but she can cure it.
Lol. Well, I'll give you over then, and she shall cast your water next.
Fran. Take for thy pains past.
[ Gives him money.]

Lol. I shall deserve more, sir, I hope. My mistress loves you, but must have some proof of your love to her.
Fran. There I meet my wishes.
Lol. That will not serve, you must meet her enemy and yours.
Fran. He's dead already.
Lol. Will you tell me that, and I parted but now with him?

Fran. Show me the man.
Lol. Ay, that's a right course now; see him before you kill him, in any case; and yet it needs not go so far neither. 'Tis but a fool that haunts the house and my mistress in the [172] shape of an idiot; hang but his fool's coat well-favouredly, and 'tis well.
Fran. Soundly, soundly!
Lol. Only reserve him till the masque be past; and if you find him not now in the dance [173] yourself, I'll show you. In, in! my master!

Fran. He handles him like a feather. Hey! [Dancing.]

[Exit.]

Enter ALIBRIUS.

Alib. Well said: in a readiness, Lollio?
Lol. Yes, sir.
Alib. Away then, and guide them in, Lollio: Entreat your mistress to see this sight.
Hark, is there not one incurable fool That might be begg'd? [2] I've friends.
Lol. One that shall deserve it too.
Alib. Good boy, Lollio!
The madmen and fools dance.
'Tis perfect: well, fit but once these strains. [2] We shall have coin and credit for our pains.

[Exeunt.]

ACT V

[SCENE I.]

Enter BEATRICE: a clock strikes one.

Beat. One struck, and yet she lies by 't!
O my fears!
This strumpet serves her own ends, 'tis apparent now,
Devours the pleasure with a greedy appetite,
And never minds my honour or my peace,
Makes havoc of my right. But she pays dearly for 't;
No trusting of her life with such a secret
That cannot rule her blood to keep her promise;
Beside, I've some suspicion of her faith to me,
Because I was suspected of my lord,
And it must come from her. [Strikes two.] Hark!

[Exit.]

by my horrors,
Another clock strikes two!

Enter DE FLORES.

De F. Pist! where are you?
Beat. De Flores?
De F. Ay. Is she not come from him yet?
Beat. As I'm a living soul, not!
De F. Sure the devil
Hath sow'd his itch within her. Who would trust
A waiting-woman?
Beat. [I must trust somebody.]
De F. Push! they're tarmagants;
Especially when they fall upon their masters
2 Whose custody, with the revenues of his estate, might be begged from the king.
4 A gallery in the Castle.
And have their ladies' first fruits; they're mad
whelps,
You cannot stave 'em off from game royal:
then
You are so rash and hardy, ask no counsel;
And I could have helped you to a 'pothercy's
daughter
Would have fall'n off before eleven, and thank(b) you too.
Beat. O me, not yet! this whore forgets herself.
De F. The rascal fares so well; look, you're undone;
The day-star, by this hand! see Phosphorus plain yonder.
Beat. Advise me now to fall upon some ruin;
There is no counsel safe else.
De F. Peace! I ha't now,
For we must force a rising, there's no remedy.
De F. Tush! be you quiet, or else give over all.
Beat. Prif thee, I ha' done then.
De F. This is my reach: I'll set
Some part a-fire of Diaphanta's chamber.
Beat. How? Fire, sir? That may endanger the whole house.
De F. You talk of danger when your fame's
on fire?
Beat. That's true; do what thou wilt now.
De F. Push! I aim
At a most rich success strikes all dead sure.
The chimney being a-fire, and some light parcels
Of the least danger in her chamber only, If Diaphanta should be met by chance then Far from her lodging, which is now suspicious, It would be thought her fears and affrights then Drove her to seek for succour; if not seen Or met at all, as that's the likeliest,
For her own shame she'll hasten towards her lodging;
I will be ready with a piece 4 high-charg'd,
As 't were to cleanse the chimney, there 't is proper now
But she shall be the mark.
Beat. I'm for'd to love thee now, 'Cause thou provid'st so carefully for my honour.
De F. 'Slid, it concerns the safety of us both,
Our pleasure and continuance.
Beat. One word now, Prif thee; how for the servants?
De F. I'll despatch them, Some one way, some another in the hurry, For buckets, hooks, ladders; fear not you, The deed shall find its time; and I've thought since Upon a safe conveyance for the body too: How this fire purifies wit! Watch you your minute.
Beat. Fear keeps my soul upon it, I cannot stray from 't.

---

Enter Alonzo's Ghost.

De F. Hal! what art thou that tak'st away the light Betwixt that star and me? I dread thee not.
'Twas but a mist of conscience; all's clear again.
Exit.
Beat. Who's that, De Flores? Bless me, it slides by!
Some ill thing haunts the house; it has left behind it
A shivering sweat upon me; I'm afraid now.
This night hath been so tedious! O this strumpet!
Had she a thousand lives, she should not leave her Till he had destroy'd the last. List! O my terrors!
Struck three o'clock.
Three struck by St. Sebastian's!
Within. Fire, fire, fire!
Beat. Already? How rare is that man's speed!
How heartily he serves me! his face loathes one;
But look upon his care, who would not love him?
The east is not more beauteous than his service. Within. Fire, fire, fire!
Re-enter De Flores; Servants pass over:

Beat. Here's a man worth loving!

Enter Diaphanta.

O you're a jewel!

Dia. Pardon frailty, madam;

In truth, I was so well, I ev'n forgot myself.

Beat. You've made trim work!

Dia. What?

Beat. He quickly to your chamber;

Your reward follows you.

Dia. I never made So sweet a bargain.

Enter Alsemoro.

Als. O my dear Joanna,
Alas! art thou risen too? I was coming,
My absolute treasure!

Beat. When I mist you,

Als. I could not choose but follow.

Beat. Thou'rt all sweetness:

Als. The fire is not so dangerous.

Beat. Think you so, sir?

Als. I prif thee, tremble not; believe me, 't is not.

Enter Vermandero and Jaspereino.

Ver. O bless my house and me!

Als. My lord your father.

---

1 Q. harsh.
2 Q. Bosphorus.
3 Scheme.
4 Fire-arm.
5 Well done.
Re-enter De Flores with a gun.

Ver. Knave, whither goes that piece?
De F. To scour the chimney. Exit.
Ver. O, well said, well said!

That fellow's good on all occasions.

Beat. A wondrous necessary man, my lord.
Ver. He hath a ready wit; he's worth'em all, sir;
Dog at a house of fire; I ha' seen him singed ere now, — The piece goes off.

Beat. Ha, there he goes!
Alas! thou wilt get cold.

Beat. Alas! the fear keeps that out!
My heart will find no quiet till I hear
How Diaphanta, my poor woman, fares;
It is her chamber, sir, her lodging chamber.
Ver. How should the fire come there? 100
Beat. As good a soul as ever lady countenanced,
But in her chamber negligent and heavy:
She scapt a mine twice.
Beat. Twice?
Ver. Those sleepy sluts are dangerous in a house,
An they be ne'er so good.

Re-enter De Flores.

De F. O poor virginity, 106
Thou hast paid dearly for 't!
Ver. Bless us, what's that?
De F. A thing you all knew once, Diaphanta's burnt.
Beat. My woman! O my woman!
De F. Now the flames
Are greedy of her; burnt, burnt, burnt to death, sir!
Beat. O my pressing soul!

Ver. I charge you by the last embrace I gave you
In bed, before this rais'd us.

Beat. Now you tie me;
Were it my sister, now she gets no more.

Enter Servant.

Ver. How now?
Ser. All danger's past; you may now take 115
Your rests, my lords; the fire is thoroughly quenched.
Ah, poor gentlewoman, how soon was she stifled!

Beat. De Flores, what is left of her inter,
And we as mourners all will follow her.
I will entreat that honour to my servant
By'n of my lord himself.

Alas! Command it, sweetness.

Beat. Which of you spied the fire first?
De F. 'Twas I, madam.
Beat. And took such pains in't too? A double goodness!
'T were well he were rewarded.
Ver. He shall be.
De Flores, call upon me.

Alas. Exeunt [all except De Flores].

De F. Rewarded? Precious! here's a trick beyond me.
I see in all bouts, both of sport and wit,
Always a woman strives for the last hit.

[Scene II.] 1

Enter Tomaso.

Tom. I cannot taste the benefits of life
With the same relish I was wont to do.
Man I grow weary of, and hold his fellowship
A treacherous bloody friendship; and because 4
I'm ignorant in whom my wrath should settle,
I must think all men villains, and the next
I meet, who'er he be, the murderer
Of my most worthy brother. Ha! what's he?

De Flores passes over the stage.

O, the fellow that some call honest De Flores;
But methinks honesty was hard bested
To come there for a lodging; as if a queen
Should make her palace of a pest-house.
I find a contrariety in nature
Betwixt that face and me; the least occasion
Would give me some game upon him; yet he's so foul 15
One would scarce touch [him] with a sword, he lov'd
And made account of; so most deadly venemous,
He would go near to poison any weapon
That should draw blood on him; one must resolve
Never to use that sword again in fight 20
In way of honest manhood that strikes him;
Some river must devour it; 'twere not fit
That any man should find it. What, again?

Re-enter De Flores.

He walks a' purpose by, sure, to choke me up,
T' infect my blood.

De F. My worthy noble lord! 25
Tom. Dost offer to come near and breathe upon me?
[Strokes him.]

Strikes him.

De F. A blow! [Draws.]
Tom. Yea, are you so prepar'd?
I'll rather like a soldier die by th' sword,
Than like a politician by thy poison. [Draws.]

De F. Hold, my lord, as you are honourable!
Tom. All slaves that kill by poison are still cowards.

De F. [Aside.] I cannot strike; I see his brother's wounds
Fresh bleeding in his eye, as in a crystal. —
I will not question this, I know you're noble;
I take my injury with thanks given, sir, 35
Like a wise lawyer, and as a favour
Will wear it for the worthy hand that gave it. — [Aside.] Why this from him that yesterday appear'd
So strangely loving to me?
O, but instinct is of a subtler strain!

Quilt must not walk so near his lodge again;
He came near me now. Exit.

Tom. All league with mankind I renounce
For ever.
Till I find this murderer; not so much

1 Another apartment in the Castle.
The prospect from the garden has show'd
Enough for deep suspicion.

Als. The black mask
That so continually was worn upon't
Condemns the face for ugly ere 't be seen,
Her despite to him, and so seeming bottomless.

Jas. Touch it home then; 'tis not a shallow probe
Can search this ulcer soundly; I fear you'll find it
Full of corruption. 'Tis fit I leave you,
She meets you opportunely from that walk;
She took the back door at his parting with her.

Exit.

Als. Did my fate wait for this unhappy stroke
At my first sight of woman? She is here.

Enter BEATRICE.

Beat. Asemoro!

Als. How do you?

Beat. How do I?

Als. You read me well enough; I am not well.

Beat. Not well, sir? Is 't in my power to better you?

Als. Yes.

Beat. Nay, then you're cur'd again.

Als. Pray, resolve me one question, lady.

Beat. If I can.

Als. None can so sure: are you honest?

Beat. Ha, ha, ha! that's a broad question, your lord.

Als. But that's not a modest answer, my lady.

Do you laugh? My doubts are strong upon me.

Beat. 'Tis innocence that smiles, and no gerow brow
Can take away the dimple in her cheek.
Say I should strain a tear to fill the vault,
Which would you give the better faith to?

Als. 'T were but hypocrisy of a sadder colour,
But the same stuff; neither your smiles nor ears
Shall move or flatter me from my belief:
You are a whore!

Beat. What a horrid sound it hath!
It blasts a beauty to deformity;
Upon what face soever that breath falls,
It strikes it ugly. O, you have ruin'd
What can we or repair again?

Als. I'll all
Demolish, and seek out truth within you,
If there be any left; let your sweet tongue
Prevent your heart's rifting; there I'll ransack
And tear out my suspicion.

Beat. You may, sir;

It is an easy passage; yet, if you please,
Show me the ground whereon you lost your
love;
My spotless virtue may but tread on that
Before I perish.

Als. Unanswerable;
A ground you cannot stand on; you fall down
Beneath all grace and goodness when you set

5 Answer.
Your ticklish heel on 't. There was a visor
Over that cunning face, and that became you;
Now Impudence in triumph rides upon 't.
How comes this tender reconciliation else
'Twixt you and your despite, your rancorous loathing,
De Flores? he that your eyes were sore at sight of,
He 's now become your arm's supporter, your Lip's saint!
Beat. Is the cause?
Als. Worse, your lust's devil,
Your adultery!
Beat. Would any but yourself say that,
'T would turn him to a villain!
Als. It was witness
By the counsel of your bosom, Diaphanta.
Beat. Is your witness dead then?
Als. 'Tis to be fear'd
It was the wages of her knowledge; poor soul,
She liv'd not long after the discovery.
Beat. Then hear a story of not much less horror.
Than this your false suspicion is beguil'd with;
To your bed's scandal I stand up innocence,
Which even the guilt of one black other deed
Will stand for proof of; your love has made me
A cruel mur'dress.
Als. Ha!
Beat. A bloody one;
I have kist poison for it, strokst a serpent:
That taste of hate, worthy in my esteem
Of no better employment, and him most worthy
To be so employ'd, I could to murder
That innocent Piracquo, having no Better means than that worst to assure Yourself to me.
Als. O, the place itself o'er since
Has crying been for vengeance! The temple,
Where blood and beauty first unlawfully
Fir'd their devotion and quench'd the right one;
'T was in my fears at first, 't will have it now:
O, thou art all deform'd!
Beat. Forget not, sir,
If for your sake was done. Shall greater dangers
Make the less welcome?
Als. O, thou shouldst have gone
A thousand leagues about to have avoided
This dangerous bridge of blood! Here we are lost.
Beat. Remember, I am true unto your bed.
Als. The bed itself 's a channel, the sheets shreds
For murdered carcasses. It must ask pause
What I must do in this; meantime you shall
Be my prisoner only; enter my closet;
Exit BEATRICE [into closet].
I'll be your keeper yet. O, in what part
Of this sad story shall I first begin? Ha!
This same fellow has put me in. — De Flores!

Enter De Flores.

De F. Noble Alsemero!
Als. I can tell you
News, sir; my wife has her commanded to you.
De F. That 's a news indeed, my lord; I think she would
Commend me to the gallows if she could,
She ever lov'd me so well; I thank her.

Als. What 's this blood upon your band, De Flores?
De F. Blood! no, sure 't was washt since.
Als. Since when, man?
De F. Since t' other day I got a knock,
In a sword-and-dagger school; I think 't is out.
Als. Yes, 't is almost out, but 't is perceiv'd though.
I had forgot my message; this it is,
What price does murder go?
Als. How, sir?
Als. I ask you, sir;
My wife's behind hand with you, she tells me,
For a brave bloody blow you gave for her sake
Upon Piracquo.
De F. Upon? 'T was quite through him sure:
Has she confess'd it?
Als. As sure as death to both of you; and Much more than that.
De F. It could not be more much;
'T was but one thing, and that — she is a whore.
Als. It could not choose but follow. O cum ning devils!
How should blind men know you from fair-fac'd saints?
Beat. [within.] He lies! the villain does belie
me!

De F. Let me go to her, sir.
Als. Nay, you shall to her. —
Peace, crying crocodile, your sounds are heard;
Take your prey to you; — get you into her, sir;
Exit De Flores [into closed].
I'll be your pander now; rehearse again. Your scene of lust, that you may be perfect
When you shall come to act it to the black audience,
Where howls and gnashings shall be music to you.
Clip your adulteress freely, 't is the pilot
Will guide you to the mortua, Where you shall sink to fathom's bottomless.

Enter VIRLANDERO, TORASO, ALIBIAS, ISA
BELLA, FRANCISCUS, and ANTONIO.

Ver. O Alsemero! I 've a wonder for you.
Als. No, sir, 'tis I, I have a wonder for you.
Ver. I have suspicion near as proof itself
For Piracquo's murder.
Als. Sir, I have proof.
Beyond suspicion of Piracquo's murder.
Ver. Beseech you, hear me; these who have been disguis'd
E'er since the deed was done.
Als. I have two other
That were more close disguis'd than your two co could be
E'er since the deed was done.
Ver. You'll hear me — these mine own servants
Als. Hear me — those nearer than your serv
vants
That shall acquit them, and prove them guilt less.
Fran. That may be done with easy truth, sir.

Tom. How is my cause bandied through your delays!

1 Embrace.
Where till this fatal hour 't was never read.

\[\text{Als. Let it be blotted out; let your heart lose it.}\]

And it can never look you in the face,
Nor tell a tale behind the back of life.

\[\text{To your dishonour. Justice hath so right.}\]

The guilty hit, that innocence is quit
By proclamation, and may joy again.

\[\text{Sir, you are sensible of what truth hath done;}\]

'T is the best comfort that your grief can find.

\[\text{Tom. Sir, I am satisfied; my injuries}\]

Lie dead before me; I can exact no more,

\[\text{Unless my soul were loose, and could o'ertake}\]

Those black fugitives that are fled from hence.

\[\text{To take}^2 \text{ a second vengeance; but there are}\]

\[\text{wraths}\]

Deeper than mine, 'tis to be fear'd, about 'em.

\[\text{Als. What an opacous body had that moon}\]

That last chang'd on us! Here is beauty chang'd,

\[\text{To ugly whoredom; here servant-obedience}\]

\[\text{To a master-sin, imperious murder;}\]

\[\text{I, a suppos'd husband, chang'd embraces}\]

\[\text{With wantonness, — but that was paid before.}\]

\[\text{Your change is come too, from an ignorant}\
\text{wrath}\]

\[\text{To knowing friendship. — Are there any more}\
\text{on's?}\]

\[\text{Ant. Yes, sir, I was chang'd too from a little}\ \text{ass as I was to a great fool as I am; and}\]

\[\text{had like to ha' been chang'd to the gallows, but}\]

\[\text{that you know my innocence\textsuperscript{8} always excuses me.}\]

\[\text{Fran. I was chang'd from a little wit to be}\ \text{stark mad,}\]

\[\text{Almost for the same purpose.}\]

\[\text{Isha. Your change is still behind,}\]

\[\text{But deserve best your transformation;}\]

\[\text{You are a jealous coxcomb, keep schools of folly,}\]

\[\text{And teach your scholars how to break your own}\
\text{head.}\]

\[\text{Alib. I see all apparent, wife, and will}\]

\[\text{change now}\]

\[\text{Into a better husband, and ne'er keep}\]

\[\text{Scholars that shall be wiser than myself.}\]

\[\text{Als. Sir, you have yet a son's duty living,}\]

\[\text{Please you, accept it; let that your sorrow}\]

\[\text{As it goes from your eye, go from your heart,}\]

\[\text{Man and his sorrow at the grave must part.}\]

\[\text{EPILLOGUE}\]

\[\text{Als. All we can do to comfort one another,}\]

\[\text{To stay a brother's sorrow for a brother,}\]

\[\text{To dry a child from the kind father's eyes,}\]

\[\text{Is to no purpose, it rather multiplies:}\]

\[\text{Your only smiles have power to cause re-live}\]

\[\text{The dead again, or in their rooms to give}\]

\[\text{Brother a new brother, father a child;}\]

\[\text{If these appear, all griefs are reconcile'd.}\]

\[\text{Exeunt omnes.}\]

\[\text{\textsuperscript{2} Receive.}\]

\[\text{\textsuperscript{8} Idioey.}\]
A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS

BY

PHILIP MASSINGER

Dramatis Personae

[Lord] Lovell, an English Lord.
Sir Giles Overreach, a cruel extortioner.
[Franc] Wellborn, a Prodigal.
[Tom] Allworth, a young Gentleman, Page to Lord Lovell.

GREEDY, a hungry Justice of Peace.
MARRALL, a Term-Driver; a creature of Sir Giles Overreach.

Order [Steward],
Ample [Usher],
Furnace [Cook],
Watchall [Porter],

Servants to the Lady Allworth.

[Scene. — The Country near Nottingham.]

ACT I.

Well. No house? nor no tobacco?
Tap. Not a suck, sir; Nor the remainder of a single can Left by a drunken porter, all night pall’d too. Froth. Not the dropping of the tap for your morning’s draught, sir.
'Tis verity, I assure you.
Well. Verity, you brach! The devil turn’d precision! Rogue, what am I?
Tap. Froth, durst I trust you with a looking-glass,
To let you see your trim shape, you would quiet me
And take the name yourself.
Well. How, dog!
Tap. Even so, sir.
And I must tell you, if you but advance Your Plymouth cloak you shall be soon instructed
There dwells, and within call, if it please your worship,
A potent monarch call’d the constable,
That does command a citadel call’d the stocks;
Whose guards are certain files of rusty billmen
Such as with great dexterity will hale Your tatter’d, lousy —
Well. Rascal! slave!
Froth. No rage, sir.
Tap. At his own peril. Do not put yourself
In too much heat, there being no water near

To quench your thirst; and sure, for other liquor,
As mighty ale, or beer, they are things, I take it,
You must no more remember; not in a dream, sir.
Well. Why, thou unthankful villain, darst thou talk thus!
Is not thy house, and all thou hast, my gift?
Tap. I find it not in chalk; and Timothy Tapwell
Does keep no other register.
Well. Am not I he Whose riots fed and cloth’d thee? Wert thou not Born on my father’s land, and proud to be A drudge in his house?
Tap. What I was, sir, it skills not; What you are, is apparent. Now, for a farewell, Since you talk of father, in my hope it will torment you, I’ll briefly tell your story. Your dead father, My quondam master, was a man of worship, Old Sir John Wellborn, justice of peace and quorum.
And stood fair to be custos rotulorum; Bore the whole sway of the shire, kept a great house. Reliev’d the poor, and so forth; but he dying, And the twelve hundred a year coming to you, Late Master Francis, but now forlorn Wellborn —

Well. Slave, stop! or I shall lose myself.

Froth. Very hardly; You cannot out of your way.

Tap. But to my story:

1 Before Tapwell’s house. 2 Booze, drink. 3 Staled. 4 Hound. 5 Puritan. 6 Cudgel.
You were then a lord of acres, the prime gallant,
And I your under-butler. Note the change now:
You had a merry time of't; hawks and hounds;
With choice of running horses; mistresses
Of all sorts and all sizes, yet so hot,
As their embraces made your lordship melt;
Which your uncle, Sir Giles Overreach, observing;
(Resolving not to lose a drop of 'em,)
On foolish mortgages, statutes, and bonds,
For a while suppliant your looseness, and then left you.
Well. Some curate hath penn'd this invective, mongrel,
And you have studied it.
Tap.
I have not done yet.
Your land gone, and your credit not worth a token,
You grew a common borrower; no man scap'd
Your paper-pellets, from the gentleman.
To the beggars on highways, that sold you switches.
In your gallantry,
Well. I shall switch your brains out.
Tap. Where poor Tim Tapwell, with a little stock,
Some forty pounds or so, bought a small cottage;
Humbled myself to marriage with my Froth here,
Gave entertainment.
Well. Yes, to whores and canters,
Chabbers by night.
Tap. True, but they brought in profit,
And had a gift to pay for what they call'd for,
And stuck not like your mastership. The poor income
I glean'd from them hath made me in my parish
Thought worthy to be scavenger, and in time
May rise to be overseer of the poor;
Which if I do, on your petition, Wellborn,
May allow you thirteen-pence a quarter.
And you shall thank my worship.
Well. Thus, you dog-belt,
And thus——
Beat and kicks him.
Tap, [to his wife.] Cry out for help!
Well. Stir, and thou diest:
Your potent prince, the constable, shall not save you.
Hear me, ungrateful hell-bound! Did not I Make purses for you? Then you lick'd your boots,
And thought your holiday cloak too coarse to clean 'em.
'Twas I that, when I heard thee swear if ever
Thou couldst arrive at forty pounds thou wouldst
Live like an emperor; 't was I that gave it
In ready gold. Deny this, wretch!
Tap.
I must, sir;
For, from the tavern to the taphouse, all,
On forfeiture of their licenses, stand bound ne'er to remember who their best guests were,

If they grew poor like you.
Well. They are well rewarded
That beggar themselves to make such cuckolds rich.
Thou viper, thankless viper! impudent bawd!
But since you have grown forgetful, I will help
Your memory, and tred you into mortar,
Nor leave one bone unbroken.
[Brats him again.]
Tap. Froth.
Enter ALLWORTH.
Well. 'T will not be granted.
All. Hold——for my sake, hold.
Deny me, Frank? They are not worth your anger.
Well. For once thou hast redeem'd them from this sceptre;
But let 'em vanish, creeping on their knees,
And, if they grumble, I revoke my pardon.
Froth. This comes of your prating, husband;
you presumed
On your ambling wit, and must use your glib tongue,
Though you are beaten lame for 't.
Tap. Patience, Froth;
There's law to cure our bruises.
They go off on their hands and knees,
Well. Sent to your mother?
All. My lady, Frank, my patroness, my all!
She's such a mourner for my father's death,
And, in her love to him, so favours me,
That I cannot pay too much observance to her.
There are few such stepdames.
Well. 'T is a noble widow,
And keeps her reputation pure, and clear
From the least taint of infamy; her life,
With the splendour of her actions, leaves no tongue
To envy or detraction. Prithee tell me,
Has she no suitors?
All. Even the best of the shire, Frank,
My lord excepted; such as sue and send,
And send and sue again, but to no purpose;
Their frequent visits have not gain'd her presence.
Yet she's so far from sullenness and pride,
That I dare undertake you shall meet from her
A liberal entertainment. I can give you
A catalogue of her suitors' names.
Well. Forbear it.
While I give you good counsel: I am bound to
it.
Thy father was my friend, and that affection
I bore to him, in right descends to thee;
Thou art a handsome and a hopeful youth;
Nor will I have the least affront stick on thee,
If I with any danger can prevent it.
All. I thank your noble care; but, pray you,
in what
Do I run the hazard?
Well. Art thou not in love?
Put it not off with wonder.

1 Acknowledgments of indebtedness.
2 Whining beggars.
* I. e. his cudgel.
You. Nay, be not angry; there's eight pieces To put you in better fashion.

Well. Money from thee!

From a boy. A stipendiary! One that lives At the devotion of a stepmother
And the uncertain favour of a lord! I'll eat my arms first. Howso' er blind Fortune
Hath spent the utmost of her malice on me —
Though I am vomited out of an alehouse, And thus accoutred — know not where to eat, Or drink, or sleep, but underneath this canopy —

Although I thank thee, I despise thy offer;
And as I in my madness broke my state Without th' assistance of another's brain,
In my right wits I'll piece it; at the worst, Die thus and be forgotten.

All. A strange humour! Exeunt.

SCENE II. 6

[Enter] ORDER, AMBLE, Furnace, and Watchall.

Ord. Set all things right, or, as my name is Order, By this staff of office that commands you, This chain and double ruff, symbols of power, Whoever misses in his function, For one whole week makes forfeiture of his breakfast And privilege in the wine-cellar. Amb. You are merry, Good master steward. Furn. Let him; I'll be angry. Amb. Why, fellow Furnace, 'tis not twelve o'clock yet.

No dinner taking up; then, 'tis allow'd, Cooks, by their places, may be choleric. Furn. You think you have spoke wisely, Goodman Amble, My lady's go-before!

Ord. Nay, nay, no wrangling. Furn. Twit me with the authority of the kitchen!

At all hours, and all places, I'll be angry; And thus provoked, when I am at my prayers Is I will be angry. Amb. There was no hurt meant. Furn. I am friends with thee; and yet I will be angry.

Ord. With whom? Furn. No matter whom: yet, now I think on it, I am angry with my lady. Watch. Heaven forbid, man!

Ord. What cause has she given thee? Furn. Cause enough, master steward.

I was entertain'd by her to please her palate, And, till she forswore eating, I performed it. Now, since our master, noble Allworth, died, Though I crack my brains to find out tempting sauces, And raise fortifications in the pastry

1. I. e. the sky.
2. A room in Lady Allworth's house.

1 Freed.
2 Where servants used to be punished.
3 Slipper.
Such as might serve for models in the Low Countries,
Which, if they had been practised at Breda, Spinola might have thrown his cap at it, and never took it.
Amb. But you had wanted matter there to work on.

Furn. Matter! with six eggs, and a strike 2
of rye meal,
I had kept the town till doomsday, perhaps longer.
Ord. But what's this to your pet against my lady?
Furn. What's this? Marry this: when I am three parts roasted
And the fourth part parboiled to prepare her viands,
She keeps her chamber, dines with a panada 8
Or water-gruel, my sweet never thought on.
Ord. But your art is seen in the dining-room.
Furn. By whom?
By such as pretend love to her, but come
To feed upon her. Yet, of all the harpies
That do devour her, I am out of charity 40
With none so much as the thin-gutted squire
That 's stolen into commission.
Ord.   Justice Greedy?
Furn. The same, the same; meat 's cast away
upon him,
It never thrives; he holds this paradox,
Who eats not well, can ne'er do justice well. 45
His stomach 's as insatiate as the grave,
Or strumpet's ravenous appetites. Knocking.
Watch. One knocks.

Enter ALLWORTH.
Ord. Our late young master!
Amb. Welcome, sir.
Furn. If you have a stomach, a cold bake-meat's ready.
Ord. His father's picture in little.
Furn. We are all your servants. 50
Amb. In you he lives.
All. At once, my thanks to all;
This is yet some comfort. Is my lady stirring?

Enter LADY ALLWORTH, Waiting Woman, and Chambermaid.

Ord. Her presence answers for us.
L. All. Sort those silks well.
I'll take the air alone.
Exeunt W. Woman and Chambermaid.
Furn. You air and air;
But will you never taste but spoon-meat more?
To what use serve I?
L. All. Prithee, be not angry; 55
I shall ere long: I' the mean time, there is gold
To buy thee aprons, and a summer suit.
Furn. I am appeas'd, and Furnace now grows cool.4

L. All. And, as I gave directions, if this morning
I am visited by any, entertain 'em
As heretofore: but say, in my excuse,
I am indispos'd.
Ord. I shall, madam.
L. All. Do, and leave them.

Nay, stay, you, Allworth.
Exeunt ORDER, AMBLE, FURNACE, and WATCHALL.

All. I shall gladly grow here,
To wait on your commands.
L. All. So soon turn'd courtier! 65
All. Style not that courtship, madam, which is duty
Purchases'd on your part.
L. All. Well, you shall o'ercome;
I'll not contend in words. How is it with Your noble master?
All. Ever like himself,
No scruple lessen'd in the full weight of hono-
our.
He did command me, pardon my presumption,
As his unworthy deputy, to kiss
Your ladyship's fair hands.
L. All. I am honour'd in His favour to me. Does he hold his purpose
For the Low Countries?
All. Constantly, good madam; 70
But he will in person first present his service.
L. All. And how approve you of his course?
You are yet
Like virgin parchment, capable of any Inscription, vicious or honourable.
I will not force your will, but leave you free 80
To your own election.
All. Any form you please
I will put on; but, might I make my choice,
With humble emulation I would follow
The path my lord marks to me.
L. All. 'Tis well answer'd,
And I commend your spirit. You had a father,
Blest be his memory! that some few hours
Before the will of Heaven took him from me,
Who did commend you, by the dearest ties
Of perfect love between us, to my charge;
And, therefore, what I speak you are bound to hear
With such respect as if he liv'd in me.
He was my husband, and how'er you are not
Son of my womb, you may be of my love,
Provided you deserve it.
All. I have found you,
Most honour'd madam, the best mother to me;
And, with my utmost care of service,
Will labour that you never may repent
Your bounties shower'd upon me.
L. All. I much hope it.
These were your father's words: "If e'er my son
Follow the war, tell him it is a school
Where all the principles tending to honour
Are taught, if truly followed: but for such
As repair thither as a place in which
They do presume they may with license practise
Their lusts and riots, they shall never merit
The noble name of soldiers. To dare boldly
In a fair cause, and for their country's safety
To run upon the cannon's mouth undaunted;
To obey their leaders, and shun mutinies;
To bear with patience the winter's cold
And summer's searching heat, and not to faint,
When plenty of provision fails, with hunger;
Are the essential parts make up a soldier,
Not swearing, dice, or drinking. All.
There's no syllable
You speak, but is to me an oracle. L. All.
Which but to doubt were impious.
Beware ill company, for often men
Are like to those with whom they do converse;
And, from one man I warn you, and that's Wellborn:
Not 'cause he's poor, that rather claims your pity;
But that he's in his manners so debauc'd,
And hath to vicious courses sold himself.
'T is true, your father lov'd him, while he was Worthy the loving; but if he had liv'd
To have seem him as he is, he had cast him off,
As you must do. All.
I shall obey in all things. L. All.
Follow me to my chamber, you shall have gold
To furnish you like my son, and still supplied,
As I hear from you. All.
I am still your creature. Exeunt.

SCENE III.

[Enter] OVERREACH, GREEDY, ORDER, AMBLE, FURNACE, WATCHALL, and MARRALL.

Greedy. Not to be seen! Over.
Still cloister'd up! Her reason, I hope, assures her, though she make herself Close prisoner ever for her husband's loss, Ord.
'T will not recover him.

Ord. Sir, it is her will,
Which we, that are her servants, ought to serve it,
And not dispute. Over. You are nobly welcome,
And, if you please to stay, that you may think so,
There came, not six days since, from Hull, a pipe
Of rich Canary, which shall spend itself
For my lady's honour.

Greedy. Is it of the right race? Ord.
Yes, Master Greedy. Amb.
How's his mouth runs o'er! Furn. I'll make it run, and run. Save your good worship!

Greedy. Honest Master Cook, thy hand; again, how I love thee!
Are the good dishes still in being? Speak, boy. Furn.
If you have a mind to feed, there is a chine
Of beef, well seasoned. Greedy.

Furn. A pheasant, larded. Greedy. That I might now give thanks for 't! Furn.
Other kickshaws.

Besides, there came last night, from the forest
Of Sherwood,
The fattest stag I ever cook'd. Greedy.
Furn. A stag, sir; part of it prepar'd for dinner,
And bak'd in puff-paste. Greedy.
Puff-paste too! Sir Giles, a ponderous chine of beef! a pheasant larded!
And red deer too, Sir Giles, and bak'd in puff-paste!
All business set aside, let us give thanks here.
Furn. How the lean skeleton's rap't! Over.
You know we cannot. Mar.
Your worships are to sit on a commission,
And if you fail to come, you lose the cause.
Greedy. Cause me no causes. I'll prove it, for such dinner
We may put off a commission: you shall find it Henrici decimo quarto. Over.
Fie, Master Greedy!
Will you lose me a thousand pounds for a dinner?
No more, for shame! We must forget the belly
When we think of profit. Greedy.
Well, you shall o'er-rule me; I could ev'n cry now.—Do you hear, Master Cook,
Send but a corner of that immortal pasty,
And I, in thankfulness, will, by your boy,
Send you — a brace of three-pences. Furn.
Will you be so prodigal?

[Enter] WELLBORN.

Over. Remember me to your lady. Who have we here?
Well. You know me. Over.
I did once, but now I will not;
Thou art no blood of mine. Amb.
Avault, thou beggar!
If ever thou presume to own me more,
I'll have thee cag'd and whip'd. Greedy.
I'll grant the warrant.
Think of. Pie-corner. Furnace!
Exeunt OVERREACH, GREEDY, and MARRALL.

Watch. Will you out, sir?
I wonder how you durst creep in. Ord.
This is rudeness, and saucy impudence. Amb.
Canst not you stay?
To be serv'd, among your fellows, from the basket;
But you must needs press into the hall? Furn.
Prithee, vanish. My summons shall come to thee.

[Enter] ALLWORTH.

Well.
This is rare.
Oh, here's Tom Allworth. Tom!
All. We must be strangers; nor would I have you seen here for a million,

Well. Better and better. He contemns me too!

Enter Waiting Woman and Chambermaid.

Woman. Foh, what a smell's here! What thing's this?

Cham. A creature
Made out of the privy; let us hence, for love's sake.

Or I shall swoon.

Woman. I begin to feel faint already.

Exit W. Woman and Chambermaid.

Watch. Will you know your way; Amb. Or shall we teach it you, By the head and shoulders?

Well. No; I will not stir; Do you mark, I will not: let me see the wretch That dares attempt to force me. Why, you slaves, Created only to make legs and cringe; To carry in a dish, and shift a trencher; That have not souls only to hope a blessing Beyond black-jacks or flagons; you, that were born Only to consume meat and drink, andatten Upon reversions!—who advances? Who Shews me the way?

Ord. My lady!

Enter Lady Allworth, Waiting Woman, and Chambermaid.

Cham. Here's the monster.
Woman. Sweet madam, keep your glove to your nose.

Cham. Or let me Fetch some perfumes may be predominant; You wrong yourself else.

Well. Madam, my designs Bear me to you.

L. All. To me!

Well. And though I have met with But ragged entertainment from your grooms here, I hope from you to receive that noble Psige As may become the true friend of your husband, And then I shall forget these.

L. All. I am amaz'd.

To see and hear this rudeness. Dar'st thou think, Though sworn, that it can ever find belief, That I, who to the best men of this country Deni'd my presence since my husband's death, Can fall so low as to change words with thee?

Thou son of infancy, forbear my house, And know and keep the distance that's between us;
Or, though it be against my gentler temper, I shall take order you no more shall be An eyesore to me.

Well. Scorn me not, good lady; But, as in form you are angelical, Imitate the heavenly natures, and vouchsafe At the least awhile to hear me. You will grant The blood that runs in this arm is as noble As that which fills your veins; those costly jewels, And those rich clothes you wear, your men's observance, And women's flattery, are in you no virtues, Nor these rags, with my poverty, in me vices.

You have a fair fame, and, I know, deserve it; Yet, lady, I must say, in nothing more Than in the pious sorrow you have shewn For your late noble husband.

Ord. How she starts!

Furn. And hardly can keep finger from the eye,

To hear him nam'd.

L. All. Have you aught else to say?

Well. That husband, madam, was once in his fortune

Almost as low as I; want, debts, and quarrels Lay heavy on him: let it not be thought A boast in me, though I say I relievi'd him. 'Twas I that gave him fashion; mine the sword That did on all occasions second his; I brought him on and off with honour, lady; And when in all men's judgments he was sunk, And, in his own hopes, not to be buyc'd up, I stepp'd unto him, took him by the hand, And set him upright.

Furn. Are not we base rogues, That could forget this?

Well. I confesse, you made him Master of your estate; nor could your friends, Though he brought no wealth with him, blame you for 't; For he had a shape, and to that shape a mind Made up of all parts either great or noble; So winning a behaviour, not to be Resisted, madam.

L. All. 'Tis most true, he had.

Well. For his sake, then, in that I was his friend, Do not contemn me, L. All. For what's past excuse me, I will redeem it. Order, give the gentleman A hundred pounds.

Well. No, madam, on no terms: I will nor beg nor borrow sixpence of you, But be suppli'd elsewhere, or want thus ever. Only one suit I make, which you deny not To strangers; and 'tis this. Whispers to her.

L. All. Eie! nothing else?

Well. Nothing, unless you please to charge your servants To throw away a little respect upon me.

L. All. What you demand is yours.

Well. I thank you, lady.

Now what can be wrought out of such a suit Is yet in supposition: I have said all; When you please, you may retire.

[Exit Lady All.]
Nay, all’s forgotten; [To the Servants.]
And, for a lucky omen to my project,
Shake hands, and end all quarrels in the cellar.
Ord. Agreed, agreed.
Furn. Still merry Master Wellborn.
Exeunt.

ACT II

SCENE I.1

Enter OVERREACH and MARRALL.

Over. He’s gone, I warrant thee; this commission crush’d him.

Mar. Your worships have the way on’t, and ne’er miss
To squeeze these unthrifts into air; and yet,
The chapfallen 2 justice did his part, returning
For your advantage the certificate,
Against his conscience, and his knowledge too,
With your good favour, to the utter ruin
Of the poor farmer.

Over. ’T was for these good ends
I made him a justice; he that bribes his belly,
Is certain to command his soul.

Mar. Still with your license, why your worship hav- ing
The power to put his thin-gut in commission,
You are not in’t yourself? 4

Over. Thou art a fool;
In being out of office I am out of danger;
Where, if I were a justice, besides the trouble,
I might, or out of wilfulness or error,
Run myself dinsky into a prentice, 5
And so become a prey to the informer.
No, I’ll have none of ’t; ’t is enough I keep Greedy at my devotion; so he serve
My purposes, let him hang or damn, I care not;
Friendship is but a word.

Mar. You are all wisdom.

Over. I would be worldly wise; for the other wisdom,
That does prescribe us a well govern’d life,
And to do right to others as ourselves,
I value not an atom.

Mar. What course take you,
With your good patience, to hedge in the manor
Of your neighbour, Master Frugal? as ’tis said
He will nor sell, nor borrow, nor exchange;
And his land, lying in the midst of your many lordships
Is a foul blemish.

Over. I have thought on ’t, Marrall, and it shall take. I must have all men sellers,
And I the only purchaser.

Mar. ’T is most fit, sir.

Over. I’ll therefore buy some cottage near his manor,
Which done, I’ll make my men break ope his fences,
Ride o’er his standing corn, and in the night
Set fire on his barns, or break his cattle’s legs.

1 A room in Overreach’s house. 2 Hollow-cheeked.
And 'tis my glory, though I come from the city, To have their issue whom I have undone, To kneel to mine as bondslaves.

Mar. 'Tis fit state, sir.

Over. And therefore, I'll not have a chambermaid.

That ties her shoes, or any meaner office, 68 But such whose fathers were right worshipful,

'Tis a rich man's pride! there having ever been
More than a feud, a strange antipathy,
Between us and true gentry.

Enter Wellborn.

Mar. See, who's here, sir.

Over. Hence, monster! prodigy!

Well. Sir, your wife's nephew; 90

She and my father tumbled in one belly,

Over. Avoid my sight! thy breath's infectious, rogue!

I shun thee as a leprosy, or the plague.

Come hither, Marrall — [aside] this is the time
To work him. Exit.

Mar. I warrant you, sir.

Well. By this light I think he's mad. 98

Mar. Mad! had you ta'en compassion on yourself,

You long since had been mad.

Well. You have ta'en a course,

Between you and my venerable uncle,

To make me so.

Mar. The more pale-spirited you.

That would not be instructed. I swear deeply

Well. By what?

Mar. By my religion.

Well. Thy religion!

The devil's creed: — but what would you have done?

Mar. Had there been but one tree in all the shire,

Nor any hope to compass a penny halter,

Before, like you, I had outliv'd my fortunes, 103

A wife had serv'd my turn to hang myself.

I am zealous in your cause; pray you hang yourself,

And presently, as you love your credit.

Well. I thank you.

Mar. Will you stay till you die in a ditch, or Live devour you? —

Or, if you dare not do the feat yourself,

But that you'll put the state to charge and trouble,

Is there no purse to be cut, house to be broken,

Or market-woman with eggs, that you may murder,

And so dispatch the business?

Well. Here's variety,

I must confess; but I'll accept of none

Of all your genteel offers, I assure you.

Mar. Why, have you hope ever to eat again,

Or drink? or be the master of three farthings?

If you like not hanging, drown yourself: Take some course

For your reputation.

Well. 'Twill not do, dear tempter, 120

With all the rhetoric the fiend hath taught you.

I am as far as thou art from despair;

Nay, I have confidence, which is more than hope,

To live, and suddenly, better than ever.

Mar. Ha! ha! these castles you build in the air

Will not persuade me to give or lend

A token to you.

Well. I'll be more kind to thee:

Come, thou shalt dine with me.

Mar. With you!

Well. Nay more, dine gratis.

Mar. Under what hedge, I pray you? or at whose cost?

Are they padders or abram-men that are your consorts?

Well. Thou art incredulous; but thou shalt dine

Not alone at her house, but with a gallant lady;

With me, and with a lady.

Mar. Lady! what lady?

With the Lady of the Lake, or Queen of Fairies?

For I know it must be an enchanted dinner. 132

Well. With the Lady Allworth, knave.

Mar. Nay, now there's hope

Thy brain is crack'd.

Well. Mark there, with what respect

I am entertain'd.

Mar. With choice, no doubt, of dog-whips.

Why, dost thou ever hope to pass her porter?

Well. 'Tis not far off, go with me; trust thine own eyes.

Mar. Troth, in my hope, or my assurance rather,

To see thee curvet and mount like a dog in a blanket,

If ever thou presume to pass her threshold,

I will endure thy company.

Well. Come along then. Exeunt.

SCENE II. 8

Woman. Could you not command your leisure one hour longer?

Cham. Or half an hour?

All. I have told you what my haste is:

Besides, being now another's, not mine own,

How'er I much desire to enjoy you longer,

My duty suffers, if, to please myself,

I should neglect my lord.

Woman. Pray you do me the favour

To put these few quince-cakes into your pockeet;

They are of mine own preserving.

Cham. And this marmalade;

'Tis comfortable for your stomach.

Woman. And, at parting,

Excuse me if I beg a farewell from you. 10

1 At once.

2 Footpads.

3 Beggars pretending lunacy.

4 Bound. The reference is to the game of tossing in a blanket.

5 A room in Lady Allworth's house.
A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS

Cham. You are still before me. I move the same suit, sir. [ALLWORTH] kisses them severally.

Furn. How greedy these chamberers are of a beardless chin!

I think the tits will ravish him.

All. My service

To both.

Woman. Ours waits on you.

Cham. And shall do ever.

Ord. You are my lady's charge, be therefore careful

That you sustain your parts.

Woman. We can bear, I warrant you.

Exeunt W. Woman and Chambermaid.

Furn. Here, drink it off; the ingredients are cordial,

And this the true elixir; it hath boil'd

Since midnight for you. 'T is the quintessence

Of five cocks of the game, ten dozen of sparrows,

Knuckles of veal, potato-roots and marrow,

Coral and ambergris. Were you two years older,

And I had a wife, or gamesome mistress,

I durst trust you with neither. You need not boast

After this, I warrant you, though your journey's long;

You may ride on the strength of this till tomorrow morning.

All. Your courtesies overwhelm me: I much grieve

To part from such true friends; and yet find comfort,

My attendance on my honourable lord,

Whose resolution holds to visit my lady,

Will speedily bring me back.

Mar. (within.) Dar'st thou venture further?

Well. (within.) Yes, yes, and knock again.

Ord. If you use it bravely.

Furn. I know my cue, ne'er doubt me.

Exeunt [all but ALLWORTH].

[Enter WATCHALL, ceremoniously introducing WELBORN and MARRALL.]

Watch. Beast that I was, to make you stay! Most welcome!

You were long since expected.

Well. Say so much

To my friend, I pray you.

Watch. For your sake, I will, sir.

Mar. For his sake! this is nothing.

Well. Mum; this is nothing.

Mar. More than ever

I would have believ'd, though I had found it in my primer.

All. When I have given your reasons for my late harshness,

You'll pardon and excuse me; for, believe me,

Though now I part abruptly, in my service

I will deserve it.

II. ii.

Mar. Service! with a vengeance!

Well. I am satisfied: farewell, Tom. All. All joy stay with you! Exit.

Re-enter AMBLE.

Amb. You are happily encounter'd; I yet never

Presented one so welcome as I know

You will be to my lady.

Mar. This is some vision,

Or, sure, these men are mad, to worship a dunghill;

It cannot be a truth.

Well. Be still a pagan,

An unbelieving infidel; be so, miscreant,

And meditate on "blankets, and on dog-whips!"

Re-enter FURNACE.

Furn. I am glad you are come; until I know your pleasure

I knew not how to serve up my lady's dinner.

Mar. His pleasure is it possible?

Well. What's thy will?

Furn. Marry, sir, I have some grouse, and turkey chicken,

Some rash 2 and quails, and my lady will'd me ask you

What kind of sauces best affect your palate,

That I may use my utmost skill to please it.

Mar. [Aside.] The devil's enter'd this cook.

Sauce for his palate!

That, on my knowledge, for almost this twelve-month,

Durst wish but cheese-parings and brown bread on Sundays.

Well. That way I like 'em best.

Furn. It shall be done, sir. Exit.

Well. What think you of "the hedge we shall dine under?"

Shall we feed gratis?

Mar. I know not what to think;

Pray you make me not mad.

Re-enter ORDER.

Ord. This place becomes you not; 4

Pray you walk, sir, to the dining room.

Well. I am well here, Till her ladyship quits her chamber.

Mar. Well here, say you? 'T is a rare change! But yesterday you thought Yourself well in a barn, wrap'd up in pease-straw.

Re-enter Waiting Woman and Chambermaid.

Woman. O! sir, you are wish'd for.

Cham. My lady dreamt, sir, of you.

Woman. And the first command she gave, after she rose,

Was (her devotions done) to give her notice

When you approach'd here.

Cham. Which is done, on my virtue.

Mar. I shall be converted; I begin to grow

Into a new belief, which saints nor angels

Could have won me to have faith in.

Woman. 2 Marsh birds. Sir, my lady!
Enter LADY ALLWORTH.

L. All. I come to meet you, and languish'd till I saw you. This first kiss is for form; I allow a second to such a friend. [Kisses WELLBORN.]

Mar. To such a friend! Heaven bless me! Well, I am wholly yours; yet, madam, if you please.

To grace this gentleman with a salute —

Mar. Salute me at his bidding —

Well. I shall receive it as a most high favour.

L. All. Sir, you may command me. [Advances to kiss MARRALL, who retires.]

Well. Run backward from a lady! and such a lady!

Mar. To kiss her foot is, to poor me, a favour I am unworthy of.

L. All. Nay, pray you rise;

And since you are so humble, I'll extol you.

You shall dine with me to-day, at mine own table.

Mar. Your ladyship's table! I am not good enough to sit at your steward's board.

L. All. You are too modest; I will not be deny'd.

Re-enter FURNACE.

Furn. Will you still be babbling? Till your meat freeze on the table? The old trick still;

My art ne'er thought on!

L. All. Your arm, Master Wellborn: —

Nay, keep us company. [To MARRALL.]

Mar. I was ne'er so graci'd.

Exeunt WELLBORN, LADY ALLWORTH, AMBLE, MARRALL, W. Woman, [and Chambermaid.]

Ord. So! we have play'd our parts, and are come off well; But if I know the mystery, why my lady Consented to it, or why Master Wellborn Desir'd it, may I perish!

Furn. Would I had the roasting of his heart that chear'd him, And forces the poor gentleman to these shifts! By fire! for cooks are Persians, and swear by it,

Of all the griping and extorting tyrants I ever heard or read of, I ne'er met A match to Sir Giles Overreach.

Watch. What will you take To tell him so, fellow Furnace?

Furn. Just as much As my throat is worth, for that would be the price on 't.

To have a usurer that starves himself, And wears a cloak of one and twenty years On a suit of fourteen groats, bought of the hangman, To grow rich, and then purchase, is too common;

But this Sir Giles feeds high, keeps many servants, Who must at his command do any outrage;

Rich in his habit, vast in his expenses; Yet he to admiration 1 still increases In wealth and lordships.

Ord. He frights men out of their estates, And breaks through all law-nets, made to curb ill men, As they were cobwebs. No man dares reprove him. Such a spirit to dare and power to do were never Lodg'd so unluckily.

Re-enter AMBLE [laughing].

Amb. Ha! ha! I shall burst.

Ord. Contain thyself, man.

Furn. Or make us partakers Of your sudden mirth.

Amb. Ha! ha! my lady has got 120 Such a guest at her table! — this term-driver, MARRALL, This snip of an attorney —

Furn. What of him, man?

Amb. The knave thinks still he's at the cook's shop in Ram Alley,

Where the clerks divide, and the elder is to choose;

And feeds so slovenly!

Furn. Is this all?

Amb. My lady 125 Drank to him for fashion sake, or to please Master Wellborn; As I live, he rises, and takes up a dish In which there were some remnants of a boil'd capon, And pledges her in white broth!

Furn. Nay, 't is like The rest of his tribe.

Amb. And when I brought him wine, 130 He leaves his stool, and, after a leg or two, Most humbly thanks my worship.

Ord. Risen already!

Amb. I shall be chid.

Re-enter LADY ALLWORTH, WELLBORN, and MARRALL.

Furn. My lady frowns.

L. All. You wait well! [To AMBLE.] Let me have no more of this: I observ'd your jeering. Sirrah, I'll have you know, whom I think worthy To sit at my table, be he ne'er so mean, When to sit at my table, be he ne'er so mean, When he present, is not your companion.

Ord. Nay, she'll preserve what's due to her.

Furn. This refreshing follows your flux of laughter.

L. All. [to WELLBORN.] You are master Of your own will. I know so much of manners, As not to inquire your purposes; in a word, 14 To me you are ever welcome, as to a house That is your own.

Wel. [Aside to MARRALL.] Mark that.

Mar. With reverence, sir,

An it like your worship.

1 Marvellously.

2 Off Fleet Street, famous for its restaurants.
Well. Trouble yourself no further.
Dear madam; my heart is full of zeal and service,

However in my language I am sparing.

Come, Master Marrall.

Mar. I attend your worship.

Exeunt WELLBORN and MARRALL.

L. All. I see in your looks you are sorry, and you know me An easy mistress. Be merry; I have forgot all.

Order and Furnace, come with me; I must give you

Further directions. What you please,

Furn. We are ready. Exeunt.

Scene III.

[Enter] WELLBORN, and MARRALL [bare-headed].

Well. I think I am in a good way.

Mar. Good Sir, the best way.

The certain best way.

Well. There are casualties
That men are subject to.

Mar. You are above 'em;
And as you are already worshipful,
I hope ere long you will increase in worship, and be right worshipful.

Well. Prithee do not flout me:
What I shall be, I shall be. Is't for your ease,
You keep your hat off?

Mar. Base! an it like your worship!

I hope Jack Marrall shall not live so long,
To prove himself such an unruly beast,
Though it hail hazel-nuts, as to be cover'd,
When your worship's present.

Well. (Aside.) Is not this a true rogue,
That, out of mere hope of a future coz'nage,
Can turn thus suddenly? 'Tis rank already.

Mar. I know your worship's wise, and needs
No counsel,

Yet if, in my desire to do you service,
I humbly offer my advice, (but still Under correction,) I hope I shall not Incur your high displeasure.

Well. No; speak freely.

Mar. Then, in my judgment, sir, my simple judgment, (Still with your worship's favour,) I could wish you

A better habit, for this cannot be

But much distasteful to the noble lady
(I say no more) that loves you; for, this morning,

To me, and I am but a swine to her,

Before th' assurance of her wealth perfum'd you,

You savour'd not of amber.

Well. I do now then!

Mar. This your baton hath got a touch of it. Kisses the end of his cudgel.

Yet, if you please, for change, I have twenty pounds here,

1. The country near Lady Allworth's house.
2. Cheating.
3. Ambergris, a fashionable perfume.

Which, out of my true love, I'll presently Lay down at your worship's feet; 't will serve to buy you

A riding suit.

Well. But where's the horse?

Mar. My gelding

Is at your service; nay, you shall ride me.

Before your worship shall be put to the trouble

To walk afoot. Alas, when you are lord

Of this lady's manor, as I know you will be,

You may with the lease of glebe land, called

Knave's-acre,

A place I would manure, 't require your vassal.

Well. I thank thy love, but must make no use of it;

What's twenty pounds?

Mar. 'Tis all that I can make, sir.

Well. Dost thou think, though I want clothes, I could not have 'em,

For one word to my lady?

Mar. As I know not that!

Well. Come, I will tell thee a secret, and so leave thee.

I will not give her the advantage, though she be

A gallant-minded lady, after we are married, (There being no woman but is sometimes forward.)

To hit me in the teeth, and say, she was forc'd

To buy my wedding-clothes, and took me on

With a plain riding-suit, and an ambling nag.

No, I'll be furnish'd something like myself,

And so farewell: for thy suit touching Knave's-acre,

When it is mine, 'tis thine.

Mar. I thank your worship. Exit WELLBORN.

How was I cozen'd in the calculation

Of this man's fortune! My master cozen'd too, Whose pupil I am in the art of undoing men; for

That is our profession! Well, well, Master Wellborn,

You are of a sweet nature, and fit again to be cheated:

Which, if the Fates please, when you are possess'd

Of the land and lady, you, sans question, shall be.

I'll presently think of the means.

Walks by, musing.

Enter OVERREACH, [speaking to a Servant within.]

Over. Sirrah, take my horse. I'll walk to get me an appetite; 't is but a mile, And exercise will keep me from being pursy.

Ha! Marrall! Is he conjuring? Perhaps

The knave has wrought the prodigal to do
Some outrage on himself, and now he feels

Compunction in his conscience for 't: no matter, So it be done, Marrall!

Mar. Sir.

Over. How succeed we

In our plot on Wellborn?

Mar. Never better, sir.

Over. Has he hang'd or drown'd himself?

1. Cultivate. 2. Cheated. 3. Fat and short winded.
Mar. No, sir, he lives.
Lives once more to be made a prey to you.
A greater prey than ever.

Over. Art thou in thy wits?
If thou art, reveal this miracle, and briefly.

Mar. A lady, sir, is fall’n in love with him.

Over. With him? What lady?

Mar. The rich lady Allworth.

Over. Thou dost! how darst thou speak this?

Mar. I speak truth; and I do so but once a year, unless it be to you, sir. We din’d with her ladyship, I thank her worship.

Over. His worship!

Mar. As I live, sir, I din’d with him, at the great lady’s table, as simple as I stand here; and saw when she kiss’d him.

And would, at his request, have kiss’d me too:
But I was not so audacious as some youths are, that dare do anything, be it ne’er so absurd, and said after performance.

Over. Why, thou rascal! To tell me these impossibilities!
Dine at her table! and kiss him! or thee!—Impudent varlet, have not I myself, to whom great countesses’ doors have oft flew open.

Ten times attempted, since her husband’s death,
In vain, to see her, though I came—a suitor?
And yet your good solicitorship, and rogue Wellborn, were brought into her presence, feasted with her!

But that I know thee a dog that cannot blush, this most incredible lie would call up one on thy buttermilk cheeks.

Mar. Shall I not trust my eyes, sir?

Or taste? I feel her good cheer in my belly.

Over. You shall feel me, if you give not over, sirrah.

Recover your brains again, and be no more gull’d
With a beggar’s plot, assisted by the aids
Of serving-men and chambermaids, for beyond these,
Thou never saw’st a woman, or I’ll quit you from my employments.

Mar. Will you credit this yet?
On my confidence of their marriage, I offer’d Wellborn—

(Aside.) I would give a crown now I durst say his worship—

My nag and twenty pounds.

Over. Did you so, idiot! (Strikes him down.)

Was this the way to work him to despair, or rather to cross me?

Mar. Will your worship kill me?

Over. No, no; but drive the living spirit out of you.

Mar. He’s gone.

Over. I have done then: now, forgetting your late imaginary feast and lady,

Know, my Lord Lovell dines with me to-morrow.

Be careful not to want him to receive him;

And bid my daughter’s women trim her up,
Though they paint her, so she catch the lord,
I’ll thank them.

There’s a piece for my late blows.

Mar. (Aside.) I must yet suffer:

But there may be a time—

Over. Do you grumble?

Mar. No, sir. [Exeunt.]

ACT III

SCENE I. [Enter Lord] Lovell, Allworth, and Servants.

Lov. Walk the horses down the hill: something in private

I must impart to Allworth. [Exeunt Servants.]

All. O, my lord,

What a sacrifice of reverence, duty, watching,

Although I could put off the use of sleep,

And ever wait on your commands to serve them;

What dangers, though in ne’er so horrid shapes,

Nay death itself, though I should run to meet it,

Can I, and with a thankful willingness, suffer!

But still the retribution will fall short

Of your bounties shower’d upon me.

Lov. Loving youth, till what I purpose be put into act,

Do not o’erprize it; since you have trusted me

With your soul’s nearest, nay, her dearest secret,

Rest confident ’tis in a cabinet lock’d

Treachery shall never open, I have found you

(For so much to your face I must profess, How ever you guard your modesty with a blush

for ’t)

More zealous in your love and service to me

Than I have been in my rewards.

All. Still great ones,

Above my merit.

Lov. Such your gratitude calls ’em; nor am I of that harsh and rugged temper
As some great men are tax’d with, who imagine

They part from the respect due to their honours

If they use not all such as follow ’em.

Without distinction of their births, like slaves.

I am not so condition’d; I can make

A fitting difference between my footboy

And a gentleman by want compell’d to serve me.

All. ’Tis thankfully acknowledg’d: you have been

More like a father to me than a master.

Pray you, pardon the comparison.

Lov. I allow it;

And, to give you assurance I am pleas’d in ’t,
My carriage and demeanour to your mistress,
Fair Margaret, shall truly witness for me

I can command my passions.

All. ’Tis a conquest

1 The country near Overreach’s house. 2 Charged.
Few lords can boast of when they are tempted —Oh!

Lou. Why do you sigh? Can you be doubtful of me?

By that fair name I in the wars have purchased,
And all my actions, hitherto untainted,
I will not be more true to mine own honour
Than to my Allworth.

All. As you are the brave Lord Lovell,
Your bare word only given is an assurance
Of more validity and weight to me
Than all the oaths, bound up with imprecations,
Which, when they would deceive, most courtiers practise;
Yet being a man, (for, sure, to style you more
Would relish of gross flattery,) I am forc'd,
Against my confidence of your worth and virtues,
To doubt, nay, more, to fear.

Lou. So young, and jealous!

All. Were you to encounter with a single foe,
The victory were certain; but to stand
The charge of two such potent enemies,
At once assailing you, as wealth and beauty,
And those too seconded with power, is odds
Top great for Hercules.

Lou. Speak your doubts and fears,

Since you will nourish 'em, in plainer language,
That I may understand them.

All. What's your will,
Though I lend arms against myself, (provided
They may advantage you,) must be obeyed.
My much-lov'd lord, were Margaret only fair,
The cannon of her more than earthly form,
Though mounted high, commanding all beneath it,
And ramm'd with bullets of her sparkling eyes,
Of all the bulwarks that defend your senses
Could batter none, but that which guards your sight.

But when the well-tun'd accents of her tongue
Make music to you, and with numerous sounds Assault your hearing, (such as if Ulysses
Now liv'd again, how'er he stood the Syrens,
Could not resist,) the combat must grow doubt
Between your reason and rebellious passions.

Add this too; when you feel her touch, and breath
Like a soft western wind when it glides o'er Arabia, creating gums and spices;
And, in the van, the nectar of her lips,
Which you must taste, bring the battalia on,
Well arm'd, and strongly lin'd with her discourse,
And knowing manners, to give entertainment;
Hippolythus himself would leave Diana,
To follow such a Venus.

Lou. Love hath made you

Poetical, Allworth.

All. Grant all these beat off,
Which if it be in man to do, you'll do it,
Manmon, in Sir Giles Overreach, steps in
With heaps of ill-got gold, and so much land,
To make her more remarkable, as would tire
A falcon's wings in one day to fly over.

O my good lord! these powerful aids, which would Make a mis-shapen negro beautiful, (Yet are but ornaments to give her lustre,
That in herself is all perfection,) must Preval for her. I here release your trust;
'T is happiness enough for me to serve you
And sometimes, with chaste eyes, to look upon her.

Lou. Why, shall I swear?

All. O, by no means, my lord;
And wrong not so your judgment to the world
As from your fond indulgence to a boy,
Your page, your servant, to refuse a blessing.
Divers great men are rivals for.

Lou. suspend
Your judgment till the trial. How far is it
To Overreach's house?

All. At the most, some half hour's riding;
You'll soon be there.

Lou. And you the sooner freed
From your jealous fears.

All. O that I durst but hope it! Exeunt.

Scene II.

[Enter] Overreach, Greedy, and MARRALL.

Over. Spare for no cost; let my dressers crack with the weight
Of curious viands.

Over. That proverb fits your stomach, Mas

Greedy. And let no plate be seen but what's pure gold,
Or such whose workmanship exceeds the matter
That it is made of; let my choicest linen
Perfume the room, and, when we wash, the water,
With precious powders mix'd, so please my lord
That he may with envy wish to bathe so ever.

Mar. 'T will be very chargeable.

Over. Avaunt, you drudge! Now all my labour'd ends are at the stake,
Is 't a time to think of thrift? Call in my daughter.

[Exit MARRALL]

And, Master Justice, since you love choice dishes,
And plenty of 'em ——

Greedy. As I do, indeed, sir,
Almost as much as to give thanks for 'em.

Over. I do confer that providence, with my power
Of absolute command to have abundance,
To your best care.

Greedy. I'll punctually discharge it,
And give the best directions. Now am I,

In mine own conceit, a monarch; at the least,
Arch-president of the boil'd, the roast, the bak'd;
For which I will eat often, and give thanks
When my belly's brace'd up like a drum, and that's pure justice. Exit.

Over. It must be so. Should the foolish girl prove modest,
She may spoil all; she had it not from me.
But from her mother; I was ever forward,
As she must be, and therefore I'll prepare her.

[Enter] MARGARET.

Alone — and let your women wait without.
Mary. Your pleasure, sir?
Over. Ha! this is a neat dressing!
These orient pearls and diamonds well plac'd
too!

The gown affects me not, it should have been Embroider'd o'er and o'er with flowers of gold;
But these rich jewels and quaint fashion help
it.

And how below? since oft the wanton eye
The face observ'd, descends unto the foot,
Which being well proportion'd, as yours is,
Invites as much as perfect white and red,
Though without art. How like you your new
woman,
The Lady Downfall'n?
Mary. Not as a servant.
Over. Is she humble, Meg?
Mary. I pity her fortune.

Over. Pity her! trample on her.
I took her up in an old tamin gown, (Even starv'd for want of twopenny chops) to serve thee;
And if I understand she but repines
To do thee any duty, though ne'er so servile, I'll pack her to her knight, where I have lodg'd him,
Into the Counter² and there let 'em howl to-gether.

Mary. You know your own ways; but for me,
I blush
When I command her, that was once attended
With persons not inferior to myself.
In birth.

Over. In birth! why, art thou not my daughter,
The blest child of my industry and wealth?
Why, foolish girl, was 't not to make thee great
That I have run, and still pursue, those ways?
That hale down curses on me, which I mind not?
Part with these humble thoughts, and apt² thyself
To the noble state labor to advance thee;
Or, by my hopes to see thee honourable,
I will adopt a stranger to my heir,
And throw thee from my care. Do not provoke
me.

Mary. I will not, sir; mould me which way
you please.

² One of the London prisons.
Marg. There's too much disparity;
Between his quality and mine, to hope it.
Over. I more than hope't, and doubt not to effect it.
Be thou no enemy to thyself, my wealth
Shall weight his titles down, and make you Now for the means to assure him thine, obsERVE ME!
Remember he's a courtier and a soldier,
And not to be trifled with; and, therefore, when
He comes to woo you, see you do not coy it:
This mincing modesty has spoil'd many a match
By a first refusal, in vain after hop'd for.
Marg. You'll have me, sir, preserve the distance that Confines a virgin?
Over. Virgin me no virgins!
I must have you lose that name, or you lose me,
I will have you private—start not—I say, private;
If thou art my true daughter, not a bastard,
Thou wilt venture alone with one man, though he came
Like Jupiter to Semelope, and come off, too;
And therefore, when he kisses you, kiss close.
Marg. I have heard this is the strumpet's fashion, sir,
Which I must never learn.
Over. Learn any thing,
And from any creature that may make thee
great;
From the devil himself.
Marg. [Aside.] This is but devilish doctrine!
Over. Or, if his blood grow hot, suppose he offer
Beyond this, do not you stay till it cool,
But meet his ardour; if a couch be near,
Sit down on't, and invite him.
Marg. In your house,
Your own house, sir! For Heaven's sake, what are you then?
Or what shall I be, sir?
Over. Stand not on form;
Words are no substances.
Marg. Though you could dispense
With your own honour, cast aside religion,
The hopes of Heaven, or fear of hell, excuse me,
In worldly policy this is not the way
To make me his wife; his whore, I grant it may do.
My maiden honour so soon yielded up;
Nay, prostituted, cannot but assure him.
I, that am light to him, will not hold weight
When he's tempted by others; so, in judgment,
When to his lust I have given up my honour,
He must and will forsake me.
Over. How! forsake thee?
Do I wear a sword for fashion? or is this arm Shrunk up or wither'd? Does there live a
man
Of that large list I have encounter'd with

1 So Gifford. Q. when he is.
Can truly say I e'er gave inch of ground
Not purchas'd with his blood that did oppose
me?
Forsake thee when the thing is done! He dares
not.
Give me but proof he has enjoy'd thy person,
Though all his captains, echoes to his will,
Stood arm'd by his side to justify the wrong,
And he himself in the head of his bold troop,
Spite of his lordship, and his colonelship,
Or the judge's favour, I will make him render
A bloody and a strict account, and force him,
By marrying thee, to cure thy wounded honour!
I have said it.

Re-enter MARRALL.

Mar. Sir, the man of honour's come,
Newly alighted.
Over. In, without reply.
And do as I command, or thou art lost.

Exit MARGARET.

Is the loud music I gave order for Ready to receive him?
Mar. 'Tis, sir.
Over. Let 'em sound
A princely welcome. [Exit MARRALL.] Roughness awile leave me;
For fawning now, a stranger to my nature,
Must make way for me.

Loud music. Enter LORD LOVELL, GREEDY,
ALLWORTH, and MARRALL.

Lov. Sir, you meet your trouble.
Over. What you are pleas'd to style so is an honour
Above my worth and fortunes.

All. [Aside.] Strange, so humble.
Over. A justice of peace, my lord.

Presents GREEDY to him.

Greedy. [Aside.] This is a lord, and some think this a favour;
But I had rather have my hand in my dump-
ing.

Over. Room for my lord.
Lov. I miss, sir, your fair daughter
To crown my welcome.
Over. May it please my lord
To taste a glass of Greek wine first, and suddenly
She shall attend my lord.

Lov. You'll be obey'd, sir.

Exeunt all but OVERREACH.

Over. 'Tis to my wish: as soon as come, ask
for her!

Why, Meg! Meg Overreach.—

[Re-enter MARGARET.]

How! tears in your eyes!
Hah! dry 'em quickly, or I'll dig 'em out.
Is this a time to whimper? Meet that greatness
That flies into thy bosom, think what 'tis
For me to say, "My honourable daughter;"
And thou, when I stand bare, to say, "Put
on;"
Or, "Father, you forget yourself." No more: But be instructed, or expect — He comes.

Re-enter LORD LOVELL, GREEDY, ALLWORTH, and MARRALL.

A black-brow'd girl, my lord,
Lov. As I live, a rare one. They salute. 183
All. [Aside.] He's took already: I am lost.
Over. [Aside.] That kiss
Came twanging off, I like it.—Quit the room.
[Execut all but OVERREACH, LOVELL, and MARGARET.]

A little bashful, my good lord, but you,
I hope, will teach her boldness.

Lov. I am happy
In such a scholar: —

Over. I am past learning. 186
And therefore leave you to yourselves.—Re-

Lov. You see, fair lady, your father is sotitious

To have you change the barren name of virgin
Into a hopeful wife.

Marr. His haste, my lord,
Holds no power o'er my will.

Lov. But o'er your duty. 190

Marr. Which forc'd too much, may break.

Lov. Bond rather, sweetest:

Think of your years.

Marr. Too few to match with yours;
And choicest fruits too soon pluck'd, rot and wither.

Lov. Do you think I am old?

Marr. I am sure I am too young.

Lov. I can advance you.

Marr. To a hill of sorrow, 195
Where every hour I may expect to fail,
But never hope firm footing. You are noble,
I of a low descent, however rich;
And tissues match'd with scarlet 1 suit but ill.
O, my good lord, I could say more, but that 200
I dare not trust these walls.

Lov. Pray you, trust my ear then.

Re-enter OVERREACH [behind], listening.

Over. Close at it! whispering! this is exceltent!

And, by their postures, a consent on both parts.

Re-enter GREEDY behind.

Greedy. Sir Giles, Sir Giles!

Over. The great fiend stop that clapper!

Greedy. It must ring out, sir, when my belly rings noon.

The bak'd-meats are run out, the roasts turn'd powder.

Over. I shall powder you.

Greedy. Beat me to dust, I care not;
In such a cause as this, I'll die a martyr.

Over. Marry, and shall, you barbarism 2 of the shambles!

Greedy. How! strike a justice of peace! 'Tis petty treason.

Edwardi quinto: but that you are my friend,

1 Silks matched with woolen.
2 Gulf: here, invariable glutton.

I would commit you without bail or main-

prize. 1

Over. Leave your bawling, sir, or I shall commit you
Where you shall not dine to-day. Disturb my lord,
When he is in discourse!

Greedy. Is 't a time to talk 115

When we should be munching!

Lov. Hah! I heard some noise.

Over. Mum! villain; vanish! Shall we break a bargain

Almost made up? 2 Thrusts GREEDY off.

And rest most happy in your choice, believe
it;
I'll be a careful pilot to direct

Your yet uncertain bark to a port of safety.

Marg. So shall your honour save two lives,
And bind us

Your slaves for ever.

Lov. I am in the act rewarded,
Since it is good; how' er, you must put on
An amorous carriage towards me to delude 220
Your subtle father.

Marg. I am prone to that.

Lov. Now break we off our conference.—

Sir Giles!

Where is Sir Giles?

[OVERREACH comes forward.]

Re-enter ALLWORTH, MARRALL, and GREEDY.

Over. 2 My noble lord; and how Does your lordship find her?

Lov. Apt, Sir Giles, and coming;

And I like her the better.

Over. So do I too. 225

Love. Yet should we take forts at the first assault.
'Twere poor in the defendant; I must confirm
her

With a love-letter or two, which I must have Deliver'd by my page, and you give way to 't.

Over. With all my soul: — a tow arly gentleman! 230

Your hand, good Master Allworth: know my house
Is ever open to you.

All. [Aside.] 'T was shut till now.

Over. Well done, well done, my honourable daughter!

Thou'st so already. Know this gentle youth,
And cherish him, my honourable daughter. 240

Marg. I shall, with my best care.

Noise within, as of a coach.

Over. A coach! 245

More stops

Before we go to dinner! O my guts!

Enter LADY ALLWORTH and WELLBORN.

L. All. If I find welcome,
You share in it; if not, I'll back again,
Now I know your ends; for I come arm'd for all.

Can be objected.

1 A writ commanding the sheriff to take ball.
A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS

III. iii.

Lou. How! the Lady Allworth! 245
Over. And thus attended!
LOVELL salutes LADY ALLWORTH,
LADY ALLWORTH salutes MARGARET.

Mar. No, "I am a dolt!"
The spirit of lies had ent'red me!"
Over. Peace, Patch; 1
"T is more than wonder! an astonishment
That does possess me wholly!
Lou. Noble lady,
This is a favour, to prevent 2 my visit,
The service of my life can never equal.
L. All. My lord, I laid wait for you, and much hop'd.
You would have made my poor house your first inn:
And therefore doubting that you might forget
me,
Or too long dwell here, having such ample
cause,
In this unequal'd beauty, for your stay,
And fearing to trust any but myself
With the relation of my service to you,
I borrow'd so much from my long restraint
And took the air in person to invite you. 260
Lou. Your bounties are so great, they rob me, madam,
Of words to give you thanks.
L. All. Good Sir Giles Overreach.
Salutes him.
— How dost thou, Marrall? Lik'd you my meat
so ill,
You'll dine no more with me?
Greedy. I will, when you please, 264
An it like 8 your ladyship.
L. All. When you please, Master Greedy;
If meat can do it, you shall be satisfied.
And now, my lord, pray take into your knowledge
This gentleman; how'er his outside's coarse,
Presents WELLBORN.
His inward linings are as fine and fair
As any man's; wonder not I speak at large:
And howsoe'er his humour carries him,
To be thus accoutred, or what taint soever,
For his wild life, hath struck upon his fame,
He may ere long, with boldness, rank himself
With some that have contemn'd him. Sir Giles Overreach, 278
If I am welcome, bid him so.
Over. My nephew!
He has been too long a stranger. Faith you have,
Pray let it be mended.
LOVELL confers aside with WELLBORN.
Mar. Why, sir, what do you mean?
This is "rogue Wellborn, monster, prodigy,
That should hang or drown himself;" 3 no man
of worship,
Much less your nephew.
Over. Well, sirrah, we shall reckon
For this hereafter.
Mar. I'll not lose my jeer,
Though I be beaten dead for 't.

1 Fool. 2 Anticipate. 3 If it please.

Well. Let my silence plead
In my excuse, my lord, till better leisure
Offer itself to hear a full relation
Of my poor fortunes.
Lou. I would hear, and help 'em.
Over. Your dinner waits you.
Lou. Pray you lead, we follow.
L. All. Nay, you are my guest; come, dear Master Wellborn.
Greedy. "Dear Master Wellborn!" so she said: Heaven! Heaven!
If my belly would give me leave, I could ruminate
All day on this. I have granted twenty warrants
To have him committed, from all prisons in the shire,
To Nottingham gaol; and now "Dear Master
Wellborn!"
And, "My good nephew!" — but I play the
fool
To stand here prating, and forget my dinner.
Re-enter MARRALL.

Are they set, Marrall?
Mar. Long since; pray you a word, sir.
Greedy. No wording now.
Mar. In troth, I must. My master, Knowing you is your good friend, makes bold
with you,
And does entreat you, more guests being come
in
Than he expected, especially his nephew, 260
The table being full too, you would excuse
him,
And sup with him on the cold meat.
Greedy. How! No dinner,
After all my care?
Mar. 'T is but a penance for
A meal; besides, you broke your fast.
Greedy. That was
But a bit to stay my stomach. A man in commission
Give place to a tatterdemalion!
Mar. No bug 4 words, sir;
Should his worship hear you —
Greedy. Lose my dumpling too,
And butter'd toasts, and woodcocks!
Mar. Come, have patience.
If you will dispense a little with your worship,
And sit with the waiting women, you'll have dumpling,
Woodcock, and butter'd toasts too.
Greedy. This revives me:
I will gorge there sufficiently.
Mar. This is the way, sir. Exeunt.

SCENE III. 5

[Enter] OVERREACH, as from dinner.

Over. She's catch'd! O women! — she neeglects my lord,

4 Terrifying.
5 Another room in Overreach's house.
And all her compliments appli’d to Wellborn! The garments of her widowhood laid by, She now appears as glorious as the spring, Her eyes fix’d on him, in the wine she drinks, He being her pledge, she sends him burning kisses, And sits on thorns, till she be private with him. She leaves my meat to feed upon his looks, And if in our discourse he be but nam’d, From her a deep sigh follows. And why grieve I? At this? It makes for me; if she prove his, All that is hers is mine, as I will work him.

Enter MARRALL.

Mar. Sir, the whole board is troubled at your rising.

Over. No matter, I’ll excuse it. Prithhee, Marrall,

Watch an occasion to invite my nephew To speak with me in private.

Mar. Who? “The rogue The lady scorn’d to look on”? Over. You are a wag.

Enter LADY ALLWORTH and WELLBORN.

Mar. See, sir, she’s come, and cannot be without him.

L. All. With your favour, sir, after a plentiful dinner, I shall make bold to walk a turn or two, In your rare garden.

Over: There’s an arbour too, If your ladyship please to use it.

L. All. Come, Master Wellborn.

Enter LADY ALLWORTH and WELLBORN.

Over. Grosser and grosser! Now I believe the poet Feign’d not, but was historical, when he wrote Pasiphae was enamour’d of a bull: This lady’s lust’s more monstrous. — My good lord, Enter LORD LOVELL, MARGARET, and the rest.

Excuse my manners.

Loo. There needs none, Sir Giles, I may ere long say father, when it pleases My dearest mistress to give warrant to it.

Over. She shall seal to it, my lord, and make me happy.

Re-enter WELLBORN and LADY ALLWORTH.

Marg. My lady is return’d.

L. All. Provide my coach, I’ll instantly away. My thanks, Sir Giles,

For my entertainment.

Over. ’Tis your nobleness To think it such.

L. All. I must do you a further wrong In taking away your honourable guest.

Loo. I wait on you, madam; farewell, good Sir Giles.

L. All. Good Mistress Margaret! Nay, come, Master Wellborn, I must not leave you behind; in sooth, I must not.

Over. Rob me not, madam, of all joys at once; Let my nephew stay behind. He shall have my coach,

And, after some small conference between us, Soon overtake your ladyship.

L. All. Stay not long, sir.

Loo. This parting kiss: [kisses MARGARET] you shall every day hear from me,

By my faithful page.

All. "Tis a service I am proud of.

Exeunt LORD LOVELL, LADY ALLWORTH, ALLWORTH, and MARRALL.

Over. Daughter, to your chamber.

—Exit MARGARET.

— You may wonder, nephew, After so long an enmity between us, I should desire your friendship.

Over. So I do, sir; ’Tis strange to me.

Over. But I’ll make it no wonder; And what is more, unfold my nature to you. We worldly men, when we see friends and kinsmen Past hopes sunk in their fortunes, lend no hand

To lift ’em up, but rather set our feet Upon their heads, to press ’em to the bottom; As, I must yield, with you I practis’d it: But, now I see you in a way to rise, I can and will assist you. This rich lady (And I am glad of ’t) is enamour’d of you; ’T is too apparent, nephew.

Well. No such thing: Compassion rather, sir.

Over. Well, in a word, Because your stay is short, I’ll have you seen No more in this base shape; nor shall she say She married you like a beggar, or in debt.

Well. (Aside.) He’ll run into the noose, and save my labour.

Over. You have a trunk of rich clothes, not far hence,

In pawn; I will redeem ’em; and that no clamour

May taint your credit for your petty debts, You shall have a thousand pounds to cut ’em off,

And go a free man to the wealthy lady.

Well. This done, sir, out of love, and no ends else —

Over. As it is, nephew.

Well. Binds me still your servant.

Over. No compliments; you are staid for. Ere you have supp’d

You shall hear from me. My coach, knaves, for my nephew.

To-morrow I will visit you.

Well. Here’s an uncle In a man’s extremes! How much they do believe you,

That say, you are hard-hearted!

Over. My deeds, nephew, Shall speak my love; what men report I weigh not.

Admit.
ACT IV

SCENE I.

[Enter Lord Lovell and Allworth.]

Lov. 'Tis well; give me my cloak; I now dischurge you
From further service. Mind your own affairs;
I hope they will prove successful.
All. What is blest
With your good wish, my lord, cannot but prosper.
Let aftentimes report, and to your honour,
How much I stand engag’d, for I want language
To speak my debt; yet if a tear or two
Of joy, for your much goodness, can supply
My tongue’s defects, I could —

Lov. Nay, do not melt:
This ceremonial thanks to me, ’s superfluous. 10

Over. (within.) Is my lord stirring?

Lov. 'Tis he I, oh, here’s your letter. Let him in.

Enter Overreach, Greedy, and Marrall.

Over. A good day to my lord!

Lov. You are an early riser,
Sir Giles.

Over. And reason, to attend your lordship. 15

Lov. And you, too, Master Greedy, up so soon!

Greedy. In truth, my lord, after the sun is up,
I cannot sleep, for I have a foolish stomach
That craves for breakfast. With your lordship’s favour,
I have a serious question to demand
Of my worthy friend Sir Giles.

Lov. Pray you use your pleasure.

Greedy. How far, Sir Giles, and pray you answer me Upon your credit, hold you it to be
From your manor-house, to this of my Lady’s
Allworth’s? 20

Over. Why, some four mile.

Greedy. How! four mile, good Sir Giles —
Upon your reputation, think better;
For if you do abate but one half-quarter
Of five, you do yourself the greatest wrong
That can be in the world; for four miles riding
Could not have rais’d so huge an appetite
As I feel gnawing on me.

Mar. Whether you ride,
Or go afoot, you are that way still provided,
An it please your worship.

Over. How now, sirrah! Prating
Before my lord! No difference? Go to my nephew,
See all his debts discharge’d, and help his worship
To fit on his rich suit.

Mar. [Aside.] I may fit you too.

Toss’d like a dog still! 25

Lov. I have writ this morning
A few lines to my mistress, your fair daughter.

Over. 'T will fire her, for she’s wholly yours already.

1 A room in Lady Allworth’s house.

Sweet Master Allworth, take my ring; ’twill carry you
To her presence, I dare warrant you; and there plead
For my good lord, if you shall find occasion.
That done, pray ride to Nottingham, get a licence,
Still by this token, I’ll have it dispatch’d,
And suddenly, my lord, that I may say.

My honourable, nay, right honourable daughter.

Greedy. Take my advice, young gentleman,
Get your breakfast;

’Tis unwholesome to ride fasting. I’ll eat with you,
And eat to purpose.

Over. Some Fury’s in that gut;
Hungry again! Did you not devour, this morning;
A shield of brawn, and a barrel of Colchester oysters?

Greedy. Why, that was, sir, only to scour my stomach,
A kind of a preparative. Come, gentleman,
I will not have you feed like the hangman of Flushing,

Alone, while I am here.

Lov. Haste your return.

All. I will not fail, my lord.

Greedy. Nor I, to line
My Christmas coffer.

[Exeunt Greedy and Allworth.]

Over. To my wish: we are private.

I come not to make offer with my daughter
A certain portion, — that were poor and trivial:
In one word, I pronounce all that is mine,
In lands or leases, ready coin or goods,
With her, my lord, comes to you; nor shall you have
One motive to induce you to believe
I live too long, since every year I’ll add
Something unto the heap, which shall be yours too.

Lov. You are a right kind father.

Over. You shall have reason
To think me such. How do you like this seat?
It is well wooded, and well water’d, the acres
Fertile and rich; would it not serve for change,
To entertain your friends in a summer progress?
What thinks my noble lord?

Lov. ’Tis a wholesome air, and well-built pile; and she that’s mistress of it,
Worthy the large revenue.

Over. She the mistress! It may be so for a time: but let my lord
Say only that he likes it, and would have it, 35
I say, ere long ’tis his.

Lov. Impossible.

Over. You do conclude too fast, not knowing me,
Nor the engines 2 that I work by. ’Tis not alone
The Lady Allworth’s lands, for those once
(As by her dotage on him I know they will be,)

2 Devices.
Shall soon be mine; but point out any man's
In all the shire, and say they lie convenient
And useful for your lordship, and once more
I say aloud, they are yours.

Lou. I dare not own
What's by unjust and cruel means extorted; 88
My fame and credit are more dear to me,
Than so to expose 'em to be censur'd by
The public voice.

Over. You run, my lord, no hazard.
Your reputation shall stand as fair,
In all good men's opinions, as now;
Nor can my actions, though condemn'd for ill,
Cast any foul aspersion upon yours.
For, though I do esteem report myself
As a mere sound, I will be so tender 94
Of what concerns you, in all points of honour,
That the immaculate whiteness of your fame,
Nor your unquestion'd integrity,
Shall 'er be sullied with one taint or spot
That may take from your innocence and candour. 1

All my ambition is to have my daughter 100
Right honourable, which my lord can make her:
And might I live to dance upon my knee
A young Lord Lovell, borne by her unto you,
I write nil ultra 2 to my proudest hopes.
As for possessions and annual rents, 105
Equivalent to maintain you in the port
Your noble birth and present state requires,
I do remove that burthen from your shoulders,
And take it on mine own: for, though I ruin
The country to supply your riotous waste, 110
The scourge of prodigals, want, shall never find you.

Lou. Are you not frighted with the impressions
And curses of whole families, made wretched
By your sinister practices?

Over. Yes, as rocks are,
When foamy billows split themselves against
Their flinty ribs; or as the moon is mov'd 116
When wolves, with hunger pin'd, howl at her brightness.
I am of a solid temper, and, like these,
Steer on a constant course. With mine own sword,
If call'd into the field, I can make that right,
Which fearful enemies murmur'd at as wrong.
Now, for these other piddling complaints
Breath'd out in bitterness; as when they call me
Extortioner, tyrant, cormorant, or intruder 124
On my poor neighbour's right, or grand inessential
Of what was common, to my private use;
Nay, when my ears are pierc'd with widows' cries,
And undone orphans wash with tears my threshold,
I only think what 'tis to have my daughter 129
Right honourable; and 'tis a powerful charm
Makes me insensible of remorse, or pity,
Or the least sting of conscience.

Lou. I admire 3
The toughness of your nature.

Over. 'Tis for you,
My lord, and for my daughter, I am marble;
Nay more, if you will have my character 135
In little, I enjoy more true delight
In my arrival to my wealth these dark
And crooked ways, than you shall 'er take pleasure
In spending what my industry hath compass'd.
My haste commands me hence; in one word,
therefore,
Is it a match?

Lou. I hope, that is past doubt now.

Over. Then rest secure; not the hate of all mankind here,
Nor fear of what can fall on me hereafter,
Shall make me study aught but your advancement.
One story higher: an earl! if gold can do it. 140
Dispute not my religion, nor my faith;
Though I am borne thus headlong by my will,
You may make choice of what belief you please.
To me they are equal; so, my lord, good morrow.

Lou. He's gone — I wonder how the earth can bear
Such a potent! I, that have liv'd a soldier,
And stood the enemy's violent charge undaunted,
To hear this blasphemous beast am bath'd all over
In a cold sweat: yet, like a mountain, he (Confirm'd in atheistical assertions)
Is no more shaken than Olympus 4 is When angry Boreas loads his double head
With sudden drifts of snow.

Enter LADY ALLWORTH, Waiting Woman, and AMB.

L. All. Save you, my lord!
Disturb I not your privacy?

Lou. No, good madam;
For your own sake I am glad you came no sooner.

Since this bold bad man, Sir Giles Overreach,
Made such a plain discovery of himself,
And read this morning such a devilish matins,
That I should think it a sin next to his
But to repeat it.

L. All. Ne'er press'd, my lord, 145
On others' privacies; yet, against my will,
Walking, for health's sake, in the gallery
Adjoining to your lodgings, I was made
(So vehement and loud he was) partaker
Of his tempting offers.

Lou. Please you to command 140
Your servants hence, and I shall gladly hear
Your wiser counsel.

L. All. 'Tis, my lord, a woman's,
But true and hearty; — wait in the next room,
But he within call; yet not so near to force me
To whisper my intents.

Amb. We are taught better 150
By you, good madam.

W. Wom. And well know our distance.

1 Stainlessness. 2 Nothing beyond. 3 Wonder at.
4 Apparently a slip for "Parnassus."
L. All. Do so, and talk not; 'twill become your breeding,

Exeunt Amble and W. Woman.

Now, my good lord; if I may use my freedom,
As to an honour'd friend —

Louv. You lessen else
Your favour to me.

L. All. I dare say then thus: 189

As you are noble (how'er common men
Make sordid wealth the object and sole end
Of their industrious aim) 't will not agree
With those of eminent blood, who are engag'd
More to prefer 1 their honours than to increase
The state left to 'em by their ancestors, 158
To study large additions to their fortunes,
And quite neglect their births: — though I must grant,
Riches, well got, to be a useful servant,
But a bad master.

Louv. Madam, 'tis confessed; 190
But what infer you from it?

L. All. This, my lord;
That as all wrongs, though thrust into one scale,
Slide of themselves off when right fills the other
And cannot hide the trial; so all wealth,
I mean if ill-acquir'd, cemented to honour 195
By virtuous ways achiev'd, and bravely purchas'd,
Is but as rubbish pour'd into a river,
(How'er intended to make good the bank,
Rendering the water, that was pure before,
Polluted and unwholesome. I allow
The heir of Sir Giles Overreach, Margaret,
A maid well qualified and the richest match
Our north part can make boast of; yet she can not,
With all that she brings with her, fill their mouths,
That never will forget who was her father; 205
Or that my husband Allworth's lands, and Wellborn's,
(How wrung from both needs now no repetition,)
Were real motives that more work'd your lordship
To join your families, than her form and virtues:

You may conceive the rest.

Louv. I do, sweet madam, 210
And long since have consider'd it. I know,
The sum of all that makes a just man happy
Consists in the well choosing of his wife:
And there, well to discharge it, does require
Equality of years, of birth, of fortune; 215
For beauty being poor, and not cried up
By birth or wealth, can truly mix with neither.
And wealth, where there's such difference in years,
And fair descent, must make the yoke un-easy.

But I come nearer.

L. All. Pray you do, my lord. 220

Louv. Were Overreach's states thrice centup'd, his daughter
Millions of degrees much fairer than she is,
For a close bawd, thine eyes ev'n pelted out
With dirt and rotten eggs; and my hand kissing
If I escape the halter, with the letter R.
Printed upon it,

Froth. Would that were the worst!
That were but nine days' wonder: as for credit,
We have none to lose, but we shall lose the money
He owes us, and his custom; there's the hell on't.

Tap. He has summon'd all his creditors by the drum,
And they swarm about him like so many soldiers
On the pay day; and has found out such a new way
To pay his old debts, as't is very likely
He shall be chronicled for it!

Froth. He deserves it more than ten pageants. But are you sure his worship Comes this way, to my lady's?
A cry within: Brave Master Wellborn!

Tap. Yes: — I hear him.
Froth. Be ready with your petition and present it
To his good grace.

Enter Wellborn in a rich habit, [MARRALL.
Greedy, Order, Furnace, and Creditors;
Tapwell kneeling, delivers his bill of debt.

Well. How's this? Petition'd to?
But note what miracles the payment of
A little trash, and a rich suit of clothes,
Can work upon these rascals! I shall be, I think, Prince Wellborn.

Mar. When your worship's married,
You may be — I know what I hope to see you.
Well. Then look thou for advancement.

Mar. To be known your worship's bailiff, is the mark I shoot at.
Well. And thou shalt bit it.

Mar. Pray you, sir, despatch us
These needy followers, and for my admittance,
Provided you'll defend me from Sir Giles,
Whose service I am weary of, I'll say something
You shall give thanks for.

Well. Fear me not Sir Giles. Greedy. Who, Tapwell? I remember thy wife brought me
Last new-year's tide, a couple of fat turkeys.
Tap. And shall do every Christmas, let your worship
But stand my friend now,
Greedy. How! with Master Wellborn? I can do anything with him on such terms. —
See you this honest couple; they are good souls
As ever drew out faucet; have they not
A pair of honest faces?

Well. I o'erheard you,
And the bribe he promis'd. You are cozen'd in them;
For, by all the seams that grew rich by my riots,
I secret. 2 For "Rogue." 3 Appointment.
4 Q. gives s. a. d. This interim. Tapwell and Froth flattering and bribing Justice Greedy.

This, for a most unthankful knave, and this,
For a base bawd and whore, have worst deserve'd me,
And therefore speak not for 'em. By your place
You are rather to do me justice. Lend me your ear;
— Forget his turkeys, and call in his license,
And, at the next fair, I'll give you a yoke of oxen
Worth all his poultry.

Greedy. I am chang'd on the sudden
In my opinion! Come near; nearer, rascal, now.
And now I view him better, did you e'er see
One look so like an arch knave? His very comtenance,
Should an understanding judge but look upon him,
Would hang him, though he were innocent.

Tap. Froth. Worshipful sir, Greedy. No, though the great Turk came, instead of turkeys,
To beg my favour, I am inexorable.
Thou hast an ill name: besides thy musty ale,
That hath destroy'd many of the king's liege people,
Thou never hadst in thy house, to stay men's stomachs,
A piece of Suffolk cheese or gammon of bacon,
Or any esculent, as the learned call it,
For their emolument, but sheer drink only,
For which gross fault I here do damn thy license,
Forbidding thee ever to tap or draw;
For, instantly, I will, in mine own person,
Command the constable to pull down thy sign,
And do it before I eat.

Froth. No mercy?

Greedy. Vanish!

If I shew any, may my promis'd oxen gore me!

Tap. Unthankful knaves are ever so rewarded.
Exeunt Greedy, Tapwell, and Froth.

Well. Speak, what are you?

1 Cred. A decayd vintner, sir,
That might have thrived, but that your worship broke me
With trusting you with muscadine and eggs,
And five pound suppers, with your after drinkings,
When you lodg'd upon the Bankside.

Well. I remember.

1 Cred. I have not been hasty, nor e'er laid to arrest you;
And therefore, sir—

Well. Thou art an honest fellow, I'll set thee up again; see his bill paid. —

What are you?

2 Cred. A tailor once, but now mere botcher.
I gave you credit for a suit of clothes,
Which was all my stock, but you failing in payment,
I was remov'd from the shopboard, and confin'd under a stool.

Well. See him paid; — and botch no more.

2 Cred. I ask no interest, sir.

Well. Such tailors need not;

5 Wine from muscadel grapes.
6 Repairer.
If their bills are paid in one and twenty year, They are seldom losers. — O, I know thy face.

Thou wert my surgeon. You must tell no tales; Those days are done. I will pay you in private.

Ord. A royal gentleman!

Furn. Royal as an emperor!

He'll prove a brave master; my good lady knew To choose a man.

Well. See all men else discharg'd; And since old debts are clear'd by a new way, A little bounty will not misbecome me; There's something; honest cook, for thy good breakfasts;

And this, for your respect: [to Order] take t', it is good gold, And I able to spare it.

Ord. You are too munificent.

Furn. He was ever so.

Well. Pray you, on before.

3 Cred. Heaven bless you!

Mar. At four o'clock; the rest know where to meet me.

Exeunt Order, Furnace, and Creditors.

Well. Now, Master Marrall, what's the weighty secret

You promis'd to impart?

Marr. Sir, time nor place

Allow me to relate each circumstance; This only, in a word: I know Sir Giles

Will come upon you for security For his thousand pounds, which you must not consent to.

As he grows in heat, as I am sure he will, Be you but rough, and say he's in your debt Ten times the sum, upon sale of your land; I had a hand in 't (I speak it to my shame) When you were defeated 1 of it.

Well. That's forgiven. Marr. I shall deserve it. Then urge him to produce

The deed in which you pass'd it over to him, Which I know he'll have about him, to deliver To the Lord Lovell, with many other writings, And present monies; I'll instruct you further, As I wait upon your worship. If I play not my prize

To your full content, and your uncle's much vexation.

Hang up Jack Marrall.

Well. I rely upon thee. Exeunt.

Scene III. 2

Enter Allworth and Margaret.

All. Whether to yield the first praise to my lord's Unequal'd temperance or your constant sweetness

That I yet live, my weak hands faster'd on Hope's anchor, spite of all storms of despair, I yet rest doubtful.

Marg. Give it it Lord Lovell: 5 For what in him was bounty, in me's duty. I make but payment of a debt to which

My vows, in that high office regist'red,
Are faithful witnesses.

All. 'Tis true, my dearest; Yet, when I call to mind how many fair ones Make wilful shipwrecks of their faiths, and oaths To God and man, to fill the arms of greatness, And you rise up [no] 8 less than a glorious star, To the amazement of the world, — hold out Against the stern authority of a father, And stern at honour when it comes to court you;

I am so tender of your good, that faintly, With your wrong, I can wish myself that right You yet are pleas'd to do me.

Marg. Yet, and ever.

To me what's title, when content is wanting? Or wealth, rak'd up together with much care. And to be kept with more, when the heart pines

In being dispossess'd of what it longs for Beyond the Indian mines? or the smooth brow Of a pleas'd sire, that slaves me to his will, And, as his aversive humour may be feasted By my obedience, and he see me great, Leaves to my soul nor faculties nor power To make her own election?

All. But the dangers That follow the repulse —

Marg. To me they are nothing; Let Allworth love, I cannot be unhappy. Suppose the worst, that, in his rage, he kill me, A tear or two, by you dropt on my hearse In sorrow for my fate, will call back life So far as but to say, that I die yours; Then shall rest in peace: or should be prove So cruel, as one death would not suffice His thirst of vengeance, but with ling'ring torments

In mind and body I must waste to air, In poverty join'd with banishment; so you share

In my afflictions, which I dare not wish you, So high I prize you, I could undergo 'em With such a patience as should look down With scorn on his worst malice.

All. Heaven avert Such trials of your true affection to me! Nor will it unto you, that are all mercy, Shew so much rigour: but since we must run Such desperate hazards, let us do our best To steer between them.

Marg. Your lord's ours, and sure: And, though but a young actor, second me In doing to the life what he has plotted.

Enter Overreach [behind].

The end may yet prove happy. Now, my Allworth —

All. To your letter, and put on a seeming anger.

Marg. I'll pay my lord all debts due to his title; And when with terms, not taking from his honour,
He does solicit me, I shall gladly hear him. But in this peremptory, nay, commanding way, To appoint a meeting, and without my knowledge, A priest to tie the knot can ne'er be undone Till death unloose it, is a confidence In his lordship will deceive him. All, I hope better, Good lady. Mary. Hope, sir, what you please: for me I must take a safe and secure course; I have A father, and without his full consent, Though all lords of the land kneel’d for my favor, I can grant nothing. Over. I like this obedience: [Comes forward.] But whatso’er my lord writes, must and shall be Accepted and embrac’d. Sweet Master Allworth, You shew yourself a true and faithful servant To your good lord; he has a jewel of you. How! frowning, Meg? Are these looks to receive A messenger from my lord? What’s this? Give me it. Mary. A piece of arrogant paper, like th’ inscriptions. Over. (reads.) Fair mistress, from your servant learn all joys That we can hope for, if defer’d, prove toys; Therefore this instant, and in private, meet A husband, that will gladly at your feet Lay down his honours, tend’ring them to you With all content, the church being paid her due. Is this the arrogant piece of paper? Fool! Will you still be one? In the name of madness What could his good honour write more to content you? Is there aught else to be wish’d, after these two, That are already offer’d: marriage first, And lawful pleasure after: what would you more? Mary. Why, sir, I would be married like your daughter; Not hurried away in th’ night I know not whither, Without all ceremony; no friends invited To honour the solemnity. All. An’t please your honour, For so before to-morrow I must style you, My lord desires this privacy, in respect His honourable kinsmen are afar off, And his desires to have it done brook not So long delay as to expect their coming; And yet he stands resolv’d, with all due pomp, As running at the ring, plays, masques, and tilting; To have his marriage at court celebrated, When he has brought your honour up to London.

Over. He tells you true; ’tis the fashion, on my knowledge: Yet the good lord, to please your peevishness, Must put it off, forsooth! and lose a night, In which perhaps he might get two boys on thee. Tempt me no further, if you do, this good [Points to his sword.] Shall prick you to him. Mary. I could be contented, Were you but by, to do a father’s part, And give me in the church. Over. So my lord have you, What do I care who gives you? Since my lord Does purpose to be private, I’ll not cross him. I know not, Master Allworth, how my lord May be provided, and therefore there’s a purse Of gold, ’t will serve this night’s expense; to-morrow I’ll furnish him with any sums. In the mean time, Use my ring to my chaplain; he is benefic’d At my manor of Gotham, and call’d Parson Wildo. ’Tis no matter for a licence, I’ll hear him out in t; Mary. With your favour, sir, what warrant is your ring? He may suppose I got that twenty ways, Without your knowledge; and then to be refus’d Were such a stain upon me! — If you pleas’d, sir, Your presence would do better. Over. Still perverse! I say again, I will not cross my lord; Yet I’ll prevent you too. — Paper and ink, there! All. I can furnish you. Over. I thank you, I can write then. Writes on his book. All. You may, if you please, put out the name of my lord, In respect he comes disguis’d, and only write, “Marry her to this gentleman.” Over. Well advis’d. ’Tis done;’ away; — (MARGARET kneels.) My blessing, girl? Thou hast it. Nay, no reply, be gone. — Good Master Allworth, This shall be the best night’s work you ever made. All. I hope so, sir. Exeunt ALLWORTH and MARGARET. Over. Farewell! — Now all ’s cocksure: Methinks I hear already knights and ladies Say, Sir Giles Overreach, how is it with Your honourable daughter? Has her honour Slept well to-night? or, will her honour please To accept this monkey, dog, or parrot ([This is state in ladies), or my eldest son

1 Trifles. 2 Wait for. 3 Anticipate your objections. 4 Parrot. 100 106 110 111 115 120 125 129 130 135
To be her page, and wait upon her trencher? My ends, my ends are compass’d!—then for Wellborn
And the lands: were he once married to the widow,
I have him here. — I can scarce contain myself, I am so full of joy, nay, joy all over. Exit.

ACT V

SCENE I.1

[Enter Lord] LOVELL, LADY ALLWORTH, and AMBLE.

L. All. By this you know how strong the motives were
That did, my lord, induce me to dispense
A little with my gravity to advance,
In personating some few favours to him.
The plots and projects of the down-trod Wellborn.
Nor shall I e’er repent, although I suffer
In some few men’s opinions for ’t, the action:
For he that ventur’d all for my dear husband
Might justly claim an obligation from me
To pay him such a courtesy; which had I
Coyly or over-curiously denied,
It might have argu’d me of little love
To the deceased.

Lov. What you intended, madam,
For the poor gentleman hath found good success;
For, as I understand, his debts are paid,
And he once more furnish’d for fair employment:
But all the arts that I have us’d to raise
The fortunes of your joy and mine, young Allworth,
Stand yet in supposition, though I hope well;
For the young lovers are in wit more pregnant
Than their years can promise; and for their desires,
On my knowledge, they are equal.

L. All. As my wishes are with yours, my lord; yet give me leave to fear
The building, though well grounded: to deceive
Sir Giles, that’s both a lion and a fox; in his proceedings, were a work beyond
The strongest undertakers; not the trial
Of two weak innocents.

Lov. Despair not, madam: How things are compass’d off by easy means;
And judgment, being a gift deriv’d from Heaven,
Though sometimes lodg’d i’ th’ hearts of worldly men,
That n’er consider from whom they receive it,
Forsakes such as abuse the giver of it.
Which is the reason that the politic
And cunning statesman, that believes he fathoms
The counsels of all kingdoms on the earth,
Is by simplicity oft over-reach’d.

L. All. May he be so! Yet, in his name to express it,
Is a good omen.

Lov. May it to myself
Prove so, good lady, in my suit to you!

What think you of the motion?

L. All. Troth, my lord, My own unworthiness may answer for me;
For had you, when that I was in my prime,
My virgin flower uncropp’d, presented me
With this great favour; looking on my lowness
Not in a glass of self-love, but of truth,
I could not but have thought it as a blessing
Far, far beyond my merit.

Lov. You are too modest, And undervalue that which is above
My title, or whatever I call mine.
I grant, were I a Spaniard, to marry
A widow might disparage me; but being
A true-born Englishman, I cannot find
How it can taint my honour: nay, what’s more,
That which you think a blinsh is to me
The fairest lustre. You already, madam,
Have given sure proofs how dearly you can cherish
A husband that deserves you; which confirms me
That, if I am not wanting in my care
To do you service, you’ll be still the same
That you were to your Allworth: in a word,
Our years, our states, our births are not unequal,
You being descended nobly, and all’d so;
If then you may be won to make me happy,
But join your lips to mine, and that shall be
A solemn contract.

L. All. I were blind to my own good
Should I refuse it; [kisses him] yet, my lord, receive me
As such a one, the study of whose whole life
Shall know no other object but to please you.

Lov. If I return not, with all tenderness,
Equal respect to you, may I die wretched!

L. All. There needs no protestation, my lord,
To her that cannot doubt,—

Enter WELLBORN [handsomely apparelled.]

You are welcome, sir.

Now you look like yourself.

WELL. And will continue
Such in my free acknowledgment that I am
Your creature, madam, and will never hold
My life mine own, when you please to command it.

Lov. It is a thankfulness that well becomes you.
You could not make choice of a better shape
To dress your mind in.

L. All. For me, I am happy
That my endeavours prosper’d. Saw you of late Sir Giles, your uncle?

WELL. I heard of him, madam, By his minister, Marrall; he’s grown into strange passions About his daughter. This last night he look’d for Your lordship at his house, but missing you,
And she not yet appearing, his wise head
Is much perplex'd and troubl'd.

Loo.

Sweetheart, my project took.

L. All.

Over [within.] Ha! find her, bookly, thou huge lump of nothing,
I' ll bore thine eyes out else.

Well. May it please your lordship,
For some ends of mine own, but to withdraw
A little out of sight, though not of hearing.
You may, perhaps, have sport.

Loo. You shall direct me. Steps aside.

Enter OVERBEACCH, with distracted looks, driving in MARSHALL before him [with a box].

Ower. I shall sol fa you, rogue!

Mar. (Aside.) I may yet cry quittance.

Though now I suffer, and dare not resist.

Ower. Lady, by your leave, did you see my daughter lady?

And the lord her husband? Are they in your house?

If they are, discover, that I may bid 'em joy;
And, as an entrance to her place of honour, see your ladyship be on her left hand, and make courtesies

When she nods on you; which you must receive
As a special favour.

L. All. When I know, Sir Giles,
Her state requires such ceremony, I shall pay it; But in the meantime, as I am myself,
I give you to understand, I neither know
Nor care where her honour is.

Ower. When you once see her
Supported, and led by the lord her husband,
You 'll be taught better. — Nephew.

Well. Sir. No more?

Well. 'Tis all I owe you.

Ower. Have your redeem'd rags.

Well. (In scorn.) Insolent to you! Why, what are you, sir, unless in your years,
At the best, more than myself?

Ower. (Aside.) His fortune swells him.
'tis rank he 's married.

L. All. This is excellent!

Ower. Sir, in calm language, though I seldom use it,
I am familiar with the cause that makes you
Bear up thus bravely; there 's a certain buzz
Of a stol'n marriage, do you hear? of a stol'n
marriage,

In which, 'tis said, there 's somebody hath been cozen'd;

I name no parties.

Well. Well, sir, and what follows?

Ower. Marry, this; since you are peremptory.

Remember,

Upon more hope of your great match, I lent you
A thousand pounds; put me in good security,
And suddenly, by mortgage or by statute,

Of some of your new possessions, or I 'll have you
Dragg'd in your lavender robes to the goal.

You know me,

And therefore do not trifle.

Well. Can you be
So cruel to your nephew, now he 's in
The way to rise? Was this the courtesy
You did me? in pure love, and no ends else?

Ower. End me no ends! Engage the whole estate,

And force your spouse to sign it, you shall have Three or four thousand more, to roar and swagger

And revel in bawdy taverns.

Well. And beg after;

Mean you not so?

Ower. My thoughts are mine, and free.

Shall I have security?

Well. No, indeed, you shall not,
Nor bond, nor bill, nor bare acknowledgment;
Your great looks fright not me.

Ower. But my deeds shall.

Outbrav'd!

Both draw.

L. All. Help, murder! murder!

Enter Servants.

Well. Let him come on,

With all his wrongs and injuries about him,
Arm'd with his cut-throat practices to guard
him;
The right that I bring with me will defend me,
And punish his extortion.

Ower. But single in the field!

L. All. You may; but make not
My house your quarrelling scene.

Ower. Were 't in a church.

By Heaven and Hell, I 'll do 't!

Mar. Now put him to
The shewing of the deed.

[Aside to WELLBORN.]

Well. This rage is vain, sir;
For fighting, fear not, you shall have your hands full,

Upon the least incitement; and whereas
You charge me with a debt of a thousand pounds,

If there be law, (how'er you have no conscience,) Either restore my land or I 'll recover
A debt, that's truly due to me from you,
In value ten times more than what you challenge.

Ower. I in thy debt! O impudence I did I not purchase

Clothes in pawn were said to be "laid up in laven-der."
The land left by thy father, that rich land,
That had continued in Wellborn's name
Twenty descents; which, like a riotous fool,
Thou didst make sale of it? Is not here inclos'd

The deed that does confirm it mine?

Mar.  Now, now! I do acknowledge none; I ne'er pass'd o'er

Any such land. I grant for a year or two
You had it in trust; which if you do discharge,
Surrendering the possession, you shall ease
Yourself and me of chargeable suits in law, 176
Which, if you prove not honest, as I doubt it,
Must of necessity follow.

L. All.  In my judgment,
He does advise you well.

Over.  Good! good! Conspire
With your new husband, lady; second him
In his dishonest practices; but when
This manor is extended 1 to my use,
You'll speak in humbler key, and sue for favor.

L. All.  Never: do not hope it.

Well.  Yet, to shut up thy mouth, and make thee give Thyself the lie, the loud lie, I draw out
The precious evidence; if thou canst forswear
Thy hand and seal, and make a forfeit of Opens the box [and displays the bond].

Thy ears to the pillory, see! here's that will make

My interest clear—ha!
L. All.  A fair skin of parchment.

Well.  Indented, I confess, and labels too; 158
But neither wax nor words. How! thunder-struck?

Not a syllable to insult with? My wise uncle,
Is this your precious evidence? Is this that makes

Your interest clear?

Over.  I am o'erwhelm'd with wonder!
What prodigy is this? What subtle devil
Hath raz'd out the inscription, the wax
Turn'd into dust? The rest of my deeds whole
As when they were deliver'd, and this only Made nothing! Do you deal with witches, rascal?

There is a statute 2 for you, which will bring Your neck in an hempen circle; yes, there is;
And now 'tis better thought for, cheater, know

This juggling shall not save you.

Well.  To save thee

Would beggar the stock of mercy.

Mar.  Marrall!

Over.  (flattering him.)  Though the witnesses are dead, your testimony
Help with an oath or two: and for thy master,
Thy liberal master, my good honest servant,
I know thou wilt swear anything, to dash

1 Seized.  2 The law against witchcraft.

This cunning sleight: besides, I know thou art
A publice notary, and such stand in law 305
For a dozen witnesses: the deed being drawn too
By thee, my careful Marrall, and deliver'd
When thou wert present, will make good my title.

Wilt thou not swear this?

Mar.  I No, I assure you: 309
I have a conscience not sear'd up like yours;
I know no deeds.

Over.  Wilt thou betray me?

Mar.  Keep him
From using of his hands, I'll use my tongue,
To his no little torment.

Over.  Mine own varlet
Rebel against me!

Mar.  Yes, 'tis uncase 3 you too.

'The idiot, the patch, the slave, the booby, 215
The property fit only to be beaten
For your morning exercise, your "football," or
"Th' unprofitable lump of flesh," your "drudge."

Can now anatomise you, and lay open
All your black plots, and level with the earth
Your hill of pride, and, with these gabions 4 guarded
Unload my great artillery, and shake
Nay pulverise, the walls you think defend you.

L. All.  How he foams at the mouth with rage!

Well.  To him again.

Over.  O that I had thee in my gripe, I would tear thee

Joint after joint!

Mar.  I know you are a tearer,
But I'll have first your fang par'd off, and then Come nearer to you; when I have discover'd.
And made it good before the judge, what ways
And devilish practices you us'd to cozen
With an army of whole families, who yet live,
And, but enroll'd for soldiers, were able To take in Dunkirk.

Well.  All will come out.

L. All.  The better.

Over.  But that I will live, rogue, to torture thee,
And make thee wish, and kneel in vain, to die.
These swords that keep thee from me should fix here,
Although they made my body but one wound,
But I would reach thee.

Lor.  (Aside.)  Heaven's hand is in this;
One bandog? worry the other!

Over.  I play the fool,
And make my anger but ridiculous;

There will be a time and place, there will be cowards.

When you shall feel what I dare do.

Well.  I think so:
You dare do any ill, yet want true valour
To be honest, and repent.

3 Play.  4 Wicker baskets filled with earth, used to protect soldiers when digging trenches.

6 Revealed.  7 Capture.  8 Fierce watchdog.
Enter Greedy and Parson Willdo.

Shall find no harbour here: — after these storms
At length a calm appears. Welcome, most welcome!
There’s comfort in thy looks. Is the deed done?
Is my daughter married? Say but so, my chaplain,
And I am tame.

Willdo. Married! Yes I assure you. 266
Over. Then vanish all sad thoughts! There’s more gold for thee.

My doubts and fears are in the titles drown’d
Of my honourable, my right honourable daughter.

Greedy. Here will 1 be feasting! At least for a month
I am provided: empty guts, croak no more. 266
You shall be stuff’d like bagpipes, not with wind,
But bearing 2 dishes.

Over. Instantly be here?
(Whispering to Willdo.)

To my wish! to my wish! Now you that plot against me,
And hop’d to trip my heels up, that contemn’d me,
Think on’t and tremble. — (Loud music)—
They come! I hear the music.

A lane there for my lord!
Well. This sudden heat
May yet be cool’d, sir.
Over. Make way there for my lord!

Enter Allworth and Margaret.

Marg. Sir, first your pardon, then your blessing,
With your full allowance of the choice I have made.
As ever you could make use of your reason. 266

Kneeling.

Grow not in passion; since you may as well
Call back the day that’s past, as cuttie the knot
Which is too strongly fasten’d. Not to dwell
Too long on words, this is my husband.

Over. How! 266

All. So I assure you; all the rites of marriage,
With every circumstance, are past. Alas! sir,
Although I am no lord, but a lord’s page,
Your daughter and my lov’d wife mourns not for it;
And, for right honourable son-in-law, you may say,
Your dutiful daughter.

Devil! are they married? 278
Willdo. Do a father’s part, and say, “Heaven give ’em joy!”
Over. Confusion and ruin! Speak, and speak quickly,
Or thou art dead.

Willdo. They are married.
Over. Thou hast better
Have made a contract with the king of fiends,
Than these: — my brain turns!

1 Q. will I.
2 Solid.

Wildo. Why this rage to me? 280
Is not this your letter, sir, and these the words?
“Marry her to this gentleman.”

Over. It cannot—
Nor will I e’er believe it; sheath I will not;
That I, that in all passages I touch’d
At worldly profit have not left a print
Where I have trod for the most curious search
To trace my footsteps, should be gull’d by children,
Baff’d and fool’d, and all my hopes and labours
Defeated and made void.

Well. As it appears,
You are so, my grave uncle.

Over. Village nurses 290
Revenge their wrongs with curses; I’ll not waste
A syllable, but thus I take the life
Which, wretched, I gave to thee.

Ofters to kill Margaret.

Lov. [coming forward.] Hold, for your own sake!
Though charity to your daughter hath quite left you,
Will you do an act, though in your hopes lost here,
Can leave no hope for peace or rest hereafter?
Consider; at the best you are but a man,
And cannot so create your aims but that
They may be cross’d.

Over. Lord! thus I spit at thee, 300
And at thy counsel; and again desire thee,
And as thou art a soldier, if thy valour
Dares shew itself where multitude and example
Lead not the way, let’s quit the house, and change
Six words in private.

Six words in private.

I am ready.

L. All. Stay, sir, 303
Contest with one distracted!

Well. You’ll grow like him,
Should you answer his vain challenge.

Over. Are you pale?
Borrow his help, though Hercules call it odds,
I’ll stand against both as I am, hemm’d in thus.

Since, like a Libyan lion in the toil,
My fury cannot reach the coward hunters,
And only spends itself, I’ll quit the place.
Alone I can do nothing; but I have servants
And friends to second me; and if I make not
This house a heap of ashes (by my wrongs, 315
What I have spoke I will make good!) or leave
One throat uncut,—if it be possible,
Hell, add to my afflictions!

Exit.

Mar. Is’t not brave sport?
Greedy. Brave sport! I am sure it has ta’en away my stomach;
I do not like the sauce.

All. Nay, weep not, dearest, 330
Though it express your pity; what’s decreed
Above, we cannot alter.

L. All. His threats move me
No scruple, madam.

Mar. Was it not a rare trick,
An it please your worship, to make the deed
nothing?

I can do twenty neater, if you please 335
To purchase and grow rich; for I will be Such a solicitor and steward for you,
As never worshipful had.

Well. I do believe thee;
But first discover the quaint means you us'd
To raze out the conveyance?

Mar. They are mysteries.
Not to be spoke in public: certain minerals Incorporated in the ink and wax—
Besides, he gave me nothing, but still fed me
With hopes and blows; but that was the inducement.

To this conundrum. If it please your worship
To call to memory, this mad beast once caus'd me
To urge you or to drown or hang yourself;
I'll do the like to him, if you command me.

Well. You are a rascal! He that dares be false
To a master, though unjust, will ne'er be true
To any other. Look not for reward
Or favour from me; I will shun thy sight
As I would do a basilisk's. Thank my pity
If thou keep thy ears; how's e'er, I will take order
Your practice shall be silenced.

Greedily. I'll commit him, sir. If you'll have me, sir.
Well. That were to little purpose;
His conscience be his prison. Not a word,
But instantly be gone.

Ord. Take this kick with you.
Amb. And this.
Furn. If that I had my cleaver here,
I would divide your knave's head.
Mar. This is the haven.
False servants still arrive at.

Re-enter Overreach.

L. All. Come again!
Lov. Fear not, I am your guard.

Well. His looks are ghastly.

Willdo. Some little time I have spent, under your favours,
In physical studies, and if my judgment err not,
He's mad beyond recovery: but observe him,
And look to yourselves.

Over. Why, is not the whole world
Included in myself? To what use then?
Are friends and servants? Say there were a squadron
Of pikes, li'd through with shot, when I am mounted
Upon my injuries, shall I fear to charge 'em? No: I'll through the battalia, and, that rote'd, Flourishing his sword sheath'd.

I'll fall to execution—Ha! I am feeble.
Some undone widow sits upon mine arm,
And takes away the use of 't; and my sword,
Glue'd to my scabbard with wrong'd orphans' tears,
Will not be drawn. Ha! what are these? Sure, hangmen
That come to bind my hands, and then to drag me
Before the judgment-seat: now they are new shapes,
And do appear like Furies, with steel whips.

To scourge my ulcerous soul. Shall I then fall
Ingloriously, and yield? No; spite of Fate,
I will be forc'd to hell like to myself.
Though you were legions of accursed spirits,
Thus would I fly among you.

Well. There's no help;
Disarm him first, then bind him.

Greedily. Take a mitimus.

And carry him to Bedlam.

Lov. How be foams! Well. And bites the earth!

Willdo. Carry him to some dark room,
There try what art can do for his recovery.

Marg. O my dear father!

All. They force Overreach off.

Lov. Here is a precedent to teach wicked men
That when they leave religion, and turn atheists,
Their own abilities leave 'em. Pray you take comfort,
I will endeavour you shall be his guardians
In his distractions: and for your land, Master Wallborn,
Be it good or ill in law, I'll be an umpire.

Between you, and this, th' undoubted heir
Of Sir Giles Overreach. For me, here's the anchor
That I must fix on.

All. What you shall determine,
My lord, I will allow of.

Well. 'Tis the language.

That I speak too; but there is something else
Besides the repossession of my land,
And payment of my debts, that I must practise.

I had a reputation, but 't was lost
In my loose course, and until I redeem it
Some noble way, I am but half made up.

It is a time of action; if your lordship
Will please to confer a company upon me
In your command, I doubt not in my service
To my king and country but I shall do something
That may make me right again.

Lov. Your suit is granted.

And you lov'd for the motion.

Well. [Coming forward.] Nothing wants then
But your allowance—

THE EPILOGUE

But your allowance, and in that our all
Is comprehended; it being known, nor we,
Nor he that wrote the comedy, can be free
Without your manumission; which if you
Grant willingly, as a fair favour due
To the poet's and our labours, (as you may,
For we despair not, gentlemen, of the play.)
We jointly shall profess your grace hath might
To teach us action, and him how to write.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE — Sparta.

PROLOGUE

Our scene is Sparta, He whose best of art
Hath drawn this piece calls it The Broken Heart.
The title lends no expectation here
Of apish laughter, or of some lame jeer
At place or persons; no pretended clause
Of jests fit for a brothel courts applause
From vulgar admiration: such low songs,
Tun'd to unchaste ears, suit not modest tongues.
The Virgin Sisters then deserv'd fresh bays
When Innocence and Sweetness crown'd their lays;
Then vices gasp'd for breath, whose whole commerce
Was whipp'd to exile by unblushing verse.
This law we keep in our presentment now,
Not to take freedom more than we allow;
What may be here thought fiction, when time's youth
Wanted some riper years, was known a truth:
In which, if words have cloth'd the subject right,
You may partake a pity with delight.

ACT I

SCENE I.5

Enter Crotolon and Orgilus.

Crot. Daily not further; I will know the reason
That speeds thee to this journey.

Org. Reason I good sir,
I can yield many.

Crot. Give me one, a good one;
Such I expect, and ere we part must have.

1 Q. Granville, throughout.
2 A room in Crotolon's house.
3 Q. a fiction.

Athens! Pray, why to Athens? You intend not
To kick against the world, turn cynic, stoic,
Or read the logic lecture, or be
An Areopagite, and judge in cases
Touching the commonwealth; for, as I take it,
The budding of your chin cannot prognosticate
So grave an honour.

Org. All this I acknowledge. 5
Crot. You do! Then, son, if books and love
Of knowledge
Inflame you to this travel, here in Sparta
You may as freely study.

4 A member of the Areopagus, the highest judicial court in Athens.
"Tis not that, sir. Crot. Not that, sir! As a father, I command thee.
To acquaint me with the truth.
Org. Thus I obey ye. After so many quarrels as dissension, Fury, and rage had broach'd in blood, and sometimes
With death to such confederates as sided
With now-dead Thrasus and yourself, my lord;
Our present king, Amyelas, reconcil'd
Your eager swords and seal'd a gentle peace:
Friends you protest yourselves; which to confirm,
A resolution for a lasting league
Betwixt your families was entertain'd,
By joining in a Hymenean bond
Me and the fair Penthea, only daughter
To Thrasus.
Crot. What of this?
Org. Much, much, dear sir.
A freedom of converse, an interchange
Of holy and chaste love, so first our souls
In a firm growth of union, that no time
Can eat into the pledge: we had enjoy'd
The sweet's our vows expected, had not cruelty Prevented all those triumphs we prepar'd for,
By Thrasus his untimely death.
Crot. Most certain.
Org. From this time sprouted up that poisonous stalk
Of aconite, whose ripened fruit hath raviolt
All health, all comfort of a happy life;
For Ithocles, her brother, proud of youth,
And prouder in his power, nourish closely
The memory of former discontent,
To glory in revenge. By cunning partly,
Partly by threats, 'a wos at once and forces
His virtuous sister to admit a marriage
With Bassanes, a nobleman, in honour
And riches, I confess, beyond my fortunes.
Crot. All this is no sound reason to importune
My leave for thy departure.
Org. Now it follows. Beauteous Penthea, wedded to this torture
By an insulting brother, being secretly
Compell'd to yield her virgin freedom up
To him who never can usurp her heart,
Before contracted mine, is now so yok'd
To a most barbarous thraldom, misery,
Affliction, that he savours not humanity,
Whose sorrow melts not into more than pity
In hearing but her name.
Crot. As how, pray? Bassanes,
The man that calls her wife, considers truly
What heaven of perfections he is lord of
By thinking fair Penthea his: this thought
Begets a kind of monster-love, which love
Is nurse unto a fear so strong and servile
As brands all dotage with a jealousy:
All eyes who gaze upon that shrine of beauty
He doth resolve do homage to the miracle; some one, he is assur'd, may now or then,
He has just grounds direct him. I will prove
A father and a brother to thee.

_Euph._

Heaven

Does look into the secrets of all hearts:
Gods, you have mercy with ye, else —

_Crot._

Doubt nothing; 10

Thy brother will return in safety to us.

_Ory._ Souls sunk in sorrows never are without 'em;
They change fresh airs, but bear their griefs about 'em.

_Exit omm._

SCENE II. 1

_Flourish._ Enter Amyclas the King, Armestes, Prophilus, [Courtiers,] and Attendants.

_Amy._ The Spartan gods are gracious; our humility
Shall bend before their altars, and perfume
Their temples with abundant sacrifice.
See, lords, Amyclas, your old king, is ent'ring
Into his youth again! I shall shake off
This silver badge of age, and change this snow
For hairs as gay as are Apollo's looks;
Our heart leaps in new vigour.

_Arm._ May old time
Run back to double your long life, great sir!

_Amy._ It will, it must, Armestes: thy bold nephew,
Death-braving Ithocles, brings to our gates
Triumphs and peace upon his conquering sword.

_Laco._

A monarchy at length;
Hath' in this latter war trod under foot
Messene's pride; Messene bows her neck
To Lacedaemon's royalty. O, 'tis was
A glorious victory, and doth deserve
More than a chronicle — a temple, lords,
A temple to the name of Ithocles—

_Pro._

Where didst thou leave him, Prophilus?

_Arm._ At Pephon, 20

Most gracious sovereign; twenty of the noblest
Of the Messenians there attend your pleasure,
For such conditions as you shall propose
In settling peace, and liberty of life.

_Amy._ When comes your friend, the general?

_Pro._

He promis'd; 25

To follow with all speed convenient.

Enter Calantha, Euphranea; Christalla

_and Philema [with a garland;] and Grizolon.

_Amy._ Our daughter! — Dear Calantha, the happy news,
The conquest of Messene, hath already Enrich'd thy knowledge.

_Crot._ With the circumstance
And manner of the fight, related faithfully
By Prophilus himself. — But, pray, sir, tell me
How doth the youthful general demean
His actions in these fortunes?

_Pro._

Excellent princess,
Your own fair eyes may soon report a truth
Unto your judgment, with what moderation,

1 A room in the palace.

Calmness of nature, measure, bounds, and limits
Of thankfulness and joy, a doth digest
Such amplitude of his success as would
In others, moulded of a spirit less clear,
Advance 'em to comparison with heaven:

_But Ithocles —

_Crot._ Your friend —

_Pro._

He is so, madam,
In which the period of my fate consists:
He, in this firmament of honour, stands
Like a star first, not mov'd with any thunder
Of popular applause or sudden lightning
Of self-opinion; he hath serv'd his country,
And thinks 'twas but his duty.

_Crot._

A miracle of man.

_Amy._

On forfeit of a king's word, thou wilt find him.—

_Hark, warning of his coming! All attend him._

Enter Ithocles, Hemophil, and Gronesias;
_the rest of the Lords ushering him in._

_Return into these arms, thy home, thy sanctuary,
Delight of Sparta, treasure of my bosom,
Mine own, own Ithocles! 40

_Ith._

Your humblest subject.

_Arm._ Proud of the blood I claim an interest in,
As brother to thy mother, I embrace thee.

Right noble nephew.

_Ith._

Sir, your love's too partial.

_Crot._ Our country speaks by me, who by thy valour,
Wisdom, and service, shares in this great action;
Returning thee, in part of thy due merits,
A general welcome.

_Ith._

You exceed in bounty. 50

_Crot._

Christalla, Philema, the chaplet. [Takes the chaplet from them.]—Ithocles,
Upon the wings of Fame the singular
And chosen fortune of an high attempt
Is borne so past the view of common sight,
That I myself with mine own hands have wrought.
To crown thy temples, this provincial garland; 2
Accept, wear, and enjoy it as our gift
Deserv'd, not purchas'd.

_Ith._

Y' are a royal maid.

_Amy._ She is in all our daughter.

_Ith._

Let me blush,
Acknowledging how poorly I have serv'd; 70
What nothing's I have done, compar'd with th' honours
Heap'd on the issue of a willing mind;
In that lay mine ability, that only:
For who is he so sluggish from his birth,
So little worthy of a name or country,
That owes not out of gratitude for life
A debt of service, in what kind soever
Safety or counsel of the commonwealth
Requires, for payment?

2 The laurel wreath . . . conferred on those who added a province to the empire. (Gifford.)
A speaks truth.

Ith. Whom heaven
Is pleas'd to style victorious, there to such. 89
Applause runs madding, like the drunken priests
In Bacchus' sacrifices, without reason,
Voicing the leader-on a demi-god;
Wheras, indeed, each common soldier's blood
Drops down as current coin in that hard purchase
As his whose much more delicate condition
Hath suck'd the milk of ease: judgment commands,
But resolution executes. I use not,
Before this royal presence, these fit slights
As in contempt of such as can direct;
My speech hath other end; not to attribute
All praise to one man's fortune, which is strength'en'd
By many hands. For instance, here is Prophilus,
A gentleman—I cannot flatter truth—
Of much desert; and, though in other rank,
Both Hemophil and Groneas were not missing
To wish their country's peace; for, in a word,
All there did strive their best, and 't was our duty.

Amy. Courtiers turn soldiers!—We vouchsafe our hand.

[HEMOPHIL AND GRONEAS KISS HIS HAND]

Observe your great example.

Hem. With all diligence. 100

Gro. Obsequiously and hourly.

Amy. Some repose

After these toils is needful. We must think on Conditions for the conquered; they expect 'em.

On!—Come, my Ithocles.

Euph. Sir, with your favour,

I need not a supporter.

Pro. Fate instructs me. 105

Exeunt. HEMOPHIL STAYS CHRISTALLA; GRONEAS, PHILEMA.

Chris. With me?

Phil. Indeed, I dare not stay.

Hem. Sweet lady.

Soldiers are blunt,—your lip.

Chris. Ple, this is rudeness.

You went not hence such creatures.

Gro. Spirit of valour

Is of a mounting nature.

Phil. It appears so.—

Pray, in earnest, how many men apiece

Have you two been the death of?

Gro. 'Faith, not many;

We were compos'd of mercy.

Hem. For our daring,

You heard the general's approbation

Before the king.

Chris. You 'wish'd your country's peace';

That show'd your charity: where are your spoils,

Such as the soldier fights for?

Phil. They are coming.

Chris. By the next carrier, are they not?

Gro. Sweet Philema,

When I was in the thickest of mine enemies,
Slashing off one man's head, another's nose,
Another's arms and legs,—

Phil. And all together. 110

Gro. Then would I with a sigh remember thee.

And cry 'Dear Philema, 'tis for thy sake
I do these deeds of wonder!'—Dost not love me
With all thy heart now?

Phil. Now as heretofore.

Hem. I have not put my love to use; the principal
Will hardly yield an interest.

Gro. By Mars, I'll marry thee!

Phil. By Vulcan, you're forsworn,

Except my mind do alter strangely.

Gro. One word.

Chris. You lie beyond all modesty:—forbear me.

Hem. I'll make thee mistress of a city; 't is Mine own by conquest.

Chris. By petition; sue for 't

In forma pauperis.—City I kennel.—Gallants,
Off with your feathers, put on aprons, gallants;
Learn to reel, thrum, or trim a lady's dog,
And be good quiet souls of peace, hobgoblins!

Hem. Christalla!

Chris. Practise to drill hogs, in hope
To share in the acom's,—Soldiers! cornetters,
But not so valiant; they oft times draw blood,
Which you durst never do. When you have practis'd
More wit or more civility, we'll rank ye.

P'r the list of men: till then, brave things-at-arms,

Dare not to speak to us,—most potent Groneas!—

Phil. And Hemophil the hardy!—at your services.

Exeunt CHRISTALLA AND PHILEMA.

Gro. They scorn us as they did before we went.

Hem. Hang 'em! let us scorn them, and be reveng'd.

Gro. Shall we?

Hem. We will: and when we slight them thus,
Instead of following them, they'll follow us;
It is a woman's nature.

Gro. 'Tis a scurvy one. Exeunt.

SCENE III. 6

Enter TECNITUS, a philosopher, and ORGILDUS disguised like a Scholar of his.

Tec. Tempt not the stars; young man, thou canst not play
With the severity of fate: this change
Of habit and disguise in outward view
Hides not the secrets of thy soul within thee
From their quick-piercing eyes, which dive at all times

4 Weave. 5 The gardens of the palace. A grove.

---

1 Appropriately belittling terms.
2 Q. are.
3 Await.
Down to thy thoughts: in thy aspect I note
A consequence of danger.

Org. Give me leave, Work Tecnicus, without foredooming destiny,
Under thy roof to ease my silent griefs,
By applying to my hidden wounds the balm
Of thy oracular lectures. If my fortune
Run such a crooked by-way as to wrest
My steps to ruin, yet thy learned precepts
Shall call me back and set my footsteps straight.
I will not court the world.

Tec. Ah, Orgilus, Neglects in young men of delights and life Run often to extremities; they care not
For harms to others who entertain their own.

Org. But I, most learned artist, am not so
At odds with nature that I grudge the thirst
Of any true deserver; nor doth malice
Of present hopes so check them with despair
As that I yield to thought of more affliction
Than what is incident to frailty: wherefore
Impute not this retired course of living.
Some little time to any other cause
Than what I justly render,—the information
Of an unsettled mind; as the effect
Must clearly witness.

Tec. Spirit of truth inspire thee! On these conditions I conceal thy change, and
And willingly admit thee for an auditor.—I'll to my study.

Org. I to contemplations
In these delightful walks. Exit Tecnicus.

Thus metamorphos'd
I may without suspicion hearken after Penthea's usage and Euphranea's faith.

Love, thou art full of mystery! The deities Themselves are not secure in searching out
The secrets of those flames, which, hidden, waste
A breast made tributary to the laws
Of beauty: physic yet hath never found
A remedy to cure a lover's wound. — Ha! who are those that cross you private walk
Into the shadowing grove in amorous foldings?

PROPHILUS passeth over, supporting EUPHRA-NEA, and whispering.

My sister! O, my sister! 'tis Euphranea.
With Prophilius: supported too! I would
It were an apparition! Prophilius
Is Ithocles his friend: it strangely puzzles me.
Again I help me, my book; this scholar's habit
Must stand my privilege: my mind is busy,
Mine eyes and ears are open.

Walks by, reading.

Re-enter Prophilius and Euphranea.

Pro. Do not waste
The span of this stol'n time, lent by the gods
For precious use, in niceness. Bright Euphranea, Should I repeat old vows, or study new,
For purchase of belief to my desires,—

1 Certain.
2 With his arm round her waist. (Dyce.)
3 Coyness; over-particular scruples.

Org. [Aside.] Desires!
Pro. My service, my integrity,—

Org. [Aside.] That's better.
Pro. I should but repeat a lesson
Oft comm'd without a prompter but thine eyes.
My love is honourable.

Org. [Aside] So was mine
To my Penthea, chastely honourable.
Pro. Nor wants there more addition to my wish
Of happiness than having thee a wife;
Already sure of Ithocles, a friend
Firm and unalterable.

Org. [Aside.] But a brother
More cruel than the grave.

Euph. What can you look for,
In answer to your noble protestations,
From an unskilful maid, but language suited
To a divided mind?

Org. [Aside.] Hold out, Euphranea! Euph. Know, Prophilius, I never undervalued,
From the first time you mentioned worthy love,
Your merit, means, or person: it had been
A fault of judgment in me, and a dulness
In my affections, not to weigh and thank
My better stars that offered me the grace
Of so much blissfulness. For, to speak truth,
The law of my desires kept equal pace
With yours; nor have I left that resolution:
But only, in a word, whatever choice
Lives nearest in my heart must first procure
Consent both from my father and my brother,
Ere he can own me his.

Org. [Aside.] She is forsworn else.

Pro. Leave me that task.
Euph. My brother, ere he parted
To Athens, had my oath.

Org. [Aside.] Yes, yes, 'a had, sure.
Pro. I doubt not, with the means the court supplies,
But to prevail at pleasure.

Org. [Aside.] Very likely!

Pro. Meantime, best, dearest, I may build my hopes
On the foundation of thy constant suff'rance
In any opposition.

Euph. Death shall sooner
Divorce life and the joys I have in living
Than my chaste vows from truth.

Pro. On thy fair hand
I seal the like.

Org. [Aside.] There is no faith in woman.

Euph. Sir, we are overheard.

Sir, we are overheard.

Cupid protect us! 'T was a stirring, sir,
Of some one near.

Pro. Your fears are needless, lady:
None have access into these private pleasures
Except some near in court, or bosom-student
From Tecnicus his oratory, granted
By special favour lately from the king
Unto the grave philosopher.

Euph. Methinks
I hear one talking to himself;—I see him.

1 Hooks for stretching cloth; on the neck.
THE BROKEN HEART

II. i.

Pro. 'Tis a poor scholar, as I told you, lady.
Org. [Aside.] I am discovered. — [Half aloud to himself; as if studying.] Say it; is it possible,
With a smooth tongue, a learing countenance, Flattery, or force of reason — I come t'ye, sir;
To turn or to appease the raging sea?
Answer to that. — Your art! what art to catch
And hold fast in a net the sun's small atoms?
No, no; they'll out, they'll out: ye may as easily
Outrun a cloud driven by a northern blast.
As fiddle-faddle so! Peace, or speak sense.
Euph. Call you this thing a scholar? 'Las, he's lunatic.
Pro. Observe him, sweet; 'tis but his recreation.
Org. But will you hear a little? You're so tetchy,
You keep no rule in argument. Philosophy
Works not upon impossibilities,
But natural conclusions. — Mew! — absurd!
The metaphysics are but speculations
Of the celestial bodies, or such accidents
As not mixt perfectly, in the air engend'red.
Appear to us unnatural; that's all.
Prove it; yet, with a reverence to your gravity,
I'll balk illiterate sainciness, submitting
My sole opinion to the touch of writers.
Pro. Now let us fall in with him.
[They come forward.]
Ha, ha, ha!
Org. These apish boys, when they but taste the grammates
And principles of theory, imagine
They can oppose their teachers. Confidence Leads many into errors.
Pro. By your leave, sir.
Euph. Are you a scholar, friend?
Org. I am, gay creature.
With pardon of your deities, a mushroom
On whom the dew of heaven drops now and then;
The sun shines on me too, I thank his beams!
Sometime I feel their warmth; and eat and sleep.
Pro. Does Tecnicus read to thee?
Org. Yes, forsooth.
He is my master surely; yonder door
Opens upon his study.
Pro. Happy creatures!
Such people tell not, sweet, in heats of state,
Nor sink in thaws of greatness; their affections
Keep order within the limits of their modesty;
Their love is love of virtue. — What's thy name?
Org. Aplotes, sumptuous master, a poor wretch.
Euph. Dost thou want anything?
Pro. Lady, a new conceit comes in my thought,
And most available for both our comforts.
Euph. My lord, —

Pro. While I endeavour to deserve
Your father's blessing to our loves, this scholar
May daily at some certain hours attend
What notice I can write of my success,
Here in this grove, and give it to your hands;
The like from you to me: so can we never,
Barr'd of our mutual speech, want sure intelligence,
And thus our hearts may talk when our tongues cannot.
Euph. Occasion is most favourable; use it.
Pro. Aplotes, wilt thou wait us twice a day,
At nine i' the morning and at four at night,
Here in this bower, to convey such letters
As each shall send to other? Do it willingly, Safely, and secretly, and I will furnish
Thy study, or what else thou canst desire.
Org. Jove, make me thankful, thankful, I beseech thee,
Propitious Jove! I will prove sure and trusty:
You will not fail me books?
Pro. Nor aught besides
Thy heart can wish. This lady's name's Euphranae, Mine Propilius.
Org. I have a pretty memory;
It must prove my best friend. I will not miss
One minute of the hours appointed.
Pro. Write
The books thou wouldst have bought thee in a note,
Or take thyself some money.
Org. No, no money;
Money to scholars is a spirit invisible,
We dare not finger it: or books, or nothing.
Pro. Books of what sort thou wilt: do not forget
Our names.
Org. I warrant ye, I warrant ye.
Pro. Smile, Hymen, on the growth of our desires;
We'll feed thy torches with eternal fires!
Exeunt Propilius and Euphranae.
Org. Put out thy torches, Hymen, or their light
Shall meet a darkness of eternal night!
Inspire me, Mercury, with swift deceits.
Ingenious Fate has leapt into mine arms.
Beyond the compass of my brain, Mortality
Creeps on the dung of earth, and cannot reach
The riddles which are purpos'd by the gods.
Great arts best write themselves in their own stories:
They die too basely who outlive their glories.

Exit.

ACT II

Scene I.

Enter Bassanes and Phulas.

Bass. I'll have that window next the street damm'd up;
2 Wait for.
3 Beyond what I could have planned.
4 A room in Bassanes' house.
It gives too full a prospect to temptation,
And courts a gazer’s glance. There’s a lust
Committed by the eye, that sweats and travails,
Plots, wrakes, contrives, till the deformed bear-whelp.
Adultery, be lick’d into the act,
The very act. That light shall be damm’d up;
D’ye hear, sir?

Phu. I do hear, my lord; a mason
Shall be provided suddenly.¹

Bass. Some rogue of your confederacy,—factor²
For slaves and strumpets!—to convey close packets
From this spruce springal³ and t’ other youngster.
That gaudy ewing, or my lord your patron,
Whose pensioner you are,—I’ll tear thy throat out,
Son of a cat, ill-looking hound’s-head, rip-up ¹⁵
Thy ulcerous maw, if I but scent a paper,
A scroll, but half as big as what can cover
A wart upon thy nose, a spot, a pimple,
Directed to my lady; it may prove
A mystical preparative to lewdness.

Phu. Care shall be had: I will turn every head
About me to an eye.—[Aside.] Here’s a sweet life!

Bass. The city housewives, cunning in the traffic
Of chamber merchandise, set all at price
By wholesale; yet they wipe their mouths and simper,
Cull, kiss, and cry “sweetheart,” and stroke the head
Which they have branch’d; and all is well again!
Dull clods of dirt, who dare not feel the rubs
Stack on their foreheads.

Phu. ’Tis a villainous world;
One cannot hold his own in ’t.

Bass. Dames at court, ⁵⁰
Who flaunt in riots, run another bias; ⁶
Their pleasure heaves the patient ass that suffers
Up on the stalls of office, titles, incomes;
Promotion justifies the shame, and sues for ’t.
Poor honour, thou art stabb’d, and bleed’st to death
By such unlawful hire! The country mistress
Is yet more wary, and in bushes hides
Whatever trespass draws her truth to guilt.
But all are false: on this truth I am bold,
No woman but can fall, and doth, or would.—
Now for the newest news about the city;
What blab the voices, sirrah?

Phu. O, my lord,
The rarest, quaintest, strangest, tickling news
That ever—

Bass. Hey-day! up and ride me, rascal!

---

Phu. Forsooth, they say the king has mew’d! ⁴⁵
All his gray beard, instead of which is budded
Another of a pure carnation colour,
Speckled with green and russet.

Bass. Ignorant block!

Phu. Yes, truly; and ’tis talked about the streets
That, since Lord Ithocles came home, the lions
Never left roaring, at which noise the bears
Have danc’d their very hearts out.

Bass. Dance out thine too.

Phu. Besides, Lord Orgilus is fled to Athens
Upon a fiery dragon, and ’tis thought
’A never can return.

Bass. Grant it, Apollo! ⁵⁵

Phu. Moreover, please your lordship, ’tis reported
For certain, that whoever is found jealous
Without apparent proof that’s wife is wanton
Shall be divorced: but this is but she-news;
I had it from a midwife. I have more yet.

Bass. Antic, no more! Idiots and stupid fools
Grate my calamities. Why to be fair
Should yield presumption of a faulty soul—
Look to the doors.

Phu. [Aside.] The horn of plenty crest him!

Exit.

Bass. Swarms of confusion huddle in my thoughts
In rare distemper. — Beauty! O, it is An unmatcht blessing or a horrid curse.

Enter Penthea and Grausis, an old Lady.

She comes, she comes! so shoots the morning forth,
Spangled with pearls of transparent dew.—
The way to poverty is to be rich,
As I in her am wealthy; but for her,
In all contents a bankrupt.—

Lov’d Penthea!

How fares my heart’s best joy?

Graus. In sooth, not well,
She is so over-sad.

Bass. Leave chattering, magpie.—

Thy brother is return’d, sweet, safe, and honour’d ⁷⁵
With a triumphant victory; thou shalt visit him:
We will to court, where, if it be thy pleasure,
Thou shalt appear in such a ravishing lustre
Of jewels above value, that the dames
Who brave it there, in rage to be outshin’d, ⁸⁰
Shall hide themselves in their closets, and unseen
Fret in their tears; whiles every wondring eye
Shall crave none other brightness but thy presence.

Choose thine own recreations; be a queen
Of what delights thou fanciest best, what company,
What place, what time; do anything, do all things
Youth can command, so thou wilt chase these clouds
From the pure firmament of thy fair looks.

¹ At once. ² Agent. ³ Youth. ⁴ Embrace. ⁵ Cuckolded: the inevitable jest on the cuckold’s horns. ⁶ Direction. ⁷ Mouled.
Bass. [Aside.] Furies whip thee! 90
Pen. Alas, my lord, this language to your hand-maid
Sounds as would music to the deaf; I need
No braveries nor cost of art to draw
The whiteness of my name into offence:
Let such, if any such there are, who covet 95
A curiosity of admiration,
By laying-out their plenty to full view,
Appear in gaudy outsides; my attires
Shall suit the inward fashion of my mind;
From which, if your opinion, nobly plac'd,
Change not the liv'ry your words bestow,
My fortunes with my hopes are at the highest.
Bass. This horse, methinks, stands somewhat more than much inward.
It is too melancholy; we'll remove Nearer the court: or what thinks my Penthea
Of the delightful island we command?
Rule me as thou canst wish.
Pen. I am no mistress
Whither you please, I must attend; all ways
Are alike pleasant to me.
Grau. Island; prison! A prison is as gaiusome: we'll no islands; 110
Marry out upon 'em! Whom shall we see there?
Sea-gulls, and porpoises, and water-rats,
And crabs, and mews, and dogfish; goodly gear
For a young lady's dealing; — or an old one's!
On no terms islands; I'll be stew'd first.
Bass. [Aside to Grausis.] You are a juggling bawd.— This sadness, sweetest, Becomes not youthful blood. — [Aside to Grausis.] I'll have you pounded. —
For my sake put on a more cheerful mirth;
Thou 'lt mar thy cheeks, and make me old in griefs.—
[Aside to Grausis.] Dammable bitch-fox!
Grau. I am thick of hearing, 130
Still, when the wind blows southerly. — What think ye,
If your fresh lady breed young bones, my lord?
Would not a chopping boy d' ye good at heart?
But, as you said —
Bass. [Aside to Grausis.] I'll spit thee on a stake,
Or chop thee into collops!
Grau. Pray, speak louder. 135
Sure, sure the wind blows south still.
Pen. Thou prat'st madly.
Bass. 'Tis very hot; I sweat extremely.
Re-enter Phoebus.

Phu. A herd of lords, sir.
Bass. Ha!
Phu. A flock of ladies.
Bass. Where?
Phu. Shoals of horses.
Bass. Peasant, how?

Phu. Carothe 1
In drifts; th' one enter, th' other stand without, sir:
And now I vanish.
Exit.

Enter Prophebus, Hemophil, Groneus,
Christalla, and Philema.

Pro. Noble Bassanes!
Bass. Most welcome, Prophiebus; ladies, gentlemen,
To all my heart is open; you all honour me, —
[Aside.] A tympany 2 swells in my head already,— Honour me bountifully. — [Aside.] How they flutter, Wagtails and jays together!
Pro. From your brother
By virtue of your love to him, I require
Your instant presence, fairest.
Pen. He is well, sir?
Pro. The gods preserve him ever! Yet, dear beauty,
I find some alteration in him lately,
Since his return to Sparta. — My good lord, I pray, use no delay.
Bass. We had not needed
An invitation, if his sister's health
Had not fallen into question. — Haste, Penthea,
Slack not a minute. — Lead the way, good Prophebus;
I'll follow step by step.

Pro. Your arm, fair madam.

Bass. One word with your old bawdship: th' hadst been better
Rail'd at the sins 3 thou worshippst th' have thwarted
My will: I'll use thee cursedly.
Grau. You dote.
Pen. You are beside yourself. A politician 160
In jealousy? No, 's you' are too gross, too vulgar.
Pha! teach not me my trade; I know my cue.
My crossing you sinks me into her trust,
By which I shall know all; my trade's a sure one.
Bass. Forgive me, Grausis, 't was consideration
I relish'd not; 4 but have a care now.
Grau. Fear not,
I am no new-come to 't.
Bass. Thy life's upon it,
And so is mine. My agonies are infinite.
Exeunt.

SCENE II. 5

Enter Ithocles, alone.

Ith. Ambition! 'tis of vipers' bread: it gnaws
A passage through the womb that gave it motion.
Ambition, like a seel'd 6 dove, mounts upward,
Higher and higher still, to perch on clouds,
But tumbles headlong down with heavier ruin.

1 Coaches. 3 Gifford's men. Sirants. 2 Swelling. 4 I did not see the point of.
5 The palace. Ithocles' apartment. 6 Blindly by seeing up the eye-lids.
So squibs and crackers fly into the air, and
Then, only breaking with a noise, they vanish
In stench and smoke. Morality, appli'd
To timely practice, keeps the soul in tune,
At whose sweet music all our actions dance:
But this is form of books and school-tradition;
It physics not the sickness of a mind.
Broken with griefs: strong fevers are not eas'd
With counsel, but with best receipts and means;
Means, speedy means and certain; that's the cure.

Enter Armóstes and CrotoLón.

Arm. You stick, Lord Crotolon, upon a point
Too nice and too unnecessary; Prophilus
Is every way desertful. I am confident
Your wisdom is too ripe to need instruction
From your son's tutelage.

Cro. Yet not so ripe, my lord? Why, if your son's consent
Be so available, we'll write to Athens
For his repair to Sparta. The king's hand Will join with our desires; he has been mov'd to it.

Arm. Yes, and the king himself impurt'lld'
CrotoLón
For a dispatch.

Cro. Kings may command; their wills
Are laws not to be questioned.

Ith. By this marriage 50
You knit an union so devout, so hearty,
Between your loves to me and mine to yours,
As if mine own blood had an interest in it;
For Prophilus is mine, and I am his.

Cro. My lord, my lord! —
Ith. What, good six? Speak your thought.
Cro. Had this sincerity been real once,
My Orgilus had not been now unwiv'd,
Nor your lost sister buried in a bride-bed.
Your uncle here, Armósites, knows this truth;
For had your father Thrasus liv'd, — but peace
Dwell in his grave! I have done.

Arm. [Aside.] 'A presses home the injury; it smart's.

No reprobemotions, uncle; I deserve 'em.
Yet, gentle sir, consider what the heat
Of an unsteady youth, a giddy brain,
Green indiscretion, flattness of greatness,
Rawness of judgment, wilfullness in folly,
Thoughts vagrant as the wind and as uncertain,
Might lead a boy in years to: — 'twas a fault,
A capital fault; for then I could not dive
Into the secrets of commanding love;
Since when, experience, by the extremest
Hath forc'd me collect.8 And, trust me, Crotolon,
I will redeem those wrongs with any service
Your satisfaction can require for current. 55

Arm. The 4 acknowledgment is satisfaction:
What would you more?
Cro. I'm conquer'd; if Euphranea
Herself admit the motion, let it be so;
I doubt not my son's liking.

Ith. Use my fortunes,
Life, power, sword, and heart, — all are your own.

Arm. The princess, with your sister.

Enter Calanthé, Pentheá, Euphraneá, Christiália, Phílemá, Graúsis, Bassanes,
And Prophilus.

Cal. I present ye
A stranger here in court, my lord; for did not Desire of seeing you draw her abroad,
We had not been made happy in her company.

Ith. You are a gracious princess.—Sister, wedlock
Holds too severe a passion in your nature,
Which can engross all duty to your husband,
Without attendance on so dear a mistress.—
[To Bassanes.] 'T is not my brother's pleasure,
I presume,
'T is her will; 70
She governs her own hours. Noble Ithocles,
We thank the gods for your success and welfare:
Our lady has of late been indispos'd,
Else we had waited on you with the first.

Ith. How does Pentheá now?
Pen. You best know, brother, 75
From whom my health and comforts are deriv'd.

Bass. [Aside.] I like the answer well; 'tis sad and modest.
There may be tricks yet, tricks. — Have an eye, Grausí!

Cal. Now, Crotolon, the suit we join'd in must not
Fall by too long demur.

Crot. 'T is granted, princess, 80
For my part.

Arm. With condition, that his son
Favour the contract.

Cal. Such delay is easy. —
The joys of marriage make thee, Prophilus,
A proud deserver of Euphranea's love,
And her of thy desert! 85

Bass. The joys of marriage are the heaven on earth,
Life's paradise, great princess, the soul's quiet,
Sinews of concord, earthly immortality,
Eternity of pleasures, — no restoratives
Like to a constant woman! — [Aside.] But where is she?

'T would puzzle all the gods but to create
Such a new monster. — I can speak by proof,
For I rest in Elysium; 'tis my happiness.

Crot. Euphranea, how are you resolv'd, speak freely,
In your affections to this gentleman?

Euph. Nor more nor less than as his love assures me;

Q. Thy.
THE BROKEN HEART

II. iii.

Which—if your liking with my brother's warrants—
I cannot but approve in all points worthy.

Gro. So!—[To PROPHILUS.] I know your answer.

Ith. 'T had been pity
To sunder hearts so equally consented.

Enter HEMOPHIL.

Hem. The king, Lord Ithocles, commands your presence;—

And, fairest princess, yours.

Cal. We will attend him.

Enter GRONEAS.

Gro. Where are the lords? All must unto the king
Without delay: the Prince of Argos—

Cal. Well, sir?

Gro. Is coming to the court, sweet lady.

Cal. How! I

The Prince of Argos?

Gro. 'T was my fortune, madam,
To enjoy the honour of these happy tidings.

Ith. Penthea!—

Pen. Brother?

Ith. Let me an hour hence
Meet you alone within the palace-grove;

I have some secret with you.—Frithee, friend,
Conduct her thither, and have special care
The walks be clear'd of any to disturb us.

Pro. I shall.

Bass. [Aside.] How's that?

Ith. Alone, pray be alone,—

I am your creature, princess.—On, my lords!—

Exeunt all but BASSANES.

Bass. Alone! alone! What means that word
"alone"?

Why might not I be there?—hum!—he's his brother.

Brothers and sisters are but flesh and blood,
And this same whoreson court-ease is temptation
To a rebellion in the veins;—besides,

His fine friend Prophilius must be her guardian:

Why may not he dispatch a business nimbly
Before the other come?—or—pand'ring, pand'ring
For one another,—be't to sister, mother,
Wife, cousin, anything,—'mongst youth of mettle
Is in request; it is so—stubborn fate!

But if I be a cuckold, and can know it,
I will be fell, and fell.

Re-enter GRONEAS.

Gro. My lord, you are call'd for.

Bass. Most heartily I thank ye. Where's my wife, pray?

Gro. Retir'd amongst the ladies.

Bass. Still I thank ye.

There's an old waiter with her; saw you her too?

Gro. She sits 'th presence-lobby fast asleep, sir.

Bass. Asleep! asleep, sir!

Gro. Is your lordship troubled?

You will not to the king?

Bass. Your humblest vassal.

Gro. Your servant, my good lord.

Bass. I wait your footsteps.

Exeunt.

SCENE III.¹

Enter Prophilius and Penthea.

Pro. In this walk, lady, will your brother find you:
And, with your favour, give me a little
To work a preparation. In his fashion
I have observ'd of late some kind of slackness
To such alacrity as nature [once]
And custom took delight in; sadness grows
Upon his recreations, which he boards
In such a willing silence, that to question
The grounds will argue little skill in friendship,
And less good manners.

Pen. Sir, I'm not inquisitive
Of seecries without an invitation.

Pro. With pardon, lady, not a syllable
Of mine implies so rude a sense; the drift—

Enter ORGILUS, [disguised as before.]

[To Org.] Do thy best
To make this lady merry for an hour. Exit. 15

Org. Your will shall be a law, sir.

Pen. Frithee, leave me; I have some private thoughts I would account with;

Use thou thine own.

Org. Speak on, fair nymph; our souls Can dance as well to music of the spheres As any who have feasted with the gods. 20

Pen. Your school-terms are too troublesome.

Org. What Heaven Refines mortality from dross of earth But such as uncompounded beauty hallows With glorified perfection?

Pen. Set thy wits In a less wild proportion.

Org. Time can never
On the white tablet of unguity faith Write counterfeit dishonour; turn those eyes, The arrows of pure love, upon that fire, Which once rose to a flame, perfum'd with vows As sweetly scented as the incense smoking On Vesta's altars, the holiest odours, virgin's tears, the holiest odours, virgin's tears, sprinkled, like dews, to feed 'em, And to increase their fervour.

Org. All pleasures are but mere imagination, Feeding the hungry appetite with steam, And sight of banquet, whilst the body pines, Not relishing the real taste of food: Such is the leanness of a heart divided From intercourse of troth-contracted loves; 40

² Gifford's emend. Q. reads...as the incense smoking The holiest odours, virgin tears (like On Vesta's odour) sprinkled dews to feed 'em, And to increase.
No horror should deface, that precious figure
Seal'd with the lively stamp of equal souls.
Pen. Away! some Fury hath bewitch'd thy tongue.
The breath of ignorance, that flies from thence,
Ripens a knowledge in me of afflictions.
Above all suff'rence,—thing of talk, begone!
Begone, without reply!
Org. Be just, Penthea,
In thy commands; when thou send'st forth a doom
Of banishment, know first on whom it lights.
Thus I take off the shroud, in which my cares
Are folded up from view of common eyes.
[Throws off his Scholar's dress.]
What is thy sentence next?
Pen. Rash man! thou layest
A blemish on mine honour, with the hazard
Of thy too-desperate life: yet I profess,
By all the laws of ceremonious wedlock,
I have not given admittance to one thought
Of female change since cruelty enforce'd
Divorce betwixt my body and my heart.
Why would you fall from goodness thus?
Org. O, rather Examine me, how I could live to say
I have been much, much wrong'd. 'Tis for thy sake
I put on this imposture: dear Penthea,
If thy soft bosom be not turn'd to marble,
Thou 'lt pity our calamities; my interest
Confirms me thou art mine still.
Pen. Yield your hand;
With both of mine I clasp it thus, thus kiss it,
Thus kneel before ye.
Org. You instruct my duty,
Pen. We may stand up.—Have you sought else to urge
Of new demand? As for the old, forget it;
'T is buried in an everlasting silence.
And shall be, shall be ever. What more would ye?
Org. I would possess my wife; the equity
Of very reason bids me.
Pen. Is that all?
Org. Why, 'tis the all of me, myself.
Pen. Remove
Your steps some distance from me:—at this space
A few words I dare change; but first put on
Your borrowed shape.
Org. You are obey'd; 'tis done.
[He resumes his disguise.]
Pen. How, Orgilus, by promise I was thine
The heavens do witness: they can witness too
A rape done on my truth: how I do love thee.
Yet, Orgilus, and yet, must best appear
In tendering thy freedom; for I find
The constant preservation of thy merit,
By thy not daring to attempt my fame
With injury of any loose conceit,
Which might give deeper wounds to discontent.
Continue this fair race: then, though I cannot Add to thy comfort, yet I shall more often
Remember from what fortune I am fallen,
And pity mine own ruin.—Live, live happy,
Happy in thy next choice, that thou mayst people.
This barren age with virtues in thy issue!
And O, when thou art married, think on me
With mercy, not contempt! I hope thy wife,
Hearing my story, will not scorn my fall.
Now let us part.
Org. Part! yet advise thee better:
Penthea is the wife to Orgilus,
And ever shall be.
Pen. Never shall nor will.
Org. How!
Pen. Hear me; in a word I'll tell thee why.
The virgin-dowry which my birth bestow'd
Is ravish'd by another; my true love
Abhors to think that Orgilus deriv'd
No better favours than a second bed.
Org. I must not take this reason.
Pen. To confirm it
Should I outlive my bondage, let me meet
Another worse than this and less desir'd,
If, of all men alive, thou shouldest but touch
My lip or hand again.
Org. Penthea, now
I tell ye, you grow wanton in my sufferance:
Come, sweet, th' art mine.
Pen. Uncivil sir, forbear!
Or I can turn affection into vengeance;
Your reputation, if you value any,
Lies bleeding at my feet. Unworthy man,
If ever henceforth thou appear in language,
Message, or letter, to betray my frailty,
I'll call thy former protestations lust,
And curse my stars for forfeit of my judgment
Go thou, fit only for disguise, and walks,
To hide thy shame: this once I spare thy life,
I laugh at mine own confidence; my sorrows
By thee are made inferior to my fortunes.
If ever thou didst harbour worthy love,
Dare not to answer. My good genius guide me,
That I may never see thee more!—Go from me!
Org. I'll tear my veil of politeness off,
And stand up like a man resolv'd to do:
Action, not words, shall show me.—O Penthea
Exit.
Pen. 'A sighed my name, sure, as he parted
From me:
I fear I was too rough. Alas, poor gentleman
'A look'd not like the ruins of his youth,
But like the ruins of those ruins. Honour,
How much we fight with weakness to preserve thee!
[Walks aside.]
Enter Bassanes and Grausias.
Bass. Fie on thee! damn thee, rotten maggot, damn thee!
Sleep? sleep at court? and now? Aches, convulsions,
Imposthumes, rheums, gouts, palsies, clogs thy bones
A dozen years more yet!
1 Course.

1 Apparently corrupt.
2 The word was pronounced aitches.
Grau. Now y' are in humours. Bass. She's by herself, there's hope of that; she's sad too.
She's in strong contemplation; yes, and fixt:
The signs are wholesome. Grau. Very wholesome, truly.
Bass. Hold your chops, 1 nightmare! — Lady, come; your brother
Is carried to his closet; you must thither. Pen. Not well, my lord?
Some surfeit or disorder. — How dost, dearest? Pen. Your news is none o' the best.

Re-enter Propheius.

Pro. The chief of men,
The excellentest Ithocles, desires
Your presence, madam. Bass. We are hastening to him.
Pen. In vain we labour in this course of life.
To piece our journey out at length, or crave
Respite of breath: our home is in the grave.
Bass. Perfect philosophy. [Pen.] Then let us care
To live so, that our reckonings may fall even
When we're to make account.
Pro. Who builds on noble grounds: sickness or pain
Is the deserver's exercise; 2 and such
Your virtuous brother to the world is known.
Speak comfort to him, lady; be all gentle: 3
Stars fall but in the grossness of our sight;
A good man dying, th' earth doth lose a light. Extenu omnes.

ACT III

SCENE I. 9

Enter Tecnicus, and Orgilus in his own shape.

Tec. Be well advis'd; let not a resolution
Of giddy rashness choke the breath of reason. Org. It shall not, most sage master.
Tec. I am jealous; 4 For if the borrowed shape so late put on Inferr'd a consequence, we must conclude
Some violent design of sudden nature
Hath shook that shadow off, to fly upon
A new-hatch'd execution. Orgilus, Take heed thou hast not, under our integrity, Shrouded unlawful plots; our mortal eyes
Pierce not the secrets of your heart, the gods
Are only privy to them. Org. Learned Tecnicus,
Such doubts are causeless; and, to clear the truth
From misconceit, the present state commands me.

The Prince of Argos comes himself in person 15
In quest of great Calantha for his bride,
Our kingdom's heir; besides, mine only sister,
Euphranea, is dispos'd to Propheius;
Lastly, the king is sending letters for me

1 Jaws. 2 Discipline. 3 Suspicious.

To Athens, for my quick repair to court: 20
To please accept these reasons.

Tec. Just ones, Orgilus, Not to be contradicted: yet beware
Of an unsure foundation; no fair colours
Can fortify a building faintly jointed.
I have observ'd a growth in thy aspect 25
Of dangerous extent, sudden; and — look to 't —
I might add, certain —

Org. My aspect! Could art
Run through mine inmost thoughts, it should 30 not sift
An inclination there more than what suited
With justice of mine honour.

Tec. I believe it. But know then, Orgilus, what honour is.
Honour consists not in a bare opinion
By doing any act that feeds content,
Brave in appearance, 'cause we think it brave;
Such honour comes by accident, not nature, 35
Proceeding from the vices of our passion,
Which makes our reason drunk: but real honours
Is the reward of virtue, and acquir'd
By justice, or by valour which for basis
Hath justice to uphold it. He then fails
In honour, who for inere [or] revenge
Commits thefts, murders, treasons, and adulteries,
With suchlike, by intrenching on just laws,
Whose sovereignty is best preserv'd by justice.
Thus, as you see how honour must be grounded
On knowledge, not opinion, — for opinion 45
Relies on probability and accident,
But knowledge on necessity and truth, —
I leave thee to the fit consideration
Of what becomes the grace of real honour,
Wishing success to all thy virtuous meanings.

Org. The gods increase thy wisdom, reverend oracle,
And in thy precepts make me ever thrifty! 5

Tec. I thank thy wish. Exit. Much mystery of fate
Lies hid in that man's fortunes; curiosity 55
May lead his actions into rare attempts: —
But let the gods be moderators still;
No human power can prevent their will.

Enter Armogistes [with a casket].

From whence come ye? Arm. From King Amyclas, — pardon
My interruption of your studies. — Here, 60
In this seal'd box, he sends a treasure [to you,]
Dear to him as his crown. 'A prays your gravity
You would examine, ponder, sift, and boil
The pith and circumstance of every tittle
The scroll within contains.

Tec. What is 't, Armogistes? 65
Arm. It is the health of Sparta, the king's life,
Sineus and safety of the commonwealth;
The sum of what the oracle deliver'd
When last he visited the prophetic temple
At Delphos: what his reasons are, for which, 70

5 Make me ever avail myself of thy precepts.
After so long a silence, he requires
Your counsel now, grave man, his majesty
Will soon himself acquaint you with.

Tec. [Takes the casket.] Apollo
Inspire my intellect! — The Prince of Argos
Is entertain’d?

Arm. He is; and has demanded
Our princess for his wife; which I conceive
One special cause the king importunes you
For resolution of the oracle.

Tec. My duty to the king, good peace to Sparta,
And fair day to Armoestes!

Arm. Like to Teenzions! Exeunt.

[SCENE II.] 1

Soft music, during which time enter Prophilius, Bassanes, Penthea, Grausis, passing over the stage. Bassanes and Grausis enter again softly, stealing to several stances, and listen.

A Song.
Can you paint a thought? or number
Every fancy in a slumber?
Can you count soft minutes roving
From a dial’s point by moving?
Can you grasp a sigh? or, lastly,
Rob a virgin’s honour chastely?
No, O, no! yet you may
Sooner do both that and this,
This and that, and never miss,
Than by any praise display
Beauty’s beauty; such a glory,
As beyond all fate, all story,
All arms, all arts, All loves, all hearts,
Greater than those or they,
Do, shall, and must obey.

Bass. All silent, calm, secure.— Grausis, no raving?

No noise? Dost hear nothing?

Grau. Not a mouse.

Or whisper of the wind.

Bass. The floor is matted;
The bedposts sure are steel or marble. — Soldiers
Should not affect, medleth, strains so effeminate:

Sounds of such delicacy are but fawnings
Upon the sloth of luxury, they heighten
Cinders of covert inst up to a flame.

Grau. What do you mean, my lord? — speak low; that gabbling

Of yours will but undo us.

Bass. Chamber-combats

Are felt, not heard.

Pro. [within.] ’A wakes.

Bass. What’s that?

Ith. [within.] Who’s there?

Sister? — All quit the room else.

Bass. T. is consented!

Re-enter Prophilius.

Pro. Lord Bassanes, your brother would be private,

1 The palace. Ithocles’ apartment.

We must forbear; his sleep hath newly left
him.

Please ye withdraw.

By any means; ’t is fit.

Bass. Pro. Fray, gentlewoman, walk too.

Grau. Yes, I will, sir. Exeunt omnes.

Ithocles discovered in a chair, and Penthhea [beside him].

Ith. Sit nearer, sister to me; nearer yet.

We had one father, in one womb took life,
Were brought up twins together, yet have liv’d
At distance, like two strangers. I could wish
That the first pillow wherein I was cradled
Had prov’d to me a grave.

Pen. You had been happy:

Then had you never known that sin of life
Which blots all following glories with a vengeance,

For forswearing the last will of the dead,

From whom you had your being.

Ith. Sad Penthea,

Thou canst not be too cruel; my rash spleen

Hath with a violent hand pluck’d 2 from thy bosom

A love-blest 3 heart, to grind it into dust;

For which mine’s now a-breaking.

Pen. Not yet, Heaven,

I do beseech thee! First let some wild fires

Scorch, not consume it! May the heat be ches-isht

With desires infinite, but hopes impossible!

Ith. Wrong’d soul, thy prayers are heard.

Pen. Here, lo, I breathe, 4

A miserable creature, led to ruin

By an unnatural brother!

Ith. I consume

In languishing affections for that trespass;

Yet cannot die.

Pen. The handmaid to the wages 5

Of country toil drinks the untroubled streams

With leaping kids and with the bleating lambs,

And so allays her thirst secure; whiles I

Quench my hot sighs with fleeting 8 of my tears.

Ith. The labourer doth eat his coarsest

bread,

Earn’d with his sweat, and lies him down to sleep;

While 4 every bit I touch turns in digestion

To gall as bitter as Penthea’s curse.

Put me to any penance for my tyranny,

And I will call thee merciful.

Pen. Pray kill me,

Kid me from living with a jealous husband; 65

Then we will join in friendship, be again

Brother and sister.— Kill me, pray; nay, will

ye?

Ith. How does thy lord esteem thee?

Pen. Such an one

As only you have made me; a faith-breaker,

A spotted whore: — forgive me, I am one 70

In act, not in desires, the gods must witness.

Ith. Thou dost belite thy friend.

Pen. I do not, Ithocles;

Q. inner-blest. Streams. Q. Which.
Enter BASSANES with a poniard; PROPHILUS, GEORGES, HEMOPHIL, and GRAUSIS.

Bass. I can forbear no longer; more, I will not.

Keep off your hands, or fall upon my point.—

Patience is tir’d; for, like a slow-pace’d ass, 121

Ye ride my easy nature, and proclaim

My sloth to vengeance a reproach and property. 5

Ith. The meaning of this rudeness?

Pro. He’s distracted.

Pen. O, my griev’d lord! 1

Grau. Sweet lady, come not near him; 122

He holds his perilous weapon in his hand

To prickle ‘a cares not whom nor where,—see, see, see! 1

Bass. My birth is noble: though the popular blast

Of vanity, as giddy as thy youth,

Hath rear’d thy name up to bestride a cloud, 123

Or progress in the chariot of the sun,

I am no clad of trade, to lackey pride,

Nor, like your slave of expectation, wait

The bawdy hinges of your doors, or whistle

For mystical conveyance to your bed-sports. 124

Gro. Fine humours! they become him.

Hem. How ‘a stares,

Struts, puffs, and sweats! Most admirable 7

lunacy!

Ith. But that I may conceive the spirit of wine

Has took possession of your soberer custom,

I’d say you were unmannishly.

Pen. Unmanly! — mew, kitten! — smooth Formality

Is usher to the rankness of the blood,

But Impudence bears up the train. Indeed, sir,

Your flexy mettle, or your springal 8 blaze

Of huge renown, is no sufficient royalty 125

To print upon my forehead the scorn, “cock-

old.”

Ith. His jealousy has robb’d him of his wits;

‘A talks ‘a knows not what.

Bass. Yes, and ‘a knows

To whom ‘a talks; to one that frank’d 9 his lust

In swine-security of bestial incest. 126

Ith. Ha, devil!

Bass. I will hallo ‘t; 10 though I blush more

To name the filthyness than thou to act it.

Ith. Monster! 1

[Draws his sword.]

Pro. Sir, by our friendship—

Pen. By our bloods—

Will you quite both undo us, brother?

Grau. Out on him!

These are his megrims, finks, 11 and melancholies.

Hem. Well said, old touch-hole.

Gro. Kick him out of doors.

Pen. With favour, let me speak.—My lord, what slackness

In my obedience hath deserve’d this rage?

Except humility and silent duty

5 Personal characteristics. 7 Wonderful.

6 Attendant slave. 8 Youthful.

9 Feeds; fattens, as one fattens swine.

10 Proclaim.

11 Freaks.

Ila. ii. THE BROKEN HEART 783

For she that ’s wife to Orgilus, and lives

In known adultery with Bassanes,

Is at the best a whore. Wilt kill me now? 76

The ashes of our parents will assume

Some dreadful figure, and appear to charge

Thy bloody guilt, that hast betray’d their name

To infamy in this reproachful match.

Ith. After my victories abroad, at home 69

I meet despair; ingratitude of nature

Hath made my actions monstrous. Thou shalt stand

A deity, my sister, and be worshipp’d

For thy resolved martyrdom; wrong’d maid’s

Married wives shall to thy hallowed

One finger but to ease it.

Pen. O, no more!

Ith. Death waits to waft me to the Stygian banks.

And free me from this chaos of my bondage;

And till thou wilt forgive, I must endure.

Pen. Who is the saint you serve?

Ith. Friendship, or [nearness] 1

Of birth to any but my sister, durst not

Have mov’d that question; [‘t is] 2 a secret,

I dare not murmur to myself.

Pen. Let me,

By your new protestations I conjure ye,

Partake her name.

Pen. All your respects are forg’d. 3

Ith. They are not. — Peace!

Calantha is — the princess — the king’s daughter

Sole heir of Sparta.— Me, most miserable

Do I now love thee? For my injuries

Revenge thyself with bravery, and gossip

My reasons to the king’s ears, do: — Calantha

Knows it not yet, nor Prophilus, my nearest. 105

Pen. Suppose you were contracted to her, would it not

Split even your very soul to see her father

Snatch her out of your arms against her will,

And force her on the Prince of Argos? 7

Ith. Trouble not

The fountains of mine eyes with thine own story

I sweat in blood for ‘t.

Pen. We are reconcil’d.

Alas, sir, being children, but two branches

Of one stock, ‘t is not fit we should divide:

Have comfort, you may find it.

Ith. Only in thee, Penthea mine.

Pen. If sorrows 115

Have not too much dull’d my infected brain,

I’ll cheer invention for an active strain. 4

Ith. Mad man! why have I wrong’d a maid so excellent!

1 Q. omits.

2 ‘Tis, Dyce emend. Q. as.

3 I. e. You do not care for me as you say.

4 I will attempt to devise something.
Have drawn on your unquiet, my simplicity.

Ne'er studied your vexation.

Bass. Light of beauty, deal not ungently with a desperate wound!

No breach of reason dares make war with her

Whose looks are sovereignty, whose breath is balm.

O, that I could preserve thee in fruition.

As in devotion.

Pen. Sir, may every evil

Lock'd in Pandora's box shower, in your presence,

On my unhappy head, if, since you made me

A partner in your bed, I have been faulty

In one unseemly thought against your honour!

Ith. Purge not his griefs, Pentheus.

Bass. Yes, say on...

Excellent creature! — [To Theseus.] Good,

be not a hindrance

To peace and praise of virtue. — O, my senses

Are charm'd with sounds celestial! — On, dear, on:

I never gave you one ill word; say, did I?

Indeed I did not.

Pen. Nor by Jove's forehead,

Was I e'er guilty of a wanton error.

Bass. A goddess! let me kneel.

Grau. Alas, kind animal!

Ith. No; but for penance.

Bass. Noble sir, what is it?

With gladness I embrace it; yet, pray let not

My rashness teach you to be too unmerciful.

Ith. When you shall show good proof that manly wisdom,

Not oversway'd by passion or opinion,

Knows how to lead [your] judgment, then

this lady,

Your wife, my sister, shall return in safety.

Home, to be guided by you; but, till first

I can out of clear evidence approve it,

She shall be my care.

Bass. Rip my bosom up,

I'll stand the execution with a constancy;

This torture is unsufferable.

Ith. Well, sir.

I dare not trust her to your fury.

Bass. But

Pentheus says not so.

Pen. She needs no tongue

To plead excuse who never purpos'd wrong.

Hem. Virgin of reverence and antiquity,

Stay you behind.

Gro. [to Grausis.] The court wants not your diligence.

Exeunt all but Bass. and Grau.

Grau. What will you do, my lord? My lady's gone;

I am dem'd to follow.

Bass. I may see her,

Or speak to her once more?

Grau. And feel her too, man;

Be of good cheer, she's your own flesh and bone.

Bass. Diseases desperate must find cures alike.

She swore she has been true.

Grau. True, on my modesty.

Bass. Let him want truth who credits not her vows!

Much wrong I did her, but her brother infinite;

Rumour will voice me the contempt of manhood,

Should I run on thus. Some way I must try

To outdo art, and [jealousy decry.] 1 Exeunt.

[Scene III.] 2

Flourish. Enter Amyclas, Nearchus, leading

Calantha, Armostes, Crotolon, Ephhranea,

Christalla, Philema, and Amelus.

Amy. Cousin of Argos, what the heavens have pleas'd.

In their unchanging counsels to conclude

For both our kingdoms' weal, we must submit to:

Nor can we be unthankful to their bounties,

Who, when we were even creeping to our grave,

Sent us a daughter, in whose birth our hope

Continues of succession. As you are

In title next, being grandchild to our aunt,

So we in heart desire you may sit nearest

Calantha's love; since we have ever yow'd

Not to enforce affection by our will,

But by her own choice to confirm it gladly.

Near. You speak the nature of a right just father.

I come not hither roughly to demand

My cousin's thraldom, but to free mine own.

Report of great Calantha's beauty, virtue,

Sweetness, and singular perfections, courted

All ears to credit what I find was publish'd

By constant truth; from which, if any service

Of my desert can purchase fair construction,

This lady must command it.

Col. Princely sir,

So well you know how to profess observance, 3

That you instruct your hearers to become

Practitioners in duty; of which number

I'll study to be chief.

Near. Chief, glorious virgin, 4

In my devotions, as in all men's wonder.

Amy. Excellent cousin, we deny no liberty;

Use thine own opportunities. — Armestos,

We must consult with the philosophers;

The business is of weight.

Arm. Sir, at your pleasure. 5

Amy. You told me, Crotolon, your son's return'd

From Athens: wherefore comes he not to court

As we commanded?

Crot. He shall soon attend

Your royal will, great sir.

The marriage

Between young Prophilus and Ephhranea

Tastes of too much delay.

Crot. My lord,—

Amy. Some pleasures

At celebration of it would give life

1 Q. cry a Teatowite.

2 A room in the palace.

3 Worship, courtship.
To the entertainment of the prince our kinsman;
Our court wears gravity more than we relish.
Arm. Yet the heavens smile on all your high attempts.
Without a cloud.
Crot. So may the gods protect us.
Cal. A prince a subject?
Near. Yes, to beauty's sceptre;
As all hearts kneel, so mine.
Crot. You are too courteously.
Enter Ithocles, Orgilus, and Prophilus.
Ith. Your safe return to Sparta is most welcome:
I joy to meet you here, and, as occasion
Shall grant us privacy, will yield you reasons
Why I should covet to deserve the title
Of your respected friend; for, without compli-

Believe it, Orgilus, 'tis my ambition.
Org. Your lordship may command me, my poor servant.
Ith. [Aside.] So amorous close! — so soon!
— my heart!
Pro. What sudden change is next?
Ith. Life to the king!
To whom I here present this noble gentleman,
New come from Athens: royal sir, vouchsafe
Your gracious hand in favour of his merit.
[The King gives Orgilus his hand to kiss.]
Crot. [Aside.] My son preferr'd by Ithocles!
Amy. Our bounties
Shall open to thee, Orgilus; for instance,—
Hark in thine ear,—if, out of those inventions
Which flow in Athens, thou hast there engross'd
Some rarity of wit, to grace the nuptials
Of thy fair sister, and renown our court.
In thine eyes of this young prince, we shall be debtor
To thy conceit: think on it.
Org. Your highness honours me.
Near. My tongue and heart are twins.
Cal. A noble birth,
Becoming such a father. — Worthy Orgilus,
You are a guest most wish'd for.
Org. May my duty
Still rise in your opinion, sacred princess!
Ith. Euphranias's brother, sir; a gentleman
Well worthy of your knowledge.
Near. We embrace him,
Proud of so dear acquaintance.
Amy. All prepare
For revels and disport; the joys of Hymen,
Like Phoebus in his lustre, put to flight
All mists of dulness, crown the hours with gladness:
No sounds but music, no discourse but mirth!
Cal. Thine arm, I prithee, Ithocles. — Nay, good.
My lord, keep on your way; I am provided.
Near. I dare not disobey.
Ith. Most heavenly lady! Exeunt.

[Scene IV.]

Enter Crotolon and Orgilus.
Crot. The king hath spoke his mind.
Org. His will he hath;
But were it lawful to hold plea against
The power of greatness, not the reason, haply
Such undershribs as subjects sometimes might Borrow of nature justice, to inform
That license sovereignty holds without check
Over a meek obedience.
Crot. How resolve you
Touching your sister's marriage? Prophilus
Is a deserving and a hopeful youth.
Org. I envy not his merit, but applaud it;
Could wish him thrift in all his best desires,
And with a willingness in league our blood
With his, for purchase of full growth in friendship,
He never touch'd on any wrong that malice'd
The honour of our house nor stir'd our peace:
Yet, with your favour, let me not forget
Under whose wing he gathers warmth and comfort, Whose creature he is bound, made, and must live so.
Crot. Son, son, I find in thee a harsh condition:
No courtesy can win it; 'tis too rancorous.
Org. Good sir, be not severe in your construc-

I am no stranger to such easy calms
As sit in tender bosoms: lordly Ithocles
Hath grac'd my entertainment in abundance,
Too humbly hast descended from that height
Of arrogance and spleen which wrought the rape
On griev'd Penthea's purity; his scorn
Of my untoward fortunes is reclaim'd
Unto a courtship, almost to a fawning:—
I'll kiss his foot, since you will have it so.
Crot. Since I will have it so! Friend, I will have it so,
Without our ruin by your politic plots,
Or wolf of hatred snarling in your breast.
You have a spirit, sir, have ye? A familiar
That posts 'tis thine air for your intelligence?
Some such hobgoblin hurried you from Athens,
For yet you come unsent for.
Org. If unwelcome,
I might have found a grave there.
Crot. Sure, your business
Was soon dispatch'd, or your mind alter'd quickly.
Org. 'T was care, sir, of my health cut short my journey;
For there a general infection
Threatens a desolation.
Crot. And I fear
Thou hast brought back a worse infection with thee,—
Infection of thy mind; which, as thou say'st,
Threatens the desolation of our family.
Org. Forbidden, our dear genius! I will rather

1 A room in the house of Crotolon.
2 Prosperity.
3 Disposition.
Be made a sacrifice on Thrasus' monument,
Or kneel to Ithocles, his son, in dust,
Than woo a father's curse. My sister's marriage
With Prophilus is from my heart confirm'd;
May I live hated, may I die despis'd,
If I omit to further it in all
That can concern me!

Crot. I have been too rough.
My duty to my king made me so earnest;
Excuse it, Orgilus.

Org. Dear sir! — Here comes Prophilus with Prophilus and Ithocles.

Enter Prophilus, Euphranea, Ithocles, Gromeas, and Hemophil.

Org. Most honoured! — ever famous!

Ith. Your true friend;
On earth not any truer. — With smooth eyes
Look on this worthy couple; your consent
Can only make them one.

Org. They have it. — Sister, Thou paw'n'dst to me an oath, of which engagement
I never will release thee, if thou aim'st
At any other choice than this.

Bugh. Dear brother,
At him, or none.

Crot. To which my blessing's added.

Org. Which, till a greater ceremony perfect, —

Euphranea, lend thy hand, — here, take her,

Prophilus;
Live long a happy man and wife; and further,
That these in presence may conclude an omen,
Thus for a bridal song I close my wishes:

[Sings.] Comforts lasting, loves increasing,
Like soft hours never ceasing:
Plenty's pleasure, peace complying,
Without jars, or tongues envying;
Hearts by holy union wedded,
More than theirs by custom bedded;
Frailtous issues; life so graced,
Not by age to be defaced,
Budding, as the year ensueth,
Every spring another youth:
All that thought can add beside
Crown this bridegroom and this bride!

Pro. You have seal'd joy close to my soul. —

Euphranea,
Now I may call thee mine. I but exchange
One good friend for another.

Org. If these gallants
Will please to grace a poor invention
By joining with me in some slight device,
I'll venture on a strain my younger days
Have studied for delight.

Hem. With thankful willingness
I offer my attendance.

Gro. No endeavour
Of mine shall fail to show itself.

Ith. We will

All join to wait on thy directions, Orgilus.

Org. O, my good lord, your favours flow towards

A too unworthy worm; — but as you please;
I am what you will shape me.

Ith. A fast friend.

Crot. I thank thee, son, for this acknowledgment;

It is a sight of gladness.

[Scene V.]

Enter Calanthea, Penthesa, Christalla, and Philemea.

Cal. Who'er would speak with us, deny his entrance;
Be careful of our charge.

Chris. We shall, madam.

Cal. Except the king himself, give none admission;

Not any.

Phl. Madam, it shall be our care.

Exeunt [Christalla and Philhemea].

Cal. Being alone, Penthesa, you have granted the opportunity you sought, and might

At all times have commanded.

Pen. Which I shall owe your goodness even in death for;

My glass of life, sweet princess, hath few minutes
Remaining to run down; the sands are spent;
For by an inward messenger I feel

The summons of departure short and certain.

Cal. You feel too much your melancholy.

Pen. Glories of human greatness are but pleasing dreams
And shadows soon decaying: on the stage

Of my mortality my youth hath acted
Some scenes of vanity, drawn out at length

By varied pleasures, sweetned in the mixture,

But tragical in issue: beauty, pomp,

With every sensuality our giddiness

Doth frame an idol, are unconstant friends,

When any troubled passion makes assault

On the unguarded castle of the mind.

Cal. Contemn not your condition for the proof

Of bare opinion only; to what end

Reach all these moral texts?

Pen. To place before ye

A perfect mirror, wherein ye may see

How weary I am of a lingering life,

Who count the best a misery.

Cal. Indeed

You have no little cause; yet none so great

As to distrust a remedy.

Pen. That remedy

Must be a winding-sheet, a fold of lead,
And some untrod corner in the earth. —

Not to detain your expectation, princess,

I have an humble suit.

Cal. Speak; I enjoy it,

Pen. Vouchsafe, then, to be my executrix,

And take that trouble on ye to dispose

Such legacies as I bequeath, impartially.

I have not much to give, the pains are easy;

1 Calanthea's apartment in the palace.

2 So Q. Dyce suggests enjoin.
Heaven will reward your piety, and thank it.
When I am dead; for sure I must not live;
I hope I cannot.

Cal. Now, beshrew thy sadness,
Thou turn'st me too much woman. [Weeps.] Pen. [Aside.] Her fair eyes
Melt into passion.—Then I have assurance Encouraging my boldness. In this paper
My will was character'd; which you, with pardon,
Shall now know from mine own mouth.

Cal. Talk on, prithee;
It is a pretty earnest.

Pen. I have left me
But three poor jewels to bequeath. The first is My youth; for though I am much old in griefs,
In years I am a child.

Cal. To whom that [jewel] ? a

Pen. To virgin-wives, such as abuse not wedlock
By freedom of desires, but covet chiefest
The pledges of chaste beds for ties of love,
Rather than ranging of their blood; and next
To married maids, such as prefer the number
Of honourable issues in their virtues
Before the flattery of delights by marriage:
May those be ever young !

Cal. A second jewel
You mean to part with ?

Pen. 'Tis my fame, I trust
By scandal yet untouch'd; this I bequeath
To Memory, and Time's old daughter, Truth.
If ever my unhappy name find mention
When I am fall'n to dust, may it deserve
Beseeching charity without dishonour!

Cal. How handsomely thou play'st with harmless sport
Of mere imagination! Speak the last.
I strangely like thy will.

Pen. This jewel, madam,
Is dearly precious to me; you must use
The best of your discretion to employ
This gift as I intend it.

Cal. Do not doubt me.

Pen. 'Tis long agone since first I lost my heart:
Long I have liv'd without it, else for certain
I should have given that too; but instead
Of it, to great Calantha, Sparta's heir,
By service bound and by affection vow'd,
I do bequeath, in holiest rites of love,
Mine only brother, Ithocles.

Cal. What saidst thou?

Pen. Impute not, heaven-blest lady, to ambition
A faith as humbly perfect as the prayers
Of a devoted suppliant can endow it.
Look on him, princess, with an eye of pity;
How like the ghost of what he late appear'd?
A moves before you.

Cal. Shall I answer here,
Or lend my ear too grossly ?

Pen. First his heart

Shall fall in cinders, scorched by your disdain,
Ere he will dare, poor man, to ope an eye
On these divine looks, but with low-bent thoughts

Accusing such presumption; as for words,
'A dare not utter any but of service:
Yet this lost creature loves ye. — Be a princess
In sweetness as in blood; give him his doom,
Or raise him up to comfort.

Cal. What new change
Appears in my behaviour, that thou dar'st
Tempt my displeasure?

Pen. Must the world
To revel in Elysium, and 't is just
To wish my brother some advantage here;
Yet, by my best hopes, Ithocles is ignorant
Of this pursuit. But if you please to kill him,
Lend him one angry look or one harsh word, 100
And you shall soon conclude how strong a power
Your absolute authority holds over
His life and end.

Cal. You have forgot, Penethea,
How still I have a father.

Pen. But remember
I am a sister, though to me this brother 105
Hath been, you know, unkind, O, most unkind!

Cal. Christella, Philema, where are ye? — Lady,
Your check lies in my silence.

Re-enter Christella and Philema.

Chris. and Phil. Madam, here.

Cal. I think ye sleep, ye drones: wait on Penethea Unto her lodging. — [Aside.] Ithocles? Wrong'd lady!

Pen. My reckonings are made even; death or fate
Can now nor strike too soon, nor force too late.

Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I.1

Enter Ithocles and Armostes.

Ith. Forbear your inquisition: curiosity
Is of too subtle and too searching nature,
In fears of love too quick, too slow of credit. —
I am not what you doubt me.

Arm. Nephew, be, then,
As I would wish; — all is not right. — Good heaven
Confirm your resolutions for dependence
On worthy ends, which may advance your quiet!

Ith. I did the noble Orgilus much injury,
But griev'd Penethea more: I now repent it, —
Now, uncle, now; this 'now' is now too late.
So provident is folly in sad issue,
That after-wit, like bankrupts' debts, stands tallied,
Without all possibilities of payment.
Sure, he's an honest, very honest gentleman;
A man of single meaning.
I believe it; 15
Yet, nephew, 'tis the tongue informs our ears;
Our eyes can never pierce into the thoughts,

1 The palace. Ithocles' apartment.
2 Sincere.
For they are lodg'd too inward:—but I question
No truth in Orgilus. — The princess, sir.

Ith. The princess! ha!

Arm. With her the Prince of Argos. 30

Enter NEARCHUS, leading CALANTHA; AMELUS, CHRISTALLA, PHILEMA.

Near. Great fair one, grace my hopes with any instance
Of livery, from the allowance of your favour;
This little spark—

[Attempts to take a ring from her finger.]

Cal. A toy!

Near. Love feasts on toys,
For Cupid is a child;—vouchsafe this bounty: It cannot be denied.

Cal. You shall not value, 26
Sweet cousin, at a price, what I count cheap; So cheap, that let him take it who dares stoop for it,
And give it at next meeting to a mistress:
She'll thank him for't, perhaps.

Casts the ring to ITHOCLES.

Ame. The ring, sir, is the princess's; I could have took it up.

Ith. Learn manners, prithee.—To the blessed owner,
Upon my knees—

Kneels and offers it to CALANTHA.

Near. Y' are saucy. This is pretty! I am, belike, "a mistress"—wondrous pretty!
Let the man keep his fortune, since he found it;
He's worthy on't.—On, cousin!

Ith. [to AMELUS.] Follow, spaniel; 35
I'll force ye to a fawning else.

Ame. You dare not.

Arm. My lord, you were too forward.

Ith. Look ye, uncle, Some such there are whose liberal contents
Swarm without care in every sort of plenty; Who after full repasts can lay them down To sleep; and they sleep, uncle; in which silence
Their very dreams present 'em choice of pleasures,
Pleasures—observe me, uncle—of rare object; Here heaps of gold, there increments of honours,
Now change of garments, then the votes of people; Anon varieties of beauteys, courting, In flatters of the night, exchange of dalliance: Yet these are still but dreams. Give me felicity
Of which my senses waking are partakers, A real, viable, material happiness; And then, too, when I stagger in expectancy Of the least comfort that can cherish life.— I saw it, sir, I saw it; for it came From her own hand.

Arm. The princess threw it t'ye.

1 Badge of a retainer.

Ith. True; and she said—well I remember what—
Her cousin prince would beg it.

Arm. In anger at your taking on't. Yes, and parted
In anger let him part; for could his breath, Like whirlwinds, toss such servile slaves as lick The dust his footsteps print into a vapour, It durst not stir a hair of mine, it should not; I'd read it up by th' roots first. To be anything
CALANTHA shows on, is to be a blessing
More sacred than a petty prince of Argos
Can wish to equal, or in worth or title.

Arm. Contain yourself, my lord: Ixion, aiming
To embrace Juno, bosom'd but a cloud,
And begat Centaurs; 'tis an useful moral.
Ambition hatch'd in clouds of mere opinion
Proves but in birth a prodigy.

Ith. I thank ye;
Yet, with your licence, I should seem uncharitable
To gentler fate, if, relishing the dainties
Of a soul's settled peace, I were so feeble
Not to digest it.

Arm. He deserves small trust
Who is not privy-counsellor to himself.

Re-enter NEARCHUS and AMELUS, with ORGILUS.

Near. Brave me!

Org. Your excellence mistakes his temper;
For Ithocles in fashion of his mind
Is beautiful, soft, gentle, the clear mirror
Of absolute perfection.

Ame. Was 't your modesty Term'd any of the prince's servants "spaniel"?
Your nurse, sure, taught you other language.

Ith. Language! Near. A gallant man-at-arms is here, a

Doctor

In feats of chivalry, blunt and rough-spoken,
Vouchsafing not the fustian of civility,
Which [less] rash spirits style good manners!

Ith. Manners!

Org. No more, illustrious sir; 'tis matchless
Ithocles.

Near. You might have understood who I am.
Ith. Yes, 30 I did; else—but the presence calm'd th' affront—

Y' are cousin to the princess.

Near. To the king, too; A certain instrument that lent supportance To you colossie greatness— to that king too, You might have added.

Ith. There is more divinity
In beauty than in majesty.
Arm. O fie, fie!

Near. This odd youth's pride turns heretic in loyalty.

Sirrah! low mushrooms never rival cedars.

Exeunt Nearcules and Amelius.

Ith. Come back! — What pitiful dull thing am I

So to be tamely scolded at! come back! —

Let him come back, and echo once again

That scornful sound of mushroom! painted cots

Like heralds' coats girt o'er with crowns and sceptres —

May bait a muzzled lion.

Arm. Cousin, cousin,

Thy tongue is not thy friend.

Org. In point of honour

Discretion knows no bounds. Amelius told me

'Twas all about a little ring.

Ith. A ring

The princess threw away, and I took up.

Admit she threw 't to me, what arm of brass

Can match it hence? No; could he grind the hoop

To powder, 'a might sooner reach my heart

Than steal and wear one dust on 't. — Orgilus,

I am extremely wrong'd.

Org. Is not to be so slighted.

Ith. Slighted!

Arm. Quiet

These vain unruly passions, which will render ye

Into a madness.

Org. Grieves will have their vent.

Enter Trojanus [with a scroll].

Arm. Welcome; thou com'st in season, reverend man,

To pour the balsam of a suppling 1 patience

Into the festering wound of ill-spent fury.

Org. [Aside.] What makes he here?

Tec. The hurts are yet but 2 mortal,

Which shortly will prove deadly. To the king,

Armestes, see in safety thou deliver

This sealed-up counsel; bid him with a constancy

Peruse the secrets of the gods. — O Sparta,

O Lacedaemon! double-nam'd, but one

In fate: when kingdoms reel, — mark well my saw, —

Their heads must needs be giddy. Tell the king

That henceforth he no more must inquire after

My aged head; Apollo wills it so:

I am for Delphos.

Arm. Not without some conference

With our great master?

Tec. Never more to see him:

A greater prince commands me. — Ithocles,

When youth is ripe, and age from time doth part,

The lifeless trunk shall wed the broken heart.

Ith. What 's this, if understood?

Tec. List, Orgilus;

Remember what I told thee long before,

These tears shall be my witness.

Arm. Las, good man!

Tec. Let craft with courtesy a while confer,

Revenge proves its own executioner.

Org. Dark sentences are for Apollo's priests;

I am not Oedipus.

Tec. My hour is come;

Cheer up the king; farewell to all. — O Sparta,

O Lacedaemon! Exit.

Arm. If prophetic fire

Have warm'd this old man's bosom, we might construe

His words to fatal sense.

Ith. Leave to the powers

Above us the effects of their decrees;

My burthen lies within me: servile fears

Prevent no great effects. — Divine Calantha!

Arm. The gods be still propitious!

Exeunt Ithocles and Armestes.

Org. Something oddly

The book-man prated, yet 't a talk'd it weeping;

Let craft with courtesy a while confer,

Revenge proves its own executioner.

Con it again; — for what? It shall not puzzle me;

'T is doteage of a withered brain. — Penthea

Forbade me not her presence; I may see her,

And gaze my will. Why see her, then, I may,

When, if I faint to speak — I must be silent.

Exit.

[Scene II.]

Enter Bassanés, Grausís, and Phúlas.

Bass. Pray, use your recreations, all the service

I will expect is quietness amongst ye;

Take liberty at home, abroad, at all times,

And in your charities appease the gods,

Whom I, with my distractions, have offended.

Grau. Fair blessings on thy heart!

Phu. [Aside.] Here 's a rare change!

My lord, to cure the itch, is surely gelded;

The cuckold in conceit hath cast his horns.

Bass. Betake ye to your several occasions;

And wherein I have heretofore been faulty,

Let your constructions mildly pass it over.

Henceforth I 'll study reformation, — more I have not for employment.

O, sweet man! Thou art the very "Honeycomb of Honesty."

Phu. The "Garland of Good-will." — Old lady, hold up

Thy reverence snout, and trot behind me softly,

As it becomes a maid of ancient carriage.

Exeunt Grausís and Phúlas.

Bass. Beasts, only capable of sense, enjoy

The benefit of food and ease with thankfulness;

Such silly creatures, with a grudging, kick not

Against the portion nature hath bestow'd:

But men, endow'd with reason and the use

3 A room in Bassanés' house.

The Honeycomb of Honesty, like the Garland of Goodwill, was probably one of the popular miscellanies of the day. (Gifford.) See Additional Notes.

5 Mule.
Of reason, to distinguish from the chaff
Of object scarcity the quintessence,
Soul, and elixir of the earth’s abundance, 26
The treasures of the sea, the air, nay, heaven,
Reaping at these glories of creation
Are vierer beasts than beasts; and of those beasts
The worst am I: I, who was made a monarch
Of what a heart could wish for,—a chaste
wife,—
Endeavour’d what in me lay to pull down
That temple built for adoration only,
And level’d in the dust of causeless scandal.
But, to redeem a sacrilege so impious,
Humility shall pour, before the deities
I have incest, a largess of more patience
Than their displeased altars can require:
No tempests of commotion shall disquiet
The calms of my composure.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. I have found thee,
Thou patron of more horrors than the bulk 26
Of manhood, hoop’d about with ribs of iron,
Can exam within thy breast: Penthea, Bassanes,
Curst by thy jealousies,—more, by thy dotage,—
Is left a prey to words.

Bass. Exercise
Your trials for addition to my penance; 46
I am resolv’d.

Org. Play not with misery
Past care: some angry minister of fate hath Depos’d the empress of her soul, her reason,
From its most proper throne; but, what’s the miracle
More now, I, I have seen it, and yet live! 50

Bass. You may delude my senses, not my judgment;
’Tis anchor’d into a firm resolution;
Dalliance of mirth or wit can ne’er unfix it:
Practise 1 yet further.

Org. May thy death of love to her
Damn all thy comforts to a lasting fast 62
From every joy of life! Thou barren rock,
By thee we have been split in ken 2 of harbour.

Enter Ithocles, Penthea her hair about her ears, [Armories,] Philema, and Christalla.

Ith. Sister, look upon; your Ithocles, your brother, Speaks t’ye; why do you weep? Dear, turn not from me,—
Here is a killing sight; lo, Bassanes,
A lamentable object!

Org. Man, dost see t’? Sports are more gamesome; am I yet in merriment?

Why dost not laugh?

Bass. Divine and best of ladies,
Please to forget my outrage; mercy ever
Cannot but lodge under a roof so excellent, 65
I have cast off that cruelty of frenzy

Which once appear’d imposture, 3 and then jugged.
To cheat my sleep’s of rest.

Org. Was I in earnest?

Pen. Sure, if we were all Sirens, we should sing pitifully.

And ’t were a comedy music, when in parts 70
One sang another’s knell. The turtle sighs
When he hath lost his mate; and yet some say
He must be dead first. ’Tis a fine deceit
To pass away in a dream; indeed, I’ve slept
With mine open great while. No falsehood
Equals a broken faith; there’s not a hair
Sticks on my head but, like a leaden plummet,
It sinks me to the grave. I must creep thither;
The journey is not long.

Ith. But, thou, Penthea,
Hast many years, I hope, to number yet,
Ere thou canst travel that way.

Bass. Let the sun first
Be wrapp’d up in an everlasting darkness,
Before the light of nature, chiefly form’d
For the whole world’s delight, feel an eclipse
So universal!

Org. Wisdom, look ye, begins
To rave! — Art thou mad too, antiquity?

Pen. Since I was first a wife, I might have been Mother to many pretty Prattling babes;
They would have smil’d when I smil’d, and for certain
I should have cri’d when they cri’d: — truly,
My father would have pick’d me out a husband,
And then my little ones had been no bastards;
But ’t is too late for me to marry now,
I am past child-bearing; ’t is not my fault.

Bass. Fall on me, if there be a burning Aetna,
And bury me in flames! Sweats hot as sulphur
Boil through my pores! Affliction hath in store
No torture like to this.

Org. Behold a patience!

Ban. Lay by thy whining gray dissimulation,
Do something worth a Chronicle; show justice
Upon the author of this mischief; dig out
The jealousies that hatch’d this Thrydom first
With thine own poniard. Every antic rapture
Can roar as thine does.

Ith. Orgilus, forbear.

Bass. Disturb him not; it is a talking motion 4
Provided for my torment. What a fool am I 106
To bandy 6 passion! Ere I’ll speak a word,
I will look on and burst.

Pen. I lov’d you once. [To Orgilus.] Org. Thou didst, wrong’d creature: in despite of malice,
For it I love thee ever.

Pen. Spare your hand; 110
Believe me, I’ll not burt it.

Org. My heart too.

1 Test me. 3 Sight.

3 Q. appeard, Impostors. 4 Puppet. 6 Q. budy.
6 Q. Paine my, and omits [Pen.] in next line.
[Pen.] Complain not though I wring it hard.
I’ll kiss it;
O, ’tis a fine soft palm! — hark, in thine ear;
Like whom do I look, prithee? — Nay, no whispering.
Goodness! we had been happy; too much happiness
Will make folk proud, they say — but that is he.
Points at Ithocles.
And yet he paid for ’t home; alas, his heart
Is crept into the cabinet of the princess;
We shall have points¹ and bride-laces. Remember,
When we last gather’d roses in the garden, 190
I found my wits; but truly you lost yours.
That’s he, and still ’t is he.

Ith. Poor soul, how idly
Her fancies guide her tongue!
Bass. [Aside.] Keep in, vexation,
And break not into clamour.
Org. [Aside.] She has tutor’d me:
Some powerful inspiration checks my laziness.
Now let me kiss your hand, griev’d beauty.
Pen. Kiss it, —
Alack, alack, his lips be wondrous cold.
Dear soul, h’as lost his colour: have ye seen
A straying heart? All crimson! every drop
Of blood is turned to an amethyst, 190
Which married bachelors hang in their ears.
Org. Peace usher her into Elysium! —
If this be madness, madness is an oracle. Exit.
Ith. Christella, Philena, whom slept my sister,
Her ravings are so wild?
Chris. Sir, not these ten days. 135
Phil. We watch by her continually; besides,
We can not any way pray her to eat.
Bass. O, misery of miseries!
Pen. Take comfort;
You may live well, and die a good old man.
By yea and nay, an oath not to be broken, 140
If you had join’d our hands once in the temple,
’T was since my father died, for had he liv’d
He would have done ’t,— I must have call’d you father.
O, my wretch’d honour! ruin’d by those tyrants,
A cruel brother and a desperate doxage! 146
There is no peace left for a ravish’d wife!
Widow’d by lawless marriage; to all memory
Penthea’s, poor Penthea’s name is strumpeted:
But since her blood was season’d by the forfeit
Of noble shame with mixtures of pollution, 150
Her blood — ’tis just — be henceforth never height’ned
With taste of sustenance! Starve; let that fulness Whose plurisy ² hath fever’d faith and modesty —
Forgive me; O, I faint!

Arm. [Falls into the arms of her Attendants.]
Ith. Be not so wilful,
Sweet niece, to work thine own destruction.

Nature 185

Will call her daughter monster! — What! not eat?
Refuse the only ordinary means
Which are ordain’d for life? Be not, my sister,
A murderer to thyself. — Hearst thou this, Bassanes?

Bass. Foh! I am busy; for I have not thoughts
Enow to think: all shall be well anon.
’T is tumbling in my head; there is a mastery
In art to fatten and keep smooth the outside; 160
Yes, and to comfort up the vital spirits
Without the help of food, fumes or perfumes, Perfumes or fumes. Let her alone; I’ll search out
The trick on ’t.
Pen. Lead me gently; heavens reward ye.
Griefs are sure friends; they leave without control
Nor cure nor comforts for a leprous soul.

Exeunt the maids supporting Penthes.

Bass. I grant ye; and will put in practice instantly
What you shall still admire: ’tis wonderful,
’T is super-singular, not to be match’d;
Yet, when I ’ve done ’t, I ’ve done’t: — ye shall all thank me.

Arm. The sight is full of terror.
Ith. On my soul Lies such an infinite clog of massy dulness, 175
As that I have not sense enough to feel it.—
See, uncle, th’ angry thing returns again;
Shall ’s welcome him with thunder? We are haunted,
And must use exorcism to conjure down
This spirit of malevolence.

Arm. Middly, nephew. 180

Enter Nearchus and Amelus.

Near. I come not, sir, to chide your late disorder,
Admitting that th’ inurement to a roughness
In soldiers of your years and fortunes, chiefly,
So lately prosperous, hath not yet shook off
The custom of the war in hours of leisure; 185
Nor shall you need excuse, since y’are to render Account to that fair excellence, the princess,
Who in her private gallery expects it
From your own mouth alone: I am a messenger
But to her pleasure.

Ith. Excellent Nearchus, 190
Be prince still of my services, and conquer
Without the combat of dispute; I honour ye.
Near. The king is on a sudden indispos’d;
Physicians are call’d for; ’t were fit, Armostes,
You should be near him.

Arm. Sir, I kiss your hands. 185

Exeunt Ithocles and Armostes.

Near. Amelus, I perceive Calantha’s bosom
Is warm’d with other fires than such as can Take strength from any fuel of the love
I might address to her. Young Ithocles,
Or ever I mistake, is lord ascendand

Of her devotions; one, to speak him truly,
In every disposition nobly fashioned.

Arm. But can your highness brook to be so

[Scene III.]

Enter Hemophil and Groneas leading Amy-clas, and placing him in a chair; followed by Armostes [with a box], Crotolon, and Propilus.

Amy. Our daughter is not near?

Arm. She is retir'd, sir,

Into her gallery.

Amy. Where's the prince our cousin?

Pro. New walk'd into the grove, my lord.

Amy. All leave us

Except Armostes, and you, Crotolon;
We would be private.

Pro. Health unto your majesty! &

Exeunt Propilus, Hemophil, and Groneas.

Amy. What! Tecnicus is gone?

Arm. He is to Delphos;

And to your royal hands presents this box.

Amy. Unseal it, good Armostes; therein lie
The secrets of the oracle; out with it;

[Armostes takes out the scroll.]
Apollo live our patron! Read, Armostes. 10

Arm. [reads.] The plot in which the vine takes root

Begins to dry from head to foot;
The stock soon withering, want of sap
Doth cause to quail the budding grape;
But from the neighbouring elm a dew
Shall drop, and feed the plot anew.

Amy. That is the oracle: what exposition
Makes the philosopher?

Arm. This brief one only.
[Reads.] The plot is Spart, the d'v'd vine the
king;
The quailing grape his daughter; but the thing
Of most importance, not to be reveal'd,
Is a near prince, the elm: the rest conceall'd.

TECNICUS.

Amy. Enough; although the opening of this riddle
Be but itself a riddle, yet we construe
How near our labouring age draws to a rest. 25
But must Calantha quail too? that young grape
Untimely bud'd! I could mourn for her;
Her tenderness hath yet deserv'd no rigour
So to be cross by fate.

1 An apartment in the palace.

Arm. You misapply, sir,—
With favour let me speak it,—what Apollo
Hath clouded in hid sense. I here conjecture Her marriage with some neigh'ring prince, the dew
Of which befriending elm shall ever strengthen
Your subjects with a sovereignty of power.

Crot. Besides, most gracious lord, the pith of oracles
Is to be then digested when th' events
Expound their truth, not brought as soon to light
As utter'd. Truth is child of Time; and herein
I find no scruple, rather cause of comfort,
With unity of kingdoms.

Amy. May it prove so, 40
For weal of this dear nation! — Where is Ithocles? —
Armostes, Crotolon, when this wither'd vine
Of my frail carcass, on the funeral pile
Is fir'd into its ashes, let that young man
Be hedg'd about still with your cares and loves.

Much owe I to his worth, much to his service. —
Let such as wait come in now.

Arm. All attend here!

Enter Calantha, Ithocles, Propilus, Orgilus, Euphranea, Hemophil, and Groneas.

Cal. Dear sir! king! father!

Ith. O my royal master!

Amy. Cleave not my heart, sweet twins of my life's solace,

With your forejudging fears; there is no physical

So cunningly restorative to cherish
The fall of age, or call back youth and vigour,
As your consents in duty. I will shake off
This languishing disease of time, to quicken Fresh pleasures in these drooping hours of sadness.

Is fair Euphranea married yet to Propilus?

Crot. This morning, gracious lord.

Org. This very morning;

Which, with your highness' leave, you may observe too.

Our sister looks, methinks, virtuous and sprightly,

As if her chaster fancy could already

Expound the riddle of her gain in losing
A trifle maids know only that they know not.

Pish! prithee, blush not; 'tis but honest

change

Of fashion in the garment, loose for Strait,
And so the modest maid is made a wife.

Shrewd business — 'tis not, sister?

Euph. You are pleasant.

Amy. We thank thee, Orgilus; this mirth becomes thee.

But wherefore sits the court in such a silence?

A wedding without revels is not seemly.

Cal. Your late indisposition, sir, forbade it.

Amy. Be it thy charge, Calantha, to set forward
The bridal sports, to which I will be present;
If not, at least consenting. — Mine own Ithocles, I have done little for thee yet.

Ith. Y' have built me
To the full height I stand in.

Cal. [Aside.] Now or never! — 76

May I propose a suit?

Amy. Demand, and have it.

Cal. Pray, sir, give me this young man, and no further Account him yours than he deserves in all things
To be thought worth mine: I will esteem him According to his merit.

Amy. Still thou'rt my daughter, 80
Still grow'st upon my heart. — [To Ithocles.]

Give me thine hand; —
Calantha, take thine own; in noble actions Thou'lt find him firm and absolute. — I would not Have parted with thee, Ithocles, to any
But to a mistress who is all what I am. 85

Ith. A change, great king, most wisht for, 'cause the same.

Cal. [Aside to Ithocles.] Th' art mine. Have I now kept my word?

Ith. [Aside to Calantha.] Divinely.

Org. Rich fortunes guard, [the] 3 favour of a princess Rock thee, brave man, in ever-crowned plenty! Y' are minion of the time; be thankful for it. — [Aside.] Ho! here's a swing in destiny — apparent!

The youth is up on tiptoe, yet may stumble.

Amy. On to your recreations. — Now convey me
Unto my bed-chamber: none on his forehead
Wear a distempered look.

All. The gods preserve ye! 86

Cal. [Aside to Ithocles.] Sweet, be not from my sight.

Ith. [Aside to Calantha.] My whole felicity! E execu't carrying out the king. Orgilus stays Ithocles.

Org. Shall I be bold, my lord?

Ith. Thou canst not, Orgilus.

Call me thine own; for Proflitus must henceforth
Be all thy sister's: friendship, though it cease not
In marriage, yet is oft at less command
Than when a single freedom can dispose it.

Org. Most right, my most good lord, my most great lord,
My gracious princely lord, I might add, royal.

Ith. Royal! A subject royal?

Org. Why not, pray, sir? 100

The sovereignty of kingdoms in their nanage
Stoop'd to desert, not birth; there's as much merit
In clearness of affection as in puddles
Of generation: you have conquer'd love
Even in the loveliest; if I greatly err not, 110
The son of Venus hath bequeath'd his quiver
To Ithocles his manage, 2 by whose arrows
Calantha's breast is open'd.

1 Q. io. 2 To the control of Ithocles.
SCENE [IV].

Enter Christalla and Philema, bringing in Penthea in a chair, veiled: two other Servants placing two chairs, one on the one side, and the other with an engine on the other. The Maids sit down at her feet, mourning. The Servants go out: meet them ITHOcles and ORGILus.

1 Ser. [Aside to Orgilus.] 'Tis done; that on her right hand.

Org. Good: begone. [Exeunt Servants.]

Ith. Soft peace enrich this room!

Org. How fares the lady?

Ph. Dead!

Chris. Dead!

Ith. Starvd!

Chris. Starvd!

Ith. Me miserable! Tell us How parted she from life.

Ph. She call'd for music, And begg'd some gentle voice to tune a farewell To life and griefs: Christalla touch'd the lute; I wept the funeral song.

Chris. Which scarce was ended But her last breath seal'd up these hollow sounds, "O, cruel Ithocles and injurd Orgilus!" So down she drew her veil, so died.

Ith. So died! 10

Org. Up! you are messengers of death; go from us;

Here's woe enough to court without a prompter: Away; and—hark ye—till you see us next, No syllable that she is dead. — Away, Keep a smooth brow.

Exeunt Christalla and Philema. My lord, —

Mine only sister! 15

Another is not left me.

Ith. Take that chair; I'll seat me here in this: between us sits The object of our sorrows; some few tears We'll part among us: I perhaps can mix One lamentable story to prepare 'em. — 20 There, there; sit there, my lord.

Ith. Yes, as you please.

ITHOcles sits down, and is catchd in the engine.

What means this treachery?

Org. Caught! you are caught, Young master; 'tis thy throne of coronation, Thou fool of greatness! See, I take this veil off; Survey a beauty wither'd by the flames Of an insulging Phæton, her brother.

Ith. Thou meanst to kill me basely?

Org. I foresaw The last act of her life, and train'd thee hither To sacrifice a tyrant to a turtle. You dreamt of kingdoms, did ye? How to bosom

The delicacies of a youngling princess; How with this nod to grace that subtle courtier, How with that frown to make this noble tremble, And so forth; whiles Penthea's groans and tortures, Her agonies, her miseries, afflictions, Ne'er toucht upon your thought: as for my injuries, Alas, they were beneath your royal pity; But yet they liv'd, thou proud man, to confound thee.

Behold thy fate; this steel! [Draws a dagger.]

Ith. Strike home! A courage As keen as thy revenge shall give it welcome: But prithee faint not; if the wound close up, Tent it with double force, and search it deeply. Thou look'st that I should whine and beg compassion, As loth to leave the vainness of my glories. A statelier resolution arms my confidence, To cozen thee of honour; neither could I With equal trial of unequal fortune By hazard of a duel; 't were a bravery Too mighty for a slave intending murder. On to the execution, and inherit A conflict with thy horrors.

Org. By Apollo, Thou talk'st a goodly language! for requital I will report thee to thy mistress richly. And take this peace along: some few short minutes Determin'd, my resolves shall quickly follow Thy wrathful ghost; then, if we tug for mastery, Penthea's sacred eyes shall lend new courage. Give me thy hand: be healthful in thy parting. From lost mortality! thus, thus I free it. Kills him.

Ith. Yet, yet, I scorn to shrink.

Org. Keep up thy spirit: 40 I will be gentle even in blood; to linger Pain, which I strive to cure, were to be cruel. [Stabs him again.]

Ith. Nimble in vengeance, I forgive thee. Follow Safety, with best success: O, may it prosper! — Penthea, by thy side thy brother bleeds; The earnest of his wrongs to thy fore'd faith. Thoughts of ambition, or delicious banquet With beauty, youth, and love, together perish In my last breath, which on the sacred altar Of a long-look'd-for peace—now—moves—to heaven. Died. 70

Org. Farewell, fair spring of manhood! Henceforth welcome Best expectation of a noble suffrance. I'll lock the bodies safe, till what must follow Shall be approvd. — Sweet twine, shine stars for ever! — In vain they build their hopes whose life is shame: No monument lasts but a happy name. Exit.

1 Penthea's apartment in the palace. 2 A piece of mechanism.
ACT V

Scene I. Enter Bassanes, alone.

Bass. Athens — to Athens I have sent, the nursery
Of Greece for learning and the fount of knowledge;
For here in Sparta there's not left amongst us
One wise man to direct; we're all turn'd mad-caps.
'Tis said Apollo is the god of herbs,
Then certainly he knows the virtue of 'em:
To Delphos I have sent too. If there can be
A help for nature, we are sure yet.

Enter Orgilus.

Org. Honour Attend thy counsels ever!
Bass. I beseech thee
With all my heart, let me go from thee quietly;
I will not aught to do with thee, of all men. 11
The doubles2 of a hare, — or, in a morning,
Salutes from a splay-footed witch, — to drop
Three drops of blood at th' nose just and no more.
Croaking of ravens, or the screech of owls, 16
Are not so boding mischief as thy crossing
My private meditations. Shun me, prithee;
And if I cannot love thee heartily,
'Twill love thee as well as I can.
Org. Noble Bassanes,
Mistake me not.
Bass. Phew! then we shall be troubled. 50
Thouwert ordain'd my plague — heaven make me thankful,
And give me patience too, heaven, I beseech thee.

Org. Accept a league of amity; for henceforth,
I vow, by my best genius, in a syllable,
Never to speak vexation. I will study 25
Service and friendship, with a zealous sorrow
For my past incivility towards ye.
Bass. Hey-day, good words, good words! I must believe 'em,
And be a coxcomb for my labour.

Org. Use not so hard a language; your misdoubt is causeless.
20
For instance, if you promise to put on
A constancy of patience, such a patience
As chronicle or history ne'er mentioned,
As follows not example, but shall stand
A wonder and a theme for imitation,
The first, the index3 pointing to a second,
I will acquaint ye with an unmatch'd secret,
Whose knowledge to your griefs shall set a period.

Bass. Thou canst not, Orgilus; 'tis in the power
Of the gods only: yet, for satisfaction,
Because I note an earnest in thine utterance,

---

Unfore'd and naturally free, be resolute.
The virgin-bays shall not withstand the lightning.
With a more careless danger than my constancy
The full of thy relation. Could it move
Distraction in a senseless marble statue,
It should find me a rock: I do expect now
Some truth of unheard moment.

Org. To your patience
You must add privacy, as strong in silence
As mysteries lock'd-up in Jove's own bosom. 50
Bass. A skull hid in the earth a treble age
Shall sooner prate.

Org. Lastly, to such direction
As the severity of a glorious action
Deserves to lead your wisdom and your judgment,
You ought to yield obedience.

Bass. With assurance.

Org. With manly courage
Please, then, to follow me.
Bass. Where'er, I fear no.

Scene II.

Loud music. Enter Groneas and Hemophil, leading Euphranae; Christalla and Philema, leading Prophilus; Nearchus supporting Calantha; Croton and Ambelus.

Exeunt OBGILUS.

Cal. We miss our servant Ithocles and Orgilus;
On whom attend they?

Crot. My son, gracious princess,
Whisper'd some new device, to which these reveals
Should be but usher: wherein I conceive
Lord Ithocles and himself are actors.

Cal. A fair excuse for absence: as for Bassanes, Delights to him are troublesome: Armostes
Is with the king?

Crot. He is.

Cal. On to the dance! —
Dear cousin, hand you the bride; the bridegroom must be Intrusted to my courtship. Be not jealous, 10
Euphranae; I shall scarcely prove a tempting —
Fall to our dance.

Music.

Nearchus dances with Euphranae, Prophilus with Calantha, Christalla with Hemophil, Philema with Groneas.

They dance the first change; during which Ar- Mostes enters.

Arm. (in Calantha's ear.) The king your father's dead.

Cal. To the other change.

Arm. Is't possible? They dance again.

Enter Bassanes.

Bass. [whispers Calantha.] O, madam!

Penthea, poor Penthea's starved.

---

1 A room in Bassanes' house. 2 Q. doubles. 3 The index-hand.
Of whose allegiance to our laws doth covet
Rigour of justice; but that done it is,
Mine eyes have been an evidence of credit
Too sure to be convinc'd. 2
Armestes, rent not
Thine arteries with hearing the bare circumstances
Of these calamities; thou'rt lost a nephew,
A niece, and I a wife: continue man still;
Make me the pattern of digesting evils,
Who can outlive my mighty ones, not shrinking
At such a pressure as would sink a soul
Into what's most of death, the worst of horrors.
But I have seal'd a covenant with sadness,
And enter'd into bonds without condition,
To stand these tempests calmly; mark me,
nobles,
I do not shed a tear, nor for Penthea!
Excellent misery!

Cal. We begin our reign
With a first act of justice: thy confession,
Unhappy Orgilus, dooms thee a sentence;
But yet thy father's or thy sister's presence
Shall be excus'd. — Give, Crotolon, a blessing
To thy lost son; — Euphranea, take a farewell;
And both be gone.

Crot. Confirm thee, noble sorrow,
In worthy resolution!

Euph. Could my tears speak,
My griefs were slight.

Org. All goodness dwell amongst ye!

Enjoy my sister, Prophilus; my vengeance
Aim'd never at thy prejudice.

Cal. Now withdraw.

Exeunt Crotolon, Prophilus, and Euphranea.

Bloody relater of thy stains in blood,
For that thou hast reported him, whose fortunes
And life by thee are both at once snatch'd from him,
With honourable mention, make thy choice
Of what death likes thee best; there's all our bounty.
But to excuse delays, let me, dear cousin,
Intreat you and these lords see execution
Instant before ye part.

Near. Your will commands us.

Org. One suit, just queen, my last; vouchsafe your clemency,
That by no common hand I be divided
From this my humble frailty.

Cal. To their wisoms
Who are to be spectators of thine end
I make the reference. Those that are dead
Are dead; had they not now died, of necessity
They must have paid the debt they ow'd to nature
One time or other. — Use dispatch, my lords;
We'll suddenly prepare our coronation.

Exeunt Calantha, Philema, and Christabella.
Arm. 'Tis strange these tragedies should never touch on her female pity.
Bass. She has a masculine spirit; and wherefore should I pule, and, like a girl, put finger in the eye? Let's be all toughness, without distinction betwixt sex and sex.
Near. Now, Origilus, thy choice?
Org. To bleed to death.
Arm. The executioner?
Org. Myself, no surgeon; I am well skill'd in letting blood. Bind fast this arm, that so the pipes may from their conduits convey a full stream; here's a skilful instrument.
Only I am a beggar to some charity
To speed me in this execution
By lending th' other prick to th' tother arm,
When this is bubbling life out.
Bass. I am for ye;
It most concerns my art, my care, my credit—quick, fillet both his arms.
Org. Gramercy, friendship! Such courtesies are rare which flow cheerfully without an expectation of requital.
Reach me a staff in this hand.
[They give him a staff.]
—If a proneness or custom in my nature from my cradle had been inclin'd to fierce and eager bloodshed,
A coward guilt, bid in a coward quaking,
Would have betray'd fame to ignoble flight
And vagabond pursuit of dreadful safety:
But look upon my steadiness, and scorn not
The sickness of my fortune, which, since Bassettes,
Was husband to Penthea, had lain bed-ridd.
We tried time in words:—thus I show cunning
In opening of a vein too full, too lively.
[Opens the vein with his dagger.]
Arm. Desperate courage!
[Near.] Honourable infamy!
Hem. I tremble at the sight.
Gro. Would I were loose! Bass. It sparkles like a lusty wine new broacht;
The vessel must be sound from which it issues.—
Grasp hard this other stick—I'll be as nimble
But prithee, look not pale—have at ye! stretch out
Thine arm with vigour and [with] unshook virtue.
[Opens the vein.]
Good! O, I envy not a rival, fitted
To conquer in extremities. This pastime
Appears majestical; some high-ton'd poem
Hereafter shall deliver to posterity
The writer's glory and his subject's triumph.
How is 't, man? Drop not yet.
Org. I feel no palsy.
On a pair-royal do I wait in death;
My sovereign, as his liege-man; on my mistress,
As a devoted servant; and on Ithocles,
As if no brave, yet no unworthy enemy.
Nor did I use an engine to entrap his life, out of a slavish fear to combat
Youth, strength, or cunning; but for that I durst not Engage the goodness of a cause on fortune,
By which his name might have outface'd my vengeance.
O, Teucrus, inspir'd with Phoebus' fire!
I call to mind thy angry, 't was perfect;
Revenge proves its own executioner.
When feeble man is bending to his mother,
The dust 'a was first fram'd on, thus he totters.
Bass. Life's fountain is dry'd up.
Org. So falls the standard of my prerogative in being a creature!
A mist hangs o'er mine eyes, the sun's bright splendour
Is clouded in an everlasting shadow;
Welcome, thou ice, that sitt'st about my heart.
No heat can ever thaw thee. Dies.
Near. Speech hath left him.
Bass. 'A has shook hands with time; his funeral urn Shall be my charge: remove the bloodless body.
The coronation must require attendance;
That past, my few days can be but one mourning.

Scene III.

An altar covered with white; two lights of virgin wax, during which music of recorders; enter four bearing Ithocles on a hearse, or in a chair, in a rich robe, with a crown on his head; place him on one side of the altar. After him enter Calanthe in a white robe and crown'd; Eufrancea, Philema, and Christella, in white; Nearcho, Armistes, Creton, Prophilius, Amelius, Bassantes, Homojil, and Groneas.

Call. Our orisons are heard; the gods are merciful.

Now tell me, who whose loyalties pay tribute To us your lawful sovereign, how unskilful Your duties or obedience is to render Subjection to the sceptre of a virgin, Who have been ever fortunate in princes Of masculine and stirring composition. A woman has enough to govern wisely Her own demeanours, passions, and divisions. A nation warlike and inured to practice Of policy and labour cannot brook A feminine authority: we therefore Command your counsel, how you may advise us In choosing of a husband whose abilities Can better guide this kingdom.

Near. Royal lady, your law is in your will.

1 Q. Org. 2 Dyce's suggestion. Q. omits.

Skill. A temple.
John Ford

Arm.
We have seen tokens
Of constancy too lately to mistrust it.
Crot. Yet, if your highness settle on a choice
By your own judgment both allow'd and lik'd of,
Sparta may grow in power, and proceed
To an increasing height.
Cal. Hold you the same mind?
Bass. Alas, great mistress, reason is so cloaked
With the thick darkness of my infinite woes,
That I forecast nor dangers, hopes, or safety.
Give me some corner of the world to wear out
The remnant of the minutes I must number,
Where I may hear no sounds but sad complaints
Of virgins who have lost contracting partners;
Of hounds howling that their wives were ravish'd
By some untimely fate; of friends divided
By churlish opposition; or of fathers Weeping upon their children's slaughtered carcases;
Or daughters groaning o'er their fathers' hearces;
And I can dwell there, and with these keep
As musical as theirs. What can you look for
From an old, foolish, peevish, doting man
But craziness of age?
Col. Cousin of Argos, —
Near. Madam?
Cal. Were I presently
To choose you for my lord, I'll open freely
What articles I would propose to treat on Before our marriage.
Near. Name them, virtuous lady.
Cal. I would presume you would retain the royalty
Of Sparta in her own bounds; then in Argos
Armostes might be viceroy; in Messene
Might Cretolon bear sway; and Bassanes —
Bass. I, queen! alas, what I?
Col. Be Sparta's marshal.
The multitudes of high employments could not
But set a peace to private griefs. These gentlemen,
Gronaeas and Hemophil, with worthy pensions,
Should wait upon your person in your chamber.
I would bestow Christalla on Amelius,
She'll prove a constant wife; and Philema
Should into Vesta's Temple.
Bass. This is a testament!
It sounds not like conditions on a marriage.
Near. All this should be perform'd.
Cal. Lastly, for Prophilus,
He should be, cousin, solemnly invested
In all those honours, titles, and preferments
Which his dear friend and my neglected husband
Too short a time enjoyed.
Pro. I am unworthy
To live in your remembrance.
Euph. Excellent lady!
Near. Madam, what means that word, "neglected husband"?
Cal. Forgive me: — now I turn to thee, thou shadow
Of my contracted lord! Bear witness all,
I put my mother's wedding-ring upon
His finger; 'twas my father's last bequest.
[Places a ring on the finger of ITHOCLES.]
Thus I new-marry him whose wife I am;
Death shall not separate us. O, my lords,
I but deceiv'd your eyes with antic gesture,
When one news straight came huddling on another
Of death! and death! and death! still I danced forward;
But it struck home, and here, and in an instant.
Be such mere women, who with shrieks and outcries
Can vow a present end to all their sorrows,
Yet live to [court] new pleasures, and outlive them.
They are the silent griefs which cut the heartstrings;
Let me die smiling.
Near. 'Tis a truth too ominous.
Cal. One kiss on these cold lips, my last!
[Kisses ITHOCLES.] — Crack, crack! —
Argos now 's Sparta's king. — Command the voices
Which wait at th' altar now to sing the song
I fitted for my end.
Near. Sirs, the song!
A Song.
All. Glories, pleasures, pomps, delights, and case,
Can but please
Outward senses when the mind
Is [or] untroubled or by peace refin'd.
1 [Voice.] Crowns may flourish and decay,
Beauties shine, but fade away.
2 [Voice.] Youth may revel, yet it must Lie down in a bed of dust.
3 [Voice.] Earthly honours flow and waste,
Time alone doth change and last.
All. Sorrows mingled with contents prepare Rest for care;
Love only reigns in death; though art
Can find no comfort for a broken heart.
[Calanthia dies.]
Arm. Look to the queen!
Bass. Her heart is broke, indeed.
O, royal maid, would thou hadst mist this part!
Yet 'twas a brave one. I must weep to see
Her smile in death.
Arm. Wise Teucrim! thus said he;
When youth is ripe, and age from time doth part,
The Lifeless Trunk shall wed the Broken Heart
Is here fulfill'd.
Near. I am your king.
All. Long live!
Near. Nearehus, King of Sparta!
Near. Her last will Shall never be digest from: wait in order
1 Q. vow.
2 Q. not.
Upon these faithful lovers, as becomes us. —
The counsels of the gods are never known
Till men can call th' effects of them their own.
[Exeunt.]

THE EPILOGUE

Where noble judgments and clear eyes are fix'd.
To grace endeavour, there sits truth, not mix'd
With ignorance; those censures may command
Belief which talk not till they understand.

Let some say, "This was flat;" some, "Here the scene Fell from its height;" another, that the mean
Was "ill observ'd" in such a growing passion
As it transcended either state or fashion:
Some few may cry, "'Twas pretty well," or
"But—" and there shrug in silence; yet we know
Our writer's aim was in the whole address
Well to deserve of all, but please the best;
Which granted, by th' allowance of this strain
The Broken Heart may be piec'd up again.
THE LADY OF PLEASURE

[DRAMATIS PERSONAE]

Lord ——,
Sir Thomas Bornwell.
Sir William Scraftlove.
Master Alexander Kickshaw.} [Gallants.]
Master John Littleworth.
Master Haircut, [a Barber.]
Master Erasmus, [nephew to Lady Bornwell.]
Steward to the Lady Aretina.
Steward to the Lady Celestina.

Secretary [to Lord ——].
Servants, etc.

Aretina, Sir Thomas Bornwell’s Lady.
Celestina, a young widow.
Isabella; [Friends of Celestina.]
Mariana.
Madam Decoy, [a Procuress.]
[Gentlewoman.]

SCENE. — The Strand.

ACT I

[SCENE I.]

Enter Lady Bornwell, 2 and her Steward.

Stew. Be patient, madam; you may have your pleasure.

Lady B. 2 ’Tis that I came to town for. I would not Endure again the country conversation,

To be the lady of six shires! The men,

So near the primitive making, they retain

A sense of nothing but the earth; their brains,

And barren heads standing as much in want

Of ploughing as their ground. To hear a fellow

Make himself merry and his horse, with whistling

Sellinger’s Round! 3 To observe with what solemnity

They keep their wakes, and throw for pewter candle-sticks!

How they become the morris, with whose bells

They ring all in to Whitsun-ales; and sweat,

Through twenty scarfs and napkins, till the hobby-horse

Tire, and the Maid Marian, 4 dissolv’d to a jelly,

Be kept for sheep meat!

Stew. These, with your pardon, are no argument

To make the country life appear so hateful;

At least to your particular, who enjoy’d

A blessing in that calm, would you be pleas’d.

To think so, and the pleasure of a kingdom,

While your own will commanded what should move

Delights, your husband’s love and power join’d

1 A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell’s house.
2 In the Q, Lady Bornwell is called Aretina throughout stage directions and speech-tags.
3 A common country-dance tune. Cf. p. 487.
4 Characters in the morris-dance.

To give your life more harmony. You liv’d there

Secure, and innocent, belov’d of all;

Prais’d for your hospitality, and prais’d for:

You might be envi’d, but malice knew

Not where you dwelt. I would not prophesy,

But leave to your own apprehension,

What may succeed your change.

Lady B. You do imagine.

Lady B. 2 No doubt, you have talk’d wisely, and confuted

London past all defence. Your master should

Do well to send you back into the country,

With title of superintendent-bailiff.

Stew. How, madam!

Lady B. Even so, sir.

Stew. I am a gentleman.

Though now your servant.

Lady B. A country gentleman,

By your affection to converse with stubble.

His tenants will advance your wit, and plump

it so

With beef and bag-pudding!

Stew. You may say your pleasure,

It becomes not me dispute.

Lady B. Complain to

The lord of the soil, your master.

Stew. You’re a woman

Of an ungovern’d passion, and I pity you.

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell.

Born. How now? What’s the matter?

Stew. Nothing, sir. [Exit.]

Born. Angry, sweetheart?

Lady B. I am angry with myself,

To be so miserably restrain’d in things,

Wherein it doth concern your love and honour

To see me satisfied.

Born. In what, Aretina,

Dost thou accuse me? Have I not obey’d

All thy desires? Against mine own opinion

Quitted the country, and remov’d the hope
Of our return, by sale of that fair lordship
We liv'd in? Chang'd a calm and retir'd life
For this wild town, compos'd of noise and charge?

Lady B. What charge, more than is necessary for A lady of my birth and education?

Born. I am not ignorant how much nobility Flows in your blood; your kinsmen great and powerful
I' th' state; but with this, lose not you memory
Of being my wife. I shall be studious,
Madam, to give the dignity of your birth
All the best ornaments which become my fortune;
But would not flatter it, to ruin both,
And be the bale of the town, to teach
Other men loss of wit by mine, employ'd to serve your vast expenses.

Lady B. Am I then
Brought in the balance? So, sir!

Born. Though you weigh
Me in a partial scale, my heart is honest,
And must take liberty to think you have Obey'd no modest counsel, to affect,
Nay, study ways of pride and costly ceremony:
Your change of gaudy furniture, and pictures
Of this Italian master, and that Dutchman's;
Your mighty looking-glasses, like artillery,
Brought home on engines; the superfluous plate,
Antique and novel; vanities of tires;
Four-score-pound suppers for my lord, your kinsman,
Banquets for t'other lady aunt, and cousins,
And perfumes that exceed all: train of servants,
To stifle us at home, and show abroad
More motley than the French or the Venetian,
About your coach, whose rude postillion
Must pester every narrow lane, till passengers
And tradesmen curse your choking up their stalls;
And common cries pursue your ladyship,
For hind'ring of their market.

Lady B. Have you done, sir?

Born. I could accuse the gaiety of your wardrobe,
And prodigal embroideries, under which Rich satins, plusses, cloth of silver, dair
Not show their own complexions; your jewels,
Able to burn out the spectators' eyes,
And show like bonfires on you by the tapers.
Something might here be spar'd, with safety
Of your birth and honour, since the truest wealth Shines from the soul, and draws up just admirers.—
I could urge something more.

Lady B. Pray do, I like it

Your habit of thrift.

Born. I could wish, madam,
You would not game so much.

Lady B. A gamester too!

Born. But are not come to that acquaintance yet,
Should teach you skill enough to raise your profit.
You look not through the subtilty of cards, and mysteries of dice; nor can you save Charge with the box, buy petticoats and pearls,
And keep your family by the precious income;
Nor do I wish you should: my poorest servant
Shall not upbraid my tables, nor his hire,
Purchased beneath your honour. You make play
Not a pastime but a tyranny, and vex
Yourself and my estate by it.

Lady B. Good! proceed.

Born. Another game you have, which consumes more
Your fame than purse; your revels in the night,
Your meetings called the 'Ball,' to which repair,
As to the Court of Pleasure, all your gallants
And ladies, thither bound by a subpoena
Of Venus, and small Cupid's high displeasure;
'Tis but the Family of Love translated Into more costly sin! There was a play on 't,
And had the poet not been brib'd to a modest
Expression of your antic gambols in 't,
Some darks had been discovered, and the deeds too.

In time he may repent, and make some blush,
To see the second part done on the stage.
My thoughts acquit you for dishonouring me
By any foul act; but the virtuous know
'Tis not enough to clear ourselves, but the Suspicions of our shame.

Lady B. Have you concluded

Your lecture?

Born. I ha' done; and howsoever
My language may appear to you, it carries
No other than my fair and just intent
To your delights, without curb to their moderate,
And noble freedom.

Lady B. Well. I' ll not be so tedious
In my reply; but, without art or elegance,
Assure you, I keep still my first opinion:
And though you veil your avaricious meaning
With handsome names of modesty and thrift,
I find you would intrench and wound the liberty
I was born with. Were my desires unprivileg'd
By example, while my judgment thought 'em fit,
You ought not to oppose; but when the practice
And track of every honourable lady
Authorise me, I take it great injustice
To have my pleasures circumstanc'd, and taught me
A narrow-minded husband is a thief
To his own fame, and his preferment too;
He shuts his parts and fortunes from the world,
6 A religious sect often accused of licentiousness.
7 'The Ball,' a comedy by Shirley and Chapman, 1632.
8 Moderate.
While, from the popular vote and knowledge, men
Rise to employment in the state.
Born. I have

No great ambition to buy preferment at
So dear a rate.
Lady B. Nor I to sell my honour.
By living poor and sparingly, I was not Bred in that ebb of fortune, and my fate
Shall not compel me to it.
Born. I know not,
Madam; but you pursue these ways —
Lady B. What ways?
Born. In the strict sense of honesty, I dare
Make oath they are innocent.
Lady B. Do not divert,
By busy troubling of your brain, these thoughts
That should preserve ’em.
Born. How was that?
Lady B. ’Tis English.
Born. But carries some unkind sense.

Enter MADAM DECOY.

Dec. Good morrow, my sweet madam.
Lady B. Decoy! welcome;
This visit is a favour.
Dec. Alas, sweet madam,
I cannot stay: I came but to present
My service to your ladyship; I could not Pass by your door, but I must take the boldness
To tender my respects.
Lady B. You oblige me, madam;
But I must not dispense so with your absence.
Dec. Alas, the coach, madam, stays for me at the door.
Lady B. Thou’st command mine; prithee, sweet Decoy — Dec. I would wait on you, madam, but I have many
Visits to make this morning; I beseech —
Lady B. So you will promise to dine with me.
Dec. I shall

Present a guest.
Lady B. Why, then good morrow, madam.
Dec. A happy day shine on your ladyship!

Exit.

Re-enter Steward.

Lady B. What’s your news, sir?
Stew. Madam, two gentlemen.
Lady B. What gentlemen? Have they no names?

Stew. They are
The gentleman with his own head of hair,
Whom you commended for his horsemanship
In Hyde Park, and becoming so the saddle,
The t’ other day.
Lady B. What circumstance is this
To know him by?
Stew. His name’s at my tongue’s end: —
He lik’d the fashion of your pearl chain,
madam;
And borrowed it for his jeweller to take
A copy by it.
Born. [Aside.] What cheating gallant ’s this?

Stew. That never walks without a lady’s bust;
And plays with fans — Master Alexander Kickshaw.

I thought I should remember him.
Lady B. What’s the other?
Stew. What an unlucky memory I have!
The gallant that still danceth in the street,
And wears a gross of ribbon in his hat;
That carries oringoado in his pocket,
And sugar-plums, to sweeten his discourse;
That studies compliment, defies all wit
In black, and censurets plays that are not bawdy —

Master John Littleworth.
Lady B. They are welcome; but Pray entertain them a small time, lest I
Be unprovided.
Born. Did they ask for me?
Stew. No, sir.
Born. It matters not, they must be welcome.
Lady B. Fie! how ’s this hair disordered?
Here’s a curl
Straddles most impossibly. I must to my closet.

Exit.

Born. Wait on ’em; my lady will return
again. [Exit Steward.]

I have to such a height fulfill’d her humour,
All application’s dangerous; these gallants
Must be receiv’d, or she will fall into
A tempest, and the house be shook with names
Of all her kindred. ’T is a servitude
I may in time shake off.

Enter ALEXANDER [KICKSHAW] and LITTLEWORTH.

Kick. and Little. Save you, Sir Thomas!
Born. Save you, gentlemen!

Kick. I kiss your hand.

Born. What day is it abroad?

Little. The morning rises from your lady’s eye:
If she look clear, we take the happy omen
Of a fair day.
Born. She’ll instantly appear,
To the discredit of your compliment;
But you express your wit thus.

Kick. And you modesty,
Not to affect the praises of your own.
Born. Leaving this subject, what game’s now on foot?
What exercise carries the general vote
O’ the town? Nothing moves without your knowledge.

Kick. The cocking now has all the noise; I’ll have A hundred pieces of one battle. — Oh, these Birds of Mars!

Little. Venus is Mars his bird too.

Kick. Why, and the pretty doves are Venus’s,
To show that kisses draw the chariot.

Little. I am for that skirmish.

Born. When shall we have

1 Corset.
2 Candied orange-pearl.
3 Appeal, demand (?).
4 What sort of.
5 Indulged.
6 Like.
More booths and bagpipes upon Banstead downs?
No mighty race is expected? — But my lady Returns!

Re-enter Lady Bornwell.

Lady B. Fair morning to you, gentlemen!
You went not late to bed by your early visit.

Kick.

Lady B. What news abroad? You hold precious intelligence.

Little. All tongues are so much busy with your praise,
They have not time to frame other discourse.
Will 't please you, madam, taste a sugar-plum?

Born. What does the goldsmith think the pearl is worth
You borrowed of my lady?

Kick. 'Tis a rich one.

Born. She has many other toys, whose fashion you
Will like extremely: you have no intention
To buy any of her jewels?

Kick. Understand me —

Born. You had rather sell, perhaps. But, leaving this,
I hope you 'll dine with us.

Kick. I came a 's purpose.

Lady B. And where were you last night?

Kick. I, madam? Where I slept not; it had been sin, where so much Delight and beauty was to keep me waking.

There is a lady, madam, will be worth
Your free society; my conversation
Ne'er knew so elegant and brave a soul,
With most incomparable flesh and blood;
So spirited! so courtly! speaks the languages,
Sings, dances, plays o' th' late to admiration!
Is fair, and paints not; gametoo, keeps a table,
And talks most witty satire; has a wit
Of a clean Mercury —

Little. Is she married?

Kick. No.

Lady B. A virgin?

Kick. Neither.

Little. What! a widow! Something
Of this wide commendation might have Excus'd. This such a prodigy!

Kick. Repent,
Before I name her: she did never see
Yet full sixteen, an age, in the opinion
Of wise men, not contemptible. She has Mourn'd out her year, too, for the honest knight
That had compassion of her youth, and died
So timely. Such a widow is not common;
And now she shines more fresh and tempting
Than any natural virgin.

Lady B. What's her name?

Kick. She was christened Celestina; by her husband,

The Lady Bellamour: this ring was hers.

Born. You borrowed it to copy out the posy.

Kick. Are they not pretty rubies? 't was a grace

She was pleas'd to show me, that I might have Made of the self-same fashion; for I love
All pretty forms.

Lady B. And is she glorious?

Kick. She is full of jewels, madam; but I am
Most taken with the bravery of her mind,
Although her garments have all grace and ornament.

Lady B. You have been high in praises.

Kick. I come short;
No flattery can reach her.

Born. [Aside.] Now my lady
Is troubled, as she 'fear'd to be eclips'd;
This news will cost me somewhat.

Lady B. You deserve
Her favour, for this noble character.

Kick. And I possess it, by my stars benevolence.

Lady B. You must bring us acquainted.

Born. I pray do, sir;
I long to see her too.—Madam, I have Thought upon 't, and correct my opinion.
Pursue what ways of pleasure your desires
Incline you to, not only with my state,
But with my person; I will follow you.
I see the folly of my thrift, and will Repent in sack and prodigality,
To your own heart's content.

Lady B. But do not mock.

Born. Take me to your embraces, gentlemen,
And tutor me.

Little. And will you kiss the ladies?

Born. And sing and dance. I long to see
This beauty;
I would fain lose a hundred pounds at dice now.
Thou shalt have another gown and petticost
To-morrow. Will you sell my running-horses?
We have no Greek wine in the house, I think;
Pray send one of our footmen to the merchant,
And throw the hogshead of March-beer into
The kennel, 1 to make room for sack and claret.
What think you to be drunk yet before dinner?
We will have constant music, and maintain
Them and their fiddles in fantastic liversies:
I'll tune my voice to catches. I must have My dining-room enlarg'd, to invite ambassadors.
We'll feast the parish in the fields, and teach
The military men new discipline.
Who shall charge all their great artillery
With oranges and lemons, boy, to play
All dinner upon our capons.

Kick. He's exalted!

Born. I will do anything to please my lady,
Let that sufllice; and kiss o' th' same condition.
I am converted; do not you dispute,
But patiently allow the miracle.

Lady B. I am glad to hear you, sir, in so good tune.

Enter Servant.

Serv. Madam, the painter.

Lady B. I am to sit this morning.

1 Gutter.
Born. Do, while I give new directions to my steward.
Kick. With your favour, we'll wait on you: sitting's but
A melancholy exercise without
Some company to discourse.
Lady B. It does conclude s6
A lady's morning work. We rise, make fine,
Sit for our picture, and 'tis time to dine.
Little. Praying 's forgot.
Kick. 'Tis out of fashion.

[Scene II.] 1
Enter Celestina and her Steward.

Col. Fie! what an air this room has!
Stew. 'Tis perfumed.
Col. With some cheap stuff. Is it your wisdom's thrift
To infect my nostrils thus? O ris't to favour
The gout in your worship's hand, you are afraid
To exercise your pen in your account book?
Or do you doubt my credit to discharge
Your bills?
Stew. Madam, I hope you have not found
My duty, with the guilt of sloth or jealousy;
Unapt to your command.
Col. You can extenuate
Your faults with language, sir; but I expect
To be obey'd. What hangiage have we here!
Stew. They are arras, madam.
Col. Impudence! I know 't.
I will have fresher, and more rich; not worth or
With faces that may scandalize a Christian,
With Jewish stories stuff with corn and camels.
You had best wrap all my chambers in wild Irish,
And make a nursery of monsters here.
To fright the ladies come to visit me.
Stew. Madam, I hope—
Col. I say I will have other,
Good Master Steward, of a finer loom;
Some silk and silver, if your worship please
To let me be at so much cost. I'll have Stories to fit the seasons of the year,
And change as often as I please.
Stew. You shall, madam.
Col. I am bound to your consent, foresooth!
And is
My coach brought home?
Stew. This morning I expect it.
Col. The inside, as I gave direction,
Of crimson plush?
Stew. Of crimson camel plush.
Col. Ten thousand moths consume 't! Shall I ride through
The streets in penance, wrap up round in hair cloth?
Sell 't to an alderman, 't will serve his wife
To go a feasting to their country-house;
Or fetch a merchant's nurse-child, and come home
Laden with fruit and cheese-cakes. I despise it!

Stew. The nails adorn it, madam, set in method,
And pretty forms.
Col. But single gilt, I warrant.
Stew. No, madam.
Another solecism! Oh fie!
This fellow will bring me to a consumption
With fretting at his ignorance. Some lady
Had rather never pray than go to church in't,
The nails not double gilt! To market wo 't?
'T will hackney out to Mile-end, or convey
Your city tumblers, to be drunk with cream
And prunes at Islington.
Stew. Good madam, hear me.
Col. I'll rather be beholding to my aunt,
The countess, for her mourning coach, than be Disparag'd so. Shall any juggling tradesman
Be at charge to shoe his running-horse with gold,
And shall my coach nails be but single gilt!
How dare these knaves abuse me so?
Stew. Vouchsafe
To hear me speak.
Col. Is my sedan yet finish'd,
And liveries for my men-mules, according
As I gave charge?
Stew. Yes, madam, it is finish'd,
But without tilting-plumes at the four corners;
The scarlet's pure, but not embroidered.
Col. What mischief were it to your conscience
Were my coach lin'd with tissue, and my harness
Cover'd with needle-work? if my sedan
Had all the story of the prodigal
Embroidered with pearl?
Stew. Alas, good madam,
I know 't is your own cost; I am but your steward,
And would discharge my duty the best way.
You have been pleas'd to hear me; 't is not for My profit that I manage your estate
And save expense, but for your honour, madam.
Col. How, sir! my honour?
Stew. Though you hear it not,
Men's tongues are liberal in your character,
Since you began to live thus high. I know
Your fame is precious to you.
Col. I were best
Make you my governor. Audacious varlet!
How dare you interpose your doting counsel?
Mind your affairs with more obedience,
Or I shall ease you of an office, sir.
Must I be limited to please your honour,
Or, for the vulgar breath, confine my pleasures?
I will pursue 'em in what shapes I fancy.
Here, and abroad; my entertainments shall
Be oft'ner, and more rich. Who shall control me?
I live at the Strand, whither few ladies come
To live, and purchase more than fame. I will Be hospitable then, and spare no cost
That may engage all generous report
To trumpet forth my bounty and my bravery,

1 A room in Celestina's house.
2 Will it? Gifford reads 'twas.
3 Courteous.
4 A suburban resort for cakes and cream.
5 Chair-men.
6 Splendor.
Till the court envy, and remove. I'll have My house the academy of wits, who shall Exalt their genius with rich sack and sturgeon,
Write panegyrics of my feasts, and praise
The method of my witty superfluities.
The horses shall be taught, with frequent waiting
Upon my gates, to stop in their career
Toward Charing-cross, spite of the coachman's fury;
And not a tilter but shall strike 1 his plume,
When he sails by my window: my balcony
Shall be the courtier's idol, and more gaz'd at Than all the pageantry at Temple Bar,
By country clients.

Stew. Sure my lady's mad. [Strikes him.]

Stew. Thank you, madam.—

I would there were less quicksilver in your fingers.

Exit.

Cel. There's more than simple honesty in a servant
Requir'd to his full duty; none should dare 100
But with a look, much less a saucy language,
Check at their mistress' pleasure. I'm resolv'd
To pay for some delight, my estate will bear it;
I'll rein it shorter when I please.

Re-enter Steward.

Stew. A gentleman
Desires to speak with your ladyship.

Cel. His name?

Stew. He says you know him not; he seems to be
Of quality.

Cel. Admit him. [Exit Steward.]

Enter HAIRCUT.

Sir, with me?

Hair. Madam, I know not how much you may receive
This boldness from me; but my fair intents
Known, will incline you to be charitable. 110

Cel. No doubt, sir.

Hair. He must live obscurely, madam,
That hath not heard what virtues you possess;
And I, a poor admirer of your fame,
Am come to kiss your hand.

Cel. That all your business?

Hair. Though it were worth much travel, I have more
In my ambition.

Cel. Speak it freely, sir.

Hair. You are a widow.

Cel. So!

Hair. And I a bachelor.

Cel. You come a wooing, sir, and would perhaps Show me a way to reconcile the two?

Hair. And bless my stars for such a happiness.

Cel. I like you, sir, the better, that you do not Wander about, but shoot home to the meaning; 2

[It is a confidence will make a man
Know sooner what to trust to: but I never Saw you before, and I believe you come not 120
With hope to find me desperate upon marriage.
If maids, out of their ignorance of what
Men are, refuse these offers, widows may,
Out of their knowledge, be allow'd some coy-
ness:
And yet I know not how much happiness 130
A peremptory answer may deprive me of; —
You may be some young lord, and though I see not Your footman and your groom, they may not be Far off, in conference with your horse. Please you
To instruct me with your title, against which
I would not willingly offend.

Hair. I am.

A gentleman; my name is Haircut, madam.

Cel. Sweet Master Haircut, are you a courtier?

Hair. Yes.

Cel. I did think so, by your confidence.
Not to detain you, sir, with circumstance,
I was not so unhappy in my husband,
But that 'tis possible I may be a wife
Again; but I must tell you, he that wins
My affection, shall deserve me.

Hair. If you can love, I shall not present, madam, 140
An object to displease you in my person:
And when time, and your patience, shall possess you
With further knowledge of me, and the truth
Of my devotion, you will not repent
The offer of my service.

Cel. You say well. 150
How long do you imagine you can love, sir?
Is it a quotidian, or will it hold
But every other day?

Hair. You are pleasant, madam.

Cel. Does it take you with a burning at the first,
Or with a cold fit? for you gentlemen
Have both your summer and your winter service.

Hair. I am ignorant what you mean; but I shall never
Be cold in my affection to such beauty.

Cel. And 't will be somewhat long ere I be warm in't.

Hair. If you vouchsafe me so much honour, madam,
That I may wait on you sometimes, I sha' not Despair to see a change.

Cel. But now I know
Your mind, you shall not need to tell it when You come again; I shall remember it.

Hair. You make me fortunate.

Re-enter Steward.

Stew. Madam, your kinswomen, 160
The lady Novice, and her sister, are
New lighted from their coach.
ACT II

SCENE I. 1

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell.

Born. 'Tis a strange humour I have undertaken,
To dance, and play, and spend as fast as she does;
But I am resolv'd: it may do good upon her,
And fright her into thrift. Nay, I'll endeavour
To make her jealous too; if this do not
Allay her gambling, she's past a woman,
And only a miracle must tame her.

Enter Steward.

Stew. 'Tis master Frederick, my lady's nephew.

Born. What of him?

Stew. Is come from the university.

Born. By whose directions?

Stew. It seems, my lady's.

Born. Let me speak with him 10
Before he see his aunt. [Exit Stew.] — I do not like it.—

Enter [Steward, with] Master Frederick, [in his college dress.]

Master Frederick, welcome! I expected not
So soon your presence; what's the hasty cause?

Fred. These letters, from my tutor, will acquaint you. [Gives BORNWELL letters.]

Stew. Welcome home, sweet Master Frederick!

Fred. Where's my aunt? 15

Stew. She's busy about her painting, in her closet;
The outlandish man of art is copying out
Her countenance.

Fred. She is sitting for her picture?

Stew. Yes, sir; and when 'tis drawn she will be hang'd.

Next the French cardinal, in the dining-room. But when she hears you're come, she will dismiss 21
The Belgic gentleman, to entertain
Your worship.

Fred. Change of air has made you witty.
Born. Your tutor gives you a handsome character,

Frederick, and is sorry your aunt's pleasure 35
Commands you from your studies; but I hope
You have no quarrel to the liberal arts.
Learning is an addition 2 beyond
Nobility of birth. Honour of blood,
Without the ornament of knowledge, is 30
A glorious 3 ignorance.

Fred. I never knew more sweet and happy hours
Than I employ'd upon my books. I heard
A part of my philosophy, and was so
Delighted with the harmony of nature,
I could have wasted my whole life upon 't.

Born. [Aside.] 'Tis pity a rash indulgence should corrupt
So fair a genius! She's here; I'll observe.

Enter Lady BORNWELL, KICKSHAW, and LITTLEWORTH.

Fred. My most lov'd aunt!

Lady B. Support me, I shall faint.

Little. What ails your ladyship?

Lady B. Is that Frederick, 40
In black?

Kick. Yes, madam; but the doublet's satin.

Lady B. The boy's undone!

Fred. Madam, you appear troubled.

Lady B. Have I not cause? Was not I trusted with Thy education, boy, and have they sent thee
Home like a very scholar!

Kick. 'Twas ill done, 45
How'er they us'd him in the university,
To send him to his friends thus.

Fred. Why, sir? Black,
(For 'tis the colour that offends your eye-sight,)
Is not, within my reading, any blemish;
Sables are no disgrace in heraldry. 50

Kick. 'Tis coming from the college thus,
that makes it
Dishonourable. While you wore it for Your father, it was commendable; or were
Your aunt dead, you might mourn, and justify.

Lady B. What luck 4 I did not send him into France? 55
They would have given him generous education,
Taught him another garb, to wear his lock, 6
And shape, as gaudy as the summer; how
To dance, and wag his feather à-la-mode,
To compliment, and cringe; to talk not mod-estly, 60
Like, 'ay forsooth,' and 'no forsooth'; to blush,
And look so like a chaplain! — There he might
Have learn'd a brazen confidence, and observ'd
So well the custom of the country, that
He might, by this time, have invented fashions
For us, and been a benefit to the kingdom; 65
Preserv'd our tailors in their wits, and saw'd
The charge of sending into foreign courts
For pride and antic fashions.—Observe
In what a posture he does hold his hat now! 70
Fred. Madam, with your pardon, you have practis'd

1 A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell's house.

2 Title, ornament.
3 Vain-glorious.
4 J. e. Bad luck.
5 Hair.
Another dialect than was taught me when I was commended to your care and breeding.
I understand not this; Latin or Greek
Are more familiar to my apprehension:
Logic was not so hard in my first lectures
As your strange language.
Lady B. (Aside.) Some strong waters; oh! Little, Comfits will be as comfortable to your stomach, madam. [Offers his box.]
Lady B. I fear he's spoil'd for ever! He did name Logic, and may, for aught I know, be gone.
So far to understand it. I did always Suspect they would corrupt him in the college.—
Will your Greek saws and sentences discharge
The mercer? Or is Latin a fit language.
To court a mistress in? — Master Alexander, If you have any charity, let me
Commend him to your breeding. — I suspect
I must employ my doctor first, to purge
The university that lies in 's head;
It alters his complexion.
Kick. If you dare
Trust me to serve him —
Lady B. Master Littleworth,
Be you join'd in commission.
Little. I will teach him
Postures and rudiments.
Lady B. I have no patience
To see him in this shape; it turns my stomach.
When he has cast his academic skin
He shall be yours. I am bound in conscience
To see him bred; his own state shall maintain
The charge, while he's my ward. — Come hither, sir.
Fred. What does my aunt mean to do with me?
Stew. To make you a fine gentleman, and translate you Out of your learned language, sir, into
The present Goth and Vandal, which is French.
Born. [Aside.] Into what mischief will this humour obb?
She will undo the boy; I see him ruin'd.
My patience is not manly; but I must Use stratagem to reduce her: open ways
Give me no hope.
Stew. You shall be obey'd, madam.
Fred. Master Steward, are you sure we do not dream?
Was't not my aunt you talkt to?
Stew. One that loves you
Dear as her life. These clothes do not become you,
You must have better, sir —
Fred. These are not old.
Stew. More suitable to the town and time; we keep
No Lent here, nor is't my lady's pleasure you Should fast from anything you have a mind to;
Unless it be your learning, which she would have you Forget with all convenient speed that may be,
For the credit of your noble family.

The case is alter'd since we liv'd i' th' country;
We do not now invite the poor o' th' parish.
To dinner, keep a table for the tenants.
Our kitchen does not smell of beef; the cellar
Defies the price of malt and hops; the footmen
And coach-drivers may be drunk like gentle-
men,
With wine; nor will three fiddlers upon holidays,
With aid of bag-pipes, that call'd in the country
To dance, and plough the hall up with their hob-nails.
Now make my lady merry. We do feed
Like princes, and feast nothing else but princes;
And are these robes fit to be seen amongst
'tem?
Fred. My lady keeps a court then! Is Sir
Thomas
AFFECTED 1 with this state and cost?
Stew. He was not,
But is converted: and I hope you wo' not Persist in heresy, but take a course
Of riot, to content your friends; you shall Want nothing, if you can be proud, and spend
it.
For my lady's honour. Here are a hundred
Pieces, will serve you till you have new clothes;
I will present you with a nag of mine,
Poor tender of my service, please you accept;
My lady's smile more than rewards me for it.
I must provide fit servants to attend you,
Monsteurs, for horse and foot.
Fred. I shall submit,
If this be my aunt's pleasure, and be rul'd;
My eyes are open'd with this purse already,
And sack will help to inspire me. I must spend
it?
Stew. What else, sir?
Fred. I'll begin with you: to encourage
You to have still a special care of me,
There is five pieces,— not for your nag.
Stew. No, sir; I hope it is not.
Fred. Buy a beaver
For thy own block; 2 I shall be rul'd. Who do
Command the wine cellar?
Stew. Who commands but you, sir?
Fred. I'll try to drink a health or two, my aunt's,
Or anybody's; and if that foundation
Stagger me not much, I will commence
In all the arts of London.
Stew. If you find, sir, 185
The operation of the wine exalt
Your blood to the desire of any female
Delight, I know your aunt wo' not deny
Any of her chambermaids to practise on;
She loves you but too well.
Fred. I know not how
I may be for that exercise. — Farewell, Aristotle,
Prithee commend me to the library
At Westminster; my bones I bequeath thither,

1 Pleased.
2 Usually, a mould for shaping a hat; here, head.
And to the learned worms that mean to visit
And I will compose myself; I begin to think I have lost time indeed. — Come to the wine cellar.

[SCENE II.]
Enter CELESTINA, MARIANA, and ISABELLA.

Mar. But shall we not, madam, expose ourselves To censure for this freedom?

Ciel. Let them answer That dare mistake us. Shall we be so much Cowards, to be frightened from our pleasure, Because men have malicious tongues, and show What miserable souls they have? No, cousin, We hold our lives and fortunes upon no Man's charity; if they dare show so little Discretion to traduce our names, we will Be guilty of so much to laugh at 'em.

Isab. 'T is a becoming fortiude.

Ciel. My stars Are yet kind to me; for, in a happy minute Be 't spoke, I'm not in love, and men shall never Make my heart lean with sighing, nor with tears Draw on my eyes the infamy of spectacles. 'T is the chief principle to keep your heart Under your own obedience; jest, but love not. I say my prayers, yet can wear good clothes, And only satisfy my tailor for 'em. I will not lose my privilege.

Mar. And yet they say your entertainments are, Give me, your pardon, madam, to proclaim Yourself a widow, and to get a husband.

Ciel. As if a lady of my years, some beauty, Left by her husband rich, that had mourn'd for him A twelvemonth too, could live so obscure i' th' town, That gallants would not know her, and invite Themselves, without her chargeable proclama- tions!

Then we are worse than citizens: no widow Left wealthy can be thoroughly warm in mourning, But some one noble blood, or lusty kindred, Claps in, with his girt coach, and Flandrian trotters, And hurries her away to be a countess. Courtiers have spies, and great ones with large titles, Cold in their own estates, would warm themselves At a rich city bonfire.

Isab. Most true, madam.

Ciel. No matter for corruption of the blood: Some undone courtier made her husband rich, And this new lord receives it back again. Admit it were my policy, and that My entertainments pointed to acquaint me With many suitors, that I might be safe

And make the best election, could you blame me?

Mar. Madam, 'tis wisdom.

Ciel. But I should be In my thoughts miserable, to be fond Of leaving the sweet freedom I possess, And court myself into new marriage fettors. I now observe men's several wits and windings, And can laugh at their follies.

Mar. You have given A most ingenious satisfaction.

Ciel. One thing I'll tell you more, and this I give you: Worthy your imitation, from my practice: You see me merry, full of song and dancing, Pleasant in language, apt to all delights That crown a public meeting; but you cannot Accuse me of being prodigal of my favours To any of my guests. I do not summon, By any wink, a gentleman to follow me To my withdrawing chamber; I hear all Their pleas in court, nor can they boast abroad, And do me justice, after a salute. They have much conversation with my lip. I hold the kissing of my hand a courtesy, And he that loves me, must, upon the strength Of that, expect till I renew his favour.

Some ladies are so expensive in their graces To those that honour 'em, and so prodigal, That in a little time they have nothing but The naked sin left to reward their servants; Whereas, a thrift in our rewards will keep Men long in their devotion, and preserve Ourselves in stock, to encourage those that honour us.

Isab. This is an art worthy a lady's practice. Ciel. It takes not from the freedom of our mirth, But seems to advance it, when we can possess Our pleasures with security of our honour; And, that preserv'd, I welcome all the joys My fancy can let in. In this I have given The copy of my mind, nor do I blush You understand it.

Isab. You have honour'd us.

Enter CELESTINA'S Gentlewoman.

Gentlew. Madam, Sir William Scentlove's come to wait on you.

Ciel. There's one would be a client. — Make excuse For a few minutes. [Exit Gentlewoman.]

Mar. One that comes a wooing?

Ciel. Such a thing he would seem, but in his guiltiness Of little land, his expectation is not So valiant as it might be. He wears rich clothes, And feeds with noblemen; to some, I hear, No better than a wanton emissary, Or scout for Venus' wild fowl; which made tame, He thinks no shame to stand court sentinell, In hope of the reversion.

Mar. I have heard

1 A room in Celestina's house. 2 Expensive. 3 Flemish. 4 Foolishly eager. 5 Ordinary kiss of salutation. 6 Devices, schemings.
Hair.
Shall I take
Boldness to ask what place you hold in court?
'Tis an uncivil curiosity;
But you'll have mercy to a woman's question.
Hair.
My present condition, madam, carries
Honour and profit, though not to be nam'd
With that employment I expect 't in state,
Which shall discharge the first maturity
Upon your knowledge; until then, I beg
You allow a modest silence.
Cel.
I am charm'd, sir;
And if you escape ambassador, you cannot
Reach a preferment wherein I'm against you.
But where is Sir William Scentslove?
Hair.
Give him leave
To follow his nose, madam, while he hunts
In view,—he'll soon be at a fault.
Cel.
You know him?
Hair.
Know Scentslove? Not a page but can decipher him;
The waiting-women know him to a scruple;
He's called the blister-maker of the town.
Cel.
What's that?
Hair.
The laundry ladies can resolve you,
And you may guess: an arrant epicure,
As this day lives, born to a pretty wit,
A knight, too; but no gentleman. I must Be plain to you;—your ladyship may have
Use of this knowledge, but conceal the author.
Scent. I kiss your fairest hand.
Mar.
You make a difference;
Pray reconcile them to an equal whiteness.
Scent.
You wound my meaning, lady.
Cel.
Nay, Sir William
Has the art of compliment,
Scent.
Madam, you honour me.
'Boye my desert of language.
Cel.
Will you please
To enrich me with your knowledge of that gentleman?
Scent.
Do you not know him, madam?
Cel.
What is he?
Scent.
A campshire ball; you shall know more hereafter;
He shall tell you himself, and save my character;
Till then,—you see he's prond.
Cel.
One thing, gentlemen,
I observe in your behaviour, which is rare
In two that court one mistress: you preserve
A noble friendship; there's no gum within
Your hearts; you cannot fret, or show an envy
Of one another's hope; some would not govern
Their passions with that temper!
Scent.
The whole world
Shall not divorce our friendship.—Master Haircut!
Would I had lives to serve him! He is lost
To goodness does not honour him.
Hair.
My knight!
Cel. [Aside.] This is right playing at court shuttlecock.

Hair.
Sweet madam!

1 Lover.

2 Lose the scent.
3 Of 1 Henry IV, II. ii. 2, "I have bid Falstaff's horse, and he frets like gumm'd velvet." (Gifford.)
Re-enter Gentlewoman.

Gentlew. Madam, there is a gentleman desires
To speak wi' ye, one Sir Thomas Bornwell.
Cel. Bornwell? Gentlew. He says he is a stranger to your ladyship.
Scent. I know him.
Hair. Your neighbour, madam. Scent. Husband to
The lady that so revels in the Strand.
Hair. He has good parts, they say, but cannot His lady's bias. Cel. They have both much fame
'l th' town, for several merits. Pray admit him.
[Exit Gentlewoman.]
Hair. [Aside.] What comes he for?
Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell.

Born. Your pardon, noble lady, that I have Presum'd a stranger to your knowledge,—
[Salutes Celestina.]
Cel. Your worth was here before you, and your person
Cannot be here ungrateful. 'Tis the bounty
Of your sweet disposition, madam.—Make me
Your servant, lady, by her fair example,
To favour me. [Offers to salute Isabella, who turns from him. Aside.] —I never knew one turn
Her cheek to a gentleman that came to kiss her,
But she 'd a stinking breath. —Your servant,
gentlemen.
Will Scenlove, how is 't?
Cel. I am sorry, coz; ourselves to censure of ridiculous pride,
Than answering a fair salute too rudely.
Oh, it shews ill upon a gentlewoman
Not to return the modest lip, if she Would have the world believe her breath is not Offensive.
Born. Madam, I have business
With you.
Scent. His looks are pleasant.
Cel. With me, sir?
Born. I hear you have an excellent wit,
madam; I see you are fair.
Cel. The first is but report;
And do not trust your eye-sight for the last,
'Cause I presume y' are mortal, and may err.
Hair. He is very gomesome.
Born. Y' have an excellent voice,
(They say you catch it from a dying swan.)
[With which, join'd to the harmony of your late,
You ravish all mankind. Ravish mankind?
Born. With their consent.
Cel. It were the stranger rape;
But there's the less indictment lies against it:
And there is hope your little honesties

1 Chastities.

Cannot be much the worse, for men do rather Believe they had a maidenhead, than put Themselves to th' rack of memory how long
'Tis since they left the burden of their innocence.
Born. Why, you are bitter, madam!
Cel. I do not know your constitution.
Born. You shall, if 't please you, madam.
Cel. Y' are too hasty,
I must examine what certificate
You have first, to prefer you.
Born. Fine! certificate?
Cel. Under your lady's hand and seal.
Go to;
I see you are a wag.
Cel. But take heed how
You trust to't.
Born. I can love you in my wedlock,
As well as that young gallant o' th' first
hair,
Or the knight-bachelor; and can return
As amorous delight to thy soft bosom.
Cel. Your person and your language are both strangers.
Born. But may be more familiar; I have those
That dare make affidavit for my body.
Cel. D' ye mean your surgeon?
Born. My surgeon, madam? I
I know not how you value my abilities,
But I dare undertake as much, to express
My service to your ladyship, and with
As fierce ambition fly to your commands,
As the most valiant of these lay siege to you.
Cel. You dare not, sir.
Born. How, madam?
Cel. I will justify it.
You dare not marry me; and I imagine
Some here, should I consent, would fetch a priest
Out of the fire.
Born. I have a wife indeed.
Cel. And there's a statute not repeal'd, I take it.
Born. Y' are in the right; I must confess y' have hit
And bled me in a master vein.
Cel. You think
I took you on the advantage; use your best
Skill at defence, I'll come up to your valour,
And show another work you dare not do:
You dare not, sir, be virtuous.
Born. I dare,
By this fair hand I dare; and ask a pardon,
If my rude words offend your innocence,
Which, in a form so beautiful, would shine
To force a blush in them suspected it,
And from the rest draw wonder.
Hair. I like not
Their secret parlour; shall I interrupt them?
Isab. By no means, sir.
Scent. Sir Thomas was not wont
To show so much a courtier.
Mar. He cannot
Be prejudicial to you; suspect not
Your own deserts so much; he's married.
III. i.

THE LADY OF PLEASURE

Born. I have other business, madam. You keep music: I came to try how you can dance.
Cel. You did?—[Aside.] I'll try his humour out of breath.
Although I boast no cunning, sir, in revels, If you desire to show your art that way, I can wait on you.

Born. You much honour me; Nay, all must join to make a harmony. They dance.

Born. I have nothing now, madam, but to be-seech, After a pardon for my boldness, you Would give occasion to pay my gratitude. I have a house will be much honoured, If you vouchsafe your presence; and a wife Desires to present herself your servant. I came with the ambition to invite you, Deny me not; your person you shall trust On fair security.

Cel. Sir, although I use not This freedom with a stranger, you shall have No cause to hold me obstinate.

Born. You grace me.

Sir William Scientlove — Hair. You will excuse me, madam; court attendances —

Cel. By any means.

Born. Ladies, you will vouchsafe Your company?
Isab. We wait upon you, sir. Exeunt.

ACT III

[Scene I.]

Table and looking-glass. Enter Lord — undressed. Haircut preparing his periwig.

Lord. What hour is 't? Hair. 'Bout three o'clock, my lord. Lord. 'Tis time to rise. Hair. Your lordship went but late To bed last night.

Lord. 'T was early in the morning.

Sec. [within.] Expect awhile, my lord is busy.

Enter Secretary.

Lord. What's the matter?
Sec. Here is a lady Desires access to you upon some affairs, She says, may specially concern your lordship.

Lord. A lady? What's her name?
Sec. Madam Decoy.

Lord. Decoy? Prithee admit her.

[Exit Secretary.]

Enter Decoy.

Have you business, madam, With me?
Dec. And such, I hope, as will not be Offensive to your lordship.

Lord. I pray speak it.
Dec. I would desire your lordship's ear more private.

Lord. Wait i' th' next chamber till I call. — Now, madam. Exit [Haircut].

Dec. Although I am a stranger to your lordship, I would not lose a fair occasion offer'd. To show how much I honour, and would serve you.

Lord. Please you to give me the particular, That I may know the extent of my engagement.

I am ignorant by what desert you should Be encourage'd to have care of me.

Dec. My lord, I will take boldness to be plain; beside Your other excellent parts, you have much fame For your sweet inclination to our sex.

Lord. How d' ye mean, madam?
Dec. If that way your lordship Hath honourably practis'd upon some Not to be nam'd. Your noble constancy To a mistress hath deserv'd our general vote; And I, a part of womankind, have thought How to express my duty.

Lord. In what, madam?
Dec. Be not so strange, my lord. I knew the beauty And pleasures of your eyes; that handsome creature With whose fair life all your delight took leave, And to whose memory you have paid too much Sad tribute.

Lord. What's all this?

Dec. This: if your lordship Accept my service, in pure zeal to cure Your melancholy, I could point where you might Repair your loss.

Lord. Your ladyship, I conceive, Doth traffic in flesh merchandise.

Dec. To men Of honour, like yourself. I am well known To some in court, and come not with ambition Now to supplant your officer.

Lord. What is the lady of pleasure you prefer?

Dec. A lady Of birth and fortune, one upon whose virtue I may presume, the lady Aretina.

Lord. Wife to Sir Thomas Bornwell?
Dec. The same, sir.

Lord. Have you prepar'd her?

Dec. Not for your lordship, till I have found your pulse. I am acquainted with her disposition, She has a very applicable nature.

Lord. And, madam, when expect you to be whipt For doing these fine favours?

Dec. How, my lord? Your lordship does but jest, I hope; you make 1 Lord — 's house. 2 Undressed. 3 Wait.

* Obligation. 5 Accessible.
A difference between a lady that Does honourable offices, and one
They call a bawd. Your lordship was not wont
To have such coarse opinion of our practice.
Lord. The Lady Arétina is my kinswoman.
Dec. What if she be, my lord? The nearer blood,
The dearer sympathy.
Lord. I'll have thee carted.
Dec. Your lordship will not so much stain
Your honour.
And education, to use a woman
Of my quality—
Lord. 'Tis possible you may
Be sent off with an honourable convoy
Of halberdiers.
Dec. Oh, my good lord!
Lord. Your ladyship shall be no protection,
If you but stay three minutes.
Dec. When next you find rebellion in your blood,
May all within ten mile o' th' court turn honest. [Exit.]
Lord. I do not find that proneness, since the fair
Bella Maria died; my blood is cold,
Nor is there beauty enough surviving
To heighten me to wantonness. — Who waits?
Re-enter Haircut [and Secretary].
And what said my lady?
Hair. The silent language of her face, my lord,
Was not so pleasant, as it show'd upon
Her entrance.
Lord. Would any man that meets
This lady take her for a bawd?
Hair. She does
The trade an honour, credit to the profession.
We may in time see baldness, quarter noses,
And rotten legs to take the wall of footcloths.
Lord. I ha' thought better; call the lady back.—
I wo' not lose this opportunity.—
Bid her not fear. [Exit Secretary.—] The fa-your is not common,
And I'll reward it. I do wonder much
Will Scenlove was not here to-day.
Hair. I heard him say this morning he would wait
Upon your lordship. — She is return'd, sir.
Re-enter Secretary and Decoy.
Sec. Madam, be confident, my lord's not angry.
Lord. You return welcome, madam; you are better
Read in your art, I hope, than to be frighted
With any shape of anger, when you bring Such news to gentlemen. Madam, you shall Soon understand how I accept the office.
Dec. You are the first lord, since I studied carriage,
That show'd such infidelity and fury
1 The punishment of bawds was to be whipt and carted.
2 Chaste.

Upon so kind a message. Every gentleman
Will show some breeding; but if one right honourable
Should not have noble blood—
Lord. You shall return
My compliment, in a letter, to my lady
Aretina. Favor me with a little patience.—
Show her that chamber.
Dec. Execute [Decoy and Haircut. —
Secretary seuts himself at a table].
Lord. Write, — "Madam, where your honour is in danger, my love must not be silent."

Enter [Sir William] Scenlove and Kick-
Shaw.
Scenlove and Kickshaw!-
Kick. Your lordship's busy.
Lord. Writing a letter; — nay, it sh' not bar
Any discourse.

[Walks alternately to the Secretary and to Scenlove and Kick-
Shaw.
Sec. "Silent."
Lord. "Though I be no physician, I may prevent a fever in your blood."
And where have you spent the morning's conversation?
Scent. Where you would have given the best barbary
In your stable to have met on honourable terms.
Lord. What new beauty? You acquaint yourselves
With none but wonders.
Scent. 'Tis too low, — a miracle.
Lord. It will require a strong faith.
Sec. "Your blood."
Lord. "If you be innocent, preserve your fame, lest this Decoy-madam betray it, to your repentance? —
By what name is she known?
Scent. Ask Alexander; —
He knows her.
Kick. Whom?
Scent. The lady Celestina.
Lord. He has a vast knowledge of ladies.
"Las, poor Alexander!"
When dost thou mean thy body shall lie fallow?
Kick. When there is mercy in a Petticoat:
I must turn pilgrim for some breath.
Lord. — I think
' Twere cooler travel, if you examine it.
Upon the hoof through Spain.
Scent. Through Ethiopia.
Lord. Nay, less laborious to serve a prentice-ship
In Peru, and dig gold out of the mine,
Though all the year were dogs-days.
Sec. "To repentance."
Lord. "In brief, this lady, could you fall from virtue, within my knowledge, will not blush to be a bawd?"
Scent. But hang 't, 't is honourable journey-
work;
Thou art famous by it, and thy name's up.
Kick. So, sir!
Let me ask you a question, my dear knight:
Which is less servile, to bring up the pheasant,
And wait, or sit at table uncontroll'd,
And carve to my own appetite?
Scent. No more;
Thou 'rt witty, as I am.
Sec. "A bawd."
Kick. Oh, you are famous by 't, and your name's up, sir.
Lord. "Be wise, and award my caution with timely care of yourself, so I shall not [148] repent to be known your loving kinsman and servant."—
Gentlemen, the lady Celestina,
Is she so rare a thing?
Kick. If you'll have my Opinion, my lord, I never saw
So sweet, so fair, so rich a piece of nature.
Lord. I'll show thee a fairer presently, to shame
Thy eyes and judgment; look o' that. [Gives him a miniature.]—So; I'll subscribe.
[Signs his name to the letter.]
Seal it; I'll excuse your pen for the direction.
Kick. Bella Maria's picture! she was handsome.
Scent. But not to be compar'd—
Lord. Your patience, gentlemen; I'll return instantly.
Exit.
Kick. Whither is my lord gone?
Sec. To a lady 't next chamber.
Scent. What is she?
Sec. You shall pardon me, I am his secretary.
Scent. I was wont to be of his counsel. A new officer,
And I not know 't? I am resolv'd to batter
All other with the praise of Celestina:
I must retain him.
Re-enter Lord.
Lord. Has not that object
Convinc'd your erring judgments?
Kick. What! this picture?
Lord. Were but your thoughts as capable as mine
Of her idea, you would wish no thought
That were not active in her praise, above
All worth and memory of her sex.
Scent. She was fair,
I must confess; but had your lordship look'd
With eyes more narrow, and some less affection.
Upon her face,—
Kick. I do not love the copies
Of any dead, they make me dream of goblins;
Give me a living mistress, with but half
The beauty of Celestina. Come, my lord,
'Tis pity that a lord of so much flesh
Should waste upon a ghost, when they are living
Can give you a more honourable consumption.
Scent. Why, do you mean, my lord, to live an infidel?
Do, and see what will come on't; observe
And dote upon your vigils; build a chamber
Within a rock, a tomb among the worms,
Not far off, where you may, in proof apocryphal,
Court 'em not to devour the pretty pile
Of flesh your mistress carried to the grave.
There are no women in the world; all eyes,
And tongues, and lips, are buried in her cof-fin!
Lord. Why, do you think yourselves competent judges
Of beauty, gentlemen?
Both. What should hinder us?
Kick. I have seen and tried as many as another,
With a mortal back.
Lord. Your eyes are brib'd,
And your hearts chain'd to some desires; you cannot Enjoy the freedom of a sense.
Scent. Your lordship
Has a clear eyesight, and can judge and penetrate.
Lord. I can, and give a perfect censure of Each line and point; distinguish beauty from
A thousand forms, which your corrupted optics
Would pass for natural.
Scent. I desire no other
Judge should determine us, and if your lordship
Dare venture but your eyes upon this lady,
I'll stand their justice, and be confident
You shall give Celestina victory
And triumph o'er all beauties past and living.
Kick. I dare, my lord, venture a suit of clothes,
You'll be o'ercome.
Lord. You do not know my fortitude.
Scent. Nor frailty; you dare not trust yourself to see her.
Lord. Think you so, gentlemen? I dare see this creature
To make you know your errors, and the difference
Of her whose memory is my saint. Not trust
My senses! I dare see, and speak with her.
Which holds the best acquaintance to prepare
My visit to her?
Scent. I will do 't, my lord.
Kick. She is a lady free in entertainments.
Lord. I would give this advantage to your cause,
Bid her appear in all the ornaments
Did ever wait on beauty, all the riches
Prerogatives can put on, and teach her face more charm
Than ever poet drest up Venus in;
Bid her be all the Graces, and the Queen
Of Love in one, I'll see her, Scentlove, and Bring off my heart, arn'd but [with a] single thought
Of one that's dead, without a wound; and when

1 Pay observance, worship.
I have made your folly prisoner, I'll laugh at you.

Scent. She shall expect you; trust to me for knowledge.

Lord. I'm for the present somewhere else engaged;

Let me hear from you. [Exit.]

Scent. So! I am glad he's yet so near conversion.

Kick. I am for Aretina.

Scent. No mention of my lord.

Kick. Prepare his lady, 'Tis time he were reduc'd to the old sport; One lord like him more would undo the court.

[Scene II.]

Enter Lady Bornwell, with a letter, and Decoy.

Dec. He is the ornament of your blood, madam; I am much bound to his lordship.

Lady B. A noble character.

Dec. 'Tis his goodness, madam.

Lady B. [Aside.] I wanted such an engine. My lord has done me a courtesy, to disclose her nature; I now know one to trust, and will employ her.—Touching my lord, for reasons which I shall offer to your ladyship hereafter, I desire you would be silent; but, to show How much I dare be confident in your secrecy, I pour my bosom forth. I love a gentleman, One whom there wo't need much conjunction To meet.—[Whispers her.]

Dec. I apprehend you, and I shall be happy to be serviceable. I am sorry Your ladyship did not know me before now: I have done offices; and not a few Of the nobility but have done feats Within my house, which is convenient For situation, and artful chambers, And pretty pictures to provoke the fancy.

Enter Littleworth.

Little. Madam, all pleasures languish in your absence.

Lady B. Your pardon a few minutes, sir.—You must Contrive it thus. [Walks aside with Decoy.]

Little. I attend, and shall account it Honour to wait on your return.

Lady B. He may not Have the least knowledge of my name or person.

Dec. I have practis'd that already for some great ones, And dare again, to satisfy you, madam; I have a thousand ways to do sweet offices.

Little. If this Lady Aretina should be honest, I ha' lost time. She's free as air; I must Have closer conference, and if I have art, Make her affect me in revenge.

[1 Brought back. 2 A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell's house.]

Dec. This evening?

Leave me to manage things.

Lady B. You will oblige me.

Dec. You shall commend my art, and thank me after.

Exit.

Lady B. I hope the revels are maintain'd with vigor?

Little. By Sir Thomas and his mistress.

Lady B. How? His mistress?

Little. The lady Celestina; I ne'er saw eyes shoot more amorous interchange.

Lady B. Is 't so?

Little. He wears her favour with more pride—

Lady B. Her favour?

Little. A feather that he ravish'd from her fan;

And is so full of courtship, which she smiles on.

Lady B. 'Tis well, Little. And praises her beyond all poetry.

Lady B. I'm glad he has so much wit.

Little. [Aside.] Not jealous!

Lady B. [Aside.] This secures me. What would make other ladies pale With jealousy, gives but license to my wands—

Let him now tax me, if he dare; and yet Her beauty's worth my envy, and I wish Revenge upon it, not because he loves, But that it shines above my own.

Enter Kickshaw.

Kick. Dear madam!

Lady B. I have it. —You two gentlemen profess Much service to me; if I have a way To employ your wit and secrecy? —

Both. You'll honour us.

Lady B. You gave a high and worthy character Of Celestina.

Kick. I remember, madam.

Lady B. Do either of you love her?

Kick. No, I, madam.

Little. I would not, if I might.

Lady B. She's now my guest, And, by a trick, invited by my husband, To disgrace me.—You, gentlemen, are held Wits of the town, the consuls that do govern The senate here, whose jeers are all authentic. The taverns and the ordinaries are Made academies, where you come, and all Your sins and surfeits made the time's example. Your very nods can quell a theatre, No speech or poem good without your seal; You can protect sourrility, and publish; By your authority believ'd, no rapture Ought to have honest meaning.

Kick. Leave our characters.

Little. And name the employment.

Lady B. You must exercise The strength of both your wits upon this lady, And talk her into humbleness or anger, Both which are equal, to my thought. If you

[2 Absolute, unmixed. 4 Accuse.]
Dare undertake this slight thing for my sake,
My favour shall reward it; but be faithful,
And seem to let all spring from your own freedom.

Kick. This all! We can defame her; if you please,
My friend shall call her whore, or any thing,
And never be endanger'd to a duel.

Lady B. How's that?
Kick. He can endure a cudgelling, and no further.

Will fight after so fair a satisfaction:
But leave us to our art, and do not limit us.

Lady B. They are here; begin not till I whisper you.

Enter SIR THOMAS BORNWELL, CELESTINA, MARIANA, and ISABELLA.

Lady B. Je vous prie, madame, d'excuser l'importuiné de mes affaires, qui m'ont fait offenser, par mon absence, une dame de laquelle j'ai reçu tant d'obligations.

Cel. Pardonnez moi, madame; vous me faites trop d'honneur.

Lady B. C'est bien de la douceur de votre na-turel, que vous tenez cette langage; mais j'espère que montrer n'a pas manqué de vous entretenir en mon absence.

Cel. En vérité, monsieur nous a fort obligé.

Lady B. Il est trop failli, s'il n'eut taché de tout son pouvoir à vous rendre toutes sortes de services.

Cel. C'est de sa bonté qu'il nous a tant favorisé.

Lady B. De la votre plutôt, madame, que vous fait donner d'interprétation si bénigne à ses efforts.

Cel. Je vois bien que la victoire sera toujours toujours à madame, et de langage et de la courtoisie.

Lady B. Vraiment, madame, que jamais personne a plus désiré l'honneur de votre compagnie que moi.

Cel. Laissons-en, je vous supplie, des compli-mens, et permettez à votre servante de vous baiser les mains.

Lady B. Vous m'obligez trop.

Born. I have no more patience; let's be merry again.

In our own language: madam, our mirth cools.
Our nephew!

Enter FREDERICK [intoxicated, and Steward].

Lady B. Passion of my brain!

Fred. Save you, gentlemen! save you, ladies!

Lady B. So I am undone.

Fred. I must salute; no matter at which end I begin. [Salutes CELESTINA.]

Lady B. There's a compliment!

Fred. Is this your nephew, madam?

Lady B. Je vous prie, madame, d'excuser les habits et le rude comportement de mon cousin. Il est tout fraîchement venu de l'université, où on l'a tout gâté.

Cel. Excusez moi, madame, il est bien accompli.

Fred. This language should be French by the motions of your heads, and the mirth of your faces.

Lady B. I am dishonour'd.

Fred. 'Tis one of the finest tongues for ladies to show their teeth in: if you'll Latin it, I am for you, or Greek it; my tailor has not put me into French yet. Mille basia, basia mille.

Cel. Je ne vous entends pas, monsieur;

I understand you not, sir.

Fred. Why, so!

You and I then shall be in charity;
For though we should be abusive, we ha' the benefit
Not to understand one another. Where's my aunt?

I did hear music somewhere; and my brains,
Tun'd with a bottle of your capering claret,
Made haste to show their dancing.

Little. Please you, madam,

[Offering his box of sweetmeats to CELESTINA.]

They are very uncomfortable.

Stew. How would you have me help it? I did use

All means I could, after he heard the music,
To make him drunk, in hope so to contain
him;

But the wine made him lighter, and his head
Flew hither, yon, I mist his heels.

Kick. Nay, he spoke Latin to the lady.

Lady B. O most unpardonable! Get him off
Quickly, and discreetly too; or, if I live—

Stew. It is not in my power; he swears I am
An absurd sober fellow; and if you keep
A servant in his house to cross his humour,

When the rich sword and belt comes home, he'll kill him.

Lady B. What shall I do? Try your skill.
Master Littleworth.

Little. He has ne'er a sword.—Sweet master

Fredrick—

Born. 'Tis pity, madam, such a scion should
Be lost;—but you are clouded.

Cel. Not I, sir,

I never found myself more clear at heart.

Born. I could play with a feather; your fan,
lady,—

Gentlemen, Arethia, ta, ra, ra! Come,
madam.

Fred. Why, my good tutor in election,
You might have been a scholar.

Little. But I thank

My friends, they brought me up a little better.
Give me the town wits, that deliver jests
Clean from the bow, that whistle in the air,
And cleave the pin at twelvescore! Ladies do
But laugh at a gentleman that has any learning;

'Tis sin enough to have your clothes suspected.
Leave us, and I will find a time to instruct you.
Come, here are sugar plums; 'tis a good Frederick.

Fred. Why, is not this my aunt's house in

The noble rendezvous? Who laughs at me?

Go, I will root here if I list, and talk
Of rhetoric, logic, Latin, Greek, or any thing,
And understand 'em too; who says the contrary?
Yet, in a fair way, I contemn all learning,
And will be as ignorant as he, or he, 150
Or any taffeta, satin, scarlet, plush,
Tissue, or cloth o' bodkin gentleman,
Whose manners are most gloriously infected.—
Did you laugh at me, lady?
 Cel. Not I, sir;
But if I did show mirth upon your question, 165
I hope you would not beat me, little gentleman?
Fred. How! 'tis little gentleman? 3 You dare not say
These words to my new clothes, and fighting sword.
Lady B. Nephew Frederick!
 Fred. 'Tis an affront both to my blood and person.
I am a gentleman of as tall a birth
As any boast no nobility; though my clothes
Smell o' the lamp, my coat is honourable,
Right honourable, full of or and argent.—
A 'tis a gentleman!
Born. Coz, you must be patient;
My lady meant you no dishonour, and
You must remember she's a woman.
Fred. Is she a woman? That's another matter.
Do you hear? My uncle tells me what you are.
 Cel. So, sir.
Fred. You call'd me 'tis little gentleman.'
 Cel. I did, sir.
Fred. A little pink has made a lusty ship
Strike her top-sail; the crow may beardon the elephant,
A whelp may tame the tiger, spite of all
False decks and murderers; 4 and a 'tis little gentleman
Be hard enough to grapple with your ladyship,
Top and top-gallant.—Will you go drink, uncle,
'T other enchanted bottle? You and I
Will tipples, and talk philosophy.
Born. Come, nephew. —
You will excuse a minute's absence, madam.
 Wait you on us.
Stew. My duty, sir.
Exeunt Sir Thomas Bornwell, Frederick, and Steward.
Lady B. Now, gentlemen.
 Kick. Madam, I had rather you excuse my language
For speaking truth, than virtue suffer in My further silence; and it is my wonder
That you, whose noble carriage hath deserved
All honour and opinion, should now
Be guilty of ill manners.
Cel. What was that
You told me, sir?
 Little. Do you not blush, madam,
To ask that question?
Cel. You amaze rather
My cheek to paleness. What mean you by this?
I am not troubled with the hiccup, gentlemen,
You should bestow this frignt upon me.

Little. Pride and ill memory go together.
Cel. How, sir?
Kick. The gentleman on whom you exercise'd
Your thin wit, was a nephew to the lady
Whose guest you are; and though her modesty
Look calm on the abuse of one so near
Her blood, the affront was impious.
Little. I am ashamed on't.
You an ingenious lady, and well manner'd!
I'll teach a bear as much civility.
Cel. You may be master of the college, sir,
For taught I am.
Little. What college?
[Cel.] Of the bears.
Have you a plot upon me? Do you possess
Your wits, or know me, gentlemen?
Re-enter Sir Thomas Bornwell [behind].
Born. How's this?
Kick. Know you? Yes; we do know you to an atom.
Little. Madam, we know what stuff your soul is made on.
Cel. But do not back so like a mastiff, pray.—
Sure they are mad. — Let your brains stand awhile,
And settle, gentlemen; you know not me;
What am I?
Little. 'Th' art a puppet, a thing made
Of clothes and painting, and not half so handsome
As that which play'd Susanna in the fair.
Cel. I heard you visited those canvas tragedies,
One of their constant audience, and so taken
With Susan, that you wish'd yourself a rival
With the two wicked elders.
You think this Is wit now. Come, you are —
Cel. What, I beseech you?
Your character will be full of salt and satire,
No doubt. What am I?
Kick. Why, are you a woman —
Cel. And that's at least a bow wide of your knowledge.
Kick. Would be thought handsome, and might pass i' th' country
Upon a market day; but so miserably
Forfeit to pride and fashions, that if Heaven
Were a new gown, you'd not stay in 't a fortnight.
Cel. It must be miserably out of fashion then.
Have I no sin but pride?
Kick. Hast any virtue,
Or but a good face, to excuse that want?
Cel. You praise'd it yesterday.
Kick. That made you proud.
Cel. More pride!
Kick. You need not: — to close up the praise,
I have seen a better countenance in a sybil.
Cel. When you wore spectacles of sack, 6 mis-took

1 Made of silk and gold thread.
2 Q. reads least.
3 A small vessel.
4 Cannon charged with grape-shot.
As you were made but engines\(^7\) for your tailors
To frame their clothes upon, and get them custom,
Until men see you move; yet, then you dare not,
Out of your guilt\(^8\) of being the ignobler beast,
But give a horse the wall, whom you excel\(^3\)
Only in dancing of the brawls,\(^2\) because
The horse was not taught the French way.
Your two faces,
One fat, like Christmas, t' other lean, like Candlemas,
And prologue to a Lent, both bound together,
Would figure Janus, and do many eues\(^3\)
On agues, and the green disease,\(^3\) by frightening;
But neither can, with all the characters
And conjuring circles, charm a woman, though
She'd fourscore years upon her, and but one
Tooth in her head, to love, or think well of you:
And I were miserable to be at cost
To court such a complexion as your malice
Did impudently insinuate. But I waste time,
And stain my breath in talking to such tadpoles.

Go home, and wash your tongues in barley-water,
Drink\(^1\) clean tobacco, be not hot i' th' mouth,
And you may scape the beadle; so I leave you
To shame, and your own garters! — Sir, I must Entreat you, for my honour, do not penance them,
They are not worthy your anger. How shall I \(^33\)
Acquit your lady's silence?

Born. Madam, I
Am sorry to suspect, and dare revenge.

Cel. No cause of mine,
Born. It must become me to attend you home.

Cel. You are noble.— Farewell, mushrooms.

[Exit with Sir Thomas Bornwell.]

Lady B. Is she gone? \(^33\)

Little. I think we pepper'd her.

Kick. I'm glad 't is over;
But I repent no service for you, madam.—

Enter Servant, with a letter (and a jewel, which he delivers to Kickshaw).

To me? From whence? — A jewel! a good preface.

Be happy the conclusion. He smiles upon 't.

Lady B. Some love letter.

Little. He has a hundred mistresses: you may Be charitable, madam, I ha' none;

He surfeits, and I fall away i' th' kidneys.

Kick. I'll meet. —

[Exit Servant.]

[Aside.] 'Tis some great lady, questionless, that has Taken notice, and would satisfy her appetite.

Lady B. Now, Master Alexander, you look bright o' the sudden;

Another spirit's in your eye.

\(^1\) A cheap substitute for tapestry.
\(^2\) A quick, lively dance.
\(^3\) Characterizing.
\(^4\) Chaste.
\(^5\) The place of execution.
\(^6\) A contemptuous term, sometimes associated with pitchard, a small fish like a herring.

\(^7\) Devices.
\(^8\) Guilty consciousness.
Kick. Not mine, madam;
Only a summons to meet a friend.
Lady B. What friend?
Little. By this jewel, I know her not.
Lady B. 'T is a she-friend. I'll follow, gentle-
men;
We must have a game at cent before you go.
Kick. I shall attend you, madam;
Little. 'T is our duty.
[Exeunt KICKSHAW and LITTLEWORTH.]
Lady B. I blush while I converse with my own thoughts.
Some strange fate governs me, but I must on;
The ways are cast already, and we thrive
When our sin fears no eye nor perspective.
Exit.

ACT IV

[Scene I.] Enter two men leading KICKSHAW blinded, and go off suddenly.

Kick. I am not hurt; my patience to obey 'em,
Not without fear to ha' my throat cut else,
Did me a courtesy. Whither ha' they brought me?
[Pulls off a bandage.]
'T is devilish dark; the bottom of a well
At midnight, with but two stars on the top, 6
Were broad day to this darkness. I but think
How like a whirlwind these rogues caught me up,
And smothered my eyesight. Let me see,
These may be spirits, and, for aught I know,
Have brought me hither over twenty steeples. 10
Pray Heaven they were not billiards! that's more worth
My fear, and this a prison. All my debts
Reek in my nostril, and my bones begin
To ache with fear to be made dice; and yet
This is too calm and quiet for a prison. —
What if the riddle prove I am robb'd? And yet,
I did not feel 'em search me. How now music!
[Music within.]

Enter DECOY, like an old Woman, with a light.
And a light! What balm'd this? I cannot pray. —
What art?
Dec. A friend. Fear not, young man, I am
No spirit.
Kick. Off!
Dec. Despise me not for age.
Or this coarse outside, which I wear not out
Of poverty. Thy eye be witness, 'tis
No cave, or beggar's cell, th' art brought to;
let
That gold speak here's no want, which thon mayst spend,
And find a spring to tire even prodigality,
If thou be'st wise. 25
[Give him a purse.]
Kick. The devil was a coiner
From the beginning; yet the gold looks current.
Dec. Th' art still in wonder: know, I am mistress of

1 A game at cards. 2 A room in Decoy's house.

This house, and of a fortune that shall serve
And feed thee with delights; 'tis I sent for Thee;
The jewel and the letter came from me,
It was my art thus to contrive our meeting,
Because I would not trust thee with my fame,
Until I found thee worth a woman's honour.
Kick [Aside.] Honour and fame! the devil means to have
A care on's credit. Though she sent for me,
I hope she has another customer
To do the trick withal; I would not turn Familiar to a witch.
Dec. What say'st? Canst thou Dwell in my arms to-night? Shall we change kisses,
And entertain the sweet hours with pleasure
Such as old Time shall be delighted with,
And blame the too swift motion of his wings,
While we embrace?
Kick. [Aside.] Embrace! She has had no teeth
This twenty years, and the next violent cough Brings up her tongue; it cannot possibly Be sound at root. I do not think but one Strong sneeze upon her, and well meant, would make
Her quarters fall away; one kick would blow
Her up like gunpowder, and loose all her limbs.
She is so cold, an incubus would not heat her;
Her phlegm would quench a furnace, and her breath
Would damp a musket bullet.
Dec. Have you, sir,
Consider'd?
Kick. What?
Dec. My proposition.
Dec. Canst love?
Kick. I could have done; whom do you mean?
I know you are pleas'd but to make sport.
Dec. Thou art not
So dull of soul as thou appear'st.
Kick. [Aside.] This is
But some device; my grammam has some trick
in't.—
Yes, I can love.
Dec. But canst thou affect me?
Kick. Although to reverence so grave a matron
Were an ambitious word in me, yet since
You give me boldness, I do love you.
Dec. Then
Thou art my own.
Kick. [Aside.] Has she no claven foot?
Dec. And I am thine, and all that I command
Thy servants; from this minute thou art happy,
And fate in thee will crown all my desires.
I griev'd a proper man should be compell'd
To bring his body to the common market.
My wealth shall make thee glorious; and, the
more
To encourage thee, how'er this form may fright
Thy youthful eyes, yet thou wert find, by light
Of thy own sense, for other light is barbarish.
My chamber, when our arms tie lovers' knots.
And kisses seal the welcome of our lips,
I shall not there affright thee, nor seem old.
With rivelld veins; my skin is smooth and soft.

As ermines, with a spirit to meet thine,
Active, and equal to the Queen of Love's

When she did court Adonis.

Kick. [Aside.] This doth more

Confirm she is a devil, and I am

Within his own dominions. I must on,

Or else be torn a' pieces. I have heard

These succubae must not be crost.

Dec. We trifle

Too precious time away; I'll show you a prospect

Of the next chamber, and then out the candle.
Kick. Have you no sack 't house? I would go arm'd

Upon this breach.

Dec. It sh'nt need.

Kick. One word, Mother; have not you been a cat in your days?
Dec. I am glad you are so merry, sir. You observe

That bed?

[Opens a door.]

Kick. A very brave one.

Dec. When you are

Disrobd, you can come thither in the dark.

You shan't stay for me? Come, as you wish

For happiness.

Exit.

Kick. I am preferr'd, if I

Be modest and obey: she cannot have

The heart to do me harm, an she were Hecate herself.

I will have a strong faith, and think

I march upon a mistress, the less evil.

If I scape fire now, I defy the devil.

Exit.

[SCENE II.] 2

Enter Frederick [gaily dressed,] Littleworth, and Steward.

Fred. And how d' ye like me now?
Stew. Most excellent.

Fred. Your opinion, Master Littleworth.

Little. Your French tailor

Has made you a perfect gentleman; I may

Converse now with you, and preserve my credit.

D' ye find no alteration in your body

With these new clothes?

Fred. My body alter'd? No.

Little. You are not yet in fashion then. That must Have a new motion, garb, and posture too,

Or all your pride is cast away; it is not

The cut of your apparel makes a gallant,

But the geometrical wearing of your clothes.

Stew. Master Littleworth tells you right; you wear your hat

Too like a citizen.

Little. 'Tis like a midwife;

Place it with best advantage of your hair.

Is half your feather monted? This does make

No show; it should spread over, like a canopy;

Your hot-rein'd monsieur wears it for a shade

And cooler to his back. Your doublet must

Be more unbutton'd hereabouts; you 'll not

Be a sloven else, a foul shirt is no blemish;

You must be confident, and outface clean linen.

Your doublet and your breeches must be al-low'd

No private meeting here; your cloak 's too long.

It reaches to your buttock, and doth smell

Too much of Spanish gravity; the fashion

Is to wear nothing but a cape; a coat

May be allow'd a covering for one elbow,

And some, to avoid the trouble, choose to walk

In quirpo, 3 thus.

Stew. [Aside.] Your coat and cloak 's a brushing

In Long-Lane, Lombard. 4

Fred. But what if it rain? 5

Little. Your belt about your shoulder is sufficient

To keep off any storm; beside, a reed

But way'd discreetly, has so many pores,

It sucks up all the rain that falls about one.

With this defence, when other men have been

Wet to the skin through all their cloaks, I have

Defied a tempest, and walk'd by the taverns

Dry as a bone.

Stew. [Aside.] Because he had no money

To call for wine.

Fred. Why, do you walk enchanted?

Have you such pretty charms in town? But stay;

Who must I have to attend me?

Little. Is not that

Yet thought upon?

Stew. I have laid out 6 for servants.

Little. They are everywhere.

Stew. I cannot yet be furnish'd

With such as I would put into his hands.

Fred. Of what condition must they be, and how Many in number, sir?

Little. Beside your fencing,

Your singing, dancing, riding, and French master,

Two may serve domestic, to be constant wait-

ers

Upon a gentleman; a fool, a pimp.

Stew. For these two officers I have enquir'd,

And I am promis'd a convenient whiskin. 7

I could save charges, and employ the pie-wench,

That carries her intelligence in whitepots; 7

Or 'tis but taking order 8 with the woman

That [trols] 9 the ballads, she could fit him with

A concubine to any tune; but I

Have a design to place a fellow with him

That has read all Sir Pandarus' works; a Trojan

That lies conceal'd, and is acquainted with

Both city and suburban frypries, 10

1 Wrinkled, shrivelled.

2 A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell's house.

3 Span. Cuirpo, stripped of the upper garment.

4 Lombard Street: pawn-shops were common in Long Lane.

5 Been on the look-out.

6 Make arrangements.

7 Go-between.

8 Q. reads holdt.

9 A kind of milk-pudding.

10 Bravo.

11 Gay women, prostitutes.
Can fetch 'em with a spell at midnight to him,
And warrant which are for his turn; can, for
A need, supply the surgeon too.

Fred. I like thy providence; 1 such a one deserves
A liver twice a year. 65

Stew. It sha' not need; a cast suit of your worship's
Will serve; he'll find a cloak to cover it,
Out of his share with those he brings to bed to
you.

Fred. But must I call this fellow pimp?

Little. It is Not necessary; [Tom] or Jack, or Harry,
Or what he's known abroad by, will sound better,
That men may think he is a Christian.

Fred. But hear you, Master Littleworth: is there not
A method, and degrees of title in Men of this art?

Little. According to the honour 66
Of men that do employ 'em. An emperor
May give this office to a duke; a king
May have his viceroy to negotiate for him;
a duke may use a lord; the lord a knight,
a knight may trust a gentleman; and when 80
They are abroad, and merry, gentlemen
May pimp to one another.
Fred. Good, good fellowship!
But for the fool now, that should wait on me,
And break me jests?

Little. A fool is necessary.

Stew. By any 2 means.

Fred. But which of these two servants 86
Must now take place?

Little. That question, Master Frederick,
The school of heraldry should conclude upon:
But if my judgment may be heard, the fool is your first man; and it is known a point
Of state to have a fool.

Stew. But, sir, the other 90 is hold the finer servant; his employments are full of trust, his person clean and nimble,
And none so soon can leap into preferment,
Where fools are poor.

Little. Not all; there's story for't;
Princes have been no wiser than they should be.
Would any nobleman, that were no fool, 96
Spend all in hope of the philosopher's stone,
To buy new lordships in another country?
Would knights build colleges, or gentlemen
Of good estates challenge the field, and fight, 100
Because a whore wo' not be honest? Come,
Fools are a family over all the world;
We do affect one naturally; indeed
The fool is leger 4 with us.

Stew. Then the pimp
Is extraordinary.

Fred. Do not you fall out 105
About their places. — Here's my noble aunt!

Enter LADY BORNWELL.

Little. How do you like your nephew, madam,
now?

Lady B. Well! — Turn about, Frederick. —
Very well!
Fred. Am I not now a proper gentleman?
The virtue of rich clothes! Now could I take
The wall of Julius Caesar, or affront 111
Great Pompey's upper lip, and defy the senate.
Nay, I can be as proud as your own heart,
madam,
You may take that for your comfort; I put on
That virtue with my clothes, and I doubt not
But in a little time I shall be impudent 116
As any page, or player's boy. I am
Beholding to this gentleman's good discipline;
But I shall do him credit in my practice.
Your steward has some pretty notions, too, 120
In moral mischief.

Lady B. Your desert in this Exceeds all other service, and shall bind me
Both to acknowledge and reward.

Little. Sweet madam, Think me but worth your favour; I would creep
Upon my knees to honour you, and for every 125
Minute you lend to my reward, I'll pay
A year of serviceable tribute.

Lady B. You
Can compliment.

Little. (Aside.) Thus still she puts me off;
Unless I speak the downright word, she'll never Understand me. A man would think that creeping
Upon one's knees were English to a lady.

Enter KICKSHAW.

Kick. How is 't, Jack. — Pleasures attend you, madam!

How does my plant of honour?

Lady B. Who is this?
Kick. 'Tis Alexander.

Lady B. Rich and glorious!

Little. 'Tis Alexander the Great.
Kick. And my Bucephalus 130

Waits at the door.

Lady B. Your case is alter'd, sir.
Kick. I cannot help these things, the Fates will have it;
'Tis not my land does this.

Little. But thou hast a plough
That brings it in.

Lady B. Now he looks brave and lovely.
Fred. Welcome, my gallant Macedonian. 140 Kick. Madam, you gave your nephew for my pupil.

I read 6 but in a tavern; if you'll honour us,
The Bear at the Bridge foot shall entertain you.
A drawer 6 is my Ganymede, he shall skink 7
Brisk nectar to us; we will only have 145
A dozen partridge in a dish; as many pheas-
ants,
Quails, cocks, and godwits shall come marching up
Like the train'd-band; 8 a fort of sturgeon
Shall give most bold defiance to an army,
And triumph 'er the table. —

1 Foresight. 2 All. 3 Precedence. 4 Resident. 6 Lecture. 6 Waiter. 7 Pour out. 8 City militia.
The glories of a face, or body’s elegance
(That touches but our sense), when beauty spreads
Over the soul, and calls up understanding;
To look [what] thence is offer’d, and admire.

In both I must acknowledge Celestina
Most excellently fair, fair above all
The beauties I ha’ seen, and one most worthy Man’s love and wonder.

Born. Do you speak, Aretina,
This with a pure sense to commend? Or is’t
The mockery of my praise?

Lady B. Although it shame
Myself, I must be just, and give her all
The excellency of women; and were I
A man—

Born. What then?

Lady B. I know not with what loss
I should attempt her love. She is a piece
So angelically moving, I should think
Frailty excus’d to dote upon her form,
And almost virtue to be wicked with her.

Born. What should this mean? This is no jealousy,
Or she believes I counterfeit. I feel Something within me, like a heat, to give
Her cause, would Celestina but consent.
What a frail thing is man! It is not worth
Our glory to be chaste, while we deny Mirth and converse with women. He is good
That dares the tempter, yet corrects his blood.

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell.

Born. Why, how now, Aretina? What! alone?
The mystery of this solitude? My house
Turn desert o’ the sudden! All the gamesters Blown up! Why is the music put to silence?
Or have their instruments caught a cold, since we Gave ’em the last heat? I must know thy Ground
Of melancholy.

Lady B. You are merry, as
You came from kissing Celestina.

Born. I feel her yet warm upon my lip; she is Most excellent company: I did not think There was that sweetness in her sex. I must Acknowledge, ’t was thy cure to disenchant
Me
From a dull husband to an active lover.

With such a lady I could spend more years
Than since my birth my glass hath run short minutes,
And yet be young; her presence hath a spell
To keep off age; she has an eye would strike
Fire through an adamant.

Lady B. I have heard as much
Bestow’d upon a dull-fac’d chambermaid, Whom love and wit would thus commend. True beauty
Is mock’d when we compare thus, itself being Above what can be fetch’d 1 to make it lovely; Or, 2 could our thoughts reach something to declare

[Scene III.]

Cel. I have told you all my knowledge: since he is pleas’d
To invite himself, he shall be entertain’d,
And you shall be my witnesses.

Mar. Who comes with him?

Cel. Sir William Scentslove, that prepar’d me

The honourable encounter. I expect
His lordship every minute.

Enter Sir William Scentslove.

Scent. My lord is come.

Cel. He has honour’d me.

Enter Lord — and Haircut.

Scent. My Lord, your periwig is awry.

Lord. You, sir — While Haircut is busy about his hair, Sir William Scentslove goes to Celestina.

Scent. You may guess at the gentleman that’s with him.

Hair. It is his barber, madam, d’y e observe?
An your ladyship wants a shaver.

Scent. She is here, sir.

Hair. I am betray’d. — Scentlove, your plot. I may Have opportunity to be reveng’d.

Scent. She in the midst.

1 Brought in comparison. 2 Perhaps, Oh.

Q. reads when. 4 A room in Celestina’s house.
You are learn'd, a thing not compatible now
With native honour; and are master of
A language that doth chain all ears, and charm
All hearts, where you persuade; a wit so flowing,
And prudence to correct it, that all men
Believe they only meet in you, which, with
A spacious memory, make up the full wonders:
To these you have [joined] valour and upon
A noble cause, know how to use a sword
To honour's best advantage, though you wear none.
You are as bountiful as the showers that fall
Into the spring's green bosom; as you were Created lord of Fortune, not her steward;
So constant to the cause in which you make Yourself an advocate, you dare all dangers;
And men had rather you should be their friend,
Than justice or the bench bound up together.
Lord. But did you hear all this?
Cel. And more, my lord.
Lord. Pray let me have it, madam.
Cel. To all these virtues there is added one,
(Your lordship will remember, when I name it,
I speak but what I gather from the voice
Of others) — it is grown to a full fame
That you have lov'd a woman.
Lord. But one, madam?
Cel. Yes, many; give me leave to smile, my lord,
I shall not need to interpret in what sense;
But you have show'd yourself right honourable,
And, for your love to ladies, have deserv'd,
If their vote might prevail, a marble statue.
I make no comment on the people's text,—
My lord, I should be sorry to offend.
Lord. You cannot, madam; these are things we owe
To nature for.
Cel. And honest men will pay.
Their debts.
Lord. If they be able, or compound.
Cel. She had a hard heart would be unmerciful,
And not give day to men so promising;
But you ow'd women nothing.
Lord. Yes, I am
Still in their debt, and I must owe them love,
It was part of my character.
Cel. With your lordship's
Pardon, I only said you had a fame
For loving women; but of late, men say
You have, against the imperial laws of love,
Restrain'd the active flowings of your blood,
And with a mistress buried all that is Hop'd for in love's succession, as all beauty
Had died with her, and left the world benighted!
In this you more dishonour all our sex.
Than you did grace a part; when everywhere
Love tempts your eye to admire a glorious harvest,
And everywhere as full blown ears submit

1 Q. yeares. 2 Q. knowne. 3 Q. were.
Their golden heads, the laden trees bow down
Their willing fruit, and court your amorous tasting.

Lord. I see men would dissect me to a fibre;
But do you believe this?
Cel. It is my wonder,
I must confess, a man of nobler earth
Than goes to vulgar composition,
(Born and bred high, so unconfin’d, so rich
In fortunes, and so read in all that sum
Up human knowledge, to feed gloriously,
And live at court, the only sphere wherein
True beauty moves, nature’s most wealthy garden,
Where every blossom is more worth than all
The Hesperian fruit by jealous dragon watch’d,
Where all delights do circle appetite,
And pleasures multiply by being tasted,
Should be so lost with thought of one turn’d ashes.
There’s nothing left, my lord, that can excuse you,
Unless you plead, what I am asham’d to prompt
Your wisdom to?

Lord. What’s that?
Cel. That you have play’d
The surgeon with yourself.

Lord. And am made eunuch?
Cel. It were much pity,
Lord. Trouble not yourself.
I could convince your fears with demonstration
That I am man enough, but knew not where,
Until this meeting, beauty dwelt.
The court
You talk’d of must be where the Queen of Love
is,
Which moves but with your person; in your eye
Her glory shines, and only at that flame
Her wanton boy doth light his quick’ning torch.
Cel. Nay, now you compliment; I would it did,
My lord, for your own sake.

Lord. You would be kind,
And love me then?
Cel. My lord, I should be loving,
Where I found worth to invite it, and should cherish
A constant man.

Lord. Then you should me, madam.
Cel. But is the ice about your heart fallen off?
Can you return to do what love commands?
—Cupid, thou shalt have instant sacrifice,
And I dare be the priest.

Lord. Your hand, your lip; [Kisses her.]
Now I am proof ’gainst all temptation.
Cel. Your meaning, my good lord?
Lord. I, that have strength
Against thy voice and beauty, after this
May dare the charms of womankind.—Thou art,
Belia Maria, unprofan’d yet;
This magic has no power upon my blood.
—Farewell, madam! if you durst be the example
Of chaste as well as fair, thou wert a brave one.
Cel. I hope your lordship means not this for earnest:
Be pleas’d to grace a banquet.

Lord. Pardon, madam.
Will Scentlove, follow; I must laugh at you.
Cel. My lord, I must beseech you stay, for honour,
For her whose memory you love best.

Lord. Your pleasure.
Cel. And by that virtue you have now profest,
I charge you to believe me too; I can
Now glory that you have been worth my trial,
Which, I beseech you, pardon. Had not you
So valiantly recover’d in this conflict,
You had been my triumph, without hope of more
Than my just scorn upon your wanton flame;—
Nor will I think these noble thoughts grew first
From melancholy, for some female loss,
As the fantastic world believes, but from Truth, and your love of innocence, which shine
So bright in the two royal luminaries
At court, you cannot lose your way to chastity.
Proceed, and speak of me as honour guides you.

Exit Lord.
I am almost tir’d.—Come, ladies, we’ll begin
Dull time, and take the air another while.

Exeunt.

ACT V

[Scene I.] 2

Enter Lady Bornwell, and a Servant [with a purse].

Lady B. But hath Sir Thomas lost five hundred pounds Already?

Serv. And five hundred more he borrow’d.
The dice are notable devourers, madam;—
They make no more of pieces than of pebbles,
But thrust their heaps together, to engender.
Two hundred more the caster! 3 4

Cel. I am wi’ ye. — I ha’ that to nothing, sir.
The caster
Again!” 5 is covered, and the table too,
With sums that frighted me. Here one sneaks out,
And with a martyr’s patience smiles upon
His money’s executioner, the dice;—
Commands a pipe of good tobacco, and I’ th’ smoke on’t vanishes. Another makes
The bones vault o’er his head, swears that ill-throwing Has put his shoulder out of joint, calls for
A bone-setter. That looks to th’ box, to bid
His master send him some more hundred pounds,
Which lost, he takes tobacco, and is quiet.
Here a strong arm throws in and in, with which
He brusheth all the table, the rooks 5
That went their smelts a piece upon his hand,

1 Charles I and Henrietta Maria.
2 A room in Sir Thomas Bornwell’s house.
3 Thrower of the dice.
4 Gulls, simpletons.
5 Staked their coins (?).
Yet swears he has not drawn a stake this seven year.
But I was bid make haste; my master may Lose this five hundred pounds ere I come thither.

Lady B. If we both waste so fast, we shall soon find
Our state is not immortal. Something in His other ways appear not well ready.

Enter Sir Thomas Bornwell, [and Servants,
one with a purse.]

Born. Ye tortoises, why make ye no more haste?
Go pay to th' master of the house that money,
And tell the noble gamesters I have another Superfluous thousand pound; at night I'll visit
'em.

D'ye hear?
Serv. Yes, an please you.
Born. Do 't ye drudges. [Exeunt Servants.]

Ta, ra, ra — Aretina!

Lady B. You have a pleasant humour, sir.
Born. What! should a gentleman be sad?
Lady B. You have lost —
Born. A transitory sum; as good that way
As another.

Lady B. Do you not vex within for 't?
Born. I had rather lose a thousand more, than Sad thought come near my heart for 't. Vex for trash!
Although it go from other men like drops
Of their life blood, we lose with the alacrity
We drink a cup of sack, or kiss a mistress.
No money is considerable with a gamester;
They have souls more spasious than kings. Did
two
Gamesters divide the empire of the world,
They'd make one throw for 't all, and he that lost
Be no more melancholy than to have play'd for
A morning's draught. Vex a rich soul for diet,
The quiet of whose every thought is worth
A province!

Lady B. But when dice have consum'd all,
Your patience will not pawn for as much more.
Born. Hang pawniny! Sell outright, and the 'fear's over.

Lady B. Say you so? I'll have another coach to-morrow
If there be rich above ground.

Born. I forgot
To bid the fellow ask my jeweller
Whether the chain of diamonds be made up;
I will present it to my Lady Bellamour,
Faire Celestina.

Lady B. This gown I have worn
Six days already; it looks dull, I'll give it
My waiting-woman, and have one of cloth
Of gold embroidered; shoes and pantals
Will show well of the same.
Born. I have invited
A covey of ladies, and as many gentlemen

To-morrow, to the Italian ordinary;
I shall have rarities and regalias
To pay for, madam; music, wanton songs,
And tunes of silken petticoats to dance to.

Lady B. And to-morrow have I invited half
the court
To dine here. What misfortune 't is your company
And ours should be divided! After dinner
I entertain 'em with a play.

Born. By that time
Your play inclines to the epilogue, shall we Quit our Italian host; and whirl in coaches
To the Dutch magazine of sauce, the Steelyard,
Where deal,' and backrag, and what strange wine else
They dare but give a name to in the reckoning, Shall flow into our room, and drown Westphalias,

Tongues, and anchovies, like some little town Endangered by a sluice, through whose fierce ebb
We wade, and wash ourselves into a boat,
And bid our coachmen drive their leather tenements
By land, while we sail home, with a fresh tide,
To some new rendezvous.

Lady B. If you have not
'Toined the place, pray bring your ladies bither;
I mean to have a ball to-morrow night,
And a rich banquet for 'em, where we'll dance
Till morning rise, and blush to interrupt us.

Born. Have you no ladies 't? next room, to advance
A present mirth? What a dull house you govern!
Farewell! a wife's no company. — Aretina,
I've summ'd up my estate, and find we may have
A month good yet.

Lady B. What mean you?
Born. And I'd rather
Be lord one month of pleasures, to the height
And rapture of our senses, than be years
Consuming what we have in foolish temperance,
Live in the dark, and no fame wait upon us!
I will live so, posterity shall stand
At gaze when I am mentioned.

Lady B. A month good!
And what shall be done then?
Born. I'll over sea,
And trail a pike. With watching, marching, lying
In trenches, with enduring cold and hunger,
And taking here and there a musket-shot,
I can earn every week four shillings, madam;
And if the bullets favour me to snatch
Any superfluous limb, when I return,
With good friends, I despair not to be enroll'd
Poor knight of Windsor.
For your course, madam,
THE LADY OF PLEASURE

No doubt you may do well; your friends are great;
Or if your poverty and their pride cannot Agree, you need not trouble much invention
To find a trade to live by; there are customers.

Farewell, be frolic, madam! If I live,
I will feast all my senses, and not fall
Less than a Phaeton from my throne of pleasure,
Though my estate flame like the world about me.

Lady B. 'Tis very pretty! —

Enter DECOY.

Madam Decoy!

Dec. What! melancholy, after so sweet a night's work? Have not I Show'd myself mistress of my art?

Lady B. A lady.

Dec. That title makes the credit of the act
A story higher. Y' have not seen him yet?
I wonder what he 'll say.

Lady B. He's here.

Enter KICKSHAW and FREDERICK.

Kick. Bear up, my little myrmidon; does not Jack Littleworth
Follow you?

Fred. Follow? He fell into the Thames.

Kick. The devil shall dive for him,
Ere I endanger my silk stockings for him.
Let the watermen alone, they have drags and engines.

When he has drunk his julep, I shall laugh
To see him come in pickled the next tide.

Fred. He'll never sink, he has such a cork.

Kick. Let him be hang'd or drown'd, all's one to me;
Yet he deserves to die by water, cannot Bear his wine credibly.

Fred. Is not this my aunt?

Kick. And another handsome lady I must know her.

Fred. My blood is rampant too, I must court somebody;
As good my aunt as any other body.

Lady B. Where have you been, cousin?

Fred. At the Bridge.

At the Bear's foot, where our first health began
To the fair Aretina, whose sweet company
Was wished by all. We could not get a lay,
A tumbler, a device, a bona roba.

For any money; drawers were grown dull:
We wanted our true firkis, and our vagaries.

When were you in drink, aunt?

Lady B. How?

Fred. Do not ladies

Play the good fellows too? There's no true mirth
Without 'em, I have now such tickling fancies!
That doctor of the chair of wit has read
A precious lecture, how I should behave
Myself to ladies; as now, for example.

[GOES UP TO LADY BORNWELL.]

Lady B. Would you practise upon me?
Fred. I first salute you,
You have a soft hand, madam; are you so
All over?

Lady B. Nephew!

Fred. Nay, you should but smile.
And then again I kiss you; and thus draw
Off your white glove, and start to see your hand
More excellently white. I grace my own
Lip with this touch, and turning gently thus,
Prepare you for my skill in palmistry,
Which, out of curiosity, no lady
But easily applies to. The first line
I look with most ambition to find out,
Is Venus' girdle, a fair semicircle,
Enclosing both the mount of Sol and Saturn;
If that appear, she's for my turn; a lady
Whom nature has prepar'd for the career;
And, Cupid at my elbow, I put forward:
You have this very line, aunt.

Lady B. The boy's frantic!

Fred. You have a couch or palllet; I can shut
The chamber door. Enrich a stranger, when Your nephew's coming into play!

Lady B. No more.

Fred. Are you so coy to your own flesh and blood?

Kick. Here, take your playfellow; I talk of sport,
And she would have me marry her.

Fred. Here's Littleworth.

Enter LITTLEWORTH, wet.

Why, how now, tutor?

Little. I have been fishing.

Fred. And what ha' you caught?

Little. My belly full of water.

Kick. Ha, ha! Where's thy rapier?

Little. My rapier is drown'd, and I am little better. I was up by th' heels,

And out came a tun of water, beside wine.

Kick. 'T has made thee sober.

Little. Would you have me drink

Fred. With water?

Lady B. I hope your fire is quench'd by this time.

Fred. It is not now, as when your worship
'walk'd

By all the taverns, Jack, dry as a bone."

Kick. You had store of fish under water.

Little. It has made a poor John of me.

Fred. I do not think but if we cast an angle
Into his belly, we might find some pilchards.

Little. And boil'd, by this time. — Dear madam, a bed.

Kick. Carry but the water-spaniel to a grass-plot,

1 Contrivances.
2 All four terms are euphemisms for courtesan.
3 A vague piece of contemporary slang, the meaning of which usually has to be derived from the context.
4 Yields.
5 A small fish, like a herring.
Where he may roll himself; let him but shake
His ears twice in the sun, and you may grind him
Into a posset.
Fred. Come, thou shalt to my bed,
Poor pickered.
Dec. Alas, sweet gentleman! 100 Little. I have ill luck an I should smell by this time;
I am but new ta’en, I am sure. — Sweet gentle-
woman!
Dec. Your servant.
Little. Pray do not pluck off my skin;
It is so wet, unless you have good eyes,
You’ll hardly know it from a shirt.
Dec. Fear nothing. 126

Exeunt [all but Kickshaw and Lady Bornwell.]

Lady B. [Aside.] He has sack enough, and I may find his humour.
Kick. And how is’t with your ladyship? You look
Without a sunshine in your face.

Lady B. You are glorious
In mind and habit.
Kicks. Ends of gold and silver!
Lady B. Your other clothes were not so rich.
Who was
Your tailor, sir?
Kick. They were made for me long since;
They have known but two bright days upon my back.
I had a humour, madam, to lay things by;
They will serve two days more: I think I have gold enough
To go to th’ mercer. I’ll now allow myself 125
A suit a week, as this, with necessary
Dependances, beaver, silk stockings, garters,
And roses, in their due conformity;
Boots are forbid a clean leg, but to ride in.
My linen every morning comes in new,
The old goes to great bellies.

Lady B. You are charitable.
Kick. I may dine wi’ ye sometime, or at the
To meet good company, not for the table.
My clerk o’ th’ kitchen’s here, a witty epicure,
A spirit, that, to please me with what’s rare,
Can fly a hundred mile a day to market, 216
And make me lord of fish and fowl. I shall Forget there is a butcher; and to make
My footman nimble, he shall feed on nothing
But wings of wild fowl.

Lady B. These ways are costly. 220
Kick. Therefore I’ll have it so; I ha’ sprung
A piece.

Lady B. You make me wonder, sir, to see this change
Of fortune: your revenue was not late
So plentiful.
Kick. Hang dirty land, and lordships!
I wo’ not change one lodging I ha’ got, 225
For the Chamber of London.

Lady B. Strange, of such a sudden,
To rise to this estate! No fortunate hand
At dice could lift you up so, for ’tis since Last night: yesterday, you were no such monarch.

Kick. There be more games than dice.

Lady B. It cannot be 230
A mistress, though your person is worth love;
None possibly are rich enough to feed
As you have cast the method of your riots.
A princess, after all her jewels, must
Be fore’d to sell her provinces.
Kick. Now you talk of jewels, what do you think of this?

Lady B. A rich one.
Kick. You’ll honour me to wear’t; this other toy
I had from you; this chain I borrowed of you.
A friend had it in keeping. [Gives her the jewel and chain.] — If your ladyship
Want any sum, you know your friend, and Alexander.

Lady B. Dare you trust my security?
Kick. There’s gold,
I shall have more to-morrow.

Lady B. You astonish me;
Who can supply these?

Kick. A dear friend I have.
She promis’d we should meet again i’ th’ morning.

Lady B. Not that I wish to know

More of your happiness than I have already Heart to congratulate,— be pleas’d to lay
My wonder.
Kick. ’Tis a secret —
Which I’ll die
For I’ll betray.

Kick. You have always wish’d me well;
But you shall swear not to reveal the party. 230

Lady B. I’ll lose the benefit of my tongue.
Kick. Nor be Afraid at what I say. What think you first
Of an old witch, a strange ill-favour’d bag,
That, for my company last night, has wrought
This cure upon my fortune? I do sweat
To think upon her name.

Lady B. How, sir! a witch?
Kick. I would not fright your ladyship too much
At first, but witches are akin to spirits.
The truth is — Nay, if you look pale already,
I ha’ done.

Lady B. Sir, I beseech you.
Kick. If you have
But courage then to know the truth, I’ll tell
you
In one word; my chief friend is — the devil!

Lady B. What devil? how I tremble!
Kick. Have a heart;
’T was a she-devil too, a most insatiable,
Abominable devil, with a tail
Thus long.

Lady B. Goodness defend me! Did you see
her?
Kick. No, ’t was i’ th’ dark; but she appear’d first to me
I’ th’ likeness of a beldam, and was brought,
I know not how, nor whiter, by two goblins,
More hooded than a hawk.

Lady B. But would you venture

Upon a devil!

Kick. Ay, for means.
THE LADY OF PLEASURE

v. ii.

Lady B. [Aside.] How black
An impudence is this I — But are you sure
It was the devil you enjoy'd?

Kick. Say nothing;
I did the best to please her; but as sure
As you live, 'twas a hell-cat.

Lady B. D'ye not quake? 276
Kick. I found myself in the very room 1 'th' morning,
Where two of her familiars had left me.

Enter Servant.

Serv. My lord is come to visit you.

Kick. No words,
As you respect my safety. I ha' told tales
Out of the devil's school; if it be known,
I lose a friend. 'Tis now about the time
I promis'd her to meet again; at my Return I'll tell you wonders. Not a word. Exit.

Lady B. 'Tis a false glass; sure I am more deform'd: [Looks in her pocket mirror.]

What have I done? — My soul is miserable. 285

Enter Lord.

Lord. I sent you a letter, madam.

Lady B. You exprest
Your noble care of me, my lord.

Re-enter Sir Thomas Bornwell with Celestina.

Born. Your lordship
Does me an honour.

Lord. Madam, I am glad To see you here; I meant to have kist your hand,
Ère my return to court.

Cel. Sir Thomas has 290
Prevail'd to bring me, to his trouble, hither.

Lord. You do him grace.

Born. Why, what's the matter, madam?
Your eyes are tuning Lacrimae. 4

Lady B. As you
Do hope for Heaven, withdraw, and give me but
The patience of ten minutes,

Born. Wonderful! 295

I will not hear you above that proportion.

She talks of Heaven: — Come, where must we to counsel?

Lady B. You shall conclude me when you please.

[Exit.]

Born. I follow.

Lord. [Aside.] What alteration is this? I, that so late Stood the temptation of her eye and voice,
Boasted a heart 'bove all licentious flame,
At second view turn renegade, and think
I was too superstitious, and full
Of phlegm, not to reward her amorous courtship
With manly freedom.

Cel. I obey you, sir. 300

Born. I'll wait upon your lordship presently.

[Exit.]

Lord. She could not want a cunning to seem honest
When I neglected her. I am resolv'd,—
You still look pleasant, madam.

Cel. I have cause. 309
My lord, the rather for your presence, which Hath power to charm all trouble in my thoughts.

Lord. I must translate that compliment, and owe
All that is cheerful in myself to these
All-quick'ning smiles; and rather than such bright
Eyes should repent their influence upon me, 315
I would release the aspects, and quit the bounty
Of all the other stars. Did you not think me
A strange and melancholy gentleman,
To use you so unkindly?

Cel. Me, my lord?

Lord. I hope you made no loud complaint; I would not 320

Be tried by a jury of ladies.

Cel. For what, my lord?

Lord. I did not meet that noble entertainment
You were late pleas'd to show me.

Cel. I observ'd
No such defect in your lordship, but a brave
And noble fortitude.

Lord. A noble folly;
I bring repentance for 't. I know you have,
Madam, a gentle faith, and wo' not rain
What you have built to honour you.

Cel. What's that?

Lord. If you can love, I'll tell your ladyship.

Cel. I have a stubborn soul else.

Lord. You are all 330

Compos'd of harmony.

Cel. What love d'ye mean?

Lord. That which doth perfect both. Madam, you have heard
I can be constant, and if you consent
To grace it so, there is a spacious dwelling
Prepar'd within my heart for such a mistress, 335

Cel. Your mistress, my good lord?

Lord. Why, my good lady,
Your sex doth hold it no dishonour
To become mistress to a noble servant
In the now court Platonic way. Consider
Who 'tis that pleads to you; my birth and present

Value can be no stain to your embrace;
But these are shadows when my love appears,
Which shall, in his first miracle, return
Me in my bloom of youth, and thee a virgin;
When I, within some new Elysium, 345
Of purpose made and meant for us, shall be
In everything Adonis, but in his Contempt of love; and court thee from a

Daphne

Hid in the cold rind of a bashful tree,
With such warm language and delight, till thou

Leap from that bay 2 into the Queen of Love,
And pay my conquest with composing garlands

Of thy own myrtle for me.

1 Gifford conj. Q. myself the very same.
2 A punning allusion to Dowland's Lacrimae or Seven Tears, etc., a popular musical work of the time for strunged instruments.

2 Daphne was transformed into a bay-tree.
What’s all this?

Lord. Consent to be my mistress, Celestina,
And we will have it spring-time all the year; Upon whose invitations, when we walk,
The winds shall play soft descant to our feet, And breathe rich odours to re-pure the air:
Green boughs on every side shall tempt our stay, And violets stoop to have us tread upon ’em. The red rose shall grow pale, being near thy cheek,
And the white blush, o’ercome with such a forehead.

Here lai, and measuring with ourselves some bank,
A thousand birds shall from the woods repair, And place themselves so cunningly behind. The leaves of every tree, that while they pay Us tribute of their songs, thou shalt imagine The very trees bear music, and sweet voices Do grow in every arbour. Here can we Embrace and kiss, tell tales, and kiss again, And none but Heaven our rival.

When we are Weary of these, what if we shift our paradise, And through a grove of tall and even pines, Descend into a valley, that shall shame All the delights of Tempe; upon whose Green plush the Graces shall be call’d to dance To please us, and maintain their fairy revels, To the harmonious murmurs of a stream That gently falls upon a rock of pearl. Here doth the nymph, forsaken Echo, dwell, To whom we’ll tell the story of our love, Till at our surfeit and her want of joy, We break her heart with envy. Not far off, A grove shall call us to a wanton river, To see a dying swan give up the ghost, The fishes shooting up their tears in bubbles, That they must lose the genius of their waves— And such love linsey woolsey, to no purpose.

Lord. You chide me handsomely; pray tell me how You like this language.

Col. Good my lord, forbear. These widows are so full of circumstance!— I’ll undertake, in this time I ha’ courted Your ladyship for the toy, to ha’ broken ten, Nay, twenty colts, virgins I mean, and taught ’em The amble, or what pace I most affected.

Col. You’re not, my lord, again, the lord I thought you; And I must tell you now, you do forget Yourself and me.

Lord. You’ll not be angry, madam?

Col. Nor rude, (though gay men have a privilege.)

It shall appear:—there is a man, my lord, Within my acquaintance, rich in worldly fortunes,
But cannot boast any descent of blood,
Would buy a coat of arms.

Lord. He may, and legs Booted and spurr’d, to ride into the country.

But these will want antiquity, my lord,
The seal of honour. What’s a coat cut out But yesterday, to make a man a gentleman? Your family, as old as the first virtue That merited an escutcheon, doth owe a glorious coat of arms; if you will sell now All that your name doth challenge in that ensign, I’ll help you to a chapman that shall pay, And pour down wealth enough for ’t.

Lord. Sell my arms! I cannot, madam.

Col. Give but your consent.

You know not how the state may be inclin’d To dispensation; we may prevail Upon the herald’s office afterward.

Lord. I’ll sooner give these arms to th’ hangman’s axe, My head, my heart, to twenty executions, Than sell one atom from my name.

Col. Change that, And answer him would buy my honour from me;
Honour, that is not won upon a flag Or penmon, that, without the owner’s dangers, An enemy may ravish, and bear from me; But that which grows and withers with my soul, Beside the body’s stain: think, think, my lord, To what you would unworthily betray me, If you would not, for price of gold, or pleasure, (If that be more your idol,) lose the glory And painted honour of your house.—I ha’ done.

Lord. Enough to rectify a satyr’s blood. Obscure my blushes here.

Enter Sir William Scenitore and Haircut.

Hair. Or this, or fight with me;

It shall be no exception that I wait Upon my lord; I am a gentleman, You may be less and be a knight: the office I do my lord is honest, sir. How many Such you have been guilty of, Heaven knows.

Scent. ’T is no fear of your sword, but that I would not.

Break the good laws establish’d against duels.

Hair. Off with your periwig, and stand bare.

[SIR WILLIAM SCENTLOVE TAKES OFF HIS PERIWIG.]

Lord. From this Minute I’ll be a servant to thy goodness; A mistress in the wanton sense is common, I’ll honour you with chaste thoughts, and call you so.

Col. I’ll study to be worth your fair opinion.

Lord. Scentlove, your head was us’d to a covering,
Beside a hat; when went the hair away?

Scent. I laid a wager, my lord, with Haircut.

Who thinks I shall catch cold, that I’ll stand bare
This half hour.

1 Own.
Hair. Pardon my ambition, 460
Madam, I told you truth; I am a gentleman,
And cannot fear that name is drown'd in my Relation to my lord.
-Col. I dare not think so.
Hair. From henceforth call my service duty,
madam.
That pig's head, that betray'd me to your mirth,
Is doing penance for't.
Scent. Why may not I,
My lord, begin a fashion of no hair?
-Col. Do you sweat, Sir William?
Scent. Not with store of nightcaps.
Re-enter Sir Thomas and Lady Bornwell.
Lady B. Heaven has dissolv'd the clouds that hung upon
My eyes, and if you can with mercy meet 460
A penitent, I throw my own will off.
And now in all things obey yours. My nephew
Send back again to th' college, and myself
To what place you 'll confine me.
Born. Dearer now
Than ever to my bosom, thou sha't please 465
Me best to live at thy own choice. I did
But fright thee with a noise of my expenses;
The sums are safe, and we have wealth enough,
If yet we use it nobly. My lord—madam,
Pray honour us to-night.
Lady B. I beg your presence, 470
And pardon.
Born. I know not how my Aretina
May be dispos'd to-morrow for the country.
-Col. You must not go before you have done
Me honour to accept an entertainment
Where I have power; on those terms I 'm your guest.
Born. You grace us, madam.
Lady B. [Aside.] Already
I feel a cure upon my soul, and promise
My after life to virtue. Pardon, Heaven,
My shame, yet hid from the world's eye.

Re-enter Decoy.

Dec. Sweet madam!
Lady B. Not for the world be seen here!
We are lost.
I'll visit you at home.—[Aside.] But not to practise
What she expects: my counsel may recover
her. [Exit Decoy.]

Re-enter Kickshaw.

Kick. Where's a madam? — Pray lend me a little money,
My spirit has deceiv'd me; Proserpine
Has broke her word.
Lady B. Do you expect to find 465
The devil true to you?
Kick. Not too loud.
Lady B. I'll voice it
Louder, to all the world, your horrid sin,
Unless you promise me religiously,
To purge your foul blood by repentance, sir.
Kick. Then I'm undone.
Lady B. Not while I have power 490
To encourage you to virtue. I'll endeavour
To find you out some nobler way at court,
To thrive in.
Kick. Do 't and I'll forsake the devil,
And bring my flesh to obedience. You shall steer me.—
My lord, your servant.
Lord. You are brave again. 495
Kick. Madam, your pardon.
Born. Your offence requires Humility.
Kick. Low as my heart.—Sir Thomas,
I'll sup with you, a part of satisfaction.
Born. Our pleasures cool. Music! and when our ladies
Are tir'd with active motion, to give Them rest, in some new rapture to advance
Full mirth, our souls shall leap into a dance. 500
[Exeunt.]

THE PROLOGUE

THE CARDINAL ! 'Cause we express no scene,
We do believe most of you, gentlemen,
Are at this hour in France, and busy there,
Though you vouchsafe to lend your bodies here;
But keep your fancy active, till you know,
By th' progress of our play, 't is nothing so.
A poet's art is to lead on your thought
Through subtle paths and workings of a plot;
And where your expectation does not thrive,
If things fall better, yet you may forgive.
I will say nothing positive; you may Think what you please; we call it but a Play:
Whether the comic Muse, or ladies' love,
Romance, or direful tragedy it prove,
The bill determines not; and would you be Persuaded, I would have 't a Comedy,
For all the purple in the name and state
Of him that owns it; but 't is left to fate.
Yet I will tell you, ere you see it play'd,
What the author, and he blusht too, when he said,
Comparing with his own, (for 't had been pride,
He thought, to build his wit a pyramid
Upon another's wounded fame,) this play
Might rival with his best, and dar'd to say—Troth, I am out: he said no more. You, then,
When 't's done, may say your pleasures, gentlemen.

ACT I

[SCENE I.] 1

Enter two Lords at one door; secretary [ANTONIO] 2 at the other.

1 Lord. Who is that?
2 Lord. The duchess' secretary.

1 Lord. Signior!
Ant. Your lordship's servant.
1 Lord. How does her grace, since she left off her mourning
For the young Duke Mendoza, whose timeless death
At sea left her a virgin and a widow?
2 Lord. She's now inclining to a second bride, 3 —

3 Bridegroom, as often.
THE CARDINAL

i. ii.

When is the day of mighty marriage
To our great Cardinal's nephew, Don Columbo?  14

Ant. When they agree; they will not steal to

1 Church,

I guess the ceremonies will be loud and public.

Your lordships will excuse me.  Exit.

1 Lord. When they agree! Alas! poor lady, she

Dotes not upon Columbo, when she thinks 16

Of the young Count d’Alvarez, divorc’d from her

By the king's power.

2 Lord. And counsel of the Cardinal,

To advance his nephew to the duchess' bed;

It is not well.

1 Lord. Take heed; the Cardinal holds Intelligence with every bird i' th' air.  20

2 Lord. Death on his purple pride! He governs all;

And yet Columbo is a gallant gentleman.

1 Lord. The darling of the war, whom victory
Hath often courted; a man of daring,
And most exalted spirit. Pride in him

Dwells like an ornament, where so much hon-

our

Secures his praise.

2 Lord. This is no argument

He should usurp, and wear Alvarez' title

To the fair duchess; men of coarser blood,

Would not so tamely give this treasure up.

1 Lord. Although Columbo's name is great in war,

Whose glorious art and practice is above

The greatness of Alvarez, yet he cannot

Want soul, in whom alone survives the virtue

Of many noble ancestors, being the last

Of his great family.

2 Lord. 'Tis not safe, you'll say,

To wrestle with the king.

1 Lord. More danger if the Cardinal be displeased.

Who sits at helm of state. Count d’Alvarez

Is wiser to obey the stream, than by

Insisting on his privilege to her love,

Put both their fates upon a storm.

2 Lord. If wisdom,

Not inborn fear, make him compose; 3 I like it.

How does the duchess bear herself? 4

1 Lord. She moves by the rapture 2 of another

wheel

That must be obey'd; like some sad passenger,

That looks upon the coast his wishes fly to,

But is transported by an adverse wind,

Sometimes a churlish pilot.

2 Lord. She has a sweet and noble nature.

1 Lord. Commends Alvarez; Hymen cannot tie

A knot of two more equal hearts and blood.

Enter ALPHONSE.

2 Lord. Alphonso!

Alph. 5 My good Lord.

1 Lord. What great affair

Hath brought you from the confines?

1 Agree.

2 Force, momentum.

Alph. 5 Such as will

Be worth your counsels, when the king hath read

My letters from the governor: the Arragonians,

Violating their confederate oath and league,

Are now in arms: they have not yet marched towards us;

But 'tis not safe to expect, if we may timely Prevent invasion.

2 Lord. Dare they be so insolent?  60

1 Lord. This storm I did foresee.

2 Lord. What have they, but

The sweetness of the king, to make a crime?

1 Lord. But how appears the Cardinal at this news? 2

Alph. Not pale, although

He knows they have no cause to think him innocent,

As by whose counsel they were once surpris'd.

1 Lord. There is more Than all our present art can fathom in

This story, and I fear I may conclude

This flame has breath at home to cherish it.

There's treason in some hearts, whose faces are Smooth to the state.

Alph. My lord, I take my leave.

2 Lord. Your friends, good captain.  Exit.

[SCENE II.] 4

Enter DUCHESS, VALERIA, and CELINDA.

Val. Sweet madam, be less thoughtful; this obedience 6

To passion will destroy the noblest frame

Of beauty that this kingdom ever boasted.

Cel. This sadness might become your other habit,

And ceremonies black, for him that died.

The times of sorrow are expir'd; and all

The joys that wait upon the court, your birth,

And a new Hymen, that is coming towards you,

Invite a change.

Duch. Ladies, I thank you both;

I pray excuse a little melancholy.

That is behind; my year of mourning hath not

So cleard my account with sorrow, but there may

Some dark thoughts stay, with sad reflections,

Upon my heart, for him I lost. Even this

New dress and smiling garment, meant to show

A peace concluded 'twixt my grief and me,

Is but a sad remembrance. But I resolve

To entertain more pleasing thoughts; and if

You wish me heartily to smile, you must

Not mention grief, not in advice to leave it.

Such counsels open but ares the wounds

Ye would close up, and keep alive the cause,

Whose bleeding you would cure. Let's talk of something

That may delight. You two are read in all

The histories of our court: tell me, Valeria, 26

Who has thy vote for the most handsome

man? —

3 Wait.  5 Yielding.

4 A room in the Duchess's house.
[Aside.] Thus I must counterfeit a peace, when all With me is at mutiny.

Val. I have examin’d
All that are candidates for the praise of ladies; But find — may I speak boldly to your grace? And will you not return it in your mirth, 31 To make me blush?

Duch. No, no; speak freely.

Val. I wo’ not rack your patience, madam; but Were I a princess, I should think the Count d’Alvarez Had sweetness to deserve me from the world. 36

Duch. [Aside.] Alvarez! she’s a spy upon my heart.

Val. He’s young and active, and com’d most sweetly.

Duch. I have seen a face more tempting.

Val. It had then Too much of woman in’t: his eyes speak mov- ingly, Which may excuse his voice, and lead away 40 All female pride his captive; his hair, black, Which, naturally falling into curls —

Duch. Frithee, no more; thou art in love with him —

The man in your esteem, Celinda, now? Cel. Alvarez is, I must confess, a gentleman Of handsome composition; but with His mind, the greater excellence, I think Another may delight a lady more, If man be well considered, that’s Columbo, Now, madam, voted to be yours.

Duch. [Aside.] My torment! 50

Val. [Aside.] She affects him not.

Cel. He has a person, and a bravery beyond All men, that I observe.

Val. He is a soldier, A rough-hewn man, and may show well at distance.

His talk will fright a lady; War, and grim-

Fae’d Honour are his mistresses; he raves To hear a lute; Love meant him not his priest. —

Again your pardon, madam. We may talk, But you have art to choose, and crown affection.

[CELINDA AND VALERIA WALK ASIDE.]

Duch. What is it to be born above these ladies, And want their freedom! They are not con-strain’d, Nor slav’ly by their own greatness, or the king’s.

But let their free hearts look abroad, and choose By their own eyes to love. I must repair My poor afflicted bosom, and assume The privilege I was born with, which now prompts me To tell the king, he hath no power nor art To steer a lover’s soul. —

Enter Secretary [ANTONIO].

What says Count d’Alvarez?

Ant. Madam, he ’ll attend you.

Duch. Wait you, as I directed. When he comes, Acquaint me privately.

Ant. Madam, I have news; 'Tis now arriv’d the court; we shall have wars.

Duch. [Aside.] I find an army here of killing thoughts.

Ant. The king has chosen Don Columbo general, Who is immediately to take his leave.

Duch. [Aside.] What flood is let into my heart! — How far Is he to go?

Ant. To Arragon.

Duch. That ’s well At first; he should not want a pilgrimage To the unknown world, if my thoughts might convey him.

Ant. 'Tis not impossible he may go thither. 60

Duch. How?

Ant. To the unknown world; he goes to fight, That’s in his way: such stories are in nature.

Duch. Conceal this news.

Ant. He wo’ not be long absent; This affair will make him swift

To kiss your grace’s hand. — [Exit.]

Duch. He cannot fly 65 With too much wing to take his leave. — I must Be admitted to your conference; you have Enlarg’d my spirits; they shall droop no more.

Cel. We are happy, if we may advance one thought To your grace’s pleasure.

Val. Your eye before was in eclipse; these smiles Become you, madam.

Duch. [Aside.] I have not skill to contain myself.

Enter Placentia.

Pla. The Cardinal’s nephew, madam, Don Columbo.

Duch. Already! Attend him.

[Exit Placentia.]

Val. Shall we take our leave? 66

Duch. He shall not know, [Celinda,] 1 how you pried’s him.

[Cel.] If he did, madam, I should have the confidence To tell him my free thoughts.

Enter Columbo.

Duch. My lord, while I ’m in study to requite The favour you ha’ done me, you increase My debt to such a sum, still by a new honouring Your servant, I despair of my own freedom.

Colum. Madam, he kisseth your white hand, that must Not surfeit in this happiness — and, ladies, I take your smiles for my encouragement! 100 I have not long to practise these court tactics.

[Kisses them.]

Cel. He has been taught to kiss.

1 Q. Valeria, but cf. vv. 45-57, above. 2 Q. Val.
Duch. Pray give leave to examine a few thoughts; Expect me in the garden.

Ladies. We attend. Exit Ladies. 189

Duch. This is above all expectation happy.

Forgive me, Virtue, that I have dissembled,
And witness with me, I have not a thought
To tempt or to betray him, but secure
The promise I first made, to love and honour. 195

Re-enter Secretary [ANTONIO].

Ant. The Count d'Alvarez, madam. Duch. Admit him,
And let none interrupt us. [Exit ANTONIO.]—
How shall I behave my looks? The guilt of my neglect,
Which had no seal from hence, will call up blood
To write upon my cheeks the shame and story
In some red letter.

Enter ALVAREZ.

Alv. Madam, I present
One that was glad to obey your grace, and come
To know what your commands are.

Duch. Where I once
Did promise love, a love that had the power
And office of a priest to chain my heart
To yours, it were injustice to command.
Alv. But I can look upon you, madam, as Becomes a servant; with as much humility,
In tenderness of your honour and great fortune,
Give up, when you call back your bounty, all
That was mine, as I had pride to think them favours.

Duch. Hath love taught thee no more assurance in Our mutual vows, thou canst suspect it possible
I should revoke a promise, made to heaven
And thee, so soon? This must arise from some Distrust of thy own faith.

Alv. Your grace's pardon; 197
To speak with freedom, I am not so old
In cunning to betray, nor young in time,
Not to see when and where I am at loss,
And how to bear my fortune, and my wounds, 180
Which, if I look for health, must still bleed inward,
A hard and desperate condition.
I am not ignorant your birth and greatness
Have plac'd you to grow up with the king's grace
And jealousy, which to remove, his power
Hath chosen a fit object for your beauty
To shine upon, Columbo, his great favourite.
I am a man on whom but late the king
Has pleas'd to cast a beam, which was not meant
To make me proud, but wisely to direct, 199
And light me to my safety. Oh, dear madam!
I will not call more witness of my love
(If you will let me still give it that name)
Than this, that I dare make myself a loser,
And to your will give all my blessings up. 200
Preserve your greatness, and forget a trifle,
That shall, at best, when you have drawn me up,
But hang about you like a cloud, and dim
The glories you are born to.

1 Foolishness.
2 Q. transposes CEL. and VAL. throughout this conversation.
Duch. Misery
Of birth and state! That I could shift into
A meaner blood, or find some art to purge
That part which makes my veins unequal! Yet
Those nice distinctions have no place in us;
There's but a shadow difference, a title:
Thy stock partakes as much of noble sap
As that which feeds the root of kings; and he
That writes a lord hath all the essence of Nobility.

Alv. 'Tis not a name that makes
Our separation; the king's displeasure
Hangs a portent to fright us, and the matter
That feeds this exhalation is the Cardinal's
Plot to advance his nephew; then Columbo,
A man made up for some prodigious act,
Is fit to be considered: in all three
There is no character you fix upon
But has a form of ruin to us both.

Duch. Then you do look on these with fear?
Alv. With eyes
That should think tears a duty, to lament
Your least unkind fate; but my youth dares boldly
Meet all the tyranny o' th' stars, whose black Malevolence but shoots my single tragedy.

You are above the value of many worlds
Peopled with such as I am.

Duch. What if Columbo,
Engag'd to war, in his hot thirst of honour,
Find out the way to death?

Alv. 'Tis possible.

Duch. Or say, (no matter by what art or motive,)
He give his title up, and leave me to My own election?

Alv. If I then be happy
To have a name within your thought, there can
Be nothing left to crown me with new blessing.
But I dream thus of heaven, and wake to find
My amorous soul a mockery. When the priest
Shall tie you to another, and the joys
Of marriage leave no thought at leisure to Look back upon Alvarez, that must wither
For loss of you; yet then I cannot love
So much of what I was once in your favour,
But, in a sigh, pray still you may live happy.

Exit.

Duch. My heart is in a mist; some good star smile
Upon my resolution, and direct
Two lovers in their chaste embrace to meet! Columbo's bed contains my winding sheet.

Exit.

ACT II

[Scene I.]

General Columbo, Hernando, two Colonels, Alphonso, two Captains, and other Officers, as at a Council of War.

Colum. I see no face in all this council that Hath one pale fear upon 't, though we arriv'd not

1 Before the walls of the frontier city.—Columbo's tent.

So timely to secure the town, which gives
Our enemy such triumph.

1 Col. 'T was betray'd.

Alph. The wealth of that one city
Will make the enemy glorious.

1 Col. They dare
Not plunder it.

Alph. They give fair quarter yet:
They only seal up men's estates, and keep Possession for the city's use: they take up
No wares without security; and he,
Whose single credit will not pass, puts in
Two lean comrades, upon whose bonds 't is not Religion to deny 'em.

Colum. To repair this
With honour, gentlemen?

Her. My opinion is
To expect awhile.

Colum. Your reason?

Her. 'Till their own
Surfeit betray 'em; for their soldier[s.]
Bred up with coarse and common bread, will show
Such appetites on the rich cates they find,
They'll spare our swords a victory, when their own
Riot and luxury destroys 'em.

Col. That
Will show our patience too like a fear.
With favour of his excellence, I think
The spoil of cities takes not off the courage,
But doubles it on soldiers; besides,
While we have tameness to expect, the noise
Of their success and plenty will increase Their army.

Her. 'Tis considerable; we do not Exceed in foot or horse, our muster not 'bove sixteen thousand both; and the infantry
Raw, and not disciplin'd to act.

Alph. Their hearts,
But with a brave thought of their country's honour,
Will teach 'em how to fight, had they not seen
A sword. But we decline
'Tis not within our own too much;
The men are forward in their arms, and take
The use
With averssion of fame.

They rise, and talk privately.

Colum.

I do suspect you are a coward.

Her. Sir!

Colum. Or else a traitor; take your choice.

I call'd you to a council, sir, of war;
Yet keep your place.

Her. I have worn other names,
Colum. Deserve 'em. Such
Another were enough to unsoln an army.
Ignobly talk of patience, till they drink
And reel to death! We came to fight, and force 'em
To mend their pace; thou hast no honour in thee,
Not enough noble blood to make a blush
For thy tame eloquence.

2 Boastful.

1 Depreciate.

4 Learn to use their arms.
Her. My lord, I know
My duty to a general; yet there are Some that have known me here. Sir, I desire
To quit my regiment.
Colum. You shall have license.—

[Enter Attendant with ink and paper, and exit.]

1 Col. The general's displeas'd.
2 Col. How is 't, Hernando?—
Her. The general has found out employment
for me;
He is writing letters back.
Alph. and Capt. To his mistress?
Her. Pray do not trouble me; yet, prithee, speak,
And flatter not thy friend. Dost think I dare
Not draw my sword, and use it, when a cause,
With honour, calls to action?
Alph. and Col. With the most valiant man alive.

Her. You'll do me some displeasure in your loves:
Pray to your places.
Colum. So; bear those letters to the king;
They speak my resolution, before
Another sun decline, to charge the enemy.
Her. [Aside.] A pretty court way
Of dismissing an officer. — I obey; success
Attend your counsels! Exit.
Colum. If here be any dare not look on danger,
And meet it like a man, with scorn of death,
I beg his absence; and a coward's fear
Consume him to a ghost!
1 Col. None such [are] here.
Colum. Or, if in all your regiments you find
One man that does not ask to bleed with honour,
Give him a double pay to leave the army;
There's service to be done will call the spirits
And end of men.
1 Col. You give us all new flame.
Colum. I am confirm'd, and you must lose no time;
The soldier that was took last night, to me
Discover'd their whole strength, and that we have A party in the town. The river, that Opens the city to the west, [is] unguarded; —
We must this night use art and resolution
We cannot fall ingloriously.
1 Capt. That voice
Is every man's.

Enter Soldier and Secretary [ANTONIO] with a letter.

Colum. What now?
Sold. Letters.
Colum. Whence?
Sold. From the duchess.
Colum. They are welcome. — [Takes the letter.]
Meet at my tent again this evening;
Yet stay, some wine. — The duchess' health!—

[Drinks.]

See it go round.
Ant. It wou' not please his excellence.

1 Col. The duchess' health! —
2 Capt. To me! more wine.
Ant. The clouds are gathering, and his eyes Shoot fire.

Observe what thunder follows.
2 Capt. The general has but ill news. I suspect
The duchess sick, or else the king.
1 Capt. May be
The Cardinal.

2 Capt. His soul has long been look'd for.
Colum. She dares not be so insolent. It is
The duchess' hand. How am I shrunk in fame
To be thus play'd withal! She writes, and counseled,
Under my hand, to send her back a free
Resign of all my interest to her person,
Promise, or love; that there's no other way,
With safety of my honour, to revisit her.

The woman is posses'd with some bold devil,
And wants an exorcism; or, I am grown
A cheap, dull, phlegmatic fool, a post that's carv'd
I' th' common street, and holding out my forehead
To every scurril wit to pin disgrace
And libels on't. — Did you bring this to me, sir?
My thanks shall warm your heart.

Draws a pistol.
Ant. Hold, hold! my lord!
I know not what provokes this tempest, but
Her grace ne'er show'd more freedom from a storm
When I receiv'd this paper. If you have
A will to do an execution,
Your looks, without that engine, sir, may serve.—
I did not like the employment.
Colum. Ha! had she
No symptom, in her eye or face, of anger,
When she gave this in charge?
Ant. Serene, as I
Have seen the morning rise upon the spring;
No trouble in her breath, but such a wind
As came to kiss, and fan the smiling flowers.
Colum. No poetry.

Ant. By all the truth in prose, by
By honesty, and your own honour, sir,
I never saw her look more calm and gentle.
Colum. I am too passionate; you must forgive me.
I have found it out; the duchess loves me
dearly;
She express a trouble in her when I took My leave, and chid me with a sullen eye:
'Tis a device to hasten my return;
Love has a thousand arts. I'll answer it Beyond her expectation, and put Her soul to a noble test. — Your patience, gentlemen;
The king's health will deserve a sacrifice
Of wine. — [Retires to the table and writes.]
Ant. [Aside.] I am glad to see this change,
And thank my wit
For my redemption.
1 Col. Sir, the soldier's curse
On him loves not our master!

2 Col. And they curse.
Deaf enough to be heard.

2 Capt. Their curse has the nature of gunpowder.
Ant. They do not pray with half the noise.

1 Col. Our general is not well mixt;
He has too great a portion of fire.

2 Col. His mistress cool him, (her complexion Carries some phlegm,) when they two meet in bed!

2 Capt. A third may follow.
1 Capt. 'Tis much pity.

The young duke liv'd not to take the virgin off.

1 Col. 'Twas the king's act, to match two rabbit-suckers.

2 Col. A common trick of state;
The little great man marries, travels then
Till both grow up, and dies when he should do
The feat; these things are still unlucky

On the male side.

Colum. This to the duchess' fair hand.

[Enter Secretary ANTONIO with a letter.

Ant. She will think
Time hath no wing, till I return.

Colum. Gentlemen, now each man to his quarter, and encourage
The soldier. I shall take a pride to know
Your diligence, when I visit all your several commands.

All. We shall expect.

2 Col. And move
By your directions.

Colum. Y' are all noble. Exeunt.

[SCENE II.]

Enter CARDINAL, DUCHESS, and PLECENTIA.

Card. I shall perform a visit daily, madam,
In th' absence of my nephew, and happy
If you accept my care.

Duch. You have honour me;
And if your entertainment have not been Worthy your grace's person, 'tis because Nothing can reach it in my power; but where
There is no want of zeal, other defect
Is only a fault to exercise your mercy.

Card. You are bounteous in all. I take my leave,
My fair niece, shortly, when Columbo has Purchas'd more honours to prefer his name
And value to your noble thoughts; meantime,
Be confident you have a friend, whose office
And favour with the king shall be effectual
To serve your grace.

Duch. Your own good deeds reward you.
Tell mine rise equal to deserve their benefit.

Exit CARDINAL.

Do not I walk upon the teeth of serpents,
And, as I had a charm against their poison,
Play with their stings? The Cardinal is subtle,
Whom 'tis not wisdom to incense, till I

1 Young rabbits, youngsters.
2 A room in the Duchess's house.

Hear to what destiny Columbo leaves me.
May be the greatness of his soul will scorn
To own what comes with murmur; — if he can Interpret me so happily. — Art come?

Enter Secretary ANTONIO with a letter.

Ant. His excellence salutes your grace.

Duch. Thou hast
A melancholy brow. How did he take my letter?
Ant. As he would take a blow; with so much sense
Of anger, his whole soul boil'd in his face;
And such prodigions flame in both his eyes,
As they 'd been th' only seat of fire, and at
Each look a salamander leaping forth,
Not able to endure the furnace.

Duch. Ha! thou dost
Describe him with some horror.

Ant. Soon as he
Had read again, and understood your meaning;
His rage had shot me with a pistol, had not
I us'd some soft and penitential language,
To charm the bullet.

Duch. Wait at some more distance. —
My soul doth bathe itself in a cold dew;
Imagine I am opening of a tomb;
[Opens the letter.]

Thus I throw off the marble, to discover
What antic posture death presents in this Pale monument to fright me. — Ha! Reads.
My heart, that call'd my blood and spirits to Defend it from the invasion of my fears,
Must keep a guard about it still, lest this Strange and too mighty joy crush it to nothing.

Antonio.

Duch. Madam.

Ant. Bid my steward give thee
Two thousand ducats. Art sure I am awake?
Ant. I shall be able to resolve you, madam,
When he has paid the money.

Duch. Columbo now is noble. Exit.

Ant. This is better Than I expected, — if my lady be
Not mad, and live to justify her bounty. Exit.

[SCENE III.]

Enter KING, ALVAREZ, HERNANDO, and Lords.

King. The war is left to him; but we must have
You reconcil'd, if that be all your difference.
His rage flows like a torrent, when he meets
With opposition; leave to wrestle with him,
And his hot blood retreats into a calm,
And then he chides his passion. You shall back
With letters from us.

Her. Your commands are not
To be disputed.

King. Alvarex. [Takes him aside.]

Lose not
Yourself by cool submission; he will find
His error, and the want of such a soldier.
2 Lord. Have you seen the Cardinal?

Her. Not yet.

1 Lord. He wants no plot—

Her. The king I must obey;
But let the purple gownman place his engines
I' th' dark, that wound 1 me.

2 Lord. Be assur'd
Of what we can to friend you; and the king
Cannot forget your service.

Her. I am sorry
For that poor gentleman.

Alv. I must confess, sir,
The duchess has been pleas'd to think me worthy
Her favours, and in that degree of honour
That has oblig'd my life to make the best Return of service, which is not, with bold
Affiance in her love, to interpose
Against her happiness, and your election.
I love so much her honour, I have quitted
All my desires; yet would not shrink to bleed
Out my warm stock of life, so the last drop
Might benefit her wishes.

King. I shall find
A compensation for this act, Alvarez;
It hath much pleased us.

Enter Duchess with a letter; Gentleman-Usher.

Duch. Sir, you are the king,
And in that sacred title it were sin
To doubt a justice: all that does concern
My essence in this world, and a great part
Of the other's bliss, lives in your breath.

King. What intends the duchess?

Duch. That will instruct you, sir. [Gives the letter.] — Columbus has,
Upon some better choice, or discontent,
Set my poor soul at freedom.

King. 'Tis his character. Reads.

"Madam, I easily discharge all my pretensions to your love and person; I leave you to your own choice; and in what you have obliged yourself to me, resume a power to cancel, if you please."

"Columbus."

This is strange!

Duch. Now do an act to make
Your chronicle belov'd and read for ever.

King. Express yourself.

Duch. Since by divine infusion,—

For 't is no art could force the general
This change, second this justice, and bestow
The heart you would have given from me, by Your strict commands to love Columbus, where 'Twas meant by Heaven; and let your breath
return
Whom you divorce'd, Alvarez, mine.

Lords.

This is
But justice, sir.

King. It was decreed above;
And since Columbus has rel'ed his interest,
Which we had wrought him, not without some force
Upon your will, I give you your own wishes:
Receive your own Alvarez. When you please
To celebrate your nuptial, I invite Myself your guest.

Duch. Eternal blessings crown you!

All. And every joy your marriage!

Exit King, who meets the CARDINAL; they converse.

Alv. I know not whether I shall wonder
most,
Or joy to meet this happiness.

Duch. Now the king
Hath planted us, methinks we grow already;
And twist our loving souls, above the wrath
Of thunder to divide us.

Alv. Ha! the Cardinal
Has met the king! I do not like this conference;

He looks with anger this way, I expect
A tempest.

Duch. Take no notice of his presence;
Leave me to meet, and answer it. If the king
Be firm in 's royal word, I fear no lightning;
Expect me in the garden.

Alv. I obey;
But fear a shipwreck on the coast.

Exit.

Car. Madam.

Duch. My lord.

Car. The king speaks of a letter that has brought
A riddle in 't.

Duch. 'T is easy to interpret.

Car. From my nephew? May I deserve the favour? [Duchess gives him the letter.]

Duch. [Aside.] He looks as though his eye would fire the paper.

They are a pair of burning glasses, and
His envious blood doth give 'em flame.

Car. [Aside.] What lethargy could thus un-spirit him?

I am all wonder. — Do not believe, madam,

But that Columbus's love is yet more sacred
To honour and yourself, than thus to forfeit
What I have heard him call the glorious wrath
To all his merits, given him by the king,
From whom he took you with more pride than ever

He came from victory: his kisses hang
Yet panting on your lips; and he but now

Exhange'd religious farewell to return,
But with more triumph, to be yours.

Duch. My lord,

You do believe your nephew's hand was not

Surpris'd or strain'd to this?

Car. Strange arts and windings in the world!
most dark
And subtle progresses! Who brought this letter?

Duch. I enquir'd not his name; I thought it

not

Considerable 2 to take such narrow knowledge.

Car. Desert and honour urg'd it here, nor can

I blame you to be angry; yet his person

Oblig'd you should have given a nobler pause,
Before you made your faith and change so violent,

From his known worth, into the arms of one,
However fashioned to your amorous wish,

Q. wounds.

Important.
Not equal to his cheapest fame, with all
The gloss of love and merit.

Duch. This comparison,
My good lord Cardinal, I cannot think
Flows from an even justice; it betrays You partial where your blood runs.

Car. I fear, madam, Your own takes too much licentious, and will soon Fall to the censure of unruly tongues. Because Alvarez has a softer cheek, Can, like a woman, trim his wanton hair, Spend half a day with looking in the glass To find a posture to present himself, And bring more effeminacy than man, Or honour, to your bed, must he supplant him? Take heed, the common murmurs, when it catches

The scent of a lost fame —

Duch. My fame, lord Cardinal?
It stands upon an innocence as clear As the devotions you pay to Heaven. I shall not urge, my lord, your soft indulgence At my next shift.

Car. You are a fine court lady! Duch. And you should be a reverend churchman.

Car. One That, if you have not thrown off modesty, Would counsel you to leave Alvarez.

Duch. 'Cause you dare do worse than marriage, must not I Be admitted what the church and law allows me?

Car. Insolent! Then you dare marry him?

Duch. Dare! Let your contracted flame and malice, with Columbo's rage, higher than that, meet us When we approach the holy place, clasp'd hand In hand we'll break through all your force, and fix

Our sacred vows together there.

Car. I knew When, with as chaste a brow, you promis'd fair To another. You are no dissembling lady!

Duch. Would all your actions had no failer lights

About 'em!

Car. Ha!

Duch. The people would not talk, and curse so loud.

Car. I'll have you chid into a blush for this.

Duch. Begin at home, great man, there's cause enough:

You turn the wrong end of the perspective
Upon your crimes, to drive them to a far And lesser sight; but let your eyes look right, What giants would your pride and surfeite seem! How gross your avarice, eating up whole families!

How vast are your corruptions and abuse

Of the king's ear! at which you hang a pendant,
Not to adorn, but ulcerate, while the honest

Nobility, like pictures in the arms,
Serve only for court ornament. If they speak, 'T is when you set their tongues, which you wind up

Like clocks, to strike at the just hour you please.

Leave, leave, my lord, these usurpations, And be what you were meant, a man to cure, Not let in, agues to religion: Look on the church's wounds.

Car. You dare presume, In your rude spleen to me, to abuse the church?

Duch. Alas, you give false aim, my lord; 't is your Ambition and scarlet sins, that rob Her altar of the glory, and leave wounds Upon her brow; which fetches grief and pale-ness

Into her cheeks, making her troubled bosom Pant with her groans, and shroud her holy blushes Within your reverend purples.

Car. Will you now take breath?

Duch. In hope, my lord, you will behold yourself In a true glass, and see those unjust acts That so deform you, and by timely cure Prevent a shame, before the short-haired men Do crowd and call for justice; I take leave.

Car. This woman has a spirit, that may rise To tame the devil's; there's no dealing with Her angry tongue; 'tis action and revenge Must calm her fury. Were Columbo here, I could resolve; but letters shall be sent To th' army, which may wake him into sense Of his rash folly, or direct his spirit Some way to snatch his honour from this flame.

All great men know the soul of life is fame.

ACT III

[Scene I.] ¹

Enter Valeria and Celinda.

Val. I did not think, Celinda, when I prais'd Alvarez to the duchess, that things thus Would come about. What does your ladyship Think of Columbo now? It staggers all The court, he should forsake his mistress; I Am lost with wonder yet.

Cel. Without a spell; but there's a fate in love; — I like him ne'er the worse.

Enter two Lords.

1 Lord. Nothing but marriages and triumph now!

Val. What new access of joy makes you, my lord, So pleasant?

² An apartment in the palace.
III. II.

THE CARDINAL

839

1 Lord. There's a packet come to court
Makes the king merry; we are all concern'd in't.
Colombo hath given the enemy a great
And glorious defeat, and is already
Preparing to march home. 1

Col. He thriv'd the better for my prayers.
2 Lord. You have been
His great admirer, madam.
1 Lord. The king longs
To see him.
Val. This news exalts the Cardinal.

Enter Cardinal.

1 Lord. He's here!
He appears with discontent; the marriage 20
With Count d'Alvarès hath a bitter taste,
And not worn off his palate: but let us leave
him.

Col. and Val. We'll to the duchess. Exeunt.

Car. He has not won so much upon the Arragon
As he has lost at home; and his neglect 25
Of what my studies had contriv'd to add
More lustre to our family by the access
Of the great duchess' fortune, cools his triumph,
And makes me wild.

Enter HERNANDO.

Her. My good lord Cardinal!

Car. You made complaint to th' king about your general? 30

Her. Not a complaint, my lord; I did but satisfy
Some questions o' the king's.

Car. You see he thrives
Without your personal valours or advice,
Most grave and learned in the wars.

Her. My lord,
I envy not his fortune.

Car. 'Tis above 35
Your malice, and your noise not worth his anger;
'Tis barking 'gainst the moon.

Her. More temper would Become that habit.

Car. The military thing would show some splen
I'll blow an army of such wasps about:

The world. — Go look your sting you left i' th' camp, sir.

Enter King and Lords.

Her. The king! — This may be one day counted for.

King. All things conspire, my lord, to make you fortunate.

Your nephew's glory —

Car. 'T was your cause and justice
Made him victorious; had he been so valiant 45
At home, he had had another conquest to Invite, and bid her welcome to new wars.

King. You must be reconcil'd to providence,
My lord.

I heard you had a controversy with
The duchess; I will have you friends.

Car. I am not angry.

King. For my sake, then,

You shall be pleas'd, and with me grace the marriage.

A churchman must show charity, and shine
With first example: she's a woman. 55

Car. You shall prescribe in all things, sir.
You cannot
Accuse my love, if I still wish my nephew
Had been so happy, to be constant to
Your own, and my election; yet my brain
Cannot reach how this comes about; I know 60
My nephew lov'd her with a near affection.

Re-enter HERNANDO.

King. He'll give you fair account at his return —
Colonel, your letters may be spar'd; the general
Has finish'd, and is coming home. Exit.

Her. I am glad on't, sir. — My good lord
Cardinal,
'Tis not impossible but some man provok'd
May have a precious mind to cut your throat.

Car. You shall command me, noble Colonel;
I know you wo' not fail to be at the wedding.

Her. 'T is not Colombo that is married, sir.

Car. Go teach the postures of the pike and musket;

Then drill your myrmidons into a ditch,
Where starve, and stink in pickle. — You shall find
Me reasonable; you see the king expects me.

[Exit.]

Her. So does the devil. —

Some desperate hand may help you on your journey. Exit.

[Scene II.] 1

Enter Secretary [ANTONIO] and Servants, [with masques, dresses, etc.]

Ant. Here, this; ay, this will fit your part:
you shall wear the slashes, because you are a soldier. Here's for the blue mute. 2

1 Serv. This doublet will never fit me; pox on't! Are these breeches good enough for a [3 prince too? Pedro plays but a lord, and he has two laces more in a seam.

Ant. You must consider Pedro is a foolish lord; he may wear what lace he please.

2 Serv. Does my beard fit my clothes well, [4
gentlemen?

Ant. Pox o' your beard!

3 Serv. That will fright away the hair.

1 Serv. This fellow plays but a mute, and he is so troublesome, and talks.

3 Serv. Master Secretary might have let Jaques play the soldier; he has a black patch
already.

2 Serv. By your favour, Master Secretary, I was ask'd who writ this play for us?

Ant. For us? Why, art thou any more than a blue mute?

2 Serv. And, by my troth, I said, I thought it was all your own.

1 A room in the Duchess's house.

2 I. e. For the mute who was to take the servant's part, blue being the general colour of a servant's livery.
Ant. Away, you coxcomb!

4 Serv. Do not think he has no more wit than to write a comedy? My lady's chaplain made the play, though he is content, for the honour and trouble of the business, to be seen in't.

5 Serv. Did anybody see my head, gentlemen? 'Twas here but now.—I shall have never a head to play my part in.

Ant. Is thy head gone? 'Twas well thy part was not in't. Look, look about; has not Jaques it?

4 Serv. I his head? 'T wo' not come on upon my shoulders.

Ant. Make haste, gentlemen; I'll see whether the king has supp'd. Look every man to his wardrobe and his part. Exit. 40

2 Serv. Is he gone? In my mind, a masque had been fitter for a marriage.

4 Serv. Why, mute? There was no time for't, and the scenes are troublesome.

2 Serv. Half a score deal tack'd together [is in the clouds, what's that? A throne, to come down and dance; all the properties have been paid forty times over, and are in the court stock: — but the secretary must have a play, to shew off his wit.

4 Serv. Did not I tell thee 'twas the chaplain's? Hold your tongue, mute.

1 Serv. Under the rose, and would this cloth of silver doublet might never come off again, if there be any more plot than you see in the [is back of my hand.

2 Serv. You talk of a plot! I'll not give this for the best poet's plot in the world, an if it be not well carried.

4 Serv. Well said, mute.

3 Serv. Ha, ha! Pedro, since he put on his doublet, has repeated but three lines, and he has broke five buttons.

2 Serv. I know not; but by this false beard, and here's hair enough to hang a reasonable [is honest man, I do not remember, to say, a strong line indeed in the whole comedy, but when the chambermaid kisses the captain.

3 Serv. Excellent, mute!

5 Serv. They have almost supp'd, and I [0 cannot find my head yet.

4 Serv. Play in thine own.

5 Serv. Thank you for that! so may I have it made a property. If I have not a head found me, let Master Secretary play my part—[is self without it.

Re-enter Secretary [ANTONIO].

Ant. Are you all ready, my masters? The king is coming through the gallery. Are the women drest?

1 Serv. Rogero wants a head.

Ant. Here, with a poke to you! take mine. You a player! you a puppy-dog. Is the music ready?

Enter Gentleman-Usher.

Gent. Gentlemen, it is my lady's pleasure that you expect till she call for you. There are [as a company of cavaliers in gallant equipage, newly alighted, have offer'd to present their

Revels in honour of this Hymen; and 't is her grace's command, that you be silent till their entertainment be over. 90

1 Serv. Gentlemen?

2 Serv. Affronted?

5 Serv. Master Secretary, there's your head again; a man's a man. Have I broken my sleep to study fifteen lines for an ambassador, and after that a constable, and is it come to this?

Ant. Patience, gentlemen, be not so hot; 'tis but defer'red, and the play may do well enough cold.

4 Serv. If it be not presented, the chaplain will have the greatest loss; he loses his wits. (Haudbois.)

Ant. This music speaks the king upon entrance. Retire, retire, and grumble not.

Exeunt [all but ANTONIO].

Enter King, Cardinal, Alvarnez, Duchess, Celinda, Valeria, Placentia, Lords, and Hernando. They being set, enter Columbo and five more, in rich habits, with a hood, and afterwards beckon to Alvarnez, as if desirous to speak with him.

Alp. With me! (They embrace and whisper.) 106

King. Do you know the masquers, madam?

Duch. Not I, sir.

Car. There's one, — but that my nephew is abroad,

And has more soul than thus to jibe upon Their hymeneal night, I should suspect 110

'Twere he. (The Masquers lead in Alvarnez.)

Duch. Where's my Lord Alvarnez? (Recorders.)

King. Call in the bridegroom.

Re-enter Columbo. Four Masquers bring in Alvarnez dead, in one of their habits, and having laid him down, exeunt.

Duch. What mystery is this?

Car. We want the bridegroom still.

King. Where is Alvarnez?

Columbo points to the body; they unwizard it, and find Alvarnez bleeding.

Duch. Oh, 'tis my lord! He's murder'd!

King. Who durst commit this horrid act?

Colum. I, sir. (Throes off his disguise.)

King. Columbo? Ha!

Colum. Yes; Columbo, that dares stay

To justify that act.

Her. Most barbarous!

Duch. Oh, my dearest lord!

King. Our guard seize on them all:

This sight doth shake all that is man within me, Poor Alvarnez, is this thy wedding day? 120

Enter Guard.

Duch. If you do think there is a Heaven, or pains

To punish such black crimes! th' other world,

Let me have swift, and such exemplar justice,

1 Flageolets.
As shall become this great assassinat
You will take off our faith else: and, if here
Such innocence must bleed, and you look on,
Poor man, that call you gods on earth, will
To obey your laws, nay, practise to be devils,
As fearing, if such monstrous sins go on,
The saints will not be safe in Heaven.

King. You shall, 136
You shall have justice.

Car. [Aside.] Now to come off were brave.

Enter Servant.

Serv. The masquers, sir, are fled; their horse, prepar'd
At gate, expected to receive 'em, where
They quickly mounted: coming so like friends,
None could suspect their haste, which is se-cur'd
By advantage of the night.

Colun. I answer for 'em all; 'tis stake enough
For many lives: but if that poniard
Had voice, it would convince they were but all Spectators of my act. And now, if you 146
Will give your judgments leave, though at the first Face of this object your cool bloods were fright-ed,
I can excuse this deed, and call it justice;
An act your honours and your office, sir,
Is bound to build a law upon, for others
To imitate. I have but took his life,
And punish'd her with mercy, who had both
Conspir'd to kill the soul of all my fame.
Read there; and read an injury as deep
In my dishonour, as the devil knew
A woman had capacity or malefic
To execute: read there, how you were cozen'd,
sir.

[Gives the DUCHESS's letter to the KING.]

Your power affronted, and my faith; her smiles,
A juggling witchcraft to betray, and make
My love her horse to walk withal, and catch
Her curled minion.

Car. Is it possible
The duchess could dissemble so, and forfeit
Her modesty with you, and to us all?
Yet I must pity her. My nephew has Been too severe; though this affront would Call
A dying man from prayers, and turn him tiger;
There being nothing dearer than our fame,
Which, if a common man, whose blood has no
Ingredient of honour, labour to Preserve, a soldier (by his nearest tie
To glory) is, above all others, bound
To vindicate: — and yet it might have been Less bloody.

Her. Charitable devil!

King. [Reads.] "I pray, my lord, release under your hand, what you dare challenge in my love or person, as a just forfeit to myself;
this act will speak you honourable to my thoughts; and when you have conquered thus yourself, you may proceed to many victories, and after, with safety of your name, visit 130
again
The lost Rosaura." To this your answer was a free resign?

Colun. Flatter'd with great opinion of her
faith,
And my desert of her (with thought that she,
Who seem'd to weep and chide my easy will 145
To part with her, could not be guilty of
A treason, or apostasy so soon,
But rather meant this a device to make Me expedite the affairs of war), I sent
That paper, which her wickedness, not justice,
Applied (what I meant trial,) her divorce. 191
I lov'd her so, I dare call heaven to witness,
I knew not whether I lov'd most; while she,
With him, whose crimson penitence I pro-vok'd, 1
Conspir'd my everlasting inning:
Examine but the circumstance.

Car. 'Tis clear; this match was made at home, before she sent
That cunning writ, in hope to take him off,
As knowing his impatient soul would scorn
To own a blessing came on crutches to him. 200
It was not well to raise his expectation,
(Had you, sir, no affront?) to ruin him
With so much scandal and contempt.

King. We have Too plentiful a circumstance to accuse
You, madam, as the cause of your own sorrows;
But not without an accessory more Than young Alvarez.

Car. Any other instrument?

King. Yes; I am guilty, with herself, and Don Colombo, though our acts look'd several ways,
That thought a lover might so soon be ransom'd; 2 210

And did exceed the office of a king,
To exercise dominion over hearts,
That owe to the prerogative of Heaven
Their choice or separation: you must, therefore,
When you do kneel for justice and revenge, 216
Madam, consider me a lateral agent
In poor Alvarez' tragedy.

1 Lord. It was your love to Don Columbo, sir.

Her. So, so! the king is charm'd. Do you observe
How, to acquit Columbo, he would draw 220
Himself into the plot. Heaven, is this justice?

Car. Your judgment is divine in this.

King. And yet
Colombo cannot be secur'd, and we Just in his pardon, that dust make so great
And insolent a breach of law and duty. 225

2 Lord. Ha! will he turn again?

King. And should we leave
This guilt of blood to Heaven, which cries, and strikes
With loud appeals the palace of eternity;

1 Brought about. 2 Bought off, transferred.
Yet here is more to charge Columbo than Alvarez' blood, and bide me punish it,
Or be no king.

_Her._ 'Tis come about, my lords.

_King._ And if I should forgive
His timeless 1 death, I cannot the offence,
That with such boldness struck at me. Has my Indulgence to your merits, which are great, 236
Made me so cheap, your rage could meet no
time
Nor place for your revenge, but where my eyes
Must be affrighted, and affronted with
The bloody execution? This contempt
Of majesty transcends my power to pardon, 240
And you shall feel my anger, sir.

_Her._ Thou shalt
Have one short prayer more for that.

_Colum._ Have I,
I' th' progress of my life,
No actions to plead me up deserving
Against this ceremony? 2

_Our._ Contain yourself. 245

_Colum._ I must be dumb then. Where is hon-
our,
And gratitude of kings, when they forget Whose hand secure'd their greatness? Take my head off;
Examine then which of your silken lords,
As I have done, will throw himself on dangers;
Like to a floating island move in blood; 250
And where your great defence calls him to stand
A bulwark, upon his bold breast to take
In death, that you may live: — but soldiers are Your valiant fools, whom, when your own securities
Are bleeding, you can cherish; but when once
Your state and nerves are knit, not thinking when
To use their surgery again, you cast
Them off, and let them hang in dusty armor-
ies,
Or make it death to ask for pay.

_King._ No more; 260
In balance with Alvarez' death, which, while
Our mercy was to judge, had been your safety;
But the affront to us, made greater by
This boldness to upbraid our royal bounty, 265
Shall tame, or make you nothing.

_Lord._ Excellent! 270

_Her._ The Cardinal is not pleas'd.

_Our._ Humble yourself
To th' king.

_Colum._ And beg my life? Let cowards do 't
That dare not die; I'll rather have no head 275
Than owe it to his charity.

_King._ To th' castle with him! —

_[Columbo is led off by the Guard._]

_Madam._ I leave you to your grief, and what
The king can recompense to your tears, or honour
Of your dead lord, expect.

_Duch._ This shows like justice. _Exeunt._

ACT IV

_[Scene I.]^8

Enter two Lords and HERNANDO.

1 Lord. This is the age of wonders.

2 Lord. Wondrous mischiefs!

_Her._ Among those guards, which some call tutelar angels,

Whose office is to govern provinces,
Is there not one will undertake Navarre?

_Her._ Hath Heaven forsook us quite?

1 Lord. Columbo at large! 8

2 Lord. And grace'd now more than ever.

1 Lord. He was not pardon'd;
That word was prejudicial to his fame.

_Her._ But, as the murder done had been a dream
Vanish'd to memory, he's courted as Preserver of his country. With what chains 10
Of magic does this Cardinal hold the king?

2 Lord. What will you say, my lord, if they enchant
The duchess now, and by some impudent art,
Advance a marriage to Columbo yet?

_Her._ Say!

_I'll_ say no woman can be say'd; nor is 't
Fit, indeed, any should pretend to Heaven,
After one such impiety in their sex:
And yet my faith has been so stagger'd, since
The king restor'd Columbo, I'll be now 20
Of no religion.

1 Lord. 'Tis not possible
She can forgive the murder; I observ'd
Her tears.

_Her._ Why, so did I, my lord;
And if they be not honest, 't is to be Half damn'd, to look upon a woman weeping. 25

When do you think the Cardinal said his prays-ers?

2 Lord. I know not.

_Her._ Heaven forgive my want of charity!
But, if I were to kill him, he should have
No time to pray; his life could be no sacrifice,
Unless his soul went too.

1 Lord. That were too much. 30

_Her._ When you mean to dispatch him, you may give
Time for confession: they have injur'd me
After another rate.

2 Lord. You are too passionate, cousin.

_Enter COLUMBO, Colonels, ALPHONSO, and Courtiers. They pass over the stage._

_Her._ How the gay men do flutter, to congratulate
His gallant delivery! There's one honest man:
What pity 't is a gallant fellow should
Depend on knaves for his preferment!

1 Lord. Except this cruelty upon Alvarez,
Columbo has no mighty stain upon him;
But for his uncle —

_Her._ If I had a son
Of twelve years old that would not fight with
him,

---

1 Untimely.

2 Formal justice.

^8 An apartment in the palace.
And stake his soul against his cardinal's cap,
I would disinherit him. Time has took a lease
But for three lives, I hope; a fourth may see Honesty walk without a crutch.

2 Lord. This is

But air and wildness,

Her. I will see the duchess.

[1 Lord.] You may do well to comfort her;
we must

Attend the king.

Her. Your pleasures.

Enter KING and CARDINAL.

1 Lord. A man of a brave soul.

2 Lord. The less his safety. —

The king and Cardinal in consult!

King. Command us to the duchess, and employ

What language you think fit and powerful
To reconcile her to some peace. — My lords.

Car. Sir, I possess all for your sacred uses. —

Exit severely.

[SCENE II.]

Enter Secretary [ANTONIO] and CELINDA.

Ant. Madam, you are the welcom'st lady living.

Cel. To whom, Master Secretary?

Ant. If you have mercy
To pardon so much boldness, I durst say,
To me — I am a gentleman.

Cel. And handsome.

Ant. But my lady has Much wanted you.

Cel. Why, Master Secretary?

Ant. You are the prettiest, —

Cel. So!

Ant. The wittiest, —

Cel. So!

Ant. The merriest lady 'tis' court.

Cel. And I was wish'd, to make the duchess pleasant? 2

Ant. She never had so deep a cause of sorrow;

Her chamber's but a coffin of a larger

Volume, wherein she walks so like a ghost, 16
'Twould make you pale to see her.

Tell her grace

I attend here.

Ant. I shall most willingly. —

A spirited lady! would I had her in my closet!

She is excellent company among the lords.

Sure she has an admirable treble. — Madam. —

Exit, Cel.

I do suspect this fellow would be nibbling,
Like some, whose narrow fortunes will not rise
To wear things when the invention's rare and new:

But treading on the heel of pride, they hunt 22
The fashion when 'tis crippled, like fell tyrants.

I hope I am not old yet; I had the honour
To be saluted by our Cardinal's nephew

This morning: there's a man!

1 A room in the Duchess's house. 2 Merry.

Re-enter Secretary [ANTONIO].

Ant. I have prevail'd.

Sweet madam, use what eloquence you can
Upon her; and if ever I be useful
To your ladyship's service, your least breath commands me. [Exit.]

Enter Duchess.

Duch. Madam, I come to ask you but one question:

If you were in my state, my state of grief,
I mean, an exile from all happiness
Of this world, and almost of Heaven, (for my Affliction is finding out despair.)

What would you think of Don Columbo?

Cel. Madam?

Duch. Whose bloody hand wrought all this misery.

Would you not weep, as I do, and wish rather
An everlasting spring of tears to drown
Your sight, than let your eyes be curst to see
The murderer again, and glorious?

So careless of his sin, that he is made
Fit for new parriade, even while his soul
Is purpled o'er, and reeks with innocent blood?

But do not, do not answer me; I know
You have so great a spirit, (which I want,
The horror of his fact 5 surprising all
My faculties), you would not let him live:

But I, poor I, must suffer more. There's not
One little star in Heaven will look on me,
Unless to choose me out the mark, on whom
It may shoot down some angry influence.

Enter PLACENTIA.

Pla. Madam, here's Don Columbo says he must

Speak with your grace.

Duch. But he must not, I charge you. —

[Exit PLACENTIA.]

None else wait? — Is this well done,

To triumph in his tyranny? Speak, madam,

Speak but your conscience.

Enter COLUMBO and Secretary [ANTONIO].

Ant. Sir, you must not see her. Were she cabled up above
The search of bullet or of fire, were she

Within her grave, and that the toughest mine

That ever nature teem'd and groan'd withal,

I would force some way to see her. — Do not fear

I come to court you, madam; y' are not worth
The humblest of my kinder thoughts. I come

To show the man you have provok'd, and lost,

And tell you what remains of my revenge. —

Live, but never presume again to marry;

I'll kill the next at th' altar, and quench all

The ambling tapers with his blood: if after,

You dare provoke the priest and Heaven so much

To take another, in thy bed I'll cut him from

Thy warm embrace, and throw his heart to ravens. 2

2 Deed.
Col. This will appear an unexampled cruelty.

Duch. Your pardon, madam; rage, and my revenge,
Not perfect, took away my eyes. You are
A noble lady, this not worth your eye-beam;
One of so slight a making; and so thin,
An autumn leaf of too great a value.
To play, which shall be soonest lost i' th' air.
Be pleas'd to own me by some name in your Assurance, I despi.de to be receiv'd,
There; let her witness that I call you mistress;
Honour me to make these pearls your carcanet.

[Given her a necklace.

Col. My lord, you are too humble in your thoughts.

Ant. Now, madam.

Col. Away, you saucy fellow! — Madam, I
Must be excus'd, if I do think more honourably
Than you have cause of this great lord.

Duch. Why, is not

All woman-kind concern'd to hate what 's im-pius?

Col. For my part —

Duch. Antonio, is this a woman?

Ant. I know not whether she be man or wo-
man;
I should be nimble to find out the experiment.
She look'd with less state when Columbo came.

Duch. Let me entreat your absence. [Aside.]
I am cozen'd in her. —

I took you for a modest, honest lady.

Col. Madam, I scorn any accuser; and Deducting the great title of a duchess,
I shall not need one grain of your dear honour
To make me full weight: if your grace be jealous,
I can remove.

Ant. She is gone.

Duch. Prithee remove
My fears of her return. [Exit Ant. — She is not worth
Considering; my anger 's mounted higher.
He need not put in caution for my next
Marrige. — Alvarez, I must come to thee,
Thy virgin wife, and widow; but not till
I ha' paid those tragic duties to thy hearse Become my piety and love. But how?
Who shall instruct a way?

Enter Placentia.

Pla. Madam, Don

Duch. My servant has prepar'd me to receive it,
If 't concern my dead lord.

Her. Can you name
So much of your Alvarez in a breath,
Without one word of your revenge? O, madam,
I come to chide you, and repent my great
Opinion of your virtue, that can walk,
And spend so many hours in naked solitude;
As if you thought that no arrears were due
To his death, when you had paid his funeral charges,
Made your eyes red, and wept a handkerchief.
I come to tell you that I saw him bleed;
I, that can challenge nothing in his name
And honour, saw his murder'd body warm,
And panting with the labour of his spirits,
Till my amaz'd soul shrink'd and bid itself:
While barbarous Columbo grinning stood,
And mock'd the weeping wounds. It is too
much,
That you should keep your heart alive so long
After this spectacle, and not revenge it.

Duch. You do not know the business of my heart,
That censure me so rashly; yet I thank you;
And, if you be Alvarez' friend, dare tell
Your confidence, that I despise my life,
But know not how to use it in a service
To speak me his revenger: this will need
No other proof, than that to you, who may Be sent with cunning to betray me, I Have made this bold confession. I so much Desire to sacrifice to that hovering ghost
Columbo's life, that I am not ambitious
To keep my own two minutes after it.

Her. If you will call me coward, which is equal
To think I am a traitor, I forgive it
For this brave resolution, which time
And all the destinies must aid. I beg
That I may kiss your hand for this; and may
The soul of angry honour guide it —

Duch. Whither?

Her. To Don Columbo's heart.

Duch. It is too weak, I fear, alone.

Her. Alone? Are you in earnest? Why, will it
Not
Be a dishonour to your justice, madam,
Another arm should interpose? But that
It were a saucy act to mingle with you,
I durst, nay, I am bound in the revenge Of him that's dead, (since the whole world has interest
In every good man's loss,) to offer it.
Dare you command me, madam?

Duch. Not command; But I should more than honour such a truth
In man, that durst, against so mighty odds, Appear Alvarez' friend, and mine. The Cardinal —

Her. Is for the second course; Columbo must Be first cut up; his ghost must lead the dance:
Let him die first.

Duch. But how?

Her. How! with a sword; and, if I undertake it,
I wo’ not lose so much of my own honour,
To kill him basely.
Duch.
How shall I reward
This infinite service? ‘Tis not modesty
(While now my husband groans beneath his tomb)
And calls me to his marble bed, to promise,
What this great act might well deserve, myself,
If you survive the victor; but if thus Alvarez’ ashes be appeas’d, it must Deserve an honourable memory;
And though Columbo (as he had all power,
And grasp’d the fates) has vow’d to kill the man
That shall succeed Alvarez —
Her.
Tyranny!
Duch. Yet, if ever
I entertain a thought of love hereafter,
Hernando from the world shall challenge it;
Till when, my prayers and fortune shall wait
on you.
Her. This is too mighty recompense.
Duch.
’Tis all just.
Her. If I outlive Columbo, I must not Expect security at home.
Duch.
Thou canst
Not fly where all my fortunes, and my love
Shall not attend to guard thee.
Her.
Duch. Thy memory
Shall have a shrine, the next within my heart,
To my Alvarez.
Her.
Once again your hand.
Your cause is so religious, you need not
Strengthen it with your prayers; trust it to me.
Re-enter PLACENTIA, and the CARDINAL.
Pla. Madam, the Cardinal.
Duch.
Will you appear?
Her. An he had all the horror of the devil
In’s face, I would not baulk him.
He stares upon the CARDINAL in his exit.
Car. [Aside.] What makes Hernando here?
I do not like
They should consult; I’ll take no note. — The king
Fairly salutes your grace; by whose command
I am to tell you, though his will and actions
Ilimited, stoop not to satisfy
The vulgar inquisition, he is Yet willing to retain a just opinion
With those that are plac’d near him; and although
You look with nature’s eye upon yourself,
Which needs no perspective to reach, nor art
Of any optic to make greater, what
Your narrow sense applies an injury, (Ourself still nearest to ourselves,) but there’s Another eye that looks abroad, and walks
In search of reason, and the weight of things,
With which, if you look on him, you will find
His pardon to Columbo cannot be
So much against his justice, as your erring
Faith would persuade your anger.

Duch.
Good my lord,
Your phrase has too much landscape, and I cannot Distinguish at this distance you present
The figure perfect; but indeed my eyes
May pray your lordship find excuse, for tears
Have almost made them blind.
Car.
Fair peace restore ‘em!
To bring the object nearer, the king says,
He could not be severe to Don Columbo
Without injustice to his other merits,
Which call more loud for their reward and honour,
Than you for your revenge; the kingdom made
Happy by those; you only, by the last,
Unfortunate: — nor was it rational,
I speak the king’s own language, he should die
For taking one man’s breath, without whose valour
None now had been alive without dishonour.
Duch. In my poor understanding, ‘tis the crown
Of virtue to proceed in its own track,
Not deivate from honour. If you acquit
A man of murder, ‘cause he has done brave
Things in the war, you will bring down his valour
To a crime, nay, to a bawd, if it secure
A rape, and but teach those that deserve well
To sin with greater license. But dispute
Is now too late, my lord; ‘t is done; and you,
By the good king, in tender of my sorrows,
Sent to persuade me ‘t is unreasonable
That justice should repair me.
Car.
You mistake;
For if Columbo’s death could make Alvarez
Live, the king had given him up to law,
Your bleeding sacrifice; but when his life
Was but another treasure thrown away,
To obey a clamorous statute, it was wisdom
To himself, and common safety, to take off
This killing edge of law, and keep Columbo
To recompense the crime by noble acts,
And sorrow, that in time might draw your pity.
Duch. This is a greater tyranny than that Colombo exercis’d; he kill’d my lord;
And you have not the charity to let Me think it worth a punishment.
Car.
To that,
In my own name, I answer: I condemn,
And urge the bloody guilt against my nephew;
‘T was violent and cruel, a black deed
A deed, whose memory doth make me shudder;
An act, that did betray a tyrannous nature,
Which he took up in war, the school of vengeance;
And though the king’s compassion spare him here,
Unless his heart
Weep itself out in penitent tears,
Duch.
This sounds
As you were now a good man.
Car.
Does your grace
Think I have conscience to allow the murder?
Although, when it was done, I did obey
The stream of nature, as he was my kinsman,
To plead he might not pay his forfeit life,
Could I do less for one so near my blood? 275
Consider, madam, and be charitable;
Let not this wild injustice make me lose
The character I bear, and reverend habit.
To make you full acquainted with my innocence,
I challenge here my soul, and Heaven to witness.
If I had any thought, or knowledge with
My nephew's plot, or person, when he came,
Under the smooth pretense of friend, to violate
Your hospitable laws, and do that act,
Whose frequent mention draws this tear, a whirlwind
Snatch me to endless flames!

Duch. I must believe,
And ask your grace's pardon. I confess
I have not lov'd you since Alvarez' death,
Though we were reconcil'd. Car.
I do not blame
Your jealousy, nor any zeal you had
To prosecute revenge against me, madam,
As I then stood suspected, nor can yet
Implore your mercy to Columbo. All
I have to say is, to retain my first
Opinion and credit with your grace;
Which you may think I urge not out of fear,
Or ends upon you, (since, I thank the king,
I stand firm on the base of royal favour,) But for your own sake, and to show I have Compassion of your sufferings.
Duch. You have clear'd 200
A doubt, my lord; and by this fair remonstrance,
Given my sorrow so much truce, to think
That we may meet again, and yet be friends.—
But be not angry, if I still remember
By whom Alvarez died, and weep, and wake 205
Another justice with my prayers.
Car. All thoughts
That may advance a better peace dwell with you! Exit.
Duch. How would this cozening statesman bribe my faith
With flatteries, to think him innocent!
No; if his nephew die, this Cardinal must not Be long liv'd. All the prayers of a wrong'd widow
Make firm Hernando's sword! and my own hand
Shall have some glory in the next revenge.
I will pretend my brain with grief distracted,
It may gain easy credit; and beside
The taking off examination
For great Columbo's death, it makes what act
I do in that belief'd want of my reason,
Appear no crime, but my defence.—Look down,
Soul of my lord, from thy eternal shade,
And unto all thy blest companions boast
Thy duchess busy to revenge thy ghost! Exit.

1 Supposed.

Enter [on one side] Columbo and Alphonso;
[on the other,] Hernando and a Colonel.

Colum. Hernando, now I love thee, and do half
Repent the affront my passion threw upon thee.
Her. You will not be too prodigal of your penitence.

Colum. This makes good thy nobility of birth;
Thou may'st be worth my anger and my sword,
If thou dost execute as daringly
As thou provok'st a quarrel. I did think Thy soul a starveling, or asleep.

Her. You'll find it
Active enough to keep your spirit waking;
Which, to exasperate, for yet I think
It is not high enough to meet my rage—
Do you smile?

Colum. This noise is worth it. Gentlemen,
I'm sorry this great soldier has engag'd
Your travails; all his business is to talk.
Her. A little of your lordship's patience,
You shall have other sport, and swords that will Be as nimble 'bout your heart as you can wish.
'Tis pity more than our two single lives
Should be at stake.

Colum. Make that no scruple, sir.
Her. To him then that survives, if fate allow
That difference, I speak, that he may tell
The world, I came not hither on slight anger,
But to revenge my honour, stain'd and trampled on
By this proud man; when general, he com-nanded
My absence from the field.

Colum. I do remember,
And I'll give your soul now a discharge.

Her. I come to meet it, if your courage be so fortunate.
But there is more than my own injury
You must account for, sir, if my sword pros-er;
Whose point and every edge is made more keen
With young Alvarez' blood, in which I had
A noble interest. Does not that sin benumb
Thy arteries, and turn the guilty flowings
To trembling jelly in thy veins? Canst hear Me name that murder, and thy spirits not Struck into air, as thou wast shot by some Engine from Heaven?

Colum. Thou art the duchess' champion!
Thou hast given me a quarrel now. I grieve
It is determin'd all must fight, and I Shall lose much honour in his fall.

Her. That duchess, 40 (Whom but to mention with thy breath is sacrilege,
An orphan of thy making, and condemn'd
By thee to eternal solitude, I come
To vindicate; and while I am killing thee,
By virtue of her prayers sent up for justice, 45
At the same time, in Heaven I am pardon’d for’t.

Col. I cannot hear the brave.

Her. Two words more,
And take your chance. Before you all I must Proclaim that noble lady without knowledge
Or thought of what I undertake for her. 50
Poor soul she’s now at her devotions,
Busy with Heaven, and wearing out the earth
With her stiff knees, and bribing her good angel

With treasures of her eyes, to tell her lord
How much she longs to see him. My attempt 60
Needs no commission from her: were I
A stranger in Navarre, the inborn right
Of every gentleman to Alvarez’ loss
Is reason to engage their swords and lives
Against the common enemy of virtue.

Col. Now have you finish’d? I have an instrument Shall cure this noise, and fly up to thy tongue,
To murder all thy words.

Her. One little knot
Of phlegm, that clogs my stomach, and I ha’ done:
You have an uncle, call’d a Cardinal,
Would he were lurking now about thy heart,
That the same wounds might reach you both, and send
Your reeling souls together! Now have at you.

Alph. We must not, sir, be idle.

[They fight; Colombo’s second [Alphonso], slain.

Her. What think you now of praying?

Col. Time enough. 70
He kills Hernando’s second.

Command me to my friend; the scales are even.
I would be merciful, and give you time
Now to consider of the other world;
You’ll find your soul benighted presently.

Her. I’ll find my way i’ the dark.
They fight, and close; Colombo gets both the swords, and Hernando takes up the second’s weapon.

Col. A stumble’s dangerous. 76
Now ask thy life.—Ha! 77

Her. I despise to wear it,
A gift from any but the first bestower.

Col. I scorn a base advantage.—

Colombo throws away one of the swords: they fight: Hernando wounds Colombo.— 80

Ha!

I am now
Out of your debt.

Col. Thou ‘st don’t, and I forgive thee.
Give me thy hand: when shall we meet again?

Her. Never, I hope.

Col. I feel life ebb space: yet I’ll look upwards,
And show my face to Heaven. 84

[Disc.

Her. The matter’s done; I must not stay to bury him.

Exit.

ACT V

[Scene I.] 1

Enter two Lords.

1 Lord. Colombo’s death doth much afflict the king.

2 Lord. I thought the Cardinal would have lost his wits

At first, for ’s nephew; it drowns all the talk
Of the others that were slain.

1 Lord. We are friends, I do suspect Hernando had some interest,
And knew how their wounds came.

2 Lord. His flight confirms it, For whom the Cardinal has spread his nets.

1 Lord. He is not so weak to trust himself at home
To his enemy’s grize.

2 Lord. All strikes not me so much
As that the duchess, most oppressed lady,
Should be distracted, and before Colombo Was slain.

1 Lord. But that the Cardinal should be made
Her guardian, is to me above that wonder.

2 Lord. So it pleas’d the king; and she, with that small stock
Of reason left her, is so kind and smooth Upon him.

1 Lord. She’s turn’d a child again: a madness,
That would ha’ made her brain and blood boil high,
In which distemper she might ha’ wrought something—

2 Lord. Had been to purpose.

1 Lord. The Cardinal is cunning: and how s’il
His brow does smile, he does suspect Hernando Took fire from her, and waits a time to punish it.

2 Lord. But what a subject of disgrace and mirth
Hath poor Celinda made herself by pride,
In her belief Colombo was her servant! 26
Her head hath stoop’d much since he died, and she Almost ridiculous at court.

Enter CARDINAL, ANTONELLI, and Servant.

1 Lord. The Cardinal
Is come into the garden, now—

Car. Walk off. — [Exeunt Lords.

It troubles me the duchess by her loss
Of brain, is now beneath my great revenge. 30
She is not capable to feel my anger,
Which, like to unregarded thunder spent
In woods, and lightning aim’d at senseless trees, Must idly fall, and hurt her not, not to
That sense her guilt deserves: a fatal stroke, 35
Without the knowledge for what crime, to fright her
When she takes leave, and make her tug with death, 36
A garden.
Until her soul sweat, is a pigeon's torment,
And she is sent a babe to the other world.
Columbo's death will not be satisfied,
And I but wound her with a two-edg'd feather.
I must do more: I have all opportunity,
(Shed by the king now made my charge,) but she's
So much a turtle, I shall lose by killing her,
Perhaps do her a pleasure and preferment;
That must not be.

Enter Celinda with a parchment.
Ant. [stopping her.] — Is not this she, that Columbo's mistress? — Madam, his grace is private,
And would not be disturb'd; you may displease
him.
Cel. What will your worship wager that he shall Be pleas'd again before we part?
Ant. I'll lay this diamond, madam, 'gainst a kiss,
And trust yourself to keep the stakes.
Cel. 'Tis done. [Comes forward.]
Ant. I have long had an appetite to this lady;
But the lords keep her up so high — this toy
May bring her on.
Car. This interruption tastes not of good manners.
Cel. But where necessity, my lord, compels,
The boldness may meet pardon, and when you
Have found my purpose, I may less appear unmanly.
Car. To the business.

It did please Your nephew, sir, before his death, to credit me
With so much honourable favour, I
Am come to tender to his nearest blood,
Yourself, what does remain to debt to him. Not to delay your grace with circumstance.
That deed, if you accept, makes you my heir
Of no contemptible estate. — [Aside.] This way
He reads.

Is only left to tie up sourcile tongues
And saucy men, that since Columbo's death
Venture to libel on my pride and folly;
His greatness and this gift, which I enjoy
Still for my life, (beyond which term a kingdom's Nothing;) will curb the giddy spleens of men
That live on impudent rhyme, and railing at Each wandering fame they catch.
Car. Madam, this bounty
Will bind my gratitude, and care to serve you.
Cel. I am your grace's servant.
Car. Antonelli! — Whisper.
Cel. And when this noble lady visits me,
Let her not wait.
Cel. What think you, my officious sir? His grace
Is pleas'd, you may conjecture: I may keep Your gem; the kiss was never yours.
Ant. Sweet madam —
Cel. Talk if you dare; you know I must not wait;
And so, farewell for this time. [Exit.] 88

Car. 'T is in my brain already, and it forms
Apace — good, excellent revenge, and pleasant!
She's now within my talons: 't is too cheap
A satisfaction for Columbo's death,
Only to kill her by soft charm or force.
'I'll ride first her darling chastity;
'T will be after time enough to poison her,
And she to th' world be thought her own destroyer.
As I will frame the circumstance, this night
All may be finished: for the colonel,
Her agent in my nephew's death, (whom I Disturb'd at counsel with her,) I may reach him
Hereafter, and be master of his fate.
We starve our conscience when we thrive in state.

Exeunt.

[Scene II.] 1

Enter Secretary [Antonio] and Placentia.
Ant. Placentia, we two are only left
Of all my lady's servants; let us be true
To her, and one another; and be sure,
When we are at prayers, to curse the Cardinal.
Pla. I pity my sweet lady.
Ant. I pity her too, but am a little angry;
She might have found another time to lose
Her wits.
Pla. That I were a man!
Ant. What would'st thou do, Placentia?
Pla. I would revenge my lady.
Ant. 'T is better, being a woman; thou may'st do Things that may prosper better, and the fruit
Be thy own another day.
Pla. Your wit still loves
To play the wanton.
Ant. 'T is a sad time, Placentia;
Some pleasure would do well: the truth is, I Am weary of my life, and I would have
One fit of mirth before I leave the world.
Pla. Do not you blush to talk thus wildly?
Ant. 'T is good manners
To be a little mad after my lady;
But I ha' done. Who is with her now?
Pla. Madam Valeria.
Ant. Not Celinda? There's a lady for my
honour!
A pretty book of flesh and blood, and well
Bound up, in a fair letter too. Would I
Had her with all the errata!
Pla. She has not
An honourable fame.
Ant. Her fame! that's nothing; A little stain; her wealth will fetch again
The colour, and bring honour into her cheeks As fresh; —
If she were mine, and I had her exchequer,
I know the way to make her honest;
Honest to th' touch, the test, and the last trial.
Pla. How, prithee?
Ant. Why,
First I would marry her, that's a verb material;
Then I would print her with an index
Expurgatorius; a table drawn

1 A room in the Duchess's house.
Of her court heresies; and when she’s read,
Cum privilegio, who dares call her whore?
Pla. I’ll leave you, if you talk thus.
Ant. I ha’ done;
Placentia, thou mayst be better company
After another progress; and now tell me,
Didst ever hear of such a patient madness
As my lady is possess with? She has ravy’d
But twice: — an she would fright the Cardinal,
Or at a supper if she did but poison him,
It were a frenzy I could bear withal.
She calls him her dear governor.

Enter Hernando disguised, having a letter.
Pla. Who is this? Her. Her secretary! — Sir,
Here is a letter, if it may have so
Much happiness to kiss her grace’s hand.
Ant. From whom? Her. That’s not in your commission, sir,
To ask, or mine to satisfy; she will want
No understanding when she reads.
Ant. Alas! Under your favour, sir, you are mistaken;
Her grace did never more want understanding.
Her. How?
Ant. Have you not heard? Her skull is broken, sir,
And many pieces taken out; she’s mad.
Pla. The sad fame of her distraction
Has too much truth, it seems.
Pla. If please you, sir,
To meet awhile, I will present the letter.
Her. Pray do. — Exit Placentia.
How long has she been thus distemper’d, sir?
Ant. Before the Cardinal came to govern here,
Who, for that reason, by the king was made
Her guardian. We are now at his devotion.
Her. A lamb given up to a tiger! May diseases
Soon eat him through his heart!
Ant. Your pardon, sir.
I love that voice; I know it too a little.
Are not you — be not angry, noble sir,
I can with ease be ignorant again,
And think you are another man; but if
You be that valiant gentleman they call — Her. Whom? What?
Ant. That kill’d — I would not name him, if I thought
You were not pleas’d to be that very gentleman.
Her. Am I betray’d?
Ant. The devil sha’ not Betray you here: kill me, and I will take
My death you are the noble colonel.
We are all bound to you for the general’s death,
Valiant Hernando! When my lady knows
You are here, I hope ’t will fetch her wits,
But do not talk too loud; we are not all
Honest i’ th’ house; some are the Cardinal’s creatures.
Her. Thou wert faithful to thy lady. I am glad

Enter Antonelli.

’Tis night. But tell me how the churchman uses
The duchess.

Enter Antonelli.

Ant. He carries angels in his tongue and face,
but
Suspect his heart: this is one of his spawns.—
Signor Antonelli.
Anton. Honest Antonio!
Ant. And how, and how — a friend of mine — where is
The Cardinal’s grace?
Her. [Aside.] That will be never answered.
Anton. He means to sup here with the duchess.
Ant. Will he?
Anton. We'll have the charming bottles at my chamber.
Bring that gentleman; we’ll be mighty merry.
Her. [Aside.] I may disturb your jollity.
Anton. Farewell, sweet — [Exit.]
Ant. Dear Antonelli! — A round posh confound
This is court rhetoric at the back-stairs.

Enter Placentia.

Pla. Do you know this gentleman?
Ant. Not I.
Pla. My lady presently dismiss Valeria,
And bade me bring him to her bed-chamber.
Ant. The gentleman has an honest face.
Pla. Her words fell from her with some evenness and joy.
Her grace desires your presence.
Her.

I’ll attend her.

Ant. I would this soldier had the Cardinal
Upon a promontory, with what a spring
The churchmen would leap down! It were a spectacle
Most rare, to see him topple from the precipice,
And souse in the salt water with a noise
To stun the fishes; and if he fell into
A net, what wonder would the simple sea-gulls
Have, to draw up the o’ergrown lobster?
So ready boil’d! He shall have my good wishes.
This colonel’s coming may be lucky; I
Will be sure none shall interrupt ’em.

Enter Celinda.

Cel.
Her grace at opportunity?
Ant. No, sweet madam;
She is asleep, her gentlewoman says.
Cel. My business is but visit. I’ll expect.
Ant. That must not be, although I like your company.
Cel. You are grown rich, Master Secretary.
Ant. Madam! Alas!
Cel. I hear you are upon another purchase.
Ant. I upon a purchase!
Cel. If you want any sum —

1 Loyalty (to the Duchess).
2 Referring, of course, to the color of the Cardinal’s robes.
3 Wait.
Ant. If I could purchase your sweet favour, madam.

Ccl. You shall command me, and my fortune, sir.

Ant. [Aside.] How's this?

Ccl. I have observ'd you, sir, a staid and prudent gentleman — and I shall want — Ant. Not me?

Ccl. A father for some infant: he has credit
I 't the world. — [Aside.] I am not the first cast lady

Has married a secretary.

Ant. Shall I wait upon you?

Ccl. Whither?

Ant. Any whither.

Ccl. I may chance lead you then. Ant. I shall be honour'd to obey. My blood is up, and in this humour I'm for anything. Ccl. Well, sir, I'll try your manhood.

Ant. 'Tis my happiness;

You cannot please me better.

Ccl. [Aside.] This was struck

I the opportunity.

Ant. I am made for ever.

[Exit, following her.]

[SCENE III.]

Enter Hernando and Duchess.

Her. Dear madam, do not weep.

Duch. Y. 'r very welcome; I ha' done; I wo' not shed a tear more Till I meet Alvarez, then I'll weep for joy. He was a fine young gentleman, and sung sweetly;

An you had heard him but the night before We were married, you would ha' sworn he had been

A swan, and sung his own sad epitaph. But we'll talk o' the Cardinal.

Her. Would his death

Might ransom your fair sense I should not live

To triumph in the loss. Beshrew my manhood, But I begin to melt.

Duch. I pray, sir, tell me — for I can understand, although they say I have lost my wits; but they are safe enough, And I shall have 'em when the Cardinal dies; — Who had a letter from his nephew, too,

Since he was slain?

Her. From whence? Duch. I know not where he is. But in some bower Within a garden he is making chaplets, And means to send me one; but I 'l not take it; I have flowers enough, I thank him, while I live. Her. But do you love your governor? Duch. Yes, but I 'l never marry him; I am promis'd

Already.

Her. To whom, madam? Duch. Do not you blush when you ask me that? Must not you be My husband? I know why, but that 's a secret.

Indeed, if you believe me, I do love
No man alive so well as you: the Cardinal Shall never know 't; he 'll kill us both; and yet He says he loves me dearly, and has promis'd To make me well again; but I 'm afraid, One time or other, he will give me poison.

Her. Prevent him, madam, and take nothing

Duch. Why, do you think 't will hurt me?

Her. It will kill you.

Duch. I shall but die, and meet my dear-lov'd lord,

Whom, when I have kist, I 'll come again and work A bracelet of my hair for you to carry him, When you are going to Heaven; the posy shall Be my own name, in little tears, that I Will weep next winter, which congeal'd i' th' frost,

Will show like seed-pearl. You'll deliver it? I know he 'l love, and wear it for my sake. Her. She is quite lost.

Duch. I pray give me, sir, your pardon:

I know I talk not wisely; but if you had The burthen of my sorrow, you would miss Sometimes your better reason. Now I 'm well; What will you do when the Cardinal comes? He must not see you for the world.

Her. He sha' not;

I 'll take my leave before he come.

Duch. Nay, stay; I shall have no friend left me when you go. He will but sup; he sha' not stay to lie with me. I have the picture of my lord abed; Three are too much this weather.

Enter Placentia.

Pla. Madam, the Cardinal.

Her. He shall sup with the devil.

Duch. I dare not stay; The red cock will be angry. I 'll come again.

Exeunt [Duchess and Placentia.]

Her. This sorrow is no fable. Now I find My curiosity is sadly satisfied.

Hal! if the duchess in her straggled wits Let fall words to betray me to the Cardinal, The panther will not leap more fierce to meet His prey, when a long want of food hath parch'd His starved maw, than he to print his rage, And tear my heart-strings. Everything is fatal; And yet she talk'd sometimes with chain of sense, And said she lov'd me. Hal! they come not yet. I have a sword about me, and I left My own security to visit death. Yet I may pause a little, and consider Which way does lead me to 't most honourably. Does not the chamber that I walk in tremble? What will become of her, and me, and all The world in one small hour? I do not think Ever to see the day again; the wings Of night spread o'er me like a sable hearse-cloth; The stars are all close mourners too; but I Must not alone to the cold silent grave,

1 Another room in the same.

2 The Cardinal.
I must not. — If thou canst, Alvarez, open
That ebon curtain, and behold the man,
When the world’s justice fails, shall right thy ashes,
And feed their thirst with blood! Thy duchess is Almost a ghost already, and doth wear
Her body like an useless upper garment,
The trim and fashion of it lost. — Ha!

Re-enter Placentia.

Pla. You need not doubt me, sir. — My lady

You would not think it long; she in my ear
Commanded me to tell you, that when last
She drank, she had happy wishes to your health.
Her. And did the Cardinal pledge it?

Pla. He was not

Invited to ’t, nor must he know you are here.
Her. What do they talk of, prithee?

Pla. His grace is very pleasant

A lute is heard.

And kind to her; but her returns I am after
The sad condition of her sense, sometimes Unjointed.

Her. They have music.

Pla. A lute only.

His grace prepar’d; they say, the best of Italy,
That waits upon my lord.

Her. He thinks the duchess
Is stung with a tarantula.

Pla. Your pardon;

My duty is expected.

Her. Gentle lady! —

A voice too!

Song within.

Strp. Come, my Daphne, come away,

We do waste the crystal day;
’Tis Strephon calls. Dop. What says my love?

Strp. Come, follow to the myrtle grove,

Where Venus shall prepare
New chaplets for thy hair.

Dop. Were I shut up within a tree,

I’d read my bark to follow thee.

Strp. My shepherdess, make haste;

The minutes slide too fast.

Dop. In those cooler shades will I,

Blind as Cupid, kiss thine eye.

Strp. In thy bosom then shall I stay;

In such warm snow who would not lose his
way?

Chor. We’ll laugh, and leave the world behind,

And gods themselves that see,

Shall envy thee and me,

But never find
Such joys, when they embrace a deity.

Her. If at this distance I distinguish, ’tis not Church music; and the air’s wanton, and no anthem
Sung to ’t, but some strange ode of love and kisses.

What should this mean? — Ha? he is coming hither. [Draws his sword.]
I am betray’d; he marches in her hand,
I’ll trust a little more; mute as the arras,
My sword and I here.

[He conceals himself behind the arras, and observes.]

Enter Cardinal, Duchess, Antonelli, and Attendants.

Car. Wait you in the first chamber, and let none
Presume to interrupt us.—

[Exeunt [Antonelli and Attendants.]

She is pleasant;

Now for some art, to poison all her innocence.
Duch. I do not like the Cardinal’s humour; he Little suspects what guest is in my chamber. Car.
Now, madam, you are safe.

[Embraces her.]

Duch. How means your lordship?

Cur. Safe in my arms, sweet duchess.

Duch. Do not hurt me.

Car. Not for the treasures of the world! You
are
My pretty charge. Had I as many lives
As I have careful thoughts to do you service,
I should think all a happy forfeit, to Delight your grace one minute; ’tis a Heaven
To see you smile.

Duch. What kindness call you this?

Car. It cannot want a name while you preserve
So plentiful a sweetness; it is love.

Duch. Of me? How shall I know ’t, my lord?
Car. By this, and this, swift messengers to whisper
Our hearts to one another. Kisses her.

Duch. Pray, do you come a wooing?

Cur. Yes, sweet madam;

You cannot be so cruel to deny me.

Duch. What, my lord?

Car. Another kiss.

Duch. Can you

Dispense with this, my lord? — (Aside.) Alas; I fear
Hernando is afeard, or vanish’d from me.

Car. [Aside.] I have mock’d my blood into a flame; and what
My angry soul had form’d for my revenge,
Is now the object of my amorous sense.
I have took a strong enchantment from her lips,
And fear I shall forgo Columbus’s death,
If she consent to my embrace.— Come, madam.

Duch. Whither, my lord?

Car. But to your bed or couch,

Where, if you will be kind, and but allow Yourself a knowledge, love, whose shape and raptures
Wise poets have but glorified in dreams,
Shall make your chamber his eternal palace;
And with such active and essential streams
Of new delights glide o’er your bosom, you Shall wonder to what unknown world you are
By some blest change translated. Why d’ ye pause,
And look so wild? Will you deny your governor?

Duch. How came you by that cloven foot?

Car. Your fancy

Would turn a traitor to your happiness.

I am your friend; you must be kind.

Duch. Unhand me,

Or I’ll cry out a rape.
Car. You wo' not, sure?
Duch. I have been cozen'd with Hernando's shadow;
Here's none but Heaven to hear me.— Help! a rape!
Car. Are you so good at understanding? Then,
I must use other argument.
He forces her. [HERNANDO rushes from the arras.]
Her. Go to, Cardinal.
Strikes him; exit DUCHESS.
Car. Hernando? Murder! treason! help!
Her. An army sha' not rescue thee. Your blood
Is much inflam'd; I have brought a lancet wi' me
Shall open your hot veins, and cool your fever.—
To vex thy parting soul, it was the same
Engine that pierc'd^1 Columbo's heart.
Car.
Help! murder! [Stabs him.]

Enter ANTONELLI and Servants.
Anton. Some ring the bell, 'twill raise the court;
My lord is murder'd! 'Tis Hernando.
The bell rings.
Her. I'll make you all some sport.— [Stabs himself.]—So; now we are even.
Where is the duchess? I would take my leave
Of her, and then bequeath my curse among you.
He falls.

Enter KING, DUCHESS, VALERIA, Lords, and Guard.
King. How come these bloody objects?
Her. With a trick my sword found out. I hope he's paid.
1 Lord. [Aside.] I hope so too.— A surgeon
For my lord Cardinal!
King. Hernando?
Duch. Justice! oh, justice, sir, against a ravisher!
Her. Sir, I ha' done you service.
King. A bloody service.
Her. 'Tis pure scarlet.

Enter Surgeon.
Car. [Aside.] After such care to perfect my revenge,
Thus banded out o' th' world by a woman's plot!
Her. I have preserv'd the duchess from a rape.
Good night to me and all the world for ever.
Dés.
King. So impious!
Duch. 'Tis most true; Alvare's blood is now reveng'd; I find my brain return,
And every straggling sense repairing home.
Car. I have deserv'd you should turn from me, sir,
My life hath been prodigiously wicked;
My blood is now the kingdom's balm. Oh, sir,
I have abus'd your ear, your trust, your people,
1 Q. pine'd.

And my own sacred office; my conscience
Feels now the sting. Oh, show your charity,
And with your pardon, like a cool soft gale,
Fan my poor sweating soul, that wanders through Uninhabitable climates, and parched deserts.
But I am lost, if the great world forgive me,
Unless I find your mercy for a crime
You know not, madam, yet, against your life,
I must confess, more than my black intents
Upon your honour; you're already poison'd.
King. By whom?
Car. 'By me,
In the revenge I ow'd Columbo's loss;
With your last meat was mixt a poison, that
By subtle, and by sure degrees, must let
In death.
King. Look to the duchess, our physicians!
Car. Stay;
I will deserve her mercy, though I cannot
Call back the deed. In proof of my repentance,
If the last breath of a now dying man
May gain your charity and belief, receive
This ivory box; in it an antidote,
'Tbove that they boast the great magistral medicine:
That powder, mixt with wine, by a most rare
And quick access to the heart, will fortify it
Against the rage of the most nimble poison.
I am not worthy to present her with it.
Oh, take it, and preserve her innocent life.
1 Lord. Strange, he should have a good thing in such readiness.
Car. 'Tis that, which in my jealousy and state,
Trust to false predictions of my birth,
That I should die by poison, I preserv'd
For my own safety; wonder not, I made
That my companion was to be my refuge.

Enter Servant with a bowl of wine.
1 Lord. Here's some touch of grace.
Car. In greater proof of my pure thoughts, I take
This first, and with my dying breath confirm
My penitence; it may benefit her life.
But not my wounds. [He drinks.] Oh, hasten to preserve her;
And though I merit not her pardon, let not
Her fair soul be divorc'd.
[The DUCHESS takes the bowl and drinks.]
King. This is some charity; may it prosper, madam!
Val. How does your grace?
Duch. And must I owe my life to him, whose death
Was my ambition? Take this free acknowledgment;
I had intent, this night, with my own hand
To be Alvare's justicer.
King. You were mad,
And thought past apprehension of revenge.
Duch. That shape I did usurp, great sir, to give My heart more freedom and defence; but when Hernando came to visit me, I thought
I might defer my execution;
v. iii.

THE CARDINAL

853

Which his own rage suppli’d without my guilt, And when his lust grew high, met with his blood.

1 Lord. The Cardinal smiles.

Car. Now my revenge has met
With you, nimble duchess! I have took A shape to give my act more freedom too, And now I am sure she’s poison’d with that dose I gave her last.

King. Thou’rt not so horrid?

Duch. Ha! some cordial.

Car. Alas, no preservative
Hath wings to overtake it; were her heart
Lock’d in a quarry, it would search and kill Before the aids can reach it. I am sure You sha’ not now laugh at me.

King. How come you by that poison?

Car. Resolving, when I had enjoy’d her, which
The colonel prevented, by some art
To make her take it, and by death conclude My last revenge. You have the fatal story.

King. This is so great a wickedness, it will Exceed belief.

Car. I knew I could not live.

Surg. Your wounds, sir, were not desperate.

Car. Not mortal? Ha! were they not mortal?

Surg. If I have skill in surgery,
Car. Then I have caught myself in my own engine.

2 Lord. It was your fate, you said, to die by poison.

Car. That was my own prediction, to abuse
Your faith; no human art can now resist it: I feel it knocking at the seat of life;
It must come in; I have wrack’d all my own To try your charities: now it would be rare,
If you but waft me with a little prayer;
My wings that flag may catch the wind; but ’tis
In vain, the mist is risen, and there’s none
To steer my wand’ring bark.

Dies. 1 Lord. He’s dead.

King. When men
Of gifts and sacred function once decline From virtue, their ill deeds transcend example.

Duch. The minute ’s come that I must take my leave, too.

1 Disguise.

Your hand, great sir; and though you be a king,

We may exchange forgiveness, Heaven forgive, And all the world! I come, I come, Alvarez. Dies.

King. Dispose their bodies for becoming funereal.

How much are kings abus’d by those they take To royal grace, whom, when they cherish most By nice indulgence, they do often arm Against themselves! from whence this maxim springs:
None have more need of perspectives than kings.

Exeunt.

EPILOGUE

Within. Master Pollard! Where’s Master Pollard, for the epilogue?

He is thrust upon the stage, and falls.

Epi. (rising) I am coming to you, gentlemen; the poet Has help’d me thus far on my way, but I’ll Be even with him: the play is a tragedy, The first that ever he compos’d for us, Wherein he thinks he has done prettily,

Enter Servant.

Epi. Yes, he has broke his epilogue all to pieces. Canst thou put it together again?

Serv. Not I, sir.

Epi. Now I; prithee be gone. [Exit Serv.]— Hum! — Master poet,

I have a teeming mind to be reveng’d. — You may assist, and not be seen in ’t now, If you please, gentlemen, for I do know He listens to the issue of his cause; But blister not your hands in his applause; Your private smile, your nod, or hem I to tell My fellows that you like the business well; And when, without a clap, you go away, I’ll drink a small-beer health to his second day: And break his heart, or make him swear and rage He’ll write no more for the unhappy stage. But that’s too much; so we should lose faith, shew it, And if you like his play, ’t’s as well he knew it.

ADDITIONAL NOTES ON THE PLAYS

ENDYMION

Endymion was published in 1591, and the title-page states that it had been played "before the Queenes Maiestie at Greenwich on Candelmas day at night, by the Chyldren of Paules." It is fairly certain that this performance took place on Feb. 5, 1590. The present text is based on Bond's reprint of the quarto of 1591, with slight additions from the version included by Biount in his Six Court Comedies, 1632. Like most of Lyly's plays, Endymion is an allegory of the court, with a mythological basis. Very little, however, is here borrowed from the myth of the Moon-goddess and her lover, and the plot is evidently invented with a view to carrying contemporary allusions. Beginning with Halpin's paper in 1848, many attempts have been made to read the riddle, the latest and most ingenious being that of M. Feuillerat, who identifies Cynthia with Elizabeth, Tellus with Mary of Scots, and Endymion with her son, James VI. The credit of having disproved the Endymion-Leicester identification is shared with M. Feuillerat by Dr. P. W. Long, who seeks to read the play as mainly an allegory of Heavenly Beauty (Cynthia) and Earthly Beauty (Tellus), an interpretation perhaps not wholly incompatible with the more personal solution.

THE OLD WIVES TALE

The Old Wife's Tale, as the title should appear in modern spelling (the reference being, of course, to Madge), was first published in 1605, and on this quarto, as reprinted by Gumure, the present text is based. The precise date of production has not been definitely ascertained, but it was probably not far from 1590. Source, in the usual sense of the term, the play can hardly be said to have; it is a medley of a dozen themes from current English folk-tales. Realistic in diction, romantic in subject-matter, the play was a notable innovation in its day; and through the peculiar irony of the satire on romance, Peele introduced a new and subtler form of humor into English comedy. Both in its main theme, and in its use of the induction, this drama is an interesting forerunner of The Knight of the Burning Pestle.

FRIAR BACON AND FRIAR BUNGAY

This play was first printed in quarto in 1594, and that edition (Q1), as printed by Collins and Gayley, forms the basis of the present text. The existence of a second quarto, said to have been issued in 1599, has been rendered highly doubtful by Gayley. Later editions appeared in 1630 (Q2) and 1655 (Q5). The date of production was probably 1589-90. That part of the plot dealing with the marvelous exploits of Friar Bacon is drawn from The Famous Historie of Friar Bacon, a late sixteenth-century account of the legends that had gathered round the name of the Oxford Franciscan, Roger Bacon (born 1214). The love story is Greene's own. It seems probable that this comedy was conceived as a foil to Marlowe's tragedy of Doctor Faustus, some of the scenes approaching an actual parody, and stress being laid on the superiority of the English to the German necromancer.

TAMBURLAINE

Both parts of Tamburlaine were entered in the Stationers' Register on Aug. 14, 1590, and they appeared together in octavo in 1590, and again in 1592. The alleged existence of editions of 1593, 1597, and 1600 is unsupported by evidence; and the third edition seems to be that of 1605 (part ii.), printed from the first. The issue of 1590 is the basis of the present text. The first part of the play was probably produced three years before, in 1587, and the second part in the following year. All the early editions are anonymous, nor does there survive any pre-Restoration statement as to the authorship; yet so convincing is the internal evidence that the ascription to Marlowe may be regarded as indubitable.

The main source of part i. is Fortescue's Foreste, 1571, a translation of Pedro Mexia's Sive de vara lection, 1543. Additional details were derived from The Notable History of the Saracens by Thomas Newton, 1575, and from Petrus Peronelius, 1553. The title-rôle was first acted by the gigantic Edward Alleyn.

DOCTOR FAUSTUS

Allusions to contemporary events in the Low Countries fix the limits for the date of Doctor Faustus as 1585 and 1590; and the evidence of style places it after Tamburlaine. A ballad which seems to be inspired by the play was licensed in February, 1589, so that it is generally agreed that the first production of the play fell in the winter of 1588-89. "A booke calld the plate of Doctor Faustus" was entered in the Stationers' Register on Jan. 7, 1601, but if an edition was published in that year, no copy has survived. The earliest extant edition is that of 1604 (Q1), on which the present text is based. This version was reprinted in 1609 and 1611: and in 1616 appeared an enlarged form, followed in the later quartos of 1616, 1620, 1624, and 1631. An edition issued in 1663 has many additions and excisions, but...
THE JEW OF MALTA

The earliest mention of this play occurs in Henslowe's Diary, where a performance is noted as taking place on February 26, 1599, and it is implied that the tragedy was not then new. Its composition is conjecturally placed about 1596. On May 17, 1594, it was entered on the Stationers' Register, but no edition has come down to us earlier than a corrupt quarto of 1633, which is thus our sole authority for the text. As to the source from which Marlowe drew his material, nothing definite is known. Kellner (Englische Studien, x. 80) has elaborated a parallel between the career of Marlowe's hero and that of a sixteenth-century Portuguese Jew, Micheleus, who is mentioned by a number of historians; but such accounts as have been found could have furnished only suggestions.

This play was one of the most popular on the Elizabethan stage, Henslowe recording thirty-six performances before June 31, 1596.

EDWARD II

When The troublesome Reign and Lamentable Death of Edward the Second was entered in the Stationers' Register on July 6, 1603, the play had been already on the stage for some time; and it is probable that it was first produced in 1591 or 1592. No copy issued in 1593 is extant, and the earliest surviving quarto belongs to 1604. On this, the best of the early prints, the present text is based. Other editions followed in 1598, 1612, and 1622. Marlowe's main source for the historical basis of the play was Holinshed, Fabian's and Stowe's Chronicles having also supplied some minor details. Chronological accuracy is often disregarded, yet in its main lines the action is substantially faithful to history. The play is Marlowe's ripest production, and we are fortunate in having the text preserved in a purer state than that of any of his other plays.

In the four plays by Marlowe, Tucker Brooke's reprints of the early editions have been used.

THE SPANISH TRAGEDY

The most definite indication of the date of this, one of the most popular of all Elizabethan plays, is found in an allusion in the Induction to Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair (1614), where it seems to be implied that The Spanish Tragedy was then twenty-five or thirty years old. This gives us the years 1584-9 as limits; and the absence of any reference to the Armada, in a play laid in Spain, has led critics to place it before 1588. The year 1586 may, perhaps, be fairly conjectured as coming within a year of the date of composition. In 1592 it was being successfully performed; and on October 6 of that year it was entered for publication. The first edition has disappeared entirely; and the earliest extant is an undated quarto in the British Museum. Other quartos appeared in 1594 and 1598; and in the edition of 1602 are first found the additions made to the play by Ben Jonson, and included in the later quartos of 1610, 1615, 1618, 1623, and 1633. The present text is based on the B. M. quarto for Kyd's part of the play, and on that of 1602 for the additions, which are pointed out in the foot-notes; and I have availed myself of the collations of both Manley and Boas. All the early editions are anonymous; and the ascription of the play to Kyd is made on the authority of a passage in Heywood's Apology for Actors, 1612.

BUSY D'AMBOIS

The first quarto of Bussy D'Ambois appeared in 1607, and a second in 1608. In 1614 a third quarto appeared, which claimed to be "much corrected and amended by the author before his death," and this was reissued in 1646 and 1657. The present text is based on Boas's reprint of the quarto of 1641. The date of the production of the play is uncertain. Certain entries in Henslowe's Diary point to 1598, but if the play was on the stage as early as this, it must have been revised before its publication in 1607. Bussy D'Ambois belongs to the group of Chapman's plays dealing with almost contemporary French politics. D'Ambois himself was born in 1549, and was murdered by Monsoreau's retainers in 1579. The earliest extant account of his career is later in date than the play, and the precise sources of Chapman's information have not yet been found. But from the later descriptions it is clear that the action of the play, and the view given of the hero's character, are substantially historical.

EVERY MAN IN HIS HUMOUR

This play, the first example of "the comedy of humours," was performed in 1598 with great success. It was published in quarto in 1601, and in this version the characters bear Italian names, and the scene is laid in Italy. It was revised about 1606, and this second version, with the names and scene made English and with many other changes, was published in the folio of 1616. The present text is based directly on the folio. The plot, which seems to have been entirely of Jonson's invention, is constructed with a view to those classical standards of comedy, which Jonson sought to uphold against the prevailing romantic license.
SEJANUS, HIS FALL

Sejanus was first performed in 1603, but, as Jonson admits, failed to please the audience. It was published in 1605, and again in the folio of 1616. On this latter the present text is based. It is not necessary to discuss the sources of this impressive tragedy, since Jonson has supplied us in his ample foot-notes with documentary evidence for nearly every fact in the play. These notes have been reproduced in the present edition, through the first scene, which is probably as far as the modern reader will care to study them. The delineation of Tiberius is one of the most successful attempts in our literature to recreate a highly complex historical character.

VOLPONE, OR THE FOX

Volpone was performed in 1606 at the Globe theatre and at both Oxford and Cambridge, and in 1607 was printed in quarto. It was included in the folio of 1616, on which the present text is based. The main plot is founded on an episode in the Saturicon of Petronius Arbiter; but the parts of Celio and of Sir Policie and Lady Would-be are of Jonson's own invention. The song, "Drink to me only with thine eyes," is practically a translation from Philostratus, and "Come, my Celio" is imitated from Catullus. The comedy is a terrible satire on some of the most sordid aspects of human nature, and the superb skill with which it is constructed barely suffices to counteract the depressing effect of the types of character it displays.

THE ALCHEMIST

The Alchemist, which may, perhaps, be regarded as Jonson's supreme masterpiece in comedy, was performed in 1610, and published in quarto in 1612. The present text is based on that of the folio of 1616. It has been frequently stated that for the plot of this play Jonson was indebted to Plautus, but the borrowing is very slight. In the Mostellaria there is a scene which might have suggested the opening dialogue of The Alchemist, and another which bears a slight resemblance to Face's attempt to hoodwink his master in V. i. In the Poenulus, a man speaks Punic, and is misunderstood somewhat as Surly's Spanish is misunderstood in IV. iii. But the plot as a whole is Jonson's own, and the alchemical and astrological matter is drawn from a wide acquaintance with current treatises on these subjects. Attempts have been made to identify Subtle and Face with the famous Dee and Kelley, but identification is much too strong a word. Hathaway has pointed out a more striking correspondence with the activities of Simon Forman, a notorious quack of Jonson's day. The Alchemist has been credited with a considerable effectiveness in clearing London of the type of impostors which it ridicules and exposes so trenchantly and amusingly.

THE SHOEMAKERS' HOLIDAY

This, the first of Dekker's comedies, was acted in 1609, and printed in the following year. On the text of this quarto, as reprinted by Warnke and Prosebold, the present text is based. The story of the partly historical Simon Eyre was found by Dekker in one of the tales in Thomas Deloney's Gentle Craft, 1597; but the main interest of the play lies in its picture of London tradespeople in the author's own day, and for this Dekker needed no literary source.

THE HONEST WHORE

From a passage in Henslowe's Diary it appears that Middleton had some share in the first part of The Honest Whore, but it is not supposed that he wrote any considerable portion of it. The second part is wholly Dekker's, and is generally regarded as superior to the first. The first edition of part i. appeared in 1604, of part ii. in 1630. Pearson's reprint, on which the present text is based, follows the 1605 quarto of part i. and the 1630 of part ii. A copy of the 1655 quarto of the double play has been used to check Pearson's text. No source of the plot has been discovered. The play is a highly characteristic product of the time, both in its picture of the vices of the city, and in its sound and straightforward, if somewhat coarse, handling of the moral issues involved. The character of Friscoaldo, in part ii., afforded Hazlitt the theme for what he himself justly regarded as one of his finest pieces of critical interpretation.

THE MALCONTENT

The Malcontent was first issued in 1604; and in the same year a second quarto appeared with the title-page, "The Malcontent. Augmented by Marston. With the Additions played by the Kings Maiesties servants. Written by Thos. Webster. 1604. At London Printed by V. S. for William Aspley, and are to be sold at his shop in Paulles Church-yard." The title-page of the first edition gives John Marston as author; the date and publisher are the same. The second edition, on which the present text is directly based, contains, as new matter, the Induction and a number of additions, marked in the present text by brackets and specified in the foot-notes. Its title-page has proved highly misleading; the facts seem to be that Webster supplied the Induction when the play was revived by the King's men; and that the other additions are restorations of passages from Marston's original play which had been cut for acting purposes. Stoll, who has made this clear, places the composition of the play in 1600, and has given the tragi-comedy a new importance, in addition to its intrinsic vigor and effectiveness, by arguing forcibly for it as an influence on the characters of Shakespeare's Jaques and Hamlet. The source of the plot has so far not been discovered.

A WOMAN KILLED WITH KINDNESS

This tragedy, one of the earliest and most pathetic examples of domestic drama, was first published in 1607; and the present text is based on Pearson's reprint of this quarto. The play was acted in 1603, as appears from an entry in Henslowe's Diary. The title, like those of several other plays by Heywood, was a proverbial phrase. Creizenach (IV. 264) states that Heywood borrowed the two plots of this drama from Margaret of Navarre and from Bandello. The thirty-second tale in the Heptameron does indeed tell of a husband who refrained from killing a wife taken in adultery, but the resemblance is far from close.

THE KNIGHT OF THE BURNING PESTLE

The Knight of the Burning Pestle was printed in quarto in 1613, and on Murch's reproduction of this edition the present text is based. A second and a third quarto were issued in 1633, and the play was included in the second folio edition of Beaumont and Fletcher in 1679. The date of composition is uncertain, but recent opinion tends to place it about 1610. It cannot be said that there is as yet a general agreement as to the respective shares of the two authors in this comedy, but according to the most careful examination of the question so far made, that of Dr. Murch, most of the play should be ascribed to Beaumont, Fletcher having probably written only the three love scenes, I. i. 1-60; III. i.; and IV. iv. 18-93. In spite of the similarity between the satirical purpose of this play and of Don Quixote, it has not been shown that the authors had any knowledge of the work of Cervantes, or that they could read Spanish. (The first English translation of Don Quixote appeared in 1622.) In the mock-heroic part of the play, the object of the satire was the type of play founded upon medieval romance and popular at that time among the tradespeople of London; and of this type, Heywood's Four Prentices of London seems to have been especially in view. Koeppel has pointed out the resemblance between the coffin scene in Act IV. and an episode in Marston's Antonio and Mellida (1605). The love-plot is too commonplace to have a definitely assignable source, and the scenes between Merrythought and his wife, like those of the Induction, are, one may be sure, due to direct observation of contemporary life and manners.

PHILASTER

The first quarto of Philaster, issued in 1620, seems to have been unauthorised, and to have been made up in part from a report taken down at a performance. At the beginning and end it is quite different from the other quartos. The second quarto, 1629, as reprinted by Thorndike, is the basis for the present text, with occasional readings from the later quartos and the folio of 1679. The play was probably written about 1609-10. The respective shares of the two authors are difficult to assign. Olivant and Thorndike give to Fletcher I. i. 39-360; II. ii.; II. iv. 69-203; passages in III. ii.; V. iii.; and V. iv.; the rest to Beaumont; the prose scenes with less assurance. Macaulay gives little beyond V. iii., iv. to Fletcher. This distribution is made mainly on the grounds of the characteristics of the metre; it does not exclude the probability of intimate collaboration in plot and characterization. The story of the play seems to have been original, though several of the motives are common enough. There is marked indebtedness to Hamlet, and much resemblance to Cymbeline, though Thorndike has argued plausibly for the view that in the latter case Shakespeare was the borrower.

THE MAID'S TRAGEDY

As in the case of Philaster, the first quarto of The Maid's Tragedy (1619) is corrupt and unauthorised. The second quarto (1622), with Thorndike's collations of the first and third (1630), is the basis for the present text. The date of composition is probably about 1609-11. There is more agreement here than in the case of Philaster as to the respective shares of the joint authors. Most critics give Fletcher II. ii.; IV. i.; V. i. 1-111; V. ii. the rest to Beaumont, with the exception of I. ii, which is uncertain. Macaulay gives II. ii. also to Beaumont. The source of the plot has not been found, though minor resemblances have been noted, such as that of the duel between Aspatia and Amintor, to the fight between Parthenia and Amphialus in Sidney's Arcadia, book iii., and that of the quarrel between Melanius and Amintor to that between Brutus and Cassius in Julius Caesar.

THE FAITHFUL SHEPHERDESS

The first quarto of The Faithful Shepherdess is undated, but it was certainly issued before May, 1610, and the play had been unsuccessfully produced not long before, perhaps in 1605 or 1609. The present text is based on the first edition, and is dependent on the collations in the Glover and Waller edition of Beaumont and Fletcher. Fletcher's chief model in this pastoral seems to have been Gus- rini's Pastor Fido, and some few details are borrowed from Spenser; but the plot itself seems to be original. The play, as Fletcher confesses in his address To the Reader, was unsuccessful on the stage, but the beauty of its lyric and descriptive poetry has given it, in spite of its weak dramatic quality, a distinguished place in literature. It is notable also as having in part suggested Milton's Comus.
THE WILD-GOOSE CHASE

The Wild-Goose Chase, we are told by the publisher of the first folio edition of Beaumont and Fletcher, was lost when that volume was compiled; it reappeared later, and was issued separately, in folio, in 1622. A second edition appeared in the folio of 1679. The present text is based on the reprint of Walker, following, however, the edition of 1622 in preference to that of 1679. The comedy is known to have been acted as early as 1621. No source for the plot seems as yet to have been found. Parquhar based on it his comedy of The Inconstant, a fact which points to the obvious relationship between the Fletcherian comedy, of which this is a typical example, and the drama of the Restoration.

THE DUCHESS OF MALFI

The first edition of The Duchess of Malfi appeared in quarto in 1633, and was followed by others in 1640, 1678, and 1708. The present text follows chiefly the Harvard copy of the first quarto, with occasional readings supplied by Sampson’s collation of the other editions. The date of first performance cannot be later than 1641, since the actor who created the part of Antonio died in that year. The main plot is taken from Painter’s Palace of Pleasure, vol. ii, Nov. 23 (1667). Painter translated his story from Belle-Forest’s paraphrase (1685) of the twenty-sixth novella of Bandello (1564). The story appears in many places, and had been dramatized by Lope de Vega. Crawford (Notes and Queries, Sept. 17–Nov. 12, 1904) has shown many incidental and even literal borrowings from Sidney’s Arcadia. Among the elements in the plot not found in Painter are the underplot of Julia and the Cardinal, the scenes of torture, and the most of the fifth act. Some of the scenes are derived from the tradition of the tragedy of revenge, especially as represented by Shakespeare, Marston, and Tourneur; but, in spite of frequent echoes, this impressive tragedy, almost the last of its kind, derives its vitality mainly from the powerful and sombre imagination of Webster.

A TRICK TO CATCH THE OLD ONE

This comedy was licensed October 7, 1607, and published in quarto in 1608. A second edition appeared in 1616. The present text is based directly on the copy of the first quarto in the Boston Public Library, with the aid of the readings from the second quarto given by Bullein. The plot is supposed to have been Massinger’s suggestion for A New Way to Pay Old Debts, but where Middleton found it, if he did not originate it, is not known. This play is an excellent example of Middleton’s comedies of intrigue and manners, full of bustle and fun, more careful of theatrical effect than of moral or aesthetic consistency.

THE CHANGELING

The Changeling was performed as early as 1633, but did not appear in print till 1653. On a copy of this quarto in the Harvard Library the present text is based. The source of the tragic plot is the fourth history in book i. of John Reynolds’s Triumph of God’s Revenge against Murder (1621), but the prose narrative is not followed closely. The under-plot, which gives its title to the play, may be original. Miss Wiggin assigns to Rowley the whole under-plot, and the opening and closing scenes of the main plot. Symons finds the greatness of the play as a whole due to the collaboration of the two authors, and beyond the powers of either alone (Cf. Camb. Hist. of Eng. Lit., vi. 76–7).

A NEW WAY TO PAY OLD DEBTS

This play, Massinger’s masterpiece in comedy, appeared in quarto in 1633, and on the Harvard Library copy of this edition the present text is based. The play was acted before 1636, and Fleay places it as early as 1622. Few plays of this whole period have held the English stage so continuously or so long as this. The central idea of the plot seems to have been taken from Middleton’s A Trick to Catch the Old One; but there is almost as great a difference in the dramatic method between the two plays as there is in moral tone. Massinger’s didacticism here finds eloquent expression, without destroying theatrical effectiveness. Prototypes of Sir Giles Overreach and Greedy have been found in the notorious monopolist, Sir Giles Mompesson and his tool, Michael.

THE BROKEN HEART

The only early edition of The Broken Heart was published in 1633, and the present text is based on a copy of this quarto in the Boston Public Library. There is no evidence as to the date of composition except the hitherto unhoted fact that The Garden of Good Will, mentioned in IV. ii. 16, was published in 1637. The prologue seems to imply that the plot of the play is founded on fact, and Sherman has argued plausibly that the reference is to the story of Penelope Devereux, Sidney’s “Stella,” whose second husband Ford had eulogized in his first publication, Fame’s Memorial (1591). It is certain that Ford was interested in both Sidney and Stella, and there are many correspondences between their situation and that of Orgilus and Penthea. The catastrophe is, of course, entirely changed; but in the spiritual situation there is much to recall the sonnets of Astrophel to Stella. There are traces of the influence of the Arcadia also in the play, such as the laying of the plot in Sparta; and in the delineation of the jealousy of Bassanes Ford draws upon Burton’s Anatomy of Melancholy.
THE LADY OF PLEASURE

The Lady of Pleasure was published in quarto in 1637, and the present text is based on a copy of this edition in the Harvard Library. The play, a good example of Shirley's comedy of manners, was produced in 1636. No source has been discovered for the plot. Like Fletcher's Wild-Goose Chase, this type of Shirley's comedies is important in measuring the approach made toward the Restoration comedy before the Puritan Revolution.

THE CARDINAL

This tragedy, regarded by Shirley as his greatest play, and in fact no unworthy piece to close a volume representing the drama of that age, appeared in a volume of Six New Plays in 1653, the date on the title-page of The Cardinal being 1652. On a copy of this octavo in the Harvard Library the present text is based. The play was acted in 1641, and thus belongs to the last few months before the theatres were closed by the Long Parliament. It is probable that Webster's Duchess of Malfi afforded more than a suggestion for the plot, but otherwise no source has been found. The play was popular both on its first appearance and when it was revived after the Restoration.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

JOHN LYLY

John Lyly was born in Kent about 1554. His father was Peter Lyly, Registrar of Canterbury, and his grandfather the well-known grammarian, William Lyly, the friend of Colet and More. He entered Magdalen College, Oxford, in 1569, whence he graduated B. A. in 1573, and M. A. in 1575. Here he was more distinguished for wit than for scholarship. Going up to London, and living at first under the protection of Burleigh, he produced in 1578 his Euphues: the Anatomy of Wit, which was followed in 1580 by Euphues and his England, both of which gained a great and immediate popularity. He was now attached to the Earl of Oxford. Campaspe, his first play, was performed in 1581, and most of his dramatic work was done in that decade. The Woman in the Moon, however, may have been produced as late as 1594-5. In 1583, Lyly married Beatrice Browne, a well-connected lady, who bore him eight children. From 1588 he seems to have held an honorary position as Esquire of the Body to the Queen, and he lived for years in the vain hope of succeeding to the office of Master of the Revels. Between 1589 and 1601 he sat in four parliaments, and in his Pappe with an Hatchet (1589) he took part with the Bishops in the Marprelate controversy. In spite of the distinction which Lyly won by his literary work, he failed to obtain from the Queen the substantial preferment which he craved, and he died in 1606, a disappointed place-seeker. Lyly's reputation has depended largely on the extraordinary vogue of his Euphues, and the immense influence of the style of that work on the prose of the time; but he holds also a highly important position in the development of polite comedy in England.

GEORGE PEELE

The date of Peele's birth is unknown, but is conjecturally placed about 1558. In 1566 he was a free scholar at Christ's Hospital, of which his father was clerk, and in 1571 he went to Oxford. He was a student first at Broadgates Hall (now Pembroke College), and later at Christ Church, whence he graduated B. A. in 1577, and M. A. in 1579. From the University, where he had already achieved some reputation as a poet, he went to London, and apparently plunged at once into the irregularities that wrecked his career, for in the same year the governors of Christ's Hospital forced his father to turn him out of the precincts of the hospital. His wife, whom he had married by 1583, brought him some property, which he soon dissipated; and he became a member of that group of authors who wrote plays, pageants, and all sorts of occasional productions, in the uncertain hope of earning a living. The famous Jestes, fathered on Peele, are probably quite unauthentic; but there is an unfortunate appropriateness in many of them to his known mode of life. He seems to have been an actor as well as a playwright. Meres mentions him in Palladis Tamia (1583) as dead.

Peele's claims to distinction rest upon his treatment of metre, and on his humor. He did much to refine and supple the diction of the drama, and before Marlowe placed his stamp upon blank verse, Peele was writing it with great sweetness and a charming musical quality. In the present play, the realistic element in the dialogue is more notable than the decorative, and this realism is employed in the service of a new type of humor. "He was the first," says Gummere, "to blend romantic drama with a realism which turns romance back upon itself, and produces the comedy of subconscious humor."

ROBERT GREENE

Greene was much given to the mingling of autobiography with his fiction, and this has resulted in a much larger body of possibly true biographical details than we possess concerning most of his contemporaries. He was born in Norwich of a respectable family, probably about 1550; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, in 1575; graduated B. A. in 1578; travelled in Spain and Italy, and, by his own account, lived up to the proverbial reputation of the Italianate Englishman; returned to Cambridge and took his M. A. in 1581; and during the rest of his short life busied himself in the production of the very considerable mass of romances, tracts, songs, and plays which to-day give him his place in literature. About 1585 he married a Lincolnshire woman, who bore him a son, and whom he deserted after spending her portion. The Annals of literature hardly bear the record of a more sordid career than that of this university-bred man of letters; and his death was only too fitting a close to it. He died in 1592 in the house of a poor shoemaker, to whom he gave a bond for ten pounds, leaving the following letter to his deserted wife: "Doll, I charge thee by the love of our youth and by my soul's rest that thou wilt see this man paid, for if he and his wife had not succoured me I had died in the streets.
Robert Greene." Following his own wish, the shoemaker's wife crowned his head with a garland of bay.

In spite of the self-confessed wickedness of his ways, Greene was not a hardened criminal, and no themes are more frequent in his tracts than moral exhortation and repentance. It is further notable that his work is freer from grossness than that of most of his contemporary playwrights, and he is distinguished for the freshness and purity of his female creations. He seems also, to judge from his plays, to have retained a love for the country, where he often chose to lay his scenes; and he ranks high among the lyrists of the time. The vivacity and variety of his humor are well exemplified in the play here printed.

CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE

Christopher Marlowe was the eldest son of a substantial burgess of Canterbury, and he was born in that city on February 6, 1564. He entered the King's School in January, 1572, and two years later became a scholar of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, whence he graduated B. A. in 1584, and M. A. in 1587. As Tamburlaine was acted in that year, it appears that Marlowe's academic and his literary life overlapped. Little is certainly known of his later life, apart from the production of his plays and poems. He belonged to a circle of which Sir Walter Raleigh was the centre, and which contained men like the Earl of Oxford, and Harriot, the mathematician. These men seem to have engaged in scientific and theological speculation, and were suspected of atheism by the narrower spirits of the time. This connection was probably the basis for certain extreme charges made against Marlowe after his death; but there is little evidence worthy of consideration. Even the documents connected with Kyd, in which that author seeks to save his own reputation for orthodoxy at Marlowe's expense, are under suspicion in point of genuineness. Marlowe died by the hand of a certain Francis Archer, at Deptford, in 1593, but the circumstances are obscure. The later reports, such as that according to which he was stabbed by a serving man in a brawl over a mistress, are inconsistent with one another, and are little worthy of credit. The prevailing impression of the dissoluteness of Marlowe's life is not based on substantial evidence such as we have, for example, in the case of Greene.

No such uncertainty as surrounds his character and career attaches to the quality of his work. Born in the same year as Shakespeare, he left behind him at twenty-nine work which far surpasses anything his great contemporary had written by that time. In the vastness and intensity of his imagination, the splendid dignity of his verse, and the dazzling brilliance of his poetry at its best, Marlowe exhibited the greatest genius that had so far appeared in the English drama.

THOMAS KYD

The date of Kyd's birth may with practical certainty be placed in 1558. His father was a London scrivener, and the son was educated at Merchant Taylors' School, which he entered in 1568. Mulcaster was then headmaster, and Edmund Spenser was among his schoolfellows. He does not seem to have attended a university. A habit of anonymity has thrown a cloud over the extent of Kyd's literary activity, and the list of his plays and translations has been compiled with difficulty and much less than complete certainty. His fame depends upon The Spanish Tragedy, and upon the importance of his contribution to the Senecan tragedy of revenge in this play and probably in the lost pre-Shakespearian Hamlet, which is now usually ascribed to him.

The later years of his life seem to have been unfortunate, and he was arrested on charges of sedition and atheism in 1593. From the latter he sought, if the letter to Puckering (Boas, p. cvii.) is genuine, to clear himself by ascribing the ownership of the incriminating documents to the dead Marlowe, and he endeavored to minimise the closeness of his intimacy with his great contemporary. These charges, it appears, lost him his patron, and perhaps in some degree his theatrical popularity. He died in 1594.

Kyd seems to have been a man of gloomy temperament, and the vividness and intensity with which he presents in his work the darker sides of human nature and experience are probably in some degree the outcome of his own disposition. In spite of tendencies to melodrama that, to the modern taste, border on the ludicrous, Kyd rises at times to the utterance of genuine passion, and even his sensationalism is frequently impressive. But his historical importance in the development of the type of tragedy of which Hamlet is the climax must be granted to be greater than his intrinsic value.

GEORGE CHAPMAN

George Chapman was born in Hitchin, Hertfordshire, in 1557 or 1558, and was educated at Oxford, and perhaps also at Cambridge. His earliest extant work is The Shadow of Night (1594), which was followed in 1585 by Ovid's Banquet of Sense, The Amorous Zodiac, and other poems, works curiously obscure and contorted in style, though containing distinguished passages. In 1598, he finished Mar-

Dekker's

Ben

Ben Jonson came of an Annandale family, and was born at Westminster in 1573. He followed his stepfather's trade of bricklaying for a short time, and later served as a soldier in Flanders. He probably began play-writing about 1595, and two years later we find him in the Admiral's Company of actors. In 1598 he is mentioned by Meres as a writer of tragedy, and in the same year he killed a fellow-actor in a duel. In prison he became a Roman Catholic, but returned to the Church of England twelve years later. He scored a success with Every Man in his Humour in 1598, Shakespeare acting a part in the play. After several years of work on satirical drama, Jonson turned to tragedy; and on the accession of James I, he began his long series of masques and court entertainments.
In 1605 he was again in prison, this time for his share in Eastward Ho! From this date till about 1617 Jonson was at the height of his fame, and was the leading literary figure in London. He visited France in 1613 as tutor to Raleigh's son; and in 1616 issued a folio dition of his works. In 1618, he visited Scotland, and held his famous cussions with Drummond of Hawthornden; and, on his return, Oxford made him an M. A. After the death of James I, Jonson was less fortunate in court favor, suffered from ill health, and was unsuccessful at the theatre. In 1623, however, he succeeded Middleton as chronicler to the city of London, and the King sent him £100 in his sickness, later raising his salary. But fortune turned against him again; he lost his city office, made further attempts to regain theatrical favor, and died August 6, 1637. Besides plays, he left an interesting prose work, Timber, or Discoveries, and a considerable amount of non-dramatic verse. A second folio edition of his Works appeared in 1640.

Jonson's artistic ideals were classical rather than romantic, and he stands, in significant respects, in opposition to some of the main literary currents of his time. The plays in the present volume include an example of the "comedy of humors" introduced by him, a typical example of his tragedy, and two of his satirical masterpieces. In these alone one can find abundant evidence that, despite a lack of charm and geniality, one is dealing with the work of a deep student of human nature, a vigorous and independent thinker, and a master of eloquent and virile expression.

THOMAS DEKKER

Dekker's career is an extreme instance of the hazardous life led by the professional author in the time of Shakespeare. Born in London about 1570, Dekker first appears certainly as a dramatist about 1597, when we find him working on plays in collaboration with other dramatists in the pay of Henslowe. He wrote, in partnership or alone, many dramas; and when the market for these was dull, he turned to the writing of entertainments, occasional verses, and prose pamphlets on a great variety of subjects. No writer of the time gives us a more vivid picture of Elizabethan London. But all his activity seems to have failed to supply a decent livelihood, for he was often in prison for debt, at one time for a period of three years; and most of the biographical details about him which have come down to us are connected with borrowing money, or getting into jail or out of it. He disappears from view in the thirties of the seventeenth century.

In spite of the impression of gloom left by such a record, Dekker's plays abound in high spirits, and their general tendency in plot and characterization is same and wholesome. Evidences of hasty and careless workmanship are easily found, yet he was far from an uninspired hack, and passages of a noble and delicate poetry are frequent throughout his work.

JOHN MARSTON

John Marston came of an old Shropshire family, and was born, probably at Coventry, about 1575.
His father, who bore the same name, was lecturer of the Middle Temple, and there is evidence that the son was trained for the law. He entered Brasenose College, Oxford, in 1592, and, according to Bullen, graduated B. A. in 1594. His first work in poetry was his Metamorphosis of Pigmalions Image and Certain Satires, 1598; and later in the same year appeared his Scourge of Villany. In the following year both books were burned on account of their licentiousness by the order of the Archbishop of Canterbury, though Marston had professed a reformatory purpose in both. In 1609 he turned to play-writing; but the turgid style of his Antonio and Mellida and Antonio’s Revenge brought down on him the ridicule of Jonson in The Poetaster. The Malcontent was written during a period of reconciliation with Jonson, and in 1605 Marston collaborated with him and Chapman in Eastward Ho, a comedy containing a passage reflecting on the Scots, which landed all three dramatists in prison.

Marston gave up play-writing in 1607, and later became a clergyman. From 1616 to 1631 he held the living of Christ Church, Hampshire, and in 1634 died in London, and was buried in the Temple Church.

The extreme tendency to fustian which Jonson had attacked in Marston’s early work no longer appears to any great extent in The Malcontent, and the play exhibits favorably Marston’s capacity for the creation of well marked character and effective stage situations. An attempt has recently been made to show that he exerted a considerable influence on Shakespeare, especially in Hamlet.

THOMAS HEYWOOD

The early records of this, the most prolific of the dramatic writers of the time, are extremely scanty. The date of his birth is conjecturally placed about 1576, and he refers to himself as a native of Lincolnshire, and at one time resident at Cambridge. He begins to figure in Henslowe’s accounts in 1596, and he appears as a member of the Lord Admiral’s Company in 1598. He began writing plays with The Four Prentices of London, and in the Address to the Reader prefixed to his English Traveller (1633) he claims to have written or had a “main finger” in two hundred and twenty plays. Outside of the drama, he tried his hand at almost all sorts of literature, and the quality of his work is extremely uneven. He was still alive in 1646, but probably died soon thereafter.

Heywood’s characteristic power of eliciting powerful emotions by a sympathetic treatment of everyday conditions and events, is well illustrated by the play here printed. While much is perfunctory in his work, one constantly finds evidences of a genuine and pious spirit moved by a keen appreciation of the pathos of human life.

FRANCIS BEAUMONT

Francis Beaumont was born 1584, the son of Sir Francis Beaumont of Grace-Dieu, Leicestershire, a judge of the common pleas. He was educated at Broadgates Hall (now Pembroke College), Oxford, which he entered in 1597. On the death of his father in 1598, he left the university without a degree, and in 1600 became a member of the Inner Temple. The law, however, if he ever really studied it, was soon abandoned for poetry; and Beaumont became an intimate of Jonson and his circle at the Mermaid. His collaboration with Fletcher began early, and seems to have been brought about by personal preference, not, like most collaboration at that time, by the exigencies of the theatrical manager. Aubrey has preserved the tradition of their domestic intimacy and similarity of tastes. Their joint production seems to have begun about 1599, and there is no evidence that Beaumont wrote any plays after 1612. About 1613 he married, and three years later died and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

He had achieved a high contemporary reputation for his non-dramatic poetry, but he survives as a dramatist.

JOHN FLETCHER

John Fletcher came of a family which has given many distinguished names to English literature. His father was Richard Fletcher, Bishop of London. Giles Fletcher the elder was his uncle, and Giles and Phineas Fletcher his cousins. The dramatist was born at Rye, Sussex, in 1579, and entered Benet College (now Corpus Christi), Cambridge, in 1591; but of the details of his life from this time till his appearance as a dramatist little is known. He collaborated with Beaumont from about 1605 till 1612; and, after Beaumont’s withdrawal, with Shakespeare, Jonson, Massinger, and others. He died of the plague in 1625.

The men who laid the foundations of the Elizabethan drama were generally of somewhat obscure origin; and though some of them had been educated at the universities, they were all poor. Beaumont and Fletcher were the first recruits to the profession of play-writing who came of distinguished families and habitually moved in wealthy circles; and this social environment was early suggested as an explanation of their power of representing naturally the conversation of high-born ladies and gentlemen. The general style of their plays has been thus admirably characterized by Thorndike: “Their plots, largely invented, are ingenious and complicated. They deal with royal or noble persons, with heroic actions, and are placed in foreign localities. The conquests, usurpations, and passions that ruin kingdoms are their themes, there are no battles or pageants, and the action is usually confined to the rooms of the palace or its immediate neighborhood. Usually contrasting a story of groom sensuous passion with one of idyllic love, they introduce a great variety of incidents, and aim at constant but varied excitement. ... The plays depend for interest not on their observation or revelation of human nature, or the development of character, but on the variety of situations, the clever construction that holds the interest through one suspense to another up to the unravelling at the very end, and on the naturalness, felicity, and vigor of the poetry.”

JOHN WEBSTER

The dates 1580-1625 are usually given as conjectures for Webster’s birth and death, exact information being entirely lacking. His father was a member of the Merchant Taylors’ Company, of which the son was likewise a freeman; but this does not imply that he was actually a tailor. In 1602, we find him collaborating with seven others in the production of four plays for Henslowe, and the rest of his biography consists in the discussion of the dates of his works.

Webster’s tragedies come towards the close of the great series of tragedies of blood and revenge in which The Spanish Tragedy and Hamlet are landmarks, but before decadence can fairly be said to have set in. Webster, indeed, loads his scenes with horrors almost past the point which modern taste can bear; but the intensity of his dramatic situations, and his superb power of flashing in a single line a light into the recesses of the human heart at the crises of supreme emotion, redeem him from mere sensationalism, and place his best plays in the first rank of dramatic writing.

THOMAS MIDDLETON

The date of Middleton’s birth is unknown, but is conjecturally placed about 1570. He came of good family, and his writings indicate that he received a good education. We know, however, nothing about his early training before his entering Gray’s Inn, probably in 1593. His plays abound in allusions to law and pictures of lawyers.

The earliest evidence of his writing for the stage is in the date of The Old Law, which was probably composed by Middleton about 1597, and later revised by Massinger and W. Rowley. He was much employed in the writing of pageants and masques, especially by the city, and in 1621 he obtained the post of city chronologer. In 1624 he gave expression to the popular hatred of Spain in his allegorical play, A Game at Chess, which scored a great success, but which was ultimately suppressed at the instigation of the Spanish ambassador, and led to a warrant for Middleton’s arrest. He died in 1627.

In his comedies Middleton shows himself a keen observer of contemporary life and manners, and few writers of the time have left a more vivid picture of the London of James I. “His later plays,” says Herford, “show more concentrated as well as more versatile power. His habitual occupation with depraved types becomes an artistic method; he creates characters which fascinate without making the smallest appeal to sympathy, tragedy which harrows without rousing either pity or terror, and language which disdains charm, but penetrates by remorseless veracity and by touches of strange and sudden power.”

WILLIAM ROWLEY

William Rowley was born about 1585. He was an actor as well as a dramatist, and is sometimes confused with two other actors, Ralph and Samuel Rowley. In his earlier years he wrote some non-dramatic verse, mostly of a conventional kind. His most important work was done in collaboration with Middleton, with whom he worked from 1614, but he had many other literary partners. His verse is apt to be rough and irregular, his humor broad and rollicking rather than fine, his serious scenes tending to extravagance and bombast. But his constant employment to cooperate with greater men, or revise their work, points to a general serviceableness and a capacity for theatrical effectiveness. His death is conjecturally placed about 1642.

PHILIP MASSINGER

Philip Massinger was born at Salisbury, in November, 1583. His father was in the service of the Earls of Pembroke, and it has been conjectured that the future dramatist was named after the Countess’s brother, Sir Philip Sidney. He entered St. Alban Hall, Oxford, in 1602, and left four years later without a degree, having, according to Wood, “applied his mind more to poetry and romances than to logic and philosophy.” On coming to London he seems to have turned at once to writing for the stage; and, after Beaumont retired from play-writing, Massinger became Fletcher’s chief partner and warm friend. All Massinger’s relations with his fellow-authors of which we have record seem to have been pleasant; and the impression of his personality which one derives from his work is that of a dignified, hard-working, and conscientious man. He seems to have been much interested in public affairs, and he at times came into collision with the authorities on account of the introduction into his plays of more or less veiled allusions to political personages and events. He died in 1640, and was buried in St. Saviour's, Southwark, in the same grave, it is said by Cokayne, as his friend Fletcher.

Massinger's great merit lies in his masterly conduct of plot. His characters are usually of a somewhat conventional type, his pictures of passion tend to sheer extravagance, and his ethical quality has in it something mechanical. His verse is often eloquent, but the dialogue is often preposterously remote from life. Yet so skillful was he in the manipulation of the action that he usually holds the attention without difficulty; and in the present play this power is combined with a singularly forceful presentation of the main character and a fairly obvious didacticism that together kept the drama on the stage almost down to modern times.

JOHN FORD

John Ford was born at Ilsington in Devonshire in April, 1586, of good family. A man of his name entered Exeter College, Oxford, in 1601; but if this was our Ford, his stay was short, for he became a member of the Middle Temple in November, 1602. Of the rest of his career we know almost nothing, except the names of people to whom he dedicated his plays and verses. He disappears after the publication of his last play in 1639. He seems to have been a man of a somewhat melancholy temperament, independent in his attitude towards the public taste, and capable of espousing unpopular causes.

Ford's dramas show a tendency to deal with illicit and even incestuous love in a peculiar mood, the dramatist frequently creating strong sympathy for the tempted and the sinner, and leaving the question of guilt open. This, along with his fondness for the theatrical and the sensational, has led to his being frequently chosen as an example of the decadence of the drama. The charge is not to be denied; but in spite of these defects, he shows a power of insight into suffering and perplexity, and writes at times poetry of such beauty and tenderness, that he remains a figure of much intrinsic interest as well as historical importance.

JAMES SHIRLEY

James Shirley, often called "the last of the Elizabethans," was born in London in September, 1596, and was educated at Merchant Taylors' School and St. John's College, Oxford. Later he went to Catherine Hall, Cambridge, whence he graduated. About 1619 he took orders, and obtained a living at St. Albans, Hertfordshire; but resigned to enter the church of Rome, and became master of the St. Albans grammar school in 1633. His first play was licensed in 1625, and from this time till the closing of the theatres he devoted himself to the writing of plays and masques, gaining both popular success and the patronage of the court. With the outbreak of the Civil War, Shirley followed his patron, the Earl of Newcastle, to the field; but after Marston Moor he returned to London, published some of his earlier writings, and resumed teaching. Some of his plays were revived at the Restoration, but he wrote no more. He and his second wife were driven from their home by the fire of London in 1666, and both died from shock on the same day.

Shirley wrote many non-dramatic poems, graceful enough but conventional; few of them are read to-day. Out of nearly forty dramas, seven are tragedies, the rest chiefly romantic comedies and comedies of manners. He was a careful student of the work of his predecessors, and he reproduced many of their dramatic effects with skill. He had a distinct comic gift, and his power in tragedy may be judged by The Cardinal. With Shirley, more than with any of his fellow-playwrights, one feels the disadvantage of coming so late in the development of this phase of the drama that originality of conception seems almost impossible. That he is still able to amuse and to thrill with the old instruments is proof of his capacity as a literary workman; and he should not be denied the possession of passages where he displays touches of imagination all his own.

INDEX OF SONGS

Alack, alack, 386.
All ye that lovely lovers be, 26.
All ye woods, and trees, and bowers, 624.
And some they whistled, and some they sung, 537.
And where is your true love? Oh, where is yours, 536.
Arms and honours deck thy story, 674.
As you came from Walsingham, 522.
Begone, begone, my juggly, my puggy, 528.
Better music never was known, 533.
Bet ye't, or ere ye part (oh, cruel!), 516.
Can you paint a thought, or number, 782.
Cold's the wind, and wet's the rain, 389.
Come, my Celia, let us prove, 306.
Come, my Daphne, come away, 553.
Come no more there, boys, 536.
Come, shepherds, come, 603.
Come, you whose loves are dead, 532.
Comforts lasting, loves increasing, 786.
Cynthia, to thy power and thee, 672.
Der was een boren van Gelderland, 371.
Do not fear to put thy feet, 612.
Down, down they fall, 522.
Fools, they are the only nation, 288.
For Jillian of Berry, she dwells on a hill, 533.
From the honour'd dead I bring, 554.
Give him flowers e'en, palmer, 522.
Glories, pleasures, pomps, delights, and ease, 798.
Go from my window, love, go, 528.
Had old Hippocrates, or Galen, 296.
Hans's Song, 371.
Hark, how everything is still, 680.
Harvest-men's Song, 29.
He set her on a milk-white steed, 522.
He that doth his youth expose, 690.
Heigh-ho, farewell, Nan! 516.
Ho, ho, nobody at home! 533.
Hold back thy hours, dark Night, 572.
I come not hither for thee to teach, 529.
I could never have the power, 574.
I'd set mine old debts against my new driblets, 370.
I would not be a serving-man, 533.
If such danger be in playing, 537.
If you will sing, and dance, and laugh, 528.
It was a lady's daughter, 537.
Lay a garland on my hearse, 574.
Lo, here we come a-reaping, 29.
Maids of England, sore may you mourn, 133.
My Savoy lord, why dost thou frown on me? 644.
Nose, nose, jolly red nose, 615.
O, let us howl some heavy note, 678.
O, no more, no more, too late, 783.
O, the month of May, the merry month of May, 379.
Oh, the Mimon round, 536.
She cares not for her daddy, nor, 522.
Sing his praises that doth keep, 600.
Sing we, and chant it, 536.
Sweet love, pitty me, 725.
Tell me, dearest, what is love? 523.
The courtier's flattering jewels, 410.
The Dutchman for a drunkard, 478.
The First Three-men's Song, 379.
The Second Three-men's Song, 389.
Thou art welcome from Stygian lake so soon, 536.
'Tis mirth that fills the veins with blood, 521.
To bed, to bed! Come, Hymen, lead the bride, 572.
Trot the black bowl to me, 521.
Was never man, for lady's sake, 523.
Well met, pug, the pearl of beauty, 401.
When earth and seas from me are reft, 516.
When it was grown to dark midnight, 521.
When as the rye reach to the chin, 25.
Who can sing a merrier note, 533.
Who would fear that may destroy, 461.
Why, an if she be, what care I, 522.
Why, farewell he! 636.
With hey, trixy, terlery-whiskin, 537.
With that came out his paramour, 537.
You are no love for me, Margaret, 529.
You that would last long, list to my song, 297.
